

COP "TYPISTS" SWAP NEWS ON POLICE PRINTER

Manchester One of 5 Towns, More to Come, Linked Up By Quick Device for the Exchange of Information.

A new "telephone typewriter" system was installed at the Manchester Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon which will enable the department to keep in constant communication with other police stations about the state. It is on the same general principle as the telegraph machines used in newspaper offices, the major difference being that the police machine is equipped with a keyboard "sending" apparatus.

At present there are only five police stations in Connecticut having the telephone typewriter service—New Haven, Hartford, Meriden, Willimantic and Manchester; but five others are being installed, at Danbury, Bristol, Naugatuck, New Britain and Middletown.

Is An Innovation
The system is an innovation in police work and has only recently been adopted in large cities though for years the New York police department used a primitive system somewhat similar to it. The purpose is for the establishment of instantaneous and simultaneous communication between police departments.

It is expected to prove a financial benefit inasmuch as police telephone toll calls are a big item of expense each month. The new system will do away with many toll telephone calls.

The system is being installed by the Southern New England Telephone company. The machines will run day and night. They are so arranged that each department can broadcast an alarm to all other stations on the circuit by simply ticking typewriter keys.

One of the first messages to come over the "wire" yesterday at the local police station was the information that a youth had escaped from Cheshire Reformatory. It was not long before word came from Meriden saying that the department there had located the boy.

Makes Co-operation Certain
Last night Captain Herman Schendel gave two instances in which the service would have been of invaluable aid to the department in recent years, the Madden murder and Chinese tong murder. In both cases the guilty parties were caught because of diligent police work, but in future cases, it will be possible to broadcast the alarm much quicker and to all departments at once, thus making such co-operation much more certain and speedy.

The operation of the system, which has just gone into effect in the five linked offices, requires that the desk officer using it shall do the amount of a job of typewriting in the dispatch of each message. Naturally the "sending" is fairly slow at present for not every good cop is an expert at the keys. They are diligent police practicing, however, and some good sized fingers will soon be flying like a flapper's.

The name of the service is the "Police Telephone Typewriter System" but the only part of the telephone takes in it is its ownership by the Bell Telephone Co. and the fact that the service is installed by and uses wires of the Southern New England Telephone Co.

FLAGS OF REPUBLIC FLY OVER GERMANY

Constitution Day Being Observed—Monster Parades Planned for Tonight.

Berlin, Aug. 11.—For the first time since the revolution, the flag of the German Republic waved today over all official and many private buildings throughout Germany, the occasion being constitution day.

The city of Potsdam, former residence of the ex-Kaiser, had appealed to the supreme court against being forced to display the republican colors.

Schools and government offices were closed. Ceremonies were conducted in the Reichstag at noon. There will be torch light processions in many cities tonight.

Deputy Von Kardorff, speaking in the Reichstag, demanded for Germany an era of "peace and equality" with other nations.

President Hindenburg occupied the former Kaiser's box in the Reichstag during the ceremonies, which were witnessed by the heads of Hindenburg's cabinet, the German Army and Navy.

FORD'S FIRST FLIGHT.

Ford Airport, Dearborn, Mich., Aug. 11.—Henry Ford, America's first billionaire took his first airplane flight today when he went up with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in his "Spirit of St. Louis" for three or four minutes.

HEALTH HINT GIVEN BY J. D.

"Never Hurry Meals and You'll Never Have Stomach Trouble," He Says.

Auburn, N. Y., Aug. 11.—"The days of worry are over for me, I don't let anything bother me."

John D. Rockefeller, oil magnate, made that statement after visiting his boyhood home in the Finger Lakes region.

"It is true that I am saddened now and then by the death of an old friend, but I make new ones and people are very kind to me. Then again I keep cheerful. There is enough gloom in the world and if I can spread a little sunshine in the world it helps me and I hope it helps others."

He is not on a diet, he says, but he disciplines himself to eat sparingly though he eats whatever he likes. He gave the following as one hint to health:

"I never hurry my meals and I'm never in a hurry. I leave plenty of time for the digestion. If people will use common sense in eating, they won't have much trouble with their stomachs."

DROP IN PRICES EXCITES 'CHANGE

Stock of Electric Supply Co. Goes Down 45 Points— Board to Investigate.

New York, Aug. 11.—Stock of the Manhattan Electric Supply Company dropped forty-five points in exciting trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

The business conduct committee of the stock exchange is conducting an official investigation into the recent sky-rocketing of the stock from 60 to 132 without apparent justification. All members of the committee have been ordered to furnish the committee a complete record of their dealings in the stock.

Everybody Sell.
From a high of 130 Manhattan Supply dropped abruptly to 75 at the close of the day. The stock tumbled two and three points between sales as professionals heaped their selling orders on the disorganized market for the stock.

The consolidated income account of the company shows earnings in the first half of the year at $2.90 a share, against dividend requirements of $2.50. Richard H. Brown, president of the company, was quoted last month as saying that he hoped the stock might attain a deserved price more slowly.

IRISH REPUBLICANS FINALLY TAKE OATH

But Rumor Says It is Move to Get Rid of President Cosgrave.

Dublin, Aug. 11.—The republican deputies in the Dail Eireann, led by Eamonn De Valera, today for the first time since the establishment of the Irish Free State, took the oath of allegiance to the British crown.

It was the first time the "Die-Hard" republican leaders had admitted allegiance in any way to the crown since De Valera established the "Irish republic."

In a statement issued previous to the administration of the oath, the Fianna Fail had declared that the action of the Republicans in taking the oath of allegiance was "an empty gesture which is not binding."

The action of the Republicans was generally regarded as a political move toward unseating President William Cosgrave and his cabinet.

It was reported that the Labor Party leaders had agreed to support the Republicans in a campaign to have removed from the Irish Free State constitution the requirement that members of the Dail subscribe to the oath of allegiance.

The Cosgrave government is expected to meet with defeat tomorrow on a motion for adjournment and the government is expected to resign almost immediately.

General elections are forecast for the near future.

DOVE OF PEACE IS HENHAWK AT FIFTH SESSION

Mannings Control Situation by One Vote—Turbulent Meeting Fails To Go Through Call.

It might have been the fighting pheasant from Addison that flew into the Fifth district meeting in the Keeney street school last night but it certainly was no dove of peace. After two hours and a half of all kinds of wrangling, the poor bird, whatever it was in the beginning, looked more like a plucked hen. And, speaking of poultry, there were some wise old owls in the gathering.

The residents of the section were out in numbers and in fact several who took advantage of property rights to vote also turned up at the meeting and just before adjournment there was a charge made that there was some voting not once, but two or three times and that votes were being cast by people not living in the district or having any right to vote.

Those who turned out to the meeting intended to stay right through and this was evident when Fred Manning took up thirty-five minutes of the time in reading a complete report of the "briefs" that were filed in the suit which the district lost and on which an appeal is now pending as it goes on its way to the supreme court of this state.

Through all of this general mix-up and the talkfest and threats of fight, Frederick R. Manning came out of the cloud with a golden crown and the Manning faction is still in control of the district, even to giving the right to hire counsel for the committee and Frederick R. Manning to be retained as the district's representative.

Get There Early
Fearing that there might not be sufficient seating space The Herald reporter arrived on the scene forty-five minutes before the advertised hour of the opening of the meeting, and almost one whole hour before Harley Palmer, chairman of the district committee and also the initiator, arrived with the key that opened the front door.

The time was not wasted for there was just enough daylight to make a survey of the school on the hill and to note that the well is not being given the same care as it was before piped water from reservoirs was run into the school. Several of the windows had been broken in and during the storms of recent dates rain had blown through the window and stained some of the curtains and the floors.

The tin roof, which was never painted, was in need of repair and on the west corner of the main building was noticed a badly damaged roof which was in need of repair.

A few strolled around the outside looking over the grounds, some of them taking notes for the meeting.

This call showed that there were sixteen different sections and that the first one, as is the usual form, provided for the election of a moderator. It was pretty well understood that the weakness or strength of the old warring factions would be tested when this question came for a vote.

When the doors were opened the first fourteen to enter were women, who used nice little lace trimmed handkerchiefs to wipe the dust from the seats and as Harley Palmer started out to open the windows cobwebs were noticed hanging from the corners of the windows.

The desks and seats were dusty. A few strolled around the outside looking over the grounds, some of them taking notes for the meeting.

PRINCE PASSES UP POLO GAMES IN U. S.

Wales' Secretary Denies Report That Prince Will Go to Long Island Next Month.

High River, Alberta, Canada, Aug. 11.—As the Prince of Wales and Prince George spent their second day on the former's ranch today, Captain A. P. Lacombe, private secretary to Wales stated that the prince would not attend the international polo games at Meadowbrook, Long Island, next month. A report to that effect had been printed.

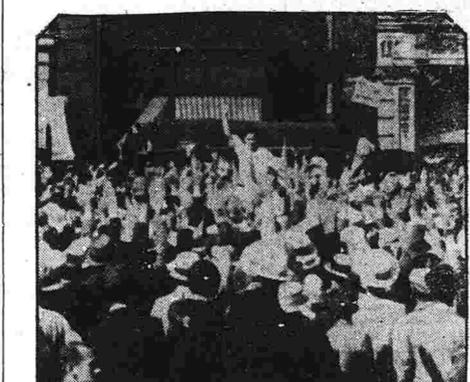

The princes will remain at the ranch for five days, with several excursions into Calgary breaking the routine. Tomorrow they will journey there to bid goodbye to Premier and Mrs. Baldwin as their party passes east to Banff. On Monday they will drive in again to attend the royal Strathcona horse regimental dinner and a hunt club ball.

The next morning Wales and his brother will leave for Banff where they will remain a day before going on to Victoria and Vancouver where a three day halt will be called for rest and relief.

TREASURY BALANCE.

Ten thousand upraised hands protest the Sacco-Vanzetti death decision in an orator fires fellow sympathizers at a monster mass meeting in Union Square, New York. When those attending the meeting attempted to parade, they were dispersed by the police.

Facism Aids Italy But At Heavy Cost

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 11.—Achieved by these unoriginal Fascist statesmen.

Hard to Judge.
"For the outsider it is very difficult to judge of the degree to which Fascism has a real basis in the popular will. It is true the people were not consulted in a formal referendum as to their acceptance of the new regime. The vast millions are not public-spirited enough to challenge the benevolent despot. Only an intelligent, patriotic minority is interested in the constitutional problem."

The transformation from a dictatorship to a constitutional regime is in all time the supreme test of a dictator's public spirit and capacity for an administration. Unlimited power having once been wielded is gripping and is exceedingly hard to shake out of one's hand. There is no prospect at this time of that transformation, whether desired by Mussolini himself or accepted performers, into a regime of cordial collaboration with the rest of the political world."

A Fascist policy, characteristic and peculiar, is not to be found. Mussolini and his followers are Opportunists in the better sense. They will take policy wherever they find it. Many of their platform planks come from the Liberal programs of the time, but the Populists and Socialists alike have seen their thunder stolen, their favorite measures

RACE OVER OCEAN STARTS TOMORROW

Twelve Daring Pilots on Starting Line—Two Killed on Way to Oakland.

Bay State Airport, Oakland, Cal., Aug. 11.—With taut nerves and heightened hope, twelve daring pilots awaited today the swishing arc of a checkered flag that will send them racing over the Pacific to Honolulu, 2,400 miles away. The $35,000 Dole Air Derby starts at noon tomorrow.

Four late arrivals were expected to reach the starting line today. They are Captain William Erwin of Dallas; Charles W. Parkhurst of Peoria; Captain James Griffin and Captain Arthur V. Rogers. Griffin and Rogers will fly from Los Angeles. With seven other flyers on the starting line, only one entrant, Captain Frederick A. Giles, now in Detroit, is unaccounted for. Captain Giles was reported due to leave for the coast today, which will give him scant time for the race.

ACTOR SEEKS DIVORCE

Reno, Nevada, Aug. 11.—Entering the Reno divorce court in a role strangely similar to that which he acted hundreds of times as a successor to Frank Bacon as Lightnin' Bill Jones, Thomas L. Jefferson, has filed suit for divorce against Mrs. Eugene Paul Jefferson.

The Jeffersons have been married 48 years and have three grown children. Jefferson charges that his wife objected to the realism he displayed in love scenes in "Lightnin' Bill" and also that there have been religious differences.

In the play, the hero is sued by the wife for a Reno divorce but there is finally a reconciliation. Jefferson says there will be no reconciliation in this true-to-life drama.

KILLED IN WRECK

Lenox, Mass., Aug. 11.—James Dorey, 45, of Waterbury, Conn., was almost instantly killed today when a light truck on which he was a passenger, left the highway near here and crashed into a tree.

The driver, Alphonso Ferraro, also of Waterbury, who was uninjured, told police the accident was due to a heavy fog. He was held by police charged with driving to endanger the lives of the public and was placed under $500 bail when arraigned in court for hearing August 18.

"I AM GLAD"—VANZETTI; WORST RIOT IN LONDON

Thirty-five Persons Sent to Hospitals When Mob of 10,000 Try to Rush on American Embassy— Worst Disorder Since General Strike—Rap American Courts.

London, Aug. 11.—Order was restored by the police early today after a violent outbreak of rioting when thousands of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, led by men and women Communists, tried to march upon the United States Embassy in Grosvenor Gardens.

Thirty-five persons were injured when mounted police drove into the wildly shouting mob in an effort to disperse it.

It was the worst disorder that England has seen since the general strike.

The riot followed a mass meeting of ten thousand persons in Hyde Park at which inflammatory speeches were made.

A. J. ("Emperor") Cook, leader of last year's coal strike, declared: "I warn you. I warn America that if they murder these two men (Sacco and Vanzetti) we will get even with them."

Show of Force
At the conclusion of the Hyde Park meeting Cook urged the demonstrators to march upon the American Embassy and make a show of force in honor of the Ambassador, A. B. Houghton, (who is at present on vacation in Scotland), would be frightened into calling the State Department or urge that the Sacco-Vanzetti death sentences be remitted.

Waving red flags and singing "The Red Flag" and the "Internationale," the mob tried to fight its way past a cordon of 1,000 foot and mounted policemen into Grosvenor Gardens.

There were 500 policemen in line when the mob began marching down park lane in the direction of the embassy. In the van was a young bobber hair girl wildly singing and shouting:

"The damned American torturers are not going to kill our Sacco and Vanzetti!"

Mob of 10,000
Rapidly reinforced by thousands the mob numbered fully 10,000 when it reached the approaches to Grosvenor Gardens. Mounted police rode in and out attempting to break the crowd into groups, but were unsuccessful.

The situation began to get ugly by midnight and orders were given for the mounted police to charge the mob with drawn batons in an effort to force it back towards Hyde Park.

Mounted police in heavy formation drove their horses into the press, forcing the crowds into side streets amid the shrieks of women, many of whom fainted and had to be taken into adjacent houses for first aid treatment.

The crowd scattered in all directions fighting and struggling with the police. A solid mass of people jammed against the balustrade of a house were precipitated into an area way when other crowds, fleeing from the police, were forced against them.

35 Injured
Of the thirty-five injured two were so badly hurt they had to be taken to the hospital.

Finally the police cleared the block around the embassy and gradually succeeded in forcing back the mob towards Hyde Park.

Communists here and there again attempted to re-form the crowds, but were unsuccessful owing to the activities of the large force of police that had been reinforced from time to time.

It was estimated that at least 2,000 police were on duty during the demonstration, some at Hyde Park, some around the embassy and others along intervening streets.

The demonstration failed of its main objective, which was to reach the embassy only the caretaker was at the embassy building at the time, the staff having left hours earlier after the day's work was completed.

RIOTS CONTINUE

New York, Aug. 11.—Police vigilance against Sacco and Vanzetti violence was continued without relaxation today despite the action of Gov. Fuller, of Massachusetts, in granting a twelve day reprieve to the two condemned anarchists.

Various Trials In Sacco Case

Boston, Mass., Aug. 11.—A chronological summary of the various trials and reprieves in the celebrated Sacco-Vanzetti case follows:

1920—Vanzetti sentenced to 12 to 15 years in state's prison for a Bridgewater holdup. Vanzetti indicted for South Braintree slaying of paymaster and his guard.

1921—Sacco and Vanzetti found guilty first degree murder. Judge Webster Thayer denies motion for a new trial.

1922—New trial appeal denied.

1923—Judge Thayer again denies motions for new trial.

1924-25—Exceptions filed and go to Supreme Court.

1926—Supreme Court overrules exceptions. Judge Thayer denies new trial based on Celestino Maddox confession.

1927—Supreme Court overrules exceptions to Judge Thayer's decision. Sacco and Vanzetti sentenced to be executed July 30, 1927. Gov. Alan T. Fuller grants respite until midnight August 10, and conducts searching investigation.

Thirty-five minutes before midnight August Tenth new respite granted until midnight August 22nd.

NEW LEGAL MOVES TO SAVE RADICALS

Fall Bench of State Supreme Court to Decide on Motions.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 11.—The first of a series of new and involved legal moves save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti from the electric chair was under way today.

Decision on the question of permitting the bill of exceptions to the dismissal of the petition for a writ of error: made by the defense to go to the full bench of the State Supreme Court is to come from Judge George A. Sanderson.

Pending the decision, other legal proceedings were held in abeyance by defense lawyers, led by former District Attorney Arthur D. Hill.

Alleged Prejudice
The petition for a writ of error was brought on the ground of alleged prejudice by Trial Judge Webster Thayer. The "evidences" was a series of affidavits recounting alleged conversations by the jurist and his alleged "unfair" attitude on the bench in connection with the radical beliefs of Sacco and Vanzetti and an investigating committee of Gov. Alan T. Fuller, however, found that while the judge was "indiscreet" in conversations outside the courtroom, on the bench he was fair and impartial.

A new affidavit was brought here today from Dartmouth college, the alma mater of Judge Thayer. It was from Professor James E. Haney, who had been on the investigating committee of Gov. Alan T. Fuller, however, found that while the judge was "indiscreet" in conversations outside the courtroom, on the bench he was fair and impartial.

FOOD FOR THE FISH IS LESS COSTLY NOW

Experts Give Them Vegetables Instead of All Meat— Convention in Hartford Closes.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 11.—Material reduction in costs and revolutionary changes in fish culture may result from experiments being conducted jointly by Yale University, the National Research Council and the Connecticut Department of Fisheries and Game, was alleged at the closing session of the American Fisheries Society convention here yesterday.

"I Want to See My Sister Before I Die"—Sacco Silent When Told That He Has 12 More Days to Live— Madeiros Also Granted Stay—Condemned Men Taken From Death House.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 11.—Sacco and Vanzetti still live.

Through the high slitted windows of Charlestown prison they glimpsed today the pallid light of another day. It was a day they had not expected to see and one which they did not know they were going to see until a scant half hour before they were to have taken the short march to the electric chair.

Last Hour Reprieve
Fiction writers often feature "an eleventh hour reprieve." The twelve day respite given the condemned murderers of South Braintree last night by Governor Alvan T. Fuller was literally that.

William Henry stalked down the corridor in front of their cells and informed them that the governor and his executive council had granted an opportunity to their counsel to make one last fight before the state courts to save them from the yawning chair in the room beyond. They were doomed to die a few minutes past twelve o'clock.

Outside the prison were more than 800 police and state troopers, armed and vigilant. Behind a "deadline" were bristling machine guns and flaring searchlights. The presence attested to the fears and the precautions against trouble that the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti entailed. In Boston itself and far beyond in New York, London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow, all over the world, were innumerable thousands waiting word of their death. Probably no other condemned murderers of the history of the world left such a waiting audience, or had so many thousands wrought up over their impending passing.

Stay for Madeiros
The respite from death, agreed upon by the governor, and his council after hours of debate that continued to within the very shadow of the chair, also brought twelve more days of life to Celestino Madeiros, the Portuguese murderer. The law thus far, however, has not elected to believe Madeiros. Nevertheless, it was decided he should have twelve days more of life. It is a pure gift for the Portuguese, for nobody is making any fight for him.

The men had been garbed for the death chair when the news came. They wore the gray trousers and blue and white shirts with short sleeves. All were resigned to their going. Sacco, weak from his 25 days of hunger striking, lay on his cot, his eyes closed. Madeiros, strong and more philosophical, rested quietly. Madeiros, the Portuguese, mumbled in his cell. Occasionally Vanzetti would break into a low song in which his companions of the adjacent cells joined. The song was "Memories."

"Boys," said Warden Hendry, "the governor has given you a respite until August 22. Now I want you to be men, and I want you to eat."

This last was directed at Sacco, who for 25 days has refused food, although it was meant for Vanzetti, too. The fish peddler has eaten only intermittently for a month. Madeiros, for whom no fight is being made and over whose execution there is no hue and cry, has eaten regularly, and everything offered him.

Vanzetti Glad
There was silence in the cells for a few moments after the warden made his announcement. Then a sign from the weakened Sacco, as his companion, Vanzetti, spoke.

"I am glad," said Vanzetti, simply. "I want to see my sister before I die."

He referred to the sister from the little town of his nativity in Italy, who is trying to get to America to see her brother before the law takes his life.

There was another low song from the cells after the warden's footsteps died away in the death corridor. The song was "Mother o' Mine."

Cheers from Crowd
The news of the respite was received quietly enough by the men who were resigned to death. But to their families, and to the hundreds of their friends who have flocked to Boston to protest their execution, it was different. There were cheers from those who had been arrested earlier in the day for picking the State House in their behalf. They went to court today with light hearts to answer charges of sauntering and loitering. While there's life there's hope.

Mrs. Sacco was in a state of collapse when the news was brought. She had bade her husband good bye at the prison yesterday and hurried away to the home of

Rockville
ROCKVILLE CLOSES
UP FOR THE DAY

Chamber of Commerce Goes to Rocky Point—Doctor O'Loughlin Set Own Arm.

(Special to The Herald.)
Rockville, August 11.—Rockville was closed tight today, that is as far as it is possible taking into consideration drug stores and a few other such lines. All of the chain stores located here also agreed to close, this being an unusual action so there was little in the way of business. Those who took the trip with the Chamber of Commerce to Rocky Point started by automobile early in the morning and those who did not go to the shore with the Chamber took the day to visit in other places.

Set His Own Arm.
Dr. T. F. O'Loughlin, who fell and broke his left arm a week ago is able to get around and drive his car, although carrying his arm in a sling. When he fell and caused the break he secured the assistance of one of the men near where the accident occurred and with both standing toe to toe they pulled until the break snapped back into place. An X-ray was taken and showed the bones in the arm had properly set. Splinters were placed on the broken section, which is above the elbow and aside from the pain, which is more noticeable on wet days, he is able to continue his practice without much trouble.
Burglars Not Caught.
There has been places entered at different times that have not been mentioned by the press. Last week a number of boys were given a hearing in chambers because of money being stolen in small amounts and also small articles taken from different schools, but the jobs that older people have been considered to be responsible for have not been cleared up. A couple was taken into custody early in the week and questioned, but there was nothing that indicated

Cleaning up Almshouse.
There was one place in the city that was not closed today and that was the Vernon almshouse. The new superintendent was working about the building, making repairs and getting work done, which, because of his ability as a mechanic and a general handy man he is able to do himself. The painters were at work in the section used as a residential, tearing off paper and already have three of the rooms recovered and painted and are putting things back in such a way as to add greatly to the appearance of the place.
Plans for Fair
In the decision of the directors of the Rockville Fair Association in having the date of the fair set ahead about a month earlier than in previous years, bringing the dates to the latter part of August and the first part of September, they are assured of more entries to different events than usual, as the people will be moving on to Hartford and the local fair will benefit by the change.
The dates for the evening performances are to be August 29, 30, 31 and September 1. During the afternoons the fair will be open from August 30 to Sept. 1, giving four nights an extra day.
The dates of entries for horse racing will close on August 24 and this will be taken care of by G. M.
Burk, who will see that owners of good horses are given blankets for their entry. The big prize is $1,000 hung up for the 2:12 trot and in the other seven events there will be first prizes of $500 each. Already all of the rooms under the grand stand have been taken for display, which includes merchants and manufacturers and also fruits, flowers and other farm produce. All cattle entered in the fair this year must be tuberculin tested, to prevent spread of disease while the cattle are being held here on exhibition. There will be bands to furnish music each afternoon and orchestras will provide music for dancing that will be held on a new platform to be built so there can be dancing each evening. There will be eight acts of vaudeville each day in addition to the many other attractions.

Tuesday.
Police guards at many of the public and office buildings and subway and elevated railway stations in the downtown section of Brooklyn were doubled, and extra policemen were stationed at the Federal building, the Interborough subway station beneath it, the Court House,
Hall of Records, Borough Hall, federal buildings and other large structures in that section. Deputy United States marshals were added to the police guard in the federal building.

Basel, Switzerland, Aug. 11.—
The police are searching today for persons who exploded a time bomb in a tramway station in the federal city last night, injuring 5 persons, one seriously. The bombing took place while Radicals were staging a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration in an adjoining square.
DEPUTY WOUNDED
Amsterdam, Aug. 11.—Communist Deputy Visser was wounded today during a clash between the police and Sacco-Vanzetti sympatizers.
The police were forced to intervene in Sacco-Vanzetti mass meetings at the Hague and Rotterdam.
PARIS PRESS BITTER
Paris, Aug. 11.—"They may live!" was the flaring headline over the story from Boston that the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti had been delayed, printed in an extra edition of Communist newspaper
Humanite early today.
The newspaper added: "Governor Fuller has retreated before the world-wide reprobation. The working classes will now prevent the assassination of two innocent men."
Communist Deputy Visser's Courturier write in an editorial:
"Sacco and Vanzetti must not go to the death chair. We must snatch these two innocent men from the Massachusetts prison."
RUSSIA EXCITED
Moscow, Aug. 11.—The official Soviet newspaper Pravda today threatened the judge who sentenced Sacco and Vanzetti to "similar destruction," saying:
"The proletarians have learned from the capitalist how to kill scientifically. Some day the workers will place Judge Thayer and others in the same chair in which Communists die."

friends. Her small daughter, Inez, who is severely bored after her arrest, cried most of the evening because, the friends said, she "felt" something was happening.
Today, the condemned men were to leave the grim, bare cells of the state prison for the comparatively cheerful cells in the Cherry Hill section where ordinary criminals are confined. All Boston believes, however, that they will be back in those same death cells by the 22nd of August.
OUT OF DEATH HOUSE
Boston, Mass., Aug. 11.—While the other inmates of the state prison at Charlestown were eating their dinner at noon today, Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted slayers of a South Braintree paymaster, whose impending execution has aroused world wide attention, were led from the death house at the prison to the Cherry Hill section, where they were placed in the cells they formerly occupied there.
Celestino Madeiros, Portuguese murderer, who confessed to the crime for which Sacco and Vanzetti stand convicted, was also moved back to his former cell.
The three convicted men were led to the Cherry Hill section under guard through the yard of the jail and into the west wing.
Sacco, who today entered the 26th day of his hunger strike, was able to walk from the death house to the other section of the prison without assistance. He was also able to walk up the stairs leading into the prison without aid.
When the three prisoners reached their cells their lunch was placed before them. Sacco again refused to touch food but Vanzetti drank his coffee and partook of a small portion of food. Madeiros disposed of everything placed in front of him.
The march back to the Cherry Hill section was a silent one neither of the three prisoners having anything to say.

REPORTER DEPORTED
Mexico City, Aug. 11.—According to local press dispatches from the interior, Joseph Decoursey, correspondent of a New York newspaper, was deported to the United States today via Laredo.
Reports stated that Decoursey was arrested yesterday and was being deported under Article 33 of the Mexican Constitution which provides for the expelling of "pernicious foreigners." He had been a correspondent in Mexico for more than twelve years.

Justice are making a thorough investigation of the fatal clash.

NEW HUNGER STRIKER
IN BOSTON PRISONS
Boston, Mass., Aug. 11.—This city had a new "hunger striker" this afternoon.
He is Moses W. Gurkin of Schenectady, N. Y.
Gurkin was brought into Federal Court charged with unlawfully wearing a uniform of the United Army. He had been arrested last night charged with disturbing the peace during a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration. His case on that charge was placed on file.
When brought into Federal Court
he declared he would not touch food or drink until he was released.
He will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Jenney today this afternoon on the federal charge.

HOLD RED SUSPECTS
Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 11.—Two Russians and three other persons were arrested here today, charged with having attempted to bomb the American consulate last night.
The bomb exploded in a pile of lumber near the consulate and did little damage. Police believe Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers were responsible for the act.

RACE OVER OCEAN
STARTS TOMORROW

requisite inspection of his plane and equipment.
Two Killed
The tragic death of two Dole entrants—Lieuts. George Covell and Richard Waggener—whose freak monoplane crashed into a cliff side at Point Loma, near San Diego, was the first casualty of the perilous flight. Only a miracle, however, can thwart further fatalities, it was believed, as the chances of all twelve planes crossing successfully the vast expanse of ocean and landing safely on the tiny mid-Pacific isles, are extremely hazardous.

Major Livingston Irving, the first flyer to enter the Dole flight and the first airman to have his airplane on the starting line, was today the first pilot to be passed officially by government inspectors. Scrupulous tests of all navigating and radio equipment and of the planes themselves are being made by Department of Commerce examiners. In addition, the pilots and navigators are required to qualify in individual tests.

One Lonely Flyer
Selection of a navigator by Art
Goebel, one of the two Oklahoma flyers, today made it appear likely that Irving will be the only man to fly alone in the long trans-Pacific hop. Goebel picked up Lieut. William Davis stationed at San Diego naval base, to be his flight companion. Davis has asked Washington for leave of absence.

The following shows the planes entered in the race, the pilots, the navigators and the position in which they will line up at the barrier:
Oklahoma, D. Griffin; Al Henley.
El Encanto, Norman Goddard;
Kenneth Hawkins.
City of Peoria, Charles Parkhurst; R. Lower.
Miss Doran, Augy Pedlar, M.
Lawing and Mildred Doran, passenger.

Dallas Spirit, William Erwin, navigator.
Detroit Messenger, Frederick
Giles, navigator unnamed.
Pacific Flyer, Livingston Irving, flying alone.

Fride of Los Angeles, Captain J.
Gifford Lundgren.
Woolarov, Art Goebel; Lieut.
William Davis.
Aloha, Martin Jensen; P. Schlutter.
Monoplane, O. V. Rogers; L.
Bryant.

San Francisco Examiner's Golden Eagle, Jack Frost; G. Scott.
Two entries were scratched—those of Robert Fowler, who was unable to get a plane; and of Frank Clark, who withdrew to attempt new endurance flight record.

The fifteenth entrant was Lieut.
George Covell whose "upside-down" monoplane was wrecked killing him and his navigator on it flight from San Diego to the starting line.

ACTRESS FREED.
Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 11.—
Irene Presnakoff, known in films as Irene Preston, was at liberty today following a week's imprisonment in the county jail where she had been held on a charge of shooting her husband, Idor Presnakoff, former Russian army officer, now a film actor.

Mrs. Presnakoff, who was taken ill in jail, was released on her promise to appear when her case is called a week hence.
Juvenile authorities have made application to have the couple's six-year-old daughter designated a ward of the juvenile court.

Presnakoff said his wife shot him when he refused to return to her.

"MOTH GIRL" REFORMS.
San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 11.—
Dorothy Ellington, the "Moth Girl," who is serving a term in a San Quentin prison for killing her mother following her mother's denial of permission to attend a dance, has completely reformed, according to a letter written by the girl to her attorney, Alexander Mooslin here.

"I see where I have erred and I'm paying dearly for my wrongs," she wrote. "With the help of God
I am looking forward to a glorious future after I have finished my prison term," she concluded.

NEW LEGAL MOVES TO SAVE RADICALS

the judge. Judge Thayer, in days gone by was a star infielder for the Dartmouth college baseball nine.
Justices Notified
If Judge Sanderson decides he has the "power and duty," the exceptions will go to the full bench.
Five justices within reach of Boston were notified by telegram today to be in readiness to sit here on Monday.

Gov. Alvan T. Fuller in granting the respite until midnight, August 22, said the courts had no power to give one, and that he was so acting to afford the court an opportunity to complete the consideration of the proceedings now pending." The governor was said to be of the opinion that Sacco and Vanzetti have had a fair trial, and that the course of the law has been halted too long already. However, he took into consideration the plea of Defense Counsel Hill that more time should be given for the consideration and deciding of various new motions.

The governor's respite was endorsed by the executive council, although two councilors were understood to have been against an other delay.

First Moves Fall
The first moves to carry the case to the federal courts failed.
Writs of habeas corpus were sought of Judge George A. Sanderson of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court. The latter held an ex parte hearing at his Beverly Farms summer home.

Both federal judges held that under the law they could not act, warranting interference with the state courts.

Gov. Fuller's secretary, Herman
Mac Donald, emphasized to Sacco and Vanzetti defense committees who sought to have the governor intervene on the grounds of humanity that as a law officer the chief executive could be concerned only with the legal phase of the case.

DEATH OF
MRS. CHARLOTTE WILLIAMS.
Mrs. Charlotte Griswold Williams, widow of John F. Williams, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William H. Corbin, of 177 Collins street, Hartford, Tuesday morning, will be remembered as the mother of Clinton Williams of Tolland Turnpike and sister of the late Deacon Henry Griswold of Oakland street. Her husband was uncle of John M. Williams of Hudson street.

Mrs. Williams was 92 years old.
She was born in Manchester in January 1835, and spent the greater part of her life here. She has made her home with her daughter in Hartford for more than thirty years and has been an invalid for some years past.

She also leaves two other sons,
Frank H. Williams of Everett, Mass., and George H. Williams of East Hartford; eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mrs. Williams will be held at 3 p. m. Friday in the mortuary chapel in the Buckland cemetery.

discussing the question as to the grading, the probable cost for the job but that is as near as they got to the question for it never reached a vote when the meeting was opened.

On the desk, used in school session by the teacher, were found many small pieces of paper, later to be used as ballots, and close to these was the "ballot box," which was nothing less than a nice new peck measure.

At 8:10 Harley Palmer called the meeting to order and called the attention of the meeting that the first business was to elect a moderator. It was pretty well understood that Arthur E. Manning was to be nominated as moderator and as the meeting opened and nominations were called for naming and from the back of the hall was presented the name of Robert McLaughlin while Sidney Hagenow from a front seat placed in nomination Irving Keeney.

This meant a contest so the committee named James Rohan and Thomas N. Prentice as tellers. They were given small pieces of paper from the desk and it seemed that all had come provided with pencils to make known their choice on each ballot.

A half peck measure and two quart measure were produced from under the desk and these were used by the tellers as they collected the ballots. As the votes were being taken James Rohan, one of the tellers, ruled that only those who came into the room could vote and there were a lot of men and women standing in the back and hallway that were soon crowded into the room.

First Blood for Manning. All realized that this was going to be an important test for the position of moderator is an important one when the votes are close and in question. It is just like having a friend at court, as one of the voters expressed it. The votes being collected in the wooden measures they were spread upon the table and the count was started. It was seen by those in the front row that it was going to be close and Arthur Manning was scolded by some of his supporters because he would not vote for himself or for any other candidate. As the count was completed the clerk read the result:

Total number of votes cast	98
Necessary for a choice	48
Arthur Manning	46
Robert McLaughlin	34
Irving Keeney	8
Scattering	1

Arthur Manning had secured the exact number of votes required and took a chair behind the teacher's desk as the moderator. It is not amiss to state right here that Mr. Manning has presided at many school meetings that have been real hot, but he was never in better "form" than last night. His "knew his onions" and who the "onions" were and showed it. This at times caused debates between the chair and some of the voters on points of order, one being "the chair is talking too much." The "chair" admitted it, but the "others" were also talking and there was going to be order.

Object to Minutes. Frederick R. Manning as clerk was called upon to read the minutes of the previous meeting held on June 23. Arthur Loomis doubted if the minutes of an annual meeting could be read in a special meeting but was assured that they could and they were. In addition to this the clerk also read the minutes that had been presented to the district for calling the special meeting and the names of all who signed it.

Fight to Approve Minutes. The usual formality of approving the minutes as read brought out more trouble. In reading the minutes F. R. Manning said that under appropriations made that Harley Palmer had recommended $500 for current expenses, that it was amended to make the amount $200, but not seconded, that another amendment presented to make the amount $4,000 was not voted down and the question came back to the original motion providing for an appropriation of $500 and when a paper ballot was spread, the motion was carried.

Louis Lane Objects. Louis Lane objected to the acceptance of the minutes and wanted to strike out the section about $500 being appropriated and claimed that it was only $200. The chair left it to the Herald reporter who informed the meeting that the notes taken at the meeting, as then recalled, did make the appropriation $500. Secretary Manning also had his original notes with him and said that it was $500. A check made of the files of The Herald after the meeting showed this was the amount appropriated for current expenses although Louis Lane was willing to bet that it was wrong.

The chair decided different and that settled it. This resulted in a little more than usual noise being caused in the back of the room and the chair called for order. He in formed those making noise that there was going to be order even though someone had to get out of the room, "even if it is myself." He was getting angry. It was suggested that a check list vote be taken to see if this could not be stricken from the records, but it was pointed out that all that was had was a property list, to check from and "didn't know if it made much difference." A vote was taken by voice and the minutes were approved as read and placed on file.

Fun Outside. The attempt to keep order was hard. In addition to the voters of the district there were several outside visitors who stood at the windows looking in. The back yard of the school was filled with automobiles and it was pretty stuffy inside. In the back of the hall was more noise which prompted the chair to remark: "if you want fun if you want to get through it tonight." He was telling the truth about it as it was then getting late and aside from electing a moderator no other section of the call had been reached.

Killed a Joker. The second section of the call, evidently placed in the call as a joker, read "To see if the district will vote to consolidate with the town school system." Mrs. Louise Schmidt, Prentice, a former school teacher, was the only one to talk on this question. It was brief and to the point saying: "In view of the fact that this district is a part of the present town school system and that the proposed consolidation is not yet in existence, I move that we table the matter of consolidation." This is the only motion that was presented during the night and was not opposed, being passed without a vote in opposition.

The Fatal Stab. The next motion did not mince matters to any great degree. It was presented by Edward Keeney and he furnished a copy to the clerk. It read: "I move that we rescind the former vote which gave the committee of this district the authority to employ counsel." The chair had a different idea about it, feeling that to take such action would make the district responsible for any service rendered and that would have to be paid up to date.

Manning Filibustering. It was then that F. R. Manning arose to talk. He started in by telling the gathering that he was not going to use law expressions that might be hard for them to understand, but wanted them to know just what had been done in the defense of the suit against the district brought by Arthur Loomis and Amie Demars. The first document he would read, he said, would be "brief" which meant in legal circles a general summing up of the statements that the lawyers in the case made in the way of an argument why they should win. This also gave the lawyers time to present authorities for the judges to refer to and took particular attention in making reference to cases in the Thirty-third Connecticut statutes, section 298 which was a comparison, he said, in many ways to a school question once before ruled on by the supreme court and the duties of the officers and the work that they could do under the law.

As he continued reading he took "left handed" compliments to several in the district, giving particular attention to Arthur Loomis and to Amie Demars. There was twenty-one long typewritten pages in his brief, or in the brief prepared by the associates in the case. He continued to read although several appeals were made to the chair that he was not talking on the question, but the chair ruled that he had the floor. For thirty-five minutes he read on, reading also the reply that had been filed and ended by reading the findings of Judge Malloy, who in his statement in granting judgment to Mr. Loomis and Mr. Demars finished by saying that he had visited the school and found "feeling and more co-operation would bring better results."

As Attorney Manning finished reading he started to explain just what had been done. "How much has it cost, what will it cost?" and a lot of other such remarks were thrown at him. "Mr. Manning has the chair" came from the moderator. "What about the bill already contracted, how much is it?" came the questions.

Attorney Manning said he did not know. If he knew what the officer's fees amounted to he could soon tell. He had heard reports that the bill was up to $600, while from other places he had learned that it was only $200. This prompted Amie Demars to reply, "Mr. Hyde told me that Pierce and Pierce had a bill of about $100 and would have about that much again, that the costs already were about $100 now and would be another hundred and you will get about $200 more and if that don't make $600 I can't figure."

"I have heard those stories and I have also heard that to carry it to the supreme court would cost too much. I have no mean motives in this case," Attorney Manning replied, "but I'll tell you what I will, then I get paid a fair fee from the district." "We'll margin with you," replied Mr. Demars. "You pay the costs charged against the district up to date and we will go to the supreme court with you, now that's our side." The question called for at this point and the vote was taken, Arthur Loomis and Frederick Manning being the watchers. The tellers passed and collected the ballots which showed the following results:

Total number of votes cast	98
Necessary for a choice	50
Yes	48
No	49
Scattering	1

The scattering vote was marked "maybe" and Manning was just under the required 50 votes.

A new vote was ordered taken and as this was done the meeting had been in session just two hours and had not finished with the third section of the sixteen proposed.

Manning Wins. On the second ballot Manning was the winner. The result: Total number of votes cast 101 Necessary for a choice 52 Yes (F. R. Manning) 52 No 49 Scattering 1 Manning had secured the exact number of votes cast to win and there were claims made that the ballot was stuffed. There was again disorder in the back of the hall. Claims were made that a person not entitled to vote had cast a ballot and that a woman had deposited an extra vote.

Chair Takes Stand. At this point the moderator took the floor and announced that there was going to be a ruling made and that the ruling was going to stand. If there was going to be any more trouble someone would leave the hall, even if he was that one and if a person was interested in the school and the children they would do what was right, help along and try and get the matter straightened out. This brought Louis Lane to his feet with the statement "I'm the collector of this district and why don't you pay your taxes. You should be ashamed of yourself to go on talking that way when you have not paid your taxes. I'm ashamed of you."

"Well I've said it, haven't I," was the chair's reply. At this time Mrs. Prentice again took the floor. There were sobs in her voice and she leaned a little forward as she said: "Friend, we are the laughing stock of the town. You don't hate anybody here, I don't hate anybody, but because a long standing spite exists here, we will have to pay out our good money. For the money that the lawyers will cost we could have had many more improvements in the school. As it is we get nothing for our money. The thing for us to do is to settle everything now, tonight, pay our bills and be a united district. Then if anybody wants to cooperate in the fight let them do it at their own expense."

This brought roars of applause, but the troubled waters were not settled for then came the motion: "I move that the district dispense with the service of Frederick R. Manning and his assistants as counsel for the district."

Another Vote. Another vote was ordered taken. It was explained that a vote of yes would mean that Frederick Manning would not be the district's collector and that "no" meant that he would be continued. Only one vote was taken. It resulted as follows:

Whole number of votes cast	99
Necessary for a choice	50
Yes	48
No	51

Frederick R. Manning had won again, just by one vote, but he had won.

There was rejoicing and feelings that were no joyful. Harry England from outside of the district had voted. It was claimed. It did not make any difference, but Fred Manning had done some work for him and therefore he must have been voting for Manning. He was accused of it. An argument started. Suit was threatened and the hallways were blocked. They talked to each other through the open windows. "You can only find the $30 at the back," came back the one accused of having voted "out of turn" and "I have got that much fun out of it. It's better than a show."

The Climax. The end came a few minutes later. The section empowering the district to pay bills contracted by Arthur Loomis while he was committeeman was before the meeting. Someone was trying to get through a resolution that there be no further costs if the district lost when Harley Palmer gained the attention of the floor to remark that there was one bill, presented by Francis E. Lee for work as a auditor, which was not needed and was for $150 which he would never pay.

The chairman turned to his "supreme court" and asked a question when Amie Demars moved that the meeting adjourn. The motion was all over. Eleven sections had not been reached. No power was given to grade the law. Nothing was done about the new school or a new site. Nothing was discussed about it. The bills by giving notes for was question of getting a statement as to the debt together and report back to a later meeting, as was included in the call and at 10:35 when the meeting adjourned, the building, there was a real happy time being enjoyed by those not concerned held in the school yard. The dove of peace here flew and now somebody is going to be arrested or something like that, unless somebody finds they are wrong and will not make charges of stuffing the ballot box or making other claims.

The Fifth is still fighting.

statements that the lawyers in the case made in the way of an argument why they should win. As he continued reading he took "left handed" compliments to several in the district, giving particular attention to Arthur Loomis and to Amie Demars. There was twenty-one long typewritten pages in his brief, or in the brief prepared by the associates in the case. He continued to read although several appeals were made to the chair that he was not talking on the question, but the chair ruled that he had the floor. For thirty-five minutes he read on, reading also the reply that had been filed and ended by reading the findings of Judge Malloy, who in his statement in granting judgment to Mr. Loomis and Mr. Demars finished by saying that he had visited the school and found "feeling and more co-operation would bring better results."

As Attorney Manning finished reading he started to explain just what had been done. "How much has it cost, what will it cost?" and a lot of other such remarks were thrown at him. "Mr. Manning has the chair" came from the moderator. "What about the bill already contracted, how much is it?" came the questions.

Attorney Manning said he did not know. If he knew what the officer's fees amounted to he could soon tell. He had heard reports that the bill was up to $600, while from other places he had learned that it was only $200. This prompted Amie Demars to reply, "Mr. Hyde told me that Pierce and Pierce had a bill of about $100 and would have about that much again, that the costs already were about $100 now and would be another hundred and you will get about $200 more and if that don't make $600 I can't figure."

"I have heard those stories and I have also heard that to carry it to the supreme court would cost too much. I have no mean motives in this case," Attorney Manning replied, "but I'll tell you what I will, then I get paid a fair fee from the district." "We'll margin with you," replied Mr. Demars. "You pay the costs charged against the district up to date and we will go to the supreme court with you, now that's our side." The question called for at this point and the vote was taken, Arthur Loomis and Frederick Manning being the watchers. The tellers passed and collected the ballots which showed the following results:

Total number of votes cast	98
Necessary for a choice	50
Yes	48
No	49
Scattering	1

The scattering vote was marked "maybe" and Manning was just under the required 50 votes.

A new vote was ordered taken and as this was done the meeting had been in session just two hours and had not finished with the third section of the sixteen proposed.

Manning Wins. On the second ballot Manning was the winner. The result: Total number of votes cast 101 Necessary for a choice 52 Yes (F. R. Manning) 52 No 49 Scattering 1 Manning had secured the exact number of votes cast to win and there were claims made that the ballot was stuffed. There was again disorder in the back of the hall. Claims were made that a person not entitled to vote had cast a ballot and that a woman had deposited an extra vote.

Chair Takes Stand. At this point the moderator took the floor and announced that there was going to be a ruling made and that the ruling was going to stand. If there was going to be any more trouble someone would leave the hall, even if he was that one and if a person was interested in the school and the children they would do what was right, help along and try and get the matter straightened out. This brought Louis Lane to his feet with the statement "I'm the collector of this district and why don't you pay your taxes. You should be ashamed of yourself to go on talking that way when you have not paid your taxes. I'm ashamed of you."

"Well I've said it, haven't I," was the chair's reply. At this time Mrs. Prentice again took the floor. There were sobs in her voice and she leaned a little forward as she said: "Friend, we are the laughing stock of the town. You don't hate anybody here, I don't hate anybody, but because a long standing spite exists here, we will have to pay out our good money. For the money that the lawyers will cost we could have had many more improvements in the school. As it is we get nothing for our money. The thing for us to do is to settle everything now, tonight, pay our bills and be a united district. Then if anybody wants to cooperate in the fight let them do it at their own expense."

This brought roars of applause, but the troubled waters were not settled for then came the motion: "I move that the district dispense with the service of Frederick R. Manning and his assistants as counsel for the district."

Another Vote. Another vote was ordered taken. It was explained that a vote of yes would mean that Frederick Manning would not be the district's collector and that "no" meant that he would be continued. Only one vote was taken. It resulted as follows:

Whole number of votes cast	99
Necessary for a choice	50
Yes	48
No	51

Frederick R. Manning had won again, just by one vote, but he had won.

There was rejoicing and feelings that were no joyful. Harry England from outside of the district had voted. It was claimed. It did not make any difference, but Fred Manning had done some work for him and therefore he must have been voting for Manning. He was accused of it. An argument started. Suit was threatened and the hallways were blocked. They talked to each other through the open windows. "You can only find the $30 at the back," came back the one accused of having voted "out of turn" and "I have got that much fun out of it. It's better than a show."

The Climax. The end came a few minutes later. The section empowering the district to pay bills contracted by Arthur Loomis while he was committeeman was before the meeting. Someone was trying to get through a resolution that there be no further costs if the district lost when Harley Palmer gained the attention of the floor to remark that there was one bill, presented by Francis E. Lee for work as a auditor, which was not needed and was for $150 which he would never pay.

The chairman turned to his "supreme court" and asked a question when Amie Demars moved that the meeting adjourn. The motion was all over. Eleven sections had not been reached. No power was given to grade the law. Nothing was done about the new school or a new site. Nothing was discussed about it. The bills by giving notes for was question of getting a statement as to the debt together and report back to a later meeting, as was included in the call and at 10:35 when the meeting adjourned, the building, there was a real happy time being enjoyed by those not concerned held in the school yard. The dove of peace here flew and now somebody is going to be arrested or something like that, unless somebody finds they are wrong and will not make charges of stuffing the ballot box or making other claims.

The Fifth is still fighting.

HIST! BURIED GOLD! HUNT AT PLAYGROUND

Treasure-Search Saturday at North End—All Boys and Girls to Take Part.

The mention of "hidden treasure" or "pirate gold," is generally enough to bring all those with the red blood of adventure running through their veins to a "stand still," especially among the youngsters. This will be the case Saturday morning on the North End Playground when Director Washington and Miss Helen Moriarty will bring the boys and girls together and with the aid of a map they will be given an inkling as to the whereabouts of the treasure. When within some one hundred odd yards from the actual spot the trail will be given and everybody will be on his own initiative as a treasure seeker must bring to bear all his or her powers of observation as to what peculiar tendency might have that is the "map" came back the one accused of having voted "out of turn" and "I have got that much fun out of it. It's better than a show."

FASHIONS FOR FALL FEATURE FINE FURS

Simplicity of line is the outstanding feature of advanced fur coat fashions for the fall and winter of 1927-28. In general the styles are appealing, youthful in appearance and practical for New England winters, as forecast by Rubilnow's Garment Fashion Center.

New style items are Queen Anne, Elizabethan and shawl collars, that ripple down the front of the garment in a new way, while the popular crush collars are used on many of the season's models. "Pod-eva" calfskin seems to lead the list of novelty furs. Luxurious, graceful, straight-line coats are developed in a variety of furs, including muskrat, marmot, coon, caracul and other furs, while German Fitch, kolinsky, fox sable and ermine are used as a trimming for both fur, cloth and rich velvet evening coats. Some of the fabric coats are lavishly trimmed with fur coats are lavishly trimmed with fur, while the evening garments employ the wide Chinaman's cuff of white fox or other white furs.

HOPELESS

Probably never, unless in the midst of some period of national peril, like the Civil war, will the United States courts sustain a claim that a commonwealth of the Union has so deliberately refused constitutional rights to a person charged with a crime as to warrant issue of habeas corpus by the federal authority.

The whole tremendous question of state sovereignty is involved. Even so important a case as that of Sacco and Vanzetti would never be likely to be regarded as justifying the establishing of precedents which conceivably might arise to torture the nation a thousand times more seriously than the condemned men, the authorities of Massachusetts and a large part of the American public have been tortured by this agonizing affair.

Even if injustice is being done to Sacco and Vanzetti—which nobody of intelligence claims to be certain or more than possible—it is surely better that two lives should be sacrificed than that the vast machinery of organized society, under which more than a hundred and ten million persons live, should be upset and our system of government cast into chaos and turmoil.

It is some such theory as this, no doubt, which brought yesterday's prompt refusal of two federal judges, one of them a supreme court justice famed for the liberality of his views, to intervene in the Bay State tragedy.

So far as the courts of Massachusetts are concerned it would be beyond reason to expect any action changing the status of the case. Governor Fuller's action in granting a new respite was apparently for the purposes of the record—and wisely taken.

For if there is any further move possible on the part of defense counsel, after the claims of trial error are heard by the full bench of the Massachusetts supreme court, it is as yet unsuspected; thus time seems to have been allowed for every possible, if useless, measure of defense to be employed.

If the convicted men had been put to death last night there would have been no end to the assertions, afterward, that they were denied even the normal opportunities of relief that otherwise would have been open to them.

Nothing would be more astonishing, however, than action from the state court otherwise than unfavorable to Sacco and Vanzetti. For them there would appear to be but one narrow chance—commutation of sentence to imprisonment for life.

That such an extension of mercy by Governor Fuller is likely under the circumstances few will believe. There is no question whatever that the governor honestly believes these men guilty beyond the shadow of doubt. The feeling held by so many outsiders, that there is still some element of uncertainty, is not, obviously, shared by the governor or his advisory commission; and the prisoners would have the benefit of it. Holding that belief, Mr. Fuller undoubtedly will conceive it to be his unescapable duty to let the law take its course—and that duty he will perform at whatever cost.

Seemingly this respite can have no effect but to prolong the tension and add twelve more days to the spiritual wretchedness into which this case has plunged so many people all over the world.

It is worth while, however, to ponder on how utterly impossible this whole miserable complication would have been if the affair had had its locale in some one of those several states which have done away with the death penalty.

LAKE MONOPOLY The protest of this newspaper against the monopolization of Connecticut lakes by combinations of private owners, who jointly exclude the public, finds a seconder in the Meriden Journal, which points out that the same fate has already befallen the formerly open seashores of Connecticut.

"Many can recall," says the Journal, "when the Connecticut shores of Long Island Sound were open to the public. Today the waterfront is practically all private property in a sense that the general public is excluded. A striking exception is Hammonasset, where the state has stepped in and saved a beach for the people of the commonwealth."

"The growing tendency of making lakes 'private' has been noted throughout Connecticut with several examples near Meriden. Fine inland bodies of water that once were frequented by Meridenites at will now are practically barred to the public or soon will be through action of property holders."

"What to do about it is a great question. The editor of the Herald believes the state should step in and hold lakes for the use of the people as a whole, as was done on the Sound. Nice in theory but there must come a limit eventually to state reservations. The best the state can probably do is to establish a Lake Hammonasset or several of them and let the public crowd in."

The Herald is rejoiced to find its neighbor approving this newspaper's position even in principle. Perhaps the Journal would be more ready to advocate extensive state action if it were to reflect that by no means would it be necessary for the state to purchase or condemn either all or any great part of the land surrounding any lake in order to make the waters accessible to the people at large. The establishment of a state park with half a mile or even a quarter mile frontage on a lake whose total shoreline might be half a dozen or more miles would completely nullify the attempts of the handful of private owners to exclude the public from the waters, as well as at the same time providing ample park space. The average citizen does not need a square mile all to himself in order to enjoy outdoors. He is likely to be vastly content with a square rod of ground, plus the right to row or paddle or sail on a lake.

The acquisition of a portion of the shore of each of a large number of Connecticut lakes is far from being beyond the financial ability of the state. And it would turn the trick.

PLUMB WILD The New York Times affects to believe that the Republicans of the empire state are frightened to death at the Al Smith candidacy, now that President Coolidge has withdrawn from the forthcoming race, and that they are possessed of a desperate fear that no other Republican candidate except Charles Evans Hughes will be able to carry the state against the redoubtable governor.

How much the Times knows about the state of mind of Republicans, either in or out of New York, is pretty well evidenced by this statement in its editorial columns: "When word comes from Massachusetts and Connecticut and Illinois, as it has, that Governor Smith has a lead in those states over any Republican except the President, dark forebodings of 1928 begin to turn into a realistic funeral picture."

Whatever may be the situation in Massachusetts and Illinois, there never was a more utter piece of nonsense than to pretend that Al Smith would have a ghost of a show to carry Connecticut against any one of at least a dozen Republican candidates in this state, if by a miracle it should develop first class leadership right now, might become a ponderable force in a presidential election by about 1936, or possibly cut a respectable figure in the Congressional contest of 1934. But so far as 1928 is concerned there cannot possibly be enough of it, or enough organization effected, to put up even the shadow of a decent fight.

With Al Smith as their Presidential candidate next year, Connecticut Democrats would probably make a less lamentable showing than with any other standard bearer; but if they did as well as to poll half as many votes as the Republican candidate, whoever he may be, they would surpass all probabilities.

Only in one quite inconceivable circumstance would Smith have a 1-to-100 chance of carrying Connecticut in the coming Presidential contest, and that would be in case the Republican party went clean crazy and nominated a fanatic dolt. There is as much chance that they will nominate the man in the moon.

Whence comes the "word" to which the Times refers we can't even guess. Unless possibly that irrepressible star-eyed optimist Dave Fitzgerald, in a state of extraordinary hopefulness, may have been kidding himself even more enthusiastically than of yore.

BLOCKED The scheme for the resumption of the manufacture of whiskey, which somebody evidently put over on General Andrews and which was so formulated as to hand to a favored little group of distillers a handsome monopoly, has been dropped like a hot coal by Andrews' successor, Seymour Lowman. Mr. Lowman has announced that there is not, as Mr. Andrews was made to believe, any early prospect of a medicinal liquor shortage. The present bonded supply is sufficient, he finds, to last six or seven years.

As whiskey needs to be only four years old in order to be fit for use as medicine, it would appear that two years-hence will be soon enough to begin to store up new supplies.

Approval of Mr. Lowman's decision comes from a source which may surprise some of the dregs, who conceive everybody who favors liberal interpretation of the eighteenth amendment to be a friend of drunkenship. The Association Against Impure Liquor, consisting largely of physicians, applauds the determination not to begin manufacturing whiskey at this time.

At the same time the association declares its intention of going into the next Congress with a demand for release from restrictions which seriously interfere with the legitimate practice of medicine, one of which is the ridiculous regulation that not more than a half pint of liquor shall be prescribed at one time.

If the wets will play as fairly with the doctors as the doctors are playing with prohibition it will be a good thing—and an improbability will transpire into fact.

New York, Aug. 11.—Just about a year ago Willard Mack, who writes plays and puts them on Broadway, did a sort of Haroun-al-Rashid. That is to say, he went out among his people of the "main stem," looking them over—but particularly he wanted a certain type of young woman for a night club scene in "The Noose." So he went from place to place, and finally he saw one Ruby Stevens.

New-Ruby hadn't kidded herself a bit about the "great art" or about playing Ophelia some day. She had taken a job in the musical shows and when she didn't connect with the revues she danced in the night clubs. Mack started out by just wanting her to sit around among others in a stage carbarok—but

When his play opened all Broadway began to ask about a spectacular young actress by name of Barbara Stanwyck. No one had ever heard of her before and reviewers began to run through their "who's who."

The other day I noticed that Althus Hopkins, who is one of the most discriminating and artistic of Broadway's four hundred, had signed up this Barbara Stanwyck for his next season's production. "But lesque," and she'll have the lead.

As you may have guessed, Barbara and Ruby are one and the same. But for the accident of circumstances, Ruby would still be twinking her toes in the cabaret and Barbara would never have been born. And that's one reason why the old street will have its lure for lovely ladies for many a year after these old hands have ceased to write.

As we've said before, Tin Pan Alley passes nothing up. Now it's a "comedy song," titled "Since Henry Ford Apologized to Me." Billy Rose, who grinds them out by the yard, takes the blame.

Speaking of things to blame on people—there has been considerable chatter lately on the question of who invented the Charleston. That craze of yesterday is now sufficiently aged to demand a historian who announces radio programs and things, claims to have proof that the originator was one Lida Webb; and while the Charleston is now passe even with street urchins it was undoubtedly the most popular rage of recent years.

As for Lida—well, she just goes on dancing. Not long ago I saw her, still at the Cotton Club, out in Harlem. And when I write her name down here no one will recall having heard it before, and having heard it, few will remember it a week hence.

Of such flimsy stuff are the vogues of a season!

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER Washington, Aug. 11.—If you must have inspiration with your reading, you might do worse than to study the autobiography of the Honorable J. Thomas Hefflin, senator from Alabama.

For some reason or other, this remarkable tract has failed to be included in the list of books which every boy should read. But every boy who ever liked Horatio Alger would be enthusiastic over it.

The account is published by the New Menace and is entitled "Boyd-Hays Days of J. Thomas Hefflin, United States Senator from Alabama (In His Own Words)." Book reviewers have paid little attention to it, so the job seems to be up to your correspondent.

Responsibility for the Hefflin oratory apparently may be laid to the schools which served his birthplace of Louisa, Ala., where, at the age of 10, the future statesman was forced to declaim every Friday afternoon. He got to like it.

Liked Home 'Dog Music. Contemporaneously, young Hefflin "helped to plant the cotton and cultivate the growing plant, to pick the cotton when the fields were white with its fleecy fiber, gin it at his father's gin and haul it in wagon to the market places 30 miles away." He also milked cows.

His favorite sport was fox-hunting and he says that "It was music sweet to any real patriot's soul to hear the music of a pack of hounds as they moved in the wake of the Red Ranger."

"When 17 years old," the senator narrates, "I could chop as much cotton as any grown man and frequently I would lead the cotton chopping force of 25 or 30 cotton choppers."

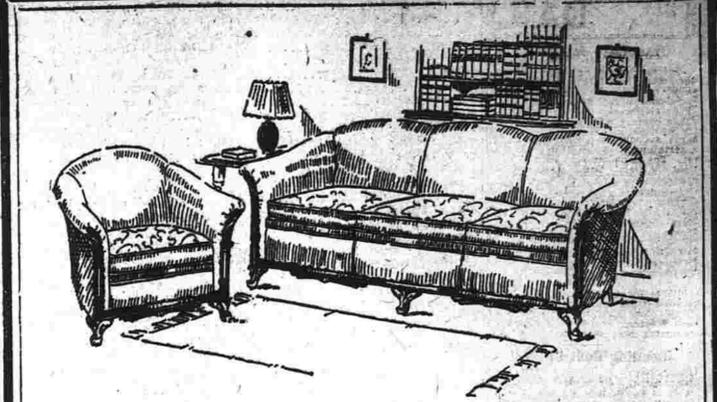

The senator admits that he once "plowed a steer" on his father's corn field and that boys and girls at the time and political enemies in later life sneered at him for it. But Hefflin adequately quotes defenders who upheld his course.

Hefflin tells how he supplied food for two poor families while keeping house for the family as the eldest son. Two pages are devoted to Old Man Crutchfield and to Hefflin's benefactions to him—how grateful the old fellow was to get some spare ribs one time, how Hefflin took a Christmas busy load of provisions to Old Man Crutchfield, what his father said in approving the act, and finally, how Hefflin slept in cotton seed one night, allowing Crutchfield to take his own bed in the crowded Hefflin home.

Here also is the story of how Hefflin learned to say his prayers, of how he learned to tell his famous negro stories by mimicking colored revival preachers, and of his first fight at school, in which he licked the school bully to a frazzle in two or three minutes. Under the bully had picked on a poor little country boy.

But let us quote an incident of Hefflin's early career in his own words: "We had a good cook, old Aunt Rose Danahely, but she had a bad temper and her bad temper brought me into a serious and difficult situation in a little while. One afternoon about sundown I heard my little sister screaming. I ran as rapidly as I could. I found her lying on the floor crying. I lifted her in my arms and asked what the trouble was and she told me Aunt Rose had slapped her."

"In less time than I can tell it, I seized a piece of wood about five feet long and struck Aunt Rose across the head and she danced a bee line across the room and fell to the floor. For a moment there was grim silence and nothing more. Then I commenced to shake Aunt Rose and tell her to get up, that I didn't intend to kill her. In a

HILTON-BROWN

Miss Margaret Brown, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Brown of Arch street, and Harry Hilton, of West Warren, Mass., were married last evening at 6 o'clock at the parsonage of the South Methodist church. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. Joseph Cooper. The bridal attendants were Miss Besse and William M. Brown, sister and brother of the bride. The bride's gown was of rose pink georgette crepe trimmed with tan lace, over pink satin with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses. The bridesmaid was attired in yellow and orchid georgette crepe. She wore a large black hat trimmed with orchid and carried an arm bouquet of Premier roses. Following the ceremony a supper for the relatives of the immediate families was served at the home of the bride's mother, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with ferns and a profusion of gladiolus. The table decorations were pink.

SPORTSMEN ANTICIPATE LAKE COMPOUNCE MEET

Manchester sportsmen are looking forward with interest to the second annual field day and outing of the Connecticut Fish and Game Clubs which will be held at Lake Compo, Bristol, on Saturday, September 3. An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

One of the entrances to a German hospital, tunneled under "Cornwall Hill" east of the Meuse.

(This is chapter 105 of the series of articles written by a former doughboy who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Herald.) CHAPTER CV. Anyway, those war-time Germans were good concrete mixers. And how they did toss the cement! All along the Hindenberg line, the Kriehilde Stellung were hundreds of pill boxes, machine gun nests and shelters—and many of these sturdy monuments are standing today where the members of the American Legion may see them on their visit to France in September. Up along the Chemin des Dames there's a Luge abutment, and except for a few rockmarks of bullets, it is as staunch as it was when it was built in 1915. The dugout of the Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria in the Argonne Forest on the road from Le Four de Paris to Varennes is in a perfect state of preservation. Near Avocourt, there is a line of seven hexagonal structures—machine gun nests—and there are others on the hill of Montfaucou, near the church in Baulny, and another in the Bois d'Ormont. Back of "Cornwall Hill" east of the Meuse River, in a German hospital, the entrances to which and the vaulted rooms under the hill are still well preserved. It was built in 1916. Not all of these concrete masterpieces of the defense systems which were taken in hand-to-hand combat by American troops are standing, however, for the "recuperateur" is gradually removing them from the landscapes. The "recuperateur" seeks the rusted iron around which the structures are built and his well-placed charges of dynamite quickly batter the monuments into bits. Where there once were hundreds, now there are but a few. One which was erected in 1918 to protect the railroad station at Romagne was dynamited just a few days ago. A rich Frenchman bought the property and will build a new home on the site. Some, however, far from the beaten paths, will always remain. These will mark those "permanent" lines of defense—built with the idea that the occupied territory was an absolute possession—the lines of defense that Americans took at the points of bayonets. And they will forever be monuments testifying to the fact that those war-time German privates were the best little concrete mixers in the world. TOMORROW: The Man Who Knows the Argonne.

Building Model Glider Easy; Here Are Full Instructions

Here is the first of a series of articles, especially prepared for The Herald by the Playground and Recreation Association of America, telling how to build and fly model airplanes. These articles will appear daily.

Before men flew in motored airplanes they flew in gliders. Willbur and Orville Wright spent years experimenting with engineless gliders before they began to use motors.

The builder of model airplanes will do well to follow this example. By building a glider and watching it in flight he will learn much that will be useful to him later on. Accordingly, today's article tells how to build a practical model glider.

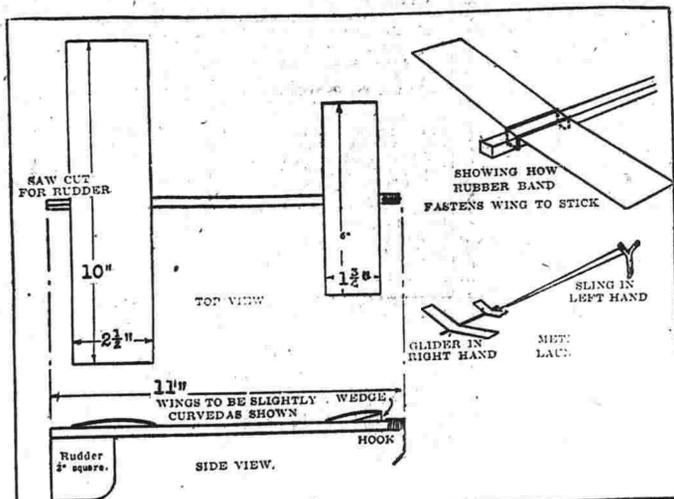

A glider, as everyone knows, is an airplane that coasts on the air. It has no engine; it stays aloft as a soaring bird, moving forward many feet while it is descending one. The length of the glide it can make depends on the speed and height with which it is launched and on the construction of the plane.

Small Plane in Front. Since a glider is designed to coast slowly forward and down, it has less lifting surface—in other words, a smaller plane—in front than behind.

Construction of such a glider is simple.

First of all, get a piece of wood one foot long and a quarter of an inch square. This wood should be as straight as possible. Get in addition a piece of stiff, thin cardboard—wood veneer is better—but harder to get—measuring 10 inches by 5 inches. The only other things you will need are a couple of small rubber bands and a piece of small stiff wire about two inches long.

Cut the wings from your piece of cardboard. The front wing is the smaller; it should be six inches by one and three-quarters inches. The other wing must be ten by two and one-half inches. Out of the remainaining cardboard cut a piece just two inches square, rounding off one corner. This is the rudder.

Then take your 12-inch stick. Cut an inch off one end and cut this piece in half diagonally, so as to make a thin wedge an inch long. Take the 11-inch piece and with a fine saw make a cut two inches long in one end. Glue your rudder into this slot, as shown in the accompanying diagram.

Take the little piece of wire and bend it into a hook, lashing it firmly to the other end of the stick as shown in the illustration. Your plane is now ready for its wings.

Put the wings on the stick as shown in the top view, with the big wing at the end where the rudder is. Fasten them to the stick with the rubber bands—the cut at the upper right-hand corner shows how this is done. Under the forward end of the smaller wing put the little wedge.

Your glider is now ready to fly. To launch it another device is needed, much like an old-fashioned sling shot. If possible, get the crotch of a small branch of a tree; or whittle one out of a side of a cigar box, so that it is shaped like a letter Y. To the ends of the prongs on the Y bind the ends of a strip of rubber one foot long. This can be made by linking rubber bands together or by cutting a strip from an old inner tube.

When you have built and flown your glider you are ready to start on regular planes with motors. Tomorrow's article will tell you how to make propellers.

In the illustration. Hold the hook over the rubber band, draw the plane back and let it go. With a little practice you will find it easy to send the glider on long flights.

Do not try to give the plane too hard a start. It is better to let it float gently instead of darting swiftly. You may need to adjust your plane by moving one or the other of the wings slightly. A few practice flights will show you the best position for them.

When you have built and flown your glider you are ready to start on regular planes with motors. Tomorrow's article will tell you how to make propellers.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (54) The Eskimos

The Eskimos knew nothing of the Pole, but they had mastered the art of living in barely supportable conditions and thus proved valuable teachers for the men of Elisha Kane's expedition. Kalutunah taught them how to hide behind the brow of a hill with an upraised sealskin net and trap the auks, a birds with which the Arctic teams at certain seasons.

Guided by Eskimos Kane found and named Kane Basin, fought his way into Kennedy Channel and passed north of Inglefield's record.

Kane always will remain famous for his great sledge journey when his ship, poorly provisioned, became fastened in the winter ice.

For the sledge journey men were sent ahead to deposit stores for the later party. Two of these perished of cold. When Kane set out he nearly met the fate which later befell Captain Scott, for his supplies ran short. Bears had topped aside the stores which had taken three men to place. The bears ate the food and smashed barrels of fuel.

MAYOR WALKER SAILS

New York, Aug. 11.—Mayor James J. Walker, Mrs. Walker and a party of friends called on the Berengaria early today for a six weeks' vacation tour of Europe. More than 300 city officials bade the mayor an affectionate farewell. Mayor Walker will visit London, Berlin, Hamburg, Venice, Rome and Paris. In Dublin he will visit the birthplace of his father and in Paris he will help General John J. Pershing open the American Legion convention.

MOUSE CATCHES FLIES

St. Joseph, Mo.—There is a fly-eating mouse in the union station here. F. E. Robertson, news stand manager, says he has seen it pouncing on flies on the station floor. Having made the capture, it stands on its hind feet and proceeds to devour the victim. The mouse keeps regular hunting hours. Robertson says.

LICENSES SUSPENDED

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out today at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are forty names on the list. Six cases were appealed. Six were Connecticut operators convicted in other states. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

Noren's Homer With 2 on Base Busts Prentice-Burkhart Duel

Legion Boys Trim Manchester Green 5 to 4 in "Over-time" Battle; Garing Sun Handicap; Seelert Bumps "Big Jack."

Carl Noren caught one of Joe Prentice's fast balls square on the nose last night at the most opportune moment possible and slapped it into deep left field for a home run that drove in two runs ahead of it and spelled victory for the Cornell-Dilworth, local post of American Legion, over the Manchester Green team at the Community Club playgrounds at the North End. The score was 5 to 4 and the contest was not decided until the teams had battled an extra inning.

At the conclusion of the regular seven innings which go to make up the twilight affairs, the two teams were deadlocked, each having devoted home plate twice and registering four hits. Through the early innings, the setting sun in the west raised havoc with the batters and catchers because of its intensity. When Ol Sol dropped below the horizon, both teams immediately launched into scoring sprees.

When the Green side tallied twice in the first of the eighth, things looked mighty gloomy for the ex-service men. Netter Quish, who like most of the players on both teams, has seen his best day, opened the Green's attack with a single and scored when Sammy Hewitt rapped out a long double to centerfield. Hewitt took third on a passed ball and counted a moment later when Art Seelert, who had already made three hits, hit into a fielder's choice.

The lead was short lived, however, for Butts Keating, former member of the old Athletics, drew an Annie Oakley and went to second when Carl Hansen got a life when his fly to right field was misplayed. Then with the time all set, by steps Mr. Noren, looks over a couple of Prentice's offerings, selects one to his liking, and smacks it out of the lot, chasing in Keating, Hansen and victory.

Up until the eighth frame, the contest was a splendid pitching duel between Prentice and Jack Burkhart, whose famous spitball used to raise havoc among batsmen. The latter had the better of the argument as far as strikeouts were concerned, retiring eleven compared with five for his rival. Jack didn't issue a single free ticket. Both were highly effective, however, and Prentice allowed one less hit than Burkhart.

The lead was short lived for the Green team to lose but it would have been just as tough for the Legionnaires. Both sides played well and the fans were treated to one of the most interesting games of the current season.

BON AMI-CHENEYS HOOK UP TONIGHT

If tonight's baseball game at the West Side baseball grounds, between the Bon Ami and the Cheneys, is anything like the one over north last evening, and it promises to be, it will be well worth the price of admission, which is whatever you are willing to contribute to a worthy cause.

CLOVERLEAVES START GRID SEASON TONIGHT

Tonight's the night when the Cloverleaves lay plans for the continuation of the three years' undefeated record they have already established. A meeting will be held at Coughlin's pool room at the North End and it is important that the following football warriors from last year's team report:

TODAY IN FISTIANA

RUHLIN vs. McCORMICK

August 11th, 1906
Twenty-two years ago today, Gus Ruhlín the famous Akron giant, marked his announced retirement from ring warfare, by knocking out Jim McCormick of Texas in 18 rounds of bitter fighting at Colma, Cal. This was also the last ring battle for the Texan who then retired from the game.

Ruhlín was one of the greatest heavyweight ringsters in the game and long a leading contender of titular honors. He had a 20 round draw with Jas. J. Jeffries to his credit and also victories over such famed ringsters as Joe Goddard, Peter Maher and Tom Sharkey. He died in 1912.

POTTER AT UPSALA

After dropping out of sight for some time, Waddy McPhee, former Princeton star, has popped up at Providence to play second base. He was formerly with the Giants.

COCKINESS DOESN'T PAY, SAYS FARRELL

Expert Cites Case of Sharkey and Others as Proof of His Belief; Quiet Confidence Best.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)
New York, Aug. 11 (United Press)—It's safe to be cocky when you can get away with it but it's wise to be sure you can get away with it. Quiet confidence is better as Bobby Jones has so well demonstrated.

When Suzanne Lengien was awaiting a match with Helen Willis in southern France that had attracted international attention, she said for publication—"Helen is such a nice girl. I hope I am able to play well."

But, within the hearing of an American newspaperman who could understand French, she said—"Bah, I will give her a lesson. No one in the world can beat Suzanne."

The French star lived up to her boast in that match and she probably can live up to the same boast now.

But Lengien is one of a few and Helen Willis the only headliner in sport good enough to do it.

Competitors for the recent national open golf championships, it was reported, were complaining about the difficulties of the Oakmont course when "Light Horse" Harry Cooper spoke up.

"Difficult," he laughed, "why that course is a cinch for an expert and I'm an expert."

It looked like Cooper might make good his boast until he was forced into an extra match and was beaten rather easily by Tommy Armour.

Jack Sharkey, a young Boston heavyweight, with the brightest prospects for reaching the world's championship, was perhaps the cockiest and most egotistical athlete in the present generation.

When he was training for his fight against Jim Maloney, a most formidable opponent, he said:

"That Maloney used to drive a fish cart and I'll knock him back on it."

It is not on record that Maloney was knocked back on the fish cart but he was knocked on the floor for him.

Sharkey was then asked by Tex Rickard whether he preferred Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney for his next opponent.

"I can knock out either one of those bums," he said.

He trained for the Dempsey fight in the same spirit, despite the advice of his manager and his trainers and he went out to fight Dempsey with the same ego.

"Box him, Jack. Keep him off balance with your left and don't go in close. Keep him going and he'll fall down himself." Johnny Buckley, his manager, told him before the opening bell.

PAULINO, FAVORITE, BY TONIGHT, MAYBE

Basque is Even Money Today and Backers Have Lots of Money—Winner May be Next World's Champ.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor
New York, Aug. 11—Chicago Twenty-fourth Century Limited, New York will keep the next best thing at the Yankee Stadium tonight in the form of a spiffle of the split second with Jack Delaney, heavyweight by personal nomination, in one corner and Paulino Uzcudun, the well known human being, in the other. If Paulino wins, it will be a moral victory for the lad smiles a very mean bicupid.

If Delaney gets the official nod, he will be up in the chips again just as high as he was before Jim Maloney gave him a thorough going over.

Sucker Season On
In fact, the old steam-up for the 1923 sucker season is already lessening from the boiler, even before Delaney's fight will get Jack Sharkey early next year, the survivor of that will get the Dempsey-Tunney winner for the championship, Rickard will get tired counting the certified checks and somebody will get a punch on the nose.

In other words, we may be looking at the next heavyweight champion tonight, anything being possible after what happened in the Dempsey-Sharkey fight.

Once a Joke
Paulino was a ribald jest to many a merry Andrew when he came here last winter; but the boys seem to have lost their sense of humor since the gent slapped down Harry Willis in a punch. They, in fact, have made Paulino an even money choice against Delaney and given a few more hours for mature deliberation, they probably will send him into the ring a favorite.

They might look further and do worse, at that. The gent will weigh 190 pounds against Delaney's 178. He will have fifteen rounds in which to make his weight and strength mean something to the slender, somewhat fragile Delaney and he has a chin that only a stone mason could love.

Must "Kill" Early
Yes, Paulino will have a lot of natural advantages working for him unless Delaney can make his "kill" early in the fight. The latter has a fine right hand punch, as viewed from the standpoint of the light heavyweight division, but it naturally is not so effective against heavyweights. And when the heavy-weight in question happens to be a humber with a jaw like the horn of a saddle, that punch figures to be even less potent.

Delaney, of course, will outpunch his man at the outset and probably will give him a sound veneering for five or six rounds. But if he gets past that point, it may be well for Delaney to fear the worst. His record indicates that he is inclined to blow up in the late rounds of a long fight, as evidence by his several battles with Herlenbach and the fact that none of his knockouts beyond the sixth round have been scored at the expense of good men.

However, it may be that Delaney even failing to drop the Basque, will yet be able to outstep him for fifteen rounds. It may be that Paulino's style will prevent him from getting anywhere any time with a man like Delaney. For Paulino is a swinger and Delaney is at his worst against a straight puncher. Again, Paulino is a rasher and Delaney ordinarily would ask for nothing better.

As that as it might, a lot of form students have suspected these many months that Delaney doesn't belong in the heavyweight division in the first place and, if that is the case, a man-eater like Paulino, possibly will afford the best means of proving or disproving the contention.

BROWN LIMITS SCHEDULE
Brown University will play only nine football games in 1928, with Tufts College as a newcomer and Holy Cross returning to the schedule after a lapse of seven years.

BABE SLAMS HOMER; NO. 36 OF SEASON

By LES CONKLIN.

New York, Aug. 11—Two of New York's greatest institutions—Babe Ruth and the Giants—had demonstrated today that they cannot yet be counted out of the running in their respective battles. The Babe's clouted his thirty-sixth homer, pulling up to within two of Buster Gehrig. The Giants' steam roller scored six runs in the eighth inning after the first two batters had been retired, practically ruining the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The score in the first game of the New York-Washington "crucial" series at the Capital was Ruth 4, Washington 3. With two singles and a homer, the Babe knocked in all of the Yankees runs. He is still about six homers behind his 1921 record, however.

The Washington fans became so peeved at an unfavorable decision rendered in the ninth by Umpire Clarence "Pants" Rowland that they chased him into the dugout after the game. Police escorted him to safety.

In their big rally the Giants batted around, knocking three Pirate pitchers and winning eight to three. The Pirates now trail the Cubs by three and one-half games and are only two games in front of the Cardinals, with the Giants fast closing in from the rear. The Cubs and Cardinals were idle yesterday.

The Athletics snapped Boston's winning streak of six games as Lefty Grove held the Sox to four hits and won in a romp, 12 to 2. Grove pitched hitless ball for six innings while Ty Cobb continued his batting spree by whalloping a triple, a double and a single.

Detroit held on to third place by trimming the Browns, two to one. Gaston Outchopped Owen Carroll, former Holy Cross star, but lost on error.

The Phillies climbed out of last place by blanking the Braves, six to nothing, but dopped back into the cellar again by dropping the nightcap, five to one. Pruett held the Braves to five hits in the opener while Bob Smith of the Braves yielded but six bingles in the second game.

Robby Wants Shortstop
Wilbert Robinson has asked his scouts to dig up a good shortstop for next season.

Mr. O'Gootty lost his job with the wrestling trust. He got so absent-minded he forgot how the matches were to turn out.

Speaking of pictures a dispatch from the west says Dummy Taylor has produced some to prove he is still alive. Now, the only question is, when were they taken?

Phil Riden rebelled at a $2,000 fine for breaking training rules in Philadelphia last Saturday evening. This does seem a rather exorbitant price—even for Philadelphia on a Saturday evening.

With all this long-distance fight promoting going on in Chicago and way points it begins to look to the New York fan as if it will be the battle of the Twentieth Century.

"DUMMY" TAYLOR ALIVE
Recent reports of the death of "Dummy" Taylor, formerly with the Giants, disclosed that there are two deaf and dumb pitchers by that name. The original's name is Luther Taylor and he is still living at Council Bluffs, Ia.

Brilliant Racing Is Expected at Hartford Velodrome Tonight

American Bike Championship Series Will Attract Banner Crowd and Records May Go—Jaeger is Leading.

The Hartford Velodrome will have its only championship motor-paced race of the season tonight when six of the world's greatest pace followers will battle.

A great contest for the American championship is now under way and tonight's race is one of the series when will emerge the successor to Victor Kopka, the 1926 champion, who failed to qualify for the finals this summer.

The contenders will be George Chapman, "Big Six" of the bike game and six times American champion; Franco Giorgetti, the great Italian rider; Charlie Jaeger, the American now leading the field; Vincent Madonna, the doughy little Italian star; Bob Grassin of France, former world's champion; and Francisco Zuchetti who always is a real contender in every race.

The distance will be forty miles for track records to go by the board when this great field of stars swing into motion.

In addition to the motor-paced race, there will be another of the series of sprint races for the New England title; other professional races and several amateur events. A record field has entered.

This will be the red-letter night of the season at the Velodrome track and has been designated "Old-Timers Night" with delegations coming from Springfield, and New Haven of former bike riders and bike fans. George Hendee is to lead the Springfield delegation while D. P. Williams will convey the crowd from New Haven. Old-timers from the Hartford Wheel Club also will have seats of honor. The first race is set for 8:15.

With all this long-distance fight promoting going on in Chicago and way points it begins to look to the New York fan as if it will be the battle of the Twentieth Century.

"DUMMY" TAYLOR ALIVE
Recent reports of the death of "Dummy" Taylor, formerly with the Giants, disclosed that there are two deaf and dumb pitchers by that name. The original's name is Luther Taylor and he is still living at Council Bluffs, Ia.

NO HORSE SHOES HERE
Turf experts say that Rolled Stockings is deserving of the title—the turf's unluckiest horse.

In this modern world of business and knowledge of value, the public is always ready to recognize merit.

This age finds Camel worthy of leadership

THE people of this modern, busy age are always anxious to recognize quality, and they have placed Camel first among cigarettes.

Modern smokers have an experienced taste that quickly learns to know good tobaccos. Camel is their favorite, because they recognize in it the choicest tobaccos grown, blended to bring out their exquisite taste and fragrance.

Camel has won its way to the top in the hardest-to-please age ever known because it has the qualities of goodness that make smoking a pleasure. You will revel in the enjoyment of these cigarettes. No better smoke can be made. "Have a Camel!"

HEBRON

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Tennant, Jr. entertained recently at their home, Mrs. Tennant's grandmother, Mrs. James Whitehouse, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Whitehouse, all of Mt. Hope, also Mrs. Grant Whitehouse of New York for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Jared B. Tennant and children took a picnic dinner on the shores of the new lake in Andover on Sunday.

Elder C. P. Little of Willimantic preached to the members of the Advent Church in Hopewale at their last service.

Warren Knowles, who taught the private school in Hopewale last year, and Donald Coates came up from Narragansett Pier for the week-end which they spent in Hopewale. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Coates and daughter, Eleanor, accompanied them on their return trip to Rhode Island, visiting Providence and Narragansett Pier.

Mrs. Ames W. Silson entertained the week-end Mr. and Mrs. Francis Slater and son of Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Johnson and Children accompanied by Mrs. Johnson's mother, Mrs. Charles W. Stewart and Mr. Stewart, Sunday at Springfield at Forest Park.

A family reunion took place at the home of Leroy Beninger during the week-end it being the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Beninger. Among those present were Miss Alice Loomis, formerly of Hopewale. Her sister, Mrs. Albert Keefe, who lately moved to Gilead from Manchester was another guest as was Miss Jennie Loomis. The party visited Giant's Neck, Niantic, with the exception of the last two mentioned.

Mrs. Etta Rathbone has a pet cat which has developed the unusual habit of climbing a tree and roosting nights after the manner of a hen. When night comes she trots off, clamber up her tree and settles down till morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Tennant, Jr. spent the week-end at Savin Rock.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Clemens of Eastford were visitors here on Sunday attending a service at St. Peter's church. Mrs. Clemens was formerly Miss Cora Austin, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Austin of this place.

While First Selectman F. Elton Post was driving over the old Burnt Hill road on some town business Tuesday afternoon he noticed in the bushes at some distance from the side of the road a cow which seemed to be in peculiar position. Investigating he found that the cow, a big Holstein, was caught in the bushes by a long rope by which it had been led. The rope was wound tightly around the trees and bushes so that the cow could not escape and could not get anything to eat or drink. It proved to be a cow that had broken away while being led home from Gilead by the purchaser, a farmer living on the Roger Phelps farm in Andover. It had been lost since Friday and all efforts to find it had proved fruitless. The creature was so wild and unruly from its long imprisonment that it took several men and some hours of hard work to get it home. It is probable that it had been tangled in the bushes most of the time.

The Ladies' Aid society held an extra session at the home of Mrs. E. G. Lord Tuesday afternoon to work on articles to be sold Friday evening at the Town hall in connection with the musical comedy to be given at that date.

George West of East Haddam is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Buell Porter.

Mrs. Wilmer Dingwell went to

WAPPING

Miss Marlon Hills of this village and Miss Mary Stevens of South Manchester went to Storrs last Monday to the closing exercises of the Junior short course. They returned to their homes here on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan West moved their household goods to Rutland, Vt. this past week.

Shawwood Bowers and Ralph Wetherell left early Wednesday morning by auto for a ten days' fishing trip in Maine.

The regular meeting of Wapping Grange No. 30, P. of H. was held at the School hall on Tuesday evening, with an attendance of over thirty. The subject of the lecturer's hour was "Vacations." The very interesting talk by Miss Pauline West who has just returned from a trip abroad. She gave a fine account of her whole trip. Mrs. Edith Hills sang a solo. Next was a debate. Resolved that a trip to the shore, or a trip to the mountains side won the debate; piano duet by Mrs. Edward P. Collins and Walden Collins; a talk by Rev. Truman H. Woodward about what he had read on your vacation. The last was a roll call, each one telling about their best vacation they ever had. Refreshments were served at the close of the entertainment.

Mrs. Hattie Johnson's class in the Federated Sunday school will hold their class social at her home next Thursday afternoon.

LEGION HOLDS BAG ON BAND CONCERTS

Audiences Let Service Men Do Most of the Paying--Will Carry On, However.

The American Legion post here, in presenting a series of band concerts, is receiving no great amount of financial assistance from the beneficiaries. When the Legionnaires decided to sponsor the band concerts, they did not expect to make money but they did think that perhaps they would be compensated to the extent of a reasonable share of the expense.

Last night at the Community Grounds, the Rockville Legion band gave a splendid two-hour concert but the local post had to "dig in its pockets" to the extent of nearly $100 to clear expenses. There was no mad rush on the part of the crowd of nearly a thousand persons who came to see and hear all, to contribute to the support of the worth-while proposition either by patronizing the refreshment stand or "chipping in" at the baseball game.

This was not the first time the Legion's scheme has resulted in a financial deficit. The concert at the West Side playgrounds had a similar issue, though the loss was not so heavy.

Will Keep On

Nevertheless, it was said today by an official of the organization that the concert series will be continued. There will be another band concert at the West Side playgrounds two weeks later. It is the custom of the Legionnaires to do something annually for civic welfare and the band concerts are on that line of endeavor.

Previous to the band concert, the Manchester Legionnaires, with a personnel composed of old-time baseball players, took a fall out of the Manchester Green team on the Community playgrounds. The score was 5 to 4 in favor of the Legion team and the hotly fought contest was not settled until an extra inning had been played to break a 2-2 deadlock. Even then Carl Rosen, Legion shortstop, had to whale out a home run with two bases filled because the Green scored two runs in its half of the inning. "Big Jack" Burkhardt, and Patrolman Joe Prentice were the opposing hurlers and each did a creditable job.

GREEN TENNIS COURT GROWS IN POPULARITY

One of the most popular and widely used places in Manchester Green is the tennis court which has been constructed and maintained by the Marvin Green Tennis club, composed of residents of that section of East Center street. The membership of the club now numbers more than 50 and a number of applications have been tabled because there is no room for them. The tennis court was paid for by the dues assessed the members and by subscription. It is in charge of a committee of three men, W. G. Glenney, Thomas Smith and Walter Olson. Membership is open to residents of Marvin Green.

HOLD SUSPECT

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 11-- William Loerke was being held in Springfield, Mass., for Stamford authorities today on charges of receiving stolen goods in connection with the looting of Dr. S. Josephus Baker's home here this summer.

Dr. Baker had left her home in care of Mrs. Betty Bennett who subsequently disappeared together with $3,000 worth of furnishings. Police charge Mrs. Bennett, whom they are unable to locate, disposed of the materials to Loerke who was arrested in Springfield.

GAS BUGGIES--Mutiny

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Style has robbed the mouse of the only useful job he ever had.

NOW YOU ASK ONE

RIGHT OR WRONG

Below are ten statements. Five of them are correct and true, five of them are incorrect and false. Pick out the right sentences from the wrong sentences and check up with the answers on another page.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Maybe when they make paper money smaller they will make more of it. If we aren't making better men, we are at least making them more comfortable.

The Summer Widower

Success looks bigger while you are chasing it than after you catch up with it.

A doctor claims that many babies are kissed to death. We have seen some grown ones that look fit for that kind of demise.

The surest way to be happy is to get so goshdarned busy you have no time to be unhappy.

It was a wise promoter who merged the hot days and the dog days into the hot-dog days.

Judge: "I will be merciful to you. Seven days." Accused: "But I am to be married in a week." Judge: "Then I will be still more merciful. A month."

"Did they start you at the bottom in your business?" "At the bottom—the deuce! They excavated!"

A politician is never so popular as an in as he is as an out.

There's plenty of room at the top at present, for most of us won't ride in airplanes.

Beggar (pleading): "Give a starving man a nickel for a cup of coffee, please, Mister!" "Sorry, but I've only got a five-dollar bill."

Beggar (affably): That's all right, Mister, I got change."

Hard-boiled One: "Ain't you one of them guys what drops their tools and beats it as soon as the whistle blows?"

Scrambled One: "Not me! After I put away my tools I usually wait about five minutes for the whistle!"

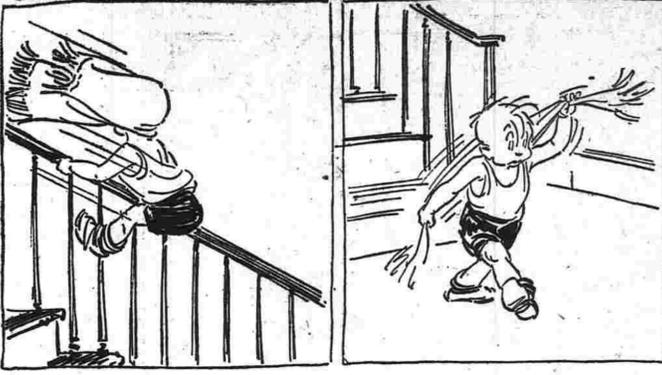

Maybe one reason church attendance is not larger is that so many people dislike to be preached either to or at.

Habits are hobs or sinkers. They hold you up or hold you down.

Here in Manchester there is no need for smaller size paper money; it's the wallet that needs reduction.

It is now rumored some of our attorneys are specializing in noiseless divorces.

ABOUT TOWN

Mrs. Margaret Dingwell has returned home from Willimantic where she has been confined for the past seven months with a serious illness.

Mr. and Mrs. George Long of 127 Bissell street are spending the week-end at Stonington.

Mrs. L. M. Keeney spent the day with her daughter, Miss L. A. Keeney.

Mrs. W. H. Cowles of Woodbridge street and Mrs. Thomas Smith of Oakland street with their children motored down to Lebanon to spend the day with Mrs. Cowles' sister, Mrs. Claude Cummings, formerly of North Main street.

Miss Catherine O'Keefe of Bridgeport is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brosnan of Hudson street.

Mrs. Henry Gay of Birch street and Mrs. Harold Perrett of Myrtle street are spending a few days at Crescent Beach.

The Girls Friendly society of St. Mary's Episcopal church will enjoy a "dog" roast this afternoon at 5:30 at Center park. In case of a rainstorm it will be held at the home of the president, Miss Sarah McKinney, 460 Main street.

Dr. Ralph G. Thrall whose dental offices have been located for the past few years in the Coughlin building on Depot Square, has leased from Brown and Sullivan the site in their building which is just south of the Balch and Brown block. The new offices have been specially fitted up for occupation by a dentist and Dr. Thrall expects to move in the last of this month.

Dr. and Mrs. David M. Caldwell and family of 48 Arvine place, left today on a ten day motor trip through the Adirondack Mountains. Dr. Caldwell will be back in his office on Saturday, August 20.

There will be no meeting of the G Cleff Glee club for the next two weeks owing to the absence of its director.

The funeral of Timothy Frawley of Ridge street, will be at 8:30 Saturday morning at the St. James church. The body will be shipped to New York where interment will be in the Calvary Cemetery.

John and Edward Post, former Manchester boys who are now living in Bridgeport, were calling on friends here today. Both are college students.

If the Luther League of the Swedish Lutheran church decides to have an outing, it will be held this morning. To date no final decision has been made either as to the holding of an outing or on the place in which it will be held, a published report to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Blish Hardware company has purchased a new Reo speed-wagon for delivery purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Nicklen and family of Spruce street will remove to Pasadena, Cal., shortly.

PAY AS YOU ENTER, PAY AS YOU LEAVE

That's the System Under Which Two Zone Riders Will Settle Under One-Man Service.

Since the announcement that one-man trolley service will be inaugurated between Manchester and Burnside shortly, speculation has developed as to how two fares can be collected on a "pay-as-you-enter" basis without confusion.

A trolleyman last night said it was a simple matter. The passenger will deposit one fare as he enters the car and another as he leaves, the latter providing, of course, that he rides over two zones or part of two zones. If his ride is all within one fare zone he will not have to pay as he leaves.

This trolleyman said that regular trolleyman would not be likely to lose their jobs, but that those affected will be the "spare men."

LOCAL SWIMMERS WIN AT HARTFORD 3D TIME

Again Clean Up All Their Events in Tests at Capitol Park.

Once more four Manchester swimmers made a clean sweep of the events in Capitol Park, Hartford, yesterday afternoon. Markley, Warnock, Hicking and McCormick, the latter, youngest of the crew, took first places in the various events.

Markley and Warnock split even in their races, the former winning the 50 yard dash and the latter winning the fancy diving event. Hicking defeated all comers in the 50 yard while McCormick won the diving for younger boys.

This is the third time Manchester boys have won the meets at Capitol Park. They will enter the A. A. U. meet there on August 20 and will compete for gold medals.

HOSPITAL NOTES

The following admissions were reported today at Memorial hospital: Frank Saunders, Bolton; Lillian Natoli, 37 Hill street; Josephine Brown, 4 Avon street; Elmer Gustafson, 84 Main street; and Lillian Galligan, 5 Orchard street; Miss Mary L. Burke, 37 Park street; Mrs. Anna Anderson, Bolton. The only discharge was Mrs. Anthony Perenz, South Kerry street.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

HOLD BIG PARTY

William H. Brainard of 77 North street was the guest of honor at a large party given at his home Saturday evening by Mrs. Brainard and Mrs. William Brainard, Jr. The guests numbered more than 60 and included relatives and friends from places in New Hampshire and New York. South Norwalk, Plainville, Windsor, Rocky Hill, Hartford and this town. The house was decorated prettily with blue crepe paper and flowers of the season.

Music for dancing on the porch was furnished by the Majestic orchestra of four pieces from Plainville, while games of various kinds were played by others of the party.

A buffet lunch was served, the feature of which was a huge birthday cake with 58 candles. The party was given in celebration of Mr. Brainard's birthday which fell on August 1. He received a number of useful remembrances.

ICE

If you make it a habit to keep your refrigerator well filled with ice, you are always prepared. You can have extra food on hand and it will keep fresh. When you serve it, all will enjoy the fine flavor you pay for when you buy the best.

With plenty of ice on hand you can make frozen desserts for many guests, on short notice. You have all the ice you need for chilled drinks and for table service.

Ice is the ideal refrigerant. It does the work as nothing else can—and it is most economical.

PLUMBING FIXTURES

Price alone should never govern either the selection of the fixtures or the plumber to do the work. Assurance of good material and workmanship is certain only when there is no false economy in buying plumbing and when good judgment selects the men to install it.
