

EXPECT 80,000 FIGHT FANS AT TONIGHT'S BOUT

Odds Favor Sharkey—Sentiment Favors Dempsey; Expect Largest Crowd In Fistic History of City.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
I. N. S. Sports Editor.

New York, July 21.—The beggar of the Bible stood with hands upraised in supplication, asking only a crust from the rich man's table and he got not a crumb.

Tonight, that beggar will live again in a man who will shake from his sleek young body the silken garments of a minor society darling, and, standing semi-naked in the glare of the lights, beg at the gates of public opinion for the thing he once held. Tonight at the Yankee Stadium, Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, will make the great attempt to retrieve the road he followed so blithely eight years ago, a road that led to honor and glory and wealth and pain.

Laden With Years

Just a weary, laden traveler now, laden with the years, and the first man that will cross his path is a youth, glistening in the tints of gold and saffron. If one didn't know better, he might mistake the meeting as one between Dempsey and his own youth.

Jack Dempsey, the come back, and Jack Sharkey, the come ahead, will meet tonight in a fifteen-round bout to settle the identity of the official challenger for the heavyweight title.

Only Prizefight But—

Just a prizefight, perhaps, but 80,000 persons will see it and a flood of gold will fill the coffers of those so engaged. Dempsey, tacitly trying to regain the honor he held from 1919 to 1926, will be persuaded to accept a guarantee of $250,000 for his pains and Sharkey's end hardly will be worse than $200,000. Just a mere contest of brawn, maybe, but the public officially will pay the non-championship record sum of $1,200,000 for seeing it, and unofficially almost any sum the mind can conjure. For somehow, totally unaccounted for, as usual, ticket speculators have come upon many of the choice seats and those at the best list price of $27.50 were selling today in the hundreds of dollars.

World Interested

Yes, it may be that this is only a prize fight but the world itself will be in a hush while it is on, whether our world happens to be State and Madison streets, Chicago, the Rue de La Paix, Fall Mall, a little village town on the coast of Spain or the sunlit plaza at Rio. For the moment, this gallant and very appealing figure who once was great and the youth who soon may be, will hold the center of the stage and the world will be their audience.

Dempsey the Attraction

Dempsey, even in his declining years, is the great attraction even as he was in his youth. He slipped into town on his training camp De La Paix, Fall Mall, a little village town on the coast of Spain and, with great skill and circumspection, contrived to escape the mob long enough to reach the home of Leo P. Flynn, his manager. Inside of fifteen minutes a crowd of five thousand had gathered at the doors and it required the strong-arm work of a traffic squad to clear the street of the curious.

Dempsey!
The man in the street is crazy about him today, intrigued with the notion of the ex-champion's attempt to re-assess himself.
Dempsey!
Every woman, it seems, is hoping against hope that the old king will re-ascend his throne, for women.

FIVE MORE INJURED ON STATE DEATHPIKE

Hardly a Day Passes Without a Wreck on Deadly Stretch of Highway.

West Haven, Conn., July 21.—On the eve of the county, town and state "death" conference at Milford when an effort will be made to lessen the toll of accidents on that deadly stretch of road, another crash was registered sending five to hospitals.

Last night's mishap involved a head-on collision between machines driven by Philip H. Reilly, 40, of New Haven and Julius Prisser, 30, of New Britain. Reilly, blamed for the accident, will be placed on $200 bond when released from the hospital today, charged with reckless driving and driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Prisser's machine was occupied by Alice Johnson, 21, Ella Swanson and Mildred Bush all of New Britain who were enroute home from the beach. Their injuries were not serious.

14,000 Cases Of Booze "Run" Every 24 Hours

Editor's Note—The fourth of a series of articles by Lawrence Sullivan, N. S. staff correspondent, describing rum-running condition along the Canadian border, tells of the tremendous extent of smuggling operations. Additional articles will follow daily.

BY LAWRENCE SULLIVAN

La Salle, Ontario, July 21.—Communications over the mysterious grapevine wireless from the American side advising that the United States dry navy is preparing for another broadside upon Ontario rum runners comes to this obscure stronghold of hard liquor without creating a ripple.

"That happens every so often," says the large, bushy-headed and hatless dock owner, "having some scruples about perversion, tells me upon introduction, not that his name is George Bixby, but that he is known as George Bixby."

"I been here four years and there hasn't been anyone here yet," his town, ain't on United States maps, gives a drive over here every so often, but nothing ever comes of it."

Awaiting Orders

Anchored at Bixby's two-birth concrete dock in late afternoon, four powerful 40-foot launches, each carrying 25 cases of whiskey, await orders to push off for Detroit. Fifty yards down the river a cluster of half a dozen smaller craft are tied in a bunch in an old fishing wharf. A hundred yards up stream, another private dock of still new lumber, glistens in the sun.

America's Stand at Geneva Misrepresented, Says Cecil

British Official Declares That U. S. Is Not Hostile to the Anglo-Japanese Proposals.

London, July 21.—The American position in Geneva is being misrepresented by propagandists who are striving to sabotage the Tri-Partite Naval Disarmament conference, Viscount Cecil charged today.

"Interested propagandists are once more at work to sabotage the conference by portraying the American government and its Geneva delegation as irreconcilably hostile to the Anglo-Japanese proposals," Viscount Cecil said, "while as a matter of fact the American government has still to deliberate thereon and the American delegation is consequently awaiting for instructions from Washington before expressing any definite opinion on the subject."

Confer With Committee

Viscount Cecil and the Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, chief of the British delegation in Geneva, conferred today with members of the Imperial disarmament committee, explaining the agreement with the Japanese and compromises with the United States asking for approval of the policy they have pursued.

The number of eight inch gun cruisers which will be allowed Great Britain and the United States is now the chief obstacle to the success of the conference, it is learned.

Number Limited

Bridgeman insists that the number of these cruisers be limited strictly so that Great Britain can employ her cruiser tonnage for lighter cruisers to protect trade routes.

Viscount Cecil is reported to be less adamant than Bridgeman and is even prepared to urge concessions to the American demands before the Cabinet.

After making reports to various boards of the Admiralty and individual ministers, it is anticipated that both Bridgeman and Viscount Cecil will appear before a full Cabinet meeting tomorrow.

NEXT STOP FOR COL. LINDBERGH IS PROVIDENCE

Pleased With Great Reception He Received In Hartford—Plans to Visit the 48 States.

Hartford, Conn., July 21.—Taking the worshipping hearts of 250,000 Connecticut residents with him, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, modest hero of an epic flight, is winging his way today to the second of the forty-eight states he plans to win to the greater interest of aviation.

Providence is the next stop of the "Lone Eagle." He took off from Brainard Field here at one o'clock in order to reach Providence in an hour's flying. Col. Lindbergh flew north to circle above Springfield for a few moments before straightening his course for the Rhode Island city.

Plea for Airports

A plea for good airports and increased patronage of mail, freight and passenger carrying lines was the gist of Col. Lindbergh's two addresses and interviews here when he asserted with something of an unusual vigor that the burden of progress was up to the public and its support.

"I have the flyers and the machines to fly. It's up to you to give us something to fly for," he said.

Greatest in History

"Lindbergh's" welcome here overshadowed any previous pilot with in the 300 years of Hartford's history, both in enthusiasm and magnitude. No person has ever so completely won the affection of the city.

Every public appearance from his landing through the pilot lines and at the reception brought tremendous applause. The crowd was not satisfied with a view of Lindbergh. He granted handshakes to hundreds but this did not suffice and scores braved here when he asserted with something of an unusual vigor that the burden of progress was up to the public and its support.

Gets Hale Medal

At the close of Governor John H. Trumbull's speech in which he furthered Col. Lindbergh's plea for a greater public support of aviation, the state's chief executive presented the belief that Lindbergh with a gold medal bearing the bas-relief of Nathan Hale "whose heroic qualities are found in this young aviator," he said.

Secretary MacCracken declared the belief that Lindbergh would be held in greater regard for what he has done for his country and "what he has refused to do for personal gain" than for his actual flight to Paris.

Lind's Warning

Col. Lindbergh issued a warning to cities which find themselves backward in the promotion of aviation facilities when he said that "New England cities which do not develop proper airports and landing fields will find themselves in a few years in the position of towns, once prosperous and now declining because they were not included in the air traffic competition with the middle west because of topographical difficulties in this section, he declared. Flat or rolling country, while an aid to the west, will be of no great advantage if enough adequate airports are provided here, in his opinion.

GYPSIE SMITH SUES WIFE FOR DIVORCE

Well Known Evangelist of This State Charges Her With Infidelity.

Norwalk, Conn., July 21.—Charging "intolerable cruelty and infidelity," Gypsy Pat Smith, nationally known evangelist, filed suit for divorce here today against his wife Karin Tjader Smith following their separation two months ago.

The evangelist asked for custody of their child in his petition.

The suit comes on the heels of action brought by Mrs. Smith seeking damages of $10,000 in connection with a property dispute over the Smith residence in Tokonee, fashionable New York community.

In announcing the action, the evangelist's attorneys refused to discuss details of the charges.

"My Son Has All My Prayers For His Future," Says Carol

Exiled Rumanian Prince MANCHESTER MAN HURT IN ROCKVILLE

Robert Richardson Pinned Under Dugan Dye Truck; Novel Rescue Affected.

Paris, July 21.—Prince Carol, who renounced his rights to the throne of Rumania for love, and abandoned his princess and his small son, now prays for the success of his tiny son who has become King Michael I, the baby king of Rumania.

Prince Carol, who showed evident signs of a sleepless and restless night, was a grief stricken figure when he received the International News Service correspondent today, and authorized the following statement:

"I am greatly grieved by the death of my father, which I did not expect so soon and which came as a great shock to me.

"I have the same love and interest in my country that he had and my son has my prayers for his future and the peace and prosperity of our country."

With his brief statement the prince explained that he did not care to discuss the situation in Rumania further, but it was clear that he feels deeply the great burden that has been placed upon the tiny shoulders of his son.

"I am very tired as I wasn't able to sleep all last night," the prince observed, and his eyes showed signs of great weariness and grief.

The prince has given up all hopes that he will be permitted to break his exile to return to Bucharest for the funeral of his father. None of the telegrams he has received has indicated any such possibility and in his telegrams to Queen Marie, and others of his family, it is understood that he has avoided making any requests.

The prince received a visit early today from his tailor and ordered a number of suits of mourning, most of his present wardrobe consisting of light sports outfits.

WILD STORY OF FIGHT ISSUED FROM MEXICO

Liberal Agent Says 25 Bodies Of U. S. Marines Were Found On Battle Field.

Mexico City, July 21.—The bodies of twenty-five United States Marines were taken to Chihuahua and Leon after the battle at Ocotla, Nicaragua, between marines and General Sandino's Rebel forces, according to a statement issued today by Pedro Zepeda, agent of the Nicaraguan Liberals here.

Zepeda declared he had received his information from Costa Rica. Zepeda denies that General Sandino is a bandit. He says Sandino has 1,400 men under him and only 400 of these took part in the Ocotla battle.

Official reports stated that one marine was killed and another wounded in the Ocotla battle.

"BABY KING" REIGNS IN RUMANIA, NATION MOURNS FERDINAND

King Michael I, Not Yet Six Years Old, On Throne—Agency to Administer Government Until Young Monarch Reaches His 18th Year—Rumor Says Queen Marie Will Be "Power Behind Throne"—Nation Under Martial Law to Forestall Political Coup—King's Funeral on Sunday.

Bucharest, July 21.—All that was earthly of King Ferdinand, of Rumania, came back to Bucharest today to the capital over which he presided as probably the unhappiest ruler in Europe.

Borne on a special train from the Rumanian royal family's summer home, Sinaia Palace, where the king died, the body was accompanied by all the pomp and ceremony befitting a dead monarch. The train proceeded at snail's pace along the route in order that the throngs of school children and peasants, who had gathered, might pay their last respects to their departed ruler.

Bucharest, July 21.—A frail little youngster, going to the little long brown curls, today rules the biggest kingdom in the turbulent Balkans.

He is King Michael I of Rumania, who was proclaimed late yesterday in the great hall of Parliament, fourteen hours after his grandfather, King Ferdinand I, died in Casleul Palace, Sinaia.

Little King Michael will not rule his nation in person until he is 18 years old. He is under the tutelage of a Regency which was sworn in before the National Assembly at the same time that Michael ascended the throne.

The regents who will administer the government for the little monarch are Prince Nicholas, Patriarch Miron Cristea and Supreme Court Justice G. V. Buzdugan.

There are some who believe that Queen Marie, widow of the dead monarch and grandmother of the tiny king, will be the "real power behind the throne." She will undoubtedly wield great influence of both a practical and sentimental nature.

Nation Mourns

Flags are at half mast throughout Rumania today. The nation is in mourning. Government offices are closed and special prayers were uttered in the churches.

By telegraph and radio messages of condolences came from all parts of the world.

All Rumania is quiet. But troops are held in readiness at all strategic points in the event that discontented politicians or army officers friendly to former Crown Prince Carol might attempt to coup.

Carol, who renounced his rights to succession following a scandalous love affair, is in Paris. He will not return to Rumania to attend the funeral. In fact, he will not be allowed to enter the country.

Speaks Three Languages

Stodious and serious of mind, King Michael is more apt than the average child. He speaks Rumanian, French and English and is proficient in elementary studies. He is not a playful child and as yet has failed to display any signs of the love of sports which his father, Prince Carol, has.

King Michael has grown up in an atmosphere of unhappiness. For more than a year his mother, Princess Helen, has been an abandoned wife. Political conflicts have waved around King Michael. He has been the subject of dissensions within his family circle it is said, and his father has not been with him to guide him.

The baby king is a handsome child, but for the sadness that seems continually to light his eyes. Were he the son of a peasant he might easily be just an attractive urchin, but as King Michael I there is a wistfulness about his demeanor that arouses pity for "the sad baby king."

QUEEN MOURNS

Sinaia, Rumania, July 21.—Queen Marie spent nearly the whole night watching the body of her royal consort, King Ferdinand, who died yesterday of cancer and allied diseases of Gliments.

The body was laid out in the ball room of Castle Pelsor guarded by officials of the court and Alpine chassours. It is clothed in the uniform of a general of the Alpina corps and is decorated with orders. The Rumanian crown rested beside the head.

Ministers of the government arrived early in the morning to accompany the body to Cotroceni where it will lie in state in the castle until the funeral on Sunday. Thousands of loyal subjects made a pilgrimage to Sinaia filling the shadow of Balkan politics begins to take shape. There is little or no likelihood that Communists will attempt to take advantage of the present excited state of the kingdom to make trouble. Communists have never been able to make headway in this country nor gain the foothold that they have in Bulgaria.

Whatever political developments take place here will have an effect upon the neighboring kingdom of Yugoslavia. The two countries are linked through intermarriage of the royal families.

Princess Marie, daughter of the late king, is the wife of King Alexander, of Yugoslavia.

Queen Marie, the widow, is popular with her people, especially the peasantry, and her death-bed fidelity to her husband has increased her prestige before the nation. She will play a strong role in any future political developments. It is believed that she prefers to have little Michael remain as king, for there are indications that Michael and the regency will prove more popular than Carol.

Carol, during his tenure as crown prince, showed himself to be more interested in pretty faces of women than he was in affairs of state.

Michael is the son of Princess Helen, wife of Carol. His way to the throne was opened through the renunciation of his own father. If Carol had been able to keep from romancing, Michael today would be heir apparent instead of monarch.

"Sad Baby King"

Vienna, July 21.—King Michael I, newly elected ruler of Rumania, is already being referred to as "the sad baby king."

Ordinarily a child of a serious nature, this five-year old mite apparently will be impressed greatly by the ceremonies attendant to his ascendancy to the throne and his usually sober mien has become a sad one.

During the ceremonies in the Parliament in Bucharest yesterday, King Michael stood bravely at salute, his tiny hand sometimes faltering and often-times with his lips quivering, but he steered himself against what seemed to be a terrible ordeal to him. At the first occasion, however, he ran to his mother, Princess Helen, and buried his head in her lap and wept, while she consoled him, restraining her own tears with difficulty.

Delicate Child

King Michael is not a robust child, and only a few months ago he was taken to the Italian Riviera for his health. He faces a great ordeal for, like his grandfather, the dead King Ferdinand, he will probably never be permitted to use his own will but during his childhood and youth he will be subjected to varying and conflicting currents of pressure.

Already martial law has been proclaimed to offset any attempt at revolution.

All along the frontier the garrisons have been reinforced.

Premier Bratianu, the political iron hand to maintain order and to prevent revolutionary outbreaks. All the material for a coup seems to be at hand. There is a strong division in Rumania's political affairs. Carol has many supporters, especially in the army. But a great deal of this support arises not so much through friendship for Carol as it does through the opportunity it gives to upset the present regime in power.

Jan Bratianu, the premier, and a master of the kind of politics best known in the Balkans, is master of the situation at present. He has the support of Queen Marie, but he is opposed by a powerful group headed by former Premier Averescu.

Rivals' Plan

The possibility exists that discontented politicians may send a deputation to Paris appealing to Carol to return. In that event the Carolist movement would undoubtedly have the support of Alexandru Averescu, former premier and political foe of Bratianu.

Even while the wasted body of the old king, attired in the uniform of a general of the Rumanian army lies in state in the Cotroceni Castle intrigue is at work and the minister

CONDITIONS POOR AT ALMSHOUSE

Lack of Harmony Between Superintendent and Present Vernon Selectmen.

(Special to The Herald) Rockville, July 21.—Incompatibility between A. H. Reed, superintendent of the Vernon almshouse and at least a majority of the board of selectmen seem to be the real cause behind the conditions that now exist and was the cause of Mr. Reed being asked to resign for the "betterment of the town," by the selectmen.

The present board of selectmen did not make the selection of the manager at the almshouse when they came into office, but found him already there, having held the position for the last many years, when in the course of investigation, conditions were found not in their opinion, being conducted along the lines that would be considered modern, give better care of the inmates and at the same time protect the interests of the town of Vernon, which they as selectmen had taken an oath to do, they endeavored to make changes.

There has been no team work between the efforts of the selectmen and the man at the almshouse and when opinions in the mind of both sides, became different as to make the conditions that did not produce the best results either for the inmates, the keeper, the selectmen, nor the town of Vernon, the change was asked for. As to the merits of the case it can be settled by a personal visit by any citizen of the town of Vernon, who will have no real pride in looking over the conditions that at present exist there.

Mr. Reed admits that there has been a feeling, personal on his part towards at least two of the selectmen and they have in the past let it be known that they have personal reasons and have not been direct way during the past year that they were not in accord with his methods of doing business and the money returns that the town received from the almshouse, in proportion with the possibilities. There is no doubt, an investigation made in connection with the case shows that there was a change considered necessary by the board of selectmen. The man who takes the trouble to visit the almshouse conditions to show that it is not properly maintained. Every resident of the town of Vernon, who will have no real pride in looking over the conditions that at present exist there.

It cannot be called a political move as the present superintendent is a Republican. We bought a lot of these suits as "Factory Close Outs"—not to be duplicated—and they represent real value.

Under these conditions the selectmen considered a change necessary. They had not gone around with trumpets, announcing that they were going to do this, but made known their desire to Mr. Reed and suggested that he make arrangements to vacate by August 15. If Mr. Reed sees a fit to present his side of the story they have not so far considered it necessary to make public their side.

They have a man who will take the place who they consider will be able to do the work in a better manner, would be more congenial to work with and both sides working together may bring about a change in conditions at the almshouse that will be for the betterment of the inmates, the town and for all concerned in general. That there is a whole lot to be done at the almshouse to make this possible is easy to see by a visit to the place.

Concert Postponed The American Legion band concert, ball game and dance to be held in Manchester at the West Side playground last night was postponed until tonight because of rain. Stanley Dobos Post will play Dilworth-Cornell Post at baseball and the American band of this city will render the concert at the West Side Recreation Center auditorium.

Vacancy Not Filled There is a vacancy in the number of regular patrolmen on the Rockville police force this week, but from developments that have occurred during the past two weeks or so there seems to be a likelihood that there will be further delay. Under the charter of the city of Rockville the mayor is also the chief of police. There has been one man, who is on the supernumerary list that has been on duty for the better part of the duration of the vacancy, which has been about a year. He receives the same pay as a regular man on duty, but has not been made a regular. In fact it is hinted that he may not be made a regular.

lar. The chief, or mayor, could make the appointment, but it has been the custom and an act of good-fellowship on the part of the mayor to take up with the police committee of the correct matters in this respect. It was expected that something might have been done along this line last Tuesday, but aside from a brief talk among themselves there was no report made to the committee by the members of the police committee.

Dempey Is Favorite Jack Dempey may not win the fight against Sharkey tonight, but he is the favorite among a large number of the fight fans of Rockville. It was planned by members representative of the department to have eleven members of the company represented at the fight. Thomas Regan had arranged for the securing of the tickets, but yesterday two of the men who had planned to go had their matters pressed and them from going and only nine of the original number left Rockville this morning to be present at the big scrap.

Enters New Field Miss Esther Comins of Stafford Springs has been appointed as news representative for Stafford, Stafford Springs, Stafford Hollow and Union for the Rockville Leader. Miss Comins "sat in" with the news-writers at lunch in the Rockville house this week. Her first assignment will be presented this week.

Building Sold The two story frame building on Market street owned by George W. Lutz is likely to be sold this week. A deposit has been made, but it is a small one, and further payments are to be made later on. The deposit is not in a way a bond for a deed, but just an option deposit. If the necessary arrangements as to mortgages and cash can be furnished the property will probably be sold. The building has two stories on the ground floor, one vacant, and an apartment and offices on the second floor.

More Work on School Instead of finishing the painting of the walls on thirteen of the rooms in the Sikes Memorial school, as was at first planned, the walls never having been painted before, it is now planned to have sixteen of the rooms painted. In addition to this the hallway which was painted when the school was turned over, is being given further attention by the painters now at work in the school.

Funeral of D. B. Gardner The funeral of D. B. Gardner, former selectman and well known in Masonic circles, was held at the Union Congregational church at 2:30 this afternoon. The services were largely attended by his many friends not only in this city, but from other sections of the state.

City Will Provide The space in the brick retaining wall built on the east side of Market street, which provided for a doorway leading into a section that can not be used for any particular purpose, is to be given the appearance of a real door. The public works committee has ordered a door to be placed in the opening, which will correspond with the appearance to the similar kind of constructed wall on the west side of the street.

Money Left All of the money that was appropriated by the city of Rockville for its snow removal has not been spent. There still remains a balance of $2.50 and if there is no more snow before November 15, when the city year ends, that appropriation will show a balance.

Benefit a Success The benefit held at Crystal Lake last night for the Parkouh family, was a success. There was an exceptionally large gathering and with the advance sale of tickets that had been made it is expected that about $1,000 will be realized.

BIVOUACS FEATURE CAMP CLOSING DAYS

Soldiers Settle Down Again After Excitement of Lindy's Presence.

By Staff Correspondent Camp Trumbull, Natick, July 21.—With Colonel Lindbergh's nine-minute aerial visit here yesterday afternoon a matter of history, the 169th Infantry, C. N. G., settled down today to finish the final three days of its annual two-week encampment here. The chief event on the program for today is the bivouac of the first and second battalions tonight at Rogers' Lake and Fred Stone's ranch respectively.

Both Manchester companies are included. Captain Herb Bissell's G boys are with Major Clarence C. Scarborough's second battalion at Joseph R. Morrison to Rogers' Lake and the second platoon under Lieutenant Walter Tedford with the Second Battalion. The battalions left camp shortly after eight o'clock this morning on their way to the bivouac. The Third Battalion bivouaced at camp earlier and supposedly for field maneuvers against imaginary foes but was bumped into by both the first and second battalions as they marched toward their bivouac destinations. Spirited sham battles ensued.

The bivouacking battalions will return to camp shortly before noon tomorrow. Lieutenant Edgar M. Thrombler of Talcott avenue, the failure of Col. Lindbergh to land was chiefly due to the fact that he was already late for his Hartford arrival and that on his 78-stop tour of the nation he will pass over countless other national guard reservations which means a stop here would have been a precedent hard to overcome.

There is one thing that can be taken for a certainty and that is that Col. Lindbergh in all his landings never had a clearer field. Not a single person was allowed on the field except Colonel Hunter, the Pathe News photographer and the reporters for the Hartford Courant and Manchester Herald. They were at the extreme end of the field, however. Governor Trumbull had taken off before Lindy had circled the field once.

The program today and tomorrow practically completes the military training for the 169th Infantry. Saturday morning will be devoted to formal inspection and then arrangements will go forward rapidly for the departure from camp at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. Baggage will be loaded Saturday afternoon. While there are many soldiers in camp who will be glad to get back home, there are probably just as many who have "fallen in love" with the outdoor life so to speak and who would be glad to remain here longer. There is a certain thrill connected with the army life that is intensely satisfying and appealing. The sound of reveille in the morning and taps at night, not to mention the standing of retreat have a tendency to thrill one beyond measure.

One thing which brought much comment from the large crowd here yesterday was the cleanliness of the entire camp and camp personnel. There was not a single piece of waste paper on the entire parade field and the streets and tents were in a very neat condition. The main credit for this is due to Lieutenant Colonel Petty who takes even more interest in that line of work than he does in his own favorite pipe. And that's saying a whole lot. Hard-

At this writing, Captain Christopher Scuffs, athletic director, had not announced at what time Company G will play in the finals for the regimental baseball championship. The game may be played tomorrow. Last year, Company G won the title by defeating the Howitzer Company in the finals. This year, the G boys have won all of their three games which includes a 1 to 1 victory over the Howitzer Company. Unless much better opposition looms in the finals, the Manchester Company bids fair to again top the regimental honors. Captain Elmo Mantelli has gathered together a strong team that has in its lineup several good hitters not to mention two good pitchers, Guido Giorgetti and Ray Holland. Nick Angelo, of the Quartermaster Detachment, won two third places in the field meet yesterday afternoon—the 220 yard run and broad jump.

The little steam packet passing under the Pont de Sevres.

This is Chapter 87 of the series of articles written by The Herald correspondent who is revisiting France as an advance guard for the "Second A. E. F."

CHAPTER LXXXVII

To some the fate for a ride from the Louvre stop to Spresness on the Seine might seem exorbitant, but then—why quibble even if it is. The one-way tickets cost 1 franc and 20 centimes—roughly 4 cents and a fraction. It requires an hour and a half of gliding along through the scenery to make it. While this is not written as a glowing advertisement for the company that operates those swift steam cutters, it can truthfully be said that the ride is one of the cheapest and most delightful excursions that American Legionnaires will be able to take in September.

Past the Bois de Boulogne—Anteil—under Napoleon's bridge—under the Pont d'Alma—past Sevres. A tug puffs along, towing a string of six barges. . . an old lady on the last barge is hanging her week's washing on the line. The next stop is Bas-Meudon, and it costs 50 centimes to ride on a funicular to the top of the hill, St. Cloud, where the Americans

The statement was made in this column that the house which was formerly the home of the late Mrs. Melissa Jones had been sold to Edmund Zacher of Hartford. This was an error as the sale made was of land from Mrs. Jones' estate (nineteen acres) and did not include the house. The land was a separate tract not adjoining the Jones residence.

'SKIPPY' IN BOOK
A REGULAR RASCAL

Herald's Popular Comic Strip
Character Subject of First Crosby Volume.

"Skippy", the unsophisticated chalk-child of Percy L. Crosby and whose musings and antics appear daily in The Herald is now the hero, or villain, if you will, of a new book, entitled "Always Belittlin'" or "Skippy Whistles the Pater". For the lovers of "Skippy" and they are many, judging from the youngster's popularity in Manchester, this volume is one that cannot possibly be missed.

Percy Crosby's humor is so natural, that it becomes a fad with many readers of his "stuff". Things P. L. makes his boys do and say become by-words with his followers. Here in Manchester it is quite common to hear the expressions "always belittlin'" and "whistle the pater."

This new volume published by the Unicorn Press (New York City) and selling for $1.50 is a gathering up of the best "Skippy" stories. For summer reading here's just the book for that trip to the mountain or shore.

A book particularly recommended for the library shelves is "Memoirs of Catherine the Great" (Knopf) translated by Katherine Anthony. Miss Anthony it was who contributed last season the biography of Catherine, a work of lasting importance. Now she has taken from the German the amazing Russian queen's own notations which show her to be human, disillusioned and quite shameless. It is an intensely human and interesting document.

For hot weather reading we also suggest Thomas Roucat's "The Honorable Picnic" (Viking Press). Having chortled over it in the hammock, we venture the prediction that you will pick it up again when the weather cools, to give more attention to the highly diverting contrast of manners and morals of Orient and Occident.

On this list we also should place, for the sophisticated reader, "The Son of the Grand Eunuch" (Boni, Liveright). For those who wish to be entertained by lighter veins of comedy there is "Mitt Gross" "Dunt Esk" (Boni, Liveright), which continues the tales of the Feitelbaums and of "nize baby," and there is a typically Wedgehouse story, "The Small Bachelor" (Doran).

The Rich and Dumb
In the latter the rollicking "P. G." introduces George Finch, New York's dumbest and richest artist, who gets himself married to Mollie Waddington, of the "cuddly" set after farcical difficulties have separated them at the altar.

"Trader Horn" (Simon and Shuster) will be found the most diverting and thrilling personal chronicle and reaching back into the winter publications, we might take out George Birmingham's "The Smuggler's Cave" (Bobbs-Merrill). Any or all of these safely may be taken on the vacation trip.

ADDISON

Four young foxes were born about two months ago and the den is in a woodland area of two acres. A cornfield is near and the four foxes have had many a game of tag as the men worked nearby. Ten feet and even 7 feet has been the distance between the men and these foxes. One of the men secured some beef bones and they were relished by those youngsters. A few days ago, near the twilight period, these foxes came on the run to meet the man who had been so good and liberal but maintained a distance of 7 feet as a precautionary measure for safety.

There was an explosion of dynamite caused by the fire of Saturday morning when a tobacco shed and garage burned up on the Wickham road. A tobacco transplanter, new last year, was destroyed.

Everyday Emergencies

- What important thing have you forgotten to say or do? — and fixed it up by telephone.
- What has been needed in a hurry? — and quickly started on its way, by telephone.
- What has not been delivered when it should have been? — and the lack supplied, by telephone.
- What appointment have you been unable to keep? — and made due explanation, by telephone.

Many times the telephone has played a valiant part in tragic occurrences when life or property has been at stake. Its worth in a real emergency is never unappreciated.

Just so does it solve lesser difficulties, bridging distance, giving instant personal contact, helping to straighten out little vexing troubles. In a countless list of life's minor emergencies, the telephone helps meet each situation as it arises, turning a possible annoyance into an incident of the day — nothing more.

The real value of your telephone service should not be measured by what it costs, but by what it does for you.

Jungle Breath

© 1927 by NEA Service

Illustrated by Paul Kroesen

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE HARBERG, an American girl residing in the town of Porto Verde in the west of Brazil. She has escaped harm due to the shrewdness of her cousin and protector, Vilak, who with his friend, LINCOLN NUNNALLY, an American chemist, is trying to learn the reason for the strange enmity for Elise.

Living near Porto Verde is one GAYLORD PRENTISS, a strange and forbidding character, who has evinced a hatred for Elise. TINKY, Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew, is kidnapped. A native reporter, Prentiss, is seen with the baby. The trail leads into the jungle. Calumnies are spread, the expedition Vilak organizes in pursuit. Native trackers are injured and desert. Treacherous bushes cut Elise, Vilak and Nunnally finally emerge from the jungle. They come to the outskirts of a strange city, resembling the old Inca civilization. Here they are made prisoners. They discover the are in the hands of CARLOS D'ALBERTARA, whom they had known as an engineer back in Porto Verde. The ruler of the city decides to marry Elise and put Tink and her to death. They are to be tortured at the feast of Raym, an ancient Inca festival. A friendly Indian slips a dagger to Vilak, who liberates himself and Nunnally. Then, when the natives press around him, Vilak holds that he can walk through fire unharmed to prove himself a god.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER XLVI

VILAK tossed bits of wood and leaves upon the fiery rectangle. Then clasping a clay vessel containing the blood of a sacrificed deer in one hand and a spear in the other, he moved up and down the fire's entire length, with the end of his spear sprinkling a few drops of the contents over the flames, or prodding the red embers with the point, constantly drowning an incantation. At last he ceased. He removed his boots, his brown shoes, rolled his breeches far above his knees and took a post at the end of the fire nearest the temple.

"Behold, O people. Behold, O priests. Behold, O Batagalos," he thundered. "And when you have beheld, kneel and worship. For the gods of the fire are angry. The son of the fire walks through the fire. Behold, O people. Behold, O priests. Behold, O Batagalos."

As he spoke the last words, he moved a bare foot forward. Another step followed, then another. An awed silence gripped the watchers; he was in the flame. Breathlessly, over the fiery path as marches a mourner at a funeral procession. Dumbly, like frightened beasts, they saw him reach the other end and walk gravely onto the stones under the scowling idol. With a single impulse, people, priests, chief, dropped to the ground and hid their faces.

Quietly Vilak made his way to the altar and lifted the child from the stone. It recognized him; began gurgling in delight. He strode over, clasped the child to her breast ecstatically and overwhelmed it with kisses, stopping for an instant tearfully to kiss Vilak. He smiled gently, then returned to the altar. With a few more words he turned to the soldier, he cut the thongs binding Prentiss.

Slowly the savages began to rise; with the help of two of his aides Batagalos stood erect, and waddling forward, prostrated himself once more and touched his head to Vilak's foot. Vilak murmured a few friendly words. He wheeled quickly as he saw D'Albertara, who had darted into the chiefs apartments when Vilak emerged from the fire, leap from behind one of the altar stones twenty feet away. In his hand was a revolver. There was a shot. Vilak dodged behind a stone, at the same time snatching a spear from one of the soldiers.

The shot missed; the bullet only chipped out a tiny fragment of rock. Vilak raised the spear high over his head, hurled it. It struck the other's arm, just as he was about to fire a second time. The pistol flamed, but the bullet went wildly into the sky, the weapon dropping to the ground an instant later.

The Portuguese clutched at his bleeding, broken arm, then stooped to seize the pistol again. Before he could recover it, Vilak had made him a prisoner. Swiftly, securely, the chief's soldiers bound him with thongs; expertly Vilak bandaged his arm so that he would not bleed to death.

Elise, the old man, and Prentiss had all come running to aid at the sound of the shot; the three friends entered the chief's ruined palace to search D'Albertara's quarters for the pistols he had taken from them on their capture. Prentiss, after some hesitation, as though his presence were not wanted, joined them.

"I won't be happy until we've got those pistols back," Vilak muttered. "They're not good things to leave around here. Mean too much. After they're in our holsters again, I think we can feel safe."

After some searching, the weapons were found. The four were on the way out again, when a low wolfish roar arose from the court. Vilak broke into a run. He reached the open. On the altar lay the outstretched form of D'Albertara. Beside him was a white-painted priest holding a knife. On the ground below, the priest whose needles and paint-jars proclaimed him the sacred tattooer, was slowly moving away. Vilak shouted. But even as he did so the arm of the idol descended and the three thorns which formed the fingers of its hand met the three triangles on the victim's forehead.

The thronged court soon cleared once more. Batagalos waddled to Vilak and set a bowl of starchy food before him. Blacks brought other bowls. The Americans ate. After the meal, Vilak spoke quietly to Prentiss, who was sitting on to himself, still with the hesitant, apologetic air of one who feels that his presence is obnoxious. Prentiss rose. The two walked off to the town. They returned. An hour or two later, Vilak was joined by Batagalos and with him entered the chief's palace. When they emerged it was almost sunset.

A second meal was brought to the travelers; the ceremonial dances recommenced in the court. They sat near the fire in its circle of stones and watched. Prentiss, who had been drowsy, moved off in short distance, stretched out, and was quickly deep in an exhausted sleep. There was an interval of quiet in the ceremonies and the three friends lit cigarettes. They smoked lazily, luxuriously. The old man patted the foot of the baby, who with the elasticity of childhood had already completely forgotten his recent woes and was cooing happily out in the air, then glanced at the altar. There is little doubt of the tendency on the part of young married couples not to have houses or children. I am sorry. But I am going to say this also. The world has had children for many centuries. Young couples have always had houses. Young mothers have cooked and sewed and young fathers have cut lawns and shoveled walks.

and covered with light ashes which occasionally drifted to them in the evening wind. He shook his head in bewilderment. "You did it . . . er . . . Vilak. It's impossible. But you . . . er . . . yes . . . did it. How?"

With his cigarette Vilak indicated the trench. "You mean that?" "Er . . . yes. "Told you it was a trick. And that's extraordinarily simple one. Just requires a little recognition of the laws of heat conductivity which you as a veteran scientist, mon cher, knew long before I was born and which the not so stupid shamans of the Aztec islands have known for centuries."

He picked up a piece of the red lava rock near him. "Look at that. See how light and porous it is. You can easily perceive from its structure how the tiny air-spaces in it tend to insulate it. Immediately let go and heat it has and make it a wretched conductor so that it might be red hot on the bottom and at the same time be quite cool on top. Same principle as that physics experiment every high school youngster knows where the same water in a six-inch test tube is so cold at one end that it's frozen, and so hot at the other that it's turning into steam. Simply because water, like this lava, is a miserable heat conductor."

"This morning when I was going through that focus-pool of sprinkling blood over the fire and prodding the stones with the bloody spear—which was merely a sort of camouflage used by every shaman and every American sleight-of-hand performer for that matter—I was really picking out rocks which because of shape or position were cooling quicker than the others and moving them about a bit so that they'd cool still more quickly. I kept up my focus-pool until there all the way, and then simply walked across."

"Even had anyone suspected, which I was quite sure they wouldn't, the bits of branches and leaves I threw along the sides where the flames wouldn't touch me gave an appearance of terrific heat throughout which would have deceived the most expert. I scorched my feet a trifle in one or two places which I hadn't calculated perfectly, but that's the extent of my injuries."

They sat in silence again. The child began tugging at the strap of one of Elise's purses. She caressed it, then glanced toward Prentiss, sleeping quietly a few yards away. "What about . . . him?" she said, quietly.

Vilak flicked the ash from his cigarette. "Be all right in a few days. Had a long talk with him this afternoon, and got his whole story. He was just a fellow as you thought him."

Her delicately molded face grew puzzled. "How did he happen to be here? Why did all these dreadful things happen?"

Vilak touched his watch-fob. "That, my cherished cousin, Gold Money. The famous or infamous root of all evil. In this case there were two quite separate and distinct efforts to get wealth, which had come to one. One didn't concern you in the end, but did in the beginning. The other didn't concern you in the beginning, but did most emphatically before it was concluded. Vilak untold the amazing story of Prentiss."

times have changed, not people. I know the struggle that many young couples are up against. They can't possibly maintain a house or a family. I am only excusing the ones who have neither because it is an economic impossibility. For those who prefer luxury without responsibility I have no word. They are just as slothful as the female, and young women, to let the accusation go without a protest.

And now the disappearance of the good old American family, the kind that had children, lived in a house, kept a dog, had a lawn cut out in summer and a sidewalk to shovel off in winter, a furnace to bank, and sundry other things—now they say that all this is on the wane on account of the men. Young men, we are told, won't run lawn mowers, fix furnaces, shovel walks, revamp screens, or do any of the odd jobs that have always been looked after by paternal families.

The declaration comes down to even such a plain statement as this: "In the national passion for shrinking domestic duty, the male has been just as slothful as the female. There is little doubt of the tendency on the part of young married couples not to have houses or children. I am sorry. But I am going to say this also. The world has had children for many centuries. Young couples have always had houses. Young mothers have cooked and sewed and young fathers have cut lawns and shoveled walks."

Why should one generation make such a difference? Surely young people cannot change so completely and break away from all biological tradition if circumstances beyond their control were not directly responsible for their new standards. We cannot blink the fact that

She Made $150 and a Desk Grow Into Great Industry.

MISS BINA M. WEST

Port Huron, Mich., July 21.—Thirty-five years ago Bina M. West's office equipment consisted of a basement room, one desk with a green base top, one medium-sized wastebasket, one small letter file, and a capital of 150 borrowed dollars.

Today she presides over a large office building, erected right on the site of the old basement with all the new-fangled office equipment she wants. She is the supreme commander of a fraternal benefit society for a quarter of a million.

She has paid back the $150 she borrowed and the company she organized has assets totaling over 22 million dollars.

Beyond Her Dreams Back in the struggling days Miss West never so much as dreamed of the magnitude of the work she undertook.

She started out as a school teacher in the little village of Capac, Michigan, her birthplace. In feeding, reading, riting, and "rhythmic" she was so eminently successful that she was selected to serve on the County School Board.

As if it were not sufficient expression of the confidence and appreciation of the community, she was then asked to speak at school meetings and community gatherings.

Once she spoke on insurance, as it applied to her, immediately she received a telegram from Major Nathan S. Boynton of Michigan. "Father of the Maccabees" in which he asked her to found an independent benefit insurance auxiliary for women.

Miss West approached the offer with caution, and had many conferences with her mother before she exchanged her school work for the larger sphere of business. She went with zeal into the matter, which was then a pioneer movement of providing fraternal insurance for women at the lowest possible rate.

Today there are nearly three thousand groups of Women's Benefit association members, with club buildings, health centers, visiting nurse service, baby clinics, summer camps—and bank accounts. Signally Honored

Miss West has received signal honors, such as Honorary Master of Arts Degree from Ann Arbor University. Her home state made her its first national Republican Committee-woman, and the National Fraternal Congress of America honored her with unanimous election as its first woman president in 1925.

"I believe in preparedness," she said, when asked for a little advice to others who might want to follow her successful example. "Not in the sense that it is generally used, but in the matter of education. "Half of the trouble with aspiring young persons lies in the fact that they are not equipped with sufficient education and do not appreciate the necessity of absolute rock bottom ground to make them thorough and conservative."

"Nothing can be accomplished without effort. Nothing can be accomplished by any group without loyalty and cooperation. These are inseparable, but the greatest of all is loyalty."

"Life to me is a matter of color—of which I find considerable more than do many of the married folks I know. There is food for thought of a different sort there. Especially interesting is that point of whether or not it is so important that the human species be carried on. If we deny it, we are knocking out the props from under hundreds of thousands of women who have buckled down to their life job of child-bearing and rearing, supported by a philosophy, conscious or subconscious, which assured them that their job was important, and its doing a civic duty."

But that's for another day. Today we must cudge Artie. I hadn't heard that moth-ridden idea since when, a little girl, the family "felt so sorry for poor cousin Anne who never married." Anne was a spinster of some 30 years, and superintendent of the county schools. A big job for a woman it was in those days when any job other than milking or sewing or hired-girling was a big job for a woman. Anne lived well, and even supplied some of the luxuries of life to her married sisters who were lucky if they had the necessities. But "poor Anne has never really lived!" the family bleated.

If it's a tasty soap to the haters of the modern woman to know that she herself knows that she is not really emancipated, and to know

Miss Bina M. West The more than two hundred Manchester women who are members of the Woman's Benefit Association, the great fraternal insurance organization founded by Miss Bina M. West, will be interested in the illustrated article in regard to Miss West which appears on the home page today. Mystic Review of Manchester was the second instituted in the state, just 24 years ago, coming after Harriet Beecher Stowe review of Hartford. Now there are nearer 40 lodges in Connecticut.

Manchester Tent No. 2, Knights of the Maccabees which this month celebrated its 39th anniversary was at that time going strong, and the leading spirits, some of whom are still officers, induced Miss West, then a very young girl to come to Manchester and organize an auxiliary. The late S. E. Hurlburt, C. J. Balch and A. L. Brown were enthusiastic supporters of the young insurance woman in her work here, and their wives became officers in the new review or "believe" as it was called then.

Miss West was entertained both at the home of Mr. Brown's mother, Mrs. Mary Brown, who then lived on Hudson street, and by Mrs. Hurlburt, who became the first presiding officer of "Lady Commander." Mrs. A. L. Brown was the first record keeper and she was succeeded by Mrs. George H. Allen. Mrs. Balch was one of the early commanders and her successor was the late Mrs. C. W. Cowles. The friendships formed for Miss West then have endured and have been strengthened by her official visits as supreme commander here and in different parts of the state.

One or two officials of the local review have visited the handsome home office building at Port Huron and the W. B. A. Camp on Lake Huron where just this present week the quadrennial convention is being held, with thousands of delegates from all over the United States and Canada. The flags of both countries will be entwined on this occasion.

In reply to the request for a recipe for raspberry sage pudding, printed I believe a year ago, I am glad to have been able to find the directions, which that she does not really revel in her state to the full, they may make the most of the soap. "We may have our jobs and salaries and some independence," one of these women who have "never lived" said to me not long ago. "But we will not be really emancipated until we are accepted as human beings who are doing a worthwhile job which is permitted to be a permanent job, and not merely a 'stop-gap' till we conform and marry and do the one thing which our families and the world in general will acclaim as a vital job."

HEAT STROKE SOMETIMES LEAVES SERIOUS SYMPTOMS

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Two physicians of the United States Navy, Drs. Wakefield and Hall, have recently made available a survey of the various injurious effects of heat that occur in the fire and engine rooms of ships, as well as other depths from heat in the naval service. Among the forms of disturbances they list heat cramps, heat exhaustion, sunstroke and thermic fever.

Heat stroke was described by the most ancient physicians and is mentioned definitely in Biblical records. In 1789, Dr. Benjamin Rush called attention to the fact that the disorder was occasioned by drinking cold water in warm weather and view became so prevalent that it found place even in the readers used in the public schools. Highly moral stories were written relative to the boy who became "verruated, frank cold water and promptly died. It has been found more recently that cautious application of cold clothes or of ice may be helpful.

Sometimes the person who recovers from heat stroke will have secondary symptoms of great seriousness, indicating that the effects on the human body are relatively permanent. One may also become accustomed gradually to greater degrees of heat. A study of the conditions of heat stroke shows that it is far more common among those living in the northern parts than among those born and reared in the south.

A scientific study made on experimental animals by the physicians of the Navy indicated that the kidneys are injured by severe heat-stroke so that they are unable to undertake properly the elimination necessary to keep the body in health. Sometimes the amount of sugar in the blood is increased, but this varies.

There is also a tendency toward the accumulation of acid, or rather a lowering of the alkaline reserve of the body. In other words, the main effects of heat stroke are to bring about a massive increase in the acid material of the body and the symptoms associated with this are associated with acidosis in general.

ASKS SPOONERS' PARK
Kansas City—"They can't spoon in town and we don't allow it on the highways. Yet young folks are going to spoon somewhere, so we ought to provide a place for them."

So says Sheriff Harry Powers, champion of Cupid, who advocates the establishment of a spooners' park where flaming youth can "sneck" without interference.

And now the disappearance of the good old American family, the kind that had children, lived in a house, kept a dog, had a lawn cut out in summer and a sidewalk to shovel off in winter, a furnace to bank, and sundry other things—now they say that all this is on the wane on account of the men.

BILLY EVANS

BRANOM WAS BUST Wiggling up major league material is a big gamble. Highly touted players often fall, while some little-heralded recruits are showing signs of developing into a star.

Always a good man on the ground ball, Dykes plays a deep first base and covers more territory than most of the men playing that position in the majors.

While the failure of Branom was a severe jolt to the hopes of the Athletics, it was not without its good points for it gave Jimmy Dykes a chance to prove his worth.

FINANCE finds a competitor challenging his right to the place he occupies. He naturally goes in there to kill off that challenge.

JACK LOCKWILL IN THE WOODS

by Gilbert Patten

The vindictive man, smarting with the remembrance of his discomfort when he had attempted to shoot the bear, had sneaked back to the boys' camp, alone. "I know they lied when they told us which way ye went!" he shouted. "Now where's your old man and that dratted bear? You better tell me in a hurry!" Bambi dropped the cans and began to fight, tooth and nail.

Jack Lockwill reached them, on the jump, and tore the struggling girl from the man's hands. With a blow, he sent Frye reeling against the tree.

Recalling, Frye struck at the boy with his right hand. Jack ducked under, stepped forward, and hurled the man down, with a backheel trip and a chin thrust.

Then McNally and Darling arrived on the scene. "Give it to him!" roared Tom, ready to jump on the man, who, more than a little dazed, was sitting up. "No!" cried Jack, restraining McNally. "There are three of us, and I guess I can handle the lumbering lout alone." "Now I will have the law on the pack of ye!" snarled Frye, scrambling up and backing away. "I'll get a warrant!"

CAN'T TELL HOW MUCH
"FLYING FISH" WEIGHED

North End Angler Hooks It On the Wing But Of Course It Gets Away.

A north end fisherman, who occasionally catches a fish, caught something more unusual last night when he almost bagged a swallow at Bolton lake while making a cast. The skies were overcast just before the thunderstorm and the lake was almost completely obscured by a cloud of swallows which skimmed the surface of the water. The local man made his cast and in doing so hooked one of the swallows which was flying near the rowboat. The hook imbedded itself in the feathers of the bird but when the fisherman pulled the line in the swallow had worked itself free. They didn't catch any fish last night.

INTEREST SUSTAINED IN VACATION SCHOOL.

Instructive Talks Feature N. E. Church School—What Has Been Accomplished.

The closing days of the Vacation Church school conducted for the past three weeks at the north end find the attendance keeping up remarkably well. While a number of children have left for camp or seashore, other new pupils have enrolled making the number of teachers and pupils about 140 at present.

Additional features have been introduced from time to time in the way of instructive talks. Miss Marion Gammons of the teaching force gave a very interesting account of her experiences as a teacher in Mexico. Rev. Watson Woodruff was a visitor at the school one morning and during the time in the morning and the workings of the vacation school as the children were in his talk on timepieces in comparison with their lives.

Another lecturer was Miss Gertrude Abbey who gave a description of her travels in the Holy Land to the intermediate department at the North Methodist church and the junior children at the Second Congregational. Miss Abbey told of her visit to Jerusalem and Egypt where she saw the pyramids and Sphinx and other places and objects of interest in that country. She exhibited many pictures and souvenirs collected on her trip which lent added interest to her talk. Tomorrow morning Rev. J. Stuart Neill of St. Mary's Episcopal church will speak to the children and their instructors and this will be another treat.

On Saturday afternoon at 2:30 the last session of the school will be held at the Second Congregational church. The intermediate department which has held all its classes at the North Methodist church will unite with the junior and primary departments. Each department will have a place on the program, the details of which are being worked out by a committee consisting of the Misses Marion Gammons, Gertrude Carrier and Rev. F. C. Allen. The handwork which has been accomplished in the last three weeks will form a very interesting exhibit. After the session of the model school which will consume about an hour, a social time with refreshments will be provided for the children.

All friends and relatives of the children are cordially invited to attend this exhibition, or anyone interested in this modern idea of religious education. While this is the first school of its kind in Manchester, the value of such schools has been demonstrated in all the western cities. In Minneapolis six of the churches organized vacation schools several years ago. The course has been extended to six weeks of the summer vacation and they have a large attendance. In Hartford this summer a number of the churches are successfully carrying on vacation schools for three and four week periods. All these vacation church schools are carried on in a similar manner.

ONLY FORGETTERS
TRY TO DO BUYING
Merchants Day 90 Per Cent Complete Shutdown; Food Shops Not Unanimous.

At twenty minutes before ten this forenoon a man in an Essex car drove down Main street from the direction of the Center, wheeled his bus and parked in front of a hardware store, smiling a small smile at the multitude of parking space on the block. He crossed the walk and attempted to turn the knob of the hardware store door.

"Damn!" said he, handing the air a short right hook. He had forgotten all about Merchants Day. Every once in a while somebody tried a door to find it locked against him, but on the whole there was comparatively little forgetfulness in the part of the public. The town was not absolutely airtight shut, as to business, some of the markets keeping open in the morning, while some did not, and confectioners and drugists' doors were hospitably ajar all day. Chain food stores generally keep open this afternoon. One or two other concerns along Main street at the south end tried to do business but found little if any to do. Restaurants, of course, were on the job. Observance of the annual shopkeepers' day off might be said to have been 90 per cent complete, if the "except" classes of establishments are excluded.

Can't Deliver Goods
Expressmen who came from Hartford to deliver goods this morning found that they had either to take the merchandise back with them or leave it on the doorsteps of the stores. One expressman arrived with a full truckload of boxes and packages and when he had a disgusted look on his face and his load still on the truck. Chain stores in various parts of the town were not affected by the holiday. Some of them which close usually on Thursday afternoons were open this morning. From the number of people on Main street it was not a profitable day for anybody and from Oak street to the Center there could be seen about ten persons.

Off to The Resorts
Employees of some of the stores in town were sorry that the holiday did not fall on yesterday or that the Lindbergh reception in Hartford could not have been put off until today. Most of them, however, started for shore or lake resorts early this morning with the promise of fair weather for the day helping to keep them in good spirits.

Even the barber shops are closed and men who had not had a shave yesterday were obliged to do the job themselves or wore their bristles until tomorrow. Some grocery stores other than those operated by chain corporations stayed open in the morning while a few were open all day.

Mrs. Charles Kitching and the Misses Florence and Leona Kitching of Sanford, Me., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kitching of 71 Summer Street.
