

ONLY MIRACLE WILL PREVENT PARLEY CRASH

Britain Has Stated Final Terms and U. S. Has Re- fused to Approve Them; Little Hope Left.

Geneva, July 29.—Only a diplomatic miracle seems capable of saving the Tri-Partite Naval Disarmament conference from failure today.

Great Britain has stated her final terms and they have not met with the approval of the United States and it is freely predicted that next Monday's plenary session will be final, without any tangible results having been achieved, unless a statement of naval policy can be considered a tangible result.

The final reply of the American delegation to the British proposals rests with President Coolidge, but it is confidently expected to be in the negative.

Gibson's Views

Hugh Gibson, chief American delegate, is understood to have told other conferees yesterday that it was useless to submit the British proposals to the President but that he would do so as a matter of course, despite the fact that his previous instructions covered all points raised by the British proposals.

American observers claim the British proposal indicates a desire to limit vessels which are useful to the United States without limiting vessels which are useful to Great Britain.

Japs Not Interested

Knowing that the proposals are unacceptable to the United States the Japanese have not bothered to voice their objections, although they hold the proposals to be in opposition to the tentative Anglo-Japanese agreement reached a fortnight ago.

There is some possibility that the Japanese may succeed in mediation, but chances of success in mediation are slight.

Nothing New

The British proposals offered little new and much that was recognized to the American delegates. The main proposals suggested that Great Britain was willing to limit her total tonnage for cruisers, destroyers and submarines at 500,000 without limiting the tonnage of category I.

Furthermore the proposals suggested that a certain percentage of the ships reaching the age limit should be retained in service.

The American delegates hold that limitation except Great Britain would devote the bulk of her tonnage to cruisers and thus establish supremacy. Furthermore the proposal for retention of ships reaching the age limit is not acceptable to the United States for the reason that American vessels nearing the age limit are obsolete, while most of the British vessels of this type are still effective. The British proposals further suggest the limitation of eight inch guns to twelve on cruisers.

The American delegation has maintained discreet silence in the matter of direct quotation on the prospects, but it has left no doubts in the minds of those who have inquired that all the optimism of the past weeks has vanished.

The British delegates are rather reticent but the Hon. W. C. Bridgman is quoted as holding out no hopes.

ACOSTA AT LUNCHEON TELLS OF HIS TRIP

Atlantic Flyer Guest of Waterbury Today—Tells City to Build Airport.

Waterbury, Conn., July 29.—Waterbury heard first hand today of the grim and courageous fight that carried Bert Acosta, and his intrepid commander, Richard E. Byrd, from New York to France.

Acosta, his wife and Lieutenant and Mrs. Thomas Mulroy, U. S. N., were the honored guests here this noon at a special luncheon accorded in their honor. The famous flier arrived here early today by airplane and after visiting Naugatuck, returned to Waterbury for the welcoming ceremony at the noon luncheon.

City, state and nation were represented by the speakers who paid high tribute to Acosta and his companions.

The flier, in his response, paid tribute to his flight, not as an individual performance, but as the achievement of the entire crew, especially Commander Byrd whom he described as the greatest aviator in the nation today.

Acosta delivered a lengthy warning to Waterbury that it should complete its airport plans at once. Two hundred persons attended the luncheon.

The flier will remain here tonight as a guest of Lieutenant Gus Parsons and take part in the air tournament here at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon in several exhibition flights.

PLOT TO STEAL POLAND'S MONEY

Thieves Tunnel Within Six Feet of Safe Where New Bank Notes Were Stored.

Warsaw, July 29.—A daring plot to burglarize the state printing plant and steal an enormous number of new bank-notes and bank note plates was discovered by the police last night.

One thief was killed and four others arrested including Cichocki, the "King of safe-breakers."

The thieves established a workshop near the printing plant and dug a tunnel from their shop into the printing plant, the tunnel ending within six feet of the main safe in the printing plant. The tunnel is a masterpiece of engineering, the thieves using gas-mask, oxygen tanks and electricity in their operations.

When discovered the thieves barricaded themselves in the tunnel and surrendered only after stubborn resistance.

Those arrested are alleged to be members of an international gang which attempted a robbery of the Warsaw discount bank last winter.

DAWES AND PARTY IN TRAIN WRECK

Vice-President Has Narrow Escape as Engine Plunges Through Trestle In South.

Memphis, Tenn., July 29.—Vice-President Charles G. Dawes and his party of officials had a narrow escape from serious injury or possible death today when the engine of the vice-presidential special plunged through a trestle near Head, Miss.

One man was killed and two seriously injured.

The train was returning to Memphis from Greenville, where Vice-President Dawes last night addressed the State American Legion convention.

Dawes Sleeping

Vice-President Dawes and Charles H. Markham, chairman of the board of the Illinois Central Railroad, were sleeping in a special car on the train and were not awakened until after the crash.

Mayor Paine of Memphis and other city officials, were badly shaken up.

Sam P. Jones, engineer, Memphis, was killed and Henry Fletcher, Greenville, and J. F. Horton, fireman, Memphis, were seriously injured.

A major catastrophe was prevented only because the train was proceeding under the trestle and the engine plunged into a deep ditch of 18 feet of water.

Had the train been moving fast the entire train would have followed the engine in its plunge.

WHEELER, MENACE TO U. S.—RITCHIE

Head of Anti-Saloon League Will Ruin Nation Writes Governor In a Letter.

Detroit, Mich., July 29.—Governor Albert C. Ritchie, state's rights champion and a potential Democratic candidate for the presidency, declared here today that "Wheelerism," as it is exemplified by Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the Anti-Saloon League, "is coming to be a real menace to the country."

The governor expressed his opinion of Wheeler in a remarkable letter to the University of Michigan, in which he declined an invitation to debate the prohibition issue with Wheeler at the university open forum. The letter was written a week ago and only became public here today when newspapermen questioned the Maryland governor about it.

CHILD HURT IN STAMPEDE

Rochester, N. Y., July 29.—Six women fainting and a child was injured today during a stampede of some 75,000 persons who gathered to greet Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh on his brief visit here. The flying colonel arrived here at 11 a. m., and left an hour later for Buffalo.

MOSQUITO PLAGUE

West Haven, Conn., July 29.—Residents of West Haven were casting about for some relief today from the sudden plague of mosquitoes that has descended on the community. Sleep has been practically impossible for four nights with drug stores besieged for advice on how to combat the pests. Old timers say the attack is the worst in history.

Coolidges Saw Their Wedding

President and Mrs. Coolidge motored 66 miles to Newcastle, Wyo., the other day to attend the wedding of Miss Dorothy Mondell (above) and Alexander W. Gregg, chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau. The bride is the daughter of the Wyoming representative who formerly was floor leader of the House. Young Gregg recently won national note when he opposed 16 attorneys in the Ford tax suit.

GUATEMALA ENVOY ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Minister to U. S. Dying In Washington Hospital From Self Inflicted Wound.

Washington, July 29.—Francisco Sanchez Latour, minister from Guatemala to the United States, lay in a critical condition in Emergency hospital today as a result of a self-inflicted bullet wound near his heart.

Physicians are hoping for his ultimate recovery but fear the wound may prove fatal.

The envoy's wife insisted that Latour shot himself accidentally, saying that she knew of no reason whatever why he should attempt to take his own life. He had no financial worries and seemed in the best of spirits.

Affected by Suicide
She admitted, however, that Latour had been affected by the suicide of Rep. Crumpacker of Oregon in San Francisco a few days ago. Latour and Crumpacker had been close friends.

All day yesterday Latour had secluded himself in the study at the club and servants were startled by a shot. They rushed to the study and found Latour prostrate. A broken handled pistol, which he had kept in a drawer in his desk, was lying near him. His wife called the ambulance. The minister was unable to give an account of the shooting.

In Law Suit

Several months ago Latour figured in a suit brought by a former husband of Mrs. Latour, who was Lillian Hall Davis of Virginia. James R. Armstrong filed the suit to obtain possession of letters alleged to have been written by the minister to Armstrong's wife in 1908. Latour at the time was secretary of the legation. He became minister in 1922.

WAS VISITING DOCTOR AND TURNED ON HEAT FOR SHOWER; MONOXIDE GAS, RESULT.

Norwalk, Conn., July 29.—A general warning of the danger during hot weather of carbon monoxide gas forming in bathrooms from gas water heaters, was issued by Dr. William W. Tracy today following the death of Dr. Robert Frankfort, 23, Brooklyn dentist, who was found dead here late yesterday.

Dr. Frankfort was visiting Dr. Neil Scull and was preparing to take a shower when he was overcome by the carbon monoxide which formed from the water heater. First reports said escaping gas had claimed his life.

Dr. Tracy pointed out that during hot weather, the humidity is so great that the deadly carbon monoxide must have immediate means of escape. Small and poorly ventilated bathrooms are a real menace, he said.

ALLOW CHINA TO FIGHT ITS OWN BATTLES

That Is Opinion of Experts at Institute of Politics; Coun- try Now Going Through An Evolution.

Williamstown, Mass., July 29.—Control of the rival war lords in China will be difficult to break, Prof. Howard S. Quigley, of the University of Minnesota, asserted today in a round table discussion of the Chinese situation at the Institute of Politics here.

The most that is hoped for at present, Quigley said, is some sort of working agreement between them in the nature of a confederation with which the foreign governments can negotiate for the revision of treaties. No more than this is to be expected even if the central government becomes Nationalist, he continued.

National Step

Quigley viewed this as a national step in the evolution of China. The powers of the central government at first would be few, but would expand as necessity demanded and circumstances would permit, he predicted.

Count Carl S. Sforza, of Italy, who has just returned from his third visit to China, said that country going through the same evolution that marked Italy in the fifteenth century when the Malatesta, Sforza and other condottieri fought against each other for the control of the land of power.

Another round table discussion, conducted by Prof. Ralston Hayden, University of Michigan, set out as the outstanding problem in the Philippines the increase of the use of the natural resources of the island. The revenues of the Philippine government may be more nearly adequate to meet the expenses of the American and Filipino program for the development of an educated, healthy, progressive and prosperous Filipino people.

In a third round table discussion, dealing with international debts, Dr. Joseph S. Davis, of Stanford University, said that the matters of paramount importance were German reparations, the inter-allied debts, private investment abroad by American investors since the war, and Russian foreign debts.

The Daves Plan

"It is uncertain whether Germany will be able to make the inter-allied debts that soon will be due under the Daves plan, and if she cannot do so a more definite settlement of the reparations obligation must be reached," Davis said.

The huge flotation of foreign loans in the United States raises serious questions for the future, affecting not only our trade and financial stability but our national policies. It is highly important that these problems should be understood well in advance of the time when they may become critical, and the policies suitable for dealing with them should be formulated now."

The Latin American republics are becoming an area of "regional understanding," Prof. William R. Shepherd of Columbia University asserted in a round table discussion of foreign interests and self-determination in Latin America. Shepherd envisioned the formation of an American Society of Nations which would be a thorough mutuality of sentiment and the maintenance of a spirit of good will may restore between the United States and its southern neighbors a new world community of independent nations such as existed a century ago.

TO APPEAL SACCO CASE IN CASE OF FAILURE

Defense to Ask For Story If Gov. Fuller Hands Down Ad- verse Decision.

Boston, Mass., July 29.—While final pleas in behalf of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were being made to Gov. Alvan T. Fuller today by Defense Attorneys William G. Thompson and Herbert Ehrmann it became known that in event of an adverse finding by the chief justice a new and unexpected legal move was being planned by friends of the two prisoners.

At a secret conference between what was said to be "three internationally known legal minds" arrangements were virtually completed to appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

The appeal, it was said, would be taken to Justice Louis D. Brandeis at his Chatham home.

A writ of certiorari to stay execution set for August tenth would be asked on the ground of the alleged presence in the jury room at the time of the trial of bullets not part of the evidence.

However, the Sacco-Vanzetti defense forces have not abandoned hope of favorable action by the governor.

28 DEAD, 10 MISSING WHEN VESSEL UPSETS

BOTTOMLEY FREED, STARTS LIFE ANEW

Englishman Who Nearly Be- came Premier, Ends His Five Year Jail Sentence.

Maldstone, Eng., July 29.—Horatio Bottomley, who stirred the British war time public to such depths that he came within an ace of being premier, was secretly released from the Maldstone prison today, having been paroled after serving five years of a seven year sentence for fraudulently converting to his own use money subscribed to the Victory Bond club which he founded.

Bottomley, journalist and financier of sorts, walked out of prison alone. The man who at one time was hailed and acclaimed by thousands went alone to his country home in Sussex, where he found that his racing stables, his luxurious furnishings and perhaps his extensive wine cellars had been sacrificed to keep his family ship afloat while he was in prison.

Still Has Friends

Bottomley still has a following and some of his admirers had planned a home-coming celebration for him but the prison authorities released him sooner than expected, and with great secrecy and he was at home before his friends knew of his release.

Undaunted and still displaying much of the courage which made him a hero to the British public, Bottomley plans to start all over again. It is understood. He will re-enter the field of journalism and politics and strive anew to build himself to a position of power.

"John Bull," the weekly paper which Bottomley made into a household organ of the working classes, has passed into other hands. Bottomley must find a new organ, but this he intends to do, it was stated.

Rated a Rich Man

When he went to prison Bottomley was rated a rich man. He had racing stables, a fine country estate and a luxurious London home, but all these have gone during his confinement.

Bottomley was one of the most unusual figures ever to achieve fame in British public life. He had none of the usual British reserve and conservatism. On the contrary he was bombastic and a flag waver, yet he appealed to a large section of the public who swore by him. He was much sought after as a speaker and wherever he spoke thousands fought to hear him. His criticisms of the British conduct of the war were so much favored that at one time it seemed possible that he might become premier and even the conservative British statesmen were considering offering him a political post in order that "they might win support of his followings."

Was In Parliament

Bottomley became a member of Parliament and was always for a vigorous prosecution of the war to the best advantage of the British trenches. It was through his constant demands for better treatment for the common soldier that he established his great following. He was bitterly anti-American and denounced the United States for its failure to enter the war.

After the war Bottomley became engaged in various financial undertakings which became more and more complicated and finally he was prosecuted by the government for alleged fraud. During a long and dramatic trial Bottomley acted as his own defense counsel, but was finally convicted. He passed into the oblivion of Maldstone prison with thousands still believing in him. Now he comes forth alone, but determined to re-win his place in the sun of public favor.

BURGLARS VISIT THE NORTH END

Attempt to Break Into the Home of James Foley But Are Scared Away.

Another attempt at burglary was made in the north end, early this morning.

Mrs. James Foley, of North Main street, was awakened at quarter past two this morning by a noise at a window. She awakened her husband but by the time he opened the door, the men had escaped. Foley said there were two men but in the darkness he could give no description of them.

Mr. Foley at once called the police and in a few minutes they were on the scene but a search in the immediate neighborhood failed to find the strangers.

Mostly Children Drowned On Chicago Excursion Boat;

Rainstorm Starts Panic and All Rush to One Side of Ship Which Turns Over—75 Thrown Into Water; Mil- lionaire In Yacht Close By Saves 30—Believed That Those Missing Are Trapped In Lower Decks—Captain and Crew Helpless to Stop Rush to Side of Small Steamer.

Chicago, July 29.—The twenty-eight victims in the sinking of the excursion boat Favorite, which foundered off Lincoln Park in Lake Michigan here yesterday, were trapped like rats with no chance of saving their lives, it was indicated today by Coroner Oscar Wolf.

"Every one of the life belts on the boat bore government inspection stamps of approval dating back more than seventeen years," Wolf declared. "The ropes binding the corks together were rotten and fell apart. The buoyancy of the belts was incapable of supporting a human body."

Investigators learned, too, that the frail craft normally had a capacity of ten persons and a crew of three. But a special excursion permit, issued during the summer months, authorized it to carry 158 passengers and a crew of ten.

Four bodies, federal, state, county and city, are anxious to determine why the capacity was increased to such an extent.

Chicago, July 29.—Twenty-eight dead and ten missing was the toll of victims in the tragic sinking of the excursion boat Favorite, which foundered off Lincoln Park in Lake Michigan during a storm here yesterday, a late checkup revealed today.

Of the 27 known dead, sixteen were children, ten were women and one a man. The latter was drowned on a boat. The boat's capacity was increased to nine-year-old daughter. Many of those rescued sustained injuries and were taken to hospitals for treatment.

Captain Arthur Olson, skipper of the ill-fated vessel, and three members of his crew were placed under arrest and will be held pending the investigations.

Boat Overturns

The boat—a small double-decked gasoline-driven craft—overturned and sank late yesterday off the shore of North Avenue when caught in a sudden squall.

More than seventy-five persons—most of them women and children—were swept overboard into the raging waters. About fifty were rescued by other boats that rushed to the stricken vessel.

Professional divers, Coast Guard crews and civilian volunteers are searching the wreckage and nearby waters for other bodies. It is believed several of the missing are imprisoned in lower decks.

The boat plied back and forth between Municipal pier and Belmont harbor in Lincoln Park. It was enroute to the pier, about 200 feet north of the breakwater when the storm struck and sent it to the bottom.

Mostly Children

Children, who were carried free when accompanied by their parents, were in the majority among the passengers.

William F. Hofnauer, Chicago millionaire, who was cruising aboard his yacht "Doris," near the stricken vessel when the storm struck, and his gallant crew of three men, were the heroes of the tragedy.

The Doris reached the Favorite less than three minutes after the latter had gone down. Only the upper cabin of the excursion vessel showed above the water. Scores of frantic passengers were fighting in an effort to cling to the wreckage. Many others were tossing about on the waves.

Saved Thirty

Hofnauer and his men dragged thirty of the victims aboard the Doris—all that the little craft could hold—and started for shore. They were unloaded quickly and the rescue boat returned for more. Risking their own lives in the squall that still raged, Hofnauer and his crew kept pulling the frantic victims aboard until there were no more in sight.

At this time other boats had reached the scene and crews equipped with axes began chopping through the upper deck in search of victims trapped within. Several bodies were recovered from the hold of the doomed vessel.

Sudden Storm

The storm, struck suddenly. Negro musicians were playing and singing—"I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover"—children were dancing on the decks. Suddenly it began to rain. Rain blowing in on the port side. This caused the passengers to crowd to the starboard side of the boat. Then, when the blow caught the little craft, with the weight on the wrong side, it rolled over and went down.

One Lifeboat

According to survivors, there was only one lifeboat on the vessel. This was used to save three small boys. There were plenty of lifebelts, survivors said, but they could not reach them. One member of the crew, tossed into the lake, swam back to the cabin and cut the ropes that held the chain of life preservers.

Kelly, Mrs. Evelyn Marie, 23.
Thomen, John, 18.
Harper, Arthur W., 35.

But by this time most of the passengers, hysterical and screaming, were in the water and unable to reach the belts.

Captain Olson was overcome by the tragedy. He stayed with his vessel and when it had settled on the bottom he devoted his efforts to throwing life belts to many of the passengers as he could reach. Olson said panic among the passengers was responsible for the disaster.

The coroner and the state's attorney's office have started separate investigations.

FOUR SEPARATE PROBES

Four separate investigations were launched today to determine responsibility for the sinking of the boat which capsized off Lincoln Park in Lake Michigan during a sudden rain and wind squall.

A coroner's inquest with a jury of prominent business men was to convene late today.

A check of filed records and reports in the federal building upon the Favorite as compared with actual conditions discovered with the salvaging of the boat was begun by Captain J. S. Hansen, inspector of hulls.

Eyewitness Stories

The state's attorney's office gathered information from all eyewitnesses of the disaster in an effort to determine any criminal responsibility.

Police, first on the scene, were conducting a separate investigation with a view to co-operate with any of the other three agencies.

A report that many of the life preservers on the ship were incapable of sustaining a body was under investigation. Others told the coroner that the preservers were firmly fastened to the boat and they could not be pried loose.

It was learned the boat was not overcrowded to the number of passengers that could be carried according to federal rating.

DAUGHTER'S STORY

Chicago, July 29.—With her father too overcome by the tragedy to defend himself, little Katherine Olson, ten-year-old daughter of Arthur Olson, captain of the ill-fated excursion boat Favorite, today came to the sorrowing skipper's aid.

"Daddy did the best he could," said the little girl, herself one of the survivors.

"I was standing on the deck when the storm blew up. I looked up and saw Daddy at the wheel. He stood there spinning the wheel and shouting orders to his men. He tried his best to keep the boat

WOMAN YIELDS LINDY'S MESSAGE TO REGIMENT

Hartford Captor of Greeting to C. N. G. Organization Holds Then Gives up Paper.

When Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, famed trans-Atlantic flier, honored the 169th Infantry, C. N. G., by flying over the reservation at Camp Trumbull, Niantic, on Governor's Day, he carried with him a message of greeting to the regiment which he had written himself.

When the famous flier continued on his way to Hartford for the first stop on his 78-stop tour of the nation, the message went with him. As he soared over the home of Miss M. E. Davis, of 79 Mulberry street in Hartford, the paper became untraced and dropped to the roof of the Davis home almost at the feet of Miss Davis, who was watching Lindy's arrival.

74TH ANNIVERSARY SALE AT HOUSE'S

Big Event Starts Today and Lasts 9 Days—Paris Popularity Contest Closes Tomorrow Night.

The nine day midsummer clearance sale of C. E. House & Son, Inc., which started this morning, marks the 74th milestone in the career of Manchester's oldest mercantile establishment.

In celebration of the event sweeping price reductions have been made on the entire stock of the big store. No cheap merchandise has been bought in for the sale but only standard high grade goods from the store's regular stock will be offered.

ROCHESTER AWAITS LINDY

Rochester, N. Y., July 29.—Fully 100,000 persons are expected to roar a welcome to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh when he zooms down to the ground in his "Spirit of St. Louis" on a visit to this city today. Anticipating such a crowd, arrangements have been completed for 500 National Guardsmen, naval militia, police and deputy sheriffs to guard the celebrated flier and plane from possible injury at the hands of enthusiastic souvenir-hunters.

AIMEE NOT TO QUIT

Los Angeles, Calif., July 29.—I have no intention whatever of leaving Angelus Temple," Emphatically, Aimee Semple McPherson today denied previous reports that she intended to resign from the million-dollar religious organization that is the cause of a bitter war between herself and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy. The evangelist admitted, however, she had suggested to the Temple committee she would resign but the idea was "overwhelmingly" vetoed by her church.

Strike Has Not Affected the Market, Owners of Largest Mines In the World, Declare.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 29.—The "little fellow" who usually suffers most from a coal strike will be immune this year from any severe economical ravages of his pocket-book as the result of the suspension of soft coal mining by union men.

Officials of the Pittsburgh Coal company said they were producing more than 630,000 tons of coal from 18 of their 19 mines in western Pennsylvania this month and could increase their output to a million tons of coal monthly if the demand warrants it.

The Pittsburgh Terminal Coal corporation stated it was producing between three and four thousand tons of coal daily from three of its seven mines. Officials of both companies admitted there would be a small increase in the price of coal but they pointed out that there has always been an increase in the price each year. They said there was no shortage of labor due to the suspension of work by union miners as a result of the expiration of the Jacksonville agreement whereby operators were to pay their men a basic scale of $7.50 a day.

ABOUT TOWN

The New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad announces the first excursion of the season to Boston, which will take place on Sunday, August 7.

UNION SHUT OUT

They pointed to thirteen other coal operators that have renounced the union policy in this section and showed that each was working some of its mines with non-union labor.

Charles I. Balch has begun the work of making out the tax abstract for the Seventh district, also for the Eighth School & Utilities district. Both districts voted to lay a tax at the annual school meeting in June which will be due in October.

ELKS PLAN FOR NINTH ANNIVERSARY SEPT. 12

Members of the Rockville lodge of Elks are planning for the ninth anniversary of the founding of that lodge and the date of September 12 has been tentatively set aside. The committee consists of the past exalted rulers and the officers of the lodge.

In its nine years of organization a Manchester man has been exalted ruler twice and is the only man to have served two terms in that office. He is George H. Williams, present head of the lodge.

The fixtures of the McNamara drug store in the Johnson block were removed to Hartford today. McNamara went into bankruptcy some time ago and the stock and fixtures were bought by a Hartford man. Most of the stock has been sold.

Girls above the High School age are asked to meet with Miss Drew at the West Side playgrounds this evening at 7 o'clock to make plans for a tennis tournament.

A letter received here from Miss Edythe Schult, assistant in the Chamber of Commerce office, who with Miss Romana Suesman of Rockville is on a motoring tour that included attendance at a Lutheran convention in St. Louis, shows that on July 25 they were in Chicago, having driven from St. Louis, 325 miles, in one day.

Four or five young boys between the ages of 15 and 20 years have been stealing apples from trees on the property of Dennis J. Harrington, 15 Mill street, it was learned today. The intruders have not been content with taking the apples that fall from the trees, to which they are welcome, but have abused the privilege by almost completely wrecking one of the trees. The matter has been reported to the authorities.

WARM AND THIRSTY?

HERE'S a glacial prescription for parched throats and fevered brows: Iced YUBAN Fluff. It is so substantial that it can really act both as a beverage and as the main dessert. When it trickles down that Sahara—your dry, hot throat—you will bless the man or the woman who invented it. Try it.

How to Make Iced YUBAN Fluff

Fill tall glasses three-fourths full with chilled YUBAN. Add a very little cream, drop in a generous tablespoonful of vanilla, maple or orange-flavored syrup and serve. If desired, before serving the beverage may be shaken, as in the case of a cocktail, in which case a delicious creamy froth will appear at the top.

MANCHESTER BOY HELD IN CAR THEFT

Oscar Chetalet, Out of a Job, Accused of Stealing Auto; Arrested in New Jersey.

Police in Metuchen, N. J., are holding Oscar Chetalet of 25 Eldridge street, this town, for the theft of a car which was stolen from the Hartford Rubber Works yesterday morning. Chetalet was arrested in Metuchen and failed to produce a registration certificate.

He is being held while extradition papers are being prepared. The car is the property of Robert G. Loomis of 46 Huntington street, Hartford, and was parked in the rear of the rubber factory. It was stolen at about 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

Chetalet, the son of Justin Chetalet of 25 Eldridge street, is about 18 years old and so far as is known has had no previous police record. He was for a time employed at the Rialto theater here but is said to have been out of work since the theater closed down early in the summer.

Even Far Away Hartford Reader Appreciates Features in The Herald.

Editor, Manchester Herald, Manchester, Conn.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I want to begin with three rousing cheers for The Manchester Herald! It's the finest paper I've yet come across. The home page is the one I like best. I offer my sincere congratulations to an editor who can select such splendid serial stories as you have been running. I have been reading the paper for something over a year and I haven't yet found a story that drags or loses interest. But most precious of all is the column of Allene Sumner—that column is one that can't be beaten.

With best wishes for a successful future, I remain,
Very cordially yours,
BERTHA MORSE.

JAPAN POLITICS

CHANGE AS NEW PARTY THRIVES

Two Old Parties Give Up Ghost As 226 Seats In Diet Go to Hamaguchi.

Tokio—Politics in Japan, like those of any other country, always will be complicated but some of the knots have been pulled out of the Japanese situation by the organization of Rikken Minseitō, a new political party.

The birth of Rikken Minseitō witnessed the death of two other parties, and that is the chief reason why politics of Japan thereby have been slightly simplified. Kenseikai, the party headed by Reijiro Wakatsuki, the former premier, and Seiyu Hontō, a minority group which held the balance of power in the old days when Kenseikai and Seiyu Hontō were the chief contending parties, merged to form Rikken Minseitō. Kenseikai and Seiyu Hontō, names long familiar in Japanese politics, therefore disappear.

Rikken Minseitō is a lusty infant at birth for it sprang into the political arena immediately as the majority party in the Diet. By combining the Kenseikai and Seiyu Hontō memberships, Rikken Minseitō has 226 seats in the House of Representatives, as against 177 for Seiyukai, the party now in power.

Japanese "Lloyd George" heading the new party is Yaka Hamaguchi, known as the "Lloyd George" of Japan, his likeness to the little Welshman consisting of a slight physical resemblance and a more marked resemblance in the matter of political astuteness. Hamaguchi long has been a power in Japanese politics and one of the bulwarks of the old Kenseikai. He held the post of finance minister in the cabinet of the late Count Kato, and in the Katatsuki cabinet he was home minister, which corresponds to the vice-presidency in the Japanese system.

Hamaguchi's chief lieutenants will be Wakatsuki, former premier and president of Kenseikai; Tokonami, former president of Seiyu Hontō, and Baron Tatsuo Yamamoto, former advisor to Seiyu Hontō. These three constitute the board of advisers.

Rikken Minseitō means the Constitutional Democratic Party. Five planks comprise its platform. They are:

1—By the accurate reflection of the popular mind in the lower affairs and distribution should be equalized, with a view to removal of the causes of social unrest.

2—International justice, as the guiding principle in the conduct of international relations, should be asserted and the principles of the open door and racial equality should be strongly upheld.

Practical Education 4—The practical side of national education should be stressed and the fullest play should be given to the individuality of the student.

5—Every institution, either legislative or administrative, which has grown obsolete, should be abolished and the machinery of government should be adjusted in the light of changed conditions.

It is on this platform that Rikken Minseitō hopes to ride into office, displacing the Seiyukai ministry headed by Premier Giichi Tanaka. Since Rikken Minseitō holds a majority of the seats in the Diet it is not unlikely that it will be able to maneuver the situation so that it may come into power during the next session of the Diet, if not before. Platform principles, doubters will have little to do with it but the astute political tactics of Hamaguchi and his advisors will.

EXCURSION BOATS

Seldom does a summer pass without a disaster, somewhere in the waters of this country, comparable to yesterday's Lake Michigan tragedy.

There is probably no law much more faithfully observed than the maritime regulation against the overcrowding of excursion vessels.

It is obviously impossible for any body, law authorities, officers of vessels or newspapers, to adequately impress the public with the fact that there is always danger in a sudden shifting of the cargo, either human or commodity, of any light draught vessel.

The result is likely to be fully as disastrous as when the guns of an old time frigate went "adrift" in a rolling sea and slid down to lee-ward.

Steamboat inspection rules take this danger into account. But it is doubtful if they do so in a sufficient degree.

In many instances, no doubt, this would reduce the legal number of passengers to far below the apparent carrying capacity of the craft.

Any expectation that an excursion crowd will use sea-going senses is unreasonable and will never be realized.

Although such an enterprise would probably shock deeply the moral sensibilities of a good many perfectly proper and well disposed persons, we more or less seriously suggest that a school for thieves

It is bad enough when a crook gets away with your money; but at least there is the satisfaction of being sure that he had some sort of appreciation of what he took.

The folly of the dubs who stole those miniatures—for which any well-to-do collector would have paid into the thousands apiece—merely for the few dollars they could get for the frames, is of a kind that manifests itself in thousands of crimes.

When Gerald Chapman was operating it developed that he had a call on vast sums of underworld money. No one ever completely explained the distribution of his rich spoils, which included a million dollar mail robbery.

There comes to the news desk in the routine of publicity arrangements an article from the Hartford County Farm Bureau, dealing with the junior short course at the Connecticut Agricultural College

Of the forty-eight boys and girls listed a solitary one hails from Manchester. There are four from Warehouse Point, three from Hazardville, two from Melrose and one from Broad Brook.

New York, July 29.—Those dramas of Manhattan crookdom that thrilled Broadway last season do little more than scratch the surface of the organized industry that takes its toll at the point of guns.

Few people, for instance, know that kings of the crime world sit back with fat bankrolls to be used in financing little raiding parties and seeing them through in the event a "blinch" is made.

Of course he must pay back some day. The usual "squeeze" on the Thayer and he mustn't skip out. If he bites the hand of his feeder he would be safer in the electric chair.

A sinister business this one dotted with prison records of the pawns. The big boys swank around Broadway, appear in the gambling dives, tie up with big bootleg rings and play the slick night club game.

When Gerald Chapman was operating it developed that he had a call on vast sums of underworld money. No one ever completely explained the distribution of his rich spoils, which included a million dollar mail robbery.

The Whittemore gang, one of the most elaborate the east has known, had fortunes at its command. A sum of $50,000 could be produced on a few moments' notice and the Whittemores did not forget their "connections."

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Terrific blasts have lately been delivered at the direct primary system by reactionary statesmen and politicians. The direct primary is supposed to be one of the big bulwarks of popular government in this country.

President Near Dictator Some folks are so convinced that the present bureaucracy is working for dictatorship that they have even formed an organization called the American Constitutional Association to fight the trend.

Everyone is this country worth mentioning is strongly opposed to United States war in government in the United States was in danger of being overthrown in favor of a Soviet regime.

Several Dictators in America If it becomes today which of this dictatorship bogey by laughing it off, the subject would not be discussed in this article.

The dictatorship idea has taken a firm hold in some European countries, notably in Italy, but lately it has edged right over into the western hemisphere. Chile has a military dictatorship so firm as to rival Mussolini's; President Borno is altering the Haitian constitution so as to become that republic's man on horseback, and the A. F. of L. has exposed the persecution of labor union officials under Machado in Cuba, where the constitution is also being revamped to prolong the president's term and federalize Havana.

In Mexico, the dictatorship bogey is raised against Obregon because he seeks a second, nonconsecutive presidential term.

All this may be but a swing of the pendulum, but the symptoms of the dictatorship trend are to be seen right here at home.

The old Chateau at St. Juvin, with the army barracks which now serves as a church

This is Chapter 94 of the series of articles by a correspondent for The Herald who is revisiting France as an advance guard for the "Second A. E. F."

CHAPTER XCIV

The war played a lot of odd pranks. Up in St. Juvin, which was known to the American divisions—the 82d, the 77th and the 78th, someone went to all the pains and trouble of erecting a chateau, with trowning battlements, along in the years around 1200 A. D. Three hundred years later the chateau was decorated with a tall steeple, some bells were hung, and it was thereafter used as a church.

Until 1918. Then St. Juvin was captured by some American outfit—none of which will probably register the credit now—and the church was used as a storehouse for high explosive ammunition. In all the shelling before its capture, the church seems untouched except for a few minor scratches. So it afforded an ideal shelter. The armistice came along. A month later, cleanup squads from labor battalions entered St. Juvin. There were orders that the ammunition dump had to be removed. The buck privates gazed on the accumulated shells and pondered. Plans for the task were considered. It may have been an accident.

But—one dark night that store of ammunition "let go." The force of the explosion wrecked all of that church except the walls. The job of removing the shells was completed. And St. Juvin was without a church. According to the natives the explosion was intentional. It is so explained on postcards—"Before" and "After" scenes that will be available for purchase by members of the American Legion in September. Of course, the villagers have built a new church. They put an American army barracks on a foundation right alongside the former place of worship. Things are going so smoothly, too. But the St. Juviners can't quite reconcile themselves to the fact

MULE RESCUES PONY Forayth, Mo.—A spotted Shetland pony, excited by the rise of the White River, which had invaded its pasture, struck out for the center of the current, apparently with suicidal intent. Its pasture pal, a white mule, leaped in after the pony, struggled for half an hour to turn it toward shore, finally seized its mane and dragged it to land.

LORD ASTOR TO AID BRITISH DRY FORCES IN BIGGEST DRIVE London.—The greatest attack on liquor ever made in Great Britain is shortly to be launched by the Temperance Council of the Christian Churches, the most powerful temperance organization in the country. With the active assistance of Lord Astor, husband of Lady Nancy Astor and probably England's most prominent "dry," the Rev. C. Courtney Weeks, and other well-known temperance reformers, the Council proposes to put up the Berceat fight of its career against the "wets." The fight will in the main take the form of a nation-wide lecture campaign, and as a preliminary to this and with the object of finding the best possible speakers, a sort of "temperance summer school" has been opened at High Leigh, a country mansion in Hertfordshire, where budding temperance reformers will be given expert advice on the best way to combat liquor by notable "drys," including Lord Astor. A program of lectures has been drawn up, and every day students will be given lectures on some aspect of the liquor question. They will be taught how to drive home on the public platform the various arguments against drink. They will learn the art of propaganda. They will be shown how to deal with hecklers. Facts and figures to support their case will be supplied them. Plans will also be discussed for the forthcoming campaign and a definite plan of action drawn up. The students include teetotal lecturers and propaganda campaigners from all parts of Great Britain, together with a great many newcomers. With the closing of the school the campaign against the "wets" will start in earnest.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (43) William Barents. SPITZBERGEN NOVA ZEMBLA BARENTS SEA EUROPE. John Davis, after whom Davis Strait was named, was murdered in Oriental waters, but he left sailing men a hope and illusion that fostered explorations of Arctic seas. After Davis the next great explorer was William Barents, a Dutchman. Barents discovered Spitzbergen which he thought a part of Greenland. The map shows Spitzbergen's position.

SKETCHES BY BESSEY SYNOPSIS BY BRAUCHEER. Barents was frozen in for one terrible winter at Nova Zembla. His men built a rude hut of driftwood with a cask for a bath. Snow buried the hut and bears tried to tear open the roof, but the men climbed up the crude chimney and fought them off. Foxes were food. One of the most curious title deeds on record was the cross which Barents erected in Nova Zembla. To the cross he nailed a sixpence bearing the likeness of his king. The return journey from Nova Zembla had to be made in small boats since ice gripped the ship. Barents died on the way. (To Be Continued)

A rebuke which FLORA CARTWRIGHT, VERA CAMERON'S much-widowed aunt, flings out to Vera as she leaves the apartment they share, comes back to Vera with mocking audacities the same morning. Flora disapproves of her niece's long skirts, braided hair, horn-tin accessories, low-heel shoes and her business-like manner. When a promotion Vera expects with the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., where she is a private secretary, is given to someone else, Vera remembers her aunt's words.

However, her promotion to assistant of the new advertising manager, JERRY MACKLYN, crowds everything else out of her mind. The first day she is in his office, he asks her to prepare a form for her with the aid of Peach Bloom cosmetics into a beauty, using her photograph in the company advertising. Vera indignantly refuses, but reconsiders when in the elevator going down to lunch she sees and falls in love with a man she hears called SCHUYLER. He makes her remark to his companion that he will be at Lake Minnetonka in June.

Jerry calls in KITTY PROCTOR, a professional demonstrator, and they decide to make Vera over, using as a model a four-colored Sunday supplement picture of a strikingly beautiful woman, whom Jerry supposes to be a movie actress, as the picture is not captioned. Vera decides to let the experiment be over. That night when she is dressing for another "promenade" when Vera greets PETER DARROW, her aunt's latest, he secretly notices her. This angers Vera and she determines to attract him yet.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

FLORA CARTWRIGHT sat on the deep couch in her living room, while Peter Darrow, on the hassock at her feet, leaned pleadingly against her knees, which were barely covered by the blue hem of her skirt.

"Peter darling," Flora was saying in the voice she reserved for just such occasions as this—a sad, sweet, gentle voice, a voice of noble renunciation, "some day you will thank me for refusing to marry you. Some day you will say, 'Flora was right. She was wise, she saved me for the great love of my life.'"

"Don't, don't!" the boy's voice vibrated passionately. "You are the great love of my life. I won't have you treating me as if I were an infant, whom you can play with and cast aside. I asked you to marry me three weeks ago."

"It will be three weeks Monday," Flora corrected him, sighing gently.

"And I shall continue to ask you every day until you consent, or I shall abduct you and compromise you so that you will be forced to marry me to save your reputation."

"How delicious!" Flora laughed. "I haven't been abducted since Jack Preston—my second husband, you know, dear."

"Yes, I know," the young man said fiercely. "I've met him. He's always hanging around here."

"He wants me to marry him again," Flora sighed. "Don't, Peter, you hurt me! Oh, dear, there's the bell. Will you go to the door, darling?"

"If Mr. Preston'll fill him!" "Is Au—Mrs. Cartwright here?" a musical, imperious voice, with a hint of laughter in it, demanded when Peter Darrow opened the door.

"Er—yes. Won't you come in?" "You are Miss Cartwright?" the girl asked, offering a gloved hand. "Miss Cameron's aunt?"

"Yes, I am Vera Cameron's

"Aunt Flora, don't you know me?" the exquisite creature said.

aunt," Flora admitted, mystified. "She is away at present, out of town on business. Oh, I believe you are Mr. Macklyn, the advertising manager?"

"A great deal has happened to Miss Cameron, Mrs. Cartwright," Jerry said gravely. "I'm afraid—"

"Dead!" Flora Cartwright shrieked. "Peter! The ammonia—top shelf of the bathroom medicine chest! Oh, I'm going to faint! My darling Vee-Vee!" she moaned, swaying toward Jerry Macklyn.

"Aunt Flora, don't you know me?" The exquisite creature who had made Peter Darrow instantly self-conscious stepped forward quickly.

"Vee-Vee's voice!" Flora gasped, steadying herself against Jerry Macklyn's willing arm. "Who are you?" she demanded wildly.

"I'm Vee-Vee, of course," Vera laughed. "Have I changed so very much, Aunt Flora?" she exclaimed.

"Changed? Good heavens! Peter! Peter! Come here! Never mind the ammonia! Peter, do you know who this is?"

Peter Darrow, out of breath from running, confronted the girl and stared at her blankly.

"That," Flora announced, pointing a shaking forefinger, "is Vera Victoria Cameron! I can't believe it! I simply can't! Turn around slowly and let me look you over, darling."

"Vee-Vee," smiling brilliantly, proudest on the toe of a smart French pump.

"Take off your hat!" Vee-Vee's smile deepened. She lifted, very carefully, the swaggy little hat, and revealed a head from which masses of mossy-brown hair had been cut.

"Perfect!" Flora Cartwright

sighed, clasping her hands ecstatically. "My dear, how did you ever do it? I swear I would never have known you, and I'm still not convinced that it's really Vee-Vee Cameron."

"I didn't do it," Vee-Vee laughed. "It was Jerry Macklyn, Pygmalion, take your bow!"

"I had good marble to work with, Galatea," Jerry grinned.

"We mustn't forget Kitty Proctor and Peach Bloom," Vee-Vee reminded him. "Oh, Aunt Flora, it will take hours to tell you all about it, and I don't want to cheat poor Peter out of his evening with you. I'm tired, too. I didn't get my job and my permanent until this afternoon, and then Kitty and I—she's the Peach Bloom demonstrator with whom I've been living while the transformation was being wrought—had to dash all up and down Fifth Avenue looking for this ensemble. Mr. Macklyn was with us. He insisted on helping to choose the costume."

"This fool girl doesn't know a thing about clothes," Jerry Macklyn chuckled. "I guess it's up to you and me, Mrs. Cartwright, to see that she doesn't backslide and get all wound up in one of those black shrouds of hers."

"Well," said Vee-Vee coolly, settling herself on the couch, "you are going to have a bigger job than you'd bargained for. For I may as well tell all of you right now that I'm going to take my vacation the last half of June and that I'm going to Lake Minnetonka."

"Lake Minnetonka?" Flora Cartwright echoed with amazement. "Are you planning to stay at the Minnetonka Hotel, Vee-Vee Cameron?"

"I'm going if it takes every cent I have, and I'm going with a wardrobe that will be entirely appropriate, even for the Minnetonka."

"Now I know you're Vee-Vee," Flora Cartwright laughed. "That was the rhetorical voice in which you used to lay down the law to me, but, child, your words amaze me! Do you actually mean that you are going to fling away your carefully hoarded savings on one mad spree? What about your old age, fudd?"

"A girl that looks like that," said Jerry Macklyn, "doesn't have to worry about her old age."

"You're wrong, Jerry," Vee-Vee told him impudently. "My trip to Minnetonka is old-age insurance."

"So!" Flora gasped. "You're going to set out deliberately to capture a rich husband! Peter, darling, tell me I'm dreaming!"

Color flooded Vera's camellia-white cheeks. Then she thought to herself, resentfully, "Well, let I'd die before I'd tell her or anyone else that I'm going in pursuit of a man I've only seen once in my life." About she said, "Clothes are not the only equipment I need, Aunt Flora. I may look sophisticated—and who could help it with this bob?—but I don't know a single, solitary thing about—about having a good time. I don't know how to get a beau or what to say to him if I get him. I don't know how to walk or talk or—er—flirt. You've only half finished your job, Jerry. Will you and Aunt Flora make the beautiful statue really come to life? It's—oh, you don't know how important it is!"

"I'll do anything you want me to, Vee-Vee," Jerry Macklyn said gruffly, but his blue eyes were almost somber with foreboding.

Vera contracts for some lessons, and she and her aunt make a queer compact. In the next chapter.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

Are women in business selfish and greedy and eternally working for self-glory and self-advancement?

A certain boss whom I know says they are.

"Women are eternally figuring out how to become celebrities and not just employees," he traded. "A man can come into any firm, get into routine, become a cog, do the daily grind, and never think about making a fuss because he is 'working below capacity,' as some fool woman is always complaining to me.

"But a woman looks upon everything she does as just a stepping stone to 'something bigger and better.' She'll buckle down to one job, and just as I think she is going fine and I'm through bothering with her, she'll proceed to ask for the next job higher up, or come to my office with suggestions and plans or to show a new piece of work she's thought up on her own hook. "I'm fed up on women."

There seemed to be a flaw somewhere in the hallyhoo anecdote woman—her faults and blunders. I sought it.

"But," said I, "you say that she really does 'buckle down' to each job and master it, and is really ready for the next thing?"

"Oh, yes, she does that okay," said he grudgingly.

"Well then, aside from the folly it would be from her point of view, isn't it rather silly and wasteful for you to want to cramp any worker's capacities?"

"Aren't you a rather poor business man for being content with unskilled labor when you are offered skilled labor?"

Made brave through my disguise, I continued—

"You know what I think? You're plain lazy, and you resent being made to work because of other people's ambitions. You yourself want to be a cog and you can't be if you must think about your staff once you get it hired. You resent being forced to work a little bit yourself when an employe brings a new idea to you, and so on."

This employer tirade against too-ambitious, too self-assertive women employees is by no means new or unique. I have heard it until I could—and often do—swear.

It is not at all hard to find reasons for women making more than the most of their jobs.

In the first place, jobs are comparatively new to us. They are not just jobs—the wherewithal to make a living.

The majority of men regard jobs in that way. Rather necessarily, they do so, for men have "hungry wife and barn to feed" and cannot be too critical about the kind of job they will and do take.

To woman, however, a job is "self-expression" and "creative work." Women think of their jobs in terms of their "own work" much more than do men. It makes a world of difference to them whether they plug in on a switchboard or plead a case in open court.

To many women today, their job is the substitute for wifehood and motherhood and home-making which yesterday's woman took as her job as a matter of course.

If it be in any sense a satisfying substitute, woman must naturally make the most of it—work to fullest capacity and feel justified in making her choice twixt "marriage or career."

The employer who tries to transform her energy and ambition and desire to work to the full, into a man's plodding acceptance "just anything that comes up in the day's work," is a fool and the loser!

HOW THEY COOK TAMALES IN CALIFORNIA

The favorite recipe of Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, representative from the Fourth District, California, is one for tamales, "a typical California dish, reminiscent of the Mexican occupation." Mrs. Kahn gives these directions:

"Mix two cups of canned tamales with 1 can of canned corn; season to taste with Worcestershire sauce, tomato catsup, pepper and salt. Put in well-buttered baking dish, cover thickly with grated cheese and bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes."

Orange-Almond Conserves Another favorite of Mrs. Kahn is for conserves:

"Oranges and almonds being two of California's chief crops," said Mrs. Kahn. "I combine the two in a conserve that is a sweet fit for kings." The recipe calls for:

Six oranges, six and one-half pounds sugar, three lemons, one pound almonds.

"Slice the oranges and lemons very thin. Blanch the almonds. Cover fruit with 10 cups of cold water and let simmer, uncovered, for an hour. Dissolve the sugar in a little of the liquid from the kettle, cover, and when boiling return to kettle. Boil 20 minutes, add almonds, then turn into the glasses. This should fill 15 glasses."

PAPER NAPKINS

Paper napkins save time and energy in summertime. Use them in the kitchen too to wipe greasy pans before washing, to clean drain board and to shine glass stove.

CREAMED TURNIPS

Diced turnips, cooked until tender, make a nice hot dish for luncheon if covered with thick cream sauce, sprinkled with bread crumbs, and baked.

CURLED EYELASHES QUITE THE VOGUE

By Mme. Anne Gerarde Never cut your eyelashes except under the direction of an expert. For although clipping the lashes does stimulate growth it is a dangerous and delicate operation.

Brush your eyebrows each night in the following manner: Shut eye part way and, with a small eyebrow brush, stroke the lashes down a few times and then "brush" them from the inside up so that they curve back.

The latest beauty fad is to curl your eyelashes.

Take an invisible hair-pin and heat as you would an iron. When warm—not too hot—catch the lashes between the prongs and curl back as you would curl your hair over an iron.

Massage eyelashes at night very lightly with yellow vaseline. When make-up is used, use mascara sparingly; brown is shade if you are a blonde, black if dark.

It is not difficult for a young man to earn a good living if he has a rich dad.

CORNS

Ends pain at once

No waiting—one minute after you apply Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads the pain is gone. After the corn is healed it never comes back. If new shoes irritate the spot again, a Zino-pad fixes it overnight. Old methods of paring corns, or using caustic acids, are dangerous.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads are safe, antiseptic, effective, healing. They stop the cause of corns—rubbing and pressing of shoes. At all druggists' and shoe dealers. Cost but a trifle.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads Put one on—the pain is gone!

Good Nature and Good Health

HOT WEATHER AND HEALTH BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, The Health Magazine

During the hot weather it is well for the baby to be out-of-doors at least early in the morning and late in the afternoon. During the hottest portions of the day, the child will probably be more comfortable if kept in-doors in the coolest room of the house.

It should of course be understood that a baby left out-of-doors needs watching. It ought to be protected by a proper netting against flies, mosquitoes and other insects. It ought to be protected by suitable arrangements against being troubled by dogs, cats and wandering animals.

Furthermore, a baby out-of-doors is likely to attract some public attention from neighbors and visitors. Any baby will do much better if allowed to lie quietly than if it is picked up by every passing stranger. Under no circumstances should visitors be allowed to mouth kiss the baby, or to amuse themselves by tossing it in the air.

In some of the hospitals in New Zealand babies live out-of-doors all day and sleep in well ventilated rooms at night. A child may be habituated to various degrees of exposure, but should not be subjected too suddenly to rigorous climatic conditions. In the summer, because of perspiration, babies are likely to suffer from irritation of the skin or from the condition called "heat rash." If the skin is irritated, the difficulty may arise from the fact that the garments have not been changed often enough, or that the skin has not been properly cleaned or dried after the garments are changed. The care of the skin in the summer involves the use of little soap and that which is used should be mild. The skin should be well dried after washing, and irritated creases may be sprinkled with a good dusting powder. If the weather is extremely hot, all clothing may be removed from the baby and it will lie comfortably in its crib or in the buggy.

In the presence of prickly heat or any other eruption or rash that is not due to an infection, the skin may be sponged lightly several times each day without soap and dusted with a suitable dusting powder after thorough drying.

RAW VEGETABLES

Finely shredded carrots, small diced cucumbers, chopped cabbage and a bit of Bermuda onion makes an unusual salad when served with French dressing with a dash of Roquefort cheese.

WHAT CAN YOU DO WITHOUT?

By Olive Roberts Barton

Emily Newell Blair writes an article on "Why We Live Beyond Our Means."

In one way it is a misnomer, for what Mrs. Blair really wishes to explain is why we are tempted often to live up to every cent we've got. As she expresses it "close to the ragged edge."

Her keen knowledge of human nature goes into a very comforting and understandable explanation of why it is that we try to keep up appearances. In substance Mrs. Blair says that our grandmothers lived in a period of large houses furnished for the most part with solid Victorian furniture and heavy carpets in every room. Our parents continued to live in substantial houses, had hardwood floors, and even boasted Oriental rugs.

When our memories do not associate anything but a certain dignified convention and pride of living with two or even three, generations gone, it is difficult to reduce our own standards of living to two or three rooms, furnished in mediocre fashion, no allowance for help, and little enough for food and clothes. All of it costing more than our parents or grandparents ever dreamed of paying for their substantial comforts!

Add to the tradition of the genteel living that Mrs. Blair speaks of, the demand the times makes on our pocketbooks. Telephones! It is wellnigh impossible now to get along without one. Automobiles! Say as you like that they are entirely dispensable. They are dispensable, of course, in many cases, but as a matter of fact, with the advent have come conditions that make their use almost as imperative for private use as well as for business purposes.

There are a hundred new inventions that are necessary for our comfort. We should be unhappy without them, and we should be conspicuous without them. We dislike being conspicuous, all of us, and as instinctively adapt our habits as the man who went to Rome. Then there is education, which was formerly a rather casual thing. Are we to be too heavily censured for not saving as our parents and grandparents saved? I agree with Mrs. Blair that we are not.

FIGHTING FIFTH'S FAMILY FEUD OVER

Residents Petition to Call Meeting to Pay Bills and Be Done With It.

A petition signed by over sixty of the residents of the Fifth School District has been presented to Robert McLaughlin, one of the members of the committee in which they ask that a meeting be called to vote to pay the amount of money coming to Amie Demars, the contractor who built the addition to the Fifth School District; that Arthur Loomis be also reimbursed for the money allotted him by the courts for his work in connection with the improvements of the Fifth District; that the district vote to pay such bills as Arthur Loomis contracted while he was committeeman of the Fifth District, which will mean the payment of all of the expenses; to see if the district will vote to pay for the bubblers that were installed in the district school building and the cost of the water that has been used and for which the water company has never been paid and also to transact such other business as is proper to come before the meeting including the borrowing of money on district notes.

The petition is claimed to have three times, or more, the required number of names for the calling of a meeting, the number necessary being only twenty-one and the petition has sixty-nine. This petition has been drawn and signed since Monday night when the committee organized and running true to the Herald's prediction Robert McLaughlin, the first man elected at the school meeting, was not made chairman of the district committee nor was he made chairman, but instead Harley Palmer was chosen and Mrs. Walter Brown was made secretary.

Family Feud Over
The trouble in the Fifth District is no longer a family feud. It is now a case where the residents of the district are going to step in and do things according to the "rules and regulations in such cases made and provided for. In other words, they are not going to be made the laughing stock of the town, but are going to conduct the business of the school along business principals, stop haggling and let those who want to do the fault finding and haggling in the way of helping the district along, to do so. They are not going to exploit real estate ventures for different people, they say, nor are they going to pay the rate of interest on their notes now required of them, which is higher than is necessary, in their relief. Nor are they going to have a treasurer that has no money, can pay no bills and can not tell what their bills are going to amount to what they already are.

Mean Business
They just want to be the same as other people in the town of Manchester, at least the majority claim they do. They are going to try and see if the children of the Fifth District can not have what the pupils of the other districts are getting. They will make an attempt to clean up the cellar, do away with the method of improper heating, see that window glass that has been broken out is repaired and the cellar of the school, as arranged that it will not be a breeding place for germs; that the floors are properly leveled and if there is a leaking roof, as was pointed out in the report of Dr. LeVerne Holmes, in his report to the town board of health, they will see that it is repaired and there is no desire to spare anybody, in other words, they say: "We are through with scragging over nothing."

How Trouble Started
The trouble which has been brewing for a long time started some five or six years ago when it was proposed to change the location of the school building. The majority of the people in the district favored the plan at that time, but as it is necessary to get a two-third vote of those present the two-third vote could not be secured. In that movement F. R. Manning was among those said to favor the change, but objection arose that prevented the change and Mr. Manning secured backing of his friends in the district to prevent it.

From reports during that time it was claimed that the objection to the change and the remodeling of the school was done so as to get water and better lights in that vicinity as a supposed help to the school. Others claimed that it was only to get the water extended so as to promote the sales of land around the school. At that time the control of the district passed to the hands of Arthur Loomis. Mr. Loomis wanted to make repairs to the school and there was an objection. Conditions became such that he looked for advice from the town school board and was told to go ahead and do the work. This was done, a new addition added which provided wash rooms and proper toilets and drinking bubblers installed.

Power Changes Hands
The work was done while Mr. Loomis was committeeman and the following year the handling of the district affairs were taken over by friends of F. R. Manning. Mr. Manning's books were audited and from what was being said about things the impression was given that there was good reason for the change, but when the C. P. A. got through his work about all it amounted to was an additional bill of $160, it is claimed.

It did not show that Mr. Manning had been taking the district's money, the most glowing error found was when he overpaid an interest charge by one cent, those who have seen the audit claim.

Audit Never Read
The audit has never been read to the meeting, but at the last annual meeting, the Manchester Trust Company was named the treasurer. Frederick R. Manning was named clerk. The audit as given and the recommendations made, mentioned the fact that the money of the district and that of the treasurer were not kept separate, but did admit that on one occasion the treasurer, Mr. Manning, loaned about $225 to the district out of money that was due to him, but not collected, until other funds came in and that there was no interest charge on this matter. This has vindicated Mr. Manning and in the legal steps that he has taken it has been only on a vote from the district which gave him power to represent the district in pending suits and to secure such legal advice as was required.

When the suit of Amie Demars and that of Arthur Loomis was lost by the district Mr. Manning gave notice of an appeal. The voters recalling the power that they had given Mr. Manning to proceed in the legal matters are said now to be willing to drop the case and settle the payments.

With the committee properly organized it is their duty to call this meeting, but they have fifteen days under the law in which to do so and as it requires but five days' notice for a school meeting to be called there is a probability that the petition will not be accepted and the called signed until that time.

"It will be the starting of the end of the troubles in this district" is the way that one of the residents of the district expressed himself on the matter.

The little Drummer of Bergerac

EVERY morning he parades the streets, rat-tat-tatting the gossip of the day.

He announces municipal orders, and auction sales; tells whose cow is astray, or child is lost, and what motion picture will be shown on the open air screen before the cafe on the Place D'Armes.

That's the way they get the news in Bergerac.

And that's why Bergerac STILL thinks in the mental ruts of mid-history and walks cobbled pavements laid when Black Prince Edward was sovereign in the land, and pence and pound, French coin.

Bergerac squats beside the Dordogne, among foaming eddies aching to drive turbines for mills and factories but left to sport with the monster salmon that leap its rolling waters.

The shoemaker sits before his door, cobbling hand-made boots; the carpenter adzes beams and furniture as his fathers wrought for a dozen centuries.

Bergerac was old when William the Norman raped a crown, and his returning ghost would find much unchanged there since that day.

Half of Europe cannot understand how

"That's the way they get the news in Bergerac"

America is so affluent and resourceful. Hundreds of millions yonder are mystified by the phenomenon of a wilderness so suddenly transformed into the richest and the highest industrialized state on earth.

America is great because America THINKS —because America searches possibility and is forever dissatisfied with things as they are.

We are a news-reading people. There's not a village between Atlantic and Pacific without its little sheet.

Presses crossed the continent in covered wagons—were at each gold rush—arrived at Sutter's Creek with the first prospectors—every mining camp had its journal—and a dozen printing outfits dashed across the line at the opening-up of Oklahoma.

The combined daily editions of these United States many times exceed the total circulation of ALL other countries.

There's the secret of America's successful career.

We learn facts first and make them common and simultaneous property.

The Constitution declared for an equalization of opportunity, but it took the newspaper to guarantee it.

JACK HUNT AND GIORGETTI STAND OUT AS CHENEYS WIN

Former Gives Brilliant Fielding Exhibition and Latter Pitches Splendid Ball as Bon Ami Is Defeated 5 to 1.

Young Jackie Hunt turned in as snappy a fielding exhibition as has been seen in Manchester since the last night when he figured prominently in the 5 to 1 victory which Cheney Brothers registered at the expense of the Bon Ami baseballers from the north end.

Hunt, playing shortstop for the winners, handled all of his eight chances without an error and most of them in a way that has not been traced into left field to snare what appeared to be certain Texas leaguers. Once he backed up third base in time to scoop up a wild throw and cut a run off at the plate.

Another time he enacted the middle part of a snappy double play that cut short a promising Bon Ami rally. Still another time, Hunt raced over toward second base, smeared a sizzling grounder one hand while running at full speed, recovered and threw his man out at first by inches. It was easily the fielding gem of the game.

McLaughlin pitched a much better game than at times had the C. B. A. batters puzzled. However, he was not nearly as effective as Giorgetti. In the third, for example, Giorgetti allowed the Bon Ami run with two passes, a fielder's choice and a single. This left the bases clogged. Then what did Mr. Giorgetti proceed to do? Nothing more than strike out Messers. Farr, Brennan and Mantelli in succession. It was as fine an exhibition of pitching as one could ask for. In three of the remaining four innings, he got the Bon Ami batters in one, two, three order. In the other a double play sniped a rally in the bud.

PLAY BASEBALL AND SEE AMERICA, SAYS ROOKIE FARMED OUT BY CUBS

Elmira, N. Y., July 28.—It's not "Join the Navy and See the World" here, it is "Be a Baseball Player and See America."

That's what Mel Kerr, member of the Elmira club, says. His experiences since he left his Canadian home prove it.

Kerr got his baptism in organized baseball as a member of the Chicago Cubs at the opening of the 1926 season. He was at Catalina Island with the Chicago outfit.

From Chicago Kerr went to Saginaw, Mich., but returned to the Cubs the next spring to go to Wichita Falls, Tex. That club moved him to Bloomington, Ill.

Another spring came and found him with Okmugise in the Western League, only long enough to be recalled by the Cubs en route to Reading, Pa. Reading immediately sent him to Elmira.

Kerr's "See America" program has carried him to seven different clubs and many states in slightly more than two years. And he's only 22 years old now!

THE SCOREBOARD

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS Eastern League Springfield 7, Hartford 5 Bridgeport 8, Waterbury 0 (1st.) Waterbury 4, Bridgeport 2 (2nd.) Albany 7, Providence 4 (1st.) Albany 6, Providence 4 (2nd, 10 innings.)

Pittsfield 12, New Haven 2. American League New York 9, St. Louis 4. Boston 3, Cleveland 0 (1st.) Boston 4, Cleveland 3 (2nd.) Springfield 5, Philadelphia 6. Washington 12, Chicago 2.

National League Brooklyn 7, Pittsburgh 5. Cincinnati 11, Boston 6. New York 6, Chicago 5. St. Louis 10, Philadelphia 8.

Judging from the remarks heard among the spectators at the C. B. A.-Bon Ami ball game at the West Side last night, the game was much more appreciated than most of those which have been played there this season.

As far as can be learned, the Manchester Community club baseball team has disbanded for the year. No one seems to know anything about the team and no more games are being booked as far as can be learned.

SONS OF ITALY PLAY SATURDAY

Manager Vendrillo Organizes Ball Club; Plays in East Glastonbury Saturday.

Manager Red Vendrillo announced last night that he had organized a team which will play in East Glastonbury Saturday afternoon under the name of the Sons of Italy.

While the lineup which he will use in this game does not include all the players he plans to use in future games, it does, nevertheless, include most of them.

There is a possibility that Vendrillo's team may play a home game next Friday evening. The management announces that no attempt will be made to take players from other teams against their own free will.

The list of players which are requested to report at the School street Rec at 1:30 Saturday afternoon is as follows: Wallett, E. Boyce, B. Boyce, Robb, Zwick, Partons, Farr, Giorgetti, Sam Hewitt, Edgar, Burkhardt and Manager.

The latter does not mean Vendrillo. Instead, he is a newcomer from Wapping.

East Glastonbury is reported to have lost but two games this season, winning their last 13 in a row. The Manchester outfit is out to make it an unlucky 13.

REAL VETERAN Jack Quinn of the Philadelphia Athletics has been pitching professional baseball since 1903. He's in his 24th year.

HAS FAILED AT BAT Heine Manush, champion batsman of the American League last season, has been a distinct disappointment so far this season.

Fought Like Dempsey Like Dempsey against Sharkey, Berlenbach warmed up in the first round by catching punches. He began to score with his famous left at close range in the second and had Bob holding. Paul's rapid recovery had the spectators in an uproar during this round. Lawson reeled out of clinches and once almost dropped.

It went along this way until the end of the fifth. The sixth was Lawson's round as Berlenbach slowed down suddenly.

Things looked bad for Paulie but he once more proved his gameness and endurance. He had taken a fearful lugging in the stomach in the sixth but was still trying. The round started with Berlenbach firing lefts rapidly to the body and chin.

He hung Lawson across the ropes and belabored the negro who could not keep his hands up. The black man finally collapsed under his hail of blows and dropped to one knee. He was too smart to get up again although his seconds urged him to.

Much of the old sting has departed from Berlenbach's left and he is slow and easy to hit. He should confine his gameness to the light heavyweights since he can make the weight easily and Jack Delaney has graduated from the class. We fear Paulie will not get far with good big heavyweights.

FIRST OVER HUNDRED Paul Wagner of Pittsburgh and Lou Gehrig of New York were the first players to make 100 hits in their respective leagues.

HAS PECULIAR RECORD Sherry Smith, veteran southpaw of the Cleveland Indians, boasts a peculiar record for his 11 years in the majors—103 wins and 104 defeats.

STARS TAKE SPOTLIGHT IN YESTERDAY'S GAMES

By LES CONKLIN

New York, July 29.—Four of baseball's greatest stars occupied the spotlight today. Reading from left to northeast, they are:

1. Babe Ruth, who hit his thirty-fourth homer of the season, passing Buster Gehrig in the great home run derby.

2. Cy Williams, National League home run king, who picked two homers in one game and increased his total to 22.

3. Rogers Hornsby, whose seventeenth homer of the season spotted the Giants to their second successive victory over the Cubs.

4. Walter Johnson, who spiked reports that he was through by holding the White Sox to six hits.

Despite Williams' two homers, the Cardinals outgassed the Phillies, ten to eight, and advanced to within striking distance of the Cubs and Pirates, both of whom lost.

Hornsby clouted a triple and a single in addition to his homer and the Giants beat the Cubs six to five. The Cubs are now only a game and a half in front of the Cardinals.

The Brooklyn Robins kayoed Carmen Hill, the league's leading pitcher, and scuttled the Pirates seven to five. Carey and Hendrick, the Brooklyn speed demons, pulled a double steal for the third time in two days. In the eighth inning Spittin' Bill Doak, the Brooklyn twirler, collapsed from the heat and the shock of seeing his weak-hitting mates garner three hits.

The Reds held on to fifth place by slaughtering the Braves eleven to six.

New York made it fifteen out of fifteen from the Browns by taking a nine to four slugfest. The weakness of the Yanks reserves was shown when Mike Casella, third-string infielder, got into the pastime and made only three hits in as many times at bat.

Bucky Harris got four hits as the Senators plastered the Chi Sox 12 to 2.

The Red Sox won a double-header and anything may happen now. The scores were three to nothing and four to three. The Back Bay boys have trimmed Cleveland in eleven of sixteen games this season, but fortunately there are six other clubs in the league.

The Tigers clinched their hold on third place by downing the Athletics, five to two.

Sparks of genius have nothing in common with lovemaking.

HERE'S A QUESTIONNAIRE IN POLICE COMMISSIONERS

Editor of The Herald: Will you kindly give through your paper the information asked herein:

1. How many officers in the Manchester police department do night duty each night?

2. How many of these officers are assigned to night duty regularly at the North End?

3. Is it true that the residential section of Main street, from William street to the Center has no regular night police protection?

4. Is it true that the police assistance for the residential section of Main street north is confined to efforts to apprehend offenders after the offenses have been committed?

5. The post office extends its service to those streets in centrally located residential sections which have proper paving, sidewalks, curbing and lights. These improvements follow the higher taxed districts. The property owners, through higher valuations, pay for them. They also pay for police protection. Living in the heart of the residential section, and paying for police protection, ought they not to get it?

MOTORISTS OF STATE SPEND $77,700 DAILY

And That on Gas Alone From 7,169 Pumps Scattered Over Connecticut.

Hartford, Conn., July 29.—Connecticut motorists are using 353,200 gallons of gasoline daily at a cost of $77,700, according to statistics compiled by the motor vehicle department for the first six months of the year, made public today.

There are 3,834 gasoline pumping stations in the state catering to these demands with a total of 7,169 pumps, the report said, adding that $1,300,000 was collected during the six months period on the two cent gas tax.

There are enough filling stations and pumps in Connecticut to provide each of the 169 towns with twenty-two stations and forty-two pumps if the equipment was evenly distributed.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

Lean Fresh Pork Fresh Sausage Meat

Pinehurst

Market News

Eph Cole returned from his vacation today.

Tomorrow we will have Sweet Corn, Blueberries and Red Raspberries.

How would you like a 3 1/2 lb. milk fed Chicken to fry or roast. They will sell at the low price of 49c lb. and we guarantee them extra nice stock.

For Cold Meats we suggest: Pork Roll, Chicken Roll, Veal Loaf, Pressed Ham, or here's a new one—Boneless Pig Souze.

Or have a nice piece of Pinehurst Corned Beef or a Boneless Shoulder of Lamb delivered to you early Saturday; cook the meat Saturday morning and slice cold for Sunday dinner.

Shoulders of Lamb are very lean, and we can cut them whatever size you wish.

Again tomorrow we will have 4 to 5 lb. young chickens from one of the best poultry farms in Bolton. Most everyone likes fricaseed Fowl, and no wonder for what's more tasty and tender than chicken. Two sizes of fowl this week—4 lb. and 5 lb. average.

PLEASE—

If it is convenient, and you want your order on the special early delivery, telephone to-night.

Daisy Hams, Butt ends of ham to bake. Boiling Shanks of Ham.

- Kellogg's Corn Flakes, 3 boxes 25c
- Post Toasties, 3 boxes 25c
- Pure Lard 15c lb.
- Pinehurst Creamery Tub Butter 47c lb.

Pinehurst Breakfast Coffee 49c lb.

This coffee will go farther, taste better and give more real value and real cups of coffee for the money than cheaper coffees. Try a pound and figure it out for yourself.

Carrots or Beets from "Pete's" market garden 5c a bunch

Green Beans, Celery, Tomatoes, Lettuce, Native Cucumbers, nice tender Summer Squash, Green Peppers and everything else in season. Buy your vegetables at Pinehurst, where everything is brought fresh from the market gardens every morning in the week. You will find the quality excellent and the prices reasonable.

Pinehurst Hamburg—ground from Pinehurst Quality Beef, fresh for your order at 25c a lb. is mighty good value. Some people will tell you that Hamburg is Hamburg, but try it for yourself, and notice the difference between Pinehurst Hamburg and the ordinary. Quality Beef shows up every time.

Speaking of QUALITY, it is "for to laugh" to read the ads in the different papers every Friday night. Judging from the ads, every store in Manchester, and every one in Hartford sells only the best beef, and some of them sell it for less than you can buy the whole steers without allowing for any waste. You have to pay a fair price for good beef, but if you like Good Things to Eat it is worth the difference.

TWO FILMS AT STATE TODAY AND TOMORROW

Comedy and Farce Take Up Program Space—Monte Blue and Mary Brian Star.

Two good features are scheduled for the State theater programs today and tomorrow. One presents the comedy relief and the other furnishes the thrills and the drama. In their separate divisions, each is a near masterpiece and both will be sure to please.

First comes Monte Blue, virile, handsome type of actor, who will star in "The Brute," a story of the cow country and the gambling halls and saloons of the old west. He is supported in this offering by Lella Hyams, who takes the part of the dancing girl who finally brings about the regeneration of the tough bully of the ranches.

Thrilling scenes of the Oklahoma Oil Rush are vividly pictured in

"The Brute." When the big rush is on, Felton leaves his Razzle Dazzle Saloon and with his "girls," his bartenders and bouncers makes the pilgrimage to the boom country, starting up another place of business. The ways in which Janice one of the girls, is rescued from the tolls of the wicked old spider Felton, by "Easy-Going" Randall, otherwise known as "The Brute," make a tale of as stirring adventure as has been seen on the screen in many a day.

The paternal objections in "Her Father Said No" are based solely on the fact that the young man who receives the "No" is a prize fighter, and Father has a very decided aversion to that profession. When the boy, all for the sake of love, changes his livelihood, Father still can't think of him in any other light, and it is up to the enamored youth to convince him of his worth. The girl and boy are played by Mary Brian and Danny O'Shea. Much of the comedy is under the care of those two eminent Doctors of Comedy, Al Cooke and Kit Guard. Others in the cast are Frankie Darro, Eugene Stone, John Stepping, Betty Caldwell.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

SENSE and NONSENSE

Brown: "Your lawn mower woke me up at 6 o'clock this morning."
Greene: "No it didn't."
Brown: "Do you mean to say you weren't cutting your grass?"
Greene: "I was cutting my grass, but the lawn mower belonged next door."

NOW YOU Ask One

Here's another new hot weather intelligence test. In each of the questions below are three possible answers. One of the answers given is right, and two are wrong. Cross out the two incorrect answers and check up with the correct answers on another page.

1-Is "the veldt," the name given to the plains of a Russia, Australia or South Africa?
2-Is asbestos a rock, a vegetable fiber or a fabricated sea weed?
3-Are sponges fish, plants, or sea animals?

THE CREDIT MAN'S LAMENT

(Tune: "Last Night on the Back Porch" Chorus.)
It's "charge it" in the morning
And "charge it" at night.
It's "charge it" most all the time,
It's certainly a fright.
And when we ask a payment,
On a bill that's long past due,
We hear that old story,
"We'll pay in a week or two."

A lot of folks make the news and then they try to make the editor keep it out of the paper.
Bobbie, eight years old, applied for a job as delivery boy for the summer vacation. The butcher wanted a serious-minded youth, so he put Bobbie to a test.
"Will, Bobbie, what would you do with a thousand dollars?"
Bobbie: "Oh, gee, Mr. Brown, I ain't know-I wasn't expecting so much at the start."

Old Pop Time must be getting foggy-eyed watching the changes in advertising. Think of it—razors for ladies! Well, they do say some Johnnies wear corsets!
"Child: "Well, Mother said it was too much yeast, but Father said it was too much sugar."

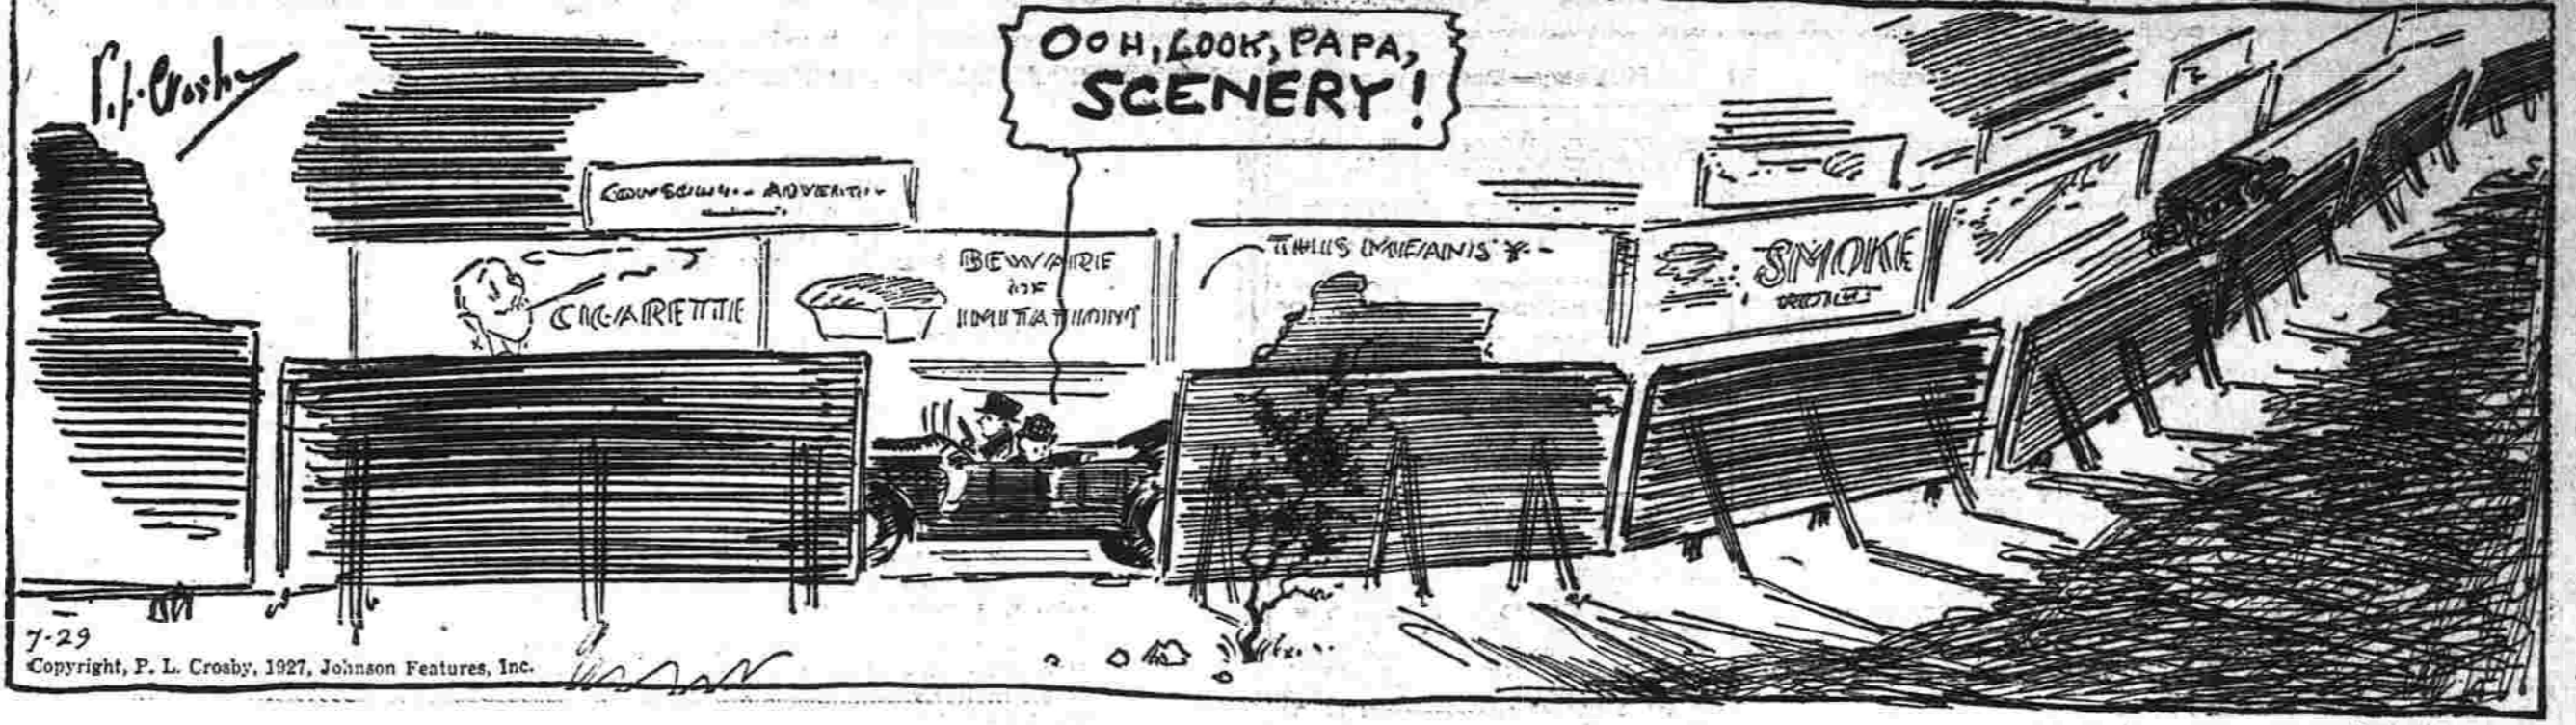

The man's wife who dressed at the expense of Gopypy is not comfortable, even if she looks it.
Swimming suits are now made of rubber. Can't you hear the moths gnashing their teeth?
Hobo, looking over park benches: "This is a dry town! To cheer a fellow up, there ain't no wet-paint sign!"

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)
The gum drop hills were queer indeed. "Says Gopypy, "Oh, look! What we need to get a little exercise. We're lazy as can be. Let's limb the hills and look about."
And, so the whole band, with a hoot, began to run straight for the hills, each one check full of pie.
"They're just like rubber," Plowny said. "Look out. You'll bounce upon your head. Each time I take a step or two, I slip back ever more. Let's all grab hold of hands, real tight, and climb with all our might. If we all try to go lone, our muscles will be sore."

JACK LOCKWILL IN THE WOODS

by Gilbert Patten

The boys left the courtroom with Barbi in their midst. "How did you happen to come here to testify for us?" asked Jack as they reached the street. "Garabaldi he break-a da chain—run away," she explained. "He hungry. I try to catch-a him. He no let-a me. He come this-a way. Bimeby I lose-a him in woods. I meet-a man. He tell-a me you been arrest. So I come."

"So that bear's running loose again," said the sheriff, who had heard Bambi's words. "A hungry bear'll do damage. I guess he's got to be disposed of."

A bell in the steeple of a church in the middle of the town began to ring furiously, startling the townspeople. Clang! clang! clang! sounded the bell.

"It must be a fire somewhere!" shouted a man. A bareheaded boy came running toward them. "Widder Dearborn's little girl's lost!" he cried. "Miss Turken saw her playing nigh the edge of the woods, but now they can't find her anywhere. The widder's almost crazy." "Well, if she's gone into the woods and that bear catches her, he'll have a meal!" said the sheriff. (To Be Continued)

The Gammons-Holman company who this spring purchased the Bigelow mill on Main street of Cheney Brothers, are improving the appearance of the property by a fresh coat of paint.

The feat of the Howitzer Company in enlisting three new men the day after it returned from camp has caused much comment. Usually the new recruits try to join just before the company goes to camp so that they may have the benefits of a 15-day period of outdoor life, but seldom, if ever before, have they enlisted immediately at the close of an encampment.

Campfire Girls of the South Methodist church will meet this evening at 7:15.

The regular meeting of the W. B. A. Guard club will be held this evening with Mrs. Anne McLagan, 48 Woodland street.

JUDGE BOWERS SLIGHTLY IMPROVED, SAYS DOCTOR

Is at Least Holding His Own and No Longer Has Periods of Unconsciousness.

Judge H. O. Bowers, one of Manchester's most prominent citizens, who for more than six months has been waging a grim battle against death, is "holding his own and possibly slightly improved," according to information obtained today from Dr. N. A. Burr, the attending physician. Judge Bowers was removed to Memorial hospital on January 23 suffering from encephalitis, or inflammation of the brain, a form of sleeping sickness. For seven weeks, he remained in a state of coma and was confined to the institution altogether for four months. On June 3 Judge Bowers was removed to his home at his own request that he might be there on his birthday. His general condition remains about the same, Dr. Burr says, although it varies a little from time to time. Judge Bowers recognizes the members of his family and the few intimate friends who have been allowed to see him. He is conscious at all waking times.
