UNIONS TO ORGANIZE THE LABORING MASSES

Men Who Are Displaced by Machinery Must Be Given Something Else to Do.

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 7.—Organization of the unorganized laboring masses and higher wages for union workers today marked the goal posts for the American Federation of Labor convention.

Help of the federation in unionizing textile workers in the south and laundry workers in the United States and Canada, and a drive for new union members among hotel and restaurant employees already has been pledged in resolutions adopted by the convention.

Canadian mine, mill and smelter workers in northern Ontario will be brought into the ranks of union labor, while the federation will aid the organization of workers in Porto Rico.

A national movement for an increased "wage rate" for all organized workers was launched by John O. Frey, of Cincinnati, Ohio, secretary-treasurer of the metal trades department.

"Wages have failed to keep pace with our ability to produce," Frey told the convention. "If industry is to function properly, fraternalism will never solve the problem of just wages, and men who are displaced by machinery must be given something else to do."

BOY'S CONFESSION ADMITTED AT TRIAL Defense at Winsted Murder Hearing Tries to Have It Kept Out. Litchfield, Conn., Oct. 7.—The admission of Jack Billadella of Winsted, that he killed Rose Bordin, also of Winsted, last July, was permitted to be introduced as evidence in the youth's trial for murder here today. The three Superior Court judges who are presiding over the case announced, this morning, that the statement is admissible as a part of the state's evidence. The judges had considered the matter overnight. With the admission of the statement, which was made to Coroner Samuel A. Herman, of Winsted, placed the state in position to rest its case. When the court recessed this afternoon for lunch, the defense was ready to place its witnesses on the stand. Meanwhile the three judges decided to recess the trial at five p. m. today and resume sessions here next Tuesday morning.

Defense Argument Defense counsel today continued their efforts to show that Billadella's statement had been given to the coroner under duress and that the boy did not know the meaning of some of the words therein. Billadella spent thirteen minutes on the stand. Under questioning by Frank D. Munn, of New Hartford, one of the defense lawyers, Billadella declared that he had made the statement to the coroner that he did not know some of the words therein, especially the word "voluntary" and that he made the statement for fear he would "have to go back to the reform school." Billadella, it was shown, had been twice in the reform school and is even now on parole from that institution.

Coroner Testifies Coroner Herman followed Billadella on the stand. The coroner described the processes he had used in obtaining the statement. The coroner declared Billadella had for an hour steadily denied killing the girl. Then the coroner told how the turn came. The coroner told the youth that the boy hadkerchief had been tied around the little girl's neck. I tied it around her mouth so she couldn't holler. From that point on the coroner found it increasingly easier to get the story from the youth.

HOOSIER HAS TRAP FOR BANK BANDITS

It has remained for a Hoosier to invent a silk bandit net for trapping bank robbers. The inventor, W. J. Lewis of this city is seeking a patent on a contraption of fiber covered wire and silk cord in the shape of a net which he calls a bandit trap. Placed in the lobby of a bank or other public building the net is designed to be lowered suddenly by electricity and trap a person beneath it. Controls can be placed at various points in a bank, such as under the counters, in the vault and in the rear offices.

TWO-FEATURE BILL AT THE STATE NOW

"Foreign Devils" and "Swim, Girl, Swim," on Program; "Song Reel, Too."

Two big features are offered at the State Theater today and tomorrow. Bebe Daniels kicks in with her latest, "Swim, Girl, Swim," which is helped along considerably by the appearance of Gertrude Ederle, the first woman to swim the channel, and Col. Tim McCoy appears in "Foreign Devils," a story of the Boxer Rebellion in China.

Funny, fast moving and chock full of interest is Bebe Daniels' latest comedy, "Swim, Girl, Swim."

Here is real entertainment from start to finish. Last year Miss Daniels gave us "The Campus Flirt" and in her latest comedy, a picture of the same type, she is even better.

From the pen of Lloyd Corrigan comes this story of college athletics and laughs, and again Director Clarence Badger has given us a joyful little tale, something he seems always to do.

Never has Miss Daniels had a better vehicle and she makes the best of it. As the unknown, unattractive Alice Smith, a co-ed who really studies, she is transformed to the idol of the world by her swimming prowess when she cannot swim a stroke. The entanglements caused by this strange situation cause a steady stream of laughs and then, at the last, the dashing Miss Daniels has a windup which is a scream.

By far the most thrilling picture of Col. Tim McCoy has ever made! That is a terse description of "Foreign Devils."

Based on authentic details of one of the most sensational episodes in modern history the story gives the star the best opportunity he has had to show his wares since he began starring in M-G-M historical pictures a little more than a year ago.

As the American military attache to the legation at Peking, McCoy has a chance to put over a lot of fun before launching into the thrills which come thick and fast as the plot develops.

"BODY AND SOUL" OPENS AT CIRCLE

Will Run in Big Hartford Theater at Same Time as Local Showing - "Metropolis" on Monday, Tuesday.

Few strong characters, involved in real dramatic situations, rather than a large cast with little for the players to do, is one of the features of "Body and Soul." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production playing at the Circle theater tomorrow and Sunday.

The cast of this dramatic production consists of but four people, though there are several others who play what is known in studio parlance as "bits." Each of these four principals plays a vital part in the story—a part which would disrupt the entire drama were it withdrawn.

There is Aileen Pringle, the Swiss peasant girl who, through force of circumstances, weds a dervish English doctor.

The doctor, one of the strongest dramatic film roles of the season, is played by Lionel Barrymore, famous on stage and screen and member of the noted Barrymore family—a name synonymous with good acting.

T. Roy Barnes, famous as a comedy character actor on both screen and stage, has the role of the funny Swiss postman, whose antics precipitate a crisis in the life of the doctor and his beautiful wife.

The fourth character is that of the young Swiss mountaineer, who saves the girl when the doctor brands her and carries her away to his cabin, high in the Alps. This role is taken by Norman Kerry.

"Body and Soul" is based on Katharine Newlin Burr's novel, "The Branding Iron," and at the time of its publication, was ranked among the best sellers. The picture was directed by Reginald Barker, noted for such pictures as "The Great Divide," "The White Desert," and "The Flaming Forest," and "Metropolis," the great German film of the super-city, is the feature at the Circle for Monday and Tuesday.

25,000 CRIMES BEING STUDIED TO FIND CAUSE

Survey of Felonies of 1926 May Lead to Plan For Prevention.

Chicago.—In a survey of Illinois crime by the Illinois Association for Criminal Justice 25,000 felonies committed in this state in 1926 are being studied to provide information as to the cause, it was disclosed here today.

The survey committee is the outcome of a resolution passed by the Illinois Association more than a year ago. A donation of $100,000 was made by the Industrial Club of Chicago for the survey, the results of which are expected to lead to some drastic measures of crime prevention.

A preliminary report of the committee, to be ready early next year, is expected to show that a peak cost for crime must be reached when a desperate remedy will have to be applied.

Authorities have declared that this remedy may grow out of an aroused public sentiment. "Public sentiment" will ultimately settle the problem, one of the members of the committee declared.

Juvenile Delinquency Juvenile delinquency is also being studied by a community research committee of the University of Chicago, the cost of the survey being borne jointly by the crime association and the Rockefeller Foundation. This work is receiving the co-operation of the institute for juvenile research of Illinois.

A similar survey of criminal conditions made in Missouri shocked the public into an indignation that led to some salutary corrections. The Illinois Association for Criminal Justice promised a scientific study of organized crime, especially as it is maintained in Chicago, which it believes will stagger the community.

After the flowers have blossomed in the fall, and the dried, brown stalks are all that are left, the garden, other than to pull up and burn the dead stalks?

The flower garden in the fall deserves particular care. This is necessary to insure good blooms next year. Especially is this true with the care of perennials.

R. H. Patch, assistant professor of floriculture at the Connecticut Agricultural college will give a talk through WTIC tonight which will tell listeners what to do in the flower garden in the fall.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (102) Growth of the Press

As printed books began to appear in England, education became better and more common. People began to read and discuss government and taxes and this alarmed the rulers. In 1530 a press censorship was established and if a man printed anything not approved by the censor he was cruelly punished. The lot of the printer became hard. This lasted 150 years.

In 1694 the office of censor was swept away and printing began to improve. Still the old hand press, such as shown above, was used.

Just before the French Revolution a Frenchman named Pierre made an iron press much better than the old wooden ones. It was brought to England.

As newspapers grew in size and circulation the old presses were found to be too slow. William Nicholson in London in 1790 got an idea that the paper might be fastened to a cylinder which could be rolled over the type. Nicholson was an editor and his idea was taken up by William König, a German printer in London. He persuaded the London Times to try it.

TEXTILE COURSES AT TRADE SCHOOL

Thorough and Practical Instruction in Silk Making Feature of Institution.

Following is the third of a series of articles dealing with the various courses of study offered Evening School students at the State Trade School here, which begin Monday, October 17.

The Textile Department of the State Trade School is offering very thorough and practical evening courses in practically all branches of silk manufacturing. Instruction is grouped under the general heading as follows: 1. Yarn preparation; 2. warping; 3. weaving, twisting-in, and loom-fixing; 4. textile design, calculations, cloth analysis, silk testing. A description of these courses follows:

Yarn preparation is a general course in throwing, and includes winding, doubling, twisting, reeling and quilling on raw silk, organzine, tram, spun silk and cotton. The necessity of the various operations is fully explained and students are taught to properly operate and care for all machinery. Mathematical calculations connected with each operation are taken up as the student progresses from one operation to another.

Warping Processes
Warping is taken up with intensive practice in all its phases and includes the following: Ribbon and broad goods warping, setting-reeds, picking leashes, sleying threads in various reeds, laying out section of warp on wheels and drawing-in. Necessary calculations in warping are thoroughly studied together with the upkeep and operation of warpers.

Weaving and loom-fixing are separate courses which may be summed up as follows: Weaving instruction, both elementary and advanced, is given in the operation and care of the plain, box, dobby, Jacquard and ribbon looms.

Twisting-in consists of twisting, reeling, handing-in and drawing-in of warps in preparation for weaving. Loom-fixing is a unit course. Instruction is given on the up-keep, care and fixing of plain, box, dobby, ribbon and Jacquard looms. Harness and chain building is also studied with the purpose of showing the bearing each has in the successful construction of a fabric.

In addition to the above shop courses, elementary and advanced instruction will be given in textile design, textile calculations, cloth analysis and practical and technical silk testing briefly described as follows:

Textile design consists of instruction in classification of foundation weaves, derivatives, combination weaves, figures and colored effects, complicated weaves adapted to harness work, construction of draw and chain from design and vice versa.

Textile calculations consist of the relation and determination of counts of spun silk, cotton, worsted, woolen and the denier, grading of yarns, problems involved in take-up, average counts, and miscellaneous examples on cloth calculations.

Cloth analysis is the systematic study in the analysis of samples of cloth for the purpose of determining the design of the weave, and forms the basis of calculations to produce any given fabric.

Newest Methods
Aside from the above mentioned courses the student is taught present-day methods of determining the physical properties of textile fibres, yarns, and fabrics. A special testing laboratory is provided and a considerable number of the best standard testing instruments are installed and are used for instruction in practical and technical silk testing.

An excellent opportunity is offered textile workers for evening instruction of an advanced character, and also for instruction and practice in work related to that part of textile manufacturing on which they are engaged.

Departments are in charge of J. G. Echmalian and H. S. Kitching, assisted by John E. Johnson, an expert loom-fixer employed by Cheney Brothers.

Registration will be held October 10, 12 and 14 from 7 to 9 p. m. Classes will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Yeomans of Hartford were in town Tuesday. At the meeting of the local Grange held Wednesday evening, members of Hampton Grange to the number of 22 were guests and furnished the program. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by Columbia Grange.

It was voted to accept the invitation of Lebanon Grange to be present at their meeting October 13 and furnish four numbers on the program. The next meeting of Columbia Grange will be the annual competitive program, this time between the single ladies and married men versus the married ladies and single men.

Mrs. Lester Hutchins spent several days last week at the home of her sister in New Britain.

Mrs. Anna Dart who has been spending the summer at the home of Mrs. C. A. Holmes, returned to her home in Providence Thursday.

Rev. and Mrs. Haun and two sons of Le Raysville, Pa., are east on a week's vacation and spent most of Wednesday in town calling on old friends. Rev. M. Haun was pastor of the local church just preceding the present pastor.

An article written by him has appeared in the October number of the American Missionary and has been read with interest by his friends in Columbia.

Miss Lillian Lyman has returned after spending three weeks with her brother Sam Lyman in Philadelphia.

Mrs. S. K. Goff, who has been spending the summer with her daughter, Mrs. Clayton Hunt, was called to Providence Saturday by the illness of her grandson. She will return to Columbia in a short time.

A son, Samuel, Jr., was born to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Watrous of Columbia Monday evening at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic. This is their third son.

Mrs. Howard Stanley of Andover, with her infant daughter, Jean Lathrop, is staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hutchins at Chestnut Hill, at present.

Editor C. L. Sherman of the Hartford Times and Mrs. William Ayers, widow of William Ayers, a former well-known editorial writer for Hartford papers, were the guests Wednesday of Dwight A. Lyman. They were served with a sweet corn dinner of the famous "Lyman's Fridge Corn," this having become an annual affair. This corn, as its name indicates was perfected by the Lyman family, and nearly everyone in Columbia grows it in preference to anything else. It is plain to see its fame has spread even to Hartford.

MILK LAWS

As we interpret the opinion of Deputy Attorney-General Averill concerning health board regulations of the milk business in Manchester and a number of other Connecticut towns and cities, its effect is to declare that health authorities in this commonwealth are habitually transcending their authority in the exercise of police powers with relation to matters that are not actually emergent.

It is to be gathered that in the opinion of the deputy attorney-general, a sharp distinction must be drawn in the exercise of health board authority, between its applications to conditions that have suddenly and threateningly arisen and must be drastically dealt with in the interest of public safety, and conditions which are quite usual and not especially threatening.

There has grown up in Connecticut, over a long period of years, the concept that health authorities "can do anything." It would appear from Mr. Averill's opinion that he, at least, does not take this commonly accepted view of the police power of health officers and health boards.

To be sure, the opinion is only an opinion and can hardly have the force of a supreme court decision— which conceivably might take a different view of the question. Nevertheless, because the state commissioner of health is extremely liable to be guided by the opinion and to refuse sanction to a large number of milk ordinances on the point of being put into effect among Connecticut municipalities, it is probable that a sudden halt will be brought about in this kind of regulation.

On the wisdom or unwisdom of most of these local milk laws we cannot pass an expert opinion. But while nobody wants to have unwholesome or disease-carrying milk sold in his community, there is a good deal of quite intelligent criticism of the tendency to go to extremes in the matter of regulation and a not uncommon belief that the state laws is to render the production of milk unnecessarily costly and the price of the consumer needlessly high in consequence.

In any event, if the precipitation of a showdown as to health board authority be now brought about, and if a sharp and permanent distinction be drawn between actually emergent powers of such bodies or officials and mere fussy interference with the established order of things, a long needed situation will be created.

NEEDLESS BLUNDERING

Because it is a fact that petitions are in circulation in New London asking for a referendum on the question of abandoning that city's council-manager form of government, the Hartford Courant jumps at the conclusion that the people of the city on the Thames have come to the conclusion that the city manager principle in municipal operation has outworn its welcome.

We very much doubt if there is any such implication in the New London situation. The trouble down there is not so much that the people are convinced that their old charter was a good one as that they have discovered that, in the new charter, they did not get what they were after at all. They wanted a simplified, verile system of government. They got a hedge-podge that resulted from an attempt to adopt, in one city charter, all the spectacular fads and fancies of all the so-called experts in civics who could be gotten to contribute their bits to the melange.

New London's so-called council-manager charter was the result of too many sessions of too many specks and the taking of far too much theoretical advice—that, and trying to be over-smart. It was voted on by a populace which had never seen a true copy of it and it was not fully understood by anybody. That it has never worked satisfactorily is not to be wondered at. But all this has not the slightest bearing on the inherent merits of council-manager government for cities. The fact that New London bungled its charter does not by any means prove that Manchester, for instance, would bungle if it should start out to frame a charter on the council-manager general plan.

All the blunders that New London committed in its charter making can be very easily avoided if the charter framers will adhere to the making of a charter and not attempt to do what was attempted in New London—to merge the business of framing a charter with that of giving the city, within that charter, an entire complement of ordinances aimed at everything from sidewalk laying to shooting of firecrackers.

It may well be pointed out that in framing a city charter, the surest way to make a mess of the job is to use four or five times as many words as were found necessary in creating the Constitution of the United States. New London, as we understand it, isn't in the least anxious to return permanently to the old committee-administered system, but wants to get rid of a rotten council-manager charter in order to adopt a sane and workable council-manager charter.

It is to be expected that Manchester will avoid New London's mistakes and hit the bulls-eye the first time. NEW YORK INDUSTRIES According to a survey report made by Charles Edward Smith, transit expert, on the transportation facilities of New York city, "largely by reason of bad transit, traffic and transportation policy, or the lack of any policy, New York city is losing its industrial dominance. Part of this is being taken away by the United States at large, but more significant from a local standpoint is the more rapid increase of industrial employment in New Jersey side than in Greater New York and the migration of business from Greater New York to New Jersey."

It is natural that a transit expert, who thinks in terms of subways and fares, should attribute the loss to New York of many of its industries to transit difficulties; but it is highly probable that other and far more important economic causes figure in the movement away from the metropolis.

It is one of the strangest of imaginable conditions that New York should be the greatest industrial city in the country—that its manufacturing interests should far surpass those of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia or any other of the great industrial centers. Obviously, this predominance exists in spite of, rather than as the result of, ordinary economic logic. The mere item of rental values, both for factories and for the homes of workers, ought by all logic to knock New York away west as a contender for the retention of industrial activities. It is one of the most inconvenient places on earth to carry on manufacturing. Yet the factories are there. And the fact that many of them are moving away is only a belated development that by all rights should have transpired long ago.

All of which suggests that, if Connecticut is to acquire industries from any other section of the country whatever, New York should be its shining mark—its easiest target. There are probably enough substantial industries doing business in the midst of the nation's commercial metropolis; and that could and would make more money if they were located in Connecticut, to fill every idle factory in this state and keep the builders hunting for the next ten years, if their owners could be convinced of the superior advantage that Connecticut offers in ground rental, living costs and healthfulness for employees.

Yet there is probably no field so little prospected by this state's speakers after industrial enterprises. MME. MELIUS Mme. Melius, Chicago opera prima donna, achieved some front page stuff by being powerfully shocked at the abandoned actions of all the women, except herself, on the steamer on which she has just returned from Europe. Their bobbed heads, their conspicuous legs, their unanimous pursuit of the male passengers, all contributed to give Mme. Melius a terrible pain. The prima donna has not well considered that she herself is such a paragon of propriety, modesty and shrinking-violetism that it is entirely necessary for the other 354, in any company of 355 of which she is a member, to establish a high degree of devilry in order to keep the average down to the merely human.

We doubt, too, if as many of the leggy bobsers as Mme. Melius figures on are going to pay to attend her performances just for the sake of booing her.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Oct. 7.—Politicians will believe anything. They seldom agree on anything with unanimity, but here are some of the things some of them believe:

That Governor Al Smith is the strongest candidate the Democrats could possibly run and is the only man who can win. That Al's nomination would be a frightful boner and that he would run millions of votes behind any nice, respectable, dry Democrat. That President Coolidge, either because of his own desire or that of others, or both, is definitely out of next year's presidential race. That President Coolidge will be "frustrated" by a worried party which feels that he is by far its safest candidate.

That Herbert Hoover can't possibly win because he doesn't fit with the politicians and can't gain enough strength in farm regions and the east. That Hoover is riding on a rising tide of popularity among the business men and the people which will easily give him a majority at the convention. They're sure: That Woodrow Wilson is the strongest Democratic candidate because he is bound to inherit the Smith strength when Smith definitely fails to break through the two-thirds rule. That Jim hasn't a chance because he's not because the farmers are sore at him and because he deserted Woodrow Wilson.

That Frank Lowden knows he can't win with his prospective bloc of farm state delegates and that he will bequeath them to Dawes as soon as he has had a brief fling at the convention. That Lowden has a chance to win because—(well, come to think of it, nobody really believes this one). That Charles Evans Hughes will be nominated with the support of Andy Mellon, the eastern Republican, the international bankers and the Standard Oil Company. That Hughes won't be nominated because the lecturer knows he has the support of Andy Mellon, the international bankers and the Standard Oil Company.

That Smith can carry New York, Massachusetts and Illinois against the Republican candidate. That Smith can't carry Massachusetts and Illinois in any event and couldn't bet Hughes in New York.

They know: That Hiram Johnson will hamstring Hoover in California by reason of his long-standing enmity, thus delivering a probably fatal blow to the Hoover hopes. That Johnson will support Hoover in order to save his own skin at the next senatorial election. That the most likely event in the Republican party is the nomination of a dark-horse not now figured in the running.

That that is the most unlikely event because the G. O. P. can't afford to take chances with any candidate who hasn't already established a popular appeal. That the Democrats will nominate another compromise man like John Davis. That the Democrats are sick of compromise candidates whom the people refuse to get excited about. That the voters will become all het up over the alleged corruption and mammonism of the G. O. P. That they won't give a whoop in Hellpolis.

That the Catholic voters will silently bolt the party if Smith isn't nominated in the belief that they are victims of religious prejudice. That the Catholic voters will be good fellows about it. That some of the candidates on both sides aren't following their ambitions because they actually believe that the nomination should seek the man. That each of these candidates is doing everything possible in an indirect way to encompass his nomination, being restrained in his beltings only by the exigencies of smart politics. And a whole lot more.

POLAND-LITHUANIA IN BALTIC LOCARNO; SIGN UP AT PARIS

Riga.—A Baltic Locarno has just been concluded at Paris between the Polish and the Lithuanian governments according to confidential information here. Though it is likely that both governments will issue denials, it is asserted here that they have signed an agreement consisting of a protocol and two accompanying letters which provide:

- 1.—The state of war existing between Poland and Lithuania ever since Poland seized the Vilna territory in 1920 is declared to be no longer existent. 2.—The Vilna question and other territorial disputes are to be settled by special agreements. 3.—In the conflict between England and Russia, especially in case of an Anglo-Russian war, Poland and Lithuania remain neutral insofar as their obligations toward the League of Nations permit. The contents of the accompanying letters are still secret. The whole agreement, it is asserted, has been reached under pressure from England. England is alleged to have promised Lithuania a loan of 2,500,000 pounds, and a further credit of 2,500,000 pounds for the formation of a Lithuanian navy and commercial fleet. Lithuania, however, is said to be keeping the agreement secret because it fears that its publication will rouse storm protest within the country.

The Hunting Season Is On

A New Yorker in Paris

Paris, Oct. 7.—It happened at the Cathedral of Notre Dame... one of those amusing incidents so typical of modern-day Paris... We had been going the usual tourist things... That is, taking a small boat under the pont de la Tournele where, from the water level, the majesty of the historic cathedral all but takes away the breath... It was a golden morning with the sun and shadows weaving dragons about the flying buttresses... And we had walked from various angles... and finally we entered, held breathless for a moment by varying emotions of awe and wonder...

My companion suggested that we get candles for the cathedral. A candlestick was granted by many visitors. "But just how did one ask for a candle?"... I consulted my little book of French terms and, after much struggle, rehearsed a few necessary words... Then I looked up a guide. With many references to my little book, I managed to stammer out some horrible French... The guide listened impatiently for a minute and then burst out with... "Say, why don't you talk American so I can understand you?"

When the shock had passed, I learned that our guide was none other than an ex-taxi driver from New Jersey... He had served in the war and staged over afterward... He secured his job at the cathedral in order to be of service to Americans... He started speaking to him in bad French, just as I had... And so to Harry's bar, or, to be exact, Harry's New York bar... Harry's bar is the place in Paris where, if you stand long enough and can still stand, you will see some one missed at 42d and Broadway... Here is the headquarters of that famous organization, the I. O. B., which means the International Order of Barflies... And Harry's is Lodge No. 1... For a number of francs one can become a member, or signing one's name in a book... Membership includes, among other things, an assortment of stickers on one's luggage, which carry such words as "Carry me home" or "Don't let me sleep in the street"... These are not exact quotations, but they're close enough.

At Harry's bar, one meets among other people the world's champion dice shaker... And while this may be challenged, I should nominate him as the fellow with the world's greatest capacity for assorted stunts... He's a huge man, almost stout enough to get a job as a circus freak... And he escapes paying for drinks by amusing you with little tricks he can perform with dice boxes... With a dexterous flip of the box he can arrange five dice in patterns ranging from a pyramid to a tower in which one balances atop the other...

From Harry's one is likely to go to the American Express to cash a check. Here all the comedies are enacted among tourists as they stand by street curbs and maps in hand, trying to figure out where to go and how to get there... This is the cruxing place of all America that happens to be in Paris—Here husbands meet other men's wives and here wives frequently intercept their husbands. Here a friend meets friend and lonesome souls wait for a friendly face to appear... Sooner or later a meeting is bound to come about... And here it was, as I entered, that I suddenly felt my shoe sticking to the floor... And it was there, as I stepped, that I felt a heavy, healthy wad of American chewing gum... Surely this is the one place in all Paris where one could come upon chewing gum... "At last," said I to myself, "here in the heart of Paris, I am on American soil." GILBERT SWAN.

The BENSON MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE © CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

THIS HAS HAPPENED

A woman's gloves and handbag, found at the scene of the murder, are traced to Miss St. Clair. When Markham threatens her with arrest she is flung at and unconscious. Vance later declares that she could not have killed Benson and by means of measurements demonstrates that the murderer was six feet tall or thereabouts and a good marksman.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI

ONCE more Vance went to the door, and summoning Snitkin, returned the pistol. "The District Attorney thanks you," he said. "And will you be good enough to fetch Mrs. Platz. We wish to chat with her."

Turning back to the room, he smiled amiably at Markham.

"I desire to do all the conversing with the lady this time, if you don't mind. There are potentialities in Mrs. Platz which you entirely overlooked when you questioned her yesterday."

Markham merely nodded to her, but Vance stood up and indicated a low tufted Morris chair near the fireplace, facing the front windows.

She sat down on the edge of it, resting her elbows on its broad arms.

"I have some questions to ask you, Mrs. Platz," Vance began, fixing her sharply with his gaze; "and it will be best for everyone if you tell the whole truth. You understand me—eh, what?"

The easy-going, half-whimsical manner he had taken with Markham had disappeared. He stood before the woman, stern and implacable.

At his words she lifted her head. Her face was blank, but her mouth was set stubbornly, and a smouldering look in her eyes told of a suppressed anxiety.

Vance waited a moment and then went on, enunciating each word with distinctness.

"At what time, on the day Mr. Benson was killed, did the lady call here?"

"The woman's gaze did not falter, but the pupils of her eyes dilated. "There was nobody here."

"Oh, yes, there was, Mrs. Platz," Vance's tone was assured. "What time did she call?"

"Nobody was here, I tell you," she persisted.

Vance lit a cigaret with interminable deliberation, his eyes resting steadily on hers. He smoked placidly until her gaze dropped. Then he stepped nearer to her, and said firmly:

"If you tell the truth no harm will come to you. But if you refuse any information you will find yourself in trouble. The withholding of evidence is a crime, y' know, and the law will show you no mercy."

He made a sly grimace at Markham, who was watching the proceedings with interest.

The woman now began to show signs of agitation. She drew in her elbows, and her breathing quickened.

"In God's name, I swear it!—there wasn't anybody here." A slight hoarseness gave evidence of her emotion.

"Let us not invoke the Deity," suggested Vance carelessly. "What time was the lady here?"

She set her lips stubbornly, and for a whole minute there was silence in the room. Vance smoked quietly, but Markham held his chair motionless between his thumb and forefinger in an attitude of expectancy.

Again Vance's impassive voice demanded: "What time was she here?"

"The woman clinched her hands with a spasmodic gesture, and thrust her head forward. "I tell you—I swear it—"

Vance made a peremptory movement of his hand, and smiled coldly. "It's no go," he told her. "You're acting stupidly. We're here to get the truth—and you're going to tell us."

"I've told you the truth," for the district attorney here to order you placed in custody?"

"I've told you the truth," she repeated. Vance crushed out his cigaret decisively in an ash-receiver on the table.

"Right-o, Mrs. Platz. Since you refuse to tell me about the young woman who was here that afternoon, I'm going to tell you about her."

His manner was easy and cynical, and the woman watched him suspiciously.

"Late in the afternoon of the day your employer was shot, the door bell rang. Perhaps you had been informed by Mr. Benson that he was expecting a caller, what? Anyhow, you answered the door and admitted a charming young lady."

"You showed her into this room and—what do you think, my dear madam!—she took that very chair on which you are resting so comfortably."

"He paused, and smiled tantalizingly. "Then," he continued, "you served tea to the young lady and Mr. Benson. After a bit she departed, and Mr. Benson went upstairs to dress for dinner. . . . Y' see, Mrs. Platz, I happen to know."

"He lit another cigaret. "Did you notice the young lady particularly? If not, I'll describe her to you. She was rather short-petite in the word. She had dark hair and dark eyes, and she was dressed quietly."

A change had come over the woman. Her eyes stared, her cheeks were now gray; and her breathing had become audible.

"Now, Mrs. Platz," demanded Vance sharply, "what have you to say?"

She drew a deep breath. "There wasn't anybody here," she said doggedly. There was something almost admirable in her obstinacy.

Vance considered a moment. Markham was about to speak, but evidently thought better of it, and sat watching the woman fixedly.

"Your attitude is understandable," Vance observed finally. "The young lady, of course, was well known to you, and you had a personal reason for not wanting it known she was here."

At these words she sat up straight, a look of terror in her face. "I never saw her before!" she cried; then stopped abruptly.

"You had never seen the young lady before—eh, what? . . . That's quite possible. But it's immaterial. She's a nice girl, though, I'm sure—even if she did have a dish of tea with your employer alone in his home."

"Did she tell you she was here?" The woman's voice was listless. The reaction to her tense obduracy had left her apathetic.

"Not exactly," Vance replied. "But it wasn't necessary; I knew without her informing me. . . . Just when did she arrive, Mrs. Platz?"

"About a half-hour after Mr. Benson got here from the office. She had at last given over all denials and evasions. "But he didn't expect her—that is, he didn't say anything to me about her coming; and he didn't order tea until after she came."

Markham thrust himself forward. "Why didn't you tell me she'd been here, when I asked you yesterday morning?"

The woman cast an uneasy glance about the room. "I rather fancy," Vance intervened pleasantly, "that Mrs. Platz was afraid you might unjustly suspect the young lady."

She grasped eagerly at his words. "Yes, sir—that was all. I was afraid you might think she—did it."

And she was such a quiet, sweet-looking girl. . . . That was the only reason, sir."

"Quite so," agreed Vance consolingly. "But tell me: did it not shock you to see such a quiet, sweet-looking young lady smoking cigars?"

Her apprehension gave way to astonishment. "Why—yes, sir, it did. . . . But she wasn't a bad girl—I could tell that. And most girls smoke nowadays. They don't think anything of it, like they used to."

"You're quite right," Vance assured her. "Still, young ladies really shouldn't throw their cigars in tiled, gas-log fireplaces, should they, now?"

The woman regarded him uncertainly; she suspected him of jesting. "Did she do that?" She leaned over and looked into the fireplace. "I didn't see any cigars there this morning."

"No, you wouldn't have," Vance informed her. "One of the district attorney's sleuths, d'ye see, cleaned it all up nicely for you yesterday."

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

If a woman you disliked was wearing a becoming hat, would you be willing to tell her so? This actor-gauging questions in the new game book of "I've Got Your Number" by Doris Webster and Mary Alden Hopkins.

We humans are such egotistic creatures that we are never so happy as when discovering things about ourselves—such as how much we should weigh, and what colors we should wear, and what our hand-writing means, and what vocation we are fitted for. The desire to know how much or how little we know explained the great vogue of the "Ask Me Another" books. Tiring of them a little, we grab for a book to tell us how good or bad, weak or strong, likeable or unlikeable we are, etc.

Do You Like Pink? Questions for men include, "Do you wake up despondent in the morning?" and "Do you think that women are out for all they can get?" Women receive "If you saw a woman slapping her child on the street would you interfere?" and "Do you like your friends' friends?"

Any one of us in the inner recesses of our closed chambers, could torture ourselves with such queries as "Would you give the one seat left in a life boat to an old woman?" "Do you peddle gossip for the sake of a good story?" "Do you prefer compliments on your looks to those on your brains?" etc., et al.

Two Birds Truant officers just can't budge Mrs. Dora Jones, 15, a bride who won't go to school because she's married, even if the law does say that all girls under 16 in Ohio must go to school. But bride Dora casually dips peaches into their cans when the truant officer calls and defies him to make any married women go to school.

In New Brunswick, N. J., they have a bride who wants to go to school but they won't let her because of "her undesirable influence on young girls."

Here you have a bride who, having got her man, sees no reason why she needs more education. Mrs. Dora Jones, a bride who won't let her husband have her education to keep him. Funny, funny human beings we!

Why Use Dead One? Two years ago Mrs. Helen Gardner, famous feminist, artist and lecturer, died, willing her brain to the scientists of Cornell University for the purpose of really discovering whether a woman's brain equalled that of a man's.

Cornell gave its report a few days ago. The report said that Mrs. Gardner has presented abundant evidence that the brain of a woman is not inferior to that of a man of equal rank. And why did they need to dissect a dead brain to find that out?

Miss American's The title "Miss American" has meant little to the seven girls who have won it since the custom started in 1921. This, according to a careful investigation by the United Press, which reports all seven came from before they were signalled out as "America's Most Beautiful Girl." Thousand-dollar-a-week vaudeville tours dwindle into nothing when managers, press agents, secretaries, and hair-dressing corps are paid. 'tis the explanation. It might mean, too, that there is something in the "beautiful but dumb adage" and that faces do not capitalize so well as brains.

Greta Garbo Loves HER "SWEDISH SALAD"

"Show me the books a man likes and I will tell you what kind of a man he is," is an old saw. But just as true is "Tell me your favorite dish and I will tell you your nationality." Little, fair, little Greta Garbo, screendom's most wistful star, runs true to type in this respect. Her favorite dish is a salad her mother taught her to make, not so many years ago, in far away Sweden. Greta still makes it herself in her California bungalow. "It uses up just about everything you have in your ice box—and, besides, it's so good," is her own description of her "Swedish Salad." This is her recipe:

- 4 ozs. cold roast beef chopped;
- 4 ozs. chopped, cold boiled potatoes;
- 4 ozs. chopped apples;
- 4 ozs. diced pickled herring;
- 3 chopped anchovies;
- 1 tablespoon chopped

FAULTY STRUCTURE ONE CAUSE OF NOSE BLEED BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygienic the Health Magazine

Bleeding from the nose is a fairly frequent condition. It occurs not only as the result of a direct blow, but also from a variety of causes associated with its structure.

Sometimes inflammation may attack the vessels, sometimes there may be varicose veins in the nose that will burst; sometimes a little ulceration develops a crust and violent blowing or picking at the crust results in hemorrhage.

Stockings Of Silk—Why? By Olive Roberts Barton

Rafael Sabatini writes: "The presentation to Queen Elizabeth of a pair of silk stockings—the first she ever possessed—was so important an event in her domestic history that a full account of the transaction is to be found in Stowe." He adds later that it is quite possible to be happy in cotton stockings.

Minnie Barton, founder of the open-door "prison" for girls in Los Angeles, thinks not. "Love of finery and personal adornment undoubtedly still are the main cause of the majority of feminine missteps," says she.

Queen Elizabeth had three thousand dresses in her wardrobe when she died, which attests to her feminine love of finery, and the fact that in her day silk stockings simply were unknown.

If Queen Elizabeth lived now we know very well that the Mistress of the Wardrobe would be instructed to buy a hundred pairs of each and every shade and weight of silk hosiery on the market, and I believe the standard color-card in most stocking manufacturers' ads now show about two hundred different tints. Do your own multiplying.

Behind all this matter of extravagance lies a certain textile controversy on which the public is enlightened. We hear that silk is cheaper than cotton. We hear that all is not silk that glitters. There are silk substitutes, as we know. We hear a lot of reasons for wearing silk stockings aside from the one of preference. But two things I wish to assert before my story is ended. You can't blame the self-supporting girl for wearing silk or at least what looks like silk stockings. She would be as conspicuous in twenty inches of cotton stocking as she would be with one ear. Why reform or national extravagance? Another thing—it is just as possible to be happy today in cotton, wool, or "stuff" stockings as it was twenty years ago, if all of us line up.

Personally I think silk stockings the silliest habit in the world and the most extravagant. A run may occur in an hour and your money is gone. Yet I wear them and my daughters wear them because if we didn't we'd be "queer." I am making a wager with myself that half the girls we know, who must make every nickel count, are wishing that silk stockings were in Guinea. And that some society leader would make leg-painting a national sport, and that without expense, and she could use the price of a new pair for a good square meal.

Daring Baseball Drubbed Pirates Yesterday 6 To 2

"LET'S MAKE IT FOUR STRAIGHT," IS YANKEES BATTLE CRY TODAY

Both Teams Reach New York To Prepare For Third Game—Pirates Not a Bit Discouraged.

By JAMES L. KILGALDEN.
Staff Correspondent.

New York, Oct. 7.—"Four straight" was the battle cry of the New York Yankees as they returned home today from Pittsburgh where they routed the Pirates in the annual classic since the Boston Braves won four consecutive games from the Philadelphia Athletics in 1914.

The idea of four straight is scorned by the Pirates. They are due to win, and they think they will win today when the two clubs resume hostilities in the Yankee Stadium where upwards of 60,000 are expected to view the struggle. "Don't count us out," said Manager Donie Bush. "We've been in tight spots before. I've got a game ball club with plenty of power, and I'm banking on them to show it."

The Pirates were a grim, determined aggregation when their special pulled into New York this morning. They realize their backs are to the wall, that they've got to win now or never. They had no excuses to offer over yesterday's convincing defeat. They were out-hit, out-pitched and out-fielded but not out-gamed. Gamesness did not enter the issue as the pitchers, Aldridge and Mike Cuyler, tossed the game away. They lost the first battle by errors at crucial stages. But so far they have hit almost as heavily, if not so opportunely, as the Yanks, having managed sixteen hits in two games as compared with seventeen registered by the New York club.

Meadows or Hill
Bush was undecided whether to start one of his spectacular pitchers, Lee Meadows or Carmen Hill, on the mound or trust the assignment to John Millis. Meadows and Hill are cagey veterans, a trifle old, but dependable, while Millis showed in his relief pitching Wednesday what he knew how to do in the main. He stopped them cold, allowing but one hit in four innings.

Manager Miller Huggins of the Yanks will pitch either Herb Pennock, his star stopper, or Wiley Moore, Pennock's backup, who is almost well and he is eager to get into the series.

What effect, if any, a change in scenery will have on the Pirates remains to be seen. They did not win in Pittsburgh, especially yesterday, when the fans booed Bush for selecting Earl Smith as a pinch hitter instead of using Kiki Cuyler.

"We Want Cuyler" was the cry of thousands of Pittsburgh fans who could not forget that it was Kiki's heavy hitting that won the World Series for Pittsburgh in 1925. Bush and Cuyler have been friendly since Bush benched Cuyler a month ago for failing to slide to second.

The defeat of Vic Aldridge was a body blow to the Pirates, as he was regarded as a great money pitcher. The Yanks took great liberties with his offerings. Babe Ruth went hitless, and rather disappointed the Pittsburgh fans who had expected he would hit at least one home run. The greatest kick they got out of Ruth was when he swung mightily and missed a third strike in the first inning and fell down when he had a chance to hit in the eighth with the bases loaded. The best the great man could do was to tap to the infield.

George Pipgras' pitching was one of the highlights of the series. The sturdy Minnesota right-hander baffled the Pirates with his fast ball which had a sharp jump to it. The Pirates were sharp on files all afternoon. The whole New York club had only five assists, which must be a record of some time. Pipgras is a coming star. He compiled a record of thirteen regular season and won four straight in September. He is at his best when under fire, and if the series goes a few games more he will be heard from again.

Ten special trains pulled into the Pennsylvania station this morning with baseball players, sports writers and fans. One special carried the Pirates, another the Yankees and a third newspapermen while the other two carried fans. The number of passengers was estimated at two thousand. Seventy extra sleeping cars were provided.

HORSEMEN EXCITED OVER "FIREGLOW"

Record-Breaking Time In Kentucky Futurity Rates Him Best Two-Year Old.

By JIMMY POWERS

New York, Oct. 8.—This is the story of a red chestnut colt, a splendid little animal named Fireglow, who ran his heart out one sunny afternoon a few weeks ago at the Kentucky Futurity.

This sturdy young fellow raced the most sensational contest ever seen in a decade, set a new world record of 2:04 to win the 35th renewal of the Bluegrass State's annual classic, and is now rated as the greatest living two-year-old.

In the excitement of the big fight and closing season golf tournaments the youngster's epochal feat was almost buried. But wherever the harness sport flourishes, on the tracks of the big circuit or the dusty half-mile ovals of the county fairs, there are wise old horsemen who gather in gossipy knots to sing his course.

"Few know the real story behind that little streak of red lightning," Walter Cox confided to this writer. Cox handled the baby trotter in the race that veterans say has no comparison for sheer thrills from start to record-breaking finish.

"There is nothing finer in God's world than a real thoroughbred and, believe me, Fireglow has class. He is by San Francisco, 2:14 1/2, dam Worthy Spirit 2:11 1/2, a worthy sire."

"Now that he is a world's champion his past is of interest. He was sold to the late John P. Crozer of farm last December, and contrary to the custom of handling champion colt trotters, he had never been hit before his sale. He brought $6500. Crozer held him for a month and I bought him in for $14,000. The best of the meeting. He was then sold for $10,000 to William H. Bradford with the agreement that I was to train and manage him."

"The stable was shipped to Toledo and his best work there was 2:12; then to Detroit where he made a mile in 2:11 and finally he raced the great Scotland at Kalamazoo in 2:06 1/2."

"Few rated him much of a chance against the real topnotchers chiefly because his father, San Francisco, was 'common folk.' He was an ordinary money creator with a streak of fire in his veins and a red chestnut son could FIGHT!"

"Came the Kentucky Futurity and Fireglow stepped out, his coat shining, his head high, his eyes aflame. All set to battle the crack stars, Scotland, 2:05 1/4; Spencer, 2:05 1/2 and Lee Tide, 2:05."

"Spencer, splendid and reliable colt, was the favorite. Off we went! The stable does not like to trail, especially if the dirt strikes him in the face so Murphy moved him up in the lead, trotting all the way in to win by a length in 2:05. But it was the second heat that packed all the thrills and really gave the championship. Off again! Spencer was pushed up with a break of speed. It was his driver's strategy to win, knowing he would not know it, too. He trotted back ever so proudly, his head high and his eyes imperiously ahead. The last heat was a set-up for him. He made it all by himself in 2:07."

And so that's the story of Fireglow, the game little chestnut whose father was just "common folk." Digging back into the records we find why horsemen are all excited over this two-year-old approached him. That was Ima Jay who ran the Transylvania back in 1917 in seven desperate heats to win by 2:04 1/4.

It took a great colt to crack that mark. Fireglow did it.

EXECUTION STAYED.
Springfield, Ill., Oct. 7.—Charlie Birger, member of one of southern Illinois' notorious outlaw gangs, today won the first step in his legal fight to save himself from the gallows when the Supreme Court granted his petition for a writ of error and supersedeas.

LET'S HOPE IT DOESN'T COME TO THIS

EVEN DOZEN

AL CORBETT

One Jeremiah Sachs, who does the ballyhooing for Al Corbett, the Cleveland featherweight, has the big horn working for his blond beauty again. It seems that Al has won his last 12 fights, including ones against Benny Gershe, Phil Zwick and Phil O'Dowd and Mr. Sachs thinks he's ready for bigger and better opponents.

College Captains

VERSAILLE, not only in athletics but also in other campus activities, is Bob MacPhail, captain of the Dartmouth eleven.

Bob MacPhail

MacPhail has earned letters for two seasons in football and also plays defense on the hockey team. He's one of the most important members of the dramatic club and one of the school's best speakers.

Remember the last who as a soph called signals for Dartmouth's great team in 1925? Well, that's MacPhail.

He played halfback last year. One of the best backs in the east last season, MacPhail, should Dartmouth have a powerful team this year, may find himself in line for All-American honors. The team, during the first weeks of September, showed promise of average strength.

WAR RUMBLINGS.
Vienna, Oct. 7.—A sharp note, demanding that Bulgaria curb the activities of the Macedonian irregulars along the Serbian frontier, will be sent to the Jugo-Slavian government to Sofia within 24 hours, according to word from Belgrade today.

GOGGLES MAY BLIND YANKS IN THIRD GAME OF SERIES

Bush Plans to Use Hill or Meadows Today—Yanks Want a Clean Sweep.

By LES CONKLIN

New York, Oct. 7.—Manager Donie Bush of the pulverized Pirates probably will play one of his last two cards today in a desperate attempt to prevent the swaggering Yankees from turning the Yankee Stadium into a slaughter house. Proceeding on the theory that four eyes are better than two, Bush plans to send one of his bespectacled twins, Carmen Hill and Lee Meadows, to the mound to keep the Yanks from winning their third straight victory of the World Series.

Bush hopes that the slugging New Yorkers, facing this battery of lenses in the next two days, will curl up and die. If the sun is shining brightly and is located at the proper spot in the heavens, its rays may be reflected from the pitcher's glasses into the eyes of the Yankee batsmen with a blinding glare.

Ready For Emergencies
Fearing underhand work on the part of the Yankees, Pittsburgh's politician-in-chief is prepared for any emergency. He will bring along a pair of goggles today and Mr. Sachs thinks he's ready for bigger and better opponents.

Sure of Clean Sweep
The Yankees, however, are confident of making a clean sweep. "Just a breeze for today and," was the comment of Babe Ruth & Co.

as they hopped off the rattle from Pittsburgh this morning.

The fragrant odor of World Series kale is most pleasing to the Huggens, and they want to make sure of getting the winner's share, approximately $6,000 apiece, in fifty dollars that has been predicted by weather prophets, and that extra $2,000 will be considerable coal and groceries during the off season.

Scene of Devastation
The Yanks left behind them a scene of devastation more appalling than anything seen in Pittsburgh since the massacre of Fort Pitt in pre-revolutionary days. Babe Ruth failed to get a hit in the second game but every other member of the team got a bingle with the exception of Bengough.

Meanwhile George Pipgras, the baby of the New York pitching staff, spiked the Pirate guns which had ruined the veteran Hoyt in the first game. Vic Aldridge, his opponent, was like the little girl in the nursery rhyme. When he was good, he was very good, but when he was bad, he was terrible. Victor was kayoed in the eighth.

Most of the thrills for Pittsburgh fans were crowded into the first inning. To begin with, the mighty Ruth smote the atmosphere three times in rapid succession. The crowd went wild. Then Spron Waner laced another demonstration by starting a triple along the left field foul line. He scored on Barnhart's sacrifice fly.

Barnhart, by the way, has been no slouch. Pooch's batting average of .375 in 100 games today and the second guessers who are howling that he should be replaced by Kiki Cuyler.

Cuyler, once an idol, now is idle. But no one has noticed him bursting into tears over his predicament. He grins continually in practice, and shows more pep than anybody in the Pirate crew.

Kiki either doesn't care or he is a great actor.

POP BOTTLE RIOT CAUSES A FORFEIT

Middletown Fears Manchester Cubs Will Not Appear So Fifty Bucks Is Put Up By Ventrillo.

By Ventrillo.

Manager Peter Ventrillo of the Cubs announced last night that he had been forced to post a forfeit of fifty dollars that his football eleven would appear in Middletown Sunday for its scheduled game with the Sons of Italy.

The reason is because the Middletown team feared Manchester might back out at the last minute because of what happened last year when the Cubs played there and a riot broke loose during which several players were injured when struck by pop bottles.

However, neither Manager Ventrillo or Coach Jack Dwyer anticpate any repetition of last year's outbreak and look forward to a cleanly played game with the Cubs bringing home the bacon.

DEVELOPING STADIUM MAY END SOCCER HERE

While no definite arrangements have been made as yet, it is believed that the Hartford Soccer club and the Manchester High school will be able to use McKee street baseball stadium this fall. Edward J. Holl, who purchased the property in a thirty acre tract from Cheney Brothers yesterday, will eventually develop the site, which means its passing as a sporting arena.

When questioned yesterday as to whether or not the Hartford Soccer club would be allowed to continue to use the field, Mr. Holl said: "I will not tie myself to any promises. It is purely a business matter with me and I'm not going to be any philanthropist. However, I will give them every consideration."

The soccer club has been renting the field for $25 a week from Cheney Brothers as compared to the $400 they were paying for the Hartford Velodrome. But even with the cheap rental, the Hartford owners are losing heavily on every home game. The attendance has not been what the club deserves but the owners are hoping that it will pick up. The coming of American League soccer to Manchester is the biggest sporting event Manchester has had in the last decade. In all probability the buying of the stadium means the eventual end of big league soccer here. However, this season may be finished here.

Not so if you are willing to take the word of Brother Paul who says, "Lloyd is a better ball player than am." You can take that or leave it.

The striking of bells on shipboard dates from the time of the half-hour sand glass. The bell was struck each time the glass was turned.

H. S. Counts Its Chicks Before They Are Hatched

If Manchester High is as impressive in its football game against Bristol High over at the McKee street baseball stadium tomorrow afternoon as it was in the football rally at the High school assembly hall yesterday when the "remains" of the Bell City team were "laid to rest" in a unique mock funeral, our schoolboys should come through with a victory.

However, it must be remembered that Bristol has a strong eleven; one that has won its first two games with plenty to spare. With the veteran Hugret in the backfield, the Bell City crew has built up a powerful offense. Coach Tommy Kelley said today that Manchester would take the field with practicaly the same lineup that bowed before West Hartford High last Saturday by a 26 to 9 score.

PITCHING PLUS POWER WON FOR YANKEES, EVANS SAYS

Billy Evans Says

WANER BOYS INTERESTING

Unquestionably the two most interesting players in the National League this year are the Waner brothers of Pittsburgh. I have seen Paul Waner in action a number of times and he is a well-rounded player. In the only game in which I saw Lloyd in action, he had a very ordinary day, failed to hit and gamed up one of his two fielding chances at first base. I saw Paul at his best. In this connection I recall that a fan from northern Michigan once said to me. Living several hundred miles from Detroit, he saw Cobb play perhaps a dozen times during his connection with the Tigers. In fanning with him one day, I made the remark that Cobb was the greatest player, all things considered, I have ever seen in action.

"I guess all you say about Cobb is true, but I can't vouch for it," he replied. "I get to see him in action about once a year; I have seen him play about a dozen games and yet I have never seen him make a basehit."

Praise for Both Boys
Interested to know what the National League players thought of the famous Waner brothers, I have never failed to seek information on that subject whenever I bumped into a National League club during the summer.

"Paul Waner is a wonder," would invariably be the response from every player I talked with. He does everything well. Almost single-handedly he has kept the Pirates in the race for the last two years.

When I mentioned the younger brother, Lloyd, the answer would usually be along these lines: "The kid has had a sensation this year. You wonder how he keeps going with his slight physique. He's a marvel if he can keep it up."

While the National League players do not make any definite statements on the subject of the younger Waner, they give you the impression that they have their doubts about his ability to continue his mad race.

When an opposing team stopped the Waner boys this year, the Pirates were not nearly so hard to beat. That is the best test of their real worth.

First Case of Kind
I doubt if ever in the history of baseball have two brothers enjoyed such remarkable success as the Waners over the same period.

In a batting way, Paul Waner was the first National League player to make 200 hits. Lloyd Waner reached that mark a few days later. As far as I can learn, he is the first player to reach the double century in base hits in the first year as a major leaguer.

Paul Waner, in his second year in the big show, is an outstanding star, while Lloyd, to win a berth as a regular, has supplanted so clever a player as "Kiki" Cuyler, a few years ago as great an idol in Pittsburgh as Babe Ruth is in New York.

Rival National League teams have no doubts about Paul's extraordinary ability yet there seems to be much skepticism as to Lloyd's strength and weakness of the Pirates' batters, he fed curves to those who liked speed and speed to those who preferred hooks.

This series has produced one of the most extraordinary happenings in the history of the World Series to my way of thinking. Two pitchers in their first year as regulars, have been outstanding.

I can recall no other instance where a rookie pitcher has been sent into the first game of a series to save the pitching ace of one of the teams. Neither can I recall when a first year regular has been named as the pitching selection in the second clash.

When Miller Huggins called on Wiley Moore to save Walter Hoyt and then picked George Pipgras to start the second game, he set baseball precedent. True Pipgras has been with the Yanks for several years, but not until this season has he been booked as a regular.

"The Pirates staggered into a pennant and they are now staggering out of a world series," is the way a National League manager characterized the play of the Pittsburgh Club in the first two games. "That may be rather unkind. The Yanks are now riding with Herb Pennock, south paw ace and undefeated world series pitcher in the reserve.

Pittsburgh Staggered Into Pennant and Now Is Staggering Out of Title Chance; Pennock In Reserve For Yanks.

By BILLY EVANS

Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 7.—Pitching plus power decided the second game of the World Series. The Yankees possessed both and won about as they pleased.

Lady Luck stood out in the New York lineup in the opener, the breaks decided the issue. Miller Huggins, feeling the fair dame might be missing in the second clash, decided it was time for his sluggers to turn loose their guns and scuttle the Pirates' ship. They obeyed their might manager in a very convincing manner.

The Yankees behind well might perfect pitching by Pipgras, played stylish, smart baseball. The Pirates were sluggish, mentally and physically.

Despite the fact Pittsburgh got away to a one run lead in the first session, New York elected to play a slashing game rather than safety first. Such a system soon overcame the early margin of the Pirates and gave New York three runs in the third, eventually enough to win.

Miller Huggins revealed his style of play in the big third. Combs opened with a single. Would Huggins play for a run, ordering Koenig to sacrifice putting it up to Gehrig and Ruth to over the count?

It took only one ball to tell the story, for Koenig on a hit and run play singled sharply to center field. The ball eluded Lloyd Waner. Combs scoring, Koenig coming up at third. A terrific play was made by Ruth that backed Lloyd Waner against the stands to make the catch, a double by Gehrig and a single by Bob Meusel, gave the Yanks three runs and the old ball game.

Daring baseball rather than the stereotyped one run strategy, the Pils features World Series games, seemed to take the fight out of the Pirates early in the game.

In the eighth, when the Yankees added three more runs to sew the game up, Huggins varied his style and again got good results. Meusel opened this inning with a base hit, the Yankees leading 3-1 at the time. Proper baseball called for the Yanks to play for a run in an attempt to strengthen that lead.

Lazzeri's one run strategy, the first pitch fouled it off. As he dried his perspiring hands on his uniform, there came glances in the direction of the New York bench. A signal from Huggins called for a shift of style. On the next pitch, as the Pirates' infield dashed in expecting a bunt bat, Lazzeri hit to right just out of the reach of any Pittsburgh player.

With runners on first and third, New York was again in a big scoring position. Two bases on balls, a wild pitch, a hit by pitcher and a single followed, three runs resulting. The Pirates had taken a long count.

Were it not for a lucky break that Pittsburgh had in the eighth on a poorly executed play, there is no telling how many runs the Yanks would have made. With two runs, no one out and Lazzeri on second, Dugan laid down a perfect bunt. With no chance for a play at third, Gehrig tried to bunt. Lazzeri beat the play a yard but overslid and was touched out. That break spoiled what might have been a Pirate debacle but it was bad enough.

Pipgras pitched a beautiful ball game. The possessor of a great fast ball, no pitcher in the American League has a better one, and a deceptive curve, he pitched smartly. Apparently well informed as to the strength and weakness of the Pirates' batters, he fed curves to those who liked speed and speed to those who preferred hooks.

This series has produced one of the most extraordinary happenings in the history of the World Series to my way of thinking. Two pitchers in their first year as regulars, have been outstanding.

MORE WEDDINGS THAN DIVORCES BY TEN TO ONE

Marriages Still Hold a Big Lead Over Legal Separations.

Washington.—Despite America's rapidly increasing divorce rate and the general instability of matrimonial bonds, possibly due to the greater pressure under which modern life is lived, marriages still outnumber the legal separations by the rate of more than ten to one, according to the United States Bureau of the Census.

Careful analysis of marriage records discloses in proportion to population the greatest number of weddings occur in the east and west central states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.

The South Atlantic group also is made up of states of many marriages with a rate of more than 11 to the 1,000 population. In this section the individual state record for marriages in 1926 was shattered by Florida where 21.6 out of every 1,000 were married.

Conservative New England The more conservative New England states have the lowest marriage rate with about 7.9 to the 1,000 population, while the Middle Atlantic, comprising New York, Pennsylvania and other industrial states has a rate of about 8.6.

Gretna Greens These "Gretna Greens" usually are confined to one or to a few counties of the particular state.

Cecil County, Maryland, takes the county record with 203 marriages per 1,000 population.

The following counties are given as the places of more runaway marriages than all the rest of the United States combined:

California—Orange County. Colorado—Arapahoe, Jefferson and Sedgwick counties. Florida—Broward county. Georgia—Charlton, Quitman and Walker counties. Idaho—Kootenai county. Illinois—Lake and Monroe counties. Indiana—Clark county. Iowa—Mills county. Kansas—Johnson county. Kentucky—Boyd, Campbell and Kenton counties. Louisiana—St. Bernard Parish. Maryland—Cecil, Garrett and Howard counties. Michigan—Menominee and Monroe counties. Missouri—Clay, Newton and St. Charles counties. Nebraska—Sarge county. New Mexico—Hidalgo county. Ohio—Lawrence county. South Dakota—Union county. Tennessee—Sullivan county. Texas—Comal, Lamb, Farmer and Rockwall counties. Utah—Davis county. Virginia—Greensville, Alexandria and Danville counties. Washington—Clark, Cowlitz and Skamania county. West Virginia—Brooke county.

The MOVIE PEOPLE

BY DAN THOMAS Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 7.—From newsboy to office boy isn't a very big step. But Harold "Sandy" Colvin thinks it is almost a record breaking jump.

"Sandy" was a newsboy in Albuquerque, N. M. Many of his papers were sold to passengers of transcontinental trains which stopped there. And he yelled unusually loud when he knew film notables were aboard a train.

The young newsie was a great movie fan and knew most of Hollywood's leading citizens by sight. When they called to him, he always used their names in his replies. As a result, "Sandy" probably is acquainted with more celluloid stars than any other boy in the world, Jackie Coogan excepted.

It was this acquaintanceship that resulted in his giving up his paper job to go to work in a movie studio as office boy for Edwin Carewe. Carewe had talked to the boy many times in Albuquerque and on his last trip from the east offered him the job. "Sandy" arrived here a few days ago and already is talking about "the movie folk."

The kid is loyal—which is saying a lot in this village of make-believe—and he really is interested in his work.

"One of these days I'll be a director," he confided to me.

The Fox studios seem to be getting a corner on the market for young leading men prospects. They signed Charles Farrell when he was unknown and in one year he proved to be a sensation. A few months ago Director Howard Hawks discovered Nick Stuart holding down a script boy's job, liked his looks and gave him a leading role in "Cradle Snatchers". His work was so good that Fox officials are grooming him for stardom in 1928.

A promising star who has at last "crashed through" is Helene Costello. Helene and her famous sister, Dolores, started working at Warner Brothers about the same time. For a while it looked as if Dolores would have to carry the family name upon her shoulders. But Helene is hitting her stride now. She was borrowed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the feminine lead in "In Old Kentucky." Helene was handicapped for a time by an over-supply of ego. With the vanishing of that trait, her success is starting.

A letter from Rosetta Duncan, now in New York, says that she has gone back to blackface again. When the Duncan sisters finished filming "Topsy and Eva," Rosetta abandoned her "Topsy" characterization while making personal appearances with the picture. But the fans wouldn't stand for it. Apparently they like the burnt cork effect.

OIL SCANDALS WILL BE AIRED IN NEW TRIAL

Sinclair and Fall Case to Open on October 17 at Washington.

Washington.—The stage is being set to try the second big conspiracy case arising out of the naval oil reserve scandals.

It is the trial of Harry F. Sinclair, oil man, and ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall. It opens on October 17 before Justice Frederick L. Siddons in District of Columbia criminal court No. 2. The trial was postponed from last spring at the request of government counsel who are seeking the return of important witnesses in Europe. No further delays are anticipated.

The first conspiracy trial resulted in a defeat for the government when a jury here found Fall and Edward L. Doherty, Sr., not guilty of defrauding the government in the leasing of the Elk Hills, California, reserve.

Government Won The government, however, won the civil suit when the Supreme court held that the lease was "tainted with corruption" and ordered the return of the property.

Sinclair and Fall are charged with conspiracy in leasing the Teapot Dome, Wyoming, naval oil reserve. It is alleged that the lease was the outcome of a conspiracy to favor Sinclair's bid, and that Fall obtained from Sinclair on May 8, 1922 Liberty bonds worth $230,500. The bonds were passed from a "dummy" trading company, set up in Canada, the indictment relates.

Two oil men H. M. Blackmer and James E. O'Neil, who fled to Europe, are held by the government to be key witnesses in tracing the bond transaction. A subpoena has been served on Blackmer but O'Neil has not been located by American agents abroad. Under the new Walsh Act, the government can confiscate property up to $100,000 of Americans who refuse to return from abroad to testify. Government counsel threaten to invoke this act against the missing men.

See Spectacular Trial A spectacular trial is anticipated. Cabinet members, past and present, high government officials, and leaders in the oil industry are included in the 78 subpoenas issued by the government.

Government counsel are Atlee Pomerene, ex-Senator from Ohio, and Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia, specially appointed by the President to handle the oil cases. Counsel for Fall and Sinclair include Martin W. Littleton of New York, George P. Hoover of Washington, William E. Leahy and Mark B. Thompson. Thompson defended Fall in the Doherty trial.

A conviction for contempt of the Senate is against Sinclair for refusal to answer committee questions in the Teapot Dome inquiry. He has appealed.

Bribery indictments against Fall, Doherty and E. L. Doherty, Jr., are pending and will be tried as soon as the Fall-Sinclair trial is completed.

Mrs. Louise Blume has returned from a visit in Cambridge, Mass., where she was the guest of Mrs. Alice F. Thompson at the John Harvard apartment. Mrs. Thompson was a resident of Hebron several years ago. Her son Blair who also lived here is now living in Dayton, Ohio. Mrs. Blume also visited in Newton, Waterbury and Boston, visiting Harvard College. Mrs. Thompson returned home with her and will be her guest here for a short time.

Mrs. Ina Pratt has closed her Hebron place and returned to Waterbury to spend the winter with her daughter Mrs. Earl Cross.

Miss Kathryn Cahoon, teacher at the Central primary room is spending the week at Stonington as the school is closed by order of the local board of health. Mr. Sterry of the grammar room is putting in his time helping Edmund Horton with his solo filling. The schools will open next Monday unless there are other orders.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen H. Sterry entertained over the week-end Mrs. Sterry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Hull, also her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Hull, all of Ridgefield.

Plans belonging to the estate of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Birdsey have been brought from her former home in Meriden and stored here.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Hewitt spent several days at their Hebron home the first of the week.

The trees, six or more, on the south side of Hebron Green, which were cut in the night by unknown parties, are being patched up with tar and braced with iron and it is thought they will be none the worse for the cuts which were inflicted on them. In the opinion of many, however, these trees will not long endure owing to the nearness of the new road which cuts close to their roots. Some think a better effort would be produced if the trees in question were wholly removed as the line gives an uneven aspect and the trees are of odd shapes and sizes and not particularly attractive.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Tennant of Leete's Island was a recent guest at the home of Mrs. Leon G. Rathbone and Judge Rathbone.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Crandall of Williamantic visited friends in Anston and vicinity recently. Miss Florence E. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Smith of this place, and principal of the Seymour school in West Hartford is undertaking the task of enrolling the 600 or more pupils of the school. She is doing this in order to become better acquainted with her pupils and their home surroundings. She is also chairman of the parent-teachers' association and the Connecticut State Teachers' association.

U. S. COMPANIES FIGHT WORLD ORGANIZATION OF WIRES AND RADIO

Washington.—American communication companies will vigorously oppose amalgamation of world radio and wire conventions at the forthcoming sessions of the International Radiotelegraph Conference to assemble here October 4.

This was made clear in presentation by representatives of the American radio wire and cable companies to the American delegation considering American proposals to be submitted to the International conference.

The American companies take the position that private companies should be free to make their own management regulations and should be free to make such agreements with other operating companies or government administrations as they desire.

In any international arrangement amalgamating telegraph and radio control the United States should stay outside, Col. Manton Davis, spokesman for the Radio Corporation of America, declared.

GOV. AL SMITH IS "FINGER PRINTED"

Albany, N. Y.—Governor Al Smith has a long habit of breaking records and he has just added another to his long list.

The Chief Executive has been fingerprinted.

And the finger prints are on record in the state prison department. Here is how it happened.

The Governor was going through the Capitol when he came upon a booth where the state prison department were getting finger prints ready for exhibition at the State Fair. The Governor stopped to look things over and before he knew it someone suggested he be fingerprinted.

Smiling, the Governor consented. However, he remarked: "What am I charged with?"

"With being a good Governor," replied Miss Clara L. Parsons, who has charge of the records in the prison department.

Afterward it was explained that several of the other state officials had had their finger prints taken to be filed in the prison department.

It was explained by officials of the department, however, that the records of the officials were entirely separated from other prison records.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS ON ANNUAL CHASE

"Hares" and "Hounds" Swarm Over Countryside In Own Special Stunt.

Today is a red letter day at the High School insofar as the girl students are concerned. It is the day they have looked forward to with eager anticipation, for the annual "hare and hound" chase is taking place this afternoon. More than 300 girls, clad in knickers or bloomers, left the school this afternoon for unknown destinations. They were the "hares". The "hounds" had left an hour earlier, leaving trails to follow. Where the "hares" would be, was a closely guarded secret this morning, but it was guessed that the four classes might possibly meet at the Bunce school. The individual winner will be the first "hound" to reach the rendezvous and winning class will be the first to check in all its members. It was expected that it would take about two hours to cover the trail. The "hares" left at 1:45 and the "hounds" were hot-footing it over the trails an hour later. The Junior's trail led east, the Senior's west, the Freshmen's south and the Sophomore's north. Orders for all sorts of stunts were left by the "hares" and each group was accompanied by teachers to see that they were carried out.

BERLIN BANKERS TO FINANCE BIG SOVIET PROJECT

Lena Goldfields After German Money as British Withdraw Capital.

Berlin.—That the Lena Goldfields, largest foreign concession in the Soviet Union, and the last English concession of any importance left in Russia, is about to give up its English nationality, is reported by the Deutsche Handels Dienst.

Withdrawal of English capital from the Lena Goldfields would indicate in the opinion of German observers, that the entire English banking world had placed itself squarely on the side of the conservative cabinet leaders who brought about the break with Russia and have insisted that diplomatic relations should not be resumed until the Bolsheviks show a change of heart.

German Bankers Active
German bankers, on the other hand, have been quick to take advantage of the field left open to them by the political hostility of the British to the Soviets. Negotiations are said to be under way now between members of the board of directors of the Lena Goldfields and German capitalists, while similar negotiations have already been reported from France. One of the objects of the negotiations is said to be the completion of a contract for the Lena Goldfields to deliver gold to the Reichsbank, to the Bank of France and to the State Bank of Poland.

Although the management of the Lena Goldfields carefully discourages any publicity over their difficulties in Soviet Russia, it is well known to persons familiar with conditions in Moscow that the general director of the company was nearly driving to desperation by the obstacles which the government put in the way of his concession.

Employees Arrested
The arrest of his confidential employees was a daily hazard. One of his office clerks was taken from the Moscow office by agents of the G. P. U. under the very nose of the manager. His superintendents of labor at the fields on the Lena river were similarly persecuted. Labor disputes referred to Soviet courts were invariably settled in favor of the complaining workmen.

Although these conditions are the ordinary lot of the foreign concessionaire in the Soviet Union, the fact that the Lena Goldfields was an English concern was believed to have been an aggravating circumstance in view of the intense disfavor with which any English undertaking is regarded in Russia.

"TEMPEST IN TEAPOT"

Washington, Oct. 7.—The controversy kicked up by Assistant Secretary of Treasury Lowman's routine customs order increasing duties on certain French imports has been settled so far as the treasury and state departments are concerned.

The treasury declared today that a full explanation has been given to Secretary of State Kellogg, who is satisfied that the incident will have no unfavorable effects in the tariff dispute with France.

Treasury officials described the controversy as "a tempest in a teapot."

GARDEN CLUB MEETING NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

The Manchester Garden club will hold its annual meeting at the School street Rec at 8 o'clock next Monday evening. It is hoped that all members will plan to attend as the annual election of officers will take place.

The session following the busi-ness meeting should prove inter-esting, as the members who re-ceived bulbs during the year as at-tendance prizes are expected to tell just what luck they have had in planting them.

"For goodness sake, take that ad out of the paper." Just as The Herald office on Bissell street opened this morning the foregoing cry of distress was raised. The classified advertisement had done its work. A short time after The Herald had appeared on the street.

George Prentiss, who is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Prentiss of South Main street, had planned to return to his home in Sacramento. He booked passage by boat and train, but found that he would like to stay here longer than he had originally planned.

He advertised the ticket for sale in yesterday's Herald and in no time at all the ticket was sold. He could have sold many more tickets if he had had them at the same price.

However, all milk surveyed by Manchester dealers at the present time comes from tuberculin tested cows, whether it is sold in the raw state or pasteurized. The ordinance was submitted to the Board of Selectmen by Dr. D. C. Moore, head of the board of health but the selectmen have been awaiting a hearing of the public health council which in turn applied for an option to the Attorney General's office.

The result of the application is the opinion given by the deputy attorney-general.

Mr. Averill notes that the ordinance proposed in this town, as well as similar ordinances in other towns throughout the state, provide for prohibition of the sale of milk from cows which are not tuberculin tested. He says that there is no such provision in the state law that for towns to make such regulations would be usurping the powers of the legislature.

Mr. Averill mentions Manches-ter specifically in his opinion, say- ing that municipal legislation by boards which in this town would be the Board of Selectmen, have no general right to regulate the sale of milk, that no such right has been expressly granted to the Manchester board of health, and, therefore, has no more power in the matter than a town health officer.

RULING MAY KILL LOCAL MILK LAW

State Law Officer Declares Towns Can't Go Further Than State Statutes.

An ordinance submitted to the Board of Selectmen by the Board of Health of this town, which provided that all milk entering Manchester for consumption must be the product of tuberculin tested cows, will be null and void if an opinion given out yesterday by Ernest L. Averill, assistant attorney-general to Stanley H. Osborn, state health commissioner, is upheld by the courts.

Mr. Averill in his opinion says that a municipal health depart-ment has no power to go further than the state of Connecticut in regulating the sale of milk. He holds that the state laws covering the sale of milk are adequate. He further holds that legislation by both the town and state would constitute double jeopardy.

"State Law Adequate" He concludes that the state has made "adequate" provision to protect the health of its citizens and that any further legislation by a town or city is overstepping its au-thority.

However, all milk surveyed by Manchester dealers at the present time comes from tuberculin tested cows, whether it is sold in the raw state or pasteurized. ROBITUARY

FUNERAL OF FRANCIS OBRATITS

More than 200 friends and relatives attended the funeral service of Francis Obratits of Union street at St. Bridget's church at the north end at 9 o'clock this morning. It was one of the most largely at-tended funerals held at the church in months. More than twenty auto-mobles were in the funeral cortege that went to the St. Bridget's cem-tery where Rev. Father C. T. Mc-Cann, pastor of the church, read the committal prayers. There were many floral tributes at the grave.

At the church, where a solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Father McCann, Mrs. William Shaug, "Ave Maria" at the offertory and "Some Sweet Day" as the body was being borne from the church. Mr. Obratits who was well known here for many years, died at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning. He was about sixty years old and is survived by three daughters and four sons and five grandchildren.

FUNERAL OF HENRY G. BAXTER

The funeral of Henry G. Baxter of Oakland street who died at the Manchester Memorial hospital yester-day morning from complications of disease will be held from Mark Holmes' funeral parlor on North Main street Sunday after-noon at 2:30. Burial will be in the Buckland cemetery.

L. W. CASE IS HEAD OF HIGHLAND CLUB

Lawrence W. Case was re-elected president at the annual meeting of the Highland Park Community club last night. A program of educational moving pictures, furnished by the Hartford County Y. M. C. A. was shown, and tenor solos were rendered by Elmer Thielen, secretary of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A.

Other officers are the following: Fitch Barber, vice president; Robert Purinton, secretary, and treasurer; Mrs. J. N. Viot, chairman of social committee; George Nichols, chairman of educational committee; James Nichols, Jr., chairman of recreation committee; William Risley, chairman of house committee; Mrs. J. N. Viot, chair-man of welfare committee; Miss Elsie Lewis, chairman of entertain-ment committee. Mr. Barber and Mr. Purinton were re-elected.

Last night's meeting was very well attended, and the entertain-ment of the fall and winter activities at the club house.

Manchester Orange will hold a rummage sale at 687 Main street tomorrow afternoon and evening.

The Boy Scouts of Troop 1 will meet Monday evening at 7 o'clock at the Community club on North Main street.

Attendance at the shoot of the Manchester Rod and Gun Club dropped off yesterday because of the opening of the duck shooting season. Most of the members who would have attended neglected to either cut out ducks or listening to the World Series.

According to reports, fire-works may develop at the meeting of the Manchester Green Commu-nity Club at the Green school to-night. It is reported that an at-tempt will be made to prevent the re-election of the present executive board, which consists of five mem-bers. A vacancy at the secretarial position is also to be filled and a date committee will be named.

It is understood that one faction favors the re-election of the present executive board and that another opposes it with the view of getting control of the doings of the club. Just what will happen tonight, is entirely problematical, but it is being whispered that a lively session will take place.

VETER GOLF

A NIFTY LITTLE FOUR

Good puzzle workers will find this one pie. But there may be a catch in it. The solution, in par four, is printed on another page.

1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

A bank is an institution for the other fellow to keep your money in.

Girls who paint undoubtedly believe in the well known advertising slogan, "Save the surface and you save all." But do they?

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Poor Clowny Tynmite was scared, for very badly he had fared. The cannibals had captured him, which filled them with delight. When they had tied him to a tree they danced around and howled in glee. 'Twas quite enough to give most anyone an awful fright.

Inspector: "How did the prisoner get away? Constable: "He ran through a door marked 'No Admittance', so, of course I couldn't follow."

Lois: "I want you to understand that I'm not two-faced." Louise: "Certainly not, dear. If you had two, you certainly wouldn't wear that one."

If newspapers published all the news the demand for 44's would greatly exceed the supply.

Two salesmen were discussing the things which help a man to be successful.

First Salesman: "There's nothing like force of character. Now, Smith is sure to succeed. He has a will of his own."

His Friend: "But Brown has something better." "What's that?" "A will of his uncle's!"

Whither? "Where are you going my pretty maid?" "I'm going a-milking, sir," she said.

"What is your father, my pretty maid?" "My father's a farmer, sir," she said.

"What is your fortune, my pretty maid?" "My face is my fortune, sir," she said.

"Then I can't marry you, my pretty maid." "Nobody asked you, sir," she said.
