VIENNA QUIET AS SOLDIERS STAND GUARD

Check Up Reveals 70 Dead, 300 Wounded In Red Riots — 10,000 Troops Brought to City.

Vienna, (Via Bratislava), July 18.—With more than seventy dead and 300 wounded, the Austrian government took vigorous measures today to prevent a recurrence of the rioting which, for a time, threatened to grow into a national revolution.

About 10,000 national troops are stationed in the suburbs and in some districts the police have begun to disarm the recalcitrants.

The city is quiet. Street cars and motor busses are running.

Government officials claim that all danger of civil war is past.

Deny Reports

Official denial is made of reports that foreign diplomats asked for intervention by foreign troops. It is admitted that intervention by any of Austria's neighbors might lead to grave international complications in Central Europe, for the uprising here has grown into more than a domestic problem.

Chancellor Seitz issued a communique promising to call Parliament into special session, but demanding that the Socialists allow freedom of debate without pressure.

Furthermore the Chancellor has promised tentative reorganization of the government in due course of time "so long as it is not carried out under pressure."

Both Chancellor Seitz and Burkomaster Seltz issued appeals to the public to help maintain law and order, promising an adjustment of the troubles.

Reason for Outbreak

The origin of the outbreak remains somewhat obscure. It is reported, however, that it was precipitated by a few hundred Communists who began shooting during a demonstration by Socialists in front of the Palace of Justice. A share of the blame is placed upon the Socialist Democrats, also.

Planes are flying at half mast in the workers' quarters and many houses are draped with mourning for the dead.

Funerals for the victims will be held on Wednesday afternoon, but strong military and police precautions will be taken to preserve order on that day.

It is too early to predict whether or not an attempt will be made to interfere with the "Austrian San-

U. S. ENVOY SHOT IN PUERTO, MEXICO

Consul William Chapman Meets Armed Mexican In Home; Assailant Escapes.

Washington, July 18.—William Chapman, American consul in Puerto Mexico, was shot in his home by an armed intruder early Sunday morning, according to a message received in the State Department today from the British vice consul there.

The report of the shooting said Chapman heard a noise in the kitchen and upon going to investigate was confronted by a Mexican who pointed a revolver at him. Chapman backed into the hall and the intruder followed, firing one shot which penetrated the consul's breast. He is injured seriously, though not necessarily fatally, the department's advisers said. The assailant escaped.

Chapman, 40 years old, was born in Mt. Pleasant, Ark., but his home is listed in State Department records as Allawu, Okla.

MEXICAN REPORT.

Mexico City, July 18.—United States Consul William Chapman, stationed in Puerto Mexico, was shot and probably injured fatally on Sunday morning, according to information received by the United States Embassy today from the British vice consul in Puerto Mexico.

The bullet entered the left side near the heart. The dispatch indicated that the attack had been made at the consul's home, but no definite details were given. Representations have been made to the Mexican government demanding the immediate arrest and punishment of the assailant or assassins.

The State Department in Washington has been notified. Chapman was transferred recently to Puerto Mexico from Torreón. He was under orders to co-operate in a campaign against rum runners who were operating out of Puerto Mexico.

Federal Officers Trying to Bottle Up Chief Source of Liquor Supply For Quar- ter of Nation.

Editorial Note:—Following is the first of a series of stories showing how the government is waging its fight to prevent rum runners from smuggling liquor into the United States from Canada. Lawrence Sullivan, N. S. staff correspondent, has been interviewing government officials, dry workers and others in a position to know what the rum-runners are doing. Other stories will follow daily.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN

Detroit, Mich., July 18.—After seven and a half years of losing battle with border rum-running, federal prohibition forces in the Detroit area have again launched a determined attack along the eighty-mile international front between Port Huron, Michigan, and Toledo, Ohio, in a desperate effort to bottle up the chief source of liquor supply for more than a quarter of the country.

W. D. Moss, prohibition commissioner for Michigan and Ohio, has been in Detroit for three days mapping out the new drive in consultation with T. B. Williams, the deputy commissioner for the Detroit district. Moss says the job can be done.

West City in U. S. "Detroit is the wettest city in the United States; Detroit does not want prohibition."

These are the words flung into the teeth of enforcement officials from the endless rows of busy yachts operated by American "exporters" on the Canadian side of the Detroit river. For more than 20 miles this narrow stream, always placid, is all that lies between apparently limitless supplies of il-

BRITAIN PLANS TO PUT BLAME UP TO THE U. S.

Maneuvers At Conference So That If Arms Cut Parley Fails America Will Seem To Be Responsible.

Geneva, July 18.—American counter-proposals will be offered to the Anglo-Japanese suggestions for a naval disarmament agreement as part of a secret meeting of the chief delegates to the Tri-Partite Conference.

Several of the Anglo-Japanese proposals are unacceptable to the United States. It is not planned to reject them flatly but to offer counter-proposals.

The situation has now become delicate and observers agree that Great Britain has maneuvered the conference where, if it fails, the burden of blame will seem to rest upon the United States.

After the secret meeting today, a communique was issued stating that conversations have been proceeding with a view to reconciling the British and Japanese viewpoints and "progress has been made which is sufficiently encouraging to warrant further examination of the matter in detail."

Anglo-Jap Plan

In general Anglo-Japanese understanding is said to be based on an agreement for a cruiser tonnage of 500,000 tons for the United States and Great Britain and the limitation of 8-inch guns on cruisers under 7,500 tons.

The American delegation is understood to have received these proposals with more than reserve.

Observers here declare that the Anglo-Japanese compromise has placed the United States delegates in an embarrassing position since Hugh Gibson in the plenary session last week had stated that the United States could probably adjust itself to any compromise that Great Britain and Japan could make.

Major Objections

The major objections of the United States are understood to be directed at a proposal that a certain proportion of old cruisers be "re-med" in sea after they are replaced and that there be parity in submarine tonnage between Great Britain and Japan, and the United States, this tonnage being fixed at approximately 70,000 tons each.

The Japanese agreement to accept a limitation of armament on cruisers of 7,500 tons and less to six inch guns came as a considerable surprise to the American delegates, who had anticipated that the Japanese would stand with them in opposing such a suggestion.

Have Not Eaten Since Satur- day—Gov. Fuller Continues His Investigation.

Boston, Mass., July 18.—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted and sentenced to the electric chair for murder, today were on a hunger strike at Charlestown state prison in protest against the methods employed by Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, who is investigating their cases.

Vanzetti started his food strike Saturday, partaking of practically no nourishment over the week-end. Sacco had refused food since yesterday morning, it was learned.

NO ONE TO MEET BOSTON RUNNER

New Yorkers Thought He Was Affected by the Heat—Re- porters Get Him Clothing.

New York, July 18.—William H. Busch, 21, prepared to return to Boston today, convinced that the big city isn't all it's cracked up to be, busy slumming and a placard reading: "The Spirit of Charles-town."

While bystanders opined it was the heat and humidity, Busch explained he had just finished running the 250 miles from Boston to New York, making the jaunt in honor of City Councilman Tom Breen, of Charlestown, Mass.

Numerous promises were made him, including the keys to the city, a welcoming committee, a reception with brass bands, some clothes and a square meal. His backers, however, apparently had overlooked arranging the details at this end.

Newspapers took pity on the runner and fitted him out with clothes.

CHENEYS ANNOUNCE CONTROL CHANGES

Charles Cheney Gives State- ment to Herald Today About Administration.

The following statement was issued to The Herald this morning by Charles Cheney, president of Cheney Brothers:

"Announcement is made of important changes in the administrative organization of Cheney Brothers."

"The business of the company consists of various departments which have heretofore been operated and controlled with a large degree of independence one from the other. Each department head has had a very large degree of separate responsibility for the conduct of all pertaining to his particular branch of the industry, so that the effect of a vertical control is to the detriment of the company as a whole. It is planned to establish in place of this old vertical control a new form of horizontal or functional control, in which executives will be assigned not to the direction of a particular department but to the exercise of various functions in common to all. This does not imply anything in the nature of what is known as a reorganization of the company. It will be under the control of the same Board of Directors and the same Board of Officers."

COP KILLS WOMAN THEN SHOOTS SELF

He Is Dying—Says She Fired Shots—Witnesses Tell Different Story.

New York, July 18.—A charge of homicide was placed today against Patrolman Walter Sherman, fifty, following a shooting in which a woman was killed, and the policeman was wounded critically. All shots were fired from his own revolver.

The dead woman is Mrs. Christina Quinlan, 45, Sharland, hovering between life and death in Columbus hospital, admitted quarreling with her.

The homicide charge resulted in an investigation by detectives who questioned two women witnesses, the superintendent of the apartment where the woman lived, and Sharland himself in his short period of consciousness.

The tragedy occurred when one of Mrs. Quinlan's woman friends turned to run for the police, and another covered, terrified, in an adjacent room.

Mrs. Mildred Grover told police she saw Sharland draw his revolver, just as she started for help. Then a shot rang out, and she heard Mrs. Quinlan shriek.

"My God, it's gone right through me," she said.

At Columbus hospital, however, Sharland emerged from a coma and told police Mrs. Quinlan did the shooting after wrestling his weapon from him.

Sharland lapsed again into unconsciousness. Hospital attendants said he had little chance to live, and would be blind permanently, if he did.

NEW YORK WELCOMES TRANS OCEAN FLIERS

U. S. MARINES WITH PLANES BEAT REBELS

Cornered By Nicaraguans They Are Helped By Ma- chine Gunners on Planes; 50 Killed, 250 Wounded.

Managua, Nicaragua, July 18.—United States marine reinforcements are marching towards Ocotual today, where a sharp battle was fought on Saturday between some two score marines, supported by fifty native constables, and a band of several hundred rebels under the leadership of General Sandino.

There have been difficulties for several weeks with General Sandino who has refused to lay down arms, and the efforts of the marines to enforce disarmament resulted in the battle on Saturday when it is estimated that the marines, and their native supporters, killed some fifty rebels and wounded 250 others. One marine was killed and another wounded.

Planes Aid Marines
Marine aeroplanes came to the aid of the men attacked by the rebels and much of the burden of the fighting is said to have been borne by five pilots and their machine-gunners. They swooped over the rebels, who had the small band of marines cornered, and cut down the attackers with a rain of machine-gun bullets.

Aerial observers returning here report great bravery on the part of the defending marines and they also declare that the rebel dead and wounded have been left on the battlefield without attention. Efforts are being made to send out relief trains from here to care for the wounded and carry out burial work.

Byrd, Acosta, Noville, Balchen and Chamberlin Receive Official Reception—Slight Rain Scatters Crowd; Not As Much Enthusiasm As When Lindbergh Returned; Aviators Receive Medals From Mayor Walker—Byrd Pays Tribute to His Brave Companions.

New York, July 18.—Five of the seven men who have flown from America to Europe in one hop returned today to find that New York bias.

Commander Richard E. Byrd, and his three companions, Clarence Chamberlin, Bert Balchen and George Noville, were received with official pomp and ceremony, on their arrival, but the wild spirit of acclaim with which Col. Lindbergh, the first man to fly to Paris, was greeted, was distinctly missing.

Apparently trans-Atlantic flying is an accepted every day fact to the multitude, and is no longer a feat which calls for great rejoicing.

As the official reception began in front of the City Hall, where the fliers, Byrd, Bert Acosta, George Noville, Bert Balchen and Chamberlin, were greeted by Mayor Walker, a slight rain began to fall, almost completely emptying the stands, which had been partly filled with spectators.

The crowds lining the sidewalks dispersed, and the scene hardly differed from that of any rainy afternoon in New York.

Get Medals.
A few score persons, mostly officials, who were forced to remain by the call of duty, huddled about the reviewing stand as Mayor Walker pinned the city's medals of honor on the fliers' breasts. The men applauded politely, instead of throwing their hats in the air as they did for Lindbergh, and the women waved sodden handkerchiefs instead of screaming themselves hoarse.

By the time the general hand-shaking was over, and the medals had been pinned on, the square was almost deserted, but the reviewing stands failed to affect the fliers or their welcomes. The ceremonies were carried through on schedule, the speakers using an almost conversational tone, the rebels no need to make their voices carry.

DIFFICULT MATTER TO TAKE OFF NAME

Hartford, Conn., July 18.—Many things must be taken into consideration before a person's name can be removed from a town's voting list, according to an opinion by Attorney General Ailing, furnished registrar Albert P. Stark of Bristol today.

The latter asked how long it was necessary to carry a voter's name when the voter had left the city. The attorney general replied, in part:

"In passing upon the question of residence, the present physical location of the party must be considered; if unknown, this fact alone is not sufficient to exclude his name. In addition, the registrar must take into account whether or not the voter has a present dwelling place in the city and if he sends his mail to it, the circumstances of his leaving and from this information determine whether or not he will with the intent of returning."

Broadway Crowded
Broadway, from the Battery to City Hall, was crowded with enthusiastic admirers of the fliers, but the jam was by no means as great as that which occurred when Lindbergh returned to New York. The crowds were more orderly, there

BUY PROPERTY FROM ROCK MILL

Right of Way Sold This Morning—Several Accidents Reported.

(Special to The Herald.)
 Rockville, July 18.—A deed was today issued by the Rock Manufacturing Company conveying to John K. Neiley and wife land that joins their property, which is located on Brooklyn street. The deed shows that the land is but a small portion, almost triangular in shape and the most interesting part of the deed is the fact that it is land which has been owned by the Rock Manufacturing Company since 1821, or 106 years in their possession. It was signed by Frederick Swindell as president and special agent for the company.

The new owners have bought the property in order to secure a right of way or sufficient land over which to drive as they wished to straighten out their lines and also allow for the building of private garages in the rear of their property. The property purchased is of little value to the Rock Company and in no way affects anything that might be considered in the sale of the property in small sections.

Automobile Hits Trolley.
 As a result of a collision with a Stafford-Rockville trolley car Saturday evening at Tolland avenue John Plapek was arrested on the charge of reckless driving and is to be given a hearing Tuesday. Plapek was driving towards Rockville and did not notice the car, which was in charge of Robert Warner as motorman and Daniel Sweeney as conductor. The automobile was not so badly broken up but what it can be repaired.

Two Cars "Dead."
 Two cars went dead during the storm Saturday, both on the Rockville-Stafford line. One of the cars was struck and the brakes were frozen causing a delay of about a half an hour. In another case the motor was out of commission. Both cars were carrying heavy loads at the time, but none of the passengers were injured.

Power Off.
 To add further trouble to the transportation on all of the system one of the high tension lines was struck and the power was off all over the division for the better part of twenty minutes.

Trouble in Ellington.
 The rain yesterday afternoon kept several of the tobacco workers in their boarding places on Ellington plantations and liquor was used as one of the methods to pass away the day. Late in the afternoon there was trouble and the arrest of three of the men followed. They were brought to Rockville police headquarters and locked up during the night. They are to be taken to Ellington this evening for trial before a justice court in that town.

Auto vs. Trolley.
 Slippery road conditions following yesterday afternoon's rain was responsible for a collision between a trolley car that was traveling on Union street and an auto that was coming out of Village street. The wet road would not allow the driver of the automobile to stop in time and the automobile was turned over.

Nobody was injured and after an investigation in which it was shown that the accident was unavoidable. No arrests were made.

Wants Support Money.
 Because of the absence from the city of Probation Officer Frank Condon both Prosecuting Attorney D. J. McCarthy and Captain of Police Stephen Tobin had special sessions with a woman who has been expecting weekly payments from her husband on the order of the court in a non-support case. The women in her first complaint succeeded in having her husband sent to jail. After being in jail for a time he was released on his agreement to pay a weekly amount to his wife through the probation officer. The probation officer is out of the city and the husband sent to jail. After being in jail for a time he was released on his agreement to pay a weekly amount to his wife through the probation officer. The matter seems to have now reached a stage where action will probably be taken resulting in the husband being returned to jail for his lack of appreciation of the consideration that has been shown him by the court.

New House Started.
 Ground was broken this morning for the erection of a cottage type of house to be erected for Dr. J. Ralph Morin on land owned by him on Windsor avenue. This is well towards the west line of the city limits and is in a section that seems to be showing the most activity in building lines in the city.

After a long illness and a brave and uncomplaining resistance during a period of many months, Edward F. Dwyer died at his home, No. 30 William street, at 11:30 o'clock yesterday.

Critically ill since early in the present year, it was known to his friends and acquaintances that his recovery was a matter of grave doubt. Yet while the announcement of his passing away was in a measure not unexpected, the news of his death comes as no less of a shock and cause for deep sorrow to the hosts of friends of this young man all over town.

Ill a Long Time.
 Mr. Dwyer followed his customary occupation in the electrical department of Cheney Brothers until late last fall, when he was confined to his home by illness. At times the news from the sick room was encouraging, but for many weeks it was apparent that he could not get well. To the numerous inquiries of his loyal friends, who were constantly mindful of his illness and solicitous for his recovery, but little hope could be offered.

AN ILLUSTRATION

Elsewhere in this issue appears a letter signed by W. S. Shipman and S. G. Bowers, committee of the First or Oakland School District, taking exception to the report of Dr. LeVerne Holmes, school physician, bearing on sanitary conditions at the First District schoolhouse.

The letter is interesting as an able defense of the Oakland district situation, but more especially so in view of its obvious relation to the broader idea of school consolidation. According to the statement of the committee members, who certainly should be in a position to know, it is probable that the total number of pupils attending the little First District school will not exceed ten next year.

Now if there were any question about ten children, out of the whole of Manchester's population, being deprived of opportunity for education in the event of the First District going out of existence, then the separate maintenance of such a district would be, we should think, a matter to be fought for to the last gasp. We should say that the same would be true if there were only two children—or one.

But the perpetuation of a separate district organization for the care of ten children, in a town which has to provide educational facilities for approximately five thousand boys and girls, is about as good business as it would be for the J. W. Hale Company to maintain a separate store for the sale of hooks and eyes.

Improvements which the school physician declares to be essential for the safety and health of the pupils of the First district would require, according to the school committee, expenditures amounting to two or three hundred dollars per pupil to be accommodated. It is small wonder that the committee is inclined to balk at such an outlay when the taxing power of the district is as impaired as it is.

But this is what comes of a system of separate school districts. If the maintenance of a separate school in the First district is necessary, as it perhaps is, even for the welfare of only ten pupils, the cost could much more fairly be born by the town as a whole than by the handful of taxpayers who now have to stand it. Spread out thin over the grand list of the whole municipality, the expenditures demanded at the Oakland school would make only an infinitesimal difference in the general school budget. Slapped onto the First District alone they become a serious, almost grisly problem, which produces manifestations of the fighting spirit.

This is perhaps as good an illustration as any of the awkwardness and costliness of the separate district system. It differs from other examples, constantly arising, only in degree.

MR. HOOVER'S LETTER

In a letter to this newspaper which is printed today Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover refers to an editorial appearing in the Herald some time ago which commented on the organization of a credit corporation for the benefit of the food sufferers. Against our will we are driven to the conclusion that the distinguished secretary of commerce did not spend a great deal of time mulling over the Herald article, for his letter explaining the operation of the credit corporation hits some other fellow—not us.

States. It was and is our idea that not only the re-establishment of credit but the meeting of the losses was a matter for the immediate attention of Congress. That the Secretary of the Treasury and the Red Cross have done marvels it would be worse than idiotic to deny. That the government as a whole did its full duty toward the food tragedy we do not believe.

VIENNA

It took a few hours for the Vienna riots to germinate, develop and bear their fruit of death and destruction. It may take months for the rest of the world, outside of Austria, to learn just what brought about the trouble. It is not safe to accept at face value the apparent cause—that a minority of reds had plotted to seize the government and follow the example of Russia by the organization of a soviet regime.

Back in the shadows of the Vienna tragedy lurks the intangible figure of Fascism. It was impossible that the old Austria could pass without the survival of much of the spirit of the most autocratic and reactionary class in Europe. There was no capital on that continent so absolutely committed to the theory of class privilege and power as Vienna. The remnants of that theory have always been present, through all the miseries and deprivations of the war debacle and reconstruction. They have been taking form of late in the growth of Fascism.

GASTON

In the passing of William A. Gaston the Massachusetts Democracy loses its perpetual Santa Claus. Without any distinguished genius for politics, Colonel Gaston nevertheless had a passion for the political game. His father had been governor of Massachusetts and mayor of Boston and it is possible that his devotion to the Democracy of his state may have been regarded by him as a filial duty. At all events he was always prominent in the councils of the party, always ready to become its nominee for whatever job needed a candidate, and always ready to loosen his purse strings. Nobody knows how much money Colonel Gaston poured into the pockets of the little willing workers of the Massachusetts Democracy from time to time but it must have totaled a stupendous sum.

No Bay State aristocrat of modern times ever got so many cheers from the roughnecks of South Boston, the South End and Charlestown as William A. Gaston. And nobody was ever more enthusiastically slaughtered by them on election day.

When Boston assembles her Democratic cohorts to march to the next Democratic National convention to howl for Al Smith, the banker-Democrat will be sadly missed. Either the boys will have to pay their own fares or the Hub Democrats will have to find a new angel.

FORTUNE FAVORS

An editorial in this newspaper on Saturday, written before the crack-up of Aviator Smith's plane on the island of Molokai, treated the flight, on the basis of a little earlier reports, as a "disaster" and pointed out that the average "run of luck" was against the success of the expedition. How narrowly it escaped being right is shown by a moment's reflection. The last drop of gasoline in the plane's tanks sufficed to bring the machine down, by sheer good fortune, on dry land, a speck in the ocean.

Of all the trans-oceanic ventures that have been accompanied by luck in its most spectacular form, that of the Smith plane has been exceeded only by the amazing adventure of Aviator Alcock and a companion who flopped into the middle of the North Atlantic, years ago, and were rescued by a fishing vessel which, by merest chance, stumbled over them.

ALL TOGETHER!

It ought to take New York at least a couple of days to voice its self expression with relation to the five ocean fliers who arrived at that city today. Then, if present plans go through, it should have a full day in which to get its wind in preparation to Capt. F. T. Courtney and his companions, who should arrive on the first westward flight across the ocean some time on Thursday. Europe has become somewhat accustomed to seeing planes come out of the west and land on its shores after negotiating the Atlantic air spaces, but America has yet to experience the sensation of witnessing the completion of a trans-oceanic flight. In that respect we are a cut

LEGION GIFT

It is probable that many occurrences in this state over the weekend will be regarded by the majority of its people as of more immediate interest than the gift of a 210 acre forest tract on the Farmington river to the state by the American Legion of Connecticut. Yet it is doubtful if anything did really take place, during the entire week, that was of more real importance.

Not only is every such tract given to the state government destined to prove of inestimable value in the future, but the gift provides a concrete proof of the concern with which the American Legion, as a body, regards the whole stupendous problem of reforestation.

If hundreds of thousands of young men are beginning to look upon that problem as one of the vital interests of Americans the fight against deforestation is half won at the start. There is no agency in the country with such great potential power for any reform, no matter what, as the Legion. It is a matter to be immensely grateful for that it has interested itself in trees.

New York, July 18.—The ancients believed in the infallibility of their oracles. Life courses were charted by the whistlings of the gods. Broadway, some thousands of years later, clings to superstitions similar in nature and has the greatest faith in their operation.

would be a flop. Invariably it was so. One time Tyrone Powers was presenting "The Wandering Jew." Lester liked the performance so well he wanted to be in it. He wanted on the stage. By way of punishment he was sent to the country estate of an actor. The play, which up to that moment had been a success, began to flop. Lester was recalled.

When, during the past season, Lester strolled out on the stage on the opening night of "Honey-moon Lane," he was rewarded with an extra portion of hamburger. The show had one of the heaviest runs of the season. A season ago A. L. Erlanger, the producer, put Lester on the payroll. His income was $1 per week and his managers used this to buy choice cuts of meat.

In one Broadway theater the presence of a veteran doorman at rehearsals is almost demanded. His failure to be there presages disaster. One of the outstanding successes of last season showed a hooper crossing himself before he stepped into a cabaret with a new act. This is a common practice, used almost entirely by non-Catholics.

The success of a certain dancer was attributed to the fact that one slipper was loosely tied. When she kicked it flew off into the audience. The accident gave the spectators a large laugh. Thereafter she kicked off a slipper at almost every performance.

Hoover Tells Herald About Flood Credits

Secretary of Commerce Explains Creation of the Emergency Loan Corporation; Reviews Relief Work.

The Editor, Manchester Herald, Manchester, Connecticut.

Dear Sir:—My attention has been called to a recent editorial in your esteemed journal commenting upon the creation of the Emergency Loan Corporation in the Mississippi flood states to the general import that funds should be provided as gifts, not as loans. As I believe this arises from our failure to secure a full understanding of the purposes of these loan funds I have thought that upon explanation you perhaps would be willing to correct any misrepresentation. Every flood victim has been clothed and, upon return home, is being supplied with seed, implements, furniture and animals where necessary. But, beyond these direct gifts, we were confronted with certain financial questions which we felt did not belong in the realm of public charity. These situations are of three orders.

There were banks in the flooded territory of total deposits of over $35,000,000. It appeared to us that while these banks were fully solvent, the lack of confidence in the situation after the withdrawal of the flood might lead to runs or other jeopardy to these banks, and therefore great sacrifice to depositors, who were the actual flood sufferers. We felt that some definite step must be taken to maintain confidence. We were also confronted with the fact that fully half of the agricultural land in the flooded territory is in the form of large plantations, the owners of which normally borrow the money with which to carry on agricultural operations. We felt, and it has been proved the case, that the volume of credit in the flooded territory was much impaired by the flood, and that if we were to prevent abandonment of these large plantations, a supplementary avenue of credit. The plantation owners did not want to receive charity, nor did we feel it was a proper draft upon the nickles and dimes subscribed throughout the United States that we should give gifts to people who, except for difficulties of credit, are entirely able to take care of themselves.

There are a number of industries in the flooded regions, from which a considerable portion of the population obtain their livelihood. Their credit was impaired, in many cases their entire working capital wiped out. We did not believe that it would be a just and wise thing to make gifts to sawmill owners, barrel manufacturers, etc., for purposes of operating their industries, but that it was vital that we should restore their reopening in order to restore employment.

The Emergency non-profit Loan Corporation was formed to take loans that would be more remarkable than would normally be justified in the ordinary course of business.

It might add that the emergency rehabilitation work has been done in every village, the credit of the small landowner and the owner of 200 acres, and that all business in town or country have been supplied with food and feed supplies for an initial period of three weeks after returning to their homes; and, in cases of farmers with seed, with a minimum of animals and agricultural implements. And we are in course of rebuilding and repairing destroyed houses. All of this program is of necessity from charity.

The result of the Emergency Credit Corporation has been a complete restoration of confidence in the banks. It has prevented the financial difficulties of planters, and it has secured the restart of numerous small industries. Had we failed to erect this safeguard, we not only should have had an economic debacle throughout the territory, but we should have greatly expanded the demand for charity far beyond the funds which are available to us. As it stands, you may be interested in a summary of the situation which I recently prepared.

The sufferers of the flood are grateful to you for the interest that you have taken in their welfare and I greatly appreciate the support which I have received from the whole American people in the provision of funds with which to administer the problem.

HERBERT HOOVER, Dept. of Commerce, Washington, July 14.

FLOOD SITUATION (Statement by Herbert Hoover)

We are now (July 11) far enough along in the reconstruction work following the flood to permit a fair estimation of the situation. Of the 58,000 people who were dependent upon public support, all but 35,000 have returned home. We are therefore rapidly demobilizing the camp organization, having already discharged the force and engaged in rescue work. Two hundred and fifty thousand people are being temporarily supplied with food in their homes and feed for the animals while they are getting started again.

The rehabilitation work is moving rapidly. The county committees are furnishing seed, household goods, implements, work animals, cattle and chickens and are engaged in the repair of buildings and the construction of small houses to cover the people. These services are given to the destitute only and are based upon needs for return to self-support and not upon loss. Of the 101 flooded counties in the whole valley, 59 are sufficiently out

5,000 volunteers and Federal and State employees. The total Red Cross overhead has been less than $200,000. Full accounting and auditing services have been set up and detailed reports of expenditures will be published.

About $8,000,000 Left
After covering these outlays, and after the allotment of funds for the completion of rehabilitation in the 59 counties which are well on the road to recovery, and after setting aside the necessary amount to take care of the 22 counties which will soon be in that position, and after allowing a margin to provide for the care of the 20 counties which are still flooded until the end of October, we have left approximately $3,000,000 from the Red Cross fund.

This will give security against any unforeseen events between now and October, but we hope to conserve it to apply upon such needs for the 20 hardest hit counties as develop after the end of October.

We have reinforced the health organization in the flood territory by the creation of health units for each county, which will be supported to the extent of $1,600,000 from various sources and which will undertake a vigorous campaign against malaria and other transmitted diseases during the next 18 months.

Adequate legislation for flood control promptly upon the completion of engineers' plans will be a major contribution toward rehabilitation of flood sufferers, through the confidence it will re-establish in the future of the flooded region.

The spirit of the people is steadily rising. They are working hard and making a good fight to come back. They are full of gratitude for the aid they have received from the American public through the Red Cross and from the government and state agencies.

We have decentralized the rehabilitation organization upon a state and county basis. The state reconstruction commissions appointed by the governors, the emergency agricultural loan corporations, the Red Cross agencies, the agricultural department, and the Public Health Services are combined through county reconstruction committees and are functioning with great devotion and ability. We are now moving the general staff office of the Red Cross and federal agencies from New Orleans to Washington. The organization is now upon a sufficiently routine basis to permit my attention to pressing matters in the department of Commerce.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

This is chapter 88 of the series of articles written by an ex-soldier who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Herald.

CHAPTER LXXXIII

Iranie Dumanchin has a story of the super-valiant huntsman of the A. E. F. that he loves to tell. The extraordinary nimrod was a colonel of infantry, stationed at Courcelles, near Langres, France, and the sad part is that Iranie has forgotten his name.

Anyway, this colonel, early in 1919, discovered that the semi-mountainous region was inhabited by wild boars, and decided to indulge in a bit of the sport that has been famous through the ages. So he secured a rifle, asked Iranie to be his guide and put 150 of his private soldiers on the detail. The attack was scheduled for 8 a. m. and the plan of operation as mapped out by the colonel was carried out with soldierly precision.

The colonel picked out an eminence and instructed his 150 helpers to dash through the forest, beating about with clubs and uttering wild yells. Their drive was to focus on his location. The plan worked perfectly. The men came on, ballyhooing like demons, from all points of the compass. The colonel, very cool and calm, stood with his gun in position. As the circle of soldiers narrowed the boars began to scurry past and the colonel knocked off six in a period of less than ten minutes. It was a tremendously successful shoot. When the official barrage was spent, the men swept on up, picking up the carcasses and the party returned. That night the officers' mess was a feast.

The next day the word spread around with the result that many of the soldiers who had participated in the sanguinary drive should to get a few wild boar chops for themselves.

The chase is ended. But their ideas were wrong. For almost immediately, typewriters at headquarters began to click and orders rushed around to the various billets with copies of an order which they placed in conspicuous places. The order read: "Complaints have been made by the mayor of Courcelles about American soldiers hunting in the vicinity with no regard for French Hunting Regulations. Request that hereafter no soldier be permitted to hunt except by permission from the mayor and then accompanied by French civilians."

THIS HAS HAPPENED Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARBERY, an American girl owning considerable property near the little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil...

NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER XLIII

"GOT that ceremony from the Incas, too, probably," Vilak muttered as he turned his head to look at the old man lying on the stone two feet away.

These were the last words he spoke for hours.

Just before sunset this pavilion was the center of another procession. Elise, garbed in a robe of brilliantly woven wool...

For half an hour the court was once more deserted. The prisoners had been given no food during the day; now one of the hideously painted priests brought them wine...

At a command from Batalagos the dance ceased. A fowl, a wild pig and two oxen were laid upon the altar-like stone, killed with a knife, and their hearts thrown into the crackling fire.

He saw below him the face of the Indian whom he had saved from the fiery tortures of Delto Cicero.

forward, each holding aloft a spear. On each spear was a dried, shriveled human head. The soldiers fixed their burdens like standards in two rows on each side of the open-mouthed idol.

Now a native with a particularly ferocious face was swung down near Vilak and made fast to another one of the seven stones, where he lay alternately screaming with terror and pleading piteously with his captors.

"This poor devil near us is a murderer," Vilak whispered to the old man. "I got that from what he said when he was begging for mercy. This pantomime is a favorite custom of savages. They're showing now how he committed the murder. Stabbed his friend in the back while they were out hunting."

At a command from Batalagos the dance ceased. A fowl, a wild pig and two oxen were laid upon the altar-like stone, killed with a knife, and their hearts thrown into the crackling fire.

The Portuguese shrugged his shoulders. "You will not speak with me, cavalheiro? Ah, it is not must be so then must it be. You think that Carlos D'Albentara is cruel, do you not, cavalheiro? That he loves blood like the vampire bats who fly in the night. Yet is this not so. Not so. Rather does he hate blood, hate death. They are like mud, like wounds upon the face of a beautiful woman. They make life not pretty. Though he must cause you to die in the same way and do other things which may be yet more evil, it is not because he so wishes. No, it is always because of this miserable..."

He strode off. A few moments later Batalagos rose pompously from his stone seat, waited until the seething worshippers before him had become silent, then grunted a short oration. He clapped his hands. A litter was brought in again and put down near the altar. A great shout went up from the spectators. A man was lifted from the litter and put down on one of the stones. "There's Prentiss, the Almighty," grunted Vilak. A moment later as the priest took another figure from the litter, he added quietly: "And there's Tinky."

A figure came creeping toward Vilak, then scuttled back into the shadows. The baby began to cry; ceased quickly. Vilak craned his head to see it. He could not. He could, however, distinguish the form of Prentiss on the other side of the altar. Even by the firelight he could see that the feverish, half-mad gleam which had hitherto marked the child's eyes had vanished; his skin no longer had its pallid, death-like appearance; his face, though still wasted and gaunt and still bearing the strange tattooed triangles, was the face of a normal man.

The shadowy figure crept forward once more, once more vanished. Vilak lay motionless, silent. Again his eyes became the slanted eyes of a Chinese philosopher. Again the thin film like a bird's inner eyelid crept out from the corner to half cover the dull pupils. Suddenly the clay wine-bowl at his side cracked and fell noisily to the ground. The soldier came running; muttered a curse. A priest swiftly brought another bowl, and returned to the temple from which he had come.

Vilak drew a quick breath. With a jagged fragment of the vessel he had just broken he began sawing at the things which bound his wrists. The edge was no keener than a dull knife. But even a dull knife cuts vigorously with pressure behind it; soon a thin gap appeared halfway through the tough leather.

When he was preparing to begin anew, when the figure which had twice before crept forward only to disappear now crawled to the shadows of the stone on which he lay. He turned his head; saw below him the face of the Indian with the flet teeth whom he had saved from the fiery tortures of Delto Cicero in the jungle behind his house in Porto Verde.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

The gentle art known as "toady-ing" was, given a solar plexus whack by one Mrs. Henry R. Rathbone, president of the Illinois League of American Penwomen, a few days ago. The annual election luncheon of the year was being held in Chicago. A special ballyhooed attraction had been the fact that Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, with 10 guests, would attend. Came the appointed hour, but no Mrs. Mc. The luncheon cooled, and still no Mrs. Mc. When an hour went on with no word from Mrs. Mc., the meeting came to order. Mrs. Mc. was nominated and elected honorary president of the state chapter for the next year.

Got Mad! But the president objected. She said that she could not work in a room with a woman who had so little interest in the association that she did not keep her appointments. Mrs. Rathbone, the president, said she would have to resign if she insisted on electing Mrs. McCormick. They did insist almost unanimously, and she did resign, saying that she was "through" with women's clubs, and thoroughly disgusted. I don't blame her for either opinion.

"War Babies!" School children of Europe are coming home from school crying because their schoolmates derisively call them "War Babies." War babies are supposed to be dumber than children born in less hectic times. They are supposed to have been victims of bad pre-natal care, undernourished, terrified; hence, sluggish of mind, also, and the resulting derisive term of "war baby!" Science, however, says that this is only a popular fancy; and that "war babies" are as sturdy and smart as any children.

Whether they are or aren't, what a perfect symbol this taunting of such children is of "man's inhumanity to man." We begin our cruelties to one another almost in the very cradle.

Good-Bye, 8-Day Clock! No longer will Pa or Ma need to wind the clock. Electrically wound time is without these days. Sometimes the additional luxuries of life get a bit confusing. Just last week I spent three noon hours shopping for this and that for the radio, and that for the electric victrola and one can imagine the electricity-wound clock going blooey and one standing in line at a repair window to hand in the clock inwards for repair. Life might be almost endurable were it not for its conveniences and luxuries!

Give a Guess The woman whom a jury of her peers deems to have achieved most for America the past year will be announced to the country late this summer. One year this woman was an artist to work undisturbed by home surroundings. Another year it was a woman who had combated the drug evil. This year? Who would you pick? Here's guessing that some "seven million" will suggest Mrs. Eva Lindbergh, because of what she achieved through her courageous son, Colonel Charles.

DOUBLE CHINS

A Simple and Effective Method to Reduce Them

Stroking away the double chin—hand over hand, always with a downward motion. Posed for NEA Service by Louise Clerc, one of "America's fifteen most beautiful women."

Makes Girls More Attractive

Wrong posture as well as sagging muscles cause double chins. Watch your posture first, keep your head straight with the chin in straight line too. Do not massage the double chin unless you have expert knowledge of the fine muscles there. Take the following treatment: Tilt the head backward with the chin protruded. Beginning at the chin, stroke downward, first with one hand, then the other, slowly at first, and then more rapidly. Then, with head still tilted, slap the double chin with the back of the hand, or patter, a dozen times. Then, apply the following compress: Dampen epsom salts with a little water and strap the compress onto the chin with a chin strap. Leave half an hour. Remove and wash with astringent. While reducing a double chin, use strong astringent daily so that the skin will tighten up rather than sag.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, July 18.—Some folks with nothing better to do have spread around the word that the Federal Children's Bureau, which is part of the federal government, was bolshevistic, and communistic.

Investigation appears to disprove the charge and to make one wonder why in the world the Red-busters ever picked on the Children's Bureau.

The fact seems to be that the estimable woman who operate the bureau has incurred the displeasure of certain interests by their support of the child labor amendment and the Sheppard-Towner maternity act.

Most of the attacks to date have gone flat. Grace Abbott, the chief of the bureau, has personally superintended the puncturing. A great many American mothers doubtless will be glad to hear this, because they write to the bureau for information at the rate of about 100,000 a year.

What Bureau Does The Bureau has distributed nearly 7,000,000 pamphlets and leaflets in its work for the benefit of mothers and young children. Most of them were the well known booklets: "Prenatal Care," "Infant Care," and "Child Care." These volumes undoubtedly have saved thousands of lives.

A mother out in the prairies who saved her own life and her baby's because she had learned what to do until the doctor came from "Prenatal Care," probably is not excited over the charge that the Children's

INDOOR TRAINING DAMAGES SHARKEY

Walsh Thinks It Has Slowed Up Lithuanian—Gym As Hot As An Oven.

By DAVID J. WALSH I. N. S. Sports Editor New York, July 18.—Put a flower under glass, at the rays of the sun go to work and it will thrive and flourish and grow. Put a fighter under glass in a hot house under similar conditions and he will grow, too, but it won't be tall. He will grow lazy, torpid, slow.

The writer is wondering today if anything like that has been allowed to happen to shouting Jack Sharkey, the man with the open mouth. Sharkey is not the boxer today that he was before the Maloney fight and not without reason, for some did his guessing very late, if not seldom, in permitting the man to train at Madison Square Garden under conditions that have prevailed there during recent days.

It would be a bad enough to send a fighter into a crowded, smoke filled gymnasium in the recent heat but when a skylight, ideally located to deflect and concentrate the rays of the sun, magnifies its heat directly upon the ring itself, the ultimate limit in non-thinking has been reached.

Killed by Training The writer always will believe that Tom Gibbons' pitiful showing against Gene Tunney was due in part to the fact that the sun got him in training and that what the sun missed the heat of the arena was night of the bout, managed to be a complete. Gibbons trained in a roofless ring at Coney Island and the final seven days were killers.

I climbed to the edge of the ring for a word with the fighter while he was resting between rounds of a training bout. Then I climbed right training bout. I had thought for a moment that the soles of my feet were fondling the lid of a red hot stove.

The sun is something of a cure-all for invalids and a kill for the athlete who gives it too big a play. It saps the vitality and leaves one listless and without any great heart for violent exercise. Add a skylight to make that sun rally burn and blister its way into your haircut and it wouldn't be long until you were as dry as an ex-coconut.

No Brains Of course, the answer to the difficulty is to cover the skylight, either from within or without, but then, as I was saying, the Sharkey camp is not paid to think. Offhand, I would say that it is paid merely to lie.

In his workouts of Saturday, Sharkey loomed the part of a man who was laboring at his work. After he had finished his work, he was dead on his feet and could escape neither leads nor counters and only in flashes, which were forced from him only through the realization that he was getting a showing, did he look like a fighter who soon might be battling for the heavyweight championship.

It seems to me that I have heard of people leaving the city for the shore and mounting a boat during the summer. Maybe the reason they do it is one of the unfathomable mysteries of Sharkey's young life; maybe he thinks they just don't know any better. Surely, there is some better reason for his departure growing out of the fact that the only time he trained outdoors was for the only fight in which he has been stopped.

ARRANGE GOOD CARD FOR THE VELODROME Hartford, July 18.—Joe Daniels, hard-hitting Boston amateur, who fought a sensational battle with Joe Bard at the Hartford Velodrome three weeks ago, will again meet Bard in the feature bout of the Massachusetts A. C.'s weekly amateur show at the Hartford Velodrome Monday night.

Daniels and Bard in their first meeting nearly a month ago, furnished amateur boxing fans with one of the thrillers of 1927.

Both were down, but Bard had the greater reserve and was the final winner.

Daniels is one of the seven-man Massachusetts team which has filed entries for this show. The Bay State boys will be pitted against the best amateurs that can be marshalled from Hartford and vicinity.

Boston is sending two boxers and Worcester five. Among the Worcester entrants is Harry Devine, former opponent of Pat Battalino, who on this occasion is paired with the rugged Hartford portside, Joe Champ.

Another outstanding member of the Worcester team is Lou Patroni, bantamweight, who will have his hands full in battling the whirlwind Mickey Roberts.

Eddie Reed of Hartford will get another chance at Bero Peterson of Worcester who defeated Eddie at Foot Guard last winter. Reed is a much improved fighter as he showed at the Velodrome Tuesday night in his victory over John Guisto, the last Hartford leeman.

There will be from twelve to fourteen bouts on the card, furnishing nearly three hours of warfare. The policy of admitting ladies if accompanied by male escorts, which was introduced for the last show, will be continued, having been popular on its first trial. Tavillo's band will give a concert before the card and in the intervals between the bouts.

The first bout is set for 8:15. Frankie Portelli and Jack Watson will referee and "Silk" O'Loughlin will make his usual speeches.

You'd Be SURPRISED!

BY BILLY EVANS

Babe Ruth holds two batting records that are decidedly opposite, yet great proficiency in one was directly responsible for the other.

Ruth with 59 home runs tops the major league in the matter of circuit drives for a season, and his 170 passes to first is the most any player has ever received in one year.

As a rule, bases on balls are the result of a discriminating eye on the part of the batsman. However, Ruth's record in receiving 170 franks to first bases during the 1923 season was forced upon him, often most unwillingly.

Let me explain: Ruth, in 1920, had made 54 home runs, almost doubling the former record of 29.

In 1921, he reached his peak with 59, the all-time record, while in 1922 he dropped to 35. A total of 187 home runs over a period of four years caused rival managers to decide it was the better part of valor to pass Ruth to first when danger threatened.

During the 1923 season, Ruth became the "big parade" of the majors with 170 passes. Despite the unwillingness of the pitchers to take any chances with him, he came through with 41 circuit trips.

GEHRIG AGAIN TIED WITH THE BAMBINO

By LES CONKLIN I. N. S. Correspondent

New York, July 18.—With interest in the pennant race practically lulled by the Yankees' repeated successes, American League fans today turned their attention to the Ruth-Gehrig duel. Gehrig got his thirtieth homer yesterday and is again tied with the Babe. The blow tied the score in the Yankee-Browns contest, and another homer by Bob Meusel on the next ball pitched enabled the New Yorkers to win, five to four, for their ninth straight victory over the Browns.

Old Walt Johnson breezed home to a seven to four win over the White Sox while his mates were shelling Ted Lyons off the landscape. The Sox flopped back into the second division. Tris Speaker collected three hits and passed Ty Cobb's mark in the batting averages.

Detroit climbed to fourth place by nosing out the Athletics in the ninth, five to four. McManus tripled and scored when Jimmy Dykes converted a bunt into a touchdown instead of a put out.

The Cardinals got rough with Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn ace, in the ninth and won five to three on Schulze's triple. Reinhart, who started on the mound for the world's champions, was batted out of the box by a foul. A long, hard foul by Carey in the seventh convinced the St. Louis board of strategy that trouble was in the offing, and Reinhart, much to his surprise, was waved out of the picture. The other eight teams were idle.

FUTURE CHAMPS OF TENNIS ARE CHILDREN NOW

Tilden, Richards and Johnston Must Give Way to Youth Soon.

New York, July 18.—Give a look at junior lawn tennis. Right now the younger players are commanding nation-wide attention swooning in on the old line tournaments—all largely because of the naming of Johnny Doeg as one of the potential stars on the defending U. S. Davis cup brigade.

This dashing scion of the famous Sutton family takes to tennis as the proverbial duckling does to water. He is the nephew of Mrs. May Sutton Bundy (May was the first American to win a championship at Wimbledon) and the son of the former Violet Sutton, so you see he has quite a racquet pedigree.

The nomination of Doeg is not as unusual as some would have it appear. A lot of juniors developed in this country have achieved distinction in an international way. Records are unanswerable things. Take the junior champions, beginning with Charles S. Garland in 1917, then for three years Vincent Richards, next Arnold W. Jones, George M. Lott, Jr., for two years and then Cranston M. Holman for two years.

Garland and Richards actually played on Davis cup teams, Lott, Holman and now Doeg have been honored by nominations. From the standpoint of the development of the game all of the effort that has been expended on the juniors has amply justified itself.

In a way Lott is a shining example of what may be accomplished despite the fact that it is generally agreed his game is faulty in spots. Still Lott emerges from the junior ranks and in the space of three years has carved his name on the record as having defeated Big Bill Tilden in the final of a major tournament.

The same thing is inevitably to be followed in the events scheduled for girls.

Just remember that Helen Wills was national girl champion in 1921 and 1922 and that Miss Helen Jacobs of California, who is practically certain to play on the American side in defense of the Wightman international challenge cup, held the girls' national title in 1924.

The INSIDE of BASEBALL

BY BILLY EVANS

- 1.—If baserunner reaches a base in safety but overslides and is touched out, does he receive credit for a stolen base?
- 2.—How is a wild pitch that results in a third strike scored?
- 3.—When a double or triple steal is attempted and one of the players is retired, how does it affect the efforts of the other players?
- 4.—Catcher lets a good third strike get away from him, permitting the batsman to reach first? Is the pitcher credited with a strike-out?
- 5.—How is an earned run determined?

THIS TELLS IT

- 1.—He does not.
- 2.—An error is charged against the pitcher and in such case he is not credited with a strike-out.
- 3.—If one of the players in an attempted steal is retired, none of the others are credited with stolen bases.
- 4.—Catcher is charged with an error, pitcher receives credit for a strike-out.
- 5.—When a player reaches home base by aid of safe hits, sacrifices, stolen bases, bases on balls, hit batsmen, wild pitches and balks, before fielding chances have been offered to retire the side, an earned run is scored.

Pretty Good

Braves' Outfielder Has Played in 475 Games in Succession.

Eddie Brown

There's no danger of Eddie Brown, Braves' outfielder, breaking Everett Scott's record for playing in consecutive games, but his run of 475 games, up to June 28, is worth bragging about. Brown started his consecutive streak while a member of the Brooklyn team. Inasmuch as he is not considered a regular starter Brown's chances of beating Scott's record are not so good. But his record is being followed with interest.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

By the Makers of OLD GOLD CIGARETTES

THOUGH this is a commercial age, courtesy and appreciation are not out of fashion in American business. And the largest business institutions still get a thrill in the pleasure of saying "Thank You" for favors received.

Just a short time ago, Lorillard introduced a new Cigarette in the hotly contested, popular priced cigarette field. It is generally conceded in the tobacco trade that this new Cigarette has set a new record . . . in the speed with which it has won public acceptance and widespread popularity.

This message of thanks is offered by Lorillard as an expression of deep appreciation to the Cigarette Smokers, Dealers and Jobbers of this community for the friendly cooperation all three have given in helping to establish the new Lorillard brand . . . OLD GOLD.

For it has been the word-of-mouth recommendation of the public and the trade that has made possible the rapid sales-ascendancy of this new and better cigarette.

The spontaneous recognition given to OLD GOLD is due, in our judgment, to

- FIRST: The ready ability and willingness of the American public to discern and acclaim a better product.
- SECOND: The determination of P. Lorillard Company to spare neither time nor expense to make OLD GOLD the long awaited better cigarette . . . the superlative cigarette . . . before offering it to the public.

JACK LOCKWILL IN THE WOODS

by Gilbert Patten

"Oh, don't be in such a rush, Elam," drawled the sheriff. "I ain't got no warrant for these youngsters. We're after the dago and the bear." He quizzed the boys, and Lockwill, acting as spokesman, answered cleverly without lying. "What we want to know is which way they went when they left," persisted the officer. "That way," said Willie, pointing in a wrong direction.

Frye shook his pitch-fork at the boys as the party was leaving. "I ain't done with you young bums!" he snarled viciously. "I'll git ya yet!"

"Don't your conscience smite you for sending them the wrong way, Willie?" asked Jack jokingly, when the men were gone. "Not so I notice it," was the answer.

The boys slept on fragrant boughs within the tent, from which mosquitoes were driven by a slowly smouldering amuck. The rising moon cast its bright light into the glade. Awakened, Jack sat up and listened, feeling sure a sound had aroused him. He heard only nocturnal murmurings at first, but presently he detected something like stealthy footsteps. A shadow fell on the tent. (To Be Continued)

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

When all the crisp was packed and tied, we Copy jumped up high and cried, "Oh, look! What's happened to the falls? It's disappeared from sight." And, sure enough, the falls had stopped and no more wondrous syrup dropped. 'Twas natural that he wondered now if things were all all right. "Don't worry," said the popcorn man. "I've used, today, all that I can. It's much too nice to waste. If you'll come back some day again, I'll welcome all of you, and then I'll start the pretty syrup falls, so you can have a taste." And then he sharply swung about, and said, "Well, I'm all tired out. I've got to go and get my rest, and close my weary eyes. I'm glad that I have met you all. I hope some day again you'll call." And then the Tinies and the men all shouted loud goodbyes. He shortly disappeared from sight and Carpy said, "Say, he's all right, but now that he has gone away, what is there we can do?" The Princess answered him real quick. "I have a plan that's very slick. I'm sure that you'll all like it 'cause it's something that is new." "Now far from here is Candy Land, where everything around is grand. There's chocolate drops and lolly-pops and things that you'll all like. If going there appeals to you, that's just the thing that you can do." And Clowzy promptly answered "Fine! But how far must we hike?" The Princess said, "Oh, not at all. My flying horse I'll gladly call." She clapped her hands. On came the horse, and my but he looked grand! The Tinymites, in glee all roared. They waved good-bye and hopped aboard. And, in the next few minutes they were bound for Candy Land. (The Tinymites arrive in Candy Land in the next story.)

ANDREW CRAWFORD,

EX-SERVICE MAN, DIES

Seized With Delirium After Pleurisy Attack, Succumbs in Three Hours.

Andrew Crawford, 38, of 29 Cottage street, was taken to the Memorial hospital at 2 o'clock this morning, in a delirious condition, and died there at 5:25. An autopsy was performed today to determine the cause of death.

Mr. Crawford, who was an ex-service man who had been in various United States possessions and in the Navy during the World War, recently suffered an attack of pleurisy. Last night he became delirious. After efforts had been made by the family to quiet him, it was finally decided to take him to the hospital and Quin's ambulance was called. Hypodermic injections failed to act on the patient and it was less than three hours from the time he was taken to the hospital until he died.

He was born in Manchester and enlisted in the United States Navy about four years before the World War. He stayed in the service during the war and was on transport duty as well as on various warships. He had also seen service in the Philippines and Cuba. Illness had compelled him to spend some time in the base hospital at Brooklyn.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Thomas McFall of Paterson, a sister, Mrs. Gomer Richards of Paterson, N. J., and his wife, who also lives there. He is also survived by a brother, Jack Crawford of this town.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed today.
