

SCHEMERS PLAN TO RUIN WORLD, GARFIELD SAYS

Hints at Sinister Influences At Geneva Parley, at the Opening of the Institute of Politics.

Williamstown, Mass., July 28.—"Without pointing the finger at any nation, our own or any other, I dare say that conferences are now being held which promise anything but fortunate results for the nations," Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams college, asserted here today in opening the seventh annual session of the institute of politics. He added: "Men of good will and high purpose are striving for that which is good, but their councils are menaced. They are opposed by the sinister attitude of scheming and unwintry men."

"Is good will to prevail or envy, hatred and malice?"

Refers to Geneva
This declaration was interpreted here as having reference directly to the Geneva disarmament conference, which for the first time has been an open and threatened with disruption.

America's power to produce goods and the consequent necessity to sell that production forms the keynote of this year's institute program, according to Dr. Walter W. McLean, executive secretary. He pointed out that economists estimated production in the United States today is nearly equal to that of all the rest of the world.

Many Sided Problems
"This recent development has brought us face to face with a many sided problem. The program of the present session represents an attempt to solve this problem. Hence our interest in Europe, in the other American republics, in the British empire, in China, in our own tropical colonies and in those of other nations. In all these directions we will canvass the situation in the financial, economic, agricultural, political and legal aspects."

TO FORCIBLY FEED SACCO-VANZETTI

Radicals Are Growing Weaker on the Twelfth Day of Their Hunger Strike.

Boston, Mass., July 28.—Forcible feeding of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, who have been on a hunger strike at state's prison for twelve days, was discussed at that institution today.

Prison officials said that both prisoners were growing weaker. This was Sacco's twelfth day without food. Vanzetti had been without food the same length of time, except one meal and one cup of coffee. They are doomed to die in the electric chair the week of August 10 for a double slaying.

Gov. Fuller had before him three envelopes given him by the advisory committee. President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, President Samuel W. Stratton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Judge Robert Grant. The envelopes were believed to contain the findings of the advisory committee.

The general impression was that the decision, if such the envelopes contained, was adverse to Sacco and Vanzetti. Others decided that the presence of three envelopes indicated a division of opinion. Defense sympathizers admitted that they arrived at the conclusion that the report was a blow to the defense because of the short time the advisory committee occupied in reaching a decision.

Gov. Fuller continued to deliberate. A state trooper has been placed on guard over Mrs. Fuller and the children at Rye Beach.

50 YEAR SENTENCE
Mineola, N. Y., July 28.—"Boss" Billy Williams, who defied the authorities of Westchester and Long Island in a three year burglary campaign which netted him well over a million dollars, today was sentenced to serve fifty years in Sing Sing prison by County Judge Lewis J. Smith. He had pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with the theft of $90,000 in jewels from the home of Jesse Livermore, Wall street financier, at Kings Point, Long Island.

The sentence of fifty years is tantamount to life imprisonment. Williams is thirty-one.

KIWANISANS' GIFT
Hartford, Conn., July 28.—The Kiwanis clubs of Connecticut were to present to the state a twenty-acre tract at Barkhamsted in ceremonies scheduled for late this afternoon. The tract is an addition to the people's forest owned by the state.

BABY BANDIT SHOT BY COPS

Waterbury Police Did Not Know Burglars Were Boys in Darkness of Store.

Waterbury, Conn., July 28.—Waterbury's "baby bandits" came to grief last night when they returned once too often to loot the cash till of the Leopold furniture store and found a reception of bullets.

The older of the pair, Irving Kerzner, 12, was shot a glancing blow in the abdomen and will recover. His companion, George Kerzner, 11, a cousin, escaped injury but not a jail cell.

The boys admitted they had entered the store several times in the past securing small sums of money. They gained entrance by descending from the roof which adjoined the store of a store owned by Irving's father.

Store in Darkness
Last night as they crept down the stairs to the interior of the furniture store, two officers were waiting for them. Because of the darkness the officers were unable to see the intruders who were boys and when the boys beat a retreat at the command to halt, the policemen fired.

One bullet ricocheted off two mirrors and grazed Irving's side.

Higher police authorities have absolved the officers of any blame.

PLANNING FLIGHT OVER SOUTH POLE

Date to Be Announced Next Week—Byrd to Take Along a Crew of 30.

Boston, Mass., July 28.—Commander Richard E. Byrd, conqueror of the air route to the North Pole and of the trans-Atlantic air line, today was engaged in planning a flight over the South Pole for scientific purposes.

Floyd Bennett, naval pilot, and Bernal Balchen, of the oceanic airship America fame, arrived from New York to discuss with Commander Byrd details of an air expedition to the Antarctic.

The date of the take off will probably be announced next week.

30 in Crew
The south pole expedition will be composed of some thirty men, according to Commander Byrd, including twelve scientists.

The greatest obstacle to be overcome will be the immense ice barrier, a mystery of the Antarctic, which stretches for miles, 250 feet in height. The approach to the pole, Commander Byrd said, would be from the direction of New Zealand.

Motor Tractors
Dog sleds and motor tractors will be used to penetrate the Antarctic region.

Lightning Does Much Damage;
Hall Stones as Large as Marbles in Bristol.

New Haven, Conn., July 28.—A survey by the government weather station here today shows that many Connecticut cities felt the full brunt of the season's most severe electrical rain and hail storm yesterday afternoon.

Lightning struck several places in New Haven, the most serious damage resulting from the bolt that demolished the upper part of Wilton MacKenzie's home in West Haven. Suburban traffic and communication lines were disrupted for several hours.

Bristol reported hail stones as large as marbles that struck with bullet force. Heavy winds blew over trees and small structures while lightning leveled the barn of Frank H. Wood, destroying four tons of hay.

At New Britain no residences were struck by lightning and a farm building in Stanley quarter damaged in East Berlin trees were uprooted as a electric wires lines impaired.

Hartford and vicinity was similarly hit by state's agriculture surveys so far indicate that crop damage will not be large.

LINEMAN FALLS
Norwalk, Conn., July 28.—George St. Germaine, of Norwalk, lineman for the New York Electric Company, is in a critical condition in Pordham hospital, New York, from injuries received when he fell 35 feet from a platform on which he was working, according to word received by his wife here today. He was picked up unconscious.

HOP HELD UP
Southampton, Eng., July 28.—A fresh burst of bad weather on the British coast held Captain Frank T. Courtney, British trans-Atlantic flyer, storm-bound today.

Courtney said that all was in readiness as soon as there was a break in the storm.

GOVERNORS MAY TAKE UP FARM RELIEF MATTER

To Call Conference of Na- tion's Best Minds Despite President's Veto of the McNary-Haugen Bill.

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 28.—A conference of the country's best minds—economic, financial, industrial and agricultural—to consider the existing farm situation and to try to evolve a workable plan of relief, was being considered seriously here today by several middle west governors who have been most vocal at the annual governors' conference in demanding that something be done by winter.

Although the grain belt governors favor strongly the McNary-Haugen bill, and have criticized severely President Coolidge for vetoing it, they realize that probably another veto awaits the measure when, and if, Congress passes it again. It will be re-introduced in the new Congress in December and probably will pass but even the most ardent McNary-Haugenite admits there is little prospect of passing it over a veto.

To Call Conference
Therefore, a casual suggestion thrown out by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, that a conference of the leading figures in the financial, economic, industrial and agricultural world might be held, found increasing favor among the westerners as the governor's conference broke up today.

Several of the governors would like to see President Coolidge call the conference. But if he is unwilling, they realize the idea is feasible without White House support. They realize that the opposition to the McNary-Haugen bill centers in the great conservative business interests of the east.

Pick the Board
The governors believe that if men of the type of Judge Albert H. Gary, of the United States Steel Corporation, Owen D. Young, who collaborated with General Dawes in the formation of the Dawes plan, and the most powerful bankers of the east, could be gotten around the same table with spokesmen for the farmers, the easterners could be convinced of the seriousness of the situation, and possibly a constructive program evolved.

"The great industrial states of the east have grown prosperous through the protection afforded them by the existing tariff," said Gov. Adam McMullen, of Nebraska. "We don't want to tear it down. All we of the west want is to be brought into the era of prosperity which the government has helped to create for the banks and other great basic economic factors. We want no favors but equality."

The governor's conference stood adjourned today, and the remaining executives embarked from this historic spot this morning for a trip through the upland lake region and to inspect the locks of the Soo. The easterners will scatter to their homes tonight following the day's outing.

MOTHER OF SLAYER RENOUNCES HER SON

"If I Had Known of His Crime I Would Have Killed Him Myself."

Winsted, Conn., July 28.—Mrs. Mary De Lutre, mother of Jack Billadella, 19-year-old moron who has confessed the brutal assault and murder of Rose Bordino, 10 today publicly renounced her son and declared that "had she known of his guilt she would have killed him before he could have been arrested."

"I shall not help him in any way. He is no longer my son," Mrs. De Lutre, owner of considerable real estate here, declared.

"My sympathies are all with the family of little Rose. I am convinced of his guilt."

Less than a month ago Mrs. De Lutre attempted to insure the boy's life, she said, but the application had been rejected with the suggestion that she have him examined both physically and mentally.

Billadella has confessed to assaulting the child and burying her alive beneath the boards of a coal bin where she succumbed after three days to her injuries and slow suffocation.

Mrs. De Lutre told of having visited her son when he was an inmate of the reformatory on charges of having attempted to assault another child, explaining she had wanted him examined in New York at that time, but had postponed the trip. He was later paroled.

COOLIDGE IN THE UNCOVERED WAGON

Bumpy, bump, bumpy, bump—over the rough mountain trail from Mystic, S. D., to Slate creek, high in the hills, the President and Mrs. Coolidge rode along in this primitive wagon so that the president might pose as a fisherman for the movie cameras. Once, when the trail was too much for the labors of the team, President Coolidge got out and pushed. Mrs. Coolidge is holding "Tiny Jim," her pet chow dog. Former Governor S. R. McKelvie of Nebraska, who was the Coolidges' host, is shown in the wagon, back of the president. And the newspaper men trail along behind.

New England, Haven Of Rum Smugglers

Editor's Note: The numerous islands and bays of Lake Champlain, the "Promised Land" of rum runners working down over the Canadian border, Lawrence Sullivan writes in the last of his series on border bootlegging.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN
Burlington, Vt., July 28.—The bootlegger has been driven from the Green Mountains of Vermont, but Canadian rum smugglers still churn the waters of Lake Champlain daily with their powerful motor launches along more than seventy miles of Vermont coast line. From the shores of this historic lake as well as from eighty miles of Quebec border between Champlain and the New Hampshire line, daily consignments of Canadian "exports" find their way by launch, automobile and rail to the New England markets which have not an international line or ocean shore for their own direct supply.

The Promised Land
Despite the constant patrolling of the lake by United States customs launches operating from both the New York and Vermont shores, Champlain's numerous islands containing the promised land of Quebec distilleries, along the Richelieu, Lake Champlain is the rum game resort to the thousands of summer resorts which dot the Adirondacks, Green and White mountains of New York, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Northwestern New York, and the back door to the New England seaboard cities.

Winter a Handicap
Only the severe New England winters have in the seven and a half years of United States prohibition.

OUR STATE AUTOS WORTH 86 MILLION

Horses and Mules Nearly 3 Million—Our Jewelry Val- ued at a Million.

Hartford, Conn., July 28.—Connecticut owned motor vehicles have a total value of almost thirty times that of the lowly horse and mule, Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett dolefully announces in driving another nail into the careers of these noble beasts.

Likewise the old carriage and wagon is rapidly doing a fade out, tax lists show, although occasionally some bold defender arises to declare that horses and their equipment are doing a comeback.

Auto Values
Motor vehicle values passed the $86,000,000 mark on June 30, the figures show, while $2,900,000 has been the approximate value for horses and mules. Farming implements values were placed at $1,335,154 while carriages and wagons only totaled $446,459.

Even domestic cattle outdistanced the horses with a value of $8,690,840. Dwelling houses are the only types of individually owned property exceeding automobiles in value with a total of $903,502,000.

More Figures
Eighteen cities and towns have motor vehicles with values listed at more than $1,000,000. New Haven heads the list with $11,690,468. Hartford follows with $8,642,481. Others include Bridgeport, $7,857,835; Waterbury, $3,777,800; New Britain, $3,471,510; Greenwich, $3,100,405 and Stamford, $2,522,585.

Jewelry values in the entire state reach only $1,155,364 probably accountable to the well recognized antagonism of taxpayers to declare intangibles, particularly jewelry, assessors said.

An idea of this habit is demonstrated by an estimate that 100,000 watches at least are owned in the state with an average value of $10, or a total of $1,000,000 if all were declared. This sum subtracted from the present value, would mean that all the other jewelry in the state amounts to only $155,364.

BRITAIN IS WILLING TO READJUST PLANS

Will Make Temporary Arrangement About the Im- mediate Future of Cruiser Buildings—London Press Endorses the Idea.

London, July 28.—As the Tri-Partite Naval Conference in Geneva resumes, the belief prevails in London today that the way has been opened for adjusting the difficulties between the United States and Great Britain on the question of cruisers and that an agreement for, at least, four years will be reached.

The basis for this feeling is the statement of Sir Austen Chamberlain in the House of Commons that the British government is willing to make a temporary arrangement about the immediate future of cruiser building, which is interpreted here as a meaning that Great Britain offers objections to the United States building as many large cruisers as Congress will approve between now and 1931 when the whole question of naval strength will be reconsidered.

Under such an agreement the United States would achieve superiority in heavy battle cruisers while Great Britain would concentrate on building light cruisers which are considered essential for commercial protection.

Naval parity between the United States would be lacking during the period of the temporary agreement, although, as Sir Austen pointed out yesterday, Great Britain won't abandon a principle of maritime equality in perpetuity.

Sir Austen's statement has been endorsed generally by the British press.

The Manchester Guardian today said: "Security by means of naval defense is largely a matter of money and since we are no longer the richest nation, we cannot be sure of always having the strongest navy."

"Whether we want to or not, we must rely for our security upon the sagacity of our politicians and their ability to keep us out of war."

"If our politicians cannot already guarantee that under no circumstances will they lead us into war with the United States, they have no business to attend a disarmament conference."

ENVOYS ARRIVE
Geneva, July 28.—The Hon. W. C. Bridgeman and Viscount Cecil, British delegates to the Tri-Partite Naval Conference, arrived back in Geneva from London at 8 o'clock this morning and made a preliminary call upon Hugh Gibson, chief of the American delegation, and Viscount Admiral Saito, head of the Japanese delegation.

A conference between the six chief delegates is expected this afternoon.

British officials admitted their stand was not changed materially and in American quarters pessimism prevailed that there was no prospect of a speedy climax to the conference might be expected.

Even the most optimistic observers anticipate that the conference will achieve nothing further than a diplomatic agreement for a partial limitation of naval building between now and 1931 when the Washington treaty will be up for renewal.

General opinion here is that the chief reason of the British delegation's visit to London was to secure public approval of their intransigent stand on the question of cruisers.

CHICAGO IS PICKED FOR TUNNEY FIGHT
Tex Rickard Says So After Conference With Prominent Men of Windy City.

Chicago, July 28.—"It's Chicago's fight." This was the first declaration of Tex Rickard, New York promoter, when he arrived here today from the east for a two-day conference with Chicagoans interested in bringing the Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey return bout here.

MOTHER OF AIMEE DOUBTS KIDNAPPING

Says She Was Never Able to Get the Truth—Evangelist Faints as She's Told.

Los Angeles, Calif., July 28.—Aimee Semple McPherson's story of her Mexican kidnapping came to life again today with the evangelist's mother openly questioning the truth of her daughter's narrative.

Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of the red-haired pastor of Angelus Temple, publicly doubted the kidnapping story after Mrs. McPherson had ousted her from management of the Temple.

"I have never been able to get the truth about the kidnapping," Mrs. Kennedy remarked. "I knew when she was found at Douglas something was wrong but I've never been able to find out the truth."

Aimee Swoons
These statements of Mrs. Kennedy sent the evangelist into a swoon, and today her emotional behavior betrayed her anguish over the widening breach between her mother and herself.

"I am stunned by mother's words," Aimee gasped, "but no matter what anyone says about the kidnapping they cannot change the facts."

The evangelist carefully explained that the ousting of her mother from the temple management had been demanded by the Angelus Temple congregation. "I have no quarrel with mother," she insisted. "It is the church committee representing the church that is making certain demands on mother, not me."

A "sinister influence" is responsible for her daughter's present conduct, "Mother" Kennedy declared.

When Kenneth Ormiston (former Angelus Temple radio operator) came back I tried to get the truth and things cleared up about the kidnapping, but I couldn't," Mrs. Kennedy continued.

"I felt there was some evil influence working behind things then and that same sinister and mysterious force is making sister act this way now."

Proposals Made
Although temple leaders indicated Mrs. Kennedy would not be allowed to resume control of church finances, several proposals were made to her today. They were the

NEW YORK PREPARING FOR COURTNEY'S COMING

Searchlights of 18 Billion Candle Power to Illuminate New York Harbor.

New York, July 28.—Searchlights with a total of eighteen and a half billion candle power will be directed about New York harbor to facilitate the landing of Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British flyer, on his trans-Atlantic voyage.

The concentration is said by W. G. Marthia, illuminating engineer of the New York Edison company, on the mayor's committee, to be the greatest amount of artificial lighting ever directed for an occasion of this sort.

Landing space for the British ace in New York harbor will be kept clear in an area one-half mile long and a quarter-mile wide, southwest of Governor's Island. The area will be marked off by four city ferry boats, under an arrangement made by Commissioner Albert Goldman, of the Department of Plant and Structures.

The four boats have eight searchlights with a combined candlepower of ten billions. Tugboats will be arranged so the "field" can be shifted about to suit the landing of Courtney's plane.

REPORT 1,000 DEAD FROM INDIA FLOODS

Only Meagre Details Received in London—Town of 50,000 Is Threatened by Waters.

London, July 28.—Only meagre details have thus far been received here of the catastrophic floods which are reported to have swept portions of India.

Calcutta and Bombay dispatches stated that the dead are reported at more than 1,000 and that incalculable damage has been done.

More than 50 per cent of the cotton crop in the important cotton growing section of Gupurat has been destroyed, a Bombay dispatch states.

Continuous rain is spreading disaster in Assam and in Rangoon, Bencal and Bombay.

FALLS WITH PLANE

Boston, Mass., July 28.—The mechanism of an old army airplane flying over Charles river basin with the controls, gave way and made imperative a forced landing in a field near Massachusetts Institute Technology today.

Lieut. Warburton climbed out of the wreckage with only slight injuries.

As the plane was an obsolete one used for practice flights it will not be salvaged but the wreckage will be destroyed by fire.

WELLS SATIRIZES BRITISH NOTABLES

Famous Novelist Raps Mod- ern Peers—Takes a Fling At Fascism and Mussolini.

London, July 28.—"Meanwhile," H. G. Wells' latest novel issued today, has caused something of a sensation because of its biting satire and is frank condemnation.

Wells satirizes the modern day British peer in a character which he calls "Lord Edensoke," and pictures this peer sitting down with champagne and cigars and pontificating that "what this country needs is hard work."

One character in the novel is made to refer to Premier Baldwin, saying, "If after all these doings happen to be a last judgment, Master Stanley will be put through it hard and good. 'Put that pipe down, sir, the great flaming angel will say, 'we want to see your face.'"

Many shafts are directed at Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer. One character in the novel is made to say:

"Calls Him Sniper
"As might be expected Winston has gone clean off his head. He is in his belly and helped to snipe in Sydney street."

Wells also takes a fling at Fascism in the novel and "charlatan, actor, destroyer, cannibal" are some of the words he makes one of his characters use in referring to Mussolini.

SOCIETY ACTING IN AVERY GIRL'S CASE

Humane Agents Proceeding Carefully to Aid Condition Of Little Kidnapper.

Three or four days may elapse before the disposal of the case of Grace Avery, 13-year-old Coventry girl who kidnapped the young baby of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Quickmore on Monday. It was said today at the office of the Connecticut Humane Society in Hartford. The case is so unusual, it was said, that some time will be required for a full investigation and a decision as to what will be done. It was disclosed today that the Humane Society some months ago had petitioned for an investigation of the conditions at the Avery home, asking for a re-arrangement regarding the two adopted children who are living there. The case came up in the probate court for that district and the decision went against the society. To Come Up Again W. C. Phelps, special agent for the society, said in his brief report to headquarters that conditions at the Avery home were poor and that the two adopted children were not under proper guardianship. This matter will come up when the case is brought under the jurisdiction of whatever court may assume it. No action is contemplated on the part of the parents of the kidnapped child. It has been learned, for they were so overjoyed at the baby's appearance that they decided to press no charges. Coventry people say that the motive which inspired the Avery girl to kidnap the child was nothing more than the desire to have someone to play with her own which she could love. LONG SEARCH ENDS Detroit, Mich., July 28.—A seven year search for the last member of a quartet accused of the murder of Henry P. Pierce, a wealthy Philadelphia bachelor, ended here today when police arrested Marion A. Elliott, 25. Elliott, with two other men and a woman, are said by Philadelphia police to have robbed Pierce before they murdered him in his apartment on November 21, 1920. The other men and the woman, a chorus girl, are awaiting trial in Philadelphia for the crime.

2 ONE-CAR CRASHES RESULT IN WRECKAGE

Ford Overturns, Occupant Unhurt; Woman Driver Too Courteous to Truck.

A Ford sedan owned and driven by William Hewitt of Florence street overturned on Center street near Adams this morning and was badly damaged. The driver, who was the only occupant of the car, escaped injury. According to the story told after the smash, he was going toward Hartford and had taken a wide margin at the curve where the trolley tracks cross to the south side of the road. He ran over to the trolley tracks and one of the wheels caught in the rail. He gave the steering wheel a turn and the car toppled over on its top, wrecking the upper part of the machine and breaking the windshield and glass. Hewitt immediately started to try to repair the machine because "I want to get it home in fair condition so that my wife won't know I smashed it up." Gave Too Much Room Looking to the left to see if a truck coming the other way had enough room to pass, Miss Anna Downing of 87 Cooper street, failed to watch the right side of the road and her car crashed into a tree opposite 445 Oakland street yesterday afternoon. She was proceeding south on that street and the truck was going north. Her car was badly smashed in front and the radiator, front fenders, windshield and chassis were considerably damaged. There were two persons in the car but neither was injured. Motor-city Policeman Rudolph Wirtalla investigated the accident.

MUCH TO CRITICIZE IN SCHOOLS OF 8TH

Dr. Holmes Finds Many Outs In North Street; Hollister School Ventilation Bad.

School Physician Leverage Holmes, M. D., finds considerable ground for criticism in the schools of the Eighth district according to the summary of his report, which follows: "At Hollister street the ventilating system rarely works. At times the rooms, even with the windows open, the air is bad. The room used for sloyd is inadequate in space, light, heat and ventilation. "At North School Street the school is badly handicapped by the lack of facilities. Offices, teachers' rest room, teachers' toilets and washing facilities are practically nil. The assembly hall is very poorly lighted and ventilated. When used for only a short time the air becomes very foul. This lack of light and ventilation and unsuitable class room purposes. "In the portable building the light and ventilation is also very bad. The heat is uneven and often there is escaping coal gas. This should not be used for class room. "The old building does not heat evenly, so that at the west end, where the kindergarten is located, there is complaint of not being warm enough, while at the same time in the rooms at east end, especially in the basement. It is so warm that the pupils and teachers are soon exhausted. The walls of the east end are full of ash and soot dust. The class room on the second floor is much overcrowded and the adjoining room used for recitation is too poorly lighted, heated and ventilated and is too small to be used for that purpose. The basement room with concrete floor, once used for sloyd, is unsuited for class room purposes. Some floors are so worn that it is difficult to keep them clean. "Dark day illumination in many rooms is bad. "The lack of closets results in the rooms being cluttered with papers and books which collect dust. "During hot weather the children are thirsty when they return from recess. Much time is lost to the study period or they are restless because of thirst. I believe that outside bubblers turned on in the summer time would do much to remedy this. "The janitor service has been very good."

EXTRA-TERRITORIAL

Advocates of the ejection of the Manchester Library from the room occupied by it in the Robertson school building are pleading their case through the columns of an out-of-town newspaper, possibly expecting some useful backing from the residents of Bristol, Newington, West Hartford and way stations. One of the arguments they are employing is that one room of the Robertson school now used for class purposes and which the school committee desires to abandon presents unspeakably horrible condition of having a concrete floor.

It has probably not occurred to the committee that hundreds of very costly buildings are now being erected in strict conformity to the rules of fireproof construction—and that they all have concrete floors. A wooden floor in a present-day public building is an anachronism. The fact that a single school room in the Robertson school has a concrete floor, so far from being any reason to condemn it, rather puts a premium on that particular room as being a cut ahead of the rest of the structure in one essential attribute of fire-proofing.

However, the question of whether the Manchester Public Library shall be required to find other quarters is not one to be decided by the inhabitants of the proposed metropolitan district of Hartford, nor yet by the Eighth School district committee nor even by the directors of the Library. The right of occupancy of the Library's present quarters was granted by the voters of the Eighth district and it is the voters of the Eighth district who have the power to abrogate that right—and nobody else.

The sooner the Eighth District school committee comes to a realization that it is up against a stone wall in its attempt to eject the Library by its own unsupported action and the sooner it calls a district meeting to dispose of the matter in an orderly and legal manner, the sooner the problem will be solved. It is entirely within the possibilities that the voters may agree with the committee that there is no room to spare in the Robertson school building for Library purposes. But if they do it is a safe prediction that they will not countenance any such summary ousting as has been undertaken by the committee. And it is also entirely possible that they may decide that, all things considered, the disadvantages in forcing a removal of the Library may outweigh the rather slender advantages to be obtained. In any event the whole affair is one for the decision of the voters. In its claim to that effect the Library board certainly occupies a position far stronger than that of the school committee, which for some reason appears to be reluctant to refer the matter to the people of the district.

NOT A HOOT

The pessimistic Edwin L. James, Paris correspondent of the New York Times, who is the most despairing American newspaperman if any considerable ability in Europe, speaks as follows concerning the impasse in the Geneva naval limitations parley: "Might not Americans in making their judgment on the situation bear in mind that other nations find it impossible to escape the conclusion that the United States was actuated largely by the prestige factor, that it wants a fleet as big as Britain's and that it is going to have it one way or another."

Mr. James spends too much of his time abroad. He would be a better correspondent if he did not sit so permanently in Paris, but once in a while took a trip across the ocean for at least a short visit to America. He knows something of Europe but little of the United States if he thinks that there is any ponderable number of persons in this country, outside the Navy, the Navy Department and the Naval Academy, who care a rap about having a "fleet as big as England's" or who would consent to the spending of several hundred million dollars to bring about the much talked of parity. America is seeing the vision of the air far too clearly to be willing to tie up her safety to a flock of enormously expensive targets for the fighting plane of the "next war" to lay eggs on. The urge to match British marine power "ship for ship and gun for gun" exists in the minds of professional military sailors and a handful of firecracker statesmen like Senator Moses, and nowhere else.

Nine Americans out of ten have no interest in the parity idea. What they want and will insist on is a cessation in the spending of huge sums on an antiquated, practically obsolete method of national defense. And on that point they will be heard from.

WOODEN

The position taken by Superintendent E. S. Boyd, of the Connecticut School for Boys (reform school) at Meriden, with relation to the repeated paroling of John Billadella, murderer of the little Bordinella girl at Winsted, displays an ingenuousness that is almost infantile. The boy behaved himself at the school, the superintendent points out, so it was manifestly all right to set him at liberty. The fact that twice before he had been paroled and had followed his liberation once by attacking two young girls and once by robbing church poor boxes, seems to be a matter that had no bearing, in the official mind, on the probabilities of the boy's conduct if paroled a third time.

Following this line of thought, should the impossible occur and young Billadella be once more returned to the custody of Superintendent Boyd as the result of this murder, it would only be necessary for the murderer to carry himself circumspectly for eleven months at the Meriden institution in order to make it perfectly proper to liberate him again.

Nothing has brought so much discredit on the parole system as this disposition to administer it wooden-headedly, as if it were a rule in simple arithmetic which couldn't go wrong if followed by the letter. As a matter of fact the parole system calls for the exercise of extraordinary wisdom and extreme care. That neither care nor wisdom were displayed in the Billadella case is self-proven. That they can be expected to be exercised in even a majority of cases is a matter of doubt.

From an extreme of heartless and stupid cruelty in the administration of the prison system this country has passed, within half a century, to an opposite extreme in which mushy sentimentality may conceivably be doing as much harm as the old time callousness. Here in Connecticut we have fortunately escaped most of the harm done to the country's major penal system. But with relation to the reform school, at least, we seem to be in a reasonably bad way.

CAMELS AND GNATS

The mental attitude of Rev. Gladwyn Nichols, Angelus Temple insurgent, is worthy of contemplation by those interested in psychology. He used to be choir leader in Aimee Semple McPherson's sensational church, but now at the head of 279 revolutionists of that institution is running an independent church.

Mr. Nichols says that Aimee and her mother owe the world a confession with relation to the alleged kidnapping of the evangelist and plainly intimates that the kidnapping story was a fake. But it is only now that the insurgent minister commits himself to the suggestion that his former pastor is not utterly infallible. And what leads him at this late day to that conclusion? He revolted, he says, against the "increasing worldliness of the 'evangelist.'" When the Angelus pastor bobbed her red hair that was the last straw.

Doubtless Rev. Mr. Nichols is not the only person in the world who can swallow such a camel as that kidnapping episode, which brought death to three or four people, upset the police machinery of an entire county for weeks and produced an elegant crop of perjury—and strain at the gnat of hair bobbing. But the question of how he got that way is always absorbingly interesting.

WOW-WOW!

One is impressed, with relation to the news stories of the much touted Stillman-Wilson wedding in the Canadian North country, by the fact that young Lena Viola Wilson Stillman has acquired a mother-in-law. Also the facility with which the elder Mrs. Stillman bombarded the camera men with plates and teacups suggests that perhaps, in spite of the millions of words that used to be printed about the marital infelicities of Banker Stillman and his spouse, the entire truth of that highly diverting saga was never truly understood. It is seldom that a lady who is adept at bounding crockery off the heads of such persons as do not at together please her makes the easiest sort of a person with whom to maintain placid domestic relations over a long term of years. One is tempted to ameliorate somewhat the disregard in which the unpopular Stillman, Senior, was held for many years, and to commiserate forebodingly with the forest bride on the years that lie ahead of her.

FLORIDA RUBBER

Thomas Edison has been rather secretly interviewing officials of the United States government whose duties have to do with such matters, concerning the possibility of growing rubber in America. It is understood that Mr. Edison has been interested, for some time, in the subject of rubber production in this country, particularly in Florida.

There is this to be said for that state, in this relation, that without the use of any imported material whatever it manufactured the most extensively inflatable balloon that has ever been fabricated in the United States and originated a brand of truth perfectly marvelous in its elasticity.

Perhaps it will prove as good a growing ground for gum as for booms.

Winona, Minn.—With less than a year to go before he reaches the century mark, and still active enough to attend church every Sunday, John Walski is ready to die. "There's no glory in being 100 years old," he says, "and besides I'm curious about what the next life holds."

New York, July 28.—"Hard-boiled New York?" they say.

Well, let's see. In one of the out-of-the-way corners of the rambling catabombs that make up the lower level of Pennsylvania railroad station there is a battered table. It has been placed beside the revolving stairway which leads to the street. Every morning tens of thousands of commuters rush from the green countryside to this stairway. Thousands of them pass the table by, but a few notice a sign which reads: "Flower Distributing Station. Remember those to whom flowers would mean so much."

... Remember those to whom flowers would mean so much. A sickroom made happier by a gift of flowers. Flowers are mighty scarce in New York but most folks who work in the city, but live in the suburbs have gardens.

The other day I stopped to talk with the white-haired, kindly-faced woman who seems to be eternally arranging and rearranging the pile of posies on the table. How I asked her, do these busy, hard-boiled New Yorkers respond to such an appeal?

And she told me a story. Several years ago an aging man, well dressed and with a snappy business air about him, stopped read the sign and, the next day left a bunch of flowers. Thereafter he appeared every day. He never failed. Months went by, and a year or so, and she began to notice that his clothes were not so well pressed; a certain dejection clung to him. But still he bought his flowers. Sometimes he would ask: "Did my pansies please someone?" And she would tell him, "Indeed they did. They made an old lady very happy."

One morning she missed him. He did not appear for a week, for two weeks, for three weeks. When he did come again he looked ill. He carried no flowers, but he came over to the stand. "I'm sorry, but I couldn't afford any today," he said. "But I thought you grew them," said the flower custodian. "No, I bought them every morning. . . . But things haven't been so good lately. . . . I don't come out in the Bronx. . . . I've got a little room out there, and I don't see flowers much myself. . . . And I thought they'd make someone happy. . . . By the way, the doctor has told me I've got to go to a hospital pretty soon. I'm going to have to take a ward. I can't afford a room. . . . And I'm wondering if maybe you'll see that I get some flowers once in a while. . . . That's about all there is to the story."

Hard-boiled New York? . . . . . The blah! "The other day a baby was found deserted in a depot check room. Thousands of peop. tried to adopt it; thousands more sent money to help it get started in life. An old fellow came into police court with a hard-luck story explaining why he had stolen some bottles of milk off a front porch. The courtroom sent him away with $250. A chorus girl died penniless and 500 other chorines, half of whom didn't have jobs, produced enough money to give her a decent burial. It's a funny town. GILBERT SWAN.

VERY TRICKY

He was boring her to tears when he came her dog. "Ah," she exclaimed, "have you taught him any more tricks since I was here last?" "Yes," she said sweetly, "if you whistle he'll bring you your hat." —Tit-Bits.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, July 28.—When you read that "Washington is all agog" or that "Washington believes that—" don't you believe it.

Such assertions of massed community thought are erroneous. They may apply to the minority of politicians, lobbyists and correspondents here, but not to the 95 per cent of ordinary Washingtonians. The average Washingtonian is a government clerk.

The point is that Washington itself doesn't take any marked interest in politics, large national issues, or the sectional troubles of the rest of the country. The main concerns of the government workers are to do their jobs satisfactorily, to have as good a time as possible and to bear up under the heat. They don't even pay much attention to Congress which, for all its importance, is one of the best shows on earth.

The Washingtonians—opinion is divided to whether a majority to minority—show an unfortunate attitude toward the Volstead Act, but here, as elsewhere, there are wets and drys among the citizenry and there are so many churches that the drys put up a formidable front.

The city, like any other, is primarily interested in its local affairs. The fact that it is less interested in politics may be partially explained by the fact that its people have no vote and that it is governed by Congress and a board of commissioners appointed by the president.

The people of the city do seem to have a more affectionate regard for President Coolidge than many of the higher officials and politicians. They laughed their heads off at their movie theaters when the news reels showed Mr. Coolidge in his workaday outfit. The president, it was at once obvious, has shown all the makings of a game sport when he put on those pants, for he was obviously not designed for such a position descending the steps after changing his clothes, of his experiences with the horse which he did not ride, and his other poses gave ample cause for merriment, although there was every reason to believe that Mr. Coolidge fully appreciated the humor of the occasion.

Other topics of current interest here are the likelihood of an air mail stop at the capital, alleged inefficiency of the police force, and the now-withdrawn libel suit against the presidential pastor, the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce—never forgetting, of course, the intermittent scorching weather.

It seems likely that Washington will become an air mail stop on the New York-Atlanta route, although Baltimore threatened to take the honor away. It is expected that landings will be made for a time at Bolling Field, pending establishment of a satisfactory landing field. There was a row for a time when the Army sought to persuade local business men to put up $30,000 to establish night landing facilities at Bolling. The business men refused and took the attitude that the Army was trying to hold them up for its benefit. The Army finally relented.

The Rev. Dr. Pierce was in Europe when he learned that the $50,000 libel suit brought against him by Howard T. Cole, a shipping board engineer, had been dismissed. Pierce had sought Cole's dismissal from the board on charges of moral turpitude involving a girl member of Pierce's flock. In the face of the suit, he withdrew the charges. Cole's friends claimed complete victory, but the pastor's followers claimed a draw.

A policeman shot and killed a boy speeder the other night and was whitewashed by a coroner's jury. Senator Edwards of New Jersey threatened a senatorial investigation and heads of the department expressed indignation and promised to deal out punishment. Meanwhile, a series of unsolved robberies has piled up, along with occasional murders. Major Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, has issued an ultimatum to the force promising a shakeup if more robberies weren't solved and the police didn't shoot fewer citizens. Most of the promiscuous police shooting has occurred in automobile chases after alleged bootleggers.

POVERTY, IGNORANCE CAUSE MOST CRIME, IS VIEW OF DARROW

Chicago.—Poverty and ignorance are the greatest causes of crime. Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer of Chicago, stated this belief and added that practical education could aid materially in reducing major offenses against society.

"There is no such thing as a 'criminal mind,'" he contended. "Crime is a pathological social lesion induced by an undue strain in the relationship between a man's desire and the law."

"The quickest cure is education. By that I do not mean Virgil and Caesar, Keats and Shelley, Astronomy of Metaphysics, excellent though such luxuries may be, but a practical education, that aids an individual to earn a decent living and satiate many of his desires for the so-called better things. "No boy should be allowed to leave school until he has been taught these rudiments of education. "Criminals are not born, except in rare instances. Neither are they made. But they are both born and made to some degree. They are the product of their heredity plus their environment. "Heredity cannot be immediately changed by society. But it can change environment. With this change would appear an education of the individual to economic independence."

LIGHTHOUSE AS WRIGHT TRIBUTE BY N. CAROLINA

State to Honor Pioneer Flyers With Memorial On "Virginia Dare" Day.

Raleigh, N. C.—Coincidentally, with the ushering in of the Lindbergh era of flying, North Carolina, off whose lonely shores a quarter of a century ago aviation had its Genesis, is preparing to erect a towering and lasting memorial to Orville and Wilbur Wright, the world's pioneer birdmen.

Dedication of Kill Devil Hill, where the Wright brothers came to electrify the world with their first successful flight in heavier-than-air craft, as the location for a light-house as a memorial to the Wright brothers and aviation, will take place on August 15.

The event will be a part of a gigantic celebration at Manteo, on Roanoke Island, national in scope, commemorating the birth of America's first native-born, Virginia Dare, who was literally swallowed up with the rest of Sir Walter Raleigh's ill-fated "Lost Colony."

Annual Tribute
This tribute is paid to Virginia Dare every 15th day of August, and the celebration attracts thousands of visitors to picturesque Roanoke Island.

Last year private interests donated a large tract of land at Kill Devil Hill to the Federal Government for the Wright memorial site. Congress, toward the close of its session, authorized the erection of a suitable memorial to the triumph of man over the air.

Secretaries of the Commerce War and Navy Departments were made members of a commission to decide upon the type of memorial, and were given blanket authority to carry out the plans they decided upon. Tentative plans now call for the construction of a huge lighthouse, costing from $200,000 to $500,000.

"The Wright Beacon" has been unofficially selected as the name for the lighthouse, and is yet to be decided upon by the commission. The name was chosen in a contest conducted by W. O. Saunders, magazine writer and editor and publisher of the Elizabeth City, N. C., Advance a weekly newspaper. The name was submitted by Miss Hatfield Throver, of Williamston, N. C.

Lindbergh invited this section have invited Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, first New York to Paris flyer, to attend the celebration on Roanoke Island, and to take part in the ceremonies. However, so far, Colonel Lindbergh has not indicated whether or not he will be able to attend.

During the celebration a squadron of airplanes will fly over Roanoke Island and drop wreaths of flowers upon the site of Old Fort Raleigh, where Virginia Dare was born in 1587.

The program for the annual celebration of Virginia Dare's birthday has not been completed by the Roanoke Colony Memorial Association, which sponsors the event, but it was expected that several prominent speakers would be obtained for the occasion. Last year Sir Esmé Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, was the day's speaker.

The celebration annually draws thousands of visitors from all parts of the country to Dare county, situated in the northeastern corner of North Carolina. Additional crowds are expected this year since opening of the mile and a quarter bridge across the choppy Chowan river, giving that isolated section a new artery of travel to the "outside world."

COUNTRY STORE AT THE STATE TONIGHT

Handsome Gifts Offered by Management—Two Features Tomorrow and Saturday.

Tonight's Country Store night again at the State theater and the load of presents which has been on display at the State Flower shop for the past week or so will be taken out and given away to the holders of the lucky numbers. The prizes this week are valuable and include many pieces of furniture and other articles.

Clever entertainment talent will give a few numbers on the stage while the distribution is going on and in addition to that there will be seen Pat O'Malley, the good-looking Irishman in Nellie Revell's circus picture, "Spangles."

Two features are offered the fans for Friday and Saturday. The principal of these is an H. C. Witwer story, "Her Father Said No," starring Mary Brian, Al Cooke, Kit Guard and little Frankie Darro. It is one of Witwer's best and is a rollicking comedy of the prize ring.

Kit Guard and Al Cooke are two comedians who have never worked apart from each other since they came to the screen. The former, a Danish sailor and ex-prizefighter, is always cast as the dumbbell while Cooke, who is said to be a descendant of Spanish Dons, takes the part of the manager who keeps the erring fighter on the straight and narrow path—through no fault of his.

The second feature will show Monte Blue in a thrilling western picture, "The Brute."

Blue is splendidly cast as a slow-speech quick-in-action cowboy of the days when the West was really wild and woolly.

But don't get the impression that "The Brute" is just another of the hokum Westerns that have flooded the screen lately. It is just the reverse.

It is among the really great interpretations of the old days of the Far West. There are the gold-rush, the oil-rush, rodeos and lariats and Bad Men, Indians, sands and sagebrush, fights and fero, loves and ladies, all the razzle dazzle of it, and the humanity, too!

If a bride isn't homesick for her family six weeks after marriage it's a sign she married the right man.

SON MISSING

Seymour, Conn., July 28.—Word was received here today that John W. Reardon of Seymour has enlisted the aid of New York police in searching for his son who disappeared in the Grand Central station, New York. Reardon had taken his son to New York to attend the movena at the Church of St. Jean in the hope that prayer would cure him of an epileptic affliction. He disappeared while awaiting the train.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH

Methuen, Mass., July 28.—A peat bog in this town, which in 1903 furnished a double-barrel murder mystery, today produced another puzzling death case.
Lying face down in the bog, the body of Pierre W. Petrin, 42, was found by a party of police searchers.
There were no visible marks of violence. The body was discovered on the very spot, where in 1903 the bullet-riddled bodies of Patrolmen Charles Emerson and Francis McDermott were found.
The slayer or slayers of the two policemen were never discovered.
A woman doesn't really begin to have faith in a man until other people lose it.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (42) Frobisher and Davis

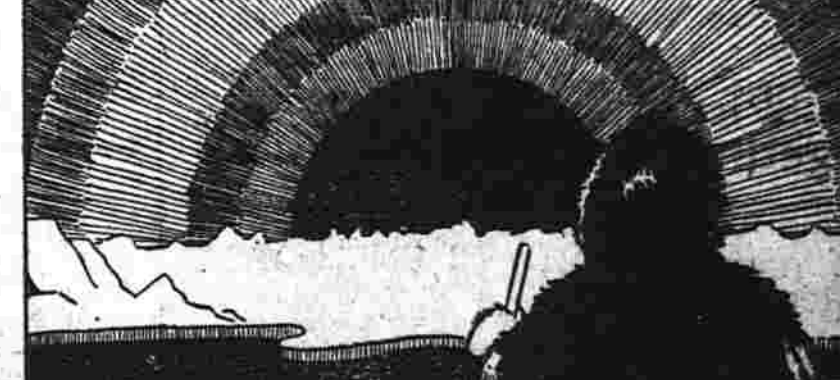

When the Eskimos first saw the explorer, Martin Frobisher, they baited hooks with sea-meat and threw them into the water as a lure, hoping to catch him like some strange, great fish. Frobisher was as much astonished as they, not knowing at first whether these people were real men and women or some queer cousins of the African apes.

Frobisher took home an Eskimo and the tusk of a narwhal as gifts for Queen Elizabeth. The tusk was regarded as "the horn of a unicorn."

In the year 1585 John Davis started on the first of his three voyages into the wild seas of the north.

Davis rediscovered Greenland which had been lost to human knowledge for more than a century. He reached what is now called Davis Strait, linking Baffin Bay with the Atlantic. He wrote of the Arctic as a land where people enjoy perpetual light "by the benefit of twilight and full moons."

Ex-Back PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

This is Chapter 98 of the series of articles by a correspondent for The Herald, who is revisiting France as an advance guard for the "Second A. E. F."

CHAPTER XCIII

Souvenirs of the war? Sure. Beaucoup, millions of them—from the German belt buckles that were turned out in tremendous production by enterprising French manufacturers after the armistice was signed to hammered shell casings that sold for 20 francs to all those who didn't know what the front looked like.

Anything was a souvenir, and everything. Barracks bags and officers' trunks were filled with them. All had some significance to the hunters; all were treasures. Some were intrinsically worthless; some were valuable. But of all the souvenirs, not forgetting the German officer's patent-leather helmet and the iron Cross, just one exists today that can really be rated as a prize. It's in the possession of Simon Leon Plot, proprietor of a hotel at Vienne-le-Duc, at the edge of the Argonne Forest near Le Harazee. He found it in a thicket—and "it" is two machine gun bullets, twisted and welded together. One is a bullet from a German piece while the other is a bullet from a French machine gun.

Simon Leon Plot

Monsieur Plot has his hotel which was a headquarters of the 77th Division during the Argonne drive, fairly littered with souvenirs. But he has nothing and he believes no one else has, that rates quite so highly as a prize as the two machine gun bullets, hooked and welded together when they met in flight and fell in strange embrace in that thicket of the Argonne. It is quite probable that members of the American Legion—among whom will be some of the best souvenir hunters of the A. E. F.—will agree with him when they examine the piece on their tours in September.

TOMORROW: An "Accidental"

LOWER EXPORTS NEW WORRY FOR TRADE CIRCLES

Small Favorable Balance May Presage Loss of U. S. Trade Supremacy.

Washington.—An ominous cloud in the business sky is seen in figures just compiled by the Department of Commerce on American export and import trade.

Preliminary estimates for the month of June show that the value of exports and imports struck an even balance at $359,000,000. It is the first time since April, 1926 that exports failed to run millions ahead of imports.

During the first four months of 1926 imports exceeded exports by $10,000,000 or more a month. Since then, however, the exports had predominated month after month up to June with an average of $50,000,000 excess for the 15 months intervening. The last four months of 1926 the excess of exports over imports averaged $100,000,000 a month.

Balance Disappears For the first five months of 1927 this $100,000,000 a month export excess had shrunk to less than $30,000,000 a month and in June disappeared entirely.

In the face of the figures just issued, economists here are asking the question whether the tide has turned and the United States is on the verge of again losing its trade supremacy, as it did during the first half of 1923 when imports exceeded exports by approximately $150,000,000.

There are numerous factors entering into world trade today that did not apply in 1923 nor in the first few months of 1926. In 1923

European nations had not stabilized their currencies, and re-established their commerce to the point that they could finance the extensive purchases they have been making the last year or more. But with the extensive purchases of raw materials and equipment that have been going abroad European industry now is making a determined bid for the trade that America has been enjoying.

European Competition The inroad of European competition has been evidenced in the falling off of this year of trade with certain Latin American countries. And not only that, foreign competition is making headway in the United States itself.

For two consecutive months, May and June, imports have shown substantial increases over the corresponding months of 1926. June, 1927 imports were $28,000,000 more than in June, 1926, while in May they were $26,000,000 more than May last year. These figures are in contrast to a $23,000,000 loss for April, of $63,000,000 March, $67,000,000, for February and $60,000,000 for January, the four months of last year that imports were in the ascendancy.

Exports in June were only $21,000,000 more than in June 1926, against the $23,000,000 June gain in imports. Thus imports last month scored a net balance of $2,000,000 over exports as compared with June of last year.

Another striking fact is that June 1927 exports were $2,000,000 less than in May whereas in 1926 June exports fell only $18,000,000 under May. Trade always hits the low water mark around June. In contrast to this June imports were $13,000,000 more than for May this year, keeping a close pace with the $15,000,000 gain of June over May 1926.

Despite the phenomenal export showing the early months of this year, exports for the first six months of 1927 were only $240,000,000 more than imports an average monthly excess of $40,000,000. For the 12 months ending with June, however, they were approximately $720,000,000 greater or a monthly average excess of $60,000,000. Thus the imports now show a net gain on exports for the half year of $20,000,000 a month. With imports in June having caught up with exports, it that ratio continues for the next six months the United States will find itself at the close of 1927 with an unfavorable trade balance.

Such a condition has not been presented since the depression of 1920-21.

Captain Jessie Stave and fifteen scouts from Troop 4 came on an over-night hike. They tried to pass part of the first class test by sleeping outdoors but were driven in in the middle of the night because of rain. A few braved the rain and remained out until early morning.

Lieutenant Emily Smith and Naomi Foster rode out one day on their bicycles and spent the day at camp, hiking through the woods, swimming in the pond, resting and reading. All Manchester girl scouts have this same privilege. If they have no bicycles they can take the Silver Lane bus to Hilltown road then it is not a very long walk to the camp. They are welcome to come and spend a day or several as they desire. Buses leave the South End terminal at 7:45, 8:15, 9:30, 11:00 and 12:30 a. m., and in the afternoon at 1:45, 3:15, 3:45, 4:15, 4:45, 5:15, 6:30 (standard time).

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Winterbottom and Mr. and Mrs. Richmond were guests at the camp last Sunday.

Lieutenant Emily Smith, Pearl Martin, Eunice Brown of Troop 5 and Margaret Korgiebel spent last week at Camp Winahelo, Crescent Beach.

If some men owned the earth they would try to dodge the tax-collector just the same.

WORLD METAL MEN TO READ PAPERS AT TOOL EXPOSITION

Detroit.—Attention of experts in the steel, iron and other metal industries all over the world will focus on Detroit the week of September 19 when the year's developments throughout the industry will be exchanged through dozens of technical papers written by some of the world's leading metal students.

According to W. H. Eisenman, secretary of the American Society for Steel Treating, who is arranging the ninth annual National Steel and Machine Tool Exposition more than 25,000 scientists and executives will attend the various technical sessions that will be held during the exposition.

Foreign contributors of papers to these sessions will include: W. H. Hatfield of Brown-Firth Research Laboratories, Sheffield, England; J. S. G. Primrose, Manchester, England, who will have as his subject: "Practical Experience in Heat Treatment of Wire and Rods for the Making of High Strength Wire by the Patenting Process;" Dr. Kotaro Honda and Prof. Sassa-ki Mura, both of Tohoku Imperial University, Sendai, Japan, whose subject will be "The Determination of the Heterogeneous Field in Iron-Nickel Alloys;" Col. N. Beliveau, native of Russia, now of Queen's Gate, London, on "Grain Growth Studies of Metals;" and Dr. Benji. Kjerrman, metallurgist for S. K. F. Industries, Gothenburg, Sweden, on "Heat Treatment of Ball Bearing Steels."

SHE STUCK—AND WON

Kansas City.—Ten years ago, Miss Irva O'Gorman, cigar-stand clerk, bought 25 shares of stock in an oil-land holding company. For years it was considered valueless and she had almost forgotten about it when a well was brought in recently. Now she is rich.

WAPPING

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Geer spent the day Tuesday at Storrs as this is Farmers' Week. Quite a number of the children at Pleasant Valley are having the whooping cough. Elizabeth Abbe is one of the latest victims.

Local residents are much pleased to learn that a new road will be built through Wapping Center. A three mile stretch of bituminous macadam will run east from the Valley garage. It will be twenty feet wide, with five foot shoulders. Eight surveyors are already at work on the project, which will be completed in the fall.

Wapping Y. M. C. A. Juniors lost again at baseball to Buckland, last Monday evening, the score being 10 to 5.

Miss Eleanor Stoughton has just returned from a few days stay at her cottage at Black Point. Rev. Truman H. Woodward gave an address before the members of Tolland County, Epworth League Union at Tolland, Wednesday evening.

STUDEBAKER CUTS PRICES ON AUTOS

Range Up to $260 on a Car. Announcement Says—All Lines Affected.

South Bend, July 28.—Sweeping price reductions ranging up to $260 were announced today by The Studebaker Corporation of America on the most beautiful, powerful and durable line of Studebakers yet produced.

The new prices, which go into effect immediately, are the result of years of preparation and are possible because The Studebaker Corporation has consistently re-invested millions of earnings in economic expansion. Coupled with this production accomplishment, brilliant engineering has played an important part in the development of finest Studebaker cars ever offered to the motoring public.

The radical reductions announced today affect every car in the line and bring it to a new level of value. It was emphasized particularly that in establishing these new low prices there has been no curtailment in the accessories which are standard on Studebaker production. The Studebaker policy is to sell its cars ready for the road with more than $100 worth of extras without extra cost. All models, it was stated, will continue to be equipped with front and rear bumpers; shock absorbers; thief-proof coincidental lock to ignition, steering wheel and spare tire lock; engine thermometer and hydrostatic gasoline gauge on the dash; rear vision mirror; automatic wind shield cleaner; rear traffic signal light; two-beam acorn headlights and other equally important accessories.

The most generous reduction of all affects the President Sedan, which has acquired marked favor with American executives in whose honor it was named. This 7-passenger sedan model is reduced from $2,245 to $1,985, while the prices of the President Tourer and President Limousine were lowered to $1,795 and $2,250 respectively.

In the popular Commander line, reductions ranging from $20 to $90 are in effect. The 4-door Sedan, leader in this group, drops $1,585 to $1,495; the Sedan Regal from $1,710 to $1,625; the Victoria (4-passenger) from $1,575 to $1,485; the Victoria Regal from $1,645 to $1,555; Coupe Regal from $1,545 to $1,455 and Roadster (4-passenger) from $1,675 to $1,585. Value is more than ever the keynote of the new Dictator line where the 4-door Dictator Sedan (plus upholstery) is reduced from $1,245 to $1,195; the Sedan (moiré upholstery) from $1,395 to $1,295; Victoria from $1,325 to $1,235; Coupe (2-passenger) from $1,245 to $1,195; Coupe (4-passenger)

NEW HAVEN URGES TRANSFER OF STOCK

New Haven, July 28.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company urges the owners of its stock to transfer their shares on the books of the company before July 30 next in order that they may be qualified to vote in person or by proxy at the special meeting of the stockholders of this company on August 17 and thereafter to participate in the privilege of subscribing for preferred stock.

The New York Stock Exchange adopted a new rule on July 8 in connection with transactions of this kind, and the New Haven refunding plan of giving each stockholder the privilege of subscribing at par for one share of 7 per cent preferred stock for every four shares of common stock standing in his name, is the first to come under the new rule.

The appeal to the owners of the stock was signed by E. J. Pearson, President, and reads as follows: To the Owners of Stock of The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co.:

A rule of the New York Stock Exchange adopted July 8, 1927, forbids members of the Stock Exchange or firms registered thereon to vote any shares of stock standing in their name unless such stock is in the possession of such member or firm or unless such member or firm or a customer thereof, is the owner of or has an interest in such stock at the time such proxy is given.

The Company's records indicate that there are a substantial number of shares outstanding in the names of persons who have sold their shares to purchasers who have not yet transferred the same on the books of the Company. The owners of this stock are urged to transfer it on the books of the Company before July 30th next, in order that they may be qualified to vote in person or by proxy at the special meeting of stockholders of this Company on August 17, 1927, and thereafter to participate in the privilege of subscribing for preferred stock.

In the fourteen years which have elapsed since the New Haven Railroad paid dividends, the Company officials believe that a great deal of its stock must have been traded to owners who have not cared to pay the transfer tax, so that it has undoubtedly remained in the name of the last broker. Obviously they cannot vote unless it conforms to the new stock exchange rule.

from $1,345 to $1,295; and 4-passenger Roadster from $1,295 to $1,245.

This announcement of reduced prices on Studebaker models follows closely upon the recent schedule of new prices for the Erskine Six, Studebaker's Little Aristocrat.

Across the Atlantic—or Across the Street

From your telephone—the little black instrument there on your desk or table—you can talk with telephone subscribers in England, across three thousand miles of ocean.

That is one of the wonderful achievements of modern science. You can appreciate the marvels of this great telephone engineering accomplishment—even if you never have occasion to make use of it.

Scarcely less wonderful is it that this same unpretentious telephone, able to span the Atlantic with your voice, will also carry your words across the street, or to the other end of town.

For the telephone is, after all, the servant of your everyday needs. To enable you to talk with your friends, to transact your business, to save your time and steps—that is the real function of your telephone. Not its spectacular uses, but its daily usefulness, makes it one of the greatest conveniences our present civilization knows.

The real value of your telephone service should not be measured by what it costs, but by what it does for you.

COOLIDGE'S HOMESTEAD TO BE STATE EXHIBIT

Springfield, Mass., July 28.—At various times within the last few years the eyes of the entire world have been focused on the tiny Vermont hamlet of Plymouth and the rugged hills of Plymouth Notch, and thousands of tourists and pilgrims have visited this little Green Mountain town to obtain a glimpse of the birthplace of Calvin Coolidge, the cottage of the late Col. John Coolidge, and the village burying ground where Coolidges have rested for more than a century.

Because of the dramatic incidents that have occurred in Plymouth and because it represents and typifies Vermont rural life at its best, the State of Vermont through its Department of Agriculture will reconstruct the Coolidge homestead as the center piece of its state exhibit at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield from Sept. 18 to 24 inclusive, and as the background will show the scenic splendor and ruggedness of the region that leads from Ludlow down through the Plymouth Notch valley.

It was in a room of the Coolidge homestead that Calvin Coolidge took the oath of office, administered by his father, which made him president of the United States. It was from this same homestead that the President's son, Calvin Coolidge, was buried. Hardly a year later the President's father, Col. John Coolidge, quiet, dignified and kindly, followed his grandson. Yet although the immediate members of the Coolidge family no longer live in Plymouth, the village has become a national shrine and this interest will be transferred to the additional thousands that annually attend the Eastern States Exposition.

Inasmuch as the several state exhibits at the Exposition portray the agricultural, industrial, natural and recreational resources of each, the Vermont display this year will feature these things that are Vermontish in every particular. Vermont marble, Vermont dairy products, Vermont maple sugar, maple products and equipment for their manufacture, Vermont potatoes and Vermont honey will be shown and there will be also a generous indication of the extent of Vermont industries and Green Mountain agriculture.

The various departments and associations will be represented by officials from the Department of Agriculture and state organizations. Co-operating agencies include the Vermont Dairymen's Association, Vermont Sugar Makers' Association, Vermont Seed Potato Growers' Association, Vermont Bee Keepers' Association, Vermont Marble Association, etc.

A new feature this year will be the establishment of a parcels post station as part of the Vermont exhibit. Parcels of any description may be left at this booth for mailing with postage and insurance paid. The Vermont delegation at the Exposition has found itself called upon each year to handle a vast quantity of parcels post matter for people who wish to mail sugar, syrup and other products to their friends without being especially equipped to do so. This service will be organized this year and with the co-operation of the Exposition management will be extended to the public for parcels post matter of all descriptions. This will be handled by the Vermonters for a small service fee.

The Green Mountain state exhibit will be under the supervision of Amos J. Eaton of South Royalton, and the same sale of Vermont products that has been carried on in previous years will be conducted again this season.

And they decided for future happiness!

¶ A couple decided to get married in September. And it wasn't a bit too early to select their furniture now.

¶ They wanted a fine four-room home. They did not know very much about furniture; period designs, quality and construction . . . or what constituted a fair price. They did know, however, that $900 was about the amount they wanted to spend . . . not more than $1,000 anyway.

¶ Since they did not know just what they wanted, it was decided to visit several stores. Garber Brothers was one of the stores they visited.

¶ We did not try to sell them merely furniture. We tried to figure out their problem with them. This couple were not enthused over plain, conventional furniture. They wanted something of finer design, something with more refinement.

¶ We advised with them on the various designs of pieces for each room. We explained to them the difference in quality, finish and upholstery. They liked the scheme of interior decorating as suggested. Our Budget Plan suited their convenience.

¶ As a result, they purchased their furniture at Garber Brothers. Four beautiful rooms, furnished in good taste with furniture of good quality, complete for $895. They were happy over their choice.

¶ Before this couple left the store they told us they had looked elsewhere. We asked them why they chose the furniture at this store after having visited other stores, and they answered in words to this effect:

¶ "Because, from the large selection you have, we were confident that our selection would be a success. It certainly was a revelation to see the many nice things you have here.

¶ "Because, in our visits to the other stores, we saw enough furniture of many makes to realize that we could not get furniture of better quality anywhere else. And the prices certainly are economical. We did not dream that we could furnish such a fine home at this price.

¶ "And, last, because one of our friends bought furniture here, and everything is very satisfactory."

VERA CAMERON is made assistant to JERRY MACKLYN, the new advertising manager of French Bloom Committee.

The first day she is in his office he hits upon the startling scheme of transforming her, with the aid of French Bloom cosmetics, into a beauty and of using her photograph in the company's advertising.

Vera indignantly refuses but reconsiders when in the elevator going down to lunch she sees and falls instantly in love with a man whom she hears called SCULLY. She also hears that he is going to Lake Minnetonka in June. Her curiosity is aroused, returning her purse which she purports to drop causes her to go promptly back to Jerry's office and tell him she will undergo the experiment; anything, she tells herself, to be beautiful in time for the Minnetonka in June.

Jerry calls in MISS PROCTOR, a professional demonstrator, and they make an inventory of Vera. She hears them discuss hair, permanent waves, face peeling, hair tints and realizes the price she must pay. Jerry produces from his desk a four-colored Sunday supplement picture of a strikingly handsome man with green eyes and a distinctive bob. Miss Proctor explains to Vera that she can make Vera a duplicate of the picture. Jerry says Vera's sea-green eyes reminded him of the picture, which, while it has no caption, he believes to be the picture of a man who decides to share Miss Proctor's apartment with her until after the experiment is over. She is still humiliated over the scheme but her need to be beautiful by June towers above everything else.

Just when you've said something that sounds frightfully significant, Flora Cartwright mourned, dabbing about the room for evening cloak, lace handkerchief and vanity case.

"You look perfectly lovely. Aunt Flora. I'm sure he'll propose," Vera started her aunt by commenting in a curiously softened, fond voice.

"Thank you, darling! Coming from you that means a great deal. Let's run now, dear. I want you to tell Peter goodby, since you're going to be gone for ages."

"And you want to benefit by contrast with my plainness," Vee-Vee laughed. "All right, I'll be your foil tonight, but I warn you it's the last time," she added, as she opened the door that led from her aunt's room into the living room of the small apartment.

"Now what did you mean by that?" Flora demanded, startled. Then, "Oh, there you are, Peter! You look stunning tonight, man dear! Did you ever see anything so handsome in all your life as my Peter, Vee-Vee? A gardenia in his buttonhole and everything!"

If Vee-Vee really wanted to know how her aunt "did it" she was getting a perfect object lesson. Flora Cartwright fluttered up to the tall boy who looked scarcely older than a college sophomore, raised herself on tiptoe to touch the shining smoothness of his thick chestnut hair, and trailed her soft, scented fingers down his blushing young cheek.

"Did you ever see anything so handsome in all your life as my Peter, Vee-Vee?" she demanded again, her blue eyes wide and adoring, her voice as soft and caressing as the spring breeze outside. "If I didn't like him so well myself, Vee-Vee, I'd make you happy by giving him to you. Then maybe you wouldn't run away from me on stupid business."

"Don't say that even in fun, Flora!" Peter Darrow said sternly, trying to make his voice sound very deep and mature. "You know I can't see anyone but you—"

Vera turned sharply to leave the room, but not before she had seen her small, pretty aunt swept into the circle of ardent young arms, a handsome brown head bent low to meet a blond one. She realized that they didn't know she was gone, would not have cared if she had stayed, that to Peter Darrow she simply did not exist. And for the first time since she had known him that realization made her fighting mad. Not that she cared a whoop for Peter Darrow, as she told herself furiously when she had shut herself into her room to pack—

"But I'll see Mr. Peter Darrow again in three or four weeks, and then—we'll soon find out if he can't see anyone else but Flora Cartwright! I'm going to need a lot of practice before I see you, Schuyler."

Then she caught sight of herself in the mirror of her dressing table, saw herself truly for the first time—an old-fashioned, prim, spinsterish-looking business woman. She tore her spectacles from her eyes, ground them under a furious heat, and jerked down dresses with frantic haste.

"If Jerry Macklyn doesn't make good his promise to turn me into a beauty I'll snatch his hateful red hair out in handfuls!" she sobbed as she stuffed her clothes into a suitcase.

Vera's aunt is due for a surprise. In her next chapter a new Vee-Vee makes her appearance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

WHEN Vera Cameron returned to the apartment that evening, she found Flora Cartwright devoted to the serious business of dressing for an evening out.

"Hello, Vee-Vee, darling. You're just in time to powder my back and shoulders. Do try to spread it evenly. This evening—" she turned dramatically upon Vera, who had laid aside her hat and coat and was regarding her pretty aunt with searching, calculating eyes—"is one of the most important evenings in my life."

"Important?" Vee-Vee raised her heavy brows inquiringly.

"Absolutely vital," Flora Cartwright smiled. "Peter Darrow is going to propose to me tonight, and I've got to dress for the occasion."

"Aunt Flora," Vee-Vee interrupted in a tense, determined voice, "are you going to marry Peter Darrow? Do you think it's fair?"

"Marry Peter?" Flora Cartwright's laugh rang out joyously. She opened a tiny jar of lip salve and began to retouch her lips. "My dear Vee-Vee, who said anything about marrying Peter? I said he was going to propose to me tonight, and he is. A proposal at least every six months is absolutely necessary to my peace of mind."

"Aunt Flora, how do you do it? Make them propose to me?" Vee-Vee interrupted, still in that tense, determined voice.

Mrs. Cartwright dropped her hand-mirror, sprang to her feet, and flung her arms about the astonished girl's unyielding body. "You aren't going to tell your old aunt a word about it! Who is he, Vee-Vee? Oh, my dear, I've simply prayed for this day to come—"

"Aunt Flora, please don't be ridiculous, darling." Flora kissed her niece on both cheeks, then turned back to her dressing table. "I'll tell you how I do it when you tell me who it is. Oh—I forgot to ask you, and you're probably sulking because I forgot—did you get your promotion, dear? Oh, dear, which dress shall it be? Peter hasn't seen the pink, but he said that I looked like a Naid in the green. If he only weren't so young but tell me, dear; Aunt Flora's listening. You must mind if I go on with my dressing?"

"If Jerry Macklyn doesn't make good I'll snatch his red hair out in handfuls."

"Certainly not, Aunt Flora. But it does happen that I have some rather important news for you. I was made assistant to the advertising manager today—"

"What isn't the position you expected, is it, dear? But it sounds very important. Excuse me. Go on, darling. Let's see—shall I wear these crystals or not? I'm almost sure I told Peter that Nicky gave them to me for an anniversary present. And Peter's so sensitive. Just a tiny thing like that might scare him off—yes, dear, I am listening," she interrupted herself contritely.

"The new advertising manager is Mr. Macklyn—Jerry Macklyn—Vee-Vee began valiantly.

"Jerry, did you say, darling? There! I knew it! You have fallen in love! I never could resist a Jerry sort of man myself. Tell me all about him, Vee-Vee, or I'll strangle you with Nicky's crystals."

"He's my new boss, Aunt Flora, and I'm not in love with him; Vee-Vee cried desperately. "He's positively heavenly—the most amazing red hair you ever saw—and eyes as blue as—blue crystals—"

"He sounds adorable," Flora sighed. "I don't blame you a bit. Would you wear nude or silver stockings with this jade green dress?"

"Silver, with your silver slippers," Vee-Vee answered desperately. "Please listen a minute, Aunt Flora. I'm trying to tell you that I shall have to be away for at least three weeks on work for the firm—"

"Why didn't you say so?" Flora Cartwright demanded with shrill indignation. "Three weeks! You know good and well if I marry someone in sheer desperation. I always do. If I make a fool of myself and accept Peter when he proposes to-night it will be all your fault, Vera Victoria Cameron! Where in the world are you going?"

"Out of town, on secret business connected with the advertising department," she smiled, glad that Kitty Proctor actually did find "out of town" what was it?

"Of course, if you want to be mysterious," Flora pouted, and observed her expression in the mirror with interest. "Do you think I am getting too old to pout charmingly, Vee-Vee? Of all creatures, I detect the kittenish middle-aged woman. If I'm not permanently married by the time I'm forty, I'm going in for a career. Nicky says I ought to write advice to the love-lorn for a newspaper. When do you leave, darling?"

"Tonight. I shall be gone when you get home, Aunt Flora. I'll leave a check for my share of this month's rent on your dresser, dear. I'll come back as soon as I can. Promise me you won't do anything foolish while I'm gone—like getting married," she begged, but her eyes were laughing behind her spectacles.

"I refuse to be bound by promises," her aunt chuckled.

"Oh, dear, there's Peter's ring, shoes and packed our supper in a basket. We took the street car to Dale's Crossing, got off and walked a mile through the woods to the river. We do it twice a week now to get the ground to love it. We feel like different people."

This time I replied with honest admiration, "You're certainly right! All God's chilluns may not have wings, but they have feet and I'm going to try mine out. What crossing did you say?"

"Anyone," she answered. "All roads lead to somewhere."

I've discovered that they do. Why get it into our heads that there is nothing away from the "Gasoline trail"?

My companion had something to do with the street car company, or her husband had. She eyed the sign proudly. "I feel responsible for that suggestion," she boasted. "At least I started the ball rolling. Dick spoke of it to the business manager and there's the result. But as a matter of fact I wasn't thinking altogether of people without cars. I was thinking also of people with cars."

I expressed the proper amount of puzzled surprise. It seemed to gratify her at least.

"Yes," she went on. "Dick and I had the habit of getting dinner over early and taking a postprandial drive in the car to rest and cool off."

"Then I discovered something was wrong. We'd both come home sort of discontented. Dick would be tired and I'd be bored and neither of us would be satisfied. We talked it over. Something seemed to be lacking. Finally we decided we were in the country but not of it. We tried a new tack then.

This And That In Feminine Lore

There are a variety of ways to serve again left-over vegetables. The usual way in the summer is in salads with other combinations, or Vera started the room for evening cloak, lace handkerchief and vanity case.

Chiffon dance frocks are very lovely this season, fashioned in sleeveless simplicity of bodice with bouffant skirts. One of shell pink chiffon with plain bodice, round neck and sleeveless had a very full skirt finished in large scallops, and trimmed in each scallop with a ring of shirred chiffon, in vogue with the fete for more handwork on dresses.

Some of the new housekeepers who were June brides may be interested in the complete formula for making a cocoanut custard pie, always a favorite with the folk folks:

Cocoanut Custard Pie
3/4 cup sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, 3/4 cup flour, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla, 3-4 cup lard, 3 table-spoons lard, 1-2 teaspoon salt, cold water.

Beat yolks of eggs until thick, gradually beating in sugar and salt sifted together. Fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and add creamed vanilla and milk which has been heated to the scalding point. Mix thoroughly, being sure the sugar is dissolved. Pour into the pie dish lined with pastry and bake in a hot oven for ten minutes. Then reduce heat and bake for thirty minutes. Serve cold.

The rule will fill a seven-cup pie dish. The oven temperature should be 450 degrees F. when pie is put in and for the first ten minutes, and reduced to 375 degrees F. to finish baking.

"Bite Yourself an Alphabet" says a pretzel advertisement, with an illustration of how to bite a "B" which can be done in one bite by those experienced in pretzel-eating. Food and fun are the rewards to the pretzelers, so why not have a pretzel party some evening. They're salty and crunchy and good at meals or between meals.

The recipe below for July Jumbles with rolled oats and walnut meats would be better in January or almost any other month of the year than July. Clip it and try it when the weather is more favorable.

We require less food in hot weather but we need a variety of elemental salad looks good to the eye and often solves the problem for luncheon or supper. For small children, salads should be simple and finely minced. A dressing of salad sauce and olive oil is better than one made with vinegar. Men folks seem to dislike combinations and prefer salads of only two or three ingredients not finely chopped. So, when tossing together fish, chicken or other salads, have the flakes of good salad and mix with celery or peas or whatever vegetable is chosen beside the lettuce.

Women always like to talk of favorite recipes of their mothers or those of people who are celebrated for one reason or another. Today we are giving the favorite preserve recipe of Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers, the first of a series by four congresswomen, the others being Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California, Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey and Mrs. Florence Langley of Kentucky. This first one for strawberries and currants is a little late for this section, but may be interesting.

July Jumbles
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 cup rolled oats
1 cup almond dates
1-4 cup walnut meats broken in pieces
1-3 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1-2 cup butter
1-4 cup milk

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Put rolled oats through the food chopper, then mix with flour, add dates and nut meats. Cream butter, add sugar gradually then the well beaten egg and milk. Combine two mixtures; add vanilla.

Roll in wax paper-lined pan. Chill over night. Roll out and cut with round cutter, having hole in center. Place on well oiled baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 20 minutes. This recipe will make about 20 cookies.

Kerchiefs are immensely popular this summer at the beach resorts. Everyone is wearing them. They come in plain colors, geometrical and floral designs. They are even fashioned of gold or silver lace or chignon for the decoration of dinner or formal evening gowns. Originally designed to keep the sun from blistering neckless sport costumes, or bathing suits, it is now in evidence on every occasion. They can be found in colors to suit every taste or give a dash to the all-white dress that nothing else achieves. Some of them are very large, almost like a shawl and in that case are worn over one shoulder and knotted down on the other hip. The usual method of wearing them is draped over the right shoulder and knotted on the left. Figured frocks take plain kerchiefs and plain ones plaid or printed hankies.

Many of the large, progressive business concerns are now arranging for a nourishing lunch at noon for their clerks, which is proving one of the most important phases of welfare work as it helps to maintain a high standard of health. The same idea is being carried out in numberless schools with cocoa, milk or soup for those who carry their lunch or a hot meal for the open air children, furnished free to those who cannot afford to pay for it.

MARY TAYLOR.

EARLY SALADS

If the housewife will prepare her salads early in the morning, but of course not add dressing, they will keep perfectly in the ice box and save time later.

MENDING SHELF

The small apartment should have one linen shelf kept for mending. If only the article that is to be mended is taken out order will be preserved easily.

FRESH CABBAGE

New cabbage, cut finely and cooked only 10 minutes in little water, uncovered, is one of the tenderest of vegetables. Serve with butter or cream sauce.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

All America that loves its fairy tales—and most of it does—is interested in the marriage and honeymoon of "Bud" Stillman, heir to one of America's greatest fortunes, and Lena Wilson, girl of the north woods, who washed dishes in his mother's kitchen. The Cinderella motif. The very question "will they be happy?" seems absurd. What if they won't be?

Doggie's Jewels

A husband of the mid-west whose income was $105 a month complained in court that his wife had contracted a jewelry bill of $135 for a dog collar of gold with a diamond or so sprinkled over it. He said something, too, about a dog doctor's bill of $28.

Oh, well, too bad, of course! But somehow, the spectacle of a very occasional man spending money for his wife's dog's collar and doctor seems no more pathetic to me than the spectacle of hundreds and thousands of wives going without clothes and any form of recreation in order that papa may have his car and radio and golf club dues and summer vacations, and what not!

Man Paid 'N' Paid

Women have borne the stigma of being the gossips of the human species for many a year. It delights the hearts of all of us to learn that two New York women got $10,500 from a New York man because he "talked about them."

Man Spanked Her

All husbands who think that woman's place is in the home, and that they have a real grievance if their socks are not darned and meals are not on time, should move to Paris. A husband in that city who spanked a neglectful wife and who found himself in court, was upheld by a judge who pronounced it any husband's right to so chastise any negligent wife. In fact, the judge found a law to such effect: Law or not, I am inclined to agree with the judge. After all, why should a man work to provide the wherewithal for a home which is not managed with the same care which he uses on his job? To be sure, if the wife is working outside the home, that's different. It's up to husband; then to either make allowances or pitch in and do their half of the work!

Gold Diggers

When a bunch of girls put on hiking duds and start out to cross the country, it is up to the town through which they pass to give them free board and rest? This seems to be the attitude of three co-eds from New York University who started walking to the Pacific coast without a penny in their knicker pockets. All went well until Cleveland, when the best free lodging they could get was in the police station. They were sure, peeved! Called Cleveland "an inhospitable one-horse town, etc."

I wonder if kids aren't getting that way more and more—calling it smart and sophisticated and adventurous to try to "work" the world instead of doing a little work themselves?

OUR CONGRESSWOMEN'S FAVORITE RECIPES

Mrs. Rogers Tells How to Prepare New England Spiced Currants.

As a child Mrs. Edith N. Rogers, Congresswoman from the 5th Massachusetts district, helped her grandmother with her preserving. Her own mother preferred that her little daughter should not learn to cook, but her grandmother in Maine believed that every girl's education should include a course in household arts.

The grandmother's favorite recipes included one for spiced currants. "It's an old favorite," says Mrs. Rogers, "of all New England housewives." Here it is:

7 pounds of currants
5 pounds of sugar
3 tablespoons of cinnamon
3 tablespoons of cloves
1 pint of vinegar.

"Pick over the currants," said Mrs. Rogers, "wash, drain and remove the stems. Put in a preserving kettle, add the sugar, vinegar and spices tied in a piece of muslin. Heat to the boiling point and cook slowly one and one-half hours."

Strawberry Preserves

Despite her prejudice against her child learning to cook Mrs. Nourse herself was a famous cook. Her best recipe was one for strawberry preserves, gathered from Mrs. Lincoln's Boston Cook Book, and old standby of all New England housewives.

"Measure a bowl of berries," said Mrs. Rogers, "and the same quantity of sugar. Put in a preserving kettle, over night, a layer of berries and then a layer of sugar. In the morning cook slowly without A Soothing Poultrice That Is Easily Made.

More convenient to handle than flax-seed or mustard in making a poultrice is Sypho-Nathol. Use gauze or cloth soaked in hot solution of Sypho-Nathol—teaspoonful to quart of water. ## Good Nature and Good Health

HOT WEATHER AND HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

When men work too hard in heavy clothing in condition where the temperature is high and the humidity also, they are likely to suffer unduly with the heat.

Since the external temperature is high, the loss of heat from the body by means of conduction and radiation stops; since the air is moist, evaporation from the surface of the body is hindered.

When the heat regulating mechanism breaks down, the temperature of the body rises. This stimulates the chemical changes going on in the body and still further increases the production of heat. Thus, the temperature continues to rise and the chemical changes continue to be hastened.

Some men do not perspire as easily as others so that their skin is not and burning, and the failure of fluid to evaporate from the surface tends to accumulate still further their body chemistry.

If the blood vessels on the surface of the body are dilated the blood pressure is lowered and there is some interference with the circulation of the blood in the brain.

All of these things produce a combination of factors known as heatstroke.

When heatstroke occurs, it is necessary to get the person into the shade as quickly as possible. When there, the body may be cooled by rubbing it with ice or by exposing it to the movement of an electric fan. At the same time, it is necessary to see that the temperature of the body does not fall too rapidly. If it seems low, hot applications should be placed around the arms and feet to restore the circulation and to keep the patient warm.

The temperature usually remains more or less stationary and then falls rapidly. Competent medical advice should be secured immediately, as it may be necessary to give drugs in order to stimulate the heart and the failing circulation.

In view of the fact that there is usually an accumulation of acid in the system in connection with heatstroke, many physicians prescribe alkaline fluids and remedies to the victim of heat-stroke in order to counteract the effects of the acids.

Persons who have once suffered with heat-stroke seem to be unusually susceptible to attacks later in life. Such people should avoid overheated rooms and exposure to the direct rays of the sun. They should take cool baths frequently, dress lightly and drink water freely. They should also avoid indulgence in alcoholic drinks and keep their heads as cool as possible. Clothing should be selected according to the occupation, and light enough to aid the radiation of heat from the body.

GET OFF THE GAS TRAILS

By Olive Roberts Barton

The sign in the street car said, "Pack a lunch, take this car to So-and-So Stop, and spend a day in the woods. Bring your fishing rod."

"That's a fine idea!" said I. "So many people haven't cars and it gets them out of the city."

My companion had something to do with the street car company, or her husband had. She eyed the sign proudly. "I feel responsible for that suggestion," she boasted. "At least I started the ball rolling. Dick spoke of it to the business manager and there's the result. But as a matter of fact I wasn't thinking altogether of people without cars. I was thinking also of people with cars."

I expressed the proper amount of puzzled surprise. It seemed to gratify her at least.

"Yes," she went on. "Dick and I had the habit of getting dinner over early and taking a postprandial drive in the car to rest and cool off."

"Then I discovered something was wrong. We'd both come home sort of discontented. Dick would be tired and I'd be bored and neither of us would be satisfied. We talked it over. Something seemed to be lacking. Finally we decided we were in the country but not of it. We tried a new tack then.

2. Should a hostess make a conscious effort to keep conversation going at a party?

3. Is there any way to divert a guest who seems bent on doing all the talking?

The Answers

1. Introduce yourself.

2. Yes, if necessary.

3. Ask someone else, pleasantly, if he won't tell some incident you know is amusing.

The Cleaners that Clean

DO YOU WASH 'EM?

When your lightweight summer clothes get spotted—do you wash them yourself? And dry them—and press them? Hard work, and, unless you're something of an expert, the result isn't just what you'd like. If you send it over here to Dougan's it would look like a brand new outfit. Doesn't cost much—and it's lots better!

Cleaning and dyeing promptly and perfectly done. Your orders called for and delivered. They are taken care of as your individual things—not huddled together in a "suburban bundle."

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinies got a real thrill when they hopped upon the chocolate hen. Away the clucking brown bird went, like lightning, down the road. Now this was surely something new. The queer bird seemed to like it, too, for she was very careful that she didn't spill her load. Said Cloway Tinymitte, "By heck, I'm hanging tightly to her neck. I hope her feathers don't come out. 'Twould spill me on the ground. The rest of you just cling to me and we'll be safe as we can be. We certainly should all be glad that this fine bird was found." Then Copsy, with a spreading grin, with squeaky voice, then chimed right in. "She surely is a bawky hen, and knows a lot of tricks. I really think 'twould suit me best if she would take us to her nest. Say, if she does, perhaps we'll find a lot of chocolate chicks." But Clucky Hen had no such plan. For miles and miles she ran and ran, and then she reached a little stream and stopped to get a drink. The Tinies also quenched their thirst, but waited till she'd finished first. They acted just like gentlemen whenever they stopped to think.

Seven Manchester students, college or otherwise, compose the "supernumerary sub-carrier staff" at the South Manchester Post Office. They are employed during the vacation period and substitute for the regular mail carriers.

The list is as follows: John McCluskey, Foster street; Gilbert Wright, Pearl street; Ernest M. Zwick, Church street; George Krause, Walnut street; Walter Knofski, Flower street; Vincent Barrows, Rockville; Eugene Moriarty, Summit street; Wesley Bulla, Hemlock street. Postmaster Toop explained that this is the usual number employed each summer. The men do not have to pass any examination, but are invited and to assist them on transportation, those who plan to go are urged to notify the following members of the committee before next Wednesday: Mrs. Albert Post, phone 61; Holyoke, Florence Brooks, 1658, or Mrs. Burke, 734-5. GIFT TO PRODUCER CLOSES KIDDIE REVUE

Manager Sanson Complimented On Novel Show by Hoffmans; Big Crowds on Final Day.

At the conclusion of the successful Kiddie Revue at the State theater last night, Manager Jack Sanson, who directed and staged the three-day show, was given a solid gold fountain pen by the Hoffman Brothers, owners of the Hoffman presentation was made by Henry Needles, general manager, and in his short talk Mr. Needles said that he doubted if there were another manager in the circuit who could have produced the result that Mr. Sanson had with a group of children and make a professional-appearing show out of it.

Because of his success with the revue in this town Manager Sanson has been commissioned by the Hoffman Brothers to stage a similar show in New Britain and he will start on it next week.

The revue here played to packed houses on its last two days and each performance was better than the one preceding. The leading characters and many members of the chorus received bouquets and baskets of flowers last night.

Much curiosity has been expressed as to the identity of the tiny tot who danced the black bottom in the Revue and who is a child prodigy of really remarkable qualities. Her name is Grace Mahon and though a Manchester tot her parents are now living in New York. She is spending the summer with an aunt here. Another we artist, who had not been mentioned is little Eleanor Gardner, a remarkable, if tiny, waltzer, who captured the crowds.

Manager Sanson Appreciative
The following letter is self-explanatory:
To the Editor of The Herald:
Because it seems to me that such an undertaking as the Kiddie Revue, just closed at the State theater, is something besides a business matter and has a distinct social and educational side, may I have space in The Herald to extend to the children who took part in it the sincere thanks and appreciation for their splendid co-operation. In a long experience I have never encountered so willing, so obedient and so clever a group of little folks as those who took part in the revue. They have my gratitude and I am sure that of the many hundreds of persons whom they entertained.

No less sincere is my thanks to the parents who consented to the appearance of their little ones on the stage. I am sure that they will find that the experience has done the children no harm and perhaps in teaching them concentration and mass discipline, that it has been something of a benefit.

May I add to that no little share of the success of the Revue is due to the work of the orchestra—a highly important contribution which has had little public recognition.

TO HOOK UP MAILS WITH AIR SERVICE

Postmaster Toop Hopes to Have New Mail From Town In Afternoon.

Postmaster Oliver F. Toop has taken another step forward in his efforts to improve mail service for South Manchester patrons. It was learned today. Negotiations are being carried on between the south end post office and the chief clerk of the railway mail service at Boston for the establishment of another mail dispatch from Manchester about 2:30 in the afternoon. At present, none of the seven out-going mails leaves Manchester between 11:30 in the morning and 6:10 in the evening.

One of the chief advantages which would be gained if the request were granted would be the connection with trans-continental air mail service at Hadley Field in New York. Mail leaving the local post office at 2:30 in the afternoon would reach Hadley Field in time to make air connections for Cleveland and Chicago. The air mail leaves New York at 9:35 p. m. and arrives in Cleveland at 1:30 a. m. and Chicago at 5 a. m. An afternoon mail dispatch from here at the designated time would not include Hartford mail but would include mail for New Britain, Middletown, New Haven, points west and the southern states.

Under the present scheduled of dispatches, mail leaving here at 11:30 in the morning does not make suitable air mail connections either east or west bound, train delivery being quicker in each instance.

Miss Laura House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. House of 203 East Center street, will leave tomorrow for Camp Ayapo the Y. W. C. A. camp at Somers, for two weeks.

OLD TIME PRINTERS USED TO VISIT OTHER SHOPS

Bartenders, when they had a day off used to spend it in other saloons. Trolley men have been known to spend their days off riding on the cars. Likewise firemen may be found near their engine houses on their vacations.

It would follow, therefore, that Glen Peterson, who is manager of the filling station at Love Lane, would hang around the station on his vacation. He isn't.

He is spending his week off riding between that station and the station at Middle Turnpike, putting in some part of the day at each of them.

So very many have been doing five days' work and scattering it over six days.
