TAMMANY HALL WILL RULE IF SMITH RULES

Col. Roosevelt So Tells Delegates at Convention—Assails A. F.'s Financial Policy in New York State.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, keynote speaker of the Republican State Convention, in session here today, virtually warned the G. O. P. delegates that if Governor Alfred E. Smith is to be kept out of the White House, a larger number of Republican members of the Legislature must be elected in the fall.

"For the first time in the history of the nation, the shadow of Tammany Hall lies about the White House," Roosevelt declared.

"It is in our power to dispel that shadow this autumn, by electing a strong Republican majority in the Legislature. We can serve notice on the notion that New York will be found in the Republican column in the presidential election next year, and pave the way for reclaiming the state from the control of the Wigwam at Fourteenth street."

Warns Republicans

Roosevelt warned the Republicans that if they fail to elect a larger majority to the next Legislature, the country will be Tammany territory. She wishes to see in the White House Governor Smith, with the shadow of Fourteenth street resting across him.

Roosevelt assailed Governor Smith's administration of state finances. He said that if the Smith financial policy had been carried on at Washington during the last seven years "bread lines would be standing where automobiles are parked now."

Coolidge Economy

He stressed the "Coolidge economy." "There is much to be proud of and little to regret in the actions of our party at Washington," he told the G. O. P. delegates. "We have an upright, fearless and gifted with that most uncommon of traits, common sense. We are proud to be represented in Washington by Calvin Coolidge."

Roosevelt declared that while the Republicans at Washington have reduced annual national expenditures by fifty per cent, the Democrats under Gov. Smith have increased state expenses by nearly forty per cent.

BURGLAR SENTENCED TO SIX YEAR TERM

Judge Comments on Increase Of Crime Among Young Men Of Today.

Bridgewater, Conn., Sept. 30.—Judge Leonard J. Nickerson today imposed a prison sentence of two to six years on George Dirga, 21, who pleaded guilty in Superior Court to a charge of robbery returned here from New Jersey where he had served thirteen months of a sentence as a burglar in that state.

Judge Nickerson in pronouncing sentence commented on the increase of crime among young men and told of the Legislature continually increasing the penalties for such offenses until today a maximum of twenty-five years can be inflicted.

Louis Kolesky, of Trumbull, was sent to prison for two to four years for bleeding guilty to burglary of a house at Nichols last summer.

Harry Kalabany, of Norwalk, was fined $300 and put on probation for one year. He was arrested for selling obscene reading matter and pleaded guilty several days ago.

DRIVER RESPONSIBLE

Danbury, Conn., Sept. 30.—Coroner John J. Phelan of Bridgeport today sent here a formal finding in which he holds Joseph Lobraccio criminally responsible for the death of Levi K. Mansfield, local resident who was run down and killed by Lobraccio's machine on Main street Wednesday evening.

Lobraccio has been placed under bonds of $2,000 pending a City Court hearing tomorrow morning on charges of manslaughter and operating a car with improper markers.

Hearse, Autos, Mourners Take Canary To Grave

"Perry," beloved pet canary, who for nearly four years had lived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amerigo Agostinelli at 139 Oak street, is dead—impressively buried.

Although the canary died two weeks ago, its death had been kept a secret—known only to close friends. During the two weeks, the body had remained in the parlor of the Agostinelli home.

Yesterday, the public was admitted and friends came to view the remains of the little golden-winged life cheery about the Agostinelli home. In a bed of silk in a miniature coffin made from a cigar box and a chewing gum container, set on top of a larger wooden box with four handles and surrounded with flowers gathered from nearby gardens, the canary lay in state.

His Mate Grieves

Beside the coffin, in front of which rested a Bible, stood the cage in which Perry had made his home. From it came no sounds. The dead bird's mate, drooping and silent,

TAFT LAUDS SPEED OF U. S. TRIBUNALS

Rapidly Catching Up With Current Business, He Tells Judges' Conference.

Washington, Sept. 30.—Marked success has attended the efforts of the Federal Courts throughout the country to catch up with the business before them, Chief Justice Taft said, in a statement tonight at conclusion of the Conference of Senior Circuit Judges, over which he presided.

His Mate Grieves

After a careful study of court conditions by the conference during its three-day session, the Chief Justice declared conditions were much more satisfactory than a year ago. The conference placed particular stress upon the progress which had been made in clearing up criminal cases, particularly those arising from violations of the Prohibition law.

The conference reported that during the year there was a reduction of 3,500 in the number of criminal cases pending in the District Courts, while the number of civil suits pending had been reduced 2,000. In 1926 the number of criminal cases before the District Courts was 38,858, and in 1927 the number had been reduced to 36,386. Of civil cases there were 18,455 before the District Courts in 1926. But this volume of business, including the new cases which were filed during the year, had been reduced to 18,443 in 1927.

The conference declared that with a more rigid dismissal of dead cases the condition of the dockets in the Federal Courts would show still further improvement.

"The courts are now organized in the United States, are able, we think," the report declared, "to take care of the business as it comes in if they are given the additional judges in the southern and eastern districts of New York and the southern district of Iowa."

BEAUTY SHOWS NO MENACE TO MISS AMERICA

So Says Atlantic City Official In Answer to Statement of Catholic Women's Council.

Editor's Note: Beauty contests were condemned as a menace to the morals, character and ambitions of American girls by the National Convention of Catholic Women at the convention in Washington, D. C., this week. In view of the wide interest in the subject International News Service has undertaken to obtain the views of those who have had experience in beauty pageants, and herewith follows the first of a series of articles.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
New York, Sept. 30.—Beauty contests are in no sense demoralizing to young girls; in fact they serve a good purpose. They "bring out" the best qualities in the entrants and prove that the United States has the most beautiful young women in the world.

This is the opinion of Armand T. Nichols, director-general for the last five years of the Atlantic City beauty pageants and the man who probably knows more stunning girls than any one in the country, even including Florsie Ziegfeld, the famous gloriator.

Not Exploited

"Girls are not exploited in our national beauty contests," said Nichols in an interview today. "Any one who says they are has never witnessed a pageant in Atlantic City."

"I have met hundreds of beautiful young girls in the five years I have directed the pageants and, all that time, I have never known of a single instance where the moral standards of a girl has been lowered as a result of her experience in Atlantic City. The contrary is true; it has proved of great benefit to many girls."

Recalls the Winners

Armand recalled the "Miss America" of the last seven years, the annual pageant has been in operation.

They are:
1921—Miss Margaret Gorman, of Washington, D. C.
1922—Miss Mary Katherine Campbell, of Columbus, Ohio.
1924—Miss Ruth Malcolmson, of Philadelphia.

POLICE GUN HALTS ESCAPING SLASHER

Laborer Is Shot Running From Scene; "Triangle" Causes Stabbing.

New York, Sept. 30.—Tony Leone, 31, of East Boston, Mass., was shot twice by a policeman tonight when he ignored commands to halt as he was running along a street on the lower East Side waving an automatic pistol in his hand.

The chase ended when Leone entered a drug store, where he was captured with a struggle.

Police said Leone was running away after slashing Tony Julius, 30, also of East Boston, with a razor about three months ago with Mrs. Leone and the three Leone children.

OVER 5,000 HOMES IN ST. LOUIS LEVELED IN ABOUT 5 MINUTES

Grim Work of Rescue Goes On All Through Night; National Guard Prevents Looting—Walls of Buildings Burst, Bricks Tossed About and Autos Whisked Around As If Straws, By Storm—Hospital Unroofed.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 30.—With a death toll of seventy-five, hundreds of injured in hospitals and at private homes, and a property damage estimated to be at least thirty million dollars, St. Louis today began rehabilitating the damage done by the tornado and rainstorm which yesterday afternoon ripped through scattered sections of the west side, creating general havoc over the entire city.

After a night of relief work supervised by the Red Cross, with rescue and ambulance being taken care of by police and National Guardsmen and eight hundred soldiers from Jefferson barracks patrolling and guarding the devastated districts, an appeal for funds to help the work was issued by Mayor Victor J. Miller as follows:

The Appeal

"To the People of St. Louis:
"An emergency need affecting hundreds of our fellow St. Louisans exists as the result of yesterday's storm."

"After personally surveying as much of the area as the debris and wreckage would permit, I feel that the extent of the havoc and the consequent suffering makes this call for immediate relief necessary."

"Through the splendid response of the police, the fire department, the American Red Cross, the National Guard, the American Legion and other organizations, the wounded and suffering are being cared for."

60 Miles An Hour

The tornado travelled at the rate of about sixty miles an hour. Accompanied by a terrific rainstorm, it tore through residences and factory buildings, uprooted trees, tore out telephone wires and toppled over street lamps.

Augmented by 800 soldiers of the National Guard, hundreds of police, firemen and volunteers, the Red Cross workers continued to comb the ruins today for additional victims.

MANILA TYPHOONS KILL 23 PERSONS

Thirteen Missing and Hundreds of Families Made Homeless by Storms.

Manila, P. I., Sept. 30.—Twenty-three persons were drowned and thirteen others were missing in the typhoon Carranglan and Pantabangan, Province of Nueva Ecija, as the result of the typhoons of September 17 and 18, according to official reports received here today.

Seven additional deaths were reported from other points in Central Luzon.

The mayor of the town of Baler, Province of Tayabas, reported that no casualties occurred there, but that four hundred families were made homeless by the storm and estimated property damage amounted to $300,000. A Red Cross steamer has been sent to Baler with food and supplies.

List of Tornado Disasters Along Mississippi in the Past

No other region of the world is so subject to tornadoes as the Mississippi Valley and the Southern States of America. Thousands have been killed in recent years by these storms. The property damage has totaled billions.

St. Louis has had more than its share. The worst tornado on record struck the city May 27, 1896 and, before it had passed on, 450 persons were killed, twice as many seriously injured, and hundreds of city blocks laid in ruins.

Other severe tornadoes in this country included:
Adams, Miss., 1840, 317 killed and two years later, in the same town, 500 killed.

Southern Missouri, 1880, 100 killed;
April, 1908, 300 killed in eight southern States.
March, 1913, more than 100 killed in the same region.
May, 1917, 165 killed in Upper Mississippi Valley.
April, 1927, 200 killed in Mississippi Valley.

SIX SQUARE MILES OF CITY IN RUINS

Wind Travels at 60 Miles an Hour Accompanied By Terrific Rainstorm.

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—Fully six square miles of buildings and streets were devastated here by yesterday's tornado.

While rescue workers were being reinforced today, National Guard units were being posted about to prevent looting and riots.

The storm, reaching St. Louis about one o'clock in the afternoon, gained in intensity as it tore through Manchester and Taylor avenues.

The tornado travelled at the rate of about sixty miles an hour. Accompanied by a terrific rainstorm, it tore through residences and factory buildings, uprooted trees, tore out telephone wires and toppled over street lamps.

Augmented by 800 soldiers of the National Guard, hundreds of police, firemen and volunteers, the Red Cross workers continued to comb the ruins today for additional victims.

MANCHESTER NAMES OFFICERS MONDAY

Annual Town Election and Town Meeting—Expect Crowd at Latter.

The annual town election will take place in Manchester Monday when the voters will elect all town officers including seven selectmen, two assessors, one for the full term of three years and one for an unexpired term of two years; town clerk, town treasurer and tax collector; two registrars of voters, seven constables, two school visitors and two auditors.

If goes without saying in Manchester that the Republicans will elect all the men that have been named by that party and the Democrats will get the minority offices.

CHILDREN ESCAPE DEATH IN STORM

About 40 Injured But Not Seriously—Million Dollar Damage to Schools.

St. Louis, Sept. 31.—The disastrous storm of yesterday hit the central district of the city with the greatest fury, leaving North Sarah street a tangle of wires.

From the shattered windows of her little confectionery store, Mrs. John L. Bromick witnessed one of the most thrilling spectacles in the storm-ridden city.

The wires with their cross-circuits colored the storm like flames.

"Thirty-five school children had just left after eating lunch," and were on their way back to school," she said, "when all of a sudden it became dark. I went to the door. Suddenly the whole street seemed to be ablaze."

"I slammed the door and held it shut, fearing it would catch fire if any minute it would blow open."

"But the children; did they get safely to school?"

Few Children Hurt

The school officials report early today indicated that by some miracle only a minimum of children suffered from the storm.

Earlier reports had Columbia, Ames, Yeaman, Marquette and Central school buildings slightly damaged, and about forty pupils injured, all slightly cut by flying glass or bruised.

The total damage to school buildings of the city may reach an estimated $1,000,000, according to Ben Weidie, president of the Board of Education.

Red Cross Eager

A citizens' committee, hastily organized, was in full co-operation with the Red Cross today in collecting funds for relief work. Changes of this work has already been taken over by the St. Louis Chapter of the organization.

Stations hastily improvised were providing shelter for about 5,000 storm victims, and the National Guard armory was being used to house some 3,000 homeless persons.

From 600 to 1,000 members of the American Legion were out in the work of rescue.

By noon today the devastated region was expected to be under the full control of the National Guard.

Mayor Miller Announces That Response to Appeal Has Been So Generous, City Does Not Need Outside Help—Regular Army Sends Its Troops to Re- lieve National Guard in Patrolling Wrecked Dis- tricts.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 30.—With 77 known dead from yesterday's tornado at least 700 injured at private homes and hospitals and property damage amounting to nearly $100,000,000, the spirit of St. Louis and its people today surmounted all handicaps in relief work, brought succor to storm-distressed citizens, and arranged for the rehabilitation of those whose loved ones and homes were lost.

"We asked for aid from St. Louis residents and the response has been so great we do not need outside help," Mayor Victor J. Miller said today after his appeal for funds to residents here had been broadcast.

"The regular army from Jefferson Barracks here is scheduled this afternoon to relieve some of our policemen and national guardsmen, who have been on duty since yesterday. Our local Red Cross and other relief agencies have met the emergency relief situation nobly."

100 MILLION LOSS

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 30.—Many St. Louis insurance men today estimated the damage from yesterday's tornado at $100,000,000 or more. One prominent underwriter said the damage by rain would be greater than the wind damage.

The estimate of buildings were damaged to the extent of $55,000,000, he asserted, by the torrential rain which followed the storm.

Other insurance men estimated the damage to be between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000.

A more conservative estimate was given by Charles M. Talbert, vice-president of the Standard Underwriters' Agency here, who said $50,000,000 would cover the loss.

RED CROSS READY

Washington, Sept. 30.—The National Red Cross is prepared to give every assistance possible to the storm sufferers of St. Louis if outside aid is requested. It was announced at headquarters today.

The national organization is waiting for further advice from St. Louis before sending air. It is likely that Henry M. Baker, national director of Red Cross disaster relief, will go to St. Louis to help in rehabilitation work.

REGULARS ON DUTY

Washington, Sept. 30.—The War Department today formally issued orders placing the 1,000 troops in Jefferson Barracks at the disposal of St. Louis in patrolling the streets of the storm area.

General William Lassiter, commander of the Sixth Corps Area, has left Chicago to take command of the troops. General Harry A. Smith of the Seventh Corps Area, Omaha, was ordered to co-operate with Lassiter.

The department was advised that Lassiter took action last night to move the soldiers to St. Louis.

Army equipment will be available to the storm victims.

LAST STORM

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 30.—The tornado recalls to St. Louisians the worst storm in the history of the city, or May 27, 1896, when 450 persons were killed and 1,000 injured with property damage of $20,000,000. Many blocks of residences were completely demolished. A total of 321 buildings were destroyed and street car service was suspended and the city was in darkness. The path of the storm was about a mile wide and the extreme velocity of the wind was 120 miles an hour.

MCCORMICK'S WIDOW SEEKS NOMINATION

Washington, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Madell McCormick, widow of the late senator, announced today that she will run for congresswoman at large from Illinois in the Republican primary next April.

Paraphrasing President Coolidge's celebrated statement of Aug. 2, Mrs. McCormick said:

"I choose to run for the Republic nomination for congresswoman at large from Illinois in the April primaries of 1928."

OTHER VICTIMS

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 30.—Five persons are known to be dead in three Illinois towns struck by the tornado traveling northeast across the Mississippi river, Granite City, Venice and Madison.

ROYAL 'STOOL PIGEON' FACES 16 CHARGES

McAndrew of Chicago Goes on Trial For Lack of Patriotism.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Sixteen charges of in-subordination and lack of patriotism "are" against him when William McAndrew, Chicago's nationally known superintendent of schools, went on trial for removal today before 11 members of the city school board.

In the arraignment Mayor William Hale Thompson's pre-election pledge to try to remove the man he termed a "stool pigeon" of King George of England, was kept.

Mr. McAndrew through his attorneys, pleaded not guilty to any acts which might constitute cause for removal.

REDFERN WRECKAGE IS SIGHTED AT SEA

Portion of Craft Believed to Be Ill-Fated Flier's Seen by French Ship.

Panama, Sept. 30.—Wreckage of an airplane was sighted by Capt. Le Corre of the French steamer-Port de Dunkerque on Sept. 26 in Latitude 13.1 North, Longitude, 74.44 West. The position given is about 165 miles north of Barranquilla, Columbia. The wreckage, which was painted green, included about 25 feet of a wing, but the French steamer did not stop to make further investigation.

SEIZED EVIDENCE, LEGAL EVIDENCE

Washington, Sept. 30.—Evidence seized illegally by state officers can nevertheless be used by the government to secure convictions on dry law charges, the Justice Department maintained today in a brief filed in the Supreme Court.

Answering the appeal of Roasairo Gambino and Joseph Lina, whose auto was searched and seized by state troopers at Massena, N. Y., the government contended also that state officers do not become federal agents in enforcing prohibition.

Gambino and Lina, sentenced to prison, appealed on the grounds that New York state troopers had no authority to enforce the dry law since there was no state enforcement law.

ROYAL 'STOOL PIGEON' FACES 16 CHARGES

McAndrew of Chicago Goes on Trial For Lack of Patriotism.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Sixteen charges of insubordination and lack of patriotism were leveled against him when William McAndrew, Chicago's nationally known superintendent of schools, went on trial for removal today before 11 members of the city school board.

In the arraignment Mayor William Hale Thompson's pre-election pledge to try to remove the man he termed a "stool pigeon" of King George of England, was kept.

Mr. McAndrew through his attorneys, pleaded not guilty to any acts which might constitute cause for removal.

REDFERN WRECKAGE IS SIGHTED AT SEA

Portion of Craft Believed to Be Ill-Fated Flier's Seen by French Ship.

Panama, Sept. 30.—Wreckage of an airplane was sighted by Capt. Le Corre of the French steamer Port de Dunkerque on Sept. 28 in Latitude 13.1 North, Longitude, 74.44 West. The position given is about 165 miles north of Barranquilla, Columbia. The wreckage, which was painted green, included about 25 feet of a wing, but the French steamer did not stop to make further investigation.

SEIZED EVIDENCE, LEGAL EVIDENCE

Washington, Sept. 30.—Evidence seized illegally by state officers can now be used in court to secure convictions on dry law charges, the Justice Department maintained today in a brief filed in the Supreme Court.

Answering the appeal of Rosauro Gombino and Joseph Lina, whose auto was searched and seized by state troopers at Massena, N. Y., the government contended also that state officers do not become federal agents in enforcing prohibition.

Gombino and Lina, sentenced to prison, appealed on the grounds that New York state troopers had no authority to enforce the dry law since there was no state enforcement law.

Rockville TOLLAND COUNTY FOR G. O. P. MONDAY

Indications That Opposition Will Get Only Legal Minimum of Officers.

(Special to the Herald)
Rockville, Sept. 30.—When election day rolls around on Monday the county of Tolland, from present indications, will turn in a solid Republican list of officers, giving to the Democrats only such officers as they are entitled to by law. Vernon, it is predicted, will have a Republican majority cast about three to one. In Tolland there will be a fight, but the town, once back in the Republican ranks, is expected to remain there.

Vernon's mother town, Bolton, faces an unusual situation. There is going to be a Republican election. Milton Haling, who is a regular nominee of the Republican caucus, has also the endorsement of the Democrats for first selectman. For second selectman, the Republicans have named David Toomey, a recent comer to Bolton but a promising citizen of important activities. The voting list of Bolton has increased until there are now about 200 voters on the list.

For first selectman the Democrats have endorsed Haling but they have named Nelson Strong for second selectman. Since the caucus there has been much consideration for Frank Strong for the second selectman's position on the Democratic ticket and the ballots will be split and votes given and taken by the Republicans to land Strong as third selectman by writing in his name.

On the occasion of the visit of the state highway commissioner to Rockville a month ago much attention was given to his talk on state aid road. It was explained that at the annual town meeting it could be voted to pay one-eighth of the expense of at least two $10,000 offers for each town. The town of Bolton had not already taken this aid as had Coventry, which was eleven years ahead. Bolton, it was found, had the two appropriations coming. If the town votes to have $10,000 of the allotment applied of November 15 and the other $10,000 as of June next year.

There are several towns in the county where this matter will be taken up. The majority of the towns of Tolland county will be listed for the state aid improved roads.

Women Active
Mrs. Maurice Ward, who has represented the town of Bolton in two sessions of the legislature and who succeeds her husband as registrar of voters, is again a candidate for re-election as registrar. The Democratic registrar is Mrs. Margaret A. Fanning, wife of the candidate who has been endorsed for first selectman on both tickets.

The school question is one of matter that the residents of Vernon's mother town will have to decide in the form of an appropriation for a new one-room school building. At present there are twelve Bolton pupils attending this school and four from Manchester's Birch mountain section. A lot for the new school has already been bought, but there is considerable question whether the voters will decide to build.

In Rockville
The annual town meeting of the town of Vernon is certain to attract more attention this year than recently. Conceding the election of Republicans to all offices there is likely to be a kick raised over the request for an increase in the pay of the town officers. The residents of Rockville know that there is going to be less income from sources other than taxes this year. They know that in addition to interest charges on their other notes and bonds a note for $30,000 made last June comes due in one or two years and that it may be paid in part and the remainder renewed. Interest on the bonds of $128,000 issued for the Maple street school must be paid, as well as part of the purchase price of the property of the selectmen will show a reduction in the incomes from stock holdings and the closing of two mills without any material increase in new buildings is bound to affect the town's income.

For all these reasons it is expected the grand list will not suffice to carry all contemplated matters through and there will be a higher rate. The big question is: "Where are you going to cut?"

Golden Wedding
Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Regan celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary here today following special services at St. Bernard's church. Mrs. Wade Fox and Thomas McDonald, guests today, attended the wedding ceremony fifty years ago.

Superior Court
Business in the short calendar list was disposed of in short order this morning. The first case, that of Anna Dubilski vs. John Kallina went off the list at the request of J. B. Thomas, who represented the defendant, an agreement having been reached.

An amendment to the complaint of James R. Quinn of this city in which the amount of the bill was improperly entered at first was allowed to be amended to $215.

relay driveways and make other changes, judgment was entered for Mr. Jones for $550. He was represented by Judge William S. Hyde of Manchester.

The case of the American Wool Stock company vs. Tracey-Elliott Mills company went over.

The Federal Land Bank vs. Michael Yuriga and others in which action for default was taken in a month as allowed by law and in the meantime W. A. King, who represented the defendant, announced that they would redeem.

On the grounds of desertion a divorce and custody of a six year old son was granted to Fred Edgerton of Coventry against Allice E. Edgerton who is said to be at present an inmate at the home for women near Niantic. She left Coventry nearly five years ago.

and injured were being taken to various hospitals and morgues. May Exceed 100.
As body after body was being recovered from the debris, few persons of all ages, drawn from the various organizations of the church, will participate in the pageant. Miss Temple will be at the parish house Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock to explain the different parts of the pageant and to, as far as possible, select principals and others for the cast.

November marks the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of Girls Friendly societies in this country and in Boston this event is to be commemorated by a great meeting of the national council at the Hotel Statler. The conference will be in session for nearly a week, beginning November 5. Saturday afternoon and evening a pageant in which over 1000 persons will take part will be given to portray the work of the Girls Friendly societies since their founding in America. Branches from every state in the union will be represented. Four of the girls from St. Mary's will take part. They are the Misses Dorothy Russell, Viola Greenway, Evaline Fenland and Lillian Reardon. It is expected that a number of the other girls will go to Boston during the week of the celebration to witness the pageant and attend the meetings and luncheons.

Miss Eva McKinney, president of the local branch has called a meeting of the society for Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock to make plans for both events.

They were motoring together at the time, she said.

New Witness
Chief Harrold also announced that he had found a witness who attacked Mrs. Lillendahl's alibi concerning her whereabouts during the hours preceding the murder. This witness, he said, had to have seen Mrs. Lillendahl driving at a high rate of speed forty miles from her home at seven o'clock in the morning on the day of the crime. Mrs. Lillendahl has told authorities she was at home with her husband until eight o'clock on that day. Chief Harrold added that another witness, a filling station employee, says Mrs. Lillendahl appeared at his station at eight o'clock the same day for fuel. The tank was nearly empty, he said, and the car had all appearance of having made a hard drive, according to Chief Harrold.

No Trace of Beach
No trace had been found today of Beach. Hedges, his attorney, who at first claimed to know of Beach's whereabouts, is now said to admit he is unable to locate the elderly poultry raiser.

GIVES MEN AUTO RIDE,
THEY ASSAULT, ROB HIM
Take $45 From Pockets, Leave Him Unconscious and Steal the Car.

Norwalk, Conn., Sept. 30.—Police today found on Harbor avenue near the gas plant the automobile of Joseph Tagliabue, of Oyster Bay, N. Y., which was stolen from him at the Darien town line last night after he had been beaten, robbed and dragged out of his machine by two strange young men. Tagliabue is in Norwalk hospital with a fractured skull and many scalp wounds. Physicians say he will recover.

Tagliabue was halted in Port Chester by two young men, who asked for a lift toward New Haven. At the Darien line they asked him to halt his car a second. When he had brought it to a stop, they struck him over the head with blackjacks until he was unconscious. Then they stole $45 and placed his body beside the road, going off with the car.

The car found today was splattered with blood and scratched. The sides were covered with fingerprints which are expected to aid the police in locating the men involved.

MORE RUNAWAYS
Willimantic, Conn., Sept. 30.—For the second time this week a group of Massachusetts youths was picked up by police here today and agreed to send transportation for the boys. The dancers are William Snow and Duncan McLaughlin, each sixteen, and Leo Kelly, seventeen, all of the Roxbury district of Boston. Five youngsters from greater Boston were picked up here Monday and returned in custody of a relative.

March 4, 1789, was the day set for the opening of the first congress but the inauguration of the government was delayed until April 6 before a quorum could be found and the votes counted which made Washington president.

Without a warranty deed, the Wiggan farm near Stratham, N. H., has been handed down from father to son since 1831.

GIRLS' FRIENDLY PLANS PAGEANT

Will Present Historical Drama Late in Fall—Going to Boston.

St. Mary's Girls Friendly society members are looking forward to an unusually busy season. They are to take a very active part in the Irish pageant which the attendants of St. Mary's Episcopal church are to present at Cheney hall some time during the fall.

It will be written and directed by Miss Temple of St. Mary's church. Hartford, and will depict scenes in Irish history from prehistoric ages up to the time of St. Patrick and St. Bridget and the christianization of the people.

It is expected that fully 150 persons of all ages, drawn from the various organizations of the church, will participate in the pageant. Miss Temple will be at the parish house Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock to explain the different parts of the pageant and to, as far as possible, select principals and others for the cast.

November marks the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of Girls Friendly societies in this country and in Boston this event is to be commemorated by a great meeting of the national council at the Hotel Statler. The conference will be in session for nearly a week, beginning November 5. Saturday afternoon and evening a pageant in which over 1000 persons will take part will be given to portray the work of the Girls Friendly societies since their founding in America. Branches from every state in the union will be represented. Four of the girls from St. Mary's will take part. They are the Misses Dorothy Russell, Viola Greenway, Evaline Fenland and Lillian Reardon. It is expected that a number of the other girls will go to Boston during the week of the celebration to witness the pageant and attend the meetings and luncheons.

Miss Eva McKinney, president of the local branch has called a meeting of the society for Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock to make plans for both events.

GRIM RESCUE WORK
ALL NIGHT THROUGH
to-shoulder with you in many other worthy causes.

Work of Rescue
The grim work of rescue went on all through the night, all through the morning hours, under candle and lantern light, as bodies were taken in changing ambulances through the streets.

The immensity of the damage to life and property seemed to exceed all predictions as the work went on so terrible was the picture of desolation spread out before the relief workers.

School children were returning from their noon hour recess when the tornado broke relentlessly upon the city.

Workers were returning to labor. Young and old alike dashed wildly here and there seeking places of safety, as the tornado, aided by torrents of rain, went in with its work of destruction.

Walls of buildings burst apart, bricks and glass and automobiles were blown about like wisps.

At the Hospitals
There were patients in the Mullanphy hospital at the time the storm broke. The wind whirled the buildings, ripped the entire roof wing to shreds, and sent the roof and upper floor crashing to the ground.

None was in that section at the time, but below were a score or more of expectant mothers or mothers with babies in arms—the maternity section.

Storm Drift
The Columbia school was again struck by the elements. By curious circumstances this building has been wrecked by fire and storm several times during recent years. Approximately 700 pupils were in the school when Principal G. H. Green took note of the approaching storm.

"I sounded the warning," he said. "The children all marched out of the building in perfect order. Just as the last one stepped out to safety, the roof caved in and the third-floor class rooms were buried beneath tons of debris."

Next door to the Columbia school, the St. Nicholas Greek church was partly unroofed. Its windows were blown in. Directly north of it the Grace Evangelical Lutheran church lost its steeple.

JURY DISAGREES
Georgetown, Texas, Sept. 30.—The jury which has been weighing evidence in the Rebecca Bradley Rogers arson case since yesterday afternoon today reported to Judge Cooper Sansom that there was no hope for an agreement. The jury then was discharged.

ABOUT TOWN

Mark Holmes, tax collector in the Eighth School & Utilities district, today filed 4 liens amounting to about $1500 to $1800. Assessor Samuel Blanker made out the necessary blanks this morning as it was necessary to file them today. These liens are on the tax that was due and collectible last October.

Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Vendrillo of Maple street received word from New York today to the effect that their daughter, Miss Josephine Vendrillo and Patsy Lucco of that city were married yesterday.

A house party was held last evening at the home of Miss Mary Sheridan of Park street. Refreshments were served and all spent a joyful evening together.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beckman of Secaucus, N. J., have returned home after spending the week with Mrs. Beckman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Behnfield of Summer street.

A daughter was born at the Hartford hospital, Wednesday, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Daggart of Summer street.

1925.—Miss Fay Lanphier, of Oakland, Calif.
1927.—Miss Norma E. Smallwood, of Tulsa, Okla.
1927.—Miss Lois Delander, of Juliet, Ill.

"Miss Gorman is happily married to a well-to-do real estate man, Victor Cahill, of Washington," said Nichols. "Miss Campbell has had a number of good movie offers but her loyalty to her sick mother in Columbus has prevented her from accepting them. She has made several public appearances on the stage and has made good money."

Miss Malcolmson is now touring Europe. Miss Lanphier is in the movies, where she is doing well. I have lost track of Miss Smallwood but I understand she is going to college in Oklahoma. Miss Delander's father has just signed her up for a remunerative vaudeville contract."

Girls Safeguarded
Armand declared that when the beauty entrants arrive at Atlantic City every precaution is taken to safeguard them. Usually, he said, they are accompanied by their mothers; frequently by both father and mother. They are quartered at the best hotels. The business men of Atlantic City, their daughters and wives, cooperate in making the girls feel at home, he said. They are not exploited and positively not annoyed by men, he added.

He denied the girls are "put on the block and judged, point by point as a pure bred animal is judged," and before a large crowd, asserting that the selection of the winner is made before a very restricted group.

Artists of high standing and judges of the very best character make the final selection, he said. "I reiterate, there is no exploiting, nothing any parent or any girl need be ashamed of."

TRAIN BLOCKS FIREMEN
Danbury, Conn., Sept. 30.—Fire department officials today were seeking the identity of a freight train engineer who earlier blocked the White street crossing of the New Haven railroad just as fire apparatus was approaching. Firemen saw the engineer climb into his cab and start the train of seventy-five cars as they approached. The fire was not serious though the apparatus was delayed several minutes.

DUCHESS DIVORCE SUIT
Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 30.—The divorce suit of Elsie Moore, Duchess of Toronia, now living in Greenwich, will be heard in Superior Court here starting October 18th. Judge Alfred C. Baldwin made the assignment today.

In Brazil, one-third of the year consists of Sundays and holidays. There are 245 working days.

FOUND DEAD IN ROOM
Darlen, Conn., Sept. 30.—Linus S. Fairchild, an aged man who has been living alone in the Cantrell block here for years, was found dead in his room today. Coroner John J. Phelan was notified and until he has acted in the case officials refuse to discuss what caused the death.

New England Hospitality
They have become part of the folk-lore of our country—the many stories of the bounteous hospitality of New England. Tables spread with the good things of the earth—pies for breakfast, treasured preserves for Sunday night suppers—all kinds of cakes and puddings.

Gracious as has been your hospitality in the past, it will acquire an added lustre when YUBAN—the delicious Arbuckle Guest Coffee—brings your dinner to a perfect end.

into a waiting "hearse" operated by "undertaker" Joseph Rossi, local barber. The pall bearers were John Valdera, Charles Cullata, Michael Giustinianni and Salvatore Reale. Three automobiles made up the funeral cortege. In the mourner's car were Mr. and Mrs. Agostinelli, Orlando, Perry's mate, the dog and the cat.

All except the cat reached the "cemetery" in Bolton. The cat was unable to make the full trip owing to a disagreement with the dog as to which seat she should occupy. As a consequence, Kitty didn't go and Doggy mourned with a scratched nose.

The ceremonies at the grave, which was dug up on Birch Mountain because that was Perry's birthplace, were marked by all the pomp and splendor that family and neighbors could contrive. Michael Gnoib said a prayer as Perry was laid in his final resting place amid the sobs of Orlando.

STATE IS SHOWING TWO BIG FEATURES

"Laddie" and "Running Wild" With W. C. Fields on Program Today and Tomorrow.

The American family was portrayed in all its simplicity by Gene Stratton Porter in her great novel, "Laddie." Now "Laddie" has been brought to the screen and will be one of two features shown at the State theater tonight and tomorrow. On the same program will be the comedy, "Running Wild," starring W. C. Fields.

Imbued with the wealth of color and characterization that marks Mrs. Porter's works and following the original story with minute accuracy, "Laddie" is a triumph of direction and acting. Leo Meahan, the famous novelist's son-in-law, wrote the script as well as handling the magaphone, and he has succeeded beyond all expectations in presenting a vivid and life-like version of the well-known novel.

MUST FREIGHT ICE AS RESULT OF FIRE

L. T. Wood's Supply, Diminished by July Blaze, Inadequate For Season.

The fire on July 4, which burned an ice house owned by L. T. Wood, destroying 2,500 tons of ice has created an ice shortage and Mr. Wood, who supplies ice to many of the larger stores and markets, beside residences finds that he has now left only about enough ice to carry him through the next week.

From that time until it is cold enough to harvest ice again he expects to bring his ice in by freight. It will be shipped from Congamond Lake.

WAPPING

The Hartford Community Choral society and Choral Society Orchestra, Prof. G. Curtis Munson, conductor, will give an hour of music at the Federated Church Sunday evening, October 2nd. A very varied program has been planned including violin, clarinet, cello, soprano and baritone solos.

The Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening will be omitted inasmuch as the Choral society is to have the use of the auditorium at 6:45 p. m. to hold a rehearsal.

Mrs. Helen Skinner arrived at her home here a little over a week ago from an extended visit with relatives and friends in Claremont, N. H.

Mrs. John Moloney gave a shower at her home last Friday evening in honor of Miss Johanna Connors, who is soon to marry Samuel Harvey of East Windsor.

Mrs. Helen Skinner arrived at her home here a little over a week ago from an extended visit with relatives and friends in Claremont, N. H.

The Parent-Teacher Association will serve a dinner to the teachers of the North West school of Hartford, at the Center School hall on Thursday evening.

The Sunday school of the Federated church will observe Rally Day next Sunday. They will use the service "The Task Supreme," and it is hoped that every member of the school will try and be present.

There will be a graduation service, awarding of diplomas and other interesting numbers.

Miss S. Elizabeth Barber and her friend, Miss Grace Austin of Hartford, attended church service here last Sunday and were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Collins.

There were about twenty-five Wapping people who motored to Ellington last Wednesday and attended the four town fair, which was held at the Ellington town hall this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Pomroy of Long Meadows, Mass., were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Collins the first of the week.

Mrs. Lewis Haslen has returned from the St. Francis hospital recently much improved.

Mrs. Olive A. Jones of South Windsor has returned from Maine, where she has been spending the summer.

Every man's work shall be made manifest.—1 Cor. 3:13. Work is the inevitable condition of human life, the true source of human welfare.—Tolstol.

MIX IN A WESTERN AT CIRCLE THEATER

"Broncho Twister" Begins Two Day Run Tomorrow.

The Circle theater opens again tomorrow with Tom Mix in "The Broncho Twister," another triumph of the Western Ace. Helene Costello supports the popular cowboy actor in this production, which will continue on Sunday.

"The Broncho Twister" is a story written especially for Mix by Adela Rogers St. John, author of best seller films and novels. It is her second story penned about Tom and Tony. "The Arizona Wildcat" was her first.

Others of Mrs. St. John's best known works include "Love of Women," "The Skyrocket" and "Pretty Ladies," "Free Souls," another of her works, was recently published by Cosmopolitan Magazine.

ANDOVER

Mrs. Edward Merritt was taken to the Hartford hospital for treatment Monday. Mrs. Merritt's mother, Mrs. Charles Bailey and Mrs. George Merritt will care for the children while she is away.

Wallace Robb of Manchester was a caller in town Wednesday on business.

Mrs. Lewis Phelps spent Wednesday afternoon in Hartford. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Porter, who were married last Saturday in New York City, Sunday, some of the New York "Roxie" theater in a beautiful bouquet of 18 pink roses, the presentation being made through Mr. Porter's uncle, Hurbert Wilcox.

Miss Wadie Brown left Thursday with a party of friends from North Coventry for a trip to New York and over the Storm King highway. The party expect to be gone several days.

Several from the local Grange attended the Grange fair in Mansfield Thursday. They also furnished a booth.

Mrs. Janet Smith visited her sister at Storrs one day this week.

Roscoe Tabbot is working in North Haven again after taking Mr. Holsted's and Mr. Milburn's place at the local station while they were away on their vacation.

Mrs. Addie Allen was a caller on Mrs. Ellen Jones Wednesday evening.

The MOVIE PEOPLE

BY DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif.—The director who can't always direct but he's always at home at a typewriter—Mel Brown.

"Whenever directing gets too tough, I put my megaphone on a shelf and go write a story for some other director," says Brown. He hasn't a bad idea at that. Directors have just about had their run of being the "big guys" in film-land. It's just about the writers' turn now. The public is demanding better, but not bigger, stories, thus increasing the importance of the screenwriters. Brown wrote screen stories before he started directing and has a great reputation as a scenarist.

Here's something entirely new in the way of studio gateman stories. A few days ago an old Ford rattled to a dead stop right in front of Universal's auto gate. The gateman walked up to the aged driver and told him he would have to move on.

"We can't," explained a worn looking little woman in the front seat with her husband. "We are out of gas and have no way of getting it here in a few minutes," said the gateman. In fifteen minutes he returned with a can of gas and $55 he had collected from studio employees.

And still they say Hollywood is heartless.

Fred Nible told me the other day that one of his ambitions is to produce a film without a scene longer than 10 feet. Such a change in filming methods certainly would speed up the action. But there will have to be vast improvements in picture technique first. Under present day production methods, a film with 10-foot scenes would be choppy.

Gossip "lew the rounds in Hollywood a few days ago that Joan Meredith, prett- film actress, had eloped with Whitney Williams, Los Angeles newspaper man. But again the gossipers were wrong. It all started when a party went to Fullerton to preview Mary Pickford's new film, "My Best Girl." During the course of the evening Joan and Whitney announced that they were going to San Diego after the show to be married. They carried out their act so well that two reporters in the party drove to San Diego hoping to surprise the couple and be on hand for the big event.

What started out to be a big publicity stunt ended in a near war

G CLEF CLUB WILL SING AT WILLIMANTIC

To Make Its First Public Appearance October 29, With Thirty-five Members.

The newly organized G. Clef Glee club of the Swedish Lutheran church will make its first public appearance at the Lutheran church in Willimantic on Saturday evening, October 29. The club was invited to appear there and the invitation has been accepted.

The organization has become popular among the young women of Manchester and there are now about 35 members in the club, most of whom have had previous experience in choir singing. The membership list is still open, however, and singers who desire membership may get in touch with Helge Pearson, director.

It is planned to give concerts in conjunction with the Bethaves Glee club in the near future.

COASTING MUST STOP SAY STATE AUTHORITIES

Truckmen Who Practice This Habit Will Be Severely Dealt With.

Down grade coasting of commercial motor vehicles, or the operation of such vehicles with the clutch or gears disengaged, is defined as reckless driving by the September bulletin of the State Motor Vehicle Department, which declares that "Cases of coasting trucks of the heavy type cannot be punished too severely."

"A good driver, in operating any car," the bulletin says "uses his engine as a brake. The coasting of any motor vehicle is dangerous—that is, to proceed down a grade with the engine disconnected, depending upon the brake alone for control of speed. Such a procedure overtaxes the brake and, if weather conditions are bad, occasions skids."

"It is a temptation for the driver of a large sized commercial motor vehicle who is proceeding down a long hill to go faster than the speed which his engine permits and it is altogether too common nowadays, even though this dangerous practice is understood, to find drivers who disengage the clutch and coast. A man who will do this is unfit to operate a truck and should be discharged by his employer, if he is not discharged and the authorities find him then, recognizing the fact that this offense is probably against the orders of his employer and, in any event, not sanctioned by him, the man himself will be severely dealt with. Coasting must stop."

That many owners of large trucks neglect to take into consideration the fatigue and nerve strain on the driver occasioned by long hours of duty is also pointed out by the bulletin. This fact is listed as a cause of many accidents in which commercial vehicles are involved.

A remedy for this situation, which has been adopted by many owners, is the use of two drivers on long trips, one of whom rests while the other drives. "It is false economy," says the bulletin "Which leads an employer to get along with one man where two are needed. Such situations are now being inquired into by the courts and it is fair to expect that each owner will eventually, both in civil and criminal actions, be obliged to bear his share of responsibility and blame."

Definitions are also given for various types of commercial motor vehicles registered by the department and distinctions made between vehicles used for transportation of "personal belongings" and those used strictly for commercial purposes.

The department is often asked whether it is proper to carry merchandise in a passenger motor vehicle. "Definitions are broad enough in every case," the bulletin explains "so that where actual business trucking is not engaged in, there is no violation of the law in the carrying of belongings. The term "personal belongings" will include anything which the registrant of a passenger motor vehicle wants to carry, unless it is limited by use for commercial purposes; this is in a passenger car, it does not constitute a commercial use just because the flour is merchandise or freight, but if such a person makes even if only one bag at a time, for commercial purposes, then the commercial or combination registration might be required."

VOTE!

Next Monday the voters of Manchester will demonstrate in one of two ways—either as citizens who realize that citizenship carries with it certain obligations and duties or else as mere spectators to the business of democratic self-government.

Staying away from the polls because the result of the election can be predicted in advance with a reasonable degree of certainty is not by any means the part of the best citizenship. The ballot is the foundation element in the perpetuation of government by the people. Deprived of it, no population in the world can be anything but a subject population. Without it the right to rule must inevitably go to whoever is strong enough or ruthless enough to seize it. It is the right to vote that creates the difference between the government of Nero and the government of Coolidge; between existence in Manchester today and existence in some feudal city of the middle ages; between free men and owned men.

We are not much given to thinking about the ballot so seriously as all that, but neither are we given to thinking much about the foundations of the houses in which we live. Yet if the foundations should disintegrate the houses would fall down and kill us. And if we get so indifferent to the business of voting as to neglect it the structure of our government is likely to fall down, too.

So that, whether we think about it seriously or lightly, this voting matter is a pretty important thing just the same. And nothing is surer than that when a people get to the point of regarding their vote-casting as a bore and a nuisance they are setting the stage for a smashup of democratic government.

To go to the polls and vote, not in an occasional election but in every election, is a duty as definite and as valid as the payment of one's debts. And it makes not the slightest difference that you fancy you know all about how the election is going to come out.

Here in Manchester it is true that there is little chance of a political upset in a town election. To all intents and purposes it is quite certain that the entire Republican ticket will be elected. But the voter who fails to cast his ballot for that reason has completely missed the whole idea of popular government. He permits the entire proceeding to go on without participating in it himself, thereby throwing to the winds that privilege of self-government which ought to be his most prized possession. He does not, by any manner of means, stand on an equal footing with the citizen who does vote, who does perform the function of the self-governing free-man.

UNLUCKY ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, victim of the first destructive tornado to visit the middle west in a number of months, has been a notable sufferer from catastrophes of one sort and another. One of the most disastrous cyclones that has ever occurred in America fell upon the city in 1896, destroying or wrecking more than eight thousand buildings and inflicting property damage of more than ten million dollars, besides heavy loss of life. Yesterday's great storm was the fifth of the kind that has struck the city within a century, the first being in 1833 with others in 1852 and 1871.

Fire added to the destruction in the 1896 cyclone, and that was not the first time that the city had been stricken by a great conflagration.

JIMMY

Jimmy Walker having returned to his job as mayor of New York and having, most unusually, reported on time at 10 o'clock in the morning, it is probable that he will now go off the news pages of the papers of the country until as in 1849 wharves, water front property, steamers and general property estimated at more than $6,000,000 were destroyed in a huge blaze.

The great river port has also suffered from terrible epidemics, cholera having taken nearly 4,000 lives in three months in 1849, the same year in which came the first great conflagration, while other cholera visitations swept the town in 1832 and in 1866. For three years, from 1872 to 1875, smallpox rendered St. Louis a pest house.

Again and again the city has been visited by great floods, seven of these disasters occurring between 1785 and 1903, that of 1844 having been frequently referred to during the recent Mississippi inundations.

All in all, the Missouri metropolis would seem to have suffered more than its share of catastrophe in the century and a half of its history. There will be universal hope that the death toll and loss from yesterday's visitation will prove to be smaller than the early estimates.

ARSON

The conviction of an arsonist in Bridgeport this week, followed by his sentence to prison for at least three years, is one of several recent instances which show that the former held impression that "you can't convict a frebug" never had any real foundation in fact. For many years authorities in almost every state suffered from the defeatist complex in dealing with arson cases. There had grown up a tradition that it was next to impossible to fasten this class of crimes on the perpetrators, so that police and prosecuting officers approached arson cases with their hearts in their boots, so to speak, discouraged and hopeless before the fight was really on.

Recently, however, in several states of the east, a new determination seems to have possessed the authorities, with the result that a comfortable number of those individuals who try to sell out their businesses to fire insurance companies are residing behind bars.

There is no manner criminal on earth than the arsonist. It is worth any amount of time and expense to catch him and put him in the coop. And with a continuation of the recent respectable average of convictions the time honored device of getting money by burning property is likely to lose suddenly and heavily in popularity.

MERELY A CRIMINAL

Testimony that the Texas "good bandit," Mrs. Rebecca Rogers, who is charged with robbing a bank while working for an M. A. degree, has no sense of right or wrong, that she suffers from delusions of grandeur, enlarged ego and is given to grandiose gestures, would seem to be precisely the kind of expert testimony that could be truthfully given about nineteen professional criminals out of every twenty.

It has not required the twentieth century, nor yet the development of a class of professional "scientific" witnesses to inform the world that the criminal is different from the well behaved person. Everybody has known that for hundreds of years. But the prediction of a defense on the bare fact that he is a person of criminal tendencies is something which was unknown until recent years. We have a suspicion that it will again be unknown within a few years more.

Something more is required in order to satisfy public opinion that a criminal should not suffer his crime besides a mere array of superfluous testimony, all to the final effect that he is of natural criminal tendencies.

ONE OF THIS KIND

Bridgeport's "phantom stabber," who jostles young girls on the street and inflicts slight wounds upon them with some sort of a cutting instrument while doing so, has eluded detection for two years, during which time he has cut no less than 24 victims.

A very large part of the business of crime detection is performed through the ability of the police to follow the mental processes of the criminals. A thief or a murderer is caught because the detective figures out what he himself would do if he were the thief or the murderer and, naturally, thought the way the thief or murderer thinks. It is many times possible thus to anticipate the subsequent actions of the criminal and so trace him and his course following the crime.

In such a case as this at Bridgeport, however, the police are up against it. Who on earth can imagine the thoughts and mental processes of a creature like the "phantom stabber"? He lives in a world of his own. There is nobody else like him—nothing for the cops to go on.

such time as he does or says something worth printing. There will be quite a number of persons, we fancy, who, while they have nothing at all against the song-writer mayor, are just a mite fed up on him. For a youngish person whose chief claim to fame is that he knows how to wear clothes in the Broadway manner and can wisecrack like a monologist, he has received a tremendous amount of gratuitous press agenting during his long and flashy tour of Europe.

EXPANSIVE

We note in the news columns of our neighbor the Hartford Courant that certain new observation buses to be run out of Hartford are ten feet high in the after section and that they will add to the "pleasure-ability" of travel. We trust they will also prove to be remarkable for safety-consciousness and freedom from accidental accidents.

WASHINGTON LETTER

This is the third of a series of five articles on the question of the hour: "Who Will Succeed Wheeler?" Today's story recalls many of the qualifications Wheeler had for his task, which has been called "the hardest job in the United States." Tomorrow: "The Baptist Pope."

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Sept. 30.—A fast train pulled up to an unaccustomed stop at a small station in Ohio. Railroad regulations allowed it to stop there for two passengers, but never for one.

A small, mild-looking man scrambled up onto a car platform with his bag.

The conductor came to him, fingering two telegrams.

"Got wires here to stop—from a fellow named Wheeler and a fellow named Wayne," he said.

"What's your name?"

"Wheeler," replied the little man.

"Where's Wayne?"

"That's me, too—Wayne Wheeler."

And, as you may have guessed by this time, so it was. The czar of the Anti-Saloon League was due to make a prohibition speech in a big city and the train had been his only chance to get there.

The story is told by Wheeler's friends as illustrating the late dry leader's humor and resourcefulness.

In his early Ohio days, during which he attracted the attention to himself which caused his election to leadership, Wheeler wanted to attend a brewer's convention downstate which was not open to the public. He boarded a train at Cleveland, quite uncertain as to whether he would get in when he had arrived at the convention city.

The man beside him seemed worried and Wheeler always affable and something of a "good mixer" opened the conversation. The stranger confided that he had to make a 15-minute speech at a convention that afternoon, was flabbergasted for lack of ideas and couldn't possibly get out of it.

Wheeler allowed that he was something of a lecturer and perhaps he could help. Well, of course it was the brewer's convention and the stranger was a brewer. Wheeler pulled out his inevitable pad of paper and wrote the speech—it was a good one, too.

The brewer offered compensation, but Wheeler wouldn't take it. Nevertheless, he had to kill some time after leaving the train and he'd sort of like to hear the man make the speech. The brewer was delighted. Wheeler went into the convention hall and took voluminous notes.

Suddenly the chairman interrupted a speaker and announced: "I have just heard that a representative of the Anti-Saloon League is present. We will suspend everything until the intruder is found and removed."

"What a nerve that fellow must have to come in here," remarked Wheeler to his new friend as three innocent bartenders were thrown out of the hall.

"That was one of Wheeler's favorite stories."

In the Ohio fight over the local option law, Wheeler experienced trouble through the refusal of the legislature to vote. Whenever time to vote on the measures came, the majority would retreat to the rest rooms and lavatories. Whereupon Wheeler went out to their districts and in a series of speeches told the voters that "your representative is a privy councillor."

The legislators began to get sarcastic letters and telegrams addressed to "Privy Councillor" So-and-so and soon Wheeler had won his fight.

He was always quick to match the methods of his adversaries. Once, after a session of lobbying with the Ohio legislature he observed that the liquor lobbyist was taking all the newspaper boys down to a saloon to celebrate the end of the session.

The next year when it was over he headed the boys off. "Boys," he said, "I wish I could go down there with you, but you know I can't. Just the same I've got a little remembrance for you"—and he then gave each reporter a handsome case.

In one of his first law cases, Wheeler found that he had made a merely routine preparation and lost his case. In his own words: "I decided then that I'd never go into court again without knowing more about my case than anyone else possibly could."

The League has figures to show that of 2,000 court cases in which Wheeler personally represented it, he lost only five. That seems impossible.

Despite his control over them,

Old Master's

At the mid hour of night, when stars are weeping, I fly To the lone vale we loved, when life shone warm in thine eye; And I think oft, if spirits can steal from the regions of air To revisit past scenes of delight, thou wilt come to me there, And tell me our love is remembered even in the sky.

Then I sing the wild song 'twas once such rapture to hear. When our voices comingling breathed like one on the air; And, as Echo far off through the vale my sad orison rolls. I think, O my love, 'tis thy voice from the Kingdom of Souls faintly answering still the notes that once were so dear.

Thomas Moore: "At the Mid Hour of Night."

A New Yorker in Paris

Aboard the S. S. Paris, Somewhere at Sea—Impressions of a seagoing landsman: There's one on every boat: I mean the fellow who "just never has been seasick." "You, boy! The waves tossed 60 feet into the air and everyone aboard was sick . . . absolutely everybody. But I was out on deck all the time" and so forth indefinitely. . . . He particularly loves to spring this line just as the first yellowish patch appears upon your face. . . . And there's the dear old lady who has all the seasick remedies at the tip of her tongue and who'll tell you at great length how they never fail. . . . Well, I'm the exception. . . . And those husky he-men, who disappear from the table for a couple of days and who then come up smiling. . . . "Well, well! Just overslept breakfast yesterday morning . . . and somehow missed lunch. Sick! Me? I should say not! Never gets me." Tell me, how can such fabricators go on living? . . . Everybody's reading the passenger list. Trying to figure out who's aboard. . . . Umm, look who's aboard! . . . Jeanne Gordon, the Metropolitan opera mezzo-soprano. . . . That answers the concert problem. . . . One listens for slight relief. No, it's merely the water lapping the side of the ship. . . . And the Robert Goetzels. . . . And a couple of nice girls going over to art school. . . . The names buzz since does it make? . . . What a notable or two among passenger lists?

Those little seagoing shops. . . . Here you can get almost anything you may have happened to forget. . . . And if, perchance, a sweet young thing aboard the boat happens to strike your fancy, you can woo her with any of the little French trinkets that so fascinate the Paris shopper. . . . In fact, if you are careless of purse, you can do most of your Paris shopping long before reaching Paris and spend your Paris hours wishing you'd waited until you got there. . . . That 12-mile-out look. . . . "Hilo Georges . . . mix us one of those Paris cocktails! Attaboy!" . . . Clink of ice in the shakers. . . . Just like a Saturday afternoon cocktail party in Fifth Avenue. Main street or Cider crossing. . . . Only you don't have to worry about whether the gin has been analyzed. . . . And the fellow who warns you in whispers to look out for "poker sharks." . . . They do say that they still travel the seas and that there is nothing much can be done about them. . . . But I know two old travelers who have tried for eight years to get a game with sharks and never were able to find any. . . . One time, when he thought he finally had met a sharper, he cleaned the game of $500. . . . The next morning he found himself pointed at on deck as "one of those poker sharks they told us to look out for" . . . which gave him a great laugh.

Housewarming Party For the Murphys

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Murphy were given a surprise housewarming party at their new home at 35 Haynes street last night by about 50 friends.

ABOUT TOWN

Clarence Carlson of Paterson, N. J., formerly of Main street, is visiting in town.

Due to the fact that three or four of the members work overtime and would not be able to attend the banquet of Cheney Brothers' baseball team scheduled to be held at Gilman Place in Oakland tomorrow afternoon.

Principal C. P. Quimby of the High school is confined to his home with an attack of the grip.

Miss Hilda M. Ayerst, former assistant superintendent at Memorial hospital, has left for Rochester, Minn., where she will take a post-graduate course in operation room technique at the famous Mayo Brothers' hospital.

The regular monthly meeting of the Manchester Improvement club in October will be held at the Manchester Community club and will be open to the public.

The Lakeview Parent Teacher association will omit its regular monthly meeting Monday night on account of the town meeting.

George H. Murdock is in charge of the voting machine that is being demonstrated at the Municipal building today and tomorrow.

L. H. Darling who is employed by E. B. Treat of Glastonbury, while visiting in Hop River Wednesday was severely injured by being kicked by a horse.

The out of town judges, two from Coventry Grange and two from Wapping decided in favor of the ladies in the competitive programs between the men and women of Manchester Grange.

Town Clerk Samuel J. Turkington and Tax Collector G. H. Howe and his son Harold who returned from a ten-day fishing trip on the different lakes in Ontario, Canada, made some real good catches.

The members of Manchester Grange will run a rummage sale on Main street the 1st in part of next week, and members and friends have been solicited for contributions.

Twenty-three of the young friends of Miss Eleanor Schiedge of Spruce street gave her a birthday party at her home yesterday afternoon.

Friends of Mrs. Emil Johnson of Fairfield street gave her a surprise party at her home last night in honor of her birthday.

SAYS LEVINE PLANE CAN'T CROSS ATLANTIC

Capt. Hinchcliff Declares Propeller Unable to Develop Power.

Rome, Sept. 30.—The monoplane Columbia, which successfully carried Charles A. Levine and Clarence Chamberlin across the Atlantic would never be able to fly the Atlantic with its present propeller.

Hinchcliff came here with Levine on their way to the Balkans. They hoped to leave tomorrow for Belgrade or Constantinople, if Levine should succeed in getting an interview with Premier Mussolini in time.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

A woman's gloves and handbag are found at the scene of Benson's murder. Markham traces them to Miss St. Clair, but Vance insists that the evidence is worthless and that the girl is innocent. The girl is brought in and makes slight answer to the district attorney's questions.

CHAPTER XV

"By your attitude you are only working detriment to yourself," Markham warned her, with a show of irritation. "Can you not see the seriousness of your position?"

"You are known to have dined with Mr. Benson, to have left the restaurant at midnight, and to have arrived at your own apartment after 1 o'clock. At 12:30, Mr. Benson was shot, and your personal articles were found in the same room the morning after."

"It looks terribly suspicious, I know," Miss St. Clair admitted, with whininess and seriousness. "And I'll tell you this, Mr. Markham: If my thoughts could have killed Mr. Benson, he would have died long ago. I know I shouldn't speak ill of the dead—there's a saying about it beginning 'de mortuis, loqui sunt'—but the truth is, I had reason to dislike Mr. Benson exceedingly."

"Then why did you go to dinner with him?" Markham asked.

She smiled archly and waited expectantly, as if her question had been part of a guessing game. Markham's eyes hardened as he coldly enunciated his next words. "It is not a fact that Captain Philip Leacock owned just such a pistol as Mr. Benson was killed with—a 45-caliber Colt automatic?"

"Yes," she replied. "I never inquired into the make or caliber of Captain Leacock's firearm," she returned carelessly.

"And is it not a fact," pursued Markham's imperturbable voice, "that Captain Leacock lent you his pistol when he called at your apartment on the morning before the murder?"

"It's most ungalant of you, Mr. Markham," she reproached him coyly, "to inquire into the personal relations of an engaged couple; for I am betrothed to Captain Leacock—though you probably know it already."

Markham stood up, controlling himself with effort. "What do you think of your innocent young lady now?" he asked, with an air of belligerent triumph.

"Nice girl—eh, what?" replied indignantly "Extraordinary control. And she's about to marry a professional millinery man! Ah, well. . . . I know, I was afraid for a moment you were actually going to send for the manacles. And if you had, Markham, old dear, you'd have regretted it to your dying day."

CATTLE TICK FOUND IN 1884 STILL GOES ITS WAY

By DR. MORRIS FISHBURN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

In 1884 Dr. Theobald Smith found that Texas fever in cattle was transferred from one animal to another by a tick. The discovery was epoch-making because this was the first disease caused by a germ which was definitely proved to be transmitted through the agency of an insect.

Cows infested with ticks are a menace because they carry disease. As pointed out in a recent bulletin of the Louisiana state board of health, they are, moreover, unhappy cows. Even animals with a light infestation showed a production of 13.4 per cent less milk than those without ticks; cows heavily infested with ticks produced as low as 42.4 per cent less milk than when they were freed from their annoyance.

Dipping Surest Way

In an endeavor to rid cows of ticks, dipping has been found the safest and most certain procedure. A trench is dug and filled with a special mixture known as arsenic soda plaster, sometimes called "boiled dip." The cattle are passed through this and thus rid of the insect pest.

A Comedy In One Act

By Olive Roberts Barton

The jelly will not jell. Everything in the kitchen is out on tables and chairs. It is time for dinner but John's wife has forgotten to give the grocery the daily order in the absorption of juice-straining, sugar-measuring, glass-washing, and so on.

Circle Bag

The latest winter purse circles its way to chic. Instead of the usual square or rectangular shape, this blonde suede bag with its geometric gold fastening, is cut round.

John's wife is hot, tired, and cross. There is no sign of the red juice in the testing saucers showing wrinkled lines on its provocative liquid surface.

Now go on with the story! John's step stands on the porch. No—John's step plus two other steps! John has brought company! John leaves Fred in the parlor and walks back to the kitchen. He stands in the doorway and surveys the scene. Not even a cloth laid in the dining room! The breakfast crumbs still on the floor.

Then! He takes one look at his sloppy, smeary, juice-stained wife, and her unmarred hair and her torn apron, and says, says John: "For the love of Pete, Peg, turn out the fire and pour that truck in the sink. Fred and I have planned a little dinner party out at Edgewater and we have four tickets for that new show. He's going to take Flora if he can get her. Atta girl! What's the use of jelly anyway? You can't do that! Not when I want to treat you to a dinner and show."

John's wife flies to regions above. John seeks Fred. There is much whispering. John counts his money and Fred counts his. Each one nudges. Fred moves to the telephone. "I'll help you out, too, sometime. Thanks, old fellow," John calls after him in a stage whisper: "Next time I ask you to dinner, I'll have it fixed up all O. K. first. Lucky we have enough dough between us to take the girls out, I'll say."

End!

Epilogue. They were looking for a new ambassador to some place or other. Are they still? I know a good man for the job.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mack of Cleveland, O., sued a police sergeant of that city for $15,000 because he arrested them for kissing one another in their auto. The Macks were only 23 and 24, respectively, and had been married only a few months on a certain moonlight night last June when they kissed the fatal kiss. They were driving home from a picnic in a park to admire the moonlight on the water, got a little affectionate, were pounced upon by a policeman and locked up in separate cells for the rest of the night.

"HAW-HAW!"

The police laughed heartily at the couple's insistence that they were married! Just as if any husband and wife would be kissing each other! How! How! How! Rather sad and tragic, isn't it, that even notoriously dull-witted policemen are sold on the idea that marriage immediately annihilates all romance? And, just suppose they weren't married? Whose business? Since when has a kiss or two harmed society very much?

SIAMESE TWINS

The plight of the Siamese twins, with one dying from pneumonia, and the other twin, bound to die if her sister, died, though she herself was in perfect health, moved the whole nation with its tragedy, and the same nation drew a sigh of relief when told that the dying girl was better.

WIVES AS TRAGIC

But, after all, was that situation so much worse than that of the average wife tied to a dying husband? Most women—most of their husbands and homes their life; they boast that they do not even know how to keep a check book. And if the husband has left no economic security for them as wage-earners they are as "dead" as the twin of a Siamese twin. This, to me, is the big argument of wage-earning experience for all girls before they marry.

Color is Flesh and Life of Furnishings

By Valerie Vance

Color is the flesh and the life of furnishings.

A blue bowl on a table may give quick interest. Merely a scarlet quilt make pleasant a desk. Just the touch of climbing ivy on the sun-room wall, a Boston fern in a window, a low bowl or a basket of orange marigolds, wisteria colored zinnias, purple cosmos, blue bachelor buttons and variegated nasturtiums transform a room.

Cubs Form Club For All Sports

To Name Officers Soon; Football Squad Will Not Be Cut; Confident of Licking Cloverleaves.

If ever a South End team was determined to do a certain thing, it is the Cubs. They are "bound, bent and determined" as the saying goes, to beat the Cloverleaves this year for the football supremacy of Manchester and they care a hang who knows it. In fact, they want the whole wide world to know it.

What's more, the Cubs plan to form an organization to be represented in all branches of sport, including baseball, basketball, football, bowling, tennis, wrestling, boxing, and even may learn a bit of golf. A manager of each sport will be named and club officers will be elected. The purpose is to hold the South End intact. Manager Red Vendrillo also announced this morning that Coach Jack Dwyer has decided not to cut the football squad this year as previously planned. Instead, a new team will be selected after Sunday's game with the Falcons in Meriden. It will be drilled four nights a week in preparation for the Cloverleaves game on November 20. The remainder of the players will report twice a week, meaning that on these two nights, there will be a squad of thirty players in action on the Charter Oak street field where the practice sessions are held. There will be another practice at 10 o'clock Sunday morning and in the afternoon at 2 o'clock. The event of rain, the players will report at the Red Men's clubhouse on Brainard place. The team leaves for Meriden at 12:15 Sunday noon from Metter's Smoke Shop.

STRAFS FOR AM-AMERICA
The support of the Strafs for America is a big thing. The support of the Strafs for America is a big thing. The support of the Strafs for America is a big thing.

Billy Evans Says

RUTH IS RECORD-BREAKER

Breaking records has become almost a part of Babe Ruth's daily routine. In any game that he falls to do some of his copy-righted hitting, he sends the fans away disappointed. During the greater part of the season, he has kept fanning wondering if he would be able to shake off the challenge of the youthful Lou Gehrig for the title of "Home Run King."

Ruth has 59 circuit swats to 45 for Gehrig, a margin of 14 home runs with two games to play. The Babe is still supreme in the art of "slugging."

Now, with the Gehrig challenge answered, baseball fans are pondering over Ruth's chances to break his 1921 mark of 59 home runs. It was rather fitting that when Ruth made his 50th home run of the present season it gave to him the honor of breaking a record that has stood since 1884, a matter of 43 years.

When Ruth reached the half-century mark, it made New York's home run total of the 1927 season 141, one better than the mark of the Chicago Nationals in 1884.

Some of His Feats
Here are a few of the world series feats that carry the name of Babe Ruth:
He holds the record for most home runs made in a game with three, and the most in a series with four. These were made last fall against the St. Louis Cardinals.
He holds the individual record for the most runs scored in a world series game with four, the most extra bases on long hits in total series with 30; the most extra bases on long hits, one series with 12; the most extra bases on long hits in one game, nine, which was the day Ruth made three home runs.

Not only does he hold these unusual batting records but he goes to the other extreme with 11 bases on balls in one series and 26 passes in total series.

A Pitcher, Too
Then for a minute consider these North-end pitching feats:
Ruth is credited with pitching the longest world series game ever played, a 14-inning victory over Brooklyn by a 2-1 score.
Incidentally he is one of the few pitchers to have scored a 1-0 series shutout, beating the Chicago Cubs by that score in 1918.
The Babe has pitched the most innings in which no runs have been scored by the opposition, 29.
These are the outstanding feats of Babe Ruth as a slugger and pitcher which readily show why he is baseball's most colorful player.

MONMILLAN MAY QUIT
There is a rumor abroad that "Boss" Monmillan may quit his post at Geneva College after this season.

TODAY IN FISTIANA

By DOC REID

Sept. 30th, 1916.
DARCY vs. CHIP
Eleven years ago today, the famous Les Darcy, middleweight champion of Australia, knocked out George Chip of Scranton, Pa., an American title claimant, in nine rounds at Sydney, Australia.
Darcy was generally recognized as a middleweight champion of the world and had beaten several of the best boys from America who had invaded the Antipodes, including Eddie McGoorty, Jimmy Clabby, Knockout Brown, Jeff Smith, Frank Loughry and Buck Krouse.
In the following year Darcy visited the United States with a view to meeting the remainder of our top notchers on their own soil, but was stricken with fever in Memphis, Tenn., and died suddenly.

YANKS SHOULD WIN THE WORLD SERIES

That Is the Opinion of Walsh; Says Pitching Will Decide the Issue.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
I. N. S. Sports Editor.

New York, Sept. 30.—Entering his still, small voice into the general hubbly, like a prayer at a bar, the writer desires to state today that he thinks the New York Yankees should win the World Series of 1927. He is throwing out comparative hitting, fielding, base running and kindred appurtenances of those who like to arrive at a given point by way of the servants' entrance.

The respective infields are about a stand-off, anyhow. So are the outfielders and the catching staffs. The Yanks have more power on attack, the Pirates greater versatility and speed. These departments will go along pretty much, as is, without there being a break either way and, if from a quarter less expected, no one figured that George Rube was going to get a lot of base hits in 1906 nor that Fred Snodgrass would drop the only fly ball really worth catching in 1912.

However, you usually can put your finger on pitching and keep it there. This, the abiding factor in a long series, a short series and, in fact, all series, nearly always, particularly in a world series, is the average performance, in fact, is better for the series than it is through the regular season.
Likes Yankees
The writer may be wrong, which, in truth, would be no great novelty, but he likes the Yankees in this most important of all departments. Therefore, everything else being equal, or nearly so, the Yanks should win.
The more one looks at it, the more one is convinced that, in versatility and for purposes of strategy, the Yankees have the better pitching. Alexander stopped them with a screw-ball last year. Hill at last year's delivery but otherwise, the Pirate staff seems to be pretty much straight away pitching. The Yanks, by comparison, have two good left handers; a curve ball expert in Hoyt; a man with a great "slider" in Moore and a surfer in Shocker.
They should win and, that being the case, they probably won't.

North Ends Try Out New Plays

The North Ends will practice tonight at the North End playgrounds at 7 o'clock sharp. Coach Frank McLaughlin will give out some new plays and will rehearse the old ones which showed up good in last Sunday's game.
The North Ends will probably play a preliminary game to the Frog Hollow Echoes of Hartford.
Three new players have been around to try out and two old ones, "Herby" Wright, Bull Micklette and "Pat" Rubaka are the new men, while Billy McKenna and Steve Krall are back again to try out for their old positions at tackle.

Hartford Will Have Strong Forwards

Hartford will present a much stronger forward line against the J. P. Coats of Pawtucket in their American League soccer game at the McKee street stadium Sunday afternoon, according to an announcement made yesterday by Manager Jimmy Dewhurst.
Even, the former Boston star, will be at outside left. Side of him will be Billy Ballantyne at inside left. At center forward, will be Happy Abdullah. Oliver will be at inside right with Bud Hutchinson at outside right.
It is expected that the largest crowd of the season will watch the two teams play Sunday. Now that Eastern League baseball is finished and the fall season is here to stay, the attendance should jump considerably. Then, too, the caliber of the visiting team is nothing to sneeze at.

Killifer Wisdom

The best team doesn't always win in a world series. When the Yanks are hitting, no pitcher can stop 'em. Pittsburgh is the best club in the National League. Rogers Hornsby is one of the game's greatest leaders. Pitching and the breaks decide most world series. The Yanks, at times, are as bad as they usually are good. Lady Luck helped the Cardinals to win over the Yankees. Major league pennant winners are, as a rule, evenly matched. Disension kept Pittsburgh from winning pennant last year. Hornsby got everything out of Cardinals to put them over.

If Yanks Are Hitting, Pittsburgh Will Not Win

Best Team Doesn't Always Cop World Series, However, Says Killifer; If Yanks Slump, Pirates Will Win; Are Two Best Teams.

By BILLY EVANS.

Billy Evans, in his prime, was one of the best catchers I ever umpired back of.
Bill Killifer, last season as first assistant to manager Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis and directly in charge of the pitching, proved his versatility in a double role by lending valuable assistance to the Cardinals in the winning of the National League pennant, then the world series.
"Bill Killifer began his big league career as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals. He is playing days over, after having spent the best of his years in the National League, he is once again with the Browns as assistant to Manager Dad Brown."

It is obvious that Bill Killifer probably knows the strength of the National and American Leagues as well as anyone connected with the game. It was only natural that I should go to him when seeking an opinion relative to the coming world series.
"How good a ball club do you think the Yanks are? Were the Cardinals of last year a better ball club than the New York Yankees? What do you think of the coming world series?" I asked.
"The best ball club doesn't always win the pennant and a rule which will tell in the long run of 154 games," he replied.
"The Cardinals won the pennant in the National League last season and then the world series. I do not believe the Cardinals were the best club in the National League last season nor am I convinced it was a better club than the Yankees."
"Pittsburgh was the best ball club in the National League last

Football Fundamentals

As Told By Famous Coaches To Billy Evans

STANCE FOR PUNTING
A good punter is most valuable to a football team. No eleven can be considered outstanding that lacks one.
On a well placed punt out of bounds a team can in one play recover the ground that it has taken the opposition many downs to gain. Punting is perhaps the hardest job in football. One must first have a good natural ability. Not one in 10 players has the knack of punting.
A punter is a rare bird and, once a coach discovers one, he must see to it that he is properly handled. It is an easy matter to ruin a good prospect by wrong coaching.
I am told there is no hard and fast rule that can be followed in giving instructions. In other words, the coaching must suit the individual.
Form is more essential than power. When a coach finds that his punter has that rare combination of perfect form and great power, he can consider himself mighty fortunate.
It has always been my impression that a certain type physique was best suited for the duties of the punter. A majority of coaches scoff at the idea. They say great kickers

When Cheney Brothers' baseball team furlled its tents after winning the 1927 town championship in two straight games from the Bon Ami, it had completed a successful season, considering the fact that many games were played on the road. Eleven victories were recorded against an even dozen defeats.
The season's record and fielding and batting averages completed today by Manager George E. Hunt, Jr., reveals that Jack Linnell led the team in batting with an average of .472, making 17 hits in 36 trips to the plate. Linnell also has the honor of going through the season without making an error. However, he handled but 19 chances as compared to Mike Zwick who took 93 chances without a bobbie. The team batting average was .285.

Connecticut Again Wins Tuberculosis War Cup

Awarded Prize For Best Work in Country For the Health of Its School Children.

There was jubilation in the office of the State Tuberculosis Commission at the Capitol yesterday, when word was received from the National Tuberculosis Association announcing the award to Connecticut of the School Health Service Cup. The cup, won by Connecticut for the second time, is presented annually to the state which shows the greatest amount of service to the health of its school children and for the correction of physical defects. Surveys are made yearly by the tuberculosis associations in the various states of the country, the reports of such surveys forming the basis for the awarding of the cup.

48 Per Cent Examined

It is interesting to note that in the study of the School Health Service in Connecticut the State Tuberculosis Commission found that more than sixty-five per cent of the school children in this state received complete physical examinations during the school year. The reports of these examinations furnished to the Commission through the co-operation of the State Department of Education and the town and city school authorities show that more than 40 per cent of Connecticut's children had some kind of physical defect. While it was admitted that the greatest proportion of these defects were of the teeth, nose and throat or the eyes, it was surprising to learn that many children revealed more serious defects in heart or lungs.

Trophy Twice Won by Connecticut

The value of the health service in the schools is measured not by the proportion of physical defects found but rather by the extent of the correction of these defects. In this connection Connecticut has stood high because of the intensive follow-up work carried on by its school nurses. Announcement has recently been made by the National Tuberculosis Association that the competition for the School Health Service Cup next year will include the cities as well as the states, and it is expected that much greater rivalry will be evidenced.

Former Bush League Pals May Star In Title Series

BY BILLY EVANS

From a sideshow attraction to a featured performer in a three-ring carnival.

In the parlance of the circus, that one sentence tells the story of two of the outstanding stars in baseball, making his debut in the major leagues.

I have in mind Lloyd Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, the sensation of 1927, not only in the National, but the American as well, and Wilce Moore of the New York Yankees, unquestionably the "pitching fool" of the year.

Last season these two players were doing their stuff in the South Atlantic League, known to the baseball profession as the "Sally" League. It can hardly be mentioned in the same breath as the National and American as far as baseball standards are concerned.

Yet, in early October, provided Pittsburgh wins the right to represent the National League in the world series, the comparatively unknown Wilce Moore and Lloyd Waner of the "Sally" League of 1926 may be the two most talked about individuals in baseball.

All Moore did last season as a member of the Greenville, S. C., team was to win 30 games and lose only four, while pitching that club to a pennant. He won practically one-third of the victories scored by his team.

Lloyd Waner, with a batting average of .345 for 121 games, in which he compiled 173 hits, was trying to do as much for the Columbus, S. C., club with his pitching as Moore for a rival club with his pitching.

In the spring of last year Paul Waner, who starred for the Pirates in 1926, brought along his brother Lloyd to the Pirates' training camp in California. While he realized the "kid" wasn't quite ready for the big show, he hoped he would show enough stuff to warrant the San Francisco club signing him.

The Frisco owners, who have had great success in selling stars to the majors, couldn't see Brother Lloyd. Had he looked good to them he would have brought a fancy figure into their coffers in the fall. Unable to place Lloyd with a minor league of higher classification, he was shipped to the Columbia club of the "Sally" League. He burnt up that circuit and Pittsburgh got him back for little or nothing.

Moore was signed by the New York business office, after all the scouts had turned him down. His imposing record got him his chance, despite expert opinion to the contrary.

Jumping from the "bushes" to the big show didn't even temporarily halt Waner and Moore on their mad hop to baseball fame.

While Moore's New York record shows 17 victories, one of the most remarkable performances ever turned in by a first-year pitcher, Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees will tell you that Moore should really be credited with 30 of the champions' wins. He has saved in the neighborhood of 15 games as relief pitcher. He is sure to see plenty of action in the world series. Lloyd Waner, early being displaced so outstanding a star as "Kiki" Cuyler in his first year in the majors he has been among the first five hitters practically all season. He was the second player in the National League to make 200 hits, his brother Paul being first. At far as I can discover, no other player ever amassed 200 base hits. If the Pirates face the Yankees in the 1927 classic, it will be interesting to watch the work of Wil-

William Glauber was Frederick's best friend. He still would be if he hadn't put porous plasters on Frederick's chest, back and abdomen when he caught cold. When he pulled off the plasters, the skin came with them; and with the skin came tattooed pictures of bathing girls, ships, anchors, Uncle Sam, landscapes and portraits.

Frederick, howling with pain, shouted that his business had been ruined and socked William in the eye. Fright apart, they were taken to police court and fined.

THREE BOUND OVER

Stamford, Conn., Sept. 30.—Three men were bound over for trial in the Superior Court after City Court hearings today on charges of automobile stealing. They were Edward B. Gonch, of Norwalk, who on September 2 stole a car owned by C. E. Fulton of Norwalk, and James Burke and William Cody, who on September 24 stole a car belonging to John Kovka, of Stamford. Gonch was placed under $1,500 bail and the others under bail of $500 each.

Gonch and a party of Norwalkers drove to Johnstown, Pa., where their car was involved in an accident, causing a death. Stamford police requested Gonch's arrest in that city and he was returned here.

TRADE SCHOOL NIGHT SESSIONS POSTPONED

First Will be Held October 17 Instead of on 10th; Registration Dates.

Evening School at the State Trade school here will not begin until a week later than previously announced. The first session will be held Monday, October 17, instead of October 10 as previously planned. The faculty this year will be practically the same as last.

The courses offered are similar to those of other years but there will be slight changes in individual departments. Registration should be made on the evenings of October 10, 12 or 14. A series of six articles dealing with the various courses will be published in The Herald next week. They are being prepared by Director A. A. Warren.

The drafting department, which holds sessions Wednesday and Friday evenings, will follow the same general plan where the student works from a model machine part, making first the free hand sketch which is followed by the mechanical drafting.

NASH

The Easiest Riding you have ever enjoyed

This new riding EASE—a notable feature of the Advanced Six 4-Door Sedan—is exclusive to Nash by reason of springs built of special secret process alloy-steel.

These springs are engineered exactly to the weight and size of each Nash model. And shock-absorbers are provided, too.

So the road comfort of this car is absolutely amazing. DRIVE it and experience it yourself.

This is the SPEEDIEST car in the whole Nash-line and the FASTEST car of its field in getaway. And its great, newly-perfected 7-bearing motor has EXTRA POWER for every emergency.

Low to the road, with small wheels, it is a picture of motor car smartness and grace.

Silver-finished fittings, vanity case, smoking set, tufted genuine mohair upholstery, walnut steering wheel, walnut-finished door panelings and window moldings; all evidence greater quality despite the LOWER price.

SPECIAL TERMS are now available on the car you own. Drive down today and examine this Advanced Six 4-Door Sedan—the leader of the whole Nash line.

PRITCHARD AND WALSH BUY SEAMLESS NET CO.

Manchester Young Men Obtain Controlling Interest in Local Manufacturing Concern.

Pritchard & Walsh, proprietors of the soda shop in the Odd Fellows block, have purchased a controlling interest in the Seamless Net Co., a manufacturing enterprise brought to Manchester several months ago by Carroll W. Hutchinson of Porter street.

The business, formerly known as the Grant Seamless Net Co., was organized several years ago by the late R. P. Grant of Hartford, an experienced manufacturer, who built up a good business in making a seamless net bag used by laundrymen, which is said to be the best of its kind. The company also makes a cotton web belt used on laundry machinery.

After Mr. Grant's death the business was purchased by Mr. Hutchinson and moved to Manchester. Mr. Hutchinson built a brick factory building 35x100 feet in the rear of his home on Porter street. It is this building, with all the necessary machinery for the manufacture of the net bags, that has been purchased by Pritchard & Walsh. The balance of Mr. Hutchinson's Porter street property, including his house, has been purchased by Elman & Rolston, who arranged the details of the sale of the business.

The Seamless Net Co. will be re-organized with Richard J. Pritchard as president and Harold W. Walsh as secretary and treasurer. The new owners plan to devote much of their time to the development of the business.

For children's coughs—give them our Flaxseed, Wild Cherry and Rock Candy. Quinn's—Adv.

EXAMPLE OF ELDERLY

NO BENEFIT TO YOUTH

Bay State Pastor Defends Generation in H. S. Talk; Lindy As a Type.

"Sacrifice is the price of power!" This six-word sentence was the keynote of a fifty-minute address given before 800-odd High school students here yesterday afternoon by Rev. A. Edwin Tingley, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at North Attleboro, Mass. Rev. Mr. Tingley's talk was based on the recent trans-Atlantic flight of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

"You cannot get anywhere in life without making a sacrifice," Rev. Mr. Tingley advised his listeners. "First, you must have a purpose. Be sure that it is a high one, then grasp it with all your heart and soul, for life is unbearable without a purpose. Make sure your task is worth while and measure yourself and your ambitions before making a selection."

Elders No Benefit "But, most of all, be real. It means so much in life. Colonel Lindbergh is a mighty good example of a real man. There is nothing put on about him—except his clothes. Colonel Lindbergh stands for the best there is in American youth. We hear so much, nowadays, about the morals of the youth today compared with those of yesterday. In my opinion, many of the present day youths would be far better off if they were not so much in the companionship of the older folks, many of whom set bad examples.

"We live in a world where doors are constantly slamming. Opportunities do not come as often as we would like to have them come. So we must strike when the iron is hot. And that is when you still have youth. Be ready—and resourceful. Treasure your youth and make the best of it. Remember what Robert Louis Stevenson, the famous author, said during the latter part of his life when asked how he felt in his advanced age, 'I'm happy because I know that I have done good work.'"

"And so it is with Colonel Lindbergh. He has done good work. It was not luck that carried that brave youth in his Spirit of St. Louis across the Atlantic. It was the result of many years of sheer hard work. And then when he had achieved universal fame by his epochal solo flight, Colonel Lindbergh startled the world by refusing to commercialize his fame although confronted with amazing offers which would have netted him a fortune without any real work. He disapproved the statement of the famous British statesman Walpole, who once said that 'every man has his price.'"

Not Purchasable "They tried to buy Lindy and even bribe him, but always, his answer was that he was solely interested in aviation. Yes, Colonel Lindbergh was not a publicity pawn and, furthermore, neither was he a sentimental idiot. He was, and is, a man of one purpose, just as you boys and girls should be. I wish that everyone of you students would find time to read that 350-page book entitled 'We,' every word of which was written by Colonel Lindbergh's own pen. It would do you a world of good."

MOVIE MEISSONIER'S ART IN KING OF KINGS FILM

The hand colorist's art is still a factor in the movies, as witness the flaming torches of the Gethsemane party in Cecil B. DeMille's "King of Kings" at Parsons, Hartford, twice daily. Hollywood has to come to New York to get them made. Gustave F. C. Brock, a New York artist with a large staff of miniaturists, is the maker of these naturalistic effects. Mr. Brock's "Kings of Kings" job seems likely to be an extended one. There are 370 feet of colored torches lighting up Gethsemane's horrendous night scenes in the De Mille picture, in many instances more than twenty torches have to be colored on each "frame". In the preparation of 300 prints of "The King of Kings" for the world output, no less than 1,800,000 hand colored pictures will be required.

Thus far, both the tinting and toning processes, and the technical color film art, have failed to satisfy the makers of big pictures in the representation of the brilliant hues of fire—hence, the recourse to the hand work of the miniaturist or movie Meissonier.

POLO PONIES BURNED

Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 30.—Fifty-five polo ponies and fine saddle horses were burned to death in a fire thought to have been caused by a short circuit which destroyed the stables of the Dayton Country Club, near here today. Only fifteen animals were saved, and the loss, including the buildings and equipment is expected to reach $300,000.

DRUNKEN AUTO DRIVER

Milford, Conn., Sept. 30.—A man and two girls were placed under bail here today after spending most of the night in the police station and will face the court tomorrow on charges of intoxication. They were arrested when a car the man was driving came to a stop in the middle of a sidewalk as a policeman was approaching. The three people were almost unconscious and were not revived until long after daybreak. The man gave his name as Joseph B. Roberts, 203 First National Bank Building, Bridgeport.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

The only women getting men's wages are wives.

SENSE and NONSENSE

An advertisement for a lecturer says he "speaks straight from the shoulder." Too bad some of these can't originate a little higher up.

SHORT REACH

They sat in the swing at midnight. But her love was not to his taste. His reach was but thirty-six inches. While hers was a forty-six waist.

Small boy (looking at new rural mail box): "It must be the minister's."

Another Little Lad: "No, it can't be. Don't you see what is says on it? 'No collection on Sunday.'"

"Poor Miss Seymour came near getting herself into trouble last night. She started, according to her usual habit, to look under the bed."

"Well?"

"Well, the bed at the time happened to be an upper berth in a sleeping car."

"What's become of the good old days when people used to say: 'What's become of the good old days?'"

Feeling too lazy to go to school, Johnny told his mother that his tummy hurt.

"But last night you said your back hurt," was his mother's reply.

"It was so dark in my room that I couldn't see where the pain was."

"William, don't you know it is wicked to sail your boat in the bathtub on Sunday?"

"Don't worry, Mother; this ain't a pleasure trip. This is a missionary going to Africa."

The easiest way to size up a stranger is to watch his expression when you ask him for a match.

"So you are going to marry? Have you anything laid up?"

"Yes, I've a rich uncle laid up with a paralytic stroke and I'm his only surviving relative."

The real saving grace is the grace of saving.

Be kind to everyone, and it's a sure bet you won't overlook yourself.

Deep-sea diving is perhaps the only profession which it is customary to begin with at the top and work down.

They were looking at a kangaroo at the Zoo when an Irishman said: "Beg pardon, sor, phwhat kind of a creature is that?"

"Oh," said the gentleman, "that is a native of Australia."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed Pat. "an' me sister married wan o' thim."

Pep is the spice of life.

Men are children at heart, particularly where the bottle is concerned.

A cynic is an idealist who is afraid of his ideals.

"Did you let that young man kiss you?" asked a matron of her flapper daughter the other evening.

"Let him? I'll say I didn't. I actually had to help him," she replied.

LETTER GOLF

HERE'S A NIFTY FOUR Par is four from CORN to MULE. Not hard if you know how. The solution is printed on another page.

THE RULES

1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2-You can change only one letter at a time.

3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

If brevity is the soul of wit, ain't the ladies' skirts a scream.

THE EXPERT JUMPER

The kangaroo dwells in the jungle wild. Where his talents are simply wasted, child,

What a star he'd be on a city street. Where the traffic and crossings meet.

Life is a game of giving and taking and loving and losing.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"Say, can we help you?" Scouty cried. One of these little lassies sighed. "Oh, no," said she, "I fear you can't. 'Tis hard as it can be. We work all day and sometimes more, until our fingers get real sore. It's really very tedious work, as you can quickly see."
