DOUGHBOYS IS POPULAR IN FRENCH CITY

Legionnaires With Smiles and Ready Cash Making a Great Hit in Paris—Are Behaving Themselves.

Trocadero Palace, Paris, Sept. 21.—The American doughboy, with his funny headgear, his infectious grin and his pocketful of francs, apparently has succeeded in accomplishing something which has been the ambition of the high-hatted professional diplomatists. He has succeeded in restoring, to some extent at least, American popularity in France.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who flew across the ocean into the heart of France, laid a strong foundation, and the American Legion is building on it a cathedral of friendship which it hopes will endure forever.

In the four days during which the streets of Paris have been thronged with Americans here for the ninth annual convention of the Legion, there has not been one single unpleasant incident of major importance, which in itself is striking evidence of the exemplary deportment of the Americans, as well as of the tolerance and tact of the French.

Drank Much Wine
Much wine has been consumed, to be sure, and much good-natured horse-play has taken place, but the Americans have not proclaimed publicly that they won the war. The French have not made mention of that figure which some of the contemporary cartoonists sketch as "Uncle Shylock."

Monday's parade, which saw nearly 20,000 American legionnaires take Paris by storm, and which the majority of the French press compared to the Lindbergh celebration, put over the convention with a bang so far as Paris is concerned.

All France sat along the boulevards, saw the Legionnaires laughing, and became friendly. The enormous troop concentration by the French government to protect the Legionnaires proved to be unnecessary. The troops might just as well have stayed in the barracks so far as the Americans needing protection was concerned.

Both American Legion and French government leaders are elated over popularity the Legionnaires have won, for both had been secretly nervous and a trifle apprehensive. But no such Franco-American love feasting has been seen in Paris for the last ten years as was enacted here in the four days which have passed since the Legion arrived.

Instead of railing at the United States because of the debt, tariff, reparations questions and what not, French cabinet officers and politicians of all parties save the Communist have joined in one grand chorus of American praise.

The Old America
For the time being at least, America again is a country which came to France's aid in the darkest hours of her history, and in the same generous way her friends of France instead of being Shylocks, and "dollar chasers," as they've been called these last eight years.

Nightly banquets of an official character are comparable only to the days of 1917 for effusive manifestations of Franco-American friendship. President Doumergue, Premier Poincare, Minister of Pensions Marin, as well as military leaders such as Marshal Foch and General Gouraud and others, have spoken publicly addressing Americans as "dear friends of France" in a manner reminiscent of the time when America entered the World War.

How long this reborn cordiality may live can only be speculated upon, but no one who has been in Paris this week can doubt that the friendship between the two nations is stronger than ever. In speaking at the Legion's honorary dinner to President Doumergue last night, declared:

"I am confident that the best results will follow this Paris convention. The American people often think the French do not know us, and since the French army could not come to America, the best way of permitting the French people to know us was to send our veterans to Paris."

Commander Howard P. Savage of the Legion was no less delighted with the state of affairs.

"We have confounded the critics who knocked this pilgrimage as a drunken joyride," he said to International News Service. "The Legionnaires have conducted themselves admirably, and have done more to re-establish the friendly war-time feelings between the people of France and America than anything else could have done."

"Of course there has been drinking, but so is there at home."

"The United States should be proud of its Second A. E. F."

Edward E. Spafford, of New York, appeared to have a considerable lead today in the pre-election jockeying for the post of national commander. A caucus of New York, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Illinois, Missouri, Michigan, Texas and Oklahoma delegations pledged nearly 500 votes for Spafford, and he has scattering support in a number of other states.

SIAMESE TWINS FIGHTING DEATH

Joined at Hips, One Girl is Sick and the Other Tries to Comfort Her.

Holyoke, Mass., Sept. 21.—The most unusual and dramatic race with death ever recorded here seemed won today when Mary and Margaret Gibbs, 14, "America's Siamese Twins" emerged from the path of the Great Reaper, safe from pneumonia but still sick with influenza.

Joined by flesh at the hips with her twin sister, Mary for hours lay close to death's door. Margaret, sensitive to every pain her sister experienced, encouraged Mary to be brave, held the feverish hand beside her, and helped her sister fight her dreaded malady. Two physicians and loving parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Gibbs, played major roles in the fight.

By a strange twist of fate, during the "flu" epidemic nine years ago, Margaret suffered most with Mary doing the cheering at her side.

For hours, physicians feared Mary would die and perhaps carry with her in death her sister as well as the Siamese twins a few months ago. An operation might have been attempted although medical experts believe the girls are joined at the spinal column and that an operation would be fatal.

The twins are well known to stage and radio audiences of the United States. Together they weigh 230 pounds. The strongest affected child, Margaret, is livelier and more musical than her sister.

JIMMY DECLINES FRENCH HONORS

Mayor of New York Refuses To Be Decorated; Leaves For Home Today.

Paris, Sept. 21.—Mayor James J. Walker's excessive modesty today caused him to decline the highest honor that France could bestow and to request that no elaborate arrangements be made for his reception home in New York.

The New York mayor declined the decoration of Commander of French Legion of Honor, which was to have been bestowed on him by President Doumergue. Soon after, Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the mayor welcoming committee of New York, that he wanted no tug to meet the S. S. Ile De France when it arrives in New York harbor next Tuesday.

Asked by Friends
Mayor Walker rejected the Legion of Honor decoration when his friends advised him that acceptance might give the impression that he had "bargained" for the honor. They recalled that he had supported the French government in asking the Legion of Honor of the United States to rescind taxes due on a parcel of land in Brooklyn used by the French as a supply depot during the war.

Mayor Walker also hesitated to accept because he feared that his admission into the Legion of Honor might detract from the decoration to be given Howard P. Savage, National Commander of the American Legion.

In expressing its regret at the mayor's refusal, the government suggested that the decoration might be awarded Mayor Walker at a later date in New York, at the same time decorating Whalen with the rank of Chevalier. It was regarded as probable that this procedure would be taken.

"If he won no championships and have conquered no territory," the mayor said in explaining his stand, "I have just had a vacation."

TROOPS, INSURGENTS IN PITCHED BATTLE

Large Number Reported Dead and Wounded Along the Warsaw River.

Vienna, Sept. 21.—A large number of Jugo-Slav troops and Macedonian insurgents were reported dead or wounded today as a result of an all-night pitched battle in the Warsaw river valley last night, according to a report reaching here from Belgrade.

The battle occurred when a number of Jugo-Slav police troops, searching the valley for persons suspected of having bombed a train that vicinity yesterday, encountered the Macedonian band of insurgents.

The Jugo-Slav government today dispatched reinforcements to the valley with instructions to clear the country of the Macedonian separatists.

LILLIENDAHL GUN SOUGHT BY SLEUTHS

Doctor's Revolver Has Dis- appeared From His Home; Police Promise an Arrest in Two Days.

Hammonton, N. J., Sept. 21.—Quest for the murderer of Dr. William Lilliendaahl, aged narcotic specialist, centered today on the slain physician's revolver which authorities said had disappeared from the Lilliendaahl home at Vineland.

It had been learned, according to Detective Chief Frank Harrold, that Dr. Lilliendaahl kept a loaded revolver in his home. The weapon has been missing since the doctor's bullet-placed body was found in his automobile near Vineland.

Find Will
Chief Harrold also announced that a will, drawn up by the doctor but two months ago and bequeathing his entire estate to his widow, had been found. The estate is valued at approximately $50,000.

Mrs. Lilliendaahl, who has been placed under $25,000 bond in connection with the investigation, was under the care of friends today following her collapse at the doctor's funeral.

Expect Arrest Soon
While authorities announced this morning that the search for the actual slayer would turn to New York, Prosecutor Cameron Hinkle declared: "We expect an arrest within two or three days on the clues we now have developed."

It was noted the prosecutor said the search for the "slayer" had turned to New York. He spoke in the singular whereas Mrs. Lilliendaahl had claimed two negro thugs committed the murder.

One motive advanced was that of a narcotic dispute in which the doctor might have acquired an enemy sufficiently enraged to kill him.

WM. RUBINOW BUYS WADSWORTH HOME

Manchester Business Man Acquires Famous Colonial House At the Green.

William Rubinow, proprietor of Rubinow's Garment Fashion Center, today purchased the handsome Colonial home, the former home of the late Daniel Wadsworth at East Center and Pitkin streets.

The sale was made through the Robert J. Smith agency by Miss Anna Wadsworth, administratrix of the estates of Daniel and Herbert Wadsworth.

The Wadsworth home has been one of the show places of Manchester for many years. It is a typical Colonial type home, has 12 large rooms, a valuable old fashion interior finish, and fireplaces that are in themselves of considerable value because of their antique character. The property has a one and a half acres of land and there is a large barn on the lot. The frontage on East Center street is 400 feet.

Former Town Clerk
The home was occupied by Daniel Wadsworth who served Manchester as town clerk for a long period of years, being succeeded by the late Sanford M. Benton. Mr. Wadsworth was a great lover of flowers and shrubs and the home is surrounded by valuable plants and shrubbery. The property came into the Wadsworth family in 1822. It was owned by Ralph Cone who conducted a carriage shop across the road.

Though an old home it is very well designed and well built. It contains practically every modern improvement. The woodwork is in excellent condition. The fireplace in the living room bears a hand-carved mantel over 100 years old. It was placed there by Herbert Wadsworth, an ardent collector of antiques.

An Investment
The home is situated in the center of a rapidly growing residential section and is considered one of the choicest locations in Manchester. Mr. Rubinow says he has no particular plans in view in regard to the home. He may dispose of it soon or he may hold it for investment purposes. He does not intend to make his home there.

HANCOCK LEADING

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 21.—With only six districts unheeded from, Clarence E. Hancock, corporation counsel of Syracuse, was leading today for the republican nomination for Congress in the thirty-fifth district by nearly 5,000 votes.

The primary vote was Hancock, 22,525; Frank E. Wade, 17,296; and William Allen Dyer, 714.

Here is the $25,000 Witness

Held under $25,000 bond as a "material witness" in the mystery murder of her husband, Mrs. Margaret Lilliendaahl is pictured above leaving state police headquarters at Hammonton, N. J., after the bond has been produced. With her are her brother, J. Sherwood Thompson (left), and her eight-year-old son Alfred. Mrs. Lilliendaahl was detained four days during investigation of her assertion that she was beaten and her husband, the elderly Dr. William Lilliendaahl, was killed by two men who waylaid their auto.

MODERN, SCIENTIFIC METHODS TO SOLVE TAXING PROBLEMS

Edward A. McCarthy, of New Britain, Writes Series of Four Articles on Equaliza- tion of Town Taxes.

Editor's Note: Reduction in, or equalization of municipal or town taxes is today considered by experts to be a major problem confronting local governments. In a series of four articles, prepared for International News Service by Edward A. McCarthy, of New Britain, every phase of local taxation is touched upon and modern scientific solutions as tried in several Connecticut communities are offered as a means of eliminating perplexing problems.

Mr. McCarthy is nationally known as an expert in tax affairs, and his work is vouched for by William H. Blodgett, state tax commissioner, in the following foreword: "The first article by Mr. McCarthy appears today and the remainder will appear on successive days."

By WILLIAM H. BLODGETT
There is being raised annually in Connecticut for purposes of local government approximately $57,000,000. This amount is increasing each year. The plans laid fifty years ago for raising money through the property tax do not adapt themselves to present-day conditions. Constantly increasing perplexities of society and business enterprise in the centers of population in particular serve to make necessary and compel fundamental alterations in the time-worn plans formerly adopted to equitably distribute this huge tax burden. The methods employed by some towns have not been carefully examined in the last fifty years. When so examined as a means of fundamental alteration, the reaction of citizens of all classes, as a rule, calls for some new method by which to smooth out the rough places to the end that a fair share of justice may be measured out as among taxpayers.

It becomes apparent at once when so examined that when tax

BERGDOLL WANTS TO RE-ENTER U. S.

Draft Dodger Asks Ameri- can Consul in Germany What He Should Do.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the Philadelphia draft dodger, is seeking a way to re-enter the United States from Germany where he fled after the war, it was learned at the State Department today.

John E. Kehl, American consul at Stuttgart, reported to the department that he had received a letter from Bergdoll, written from Holzminden, Germany, asking what steps he would have to take to get back to this country. Kehl asked for instructions. A reply to Kehl is now being drafted.

Federal authorities have announced they will prosecute Bergdoll if he ever returned to America.

Hearing Next Week
A hearing on the writ will be held in the Federal Court at New Haven next Wednesday. Hugh M. Aloor, state's attorney, will then be requested to show cause why the witness should not be released. Sam Ong Ing is being held until the full term of the Supreme Court of Errors when the appeal from a death sentence will be made by Su Hin Wing and Ching Lung, the convicted men.

PASTOR BRINGS SUIT
Norwalk, Sept. 21.—Rev. Eustace Blake, pastor of the Knight Street A. M. E. church, and his wife today filed suits totaling $2,000 against Edward Meeker, local manufacturer, claiming that in June Mrs. Blake was seriously injured in their home, owned by Meeker, when a piece of plaster fell and rendered Mrs. Blake unconscious. Rev. Mr. Blake asks $500 for himself and $1,500 for his wife.

U. S. Vets Leave Hall While Poincare Speaks

Verdun, France, Sept. 21.—Declarating that they came to Verdun to visit the battlefields, and not to hear speeches, hundreds of American Legionnaires walked out from the official luncheon tendered them in the market place here today, leaving Premier Poincare speaking to an almost empty hall.

"We're not in the army now. Let's go," the Legionnaires exclaimed when the prolonged luncheon and the length of the official speeches promised to cut short the legionnaires' visit to the battlefields. They went, forthwith.

Among the notables present at the luncheon, in addition to Premier Poincare, were General Pershing, General Petain, General Gouraud, and the Prefect of Muse, department of Meuse.

The Legionnaires, who had arrived at Verdun from Paris shortly after noon, were scheduled to leave for the battlefields at one o'clock, right after luncheon. But the task of serving the 1,000 Legionnaires taxed the capacity of the serving staff, with the result that the luncheon was not finished until 2:30 o'clock.

M. Poincare, undisturbed by the rush for the exits, continued his speech to the end, his words carrying high praise of the departing Legionnaires as long as the latter were within hearing distance.

"I raise my glass to the American veterans, and drink to the immortal army of France and the United States," the French premier said.

"It is a brotherhood in arms, tested by the most awful, the most murderous war in which mankind has ever been involved. This brotherhood can not be short-lived, nor can our mutual sentiments be doomed to destruction in the conflict of interests that are bound to arrive or persist after great international shock."

WESLEYAN COLLEGE STARTS 97TH YEAR

Increased Enrollment, Large- er Faculty and Improved Plant, Officials Announce.

Middletown, Sept. 21.—Wesleyan University opened its ninety-seventh year today with increased enrollment, a larger faculty, and an improved plant. The university also moved to restrict use of autos by students, limiting them to juniors and seniors who must secure special permits from the administrative council based on parents' approval and satisfactory grades.

President McConaughy delivered his address of matriculation this afternoon, using the topic "College—An Adventure," declaring that Wesleyan invests nearly $1,000 in every undergraduate each year. "Parents and society are share holders," he said, "in the adventure of the 600,000 American students which represent an investment of two billion dollars a year. The public rightly demands that the number of students, who engage on this adventure and fail, should decrease, thus avoiding the tremendous losses involved."

Six faculty members, two of professional grade, begin work at Wesleyan this year, the two professors being Malcolm C. Foster, formerly teacher of mathematics at Williams and Yale, and W. W. Wood, football coach for eight years football coach and director of physical education at Gettysburg college.

By Easter time the university expects to house all her students on the campus, the completion of Harriman dormitory being due early next year. Olin Memorial library will be opened at least in part by Thanksgiving Day. This will be the only college library in the country large enough to provide seats for two-thirds of the undergraduates all at one time.

Average Scholarship
Dean Nicolson announced today that the average scholarship of the college body during the past school year was 76 per cent, the best in five years. Extra-curriculum activities proved successful. Participants in eleven of fifteen activities recognized by the faculty making an average grade of scholarship higher than that of the college body as a whole. Scholarship of track team and football members was the lowest, and of tennis highest.

DENIES SHE CONFESSED TO KILLING HUSBAND

Wife Says She Feared Being Mobbbed—Says She Loved Him.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 21.—Mrs. Elsie Steward went on the witness stand today in an attempt to prove that she was in fear of being mobbed at the time she made two confessions through which the state hoped to convict her of the murder of her husband that she might marry Lawrence M. Hight, pastor.

In an emotional demonstration before Judge Pearce, who must decide whether the confessions are admissible, Mrs. Steward wept as she moaned:

"They were so cruel, so cruel to me, and I kept telling them over and over again I didn't kill my husband. I didn't kill my husband. I loved him."

GUARDING BOXERS ON EVE OF BATTLE

Both In Seclusion at Camps Until They Go to City To- morrow Morning.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Precautions almost as great as those accorded a president are taken to protect Tunney and Dempsey at their respective camps. Tunney went into complete seclusion and Dempsey would only see his closest friends and relatives, including his father, Hiram Dempsey, who has come all the way from Utah "to see my boy win back the championship."

Both fighters tomorrow will come to Chicago under an escort of state highway police and put up at Loop hotels to await the zero hour 10 p. m. tomorrow night—when they will settle their dispute in a twenty-foot ring pitched on the shore of the breezy lake front.

Take Tickets
Rickard, meanwhile, was active in co-operating with the authorities in an effort to break up a counterfeit ticket swindle. Chicago detectives found that "phony tickets" were being sold in large blocks in clear stores and poolrooms in the downtown district. The tickets were in all denominations, from the $5 to the $40 variety, and were so well this liberally-conducted town. The

GOTTSCALK PLEA GUILTY AT TRIAL

Local Man's Attorney Tells Herald Client Will Plead Guilty Today.

Attorney Fred J. Corbett, representing Henry W. Gottschalk of Henry street, charged with forgery, told The Herald today that his client would plead guilty when his case came before the Hartford County superior court in the opening session late this afternoon. The case was slated to have been brought to trial at two o'clock today but had not been called at 3 p. m.

With the plea of guilty to the charge entered Mr. Corbett did not believe sentence would be passed until tomorrow.

There are 193 cases on the Superior court docket. Five of them are Manchester cases. Aside from the Gottschalk trial Francis Taylor faces the court for burglary, Frank Kupchunis, Tony Kupchunis and Peter Luckso on appeals from breach of peace penalties. The appeals of Paul Ansell and Antonio Bavardi charged with liquor violations have been vacated.

Class B Planes Nearing Goal—Class A Group Leave St. Paul; Machines Strung All Along the Route, Many Down—Pac- ific Coast Racers Start; Non-Stop Planes Ready For Flag.

Glendive, Mont., Sept. 21.—Pilot Leslie Miller and C. W. Meyers, leaders in the Class B, trans-continental Air Derby race from New York to Spokane, took off from here at 7 A. M. today for Spokane. The two pilots, who have been fighting for first position almost since the start of the race Monday, are due at the Spokane goal line this afternoon. Five minute stops for fuel will be made today at Billings and Missoula, Mont. The remaining entrants in the Class B race are strung out all the way from Chicago to Bismarck, N. D.

CLASS A PLANES St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 21.—Resuming their flight westward, nine of the Class "A" planes in the trans-continental Derby from New York to Spokane, took off from here shortly after seven o'clock this morning after having rested here over night. Their first stop today will be at Aberdeen, S. D., accompanied by "class A" that left New York yesterday, only nine reached St. Paul. Of the remaining six, one was forced to remain in Chicago over night, two were forced down by darkness near their goal in St. Paul, one was withdrawn, and two were with one of them with a loss of two lives.

PACIFIC COAST RACE Mills Field, San Francisco, Sept. 21.—With six of the class B planes already winging their way to Spokane, Wash., the Pacific coast air derby, the Class A race was resumed today when Lee Scholner sent his intercontinental plane into the air at a half minute after 6 o'clock. He replaced Thomas F. Wells as pilot in a last-minute change. Wells accompanied him as a passenger. The other four entries roared away at half minute intervals, the take-off being completed at 6:02:30. All of the planes in the Class A race carried passengers. Planes piloted by Vance Brase and Jack Frye each carried three. Mrs. Kitty Brase, the only woman passenger in the race, was riding in her husband's plane. Norman Goddard's Imperial, the second to take off, carried two passengers. The International, piloted by Lee Scholner, carried one, as did the Travelair, piloted by N. C. Lipplait.

NON-STOP RACERS Roosevelt Field, N. Y. Sept. 21.—Three entries were ready early today for participation in the non-stop flight from Roosevelt Field to Spokane, Washington, scheduled to start this afternoon. This is the third and final race in the derby. The three flyers were Eddie Stinson and "Duke" Schiller, with Stinson Detroiters, and Steve Lacey of Hinckley, Ill., with an Air-King plane. Schiller's plane is the Royal Windsor. Lacey, flying "solo," arrived here from Cleveland last night. The National Airways Service of Lomax, is backing his flight. Jack Rand, who is supposed to be flying here from San Diego, Calif., in a rebuilt Waterhouse cruiser, was many hours overdue early today. He is entered in the non-stop race to Spokane. Lacey's Air-King biplane was ruled out of the Dole race from California to Hawaii at the last minute because it did not have a great enough gasoline capacity.

MILLER AHEAD Glendive, Mont., Sept. 21.—Leslie Miller, of Des Moines, flying an Eaglecrone Plane No. 41, was leading the field of entrants today in Class "B" in the cross-continental air race from New York to Spokane, swooping down on the field here just one minute ahead of C. W. Meyer, No. 38, flying a Waco 10. Miller was forced down 70 miles west of Fargo, S. D., because of ignition trouble, but was taken away after ten minutes ahead of C. W. Meyer. The Arrivals The numbers of entry, the make of plane, the name of individual company or city entering it, the place from which it was entered, the name of the pilot and the time it arrived at Glendive follows: 41—Eaglecrone, Leslie Miller Des Moines, Ia. 4:50 p. m. 6—Waco 10, Berry Brothers (Continued on Page 2)

Rockville

(Special to The Herald.) Rockville, Sept. 21.

Deal Completed

The so-called Prescott Block on Park street which has been owned by Charles E. House of South Manchester and Charles Murphy of Rockville, the largest store being occupied by them as a clothing store, was disposed of yesterday afternoon to Max Lerner. The bond for the deed was given early in June and yesterday afternoon the final payment was made whereby Mr. Lerner became the owner. Included in the sale was a lease to House & Murphy for ten years. The building is three stories high, has four stories on the ground floor and is occupied by offices in the second floor and two large halls on the third floor. There is also ample room in the rear which has been hinted might be used as a motion picture house later with entrance from the Park street side through the present lobby. There will be but one change in the store tenants, Patrick Grady, who has occupied one of the ground floor stores will move to the second floor, occupying the section recently vacated by Thomas Garvan, who for years has maintained his office there.

One of the first changes that will be made will be the laying of a walk on the Park street side which will replace a far walk that now fronts the building.

May Have Larger Docket The number of cases that have developed within the past month on which the state police are working may result in about fifteen to twenty more cases being brought before the superior court, criminal side on bench warrants before the term gets well underway. The court opens next week Friday since the recess, following the sudden ending of the Cline trial.

Who Will Be Mayor? While the Rockville city election does not come until December there is already talk of probable candidates for mayor. It is pretty well understood that the present mayor, John Cameron has no desire to seek a renomination, but is ready to step down and feels that he has already given much of his time to the city. The two meetings of the month of the common council, together with the other matters that takes his attention outside of these meetings has been many. He has expressed the opinion that he would like to retire.

The year now closing has been one in which there has been much work accomplished of a permanent nature. The only bond that stands against the city is the refunded sewer bonds, which has been arranged in a serial payment and the finances are well in hand. Much work in the way of improved roads and curbs and gutters has been accomplished. As yet no candidates for the position has been even whispered of and one of two that were mentioned have made it clear that they do not care for the position. There is no doubt but what Mr. Cameron could again secure the nomination in the Republican primary and be elected if he so wished.

Rockville For Dempsey Regardless of the ability of either Dempsey, his manager, Leo Flynn or Tunney as letter writers the chief interest in the fistic exchange of swats that is scheduled to be produced in Chicago tomorrow night, the general opinion is being held that the old saying "they never come back" is going to be one of the exceptions to the rule and that Dempsey is coming back.

Those who saw Dempsey perform in Philadelphia a year ago and then saw him in action against Sharkey are so convinced that it will be the subject of discussion yesterday afternoon, last night and this morning. Arrangements have been made to have the returns received by radio not only by public places, but there has been a big demand for batteries and several different home parties have been planned to await the fight. This opinion is not confined to any one section of the city, but seems to be the general opinion of those who have followed boxing and they are backing their opinion with their money.

Coming Marriages Mrs. Anna Frey of Windemere avenue announces the coming marriage of her daughter, Miss Sophie Cesar to Carl J. Bush, son of Julius Bush of Prospect street. The wedding will take place on Wednesday October 25th.

Resumes Studies Milton Liebe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Liebe of Prospect street, who has been preaching at the church at No. Ashford, Conn., during the summer months was presented with a purse of money at the close of the services on last Sunday. Mr. Liebe will leave this week for Chester, Pa. where he will resume his studies in Crozier Theological Seminary.

Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at their rooms on East Main street. The Rockville Lodge of Elks, B. P. O. E. will hold a regular meeting and initiation at the home on Thursday evening.

Miss Hilda Ostertag of Union underwent a tonsil operation at the City Hospital on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phelps and daughters, Dorothy and Mildred, have arrived from an extended trip to Europe.

There will be an important meeting of the Rockville Girls' Club on Thursday evening in their rooms. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock and following a short business session there will be refreshments and a social time. Miss Margaret Cratty of Prospect street is spending a few days with relatives in Maynard, Mass.

NEGLECTS BROKEN ARM TO AID INJURED HORSE

Colony Hunter Leads His Saddle Turk Five Miles After Fall in Woods.

Colonel D. Gordon Hunter, commander of the 169th Infantry, C. N. G., and very well known by Manchester men of any military connection, is a lover of horses.

Colonel Hunter's right arm was broken but his first thoughts when he regained consciousness was of his horse, which had also been badly injured. Colonel Hunter succeeded in helping the horse out of the mire and led him back to the Cavalry Armory nearly five miles away, where a veterinarian took 16 stitches in Turk's head. Until the horse was attended to, Colonel Hunter refused to heed his own injuries.

Blind Woman's Work Wins Prizes at Fair

Hartford, Sept. 21.—One of the surprises at the country fair at Marlborough, this state, last week was the fact that a totally blind woman, Miss Ivie M. Mead, one of the home teachers of the State Board of Education of the Blind was awarded the first prize in the fancy work class.

The article which took first prize was a slumber robe which was done in an attractive Roman stripe. The robe attracted much attention and many people during the day wished to buy it; but the fair authorities preferred to keep it on exhibition. Miss Mead made the robe during her summer vacation and says that it took her nearly two months of careful work to perfect it.

MANCHESTER HORSES IN RACES AT FAIR

Much interest is being taken in the opportunity to learn horseback riding at the Manchester Riding Academy on Woodland street. Stephen D. Pearl, the proprietor and instructor, reports. Saturday afternoons and Sundays, there are larger classes than on week days.

Mr. Pearl, however, has been unable to give all of his time to the teaching during the past few weeks because of the fairs about the state in which he is entering four of his best colts. Today and tomorrow he is racing at the Brooklyn Fair and later will compete at Worcester.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (88) A Newspaper's Background

The wonderful story of the evolution of the modern daily newspaper goes back to the days when men carved pictures and signs on bones and wood and bark and stone. Then they made bricks of clay and stamped inscriptions on them. Then they carved their hieroglyphs on the walls of temples.

The Egyptians probably were the first people to invent a kind of paper. They called it papyrus from the name of the bullrush used to make it.

We really owe our modern paper to the ingenious Chinese. Originally the Chinese wrote on bamboo boards or a tissue of silk.

The first paper the Chinese made was from the bark of the mulberry tree—the tree that silkworms feed on. The oldest paper document known dates back to about a hundred years after Christ. For seven hundred years, and it was by accident that paper-making found its way to Europe.

A NUISANCE DOLLAR

Some of our blessings come to us from such obscure sources that we know not whom to thank for them. For example, the new one-dollar bill which is due to make its appearance in the avenues of trade about the first of the year. Everybody knows that the new one-dollar bill is on its way. For months we have been hearing about it. But up to yet this immediate responsibility for the creation of this bizarre piece of currency has never, so far as we know, been publicly claimed by anyone.

Of course we can thank—our blame—Mr. Mellon for the new paper simoleon, since he is head of the department from which the shrunken dollar will emanate. Or we can, with about as good reason, thank or blame Mr. Coolidge for it, since he is responsible for Mr. Mellon being at the head of the Treasury Department. But it is extremely doubtful if either of these gentlemen ever took any active part in wishing this kind of a dollar on the general public; indeed, it may be possible that neither of them have any more idea than that general public why we are to have the abbreviated dollar.

There is probably some ancient bureaucrat, who has spent all his life in some division of the Treasury Department which has to do with the issue and reissue of paper money and who has all that paper nursed the notion that our paper money is of the wrong size. Somehow or other, in the course of Treasury events and inside promotions it is probable that this ancient bozo has gotten into a strategic position where he could put his hobby into effect. We can think of no other reason why the government should spring this aggravation.

The new dollar, a third smaller in measurements than all our other paper units, is bound to be an unmitigated nuisance. Yet nobody, apparently, has taken the trouble to enter even a faint protest against it.

But wait until it gets into circulation. Then the wails will go up. Bankers, merchants, cashiers, everybody who has to do with the handling of considerable sums in cash, will be penning long and fervent kicks to the Treasury Department. And by that time it will be about as easy to stop the issue of the nuisance dollars and get them recalled out of circulation, as it proved to be to stop the Mississippi floods.

A TEN-STRIKE

There will be very general satisfaction throughout the country over the appointment of Dwight W. Morrow to be American ambassador to Mexico. President Coolidge could scarcely have made a selection for this highly important post which would carry with it more of promise for intelligent and just handling of the difficult problems awaiting solution below the Rio Grande.

Dwight Morrow is a bigger man—a much bigger man—than any of those several persons who have represented United States interests in Mexico during recent years. There will be those who will exclaim over the fact that he has been a member of one of the greatest financial houses in the country, jumping at the conclusion that he goes to Mexico as special representative of the very class of people whose influence in Mexican affairs has been detrimental to the cause of peace and justice. We take this view to be wholly erroneous. Morrow is a financier, to be sure, but he is a financier of the first class and less likely, by a very great deal, than persons of less high standing in the business world to be used as a cat-paw by any one of those special interests which in the past have placed their own particular advantage first and America's reputation for justice and fairness second.

Mr. Morrow, high as he stands in the financial world, occupies in this country a still higher position as an American citizen. His war service, in the organization of transport and supply, was of enormous value—it may be remembered that he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal by General Pershing for those services. He is an educator, a lawyer of the first grade and has been intimately identified with numbers of extremely important works for the public welfare.

Mexican affairs will be in better hands than they have been for a long time.

HE WHO RUNS

Only one condition is at all certain to result from the formal withdrawal of William Gibbs McAdoo from the race for the Democratic Presidential nomination next year—the absence of a repetition of the deadlock of 1924. Everything else is problematical.

Mr. McAdoo has been a persistent seeker after the Presidency. It is doubtful if in recent times there has been any other individual, with the single exception of the late Champ Clark, who so passionately desired for so long a time to occupy the White House. On the Republican side there have been Henry Cabot Lodge and the late Russell Alger of Michigan, one of whom secretly and the other quite openly nursed the Presidential aspiration for many years; but there has been nobody in either party, in all probability, to whom that ambition was so impelling a thing as to Mr. McAdoo—not even Al Smith himself.

It would be gratifying if one could be quite sure of Mr. McAdoo's reason for taking himself out of the picture. There is a suspicion that it might be a fear that, this time, he would win the nomination, rather than that he would lose it. For a McAdoo victory over Smith in the next Democratic national convention would probably be the emptiest honor that has come to a Presidential aspirant since Belva Lockwood.

Fancy the way the Smithites would rush to the polls to vote for McAdoo!

And while we are about us let us, too, fancy the way the McAdooites will rush to the polls to vote for Smith!

"PURE HEARTS"

President Von Hindenburg is an old man who in his later years has served the cause of peace and of civilization not so badly. But he is still an old man and, of course, as intensely German as he always has been. His passionate protestation, at this late date, that Germany was blameless for the World War is the expression of an old man and an intense patriot. Historically it is worthless.

It is all very well for persons who seek to be excessively judicial to hold up an admonitor hand against prejudiced determinations on the question of war guilt. But in this country, it must be remembered, there was no reason for any particular prejudice against Germany at the time of the beginning of the war. Nor was there such prejudice. Yet American condemnation of Germany's course in the summer of 1914 was practically unanimous except among those persons of German blood whose love of the Fatherland colored their judgment.

Further than this, there were plenty of Americans who, from the first clash of Austrian and Serbian wills, read into the events of each succeeding day the guiding hand of German Junkerdom—who could foresee intallibly the coming storm. It was not in the heat of passion that Americans put the blame of the war on Germany; it was before the act of war itself, aghast, horror-stricken at the impending stroke, that they saw the purpose of the weakling kaiser and his militarist advisers, and protested against it.

To those who watched that hideous nightmare develop into bleeding fact, it is impossible for Hindenburgs to talk of Germany, with pure hearts and pure hands, wielding the sword in self-defense. Tell that to those who have no memories of July 1914.

NOT SO HOUDNY

A favorite theme of the story writer and the playwright is the convict who, finishing his time, is ever thereafter hounded by the police, refused honest employment and driven, against his will, into a life of crime. Doubtless there are such instances. Unquestionably there are instances exactly antithetical.

An accountant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., drawing $50 a week in salary, is under arrest charged with stealing $36,000 within a year, from his employers. He says it cost him $200 a week for liquor because he wouldn't drink cheap stuff and was a heavy drinker. Also he bet on horse races.

Now it transpires that this sporty individual served a year in the penitentiary for a theft committed in 1913 and later on did ten months of a three years' sentence in 1920 for grand larceny.

One would think it not so easy even for a person who had never been in prison, to travel at a $36,000 a year pace on a $2,600 salary without being caught, let alone a man with a double barreled record behind him.

Surely the sleuths must be plenty gentle enough with the ex-convict now and again.

New York, Sept. 21.—One of the most ancient whistles concerning the "country yodels" had to do with running to fire.

Yet, despite the difficulties encountered in locating the blazes of this great city, it has a group of citizens who are the most inveterate fire chasers to be found under the sun.

One of these is a rich lawyer, another a physician with an exclusive practice. No small boy ever has taken his neighborhood fire more seriously.

The lawyer keeps in an adjoining garage a speedy car ready for action. When the gong sounds he rushes out and hops in his car. The doctor, having meanwhile been awakened, rushes to the street and is picked up by his fellow fire fan as he whizzes by in his car.

It happened the other evening at one of the few popular night clubs:

A young woman came in and people turned around. And one or two seemed to know her and whisper. Jack Kearns, the flight promoter, was there. He jumped from his table to greet her. They sat down and talked and talked. And, after a while, the young woman got up and sang a song that nobody recognized because it was quite ancient and never too popular.

This is the story: Quite a few years ago there was a prize fight in Shelby, Mont. A certain Dempsey, who is very much in the limelight again, was taking on a certain Gibbons, of pleasant memories. Into the tiny western town were cast whole troupes of famous special writers. And, having little to write about for a time, they proceeded to discover a certain tent show that was playing the town in hopes of a cleanup.

Stories began to come back about a certain Patricia Salmon, who was going about with this tent show. Editors demanded more stories about her and soon this unknown of the traveling troupe world was known up and down Broadway. Oh, yes, you recall the story!

And you remember how Flo Ziegfeld thought it would be a good stunt to bring her to Broadway. Well, she came! But the publicity soon ran out and Patricia was in the position of having to make good on something more than publicity. It was a somewhat difficult predicament.

Well, she dropped out of sight for a time. But she had determined to be an entertainer in her own right.

When the crowd in the night club found out who she was they welcomed her to Broadway.

Which is a way Broadway has of doing things—sometimes.

GILBERT SWAN.

A THOUGHT

Vanity of vanities, saith the Preacher; all is vanity.—Ecclesiastes 12:8.

All is vanity, look you; and so the preacher is vanity, too.—Thackeray.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER Washington, Sept. 21.—Somehow during the last year, no one seems to have stopped to explain why our policy of gentle benevolence toward chaotic China was so different from our comparatively rough and severe policy toward such nearby republics as Nicaragua, Haiti and Mexico.

On the other hand, certain sections of the press, and the administration's Latin-American policy and then lavishly praised its noble refusal to join with Great Britain in shooting up the Chinese despite the fact that the Chinese had been much more unruly than the Latin-Americans.

Again, there were those who cheered lustily our iron-handed methods in Nicaragua and toward Mexico and deplored the absence of similar tactics in China.

As a matter of fact, neither great blame nor high praise can be accorded the present government on any theory that it has acted with unaccustomed altruism or ruthlessness. Both in this country and in the Far East, it merely followed out foreign policies which have been well defined for at least three decades and which have been adhered to by both Republican and Democratic administrations.

The Caribbean and the Asiatic policies, however, have been fundamentally different because the expanding United States has had to deal with two fundamentally different situations. The difference began to be apparent toward the close of the last century.

Prior to that America's main industries were busy attaining their growth. The west was being won and American production and enterprise had not outgrown the national boundaries.

A policy of gradual acquisition had been pursued intermittently but this was largely confined to straightening out the borders of the United States proper to the south and the southwest. Nevertheless, Secretary of State Seward under Lincoln, had seen visions in the Pacific and bought Alaska. He had forced the French out of Mexico, and had sought to realize a dream in the Caribbean by acquiring a naval base in Santo Domingo, the Virgin Islands by purchase and control over the Panama isthmus by other means, only to have Congress refuse to approve his arrangements.

But the present policies began to take shape under McKinley when our government, determining to extend its sphere of influence, economic if not political, to the west, couldn't look to the east, for there beyond the broad Atlantic lay the old world firmly entrenched.

Thanks, perhaps to the Monroe Doctrine, it found the republics to the south strictly within its own sphere and today we exert financial or military domination over all non-colonial soil north of the equator of unwieldy Mexico, which has proved rather a large bite. We had no competition.

But although we pushed out into the Pacific as far as the Philippines we found that in the period before and after Seward had declared for American command of the Pacific area, the other powers had penetrated into the China into spheres of British, German, French, Russian and Japanese influence, by means of various wars and peculiar treaties. All this was very bad for expanding American trade.

Then came the Boxer Rebellion. The United States, whose foreign policies were then guided by Secretary John Hay, could hardly partition a section of China—for one reason public opinion was very much against it.

The best that our statesmen could hope for was an even break with the rest of the world and at this point Hay enunciated the policy of the "open door." The new Chinese policy called for equal rights for American enterprise and, theoretically, a kindly attitude toward the Chinese, for Hay served notice that we were opposed to any more partitions.

Roosevelt and Taft continued the policy of seeking equal opportunities for American trade and investments; Wilson receded a little, but the Coolidge-Kellogg policy has been virtually that of their Republican predecessors and has been marked this year by a notable refusal to aid other nations in tightening their control over China.

As against Russia, which had hampered our penetration of Manchuria, our game was Japan's when those two countries clashed and Roosevelt boldly warned France and Germany against any intervention they may have contemplated in Russia's behalf. The net result of that war from our standpoint was maintenance of the open door in north China.

During Harding's administration our Chinese interests began to conflict seriously with those of Japan, then allied with Britain. The Washington arms conference followed, with these three nations and France banding together to avert Asiatic trouble and reiterating the "open door" policy.

Today our troops and airplanes are in China in large numbers, but our government is again preventing other nations from obtaining a strange hold on that country and apparently gaining certain gratitude from the Chinese, all of which is as helpful to our interests in China as any other policy we could adopt.

In conclusion, it is worth noting that if our Latin-American policy had been applied to China it would have long since meant war with at least one and perhaps several other world powers.

Old Master's

When to the sessions of sweet silent thought I summon up remembrance of things past, I sigh the lack of many a thing I sought, And with old woes new wail my dear time's waste; Then can I drown an eye—unseen to flow—For precious friends hid in death's dateless night, And weep fresh love's long since cancelled woe. And moan the expense of many a vanished sight; Then can I grieve at grievances foregone, And heavily from woe to woe tell o'er The sad account of fore-bemoaned moan, Which I new pay as if not paid before; But if the while I think on thee, dear friend, All losses are restored and sorrows end.—Shakespeare: Sonnet.

WAPPING

Guy Smith, Robert W. Sharp and Edward Colbert left last Saturday night for a two weeks' automobile trip to Canada.

The funeral of little Alice Pratt, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pratt who died last Thursday at the Manchester Memorial hospital, was largely attended from the Federated church on Sunday afternoon. Rev. Truman H. Woodward officiating. A quartette consisting of Mrs. Phillip Evans, Mrs. Rosa Nevers, Levi T. Dewey and Sidney Steginton sang two selections, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Some Sweet Day By and By." There were many beautiful floral pieces. The burial was in the Wapping cemetery.

Miss Lillian Durfee of Warehouse Point is the guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Levi T. Dewey.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cook from Goshen motored to the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred H. Adams of this place on Sunday morning and spent the day.

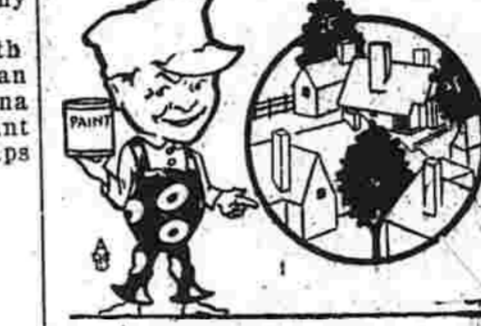

David and William Tripp, Luther Burnham, Andrew Costello and John Galish with boys and girls from other towns, were guests of the Hartford County Farm Bureau at the State Fair on Saturday. All report a splendid time.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Bidwell and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bidwell of South Windsor spent the weekend at Granite Lake, N. H., as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Newberry.

Miss Ida Reichenbauch, who has been confined to the Manchester Memorial hospital for nearly two weeks returned to her home here on Deming street last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Skinner and family spent the week-end at White Plains.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Fales were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Burnham.

'Hunch Boys' Picking Jack Dempsey To Win

But Former Players Are Betting on Tunney For By All Rules of Game He Should Win.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
Chicago, Sept. 21.—I myself, in person, what I mean, the writer, assume that when David slew Goliath there was some egg in the background who had hunched the winner and bet his claim she according to there always is an egg in on the short end money, no matter whether the contest calls for a proof as to whether Mardi Gras is a cocktail or a suburb of New Orleans.

The boys today were hunching Dempsey, in fact, they had gone so far with the matter that the odds on tomorrow night's heavy-weight championship fight were approximately equal, at even money. They should not be, by all the laws of percentage, form, past performance and the will of the majority. Dempsey, judged by what he has shown since he won the title in Tunney in Philadelphia just one year ago, can't be a stand-out in this fight.

The form players, those handicapping gents who remember when a horse ran third in a field of three in 1895, are picking Tunney to win. The hunch players are picking Dempsey. I am picking neither.

Won't Pick Winner
At the investigation of my admirers, both of them, I have decided that the intelligent today does not pick winners. It waits until they win and then approves of them highly. I will announce the winner, my best English on Friday morning.

In the meantime, I can discuss with some degree of confidence the fact that Tunney may blow the title because it is a man who thinks he can't lose. I hate to bet on that kind. It is the only flaw that can be named in Tunney's preparation for the fight.

The young fighter, otherwise, is right. He probably is slightly a better fighter than he was last year, a better man in the legs and feet and a somewhat harder hitter.

I think he knows this. For Tunney, who has indicated in his training that he wants to stand and slug instead of run and box. The oft-repeated story of his counter-hitting, of his open and counter-hitting, has gotten under an epidemic that already is thinner than a skeleton key. The man wants to show the great populace that he is something better than a mere boxer. I hope he won't feel that Dempsey cocks him.

Has Advantage
Tunney has many things in his favor in this fight. In speed, the distance of ten rounds and the fact that he already has beaten the man he must beat tomorrow night. There are only two factors working against him and with them are important. The first, already mentioned, deals with his vanity, the second is psychological. It centers around the fact that the challenger of last year is the champion of today. With all of the champion's worries and cares and responsibilities.

Tunney had all to win and nothing to lose at Philadelphia. He can win nothing here but must keep what he had before. Tunney is in Dempsey's position as Dempsey knew it in 1926.

For ten rounds, he should, on form, have the speed and the straight left hand so the challenger of last year is the champion of today. With all of the champion's worries and cares and responsibilities.

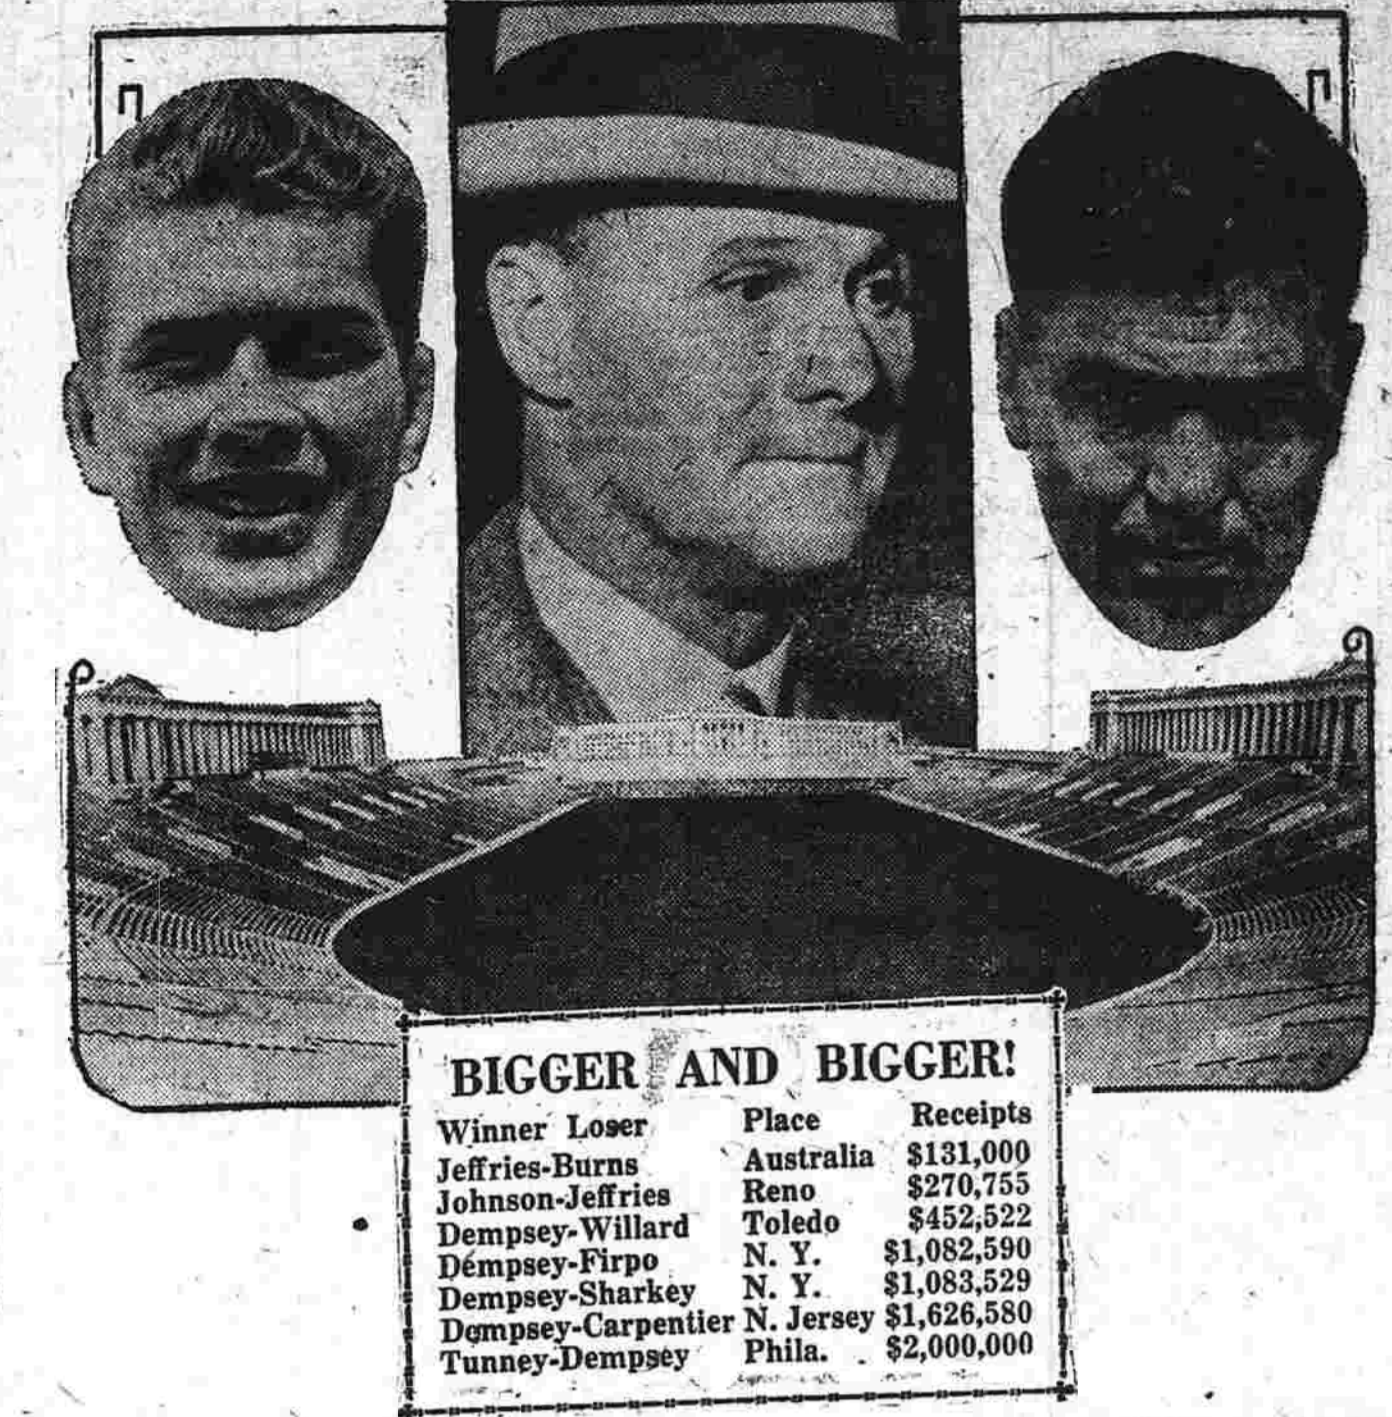

CELTICS AND CHENEYS MEET HERE ON SUNDAY

The Celtic soccer eleven of this town will open its 1927 season Sunday afternoon when they play a Manchester District League game with Cheney Brothers at the McKee street stadium. The British Americans are scheduled to go to Hartford to oppose the Hartford Swedes. In New Britain, the German and Swedish teams are booked to play. The Hartford Booked Workers and New Britain Clan Douglas may also play.

The following Celtic players are requested to report for practice tomorrow night at the West Side Rec at 7:30 sharp: F. Dickson, S. Hewitt, G. McDonald, P. Madden, T. Cunningham, R. Robinson, Jim McCavanaugh, Jack McCavannah, W. Lynn, W. Maxwell and F. Murphy.

Trainer Jimmy Farr will take a stable of five Manchester amateur boxers to Windsor Locks, Conn. It will consist of Al Dowd, Jimmy Groman and Pop Reggetts. Tonight Reggetts and Lefty St. John are scheduled to swap punches with unnamed opponents in Glasgow. Farr is surely stirring up a lot of interest among the Manchester boys.

Herald Is Well 'Covered' On Fight Tomorrow Night

Two of the most competent sports writers in the country will cover the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago tomorrow night for The Manchester Evening Herald. They are: Davis J. Walsh, sports editor of the International News Service with which The Herald is affiliated. Mr. Walsh is noted for his ability to write unbiased and unusually interesting accounts of important sporting events.

Joe Williams, sporting editor of the New York Evening Telegram and a writer for the NEA Service of which The Herald is a client will also sit at the ringside at Soldiers' Field Stadium and his impressions of the spectacle will be published in The Herald.

Fans should bear in mind these facts: The fight will not be over until well toward midnight. All of which means that the correspondents for the morning newspapers will have to send hurried accounts. It will mean, to be perfectly frank, that the stories carried in the evening papers the day after the fight will be far more reliable and contain the REAL story of the fight.

The Herald feels that with Walsh and Williams writing their versions of the Battle of Big Dough, Manchesteristic followers will be in store for a real treat Friday night. Also don't forget the fact that through the courtesy of Barstow's Radio Shop, The Herald will broadcast Graham McNamee's blow-by-blow description of the fight tomorrow night from its branch office at 10 Bissell street in the State Theater building. In case of adverse weather, the broadcast will be held in the Knights of Columbus Hall just across the road.

ROWE WINS FIRST AMATEUR FIGHT BY 50-SECOND KAYOE

Packs Real Punch In Licking Stone; Al Dowd Easy Winner Over Kromack; Seeche Pummels Howard Hard.

By T. W. STOWE
It took Billy Rowe, Manchester amateur making his fistic debut, exactly fifty seconds to knock Mickey Stone, promising Hardware City fighter, flatter than a pancake last night in the opening number on a ten-bout program which came to a dramatic close with Harry Seeche scoring a decisive victory over Joe Howard in the feature go. The program marked the end of the outdoor season. Starting a week from tomorrow night, Ed Hurley and his troupe will hibernate for the winter season at Foot Guard hall.

To get back to Rowe, this promising young man gave one of the best exhibitions of solid punching seen in a long time by any beginner. Rowe packs a vicious wallop. There's dynamite in both fists especially in his faithful right. But where Rowe shone last night was in the infighting. The Manchester boxer, instead of trying to shoot all his blows the face like many amateurs do, devoted his efforts almost entirely to a terrific body attack that caused Stone to crumple like so much peanut brittle. And would quite a name for himself of late.

An idea of how badly Stone was hurt is seen from the fact that after Rowe had caught him with four or five solid punches to the body, the New Britainite fell to the floor, face down, and lay there until Referee Joe Watson had totted ten. He had to be assisted to his corner and tears streamed down his face giving further proof as to the punishment he had absorbed in those fifty seconds. It was Rowe's first fight, according to Jimmy Farr, his manager, trainer and what have you. He made his debut in the amateur football game.

One other Manchester boy was on the card and he, too, acquitted himself in fine style. Al Dowd who last week met his first defeat at the hands of Vin La Bella, gave a neat exhibition in outboxing Al Kromack, the promising Unionville lad who has been creating quite a bit of interest of late. The Manchester boy won all three rounds with plenty to spare. True, Kromack made a spirited rally in the last round, but Dowd kept cool and retained his lead. Dowd's lightning left was a constant menace to Kromack, who, although not hurt, nevertheless took a neat lesson from the Manchesterer. Soon after the start, it was evident that Dowd was far superior at long range boxing but Kromack was unable to get inside Dowd's defense because of that ever-threatening lightning left.

The feature bout between Seeche and Howard was a decisive victory for the former. Seeche's defense because of that ever-threatening lightning left. The feature bout between Seeche and Howard was a decisive victory for the former. Seeche's defense because of that ever-threatening lightning left.

SOCCER IS HERE TO STAY—OWNER

Hartford Club to Continue at Stadium Despite Rumors Afloat; Play Out of Town Over Week-end; Two Games Here Next Week.

The Hartford Soccer club of the American League will play out of town Saturday and Sunday of this week and at home both Saturday and Sunday of the following week, according to the present plans.

Saturday, the Lawmakers tackle the New York Giants and Sunday, play the Brooklyn Wanderers. Both are very strong clubs and the contests are sure to give Manager Jimmy Dewhurst's eleven an acid test. The Hartford squad will leave Friday night for New York by boat from Hartford and will return Sunday night by train.

Next week from Saturday the New York Giants with their All-Jewish team will probably appear at the McKee street stadium in an exhibit play in Le River the next day and will stop off here for the game on the way up there.

But Can't Forget Last Two Fights—And His Own Miss Last Year.

By JOE WILLIAMS

Chicago, Sept. 21.—And now—can the old Manassa Mauler do it? Is it in the cards for Jack Dempsey, the most spectacular figure in modern ring history, to come back and win the championship?

Your guess is as good as mine. Probably better. I am one of those bright young men who predicted a year ago that Mr. Gene Tunney would look like a mug against Dempsey. What I think about this fight should therefore not be taken too seriously.

You may ask if Dempsey is any better than he was a year ago. On the premise that he couldn't be any worse and walk in a sweater in a well modulated voice, is hell yes. I am convinced that the worst error Dempsey made last year was his failure to fight at least one battle, one of the Risikos or Renaults of the ring, before the Battle of the Sequoyia.

Dempsey had been out of the ring three years. No fighter can stay away from active ring service that long and expect to come back a first-class fighter with his warring weapons 100 per cent perfect. All the training he had done from March to September hadn't kept him from being rusty, hadn't kept his fighting instincts to the point where he was able to grasp his one fleeting moment of golden chance at Philadelphia.

I refer to that fourth round when Dempsey had a chance to win and, by his own admission, he didn't know it. His nervous system was clogged. The message from the noddle to the legs were slow in coming through.

Maybe Dempsey wouldn't have beaten Tunney last year even if he had fought two or three times before. Maybe he won't beat him this year. But he will be in a position, because of his fight against Tunney and his subsequent fight against Sharkey, to give Tunney a hard, testing fight.

And if the chance like the one developed in that fourth round comes again this year, he'll get it. He'll knock out the social lion of the gold coast clear out into the lake.

But I am detouring. If Tunney was good enough to win ten rounds out of ten against Dempsey last year, he certainly can't do it again this year. Possibly he will win by a more decisive margin. And it may be that Tunney could whip Dempsey the best day he ever saw. But— Tunney did not whip Dempsey the best day he ever saw when he whipped him at Philadelphia. I mean to say Dempsey wasn't as good as he might have been and when I say this I do not mean to detract in the least from the remarkable fight Mr. Gene Tunney fought.

This year Dempsey will be better. How much better is a matter of conjecture. He comes into the ring with two hard fights under his belt. Whether that is important enough to bring him home in front is another story. Tunney is no worse than he was last year. Very likely he is better. The knowledge that he mastered fibre and his moral sinews.

It'd like to be able to string along with Dempsey and maybe I should. But I can't forget how feeble he looked against Tunney a year ago, nor can I forget the mediocre fight he made against Jack Sharkey. I say that, mind you, despite the fact that Dempsey has been my foremost idol of the ring.

I concede Dempsey's chance you must always concede him—the chance to land with a killing punch at any given moment during the fight, but this, I fear, an outside chance.

Tunney ought to win. He hasn't much to fear fighting the cautious fight he is sure to fight. He is faster and a more accurate puncher. He has more stamina, and a splendid body punch with a right hand. He has enough power in that right hand to win by a knockout, and a few chances, he may.

Sixty-nine years ago today, English sportsmen were given consideration of a shock when the great Tom Mace was knocked out in two rounds by Bob Brettie at Medway, England. The surprise came at a time when Mace was being looked upon as the probable successor to the coveted Tom Swyers, who then ruled as king of the heavyweights.

Two years later Mace redeemed himself however, by administering a terrible beating to his rival in 11 rounds, after which he returned to popular favor. Mace finally reached the coveted Tom Swyers, and then they will be sure to miss the big fight, or whatever it may turn out to be.

"THE BIG PARADE"

TRUE TALE OF WAR Comes to State on Sunday

"The Big Parade" opening at the State Theater next Sunday, is without doubt the greatest picture in the history of the screen.

It is a great human document. It has taken America a decade to attain a proper perspective on the late conflict.

John Gilbert gives a great and unforgettable portrayal of the American doughboy.

A special nine-piece orchestra under the direction of Fred Wernick will supply music during the showing of the film.

LEGAL NOTICE WHEREAS the Commissioner on Domestic Animals has determined the fact that the owners of eighty-five per centum of the cattle as set forth on the 1926 grand lists of the towns of MANCHESTER and EAST HARTFORD in Hartford County have signed applications and agreements as provided in chapter 262 of the public acts of 1925.

NOW THEREFORE, I, James M. Whittlesey, Commissioner of Domestic Animals, under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by chapter 185 of the public acts of 1927, do hereby declare the area included in the towns of MANCHESTER and EAST HARTFORD in Hartford County to be an area on and after the 10th day of September, 1927, within which bovine tuberculosis shall be eradicated at state and federal expense as provided by statute.

Section 2 of said chapter provides that "no cattle shall be brought or transported into such area, after the same shall have been established, except in compliance with the provisions of section two of chapter 262 of the public acts of 1925, and except cattle being transported through such area on the highways by truck or railroad."

Dated at Hartford, Connecticut, this 23rd day of August, 1927.

WATER GOLF

PAR FOR THIS ONE IS FIVE. It's no trick at all, with the delicateness handy, to get up a MEAL but to COCK one is different. Par for the hole is five strokes. The answer is related on another page.

COOK and MEAL word search grids.

THE RULES. 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes. COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

RADIO BLUES. The alcohol was getting low in St. Smith's radiator. So St peeked in with lighted match. Then gasped, "I'll see you later."

THE TINYMITES

"My, what a pretty bridge we've found," said Copsy, stepping to the ground. "I wonder who that fellow is who's paddling right up near." And then wee Clowney slowly sighed, "Oh, gee, I wish he'd let us ride And maybe, too, he'll tell us all that we can swim in here." The man who ran the funny boat began to sing, in tuneless note "Come ride in my gondola, all you funny little men. I seldom take folks out with me, but real nice tads you seem to be, so come along and try it once. You'll want to go again." "You bet we will," the whole bunch cried. "That's something we have never tried. We've been in lots of boats, of course, but not in one like that. Say, will you take us all around, and is it good and safe and sound?" The man then answered, "It can't tip. The bottom's very flat." Up to the bridge the boat then drew. The first thing that the Tin-

SENSE and NONSENSE

The garage man can always overcome a knock in the engine by loosening a fender. When a shell motorist takes up golf he tries to drive with one hand. "You say you come from Detroit," said the doctor to his fellow passenger: "that's where they make automobiles, isn't it?" "Sure" replied the American with some resentment; "we make other things in Detroit, too." "Yes, I know," retorted the doctor: "I've ridden in 'em."

Distance doesn't lend any enchantment when you run out of gas. There may eventually be so many automobiles on earth that one cannot move unless they all move. Wife: Why don't you help me out of the auto? You're not so glib as you used to be when I was a gal. Hubby: That's nothing; you're not so buoyant as you used to be when I was a boy. "I got tight last night," remarked the spare tire. Bigamy is like buying another car when you have but a one stall garage available. No one charges, however, that the printing of wreck news encourages reckless driving. A hick town is a place where a girl knows when she accepts a ride just how she is going to be treated.

MAN WANTS BUT LITTLE HERE BELOW. I want to buy a 5 or 6-room modern 1923 Ford touring car with extras; price $145. Ad in the Pittsburgh, Pa., Press. An appeal to motorists in regard to broken bottles and litter is issued by the Automobile Association. It is an unwritten law, of course, that used pedestrians should be stacked in tidy heaps by the wayside. Pedestrians have their rights. Presumably the last rites. Another thing that doesn't turn out just as it should is the automobile just ahead of you. "Why do you continue to drive that old lumber wagon?" "Because it's just a real good jar." He: I've had this car for years and never had a wreck. His Friend: You mean you've had this wreck for years and never had a car. The pedestrian at the street crossing knows he's on his way, but doesn't know where he's going.

The country is becoming more prosperous. Every pig you run over is a registered thoroughbred worth from $75 to $100, and every chicken you kill is of pedigreed stock and cost the owner $5.

HUNDREDS ALL SET FOR FIGHT BY RADIO

Repair Men Overworked by Demands of Fans Who Plan to Listen In.

Hundreds of Manchester people will listen to the returns of the Dempsey-Tunney fracas in Chicago tomorrow night by radio. A great many homes in Manchester have radio sets installed and there will be plenty of public places to listen to the blow-by-blow description which will come over the air from Graham McNamee's lips at the ringside at Soldiers' Field.

In many ways, the fan who stays at home and listens to the broadcast from a cozy parlor chair, is going to be far more satisfied than some who will part with $40 or less to watch the fight, or whatever it may turn out to be, through a telescope. McNamee's ability to give vivid descriptions of any important event is such that all one has to do is to shut his eyes and imagine he's at the ringside. He will "see" more than some of the fans in that mammoth stadium who, as Will Rogers says, will have to depend on the ushers to pass among them telling the result of the fight.

Manchester radio fans should have no difficulty in getting the returns of the fight. The largest chain of radio stations ever to broadcast at Schenectady. These four stations are the easiest to log by Manchester radio fans and should bring in the results very clearly. The main bout is expected to get started at 10 o'clock, central daylight saving time, which would be about 11 o'clock, eastern daylight saving time. In event of threatening weather, however, the main bout will be put on ahead of schedule. Fans will do well to tune in for the preliminary fights so as not to miss the main go.

Radio repair men in town have been driven with work for several days, so great is the demand of set owners for assurance that their instruments will be working O. K. tomorrow night. The Manchester Evening Herald has made arrangements with John F. Barstow, local radio dealer, to broadcast the results of the bout from its branch office in the State Theater building on Blaisell street. The preliminary bouts will also be put "on the air." In event of rainy weather, but fair weather in Chicago, the broadcast will be transferred to the Knights of Columbus Hall just across the street. The public will be welcome.

EXPERT IS STUMPED BY RADIO INTERFERENCE

John F. Barstow, well known local radio expert, admitted today that he had no definite knowledge as to what is causing the electrical disturbance which has been raising havoc with radio sets in many parts of Manchester for more than a year now. "All I know is that I'm getting lots of complaints from my customers because of the impaired reception. I've got a possible theory that I will investigate more thoroughly after this Dempsey-Tunney rush is over. I would rather not reveal the idea I've got in mind because it might be entirely wrong," said Mr. Barstow. During the past few weeks, the interference with radio reception has not been as intense. Occasionally, however, the loud roaring noise which drowns out everything else is heard. During these instances, it is necessary to shut off radio sets.

COMING MARRIAGE The marriage of Miss Sophie Cedor, daughter of Mrs. Anna Frey of Windmere avenue, Rockville, to Carl J. Bush, son of Julius Bush of Prospect street, Rockville, has been set for October 26. Mr. Bush has been dispatcher at the local Connecticut company office for several years and is well known in Manchester.

McDONNELL AGAIN HEADS ARMY AND NAVY CLUB

President of Veteran Organization Re-elected for Third Term—New Governors.

Michael J. McDonnell was re-elected to serve another year as president of the Army and Navy Club last night at the annual election held at the clubhouse at Main and Forest streets. He has already held the office for two years. The thirty members present voted unanimously for his re-election. Clarence L. Wetherell was elected vice-president to succeed Jack Hartnett and Otto Sonnison was named secretary in place of Edgar Morgan. Peter Frey was named to succeed himself as treasurer. Three new members were named on the board of governors. Edgar Morgan and Leonard Welman will serve two years and David McCollum, one. The other two members, whose terms will expire next year, are Fred Lorch and Howard Thornton. The members who have gone out of office are Arthur McCann, Reinhart Lamprecht and Harry Mathiason. Plans were discussed at the annual meeting for the winter activities. The usual pinocle tournaments which have proved so popular the last few years, will be continued. Plans were also discussed for an Armistice Day celebration.
