ASK SELECTMEN TO APPROVE OF SUNDAY MOVIES

Willard B. Rogers Makes Request For Local Theaters; Tabled; Judge Hyde Town Counsel.

The Board of Selectmen in their regular monthly meeting last night were asked to give their approval to Sunday afternoon motion picture shows in Manchester.

Local Option. Sunday afternoon motion pictures were left to the discretion of town governments by the last General Assembly.

Judge William S. Hyde was appointed town counsel last night by the Board of Selectmen.

The application for the renewal of a license for a gasoline filling station at Main and Hazel streets made by Frank Oakes the new proprietor of the stand was approved by the board.

The committee on the investigation of bonds for town officers is still seeking information from other towns and cities in the state and will report fully at a future meeting.

New Equipment. The recommendation of the highway committee that a new safety truck be purchased and present truck be exchanged was accepted and voted.

The Manchester Improvement club addressed a letter to the Selectmen asking that something be done to protect the corners near the Oakland street railroad crossing because of the danger of auto collisions there.

Special Town Meeting. A communication from Howell Cheney, chairman of the Ninth school district committee asking that certain items be placed in the call for the special town meeting soon to be held was placed on file.

INSANITY PLEA MAY SAVE LIFE OF GEO. REMUS

His Lawyer to Tour Country To Procure Evidence For Defense of "King of Bootleggers."

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 18.—Representatives of George Remus, bootlegger, facing trial for the slaying of Imogene - Holmes Remus, his wife, today were ready to start on a tour of the country for fragments of the story of Remus' wrongs at the hands of Imogene Remus and Franklin L. Dodge, Department of Justice agent.

It is this story, to be pieced together from depositions of sixty-six witnesses, that Charles H. Elston, Remus' attorney, says will prove the defense contention that Remus was crazed by the persecutions of his wife and her alleged lover when he fired the fatal shots.

The committee on the investigation of bonds for town officers is still seeking information from other towns and cities in the state and will report fully at a future meeting.

Ruth Elder Makes Hit With Viennese Actress

BY PEGGY WARD. I. N. S. Staff Correspondent Horta, Azores, Oct. 18.—From one daring woman unafraid of the perils of trans-Atlantic flying to a sister who has proven her lack of fear of the same circumstances—admirable!

Became Firm Friends. The Viennese actress, who has so far completed 300 miles of her flight from Germany to New York, and Miss Elder became firm friends as soon as Ruth arrived here and they have spent many hours together relating their air experiences.

RUTH IS ON WAY TO PARIS TODAY

To Sail to Lisbon and There Take An Airplane Flight To French Capital.

Horta, The Azores, Oct. 18.—Bidding farewell to this little port and to its inhabitants who fairly outdid themselves to welcome her in royal fashion, Miss Ruth Elder, with Captain George Haldeman, was on her way today to Paris.

The Portuguese mail steamer, Lima, carrying the two American flyers, pulled out of the harbor here at daybreak, bound for Lisbon. From there Miss Elder will continue to Paris.

Original Destination. When Ruth embarked, she set out for her original destination—Paris. Her sailing last night was another stage of her journey to France which started out so well when her plane, American Girl, rose out over Long Island, and which almost ended in tragedy when the plane fell into the Atlantic ocean.

No One Hurt—Damage Will Total $50,000, Officials Report.

Stuebenville, Ohio, Oct. 18.—A dynamite explosion of undetermined origin caused damage estimated at between $25,000 and $50,000 to a mine owned by the United States Coal Company at Bradley, eighteen miles south of this city, according to word reaching the sheriff's office here today.

FIRE IN STAMFORD

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 18.—The third serious fire within a year today swept the Glenbrook warehouse of the Davis-Scoble Co., doing damage estimated at upward of $6,000. Starting in a shipment of baled hay, the fire destroyed one section of the warehouse, wiping out all the hay and grain and badly damaged another section.

Box Filled After a Day and a Half of Examination of Veniremen—Ages of Jury Average 40 Years—Both Defendants Present—Fall Is Not Well.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Two attractive young women and ten men of mature age will determine the fate of former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate, on trial here for criminal conspiracy to defraud the government of naval oil reserves.

The Jury. On the jury, in addition to Mrs. Annelle Bailey, wife of Eric Heaton, respectively piano store employee and long distance instructor, are an auto sales manager, a department store floor manager, a leather worker, a route supervisor, a retired bricklayer, a cable splicer, an ice company sales agent, a tire salesman, a tailor and clerk.

Three bald heads are in the box and one man with grey hair. Not Locked Up. No move was made by the government to have them locked up. Roberts went into detail to familiarize the jury with the case he hopes to prove.

AS COURT OPENS. Washington, Oct. 18.—Moving with greater speed than had been expected in the task of selecting a jury, government and defense counsel swung into the second day of the criminal conspiracy trial of former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair with prospects that the first witnesses would be called this afternoon.

Routing Proceedings. Today's proceedings will be all routine. After the jury has been finally picked, there will be a parade of witnesses from the government departments merely to identify a huge mass of letters, telegrams and manuscripts taken from federal files for introduction as evidence in the case.

Only high light of yesterday's proceedings was the government's call for H. M. Blackmer, former president of the Mid-West Refining Co., who was subpoenaed in Paris by the government. Blackmer, who is alleged to know much about the transactions wherein the government asserts Fall was bribed to turn over the Teapot Dome oil lease to Sinclair, together with James E. O'Neill, formerly with the Prairie Gas & Oil Co., went to Europe to avoid appearing in the oil trials. Following this action, the Senate adopted a resolution compelling attendance of all witnesses called and making seizure of $100,000 worth of the witness' property the penalty for non-appearance.

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 18.—The third serious fire within a year today swept the Glenbrook warehouse of the Davis-Scoble Co., doing damage estimated at upward of $6,000. Starting in a shipment of baled hay, the fire destroyed one section of the warehouse, wiping out all the hay and grain and badly damaged another section.

of the members of the supreme court. There never was a time in the history of the country what that power possessed the peculiar significance that may attach to it in the present instance. There are thousands of excellent lawyers who are not satisfied in their minds that the question of validity of the eighteenth amendment is definitely, finally settled. They do not, naturally, expect the supreme court, as at present constituted, to reverse itself, but they do believe that the eighteenth amendment has demonstrated its incompatibility with the original constitution, that the continued existence of the bill of rights and the prohibitory excesses are impossible and that sooner or later a Supreme Court will frankly take that view.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER Washington, Oct. 18.—Many of us are so excited over the presidential show in the big tent that we aren't paying much attention yet to the many attractive side-shows presented by various state campaigns which will also culminate in the 1928 elections. Not one of these senatorial, gubernatorial and congressional side-shows will be more interesting than Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick's performance in Illinois and perhaps few will be more portentous.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick

gressman-at-large brought the foremost woman politician of her time into her first bid for public office for herself. The wife of the late Senator Medill McCormick is a veteran of many campaigns, but now she sets forth in her own right on the same path along which she accompanied her husband's.

There is even more significance in the fact that Mrs. McCormick, pioneer though she is, is extremely likely to be elected. Whether she will be able to follow right along in her husband's footsteps remains to be seen, but there is more than a suspicion that Mrs. McCormick has her eye on the senatorship which Deneen took from McCormick in 1924 and which he must defend again in 1930.

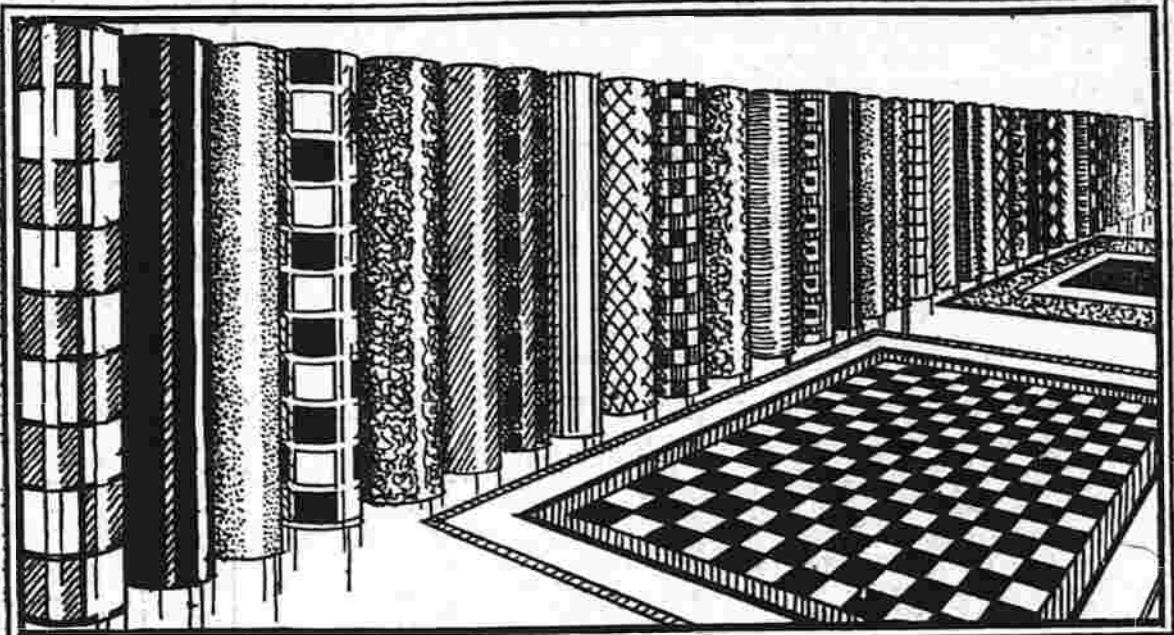

There are two Illinois congressmen at large, Yates and Rathbone, one of whom must go out if Mrs. McCormick wins next year. The two candidates win who receive the largest vote of those running for the office. Rathbone is the man marked for political death. He had the hardihood to oppose action and her campaign is expected to be unique. She plans completely to avoid personalities unless forced upon her and will undertake to "sell herself" to the electorate. Her speeches will be short and snappy and she will not attempt to stuff the voters with promises.

Political shrewdness dictated Mrs. McCormick's decision to run for this particular office. As a candidate for governor, she would have had to buck the resuscitated Thompson-Small combination with its various allied combinations in Cook county and the chances were against her. Now she is able to appeal to the whole state as a candidate for an office which the machine will not begrudge her and which will give her as good an opportunity to strengthen herself if she desires to go into the Senate. Already Thompson has declared his support and with other influences she is assured of the Chicago vote.

There is a deep mutual hatred between Mrs. McCormick and Governor Small but Small would not oppose her publicly in the face of Thompson's stand. But although the double cross, as everyone knows, is the trademark of Illinois politics, especially in Chicago, Mrs. McCormick, with her long experience and close contacts, probably can avoid its blighting effects.

Although wise enough not to start without some assurances of

PRESIDENT'S POWER

Of the nine justices of the United States supreme court all but one will be more than sixty years old before the expiration of the term of the president who succeeds Mr. Coolidge if the roster of the court remains unchanged by the hand of death during that time. In 1933, when the next presidential period expires, Chief Justice William Howard Taft, if he is spared to us, will be seventy-five; Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes will be ninety-one; Mr. Justice Brandeis will be seventy-six; Mr. Justice Reynolds will be seventy-three; Mr. Justice Sutherland will be seventy-one. All the other justices with the exception of Mr. Justice Stone will be crowding the seventy mark.

Exemplary as are the lives of these gentlemen, and as much as we dislike to contemplate the termination of the careers of any of them, it is conceivable that within the presidential term in question there may be several changes in the personnel of that august body which, in the very last analysis is the most powerful law giving agency in this country.

In other words it is highly probable that one of the most potent instrumentalities in the hands of the next president will be his power to name several, possibly a majority

KNOWS THE GAME

A New Yorker in Paris

Paris, Oct. 18.—International poverty meets on Sunday morning, about 10 o'clock, in a huge outdoor salesroom which Paris calls "the flea market." In giving it this humorous title Paris is kind; for here is the crossroads of necessity, where dire need chloroforms the pride of the most regular support, Mrs. McCormick is going to make a fighting, intensive campaign through the state, penetrating every county and speaking as often as she can.

It will be a revelation to some of the uninitiated to see the lady in action and her campaign is expected to be unique. She plans completely to avoid personalities unless forced upon her and will undertake to "sell herself" to the electorate. Her speeches will be short and snappy and she will not attempt to stuff the voters with promises.

At the same time she will undertake to make every class of voters see that she understands their problems. Mrs. McCormick ought to be pretty successful at this, for sincerity and an absence of cant and hypocrisy are among her strongest assets.

To a friend, Mrs. McCormick recently remarked that she hoped to wage a "bunkless campaign." If she does and wins, her performance will stand out as one of the most astonishing achievements in recent political history.

And I shall long remember the tragic eyes of a venerable outcast who thrust under my nose a carving set. . . . Ivory handled and seemingly of hammered silver. I don't know much about such things. I don't care much. I was more interested in the tragedy written in his eyes. Just behind came a party of tourists, in tow of an expert. The expert walked about with one of those jeweler's glasses screwed to one eye, like a monocle. He jerked the box from the old man's hand and put the carving set under the scrutiny of his glass. I saw him wink at one of the members of the party. A bargain was hit at 400 francs—$16 American money. As they walked away the expert whispered that he had seen the name of the workman and the date upon the handles.

"They are originals. . . . marvelous. . . . look for yourself. You could not buy such a set for hundreds of dollars. Hand wrought, my friend and made by one of the finest of the old craftsmen. Such things do not often lie around waiting a buyer. Yet you cannot tell what you will find in this market. The old fellow must be hard up indeed."

I looked about. He was shuffling away, his unkempt beard brushing back and forth across his tattered coat. Next week, perhaps, I would find him again with some other family heirloom to barter for a few weeks of food.

But what, I wondered, will happen when the last has gone?

And here are five former noblemen of the czar's court. In front of one of them, lying in a pile, are the gorgeously braided and embroidered uniforms of a Russian officer. There are hundreds such to be had, a friend whispers in my ear. One can pick them up anywhere for 40 francs—that is $1.60. If one cares to have them carefully cleaned and fumigated—well it would make a good masquerade costume. But who wants a Russian uniform?

And here are two timid girls from Normandy and in front of them is spread a shawl made of threads drawn from seaweed. . . . an astonishing task, when you think of it. . . . and priced at 83 francs. . . . Austrians. . . . German.

MOTHER!

A Child Doesn't Laugh and Play if Constipated

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other child-dram's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness. Beware of counterfeit fig syrups.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by Dr. "California Fig Syrup Company,"—adv.

Markham went directly to the garage at noon on Friday, and gave the man $20 to say nothing about it. "I've found out, Mr. Pfyfe, that you placed your machine in a garage at noon on Friday, and gave the man $20 to say nothing about it." Pfyfe looked up with a hurt look. "I've been deeply wronged," he complained sadly. "I gave the man $20." "I am glad you admit the fact so readily," returned Markham. "You knew, by the newspapers, of course, that your machine was seen outside Benson's house the night he was shot." "Why else should I have paid so liberally to have its presence in New York kept secret?" His tone indicated that he was pained at the other's obtuseness. "In that case, why did you keep it in the city at all?" asked Markham. "You could have driven it back to Long Island." Pfyfe shook his head sorrowfully, a look of commiseration in his eyes. Then he leaned forward with an air of benign patience—he would be gentle with this dull-witted district attorney, like a fond teacher with a backward child, and would strive to lead him out of the tangle of his uncertainties. "I am a married man, Mr. Markham," he pronounced the fact as if some special virtue attached to it. "I started on my trip for the Catskills Thursday after dinner, intending to stop a day in New York to make my adieux to someone residing here. "I arrived quite late—after midnight—and decided to call on Alvin. But when I drove up, the house was dark. So, without even ringing the bell, I walked to Pietro's in Forty-third street to get a night-cap—I keep a bit of my own pinch-bottle Haig and Haig there—but, alas! the place was closed, and I strolled back to my car. . . . To think, that while I was away poor Alvin was shot!" He stopped and polished his eyes. "I don't even guess that anything had happened to the dear fellow, — how could I? "I drove, all unsuspecting of the tragedy, to a Turkish bath, and remained there the night. The next morning I read of the murder, and in the later editions I saw the mention of my car. It was then I became—shall I say worried? But no. 'Worried' is a misleading word. "Let me say, rather, that I became aware of the false position I might be placed in if the car were traced to me. So I drove it to the garage and paid the man to say nothing of its whereabouts, lest its discovery confuse the issue of Alvin's death." One might have thought, from his tone and the self-righteous way he looked at Markham, that he had bribed the garage-man wholly out of consideration for the district attorney and the police. "Why didn't you continue on your trip?" asked Markham. "That would have made the discovery of the car even less likely." Pfyfe adopted an air of compassionate surprise. "With my dearest friend foully murdered? How could one have the heart to seek diversion at such a sad moment? . . . I returned home, and informed Mrs. Pfyfe that my car had broken down." "You might have driven home in your car, it seems to me," observed Markham. Pfyfe offered a look of infinite forbearance for the other's inspection, and took a deep sigh, which checked the impression that he, though he could not sharpen the world's perceptions, he at least could mourn for its deplorable lack of understanding. "If I had been in the Catskills away from any source of information, where Mrs. Pfyfe believed me how would I have heard of Alvin's death until, perhaps, days afterward? "You see, unfortunately I had not mentioned to Mrs. Pfyfe that I was stopping over in New York. The truth is, Mr. Markham, I had reason for not wishing my wife to know that I was in the city. Consequently, if I had driven back at once, she would, I regret to say, have suspected me of breaking my journey. I therefore pursued the course which seemed simplest." Markham becoming annoyed at the man's flimsy excuses, after a brief silence he asked abruptly: "Did the presence of your car at Benson's house that night have anything to do with your apparent desire to implicate Captain Leacock in the affair?" Pfyfe lifted his eyebrows in plain astonishment, and made a gesture of polite protestation. "My dear sir!" His voice betokened profound resentment of the other's unjust imputation. "If yesterday you detected in my words an undercurrent of suspicion against Captain Leacock, I can account for it only by the fact that I actually saw the Captain in front of Alvin's house when I drove up that night." Markham shot a curious look at Vance; then said to Pfyfe: "You saw the Captain in front of Alvin's house?" "I saw him quite distinctly. And I would have mentioned the fact yesterday had it not involved the tacit confession of my own presence there." "What if it had?" demanded Markham. "I don't know, sir," said Pfyfe with self-pity. "But having placed myself in a false position, I must accept your criticism." "Do you realize," Markham went on, "that many a district attorney, if he knew what I now know about you, and in the later editions I saw the mention of my car. It was then I became—shall I say worried? But no. 'Worried' is a misleading word. "Let me say, rather, that I became aware of the false position I might be placed in if the car were traced to me. This And That In Feminine Lore

Reliable adult family, several due to the English influence in male attire, for London sets men's styles as Paris does the women's. co-operative housekeeping may learn by telephoning the writer particulars regarding completely furnished upper flat on trolley line, West Side. Owner who is leaving for the South will rent most reasonably for winter or longer.

Oh, East is East And West is West— And the West, it seems, likes The East's food best! At the recent exposition in New York of Women's Arts and Industries Nellie Wong of Peking cooked her way into culinary honors. Her prize dish was a willow ware plate of shrimp sticks. She has the distinction of conducting the first little tea room of its kind, close by the great main entrance. She started selling ice cream sodas and regular American ice cream and they made such a big hit that she added one thing after another until she decided she could swing a whole tea room. Then she found the foreigners delighted in the native dishes. She says there is no satisfaction on earth like serving a very nice meal to people who appreciate it. Below is the recipe for her prize dish: One pound fresh shelled shrimps, 1 pound white bread, whites of three eggs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 an onion, a small piece of fresh ginger. Place the shrimps, the onion and ginger in a meat chopper and grind very fine. Add the white of eggs, salt and pepper and beat until the ingredients are stiff. Spread on strips about an inch wide and four inches long. Sprinkle with browned bread crumbs. Cook in deep fat until all is a golden brown, then drain on heavy paper. These slices should be served very hot.

Velvet seems to be the most favored medium for evening dress these seasons. All the pastel shades and white are fashionable but there is a noticeable predominance of black and black and pink. For the robes de style which are made always on the same lines, taffetas and moire silk are chosen. Some style authorities declare the all-over beaded fringe is quite dead although bead fringe is used to quite an extent as a dress trimming. Distinctly new is the long-sleeved lace dinner dress, of all black, or trimmed with rose, certain shades of blue, beige or gold. Many of these lace dinner dresses have wide crepe satin belts finished off in a huge bow at the side and lined with a contrasting color.

Helmet shaped toques and variations of the turban seem to exclude every other style of hat. The reason is that they suit almost every type of face and are a decided change from the eternal cloche which had become too monotonous for words. For the woman who must have a brim there are still a few models. The whole idea seems to be that the crown should fit the head snugly and cover up the ears. Some hats with a turned up brim over one eye are worn so that a little of the forehead is seen and part of one ear. On the whole they are not worn over the eyes as low as formerly.

Haberdashers report an increase in the sale of canes or walking sticks for men. This is no doubt due to the English influence in male attire, for London sets men's styles as Paris does the women's.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

Any girl who can start flying across the Atlantic with a picnic lunch of turkey sandwiches, dill pickles and some chocolate bars, gets a salute from my new beige velour bonnet! I smiled with a tear behind the smile when I read in my morning's paper an itemizing of the grant that conductors should be stowed in her plane just as she hopped in to begin her long and lonely trek. It might have been a school girl's picnic basket, a box for a box special, or a secretary's spread. It was fine that a girl who made turkey sandwiches and bought dill pickles got through! It took courage to be really interested in appetizing food when such a jaunt was before one! Most men throw in some beef cubes and let it go!

It is right that we humans should who and cowards and wish we were dead when we open our pocketbooks on a street car, find we have nothing smaller than a five-dollar bill, and have to endure the results of the conductor's wrath should practice the most common business adage, that of courtesy to consumers? But I can't for the life of me see why conductors on long-distance rides need make such a fuss. They must know that nobody does it from choice. After all doesn't a street car company need its customers as much as any other concern? Is there any less reason why they should practice the most common business adage, that of courtesy to consumers?

The reasoning of the western woman who has inaugurated the custom of sending divorce announcements seems very sensible to me. When friends of Mrs. Hezlie Carter Purdom expressed surprise at receiving the newly lettered divorce announcements which Mrs. Purdom sent them, she asked, "Why not? We announce births and weddings, don't we, and a divorce is equally important in both a business and social sense." Sure enough, it is merely being considerate of possible hostesses who might ask both Mr. and Mrs. to the same party, or to the dentist who might continue mailing her bills to her husband. I prophesy that divorce announcements will become very common, although such news seems to have a little way of spreading without benefit of formal announcement.

If divorce could be dissolved by mutual consent, as a business partnership, one-half of the marriages in the United States would be lettered tomorrow. That's what former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis told a woman's gathering a few days ago: "Let us confess the undisputed truth," he said, "that the majority of women in this day oppose the burdens of housekeeping and family responsibility, while men flee from the expense and burdens of house and family and live in opposition to both." Appearance! Maybe ten per cent, but not fifty!

Acid Stomach "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" Better than Soda

Here after, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly. For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it dissolves three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid ferments in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

What is the effect of golf on the mind and what are the mental reactions to the various plays? Dr. Fishbein, offering the findings of the famous British neurologist, Dr. T. B. cessfully or not. There seems to be a constant rebellion going on in the player's mind between what he knows to be right and the desire to obtain the full effect of it. More simply stated, this state of mind is called "pressing," and the player who presses hasn't got it. Here, his sensitive wife, was made to suffer less stern. She resented and brooded over the times he left her alone, sometimes for days at a time. Always there was that resentful loneliness that made her life a tragedy. Yet Per Hansa adored her. Was it not for her he was working? What was true out there in the wild country a century ago is true now. Many men with this same vision for the future which often means hours of hard work away from home, have been accused by their wives of neglect. It is the old story. Too much business—too little wife! I wonder if women will ever really understand men or if men will understand women! Caesar's wife may have been beyond reproach, but isn't it just possible that she felt neglected? And isn't it also possible that Caesar gave her a piece of his mind when she cried, after he had taken all the trouble to conquer Gaul? "Giants in the Earth," the new book written by Dr. Roivaag of St. Olaf College, is a story of tillers of the soil. Like the "Growth of the Peasants," both Nobel prize novels, it deals with the primitive. Only, in the eyes of Per Hansa and his wife, Beret, these people were more than farmers, they possessed the spirit of adventure, and had vision enough to come to a new land. They had come all the way from Norway, slowly and laboriously making their way over the plains to Dakota, with three children and a meager supply of food, to take up a quarter section of land in the west. He had to be away much of the

FRATERNAL AND COMMERCIAL BOWLING LOOPS ORGANIZED

Much Interest Aroused Over Popular Winter Sport and Two Leagues Are Now Necessary; Teams Can Enter Through Herald.

The recent article on the sport page of The Herald suggesting that a bowling league be formed at the south end to rival the one at the north end has aroused considerable interest. In fact so many teams have requested admission that it has been necessary to change the plans and organize two separate leagues.

Two Leagues One will be known as the fraternal league and the other will be a commercial circuit. Each loop will probably have ten or twelve teams in its roster. The fraternal league will be of lodges and clubs while the other will include such teams as Watkins Brothers, Manchester Trust Company and the Southern New England Telephone Company.

Tommy Conran, proprietor of ten bowling alleys at the north end, said yesterday that he would have league winners ready to meet the winners of the south end league in inter-sectional matches after the season is concluded. It is planned to have each league play two or three rounds. Cups will be given the pennant winners and the individual average winner. There will also be a banquet for the winners. All these will be given by Mr. Murphy.

List of Teams Following is a list of the lodges and clubs which are expected to be represented in the fraternal league: Odd Fellows, St. Mary's Young Men's Club, American Legion, Masons, Redmen, Friendly Five of the South Methodist Church Knights of Columbus, West Side Rec. Club, Athletic Club, Woodmen, Brotherhood of the Holy Name, British American Club, Moose and the Army and Navy Club. Other teams desiring admission, should make application.

In the commercial league, the probable places of business to be represented are: Manchester Trust Company, J. W. Hale Company, Manchester Construction Company, Watkin Brothers, South Manchester Post Office, G. E. Keith Furniture Company, Manchester Plumbing and Supply Company, Blish Hardware Company and the Southern New England Telephone Company. As in the other league, any teams desiring admission, should apply for such through the sports editor of The Herald or Mr. Murphy.

Further announcement will be made in a few days. It is planned to start the leagues about the first week in November.

FAMOUS REFEREE DISCUSSES GRID RULES FOR FANS

Boston Surgeon Writes Thirty Articles For Manchester Readers On "Dissecting Football Rules."

This is the first article of a football series "Dissecting Football Rules," written by Dr. E. J. O'Brien, prominent grid official and famous Boston surgeon.

This series of articles one of which will follow each of the sports page until concluded, explains thirty points about football often confusing to the spectators. Dr. O'Brien, a member of the national advisory committee on football rules, is probably one of the best known referees in this country, being asked annually to referee in all important games like the Yale-Harvard and Army-Navy classics.

In these articles, this famous surgeon-grid official interprets the grid rules in an authoritative manner. He "dissects" phases of play, he explains the new rules, and the old ones, in a clear, concise manner; he does so from a spectator's standpoint, a factor that makes the series unique and should give it a greater appeal.

BY DR. E. J. O'BRIEN

You very frequently hear the cry go up from spectators at a football game that a man has been guilty of hurdling, when most of the time this offense has not been committed at all. Hurdling is very seldom seen in football today.

To be guilty of hurdling, a player carrying the ball must be guilty of jumping over or attempting to jump over, an opponent who is still on his feet. You know this is rather a hard thing to do, and is seldom attempted. A player in the open is permitted to hurdle a man who is on his knees or knee, and this is where the spectator is led to believe that a foul has been committed. It is a frequent occurrence to see a player hurdle a man who is on the ground or on one knee, but is not a breach of the rules.

SAYERS vs. LANGHAM Oct. 18th, 1853 Seventy-four years ago today Tom Sayers famous as the middleweight and heavyweight champion of England, suffered the only defeat of his long and brilliant career when he fought Nat Langham of the middleweight championship of England at Lakenham, Eng., and lost in the sixty-first round of a furious mill in which Sayers was blinded and forced to discontinue. Sayers then challenged Langham for a return match but the latter declined and then retired from the game, after which Sayer again became recognized as the middleweight champion. Sayers later relinquished his hold on this title to enter the heavyweight ranks, though he never weighed more than 160 pounds.

Philly Team Temporarily Out Of American League Because of Wrong Doings.

An especially called meeting of the American Soccer League was held in New York City, September 16, 1927, to discuss the affairs of the Philadelphia Soccer Football Club which was failing to fulfill its obligations to the satisfaction of the league officials.

Barburt Injured

Ray Barburt, Syracuse captain, is injured and may not start against Penn State. It looks as if the strong Nittany Lions will cross the Syracuse goal line at Archibald Stadium for the first time in history.

The players of the former Philadelphia team are henceforth free agents so far as this league is concerned and have been so informed. Several plans to keep them functioning as an independent unit have been considered but reluctantly abandoned despite the fact that the game seems to be popular in Philadelphia at the moment and the team is a splendid team.

Yale's Football Stars Back For Army Game

DEFENDS REFEREE

Evening Herald Sports Editor: Dear Sir: In reading Wednesday's Herald of October 13, I came across an article in which the Cubs charge Jake Moskli with winning all the Cloverleaves' games. This is not true as the Cubs know. If this were the case, do they think the fans would let Moskli referee.

Have the Cubs ever realized that to go out and referee a game of football and satisfy both teams is a very hard thing to do. There is always some squabbling, no matter who the referee. In many games Moskli has penalized the Cloverleaves considerably, sometimes when a penalty hurt very bad. Would they call that favoring the Cloverleaves. Moskli referees as square a game as he possibly can and few teams have blamed their losing on him.

The injury jinx continues to pursue Penn. Paul Scull and Brill, backs, and Utz, guard, granted. Would they call that favoring the Cloverleaves. Moskli referees as square a game as he possibly can and few teams have blamed their losing on him.

Barburt injured. Ray Barburt, Syracuse captain, is injured and may not start against Penn State. It looks as if the strong Nittany Lions will cross the Syracuse goal line at Archibald Stadium for the first time in history.

The season of football is very short. Why should they play a team twice. They seem to have been able to get a different team every Sunday, something the Cubs have not been able to do.

Clark, crack Harvard tackle, is injured and will not get into the Dartmouth game. Dave Guarnaccia, who throws most of the Crimson's passes, also was laid out but will play Saturday.

Washington & Jefferson is counting on a victory over Lafayette in their annual classic, as hat of the Lafayette team was crippled by those rough West Virginia mountaineers last Saturday. This game should be a corker for each team has won four games and each is determined to get the edge on the other.

The Navy eleven has been crippled by the loss of Jack Eddy, whose collarbone was dislocated in the Notre Dame game. Next Saturday the sailors will tackle Duke, conqueror of Boston College.

Football Fundamentals

As Told by Famous Coaches TO BILLY EVANS.

DEFENSIVE GUARD Defensive guards are either of the charging, smashing type or of the "knifing" type. Guards, like the other defensive linemen, are permitted to use their hands. A lineman's ability on defense is judged largely by the efficiency with which he uses his hands.

Like the defensive tackle, the defensive guard charges straight ahead without deviating an inch to the right or left. The charging guard charges low and straight ahead, tearing everything before him.

A guard usually has taken one stride when he charges and meets the impact of the attacking line with his defensive impact. He then takes one more stride, crouched low, feet planted wide apart, hands working to the limit as he throws his opponent out of the way. He then stands for a split second and looks things over.

If the ball carrier is coming his way the guard is there to get him if at all possible. If there has been a fumble by the offense he is in a position to dive for the ball. If it is a delayed play against his territory he is ready for it.

The guard is responsible for the territory between himself and his tackle and he covers as much of the distance between himself and his center as he can. There you have the charging type guard.

Now for the "knifing" type guard. He stands higher in the line, tries to figure where each play will hit and by prying two offensive opponents apart by the use of his hands, he thrusts through sideways, standing up, which gives him a great chance to smash the play in the backfield.

One trouble with the "knifing" type, defensive guard, is that if he attempts to knife his way through two alert offensive linemen they can catch him on their shoulders and ride him back, giving their ball carrier a hole big enough to drive a wagon through.

Guards must be careful not to charge through too far. If they do, the attacking team can easily send delayed plays through them. The low, charging type of defensive guard is liked the best by a majority of coaches and generally considered the most effective type.

RIVAL FOOTBALL TEAMS WILL DECIDE WHAT MEN CAN PLAY NOVEMBER 21

Everything Else Has Been Agreed Upon But Who Can Tell What Will Happen After 1926 Example; Argument to Be Over Out of Town Players. How the Teams Stand.

Tonight's the night that tells the story. Representatives of the Cloverleaves and Cubs are to meet at 9 o'clock at the branch office of The Herald on Bissell street at the south end to attempt to complete arrangements for their scheduled contest on November 20 for the town football championship.

After the session this evening, the fans will know whether the two teams are going to play this season or emulate their ridiculous actions of 1926 when they monkeyed around until snow fell so deep it was impossible to play this cheating the fans out of a well earned treat. Everything has been agreed upon with the exception of the players who are eligible for the game.

"Out of Town" Players However, the fans are not as much interested in what the terms are as they are in seeing a game between the teams. It is understood that the Cloverleaves will demand that only local players be used in the game. The Cubs, however, are expected to contend that Glenn of New Britain, Pentore of New Britain and C. Vendrillo of Hartford have played with them all season and are eligible to play. The latter two are former Manchester residents.

If the Cloverleaves oppose the Cubs using any of this trio, the Cubs are expected to counter with the argument that George Moanan, the playing coach of the champions, does not live in Manchester any more, and that Ted McCarthy is in to play football, and that Whittly Mullen's home is in Waterbury.

In all fairness to both teams, it seems that anyone who has played in three or four or five games with either team before November 20 ought to be eligible to play in the title game. It would be ridiculous for either club to oppose the use of any player who has played with the teams to date, for none has been a "ringer." Neither team should be allowed to change its personnel after the lineup are submitted. This is the writer's opinion.

A few weeks ago, representatives of the Cloverleaves and the Cubs met at The Herald office and agreed to stage the game at Hickory Grove on November 20 on a winner-take-all basis with neutral officials in charge. Everything was settled except the lineups. The Cloverleaves were willing to submit theirs but the Cubs refused to do so until tonight because of the uncertainty as to the exact personnel of the team. Great Interest Aroused If the Cloverleaves and the Cubs play this year, the game will without doubt draw one of the largest crowds that ever witnessed a game between the north and the south for athletic supremacy. "Bitter rivalry" exists between the two teams regardless of what anyone may say to the contrary. The game this year ought to be a humdinger, that is of course, if they play and if they don't interest in both teams will probably fall down considerably.

The Cubs are the most confident team the south end has had since the Pirates won the town championship three years in succession. Under Jack Dwyer as coach, they have organized a strong club, one that they expect will hand the Cloverleaves their initial defeat. Dwyer has never lost a game to the north end. He was the man who coached the Pirates to a triple victory. Undoubtedly the Cloverleaves will enter the game the favorite to win because of the splendid record they have compiled in their three years. Sunday's game with the Wallingford Eagles was the second time the Cloverleaves had been either scored against or tied. The score was 6 to 6. Incidentally the Cloverleaves have scored six points in each of their three games to date this season winning the first two by whitewash scores. The Cubs have played a scoreless tie, dropped a 7 to 6 decision and won by a 14 to 0 score.

Lieberman lost to Morley at the Velodrome last summer, but the verdict was booted roundly by the fans.
