

AIR RACE ACROSS PACIFIC IS ON

TAX INCREASE UNAVOIDABLE, SAY OFFICIALS

School Appropriation Will Call for $20,000 Jump in Budget—Selectmen Hope to Keep Under 15 Mills.

Manchester cannot pay for its rapidly increasing school expenses, maintain good highways, continue building permanent sidewalks and meet current expenses by levying a 13 1-2 mill tax rate, it was learned at last night's special meeting of the Board of Selectmen held in the Municipal building. An increase in the rate is inevitable during the next fiscal year which is just beginning. One mill increase, at least will be necessary, and town officials are straining every point to make sure that the rate does not go over 15 mills.

Schools the Cause

The immediate cause of an increase is the proposed expansion of the school appropriation in the budget now under consideration. Last year, in an endeavor to cut the rate below 14 mills, the school budget was cut. This year it will be impossible to cut this appropriation and an increase of $20,000 is to be sought in this item alone. The present Board is keeping down expenses in all departments so that this school increase can be partially offset.

Up To Voters

The Board of Selectmen took no definite action regarding the proposed budget but it is not completed for their approval. The present officials take the stand that they are the representatives of the taxpayers and voters in guiding the town's affairs and in meeting the expense of the projects they can simply put it up to the voters in town meeting. If the voters feel that they cannot afford the expense it is up to them to say so at this meeting.

At last night's board meeting three important questions were decided. Upon the recommendations of the highway committee it was voted to construct a five foot sidewalk for a distance of 135 feet in front of the Manchester Green school buildings. The new walk will be about three feet outside the property line and a few inches higher than the present walk. Property owners in the immediate neighborhood objected to the walks fronting their homes and the Selectmen decided to grant the Green school district committee's request.

Withdraws Resignation

S. Emil Johnson's resignation was placed before the board and Sen. R. J. Smith reported that he had talked with Mr. Johnson and had induced him to reconsider his resignation as an assessor. Mr. Johnson will be given an opportunity to withdraw his letter of resignation. Mr. Johnson has one more year of his term to serve.

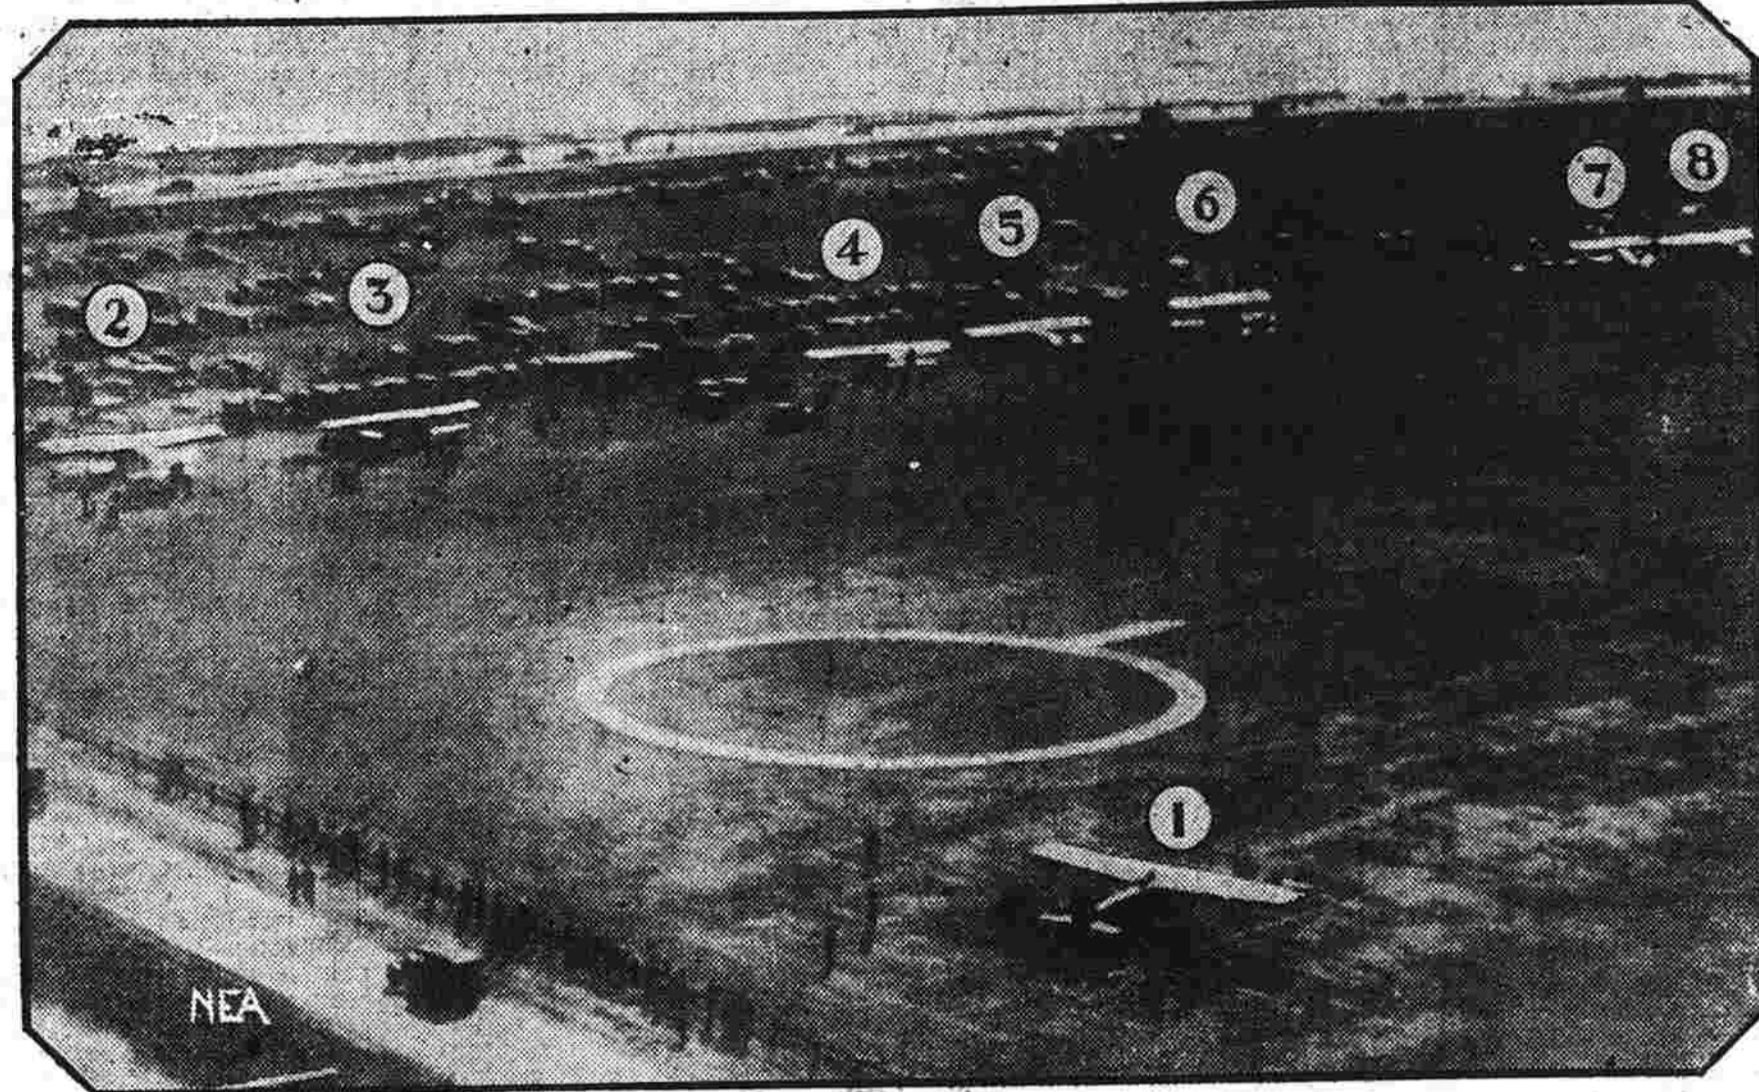

Routine Business

Several routine matters came before the Selectmen during the evening's session. Herbert W. Clay of Summit street appeared and asked for the right to build a veranda over the present building line. The lines on this street were established before the present law was in force and in order to correct a bad situation a hearing was called for the re-establishment of building lines on Summit street from East Center street to Middle Turnpike. The date will be set later.

GERMAN AVIATORS TO TRY ONCE MORE LOCAL WAREHOUSE

As Soon as Weather is Favorable They Will Again Attempt Atlantic Hop.

Dessau, Germany, Aug. 16.—The German aviators Johann Ristler, Cornelius Edzard, Friedrich Loose and Herman Koehl, who were forced to turn back after starting on a non-stop flight to New York, were assured today by officials of the Junkers Works that they would receive another opportunity to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight.

Disappointment over the failure of the planes, Europa and Bremen is giving away to determination that the next effort must be a success.

The Bremen, which landed yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, after spending 22 hours in the air battling headwinds, rain and fog, was overhauled today and found to be in good condition.

Prof. Junkers, head of the Junkers Works, who arrived at the Dessau Flying Field soon after the Bremen landed, congratulated the flyers upon their courage in turning back.

"The Proper Thing"

"You did the proper thing," said Prof. Junkers, "for it would have been useless to attempt to go on under the circumstances."

Loose and Koehl were asked if they would make another attempt at a trans-Atlantic flight. Both replied in unison:

"Surest thing you know!"

Loose said that the Bremen encountered bad weather during the whole 22 hours it was aloft. There were alternate bursts of rain and wind while the thunder shook the planes from propellers to tail. The atmosphere was thick, the murk varying from a rainy mist to heavy, yellow fog.

Describe Trip

After crossing the North sea and the British Isles the Bremen ran into a fog bank so thick that they decided it would be useless to attempt it would be further. All the time

TOWNS THREATENED BY KANSAS FLOODS

Heavy Rainfall Sends River Out of Its Banks—Families Fleeing.

Salina, Kansas, Aug. 16.—A four inch rain here today sent Smoky Hill river out of its banks and forced twenty-five families in the western part of the city to abandon their homes.

The rain was general over the northwestern portion of the state, according to reports, and Margaret Ellsworth, Russell and Black Wolf were reported preparing to mobilize all forces to withstand rising waters, which already have forced many from lowland homes following rains for over four days.

Lindaborg, Kan., is isolated from all highways and railroad communication. Bridgeport reported Smoky Hill river stage at near the 1902 level which was the greatest flood in Kansas history. Two hundred thousand acres of lowlands are reported inundated.

HOME OF SACCO JUROR BOMBED; HOUSE WRECKED

Five Members of Family Tumbled Out of Beds But None Seriously Injured—Police Excited.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 16.—The East Milton home of Lewis McHardy, one of the jurors who found Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti guilty of the Braintree payroll murders in 1920, was wrecked early today by a powerful bomb. Five members of the McHardy family were thrown from their beds and were shaken up badly, but aside from a cut on the head sustained by Mrs. McHardy, none was injured.

Immediately afterward it was reported that a small building facing Harvard Square in Cambridge, had been blown up by a bomb and that four youths had been arrested, but this proved to be a hoax.

The explosion took place just a few hours before the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court assembled to hear final arguments from Sacco and Vanzetti's counsel, who are fighting for a new trial. As a result of the bomb outrage, additional guards have been placed about the Court House, the State House and the State Prison where the two self-admitted anarchists are held.

The McHardy family lived at 483 Pleasant street in a two-and-one-half story frame dwelling. The bomb, which had evidently been planted under a corner of the veranda, demolished part of the north side, broke down all the doors and smashed all the windows. The explosion was heard for about a mile and the concussion rocked the ground like an earthquake.

Family Asleep

In the house, asleep at the time, were Mr. and Mrs. McHardy and their three children, Theodore, aged 23; John, aged 28, and Helen, aged 23.

Firemen and police, who made an investigation, found a deep hole under the ruins of the porch which was filled with gas that was escaping from a broken main in the bottom of the hole they discovered a part of a box bound with wire and

KIDDIE REVUE CAST TO SEE NEW BRITAIN SHOW

Special Trolley Will Take Local Children to See Others Put on Same Performance.

A special trolley car will leave from the State theater on Thursday afternoon at 12:10 to carry the members of the Manchester Kiddie Revue to New Britain where they will see the similar revue in the Strand theater there. Those who took part in the revue here, members of the orchestra and any others who had anything to do with the successful production at the State some weeks ago are invited.

The New Britain revue is being staged by Manager Jack Sanson of the State theater here. The Hoffman Brothers, owners of the State, the New Britain Strand theater and other houses throughout Connecticut, witnessed the production in this town and immediately commissioned Manager Sanson to stage a similar show in New Britain.

He has been working on the revue for the past three weeks and the premiere is scheduled for Thursday afternoon. It will continue on Friday and Saturday as well. A cast of nearly 100 children will be seen.

The revue in New Britain will be similar to the one staged here. The "book" is the same and the songs will be those sung by the leading characters in the State revue. Scenery and properties have been brought to New Britain from the State.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, Aug. 16.—Treasury balance August 13: $27,275,104.21.

Race Started at Noon (Pacific Coast Time) — First to Land at Island of Oahu, to Receive $25,000 and the Second $10,000—One Woman Among Flyers—Ships Strung Across Ocean to Give Assistance in Case of Accidents—Expect to Make Trip in 22 Hours.

Municipal Airport, Oakland, Calif., Aug. 16.—The world's greatest aerial Derby is on today. Groomed to perfection, nine planes await the signal which at noon will send them zooming out across the Pacific in an epochal race to Hawaii.

Nine pilots, eight navigators and a charming young Michigan "schoolmarm," Miss Mildred Doran, are prepared to gamble their lives on their ability to span by air the 2,400 miles of trackless sea.

For the first to land on the island of Oahu awaits a $25,000 pot of gold. To the second a prize of $10,000 is to be the reward. For the balance there is only the glory of achievement—the setting of a new milestone in aerial progress.

No Favorites

For once the railbirds are at a loss to pick a winner. There is no form chart on which to base predictions. The pilots, the navigators and the lone passenger exude confidence.

Mechanically their steeds of the air are ready. Each navigator has passed a grilling test to prove his fitness to guide by the sun, the moon and the stars, the course of his plane for the tiny islands in mid-Pacific.

To the gods of the air they are prepared to commend their fates.

On the Basis of Speed Tests

The flyers expected to complete the race in 22 hours. But wind, rain, cloud and fog are factors to be met with which will finally determine the results of the race and probably the safety of the racers.

The planes are to follow the aerial trail blazed only last month by Lieutenants Mattland and Hagenberger, army flyers, and by Ernie Smith and Emory H. Bronze, civilian aviators.

Strung across the Pacific a network of naval and commercial ships are ready to render assistance in case of disaster.

Humming steadily its message of safety, the army radio beacon is in readiness to guide the planes equipped with radio.

Welcome Awaits Them

In Hawaii a welcome of tremendous proportions awaits the successful birdmen.

The prayers of scores of mothers, wives, sweethearts and children went with the racers of the air as their kin prepared for the grand adventure.

Originally fifteen entrants, six today had been scratched. Death, the grim reaper, removed two of the starters with a toll of three lives. Fate was kinder to a third, the plane was wrecked but its occupants escaped. Two failed to secure their planes in time and the sixth withdrew.

Pictureque Flock

It is a picturesque flock of Dole birds that is ready for their attempt to annihilate time and space. Seven monoplanes and two biplanes face the starters' barrier. A riot of golden wings from the beautiful "Golden Eagle" to the red, white and blue combination of Auggie Pedlar, which has been dubbed "The Little Red School House" because of its school teacher passenger.

BEFORE THE START

Municipal Airport, Oakland, Calif., Aug. 16.—The greatest Aerial Derby in the history of aviation was on its mark here today waiting for the gun that will start nine planes on their treacherous route for Honolulu over 2,400 miles of Pacific waters.

The dole prize of $35,000 is the lure that spurs seventeen pilots and navigators and one woman passenger to gamble with death in what has been termed the "battle against elements."

This epochal aerial Marathon was scheduled to start promptly at noon. Approximately 24 hours later—about noon tomorrow—the lucky, plucky winner should be known.

How many of the darlings, confident aviators will have by that time gone down to the churning waves of the Pacific, perhaps to an unmarked, watery grave, only time can tell. It is hardly likely, in view of the fact that three men have met death already, while preparing for the grueling test, that all of the remaining contestants will finish the race.

Made Their Wills

The aviators were loath to talk about their wills, but some admitted they had made them. Others merely pooh-poohed the idea.

William P. Erwin, flying the "Dallas Spirit," was the ninth to qualify. His tests were made yesterday and officials now think he is competent to become a Dicky-Dole bird. Major Livingstone Irving in a "Pabco Flyer" is the only flyer who is both pilot and navigator. He will fly alone and will take off in No. 3 place, which means six minutes behind No. 1, the Oklahoma which will be flown by Bennett Griffin.

The Entrants

There is a list of entrants and their place in the race:

1. "Oklahoma," Bennett Griffin.
2. "El Encanto," Norman A. Goddard.
3. "Pabco Flyer," Livingston Irving.
4. "Golden Eagle," Jack Frost.
5. "Miss Doran," Auggie Pedlar.
6. "City of Peoria," Charles W. Parkhurst.
7. "Aloha," Martin Jensen.
8. "Woolaroo," Art Goebel.

JUDGE SANDERSON HAD NO AUTHORITY

New Legal Tangle Before Full Bench May Delay Sacco Execution.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 16.—New legal tangles which may again delay the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti loomed this afternoon when Judge Edward P. Pierce, sitting with the Full Bench of the Supreme Court hearing exceptions to a denial of a writ of error intimated that Justice Sanderson who heard the defense motion for the writ had no jurisdiction to hear it.

If Judge Pierce's ruling bars the defense from placing its appeal before the full bench of the Supreme Court, Attorney Hill asked permission of the full bench to place proper motions before it. He pleaded for time, and said that the bench will accept it if he will place a new writ of exceptions before the Supreme Court later today.

If the "ruling" of Judge Pierce nullifies the action taken before Judge Sanderson last week and makes exceptions to his rulings in the case worthless, the whole matter must go before the Supreme Court full bench on new motion.

Court's Decision

Judge Sanderson intimated that the defense should have brought application for the original writ of error before the full bench instead of before a single justice—Judge Sanderson.

Attorney Arthur D. Hill arguing the bill of exceptions from Judge Sanderson's rulings, which had brought the matter before the Supreme Court asked permission to present it to the court after the afternoon recess.

Attorney General Arthur K. Reading and Judge Pierce withheld answers to the request.

Before the remark of Justice Pierce upset the defense plan, Attorney Hill for hours had made an impassioned plea for consideration for the condemned men.

He urged that the governor's commission, the governor, nor any but regularly constituted courts are adequate to pass acts of criminal courts. He again criticized Trial Judge Webster Thayer for sitting on the motion for new trial on the grounds of the judge's own alleged prejudice to Sacco and Vanzetti because of the Radical beliefs of the two defendants.

FIVE BONES BROKEN IN FIVE ACCIDENTS

Yesterday Was Unlucky One for Arms and Legs—What Caused Falls.

Two broken legs, two broken arms and one broken wrist! That's Manchester's accident toll for yesterday and the causes of the five accidents were varied.

Wells Dewey, ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Dewey of Buckland, was thrown from a wagon on which he and Horace Wetherell, 15, of 75 Deming street, were riding when the horse ran away after being startled by a piece of lumber which slipped off the load and struck him. The Wetherell boy escaped with minor bruises although dragged some distance.

John Lee of Dobsonville suffered a fracture of the right leg when he fell out of an apple tree and suffered a fracture of the right elbow. He, too, was taken to the local hospital. Jimmy is one of ten children in the Wilson family.

Mrs. Elizabeth Long of 13-2 Ford street was cleaning a window when the window pane she was employed and fell from a chair on which she was standing. X-ray pictures at the Memorial hospital revealed a fracture of the right wrist.

CONGRESS MUST SAVE COOLIDGE SUGGESTION

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 16.—President Coolidge served notice today upon Congress that it must keep from increasing governmental expenses at the next session or Congress of there can be no tax reduction.

It was made known in the summer executive office here that Mr. Coolidge feels the budget brought here by director Herbert M. Lord indicating that next year's surplus will not amount to more than $38,000,000, leaves the matter of tax reduction entirely up to Congress.

If Congress declines to go on a spending spree and holds its appropriations within limits, Mr. Coolidge feels, a tax reduction can be enacted. But if it does not, he believes the matter is doubtful.

IRISH PARLIAMENT FACES TEST TODAY

Republicans and Laborites to Attempt to Oust Cosgrave From Seat. Dublin, Aug. 16.—President William T. Cosgrave's Irish Free State government faces its supreme test this afternoon under the assaults of the Dail Eireann coalition composed of Republicans, led by Eamon De Valera, and Laborites, under the leadership of Thomas Johnson.

Public interest, not alone in Ireland but throughout the British Isles, is centered upon the struggle in the Dail Eireann. Opponents of the Cosgrave government claimed that victory was certain and that the present ministry would be forced to resign.

Debate was scheduled to open at 3 o'clock, but it may continue until Friday before a vote is taken. The resolution stating that "the executive council has ceased to retain the confidence of the Dail Eireann," which Johnson had prepared, was to be moved immediately after the Daily convened.

The Laborite leader gave public notice of his intention last week.

HOME OF SACCO JUROR IS BOMBED

McHardy told the police that he had received a number of death threats. In addition to being a juror in the Sacco-Vanzetti murder case, he was a witness at the governor's personal investigation of the trial and had expressed the opinion to the state executive that the jurors and that all sincerely believed Sacco and Vanzetti guilty of the killing of the Brantree paymaster and his guard.

The explosion took place soon after four o'clock.

Then the door fell in and the glass in the windows was shattered. This was followed by the roof opening up and I could see the sky through the hole. I thought sure there had been an earthquake.

My brother John was in the room next to mine. I hurried to his room and found everything filled with wreckage. I helped my brother through the debris. Together we went to aid our father and mother.

First we helped out mother and then Helen. Mother was cut badly about the head and the blood was streaming down over her face. We found father soon afterwards.

Mr. and Mrs. McHardy and their daughter were taken to the home of a neighbor. Police and firemen were rushed to the scene, the police being armed with riot guns and a machine gun.

The nearby home of Patrick Doyle was shaken badly by the blast. Part of the ceilings fell down and three members of the Doyle family were hurt from their beds. Three-year-old Sally Doyle was injured slightly.

All the neighborhood was aroused by the noise and excitement and hundreds of persons rushed to the scene of the blast.

Burglars Rifle Cash Register at A. K. Brazawsky's Meat Market on North Street.

Burglars entered the meat and grocery store owned by Adam K. Brazawsky at 81 North street some time Sunday night and stole a sum of money, believed to be at least fifty dollars, from the cash register. The night prowlers left one dollar for Brazawsky to make change with when he opened his store for business Monday morning.

Brazawsky said that he left about $50 in the cash register when he closed the store Saturday night. Sunday he went to the store with a party of friends. When he opened the store yesterday morning Brazawsky said he found the side door of the store open and the cash register had been rifled. Part of the money had been uncrowded and taken off so that the money might be removed without ringing the bell.

Yesterday morning, Brazawsky told local police of the break and an investigation is being made.

The body of Judge Gary will be shipped to Chicago this afternoon on the Twentieth Century Limited. From Chicago it will be taken to Wheaton, Ill., for funeral services.

There is much speculation concerning the size of the fortune left by the late steel master. The estimates run all the way from $10,000,000 to $45,000,000.

For the last 24 hours, messages of condolence have been pouring into the Gary home, 1130 Fifth avenue, from all parts of the United States and Europe.

To Quit Work. The great chain of industrial plants, mines, and railways of the United States Steel Corporation, stretching all the way across the American continent, will be still temporarily during the funeral services Thursday.

Mrs. Gary is affected deeply by her husband's death. She refused to receive any visitors except relatives and her most intimate friends.

Judge Gary died of chronic myocarditis with chronic endocarditis or inflammation of the membranous lining of the heart, as a contributing factor.

The end came so suddenly that there was no time to summon to his bedside his two daughters, Mrs. Robert W. Campbell, wife of the chairman of the trustees of Northwestern University, and Mrs. Gertrude Sutcliffe, of Chicago. Both daughters are in the Campbell home in Evanston and will meet the train bearing the father's body.

They will accompany Mrs. Gary on the train. Mrs. Campbell has two children, the only grandchildren Judge Gary had. Mrs. Sutcliffe is a widow.

PLEADS TO REDUCE FRENCH WAR DEBTS

Delegates to Institute of Politics Ask for a Flat Cancellation. Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 16.—Additional pleas for reduction of the French war debt to the United States, including a two billion dollar flat remission and an interest reduction of fifty per cent, were made today at the Institute of Politics.

Frederick W. Peabody, managing director of the American association favoring revision of inter-allied debts, and William T. Hornaday, author of Stamford, Conn., who championed the French cause. Hornaday, in proposing the two billion dollar remission held up the spectre of a new war if the French debt controversy is not settled amicably.

The American people must now awaken to the danger that lies in the unsettled French debt," he said. "We should courageously and promptly take the matter in hand," declared that he would go so far as to remit every dollar of the advances to the Allies "wholly on moral considerations." He added that the cost in blood and service rendered, which the Allies gave to America, could not be expressed in dollars and cents and if it could it would far exceed the total of the advances made by America to nations across the sea.

PREVENTED DROWNING AT SWIMMING POOL

Director Washburn Rescues Mary Sloan and Gets a Bath in Street Attire Dig. A near tragedy was averted yesterday afternoon in the new pool at the north end playground by the prompt action of Director Washburn. Attracted by cries of distress, a short distance from the edge of the pool, saw Mary Sloan, of North Main street, struggling in the water. The director, fully dressed, dove in and as she came to the surface the second time, grasped her clothing, keeping her head above the water until the bank was reached.

An explanation of just what happened and how she fell into the pool from the dam was not forthcoming from any who witnessed the incident. After a hasty examination she was able to go home with friends who seemed, apparently, none the worse for her plunge, although considerably frightened.

The director stated that the dam is a constant temptation for those coming from North School street to be used as a short cut. He said that in a few days a cast iron frame would be erected on either end of the dam which would stop all such attempted shortcuts on this part of anyone. The pool has proven to be a popular place since its opening and a constant check up is maintained by the director on all those either in or around the pool during the playground hours.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 16.

NOT AMERICANS

We find ourselves in complete accord with the New York World in its comment on the proposal to annul the naturalization of foreign born citizens who shall, after swearing allegiance to the United States, swear allegiance to some other country or government or to some foreign political faction or principle. The World calls this class legislation, and makes the point that "if you are a native born citizen you may harbor any political beliefs you please, but if you are a foreign born citizen you may harbor only such beliefs as are pleasing to the Department of Labor, the Department of Justice."

It is becoming a common practice among newspapers deriving their circulation from the polyglot populations of the great cities to over-emphasize a theoretical dead level of American citizenship; to assume that Americanism or any other nationality can be conferred in its full and complete meaning by the signing of citizenship papers. This is fine theory but it is not a fact.

In the case of persons who swear allegiance to the United States and at the same time make mental reservations in favor of an existing government or a possible revolutionary government in some foreign land, or whose professed allegiance to the American government actually runs to a conception of some future government here rather than the existing one, it is patent that there has been no genuine citizenship created. The privileges of citizenship, pro forma, has been obtained by fraud. Evidence of fraud is sufficient to nullify any transaction. Why on earth should this particular transaction be exempt from the application of the universal rule? The face citizen is an avoidable responsibility.

The native born citizen has never obtained his citizenship by fraud. Be he ever so bad a citizen he is a citizen, inherently, by circumstances of birth. It is impossible to nullify the proceeding that made him one. He is an avoidable responsibility. There is not the slightest question that we have erred seriously, in this country, by assuming that if we could only get foreign residents to go through the form of naturalization they would be sure, by that process, to be purged of all foreign affiliations. We have encouraged the taking of the citizen's oath by persons having no qualification for citizenship. As a result of that and as a result of deliberate design on the part of still other foreign born unassimilables we have a considerable proportion of so-called Americans who don't give a hoot for America and do give a great many hoots for other countries.

The sooner we get these people off our hands, as citizen responsibilities, the better. To insist that they are entitled to all the consideration belonging to people born here and knowing no other than American affiliations is plain quackery.

GARY

Judge Elbert Henry Gary, who died yesterday, was the most remarkable example in America of a man who became chieftain of a mammoth industry without having had a day's industrial training. Lawyers have risen to control of great organizations. More than one of them has headed a railroad. But the manufacture of steel is so technical in its nature and so removed from ordinary manufacturing activities of its fundamentalism of its character that it would have seemed incredible, before the rise of Gary the lawyer, that anyone save a person almost born and bred under the flare of the furnaces could arrive at such a commanding position as an ironmaster.

Perhaps in his later life Gary learned something, possibly much, about the making of steel. But we have never heard that he did and are under the impression that probably the man at the head of United States steel knew not greatly more about the intricacies of the art which he controlled than the greenest Bulgarian laborer in one of his Indiana mills. Judge Gary, however, was the living personification of "Big Business." His was the genius for organization, the illimitable economic outlook, that has no need to concern itself with detail—cannot, for that matter, permit itself to be diverted by detail. He saw steel, not in its relation to strains and tests and chemistry, but in its relation to worldwide needs and worldwide supply. He was the strategist of the American army of steel. It was the job of the tacticians of that army to carry out the strategist's plans.

There is, about such a man and about his part in life, neither the romance nor the appeal that surrounds such as Carnegie, who rose by virtue of his own technical knowledge, gained in the bitter school of hard work—and without whose foundation building there would have been no occasion for Gary's subsequent planning. Nor will there be quite the same sense of loss, in his passing, as there was when the Laird of Skibo left this world or when the late J. J. Hill, empire-building railroader, laid down his burden. For theirs was personal work and the work of Elbert H. Gary was as impersonal as a rule of arithmetic—and as vital.

Whether Gary was in any degree a great man, or whether he was the greatest individual in American industry, are not matters for discussion here. At all events he was the most outstanding symbol of the age of economically centralized industry that this country has known to date.

OVER THE OCEAN

A few weeks ago when Lindbergh, Chamberlain and Byrd in rapid succession crossed the Atlantic by air, millions of optimistic people had a sudden vision of regular transoceanic air travel as a matter of the very near future. That vision is somewhat rapidly fading in the light of the experiences of the half dozen or so expeditions which, since that time, have been seeking to gain the glory of the first westward flight.

It would be entirely unreasonable to attribute the recent postponements and failure to lack of skill or courage or equipment, for if the American aviators have succeeded while the others have not, it is not to be supposed that the margin of their superiority in any quality of airmanship, over their European rivals, is other than narrow if it exists at all.

The whole amount of it is that the job of intercontinental aviation presents enormous difficulties which were not to be solved in a jiffy. There lies ahead, in all probability, a long, long period of adventurous experimentation, invention and hazard before the ordinary citizen can jump into a passenger airplane and hop over to Europe in a day or a day and a half as a matter of course and without imminent peril of disaster.

It would not be surprising if many heads that are black or golden were to be grey before the dream of standardized transoceanic air travel is realized. Perhaps, indeed we shall first have learned how to make our own weather.

THOSE MARRIAGES

If there are in Manchester or vicinity any persons whose marriage ceremonies were performed by unattached ministers of the class whose authority is called into question by the Alling ruling, we should recommend that they do not distress themselves greatly over the matter.

No court is likely to invalidate any marriage entered into in good faith by both the contracting parties and performed by the officiating person under conviction of strict legality. And it worst should come to worst there is not the slightest doubt that the next Legislature would pass a healing act absolutely legalizing at one stroke every past marriage performed by an ordained but unattached minister.

While it might be as well for persons intending marriage hereafter to have the ceremony performed by a minister actually engaged in the work of a specific church, for their own peace of mind, the decision of the attorney-general is nothing to grow excited over.

WESTERN MONTE CARLO

Very interesting is the plan of a group of big New York hotel men and Cuban financiers to create a "bigger and better" Monte Carlo near Havana. Apparently there is money enough at the command of the syndicate to do almost any imaginable thing in the way of developing the world's greatest, most luxurious and most fascinating sporting resort. Five miles of ocean front and a couple of thousand acres of land would seem to provide room enough.

It is doubtful if even the American Anti-Saloon League will be equal to the task of converting Cuba to prohibition in the immediate future. And in the absence not only of American Volsteadism, but of American anti-gambling legislation and American purism generally, it would seem probable that the proposed resort will supply opportunity to a great many idle and plethoric persons to do as they please and at the same time enjoy the unaccustomed sensation of being law-abiding persons.

The Cuban resort will have the added advantage of being a mere day's sail from the American coast instead of six or seven days, as in the case of the famous European resorts of similar freedom of action. Yet it remains to be seen whether the class of people in this country who contribute so much to the prosperity of Monte Carlo and Deauville will be satisfied to fly their sporting kites among just their own kind plus a few equally sporting Latin Americans. Havana isn't going to draw all those Russian ex-grand dukes, Polish countesses and the rest of the gambling house touts across three thousand miles of ocean. The steamship fares are too high.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Aug. 16.—The question of where to draw the line between wicked imperialism and high-minded, altruistic aid of small nations has bothered other periods in American history.

It has even annoyed some presidents, including Cleveland and McKinley. How to solve problems of this nature? While the anti-imperialists have shouted their heads off at the present administration's policies in Latin America, Calvin Coolidge, the silent and unemotional, has given no indication of perturbation. If he has sought divine guidance, as did McKinley while trying to decide whether the Philippines should be held under the American flag, the country has not been so devious.

How McKinley Solved It. McKinley frankly admitted the puzzle which the question had caused him and explained his method of solution in a speech to a group of churchmen as follows:

"I walked the floor of the White House night after night and I am not ashamed to tell you, gentlemen, that I went down on my knees and prayed Almighty God for light and guidance more than one night. I was very lonely. I came to me this way—I don't know how it was, but it came. There was nothing left for us to do but to take the... all, and to educate the Filipinos, and uplift and civilize and Christianize them, and by God's grace to do the very best we could by them as our fellow men for whom Christ also died. And then I went to bed, and went to sleep and slept soundly."

Spain was forced to sell us the Philippines for $20,000,000. At about the same time the Hawaiian Islands were acquired in a manner which aroused caustic criticism from the anti-imperialists of 39 years ago.

Imperialism in Hawaii. Queen Lili had undertaken to make the islands safe for Hawaii, and the foreign business element, mostly Americans, fomented a revolt which would up with American marines on shore. Four Americans and an Englishman formed a commission which went to Washington to plead for annexation as a result of President Harrison's enthusiasm, an annexation treaty was laid before the Senate.

Grover Cleveland sent James H. Blount to Hawaii to investigate for him. Blount reported that the Americans apparently had investigated the revolt and that the minister had supplied the troops who turned the tide. Hawaiians, Blount said, were against annexation five to one. Cleveland reopened negotiations with the queen, but the foreign revolutionaries proclaimed a republic which Cleveland soon recognized, much to the dismay of the anti-imperialists.

Present "Civilizing" Policy. In the McKinley administration Democrats defeated a Republican annexation treaty by use of the two-thirds rule, but during the Spanish war the Republicans annexed the islands by joint resolution just as the Democrats had annexed Texas in 1846. The Republicans and the naval officers claimed annexation was required because of the will of the islands and their strategic value and the Democrats replied that it was supported by American speculators.

The McKinley policy, which when finally formulated, became the policy of the Republican party, was expressed in much the same fashion as it has since been echoed by Roosevelt, Wilson and Coolidge. "The Spanish war," said McKinley, "has brought new duties and responsibilities which we must meet and discharge as becomes a great nation on whose growth and career from the beginning the Ruler of Nations has plainly written the high command and pledge of civilization."

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc.

EXCLUSIVE REPRESENTATIVES FOR CRAWFORD AND CHAMBERS RANGES.

New York, Aug. 16.—Restaurant keepers of this metropolis, taking a poll of customers recently, learned that corned beef and cabbage remains the favorite dish. . . With ham and eggs running a close second. . . Even as in Podunk and Sauk Center.

The latest "gold brick" merchant of Broadway is the fellow who comes up to you and says he'll sell you his pawn-ticket for a couple of dollars. He tells you how hard luck forced him to put a valuable watch in lock, how he can't hope to get it back and wants to realize something on it. Or, if you are a certain sort of person, he may hint that the watch was secured in some shady manner and he dares not go after it for fear of the police. The pawn-ticket may show the value of an article to be as high as $50. And, of course, it's bogus. Or the article is deemed is worth about $2 and the pawnbroker gives a commission to the vendor.

There are some things, even in New York, that are not for sale. On Fifth Avenue there have lived for year on year two nice old ladies. Their red-brick house, just a stone's toss from the Public Library and taking 1,800 prisoners in this offensive up to 2,700. Major General Leonard Wood assigned to 88th Division, Camp Funston, Kan.

Just behind the old house, with its large yard and mysterious barbed fence is a barn—not a garage—a barn of brick, with a quaint old weather-cock atop it.

The yard, which would hold a good sized store, could bring a fabulous sum, but the two old ladies will not sell. Just the other day they made that final when something like two millions were offered them. They don't need it, since their fortune runs somewhere around a hundred million.

This million dollar yard, one hears, is the playground of a couple of cats and a dog. Just over the fence peeps a branch of a scraggly tree and, now and then, bits of laundry can be seen flying in the wind. Imagine . . . a wash-line next door to one of the most exclusive and fashionable shops.

The place is owned by the Wendell sisters, neither of whom have ever married.

No telephone or electric light has ever been allowed to desecrate the old-fashioned flavor of the place. In fact nothing "new-fangled" has been tolerated. The sisters have belonged to a Victorian generation and have never allowed an automobile to enter the old barn that once held a coach and four. Instead, the story goes that neither has ever ridden in an auto and that the elder has never been in an elevator, or allowed herself to enter one of the modern office buildings.

Many legends attach themselves to this old place which has become to Fifth Avenue what the old "haunted house" was to the small towns. Yet, like all of those things so incongruous in this funny town, it stands on a street marked by all that is ultra in modern architecture. Outside its doors rush the fashionable shopping crowds and the greatest number of fancy motors to be found upon the avenue of the world honk their horns at its gate.

It is like coming upon a red fianna petticoat in the lane of fads and fashions.

No Trick Or Freak Holes Over U. S. Amateur Course

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 16.—(United Press)—The Minkahda club, where the national amateur golf championship will be decided the week of August 22, has been combed, brushed, sprinkled and anointed with such unguents as to bring it to perfection for the tournament.

The Minkahda is an eminently fair course. It has no trick or freak holes, but is so constructed that the golfer who loses a stroke will have a pretty hard time catching up with himself.

Par for the 6,669 yard course is 72, 35 out and 37 in. The longest hole is the par 5 13th—547 yards; the shortest—the par three third—141 yards.

Following is a description of the course: First Hole: Par 4; 326 yards; The fairway is cupped between large bunkers and mounds on the right and left, with a steep bank dropping off on the right. The rough is tick on both sides. The green is well trapped and bunkers on all sides.

GIRLS NEGLECT EYES London, July—London oculists are becoming greatly worried by the refusal of English women to wear glasses.

One outstanding pitcher very often can keep a club in the pennant race. The Chicago Cubs have such a person in Charley Root.

During the first half of the season he registered 15 victories and perhaps saved 10 others in relief. He is one of the few pitchers in the majors with a chance to win 30 games, an almost unheard-of feat in these days of airmated baseball.

Last season the superb pitching of George Uhle, who scored 27 victories, made Cleveland a strong pennant contender. This season Uhle has shown a complete reversal of fortune.

It is an interesting fact that Charley Root, like George Uhle, came from the sandlots to the big show without any previous professional experience.

Seven years ago a scout of the St. Louis Browns saw Root doing his stuff in amateur circles at Middletown, O. He signed him, regarded was not quite ready to register about the Terre Haute club of the Central League for seasoning.

Root spent the seasons of 1921 and 1922 doing his best to please the Terre Haute folks. He had reasonable success, since he had two big years, with 150 for the two years spent there.

The scouts then pronounced him ready and he was recalled by the Browns in 1923. He tarried for one season in the American League, although given but few opportunities to prove his worth.

Two big years with Los Angeles, in which he won 21 and 25 games, respectively, stamped him as positively ready for the big show. He was recalled by Chicago at the close of the 1925 season.

In his debut year with the Cub he registered 18 wins, 17 defeats. An improved curve, with a good change of pace and the same old fast ball of the St. Louis Browns days, made it apparent that he was soon destined to star in the National League.

At 1927 seems to be the big year. His fine pitching has supplied the Cubs with a confidence in their real ability. The way he is traveling he should win 25 games and may reach the 30 mark.

How interesting this all must be to Manager Dan Howley of the St. Louis Browns! What a valuable acquisition Root would be to the new leader of the club in his effort to rebuild the team!

CAST-OFF MAY RUIN PITTSBURGH'S PLANS

Hal Carlson, Once Shooped Away, Is Proving Big Factor In Fight by Cubs.

By BILLY EVANS

The Pittsburgh Pirates, in quest of the National League pennant, may rue the day the club consigned Pitcher Hal Carlson back to the minors with his destination being Wichita Falls, Tex.

In a 10-to-10 tie game, Carlson pitched for the Pirates, striking out three batters in the ninth inning, but having only one year in which he finished better than the 500 mark, and then only in one game.

His earned run average was nothing to brag about, particularly in 1922 when the opposition averaged almost six runs per game.

With a poor ball club, a tail-ender most of the time, Carlson enjoyed a much superior club at Pittsburgh. Last season his record was 17 wins and 12 defeats with a team that finished last with a percentage of only .384.

This year when Manager Joe McCarthy of the Chicago Cubs decided that Pitcher Tony Kaufman no longer fitted into the scheme of things there, he made a deal with Philadelphia that brought Carlson to Chicago.

Carlson, who has performed brilliantly since joining the Cubs, is one of the few pitchers in the first crucial series of the year, first place hinging on the outcome. Carlson was the selection of Manager Joe McCarthy to pitch the opening game.

Again the club that four years previous had sent him to the bush, labeled through as a big leaguer, Carlson won a pitcher's battle, by a one run margin, that gave the Cubs the lead and dropped the Pirates to second place.

That one game in the big pinch gave the Cubs an added confidence in their ability and furnished them with the inspiration that may ultimately result in the winning of the National League.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (68) An Arctic Dash

Lieutenant Payer cut the rope from his waist. Sledge dogs and man tumbled a few feet farther to the bottom of the crevice.

Clad only in thin stockings and underclothing he sped over the cutting ice and plowed through the snow drifts.

Four and a half hours after the ice bridge had collapsed, Payer returned with help.

Payer finally regained his ship and started on the homeward path. After two years of hopeless cruising at the will of the drifting ice, Payer abandoned the craft.

Hard To Find A Partner For The Davis Cup Matches

(BY DAVIS J. WALSH)

(U. S. Sports Editor)
New York, Aug. 16.—That the United States Lawn Tennis Association is about at the end of its tether in the matter of finding a partner for Tilden in the Davis Cup singles was virtually admitted in official circles today. Bill Johnston, it seems, is not here for the cup trials because he thinks he can better prepare himself on the coast. In other words, Johnston is asking the committee to pick him, sight unseen, and the committee would very much like to refuse. If Johnston appears on the premises a week before the matches start, as he was intimated he will, the chances are somewhat better than even that he will get the society nod when they start passing out the place cards.

"We are up against it in Johnston's case," one of the ranking officials of the association declared today. "We can't pick him without seeing him, can we?"
The answer, mostly, is yes, provided the other candidates for the post, don't give more convincing proof of their eligibility than they have presented to date. George Lott took Lacoste in straight sets but he blew a decision to Francis T. Hunter yesterday and a man who can't beat Hunter, can't beat the French when everyone is leveling. Hunter hasn't much of a chance to play in the singles, either. He will be Tilden's partner in the doubles and, of the few men who can be expected to get away with three Davis Cup matches in as many days, Hunter is not one. Of course, he has the physical stamina to do it, if the worst came to the worst.

It might appear that the situation is not too far removed from that point today, for they are talking of the possibility of exhuming the competitive corpse of R. Norris Williams for the great occasion. It seems to me that I recall R. Norris losing in Seabright two weeks ago to a dub. Why not, therefore, try to remember who the dub is and find out what he has?
This would be just as logical as an attempt to make Williams the man he was ten years ago and hasn't been since.

TENNIS TOURNAY.

Bleber and Johnson won three straight sets from the Goodstine brothers yesterday afternoon at the West Side playgrounds. The scores were 6-3, 6-0 and 6-1. Friday afternoon at the East Side playgrounds, O'Leary and Rossi will meet Richardson and Berrett. The standings:

W.	L.

TELLS MANCHESTER FISHERMEN WHERE TO GO NEXT TIME

Local Angler Says Striped Bass Are Plentiful Down Near Waterford.

Here's a tip for Manchester fishermen who are always anxious to get a good tip as to where they can make a good catch. It comes to the sports department in the form of a letter from a well known Manchester sportsman who requests that his name be withheld. Read it for yourself.

"Recently I drove to Waterford, about four miles this side of New London, for a two weeks' vacation and oodles some fishing. I stopped at the Golden Spur Inn, on the Niantic river, a hotel-ly conducted by L. M. Burger reasonably rated and quiet and modest."

"I was informed that there was a man across the road named Roy Kelly, who was a professional fisherman and who occasionally acted as guide on fishing trips for a reasonable fee. I made his acquaintance and the fun began. 'I went fishing on six different occasions and on the first trip we caught five striped bass, second trip seven, third, twelve; fourth, nine; fifth, fifteen and sixth (day after a terrific rain storm), two. These were all striped bass and ran between two and five pounds each. Of the fifty fish caught I hooked twenty."

"My outfit consisted of an ordinary sea bass hook, No. 4 spinner, three-foot wire leader, attached to a nine-thread line in the order mentioned, Rangely sinker, attached to line one foot above wire leader."

"The bait was blood worms, trolled from a rowboat with about 100 feet of line out, using light split bamboo rod (slightly heavier than a weakfish rod) and 2-0 reel. When you hook into one of these striped beauties with this rig you will know you have been fishing. 'Any one wishing to repeat my experience can do so by getting in communication with Kelly at Waterford, for I firmly believe that without him and his knowledge of these waters the trip would not be very successful.'"

Getrich feathers have found so little demand recently that they now are often used for feather dusters.

Kelly Pummels Provost; Bard Kayoes Lariviere

By THOMAS W. STOWE

Four knockouts cropped out of the twelve amateur bouts at the Hartford Velodrome last night but the real feature of the evening was the slashing three-round go between Jack Kelly of Waterbury and Eddie Provost of Holyoke in which the former was returned the winner. Strange to relate Kelly has no more outward appearances of being a fighter than Andy Gump but how that boy can sock! On the other hand, Provost has every look of being a top-notch, yet when the pair came together last night, Kelly gave Provost the lesson of his life, both at scientific boxing and terrific slugging. In fact, he hit Provost with about everything but the ring post. Provost, however, is about as tough as they make them and he kept boring in for more. Kelly won the first two rounds by a wide margin and the third round was a determined rally in the final chapter that worried Kelly to no little extent. Provost was temporarily disqualified in this round for hitting low but allowed to continue when it was seen the blow (it struck on the hip) had been harmless.

There were two other bouts that stood out like dales in a hay-look. Joe Bard Hartford's alleged hard-cut puncher sparred cautiously for a few moments, found an opening and then shot over his rapier-like right and felled Lucien Lariviere of Waterbury for the full count. The latter had never been afforded an opportunity to take a free trip through a bird menagerie before. It was some five minutes after before he realized he had emulated Joe Beckett London's famous horizontal expert. Lariviere had planned to turn pro after the battle but may postpone that idea now. The other good bout, and incidentally there was more sheer grit shown in this encounter than in the other eleven put together, was between Gerald Eward of Holyoke and Joe Champ of Hartford. This bout went four rounds before Eward won the deserved decision. He won the first two rounds but was felled for a third round and it was with extreme difficulty he was revived by his seconds for the extra round. Eward was complaining over a broken thumb which seemed to pain him intensely. Nevertheless he refused to forfeit the fight and went into the fourth and gave Champ a beautiful trimming while the spectators applauded vigorously.

Summaries:
127 pound class: Charles Cunningham, Hartford, won the decision over Joe Schwartz, Hartford, three rounds; 120 pound class, Teddy Darr, Hartford, won decision over Steve Polansky, Colchester, three rounds; 122 pound class, Al Cromack, Unionville, won decision over John Mastro, Hartford, three rounds; 155 pound class, Eddie Ossier, Waterbury, knocked out Paul Stratford, Holyoke, in the first round; 147 pound class, Harry Seche, Hartford, won decision over George Godfrey Knocks Out Jim Maloney in One Minute in First Round.

By E. L. RAWLEY

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 16.—Another dark cloud loomed on the heavyweight fistie horizon today as a result of the sensational one-round knockout of Jim Maloney by George Godfrey, giant Leiperville, Penna. negro, in Shibe Park last night. Godfrey's sensational finish of the Bostonian in less than a minute of actual fighting stamps him as one of the foremost contenders for Gene Tunney's crown.

Sharkey's Own Vanity Lost Dempsey Battle

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 16.—(United Press)—Ever since Jack Sharkey disappointed those who had picked him to beat Jack Dempsey and those who had bet on him as the winner, stories have been circulated that he can't take it and that he is yellow.

It is true that he can't take it but no other fighter with the stoutest heart in the world could have taken the body punishment he took from Dempsey and stand up under it. The inference that he is yellow is unwarranted and grossly unfair.

The records do show that Sharkey claimed fouls in a number of fights but it is no trait of cowardice and it is no crime to claim anything if you can get away from it. It did appear in his fight with Dempsey that he curled up and stepped back but he couldn't do anything else under the punishment he was forced to take.

Sharkey is not yellow and he doesn't lack a fighting heart. He couldn't have been yellow when he went after Harry Wills. The big negro heavyweight had been dodged by every heavyweight in the division for years. The impression always will remain that Dempsey was afraid of him but that also is untrue. Dempsey never fought Wills because the match couldn't be staged for some reason that can only be guessed at.

After the Tunney-Dempsey fight, Sharkey decided that his time had come and he told his manager, Johnny Buckley, to get a match with Wills. Nearly everyone thought that it was a sucker match for him and his future would be ruined. But Sharkey showing the courage of a fighter carried the fight to Wills and beat him up so badly that he sneaked out on a foul.

Sharkey also fought and beat George Godfrey when he was considered bad news by all the other fighters. A good many smart managers regard Godfrey now as one of the best heavyweights in the division. Sharkey didn't have to fight Dempsey. It is well to consider that.

After he had won a decisive victory of Jim Maloney, Tex Rickard decided that he was ready for a big shot but he had doubts about his drawing power against Tunney. He was willing to match them regardless and Sharkey was willing.

When Dempsey decided to return to the ring, Rickard suggested the match to Sharkey. He didn't have to take it but he did and the result gave him a setback and much less money than he might have secured in a championship match. One of the stoutest defenders of Sharkey against the charge that he lacks courage is William A. Muldoon, veteran member of the New York Boxing Commission. Muldoon, although a great admirer of Sharkey, would not let his opinion be influenced by sentiment.

FROM the brilliant lobby of the Cillon to the obscure little bureaux de tabac in the Quartier Latin, you'll see the familiar Chesterfield package in every corner of Paris. The PENNY PRINCESS

by anne austin ©1927 by NEA Service

BEGIN HERE TODAY! JERRY MACKLYN, advertising manager for the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., gets the consent of his secretary, YERA CAMERON, to transform her into a beauty, only after she sees and falls in love with him. Jerry proposes to publish her photographs in a series of fashioning booklets. In retreating, he asks the beauty specialist to use as a model a portrait of a beautiful woman whom he supposes to be an actress.

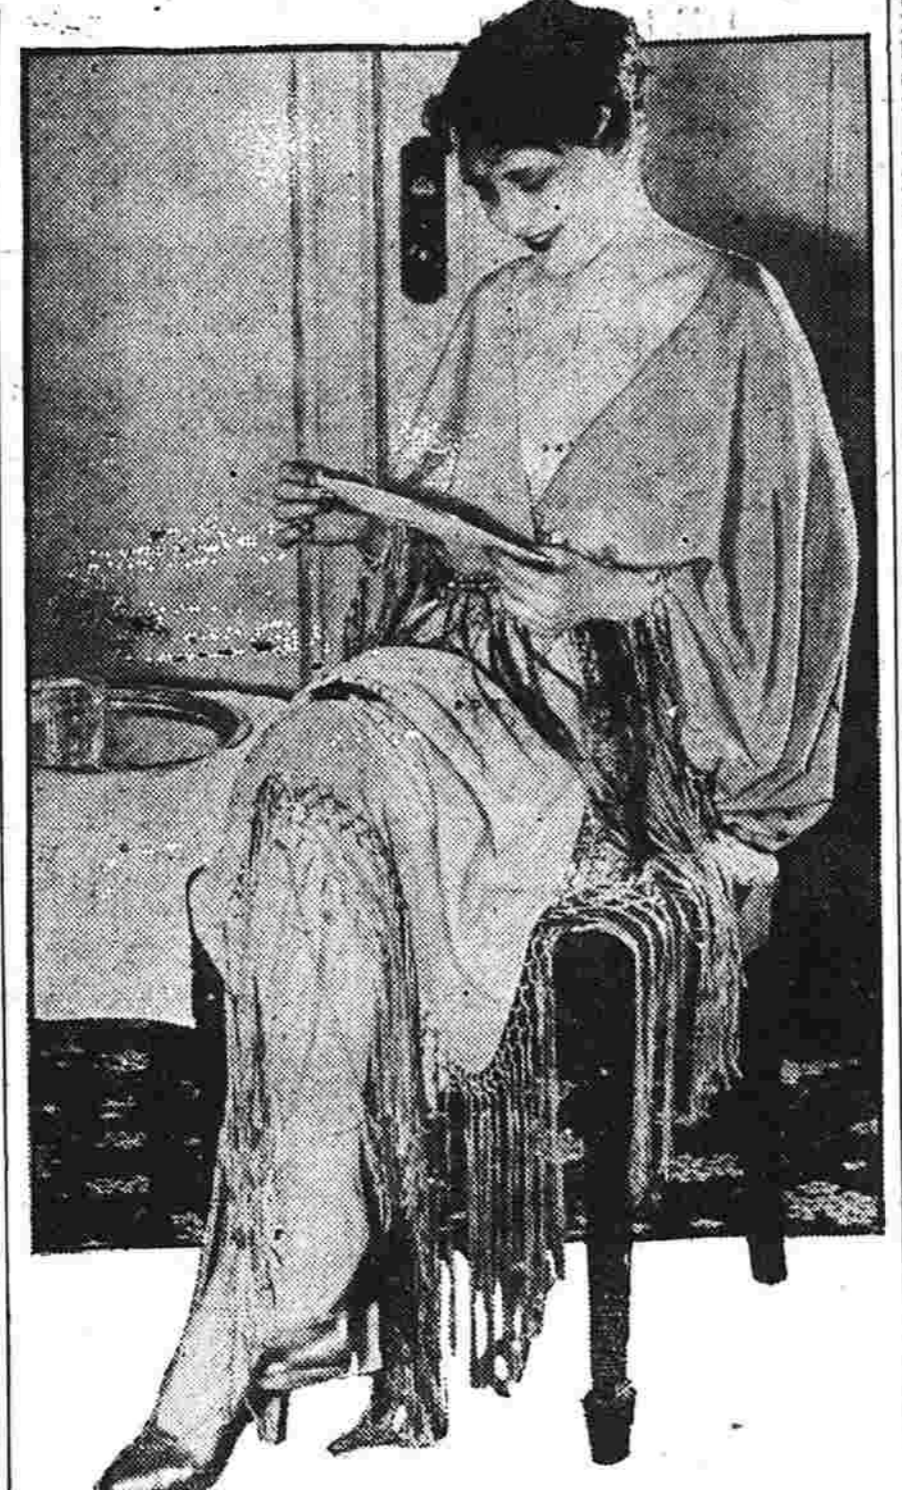

Yera is so lovely after the transformation that Jerry falls in love with her. He learns she wanted to become beautiful so she could go to Lake Minnetonka on her vacation to meet the man she loves.

At the summer hotel, Yera, also known as Vee-Vee, meets the man she came to see, SCHUYLER SMYTHE. He and the other guests mistake her for an exception, the wealthy Vivian Crandall, who, after a divorce in Paris, had disappeared.

Her attempts to convince the guests of her true identity are unsuccessful. It is rumored that Schuyler is engaged to Yera, but he assures Vee-Vee the rumors are false. Nan, Jerry's cousin, comes to see Vee-Vee and accuses her of trying to take Schuyler from her.

While Nan is there, MRS. BANNISTER, a guest at the hotel, comes to Vee-Vee's room to say good-bye, as she is leaving for the city. Nan says she will go with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXII

She was smiling almost cheerfully when she opened Flora Cartwright's stationery.

ALTHOUGH she was awake early on Wednesday morning, Vee-Vee lay listlessly in bed, privacy insured by the "Please do not disturb" sign which she had hung on her door knob the night before, after her tempestuous interview with Nan Fosdick.

Poor Nan! Vee-Vee wanted to trample upon the sympathy which kept rising in her throat. Why should she take it so to heart that that big, homely rich girl had lost the man she loved? If Schuyler Smythe had been about to marry her for her money, wasn't she well rid of him? Of course he had never loved Nan! The idea was ridiculous. Probably he, too, had felt that same unwelcome, nagging sympathy for her that made Vee-Vee so uncomfortable now.

Why hadn't she possessed the courage to force her true identity upon them all—Schuyler, at least, since he was the only one she cared about? The reason reared its head in her tortured mind, but she beat it back. But it persisted, until at last she burst into tears and let it dominate her mind. She had not told Schuyler, or, rather, had not made any real effort to convince him of the truth, because she was afraid that at least a part of his worship of Vivian Crandall had been centered upon her 40 millions, upon her breath-takingly high social position. Would he have loved, for five hopeless years, a Miss Nobody whom he had met but once?

"If I lie here thinking much longer I'll go crazy," Vee-Vee told herself vehemently. "I'll find out today whether it is I that he loves, or 40 million dollars. I'll tell him the truth, force this thing to a showdown. But—maybe I won't have to tell him. A telegram may come from New York before I have a chance—"

She rose on her elbow, seized the phone and in a crisp, abrupt voice—the voice which she unconsciously assumed whenever she was frightened—ordered her maid and a morning paper to be brought to her room. Then she ordered breakfast—coffee, toast and English muffins and sliced peaches.

She had expected a letter from Jerry Macklyn in answer to hers written on Sunday, and there it was, along with a thin envelope addressed in her Aunt Flora's handwriting. The letters and the paper arrived on the tray with her breakfast about opening them. She poured herself a cup of the hot, fragrant coffee and drank it rapidly, grateful for the instant, revivifying effect it had upon her jangled nerves.

She was smiling almost cheerfully when she opened Flora Cartwright's two scrawled sheets of scented, cream-colored stationery.

"My darling Vee-Vee," Flora Cartwright's letter began, "Have you landed him yet? I suppose it is a little early for that question, but he's a fool if he isn't, and I almost hate you for being so beautiful and so young. Peter Darrow is mooning around like a sick calf, begging for your address, which of course I won't give him. I know the disgusting young cub doesn't interest you any more than he does me. Jerry Macklyn is proving a great disappointment. He seems to prefer the company of a snippy little peroxide blond to my own society. I saw them at the theater last night. I imagine she's that Rosemary Fitch you've talked about."

"Please don't stay any longer than two weeks, darling. I may be driven to marrying Jack Preston all over again if I'm left to my own devices much longer. He is a dear, though he's getting to look quite middle-aged and settled. He made a neat little killing in Wall Street on Monday. I'm quite seriously tempted. Maybe we'll come to Lake Minnetonka on our honeymoon all about you. Write me all about your progress with the mysterious sheik. Why can't you be frank with me and tell me his name? Your devoted Aunt Flora."

A cynical smile twisted the delicate curves of Vee-Vee's beautiful mouth. So Jerry Macklyn was consoling himself with Rosemary Fitch! She might have known he would. He had admitted that he was "susceptible," and Rosemary had been quite shamelessly determined to get in her most deadly work while Vee-Vee was away. Well, let her have him! But the angry vigor with which Vee-Vee's fingers crushed the sheets of her aunt's letter into a crackling ball did not indicate a cheerful acquiescence in Rosemary's conquest.

"I'll have to write Aunt Flora a special delivery, begging her not to come here on her honeymoon if she does marry Uncle Jack again," she worried, as she dipped a spoon into the chilled peaches. "Goodness knows this situation is complicated enough without having Aunt Flora here, vamping Schuyler and spilling the beans. If he was going to be split, I want to do the spilling myself."

It was not until she had quite finished her breakfast that she opened Jerry's thick letter. She had an obscure fear that its contents might spoil her appetite. "Darrest Gaiety," Jerry began whimsically. "Glad you're having a good time. I hope the mysterious magnet that drew you to Minnetonka is engaged to another girl, though I don't want you to be hurt. I'm getting quite an education in being hurt myself, and I'm still able to work and take nourishment."

"And to go gallivanting around to musical revues with Rosemary Fitch!" Vee-Vee interrupted her reading scornfully.

"I'm up to my ears in work and it's so damned hot that I feel like I'm swimming around in hot oil. Miss Fitch can't hold a candle to you as a secretary, and the work is piling up. But she's a cheerful little dimwit, better on a party than at her typewriter."

"Well, at least he's honest!" Vee-Vee exploded, rattling the sheets of Jerry's letter angrily. "It's easy to see that the stock of Blonds Preferred hasn't taken a tumble since I left New York."

"I rather imagine my fears for you haven't been realized, or I would have had a word to say to you about it. I don't think you haven't read the letter I gave you at the train, and I hope you haven't had occasion to. But I want to impress on you that if you do get into a jam I'll try to your assistance—and when I say try, I mean try. Whew! It's hot. Why don't you invite me up to Minnetonka for the week-end? I'll promise to be good, not to interfere with your campaign, if the sheik is still unattached. And if he is engaged to the other girl, maybe you'd like to see old red-headed Jerry. I'm enclosing a letter from Rosemary Fitch. She asked for your address but I won't give it to her, told her I'd send her letter on to you. We all miss you. For what it's worth to you—I love you, Jerry."

"Dear Jerry!" Vee-Vee murmured, holding the stiff sheets of the letter against her cheek caressingly. It surprised her to find it so dry. He sounded depressed. The heat, probably."

But she knew that it was not only the heat that accounted for the letter that was so unlike the exuberant Jerry she had grown so fond of. It supposed he had turned topsy-turvy! But Jerry would soon right himself. He was already consoling himself with a "cheerful little dimwit."

That last thought reminded her of Rosemary's letter. It was a crackling ball of paper, packed with gossip of the office. Only two paragraphs interested Vee-Vee keenly:

"I'm absolutely mad about Jerry Macklyn, and I believe, if you'll stay away long enough, that Jerry will join the ranks of the other tony-topsy-turvy blonds. I've actually had two dates with him, quite against his will, but dates for all that. He swings a wicked hook, our Jerry!"—and—

"The booklets came from the printer's today. They're simply stunning, Vee-Vee. The Modern Story of an Ugly Duckling is going to be one of the most popular true stories ever printed, or I'm the dimwit that Jerry calls me. We're not going to send them out to readers. The stores are advertising furs. Dark clothes are in the windows. The coal man urges us to buy."

There is a nation-wide search on for Vivian Crandall. The manager of the hotel gets uneasy and begs Vee-Vee to give up her secret.

LOCUST WINGS PLAY A DIRGE TO SUMMER

By Olive Roberts Barton

I have heard the first locust. Perhaps you have heard him, too. Locusts may not make you sad. They affect me miserably. With their wings they play a dirge to summer.

Only yesterday we scattered the seeds of our petunias, bachelor-buttons and zinnias. The day before that we cleaned our house and brought down our porch furniture from the attic.

We watched the calendar with secret pride. The days were getting longer. We were beating Old Man Time at his own game. We were profligate with daylight and threw it around as a new-rich son throws his father's money.

HINTS ON ETIQUET

1. Is it permissible to state, in your invitation to week-end guests, just what train they are to come and leave on?

2. Is it imperative to go by the train mentioned?

3. If you have a guest visiting you, can you take her with you for a week-end party without first asking your hostess's permission?

The Answers

1. Yes.

2. Yes, unless unforeseen accident prevents.

3. Certainly not.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Allow me to remind you that Rubnow's August sale of furs is now in full swing for the third successive year. For several reasons August is the best time of the year to invest in furs. Prices are the lowest, skins of the finest quality go into the manufacture of the first of the season's garments, and the workmanship costs more as the season advances. If you are planning to have a new fur coat this winter, be sure to see the line of stylish luxurious garments at Mr. Rubnow's. Deferred payments may be arranged and free storage provided until the cold days arrive.

Devised Lobster.

One two-pound lobster, 3 tablespoons butter, 1-4 teaspoon mustard, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 cups milk, buttered crumfs.

Plunge lobster into a large kettle of boiling water to which 2 tablespoons salt have been added. Cover and bring quickly to the boiling point. Boil rapidly for five minutes and simmer twenty. The shell must be a bright red. Remove at once from boiling water and plunge into cold water. Silt down through the center between the claws. Remove black vein through richly luxuriant claws and remove meat. Use thin knife and small forks for garnish. Cut meat in small cubes. Melt butter, stir in flour and when mixture bubbles slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Mix salt and mustard and add lemon juice, stirring to make smooth. Add with pepper to sauce and bring to boiling point. Boil two minutes and add lobster meat. Scrape the shell of the lobster clean, remove the gills. Fill shell with lobster mixture and bake in a shallow pan in a moderately hot oven until crumbs are brown.

Youth is woman's aim nowadays. Those telltale lines of fatigue and worry, or that coat of sunburn or freckles are erased as if by magic by a French beach pack at Mrs. Pettigrew's Beauty Parlor, 1572 if you wish to consult her about any of her different branches of beauty work.

Prune Whip

Never is a late boon for the healthful handy prune. Sound its praise from lip to lip, stewed or put in pie and whip. For the latter, cook one pound till they swell up soft and round. Squeeze the juice out and while they're on the stove to stew. Chop them fine—remove the stones and throw away like rags or bones. Beat three egg whites to a froth. Fold them like snow into the prune pulp. Whip the cream in twenty minutes—dash with whip cream on top. Eat at once, you'll never stop.

—Cook Book Carols.

By the way, are you reading Anne Austin's serial "The Penny Princess" now running on the home page? It has been interesting all the way through with its unusual plot, and just now one can hardly wait for the next installment to see what is going to happen next to Vee Vee.

Spiced Watermelon Rind.

Three pounds rind, 1-2 pounds light brown sugar, 4 cups vinegar, 1 cup water, 4 tablespoons whole cloves, 4 tablespoons broken stick cinnamon, 2 teaspoons powdered alum.

Trim off pink pulp and green skin of melon rind and cut into neat strips. Add alum to one cup cold water and pour over rind. Add water to cover, cover with a plate and let stand twelve hours. Heat to the boiling point and let simmer fifteen minutes. Drain and plunge into ice water. Let stand until thoroughly cold, about two hours. Drain and dry between towels. Put sugar, water and vinegar into preserving kettle. Bring to the boiling point and add spices and rind. Simmer until rind is transparent and tender. Put into sterilized jars and seal while hot.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

A lady bacteriologist is all excited because she took to her laboratory a powder puff from a vanity case which she had found, and discovered 20,000 different vicious bacteria on said puff. And yet—despite the serious lady's evidence, we've been using powder puffs for some years now and, so as we know, few, or none of us, have died from these same bacteria. Besides as any one can tell you, a girl might as well be dead as have a shiny nose!

"Shame on You!"

A beautiful statue called "Kneeling Woman" has stood in the town plaza of Duisburg, Germany, for many a year. For some time now the town hoodlums and those who have hoodlum souls, but would picture framing in his specialty—so many people drop in there to browse around.

These last few weeks of the summer find many people who have been summering at the shore, leaving the beaches for the woods or mountains. As they change their abodes, of course they must change their clothes. Materials for the hills or the shore places up north demand warmth, and tweeds, whipcords or other sturdy fabrics are absolutely essential. The new coats for fall wear show more fullness and a surplice rather than the regulation straight closing. One of the new sport coats was suggestive of the mountain pines, deep green lined with tan crepe de chine. With it was a hat in two shades of green, in a mushroom shape. The binding and trimming band was of a deep green velvet. Sweater suits in fine wool or novelty silk and wool weaves are ideal for tramping or mountain climbing.

This being an age of youth and slimmness the woman with a full figure has her own troubles in finding suitable apparel. The best choice if one would retain some semblance of the straight-line silhouette is dresses and suits in dark colors, in preference to bright colors. Another slenderizing secret is to have all trimming whether it be tucks, jabots or whatnot, vertical, and when possible with pointed ends. Contrasting material if used at all should break the width, not the length. All over figured materials should be small patterned for the large figure, for whom the one-piece models are considered the wisest choice. The coat dress is another slenderizing style which gives dignity to the wearer. There are many who believe the woman whose figure inclines to fullness should not wear the close fitting, brimless small hat but instead should buy one with at least a bit of a brim.

Creed

A little more kindness and a little less creed;

A little more giving and a little less greed;

A little more smile and a little less frown;

A little more striving and a little less down;

A little more "we" and a little less "I";

A little more laugh and a little less cry;

A little more flowers on the pathway of strife;

A little less scent at the end of life.

—Straub.

Make your favorite chocolate cake in layers and spread a fruit filling between the layers. Ice with chocolate or white frosting.

There are new notes for the shoulder and new ways of wearing the shoulder flower. Tiny pearls formed into rounded blossoms for shoulder decoration are very new, and the latest way to wear the regulating flower is upside down, with the stems upward. The latter must be green and fresh looking for they are as conspicuous as the flower itself.

MARY TAYLOR.

Women Suicidees

Women suicidees are increasing. So alarms a Berlin physician, quoting figures to prove that whereas years ago the female suicide rate was one to three men, today it is about 1 to 2.

He blames, of course, "woman's emancipation," explaining that today's woman is not happy as in the days when home, husband and children were her all in all.

Maid of Honor.

Queen Mary's newly appointed maid of honor must eat ham in the morning; ride over hedges and ditches on borrowed hocks, come home in the heat of the day in a fever, with a red mark on the forehead from too-tight a hat, and other inane things found in old books of rules for maids-of-honor.

When one meets these legal leftovers of former days, one wonders if women politicians, with their instinct for good housekeeping and cleaned out closets and attics, would let such litter and rubbish remain when their days of usefulness were over.

Bad Women

Bad women are always much worse than bad men. It is almost impossible to reclaim a really bad woman, whereas few men are ever beyond redemption.

These pronouncements come from Sir William Johnson-Hicks, home secretary of Britain, in charge of criminal prosecutions. His explanation sounds plausible. He offers that it takes so much more to make a woman bad than a man that when she once gets that way the thing is done and finished.

Statistics show that more people have died from overeating than from starvation.

HOW SPORTS AFFECT HEALTH
(This is the third of four health talks on athletics and heart disease.)

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Dr. Felix Deutsch and Dr. Emil Kauf of the heart station in Vienna examined the hearts of participants in every form of sport including not only those who exercise slightly for pleasure, but also expert fencers, boxers, football players, hikers, wrestlers, swimmers, bicyclists, carmen, skiers and weight lifters.

A previous investigator named Herxheimer found that skiers had the largest hearts, followed by marathon runners, long distance runners, middle distance runners, swimmers, weight lifters, and finally boxers. Later he found that bicycle riders had even greater enlargements than did the skil runners.

Recent investigators compared the size of the heart with the size of the chest in general, and also with the hearts of normal men. They also found the greatest changes among skiers, followed in order by carmen, bicycle riders, swimmers, wrestlers, and mountain climbers. Football players and boxers showed relatively little change in the heart and fencers apparently none.

They found that bicycle riders did not stand at the head of the list but came after the fencers and skiers. The latter are the skiers, of course, at high altitudes. The relatively small heart of the boxer seems to be a striking observation and was explained by the fact that over-exercise seldom occurs in boxers. Exhaustion quickly leads to the end of the fighting through some body being knocked down or quitting.

Among other reasons for enlargements of the heart, outside of exercise, are previous illnesses which may have weakened the heart, and the psychic excitement invariably associated with competitive sports.

TOMORROW: Can enlarged hearts be reduced?

If You Want A Classy Airplane, Just Build This Twin-Motored Model

This is the sixth of a series of articles telling how to build model airplanes. Previous articles have told how to build a glider and single motored tractor model, in addition to explaining how to make propellers and other fittings of the plane. The information in these articles was obtained from the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

One motor was enough for Colonel Lindbergh in his flight across the ocean but Commander Byrd and his three associates who flew across in a giant Fokker relied on three motors.

Previous articles have told you how to build a Lindbergh model and now complete instructions for building a model with two motors will be given you. This model is called a twin-pusher, because two propellers, located on the rear, push it through the air. Because this model is more complicated than the others described in previous articles, the instructions will be given in two articles.

Today you are told how to construct the fuselage and the motors. Tomorrow we shall build the wings and elevator and assemble the plane for you.

The following material is needed for the fuselage or frame, and the motors:

Fuselage or frame:
2 pieces balsa or pine, 3/8 inches by 1-4 inches by 3-32 inches for longitudinal.

Motors:
2 pieces bamboo 3/4-3/4 inches by 3-32 inches for rear X brace.
2 pieces bamboo 1-2 inches by 3-32 inches by 1-32 inches for middle X brace.
2 pieces bamboo 5/8-3/4 inches by 3-32 inches by 1-64 inches for front X brace.
1 piece bamboo 1-1/2 inches by 3-32 inches by 1-64 inches for front brace.
2 cans or rubber guides.
1 nose hook.

Next insert the braces in their proper places as shown on the plan. These are fastened by sharpening their ends to a flat chisel-like point and pushing these points into the side of the longitudinal, and ambroiding in place. The braces should be inserted beginning at the apex and continuing toward the rear. When all are in, line up the fuselage and make sure that the sides are straight.

Trim off any portion of the braces which may protrude through the longitudinal and proceed to attach the cans and bearings in their proper places. This frame can be somewhat strengthened by painting it with "dope" or banana oil.

Motors:
2 propellers 7/8-1 inches in diameter, 3/4 inch wide, 3-4 inch thick.
2 shafts, plain.
2 "S" hooks, safety.
4 No. 16 washers.
24 feet of rubber, 1-8 inch flat thread.

Construction of the Fuselage:
Always in the construction of a wedge-shaped or "A" frame, the best procedure is to lay out the shape of the frame full size on a large piece of paper, and lay the material directly over this plan while putting it together. This insures correct placement and true construction.

Having done this, cut the front of the two longitudinal into a wedge shape and ambroid them together. The wedges should have such slant that the rear ends will be 7/8-1 inches apart, as shown. Next bind the nose hook in place. All of the fitting such as nose hook, cans, etc., were described in detail in the fourth article of this series.

Construction of the Fuselage:
Always in the construction of a wedge-shaped or "A" frame, the best procedure is to lay out the shape of the frame full size on a large piece of paper, and lay the material directly over this plan while putting it together. This insures correct placement and true construction.

Having done this, cut the front of the two longitudinal into a wedge shape and ambroid them together. The wedges should have such slant that the rear ends will be 7/8-1 inches apart, as shown. Next bind the nose hook in place. All of the fitting such as nose hook, cans, etc., were described in detail in the fourth article of this series.

SENSE and NONSENSE

The airplane manufacturers will never get the family trade until they stop putting the back seat in front.

A specially constructed tank truck recently carried 1,350 gallons of milk from Pittsburg to Milwaukee. Now all we need to know is what kind of liquor made the return trip.

O what is so rare as a Sunday without auto accidents.

Ned: Where did you tour on your vacation?
Ted: Gosh! I don't know; I was driving the car!

There was a young lady from Astor,
On the road no car ever past her,
When the car couldn't stop,
She married the cop,
And now she's going faster and faster.

Undoubtedly personal liberty is a good thing, but we don't like to ride with a driver who is full of it.

The girl who goes for a ride with a "flat tire" should not forget to take a little "jack" along.

Andy, who had run out of gas on the outskirts of a country town, saw a boy coming along the road carrying a big tin can.
"Say, boy!" he yelled. "I hope that's gasoline you have in that can."
"Well, I hope it ain't," returned the boy, "it would taste like the dickens on ma's pancakes."

Western Indians are again killing a lot of people—by motoring over them.

After all, a good horse can pull his legs out of a deeper snowbank than a motor truck can.

If you know where you're going the traffic cop on the Highway of Success will always give you the "GO" signal.

The real millennium will come when the pedestrian and the motorist shall lie down together.

HONK, HONK
Little Boy Blue come blow your horn,
You're approaching a crossing as sure as you're born,
And if a sharp lookout you do not keep,
You may go everlastingly fast asleep.

Take care of the dimes and the filivver installments will take care of the dollars.

Horses are worried over all this talk of gasoline shortage.

Lady! (to motorist who has just wrecked his car): You're not a very good driver. Just beginning, I suppose.

Motorist: On the contrary, madam, I've just finished.

Ske: Have you been pinched in this car?
Durham: No, but I've been slapped.

Now You Ask One

THREE GUESSES

Anyone should be able to do fairly well on this quiz, for the answers are practically given with the questions. Correct replies are on another page:

1—Is the Ganges a river in India, Egypt, or Persia?
2—Is Rudyard Kipling's "Gunga Din" a poem, a novel, or a short story?

3—Is amber a mineral, a fossil resin, or an artificially produced chemical compound?

4—Is Great Salt Lake in Wyoming, Utah, or Idaho?

5—Is General Grant buried in Washington, Cairo, Ill., or New York City?

6—Was "Scaramouche" written by Blasco Ibanez, Rafael Sabatini, or Anatole France?

7—Is the boomerang a native weapon in the Philippines, Australia, or Java?

8—Who said, "Give me liberty or give me death," Benjamin Franklin, Barbara Fritche, or Patrick Henry?

9—Is the capital of New Zealand, Melbourne, Sydney, or Wellington?

10—Is peat a tree bark, a sod, or a low grade of mined coal?

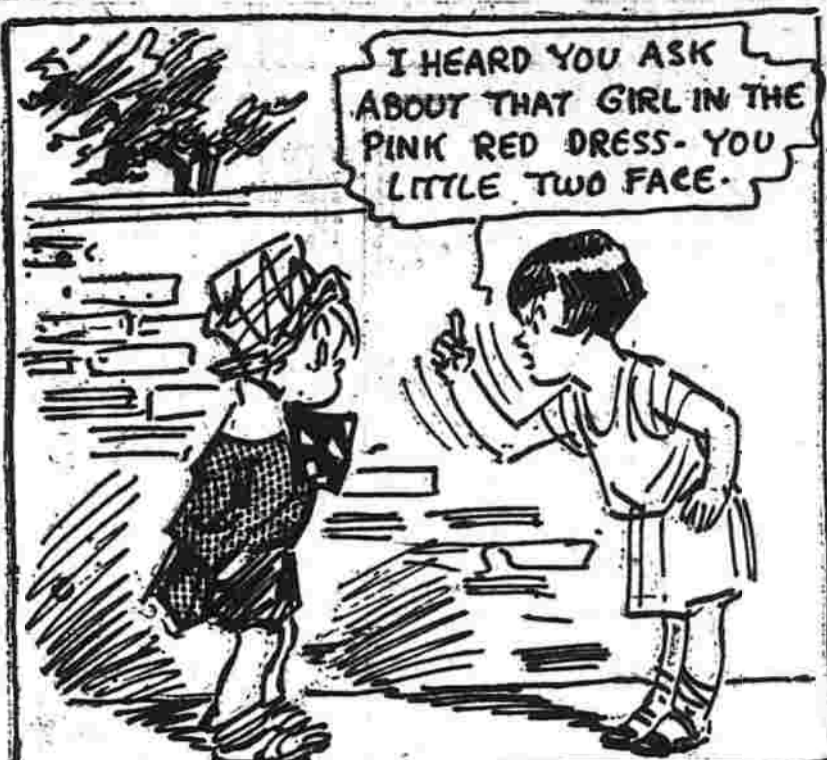

Motorist: Come on, come on, get out of the way!
Pedestrian: Right, sir; where shall I go, up the telegraph pole or down the sewer?

A true sport is one who can chat lightly, smile and be at ease while watching the taximeter.

Well, here's hoping that some day the backseat driver will get lockjaw.

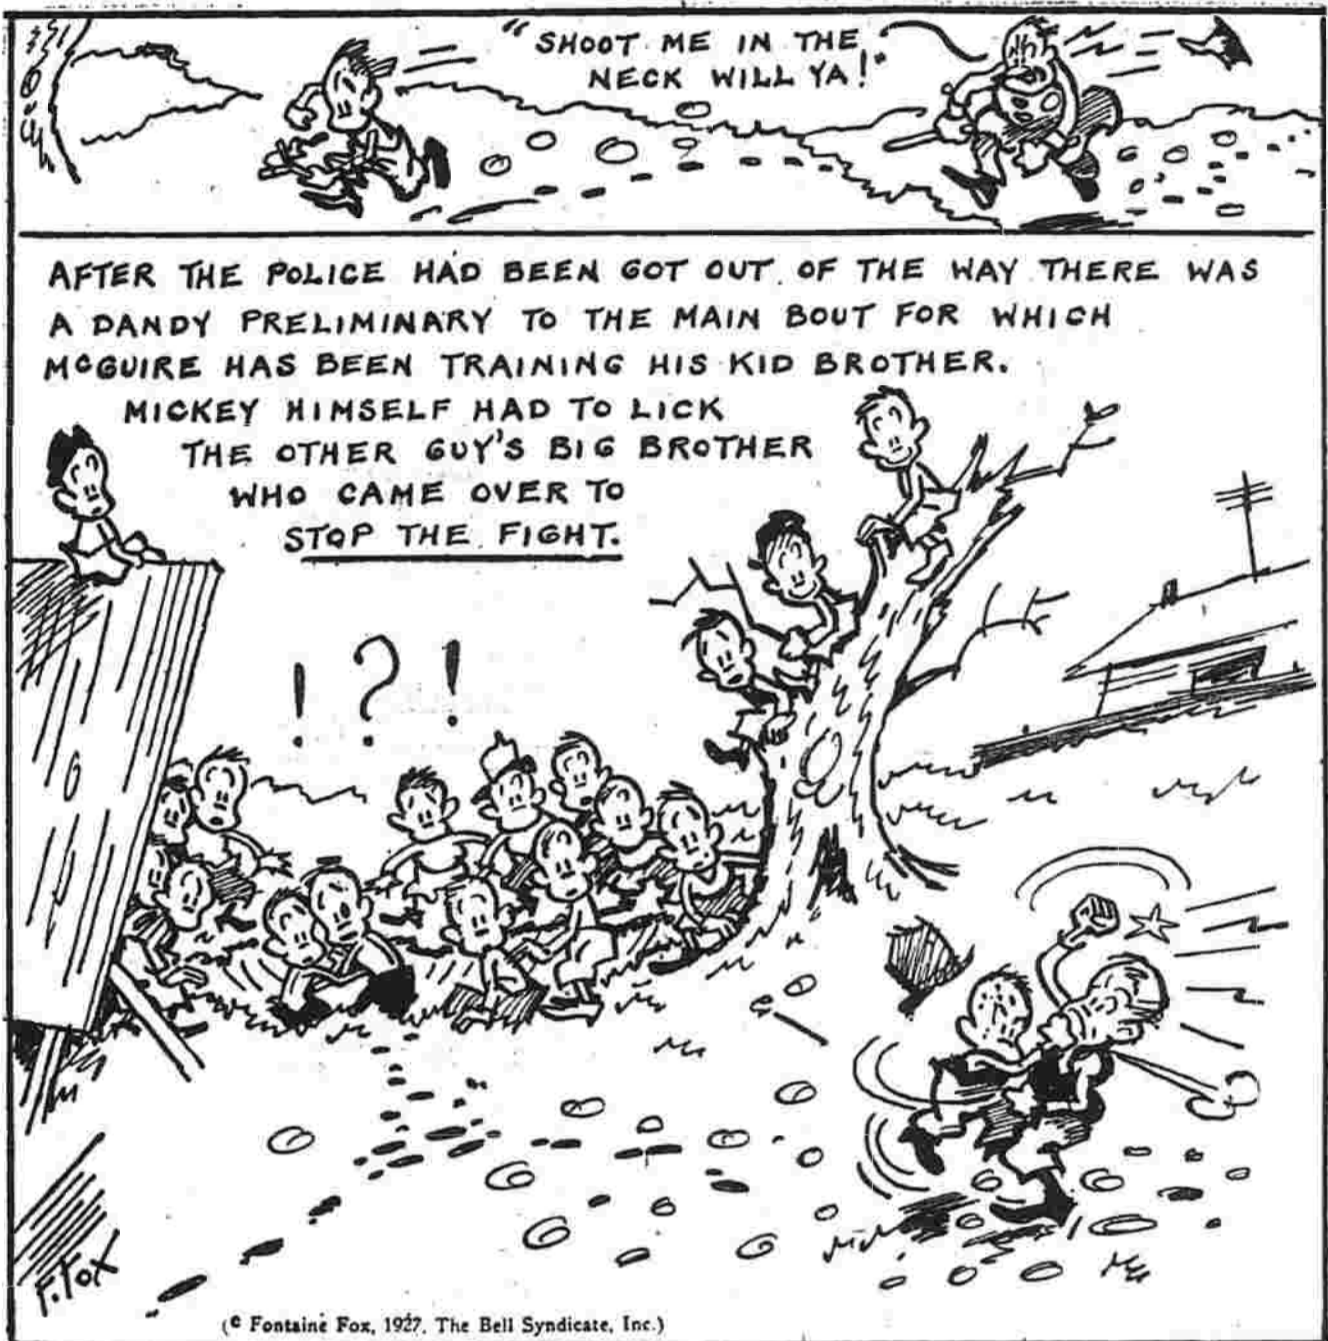

"All the world loves a lover."
"Sure; he never parks inside the city limits!"

THE ANYMITES

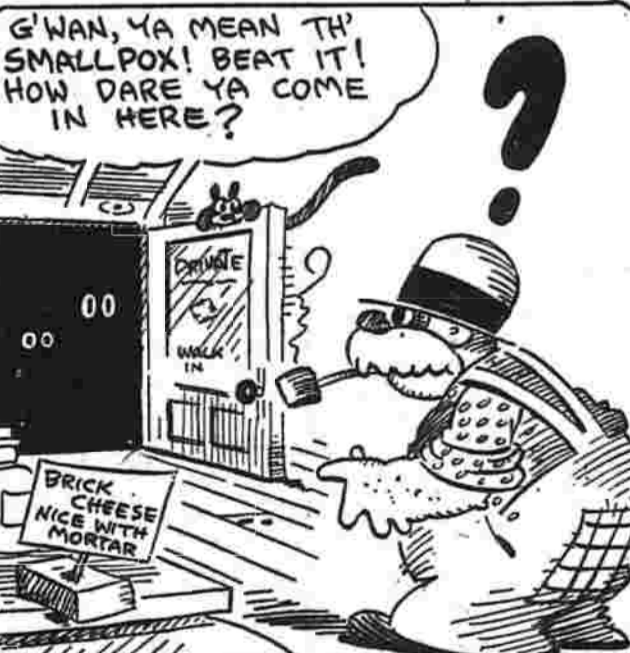

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLO R THE PICTURE)
The Goofys' cave had quite a door that reached up two feet from the floor. The home was underneath a hill and hidden well from view. Of course, as soon as it was night, the Tinies saw 'twas dark inside, and wondered if there was some way to let the light come through.
One Goofy said, "Way up on top, we've got a board that we let drop. That opens up a little place and let's the sun shine in. When this is opened, we just crawl right in and it's not hard at all. But fat folks couldn't enter. It is lucky you are thin."
King Clowny then stood up and roared, "Please hurry, now, and move that board. I'd like to go into your cave and see just what it's like. I'll look around a while, and then sit down and rest because we've had a rather lengthy hike."
"Won't you please help me move the board?" one Little Goofy Go implored. "Why, sure I will," wee

This bank is equipped to introduce you to this service in the form of arranging your trip to any place you may wish to travel and for any length of time you may wish to stay.

You may travel abroad with a carefree spirit, knowing that this service will smooth all of the details of your journey. Uniformed interpreters are maintained at important seaports, frontier points and railroad centers, ready to lend a helping hand. The offices of this world-wide organization are also available for cashing travelers cheques, exchanging money, sending cables and performing countless other services that only the traveler can appreciate.

For travel either at home or abroad, the safe and dependable and convenient way to carry your funds is in the form of American Express Travelers Cheques. The sale of Travelers Cheques is only another of the many services this bank offers to travelers. Their cost is only 75¢ per $100.

PROCRASTINATION Isn't it peculiar why people will put off ordering coal until the last minute when they could just as well have their bins filled before the cold weather arrives? It's human nature to put off until tomorrow what can be done today, but every sudden cold snap keeps us busy writing orders, each order stating "must be delivered at once." All of which leads us to ask, have you ordered your winter supply of coal? THE W. G. GLENNEY CO. Allen Place, Manchester.
