

MORBID MOBS RUSH TO VIEW "RED" BODIES

Strong Police Detail Needed To Keep Persons In Line —Scores Come From Other Cities.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 25.—Crowds milled about the little undertaking shop of Joseph Langone on Hanover street today waiting to view the bodies of Nicola Vaccaro and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

A strong police detail was on hand to guard against disorder and storekeepers along the north end thoroughfare took the added precaution of boarding up their plate glass windows.

Scores were from nearby cities and towns, and the crowds grew in size with the police having difficulty in keeping them moving.

Sightseeing auto buses added to the undertaking shop and the Sacco-Vanzetti headquarters in Hanover street as part of their itinerary.

Another Problem
At the same time, police learned that they had an addition with the "march of sorrow" Sunday afternoon. Thousands will be parading through the north end in the St. Agrippini celebration.

The funeral service in a room about 10 by 15 feet. It is reached by a narrow passageway, with two turns, running back from the front rooms of the shop on Hanover street. There is no rear entrance and the directions for mourners and the curious to enter and leave in single file.

Plain Coffins
Plain wooden mahogany coffins were provided for the bodies. Day and night guards of honor were chosen from among members of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee to stand at attention at the head of each bier. A large laurel wreath with a broad purple sash was provided for the head of each coffin. These were sent among scores of floral tributes by a wealthy woman sympathizer.

Mrs. Rose Sacco, wife of one of the men, and Miss Lucia Sacco, sister of the other, have not and will not view the bodies. Both women, who have gone to Mrs. Sacco's home in Malden, wish to remember their loved one as they knew him in life.

The little funeral parlor had to be used for the public view of the two men because the defense committee was balked in every attempt to hire a hall for the purpose.

The bodies will remain in the chapel with its religious surroundings until Sunday afternoon. At that time a speaker of national prominence will deliver a funeral oration. He will not be a clergyman.

From the chapel the bodies will be conveyed to North End park, from which will start across the city a "march of sorrow." First will come two empty coffins. Then will follow, in relays, carrying the two caskets. Next will come a hundred or more official mourners, walking. Behind them will be automobiles with Mrs. Sacco, Miss Vanzetti and other woman mourners.

This arrangement will keep the number of mourners within the two hundred specified by police regulations.

JIMMY WALKER DRINKS PLAIN, EVERYDAY BEER

New York's Mayor, in Berlin, Waves Aside The Costly Champagne.

Berlin, Aug. 25.—Those American critics of Mayor "Jimmy" Walker of New York City who have accused him of expensive tastes were confounded today when Mr. Walker waved aside profers of champagne and fancy liquors in favor of common lager beer.

The incident took place at the luncheon tendered the New York mayor at the famous Hiller restaurant by the Karl Schurz Society. The other members of the Walker party followed the mayor's lead and stuck to beer.

There is something more than the mere pursuit of pleasure in Mayor Walker's dancing in the clubs and cabarets of Europe until the early hours of the morning. The dapper mayor admitted as much today, asserting he is making a "scientific study of things in Europe. What he included in the night life of the countries he is visiting, he did not say.

Asked what he thought of Berlin's "Great White Way," the mayor answered: "Well, I am in Europe to study things scientifically. I haven't had time yet to form a judgment."

"How do you like the speed and rhythm of German jazz," he was asked.

"Oh, that depends on what street you are on," Mr. Walker replied.

In the next breath Mr. Walker expressed great admiration for the German hospitals which he inspected yesterday.

Children In Rowboat Adrift In the Sound

Milford, Conn., Aug. 25.—Three children who were permitted to have a rowboat were carried into the open Sound here yesterday afternoon, by a high off-shore wind and rescued almost by chance when they were in grave danger of being drowned. As the result of the affair town officials may take action to prevent children going out with boats when older persons are not along.

The youngsters were Robert Walkinshaw, eleven of 135 Westville avenue, Ansonia; Alfred Platz, eight of 25 Holbrook street, Ansonia; and James Wheeler, ten of 22 Orchard street, Shelton.

Fred Krueger, a cedar Beach boatman, furnished the rowboat for the children with consent of the parents. Once out from the shelter of Milford Point, the youngsters were carried steadily out, waves continually breaking over the boat.

When the children failed to return in reasonable time, their parents reported the matter to Milford police. Officers Stanley O'Hara and Mark Fowles went to the Milford Yacht club where former Commodore Thomas Falls took them and John Anderson, club steward, out in his powerboat "Salome." Two hours later the boys were found five miles out in the Sound, trying to bail their half-filled boat with their hands. The children were soaked but otherwise unharmed and today showed no ill effects from their adventure.

RUM, WIFE BEATING BRING CONVICTIONS

Pantaleo's Hidden Liquor Draws $125 Fine; Har- rington Jailed For Assault

Deputy Judge Thomas Ferguson imposed a jail sentence and a fine of $125 and costs in disposing of two cases in police court this morning. Tommaso Pantaleo of School street was arraigned for violation of the prohibition law and was fined. Dennis J. Harrington, charged with intoxication and assault on his wife last Saturday, was sentenced to 25 days in jail.

Three policemen testified in the Pantaleo case and a gallon of liquor, a five-gallon can containing more of the stuff and a pint bottle, from which one of the prisoners alleged customers had been drinking. The police, however, could not prove that the stuff had been kept in the Pantaleo home.

Find Hidden Booze
They had found it, they testified, hidden in a hole in the ground on property in the rear of Pantaleo's home. Several paths leading to similar holes began on Pantaleo's property and it was assumed that because of these he was the owner of the hidden liquor.

Prosecuting Attorney Hathaway in his plea for the liquor was unquestionably Pantaleo's. He said that although the police found nothing in the Pantaleo home they had followed the paths from the rear of the house to the cache where the liquor was hidden.

At the time of the raid, about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the police found Antonio Prete, who has been in court several times on charges of intoxication, in conversation with Pantaleo. Prete was sitting on a box and when the box was turned over to him, he found a full of liquor, was found. Prete is said to have told the police that he bought the pint from Pantaleo for a dollar and a half. A further search of the adjoining premises produced the liquor which was exhibited in court this morning.

Judge Ferguson found Pantaleo guilty and fined him $125 and costs. Pantaleo occupies the home formerly inhabited by "Five Minutes," who was convicted twice on charges of intoxication. He was charged with drunkenness and assault on his wife on Saturday of last week and gave himself up yesterday. He was released on his own recognizance at that time and arraigned this morning.

His lawyer, Hartford man, said that he held no brief for Harrington, but said that if he were locked up he would lose his job. He said that Harrington was a good fellow.

13 DEAD, 50 HURT IN LONDON WRECK

Train Going 60 Miles an Hour Leaves Rail—Six of Dead, Women.

London, Aug. 25.—An all night search of the wreckage of the Southern Railway passenger express train which was derailed near Seven Oaks revealed a total death toll of thirteen today. Six of the dead are women. Of the fifty who were injured, half are in serious condition and it is feared that the death list will be increased. It was the worst train wreck in the British Isles since 1921.

The train was bound for Folkestone and was travelling at sixty miles an hour when the locomotive left the rails, dragging all the coaches after it. Recent heavy rains are supposed to have weakened the roadbed. Thus causing the disaster.

Volunteer rescue workers were rushed to the scene in motor cars. The injured were removed from the debris and rushed to hospitals in Seven Oaks and Tunbridge.

HOPE IS ABANDONED IN PACIFIC SEARCH

Most of Navy Boats Re- called—Six Men and Wo- man Are Dead.

San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 25.—Most of the Navy boats combing the Pacific for the seven lost flyers will give up the hunt today.

Although the entire resources of the Pacific fleet have been thrown into the eight-day search, no trace has yet been found of Mildred Dore, 22-year-old "flying school-marm," and her six men comrades, who are lost in three racing planes somewhere in the Pacific.

The aircraft vessels, Langley and Aroostook, which have been working out over the great circle course with a convoy of destroyers will turn back today. Planes catapulted from the deck of the Langley have circled the mountain in his trans-Pacific plane "Aloha."

In Halalan waters, the mine sweeper Pelican and two seaplanes will search off the island of Kauai. Every mile of Hawaii for forty miles has been thoroughly combed.

Careful search of the slopes of Mauna Kea, Hawaii's highest mountain, failed to disclose the source of a brightly-burning green flash, sighted by an Army officer last Sunday. Martin Jensen, winner of second prize in the Dole derby, circled the mountain in his trans-Pacific plane "Aloha."

KID OF DETROIT STARTS ON JOURNEY

MACKAYS PURCHASE FEDERAL TELEGRAPH

New York Corporation Now Owns Telegraph, Cables And Radio Systems.

New York, Aug. 25.—Acquisition of the radio communication system of the Federal Telegraph Company by a subsidiary of the Mackay companies, of which the Postal Telegraph & Cable Company is the leader, will make the Mackay system the only communication system offering complete land telegraph, ocean cable, and land and ocean radio service.

This is the substance of a statement issued by George V. McLaughlin, vice president of the Mackay companies, explaining the transaction between that company and the Federal Telegraph Company, which was announced today.

The Federal Co.
The Federal Telegraph company, a $5,000,000 concern, operates a point-to-point radio service in California, Washington and Oregon, and also a ship-to-shore radio service on the Pacific coast. This service will be taken over by the Mackay companies. The purchase price was not given.

McLaughlin, in his statement, explains the Federal Company also is engaged in the manufacture of radio apparatus and that under the contract the Mackay company has the right to purchase from the Federal Company radio and other apparatus under the patents and patent rights of the Federal Company.

Hold Many Patents

He points out that the Federal Company holds extensive patents on long and short wave radio equipment, which will be available for use by the Mackay companies, and that the Federal Company laboratories have been experimenting for some time in the fields of television, facsimile and photo-electric telegraphy and telephony.

"The Mackay system is equipped at the present time to exploit to the fullest extent any worthwhile invention in these fields," McLaughlin's statement reads.

The Mackay companies will establish point-to-point radio communication system of the Federal Company in "certain parts of the country" which will also be an extension and supplement to the present Mackay companies communication facilities, the statement points out.

McLaughlin asserted, trans-oceanic communication by radio has not developed to the point of reliable commercial service, and he declared the Mackay companies will attempt to develop this kind of communication and complement their cable lines by radio.

McLaughlin also announced the appointment of H. A. Emmons, former traffic engineer of the Western Union Telegraph company, as vice president of the Mackay companies.

FLYING DERBY

Curtiss Field, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Another trans-oceanic flying Derby, appeared on the aviation horizon today. With two planes already in the air bound for a northern take-off point and another scheduled for a triangular race for the latest spanning of the ocean was under way.

The Pride of Detroit, piloted by William S. Brock, hopped off from here at 11:06 a. m., for Old Orchard, Maine, from whence it will take off for Newfoundland to await favorable weather for a flight to England. Brock, accompanied by Edward F. Schuch, hopes to circle the earth in fifteen days.

At 12:45 p. m., the Sir John Carlin plane, carrying Captain Terrence Tully and Lieut. William De Metcalf both of the Royal Air Force, hopped off from here for London, Ontario, from where they will attempt a flight to England.

OHIO POLICE ARREST NEW JERSEY ELOPERS

Westerly Woman Runs Away With Policeman—Finds He's Married.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 25.—With her romance with a handsome New Jersey policeman shattered by the arrest of Joseph C. Dever, of South Plainfield, N. J., her companion, on a charge of deserting his wife and three children, Mrs. J. W. Bache, 45, wife of a wealthy manufacturer, today disappeared from the rooming house here where she had lived for several weeks with Dever as "Mr. and Mrs. Brown."

Mrs. Bache early this morning, after officers had arrested Dever and started with him back to South Plainfield, took her baggage and left the rooming house, without leaving any forwarding address.

Officers who had traced Dever through a telegram to a New Jersey bank in which he had asked that his money be transferred to Columbus, went to the room and arrested the former policeman. Mrs. Bache professed surprise, declaring that she had known nothing of Dever's wife and children when she fled with him.

"I've been a fool," police declared she told them. "My husband was too good for me. The worst is I haven't a cent, and I can't go back to work in the store where I have been employed after this. I don't know what I will do. My husband is not a big enough fool to take me back. I am to blame. I understood that Dever had been divorced, but nobody in South Plainfield or New York will believe me."

Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 25.—Paul Redfern, 25-year-old Georgia pilot, hopped off at 12:48 p. m., eastern standard time, today on a lone non-stop flight to Brazil.

The big biplane, "Part of Brunswick," grunting under a tremendous load of gasoline, roared along the beach at Glynn, Ga. and then skimmed gracefully into the air, putting out to sea at a low altitude. It disappeared into the vast stretches of sea and mountains and jungles that bar the way to South America.

Redfern expects to fly more than fifty hours for a new non-stop distance record above 4,000 miles. He hopes to land either at Rio de Janeiro or Pernambuco. His objective simply is "Brazil."

Rockville OXEN CONTESTS AT FAIR MISSED

New Regulation Cuts Down Entries—Companies Get Poles Mixed.

(Special to The Herald)
Rockville, August 25.—One of the main attractions at the old time country fair is being lost to the fair goers. It is the exhibition of the pulling powers of the oxen, which are not as numerous as in former years. The farmer of today gets results faster by the use of the tractor, which has not only the plowing apparatus but also the saw mill equipment and can also be used for the furnishing of power to generate light for the homes, water supplies and many other uses on the farm.

The fact, too, that the directors of the Rockville fair association have ruled that only tuberculin tested cattle can be exhibited at the fair this year, will have a further tendency to cut down the number of exhibitors in this class.

While attention is being given throughout the county for the testing of herds of cattle, where the owner does not raise milk for outside consumption, but few of the oxen being tested. It is in the latter part of the state or in the Litchfield county fairs the greater number of ox teams are now being shown.

All Entries Not In
A. M. Burke, who has charge of the horse entries for the Rockville fair next week has not as yet received the full list. The closing date was set for August 24, but this means that any entry mailed on that day is also included.

Up to the present time there has been received more entries in some of the classes than in any of the past years, but in other classes, which are expected to be well filled, the return blanks have not as yet been received, but these horses are now working in New York state and if the entry blanks were mailed as of yesterday and bear the mark of that date they will be allowed to enter.

In New York Today
Mrs. Mary Schatz, who was operated in Germany a month ago is due to arrive in New York today and will return to her daughter's home in Burnside tonight and may come to Rockville tomorrow night.

Concert Tonight
The concert which was to have been given by Colt's band at the Tolland County Temporary Home on Tuesday, but which was postponed on account of the rain will be given tonight.

Got Wrong Poles
In the extension of their lighting system at Vernon Depot the Rockville-Williamantic Gas and Electric Light company found it necessary to use twelve new poles for the extension of their lines and the poles were delivered to the section where they were to be set. It so happened that the Southern New England Telephone Company in their extension from the Rockville exchange were to replace twelve old poles. Their poles did not arrive. The pole setting crew was sent out from the Williamantic office of the Electric Light company and seeing the poles and noting stakes driven in set the poles.

When the work was all done and the final inspection made it was found that the poles of the electric light company had been set where the new telephone poles were to have been erected. The result is that a new contract is entered into whereby the telephone company and the electric light company will be fifty-fifty owners of the poles, but the electric light company will have to wait until the telephone company can get over an string their wires, as they must be above the electric light wires, and when they are finished the electric light company will make their connections, completing the extension of their lights into the Vernon section as they now propose.

Doyle on Job
Steven Doyle of Village street, employed by the Rockville-Williamantic Electric and Gas company, who was overcome by gas last night while trying to make repairs in the Rockville House, is back at his work today. There had been a leaking water pipe that kept dripping water on to a pipe, carrying gas. The pipe rusted out and he went down to the hotel to fix it. He crawled in and clogged it up and then decided to go back and put putty over the part clogged up. When he came out he was groggy. He was weak and the men from the gas house kept him walking around until they walked the gas out of him and he was able to return to work this morning as usual. The gas masks which were kept at the gas house on West Main street were used in making permanent repairs as the only shut off is at the meter.

Congratulations Coming In
Miss Letitia Church is receiving letters and cards of congratulations from all parts of New England as the result of the success she had with the staging of the historical pageant in Antrim, N. H.

The setting, she said, was in many respects similar to the pageant she successfully portrayed in Manchester. The number of natural singers to be found in Antrim, which lived up to the tradition of the race, was also a big factor. Miss Church is planning a few days vacation before returning to work, having many indoor engagements already booked for the winter.

Plenty of Light
There is going to be plenty of light at the fair grounds during the fair which opens next week, August 27 and continuing to September 1 each evening. The exhibit hall will be used by the exhibitors and the new dance pavilion and the stage for the actors, in addition to the lights that will be used in the carnival concessions and the booths, is going to require a more light than usual and poles are being set around the grounds for the carrying of the additional electric light that will be necessary.

Remodeling
The building at the corner of Market and Brooklyn streets so badly damaged by fire last month is being remodeled by the owner, Mr. O'Connell of Hartford. Work at present is being done on the Craney store and the other part will be rebuilt and possibly run up two stories with a change which will make two stores on the ground floor instead of three as at present.

Business Changes
The Cratty Barber Shop which has occupied one of the center stores in the Prescott block on Park street is to be vacated by Mr. Cratty on the first of the month. Mr. Cratty will occupy the office on the second floor now occupied by Thomas Garvan, who will move his real estate and insurance office to another location.

The Onestine Hardware Company has been located on Union street is now being moved to Village street, work starting on this today, after a month's sale. Games and various sports helped to make the day one long to be remembered by all.

WILL MAKE SUN WORK
New York.—The time is near, says Charles F. Ketterling, New York inventor, when the energy of the sun will be put directly to work instead of storing it up in coal and deposits and using it as now is done. Uncounted billions of potential horsepower are going to waste each day, he says, because the sun's rays are not used.

DETROIT FIGHTS CANCER; MANY CURED, SAYS DOCTOR

Free Clinic Ends Worries of Many Who Find They Are Not Afflicted.

Detroit.—Detroit, famous for the public spirit that has led it to build municipal docks, airports and the like, has launched another civic enterprise more unusual and important than them all.

It has established a free cancer clinic, and has undertaken the task of teaching its citizens that this dreaded disease is not to be so greatly feared if it is treated promptly and intelligently.

Relieves Hundreds.
Under the lead of Dr. Henry F. Vaughn, health commissioner, it has brought relief to hundreds of sufferers; has lengthened scores upon scores of lives; has prevented many from falling into the hands of unscrupulous quacks and has relieved many more from needless worry.

Dr. Henry F. Vaughn

This is the second year of the campaign. It was preceded by widespread publicity. Citizens were given up-to-date education as to the symptoms of cancer and urged to consult physicians if they recognized any of these symptoms on their own bodies.

Then free clinics were established throughout the city. At every hospital doctors gave free examinations to all who wished to come.

During one week 2,300 people took these examinations. One hundred definite cases of cancer were discovered, the vast majority of which had previously been unsuspected. In addition, 285 "pre-cancerous" conditions were found—cases that, if left untreated, would have developed into cancer later.

Saved From Death.
Thus 385 people were relieved from the lingering suffering that would have been their lot if they had not been examined, and the rest of the 2,300 were given mental ease by the knowledge that they did not have anything to worry about.

Finding the disease in time is the chief point in treatment, says Dr. Vaughn. If cancer once gets a firm start it is practically incurable; if detected early, it can nearly always be checked.

In an interview, Dr. Vaughn told how to tell cancer's early symptoms.

"Learn to recognize the symptoms of cancer," he said. "Any lump, especially in the breast of one who has reached the age of 25, should be regarded with suspicion. Not half of these lumps will be pronounced cancer but the early discovery of a cancerous lump will probably prevent its development into a cancer."

"Any irregular bleeding or discharge from the body may be a danger signal. Any chronic irritation should be investigated. Any wart or mole that presents a changed appearance, or turns to a dark slate color or grows scaly, should be examined by a doctor. Any irritation of the mouth, such as caused by a broken tooth or an ill fitting plate, should be removed. "Persistent indigestion, after 40, is a common indication of cancer—though by no means an unfailing sign. Perhaps only one in 20 who suffer from indigestion actually has cancer, but it is worth while for all 20 to submit to examination. If they are recognized early enough an operation can be performed—which is the only hope of cure."

"It is not generally appreciated just how much cancer can be cured, treated very early and under the best possible conditions.

"The British ministry of health studied 385 cases of breast cancer, operated on in Leeds. After 10 years, 90 per cent of the patients were still living. This is not far under the average expectancy of life."

Public Must Co-Operate.
Much remains to be learned about cancer, says Dr. Vaughn, but existing knowledge can do much to lessen the scope of the disease. If the public will co-operate with its physicians, so that all cancerous conditions can be brought to medical attention promptly much can be done.

"Wider utilization of existing knowledge is our strongest card," says Dr. Vaughn. "It is our chief hope in the task of reducing the 100,000 deaths by cancer every year."

JONES IS THREE UP IN FIRST 9 TODAY

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

Minnikahda Country Club, Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 25.—Bobby Jones, fighting to reclaim the title he lost at Baltusrol last year, was three up on Harrison Johnston, the pride and joy of the local folks, at the end of nine holes of their third round match in the national amateur golf championship this morning. Jones, hard pressed through the early stages came with a rush to win the eighth and ninth, his birdie at the latter coming as a result of one of the finest shots of the championship.

At the same point, Francis Outen and Chick Evans, two other champions, also were "up" on their opponents. The former held a single hole advantage over Phillips Finlay, the Connecticut schoolboy. While Chick was the same distance in front of Eddie Held, St. Louis, Roland Mackenzie, Washington, was two up on Harry Legg, conqueror of George Von Elm, at the same point.

Record Against Him
Harrington's lawyer asked leniency on behalf of his client, saying that the defendant would enter into an arrangement whereby he would live apart from his wife and contribute to her support and the support of their three children.

Judge Ferguson, taking into consideration the defendant's past record, which includes more than six appearances in the police court here, sentenced him to 15 days on the charge of assault, 10 days for intoxication. He was taken to Seyma street, Hartford, this morning.

DAYTON RAISES $1,000,000 FOR FLYING CENTER

First Airplane Country Club To Be Opened In "Cradle Of Aviation."

Dayton, Ohio.—Plans are afoot in this city—sometimes called the cradle of aviation—to establish what may be the first airplane country club. Men backing the venture are said to have already raised $1,000,000, and to have purchased the large estate of R. E. Olds, automobile magnate, at Grosse Island, in the Detroit River. Club members expect the club to become one of the most important aviation centers in the country.

Among those mentioned in connection with the project are Charles F. Kettering, official of the General Motors Corporation; Vice President Jackson of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana; President Clark of the Midwest Reeling Company; Vice president Marks of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company; W. B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Motor Company and others.

The U. S. Government has appropriated $250,000 and the state of Michigan $100,000 to aid in equipping a naval seaplane base on the club grounds, it was said.

A large dirigible hangar is also planned, and some members are already predicting that monster airships, capable of carrying 100 passengers, will be operating on a regular schedule between Detroit and London, England, within 15 months.

Edwin Denby, former secretary of the navy, is commodore of the club. Announcement has also been made here that Kettering is interested in the formation of the Seenic Airways Company, Inc., with one half million dollars capitalization, which plans to receive the transfer of an exclusive twenty year franchise from the government for the operation of passenger-carrying airplanes in national parks.

Mr. Gates is suing because of injuries to his wife, who was the only one of the party injured. In turn Mrs. Gates is suing her husband in her capacity as an injured passenger in his car. Both Mr. Gates and Mr. Stein are insured in The Hartford Indemnity Insurance Company. The accident occurred last September on Main street near Hilliard street.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 1927.

NOW LOVE HIM.

Calvin Coolidge may not be going to run for the Presidency again; we don't believe he will. But if he does he is going to get a tremendous lot of votes that he never would have gotten if the election had been held day before yesterday.

The one thing that millions of Americans have had against Mr. Coolidge has been his studied formalism. He was far too free from those human and humanizing failings that help to endear a great man to the populace. He never got mad and sore. He never, so far as anybody knows, drank a synthetic gin cocktail. He never told stories about Scotchmen. He never giggled in his life. He wouldn't know what to do with spades, ten to ace. He never had a bellyache. His necktie never rode his collar. He never bet on a framed-up prize fight. He never nicked a trolley company out of a token by looking out the window and ignoring the conductor. It's a thousand to one chance that he never hit his thumb with a hammer. He was regarded by lots of warm hearted citizens as a grown-up Rollo. They respected him but there was no bond of sympathy whatever.

All that is swept away. Yesterday Mr. Coolidge went fishing right after midday lunch at Lake Yellowstone. He was going to be back long before dinner. The trout were biting. He didn't return, his boat wasn't even in sight, at the time set. Dinner time came, passed. Everybody began to worry. Still no President. Seven long hours after his departure the boat came chugging up out of the dark to the landing. Weary, radiant, secretly conscious stricken but defiant—we know—the chief executive of the American nation climbed ashore, justified in his own eyes, glorified in the eyes of a million anglers, by the possession of eight big Yellowstone trout.

Never again be it said that Cal Coolidge lacks the human attributes, the lovable weakness without which flesh and blood might as well be wood and water. Three excess hours in a boat have done more to enshrine him than three years of self watchfulness in office could ever do—a dozen times more.

CHRONIC "TOO-OLDS"

We find it in our heart to be reasonably sorry for that group of ancient of forty, and more who are organizing a league of some sort in New York, the purpose of which is to proclaim loudly their protest that they are not too old to hold jobs if somebody would only give them jobs to hold. Nevertheless there probably never was a subject on which more bunk was expended than on this proposition that the industrial and business world no longer has any use for workers who are past the first flush of youth.

There have always been people who couldn't find work, or who couldn't do it satisfactorily after they did find it. Some of them have been grey haired and some of them have been young enough to be very fresh. And every last one of them has always had an excuse outside his own ability, adaptability or personality. When a man or woman gets past forty, has the hard luck and doesn't get it, it is the easiest of all possible things for such a person to delude himself or herself into the conviction that the reason for refusal lies in a few too many years.

There are probably, here and there, a few employers stupid enough to refuse to hire a good worker because he is bald or grey and no longer able to sprint a hundred yards in twelve seconds. But it is only necessary to take a look at any large group of industrial or business employes, anywhere, to realize that it is relatively a small number of bosses who entertain the notion that only callow youth is any good on a job.

It is unquestionably true that in the "help" wanted columns of the newspapers there are twenty advertisements for young men and girls where there is one apparently open to a middle aged or elderly person. But it may well be remembered that fifteen out of twenty such advertisements are based on the idea of cheap help and that the employment offered is of sorts beneath the consideration of any experienced worker. There need be no great surprise that an individual who wants an errand boy at eight dollars a week rejects the application of an elderly engraver who is capable of earning sixty at his own calling.

There are plenty of middle aged people that nobody would hire, of course. Also there are plenty of young men and girls that nobody would hire, or retain if hired. And there are countless thousands of middle aged people in the industries and in business who would be snapped up mighty quickly, on account of their skill and experience, if they had need of a job—which most of them have not.

At least half of the work in this country—and that the half requiring the most brains and ability—is being done by men and women from forty to sixty years of age. Somebody is paying every one of them—and not from charitable motives. We suspect that these chronic "too-olds" may in more than one instance be looking less eagerly for jobs than for places on payrolls. Even the youngsters can't hope for workless jobs.

AIR SMUGGLERS.

Rightly or wrongly, Charlie Lindbergh and his fellow achievers have pretty well convinced a lot of folks that the passage of the air is soon to be almost as commonplace an affair as the passage of the concrete roads. If there is a town of five thousand people in America which isn't more or less actively considering the establishment of an air port it must be populated wholly by grandfathers and grandmothers, with the rest of the folks emigrated.

Optimistic school teachers are telling the tots that by the time they grow up most of the international and intercontinental travel will be done by plane or dirigible. And few are the parents who have the temerity to go to school and bawl out Teacher for such new fangledism. Probably more people believe than doubt that a flight from Europe, Africa or Asia will soon be less troublesome and infinitely quicker than a present day steamer voyage. It is the easiest of things to imagine, the sky black with scudding planes, over land and over sea.

Grant that these expectations are warranted—what are we going to do about prohibition enforcement and the immigration quotas? If it is soon to be possible for a plane to come booming into the airs of America from overseas, bearing a hundred cases of liquor or a dozen aliens, how on earth is any conceivable force of government watch dogs going to be able to control such traffic? How, for that matter, is it going to be possible for the government to enforce any of its revenue laws or taboos?

As sure as shooting the time is not far off when an airplane will be able to hover and drop down, anywhere where there is room for it to sit, and afterward take the air again by direct ascent instead of needing a mile-long running start. It is never going to do for flying dry enforcers or revenue officers to engage in battles in the air with smuggler planes that refuse to "lay to" at the word of command; because it is unthinkable that the backyards of our towns and the back pastures of our farms shall be cluttered up with wreckage of airplanes shot down on the devoted heads of the populace or onto the horns of the cattle. And with millions of square miles to land in, how else are freebooters of the air to be dealt with?

The mechanical eagle alights in the night, dumps its load of booze, silk or Chinamen, hops off and soars away—all far from the nearest police station or enforcement office. What are we going to do about it?

The speculation is this: Is aviation, if it develops at all as now anticipated, going to destroy international boundaries? Will it, by bringing the ends of the world together in a physical sense, nullify all nationalism? Will it compel, by rendering anything else impossible, that federation of the world which hard headed patriots everywhere have jeered at as a chimera?

SORDID.

When it became public that Captain Paul Schuller, navigator of Pilot Martin Jensen's plane, the Aloha, which won the second Doie prize of $10,000 in the recent tragic transpacific Derby, received only $25 and the promise of a ticket to the states from Jensen, a good part of whatever glory attached to that egregious "scientific" event collapsed.

Jensen says that Schuller merely went along for the experience and that there was no agreement as to money. Schuller admits the latter fact but declares that he "certainly expected to get something out of it" and that that was what he went for. Then along comes Mrs. Jensen with the explanation that four Honolulu men owned 75 per cent. of the Aloha and were to get 75 per cent. of any money profits from the victory. Which possibly provides sufficient reason for the shabby treatment of the navigator.

It was inevitable that money pigs would intrude into aviation. With public interest tremendously aroused in flying, the man with the bankroll, who cares not a rap for the lives of anyone but himself, was sure to bob up.

But such developments as these concerning the Aloha are just about as certain to result in the public turning suddenly cold to any further big prize flying contests. They knock the romance of the air into a cocked hat.

DAMPENED ZEAL.

A thunder shower put a crimp in the determination of Geneva Reds to raid the American consulate at Geneva. Which gives a pretty fair idea of the depth of the emotions of those frothy creatures.

What person, actuated by a really profound anger or zeal, would permit a wetting in the rain to cool his passions to the extent of quitting the job of killing off somebody?

Revolutionaries who abandon their revolution because it happens to thunder and lightning are not very dangerous to the established order of things.

The Geneva demonstrators are very much like the very large majority of their kind elsewhere. They are a lot of noise.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Aug. 25.—These recent rumors that Governor Al Smith will not seek the Democratic presidential nomination probably are inspired by hope.

The truth seems to be that with William G. McAdoo pushed pretty well out of the picture, many Democrats—especially in the south—feel that their brethren who have supported Smith should also eliminate the governor in the interest of party harmony.

What happened was that the southern Democrats, realizing that no good would come out of a repetition of the Madison Square Garden mess of 1924, decided that the party must start with a clean slate, so that chances of a successful campaign would not be ruined by bitter warfare over prohibition or religion.

They practically disowned McAdoo as the candidate of the "dry, Protestant south," no doubt much to McAdoo's disgust, but it does not appear that they obtained any promise from the Smith folks to do as much on their side of the fence.

Smith has Largest Following. The trouble was that the greater part of the McAdoo strength was enlisted in behalf of a cause, while the bulk of the Smith strength was attracted more by a personality. Thus, southern and western Democrats could discard McAdoo and choose another standard-bearer with few regrets, but the northern Democrats might be expected to fight to the last inch for Smith.

The general result of the change in the Democratic lineup is that while a majority of the party may prefer someone other than Smith, the governor can command a much larger bloc of delegates at the next convention than any other candidate.

It will be much more difficult for the bone dry and anti-Smith people to organize behind any one candidate than if they had all decided to stick with McAdoo. Undoubtedly there will be many aspirants for the McAdoo mantle, ranging all the way from Senator Carter Glass to Senator J. Thomas Heflin.

Two-Thirds Rule in Way. In a half-dozen representative southern states the plan now is to elect uninstructed delegates. Several delegations may vote for favorite sons on the first two or three ballots, but they will be all set to hop onto the first band-wagon that inspires their enthusiasm. The Smith leaders see in this situation a chance to pick up a healthy assortment of delegates from southern states, but this factor seems likely to be negligible. Such delegates will be uninstructed, but precautions are being taken to see that they are also dry.

If it were not for the two-thirds rule Smith might well hope to crash over to victory in the early balloting. But the two-thirds rule will surely be maintained and it seems likely that it will throttle Smith's ambitions.

Despite the tendency within the party to instill a spirit of peace and harmony into the convention, the terrible battle of New York is likely to be fought all over again unless there is some change in the situation such as a more benevolent attitude toward Smith or a more self-sacrificing attitude on Smith's part. Smith, presumably, sees no reason why he should be the sacrificial goat.

Why Smith is Opposed

New declarations for Smith such as those of prominent South Dakota Democrats, painful as they doubtless are to those Republicans who fear Smith more than anyone else, signify reinforcement of the Smith bulwark next year, but they do not materially increase his chances of nomination.

Most southern and western Democratic leaders will fight for Smith's election if he is nominated and any Republican hopes of splitting the solid south in such an event are very optimistic indeed. But certain doubtful states will almost surely be lost and Democratic politicians along the fringe, assured of control under normal circumstances, are convinced that Smith's nomination would wreck this control in the election. Thus, while asserting that Smith can win if nominated, they will try hard to prevent his nomination, asserting that there are other men who can win without upsetting party control in a half-dozen doubtful states.

They see are of the "bigger and better" manufactured variety, with silk hats in carriages and plenty of "soup and fish." The sort of circus that have parades do not play Manhattan. Nor do minstrel troupes and other parade-vending amusements.

The boyhood thrill of the silk hats and the blowy bands is unknown to them.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" hasn't appeared in Manhattan for 50 years. Not a single youngster in a generation has enjoyed his country cousin's annual kick as Eliza crosses the ice, with baying bloodhounds at her heels.

What is a commonplace in any small town, thus becomes an event to the metropolis. Sophisticated journals draw cartoons and newspapers give columns.

Some day I'd like to see New York youngsters turned loose at a real old-fashioned Fourth-of-July celebration. Or allowed to roam the vast and charming vistas of a country fair.

And, by the way of reversal, I should like to see the barefoot lads of the far-away lanes stand with mouths agape at the myriad lights that the roadway street gamins have seen so often that they are oblivious to them.

"Whatta kick!" says the rural visitor as he looks along Fifth avenue or Broadway.

"Whatta kick!" says the New Yorker as he comes back from a jaunt through the open spaces.

And there you have the whole story!

TENNIS TOURNAYS START TONIGHT WITH 8 MATCHES

Five Matches In Girl's Division and Three In Men's; Permits Issued For 11 of 20 First Round Matches.

Manchester's town championship elimination tennis tournaments will get under way tonight in grand style when eight of the twenty matches in the first rounds will be played. The only thing needed to make an auspicious start is favorable weather, and old Jupiter Pluvius has been anything but agreeable of late. However, weather forecasters predicted favorable playing conditions for this evening. Five of tonight's eight matches will be in the men's division. Four tournament courts will be used, namely, East Side Playgrounds, West Side Playgrounds, High School and Country Club.

Co-operation Pleasing

It is pleasing to note the way in which the players in each tournament are co-operating in effort to make the affair a big success. At 9 o'clock last night, permits had been issued for fourteen of the scheduled twenty matches in the first round of each tournament and arrangements for the remaining six. By doing this, the members of the tournaments are making sure that they will be able to have tennis courts available when they desire to play. The only possible drawback now, it seems, could be adverse weather which would make postponements necessary, but in case of this, players are requested to immediately make arrangements for another time for their matches before Sunday night.

Help One-Another

It is noticed that in every case, players have secured one-hour permits for the tennis courts. This means that should any of the matches extend more than that time, they may conflict with later reservations. Players are asked to do their best to see that their matches are finished in the allotted time. Should it be necessary to play longer than an hour, the pair having the permit for the next hour should be consulted regarding the extending of their time so that the match may be finished. However, if it is evident that a match is going to take far more than an hour, it should be finished another time. Players are asked to use their judgment in cases where difficulties may arise and co-operate in arriving at the best solution.

Winners Report Scores

Winners of all matches tonight should send or bring in their results to the School Street Recreation Center immediately afterward so that they may be gathered that night for publication the next day. Matches in the first round will be the best two out of three sets, and contrary to a statement made yesterday in these columns, it will be unnecessary to play the third set should one player win the first two.

Tonight's Matches

Five matches in the girls' tournament are booked for this evening. They are as follows:

- Aileen McHale vs. Evelyn Clarke on S. M. H. S. court No. 1 from 5 until 6.
- Eltzabeth Washkewich vs. Eleanor Kunde on S. M. H. S. court No. 1 from 7 until 8.
- Etta Clulow vs. Ruth Behrend at West Side Playgrounds, court No. 1 from 6 until 7.
- Leo Gislio vs. Mary McVeigh at East Side Playgrounds, court No. 2 from 8 until 9.
- Katherine Giblin vs. Flora Nelson at East Side Playgrounds court No. 1 from 6 until 7.

In the men's tournament at least three matches are on the docket for tonight. If "Ding" Farr and "Hank" McCann don't meet this afternoon, they will tomorrow afternoon. Tonight's matches:

- Ty Holland vs. Paul Cervini at East Side Playgrounds, court No. 1 from 7 until 8.
- "Seal" Russell vs. Fred Van Ness on the Manchester Country Club course from 6 until 7.
- Arthur Krob vs. Kenneth May at the West Side Playgrounds, court No. 1 from 7 until 8.

Tomorrow's Matches

Tomorrow night Herb Kerr and Laurence Paisley meet at the S. M. H. S., court No. 2 from 6 until 7. And, Louis Farr meets Leonard Berry at court No. 2 on the East Side Playgrounds from 7 until 8. And, Jimmy Neill meets Joe McCann on the East Side Playgrounds, court No. 1 from 7 until 8.

Saturday afternoon will find Esther Carini and Estelle Jackson meeting at the East Side Playgrounds, court No. 1 from 3 until 4.

Sunday morning, Bill Brennan and "Mac" Macdonald will swap shots at the S. M. H. S., court No. 1 from 10 until 11.

O'Brien For Schubert

And, Jimmy Quish and Francis O'Brien will meet at the East Side Playgrounds, court No. 1 from 10 until 11. O'Brien replaces Bennie Schubert, who said his name had been entered without his permission and refused to compete. O'Brien's name had been accidentally kept out of the pairings and he should have been in Schubert's place where he is now.

At 9 o'clock last night, permits had been secured for all but six of the twenty matches in the two tournaments and three of these matches had all but been arranged. The only two matches in the girls' tournament for which permits have not been issued are the ones between Esther Metcalf and Ethel Robb and the Joyce sisters. Ethel Robb has been out of town but was expected back either last night or today. Margaret and Mary Boyle will play

LEFT-HOOK TO JAW MAY QUEER PIRATES

"All" Smith's Kayoe Over Bancroft Starts Feud Which Pittsburgh Can't Overcome.

BY BILLY EVANS

Will a left hook to the jaw cost the Pittsburgh Pirates the 1927 National League pennant?

If either the Chicago Cubs, St. Louis Cardinals or New York Giants nose out the Buccaneers, it will be only fitting and proper that the successful manager of the victorious club extend a vote of thanks to Catcher "All" Smith for his pugilistic activities on the diamond.

It will be recalled that late in June there occurred at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh, a one-round argument between the Pirates back stop and Manager Dave Bancroft of the Boston Braves.

The bout was a one-sided affair, the lighter Bancroft proving no match for Smith, who won as he pleased, a left hook to the stomach, sending Bancroft down for the count.

Impromptu ring affair, which resulted in a Pirate triumph, may eventually cost Pittsburgh the pennant and the right to share in the rich spoils of a world series.

There are two strong reasons for such a belief. First, President Heydler of the National League handed down a suspension that deprived Pittsburgh of the services of Catcher Smith for 30 days. While Smith may have his peculiarities, there is no getting away from the fact that he is a mighty valuable catcher. The Pirates missed him over that long stretch of suspension. Had Manager Bush been able to call on him in a number of the close score games that were lost, the results might have been different.

More important to the chances of the Pirates, however, has been the feud developed between Boston and Pittsburgh as a result of the fight between Smith and Bancroft. It apparently stirred up an ill-feeling among the Boston Braves for Pittsburgh that threw a monkey wrench into the smooth working Pirate machine.

"Get Pittsburgh" seems to have been the inspirational slogan of the Boston Braves ever since the day Smith so ignominiously knocked out their manager, Dave Bancroft. Since that time, the Pirates and the Braves have clashed in eight games and the results have been six victories for Boston and two for Pittsburgh. In more or less spirit of revenge, a seventh place club arose to dizzy heights and defeated the league leaders six games out of eight.

Cutting the lead of the Pirates a matter of four games caused the club to drop out of first place and since that time it has been trailing by just about the margin of supremacy the Braves registered in the eight-game series between the two club.

Kent Greenfield, erstwhile Giant, who recently went to the Braves in a trade for Pitcher Larry Benton, played the leading role in the setback administered to the Pirates.

On July 21, Greenfield opened a five-game series in Boston against Pittsburgh. He beat the Pirates, 2-1, allowing only five hits. With only one day's rest, figuring Greenfield was a jinx to Pittsburgh, Manager Bancroft sent him back and he justified the confidence by a 6-3 victory. Boston won three of the five games.

On July 30, the Braves invaded Forbes Field for a three-game series. With Greenfield's success against Pittsburgh fresh in his memory, Manager Bancroft started him, despite the fact he had only two days rest. He held Pittsburgh to two runs in eight innings, when he was removed for a pinch hitter, Genewich eventually winning for Boston in the extra session.

Two days later, Bancroft played a hunch and used Greenfield again. Dame Fortune smiled on him once more with a 5-2 victory. The God-fors of Revenge for the sixth time in eight games had been kind to the pilot of the Braves. His knockout by Smith had been avenged.

It is almost a certainty that the margin of victory by the pennant-winning team in the National will be less than four games. Which makes it seem as if that left hook delivered by Earl Smith and resting on the jaw of Manager Bancroft may prove a costly knockout to the Pirates.

Moral: The ball field is no place to fight, either Friday or Saturday afternoon, they said.

In the men's tournament, the Biswell brothers, "Cam" and "Eagle," have not yet secured a permit for their match but are expected to do so today. Walter Dunn and Bobby Metcalf will probably meet Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Ephraim Cole and Johnny Boyle were unable to get in communication with each other last night but said that they would come to an agreement today.

Local Sport Chatter

Representatives of six soccer clubs attended last night's meeting of the Manchester District Soccer League at the School Street Rec and it was decided to hold another meeting with the view of enlarging the circuit to eight teams. Clubs represented last night were: German-Americans of New Britain, Celtics, British-Americans, Cheney Brothers, Hartford Scandias and the Clan Douglas of New Britain. The other two teams who may enter the league are the New Britain Swedes and the Scandia Workers of West Hartford. The next meeting will be held next Wednesday evening at the same place.

The following men will represent the West Side in the horseshoe-pitching event in the annual track and field day program to be held next Wednesday at the West Side playgrounds: J. Thompson, M. Taggart, S. Nelson and J. Fogarty.

There is considerable speculation over the outcome of the swimming competition between Eddie Markley and Wes Warnock in the annual Globe Hollow meet Sunday. Markley is supposed to be the better swimmer and Warnock the better diver, but the pair are very evenly matched.

Wonder if there will be any basketball teams in Manchester next season with the exception of the High School team. In the past few years, Manchester's best talent has been going out of town for the lure of gold. Perhaps if someone started up a strong team here and did not abuse the sport by playing too often, it might be a successful venture but it is only, perhaps.

Anyone who desires to help the Cloverleaves financially tonight may do so by dropping around to like the rubber land off his roll. Conran is donating the net receipts of his business to the gridsters. The boys feel that it is mighty nice of him.

Today's fair weather was greeted with pleasure by the members of the town championship tennis tournaments who are playing their matches tonight. Some interesting matches are looked forward to. The three prizes are on exhibition at Basnett & Robbins' store.

It is understood that members of the North End football team will act as bearers at the funeral of their comrade, George A. Wilson, tomorrow afternoon. Clifford Chatter is in charge of selecting the casket.

Bill Brennan plans to organize a gym class composed of the members of the C. B. A. A. baseball team and others at the conclusion of the baseball season. Bill is well versed in this work as anyone who has trained under him will attest.

CUBS TO REORGANIZE GRID TEAM TONIGHT

There will be a reorganization meeting of the Cubs football eleven tonight at the Charter Oak street grounds at 7 o'clock. It is planned to elect a manager and draw out plans for the coming season at that time.

Not only members of last year's eleven but anyone in town is eligible to report tonight and to try for a berth. The Cubs hope to put a first class team on the field, one that will be capable of closing the season by trimming the Cloverleaves.

BIG VELODROME RACE WILL BE SWEEPSTAKES

Riders of Much Note Back Themselves in Tonight's One-Hour Straightaway.

The biggest event of the season at the Hartford Velodrome bike track is set for tonight when the annual Charter Oak stakes will be held. This is a motor-paced special and takes rank each season as the blue ribbon event at the big saucer.

This year there will be $1,200 hung up as prizes in addition to the usual prize money for this event, each rider is posting $50 and the management is adding another $300.

Manager Frank Cadwell has arranged to run the race as a sweepstakes and instead of the usual forty-mile race, it will be an hour straightaway.

This strong field is riding: Dan Fichione, great Italian pace follower; Larry Gaffney, of Brooklyn, a young American rider who is fast coming to the front; Theodore Wynsdau, the Belgian champion; Frank Keenan of Revere, one of the best of the homebreds; Rene Bogzman, champion of Holland and Victor Hopkins, last year the American champion.

In addition to this event, will be the race for the Connecticut amateur championship; another of the series of races for the New England sprint championship and several other professional and amateur races.

After this week's meeting, there will be one more card in 1927 at the Velodrome track.

111-Round, 3-Hour, Bare-Fist Fight 98 Years Ago Today for $1,500 Purse

Ninety-eight years ago today, James, "Deaf" Burke of London and one of the most picturesque of the old time bare knuckle fighters went down in defeat before Bill Cousens of Liverpool at the end of 111 rounds of a furiously fought ring battle which lasted a little more than three hours.

The affair was for a $1,500 side take and was fought on the turf near London and attracted more than 10,000 persons. Seven years later Burke invaded this country and defeated several of our leading heavyweights, after which he returned to England and claimed the British championship because of the fact Jim Ward, the title holder, had declined to accept his numerous challenges.

Only The Great Stars Left To Battle For Championship

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor
Minikahda Club, Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 25.—The fish are gone, the fowls remain.

That was a perfectly good idea this morning provided you didn't care whether Friday came and you happened to like chicken. Anyhow, it applies to the survivors of the third round of the National Amateur Golf Championship today, namely and to wit, Bobby Jones, the sweetheart golfer of golfers; Chick Evans, the boy who once was good and still thinks he has it; Francis Ouimet the same kind of a guy, only more so; Harrison Johnston, the best golfer in the west; Phillips Finley, the Watts Gunn of the present tournament; Roland Mackenzie, 1925 medalist; Eddie Held, always good and mostly now; Harry Legg the man who sent George Von Elm, the 1926 champion, to the showers yesterday.

No fish there, obviously; a fish is always a poor fish in any language. These gifts are poor just exactly like Rockefeller, the boy millionaire.

Showdown Friday

The showdown in effect was here this morning. No saps left; only the good ones and the matches these par-breaking citizens were to play might have intrigued the dramatic soul of a Belasco.

Imagine, for example, any round that guaranteed to couple Johnston, the local pride, with Jones, the national sweetheart. This alone would be sufficient to send the gallery into delirium tremens or words to that general effect, if any.

Imagine, again, being told that you could see Finley, the juvenile leader of 1927, meet Ouimet, a man now but a boy and a hero in 1913. A match between Evans and Held might figure to keep too many away from any course either. They will meet in one of the third round matches today.

The other match was to bring together Mackenzie, the lad who persists in drawing all decisions finely, a la Tilden, and Legg, the sectional hero as a result of his great round with Von Elm yesterday.

Passing of Von Elm

Of course, perforce and without question the passing of Von Elm, that quaint, solid, fighting German-American from the coast took an undeniable factor out of the rest of the tournament. He lost to Legg yesterday and he did it like a gentleman and a scholar but the unpleasant fact is, the lost and that meant plenty. The great fighter of championship golf was through for 1927.

Yes, the great fighter, who else but a fighter could have beaten Jones out of his title in the final round last year? Who else but a

CHENEYS AND GREEN CLASH THIS EVENING

Cheney Brothers and Manchester Green are scheduled to play a twilight baseball game at the West Side Playgrounds at 6 o'clock tonight. It will be the second of a three game series, Cheneys having won the first by a three to one count in a fast and hotly contested battle. Tonight's outcome is a matter of conjecture regardless of the fact that Cheneys are the favorites. Giorgetti and Prentice look like the likely pitching choices. St. John will be with the Green.

Sunday afternoon at Hickey's Grove, Cheneys will begin a three game series with the Bon Ami and Eddie Boyce will oppose Bill McLaughlin if the latter returns from his honeymoon in time. The Heights will probably play Cheneys next week. It is also understood that the Community Club wants to organize and meet Cheneys.

QUIET HOME LIFE

Mother: It is whispered that you and John aren't getting on. Daughter: Nonsense: We did have some words and I shot him, but that's as far as our quarrel ever went.—Judge.

fighter could establish the fact that, previous to yesterday, only Jones was able to beat Von Elm in a championship match since 1923 and that only Von Elm was able to beat Jones during the same interval.

No championship loses a man like Von Elm without losing one of its integral and inherent features. But where it lost today, it gained. For Harry Legg, local headliner, was the man who beat Von Elm and Legg naturally had the town by its civic nostrils.

That was the man, anyhow, who was to take issue with Mackenzie, the dramatist, in the fourth of great matches this morning. Issue, as a matter of fact, simply had to be seriously taken in all of them.

For one thing, the boys were to do business today at thirty-six holes. The curse of that eighteen-hole decision, so feared by the rest of the good ones, was to be off the rest of the tournament. It seemed possible, therefore, that the rest of the victories, even up to and including the last and final victory, might be decided strictly on their merits.

ROSENBLOOM PREDICTS HELL LICK SLATTERY MONDAY NIGHT

Pro Scrap For World's Title To Draw Many Manchesterites; Card Tomorrow, Too.

Maxie Rosenbloom of New York and Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo who are to battle in the Hartford Velodrome next Monday night, are now in the final stages of training for the bout which has been sanctioned for the light heavyweight championship of the world.

Rosenbloom is working out at Hartford. Mornings finds the New Yorker out on the road and afternoons see him working out with his sparring partners at a Hartford gymnasium.

The Gotham light heavy in his initial indoor workout Tuesday showed lots of speed, good boxing talent and a stiff punch. Rosenbloom expects to defeat the Buffalo boy and thus earn the designation of the world's light heavyweight champion.

Slattery is putting the final touches on his training up at Holyoke, where he has a number of friends. Jimmy's after a sensational career in ring circles, slumped some time ago and almost entirely disappeared from the boxing horizon. Now he is back in superb physical shape, boxing as well as ever and determined to fight his way back to the top notch position that he boasted a couple of years ago.

Slattery says he will defend the title against all comers if he succeeds in winning over Rosenbloom in the big East Hartford arena next Monday night.

New York will not recognize the winner of next Monday's battle as the champion of the world, but the National Federation of Boxing, which has nearly thirty states in its membership, has sanctioned the bout as for the title which the New York boy recently handed over bodily to Mike McTigue.

Matchmaker Art Greaney is now busily at work assembling the supporting card.

He has announced a ten-round semi-final in which Homer Robertson negro middleweight will take on Vic McLaughlin of Brooklyn. Tickets may be obtained by Manchester fans at Land's filling station.

Promoter Homer Rainault is staging the first of a series of popular-priced boxing shows at the Hartford Velodrome tomorrow night—this show serving as sort of an appetizer for the light heavyweight championship bout between Jimmy Slattery and Maxie Rosenbloom.

Four six-rounders and three bouts of four rounds apiece make up the popular-priced card. This show marks the professional debut of Lex Lariviere of Waterbury who has been campaigning in amateur circles and who is one of the program to meet Tom Heenev of Bridgeport in a four-rounder.

Some natural rivals are booked up in the program and an evening of fast and rugged milling is in prospect. This is the full card:

Six-Rounders
Baby Doll vs. Frankie Mack, 135 pounds.
Johnny Mason vs. Frankie Portell, 135 pounds.
Young Emmons vs. Tony Lewis, 150 pounds.

Four-Rounders
Leo Lariviere vs. Tom Heenev, 145 pounds.
Johnny O'Leary vs. Jimmy Clinch, 132 pounds.
Mickey Genaro vs. Abe Bodine, 130 pounds.

The first pair won their bouts in three rounds on decisions and Reardon lost in the same manner. Their opponents were Glastonbury boys. Fully 500 persons saw the show.

COURTNEY POISED FOR HOP

Southampton, Eng., Aug. 25.—Weather permitting, Captain Frank T. Courtney, British air ace, who will attempt a trans-Atlantic flight to America, hopes to hop off between five and six o'clock this afternoon. Following the failure of Courtney's "flying boat" to rise from the water for a test flight yesterday the machine's load was lightened today. Courtney planned to make a test flight at the Calshot navy air depot before beginning his journey towards America.

The PENNY PRINCESS by anne austin

BEGIN HERE TODAY VERA VICTORIA CAMERON, an efficient private secretary, comes to let JERRY MACKLYN, advertising manager of the Peach Blossom...

emitting his right palm with his clenched fist. "It ought to be easy to trace it. She can give you a description of the car from bumper to bumper, if the doctor can pull her out of her fit of hysterics."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX

At the moment when Vera Victoria Cameron, being kidnapped as Vivian Crandall, was stepping gingerly over a stubble field toward a great man-made bird that was to bear her aloft, she knew not whether Schuyler Smythe was standing in the middle of the road, waving his arms frantically to attract the attention of an approaching car.

"Miss Crandall and I were eloping when the kidnapers captured us."

He said nothing of his own quarrel with the girl, confining his explanation to the bare facts of their encounter with the masked men. "Vivian Crandall! My soul in heaven! The doctor elucidated in a moment. "Why didn't you do something, man?"

"In my car!" Thurston thundered. "So you're the thief! Well, come on. What happened?" "I'm trying to tell you," Schuyler retorted with injured dignity. "But you might remember that I'm a gentleman. I took your car, Thurston, because you had mine tampered with to prevent my being alone with Miss Crandall. Quit it, or I'll have you arrested."

This And That In Feminine Lore

Fred Hughes wishes me to remind you again of the artistic, new mouldings he has received at the Old Wood Shop, Pitkin street. Already he has had a number of framing orders to execute, water colors and prints, people here and elsewhere have picked up while on vacation. If you have a picture to frame you might as well have the work done right, for harmony is the secret of good picture framing.

Ross Crane, outstanding interior decorator, in the September Better Homes and Gardens, has a splendid article under the caption "Good Pictures are Always in Fashion." It is profusely illustrated showing the homemaker just how to group pictures for the best effect. According to Mr. Crane, pictures are as essential to the proper furnishing of a home as the dining room table or the kitchen range.

Jean Nash formerly of New York but who has the reputation of being the "best dressed woman in Europe," says she is through with marriage, there are to be no more wedding bells for her. She explains that statement by saying that she is out spending the summer at Deauville, France, which she believes is the road to happiness often times. She has figured much in the front pages of the newspapers because of her three divorces.

Gladstone is quoted as saying "All time and money spent in training the body pays a larger rate of interest than any other investment." We believe we have written before about the methods employed by the National Safety Council to promote the health of the clerks. Now we read that the executive in that large office is actually paying a cash bonus to the employee who takes an hour's exercise daily, believing that it will increase efficiency and decrease absences from illness.

Green Pea Salad To escape from the sameness of day after day, the luscious green pea lends an excellent way. In salad it's light and extremely refreshing when dinner is heavy—meat, starch, celery, twelve walnuts. Cut up. To these add drained peas—one good generous cup. Serve mixture tucked snug in a crisp lettuce bed with a smooth mayonnaise—now what more need be said?

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

"Let no one deceive you, these retical feminists. Housekeeping for the home-makers who do not employ domestic servants—90 per cent of the total—is a full-sized job, even in this enlightened factory age." So writes a lady in a current magazine article entitled "Trying to be Modern," which is the age and true tale of modern woman's attempt to be married but modern in a small town "where woman's work is as definitely fixed as a squaw's and she does it as unquestionably." The author also examines that glib theory "a capable woman can always pay a good housekeeper and nurse," and asks where may "good home workers" be found.

"ONE AND TWO AND" The proposed licensing of music teachers makes one wonder whether even today piano lessons for the progeny of each and every household are as taken for granted as necessary dental work and public school education. When I was a child it was no more assumed that the sum would continue to rise and set than that each of the 5 to 10 children in each $100-a-month family of the hamlet would have music lessons. The chrysothron "thundered up and down" the village streets. Even at the tender age of 8, I "sided" with the boy next door who despised the piano and begged and begged his parents to let him spend his weekly $10 cents for piano lessons in having the town taxidermist teach him how to stuff and mount owls.

novel little address book in which she stamped the name "Miss Ethel Hays." The package was addressed to me at Henry street without number. It was mailed first class and required 44 cents postage. The only clue to the sender are the initials "W. O. K." on the corner. None of my friends in New Haven bear those initials, and the other two "Mary Taylors" in town with whom I have talked know nothing about it. Miss Ethel Hays is the name of the clever artist who draws the cartoons on the Home Page, but she does not live in Manchester. In anyone else expecting such a package, or has anyone a correspondent in New Haven who can claim those initials?

PRESCRIBING THE CORRECT DIET FOR NERVOUS INDIGESTION By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Some years ago the word "indigestion" was one to conjure with. It was the great American disease, now transferred into the possibly more scientific term "nervous indigestion." In a recent consideration of this condition, Dr. W. C. Alvarez points out there is a tendency to overdo the use of bran and that nowadays one of the simplest ways of helping dyspeptic patients is to take away their bran mush and muffins. Bran is used because of its indigestibility, and who need roughage in the diet. People with irritable digestive organs, however, are likely to be upset by the use of bran and to suffer with gas distention and other symptoms.

Home Page Editorial IS IT BETTER NOT TO KNOW THE FUTURE? By Olive Roberts Barton

Bertrand Russell noted British philosopher, says that human beings feel safer if they can foretell the future. He thus explains the belief in necromancy, or, in plain words, fortune-telling. Dr. Russell is not advocating clairvoyance. He speaks of it merely in connection with habit, and the peace of mind that comes with habit, which we should, he declares, learn systematically in childhood. It is true that people wish to insure for themselves comfort and safety, or is it curiosity that fills auditoriums daily with fascinated auditors?

Why We Must Continue to Earn a Fair Return

It would be as undesirable from the public standpoint as it would be disastrous for this Company if we should earn less than a fair return upon our telephone property.

This statement is based upon these facts:—

- 1. The Connecticut public looks to us not only to furnish quick, accurate, reliable telephone service day in and day out, but also to provide in advance the necessary facilities to meet future telephone requirements.

Therefore, unless we can receive from the telephone using public an income representing a fair return upon our telephone property, we cannot pay the wages for money which will attract new capital into the business; and without new capital we cannot build the plant to maintain proper standards of present service nor prepare for future telephone needs.

One further fact:— At to-day's rates for telephone service, our revenues are not sufficient to yield a fair return on the property.

While information regarding French superstition might not avert such harrowing catastrophes as the loss of large 100-ton clankers by theft, it might be of benefit in matters of minor importance to the Legionnaires who will spend some time in Paris in September.

If you are dining with a mademoiselle or with wife do not ask her to pass the salt. If she does, a family row is sure to ensue. It does not necessarily follow, however, that it is essential to pass the salt to insure a rumpus.

No superstition should be regarded with greater awe than the one concerning the general consumption of coffee and rum. And this statement is made on no less an authority than the chief gen-

The cost of election has risen to such a figure that it is hardly appropriate to speak of an office as a "gift" of the people.

A lot of time seems to be wasted in trying to save many who are not lost and many more who are not worth saving.

The Man Who Wins The man who wins is the man who acts, Who builds on a basis of solid facts; Who doesn't sit down to mope and dream, Who mumps ahead with the force of a stream, Who hasn't the time to fuss and fret, But sets there every time,—you bet.

A lady was telling us the other day that she used to sit up until one o'clock in the morning wondering if her sweetheart would ever go home. Now she declares that she sits up until one o'clock every night wondering if he will ever come home.

"Is your wife still at home?" a gentleman we know was asked by a friend. "Not much," he retorted, "she is louder there than anywhere else."

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Milk and Butter that they had, of course, made all the wee folks glad. They gathered round the campfire where the beans were cooking well. They watched the water bubble high and Cloway shortly shouted, "My, most everything we've got looks good. This surely will be swell."

done and all the bunch had heaps of fun just watching Copy take them from the blaze and send them 'round. For plates they found some dandy shells, and in a moment, mid loud yells, the whole bunch gathered 'round the rock and squatted on the ground. Such food they'd never had before. At first they wished that there was more, but as they ate, they soon filled up, as stuffed, as they could be. The corn was spread with butter thick. You'd think 'twould almost make them sick. But, gee, it never bothered them, like it would you and me. In half an hour the meal was done. Wee Cloway said, "I'll guess I'll run around so I can soon digest my food, and feel real good. He jumped up to his feet and then, he almost fell right down again. Said he, "I'll have to rest instead." The whole crowd knew he would. (The Tinymites have a fine swing in the next story.)

With his hands extended, the Indian boy clove the water with the cleanness of an arrow shot from a bow. He made scarcely a splash as he disappeared from sight. To the swimmers and the boys in the judge's canoe, it seemed that he would never come up. But he popped into view at last. "As I live and breathe," exclaimed Jack Lockwill, "he's brought Saunders up with him!"

Jack swam again with all his might, and he reached Longpine and Saunders a little ahead of the judge's canoe. "Swing up and take this one in, too," he called.

Getting a limp fellow as big as Saunders into the canoe was a ticklish job, but it was done at last. Recovering, Buke sat up and held his head in his hands.

There was a bleeding gash in Buke's scalp. "Rotten, murderous injuns!" he gulped. "I guess they're both good and bad, like other people," said the judge. "You owe your life to one of them. Don't forget that." Saunders didn't speak another word during the trip back to the camp. When the float was reached, he was the first to get out of the canoe, still sullenly silent. SEE HYDE AS COMER IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

Some of the Gallery Believe He May Stop Favorites, Ben and John Cheney.

Despite the fact that Ben and John Cheney are strong favorites to win the Captain's cup handicap golf tournament at the Manchester Country Club, there are many who believe that John Hyde will give them warm competition. The latter is playing brilliant golf of late and is regularly clipping them in the seventies. Par on the course is 36 and 34 for an even 70.

Last night Cheney found Police Commissioner Albert Dewey to his liking and won easily, 8 and 5. This means that young Cheney and John Hyde will meet in the upper bracket of the semi-finals, Hyde having eliminated Dr. N. A. Burr 3 and 1 earlier in the week. The other two matches in the second round were played this afternoon or possibly tomorrow. They bring together Ben Cheney and Charley Johnson and L. L. Goslin and A. J. Gallup.

NO LONGER DOUBTFUL OF WILSON'S IDENTITY

Body of Drowned Manchester Youth Brought Here; Funeral at Home Tomorrow.

With positive identification established, arrangements were made today for the funeral of George Alfred Wilson, twenty-year-old Manchester youth who was drowned in Long Island Sound a week ago Monday. Identification was made certain by the teeth and other physical characteristics. The body was shipped by train from Westport at 9:14 this morning and Undertaker Mark Holmes met the train at Hartford and returned here with it shortly before noon. The casket will not be taken to the Wilson home until tomorrow. The funeral will be at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

It is probable that the funeral service, which will be held at the home of the youth's mother, Mrs. Mary Wilson at 19 Stock Place, will be largely attended. George had a great many friends. Members of the North Ends, a junior football team of which young Wilson was one of the best players, will act as pall bearers.

ALTERING BOILER ROOM AT BON AMI FACTORY

Manchester Firm Doing Work There and On Two Contracts in Winsted.

The Manchester Construction Company has been awarded the contract for alterations in the boiler room of the Orford Soap Company's factory at the north end. The roof is to be raised several feet as to give more head room over the boilers. The work is already well under way. The brickwork is finished and the carpenters are putting the roof on. The job will be finished next week.

The construction company has a contract for concrete piers and coal trestles for the Tiffany and Pickett Coal and Lumber Company in Winsted. This work will be done in conjunction with the school job in that town which the Manchester contractors are now working on.

SMALLEST GARDEN

One of the smallest and at the same time one of the most successful flower gardens in Manchester is that maintained by Secretary George Rix just outside the rear windows of the Chamber of Commerce quarters. On the broken-stones covered roof of the extension of the Dewey-Richman building, which constitutes the Chamber's back yard, is an angle trapezium like a window box, half a dozen feet long, in which flourish exceptionally beautiful specimens of zinnia, marigold and that now somewhat rare but delightful old-time favorite the four-o'clock, the latter in rose-pink, red-and-white and primrose yellow. Aside from this the garden consists of just one pot of portulaca. In its special and peculiar environment it is a pipkin of a garden, despite its modest scope.

EARL GOT HIS PALS FOR TRIP TO MAINE

Offered Free Ride to Anybody And Three Local Girls Dodged Railroad Fares.

Again it has been proved that it pays to advertise in The Manchester Evening Herald. Recently it was told through the news columns of this newspaper that Earl Clifford of 41 Foster street was planning to go to Maine on his vacation and that rather than to make the long drive in his Ford alone, he would give anyone who was going up that way a free ride.

That night Earl received a telephone call. A somewhat bashful girlish voice inquired: "I read that piece in The Herald tonight. Does it make any difference what kind of companions go with you. There are two other girls and myself who would like to go up as far as Augusta if you are willing."

Earl assured them he was perfectly satisfied with the bargain and so his ride was not so lonesome after all.

FUNERAL OF GEORGE JOHNSON
Funeral services for George Johnson, former Manchester man, who died in New Haven Sunday, were largely attended yesterday at Watkins Bros. and at the Swedish Lutheran Church. Rev. P. J. O. Cornell officiated. Burial was in the East Cemetery. The dead man was buried in his aviation uniform and the funeral was of military character, with soldiers from the local companies acting as a firing squad.

The Element of Safety

If you are going to travel among strangers, they know nothing about your personal check and naturally will not want to cash it. Likewise, you know nothing about them so cash is not safe to carry.

The element of safety lies in the carrying of Travelers Cheques—the insured "blue" travel funds.

If you are going away for a week—a month—or for any length of time; if you are going to travel into strange places where you are not known—come in and let us simplify your financing with American Express Travelers Cheques.
