

SLEUTHS FIND REYNOLDS IN ST. LOUIS, MO.

Young Tobacco Millionaire, Missing 11 Days, Is Lo- cated; Says He Just Took a Little Vacation.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 28.—Richard J. Reynolds, 21-year-old millionaire whose disappearance from his night club haunts along Broadway started a nation-wide hunt, today said he planned to return to New York, stopping for a day or two on his way there at Chicago.

Detectives located Reynolds here last night in a small restaurant where he was dining with another young man and a girl. After first denying that he was the missing millionaire, Reynolds admitted his identity, but said he had made no effort to hide his identity while visiting here.

Reynolds said he left New York September 17 for Chicago and came here a day later.

Richard J. Reynolds.

Reynolds disappeared again this morning after stating he was "going to get the first train to Chicago." No trace of him could be found at the Union station or of his leaving there.

With his grey felt hat tilted far back on his head and smoking a large black cigar, Reynolds held his feet to the desk in the office of the private detective agency early today and told the story of his disappearance.

Tells His Story

"I just got fed up on society and the night life along Broadway and decided to take a little trip as a sort of vacation," Reynolds asserted. "There was nothing extraordinary about my taking a jaunt out of town for every once in a while. I suddenly decided to go some place and see things. Why, I would step out for New Orleans to see the races and have a good time and nothing was ever said about it."

"I can't understand what all the fuss is about. I left word with Graham and Captain Manville. Davis and told one of them, I can't remember which, that I was going to Chicago and get sick of it. I took Miss Marie Houston to the Grand Central station on the night of September 16. I was a little 'tight' and don't remember just what train she took."

Went to Chicago

Reynolds said after Miss Houston left for St. Louis he went to Chicago to see the Tunney-Dempsey fight. Then he came here for the dog and horse races.

"When I first arrived here on September 24, I went to the Claridge Hotel and registered under the name of Joy K. Fleet, of Chicago," Reynolds continued. "Funny thing, I saw a picture show in Chicago with that name in it and it was the first to come to my mind."

"You know what I like to do every once in a while? Go away from things and use another name so no one will bother me, and pose as a traveling salesman in moderate price hotels. Just be one of them, natural like and play round without worrying about someone trying to get their hands on my money or capitalizing on acquaintanceship."

The young heir to the Reynolds fortune seemed to enjoy telling how he won money at the dog and horse racing tracks here, and at various gambling clubs.

Had Only $600

"I had only about $600 or $700 when I left New York. That report about having $8,000 is all wrong," Reynolds declared. "I used John

NO WAR BETWEEN FORD-GEN. MOTORS

President of Latter Says There Is Enough of Busi- ness for Them Both.

Milford, Mich., Sept. 28.—There will be no war between Henry Ford and General Motors.

This assurance was given by Fred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, in a ringing address before the automobile editors of American newspapers here this afternoon.

"There is plenty of opportunity in the world today for both," declared Sloan, amid applause.

Ford had been quoted recently to the effect that many of the new models, believed to have been thrown by some person of abnormal strength, crushed the physician's skull, and set more than a score of passengers into a panic.

The tragedy occurred just beneath the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway viaduct near Fullerton avenue.

Gets 3-5 Years

ON ARSON CHARGE

New York Man Who Burned Plant in Bridgeport, Gets Stiff Sentence.

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 29.—Jack Segall, of New York, was sentenced today to serve from three to five years in state's prison, following a verdict of guilty of arson with intent to defraud an insurance company, handed down by a Superior Court jury late yesterday.

Leonard J. Nickerson, who imposed the sentence, took under consideration a motion for stay of execution pending an appeal of the verdict, and Segall will remain in the county jail here until the judge has decided the matter.

"Cold Blooded"

Segall is charged with having set fire to the plant of the Redox Rubber Products Company, 1182 Main street, on May 3rd last. In presenting Segall to the judge today, William H. Comley, state's attorney, declared that three fires set for the sake of collecting insurance have occurred in Fairfield county in the past few years. In two of the cases the court had been lenient in sentencing convicted persons. The state's attorney called Segall's case "cold-blooded" and asked a heavy penalty.

Judge Nickerson remarked that the fact that Segall had not taken the witness stand and "committed perjury" was in his favor.

Following the sentence, Segall's mother became hysterical in the court room and had to be removed to the sheriff's office for medical treatment. Three members of the Segall family created a scene of tremendous excitement.

BANDIT IS SENTENCED

Waterbury, Conn., Sept. 28.—Raymond Cavanaugh, 26, who was extradited from Newark, N. J., appeared in police court at 9:15 this morning and in the Superior Court at 10 a. m., where he pleaded guilty to three charges of highway robbery and sentenced to two to five years on each count by Judge Nickerson. Cavanaugh was the leader of a local gang which held up a trolley car, robbing the conductor of $40 and also held up two automobile parties. Three others of the band are serving jail sentences.

HURT BY TRACTOR

Danbury, Conn., Sept. 28.—William Dineen, of Carmel, N. Y., is in Danbury hospital in a serious condition today as the result of a tractor which he was operating in Brewster, N. Y., falling on him after striking a stone in a field. Dineen has a fractured hip and internal injuries.

FOUR IN PERIL AS FARM HOME IS DESTROYED

House and Barn on Birch Mountain Burn to Ground After the Dwelling Is Once Saved.

A 21-day-old baby, his three-year-old brother and his father and mother had a narrow escape from being burned to death last night when all the buildings on the 25-acre farm, owned by John Ratti on Birch Mountain Road, were destroyed by fire. When the head of the family noticed the glare of the fire about 9 o'clock, after the entire family had retired, he fought the flames from the roof to a standstill, temporarily saving the house.

Meantime the barn was burning rapidly and was reduced to ashes by the time the fire in the house was extinguished.

Second Fire.

About midnight, perhaps because sparks from the smoldering ruins of the barn started it, the house again took fire and this time it was burned to the ground. The well had been practically emptied by the previous battle against the flames and nothing could be done to save the dwelling.

Mr. Ratti cannot offer any explanation as to how the fire started except that it might have been caused by spontaneous combustion. It evidently started in the barn, which housed ten tons of hay and some farm implements. There was a fire in the hay, and some pigs and twenty chickens. The pigs were let out of their pen but the chickens were burned to death.

The house and the barn were insured for practically their value, which is about $2,000. However, the insurance covered only the furniture or the equipment in the barn, which are a total loss.

Crops Not All Harvested.

Mr. Ratti and his family had lived at the farmhouse, which stood near the Villa Louise, for nearly

PROBE MAY FOLLOW SPELLACY'S CHARGE

Hartford Lawyer Says Pris- oner Was Kept in Dark Hole For Month.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 28.—An investigation of prisoners in the State Prison in Wethersfield may result from charges made by Thomas J. Spellacy, attorney in Superior Court here today, during the trial of Lawrence W. Ferrone, on charges of attempting to escape from prison.

Ferrone had three years added to a one to thirty year sentence which he is now serving as an habitual criminal, for his part in the attempted break for liberty. His wife, Mrs. Catherine Ferrone, and two prison guards, Byron M. Richards and Earl T. Davis, received one year in jail each for their share in the plot.

Spellacy's Charge

Mr. Spellacy charged that Ferrone during the past month has been confined in a dark hole in the prison and has been on a diet of bread and water. Hugh M. Alcorn, state's attorney, in a statement to the court, declared it was not his intention nor of the court to send men to prison to receive such treatment. His conditions are as reported by Mr. Spellacy," he declared, he would not and could not tolerate it.

Bradley Makes Defense

In a statement after the court hearing George H. Bradley, deputy warden, said that Mr. Spellacy's statement was not correct. For the last three months, he said, Ferrone has been in a regulation cell but has not been allowed to communicate with other prisoners. He said Ferrone had been allowed every comfort extended other prisoners except recreation. He did add, however, that Ferrone has been confined in the "hole" mentioned by Mr. Spellacy, on several occasions during the past five years, for infraction of the prison rules.

College Loses Fight To Bar Pretty Co-Ed

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 28.—De- Smith of the State Court of Appeals today announced that he will make the appeal for the university and personally handle the case. It is expected that the case will be argued before the Appellate Division in January.

The pretty co-ed is now working in an insurance office in Binghamton. She wants to come back to school and learn to be a teacher, but she said today that she guessed she would be an old woman before the courts got done wrangling about her status.

BELGIUM AWAITS VISIT OF STORK

If a Boy, Will Be Named Al- bert and If a Girl, Eliza- beth.

Brussels, Sept. 28.—All Belgium is anxiously awaiting the visit of the stork to the royal palace, which may bring an heir to the Belgian throne.

Sometime between the first and the tenth of October, a salvo of guns is expected to announce to the world that Princess Astrid is the mother of a royal offspring. If it is a son, one hundred and one guns will be fired in honor of the event. If it is a daughter twenty-one guns will announce the arrival.

Both Princess Astrid and Prince Leopold, the eldest son of King Albert and heir to the Belgian throne, are at the royal palace in anticipation of the event.

May Be Called Albert

If the child is a prince, it will be named Albert, Prince of Belgium and Count of Hainaut. If the newcomer is a girl, she probably will be named Elizabeth after her grandmother.

King Albert will act as godfather at the baptismal ceremony, which will be celebrated by Cardinal Vanroy, successor to Cardinal Mercier, at the church of Saint Jacques adjoining the Royal Palace. The christening ceremony will be surrounded with all possible pomp, in an attempt to make the populace forget that Prince Leopold and Princess Astrid were not married with a Catholic benediction.

If a prince is born, King Albert will adhere to the ancient custom of granting many pardons to political and other prisoners.

Minister of Justice Paul Hymans, assisted by President of the Chamber Brunet and President of the Senate Count De Rooedebeke, will have the honor of drawing up the birth certificate identifying the child as a prince or a princess of Belgium.

AMERICAN FILM STAR IN SCOTTISH COURT

Constance Talmadge Gives Testimony in Undefended Divorce Suit.

Edinburgh, Sept. 28.—Constance Talmadge, American film star, appeared in the Court of General Sessions here today and gave testimony in her undefended suit for divorce against Captain Alistair MacIntosh.

MacIntosh who is now living in Paris, was not in court.

Although this was vacation for the court, Judge Lord Pleinings assigned to hear Mrs. Talmadge's case, consented to take her evidence in order to permit her to leave for California where a motion picture in which she is to appear is about to be filmed.

Mrs. Talmadge's suit is based on grounds of infidelity. The case was adjourned to October 15.

THIEF SHOOTS COPS ON WAY TO PRISON

Wrests Patrolman's Gun Away; Shot by Another and Then Recaptured.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 28.—Charles Brown, armed robbery suspect, probably fatally wounded another in a desperate break for freedom in the tunnel between the Recorder's Court building and the county jail this afternoon.

Brown was shot in the leg by Chester Cox, the patrolman whose injuries are not serious.

Patrolman William Frahm is expected to die. He was shot near the heart.

Brown suddenly kicked Frahm in the stomach, wrested the patrolman's gun away and shot him. Cox returned the fire, hitting Brown in the leg.

Brown was recaptured after a short chase.

PRESIDENT NOW A CHEESE MAKER

Inherited Plant from His Father—Produces 800 Lbs. of Cheese Weekly.

Plymouth, Vt., Sept. 27.—President Coolidge is a cheese maker.

The chief executive inherited from his father, Colonel John Coolidge, shares in a small cheese factory, it became known today.

In addition, milk from one of the Coolidge farms goes daily to the cheese making plant.

William Bruce, 73, famous cheese-maker, directs the operation of the cheese making establishment.

Herbert Moore, cousin of the president, "Uncle" John Wilder, fiddler, and Edward Blanchard, another Coolidge relative, are interested in the cheese factory.

The plant, which produces about 800 pounds of cheese each week, is going in for three to five pound cheeses neatly packed in small boxes. Heretofore the regular 30-pound cheeses have been produced. Seventy cows from various farms furnish the milk from which the cheese is made.

BROTHER OF FORD IS FOUND DEAD

Body Discovered in Vacant House Just Purchased By Kin of Auto King.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 28.—John Ford, 62, brother of Henry Ford, was found dead today across the bed in a newly purchased house at Chase and Gildow avenue, in Fordson, a suburb.

John Ford was lying on his back, with his collar open and his clothes loosened. His pocketbook was lying beside him on the bed.

The new house, which was being made ready for occupancy, is two blocks from his present home on Chase avenue. John Ford's car was found two blocks away from the Schaff road house.

Attended Meeting

Ford attended a meeting of the City Council last night and left home in his car about 8:30 p. m. Mayor Thomas Karman was the last to talk with him. He said Ford had a large roll of bills with him. He apparently was in good health, although it had been reported he had a weak heart.

When Ford failed to return from the council meeting, the family waited a while and then went to bed. When at five a. m. his son, Robert found he was not in his bed, he telephoned the police, who communicated with members of the council.

Car Found

The car was found on Schaff road, locked and apparently undamaged in any way. A search of the new house, a modern bungalow, resulted in the discovery of the body. Charles Earl, deputy coroner, who was dispatched to the scene, began an investigation.

Ford was a member of the real estate firm, Castle & Ford, and a member of the City Council. He is survived by his widow, and three children, Robert, Clarence and Ethel.

SIX PERSONS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Policeman Stops Speeder and Other Car Tries to Avert a Collision.

Norwalk, Conn., Sept. 28.—Six Norwalkers are under treatment in their homes today as the result of an accident on the Darien "Flats" section of the Boston Post road last evening when a trolley car struck their automobile and flung it against a pole. The injured are Meyer Yedlin, Joseph Shapiro, and four children of the Yedlin and Shapiro families.

The accident happened when Angelo Angolucci, of 970 North avenue, Bridgeport, was stopped by a Darien policeman for speeding. Angolucci was kept in the center of the road while the policeman handed him a summons. Yedlin, bound for Norwalk, came upon the Angolucci car suddenly and swerved onto the trolley track without noticing a Norwalk-bound trolley approaching.

SLAYER GETS 8 MONTHS

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 28.—Frederick Peterson, 49, was sent to jail for eight months today by Judge Leonard J. Nickerson in Superior Court after Peterson had pleaded guilty to manslaughter. Peterson stabbed and killed Edward Johnson, 52, during a brawl at Thompson's home here on May 31, last. Loren Willis, state's attorney, recommended the jail sentence because Peterson had admitted his part in the affair. Peterson has been in jail four months.

His Blue Sedan Found In Brother's Garage At Mays Landing—Chief Finds Im- portant Clues on Car; Poultry Farmer's Bonds To Be Forfeited Today; Search Continues.

Hammonton, N. J., Sept. 28.—A fugitive from justice, Willis Beach, 52-year-old poultry farmer charged with "aiding and abetting" the murder of Dr. William Lillendahl, 72, was being sought all over New Jersey today. An all-night search by state troopers failed to disclose his whereabouts.

It was rumored that Beach had fled to Delaware. He vanished early yesterday shortly before he was to have been confronted with three witnesses who said they saw a man resembling him drive away from the murder scene shortly after Dr. Lillendahl was murdered twelve days ago. His attorney, Edison Hedges, admitted that Beach was in hiding on his advice.

Warrant Sworn Out

A warrant charging Beach with complicity in the murder was sworn out by Justice of the Peace George E. Strouse, when a preliminary search failed to reveal any trace of the poultry raiser. Beach has admitted carrying a wire County correspondent with Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl, widow of the murdered man, who is free on $25,000 bail as a material witness.

To Forfeit Bail

Assistant Prosecutor S. Cameron Hinkle will appear before County Judge William A. Smathers in Mays Landing today and ask to have the bail of $5,000 in which Beach had been released, forfeited unless the missing man appears immediately.

Beach's car, in which he was believed to have escaped, was last night in the garage of his brother, Roy A. Beach, at Mays Landing, 35 miles from here.

Chief Harold, following a minute examination of Beach's blue coupe, announced that the machine bore scratches along its sides which he said appeared to have been recently made by contact with heavy brush. Chief Harold also said he found bits of swamp grass clinging to the under carriage.

UNCLE SAM PROFITED BY THIS YEAR'S FIGHTS

Made Million and Half—More Than the Fighters and the Promoters.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Uncle Sam made more profits out of prize fights this year than did champions, promoters or anybody else in the sport.

The government made nearly $1,500,000 in admissions and income taxes in the pugilistic fiscal year ending with the battle of Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey. It was revealed at the treasury today.

The other big winners were: Tex Rickard, $1,000,000; Gene Tunney, $500,000; Jack Dempsey, $350,000.

Figures at the treasury indicated the following approximate income to the government from the three big ring affairs of the year.

Tunney-Dempsey, at Chicago, $705,842

Tunney-Dempsey at Philadelphia, $320,000.

Dempsey-Sharkey at New York, $180,000.

Added to the total of $1,365,000 from battles in which Jack Dempsey participated is probably about $200,000 admissions and income taxes on other boxing contests and on fighters, managers and others concerned with the exhibitions.

MURDER AND LINEAGE

New Jersey ladies who become involved in murder cases seem to run largely to family. It will be remembered that the famous Mrs. Hall, widow of the minister slain in DeRussa lane, turned out to be a member of a very ancient southern family, with an ancestry traceable for at least two generations.

Her extraordinary gentility, culture and blue blood commanded the awed admiration of thousands of tabloid readers who from the beginning were quite convinced that no grand dame of such aristocratic antecedents could possibly have had anything to do with any such messy thing as a murder, especially with a pig woman looking on.

Now we are edited by constant renewals of the assertion that Mrs. Lillendahl, whose doctor husband was murdered, is a perfect Vere de Vere in the antiquity and immaculateness of her forebears.

They have been in America ever since 1650, it appears. One of her ancestors—his name was Jones—was a major in the Continental army, so she says. Not only that, but if any further proof be needed that it is an outrage to hold such class as Mrs. Lillendahl in $25,000 bail as a material witness, there is the final, conclusive, immutable fact that she owns several pieces of Sandwith glass.

Obviously it is impossible that any person of such lineage as the New Jersey lady, and one who owns Sandwith glass, could be wickedly involved in a crime—not one whose ancestors came over in 1650 and who had a Major Jones in the war for Independence.

Of course there was Sitting Bull. But Sitting Bull, unfortunately for him, did not live in New Jersey. If he had they could never have stuck the Custer affair on him. Too much of an old timer.

THE AIR'S THE PLACE

No use talking about it any longer, the speed boys have got to get up into the air. What's the good of dragging around over the roads at a miserable fifty or sixty or seventy miles an hour, with any number of stupid slowpokes who refuse to drive faster than forty blocking your path, when other chaps are getting a real kick out of life by zipping through the atmosphere at the rate of four and a fraction miles every minute and keeping it up for hundreds of miles?

Here's this Englishman Webster, over at Venice—the chap who won the Schneider cup race from the Italians and the other Englishmen. Now that fellow really traveled. He winged over a two hundred and seventeen mile course in forty-six minutes and a few seconds, averaging four and two-thirds miles a minute and did one lap at the rate of four and five-sixths miles every sixty seconds—about a mile in thirteen seconds.

This is said to be the fastest gait at which any human being ever traveled. At all events it is a great deal faster than anybody can travel in an automobile, especially on the roads. So that there is no hope at all for the breezy youth who aspires, in a motor car, to set up anything like a real speed record. He might as well be in an ox cart.

Wherefore it is submitted that, since it is impossible after all to smash any world's hurrying records in an automobile, the ambitious speedster would not be sacrificing much glory if he should stop regarding the highways as a path to fame and content himself with just jogging along like other folks. He who refrains from breaking his neck on the road may live to break it more magnificently, and after a greater burst of speed, at the really quick business of air scorching.

BANKRUPTCIES

More than a little interest will attach to the federal grand jury inquiry into alleged bankruptcy irregularities in Hartford which, it is understood, will begin next week. The proposed inquiry was brought about, directly, by charges of fraudulent proceedings in connection with a single case, but there is little expectation that the contemplated probe will rest upon examination of that one instance of possible crookedness. If it does it will be a much smaller matter than there is every reason to expect to develop.

It is only necessary to read the lists of voluntary bankruptcy petitions in this state to realize that the national bankruptcy law is being taken undue advantage of by a great many debtors. Scores of persons seek and many obtain, every year, freedom from their debts to which they are not entitled with any degree of justice. It is nothing uncommon to find in those lists the names of debtors, confessing to obligations amounting to many thousands and sometimes several thousands of dollars, whose walk of life falls in every way to justify either the debts themselves or a purging of them. When a day laborer asks the bankruptcy court to free him from debts totalling a couple of thousand dollars, or when a housewife lists liabilities of eight or nine hundred dollars, with "no assets," it is self-evident that shenanigan has been going on. Yet there are dozens and dozens of such cases every year.

The whole subject of the operation of the national bankruptcy law is one worthy of the attention not only of one federal grand jury but of many.

IN SAME BOAT

While the interpretation of the most-favored-nation controversy between the United States and France which was printed in these columns a few days ago turns out to be altogether similar to the interpretation since given out by spokesmen for the State Department, the New York Times points out that the latter is based on a misconception of tariff history.

The Times contends that even if France were to enter into a M. F. N. agreement with this country the United States would still be in no position to demand from France the same low tariff rates on certain commodities that the latter country has granted to Germany in a reciprocity treaty. What's more, the Times digs up the fact, which others have overlooked, that the United States Supreme Court on one occasion shot the ordinary conception of M. F. N. treaties all to pieces.

It was in the matter of a most-favored-nation clause in a treaty between the United States and Denmark and the court held that the clause, while it "obliged both countries to avoid hostile or discriminatory legislation, was not intended to interfere with special arrangements with other countries founded upon a concession of special privileges."

If the State Department diplomats who inaugurated this demand on France for a most-favored-nation agreement, in hope of getting in on the ground floor along with Germany's specially purchased low tariff rates, did not know about this decision of the Supreme Court, the Herald feels that it has no reason for blushing a deep rose pink over its similar ignorance.

SMALL POTATOES

Undeterred by the unsatisfactory experience of the Ferguson family of Texas, Mayor Duvall of Indianapolis, recently convicted of violation of the Indiana corrupt practices act, proposes to turn his office over to his wife in case he has to give it up through resignation or ouster.

Governor Ferguson of the Lone Star state, when he couldn't again be elected to office, got his wife the nomination and election and thereafter continued to govern by proxy. The result was not all that either of them could have desired, for in the end "Ma" as well as "Pa" was ejected from public life by a disgusted electorate and became more or less tarred with the dirty stick of Texas politics.

We take it as a rather ungalant proceeding for Mayor Duvall to wish upon the lady of his heart the inevitable odium that must attach to any mixing in the Indianapolis situation as an adherent of the convicted governor.

When women were admitted to an equal share in the political life of this country it was hardly expected that their skirts would be used by discredited politicians to hide behind. It looks to us as though Mr. Duvall were pretty small potatoes—and his wife a ninny, if she stands for his scheme of making her city controller so as to inherit the mayoralty in case he is fired out.

ROBES

The glad good news comes out of Fairfield county that the three common pleas judges of that county will not forego the wearing of robes in court, which they contemplate, merely because the comptroller has decided that the state shall not pay for the flowing habitments of justice.

The cost of a black silk robe for a judge probably depends largely on whether the august personage who is to wear it is a fat judge or a thin judge, a tall judge or a short one. But in any event it probably should not exceed a sum that the judicial model can, without serious deprivation, manage to squeeze out of his salary of $7,500 a year.

And with three judges dividing the work of the Common Pleas court of Fairfield county between them the wear and tear on the official raiment should not be so excessive but that one robe should last for quite a spell.

Seriously, however, the wearing of robes by judges appeals so strongly to those who have faith in psychological effects that it is difficult for them to follow the thought of the comptroller in deciding that the official costume is not so much a part of the equipment of a court as the jury box.

New York, Sept. 28.—Midnight! Along the New York waterfront trucks are rattling out of the half-light. Taxicabs dash in and out, clumping out laughing, chattering groups and then shooting away.

Nothing is more thrilling than a midnight sailing! Here is caught in a cavernous pier all the possible human emotions. In a darkened corner lovers falter, hiding in the darkness tear-glistened eyes. A little family group stands wordless about a youth, who shifts uncomfortably from one foot to another. He is taking a job in Antwerp with the foreign branch of an automobile plant. Apparently he has never before been away from home.

Edward Bradford Dunford, Wheeler's legal assistant, will take the latter and most important job. Wheeler often said that Dunford had "the keenest legal mind the world ever knew."

The new legislative superintendent will be selected in December. Incidentally, the league official quoted at the outset of this story said that the cool head and the gift of humor were the most important essentials of all.

Wheeler was an intense little figure, whose favorite gesture was an out-thrust fist, but he knew that while some legislators could only be coerced by strong-arm methods others could be won only by sugar. His own brand of humor was always on tap and often he more than held his own against a heckling audience by virtue of it.

In the debate with Clarence Darrow at New York early this year he couldn't put himself over. Little groups in the audience chanted in unison, "We Want Beer!" over and over again, breaking up his speech. It was the first time, according to his friends, that the Wheeler platform power had not prevailed against a hostile crowd. He was, however, a sick man.

They had known within the league for more than a year that Wheeler was doomed. League folk admit that they lied about his health. Several times in the last 18 months he was near death, but he was credited with great vitality. Then came the terrible tragedy in which Wheeler's wife was burned to death.

"We knew it wouldn't be long then," says one who was closest to Wheeler. "She had given up her many outside interests to give him constant care and she had prolonged his life. If she had been there to save him exertion, Mr. Wheeler would not now be dead. If she had lived, he would have survived the year, but we doubt if he could have lasted longer in any event."

After his wife's death, a flood of letters came to Wheeler.

Here's a funny one. I saw her first as I came on the pier, an attractive girl with that Frenchy, flirty look about her. She was kissing farewell to a young man who drove away in a taxicab. I saw her again at the gang-plank. She was kissing someone farewell and pledging faithfulness. . . . Sea, to another one.

And now that the boat is cleared she seems to have found an old flame. He wears the uniform of a ship's officer and she has planted a welcome kiss on his cheek. I'll bet my return passages that she's met at Havre by another young man whom she will embrace and that she will tell him how she has missed him and has been barely able to live without him. . . . Oh, well. . . .

The winches are screaming. The crowd on the dock is shouting. The orchestra has struck up a jazz tune. Confetti falls to a serpentine. . . . flowers. . . . voices. . . . We shove into stream. . . . Bon voyage! Goodby Manhattan! And heaven prevent hurricanes!

WASHINGTON LETTER

This is the first of a series of five articles on the question of the hour in America: "Who Will Succeed Wheeler?" Tomorrow: Wheeler's Methods.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Sept. 28.—The man who succeeds Wayne B. Wheeler as legislative superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League must have these qualifications:

- 1—A cool head. 2—The gift of humor. 3—Adequate political experience. 4—Organizing ability. 5—Ability on the platform. This list was suggested by an officer of the league, who pointed out that those were the attributes which made Wheeler the great man he was. "It's a whale of a job to control Congress," this official said. "It's such a whale of a job that no one in the league is trying hard to get it. You may have seen stories to the effect that there was a 'rush of reformers' after the big job, but that doesn't appear to be true. The man who succeeds Wheeler will have to be drafted."

There are a number of possibilities, but each one knows that he will have to be compared with Wheeler as soon as he assumes office. Some of them don't want the job and would refuse it if it were offered them. An indication of the situation the league faces was seen in its prompt decision to split up the jobs of legislative superintendent and general counsel, both of which Wheeler held for six or seven years.

Edward Bradford Dunford, Wheeler's legal assistant, will take the latter and most important job. Wheeler often said that Dunford had "the keenest legal mind the world ever knew."

The new legislative superintendent will be selected in December. Incidentally, the league official quoted at the outset of this story said that the cool head and the gift of humor were the most important essentials of all.

Wheeler was an intense little figure, whose favorite gesture was an out-thrust fist, but he knew that while some legislators could only be coerced by strong-arm methods others could be won only by sugar. His own brand of humor was always on tap and often he more than held his own against a heckling audience by virtue of it.

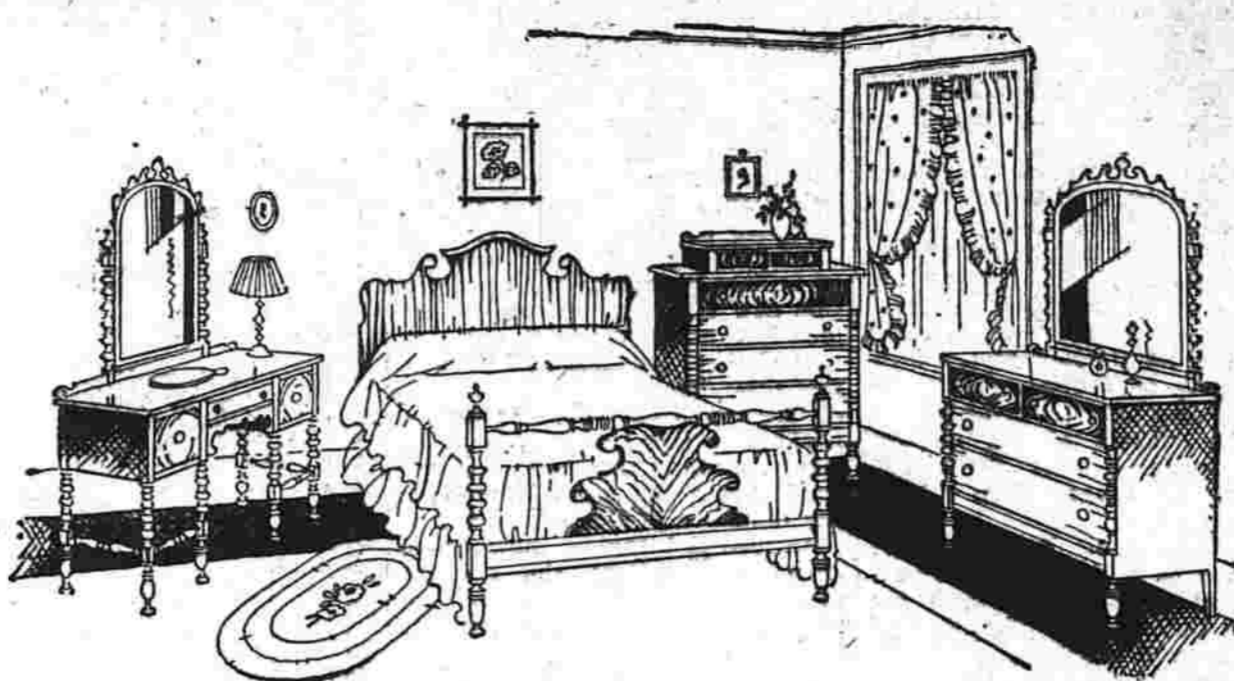

In the debate with Clarence Darrow at New York early this year he couldn't put himself over. Little groups in the audience chanted in unison, "We Want Beer!" over and over again, breaking up his speech. It was the first time, according to his friends, that the Wheeler platform power had not prevailed against a hostile crowd. He was, however, a sick man.

They had known within the league for more than a year that Wheeler was doomed. League folk admit that they lied about his health. Several times in the last 18 months he was near death, but he was credited with great vitality. Then came the terrible tragedy in which Wheeler's wife was burned to death.

"We knew it wouldn't be long then," says one who was closest to Wheeler. "She had given up her many outside interests to give him constant care and she had prolonged his life. If she had been there to save him exertion, Mr. Wheeler would not now be dead. If she had lived, he would have survived the year, but we doubt if he could have lasted longer in any event."

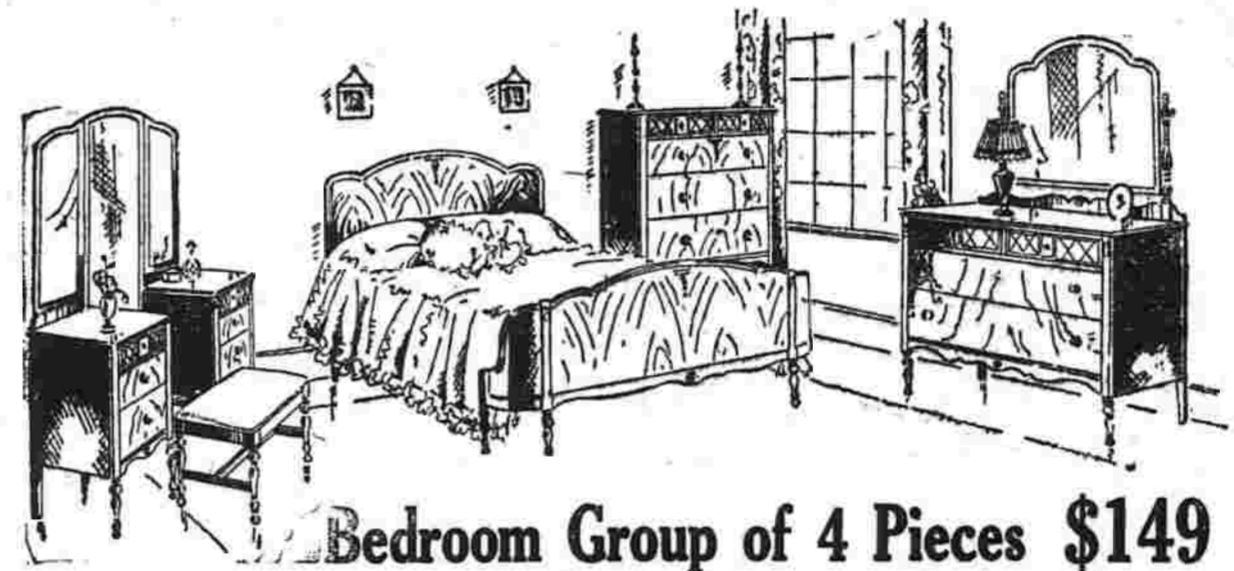

After his wife's death, a flood of letters came to Wheeler.

A THOUGHT

The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb and the leopard shall lie down with the kid.—Isa. xi:6.

Nothing can bring you peace but yourself. Nothing can bring you peace but triumph of principles.—Emerson.

Scores were from persons he had never known, but who seemed to worship his name. Many of them were illiterate, but they were all expressive and Wheeler personally acknowledged each one. To his friends who spoke to him, Wheeler was impatient of sympathy.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

INSURGENTS LOSE AGAIN IN TOBACCO ASSN. WAR

Denied Injunction Restraining Officers From Distributing Sales' Proceeds.

Judge Newell Jennings in Superior Court yesterday denied the motion of 400 members of the Connecticut Valley Tobacco Association for an injunction restraining the officers from distributing the proceeds of tobacco sales "according to the arbitrary judgment" of the officials instead of "according to the net proceeds" as provided in the marketing agreement.

Judge Jennings in his decision, which was handed down in the afternoon, said he was denying the injunction because it was such a radical departure from the original claims for a receiver and also because the defendants were not at this time prepared to meet such an issue in the trial.

The injunction proceedings were the latest in the fight for liquidation and receivership which has been carried on for several weeks by the attorneys of 400 members of the association, who declare that the officials in charge are not doing by the association as they should.

The receivership and liquidation arguments were settled by Judge Jennings when he denied both of them in Superior Court.

LICENSES SUSPENDED

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out today at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are fifty-nine names on the list. Two cases were appealed. Three were Connecticut operators convicted in other states. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

THIS PILFERER IS AN INDUSTRIOUS SORT

Somebody in the vicinity of Lydall street is anxious to work, according to Don C. Hattin, foreman of the State Highway department employees in this district. This person made off with one of a number of new pickaxes issued to the department men yesterday.

The men had knocked off work and had left their shovels and pickaxes by the side of the road. When they came back one of the pickaxes was gone.

"The pick isn't any good without the shovel," said Mr. Hattin. "But if the person comes back I will give him an order on the department for a new shovel. You don't get men as ready to work as he is every day."

HEBRON

The Fred Burnham pacer known as "Peter Again, Jr." was driven at the Brooklyn fair the second time by Charles Segar of this place and this time won third money. There were six starters. The time was 2 minutes, 24 seconds. The first time record made was a little less than that, 2 minutes, 15 seconds. This horse is now owned by Henry Watrous.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stratton of Guilford were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. Stratton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Griffin. Mr. and Mrs. Griffin accompanied their son-in-law and daughter to their home in Guilford where they will make a visit.

Mrs. John Cheresnik is visiting her daughter Miss Anna Cheresnik in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cole and Miss Jennie Buck of Worcester also were in Hebron. Mrs. Cole and Miss Alice Ball of Buckland visited their former homes in Columbia and Hebron on Monday and made calls on friends and relatives.

It has been learned that George M. Buck, formerly of this place, who passed his 100th birthday last November is suffering from an attack of whooping cough. He has had the cough through part of the summer and fall and is much weakened by it though he is reported as improving. He is able to be about the house and to see friends. He is making his home with a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Buell in Avon. He has not been able this year to visit his Hebron farm which he plans to do every summer.

Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Douglas have been spending some weeks at the White Mountains. They expect to visit their Hebron home some time in October.

The effects of touches of frost are to be seen on the Hopevale farm, the ferns and wild flowers having turned brown. Other parts of the town lower than in the center report slight frosts.

Reports from the Middlesex hospital are that Mrs. Edward Raymond still lies in a critical condition. The pneumonia has left her but other disturbing symptoms continue.

Little Miss Janice Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ward of Hartford is spending some time at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Clinton Porter.

The churches of the town and the schools are all back on standard time.

Mrs. Bessie Lord, widow of the late Herbert Lord, formerly of this place, and her son Noble Everett Lord, of Hartford, were guests of relatives here on Sunday.

Work of dismantling Hebron green began on Saturday. Steam shovels worked all day Sunday cutting the roadway through the center of the park.

Miss Clarissa Lord spent the week-end as the guest of her cousin Miss Esther Lord in Manchester.

Mable Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Porter fell and sprained her wrist quite badly Saturday morning.

Leonard Porter, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Porter while working with a saw in manual training work in school sawed his index finger to the bone. The next day he fell from the back of a wagon to the ground from the horse giving a sudden start. This boy a few months ago while fishing caught the fish hook into his own mouth. He was able to extricate the hook by working it out through his jaw, cutting the line and pulling it out. He maintains that it did not hurt.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ward of Hartford, on Sunday, September 25. Mrs. Ward was formerly Miss Bertha Porter of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hunt of Pittsfield, Mass., are guests of their niece, Mrs. William O. Seyms and Mrs. Seyms, in Gilead.

The union meeting of the tri-county Christian Endeavor was held Sunday evening at Marlborough. There was no service at Hebron and Gilead as many of the members attended the union meeting.

The September meeting of the W. C. T. U. took place on Thursday afternoon at the home of the president, Miss Clarissa Pendleton. Many of the members were kept away by other engagements and the attendance was small. Tea and sandwiches were served. The membership of the society was increased since last year. Twenty-four members are now enrolled.

Mrs. Louise Blume is the guest of friends in Boston.

Elder C. F. Little, who is now located in Williamstown, spent several days in Hopevale, conducting the services at the Hopevale Seventh Day Adventist church and preaching the sermon on Saturday. Elder Little visits the Hopevale church in turn with the other charges in his circuit.

CITES AID AUTOS GIVE IN FARM DEVELOPMENT

Official Stresses Need For In- creased Motor Equipment of All Kinds.

"One of the most hopeful signs in the agricultural situation is the fact revealed by recent statistics that rural registration of automobiles is increasing in the United States," says J. W. Frazer, sales manager of the Chrysler Sales Corporation. "The more our farmers have of all kinds of gas power, electric power and mechanical equipment the sooner they will leave behind them the troubles that have been making their lot so difficult."

The Chrysler official's comments were prompted by a farm paper's discussion of the views of a statistician who called on its editor and blamed automobiles for farm problems of the country.

The statistician argued like this: Automobiles and trucks, with some help from tractors, have decreased our horse population by 8,000,000 since 1900. This has saved 24,000,000 acres which were formerly used to feed work stock, over to the production of human food. If only 15,000,000 of these acres are tillable land, that means, in terms of corn, 450,000,000 bushels, which is more than our 1926 crop surplus, an excess that has been representing a goodly share of the farm product.

"The statistician might have added that probably we would have no surplus crops but for tractor-plows and gas-driven combines," continued Mr. Frazer. "But the editor raised the pertinent question whether the farmer today would be willing to exchange his car for a horse and buggy. Would any farmer step out from under his financial worries and other cares if he could—"

by trading his speedy access to town, his riding and power machinery, his radio and the like, for his working tools and isolation?

"The farmers must have more their end with the cities, where machinery steadily increases the worker's productive power, thereby giving him a large measure of good things for fewer working hours. If farmers are to share in this progress, they must adopt the same methods—they must similarly multiply their own productive power into larger and larger outputs."

Turn the key! and your Buick is Double-Locked

No lock could be safer! One turn of the key locks both ignition and steering wheel. But merely turning off the ignition does not lock the wheel. You may shut off the engine and coast, if you like, and still have your car under perfect control.

And no lock could be more convenient! It is illuminated and located within easy reach, where the steering column meets the dash.

The Buick double-lock is an exclusive Buick feature—one of many important refinements which characterize Buick for 1928.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (94) Stereotyping

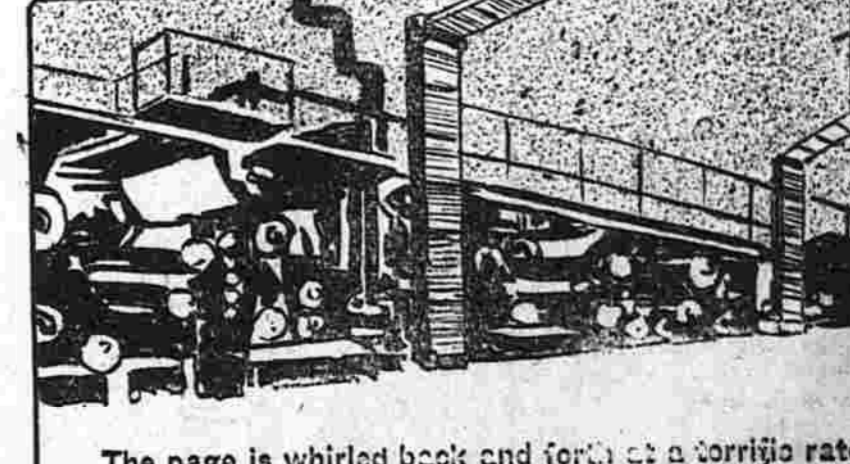

After a page is "made up" with news and advertising matter, all on lines of type, the page is wheeled to the stereotyping department where a matrix is made of it. The page is rolled under tremendous pressure against a flat piece of cardboard which retains the impression of the page.

This impression, or matrix as it is commonly called, is then placed in a casting box and lead is poured over it.

The page, now cast into one leaden piece, sometimes flat, sometimes semi-circular, is fitted to its place on a newspaper press.

The page is whirled back and forth at a terrific rate of speed in the press as the paper speeds across it. Modern newspaper presses print about 600 papers a minute and under unusual conditions speed up to 700 and more a minute. Conveyors carry the completed papers to the trucks for delivery.

MONTE CRISTO' REOPENS RIALTO ON SATURDAY

Famous Dumas Story to Be Shown on Screen as Theater Starts Again.

The Rialto theater opens Saturday under new ownership and management. Shaban All of Boston, owner of a string of motion picture houses, was in town today making plans for the re-opening of the local theater. He announced that the feature picture on Saturday would be "Monte Cristo" starring John Gilbert.

"Monte Cristo" in the films has stirred public interest everywhere in the famous fiction character until that book is now one of the most popular in public libraries. Under ordinary circumstances this novel is popular and it is seldom left on the shelf more than one day. As long as romance lives there will be a demand for this marvelous tale written in the nineteenth century by Alexandre Dumas, the elder, famous French playwright and author. It is a story enjoyed by boys and girls, by middle-aged persons, and by elders. It is one of the few novels that almost any consistent reader can say he has read two or three times.

The screen version of "Monte Cristo" was made by William Fox and was directed by Emmett J. Flynn, the director, who made a reputation for himself in his picture, "A Connecticut Yankee".

Gilbert plays the title role in the photoplay, and Renee Adoree, "The Big Parade" is a featured member of the cast. Estelle Taylor is also among the stars of the film.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

A woman's gloves and handbag are found at the scene of Benson's murder and a large gray automobile is seen to have been standing outside at midnight. Markham tells Vance he has traced the handbag to Miss St. Clair and Vance insists she is innocent. Markham agrees to let him be present in his office when he interviews the girl.

CHAPTER XIII

(Saturday, June 15; 3 p. m.)

WE entered the ancient building with its discolored marble pillars and balustrades and its old-fashioned iron scroll-work, by the Franklin Street door, and went directly to the district attorney's office on the fourth floor.

The office, like the building, breathed an air of former days. Its high ceilings, its massive golden oak woodwork, its elaborate low-hung chandelier of bronze and china, its dingy bay walls of painted plaster, and its four high narrow windows to the south—all bespoke a departed era in architecture and decoration.

On the floor was a large velvet carpet-rug of dingy brown; and the windows were hung with velour draperies of the same color. Several large comfortable chairs stood about the walls and before the long oak table in the district attorney's desk. This desk, directly under the windows and facing the room, was broad and flat, with carved uprights and two rows of drawers extending to the floor.

To the right of the high-backed swivel desk-chair was another table of carved oak. There were also several filing cabinets in the room, and a large safe, in the center of the east wall a leather-covered door, decorated with large brass nail-heads, led into a long narrow room, between the office and the waiting-room, where the district attorney's secretary and several clerks had their desks. Opposite to this door was another one opening into the district attorney's inner sanctum; and still another door, facing the windows, gave to the main corridor.

A moment later a tall, hawk-faced man, with stoop-shoulders and an awkward, angular gait, entered.

Vance glanced over the room casually.

"So this is the matrix of municipal justice—eh, what?" He walked to one of the windows and looked out upon the gray circular tower of the tombs opposite.

"And there, I take it, are the obliques where the victims of our law are incarcerated so as to reduce the competition of criminal activity among the remaining citizenry. A most distressing sight, Markham."

The district attorney had sat down at his desk and was glancing at several notations on his blotter.

"There are a couple of my men waiting to see me," he remarked without looking up. "So, if you'll be good enough to take a chair over here, I'll proceed with my humble efforts to undermine society still further."

He pressed a button under the edge of his desk, and a alert young man with thick-lensed glasses appeared at the door.

"Swacker, tell Phelps to come in," Markham ordered. "And also tell Springer, if he's back from lunch, that I want to see him in a few minutes."

The secretary disappeared, and a moment later a tall, hawk-faced man, with stoop-shoulders and an awkward, angular gait, entered.

"What news?" asked Markham.

"Well, Chief," the detective replied in a low grating voice, "I just found out something I thought you could use right away. After I reported this noon, I ambled around to this Captain Leacock's house, thinking I might learn something from the house-boys, and ran into the captain coming out. I talked house flowers to fill the star's dressing-room and have some left over. I tried to find out if Benson was playing the 'angel' for her, but Rinaldo either didn't know or pretended he didn't."

Tracy closed his note-book and looked up. "That any good to you, Chief?"

"First-rate," Markham told him. "Keep at work along that line, and let me hear from you again about this time Monday."

Tracy bowed, and as he went out the secretary again appeared at the door.

"Springer's here now, sir," he said. "Shall I send him in?"

Springer proved to be a type of detective quite different from either Phelps or Tracy. He was older, and had the gloomy capable air of a hard-working bookkeeper. There was no initiative in his bearing, but one felt that he could discharge a delicate task with extreme competency.

Markham took from his pocket the envelope on which he had noted the name given him by Major Benson.

"Springer, there's a man down on Long Island that I want to interview as soon as possible. It's in connection with the Benson case, and I wish you'd locate him and get him up here as soon as possible. If you can find him in the telephone book you needn't go down personally. His name is Leander Frye, and he lives, I think, at Fort Washington."

Markham jotted down the name on a card and handed it to the detective.

"This is Saturday, so if he comes to town tomorrow, have him ask for me at the Stuyvesant Club. I'll be there in the afternoon."

When Springer had gone, Markham again rang for his secretary and gave instructions that the moment Miss St. Clair arrived she was to be shown in.

"Sergeant Heath is here," Swacker informed him, "and wants to see you if you're not too busy."

Markham glanced at the clock over the door.

"I guess I'll have time. Send him in."

Heath was surprised to see Vance and me in the district attorney's office, but after greeting Markham with the customary handshake, he turned to Vance with a good-natured smile.

"Still acquiring knowledge, Mr. Vance?"

"Can't say that I am, Sergeant," returned Vance lightly. "But I'm learning a number of most interesting facts. . . . How goes the sleuthing?"

Heath's face became suddenly serious.

"That's what I'm here to tell the chief about." He addressed himself to Markham. "This case is a lawbreaker, sir. My men and myself have talked to a dozen of Benson's cronies, and we can't worm a single fact of any value out of 'em. They either don't know anything, or they're giving a swell imitation of a lot of clams."

"What's that?" he asked to be greatly shocked—bowed over, flustered, flabbergasted—by the news of the shooting. And have they got any idea as to why or how it happened? They'll tell the world they haven't."

"You know the line of talk: 'Who'd ever expect that old Al? Nobody could've done it but a burglar who didn't know good old Al. If he'd known good old Al, even the burglar wouldn't have done it. . . . Hell! I felt like killing off a few of those birds myself so they could go and join their good old Al.'" alone; and he went straight up to the lady's house on the drive, and stayed there over an hour. Then he went back home, looking worried.

Markham considered a moment. "It may mean nothing at all, but I'm glad to know it anyway. St. Clair'll be here in a few minutes, and I'll find out what she has to say.—There's nothing else for today. . . . Tell Swacker to send Tracy in."

Tracy was the antithesis of Phelps. He was short, a trifle stout, and exuded an atmosphere of stunted sanity. His face was rounded and genial; he wore a pince-nez; and his clothes were modish and fitted him well.

"Good morning, Chief," he greeted Markham in a quiet, ingratiating tone. "I understand the St. Clair woman is to call here this afternoon, and there are a few things I've found out that may assist in your questioning."

He opened a small note-book and adjusted his pince-nez.

"I thought I might learn something from her singing teacher, an Italian formerly connected with the Metropolitan, but now running a sort of choral society of his own. He trains aspiring prima donnas in their roles with a chorus and settings, and Miss St. Clair is one of his pet students."

"He talked to me, without any trouble; and it seems he knew Benson well. Benson attended several of St. Clair's rehearsals, and sometimes called for her in a taxi-cab. Rinaldo thought the man's name, sometimes he had a bad crush on the girl."

"Last winter, when she sang at the Criterion in a small part, Rinaldo was back stage coaching, and Benson sent her enough hot-

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

There's a new "soap" abroad in the land, guaranteed to make women froth at the mouth. The ad attempts to tell supposedly intelligent women that their husbands won't love them and their homes won't be wrecked if they don't use soap with the evanescent tantalizing fragrance, and, also, if they don't use soap which fits snugly with its squared corners into the hollow of the hand. It devotes thousands and thousands of dollars to such insane blither. Sometimes I wonder if we women really are such fools as the ad writers think. It doesn't seem as if business would spend its dollars so recklessly if it didn't at least think we were.

Our Own Poem

Here's a little written-to-order-for-our-own-column poem that came in my morning's mail. I like it and the author, don't you? She is Kate Shibley of Van Buren, Arkansas. She includes an interesting letter with the poem. Here's an extract:—

"I am another woman who had to do some re-reading from a salary-earner to a home-maker. There were months of self-inflicted torture from thoughts of wasted talents (?), narrowed environment, and the dread of becoming a back number. Out of it all came an awakening. A few days ago while trying to glorify the scraping of a skillet, the enclosed verses kept chattering through my brain. I dried my hands and settled the important question by putting it all on paper, out here in the foothills of the Ozarks. And here's our very own poem:—

Yours—The Day

Have you, dear woman, grown so "temperamental" That uplift only comes with skies of blue? Are blocks of buildings—filled with life, pulsating— Just rows of common bricks and stones, to you? Or do you daily sense the joy of finding In stretch of street, that passes by your door, An ever-changing scene that brings you nearer All living creatures, than you've been before? Can you exalt the daily grind of duties By glimpse of sky, that shows a cast of gray? And change grim thoughts to thoughts that list your blessings— Can you do this? Then, Woman —YOURS, THE DAY!

He Curled Horse Tails

Marcel, inventor of the wave by that name, still lives to tell the story of his hard early days when, because women laughed at his attempts to make natural waves instead of "frizzes," he was forced to practice on the tails of horses in the next door livery stable. Marcel doesn't tell, and one wonders just what financial return he has reaped from the billions of dollars spent by women on Marcel waves since he invented it in his little shop on the slopes of Montmartre years ago?

Poor Babies

No little-to-do is made by the reformers over Soviet Russia's plan of legitimating all children, whether born within or without wedlock. However, it is just as necessary for the mother to prove the child's paternity in order to use the father's name and support for the child as in other countries where illegitimacy is a social fact. Reading of dozens of Soviet girls who have killed babies and selves because they could not prove this paternity, it is difficult to give the Soviet plan any preference.

NERVOUS COLLAPSE FOLLOWS CONTINUED LACK OF SLEEP

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

When fatigue or exhaustion develops in an human being, if the fatigue is not overcome by suitable rest, the result is likely to be what is sometimes called a "nervous break-down." In an attempt to find out what changes occur through lack of sleep, investigations recently have been made in the departments of anatomy and of pharmacology in the University of Wisconsin Medical School. Animals which went for considerable periods of time without sleep were studied as to the ultimate effects.

It was found that a lack of sleep may result in collapse and even in death, and that various animals differ greatly as to the amount of endurance without sleep. The shortest period in which any animal collapsed was seven days and the longest thirty-one days.

Previous to the breakdown there usually is a sudden fall in the temperature, a sudden rise and then a fall in the pulse rate associated also with gradual reduction in the breathing rate. Significant changes were found to take place in the nerve cells of alimony and wanders abroad enjoying his new-found freedom.

After a dozen years he wanders back, having decided that no one matters quite so much as his wife. He begs her to take him back.

In the conversation that ensues, she refuses to remarry him and he leaves, disconsolate.

He has not gone far when he stops with the sudden realization that none of them have mentioned the children. Happiness creeps into his soul and he turns back. Why? Because he is sure the children will accomplish what he himself could not do? Not at all! It is because of the fact that as his wife has not mentioned the children she has evidently been under more intense emotion than he suspected. She still loves him!

The story impressed me. We have an idea that a married woman what many men have found by observation on themselves or on others. Conditions actually associated with lack of sleep result in terrific disturbance of the human system that may lead to collapse and death.

Marital or Parental Love?

By Olive Roberts Barton

Margaret Ayer Barnes has written a story called "Home Fires" in a recent magazine. A husband and wife with two little children have been separated. He pays his wife, in spite of the fact that their children would be orphans. There was little time to think. Instinct ruled. His instinct was love for her.

I agree with Mrs. Barnes. If real marital love predominates over parental love it is not a thing to be censured. Why should it be?

RUMOR SAYS THAT LEO FLYNN IS TO PART WITH DEMPSEY

Jimmy Johnston to Be New Man on the Job—Jack Talks About the Chicago Fight.

By DAVIS J. WALSH, INS Sports Editor. New York, Sept. 28.—White Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney were airing their personal versions about something which probably they recall very little, that seventh round at Soldiers' Field, the world set around today that Leo P. Flynn soon will cease to have the right to act as aide-de-camp in the Dempsey menace. The word was that Leo may have talked himself out of a first class job, as Jack Kearns, another fluent linguist, did before this.

Jimmy Johnston, also silent like a calliope, is said to be the new man of the hour, the boys having noted that James and Tex Rickard have been conferring. What has a Rickard conference to do with the identity of the man who manages Dempsey? Nothing, my good fellow, nothing; that is, not very much.

Lois of Talk. The writer saw Flynn and Dempsey together last night, and at that time, everything seemed to be Jacob. But these many weeks the talk has been of Flynn's imminent dismissal on the ground of one reason and another, or none at all, so perhaps the parties of the men with the fist and the man with the mouth really is on its way. Johnston, as a matter of fact, has been hovering on the fringes of the Dempsey crowd ever since Flynn got the job and, if he hasn't broken through somebody's services yet, it isn't because he hasn't been shooting them into the court.

The interview. However, neither by word nor gesture today did Dempsey indicate that Flynn was to be coming to the end of a beautiful friendship. What he did say about the Chicago fight would make a good story but not in print; at least, only over my dead typewriter could the story see the light of day. The stand-out features of the rest of the interview were:

1. That Dempsey may fight four or five push-around California and the west before starting another eastern campaign next summer. 2. That Tunney's knockdown of himself in the eighth round came as a result of a punch that was "sneaked" under the referee's arm as he was breaking them.

3. That Tunney followed up his knockdown of Tunney in the seventh round for two reasons, of which both are slightly contradictory. One was that, after the so-called long count, he became discouraged and felt that the only way he could win was by a punch that would level Tunney for minutes instead of seconds and that he was "laying back" for that punch. The other was that he was too confident.

The latter probably is the proper explanation, since Dempsey freely admitted that in the old days he would have gone after his man without asking what the count had been. "I guess I blew my chance, all right," he said, sadly. "But I kept thinking of the long time Tunney had been on the floor and the terrible 'break' I had got. I thought I would get him before the end of the round, anyhow. In fact, I felt that everything was right in my mitt. Yes, I guess I muffed that one."

PHILLY'S WIN OVER BOSTON NOT ALLOWED

Referee Scott Allowed Quakers to Make Substitution Within Last 15 Minutes; Game to Be Replayed.

Nathan Agar, official representative of the American Soccer League at the game between Boston and Philadelphia, played at Philadelphia last Saturday which resulted in a 3 to 2 victory for Philadelphia, in his official report, has stated that the Philadelphia team was allowed by the officials of the game to make a substitution, approximately eight minutes before the end of the contest.

The Boston team protested vigorously at the time, but the referee, after consulting one of the linesmen, permitted the substitution to be made.

Referee D. A. Scott of Philadelphia, in his official report of the game, admits such substitution was made, stating that it occurred "10 minutes from time."

The Boston team filed formal protest and since such procedure is in direct violation to American by-laws, which, for the past two seasons have stated that no substitutions can be made within 15 minutes of the finish of the game, it has, therefore, been deemed necessary for this office to declare the Philadelphia-Boston game "no contest" and a replay has been ordered at Philadelphia at the first available date.

Disciplinary action will immediately be taken against the officials responsible for this breach of the by-laws.

Prior to the opening of the season, all referees were carefully informed by this office concerning the rules governing substitutions.

MISTRETTA QUILTS GRID FOR STUDY

Afternoon Course Prevented Him From Attending All Five Weekly Practices at Notre Dame.

According to reports reaching here, Jimmy Mistretta of School Street, one of the most promising football players ever turned out by St. Joseph's, has quit the Notre Dame football team.

Mistretta's football ability is of such a caliber that his many friends were looking forward eagerly to his making the Freshman team and eventually to his playing for the Fighting Irish. Letters received here by friends yesterday, Mistretta's course of study is such that he is only available three out of the required five afternoons per week.

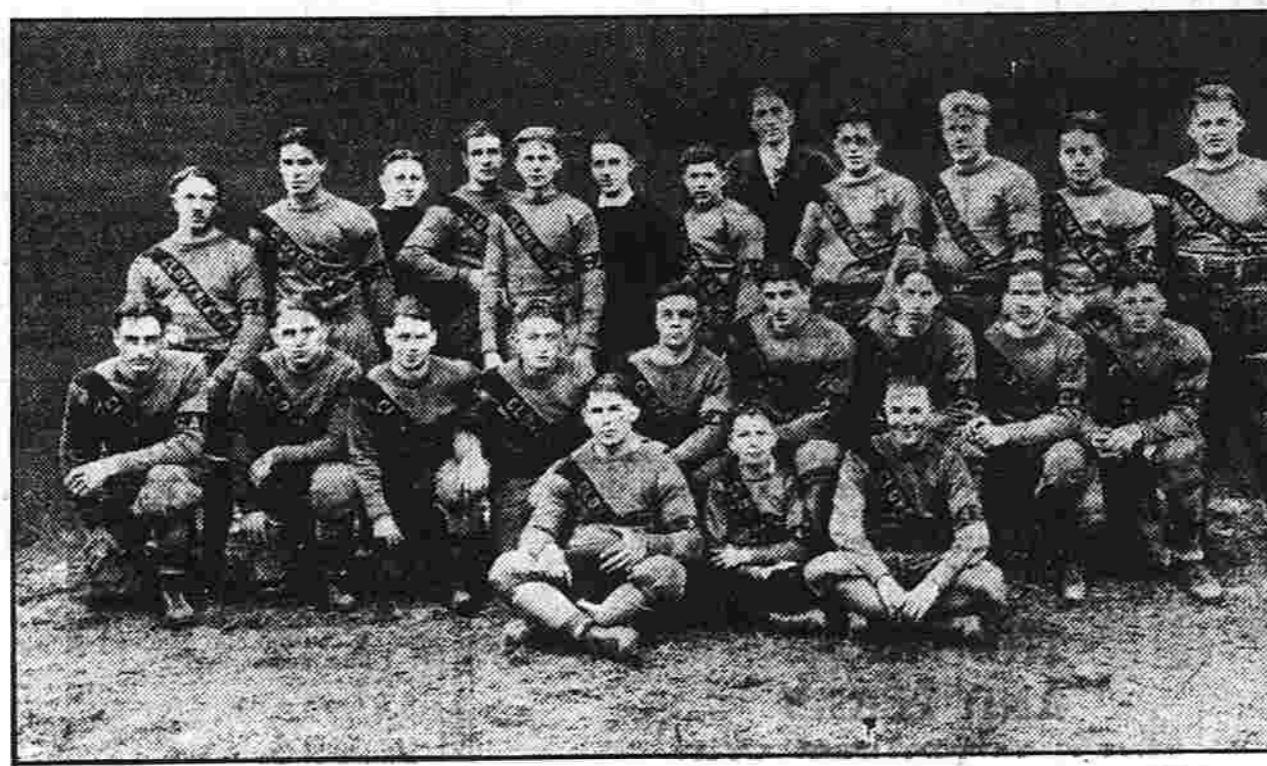

The coach, it is understood, refused to allow Mistretta to skip the practice sessions and he was not allowed to drop the course.

Mistretta survived the first few cuts in the squad and probably stood at least a fair chance of making the grade although there are 160-pound class—Herman Pink, Hartford; Lucien Lerviere, Waterbury.

The Provost-Kelly scrap tops a card that promises a lot of action. Vin LaBella, the great little Middletown bantam, again meets Mickey Roberts, Hartford's whirlwind as the fur is sure to fly as they come together.

Other bouts that bring together natural rivals evenly matched are: 160-pound class—Herman Pink, Hartford; Lucien Lerviere, Waterbury. 130-pound class: Gerald Emard, Holyoke; Joe Dignall, Waterbury. 122-pound class: Al Cromack, Unionville; Bobby Morrison, Waterbury, former state champion. The rest of the hard ball find Waterbury, Holyoke, Windsor Locks and Middletown amateurs battling outstanding Hartford amateurs.

START SEASON SUNDAY

Local Sport Chatter

There will be an eighteen hole golf tournament Saturday morning among the caddies at the Manchester Country Club. This is the first time that a tournament of this kind has been attempted and it is expected to prove highly successful. A large number of entries is expected.

"Cap" Bissell, winner of the first annual town championship tennis singles tournament, has resumed his duties at Trinity college where he is a sophomore and captain-elect of the Trinity tennis team. Bissell may also become a candidate for the basketball team. If he does, it is almost a certainty that he will make the team. However, studies may prevent him from finding suitable time for the sport.

Billy Schoneski, who played right end for the Cloverleaves football team last season, will return Saturday and is expected back at his old position. Ted McCarthy will be at the other wing post.

Director Lewis Lloyd is training a group of young men who will participate in the first annual five-mile cross-country run for the town championship Thanksgiving Day morning. Any others who have not yet signed up, may do so. However, it is important that participants get as much training as possible as the grid will be no cinch.

Manager Bill Griffin of the Cloverleaves is finding it hard to book games this season. Many teams are reluctant to leave their own "backyard."

Johnny Powers, former quarterback on the Pirates football team here, is on the Connecticut Argyle squad. He was used in part of the opening game last Saturday. Powers was with the team as a substitute last season.

There will be a practice session for members of the Celtic section team Thursday night at the West Side playgrounds at 7:30. There will also be a meeting of the Hartford District League officials tomorrow night to draft up a schedule.

Coch Tommy Kelley is surely having tough luck with his S. M. H. S. grid squad. He has already lost the services of two of his best players in Bob Treat and Johnny Johnston. They will be hard to replace and the opening game with West Hartford comes Saturday.

FOOTBALL FUNDAMENTALS TO BILLY EVANS

As Told By Famous Coaches

SO THERE will be no necessity for readjusting his grip, the boy de-laying the short forward pass requires only arm motion to send the ball on its way. The feet are wide apart, with the weight on the right foot as the right arm is drawn back to make ready for the throw. The left arm is extended to give the proper balance. Like the punter, the forward passer must keep cool, even though the entire defensive team is charging down at him, leaving in the air with the hope of at least disconcerting him if not actually blocking the pass. A fatal mistake is for the passer to hurry his throw under such conditions thereby losing accuracy.

Opponent as Yet Is Not Secured

Manager Bill Griffin of the Cloverleaves football team is burning the wires in effort to land a game for a game here Sunday. The North End town champions were supposed to ring up the curtain on their 1927 season last Sunday but the Colored Corinthians, of Hartford again pulled the stunt for which they are noted, called off the same at such a late hour that Manager Griffin was unable to obtain another attraction.

At present the Cloverleaves' management is dickering with three teams for a game here Sunday. All-Meriden, Holyoke St. Aloysius and the New London Coast Guards. It is the plan of the management to secure the best possible attractions for Manchester fans providing they will support the game. Admission of fifty cents will be charged for men but ladies and children will be admitted for a quarter. Home games will be played at Hickey's Grove. The field has already been fenced off.

Undeclared in the three years of their organization and with their goal line crossed but once, the Cloverleaves have high hopes of keeping their slate immaculate. All games will be played at home. They will be preceded by preliminary encounters, featuring the North Ends.

Sweeney With Coats Sunday at Stadium

Pete Sweeney, star outside left on the P. Coats of Yale, R. I., who play an American League soccer game here next Sunday against Hartford at the McKee street stadium, is one of the most popular players who ever wore a uniform in the United States, according to an article appearing in the Spicer Pictorial Weekly.

"Pete has been playing the game for a long time, and has a few more seasons to play yet. This makes his fourth season with the Pawtucket team. He has played with the Paterson team and also with Fall River. There is no cleaner player in the game. He is respected by all soccer players in the League."

"Pete lives in New Jersey and makes the trip to Pawtucket every week. "While not so fast as he used to be he can still hold his own with the best of them."

"When the Coats team came on the field to open its American League season and Pete was not in the line-up there was a general uproar from the fans who wanted to know where was Sweeney? Before things were returned to normal the announcer gave the reason for Pete's non-appearance."

THE NUT CRACKER

EDITOR'S NOTE—Inasmuch as Bobby Jones, Tommy Armour and Maureen O'neill have run amuck drafting new rules of golf, the following are likewise added for what they are worth—If at all.

No. 1—Get a dumb caddy. If he can't count, so much the better. If he can't see, fire him. No. 2—If you must use a spoon, do so with the right hand only. Forks are passe. No. 3—Don't be a piker. Concede all putts under 20 feet. After all, what is life? No. 4—Under no circumstances make a hole-in-one. It has ruined too many fine fellows. No. 5—Don't neglect to ground your feet before playing out of a bunker. No. 6—A twosome must always give way to a foursome. Especially if the blokes look handy with their mitts. No. 7—If the stakes are high persuade your opponent to give you a big handicap. A heavy niblick is the best persuader. No. 8—Don't tee your ball too high unless it is a highball. Then let your conscience (and your capacity) be your guide.

Campus Comment

When Southern California journeys to Chicago late in November to meet Notre Dame, the Trojans will be accompanied by the largest student band ever to travel that far for a football game.

Harold William Roberts, who has made a box office attraction out of the Trojan band, plans to take 120 pieces to Chicago for the game.

Roberts, in his middle twenties, has made the Southern California jazz band such a colorful outfit that it annually draws thousands of fans to grid games in which they have but a passing interest.

It looks like the boys in Dixie want to make the first Saturday in December another Thanksgiving Day insofar as football is concerned. From the schedules one notes that the Georgia-Georgia Tech, Florida-Maryland and Vanderbilt-Alabama games are to be played Dec. 3, while North Carolina State meets the Michigan Argies at Raleigh, N. C., on the same day. The first three are annual battles.

Will Ches Latham, the big West Virginia center, play every minute in every game this year? That's his ambition. In 1925, his first year on the varsity, he played 520 out of a possible 540 minutes. Last year he played 525 minutes out of a possible 600 minutes.

Syracuse's first opponent in soccer this year will be captained by Jimmy Smallwood, captain of the undefeated 1924 Syracuse team. He is now a student at Penn Teachers' College.

A last minute arrangement gives Duke gridders a trip to the east for a game against Boston College. The game is scheduled for Oct. 1, a few weeks ago. The clash in Boston was then arranged.

CLARKE HAS TOUGH JOB TO BUILD UP HIGH SCHOOL FIVE

Only Two Veterans to Report at Initial Practice Session; List of Likely Candidates; Schedule.

When the bugle call sounds for basketball candidates at the high school here in a week or two, only two regulars of last year's team will report to the same team in the moulding together a combination that will compare with the 1926-27 edition. However, this will not be the first time that Coach Clarke has found plenty of work ahead of him and made a success.

The two veterans are Nino Bogdini and Billy Dowd. Both played the basketball positions last season and were largely instrumental in the fine showing which the school made in tying Bristol High for first place in the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League on Monday to the same team in the Yale Tournament semi-finals by one point in the so-called "rubber" game.

There is a strong possibility that Dowd will be named captain of the team next season. The forward position and center are vacant, left so by the graduation of Jimmy Gorman, Ty Holland and Ding Farr. Who will get these assignments depends entirely on the showing which the candidates make.

"Doc" Keeney, captain of the football team, has a good chance to grab off the jump position providing he shows what is expected of him. Healey and Johnson will give him a run for the job. Others who are expected to make a strong bid for a position are Hansen, Bishop, Shannon, Sturgeon, Campbell, Kittle and E. Dowd. However, there may be others who will prove "darkhorse" candidates and make the grade. It is entirely too early to prognosticate deeply.

Following is the schedule for the schoolboys this season which is about the same as last except for the addition of Wilby High of Waterbury for a home and home game. The season will be opened when Hartford High plays here December 9. Nine games will be played at home and six away. The team will again enter the Yale Tournament if it is selected.

Following is the schedule: Dec. 9—Hartford High, here. Dec. 16—East Hartford, here. Dec. 24—Alumni, here. Dec. 31—Bristol, there. Jan. 6—East Hartford, there. Jan. 13—Meriden, here. Jan. 20—Willimantic, here. Jan. 28—Middletown, there. Feb. 3—Wilby (Waterbury) here.

Feb. 4—West Hartford, there. Feb. 10—Meriden, there. Feb. 17—Bristol, here. Feb. 24—West Hartford, here. Feb. 25—Wilby, there. Mar. 2—Middletown, here. Mar. 9—Meriden, there. Mar. 16—17—Yale Tournament.

Giants Trim Phillies But Best They Can Hope For Is a Tie With the League Leading Pirates.

BY LES CONKLIN, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent. New York, Sept. 28.—Following their fourth straight victory over the Cubs, the Pittsburgh Pirates rested today, confident that they have distanced their pursuers in the National League Scramble. The Cubs are still two games in front of St. Louis and can clinch the pennant by winning two of their three remaining games against Cincinnati, if even if the Cardinals cop three straight.

The Cardinals, who beat the Reds yesterday, play the Portkville boys again today. They can negotiate a tie for first place by making a clean sweep of their remaining three games provided the Pirates lose two out of three to the Reds.

The Giants trimmed the Phillies but the best they can hope for is a tie with the Pirates. They are now intent on earning something like $1,500 apiece by nosing out the Cardinals whom they trail by a game and a half. The standing today: Team W. L. To Play P. Pittsburgh 10-95 53 3 .616. St. Louis 9-91 60 3 .603. New York 8-99 61 4 .593.

Although Gantham's homer, following Traynor's single, gave the Pirates a two to one victory over the Cubs yesterday, most of Pittsburgh's big sluggers have not been worth their weight in gold recently. The Cubs have been getting the best pitching in either league however. Yesterday Meadows, Hill and Kremer divided the mound duty, holding the Cubs to five hits. Carl Olson was the losing twirler.

Old Pete Alexander of the Cardinals was in world's series form against the Reds, holding them to three hits and winning four to one. Chuck Hefey, who is on a home run spree, hit for the circuit with one on and broke up the game.

The Giants' offense was sweetland for his hit, of which Hornsby got four, and swamped the Phillies six to two. The Phillies could make little headway against Fitzsimmons.

Babe Ruth pulled a real Frank Merriwell against the Athletics, his homer with the bases jammed staking the Yanks to a seven to four win. It was No. 57 and he needs two more to tie his 1921 record. Lou Gehrig hit his 46th homer after a long slump.

By scoring seven runs the Yanks broke the American League record of 943 for a season. New York has scored 952 runs this season.

College Captains

RANDOLF OF BROWN Providence, R. I.—A red-head, the toughest of eight remaining members of Brown's "Iron Men" eleven of 1926, captains the Brown Bear this year.

He is Roy E. Randall of Brockton, Mass. and he was the only one of those famous iron men to play every minute of the Dartmouth, Yale, Colgate and Harvard sessions last year.

This fiery-throated youngster has been a member of Brown's team for two years, with a year at half-back and a year at quarterback to his service.

How good he was at quarterback last year can be realized from the fact that he was chosen for the Warner-Rocke-Jones All America eleven. He also made other mythical teams.

Randall is expected to be the big shot of Brown's team this year. Upon his shoulders will fall a multitude of duties, including the punting and passing and most of the ball-carrying. Defensively, he will be stationed at quarterback.

Randall is also a baseball star. He played second base on the varsity nine last year, the same position he played at Andover, where he prepped.

TODAY IN FISTIANA

Sept. 28, 1911. CRIBB vs. MOLINRAUX. One hundred and sixteen years ago today, Tom Molinraux, an American negro, gained his second chance at the world's heavyweight title when he met Tom Cribb, champion of England, in a hectic struggle for world's supremacy at Thistleton, England.

Who had gained fame as the first holder of the American heavyweight title, had previously fought Cribb for the world's title and was defeated in 33 rounds. In this, his return match, he was knocked out in the eleventh round of a savage fight in which his jaw was broken in one of the early rounds. Twenty thousand persons attended the affair.

The negro was born at Georgetown, near Washington, D. C. and reared a Virginia slave. He gained recognition as American champion by virtue of victories over all the best men this country furnished at that time and was the first and only negro to fight for the world's heavyweight title until Jack Johnson reached the pinnacle in 1910.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

It's better to have loved and lost than to be sued for breach of promise.

DON'T BECOME SOFT

You have to keep in trim to work these puzzles. Don't get SOFT but get HARD in par six. The answer is printed on another page.

Letter golf puzzle grid with words SOFT and HARD.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW TO HEN, in three strokes COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2-You can change only one letter at a time.
3-You must have a complete word, of common usage for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

The headless horseman was a myth, but the headless motorist is a stark reality.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Cop to man driving past a stop sign—Hey, there, can't you read? Motorist—Sure I can read, but I can't stop!

An Adventure On Wheels
Three smart young men and three nice girls
All lovers true as steel—
Decided in a friendly way,
To spend the day a wheel.

The sun went down and evening came.
A lot too soon, they said;
Too long they tarried on the way,
The clouds grew black overhead.

Have you heard the latest? Mrs. Fisher walks in her sleep!
"How perfectly absurd..." When they have three cars!

Not a Mushy Job—Fortunately, the locomotive engineer has no one in his cab but the fireman, therefore doesn't try to drive with one hand.

One thing the flivver owner can always console himself with—he is making as much noise as any of them.

Everything else about an automobile may stop, but the payments will always run.

The other fellow: An automobile driver who is expected to slow down at street crossings.

We often wonder if auto horns were not invented in Hong Kong.

Pay careful attention to the little things. Many a flivver has wrecked a five-ton truck.

Doesn't it strike you as funny that all horse doctors now make their calls in automobiles.

"How did you people like the film last night?"
"Oh, it was wonderful! We found a parking place in the cage block!"

It surely gave them all a thrill, Dutch girl," said the lass, who looked real sweet. "I have a pair of wooden shoes I though perhaps you'd like to use. I'll gladly lend you try them on, if they will fit your feet."
"Och, thank you, miss," wee Scouty cried. "That's something we have never tried." Then Clowny jumped and said, "I'm first. I'm not afraid a bit." She handed him the wooden shoes. No time did little Clowny lose. He sat one, quite satisfied with all their fun. And, when they reached the ground they were as dizzy as could be.

North End Man Recalls Only Thump With Bottle He Tells Physician.

Frank Wigas, aged 30, a guest at the Cowles Hotel at the North End is recovering from a cut on the head suffered some time after midnight Sunday.

When treated by a physician for a deep gash on the top of his head, Wigas said that he had been struck with a bottle by two men but didn't know who they were. The appearance of the wound seemed to bear out his statement so far as a bottle was concerned.

THREE YOUNGSTERS BREAK THEIR ARMS

Trio of Accidents to Children At Play Have Generally Similar Results.

Doris Ennis, six-years-old of Buckland, suffered a fracture of the left arm when she fell from a see-saw on which she and another girl chum were playing during the noon recess at the Buckland school. Doris fell when the other girl suddenly jumped off. The arm was broken in two places and its owner will be unable to return to school for several weeks.

Two other cases of broken arms came to light today. Four-year-old Charles E. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett R. Campbell of 20 Roosevelt street, broke his right arm when he fell from a pile of lumber on which he and Bobby Smith, a playmate, were playing Monday noon.

Joanette Brousseau, seven-years-old of 357 Woodbridge street, broke her left wrist in a fall from a swing.
