NAVAL PARLEY AT GENEVA COLLAPSES "FAIR TRIAL"—FULLER; WORLD REDS EXCITED

GOV. TRUMBULL IS STRONG FOR STATE RIGHTS

Says West Is Now In Fight To End Usurpation By Federal Enactment—His Statement.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 4.—West-ern states are becoming more sympathetic with the aims of eastern commonwealths in the fight to end usurpation of states rights by federal enactment, Governor John H. Trumbull declared here today in summing up sentiment expressed during the annual conference of governors recently at Mackinac, Michigan.

"Many states once lenient in their views toward a bureaucratic centralized form of government are inclining toward the state rights group," the governor told International News Service.

While the matter of state versus federal control was overshadowed at the conference by the more immediate problems of farm and stock relief, he found that the states have not abandoned their stand but are watchfully waiting.

A Test Case.
"Just now," Governor Trumbull said, "those who claim there has been federal encroachment on state rights are apparently content to await the outcome of the fight for repeal of the federal inheritance tax law, which will come in the next Congress. This is really a test case. Repeal will mean a victory for the states."

In this connection it is recalled that Connecticut has taken a prominent part in the action for repeal, largely because of the activities of Governor Trumbull. The 1927 General Assembly memorialized Congress for repeal of the law, after a special commission headed by the governor had recommended legislative action.

Rights Usurped.
"It is felt that the law forces the states to increase their inheritance tax rates to meet those of the federal government and keep them from representing the tax within their own borders," the governor said, "because of this it is to be considered that federal enactment has usurped the inherent rights of states to fix the amounts of their own tax levies."

Farm relief and flood problems also served to prevent discussion of questions of more immediate concern to New England's manufacturing industries, Governor Trumbull said. "I discovered that many governors and apparently the farmers they represent feel that agriculture should be given the same opportunity to recuperate as any other industry or business," he added.

"This is logical, but any such move to provide an opportunity for recuperation must come from within. Agriculture must work out its own problems and solve them without resorting to direct subsidy. I am of the opinion that few at the meeting were directly in favor of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill which was adopted by the last Congress but vetoed by President Coolidge."

BANDITS GET $30,000 FROM PARTY IN AUTO

Jump on Running Board of Car and Rob Two Men and Two Women.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Two bandits leaped upon the running board of an automobile containing two men and two women here today and robbed them of jewelry valued at more than $30,000.

Mrs. David Cummings, wife of a contractor of Long Beach, Long Island, and Mrs. J. B. Carlton, of South Haven, Mich., riding with Frank Howard and Harry Davis, were the victims.

President Definitely Out of the 1928 Race

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 4.—Heard of an unexpected public. Mr. Coolidge called in a trusted assistant, who had had no inkling of the nature of the impending statement. The president suggested casually that the special press conference should be held at a moment which would be a good medium through which to declare his intention not to stand for re-election.

After the assistant had recovered partially from his surprise and dismay, there was a brief discussion of the phraseology of the announcement should take.

Explanation of the reason for employing the phrase "do not choose to run" rather than "will not run" did much to clear up the situation. The expression was not as suggested in some quarters, a New England colloquialism upon which Mr. Coolidge absent-mindedly hit; neither was it meant as a joke. Deliberate thought went into the choice of the terse statement which effaced the president from the coming campaign for he wished to convey a particular meaning. Here was the explanation:

It was shortly before the hour of noon, at which time the startling announcement was to be pre-announced.

MOTHER WITH INFANT SITS ON R. R. TRACKS

New Britain, Conn., Aug. 4.—Mrs. Stanley Romala, 40, who has made two attempts to end her life by sitting in the path of fast passenger trains, was being held under observation today following her latest attempt at self-destruction when she tried to take an infant daughter to death with her.

The woman and her two-year-old child were observed sitting on the tracks here late yesterday just in time to effect a rescue. She had previously attempted at suicide five weeks ago.

ASK LOCAL AID FOR FINANCING OAKLAND MILL

A. W. P. Company Officials Suggest Paper Napkin Plant, Underwritten Here, To Chamber Directors.

A plan for the purchase of the idle mill at Oakland and the installation of a paper napkin manufacturing concern there to be financed by Manchester people was suggested to the directors of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce today by President Sidney L. Willson of the American Writing Paper company of Holyoke, Mass.

The American Writing Paper company owns the Oakland mill and formerly conducted a branch of its business there. When the company was reorganized following receivership proceedings it was decided to consolidate the A. W. P. plants and sell the branch mills. L. M. Cain, representing the brokers who are handling the sale of the branches, was present at today's meeting as was William P. McCorkindale of Holyoke, a paper manufacturer and inventor of a new paper napkin manufacturing process.

Local Representatives.
The Manchester Chamber of Commerce was represented at today's meeting by President Austin Cheney, G. E. Willis, T. H. Thomas, Ferguson and George E. Rix. The meeting was held in the Chamber headquarters in the Dewey-Richman building.

The American Writing Paper company values the Oakland mill at $110,000 and will sell the property at that figure. Of this amount the Holyoke concern would take back $35,000 in preferred stock, making it necessary for Manchester people to raise $75,000 in cash for the purchase of the property. President Willson believed that a subscription of $200,000 in stock would be necessary to organize the proposed napkin concern.

The Proposed Project.
William P. McCorkindale told the Chamber directors that there was a growing demand for napkins and outlined the plan of manufacture and proposed. Novelty napkins would be made and special designs, insignia, initials or advertisements would be embossed right at the mill. He said that the present stock of napkins could be changed over to manufacture his patented napkins at a minimum cost and within four or five months.

President Willson expressed to the directors great confidence in Mr. McCorkindale's ability. He expected that the Manchester Chamber directors would be glad to see him go to the Fifth Ave. church always during the summer, and is the church where Fred. Patton sang for several seasons, and first became known. Several of Mr. Gordon's local admirers have announced their intentions of a week-end trip to New York to hear him sing in this famous edifice.

FOUR STATE OFFICIALS GET SALARY INCREASE

Higgins, chairman Public Utilities Commission, from $9,000 to $10,000 per annum; Robin Stoelckel, motor vehicle commissioner, $8,000 to $9,000; William H. Blodgett, tax commissioner, $8,000 to $9,000; John A. Macdonald, highway commissioner, $8,000 to $9,000.

The board also approved the appointment of Elliott H. Platt of Newtown as director of the Division of Publicity and Fairs of the State Agriculture Department.

After Two Months' Work, British Japanese and American Delegates Fail To Agree In Naval Parley.

Geneva, Aug. 4.—The Tri-Parity Naval Disarmament Conference came to an end at 5:10 this afternoon, having failed to achieve any degree of success in negotiating a treaty for further limitation of naval armaments.

The conference, called at the suggestion of President Coolidge on a basis which he laid down, has been in session for nearly two months and at no time has there been definite promise of success.

The final plenary session of the conference was marked with statements by the American, British and Japanese delegates declaring that the conference's failure does not mean a resumption of the race in naval armaments and that it will not disturb the peace of the world.

Friendly Sentiment.
Friendly sentiments were voiced by all the speakers and a joint statement was made to the effect that the governments concerned would continue to examine the problem of limitation of armaments and solutions which have been suggested.

"Our failure to find a formula will not be a cause of disaster as long as the interested nations remain firm in their desire for peace and abstention of aggression," said Bridgeman, the British delegate. "I am convinced we all have these sentiments as had them at the beginning of the conference."

Viscount Admiral Saito followed Bridgeman and said that "the main difficulty lies as ever in the question of cruisers, their tonnage and the question of calibres of guns."

"While our views are well understood in accordance with those of the British delegation," continued Viscount Saito, "we were successful in reaching a degree of agreement with the British, sufficient to warrant the hope of an eventual settlement including the United States. Our British and American colleagues found our final suggestion for a solution of their differences unacceptable."

Japan Sorry.
"It is with sincere regret that we close the conference, which promised so much, now about to separate without a definite agreement," continued Viscount Saito. "It would have been difficult for anyone to imagine that a conference of these three nations, bound together by friendship, should fail to carry through to a successful outcome, that any difference among them should prove too fundamental as to baffles all efforts at negotiation."

He declared that the respective governments have had a further opportunity to consider the problem and various possibilities of negotiations.

DONAHEY INVITES HEAD OF MINERS TO PARLEY

Asks Lewis to Meet Governors Aug. 15 to Talk Over Ending Coal Strike.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 4.—An invitation to resume conferences between officials of the United Mine workers and the operators organizations of the central competitive field, with a view to negotiating a wage scale and ending the four months old strike of union miners, was sent today by Governor Vic Donahey, of Ohio, to John L. Lewis, president of the United States Mine Workers, and to Rice Miller, Hillsboro, Ill., who was chairman of the operator's committee at the Miami wage scale conference which failed last spring.

Gov. Donahey also asked Governor Ed Jackson of Indiana, and Len Small of Illinois and John S. Fisher, of Pennsylvania, to send similar requests to Lewis and Miller.

The invitation suggested meeting in the National Guard Armory in Toledo, Ohio, on Monday August 15.

Special Police Precautions Taken to Guard U. S. Embassies In Various Countries—Fear Disturbances When News Reaches Radicals In Europe—Reports Of Demonstrations.

Paris, Aug. 4.—Special police precautions were taken today to guard the United States Embassy and the Consulate buildings as a result of Governor Fuller's decision that Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, the two radicals, must die this month for murder.

Bicycle policemen, prepared to rush for reinforcements upon a moment's notice, took up their vigil at the Embassy and Consulate in addition to a dozen uniformed gendarmes at each building.

Plain clothes detectives were stationed on the public stairway leading to the consular offices.

The possibility of disturbances before tonight were regarded as slight since only two morning newspapers printed Gov. Fuller's decision, owing to the lateness of their arrival here from Boston. These newspapers were not read generally by the working class.

Letters of Protest.
"We continue to receive letters of protest from various organizations but no threats and we don't anticipate trouble," said Sheldon Whitehouse, counselor of the American Embassy.

Radical newspapers today made bitter complaint because the Holland-American line refused passage yesterday to Vanzetti's sister Felice Boulogne, despite the fact that her papers were in order. L'Humanite, the Communist newspaper, states that a cable has been sent to Governor Fuller asking that the execution be postponed so that the sister, sailing on Saturday, may arrive in time to say farewell to her brother.

Forty-five newspaper editors now in Paris are joining in an appeal for last minute reprieve declaring that "not only the lives of two men are at stake but the friendship of two republics."

LONDON SURPRISED

London, Aug. 4.—Governor Fuller's decision that Sacco and Vanzetti must die has come as a surprise to Europe and with it comes possibilities of repercussions in European Radical circles.

Already Swedish sympathizers have asked the International Trade Union Federation in Paris to take steps for an international protest strike and a boycott against American goods, if Sacco and Vanzetti die.

Scotland Yard has kept a watchful eye upon British sympathizers with Sacco and Vanzetti and no disorders are looked for in England, but it is expected that week-end labor meetings will be replete with harsh denunciations of the action taken by the state of Massachusetts.

Property Guarded.
In France police precautions have been taken and American property is being guarded against demonstrations by sympathizers with the condemned men in Boston. Spain, apparently fearful that sympathizers there may create disturbances, has laid down a rather stringent censorship on the Sacco-Vanzetti case and permits only meagre news to trickle through of the events in Boston.

German sympathizers are legion and are reported to be preparing demonstrations, but it is unlikely that there will be any disorders there.

Russia may be expected to loose its vials of vitriolic condemnation against the decision.

The most serious possibility that stands out is that of a workers boycott throughout Europe against American goods. How effective such a boycott can be remains to be seen.

Chronology of Sacco Case

Bay State Radicals Hear Their Fate In Death House At Charlestown State's Prison—No Word of How They Took News Made Public—Defense Plans New Moves.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 4.—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, central figures in one of the strangest criminal cases on record, heard their fate in the death house at Charlestown state's prison today.

Although the outside world had known for hours that Governor Alvan T. Fuller in his decision of the review of the celebrated case had decided that they were going to die in the electric chair, it was not until ten A. M., today that the two prisoners received the momentous news.

Told by Lawyer.
They received it from the lips of Defense Attorney William G. Thompson, who was accompanied to the death house by Mrs. Sacco.

Plainly in an irritable mood and declaring he had no comment to make on the governor's findings, Attorney Thompson escorted Mrs. Sacco, downcast and pale, through the prison offices and down the corridors to the death cells. At Mrs. Sacco's side was Treasurer Feliceo of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense committee.

Newspapermen were barred from witnessing the breaking of the news.

Charles Thompson, the son of the attorney who drove the party in an automobile to the prison, shooed off photographers and reporters with a broom handle.

Last Night.
While Sacco and Vanzetti were hearing the adverse tidings, members of their defense committee were outlining plans for other possible legal avenues of escape a desperate "last ditch" legal fight.

But they may speak. The respite granted Sacco and Vanzetti in June expires at midnight Wednesday, August 10th. The execution, under the law, could take place a few minutes after that midnight.

Unofficially, it was said that three legal moves were under consideration—an appeal to the State Courts on the ground of "new evidence" discovered in the Fuller review; an appeal to the Federal District Court on the ground that the men did not have a fair trial as provided by the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution and an appeal to the United States Supreme Court on the basis that the defendants' constitutional rights had been violated at the trial by the presence of bullets not from Sacco's pistol in the pocket of a jurymen.

Governor's Finding.
Governor Fuller, in refusing executive intervention, found that the men had a fair trial, that there was no undue prejudice by Trial Judge Webster Thayer, that Vanzetti was guilty of a holdup in Bridgewater prior to the slaying in South Braintree of Paymaster Frederick A. Parmenter and Alessandro Berardelli, that the jury in the double slaying did its duty and that the statement of Celestino Madeiros, bank cashier slayer implicating a Providence, R. I., gang in the South Braintree affair carried no weight. The chief executive stated flatly that the final decision, and responsibility were his but that his advisory committee arrived at the same conclusion as did he. The committee—President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, President Samuel W. Stratton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and former Judge Robert Grant—were congratulated from their "unsolicited services on this disagreeable and extremely important problem."

Calls It Brutal.
Terming the governor's decision "unbelievably brutal in its partiality and even more brutal in the omission of facts," a statement made public today by the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense committee said:

"The days separating Sacco and Vanzetti from the electric chair are few, but the defense committee will continue to fight for justice for these two men. Our faith in their innocence is unshaken. We call upon the millions of people throughout the world who have supported them to come forward and join us in this last desperate effort to stay the hand of the judicial hangman."

The committee in seven years has spent $325,000 on the defense.

HOCKANUM MILLS SPEED PRODUCTION

Change From Mules to Ring Spinning Being Made; Miss Batz Honored.

(Special to The Herald)

Rockville, August 4. Among the changes under consideration by the Hockanum Mills system is the changing of machinery that will speed up production, make the work lighter for those who will do it and at the same time increase production about four times, with the same number of men and cutting out the necessity of one or two operations.

This is to be done by the installation of ring spinning frames in substitution for the mules and mule machinery, now in use in the woolen mills here and in fact in most woolen industries.

Representatives of the local company with some of the men who will later be called upon to work with the new machinery have visited the factory of the Crompton and Knowles, manufacturers of mill machinery, who have built spinning frames for years and were shown the ring spinning machinery that they have perfected to replace the mule spinning frames.

The mule spinners are a long, heavy and cumbersome machine, requiring a lot of labor following them in and out as the men "pick up" or splice the ends of the yarn that break and when the yarn wrapped itself around the roll it often caused danger of falling into the carriage as it backs in or out. As the ends can only be properly spliced before the carriage is coming out so the proper twist and the lack of slugs in the yarn will not be noticed it keeps an operator exceptionally busy walking back and forth with the carriage as it goes toward the head. In a time when the "back boy" is replacing the roving, or as it is mostly called "roping" there is a busy time for the operator and this combined with the breaking of an end cuts down production.

In the woolen business today, as in all textile manufacturing, there is not the large orders of one simple grade to be turned out, but a variety of machinery can be kept going for weeks or months at a time, but it is the age of samples and smaller and rush orders. The ring spinning frames are ones that are stationary, do not require the same number of spindles to watch, or if they are to be watched the frames can be set up so that they can be operated by the machine tender working in a smaller amount of space. In addition to this the yarn is run on the cops of the quills much tighter and allows for a greater amount of yarn to be run without the loss of time that it takes in the "doffing" of the machines. It also makes possible the increase in the yardage that can be spun onto the quill or cop and this allows for a longer run of the loom when they are placed in the shuttles for the weaving. The same operator can also increase the number of pounds run into the twisted filling or yarn by about twice, or better, than is produced by a mule, assuring also a much more even yarn. It takes considerable time to repair in case of a break in any part of the machinery.

It cuts the cost of production and leaves the mills so equipped with a better position to compete with the other concerns and with the name long since established in the woolen business by the Hockanum made cloth there is an advantage that will be more likely to keep the mills of Rockville in operation when other mills are short of work.

The separately operated motor driven looms, with automatic top motion which some of the looms are now equipped, also speeds up production, is a time saver for the operator, who is not called upon to do so much "picking" as would be the case if they did not notice the break at once, and is also a saving in the waste that is made when a lot of "picking back" is made necessary because of defective work that is so produced.

With these improved machines, a stock that is lacking in "water" it is something that will react, those who have studied the situation claim, to the benefit of all concerned from the loom pick to the heads of the owners of the concern. The fact too, that woolen goods of today and those exhibited at Philadelphia fifty years ago, do not require the number of picks to the inch, and the shuttle is emptied in the loom much faster, but with the filling wound harder, as it can be in the case of the ring spinning, will allow more yardage to the quill or cop than is in the shuttle and allow the looms to run longer without the necessity of refilling the shuttles.

Herald Scores Beat The Manchester Evening Herald scored another beat in the announcement that President Coolidge had given out the statement that he did not choose to be a candidate for president in 1928. It was the topic of comment at the meeting of the council last night and by many others who learned of the information through the exclusive announcement in The Herald, which was the only paper reaching here that night that told of the president's statement. The contractors working on the connecting part of the state road from Lanz's corner to Vernon avenue are now building a retaining wall on the west side of the road putting a heavy cut was made in putting through the new road. "Contercity" Cost Money Judge Fisk heard all about the trouble on Brooklyn street that occurred yesterday evening in the city court and then the judge told both parties concerned that they were acting like boys and showed lack of brains or brains that function. John's part in the trouble cost him $12 and half of the costs of the court and "Washy" was fined $10 and half of the costs. The costs amounted to $13.87.

There was little business to transact by the Common Council. Bills were approved by the public works committee, the police committee, fire committee, health department and also paid $40 for the fire truck display on July 4 and $75 for the services of the American Band on that day.

Gold for Miss Batz Miss Jennie Batz who is president of the American Legion Auxiliary and who will also go as district delegate to the National Conference which will be held in Paris, September 13, entertained several of the members of the auxiliary at her home on Mountain street on Wednesday evening. During the evening Miss Batz served refreshments at which time she was presented with a vase of flowers following the reading of a poem written especially for the occasion. Miss Batz has been one of the auxiliary's most ardent workers. For two years she served as secretary of the lodge after which she was appointed president. are concerned, which have resulted in trouble after the deals have been closed. It has demonstrated the difference between a real estate broker, who devotes his time to that line and who makes searches as to provisions in the property to be sold, and those who only take the purchaser's shake hands and then look for a commission. In one of the most recent sales this has proven true.

No Benefits and Damages No special benefits and no special damages have been found for the work done on Rheel street by the city of Rockville, where walks and curbs have been installed.

A Storm Water Problem The city has taken steps in the disposal of the water that comes down the steep grade on Hammond street, by installing a new 24-inch storm water pipe instead of having this flow across High street and down through a smaller storm sewer it will make a slight curve at the corner of High and Hammond street, into a conduit which will allow it to enter the Hockanum river at a point further to the west and will prevent trouble and wash-outs to the property on Brooklyn street.

OUTSIDERS CHOSE 8TH SCHOOL SITE Fifth District May Call on Neutral Committee—One Previous Case in Town.

Only once in Manchester's history has an outside school committee been called in to decide the site of a new school building. Now the Fifth district call for a meeting next Wednesday night suggests that an outside committee be asked to name the site of a proposed new school in that district. About 1880 the school building at North School and Galloway streets burned and in considering rebuilding many wanted the site changed. A two-thirds vote is necessary to decide on a school site and only a majority favored the same place for the new school. A committee from Vernon was called in and it decided on the North School and Galloway streets location. The building placed there is the present Union School. In the Fifth district many residents believe the new school should be placed nearer the Colonial Gardens district, where the most rapid development is being experienced. Others believe the present site up Keeney street is best because of the distance some of the pupils would have to travel to reach the Colonial Gardens site. The present site is more central as far as district lines

NORTH END EAGLES BEAT WAPPING BOYS

The North End Eagles baseball team, which has taken the place of the Black Eagles in the Midget Baseball league, showed their wares on the North End playground last night by defeating the Wapping boys. The team is composed of Chester Varrick, Benny Balon, William Copeland, Joseph Mitchell, Thomas Melnosky, Walter Olasky, Thomas Labac and John Sarkarchac. In the five innings played Copeland and Varrick each turned in two runs each while Balon Olasky Sarkarchac each poled out one. Galish and Tripp of the Wapping team tried hard, Galish scoring two runs and Tripp one their teammates could not, however, connect with the offerings of Balon with Varrick on the receiving end. Pizytula and Lane were the battery for the Wapping team. Final score, Eagles 7, Wapping 3. The Eagles will cross bats with Wapping at Pleasant Valley, Friday evening at 7 o'clock. The Eagles will report at the North End playground at 6:30.

INCREDULOUS

Comment on the renunculatory declaration of President Coolidge is great in volume and widely divergent in character. Apparently there are more newspaper editors who cling to the notion that the President's announcement does not necessarily mean that he would not be a candidate under any circumstances than there are those who are inclined to accept the oddly worded pronouncement as final. Yet the difference in their numbers is not so great as to indicate any overwhelming rejection of the obvious in favor of the problematical.

The opinion which strikes us as best expressing the situation is that of the Washington Post, which says:

President Coolidge has entirely changed the political situation. Over-subtle brains are busy reading into his announcement a political strategy. They think they detect an attempt on Mr. Coolidge's part to convey a message something like this: "I do not choose to run for President in 1928; but if the Republican party should insist upon nominating me without my lifting a finger I would, of course, be bound to accept the nomination."

But the American people do not look upon Mr. Coolidge as a political trickster who uses woe words. When he announces that he does not choose to run they know he will not run. He has eliminated himself from next year's campaign.

There are very few persons of any party who will deny that President Coolidge is politically sagacious. And where would be the sagacity, if he were really seeking to promote a unanimous nomination, in pulling the staple of the lock which had barred out of the contest such possible contenders as Hoover, Longworth and Dawes, to say nothing of half a dozen others?

Nobody knows any better than Mr. Coolidge how many potential Presidential aspirants have been kept from entering the 1928 race through a sense of loyalty, either voluntary or obligatory; and nobody knew any better than he how quickly those aspirants would break the leash on such an opportunity as his Rapid City declaration provides. He knew that in any event there would be a contest of sorts with Lowden or somebody representing whatever insurance carries there may be among the western farmers, and the strength of his position was in that absolutely loyal support in the East which was already his. What was there to be gained by dislocating that unanimous eastern support? Obviously nothing. He already had the renunciation in his hands, but not unanimously. He knew perfectly well that it could not be made unanimous, with the western paternalists demanding a ruinous price for their consent—a price that he would never pay.

To demand unanimity of the 1928 convention as the terms of his acceptance would have been to demand what he almost surely could not get. In fact if that were the basis on which alone the President could be prevailed on to head next year's ticket it would never be provided, for then in all certainty the Lowden supporters would put up their strongest fight, realizing that Coolidge could be kept off the ticket even by a small minority.

So that, if the renunciation message were not sincerely meant, it would have been a roorback so futile and so ill advised as to do anything but credit to the shrewd political brain in which it originated.

No; that cock won't fight. The statement was not a trick; it was not a diplomatic subterfuge. It was merely Calvin Coolidge's Vermont way of saying, "I'm through. I won't run again. That's all there is to it, and it's final."

DOOMED

The die is cast in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, which for six years has held the attention of the world to an extent unparalleled by any purely criminal episode in modern history. Governor Fuller declines to intervene in the execution of the death sentence upon the condemned men, and the text of his finding expresses the honest judgment of an honest man. His decision gains much support from the fact that it was acquiesced in by the three high class citizens who acted as his advisory commission in the affair.

It cannot be gainsaid that the governor and his advisors have had opportunities of judging the merits of the case superior to those enjoyed by outsiders. There can be no sane allegation that they did not go into the investigation thoroughly. If the result is different from what sympathizers with Sacco and Vanzetti hoped for, and is consequently disappointing to an enormous number of persons, it does not follow by any means that Governor Fuller and his commission erred.

The facts in the Braintree hold-up murder remain today exactly what they were on the day of the crime; and they will remain so forever. If Sacco and Vanzetti were among that bandit crew all the adverse opinion of their trial, all the predisposition in their favor, on the part of all the people in the world, could not alter those facts by one hairbreadth. If they were not concerned in the hold-up and killing, then all the verdicts of all the courts and all the opinions of all the governors and commissions imaginable cannot make them guilty. Their guilt or their innocence is an immutable thing.

It is unfortunate that in such affairs, appealing as they do to the most deep-rooted prejudices and convictions of men of opposite minds, opinion of the facts is almost as immutable as the facts themselves. It was impossible for Governor Fuller and his advisors to approach this problem in absolute godlike freedom from all shadow of predisposition in favor of the courts of the state of Massachusetts or shadow of prejudice against the revolutionary, violent, threatening instincts of the accused. It is just as impossible for those whose natural sympathies run to the underdog, and to suspicion of class influence in the determination of Judge Thayer's court, to be godlike in complete acceptance of the correctness of the governor's finding.

In obtaining this review the friends of justice at least gained a notable victory. It took years of constant agitation to obtain what ought to have been immediately obtainable in every case involving the life or death of a human being, a disinterested re-survey of evidence by an honest and highly intellectual if informal tribunal.

If Sacco and Vanzetti die for a crime they did not commit it will not be the first time such a tragedy has happened—and it will not be the last, in all likelihood. But Massachusetts can no longer be charged with having murdered them! They have had as good a chance as was humanly possible.

THAT LIBRARY MEETING

Tonight the voters of the Eighth School and Utilities District are called into district meeting, primarily for the purpose of deciding whether or not the Manchester Public Library shall be permitted to continue to occupy the quarters in the Robertson school building which have been its home since the erection of the structure.

This is the course which the Herald insisted was the only right one to take, where the school committee of the district peremptorily ordered the Library to vacate on utterly inadequate notice. The question is one for the voters of the district to decide. They are entirely capable of deciding it, as they are also capable of deciding whether, in case the Library's room is needed for school purposes, it would be a decent thing to demand its surrender without something like adequate notice.

The school committee has quite gracefully retreated from its original position that it had a right to eject the Library without referring the question to the voters and is now in a position to present its case, without prejudice, to a full meeting of the district. In doing so it has tacitly acknowledged that its early action was hasty. In the interest of fairness perhaps the committee will also admit that it did not give due consideration to the difficulties in the case when it demanded removal in an impossible short time. That would still further clear the air.

In any event there is a definite responsibility on the people of the Eighth district—which is to attend the meeting and let this matter be settled by a really representative body of the voters, not by a handful. That is the only way in which such matters can be disposed of without subsequent dissensions and grousches.

BUSINESS

From yesterday's dispatches relative to the doings at Angelus Temple.

"Mrs. Kennedy relinquishes active management of the Temple and the joint personal assets of the two women are to be divided on a fifty-fifty basis. The division does not affect Angelus Temple and other properties of the Echo Park Evangelical Association, which remain intact. Mrs. McPherson will reorganize the business affairs of the Temple. She plans to delegate the work of the local temple to a business manager."

From the First Epistle of Paul the Apostle to Timothy:

"But if any widow have children or nephews let them learn first to show piety at home, and to requite their parents; for that is good and acceptable before God."

From the Gospel According to St. Matthew:

"Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give."

"Provide neither gold nor silver nor brass in your purses."

WASHINGTON LETTER

This is the second of two dispatches on conditions in Nicaragua, where national attention has recently reverted because of clashes between marines and the rebels.

By RODNEY DETCHER

Washington, Aug. 4.—General Jose M. Morúa, who seems likely to be a candidate for president of Nicaragua, is regarded as most friendly to the United States.

He is the author of a book in which he makes a strong plea for friendly relations between the two countries and speaks highly of Americans.

Morúa now stands out as the "strong man" of Nicaragua if only because there are few other substantial candidates to oppose him for the presidency.

Adolfo Diaz, the president who remains in power supported by United States marines, is cordially hated by many Nicaraguans. It now appears that even his former friends and supporters, Emiliano Chamorro, who placed him in the presidential palace, has gone back on him. Chamorro put over the election of Diaz when the United States refused to recognize him.

Diaz became almost the leader of the country as just printed a dispatch from Rome quoting Chamorro as saying that he would return to his country to fight Diaz.

Without Chamorro and his faction, Diaz becomes almost the man lion, Diaz becomes almost the man of the hour as a $25 clerk for an American mining company.

In any event, Diaz cannot be re-elected because the Nicaraguan constitution expressly forbids two consecutive terms.

Sacasa Out of Race

Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, the "constitutional president" who left for Guatemala City after Morúa's surrender to Henry M. Stimson, and who still claims to be president, is not expected to seek election in 1928. He is not a politician and is not anxious for office although some Nicaraguan liberals say he might be a candidate in 1932 with the likelihood that the United States would not oppose him at that time as it would be likely to do if he sought to succeed Diaz.

There is some talk in Nicaragua that Chamorro is headed home with his eye on the presidency to which he used to be elected, but this possibility is subject to some discount. Chamorro has a large following, but the United States, having pushed him out of the presidency last year because he assumed it by force and drove President Solorzano from the country, probably would frown upon his candidacy. It seems more likely that Chamorro will pick out one of his friends and friends to support behind that gentleman.

In his event the favored conservative might be Fernando Guzman, now the secretary of the treasury under Diaz.

Presidential ambitions, meanwhile, are credited to Salvador Castriño, who remains in Washington. Castriño was appointed minister to Washington by Solorzano upon Chamorro's demand, but was removed by Diaz.

Morúa is Business Man

Morúa, now said to have become Nicaragua's fair-haired son, is about 50 years old and a business man rather than a warrior. He fought side by side with Chamorro and Diaz in the revolt against the dictator Zelaya many years ago, but returned to business and remained there until Sacasa called him last year to head the Liberal army. With his brilliant successes as a general he then became the marvel of Latin America.

Although his patriotism is questioned by die-hard Liberals, Morúa took the common sense course when he threw down his arms by agreement with Stimson to prevent slaughter of his troops by the marines.

It is to be noted that he refused to call General Sandino a bandit at a time when the Navy Department, through Admiral Latimer, and the State Department, were attempting to brand Sandino with that stigma. Sandino was one of Morúa's best generals, although he incurred displeasure when he insisted on carrying on the hopeless war against the conservatives and the marines.

New York, Aug. 4.—Manhattan snapshots—the windows of Fifth Avenue bulging with faces as they have not bulged since Lindy came to town. . . . And all because of a school of dancing has opened on the umpteenth floor of a new sky-toucher and the girls, in very filmy drapes, were out dancing on one of the "step backs," or whatever you call those spaces created by the pyramid of zoning law buildings. . . . Grecian dances on the twentieth story roof of a sky-line is my idea of something a bit incongruous. . . .

And he had a successful run in Atlantic City. . . . "Kibitzer" is from the Yiddish and literally translated means one who looks on without participating, offering gratuitous advice the while. . . . Another group has been at the old wharf theater in Provincetown, Mass., and a new "Barn theater" has been running competition nearby, with the "Jitney Players" on tour in Boston. . . .

Thus do the Broadwayites find it difficult to get very far away from the theater, wherever they may go. There is no calling below the skies that demands such loyalty and service from its followers. Vacations mean merely the transferring of plays, playwritings and play selections to different parts of the map.

COLORADO SEES COMING BOOM IN LEAD AND ZINC

State's 30,000 Sq. Miles of Mineral Lands Will See New Activity.

Denver.—Colorado faces a great revival in the production of lead and zinc, in the belief of John T. Joyce, state commissioner of mines, expressed in an interview.

Joyce bases his belief on the twofold fact that reserved stocks of the metals have been depleted, and production has fallen off. Already, he stated, domestic consumption and exportation of these metals exceeds the production by thousands of tons.

"Prices are going to go up," Joyce declared, "and as the prices go up, the production of old mines will be increased and new properties, adding thousands of dollars of wealth to the state, will be opened."

The present very low ebb to which the metals have sunk in this country is due, according to Commissioner Joyce, to the action of the New York markets where he be-

CHINESE COMMUNISTS BANKRUPT IN MORALS IS VIEW OF BUKHARIN

Moscow.—"The Central committee of the Chinese Communist party is morally bankrupt. Russian Communists must now frankly admit that fact though with regret," said Nikolai Bukharin, in an address intended only for party members on the finance of the Marxian revolution in the Orient.

M. Bukharin's statement caused a sensation at the meeting. Every Communist knew things were not going well in China from scant reports in the press. But few realized things had come to such a pass.

M. Bukharin indicated that on orders of the Third International the entire Communist party of China was going to be reorganized, the present leaders deposed and the young bloods, including university students, lifted to fill the vacancies.

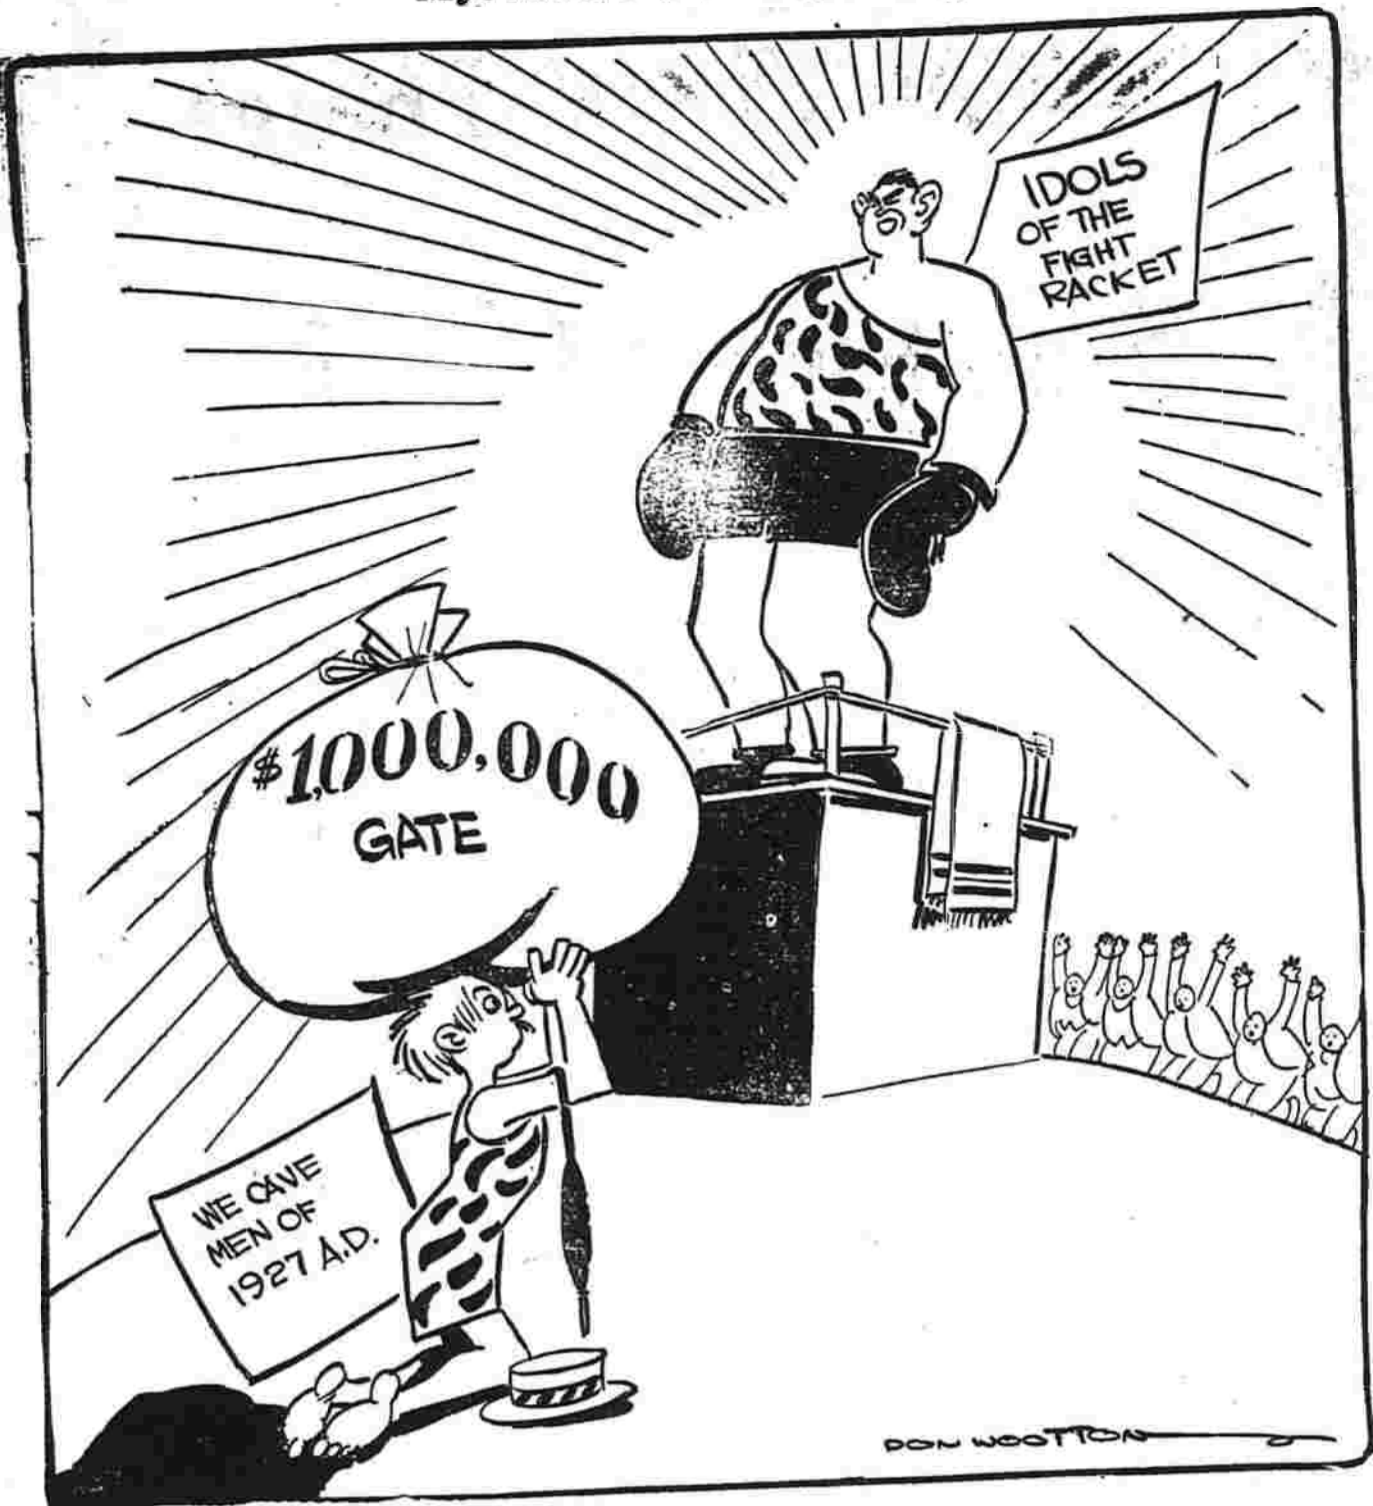

"Soon after the betrayal of Chang Kai-shek the Communist International warned the Chinese Communist party against further betrayal by generals like Fong Yu-hsiang and Tang Shen-chih," Bukharin continued. "The Comintern requested the Chinese comrades to develop the agricultural revolution, to organize and arm peasants and workmen's unions, to expel all bourgeois officers from the Wuhan government."

"We must now frankly admit that the Chinese Central committee has gone bankrupt. It cannot lead the masses any longer. The Central committee of Young Communists conceives the doctrines of the Comintern much better than the old committee. The Comintern has decided to call a conference of all Chinese Communists, elect a new Central Committee and expel from the party all those who consent to be led by the Kuomintang party which has deserted the workers and peasants."

"STOLEN CAR" TAKEN BY FINANCE COMPANY

"Lifters" Who Towed Away Lutton's Sedan Had Right to Seize Automobile.

Joseph Lutton's stolen car was not a stolen car at all and the two men who attached a rope to it and drove it from the front of Lawrence A. Converse's home on North Elm street, yesterday afternoon were not thieves, but men from a Hartford finance corporation who were taking the car in default of payments. Lutton, who lives at 83 Starkweather street, was visiting with his wife at the home of Converse, his brother-in-law, at 64 North Elm street. The men who took the car away are said to have gone to the Lutton home first and then to the place where he was visiting. They attached a rope to the car, towed it to Woodbridge street, and then one of the men got into it and drove it away. The car, an Overland sedan of 1925 model, was purchased in that year from the Pickett Motor Sales company. The collections with his wife at the time, payment contracts, were placed in the hands of a finance corporation. Subsequently the car was refinanced by another corporation and it was to this second company that the payments were due. Seeing his car missing Lutton notified the Pickett company and was in turn told to call the police. Patrolman John McGlinn investigated the affair and found out that Lutton was back in his payments a little more than a month. Lutton asserted, however, that he had mailed a check to the finance corporation that morning. In such cases, covered by conditional bills of sale, the title to the article becomes absolute in the person or company to whom the money is owed if the payments are not made promptly and no writ of attachment is needed, according to a legal opinion given today.

EVOLVES A NEW TRINITY OF AUTO REQUIREMENTS

Patrick McConnell of this town floored a state police officer yesterday at the Capitol with an original answer to the old question asked of applicants for driving licenses: "What are the three things necessary on a car?" The three things necessary, according to the answer, are brakes, lights and a horn. Pat had different ideas and when he was asked the question he expounded them: "Oil, gasoline, and money in your pocket," he said.

ELLIOTT FINDS CONTRAST IN THIS OCEAN VOYAGE

Returns From Europe in Majestic; First Came on a 2,000 Ton Ship.

Edward Elliott, Sr., and his daughter, Mrs. William Hall, returned to Manchester on Tuesday after spending several weeks on a trip to England and Ireland. They were about six days on the water, both going over and coming back, and they encountered only two days of rough weather. They sailed on the Majestic, the biggest steamer now afloat. She is a marked contrast to the steamers on which Mr. Elliott first came to this country from England. That craft was a 2,000-ton vessel while the Majestic is listed at 56,551 tons. The first voyage took more than 14 days and this one was made in less than a week. Among the places of interest which Mr. Elliott and his daughter visited were the principal cities in the southern part of England, and in Ireland. They spent about 10 days in Ireland, meeting a number of relatives of Manchester residents, staying in Portadown and going to several watering places, among them Portrush and Warrenpoint. In South Essex, England, they visited Mr. Elliott's old home at Bath and took trips to surrounding towns. They went to London where they inspected the principal buildings. The weather in England was good but it was Irish weather in Ireland, with rain falling about half the time they were there.

According to her own story Mrs. Hotchkiss had a dizzy spell while on the stepladder, which she had climbed to fix something on the wall of her home. She reeled, could not recover her balance and fell to the floor.

"IN RIGHT" ON HOOKUP FOR SPEECH OF PRINCE

Manchester Radio Fans Sure to Get Notable Event via Hartford Station.

Through the medium of the radio, which has furnished many opportunities for Manchester people to get the personal touch of acquaintance with President Coolidge, Colonel Lindbergh and other persons of much note, will come another similar opportunity Sunday afternoon when the Prince of Wales will "go on the air" through the greater part of the United States and Canada. Manchesterians will hear his voice through Station WTIC, Hartford. The Prince's address at the celebration of peaceful relations between the United States and the British peoples, to be held on the International Peace Bridge at Niagara Falls, will be broadcast through the National Broadcasting Company's blue and red network headed by Station WJZ at New York. The fact that Hartford is included in the chain of stations means that Manchester radio lovers will have no trouble at all in hearing the Prince's voice distinctly.

SEE NEW CRISIS FOR BRITAIN IN COAL SITUATION

Miners' Leaders Predict More Serious Trouble Than General Strike.

London.—Events in the coal-fields of Great Britain are rapidly shaping towards a new crisis—a crisis even worse than that which led to the futile General Strike of 1926—according to the Miners' leaders. Leading off an attack against the Baldwin Government for its alleged mishandling of the mining situation, Frank Varley, leader of the Nottinghamshire miners and one of the most level-headed labor politicians in Britain, furnished some startling facts and figures regarding the present situation in the coalfields. Many Are Idle According to Varley, there are 211,000 miners without work, and 40,700 fewer are employed in Durham County than before the 1926 coal strike. Men are producing more, but earning less, according to this authority, and the fall in export prices has been so great that while in February 74,000 tons were sent abroad, $1,400,000 less was received. The canker of competition, declared Varley, was killing the British coal industry. While agreeing that on the surface there appeared to be little cause for alarm, he maintained it was because the men were down and out. "Some day the discontent will burst. The miners are tacticians, they are bidding their time. It is terrible to have to say it, but a repetition of the 1926 coal strike appears inevitable."

SOVIETS FIND WAY TO USE CZAR'S YACHT

Leningrad.—The Soviet government has at last found utilization for the palatial Romanoff yacht abroad which the former German Kaiser Wilhelm II many times greeted his cousin Czar Nicholas and called him "Nicky" while "Nicky" responded by calling Wilhelm "Willy." Confiscated like all royal property after the revolution the famous yacht has been lying in a Leningrad drydock for 17 years. It was a white elephant, too good to junk, yet too small for practical uses. Now it has been recommissioned and purchased by the Central Labor union of Leningrad. It will again sail the Baltic sea with outing parties of union men on visits to Baltic ports. But there will be no Kaiser's yacht to meet it. There will be no Kaiser to wire to Leningrad about a secret conference of kings on the high seas. "Nobody has the faintest suspicion," the Kaiser called "Nicky" at one time. "What a surprise for my guests when your yacht swashes alongside of mine. Tableau! What uniform shall I wear? Willy."

August 4th, 1918
TOM MOINEAUX

One hundred and nine years ago today marked the death of Tom Moineaux, colored heavyweight ringster who was born in Georgetown, Wash., D. C., and reared in a Virginia slave. Until Jack Johnson the negro title holder maneuvered into the championship circle in 1908, Moineaux was the first and only negro fighter to gain an opportunity to fight a champion for the world's heavyweight title, which occurred at Essex, near London, Eng., in 1810, when he was pitted against Tom Cribb, champion of England, in a fight for the world's title in the presence of twenty thousand spectators.

Moineaux was defeated in thirty three rounds but gave the champion the battle of his life before he was subdued. In the following year he was given another match with Cribb and was defeated in eleven rounds. The negro had previously gained recognition as American heavyweight champion by virtue of a series of victories over well-known ringsters around New York and Boston.

The Illinois boxing commission has stipulated that both boxers must locate their training camps in Illinois and be on the ground at least three weeks before the fight. # First World Series Walter's Big Thrill Veteran Hurler Waited 18 Years for 1924 Series; 1925 a Disappointment.

By BILLY EVANS
The greatest thrill of Walter Johnson's remarkable career, he himself tells me, was centered in the last four innings of the final game of the 1924 world series.

After having waited 18 years to get a chance to work in the baseball class, the opportunity finally arrived when Washington won the American League pennant in 1924. The fans, like Johnson, had been pulling for the chance to see the smoke ball king pit his stuff against the cream of the National League.

After being beaten in his first two starts, losing the first game after 12 innings of play, in which he struck out an even dozen, seemed as if the opportunity to pitch his stuff had come too late.

Writing about golf, reminds us that there was once a chap at the local Country Club who became so disgusted with his inability to burn the course up with startling scores that he took one of his choices clubs out into the garden after supper one night and stuck it around a fence post as shown here.

GARBER BROTHERS

No other gasoline is so consistently popular as Socony because no other is so consistently good

If everyone knew what so many thousands of people have already found out—what constitutes good furniture and economical prices...

And if you have never visited Garber Brothers, you owe it to yourself for the convenience, comfort and pride; you owe it to your home for appearance and to your pocketbook for Economy's sake...

On your visit here you will learn things that will almost amaze you. "Sale" prices which are made to look attractive by the so-called offering of discounts of 20, 30, 40 and 50%...

Prices that are the lowest all the time... not high some months of the year and at discount reductions during other months.

Why! pay more than Garber Brothers' Everyday prices?

And also, good reader, give a thought to quality. Quality furniture is what you really want to buy.

When you compare with Garber Brothers' standard of quality, instead of finding passe merchandise, or furniture bought for special sales purposes...

The fact that hundreds of people come to Garber Brothers for furniture, in spite of the "sales" held almost continuously everywhere except at Garber Brothers' is in itself a testimonial to the remarkable policy under which we operate this business.

You gain in quality and save considerably on price.

We NEVER have "sales" We ALWAYS sell for less

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

Helen's sister, who has four babies, looks with disapproval upon Helen who has none. Helen's sister tells Helen that she is not doing her duty, that she is not accepting her share of the world's responsibilities...

Marie Claudel's "Trousers Skirt"

The former Miss Marie Claudel, recently married daughter of the French Ambassador to the United States, sponsors the "trousers skirt" for evening wear.

Brother Bob and his tribe look askance at Helen and her husband, Tom, too. They think they are spendthrifts and luxury lovers. You see Helen, who plays the piano like a genius, and Tom, who would rather sing than eat, bought a $750 baby grand piano the other day.

The family's idea of the proper place for money, you see, is in houses and lots. They would no more buy a baby grand and a family airplane, so why should Helen and Tom?

But, noting the haphazard way in which Lucy brings up her children because they have nothing, Helen and Tom have a plan which provides for "something to start on" before getting entangled with responsibilities which they cannot properly meet.

I never dressed in the evening, as there was no one to see me. Steve came home tired and dirty. We had no bathroom and he'd just wash his hands, take off his coat and sit down in shaving—no one saw him and the Mexican miners and their families. I was usually too tired to read, so gave up trying to keep up on things. We did let down dreadfully.

"Do you attend a place of worship?" "Yes, every Sunday night. I'm on my way to see her now." "Family ties," said the boy, as he borrowed some of his father's neckwear. THE TINYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KRICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Taffy Man looked o'er the crowd. Then Scouly said, "Are we allowed to look around? We promise we'll be careful as we can." Their new-found friend just laughed, and said, "Why, sure you can. Go right ahead. But now I've got to leave to put some taffy in the pan." "Oh, where's the pan?" was Clowney cried. The Taffy Man said, "Right inside." And then he hurried through the door that led into his shack. "I cook my taffy here," said he. "Be quiet now, and all watch me." And soon the Tynmites heard the taffy bubble, boil and crack. They watched it cook an hour or so. Their friend would often stop the spoon to see if it was done. Then, when he took it from the flame, he said, "I'm mighty glad you came. I'll let you Tynmites help me pull. We'll all have lots of fun." The old man perched upon a stool and waited for the stuff to cool. He then told the Tynmites they must grease their hands real well. Said he, "You'll have to pull it quick, 'cause if you don't the stuff will stick." And then he handed each a chunk. Wee Carpy's almost fell. The whole bunch then went out in front. Now, pulling taffy's quite a stunt. The Tynmites found it harder than they ever thought it would be. They pulled and pulled with all their might, and watched the candy grow real white. Then Coppy shouted, very loud. "Will someone, please help me?" My goodness, he was tangled bad, and all the taffy that he had wrapped around his body, and as messy as could be. The Taffy Man went to his aid, and, as he said, "Don't be afraid," he tugged at Coppy's taffy till he turned the wee lad free. (The Taffy Man makes a taffy boat in the next story.) JACK LOCKWILL IN THE WOODS

by Gilbert Patten

The sheriff and two other men appeared, all of them armed. They listened somewhat incredulously to Jack's story of how Garabaldi had saved the little girl by jumping on to the wild bear and driving the creature away. Then Sam, panting and breathless, reached them: "Oh, I think they kill a Garabaldi!" she jabbered, sobbing for joy, she flung her arms around the bear's neck.

"Well now," said the sheriff, "with one bear killed and Widder Dearborn's little girl all safe, I guess there ain't going to be any more shooting."

They were on their way out of the woods when they came upon two of the armed bear-hunters who had captured Tony Arato and were taking him to town.

As they approached a pasture beyond the woods, they heard a man shouting and screaming as if in great agony. Just within the border of the forest, they found Elam Frye, who had been caught in the bear-trap he had attempted to set near the old horse that Nate Turner had shot. Both the man's arms were caught fast in the wicked jaws of the trap, and he could not release himself.

PERSONAL FEELING IN LIBRARY FIGHT

Say Dr. Sweet Is Spiteful Against Librarian—Meeting Tonight.

Officials of the Manchester Public Library, although loath to commit themselves, intimated last night that they had heard talk to the effect the proposed ouster of the librarian from its present quarters in the Eighth District school was a personal matter between Dr. F. A. Sweet and Mrs. Gertrude Boynton, librarian.

Despite the desire of the directors to keep the library at the school, however, they went to the Manchester Community club last night on the invitation of President Mark Holmes for the purpose of looking over some of the rooms at that building with a view of possible occupation of them if the district at its meeting tonight decides to ouster the librarian.

The Eighth District committee claims that there is congestion in the schools at that end of the town and that the increase of pupils amounts to 24 or more every year. It is claimed that the room now occupied by the library is needed to care for the increased registration, but even at that the room would scarcely accommodate more than 24 pupils, which would meet the increase for only one year.

Board in Dilemma

A Herald representative who interviewed officials of the library and a member of the board of directors last night found that the board is in a peculiar situation. The room in the school building is the only one the members are acquainted with and they are anxious to know where the library will go if it is ordered out.

Another thing that troubles them is the source of the money which will be required to pay for the removal. The library has an appropriation of $1,500 a year from the town of Manchester and a good part of this is absorbed by salaries and lights. A grant of $100 a year from the State of Connecticut cannot be used for anything other than the purchase of new books.

Unlike the South Manchester Free Library, which is supported yearly by the Ninth District and gifts from Cheney Brothers, the North End library is dependent entirely on the $1,500 appropriation. The amount left after salaries and incidental expenses is paid would hardly be enough to pay the rent for a new room or to pay the cost of moving.

Children Inconvenienced

The move would inconvenience the people who are most dependent on the institution, the officials say. Children of the schools, they point out, use the library more than any other class of people in the north end. The library being in the school building, it is highly convenient for the children and their teachers, who are forced to use reference books in their studies throughout the school year.

The scope of the library's activities has extended so far that the children of the Buckland schools have begun to use its facilities for references in connection with their school work. To move the library to a more distant place would inconvenience these children as well.

Personal Matter

The "personal matter" which has been bruited about the north end has to do with the enforcement of a ruling recently made at the library, it is said, regarding the practice of children getting books in the evening. A ruling was made that boys and girls must get their books in the afternoons so that adults might have an opportunity to patronize the library in the evenings.

According to the story, Dr. Sweet's child went to the library for a book one evening and the ruling was invoked. It is said that after this Dr. Sweet brought pressure to bear on the district officials and so inaugurated the move to oust the library.

Verification of this story has been difficult and although no definite statements concerning its truth have been made by those officially concerned with the library or the school district, intimations that it is true have come from more than one of the members of these bodies.

BREAK INTO MARKET AT THE SOUTH END

Burglars Enter Correnti Shop On Birch Street But Find Cash Register Empty.

Another break information of which developed only today, occurred Sunday night on the premises of Paul Correnti, meat dealer on Birch street. In this case the burglars, evidently after money only, took nothing out of the store and got no money, for the cash register was empty.

Mr. Correnti had been to the shore on Sunday and when he came home at night slept soundly, for he was tired. When he went downstairs to the store on Monday morning he found a rear window and the back door open. The thieves had evidently gained access through the window and had gone out through the door which they opened from the inside.

The break was reported to the police.

POLICE COURT

Louis Branske and William Vonkolsky, both Buckland inhabitants, were before the Manchester police court this morning. The men are tobacco workers. Vonkolsky was arrested by Patrolman James Benevento on Center street yesterday afternoon. He said the man was drunk. Branske was arrested by Patrolman W. R. Martin on North Main street yesterday.

In court this morning Vonkolsky said all he had was one drink. Each man was fined $10 and costs and as they had no money they were sent to jail.
