THIRD DISTRICT VOTES TO BUILD A NEW SCHOOL

Opposition Falls Eight Bal- lots Short of Defeating Project; Cost is Limited to $85,000.

By the narrow margin of eight votes the Third District last night appropriated a sum not to exceed $85,000 for the purchase of land and the erection of a new schoolhouse on the site of the old building. The vote was taken by written ballot on motion of George S. Buck, spokesman for a minority group which had collected at the rear of the small assembly hall. The district laid no tax.

Mr. Buck's group allowed the question on which they desired a ballot vote to slip but tried to recover the lost ground by asking for the appropriation of the money with which to erect the school. They had evidently intended to get a ballot vote on the clause giving power to the district building committee to buy land and enter into a contract for the new building.

Balloting Close
Even at that the ballot was close. Many of those in the rear of the room insisted that the present schoolhouse was good enough. In spite of the report issued some time ago by Dr. LeVerne Holmes.

George H. Wilcox of the building committee submitted the plan which the committee had recommended. The plan, he said, called for a brick building of fire resisting construction, containing six school rooms and several other incidental rooms.

The plans had been drawn up by Hutchins and French of Boston after the committee had spent a day in Waltham, Mass., where a similar building was being erected. C. S. Henry & Co., the contractors on the Waltham school had estimated the cost of the Third District building at $87,787. In addition to the architects' fees, a septic tank and furnishings, amounting to approximately $18,000, making the total cost of the school $85,000. This estimate, it was said by the chairman, might be about 5 per cent high.

Six School Rooms

In the new building will be, in addition to the six school rooms, a principal's room, nurse's room, combined kindergarten and auditorium with a seating capacity of 250. Two extra rooms will be available in the basement for the use of manual training and domestic science class. The building is so planned that two more rooms may be added without impairing the architecture.

Judge Moderator. The report of the building committee was read and accepted with thanks and the committee discharged.

EXPLODING GAS TANKS MENACE FIRE FIGHTERS

Mysterious Blaze Starts on Roof of Furniture Van—Des- troys Filling Station.

Darien, Conn., Aug. 18.—Fire of unknown origin that started on the roof of a Boston furniture van and then spread, totally destroyed Frank Battenhausen's gasoline station on the Post road near the town walk line today. Firemen fought the blaze amid exploding oil tanks and saved the Battenhausen home twenty-five feet away. The loss has not been estimated but will be heavy as five pumps, eight oil tanks and a large building were destroyed.

A huge van owned by the E. F. Caldwell Company, of Boston, carrying furniture from Philadelphia, pulled up at the station at 3:30 a. m. and the crew of two men announced to Battenhausen they desired to take a nap. A few minutes later Battenhausen spotted a blaze on the roof of the van. He smashed the cab and woke the two men, who drove down the road, yanked out their cargo and then put out the fire.

WINNERS OF PACIFIC HOP NOT JOYFUL

Joy Changed to Gloom Early Today When No Word Was Received of Planes Lost on Pacific.

Honolulu, T. H., Aug. 18.—With two of the Dole planes, believed down at sea, Art Goebel, pilot of the Woolaro, and Martin Jensen, of the Aloha, winners of the $25,000 and $10,000 first and second prizes for the great 2,400 mile air race, had no heart for their honors today.

The adulation of all Hawaii did not compensate the flyers for anxiety they felt over the safety of Augy Pedlar, Vilas Knope and Mildred Doran, the "flying schoolmarm," of the Michigan biplane, and of Jack Frost and Gordon Scott in the Hearst "Golden Eagle."

"Boy, we did it," was the happy exclamation of Art Goebel as he and his navigator, Lieutenant W. C. Davis, stepped from their plane at 2:22 p. m. Hawaiian time, yesterday to discover that they were the winners of the world's greatest air race. Immediately, however, their joy faded. They learned that no word had been received of the Golden Eagle or of the Miss Doran since passing the Farallones thirty miles off the California coast.

NO SIGN OF MISSING PLANES AS SEARCHERS COMB PACIFIC

Forty-four Destroyers, Submarines and Other Craft Sent Out by Navy Dept. to Find Four Men and Girl Lost in Race to Honolulu—Planes and Passenger Steamers Aid in Hunt—Neither Plane Had Radio Sending Set—Hope Not Yet Abandoned.

WINNERS AND MISSING PLANES

Above are the planes that flew over the Pacific yesterday in the great race in the history of aviation. No. 2 is the Woolaro piloted by Arthur Goebel which won the $25,000 Dole prize. Second to come in was plane No. 8 the Aloha which won $10,000. Underneath are No. 9 the Miss Doran, piloted by Augy Pedlar and No. 5 the Golden Eagle piloted by Jack Frost. Early reports had these last two planes missing.

Forty-four destroyers, submarines and auxiliary craft scoured the vast reaches of the Pacific today in search of four men and a girl, lost when flying in two planes from Oakland to Honolulu.

Twelve of the ships rushed under forced draft along the great circle course over which the Dole planes, "Golden Eagle" and "Miss Doran" were flying in the $35,000 Derby to Hawaii. Augy Pedlar, pilot, Navigator Knope and Mildred Doran, "the flying schoolmarm," are in the biplane "Miss Doran," Pilot Jack Frost and Navigator, Gorman Scott man the Hearst monoplane, "Golden Eagle."

The rescuing flotilla had absolutely nothing with which to fix the approximate position of either plane in the 2,400-mile steamer trail. Neither the "Golden Eagle" nor the "Miss Doran" had been sighted at sea since early Tuesday afternoon when they cruised over the Farallone Islands.

No Senders Aboard
Nor could the planes themselves assist in guiding the searchers. Neither plane was equipped with a radio sending set. The "Golden Eagle" had a receiving set only. The "Miss Doran" was dead and dumb.

More than twelve hours overdue, the planes have already been forced to land. Flying experts said the planes' gasoline reserve was enough for only a few hours over the estimated margin needed for the flight to Honolulu. The "Golden Eagle" acknowledged the speediest ship in the epic air race, was due in Hawaii at noon yesterday, or perhaps a few hours late at the most.

BOTH MISSING PLANES HAVE RUBBER RAFTS

San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 18.—Both the "Golden Eagle" and the Hearst entry in the Dole air flight to Honolulu which carries two aviators, and the "Miss Doran," carrying three persons, including the flying school teacher, are equipped with a rubber raft, which when inflated would keep aviators afloat in the water for some days in good weather. The "Golden Eagle" also has a landing gear which can be dropped in case of emergency. Builders of the plane say that it is alright and would remain on the surface of the water for some time.

San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 18.—With nearly twenty commercial steamers plying through the Pacific between California and Hawaii, all coast shipping agencies threw their full resources today into the search for the five Dole flyers believed to be adrift at sea.

Powerful radio agencies on shore queried constantly from the Pacific, urging unflinching watchfulness for the "Miss Doran" and the "Golden Eagle" and seeking to discover some trace of the Hawaiian Air Derby racers. The commercial vessels, augmented by a squadron of naval destroyers which already are making an intensive search over the great circle course to Honolulu.

The missing flyers are Miss Mildred Doran, 22-year-old "flying schoolmarm," in the biplane flown by Augy Pedlar and navigated by V. R. Knope; and Jack Frost and Gordon Scott, the crew of the Hearst "Golden Eagle" monoplane.

Along the line of flight are the following vessels: The Eric Frisell, the Manaulai, the President Harrison, the Manaulai, the Mana, and seven Navy destroyers. The fact over the Honolulu course. The fact over the Honolulu course. The fact over the Honolulu course.

The army planes from Crisey Field, on the San Francisco Presidio, will hop off as soon as possible, over the Honolulu course. The fact over the Honolulu course. The fact over the Honolulu course.

One of the original Dole racers, Captain "Bill" Erwin of Dallas, Texas, who was forced back after the take-off by a rip in his fuselage, also planned today to search for his missing comrades. Erwin announced that he will fly a zig-zag course over the great circle steamship lane to hunt for the missing planes.

FOLLOW TALENTED BIG STORY MAITLAND'S OPINION.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18.—Speculating upon the fate of the "Golden Eagle" and the "Miss Doran," Lieutenant Lester J. Maitland, pilot of the army monoplane in the San Francisco-Honolulu race to Honolulu, was the most pitiful figure in the crowd that anxiously sought news of the aviators.

Backer Brokenhearted
Molloksa was surrounded by his friends who tried to cheer him up, but the task was not an easy one and Molloksa refused to be comforted. The man Molloksa had gone all day without food.

Molloksa had seemed sure that his "crowd" would get in. "It will be a glad time when I can greet that plucky little girl," he said, referring to Miss Mildred Doran for whom the plane was named and who was its passenger.

"If morning comes without news of Miss Doran, Molloksa will be a broken old man," newspapermen predicted last night. Army searchlights were turned on as dusk came and the crowd began to thin out.

After it had become apparent that the "Golden Eagle" and the "Miss Doran" had been forced down and would not complete the race, James D. Dole, donor of the cash prizes for the Honolulu flight made the following statement: "I want to express great satisfaction with the flight, except, of course, disappointment regarding those who failed to arrive thus far. I hope the others arrive safely. The flight showed splendid cooperation by everyone. I want the flyers to know of our appreciation of the assistance the United States Navy has been giving and is still giving and the same is true of the Army."

THIRD DISTRICT VOTES TO BUILD A SCHOOL

(Continued from page 1) as moved and there was no opposition to any of the remaining motions. The treasurer having reported almost $3,000 in the treasury, Harold Alvord of the building committee moved that the district lay no tax this year. He explained that the money now in the treasury would be sufficient to carry the district along until actual construction on the new school is begun. The expense of the district for one year, he said, would amount to about $300, so that there was ample more than three-quarters of an hour was required for the transaction of all the business. There was little discussion on the various motions, the voters taking the report of the building committee as it was given. Ample Room Provided In the report the building committee took into consideration the purchase of land which would be ample for the new school building and a playground. The present location was held to be the best for the accommodation of the district now and for years to come. It was not economical or practical, the report declared, to enlarge or adapt the present plant to meet the increasing population. It pointed out that the number of students in the coming year would be 100 or more. It took into consideration the grand list of the district which has increased since 1922 about half a million dollars and pointed out that 35 houses valued at $320,000 had been built since the last grand list or were under construction. In closing the district re-appointed its building committee, consisting of George H. Wilcox, Frederick W. Pitkin, Harold Alvord, A. N. Potter, and Lawrence W. Case.

WINNERS OF FLIGHT NOT JOYFUL TODAY

(Continued from page 1) nounced that he hopes to make a New York to Spokane flight in September. He planned to install a new engine in the Woolcorac and use the plane for the overland hop. Davis' first thought, after he had sent messages to his mother and to his sweetheart, was to express his intention of swimming at famed Waikiki beach. Davis' leave from his San Diego navy post expires on September 10. Met Jensen said that one month ago he met Jensen in California and learned that the Honolulu flyer planned to race in the Dole derby. At that time Davis had no thought he himself might make the flight. "Gee, you're crazier than you look!" Davis said he had exclaimed to Jensen. "I've hurried so much since I left San Diego that I still have on the same suit of clothes," Davis added. Both Davis and Schluter, navigator of the Aloha, declared that they had had difficulty in navigating a true course. "For a time I checked my bearings by the sun and stars," Schluter said, "but later I had to rely on dead reckoning." "We saw nothing but clouds all the way over," commented Davis. Goebel revealed that the present trip was his first flight over water. "I've always lived an out-of-doors life," the winning pilot said, "so I didn't mind the cold and dark. I have always been crazy about adventure. Once I even went to Peru and joined the Peruvian army as a flyer. I certainly enjoyed the trip over here." In court at Geneva, a tradesman asked a divorce on grounds of "abnormal obesity." All his savings were used to buy food for his wife, he said. The court refused the divorce.

He learned his trade in Germany where he was born and continued until the time of his recent illness. He came to this country more than thirty years ago and lived both in New York and Boston. Mr. Janssen came to Manchester with his family nineteen years ago and had operated a meat and grocery store at 123 Spruce street ever since. Through his business, he has acquired a wide acquaintanceship and made many friends. Mr. Janssen is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helena Janssen; three sons, Theodore H., of New Rochelle, N. Y., Julius R., a graduate of Northeastern University, Henry, a graduate of the class of 1927 at the South Manchester high school, and two daughters, Helen and Louise. All of the children excepting Theodore, live at home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

SACCO DECISION MAY COME TODAY

(Continued from page 1) York aboard the liner Aquitania. She planned to make a personal plea for mercy to Gov. Alvan T. Fuller. If the Sacco-Vanzetti case continues in the courts the execution of Celestino Maderos, under respite with the others until midnight, August 22, probably will be delayed. Seek Sanity Test. His lawyers seek a sanity test by two alienists other than those who have examined him for the state. Portuguese national authorities have asked for the examination by a specialist. Search for the bombers of the home of Lewis McHardy, a Sacco-Vanzetti case juror, continued today while all went forward to the stricken family. Members of Gov. Fuller's church—the First Baptist church, Malden—held a service when a stranger entered the edifice during a prayer meeting, and after acting strangely, suddenly went his way. A movement was under way today to try and bring about a general strike in Boston next Monday if the Sacco-Vanzetti case is not kept in the courts and if another respite or stay of sentence is denied the two prisoners. URGE CHILDREN TO ENTER FLOWERS IN "GREEN" SHOW Children in the Manchester Green district who raise flowers are invited to participate in the flower show at the Manchester Green playground tomorrow afternoon. Their exhibits will be placed alongside of the exhibits of any professional flowergrowers who wish to display their products. Prizes in several groups will be awarded but only children are eligible to compete for the awards.

Cop Shoots at Crook, Kills Small Boy.

New York, Aug. 18.—Struck by a stray bullet fired during a running gun battle between the police and a desperate ex-convict, nine-year-old Ruby Gianlettina died today within two hours after the shooting. The wild bullet entered her forehead and lodged near the brain. The child was on the way home from a movie. Police later captured the fugitive, Salvatore "Cheese Cake" Mileto, wanted as one of five men who robbed a payroll and killed two guards. Two men have already died in the chair for their part in the crime.

MIXUP IN NAMES Hartford, Conn., Aug. 18.—Confusion in the names of contractors was explained to the State Board of Finance and Control today as the reason why Joseph H. Mylghrest, of Middletown, was not given an opportunity to bid on the construction of the sewage disposal plant at the State Hospital in that city. Mylghrest had complained to the governor that he had been given no chance to bid after he had asked that right. But appearing before the board today he explained that notification of call for bids was sent to his cousin William H. Mylghrest who is in the same business. He was satisfied that the affair was entirely unintentional and declared that so far as he was concerned the matter is closed.

SIMPLE CEREMONY AT GARY FUNERAL

(Continued from Page 1) purring motors, they came. Silently and simply. A Little Church. They came into Wheaton—to a little church set on a corner, and the men and women in them got out and went into the church. They stopped for a moment to gaze down upon a still, white face, strong even in death, and they went over and sat down in one or another of the pews—pews such as you have in your own church. The organ chanted gently, singing the time away minute by minute, and all around were flowers, wreaths of them, garlands of them, blankets of them, huge bouquets of them. And in the front of the church, half buried beneath them, the great bronze casket and the still, white face, still strong, still fearless, still calm. Mills Close Down. All of Wheaton was to pause in its day's business at the funeral hour. At Gary, Indiana, the monster mills were to stop. No school in the industry he founded was to mark Judge Gary's passing—only the whisper of the winds and the twitter of the birds that he heard as a boy upon the farm. At the cavalcade that came up Roosevelt Road from Chicago with the dawn was imposing—history, even—the procession that came up Main street was inspiring—touching. On foot, these people came, not in shining motors—and there were young men and old, women young and middle aged, and little children, all in their Sunday best. These were not the captains of industry, but the rank and file. The Clergy. A bishop—P. D. Lee of Indianapolis—and two other ministers, the Rev. Ernest F. Tuttle of Evansville and the Rev. James T. Ladd of Elgin, were to assist the Rev. Almer Pennewell, pastor of Gary Memorial Methodist Episcopal church, in conducting the simple funeral services. Organ music, a solo, a sermon, a song and then the old familiar words of solace and of optimism—that was all. Then the bronze casket was to be lifted into the waiting hearse and there was to be the brief procession to the waiting mausoleum. The final closing of those strong barred gates will make the closing of another chapter in the history of American industry. Active pallbearers were Paul Gustafson, Floyd Cox, Phil Kuhn, William J. Ring, William Buckholz, Lee Klem, Garland Grange, Ernie Pankratz, Lowell Reynolds and Victor Gustafson. Victor Gustafson is captain of Northwestern university's football team; Paul Gustafson is his father. Grange is the brother of "Red" Grange. All of the pallbearers—and most of them are youngsters—were Elbert Gary's fellow townsmen. He was proud to call them that, even though before many of them were born, he already was a great man. Honorary pallbearers included names in contemporary American history—names of everyday familiarity to 110,000,000 Americans—"big" men—the men who command the financial and commercial and industrial destinies of the American empire. "Big Men" There was former Governor Miller of New York, now general counsel for the United States Steel Corporation, and George F. Baker, Jr., Vice President of Duquesne, former Governor of Illinois, Senator Deneen. John J. Mitchell and George Reynolds, Marvin Huggitt, Sr., Julius Rosenwald, Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university; James A. Farrell, Julius Morgan and E. A. S. Clark. Others present were Bernard A. Eckhardt, George K. Leet, Charles M. Schwab, Silas H. Strawn, George A. Carpenter, Major General Milton J. Foreman, Charles S. Cutting, F. Edison White, Louis F. Swift, H. H. Wilson and a hundred others of equal prominence, locally and nationally.

INDIANS

We are in complete accord with President Coolidge's indirect rebuke to those overbusy "civilizers" who would like to put a brown derby and a shoe-shine on every American Indian. "Today," said the President, addressing 10,000 Sioux at Pine Ridge, S. D., "we find that the Indian people, recently primitive, not so very far from the hunter stage, are surrounded by twentieth century conditions which are alien to their racial characteristics, their tribal ways and state of mind. While thousands of them have succeeded in adjusting themselves to the new order of things, a great portion of them, mostly the older ones, still cling to the old way. They wish to live and die according to the old traditional ways of the Indians. They should be permitted to do so."

The record of our dealing with the Indians, either as colonists or as a nation, is one of the things of which we have reason to be least proud. There has always been a strange lack of realization that the red man, as the original owner of this country, had something coming to him besides attempts to reconstruct him according to the white man's standards. We took his all and in repayment we have attempted to give him a code of economics, religion and ethics without consulting him as to the fit. It is exceedingly fortunate that one leader of American thought has at last recognized that there may be a red man can be converted into a white man by law, admonition and clothes.

Decidedly the old Indians who cling to the traditions of their race should be permitted to live their own lives. They have been far too much advised and far too grievously pestered.

MOONSHINERS

Before prohibition, whenever we read about the conflicts between authority and the moonshiners of the border state mountains, there seemed to be a tang of wild romance about the tragedies that now and then resulted. Now, in the light of broader experience, we know that it is not so much an eagle-like persistence in freedom that distinguishes the moonshining mountaineers as a stupendous lack of the sense of humor.

There is nothing romantic, any more, about the killing of federal officers by illicit whisky makers; merely something incredibly stupid. The West Virginia and Kentucky mountain men should come out of their hills for a little while and find out how the thing is done elsewhere. Does any illicit distiller in Connecticut or New York or anywhere else save in those benighted highlands take a chance of being shot to death or hanged merely to defend a few dollars' worth of copper and a few cents' worth of mash? He does not. He grins at the cops, puts up a bond, buys a new still and starts over again. He knows far better than to take the matter seriously. To him it is all a joke, this enforcement stuff.

What the West Virginian tribesmen need to know is just a little of what is going on in the world—and how to have a good laugh.

SUCH A LAW!

For the first time we are convinced that the immigration laws need revision. Vincenzo Gentile, an Italian, was admitted to this country as an artist because he was a clarinet soloist. He could not have come in as an artisan because the quota was full. That was in 1923. By and by Gentile met an American girl, loved and married her. She did not propose to have him trouping all over the country with any band, Italian or otherwise, and Vincenzo, being tractable, took a job helping his wife's father in the latter's shoemaker's shop. Somebody with a mean streak told the immigration authorities. So, because he is no longer a clarinetist but just a cobbler, Gentile is ordered to be deported. Mrs. Vincenzo hired a lawyer and the lawyer is fighting the case. Possibly Vincenzo may tootle his clarinet before a federal judge to prove that he is just as much an artist as ever and consequently eligible to stay. We submit that the alien who comes here to resolve our old shoes and who sits quietly and usefully all day on a cobbler's bench is absolutely as desirable a citizen as the same individual would be if he did nothing but make goose noises on nights on a clarinet. And that as a neighbor he is at least ten times as desirable. On a law that puts a clarinet player ahead of a mender of shoes!

BUYING "HOT" CARS.

Four automobiles, stolen in New Britain and Hartford, have been found in the possession of Meriden residents who purchased them. The police give the purchasers credit for having bought the cars in good faith. None the less the sympathy that might be extended to them for their losses—they are out, of course, whatever they paid—will be somewhat qualified.

There are a great many persons who consider themselves at least reasonably honest who cannot resist the temptation to believe the story told them by some strange vendor of an automobile who is willing to part with the machine for much less than its actual resale value, if the tale be only sufficiently plausible, even if they have a lurking, unformed suspicion of the transaction.

It is such people who put a premium on motor car thefts. It is they who supply the market for stolen automobiles. Yet if one of them were to have his own car stolen he would be the first to roar loudly and blame the police.

It is easy enough to make sure that a used car has not been stolen. Those who buy automobile bargains of strangers or of known gyps are lucky if they merely lose the money they have invested. Sometimes, if the case were closely scrutinized, they might stand a good chance of going to jail.

GAS BAGS

With relation to giant dirigibles this newspaper for a long time occupied a position analogous to that of a more or less modest person who finds himself forced by his conscious to assume the conspicuous attitude of the one hissing person in the midst of an applauding crowd.

We are rejoiced therefore to find that the Hartford Courant has joined our chorus of one. The Courant has reached the opinion that there is little to be regretted in the fact that the Navy is having difficulty in contracting for a blimp three times as big as the Shenandoah at a cost of $4,450,000. The Courant's belief, obviously, is that of the Herald's—that giant dirigibles are no good; though the Hartford paper expresses itself somewhat less brusquely than that. Now if the Courant will be equally frank and come to the Herald's way of saying what it believes—and what we suspect the Courant believes—that Secretary Wilbur, big dirigible boomer, is just an overgrown boy who can be depended on to cheer for anything that looks big and sounds big and makes a big noise, we neighbors shall get along finely on several matters connected with the United States navy.

COMPARISON

Soldiering is supposed to be a dangerous business. Master Sergeant James J. Kelley, C. A. C. U. S. A., has just taken his retirement papers after being in the service thirty years. He served in the Spanish war, the Boxer uprising, in the Philippines, in Hawaii. He was in the fighting in the Argonne and at St. Mihael. He was never wounded, never a prisoner, never "out of ranks." If there ever comes a time when we can say of a traffic policeman that he served thirty years, was never wounded and never put out of business by his job it will be time to admit that the soldier's calling may be as perilous as that of the man who stands in the road and trusts to luck.

PROPHET'S SCOOP.

As far as we know it has remained for one Dr. Arno C. Gaebelein, editor of a secretarian religious publication, to bracket the airplane along with sickness and wars as a work of the devil.

Dr. Gaebelein predicts the early second coming of the Christ. He says that "One of the first things that Christ will do will be to put Satan literally into the bottomless pit and then do away with all sickness, all airplanes and all wars. For these Christians who are still alive there will be no death."

There is one advantage in being a latter day prophet. The ancient ones had no chance at all to consign the airplane to perdition. Dr. Gaebelein scores a scoop.

A London hotel keeper has finished his dining rooms in primrose and blue because these colors cause the diners to relax and be cheerful and happy.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Aug. 18.—The Hoover presidential boom is likely to strike a snag in waters which will be comparatively smooth sailing for Vice President Dawes.

On the other hand, the Dawes craft can make good headway on any stream that the Hoover boat can navigate. In selecting a presidential candidate, the enemies a man has incurred are taken into serious consideration. If a man can be found who has no enemies worth speaking of, he has an edge on the next fellow. A glance at presidential candidates for the last 20 years will confirm that as a general statement.

Thus when two men stand head and shoulders above the other candidates for the Republican nomination, as do Hoover and Dawes, the man who has the least opposition within the party seems likely to win. And it's a fact that while some important political elements which would stand for Dawes would put up a real fight against Hoover, the elements in the Hoover strength would have little trouble in accepting Dawes.

Dawes Better Bet

That is one of the principal reasons why, at this writing, Dawes seems the better bet. The important anti-Hoover sentiment will be found among farmers, senators and other politicians. Among these classes of influence Dawes has been busy building up his fences. He is the strongest candidate who will appeal to all three, although any one of them might prefer someone else.

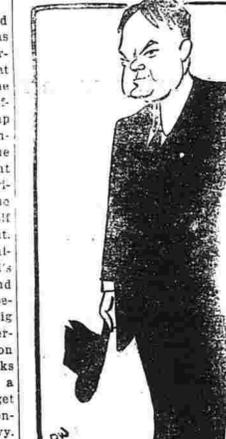

Hoover's great strength lies with the business and financial interests. He has had the aid of a matchless publicity machine and for a long time has appealed to the imagination of the ordinary man.

But is Dawes found wanting in those respects? Not at all. He is a banker himself and is tied up with big business in various ways. He has been his own publicity machine, but he is certainly as widely known as Hoover and he too has captured the imagination of the average citizen.

Both Men Want Job

The two men are both believed to be extremely ambitious for the presidency. With the foreign situation as it is, America's international bankers will be quite solicitous about the next president. It is predicted that the Morgan interests, for instance, will support Hoover.

But the Mellon interests and perhaps, generally speaking, the domestic financial interests, are likely to line up for Dawes. Dawes is on of their own. And these interests are probably much more potent politically than the others.

Dawes seems almost to have been a Mellon protegee. Mellon had made him director of the budget and without his approval, Dawes could hardly have been selected to head the experts commission which framed the Dawes plan. Then, when it came to picking a vice-presidential candidate in 1924 after Coolidge had made rather a mess of it, the Mellon crowd, headed by Senator Dave Reed, put Dawes over against the protest of Chairman William M. Butler.

Dawes and Lowden Close While using his office as president of the Senate to make himself popular with the bankers and farmers, Dawes has also achieved a "standing" with the Senate's Old Guard. One need not be surprised if such regulars as Senators Curtis, Watson, Reed, Smoot and Moses begin to declare for Dawes before very long. Another possibility is the Pennsylvania Republicans will send a Mellon delegation to the convention which will be delivered to Dawes.

Against the tactics of the seasoned Old Guard, the inexperienced Hoover captains are likely to run into trouble. Some of the strongest elements of Hoover support were behind Wood in 1920 but the politicians put it all over them. It is a common thought that Dawes will be the residuary legatee for the Lowden delegates at the convention. That Lowden and his good friends, may come to some sort of an agreement before the convention. On the surface, it does not appear that any similar arrangement is likely to help Hoover bloc in 1928.

Tablets found in ancient Babylon and Assyria show that banking transactions were carried on 5,600 years ago. Checks and notes were made of clay, which were then baked.

New York

New York, Aug. 18.—Wall street wears a broad smile these days. Everything is cast in a golden hue. Thanks to the Du Pont spurt, the bulls have staged a grand clean-up. In one block a friend pointed out to me five overnight millionaires. He told me of 20 others he had heard of. "That is," he qualified, "they are millionaires this morning. And may continue to be for the rest of the week."

It is amusing to watch some of these "wise" rich-quick old boys of the narrow financial lanes. They start about boasting of their perspicacity, like small boys telling of their sand lot team. Their chests are out and their heads are high. They know full well that the other people of the street are pointing to them and saying: "That's Joe Plotz who cleaned up in such-and-such."

Tomorrow it may be different!

The exchange becomes a place of jubilation at closing time. One day a 10-point gain was registered in a certain Du Pont stock and I watched half a dozen white-haired men risk apoplexy as they left for "the street," what with back-slapping and chortlings and high excitement.

Now and then you come upon one of those "poker-faced" gamblers. It is impossible to read any sign of great gain or loss. He may have won a fortune or lost a fortune. Either is accepted with equal calm.

From Broadway comes a report of the cheapest racket to date. They tell me that at least two of those night club resorts where business has lagged during the summer months have taken to "cutting" white rock. That is, plain water is added that the profit may be even greater, just as bootleggers add water in "cutting" Scotch. And the "suckers" pay from $1 up per bottle.

Broadwayites come trooping back from the country by train and boat, preparing for the arrival of Labor Day—that day that upon which the starter's gun is fired officially for the opening of another season.

While waiting for their shows to be selected they amble leisurely to those matinees that have survived the summer and arriving en masse at those brave productions that preface a new season. These are their slim hours of Broadway play.

I saw at an early opening the other night Ralph Inc wander in from Hollywood with his wife, the former Lola Mendez, most entrancingly Spanish in appearance. She was in a Broadway chorus just two seasons ago herself and seemed to wave to all the "ladies" of the ensemble. Saw Peggy Joyce arriving for a rehearsal in that super-jazzbo car she acquired last winter. Yes,

Peggy is returning to musical comedy..... And Norma Talmadge, just back from Europe. Also Elsie Ferguson, whose ship brought young Louis Bromfield, the Pulitzer prize winner, who has written a new play for Elsie..... And Jack Pickford, bewailing the fact that nobody will forget he is Mary's brother. GILBERT SWAN.

On Tuesday a skunk entered the kitchen where Mrs. Frederick Wyman and her guest, Mrs. Charles Burdette of New York city were busy. The skunk opened the screen door by forcing its way against it. It crawled under a couch in an exploring mood. Mrs. Wyman and her guest succeeded in driving it out into the yard and Mrs. Burdette bravely attacked the creature with a hoe. She succeeded in giving it what she considered its death blow before it crawled under the underpinning of the house, but not before it had exhibited its peculiar powers of self defense. The Rev. and Mrs. Howard C. Champe, formerly of this place are spending the month of August as the guests of the Mt. Hollywood Congregational church at Los Angeles, California. Does Telephone Growth Always Mean Higher Rates?

It is well known that the number of telephones increases substantially each year. This fact fairly prompts the question stated above. It is true that the addition of each telephone subscriber builds up the multiplicity of connections which must be available to all, and thus tends to increase the cost of plant and operation per telephone. A switchboard serving only six subscribers' lines, for example, requires provision for fifteen possible inter-connections; but when the number of lines grows to 6,000, then the inter-connections which must be available to all increase not in the same proportion but to the stupendous total of 17,997,000; for every subscriber must be able both to reach and to be reached by every other subscriber. Offsetting this unique characteristic of the telephone business, however, are the ever-continuing developments of the art and the opportunities for improved practices and economies common to all business engaged in what may be termed wholesale production. The extent to which we have realized upon these possibilities is evidenced by the fact that for a quarter of a century prior to the World War our rate history is that of substantial reductions. But for the past ten years the telephone growth has not only built up the units of plant and operation per subscriber, as must always be the case, but has also been attended with higher costs per unit, due to the decreased value of the dollar. It is this double burden which has brought about the present exigency. In a word, therefore, telephone growth of itself does not necessarily mean higher rates. During a long period of stable prices, telephone rates were reduced. Under the high price conditions of the past decade, telephone rates have advanced much less than the cost of commodities. Nothing can more clearly define our rate policy than this record. But at all times we must maintain rates that will provide for adequate service to the public and earn a fair return on the property of the Company. The present rates are insufficient to meet these requirements.

Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

This is chapter 111 of the series of articles by Paul Adams, The Herald correspondent, who is revisiting France as a scout for the American Legion convention in September.

CHAPTER CXI
Early in January, 1919, when the snow lay foot-deep in the fields beyond the chateau and ice of the Suize river had to be broken by the peasant maids when they took their herds of cows down past the postoffice to drink, several companies of the U. S. Medical Corps came to Marac in Haute-Marne, France. Detachments were billeted and one group, of a dozen or more soldiers, were assigned to quarters in the ancient stone house of Eugene Clerc, a patriarch of the village. Bitter cold it was, and the soldiers craved warmth. In the high-walled yard behind the house they discovered a huge pile of wood in six-foot sticks. Very soon they could himself the night before, told him to put in a claim for damages and it would be honored. But Eugene Clerc didn't want money. His store of firewood was his treasure. It was laid up against his declining years. He argued further. But the pile dwindled, day by day. In a few weeks the store was half gone. Worried, Eugene became sick. A fever developed. He raved of his wood. Within a week he was dead. Along in March the outfits moved out. A bill for firewood was OK'd by the commanding officer. Not long ago an American went back to Marac—the first American to visit the place since 1919. He met Claude Charpentier, 84 years old, who had once been a buddy of Eugene Clerc. And Claude Charpentier told the story of Eugene Clerc, the peasant of Marac who died of a broken heart when the American soldiers burned his life's store of firewood.

Eggbeater Will 'Crank' Motors Of Model Planes.

This is the eighth and concluding article in The Herald's series on how to build model airplanes. Information for these articles was obtained from the Playground and Recreation Association of America which is conducting a national miniature aircraft tournament for boys.

The motors used for most model aircraft are composed of long strands of rubber bands strung along the frame and attached at one end to the frame itself and at the other end to the propeller shaft. When these rubbers are twisted energy is stored in them which, when released, causes the propellers to rotate and thus drive the airplane through the air.

Model airplanes can be made to fly great distances, but to accomplish this it is necessary to store a large amount of energy in the rubbers. This can be done by twisting the propeller in the direction opposite to that which it will turn in flying, but while this method suffices for the smaller models it is very irksome on the larger ones.

To overcome this fault model fliers use gear winders. An ordinary hand drill may be used with a hook inserted in its chuck instead of a drill. This will do very nicely for models having a single propeller but for two propellers which need to be turned in opposite directions a winder made from an eggbeater is very handy. The drawing shows a typical eggbeater winder. At the top is an eggbeater as it comes from the store. To make the winder the whirling spoons are cut off where indicated by the line. When this is done the small gears, with the pieces of flat metal attached can be pulled off. As shown in Figure 1 at the left of the drawing, one of these metal strips is cut shorter than the other and where the lines indicate holes are bored through the strips large enough to pass the wire axle. These strips are then bent as shown in Figure 2, so that the two holes coincide. A piece of wire is then formed to the shape shown in Figure 2. The above alterations are made in each of the two driving gear assemblies of the eggbeater and they are then placed back upon their shafts. A washer which has a hole just large enough to pass over the shaft is next placed on the shaft and soldered thereon, as shown in Figure 3, and the wire fitting is soldered on to the sides of the metal strips. This will complete a very satisfactory winder. In the event, however, that the metal strips are made of aluminum, as is often the case, it will be found difficult to solder on the wire fitting. Therefore, this fitting can be fastened to the strips by boring small holes in them and twisting the wire into the shape shown in Figure 4. The above directions are general and may be slightly altered where the eggbeater itself is of a different pattern. It should be borne in mind when purchasing the eggbeater that a type must be selected in which the shafts upon which the small gears rotate are solidly fastened in the eggbeater frame. The effort required to make one of these winders is more than repaid by the added pleasure of model flying. Most eggbeaters have a mechanical speed ratio between the large and small gears of 5 to 1, therefore a model may be wound in one-tenth the time with a winder that it requires to wind it by hand.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (60) Sir George Nares

All the stories of suffering, privation and death which attended early explorations of the Arctic were well known about the world. But when the Britisher Sir George Nares called for crews for an expedition in 1875, a naval officer at Portsmouth who had been directed to send volunteers reported that his whole ship's company, 800 men, had given in their names.

Far north, in what is called Washington Irving Island an ancient, moss-grown cairn was found, clearly the work of white men's hands.

The mystery of that little symbol of civilized life in that isle of heart-breaking loneliness stirred the sailors to fresh explorations.

Nares' men found the nest of a sandpiper at 82 degrees North and near at hand were the cradles of knot, a kind of sandpiper, and gray phalarope, a wading bird. There are very old Eskimo relics where no Eskimos had lived for ages. There was coal, too, to tell of one-time brilliant sunshine and verdure like that of tropical Africa.

Sailor's Life Of Reilly On Board The Mayflower

Local Boy Served As Radio Operator on President's Yacht—Enjoyed Work And Life in Navy.

Life as a sailor on board the presidential yacht Mayflower is not exactly a picnic, but it is a job that many enlisted men in the United States Navy covet.

So says Robert McNally, 19, of 193 Woodbridge street, who returned home a few days ago after his discharge from the United States Navy. Young McNally saw fourteen months of service as a radio operator on board the Mayflower.

A slim young fellow, with reddish hair, McNally doesn't look like a person who would do a great deal of talking. He answered some questions readily enough, however, and said that he had enjoyed his life in the navy.

Three Years in Service

He enlisted three years ago when he was 16 years old and has seen service on destroyers and the presidential yacht. He was discharged from the U. S. S. Tanager, at Portland, Me., after he had returned from a cruise in European waters.

He doesn't know how it happened that he was appointed to the Mayflower, but says that the notification came to him with no explanation attached to it.

His description of President Calvin Coolidge, who went on a cruise down the Potomac about three times a month, is rather vague, but he says that there "wasn't much to him."

Handsome Yacht

The Mayflower, he says, is the biggest yacht he has ever seen, and about the handsomest. Everything is polished up to a high degree of brilliancy and the brass and silver mountings glisten in the sun so that they are almost blinding.

"All the more work for the enlisted men," said the boy. But he had none of this routine work to do, his duties being confined to the radio room. President Coolidge never went on a cruise on the yacht without being accompanied by his retinue of secret service men and followers. He occasionally passed a word of greeting with some of the sailors on duty.

On the cruises the work was light and each man had to stand only one watch or the run down the river. The cruise ended at Chesapeake Bay and the return journey started as soon as the yacht had been turned about.

Lots of Liberty

In port most of the time, there wasn't a great deal to do and considerable liberty was enjoyed by the enlisted men. McNally says he enjoyed his service on the ship a great deal. He was later transferred to the Tanager.

Asked if he intended to re-enlist, he said that he would be ready to go back at once, but that his mother is anxious that he stay at home.

HEAR SCHOOL REPORT IN EIGHTH TONIGHT

Special Committee to Tell Voters Results of Investigation—Expect Suggestions From District Board.

The adjourned meeting of the voters and taxpayers of the Eighth School District will be held in the assembly room of the Robertson school this evening.

The meeting is called for the purpose of hearing the report of the special committee appointed at the meeting August 4 to investigate and report to the adjourned meeting its findings as to whether the Manchester Public Library can remain in its present location on the lower floor of the Robertson school and at the same time take care of the increased enumeration of about 35.

It is expected the standing school committee will also submit suggestions and changes providing for the additional pupils.

LOADS OF FURNITURE FOR STATE AUDIENCE

Furniture Night Here Again—Double Feature Bill Tomorrow and Saturday.

A number of people will receive valuable additions to their dining room or living room suites in gifts at the State theater this evening. Another of the popular furniture nights is to be held and more presents than ever have been brought together.

Each number called gives the holder the privilege of taking any piece of furniture he wishes to pick out of the combination. This means that if somebody wants a table he can have a table and if he already has a table he can take some other article.

The feature picture stars Shirley Mason in "Rose of the Tenements," a picture giving us a cross section of life in the crowded slums of the East Side of New York. How the other half of the world lives is shown in this film. Its loves, its heartbreaks, sorrows and joys, all are shown with graphic clearness and in their stark reality.

Through it all is seen the cheerful figure of the "Rose of the Tenements" beloved by gangster and parish priest alike, the friend of the motherless waif and the protector of even the stray dog. Miss Mason has done wonders with the role assigned her.

Swashbuckling buccaneers, who took their fun where they found it and took their women along with their fun are featured in "Breed of the Sea," one of the two pictures to be shown at the State on Friday and Saturday. Directed by Ralph Ince and starring Margaret Livingston and Dorothy Dunbar, the picture is an epic of stirring days on the sea when men walked the plank and cutlasses dripped blood as gallant merchantmen were overpowered by low rakish craft flying the dread skull and crossbones.

The second feature brings out to good effect all of the Paramount junior stars in "Rolled Stockings," a comedy-drama which is a travesty on the styles of the day. Those featured in the picture are James Hall, Louise Brooks, Richard Arlen, El Brendel and Nancy Phillips.

THIS SNAKE TOO BIG FOR KIDDIES' PLAYMATE

So 4-Foot-6 Intruder on North End Recreation Ground Is Put Out of Way.

Harold Clemson of North Elm street killed a black snake measuring four feet six inches in length last night at the north end playground. The snake was basking in the sun near the bridge across the brook and Clemson started it as he walked by. Clemson first hit it with a baseball bat as it started to creep away but the blow did not injure the reptile.

He picked-up a stone then and threw it at the snake, hitting it on the back just as it was crawling over a rock on the ground. This finished the job.

Black snakes are not dangerous, for they do not bite unless cornered and are non-venomous. A snake of this size, however, might start a bad scare in a place where there are many children.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
VERA CAMERON, private secretary, agrees to let JERRY SHUYLER, advertising manager for Peach Bloom Cosmetics, transform her into a beauty through the use of the company cosmetics. She agrees only after she falls suddenly in love with a man who ignores her.

"There's still a whole evening left before anything is likely to happen," Vee-Vee consoled herself as she and Schuyler walked toward the hotel.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXIV
AS the day wore on, Vee-Vee began to wonder almost hysterically if Thurston, the manager of the Minnetonka, had enlisted the aid of all the hotel guests in keeping her from being alone with Schuyler Smythe. For the two found themselves practically surrounded by the friends they had both made since their arrival at the hotel.

you and me move in different circles." Mrs. Fosdick boomed, her bosom heaving. "The Fosdicks are as good as the Crandalls any day in the week, I'd have you know."
"I'm sure they are," Vee-Vee smiled. "But we are not discussing the Crandalls, Mrs. Fosdick. But—oh, go on. I'm sure you have something to say to me which you consider important. Is it about Nan, Mrs. Fosdick?"
"No, it's not about Nan. It's about that fortune-hunter that calls himself Schuyler Smythe. Schuyler Smythe!" she repeated scornfully. "I'll hand it to him that he picked out a good name while he was about it," she snorted.
"I know Mr. Smythe's original name," Vee-Vee told her serenely.
"Then I guess you know too that Mr. Schuyler B. Smythe, using the name of which Vee-Vee had caught a glimpse when Schuyler had dropped an envelope, "is just a penniless fortune-hunter that makes a profession of summer vacationing."
"Of course I know nothing of the sort," Vee-Vee retorted. "But I fall to see why you insist upon discussing Mr. Smythe's affairs with me."
"Because you're being taken in by him, just as my poor Nan was," Mrs. Fosdick panted. "I saw through him right away, but nothing could turn Nan against him. I tried a detective agency in New York to get a line on him for me and their report arrived today. Do you want to see it?"
"No," Vee-Vee said, almost in a whisper.
"Then you're a bigger fool than I thought you were," Mrs. Fosdick snapped. "But I'm going to do my duty by you anyway. Your mother will thank me," she added righteously. "Your fascinating gentleman is just a secretary. His fashionable East Fifty-Fifth Street address, I've used to impress everyone with, is not his own address, but that of his employer, Mr. Arthur Bainbridge. Bainbridge is in Maine at his camp and he gives this young scamp a two weeks' vacation every summer, allowing him the use of his car. Pampers the young upstart, makes him think he's as good as his betters," she snorted. "Just a cheap little salaried man, saving his money in months of the year. Makes the rounds of the swell hotels, where he knows he'll meet rich men's daughters—like my Nan and like you. Just a cheap four-flusher, a fortune-hunter."
"Mrs. Fosdick, I can't allow you to go on like this. You're making a fortune-hunter out of me. After all, he's committed no crime. What if the poor dear does save all year to go to a swank hotel? Didn't I do the same thing? Of course he likes this kind of life, the kind of people he can meet at a place like this! Who wouldn't? But I'll know to-night beyond the shadow of a doubt whether it is me that he loves or—40 million dollars."

This And That In Feminine Lore

It is a good time now to frame the pictures you have picked up while on vacation. Fred Hughes makes a specialty of this work at The Old Wood Shop on Pitkin street. He has just received some of the newest designs in framing mouldings.

Shew wool crepe, georgette basiste and wool voile are to be found among the new fall woollens. The jerseys and cashmeres are lighter than they have been. A new dress in any of these materials will prove very useful for late summer wear on cool days or evenings. It seems as if we are no longer fitted up for one season when another comes along.

Shades of rich tan and brown are preferred for these light weight woollens. Then there are the Chinese colors called the Mimoy shades, such as lapis, temple, poppy for evening and mandarin, imperial and nephrite for daytime.

Discriminating women realize the importance of getting the kind of permanent wave that emphasizes their good features. Mrs. Robinson at the Lily Beauty Shop in the House of Hale building can wave your hair to individualize "you" by her famous Nestle Circuline method.

If one has the money to spend there is no better time in all the year than August, certainly in this section of the country, to stock up on futures, such as blankets, furs, furniture for the long days and evenings indoors. The merchants are all advertising tempting bargains and the sales people are not too busy with so many of their customers away on vacation.

The costumes for the last weeks of summer seem to favor vivid colors, the pastel shades are out. Unusual detailed work livens up new styles as much as color. Tucks and stitchees are in their heyday. Hardly a sports frock appears without some geometric design in tucks or stitching, or several different kinds of tucks.

Shoes grow more interesting as well as costlier. They come in all shades of color. For evening wear the conventional satin slipper will have a rival in the new velvet pumps with a bag to match, in black or colors according to the shade of the gown.

Bacon Rolls.
Wouldst be a gipsy vagabond, over the hills and away beyond; where trees bend low by a scolding brook, and a fellow may build a fire and cook? For a day in the woods its always right to keep your equipment very light. So here's an ideal, tasty meal when pangs of hunger around you steal!—Buy finger rolls from a delicatessen (the number you'll easily be a-guessin') the kind they use for the famed "hot dog." You'll eat this meal on a fallen log, a knife and fork you need not bring—just a frying pan is the only thing you'll need. Now strip some twigs out from willow poles. Fry the bacon brown, turning with a stick—this adds a tang that is half the trick. Break rolls in two and the white side least; as funny as any wafers roast. Dip toast in drippings in the pan and serve as quickly as you can. The meat inside the toast you fold before it gets the least bit cold. A woodstove dinner you could hardly do better.

Buy an all-over lace jumper to wear with the pleated skirt of another frock and you have another costume for more dressy daytime occasions. Beige lace with a black skirt is a favored combination.

Appropriate for summer table centerpieces for those who have no gardens are the crystal flowers made in imitation of a number of the natural flowers.

The average yardage of material worn by the flapper, including undergarments is less than six yards; formerly it required that amount to make a dress. Style seems to depend on shortage of material and skirt length. Many a nifty little dress is evolved from two yards more or less. The manufacturers found that they could also skimp on material and command practically the same prices for the finished garment. Cloth manufacturers are now trying to stop this and when the style changes to wider and longer skirts no doubt the price of ready-made will soar upward.

Date Lemon Pie.
1 baked pastry shell.
1-4 cup flour.
2 tablespoons corn starch,
1 cup sugar,
2 cups boiling water,
3 egg yolks,
Juices and rind of 1 lemon,
1 tablespoon butter,
1-4 teaspoon salt,
1 cup (1-2 pkg.) sliced dates.
Mix flour, corn starch and sugar. Add the boiling water gradually, stirring constantly. Continue stirring and cook over a low flame for about fifteen minutes. Beat the egg yolks slightly. Pour the hot mixture over them, a very little at a time, stirring constantly. Return mixture to saucepan and cook over hot water until thick. Remove from fire, add lemon juice and rind, butter and salt. Cool slightly. Sprinkle the diced dates over bottom of pastry shell, pour over these the cooled lemon mixture. Cover with meringue and bake at 300 degrees F. slow oven, for about twenty minutes until delicately browned.

Meringue
3 egg whites,
1-8 teaspoon salt,
3 tablespoons powdered sugar.
Beat the whites of eggs until stiff, add the salt then the sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time continuing beating throughout the addition.
This recipe will serve six.

In stationery the conventional white is giving way to light shades of violet, pale blue and green or gray. The composite effects so popular in dress fashions have made their appearance in stationery. The envelope is in the darker shades, the lining and the writing sheet are in the lighter shade, "with sometimes on the paper a narrow border of the dark color. Gay linings for envelopes in geometrical designs, stripes and checks are still in vogue, plaid stationery with envelopes to match is the very latest.

MARY TAYLOR

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUMNER

Cliff swallows wheeled their graceful flights in and out of their homes on the great rock where the hotel was perched, and the lake circled about like vast meadows of blue larkspur. Pink hollyhocks grew around the hammocks, foamy tea houses that skirted the cliff. It was heaven, nothing less.

But we could stay in heaven only a night and a day. The boat whistled its last warning signal at the dock below the cliff and we dashed down the rock-steps, over-night bags in hand, muttering maledictions at a world which made toll necessary.

Leaving over the boat rail we saw our friends, the young couple who had been vacationing at Rock House. We knew that a week of their vacation still remained and wondered why in the world they were sailing homeward. Explanation came.

"We couldn't stand it a minute longer without a hotel dinner with orchestra, a real show, and our own bath tub. We're going back for just the evening. Then dance at the mid-night boat. After all, I suppose one must take a vacation, but gosh, how I dread it!" explained the young Mrs. her eyes bright with anticipation of the evening ahead.

I gasped. Leave cliff swallows, lake breezes, summer moon and star and sunset and sunrise, long, leisurely hours with a book in a hammock above the pounding waves, for a hotel orchestra and a show?

"It's so slow I've nearly screamed all the time I've been here!" continued the Mrs. "We haven't done a thing all the time but take a swim and kill time the rest of the evening. Then dance at night—there's not been a single tea or bridge or anything to go to. I told Tom I'd scream if we didn't dive back to town tonight."

"Well, if you feel that way about it, why do you go back at all?" I asked.

"Oh, Tom likes it and everybody takes a vacation!"

I walked over to the other side of the boat, trying not to be too tired and too smug about my own wholesale delight in a world without bridges and teas and dances, a world without organized pleasures, and with nothing in it but larkspur blue lakes, pink hollyhocks, foamy white waves and summer breezes.

We've all met these poor bored souls at summer resorts, which we ourselves have picked for the very reason that "nothing is going on." Sometimes one picks them more than despises them, for it is almost invariably true that the very people

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Scouts Virginia Baldwin, Violet Phillips, Ella Peckham, Alice Frederick, Olga Hubbard of Troop 6, spent three and one half days at camp recently. From the hour of arising at 7 a. m. each day to the time of retiring at 9:30 p. m. a regular schedule for meals, study and recreation was maintained. For the nature study periods the scouts took up the study of the ten or more different varieties near the camp.

Visitors to the camp for the first time are charmed with the beauty of the surroundings, the attractive little bungalow, the lake and the woods. Scouts who have not availed themselves of the privilege of the camp for rest and recreation are urged to do so while they have the opportunity as school will begin after Labor Day.

Good Nature and Good Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine
Four hundred children who came to one of the Massachusetts clinics for mental hygiene were studied by an investigator to determine some of the reasons for their delinquency. Sixty-six per cent came from homes with foreign customs. Forty-three per cent were of Italian parentage and about 25 per cent of American-born parents. The percentage was naturally influenced to some extent by the fact that the clinic in question was located in a neighborhood of foreign-born persons classified as low middle class. In most of these homes little reading was done other than in a foreign or American daily newspaper. Actually 38.5 per cent of the children lacked any educational opportunities at home and more than half of them had parents who were themselves to be characterized as ignorant. One-third of the children lacked normal opportunity for play because of the congested neighborhood in which they lived.

An investigation showed that much of the shut-in character of these children was due to the fact that the mothers failed to let them out because of the danger of the immoral associations or accidents likely to occur in the street.

In 51 cases, all investigations of delinquent or retarded children, it is found that a considerable percentage suffer from an easily corrected physical defect.

Home Page Editorial THE GOLDEN RULE WORKS—TRY IT!

By Olive Roberts Barton

A summer colony of cottagers recently adopted the slogan, "One for All and All for One," at one of their get-together meetings.

It sounded very ambitious—one of those things that looks well if done in Latin on a coat-of-arms. So thought a certain superior city dweller new to the location. He made a mental reservation. Although the sentiment was right in its place, he was not going to be any too friendly until he discovered who was who in the community.

His wife held the same opinion. "I suppose these people are the kind who are forever borrowing a cupful of sugar or your boat," she marked, thinking of the nice neat street at home where everybody knew anybody else and where everybody watched like a hawk if the next door lawn mower slipped an inch over the border.

The next morning the water supply was off. A knock at their door announced a neighbor. "I came over to tell you to use our well. That's the pump there; good water—don't be afraid to use it." Without time for a thank-you he was gone.

Another neighbor passing stopped to offer, "We drive into town every day. We can take in your grocery order and bring it out. I heard you say your car was out of order."

And so it went, everybody doing something to help somebody else. The summer passed and the city-dweller and his wife went home.

He attended a board of commerce meeting. The town was running down. Nobody knew why. It simply wasn't booming. But the returned citizen had an idea that he knew what was wrong.

He got up and made a speech. He began thus: "Mr. President and Gentlemen! What this town needs is a little real friendliness. Until we get that feeling of co-operation we may as well quit. I suggest a new motto for the city: 'One for All and All for One!'"

"I might give it another name," "The Golden Rule." And I might suggest that it is just as good for people as for cities.

FISH SHAPED PLANE FOR NEW AIR MAIL ROUTE TO ATLANTA

Byrn Athyn, Pa.--A new type of mail airplane will make its advent into the aviation field with the establishment of night air-mail service from New York to Atlanta, Ga. One of the new models, a fish-shaped plane equipped with a powerful single Wright whirlwind motor of 225 horsepower, is being groomed at the hangars of the Pittsburgh Aviation Company here for the new air

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

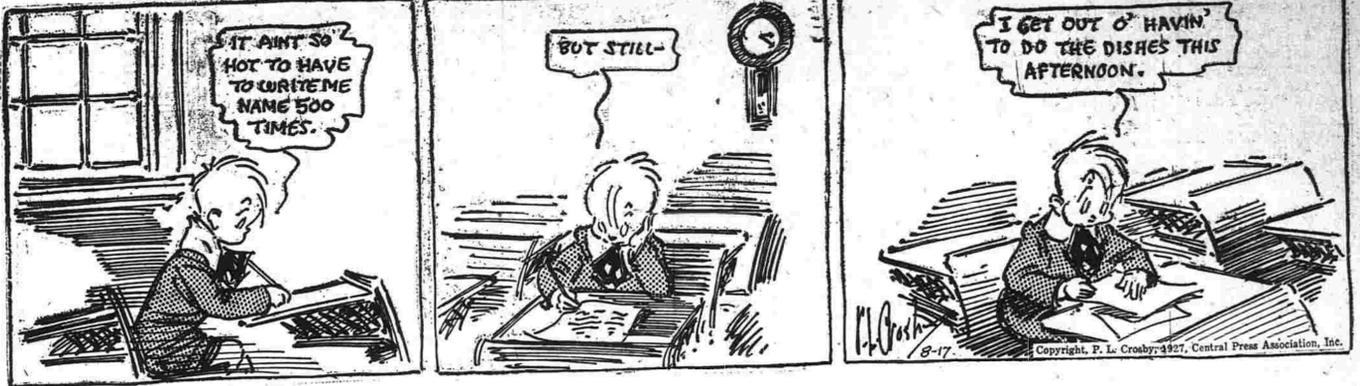

I think every girl in town is just as pretty as she can be!

SENSE and NONSENSE

The hero of many a modern novel is the publisher. Of course you don't think you are crazy, but you may be mistaken. The crazy man doesn't suspect that he is crazy either. A fat man has a great advantage. He can give up his seat in the street car to two women. The business of being a husband is becoming more and more precarious. The University of Michigan now has a girls' class in rifle shooting. "You simply can't find a maid who is honest. That one you recommended just left suddenly and took with her nine of my towels." "What kind were they?" "They were those Pullman car towels which I brought back from my trip." My boy, when you grow up I want you to be a gentleman. "I don't want to be a gentleman, pop—I wanna be like you." Teacher to little Willie: Why did you kick Johnnie in the stomach? Little Willie: I didn't go to do it; he turned around too quick. The trouble with losing your temper is it won't stay lost. "So you want to marry my daughter," said Mr. Brown to the anxious youth. "Have you seen her mother?" "Yes! But daughters don't always grow to look like their mothers," came the faltering reply. The little bug is brilliant. He travels through the darkness with his headlights on behind. "Can't you guess where I have been?" asked a local husband arriving home late the other night. "Sure, I can," said his wife but go ahead and tell your story anyway." There's plenty of advice not to worry but none on how not to. There are four stages of modern family life: "Matrimony, acrimony, testimony and alimony." Naked Truth She goes to bed in her working clothes. Does lovely Rita Jodelle. But that is easily explained. For she's an artist's model. Young Wife—Darling! Husband—What is it, my love? "Don't be silly, Jack; I was calling Fido." According to a contemporary, one of our novelists has a suit for every day of the week. That's nothing. We have one for every day of the year; we're wearing it now. Do you keep a cow and buy milk, keep chickens and buy eggs, cultivate a garden and buy vegetables? Then you're not very different from other town housekeepers. McIntyre: "He has his bacon fried in Lux so it won't shrink."

NOW YOU Ask One

BIG BUSINESS QUIZ. With several mergers of the country's largest corporations rumored, test your knowledge on big business by the first five of today's questions. Answers are on another page: 1—What three manufacturing corporations are reported to be considering a merger of interests through Pierre S. Du Pont? 2—What products were originally the chief interests of the Du Pont de Nemours company? 3—Who is now head of the United States Steel Corporation? 4—What mid-western city was built as a production center for United States Steel? 5—In forming of what big corporation did the Durant interests play a prominent part? 6—What is the shortest distance across the United States, from Atlantic to Pacific oceans? 7—What is ethnology? 8—What are the two common names for the game bird known as the ruffed grouse? 9—How many stars are there in the insignia of a major general? 10—In which of the American colonies did the French Huguenots chiefly settle? What's the matter with your head? "I was looking for an honest man." "Yes!" "And I bumped into a mirror." "A picture," says a Chinese proverb, "is worth a thousand words." How fast we've been "talked" at since the advent of the movies. Thrift is what puts the prop into prosperity. The proverb, "variety is the spice of life," does not apply to matrimony.

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang

THE TINYMITES

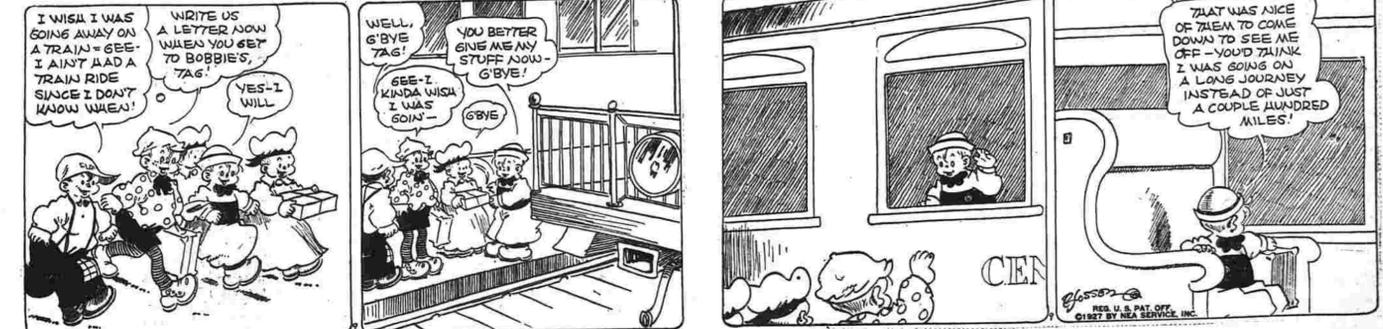

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) Wes Scouty's plan sure sounded good. The whole bunch started seeking wood. The pelican that brought the tools had turned and flown away. Said one, "He's sure a dandy bird, I'll bet you Scouty's wish he heard. Now, if we all get busy we can make this work real play." They gathered limbs from nearby trees and put them in a pile with ease. They found a lot of small ones and some mighty big ones, too. Wes Scouty stood and bossed the work and saw that no one stopped to shirk. He realized they all must help 'cause there was heaps to do. "I'll do the sawing," Clowzy said. The others shouted, "Go ahead." And Clowzy took the saw in hand and pushed it to and fro. He'd lay the limbs upon the ground and, as he sawed, he'd turn them 'round. It wasn't very long until he'd cut a lot in two. "Now find a spot of sandy loam. Where we can build this little home," said Scouty. Up spoke Carpy then, and said, "Leave that to me. I am a carpenter, you know and very shortly I will show you just the place you're looking for, as pretty as can be." The spot was very shortly found right out upon the open ground. And then they started building. It was really lots of fun. They made some sticks stand right up straight. When wired together they looked great. Wes Coppy said, "If this keeps on, we soon will have it done." "It's getting late, but we can't stop until we've finished up the top. When that is done, it can't rain in. Then we can sleep tonight." So when the sun sank o'er the hill, of work the Tinymites had their fill. The shanty roof was finished and the whole thing looked all right. (The Tinymites meet the Vegetable Man in the next story.)
