

2.75 P. C. BEER IS SOLUTION OF DRY PUZZLE

Federal Official Says it is Impossible to Enforce the Law Otherwise — He Gives His Reasons.

Washington, Aug. 12. — "From an enforcement standpoint the only solution for the impossible prohibition conditions, which everybody knows prevail everywhere in the United States, is the authorization of 2.75 per cent. beer."

This is the opinion of Col. James C. Waddell, who resigned from the federal prohibition service after a year's duty as supervisor of the alcohol and brewery control unit.

Waddell will be called before Senate and House committees during the coming session of Congress to testify as to his views on improvement of prohibition conditions, which he learned.

"The prohibition law can be enforced with the present force and the $13,000,000 annual appropriation, if 2.75 per cent. beer is legalized," Waddell told International News Service today.

The provision in the Volstead Act which holds that beverages of one-half of one per cent. alcoholic content are "intoxicating in fact," according to Waddell, is primarily responsible for the unpopularity of the act.

"It is absurd to say that beer of 2.75 per cent. alcohol is intoxicating," he declared.

Beer bootleggers.

Waddell said that his study of prohibition conditions disclosed that there are more than 1,000 "beer bootleggers" or "alley distributors," each in Chicago, Detroit, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and some other large cities.

"The manufacture of a boiled malt but non-intoxicating substance known as 'wort,' which can be converted into high-powdered beer in three days by a simple process, is legal," Waddell explained.

"Literally millions of gallons of this substance are sold to the alley bootleggers. The government can cope with the breweries, but without local co-operation it cannot wipe out the little distributors."

Waddell closed sixty breweries during the past year with a total output of 20,000,000 barrels annually.

AVAILABLE SPACE FOUND IN SCHOOLS

Eighth District Committee Believes No Extra Quarters Now Necessary.

The school committee of the Eighth School and Utilities district, with Superintendent of Schools A. F. Howes, met this forenoon and went over the school situation with the idea of providing room for the increase of about 35 pupils at the opening of school in September.

They visited the new Hollister street school and decided that in the well lighted basement there plenty of space could be spared for the room for special scholars, now at the North School street school, under the instruction of Miss Edna M. Stack. This will make available a full-sized schoolroom for the increased enrollment.

According to the committee, the finances of the district are at present in good shape. They are making an honest effort to keep down expenses and have during the past year reduced the debt of the district $8,000. However, they believe it will be absolutely necessary to provide more school room inside of two years, either by a new school or additions to the present buildings.

Library Can Stay

As a result of the decision of the school committee, it will not be necessary for the library to move from its present quarters in the Robertson school for at least another year. It is the intention of the district committee to notify the district within a short time that the public library in its present quarters after September 1928.

The school committee has agreed that a report to this effect will be made at Thursday night's adjourned school meeting. This is entirely separate from the work being done by the special committee named a week ago.

All Trans-Ocean Hops Were Postponed Today

All trans-ocean flights over both the Atlantic and Pacific which were set for today, were postponed for one reason or another. It had been expected that three planes would start from Europe for the United States while nine entrants in the Trans-Pacific flight for the $25,000 Dole prize were reported ready to go.

Southampton, Eng., Aug. 12. — Adverse weather off the coast today caused Captain Frank T. Courtney, British air ace, to postpone his start on the first leg of his trans-ocean flight to New York.

KOENNECKE

Berlin, Aug. 12. — Otto Koennecke, noted German flyer, who will attempt a non-stop sky journey from Cologne to New York, expects to fly to Cologne today, but will not start on the actual trans-ocean flight until later. If weather conditions permit he may take off from Cologne tomorrow. The Junkers planes which will leave Dessau for New York may get away within 48 hours if the necessary arrangements can be made and weather conditions are favorable.

Levine, who plans to fly back to the United States with Drouhin as pilot in the Bellanca plane Columbia, which Clarence D. Chamberlin piloted from New York to Saxony, Germany, is superstitious about starting tomorrow, which will be the thirtieth. The American flyer's superstitions persisted despite the fact he has received from Joseph Weissblum, a French friend, a talisman including an extract from the Talmud.

PLANE DROPS BAG; IT MISSES PRINCE

Mail Weighted Down With Heavy Rock Nearly Hits Wales Who Ducks Cleverly.

High River, Alberta, Aug. 12. — The Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, were to break up their week-end rest at the former's ranch today when they will start on an overnight trip to Edmonton, capital of the Province. They will return Sunday.

Officials attached to the prince's staff at the ranch were taking precautions to prevent an occurrence which yesterday almost had tragic results. The pilot of an airplane from High River, who daily drops a bag of mail for the royal visitors, apparently did not see Wales was walking in the meadow where the bag is dropped. The bag, weighted with a heavy rock, was dropped and missed the prince only because he saw it coming and ducked.

'BOY MILLIONAIRE' GETS MORE MONEY

Byron Chandler's Mother
Leaves Him Half Million—
Son Thrice Married.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 12. — Good fortune has once again smiled on Byron Chandler, "Boy Millionaire of New York City," thrice divorced and once involved in a sensational breach of promise suit.

Chandler, under the terms of the will of his mother, Mrs. Fannie Martin Chandler, who died recently, is to receive half of her estate, estimated at half a million dollars. It was learned today.

Chandler will share equally in the estate with his brother, Benjamin Martin Chandler, of Campden, England.

The two brothers are now on their way to England, where Byron will visit the home of his brother, situated ninety miles from London. The two sons were named as executors of the estate but both declined to serve and the Probate Court named Allen M. Wilson, lawyer, and Edward M. Brooks, bank treasurer, administrator and appraiser, respectively. The attorney is also named as executor.

Byron, now 48, is proprietor of a ladies' wearing apparel shop in New York which he opened a year ago because he was tired of "yachting." He received the title "Boy Millionaire" when he inherited a fortune from his father shortly after he graduated from Harvard.

Soon after he had inherited his fortune Chandler married Grace Stecher, a concert singer. She divorced him seven years later and he took as his second wife Grace Larue, an actress, in London. In 1919 his second wife also obtained a divorce. In that year he was sued for $100,000 for breach of promise by Joan Sawyer, an actress. The case was settled out of court. In 1920 Chandler married Luella Gear, another actress. She divorced him in 1924.

QUESTION LEGALITY OF STATE MARRIAGES

Ministers Who Have No Churches Are Advised Not to Perform Ceremonies at Present.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 12. — The legality of many Connecticut marriages—those performed by ministers not actively engaged in the ministry—was questioned again today after the subject had lain dormant for several years. Attorney General Benjamin W. Alling had resumed study on the problem.

Considerable speculation followed the ruling of Attorney General Frank E. Healy in 1923 who declared such marriages were illegal. He informed Rev. Forris E. Alling of Hartford, secretary of the State Federation of Churches, at that time that he was not qualified to perform a marriage because he did not hold an active pastorate.

The present attorney general, Alling, today declared in answer to renewed action by ministers who opposed the ruling.

"It would seem advisable for ministers not regularly in a pastorate to abstain from performing any marriage ceremony until some court decision can be reached."

2 CHANGES LOOM ON MAIN STREET IN COMING YEAR

Blish Hardware Co. and Woolworth's Five - and Ten Involved — Former Needs More Floor Space.

Several important changes in the business section at the south end are likely to be made next year, it was learned today. The changes involve the Blish Hardware Company and Woolworth's Five and Ten Cent store.

The Woolworth lease in the Tinker Block, where it has been for more than fifteen years expires next May and it is understood it will not be renewed. The Blish Hardware Company, which has been in the Purnell Building for 32 years, but whose lease also expires next year, has made tentative plans to remove to the Tinker Block, which is owned by Christopher Glenney, Arthur L. Hultman and Earl G. Seaman. The last named and Albert McLaughlin of Pine Street own the Blish Hardware Company.

TO GET UNDER ONE ROOF

Increased business and congested conditions in its present location are given by Mr. Seaman as the reason for the contemplated removal of the Blish Company to the Tinker Block. At present the Blish Company is utilizing every available inch of floor space on the main floor of the Purnell building except the space which houses Alfred A. Grezel's store. In addition to this, the company uses storehouses owned by George E. Keith, William Rubino and Archie Hayes. It is the intention of the Blish Company to "get under one roof."

Should the firm remove into the Tinker Block, several alterations will be made there. A thirty foot brick addition will be built in the rear, giving the store a 68 foot main street frontage with a depth of 130 feet. It is also planned to cut a stairway into the cellar in the middle of the room and use the basement as a display room.

Just where the Woolworth store will locate when its lease expires, has not been definitely decided. It is understood the store has two or three sites in mind, the most probable being the vacant lot at Main and Birch streets, where a new home may be erected. It is the intention of the Woolworths to purchase the Purnell Building which will be the store's new home. The five and ten cent store will not remove from its present quarters immediately upon the expiration of its lease. It will be allowed to remain there until the Blish Company lease in the Purnell Building expires the following September. The Purnell building is owned by George E. Keith.

Youth Tries to Rescue Her

Middletown, Conn., Aug. 12. — Olive Cullen, 17, Middletown, and Ernest Nordgren, 31, Cromwell, were both drowned in Lake Pocotopaug near East Haddam today when the girl, apparently set by cramps, went under dragging Nordgren, who had attempted a rescue, with her.

Miss Cullen, a movie ticket seller, was swimming toward a raft 100 feet away from shore when she suddenly screamed and sank. Nordgren dove off the raft after her and was pulled under by the dreaded death grip which she fastened about his neck. Their bodies were recovered after ten minutes of diving by other members.

The bodies were recovered by W. R. Farguhar, Southbridge, Mass.; Robert Wall, Bridgeport, and Robert Wright, New Britain.

Sec. Davis Reports Result of Survey He Made Among Leaders of Nation.

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 12. — Following President Coolidge's unexpected announcement that he did not choose to run for re-election, the Department of Labor made an extensive survey to determine the effect it had among labor leaders throughout the country. Secretary of Labor Davis revealed here today upon his arrival for a visit with the executive.

The consensus of opinion showed a general regret that Mr. Coolidge was determined to retire after March 4, 1929, Davis declared.

"The leaders of organized labor," he said, "reported that while they had received no favors from the president, they had always gotten a square deal from him. Most of them were sorry that he had decided not to run again."

FORCIBLE FEEDING FOR RADICAL IF HE GETS MUCH WEAKER

Prison Doctor Describes Method—Radical Now on 27th Day of Hunger Strike—Lawyers on Both Sides Busy Preparing Pa- pers for Next Tuesday's Hearing Before the Full Bench of State Court.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 12. — Forcible feeding by the nasal route—described as a dangerous, painful and disagreeable operation—will be used to give nourishment to Nicola Sacco if he grows much weaker and emaciated from his hunger strike, which was in the twenty-seventh day.

Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin, state's prison physician, described the method this afternoon. He said that Mrs. Sacco had been warned of the danger and had, in turn, begged her husband to eat. Sacco was said to have told his wife that he might take food if "garage," as forcible feeding is known to the medical world, is reported by the prison authorities.

JUDGE THAYER SNEERED DURING SACCO TRIAL

Boston, Mass., Aug. 12. — The revised bill of exceptions to Supreme Court Judge George A. Sanderson's denial of a writ of error in the Sacco-Vanzetti case brings in Chief Justice Webster Thayer's alleged "contempt" as well as "prejudice" against the defense because of the radical beliefs of the two defendants.

Attorney William G. Thompson, former defense counsel, according to the bill, stated that Thayer would look at defense counsel with a very intense stare. "He then turned in his seat slightly toward the jury box," continued Mr. Thompson, "and, with what I feel entirely justified in describing as a sneer, certainly a very contemptuous expression, he said: 'Objection overruled.'" used by Gov. Alvan T. Fuller in conducting the review of the celebrated case.

Celestino Madeiros, who linked himself with the Sacco and Vanzetti case, has been named as another two prisoners in the matter of food, having eaten heartily every day since reaching state's prison.

Defense Lawyers Busy

While the condition of Sacco was giving grave concern at state's prison at Charlestown, defense lawyers across the city were engaged in an intensive study of law books in preparation for the drive for a new Sacco and Vanzetti trial before the full bench of the State Supreme Court on Tuesday. At the Beacon Hill, the office of Attorney General Arthur K. Reading were delving into works of law preparing for arguments.

Legal machinery has moved in record speed in the past few days in the case of the two men doomed to die for the slaying of a South Braintree paymaster and his guard killed in 1920. Motions have been made for a new trial, for a stay and revision of the state's Supreme Court, for a writ of error, and for writs of habeas corpus in both state and federal courts. All motions have been denied. Judge Webster Thayer, storm center in the case, has allowed exceptions from his adverse rulings on a motion for a new trial. These exceptions go to the full bench of the State Supreme Court, called for a special sitting on Tuesday.

Sacco, the physician said, will be strapped to the food, death rubber tube, greased, will be inserted into a nostril and will be pushed back to the esophagus, the tube through which food goes to the stomach after leaving the throat. At the mouth end of the tube, through a funnel, will be poured either milk, white of eggs, broth, or beef juice.

The chief danger, said Dr. McLaughlin, is that the rubber tube might back up against the trachea, the tube leading from the lungs to the throat. Should the tubes be forced into the lungs, it would be similar to drowning only quicker. Another danger is septic pneumonia, which might result from a small amount of food entering the trachea.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 12. — Nicola Sacco lifted a frail hand above his blanket as he lay on his cot in state's prison today and waved away guards who came to offer him breakfast.

It was the twenty-seventh day of the hunger strike by the world-famous prisoner.

Downstairs in Warden William Hendry's office various methods of forcible feeding were discussed. The warden, it was stated, planned to use some method to save Sacco's life. He consulted with Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin, the prison physician.

Sacco usually walks about his cell in the morning. This morning, however, he kept to his cot.

Those who have seen Sacco said he had abandoned hope, although his case, and that of Bartolomeo Vanzetti, comes before the State Supreme Court again on Tuesday and their execution has been delayed until August 22.

Vanzetti, on the other hand, was in a cheerful mood today. He was up early in his new cell in the Cherry Hill section of the prison, preparing to spend the day in writing and reading. He took beef tea, coffee and milk for breakfast and, having broken his hunger strike, will continue to take nourishment of soft foods for a few days.

Dr. McLaughlin found Vanzetti sleeping this forenoon and did not disturb him. Sacco was able to get up from his cot to talk to the physician.

Refuses To Eat

"I advised him to eat," said Dr. McLaughlin, "but he said he never would eat again until he was freed."

Dr. McLaughlin admitted that forcible feeding of the starving man would be done if it became necessary. He said that Sacco was in a very weak condition but would not be forcibly fed today.

Other prisoners reported to Dr. McLaughlin that Sacco and Vanzetti did some chanting last night, the lines having to do with Gov. Fuller, capitalism and imprisonment of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Vanzetti was obliged to support Sacco last evening when the pair went to the barber shop for an interview with Attorney M. A. Sussman, of Pittsfield. A defense lawyer, O'Boyleton and Berkeley streets, Police hurrying to the scene, found the package to contain clothing and a note to Henry P. O'Brien, 449 Summer street, Newark, N. J.

The fact that only four new members will sit at the "full bench" of the Supreme Court caused some discussion today. Heretofore, five have generally been accepted as "full bench." Precedent, however, is that four can make a "full bench." There are seven justices but Justice Sanderson cannot sit because the questions concern his own action and Chief Justice Arthur P. Rogers is in a Worcester hospital and Justice John C. Crosby is abroad.

PAUL ADAMS

(This is chapter 106 of the series of articles written by a former doughboy who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Herald.)

CHAPTER CVI
No notes of American effort in France are quite complete without reference to Jim McGourty—who, for the past six years, has been a supervisor for the Graves Registration Service.

Jim lives at Romagne-sous-Montfaucon and there is not a spot in the Meuse-Argonne sector that he does not know intimately. Furthermore, he is an absolute authority on every action of every division that fought there. Standing on Etayes Ridge he can point out all the lines of attack of the 26th, 28th, 33d and 79th divisions. Or he can stand on Le Chene Tendu and tell how the Argonne Forest was taken. And he knows—hereof he speaks, because it has been his job to locate and identify the graves of American soldiers. "I've heard stories that the 77th division captured the dugout of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria. But it wasn't the 77th. It was the 28th. The 77th may have gone over there on a sightseeing tour. But the soldiers of the 28th were the only ones I uncovered in that section of the Argonne."

Very recently, Jim and his gang did some investigating work in the Bois des Osons, not far from the Madeleine Farm and Cuneal. In a clearing in the tangled undergrowth he found the skeleton of a Spad fighting plane. The engine was gone and there was no trace of the remains of the aviator. The find prompted Jim to a few remarks.

"When the American Legion comes over in September, many members will be disappointed because so many of the signs of war have been obliterated," he said. "But if any of the boys fought through the woods, they'll be rewarded with sights as they once knew them. Trenches in the woods are just as they were in 1918—even the foxholes remain. And all those who battled in those 'inch-by-inch' operations that were necessary to drive out the Germans will find things just as they were." Jim McGourty has a French wife, a son who speaks French to his mother and English to his father and an antique army truck which he drives over the country. And if any Legionaire is lucky enough to find him at home, Jim will be glad to settle any disputes as to just what outfits won the war.

THAT LIBRARY COMMITTEE
Editor, The Herald:

All articles in a Hartford paper, reporting on the "Library Situation," speak of the committee as being composed of the Library members chiefly. How do they figure it? Mrs. C. J. Strickland and Mrs. C. R. Burr are library directors. Dr. Sweet is very much of the school committee, Mr. Foulis has no connection with the library whatever other than that of being an intelligent, broad minded man interested in what is best for the district and the town as a whole. Expert Says Model Building Is Fine Way to Learn Aviation.

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The boy who has learned to design a model airplane has gone a long way toward an understanding of the problems with which he must deal if he makes aviation his life work.

E. P. Warner is working on models at the age of 14 in Concord, Mass. That was in 1909, when the first big aviation meeting was being held in France. Within a year or two he had built a glider, attached to an automobile, in which he personally soared ed 50 or 60 feet in the air. There weren't any satisfactory hills available for take-offs, so Warner used the automobile as a matter of necessity.

As he studied at Harvard and M. I. T., fitting himself for his big work, Warner continued his interest in the work of younger model builders, giving lessons to boys and aiding the formation of "model clubs."

More to Work On.
"It is much easier for boys and girls to take active interest in aviation than it was eighteen years ago, because there is so much more ground work for them to go on," Warner remarked in discussing the contest in which boys and girls the country over will build model planes.

"In those days we didn't know what made an airplane fly or what kept it up in the air. We worked by trial and experiment.

"I think these contests are likely to be decidedly useful as well as interesting. Personally, I enjoy model races and would walk a long way to see them. I have seen a number in recent years.

"The significance of these contests is that, first, they teach a great deal about aeronautics and exactly the same principles of flight as for the flights of full-sized planes. Fundamentals are primarily the same.

"Many leaders of aviation today obtained their start working with models. Lieutenant R. S. Barnaby, one of the navy's valuable aviation experts, was one of the best model builders of 15 years ago.

In the second place, even if boys and girls who build these model planes never do anything more with aeronautics, it's a splendid sport in itself and I can't think of anything like it when it comes to teaching care, accuracy and patience. Those virtues are very important in aviation and are essential on the part of the successful model builder.

Fly Two Miles.
"When I was busy with models, the average time in the air was 12 or 15 seconds and the distance of a model's flight seldom more than 250 feet. Today the models stay in the air as long as ten minutes and fly for a couple of miles.

"The progress is partly due to increased knowledge of aeronautics and aerodynamics, but most of it is due to experiments by the boys themselves on their own initiative, whetted by continuous competition.

Chicago and Detroit are now the principal competitors for model honors, but there is no reason why a sport which keeps 20 or 25 boys in Chicago busy at models shouldn't be duplicated elsewhere."

SPAIN TO HOLD 2 EXHIBITIONS FOR NEW TRADE

25 Nations to Take Part in Seville Celebration to Honor Columbus.

Madrid.—In a move to regain some of her former wealth and glory, Spain is planning two exhibitions of world-wide importance. The first, to be known as the "Spanish-American Exhibition in Honor of Christopher Columbus," will be held at Seville in 1928 with 25 nations participating. Opening on October 12th—the anniversary of the day on which Columbus in 1492, first sighted the New World, the exhibition will hold hundreds of beautiful and artistic buildings, which are now being designed by both Spanish and American architects.

Field in America. It is felt, in Spanish commercial circles, that in parts of America, formerly owing allegiance to Spain there is a special field for renewed strenuous efforts will be made during this exhibition to capture the trade, mainly of the South American countries.

Barcelona will be the scene of the second exhibition, a year later, and will be held on more of a world-wide scale. Here, Spain has invited every nation in the world to display its finest goods, and it is planned to make it one of the largest exhibitions ever held, being eight times as large as the recent British Empire Exhibition at Wembley. These exhibitions are just a small part of Spain's challenge to the world that she is beginning a campaign which will eventually rank her with the great trading nations of the universe.

Big Mercantile Fleet. Perhaps of more importance to the world, is her plans for a tremendous mercantile fleet, intended to carry Spanish products to all parts of the world. This, according to a Spanish official will be, "Spain's peace-time Armada—an ambassador to trade from a nation that was once the greatest sea-power in the world. Sixteen vessels will comprise the mercantile fleet, the four largest being of 43,000 tons and eight others of 25,000 tons. The larger ships will be constructed in British shipyards for the Campania Transatlantica Espanola and at least two of them will be used to establish a greater trade with South America, where existed Spain's former Empire.

MEXICAN LABOR NOW FLOCKING INTO STATES

Demand for Cheap Help Drawing Thousands From Across Border.

Washington. — Invasion of industrial United States by Mexican workers is now proceeding in earnest, according to the reports made by the bureau of labor statistics of the Department of Labor on the results of its survey last winter in the North Central states.

This survey covered the cities of Bethlehem, Wilkesbarre, Johnston, Homestead, McKeesport, Pittsburgh, Sharpsburg and Ford City, Pa.; Cleveland, Lorain and Toledo, Ohio; Detroit, Pontiac, Flint, Saginaw and Kalamazoo, Mich.; Fort Wayne, Decatur, Gary, Indiana Harbor and Hammond, Ind.; Waukegan, Chicago, Joliet, Aurora, Peoria, Chillicothe, Quincy, Galesburg and Moline, Ill.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Fox, Madison, Daventry, Ottumwa, Des Moines, Mason City, Manly, Sioux City and Council Bluffs, Ia.; Albert Lea, Chaska, St. Paul, Minneapolis and East Grand Forks, Minn.; Fargo, N. D.; Sioux Falls, S. D.; Omaha, Neb., and St. Louis, Mo.

Demand for Cheap Labor
It was found that these cities had approximately 63,700 Mexican born workers, virtually all of whom had crossed the border in the last eight years. Those living or working in the western part of this district had been in this country seven to eight years, while those in the eastern part had come more recently, most of them having been in the United States two years or less.

This penetration of the industrial and rural regions of the north is attributed to the demand for cheap labor created when the 1924 immigration law shut off cheap labor from Europe. The greater number of the million or more native Mexicans estimated to be in this country are still clinging to the southwestern fringe of states, where they are near their native hearth, but the call of labor agents and of slightly higher wages has been heard and the newest comers are passing on to the north to take the places of the Southern and Eastern Europeans who once formed the bulk of the unskilled labor available to the industrial plants.

To Industrial Plants
A majority of the Mexicans find their way into steel mills, foundries, railroad shops, packing plants and tanneries, but a goodly proportion have taken up beet sugar farm jobs. In the beet fields of Ohio, Michigan, Iowa, Minnesota and North Dakota, the Mexicans comprise from 7 to 90 per cent of the workers. They have taken the places vacated by the Belgians and German-Russians in the South, now drifting in to trades and small businesses or who have set up as farmers on their own account.

Of the 63,750 Mexicans in the district, 30,827 are employed in major industries, 7,843 in minor industries and at casual work, 339 as clerks, translators, interpreters and so forth, 207 are engaged in business; 88 in professions (physicians and dentists in Chicago, for the most part), 368 are aged or otherwise dependent, 7,961 women and 16,147 children.

The "cheapness" of this type of labor is shown in the wages received by those employed in the major industries, the average being 45 cents an hour. The 15,000 workers in the beet fields averaged $146 for the season and eked out of this income by picking up odd jobs in the cities or in railroad camps during the winter.

CHINESE UNREST IS CAUSE OF BIG SLUMP IN EXPORTS TO U. S.

Peking.—Unrest which prevents products reaching the seacoast from the Chinese interior is causing a general slump in exports to the United States. The drop in silk exports for a single month amounted to more than half million dollars according to the American Consul General in Shanghai.

In addition to the difficulty of shipping products to the ports, there is the rise in price which comes with low supply and the two together are ruining China's export trade with America. Compared with the same monthly period of 1926, one month's figures this year show a decrease of $780,000.

Goat skin exports suffered greatly since exports for this period amounted only to $170,454 against over a half million dollars for the same month last year.

On the other hand some commodities show an increased export this year. Wood oil was exported to America worth $171,005 in one month this year as compared with only $2,143 for the same period in 1926.

MICHIGAN TO HAVE HOT CAMPAIGN FOR SENATOR IN 1928

Lansing, Mich.—That former Governor Chas. S. Osborn will be a candidate for United States Senator from Michigan next year is the prediction made by his friends following a visit here by the former Governor.

Osborn has abjured politics and devoted himself to scientific pursuits, but his campaign tour of northern Michigan during the Governorship race last year caused caused him to take a new interest in public affairs. He was enthusiastically received and his old friends urged him to "get back into the game."

"The iron hunter" is in exuberant health and his friends say he is spoiling to start one of the rough and tumble fights for which he is famous. He is confident of his ability to win the Senatorship against any of the contenders so far mentioned.

The only hat that is definitely in the 1928 Senatorship ring is that of Arthur Vandenberg, editor of the Grand Rapids Herald and outstanding political leader of western Michigan. Several other names are mentioned, however, and it is likely that the primary fight will be a three or four cornered affair.

Vandenberg and Osborn are probably the two best political speakers in the state. Both are authors of national note.

CHINA TURNING TRADE BUDGET AGAINST JAPAN

Potent Weapon Used On Great Britain is Turned in Other Direction.

Peking.—China's very potent economic weapon, the boycott, which has struck Great Britain to the quick during the last two years, has now been diverted against the Japanese. The Shanghai committee which is attempting to arouse the people in favor of the boycott, has issued a series of regulations for the punishment of those who offend.

Merchants who place secret orders for Japanese goods are to be imprisoned in a wooden cage for ten days and be paraded through the streets for five days.

Smugglers to Jail
Seven day's imprisonment awaits those who smuggle Japanese goods into Shanghai. In any case the goods of the offender are to be confiscated.

More astonishing than anything else in these boycotts is the fact that these self-appointed committees have absolutely no legal basis and yet are able to enforce such regulations as the above. They enter a Chinese shop, ruthlessly poke into all the stock and unceremoniously throw Japanese goods into the street where they are destroyed. The Chinese victim has no recourse despite the fact that he has committed no crime under existing law.

Authorities Silent
Although the nationalist authorities orally assert that they are against such boycott which is openly in contravention of international conventions, they nevertheless make no attempt to stop the nefarious activities of the agitators. As in every country on earth, the general run of people desire to

CHEAT THE GOVERNMENT GET HIDE TO ATLANTA

Here's a scheme to cheat the government. It comes out of the West. It is possible to mail a letter to anyone in Manchester and have it delivered without affixing a cent of postage. This is how it's done: Address the letter to yourself. Put the name of the person to whom you wish it delivered at the top left-hand corner in the following fashion: "If not delivered in 5 days, please return to J. C. Smith, 22 Arnold street." Then mail the letter without any stamp. It will be delivered to the chap in the left-hand corner in default of postage. However, don't try it unless you want to take a trip to Atlanta.

buy goods they need at the best price and will do so even at the risk of displeasing the professional agitator. That basic factor accounts for the fact that endless boycotts have been started in China but with the exception of the anti-British campaign around Canton and Hongkong, have rarely succeeded for a long period.

MANCHESTER SCOUTS WIN MERIT BADGES

Among the Boy Scouts who passed merit badge tests at Camp Pioneer, Winsted, during the past few weeks were four Manchester men: Russell Remig, one of the principal merit badge Scouts in this town, passed his test in camping and weather study. Remig has passed a number of first class tests while a member of the organization. He is a member of Troop 6 of the South Methodist church. Other Manchester Scouts who passed tests are George Stiles, athletics and personal health; Arthur L'Heureux, cooking, leather craft; F. K. Burr, athletics, personal health and swimming. Burr, also a member of Troop 6, swam around the lake on which the camp is located, bettering the former record for the swim.

story of Arizona and Mexico, dealing with the troubles the natives had not merely with the Mexicans, but with a group of American neo-er-do-wells who had organized into a troop of bandits. Naturally, with all the action the picture contains, it has not neglected the love theme. A review of a Ken Maynard feature would not be complete without mention of Tarzan. It is horses with his intelligence that make many humans appear not much better than jackasses.

Madge Bellamy heads the imposing list of actors in "Summer Bachelors," a comedy of how husbands play when their wives are away. Allan Forrest appears in the lead-

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (55) Kane's Great Fight

MONUMENTS

Grave markers and ornamental stone work of every description.

Gadella & Ambrosini
Shop at East end of Bissell St. Near East Cemetery.

Finding no food at the arranged cache, which had been visited by bears before the explorers arrived, Dr. Kane and his party fought on bravely through the Arctic ice fields. With scarcely any provisions, Kane soon fell ill, a victim of scurvy. He had to be carried lashed to a sled, his legs rigid and useless.

In the second summer all efforts to get the ship out of the ice were fruitless. A second winter in, the ice had to be faced.

Kane made a treaty with the Eskimos, whereby they agreed they would not pillage the ship in the absence of the sledging white men.

The Eskimos were to furnish fresh dogs and meat, and in exchange the visitors were to give them needles, knives and other trifles. The Eskimos performed their part nobly, but, as there seemed no prospect of freeing the ship of ice, it became necessary to make a terrible sledge trip to Beeching Island for help. It was an awful journey.

Sports Writer Razes Referee—He Saw No Low Punches That Meant Anything—Delaney Ahead in the Seventh.

By DAVIS J. WALSH I. N. S. Sports Editor

New York, Aug. 12.—The rookie ball player, when told to go out and play right field, naturally asked to be directed to the position as he had never been in that position before and, judging by the "vintage" of that immortal ball player, he was born about fifty years too soon.

Of course, such high estate is reserved for only a favored few but, in the event that he failed to qualify, the noble profession of newspaper critic would call aloud for such as he.

Another Foul Yes, we have another seething controversy with us this morning as a result of the Paulino-Delaney match at the Yankee Stadium last night.

Light Punch The incident last night, of course had its element of importance to both Delaney and Paulino and, since the questionable blow occurred full in the writer's vision, he felt it his duty to state that it was a light punch that brushed Delaney's right eye severely.

Disregard! Ordered For the boys with the bicuspids finally decided to disregard these instructions whenever he had both hands free and, through the last two rounds, persisted in whaling away at the only game he knew.

Grassin Wins 40-Mile Race; Giorgetti's Spurts Features

By Staff Correspondent More than five thousand lovers of the bicycle-racing sport sat in the spacious Hartford velodrome saucer last night and were treated to a two-hour program that was featured by the forty-mile motor-paced race, one of the series of thirty for the American title and saw Bobby Grassin, the emergent little Frenchman, who formerly held the world's title, grab the event covering the 200 laps in 54 minutes and 25 seconds.

The feature of the race was the brilliant peddling of Franco de Gloritti, the Italian, who twice had to make steps to exchange wheels because of punctures. By sensational spurting, Giorgetti passed Grassin twice to make up both laps he was penalized but his efforts saved his energy to such an extent that he was unable to get nearer than third place.

Following are the results of the races: 40-Mile Motor-Paced Race (American Championship) Won by Robert Grassin, France, paced by Gaethofs; second, George Chapman, Newark, paced by Stein; third, Franco Giorgetti, Italy, paced by Campan; fourth, Charley Berger, Newark, paced by Young; fifth, Ferruccio Zucchetti, Italy, paced by Ferruccio. Time 54 minutes, 25 seconds.

Half-Mile Handicap (Amateur) First heat—Won by Charlie Parker, Meriden, Conn.; second, William Griffith, Hartford; third, Ray Williams, Winsted; fourth, Roy Hillgardner, Meriden; fifth, James Armando, Hartford. Time, 57 seconds.

Final heat—Won by Elmsford (10 yards); second, Williams (35 yards); third, Franzini (15 yards); fourth, Hillgardner (60 yards); fifth, Madonna (25 yards). Time, 56 seconds.

Unknown Distance Race (Professional) Won by Willie Reinsburg, Newark; second, A. Bernhardt, Newark; third, Jack Costello, Newark; fourth, Gus Merkle, Newark; fifth, Fred Fitzgerald, Australia. Distance 3 miles. Time 4:23-5.

McLAUGHLIN JUST MISSES A NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME

Robb's Double in Seventh Smears Opportunity As Bon Ami Beats C. B. A. 1-0 in Season's Best Game.

BY THOMAS W. STOWE A miss may be as good as a mile, but Bill McLaughlin's pitching exhibition last night of whitewashing the C. B. A. ball tossers at the West Side Oval and allowing them but one hit in the seven innings, was by a long shot the best achievement of its kind seen here in a long time.

Coach Bill Brennan's Cobrats had a wonderful chance in the first inning when McLaughlin issued passes to Hanna, Pitt and Robb. There were two out when Bobby Boyce, usually a most dependable hitter, stepped to the plate, but McLaughlin struck him out.

During the next five innings, Cheneys did not get a man on base, McLaughlin retiring them on one-two-three order until the seventh. In the third, Bill struck out Hanna, Zwick and Linnell in rapid succession. As the seventh dawned, the chances of McLaughlin getting through the contest, without allowing a hit, appeared very good.

With only one out, the chances of Cheneys Brothers tying the score, appeared rosy. Bill Brennan went in to pinch hit for Bobby Boyce but popped up to McLaughlin. Robb came to the plate and Jack Stratton came to three and two on and on the next pitch, which was a ball and entitled Stratton to amble down to first, Robb came dashing home for an easy out, Kelly to Brennan to Kelly.

While Cheneys had the two chances just mentioned, their esteemed rivals were faring even worse. Only one opportunity confronted the Bon Ami boys, but they drew a sizzling grounder between short and third. Kelly advanced to third on successive fielder's choices by Ed Coleman and Elmo Mantell but he got no farther because Guido sat Jack Goddard on strikes. In the remaining five innings, Giorgetti was never in danger. He retired the North End batters in succession in the second, fourth and sixth innings.

In the third and fifth, the Bon Ami cracked out singles with two batters out but they availed nothing, not even a good chance to score. The box score:

IT'S ANYBODY'S RACE IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York, Aug. 12.—Although the Chicago Cubs lead the Pittsburgh Pirates by four and one-half games today, the National League pennant race is still very much "in the wood," as the bowlers say.

Hurlers of the four leading teams yesterday turned in pitching performances of a World's Series brand. Charley Root, Grover Alexander, Vic Aldridge and Virgil Barnes, across the pitching staffs of the four contending teams, all twirled low-hit games.

Root chalked up his 21st victory in winning a two to nothing duel from Adolfo Luque of the Pittsburgh Pirates by only one game.

Home runs featured the Cardinals' two to one over the Pirates, in which Alexander and Aldridge each allowed only four hits. A homer by Sunny Jim Bottomley with Frisch on base was all Alex needed to win, as Sprout Waner's homer was the only casualty he suffered.

Dazy Vance lost his first game of the season to the Giants, three to two, when his support faltered. He yielded only five hits and fanned six batters, bringing his total number of strikeouts for the season to 137.

The Giants are still three games behind the Cardinals, who trail the Pirates by only one game.

Howard Ehmke is the first pitcher on the Athletics to win a shut-out victory this season. He blanked the Red Sox, four to nothing. In the nightcap Slim Harris of the Sox whitewashed his former mates, two to nothing.

Lefty Miller of Cleveland won a two to one duel from Alphonse Thomas of the White Sox when Bib Falk lost a fly in the sun in the tenth inning.

August 12th, 1906 CRIPPS vs. MCALL. Twenty-one years ago today, Arthur Crripps, middleweight champion of Australia and famed as one of the best ringsters ever turned out of the Antipodes, successfully defended his title against Billy McCall whom he defeated in 16 rounds at Melbourne, Australia.

Due to his victories over several of America's foremost pugilists, the ring activities of Crripps attracted considerable interest among ring followers in this country. "DRAFTING" COOLIDGE

That group of notable Republicans who, having been in the natural processes of government and politics, closer to the President than it was possible for Republican party members at large to be, and who are now attempting to organize a "drafting" movement to compel the Mr. Coolidge to run again next year, may imagine that they have the best interests of the party at heart; but there is ground for suspicion that they are really putting their own aspirations and interests first, whether they realize it or not.

So long as there was any probability of President Coolidge wanting another term it was the wise and the right thing to regard him as the party's logical candidate in 1928. He has given the country exactly the kind of an administration that best represents the economic and political principles for which Republicanism stands. Never was there an administration less colored by individualism or adhering more closely to a definite political creed. Mr. Coolidge's claim to fame lies in the fact that he has been, at every moment of his official tenure, the perfect spokesman of the great political group which elected him. Therein he achieved the ultimate in the theory of democratic government through political parties, which is the truly American theory.

To assume, however, that there is but one individual capable of thus functioning as the Republican party's representative in the White House is to admit the unworthy belief that the party is a lesser quantity—with all its millions of voters and hundreds of statesmen—than a single individual. This, we take it, would be a confession of weakness so unjustified as to be not only cowardly but utterly false.

With every atom of respect for President Coolidge that can be yielded to any finite being, we hold that the Republican party is a hundred times greater than the greatest leader within its membership. This historic political organization does not rest on any single personality. The Republican party in America is not Fascist, leaning on the name and vitality of a Mussolini. It is an enormous force, derived from the thoughts and purposes and activities of millions of highly intelligent citizens.

That there are not among them more than one man—that there are not, for that matter, scores of men—of sufficient intellect, governmental experience, strength of character and probity, to capably assume the leadership of the Republican party at the national capital, is simply unthinkable.

The party is rich in men of Presidential size. The plan to drag down Mr. Coolidge into running against his will has no justification.

FIFTH DISTRICT

It might not be of any legal effect, but it would at least have the merit of community self-expression, if a special town meeting were called and the town of Manchester therein passed a resolution of thanks and gratitude to the Fifth School district for so ably, if unintentionally, demonstrating the nonsensicality of the pie-bald school system under which we are operated.

The Fifth district situation presents, better than anything else possibly could, all the crudeness, the inefficiency, the wastefulness and the demoralizing influences of a method of school control that belongs to a past age and to an era when the people had so few interests outside their daily toil that opportunity for a fight was welcomed as a relief from tedium.

The world has outgrown the necessity for the tonic of neighborhood jangles. It has passed beyond the point where the educational system amounted to but little other than something to squabble beautifully over. In America, at least, the schools have become a definite responsibility, an integral part of our civilization. They cost us too much money, nowadays, to serve no better purpose than that of a red flag in a bull ring.

If the people of Manchester have any real doubt about the need of school consolidation let them regard the Fifth district. There indeed lies the horrible example.

COOLIDGE AND THE NAVY

One of Calvin Coolidge's very best points as a President has been his attitude toward extravagance in naval expenditure. Whoever succeeds him as the candidate of the Republican party in 1928 will have to make it known in advance that his naval policy is not essentially different from Mr. Coolidge's. Because there is a very powerful "big navy" element in this country, and nobody knows how much stubborn resistance the President has had to put forth in opposition to its aspirations.

The President called the Geneva conference because he conscientiously believed that a dangerous and enormously expensive naval building program was being promoted by the big navy men. The conference unfortunately was a fizzle. But it is quite obviously the purpose of Mr. Coolidge to stick to his ground of economy in ship construction, just the same. The "big navy" crowd will not be able to bug him. But his successor will be subjected to the same sort of attack—and it is vitally necessary that the party place its candidate on record as in sympathy with the Coolidge position.

From Rapid City comes the declaration that during the life of the incoming Congress the President will back, not a ship building program but an active program of national defense in the air. In such a determination he will be sure to have the country at his back. A thousand fighting airplanes, capable of meeting and sinking at sea any battle fleet that could be sent against us, long before its guns approached to within range of the American coast, would be an instrument of defense behind which Americans could rest content in their security. And the thousand would cost scarcely more than the unequipped hull of a single battle ship—or, even, one of those 10,000 ton cruisers of which the "big navy" men would like to build a score.

There is probably no single issue on which Americans, without respect to party, agree with the President with such an approach to unanimity as on his naval policy. It is one of the most important manifestations of his general policy of economy—and will be so recognized the instant there is the slightest prospect of its becoming unsettled, by his next successor or any subsequent one.

THE NICKEL SMOKE

Commentators seem to regard it as a duty to say something about a declaration made before the Federal Trade Commission that the late Thomas R. Marshall seriously injured the nickel smoke trade when he made his famous suggestion that what the country particularly needed was a good five cent cigar. Very generally editors appear to accept the theory of the person who walked before the Trade Commission and such a newspaper as the New York Herald-Tribune solemnly concludes that "you can't be too careful" what you say.

The tobacco man, who complained of the injury done to the cheap cigar business by Mr. Marshall's celebrated wise-crack, insisted that the casual remark of the vice-president convinced millions of smokers that the five centers were rotten, whereas they had always considered them 'good enough up to that moment.

As a matter of fact Mr. Marshall told the ungodly truth. For a number of years the prices of cigars had been going up—indirectly. There were still as many five cent cigars as ever, possibly, but they were growing worse and worse in quality in keeping with the generally advancing trend of prices of almost all commodities. It is just as much a rise in price when a five cent article comes to be made of inferior material, and the old material goes into the fabrication of higher priced goods, as if the selling figure of the five cent article were frankly advanced.

The nickel cigar of 1913 was not the nickel cigar of 1925 by a wide margin, and Mr. Marshall, being an elderly person, was vividly impressed by that fact. Also he belonged to a school of economic thought which sees no good in rising prices, believing that what soars must eventually come down again, with disarrangement and loss as the result. He was one of those who long for stabilization—and of course never experienced it.

It would be just as sensible to blame the whimsical Billy Marshall for the world war as to try to stick onto his memory the stigma of the ruined five cent cigar industry. People quit smoking five cent cigars because they could no longer buy a cigar for a nickel that was fit to smoke. There never was a time when a five cent cigar was the equal of a 20 cent Havana, but there were many years when the Nickolara was at least supportable. When rising commodity prices made the five taste like a burning liverly stable the smoking public sadly but necessarily quit on it. Ask any smoker about the age of forty.

FLEETING

The evanescent character of newspaper literature, even at its best, is illustrated by an extraordinarily witty, clever bit executed by some unidentified rewrite man on one of the New York papers a day or two ago in his handling of the Westchester "kangaroo-bear" yarn.

"Now the original kangaroo escaped from a cage at Winsted, Conn., and—"

"Winsted, did you say?" asked the reporter, gathering up his brief case and cane. "Etc."

Thackeray never did anything more subtle than that. The whole history of Winsted fakes, the instant damning of the kangaroo-bear tale by the mention of the Connecticut Shanghai, the lightning-like reaction to utter disbelief and repudiation on the part of a theretofore interested news hound, are embodied in his sudden preparation for departure; in those seven words. It is a literary achievement that many a very famous writer never equaled.

Yet if that newspaper clipping should by any chance survive a hundred years and be read by a member of a brand new generation, absolutely every atom of its satire would be lost. Or it read today in some part of the world where the fame of Winsted's marvels had failed to penetrate—say England—it would be flat, meaningless and unprofitable.

The newspaper creature works for the moment and for his environment. Also for beans and second hand Fords.

Old Master's Blow down, cold rivulet to the sea. Thy tribute wave deliver. No more by me thy steps shall be. For ever and for ever. A thousand suns will stream on these. A thousand moons will quiver. But, not by these my steps shall be. For ever and for ever. —Alfred Tennyson—A Forewell.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Aug. 12.—The net result of President Coolidge's remarkable announcement at Rapid City has been to throw a whole crop of political experts into utmost confusion.

The president didn't say that he wasn't a candidate to succeed himself. If he had, there might be less confusion. He said: "I do not choose to run for president in 1928."

That meant something, but it might mean anything, and every one in Washington whose opinion was worth seeking suggested a different explanation.

If one man's guess is as good as another's, then the suggestion is presented herewith that the president meant to say in any way are strong indications that the president hardly meant that he was definitely refusing re-election. If he had meant that, there was little to restrain him from saying just that.

Your correspondent, having observed the president on numerous occasions, once suggested to one who knew Coolidge well that the president was a nervous man. "Not that," replied this prominent person. "But he never seems at ease. One gets the impression that he isn't sure of himself. He is very easily embarrassed by conversation that he has found from experience that a policy of waiting and doing nothing is the safest when it comes to issues which are his official rather than his personal concern."

Showdown Now Imminent. Did the situation in which Coolidge recently found himself finally become intolerable to him? Is he the sort of man who must have full and whole-hearted support of his party or none at all? Did he feel that the continued "third term" discussion, the dissipation of the obvious fact that many important men in his own party would be glad to get rid of him—that all these things placed in an uncertain position against which he ought to rebel and demand a showdown—was being maintained and the showdown is imminent.

Either a majority of the party leaders will break or they will stand by the president. At this writing it is probable that most of them are completely flabbergasted. They may have been hoping with all their hearts that Coolidge would decline to run for re-election, but the way in which he did so could hardly inspire a cautious politician with his eye on the feed box to let out an immediate whoop for another candidate. At this writing they continue to express divergent opinions as to just what the president means.

Move Strengthen's Coolidge. It will be much easier for politicians on the fence to express regret at the Coolidge "what-ifs" and to go on their ways rejoicing, but the president's stroke may actually strengthen his position. It is much harder to shoot at a candidate who insists that the office must seek the man, and if Coolidge is not nominated, the disappointed forces behind the Republican party that there were stronger candidates than he and that if the party were to win in 1928 it must be sure its standard-bearer could hold the great electoral vote of New York against a candidate like Al Smith. There have been rumors that the forces referred to had decided as much several months ago.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 12.—Hardly a week passes in Manhattan but what some bogus Lothario, playing a jaunty social role, is exposed. These young men masquerading as titled foreigners, or as millionaires' sons, or as heroic figures, strut about, among the romance-hungry maidens of the hotel and dress even beyond their pretensions, seeming always to have an abundance of good clothes even when there are no shekels in their pockets. They make hasty love to young women, or play gigolo to old women, and often the masquerade is not discovered until well after the ceremony has been performed.

Such a fellow, who for months has posed about as an eminent aviator, came wandering into town the week of Lindbergh and, taking the title of Captain or Lieutenant to himself, was accepted as such. These young men engaged to marry a prominent young woman. The wedding, of course, has been called off.

Manhattan is so big that pretensions can be carried on in wholesale fashion with but a few hundred people knowing about them. Now and then the pretensions go so far as to break into the newspapers, getting away with their fraud for some time before they are discovered.

Furthermore, the cringing attitude of certain social and nouveau riche groups makes them easy bait for these fellows. "Front" counts for so much with large fractions of the population that any slick marksman can make them a target for his game of wits.

Strangely enough the adventures, as pictured in the old melodramas and fireside stories, seem to have dropped from the picture. Some years back these vampirish imposters were pictured as beguiling the poor little butter-and-egg men, getting them into financial difficulties and fleeing them.

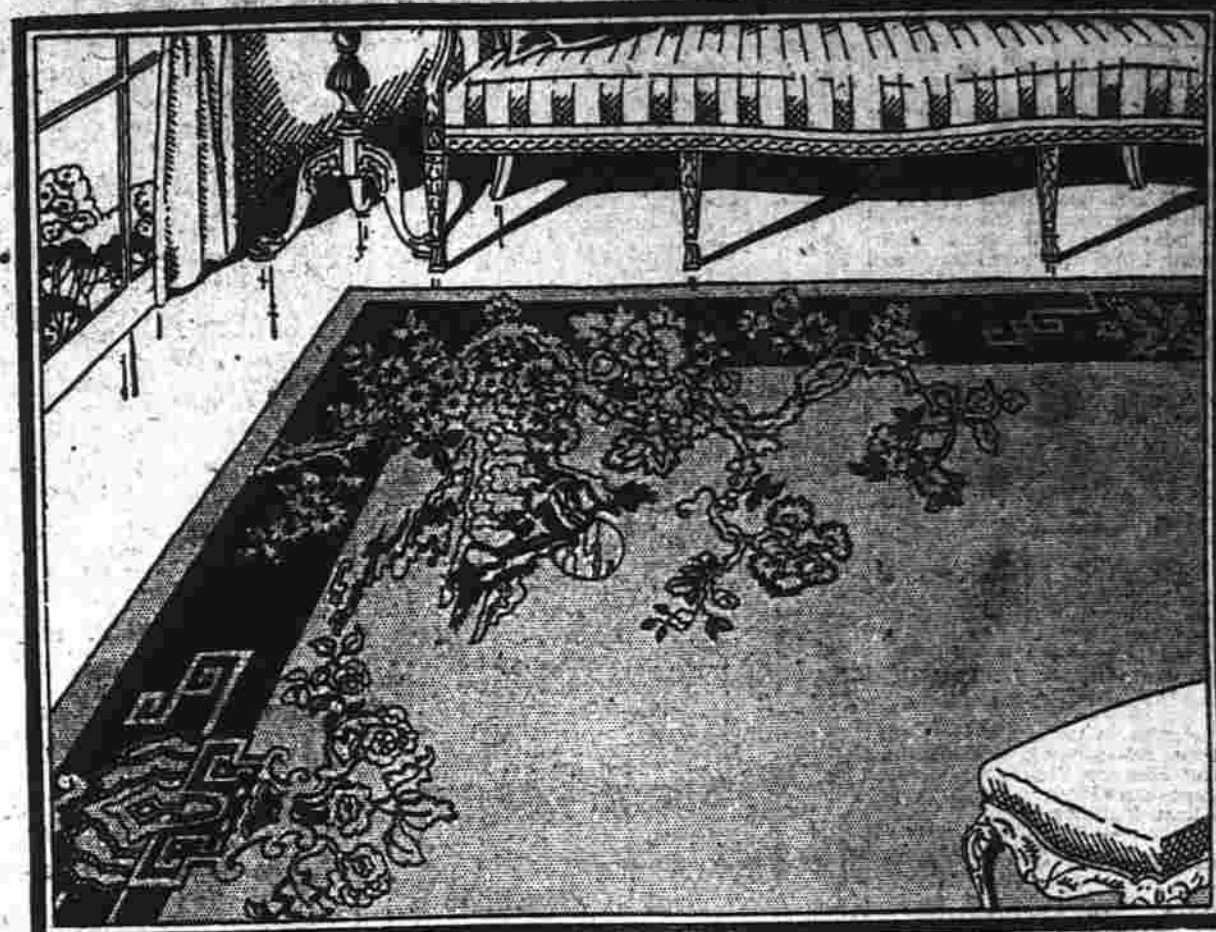

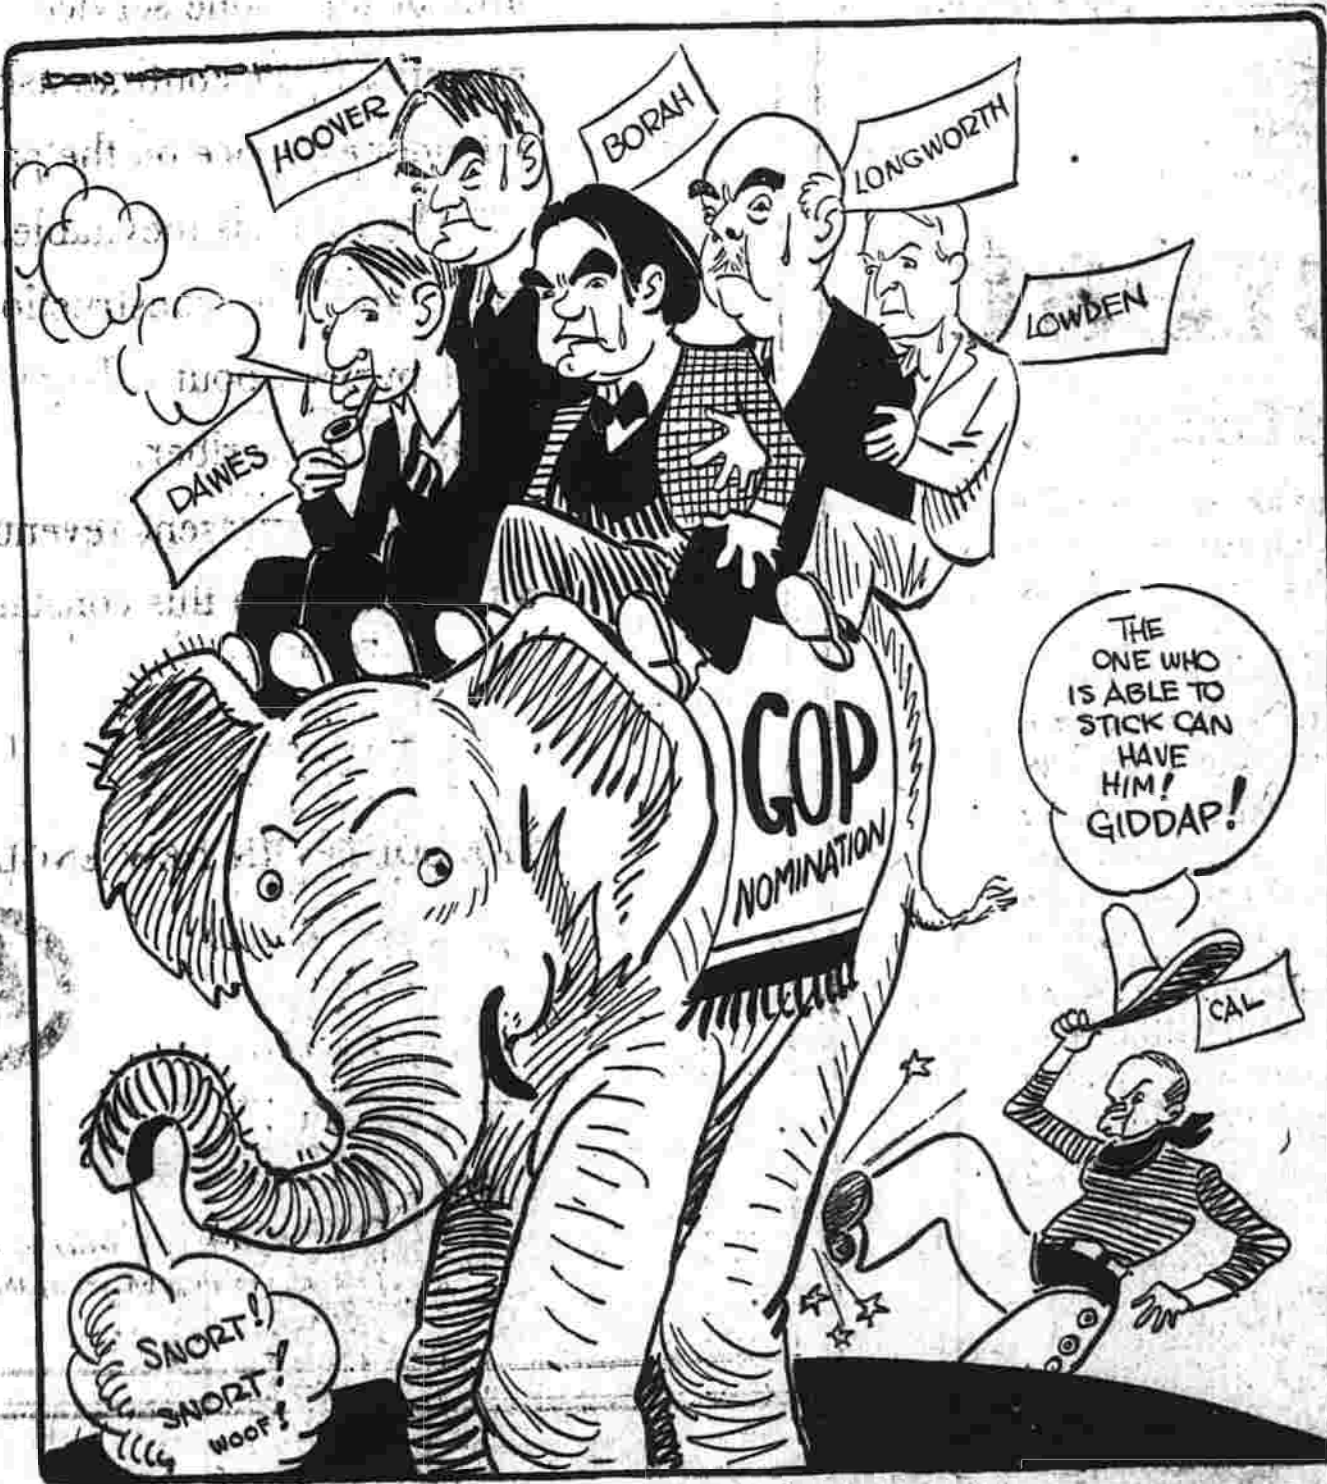

Today competition is a little too strong for the old-time adventures. This siren has been supplanted by her cocktail-drinking little sister and the method has been completely reversed. The male has taken the place of the adventures of old, using all of her old tricks to win his way into social position and the presence of easy money.

Recently a clever burglar operated in the Long Island fashionable belt. He went to the homes of the rich and to their hotel rooms taking fortunes in gems.

When captured he was found to have been living at exclusive country clubs, taking the names of prominent people and playing golf with social notables. In one instance it was found he had taken the name of the son of a Boston judge who had given him his first jail sentence. Posing as the judge's son was his idea of an ironic and amusing way of paying an old score.

Sees First Circus In 34 Years; And What A Difference He Finds!

A Manchester man who attended his last circus here in 1893 remarked on the difference between the shows of that time and the shows of today. He went to the Christy Brothers show at Hickey's Grove last Monday night his first circus in 34 years, and was surprised at the changes.

He missed the old kerosene flare lamps which were used years ago. In their place he saw electric lights, operated on power from the circus' own generators. The old smell of the lights was missing.

There were three rings in the circus Monday night. In the 1893 circus here there was only one, presided over by a ringmaster in white riding breeches, shiny boots, a red coat and a top hat. The ringmaster was absent in Christy circus and the three rings contained no sawdust.

Bareback riding something very much in vogue in the 90's, was missing from the Christy circus, and it is said that this art is almost a lost one among the ordinary sized shows touring the country to-day. There was no preliminary parade in 1893 and circuses did not use automobile trucks or tractors. And there were few animal acts, no wild animals at all, but the acrobats, the iron-jawed women and the clowns were there as they had always been.

Progress has crept in and the circus has howed before it, but the atmosphere, the old timer says, is the same. Thirty-four years ago the old timer rode in a buggy to the circus at Manchester. There were no trolley cars then but last night a trolley dropped him off right at the entrance to the circus grounds.

Making A Plane's Propeller Important Part Of The Job

This is the third in a series of articles prepared by the Playground and Recreation Association of America...

The elder is an airplane that coasts through the air, gliding forward as it drops to the ground.

The maker of model airplanes will find the propeller one of the most important parts of his machine.

Use Very Light Wood Make your propeller of the lightest wood obtainable.

slightly convex, or hollow. Then do the same thing to the other blade, as shown in Figure Seven.

Now you are ready to trim the lower side of the propeller. This must be done carefully; you must get the blade as thin as possible...

We will assume that you are making a propeller for a plane 38 inches long.

First draw one blade of the propeller on a piece of thin paper...

Then lay the blade you drew on the paper on the wood, putting the center of the hub right over the place where the lines AB and CD cross.

Begin with the curved edge, as shown in Figure Five. Leave the straight edge high, and cut down to the bottom of the curved edge.

Keeping Pace with Your Telephone Requirements

Much of the telephone plant and operating equipment now in use was installed before the World War, and at the relatively low prices which then prevailed.

As it wears out, it must be replaced. And of course all replacements have to be made at the much higher present costs for labor and materials.

Furthermore, we are continually building new plant, at present-day prices. This expenditure alone amounts to millions of dollars annually.

We have no alternative. Worn out equipment must be replaced, in order that we may maintain high standards of telephone service.

The result is inevitable. The replacing of old equipment and the construction of new at to-day's price level brings about a large increase in our plant investment per subscriber.

And our present revenues are not sufficient to yield a fair return on this constantly increasing property.

JERRY MACKLYN, advertising manager for the Peach Bloom Committee Co., has the courage to transform her into a beauty only after she sees and falls instantly in love with a man who ignores her. Jerry proposes to publish her photographs in Peach Bloom advertising booklet.

She arranged the unfolded clippings and glanced at the sensational headlines.

At the Manhattan Vern is treated with deference and awe. SCHUYLER SMYTHE, the man she is in love with, assuredly met her in Palm Beach five years before. Her attempts to convince people of her true identity are unsuccessful.

During a ride with Smythe, Vera learns some facts about the woman she is being mistaken for. She learns that she is worth a million dollars.

At an inn where they join acquaintance, Vera learns the woman for whom she is mistaken is named Vivian. She decides to open a letter which Jerry gave her with the advice that it was a trap. In the case she found herself "in a jam."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX

THE sight of Jerry Macklyn's bold, black, angular handwriting on the large sheets of office stationery which Vee-Vee unfolded caused her a tiny pang of homesickness. Dear Jerry! The thought fitted through her mind as her eyes swept over the sheet before they started to read; then excitement blotted out the image of Jerry. For, characteristically Jerry jumped into the heart of his subject:

"Dear Vee-Vee: I'm scared stiff. Gosh, how could I know whose picture I was copying when I played Pygmalion for my bespectacled private secretary? There wasn't any caption on the darn thing, and I lay it all over the newspaper eyes. Just the color of yours, Vee-Vee, you darned little natural-born vamp that was about to miss her calling! Well, I found out after you got your hair bobbed just like hers—and I'll bet there's not another bob in the world just like yours and hers. But then it was too late to change you and I thought I'd let it ride, without telling you. No use to get you all stirred up, I figured. I thought I'd be able to get you out of trouble's way by becoming Mrs. Jerry Macklyn, but when nothing would do you but to chase off to Lake Minnetonka in quest of a sheik, I knew I'd better warn you, especially in light of recent developments.

The enclosed clippings. The dickens of it is that Vivian divorced her Russian prince in Paris about three weeks ago, came back to New York, had a bloody battle with her bitterly disappointed mama, and disappeared. The papers have been full of rumors as to what the fair Vivian was doing, the general opinion being that she was in hiding somewhere with a good-looking ne'er-do-well she'd picked up in Paris while she was getting her divorce.

"You see the idea? Somebody is going to spot you, jump to the conclusion that you are Vivian Crandall, and draw down on your defenseless head a ghastly lot of publicity. Now, I don't want to frighten you, honey—'er breath caught at that carelessly dropped word of endorsement. Was she looking slightly older than Vee-Vee, more proudly sure of herself, more arrogant of her beauty—which was no new story to Vivian Crandall, who had been wearing the title of princess for four years.

She dropped the print of the painted portrait to the top of her dressing table and drew the news clippings out of the envelope. Odd that she had missed the entire story in the papers! But she only read the most conservative, staid papers and never wasted a moment on scandal, the doings of society, or crime stories.

She arranged the unfolded clippings on the dressing table, glanced at the sensational headlines: CRANDALL HEIRESS DIVORCES PRINCE VIVIAN CRANDALL RE- NOUNCES TITLE FOR LOVE PRINCESS NOW PLAIN MISS CRANDALL.

PRINCE IVAN SAILS FOR NEW YORK: WILL ATTEMPT RECONCILIATION WITH PRINCESS VIVIAN, NEB CRANDALL, WHO DIVORCED HIM IN PARIS.

LOVE NEST HINTED IN CRANDALL HEIRESS' DIS- APPEARANCE

She glanced hastily at one of the news stories, conscious that time was passing rapidly and that Schuyler would be awaiting her impatiently. She had promised to join him at half-past seven, to dine with him.

The story, a signed one, undoubtedly clipped from the society columns of one of the more sensational morning papers, was written in that familiar, chatty style which is supposed to intrigue the 'hot polloi' who know of society's doings only through the newspapers.

"I told you so! Pardon me for again committing the social faux pas of bragging, but I must remind my readers that I predicted, as long ago as last December, in the issue of December 19, to be exact—that the beautiful Vivian, affectionately known in Newport, New York and Palm Beach society, before she became a princess as Vivi, would not be willing much longer to pay the bills which her Russian husband, Prince Ivan, has such a talent for running up. A blond charmer in Vienna, a Juno in Rome, and a cabaret cutie in Paris proved to be a little too much for one red-blooded American heiress to stand for—or rather, to support, and, just as I predicted, the long-suffering princess took her troubles to the Seine tribunal and has received quick redress therefor. The only title to which the fair Vivi is now entitled is that of dollar princess, and since her fortune, which her father, the senator Rufus Crandall, carelessly protected for her, amounts to a cool and fairly adequate forty millions, she is certainly entitled to that tag of royalty.

"Society's tongue is wagging busily today, recalling the magnificent ceremony at St. Luke's which have in marriage a reluctant American heiress to a Russian whose title meant less than nothing, but which Mama Crandall was determined to have. It is safe to wager that Mama Crandall has derived a thousand times more pleasure out of Vivi's title during these last four years than the begueteous Vivian herself.

"What rot!" Vee-Vee thought disgustedly. "I've read a tiny bit of this stuff now. Schuyler will be waiting. Nothing can happen tonight. I'll finish reading it when I come up to bed."

She stuffed the clippings into the envelope, was about to insert Jerry's scrawled explanation, when an obscure impulse, probably born of caution, made her thrust it beneath the snug little brassiere of lace-trimmed net. The envelope of clippings she returned to the dressing table drawer, then began, with anxious haste, to dust her cheeks with the pearl-tinted powder.

"If he hadn't been in love with that other girl for five years I could tell him the truth, show him Jerry's letter. But if I do, I may lose him, Jerry," she said, her crackling sheets hidden in her bosom, "I'm afraid I'm going to disobey you—and take the consequences!"

Vee-Vee keeps up the pretense, despite Jerry's warnings. But there is one to whom her deception is causing pain.

Vee-Vee dimpled at that last—"Princess now plain Miss Crandall." PRINCESS VIVIAN DIS-charity boards. Cousin-in-law will of course be languishing in a quiet little apartment under the roof telling her troubles to her friends.

A relative dies across sea. Her dream actually does come true. She is rich at last! As rich as the cousin-in-law!

She studies for some hours over the letter that contains the news. Joy at first, then a sober contemplation of what so much money will mean.

She has lived a quiet life of retirement and peace. Now she will have to take her place in the sun, and its attendant worries and responsibilities. She will have to bother with affairs as her cousin-in-law has done. She will no longer be free to read and sew and gossip and walk in the garden when she chooses. She will no longer be sheltered and protected. Very quietly she writes to the lawyers in charge of the estate and wills the entire amount to an orphanage. Aren't many of us happier than we pretend to be? Isn't much of our misery a pose? And isn't gratitude often misplaced by a mistaken sense of injustice.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUMNER

A 28-year-old woman of Milan, Italy, one Signora Margherita Tocci, is a grandmother. She was married at 13. Her own daughter was married at the same age, and it is this daughter who has just had her own daughter who probably will also marry at 13 and make her grandmama a great-grandmama at the age of 42. Pride in family achievement will permit nothing less!

"She's Envid" We hear a great deal about women now putting the emphasis of importance upon everything in the world except things domestic and maternal. But here's waging that infinitely more women are interested in an avocation than the Signora Tocci than those who are indifferent and scornful of her lot and that of her daughter and probably that of her granddaughter. Feminism does not have the number of devotees that fiction would have one believe.

House of Boys Speaking of babies, there is an apartment house in Paris known as "The House of Boys," for every child born therein has been a boy. Many people believe that Heaven is rewarding the landlady, Madame Abel Barre, a widow with nine grandchildren, who built the apartment house especially for large families. Those who believe that her reward is many boys are not feminists, of course, with their implication that girl babies would be no special reward from Heaven.

Wild Bachelors Bachelors are "wild and irrepressible and unfit to hold office," according to M. Stephan Raditch, head of the Croatian Peasants' party in Jugo-Slavia, who favors a statute for bachelors holding positions of responsibility, such as becoming members of parliament, etc.

Any statement like this always brings forth an avalanche of opinion which proves that the Devil can quote Scripture to suit his purpose. Bachelors will optime that it takes real brains to stay a bachelor and that they, therefore, are far more

Chocolate Munchers The drama has been ruined by silly and stupid women who go to shows merely to munch chocolates. This from St. John Ervine, dramatist, who declares that chocolate-munching women who support all the leggy girl shows! And of course it's the men who support opera and Shakespearean plays and all the really good stuff when it comes to town!

PLAID PREDOMINANCE Plaids appear to be gaining in popularity. Autumn suits often use gay plaids for pleated skirts and coat trimming.

Good Nature and Good Health

WHY YOU BLINK MORE RAPIDLY UNDER EXCITEMENT

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

When an object is brought suddenly toward the eye, the average man blinks. Frequently he blinks without any apparent stimulation.

Two British physiologists, Drs. Ponder and Kennedy, decided to find out whether blinking is automatic or voluntary and to study the various conditions which bring blinking about.

Apparently blinking is not dependent on the perception of light they found, although a sudden illumination may produce a few rapid blinks; instead, every individual has a normal blinking rate which is modified by external stimuli. The rate of blinking is more rapid when the eyes are fixed on a near point than when they are looking at a distance.

Each blinking movement is associated with the movement of the eye itself. If a person tries to hold the eyes without blinking, he will find in from ten to twenty seconds an almost uncontrollable desire to blink. At this time, if he will alter the position of his eyes and look elsewhere, he may avoid the blinking movement.

Irritation of the eye, as in smoking, increases the blinking rate and does also stimulation of it.

the hearing. Whereas the average will blink every two and a half seconds, if he becomes angry he is likely to blink every second. If a person is excited he will blink more rapidly, and he is likely to blink more rapidly during speech. In other words, mental tension is important in this connection.

The study brought out a considerable difference between men and women. It is generally known that the attention of women is more introspective and not so well fixed as that of men. Men and women were observed in a reading room. It was found that the women would blink every five seconds compared with 11.2 seconds for the men.

The continual wandering of attention in women, accompanied by movements of the head and eyes, made the count of the blinks more difficult in women than in men. The rate of blinking is associated with a state of abstraction or with a slow rate of blinking. A state of mental tension without an external outlet is accompanied by a rapid blinking rate.

ISN'T MISERY REALLY A POSE?

By Olive Roberts Barton

A reduced-gentlewoman, finding herself with no funds and no worldly possessions, save a cat and a canary, wrote to a rich but distant relative upon whom she had no claim whatsoever, explaining her situation.

A well-known writer introduced us to the lady some years later, snugly entrenched in a comfortable two-room apartment on the third floor of aforesaid rich relative's house.

That her rooms are on the top floor and that they are plain, the lady resents. That her meals are served to her in her own sitting room instead of in the stately family dining room she also resents. It is with intense bitterness that she accepts clothes that are not quite new and with a greater bitterness never for a minute appreciating the flowers, fruit and other kindly attentions she is constantly receiving.

Jealous of her rich but busy cousin-in-law she dreams of a day when the situation will be reversed. She dreams for hours of a time when she will be full of affairs, busy with a big house, servants and

HOLD RED SUSPECTS

Boston, Mass., Aug. 12.—Two white men and a negro were arrested by police today when the trio were discovered in a clump of bushes on Charles river esplanade, near the Beacon street home of Governor Alvan T. Fuller. The negro was armed and one of the white men carried the plan of a residence near the governor's home. Six Yonkers, N. Y., men arrested in a hotel raid yesterday and questioned, were released during the night, having explained their movements in a satisfactory manner to police. The minimum age of 14 years for employment in industry has been adopted by 15 nations, as a result of the decision of the Washington conference of 1919.

LEGLESS CIRCUS AGENT DRIVES AN AUTOMOBILE

Usually when a man loses a leg through an injury, his days of driving an automobile are ended, but there is a man with Christy Brothers' circus which played Manchester Monday night, who drives a car although both of his legs have been cut off above the knees. He is S. C. Treadway, an agent for the circus. He drives a specially built closed-in automobile in which he makes his home. The driving apparatus is so arranged that he can operate the car with the stumps of his legs and his hands.

EUGENE CHEN QUILTS

London, Aug. 12.—Eugene Chen, colorful foreign minister of the Radical Nationalist government at Nanking, about whom the Nationalist government's tilt with European and United States governments have raged, has resigned his post, according to advices reaching the British foreign office today. It was reported that Chen quit because of the military domination of General Tang Shing-Chi, Extremist southern war lord.

TILDEN WINS EASILY

Meadow Club, Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 12.—"Big Bill" Tilden of Philadelphia entered the final round of the annual Meadow Club invitation tournament today when he defeated Jacques Brugnon, French star, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0. Tilden was playing in superb form, at the top of his game and his brilliance in so utterly swamping the Frenchman surprised even his most enthusiastic admirers. Tilden will meet the winner of this afternoon's match between George M. Lott, Jr., and Rene La Coste.

SUCCESSFUL TESTS

Dessau, Germany, Aug. 12.—The Junker trans-Atlantic airplanes Europa and Bremen made a successful test flight in a thunderstorm today carrying full equipment and crew. The flyers announced they were determined to make a start on the trans-Atlantic flight tomorrow, provided weather conditions over the Atlantic are favorable.

GROUSE SEASON ON TODAY IN SCOTLAND

London, Aug. 12. (United Press).—London's social season ended today—for the simple reason that no one is left in London to "carry on." Everyone—that is everyone of any social consequence has departed for Scotland for the grouse shooting season which opens today. All signs point to an excellent season, particularly in Perthshire, while in many of the other 2,400 moors or "shootings" throughout Scotland where grouse abound, the weather has been favorable for hatching and young grouse are reported on the wing in many districts. England's finest game-shot, the King, will participate in the hunting this season and it is expected that he will follow his annual custom of staying at the famous Balmoral Castle where he does most of his hunting. American millionaires with their comfortable purses will be much in evidence during the season. Several of them have already been able to outbid Englishmen for the choice shootings. One large deer and grouse sanctuary, it is reported, has been rented for the season for more than $35,000.

It is estimated that $300,000,000 worth of automobiles are stolen annually in the United States.

BILLION AWAITS FOREIGNERS IN RUSSIAN TRADE

Machinery and Equipment for Industrial Plants is Big Item.

Moscow.—Nearly one billion dollars of new business awaits foreign concerns who are willing to take the pains to sell to the Soviet government. This sum is contained in only two items of the budget which the finance commission proposes for the fiscal year 1927-28 beginning October 1.

Half a billion is recommended for construction and improvements to revenue yielding industrial plants, including machinery and equipment. Almost an equal sum will be spent for extensions, repairs and rolling stock of the giant railroad, barge and steamship systems.

Internal Loan
Two-thirds of the cash for these undertakings is proposed to be taken from current revenues. An internal loan of approximately $180,000,000 is all that is believed necessary to keep the budget balanced. The present rigid pay-as-you-go policy of the government is to be continued.

Foreign loans, the commission said, are urgently needed to speed up industrial expansion, which at present can go only to the extent of available revenues. Though the national income is expected to increase 7 per cent next year, taxes will not be materially raised. In general the financial condition of the country is pronounced "increasingly satisfactory." The chervones, the unit of paper currency equal to 10 rubles, though artificially stabilized, is backed by a 25 per cent gold reserve.

Year's Expenditures
Total expenditures for the coming fiscal year are estimated at 5,413,000,000 rubles (about $2,700,000,000), an increase of 11 per cent over 1926-27. Sources of income are estimated as follows: $27 million rubles from direct taxes on incomes, property and for use of land; 1,450 million rubles from indirect taxes on food staples, liquor and tobacco; 1,650 million rubles from profits of government railroads, steamship and barge lines; 184 millions from customs, and 173 millions from profits of the post office, telegraph and telephone systems; and approximately 750 millions from other state enterprises.

Take home a brick of ice cream for dinner. Brick ice cream is delicious and easy to serve. Quinn's. adv.

TILDEN VICTORIOUS

Meadow Club, Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 11.—All signs point to a brilliant end to the 44th men's invitation tennis tournament here Saturday as the semi-finals were reached today with William T. Tilden and Rene Lacoste victorious and evidently intent on playing through. It was said here this afternoon that neither will default.

Tilden won his way to the semi-finals by a sensational 6-4, 6-2 win over the national collegiate champion, Wilmer Allison, Austin, Texas. The match was a thriller in that Allison forced matters at all times. But his best did not prevail against the speedy and accurate Philadelphian.

METCALF WINS

Metcalf defeated Cotton in the West Side Tennis tournament Wednesday afternoon. The scores were 3-6, 6-1 and 9-7.

PETITION STARTED ON TOWN PLANNING
First Signature is Austin Cheney, Head of Chamber of Commerce.

Secretary George E. Rix of the Chamber of Commerce started today to get 25 signatures to a petition asking that a clause concerning town planning be inserted in the call for the annual town meeting which is to be held on the first Monday in October.

The petition asks that the board of selectmen insert in the call the following clause: "To see if the meeting will vote to raise a town planning commission in accordance with the statute and, if the commission is decided upon, to elect six members as the general statute provides."

Twenty-five signatures are required in a petition of this kind but Mr. Rix said today that he was confident of getting more than the required number. The petition must be in the hands of the town clerk five days before the meeting.

This action was decided upon by the directors of the chamber at their meeting on July 26. The first signature on the petition, is that of Austin Cheney, president of the chamber.

TULSA TO HAVE AIR POLICEMEN
MAYOR'S VISION

Aviation Becoming Big Factor in Industrial Life of Cities.

Tulsa, Okla.-The study of air problems and commercial aviation soon will be essential to city administrators as the study of traffic and sanitation is today, according to Herman Newblock, mayor of Tulsa.

"Aviation is becoming an important factor in the life of the nation," Mayor Newblock declared. "It would be foolish to say that the city administration has nothing to do with aviation."

"It is quite possible that the city of Tulsa will have air traffic cops in the city payroll within the next decade. Then we may see pilots called into police court to tell the judge why they were flying in the air level restricted to heavy freight planes."

Municipal Airport
That Tulsa is to have a municipal airport is inevitable. How soon the airport is to come is another matter.

It is probable too, that aviation will have developed to the point where landing may be made on the roofs of skyscrapers and the city will have to investigate the proposed landing stages before permits are issued for such stations.

Air Age in Infancy
High planes, bigger than any now constructed, will be flying above the city on transcontinental routes. Smaller planes, equipped with landing gear, will be flying in the sky with passengers from suburban points.

Certain attitudes will be reserved for slow freight planes while other attitudes may become air lines for passenger ships or fast pleasure planes.

What a howl there would have been if, in 1917, we had told France we would come across in sixty-two years.

LIMERICK.

Oh, a dollar, a dime and a nickel, Will buy a book and a pickle, Buy there's nothing so hard To wrap up by the yard As a scythe or a snake or a sickle.

Nature issues no pardons to those who violate her laws.

A mouse is afraid of a man, a man is afraid of a woman, and a woman is afraid of a mouse.

Nothing in life is half so sweet as love's young dream—just before it turns to a nightmare.

Why should a worm want to turn, when it is the same at both ends?

The Gooty Goo the Tinies found, just slightly hurt upon the ground, began to get real friendly: as they carried him along. "I like you all," they heard him say. "The reason that we ran away was 'cause we thought you'd hurt us. Now I know that we were wrong." "Why, we're as friendly as can be," said Clowzy. "We won't hurt you. Gee, we merely wished to play with you and have some dandy fun. To be real kind is always best, and now I hope we find the rest, for when we do we'll all join in and sing, and play and run. The little Gooty Goo then said, "Our camp, I'm sure, is just ahead. Just trail along through the trees and we will soon be there." That's what they did and found him right. The little camp soon came in sight. They saw a lot of Gooty Gooes out in the open air. As soon as they were on the ground, the Gooty Goo the Tinies found, told all the others, "These

by Gilbert Patten

That blow staggered Lockwill. Before he could recover, Saunders was upon him. Dropping the switch and ducking a swing at his head, Jack gave the bruiser a poke in the wind, doubling him up. A second blow reached Saunders' jaw and stretched him on the ground. Whirling, the aroused boy met Lizard, coming at him again, and knocked him down also. Peewee turned and fled.

Somebody, near at hand, uttered an exclamation of wonder and admiration. Turning, Jack was surprised to see a young Indian girl emerging from the woods.

The girl came forward and halted, her dark eyes fixed upon the boy who had so quickly mastered three foes. "You are brave and mighty," she said softly.

Her open admiration embarrassed Jack, who flushed to the roots of his hair. "It didn't take much might with such dubs," he replied, laughing to cover his confusion. "Stopping to the tree, he set Tom Longline free. "Thank you, White Lightning," said the Indian boy. "That should be your name, for like lightning you strike, and none stand before you. I have never seen your equal." (To Be Continued)

POLICE COURT

John Cannon, colored, of Hartford, who is employed at the Sroka wood yard on Spruce street, had a day off yesterday and became drunk. He made a nuisance of himself and Patrolman John McGinn placed him under arrest. In court this morning Judge Johnson found him guilty of intoxication and imposed a fine of $10 and costs. He was unable to pay and was taken to jail.

Frank Hutchinson of 210 Charter Oak street made a disturbance at his home last night and was placed under arrest by Sergeant John Crockett. His wife was summoned to appear against him but failed to do so. Prosecuting Attorney Hathaway said he had sufficient evidence to convict the man without the testimony of Mrs. Hutchinson, but he preferred to have her present and asked that the hearing be continued until tomorrow morning. The prosecuting attorney told the judge that Hutchinson was one of those characters who neither tells nor spins but who lives on his wife's income and kicks up a row when he wants money. Mrs. Hutchinson is employed in one of the Hartford department stores. Judge Johnson ordered the case continued under a bond of $50.
