

SEEK DEFINITE VOTE ON BIRCH ST. WIDENING

Selectmen Call Informal Hearing to Settle Puzzle; May Widen St. James Street Soon, Also.

Property owners on Birch street, between Main and Spruce streets, will be given another opportunity of telling the board of selectmen of Manchester what they think of a proposition to widen the street on Friday evening, November 25. An informal hearing for discussion of the proposition was voted by the board at last night's public meeting.

Some decision must be reached by the selectmen on the Birch street widening question very soon because of the request of Albert T. Dewey and Leonard J. Richman for building lines at the corner. They have informed the selectmen that they have an opportunity to sell this property but the deal cannot be completed until something definite can be learned with regard to the widening of Birch street.

Already three hearings have been held on this question, which is as perplexing as the widening of Pearl street. Birch street is narrow and several of the houses are built close to the street line. Two plans for the widening of the thoroughfare have been proposed by Town Engineer J. Frank Doonan. In one, all the land needed for widening is taken from the north side. In the other, diagonal lines are run from the corners at Main and at Spruce streets so that necessary widening is taken from both sides of the street. Maps showing these proposals will be ready for the hearing a week from Friday.

The possibility of widening St. James street is near realization as the result of an offer by Walter O'Leary to give land for widening the street. O'Leary will give an acre of land on the opposite side of the street. Rev. W. T. Kelly, who was at a hearing on the layout of St. James street last night said that he believed his parish would favor widening the street. Action on the acceptance of the layout of the street was deferred until the property owners on the street can arrive at a definite decision with regard to widening.

Accept Homestead Street
Homestead street residents were out in force last night to show the selectmen that they wanted their street accepted. They also wanted to have the selectmen do something toward repairing the road. Those present last night were John Vichi, Joseph Trevino, Natale Rufini, Dante Pagan, John Ponticelli, Angelina Trivino, Frank Benevenuto, Francesco Benevenuto, John Sobieski, Giuseppe Ponticelli, Frank Damato, Jack McCavanaugh, Mrs. Ben Macri, Michael Baggan, and John Berk. Mr. McCavanaugh acted as spokesman for the residents and said they felt that they should be given some attention by the town. The street was accepted by the selectmen and it will come before the next town meeting.

Howard I. Taylor, George E. Keith, Albert C. Loveland and Frank Hocking appeared last night favoring four-foot concrete sidewalks and concrete curb and gutters on Lewis street, which is a narrow street with a sidewalk on one side only. The highway committee will investigate since it is the custom of the board to vote in five-foot walks and granite curbing.

Rudolph Rymarzek, Alexis Tournaud and Frank L. Phelps appeared at the meeting favoring the acceptance of Phelps road, which runs from Woodbridge street to Green road. The town engineer reported that the highway was not quite to the grade he had set, but the selectmen were of the opinion that it was in sufficiently good shape for town acceptance. Its acceptance was therefore voted to come before the next town meeting.

Patrick Moriarty, E. J. Hill and Wilfred Messier appeared at a hearing on the building lines for Henderson road in the new Bluefields tract. All favored the street line as the building line for the Center street corners. It was voted to establish a street line building line on the center street corner back for 100 feet and a 10-foot line for the rest of the distance.

Jordt Street Lines
Building lines on Jordt street which runs between Parker and Woodbridge streets in the Green district were deferred until the highway committee can investigate.

Property owners on the street are John Jensen, Anthony Jordt and J. Frank Bowen. Mr. Bowen was the only one present at the hearing. Mr. Jensen had told Chairman John Hyde that he favored a 25-foot building line. Mr. Bowen, how-

PRESIDENT'S SON HAS A NEW GIRL

Takes Mount Holyoke College Miss to a Dance—Maybe Break With Miss Trumbull.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 15.—College romance rose above the wreck of the flood in western Massachusetts today. Miss Sarah Kunsig, Mount Holyoke college sophomore, a beautiful blonde from Mount Vernon, N. Y., was the envy of all girl undergraduates today for John Coolidge, son of the President, was her escort to the first formal dance of the season. He came over from Amherst college.

College gossip began whispering about a "break" between young Coolidge and Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of Connecticut's governor, who has previously been favored by the attentions of the President's son. Friends of Miss Trumbull, however, set at rest all rumors by declaring that young Coolidge is still attentive to the governor's daughter and that the reason he did not escort her to the Mount Holyoke dance was because she had "another engagement."

Will Be In Full Swing Tomorrow; More Teams to Work; New Receiving Quarters Opened.

Ten teams were allotted territories for the annual Red Cross rally at a meeting of team captains and officials of the campaign last night. Other teams are expected to report to the chairman today or tomorrow and it is anticipated that about 15 or 16 teams in all will be engaged in the work.

The drive will get well under way by tomorrow, although members of some of the teams started their campaigns today. Fred Van Ness, chairman of the Roll Call in Manchester, expects the drive to be in full swing by tomorrow at the latest.

Registration Quarters
A vacant store in the O'Leary block, offered by P. J. O'Leary, has been accepted by the drive committee and will be used as a place where membership in the Red Cross may be obtained by canvassers.

PAYROLL BANDITS WILL BE EXECUTED

Governor Moore, of New Jersey Refuses Reprieve—To go to Chair Tonight.

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 15.—With Governor A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, having refused them a reprieve, four bandits convicted of the murder of George Condit, in Newark, during the hold-up of the Red Ice Cream Company payroll last year, appear doomed to die this evening in the electric chair at the Trenton state prison.

They are "Big Joe" Gulliano, "Little Joe" Gulliano, Chris Barone and Louis Capossi. Also known as "Kid Huff."

"My sympathy goes out to these men," Gov. Moore said today. "I am only human, but have a duty to the state. I have talked to the trial judge, the prosecutor and members of the court of errors and appeals, and they all assure me that in their opinion justice has been done in this case."

The governor said Principal Deputy Attorney Murphy had intimated, in a long distance telephone conversation, that the sentence might not be carried out tonight. He pointed out that the sentence calls for the executions "during the week of November 13th," and that the day of the week can be selected by Murphy.

"All these cases affect me, but I always try to keep before me also a mental picture of the poor man who was murdered and his family," the governor added.

However, the warden proceeded today with preparations for carrying out the sentence. Extra guards were posted outside the death cells.

FIRST PITTSBURGH GAS PLANT PHOTO

The scene of Pittsburgh's natural gas explosion disaster, photographed shortly after the blast, is pictured above. Havoc was spread throughout the lower north side industrial district of Pittsburgh when a tank containing 5,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas went off without warning. A score of men who were working on top of the tank were reported killed, with possibly a score more fatalities, many persons injured and homes, factories and other structures over a wide area wrecked.

Boston and Maine to Build Biggest Railroad Station

Boston, Mass., Nov. 15.—A new station waiting-room would have two-third more seats than the Grand Central Terminal in New York. The coliseum will have a seating capacity of 18,500, equal to that of Madison Square Garden.

The new station and sports arena seating 18,500 persons will face a widened causeway street, adjacent to the new million-dollar northern thoroughfare. The Coliseum, which will surmount the ground floor and mezzanine floor of the station proper, will be leased by the Boston & Maine Railroad to an operating group including among the Boston business men interested Charles F. Adams and H. R. ("Tacks") Hardwick, who will have as associates the Madison Square Garden interests, with Tex Rickard, Col. John S. Hammond and W. F. Carey.

MEXICO'S REASONS FOR INTERFERING WANTS TO PREVENT U. S. FROM CONSTRUCTING NEW CANAL ACROSS NICARAGUA.

Washington, Nov. 15.—The real object of Mexico in stirring up anti-American feeling in the Caribbean countries, and in promoting the Nicaraguan revolution, was to prevent the United States from constructing the new ocean-to-ocean canal across Nicaragua, the Washington Herald asserted today in continuing its expose of Mexican activities for the past year.

President Calles, the Herald stated, desired to establish and maintain in Nicaragua a government antagonistic to the United States, and for that reason financed and supported Dr. Juan B. Sacasa in his revolt against the Diaz government.

DEMOCRATS OF STATE NEED SENSE OF HUMOR

Use It as Self-Defense, Says Mayor Phillips of Stamford, Answering Letter.

Stamford, Conn., Nov. 15.—Mayor A. N. Phillips Jr., had a letter from a New York woman, today who wants to name him as Republican candidate for president, largely because "you have a sense of humor"—though the woman, whose name he refuses to make public, says: "We have not had a president with a sense of humor since Lincoln, and when we got him we had a civil war."

Mayor Phillips replied, stating he was a Democrat and explaining that "Democrats in Connecticut have to have a sense of humor in self defense" and adding "another reason why Democrats in Connecticut require a sense of humor is because Republicans in this state are doing such funny things we have to laugh at them."

OUR TRADE BALANCE
Washington, Nov. 15.—Reflecting the healthy condition of the nation's foreign trade, exports of the United States during the first ten months of 1927 the Treasury Department today announced, were valued at $3,998,000,000; a gain of $136,400,000 over 1926.

Imports during the same period were $3,509,000,000, a decrease of $188,500,000, leaving a favorable trade balance for the period of $489,400,000.

The country's gold supply of approximately $500,000,000 was increased $126,632,000 during the first ten months of 1927.

BELIEVE DEATHS IN PITTSBURGH WILL REACH 45

Twenty-Two Bodies Recovered—23 Bodies Believed Under Ruins In One Building—Probes Begun.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 15.—Rescue workers concentrated their efforts today on reaching victims of the Equitable Gas Company tank explosion, who it is felt certain are pinned beneath tons of debris in the wreckage of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company adjoining the gas plant.

At noon the known death toll stood at 22 and the number injured between 500 and 600. In addition a workman was killed this morning when a mass of steel fell on him from a hoist used in clearing away debris.

Pumpers of two engine companies worked all morning draining the basement of the pot company of water that rushed into it when the concussion shattered water mains. Many men were working in the basement and it is feared that nearly 20 were drowned without a chance of escape.

No Bodies Found
Seven feet of water has been drawn out, but no bodies have been sighted in the basement yet. Firemen expect to find them momentarily. Still other victims are almost sure to be found in another section of the pottery plant beaten down when tons of steel from the nearby tank after being blown high in the air, fell upon the building.

Firemen attempted to clear the wreckage with the aid of dynamite but abandoned the effort when this procedure failed to budge the mass of steel and mortar.

Endeavoring to ascertain how many persons are missing, Coroner W. J. McGregor, who is probing the explosion, issued an appeal for all those who have relatives or friends missing since the fatal explosion to notify the Red Cross.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 15.—With many dead believed still buried beneath tons of debris that only hydraulic cranes can remove and with the number of recovered bodies standing at 22, a dual investigation of the disastrous explosion of the Equitable Gas Company's plant here opened today.

CAROL'S SUPPORTERS WIN OUT IN COURT

Under Secretary of State is Acquitted of the Charge of High Treason.

Bucharest, Nov. 15.—Jubilant at the acquittal of Michael Manoilescu of a charge of high treason, supporters of former Crown Prince Carol today predicted the speedy return of Carol to the throne of Rumania.

The acquittal of the former under secretary of state was considered as a serious defeat of Premier Bratianu under whose orders Manoilescu was arrested and tried for complicity in a plot to place Carol on the throne now occupied by his six-year-old son, King Michael.

Manoilescu's trial, which began last Thursday, united all the leaders of the opposition to the Bratianu regime and they were unanimous in defending the right of Prince Carol to assume the throne he once renounced.

It was reported that Bratianu, sensing defeat in the verdict of the court-martial which tried Manoilescu, has commissioned Professor George Nurgar to proceed to Paris and discuss with Carol conditions under which he would return to Rumania.

Manoilescu was acquitted early this morning. He was arrested recently on the Rumanian frontier and it was charged that he had in his possession documents and letters from Prince Carol to his adherents.

SIX JURORS PICKED FOR REMUS TRIAL; DEFENDANT ANGRY

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 15.—Charged with being the first feminine alimony defaulter, Grace W. Elliott today was facing a jail sentence. After she had filed for divorce, her husband filed a cross complaint alleging that he had been ordered from their home when he had become too old and feeble to work.

Mrs. Elliott was ordered to pay him $150 a month. The husband charges the first payment has not been made.

"PEGLEG" SUTTON GOES A VISITING

Waterbury, N. Y., Nov. 15.—"Pegleg" Sutton, who resides in Great Meadows prison, when he is at home, went calling today.

Before the visit was completed, his hostess, Mrs. Miles Sullivan, was overcome with Pegleg's personality—the faintest. Sutton dropped into the Sullivan home, bringing all his social talents—his wooden leg, a flock of breezy stories, and a shotgun.

Pointing the rifle at Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan as they slept, he suggested an invitation to breakfast.

"Pegleg" apologized for his unpolished appearance. With the aid of Sullivan's Sunday best razor and wardrobe, he made himself more presentable.

It was a jolly breakfast for three. "Pegleg" related his best humorous anecdotes—fresh from the convivial gatherings of the road gang in which he had recently been a trustee.

He also chatted regrettably about his past and hopefully about his future. He had been one of the best of burglars in Albany but made a mistake—he got caught. But he'd be more careful in the future.

OCEAN FLYERS RETURN TO RESPECTIVE HOMES

Thirteen Men and One Woman Feted By President Coolidge At Capital.

Washington, Nov. 15.—The Trans-Oceanic Flyers' Association, composed of those intrepid souls who made aerial history in the summer of 1927, scattered far and wide today after what they termed their "first annual convention."

Having been feted by President Coolidge and by official Washington generally, the thirteen men and Miss Ruth Elder left the capital today to return to their various plans for future aerial progress.

Col. Charles Lindbergh, decorated with the Hubbard medal last night and acclaimed as few men in Washington have ever been, went down into Virginia for a week's duck-hunting. He will be the guest of Gov. Harry Byrd.

Ruth Elder returned to New York, where she expects to map out her plans for the immediate future. The Miss America of the air was genuinely thrilled by her reception in the capital. President Coolidge, who said, was "a darling," and Lindbergh was "a peach."

WOMAN FOUND GUILTY
Waterbury, Conn., Nov. 15.—Mrs. Rose Russo, 28, was sent to jail for four months by Judge John F. McGrath in City court here when she was found guilty of an assault charge. Mrs. Russo quarreled with Lorenzo Aquilano, who occupied a part of Mrs. Russo's home on Bridge street, last summer, and shot him four times.

King of Bootleggers Engages In Verbal Clash With Attorneys For the State; Objects to His Secretary Being Called His Lieutenant.

Court House, Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 15.—George Remus created a mild sensation today in Criminal Court, where he is defending himself on the charge of murdering his wife, Imogene, when he leaped to his feet and engaged in a bitter verbal clash with attorneys for the state.

Remus, the once powerful "king of bootleggers," is acting as co-counsel for the defense. He was a successful Chicago criminal lawyer before he went into the liquor business to make millions.

The clash came during examination of a salesman for jury duty, Carl Bassler, assistant prosecutor, asked the salesman this question: "Do you know George Connors, a Remus lieutenant?"

Remus jumped to his feet, a flush mounting to his face and bald head. "Do you know George Connors, a Remus lieutenant?"

"I object to that term, 'Remus lieutenant,'" he shouted. "He is my secretary."

"He is just what I say he is," hurled back Bassler.

Remus made an elaborate gesture to the court.

"Now Your Honor, I object to this designation," he declared. "I think it is wholly unbecoming and designed to create a prejudicial impression of the defendant Remus."

NO MISSTATEMENT

"Remus is not making a misstatement to the court," declared Remus.

"The reference to Mr. Connors being referred to as a 'lieutenant,' will be stricken from the record," ruled Judge Shook.

Remus said down with a smile. Remus had a very busy morning in court. Earlier he had filed a motion for a subpoena designed to effect the recovery of records, papers and other of his belongings that he says are in the possession of Franklin L. Dodge, the man in the case, and members of the family of the slain Imogene Remus.

Six jurors, tentatively accepted, were in the jury box shortly before noon and the case was called. It would take considerable time to obtain the jury.

Remus began questioning Talesman Charles Trautman. He asked Trautman if his opinion would be swayed because of the fact that Remus might take the stand in his own defense. He also asked if testimony of alienists relative to Remus' sanity or insanity would have bearing upon Trautman's judgment of facts as presented by witnesses.

Trautman said it would not. The state objected to Remus' questioning Trautman. The court ruled Remus could continue questioning.

In the process of questioning, Remus asked a talesman the question: "Would the fact that the defendant appeared before the Brookhart-Wheeler investigating committee in Washington affect your judgment of the case?"

The state objected and the judge sustained the objection.

Remus asked Charles Trautman, a talesman, if he knew anyone in the prosecutor's office. Trautman replied he did not.

"The fact that an indictment has been returned against the defendant—that does not constitute evidence—that you in harmony with that statement?"

"Yes."

"We pass the juror," said Remus.

Trautman then took his place in the jury box.

GARDEN CLUB HAS FINE 'MUM SHOW'

Many Beautiful Varieties of Regal Fall Flowers Come From Out of Town. Chrysanthemum night under auspices of the Manchester Garden club last evening was one of the finest affairs ever given by the organization. The potted plants, cut flowers, baskets and vases filled two of the lower rooms, and all were from gardens and conservatories from other places.

SING "GLORIA DOMINI" HERE SUNDAY NIGHT

Robert Gordon to Sing Solos at South Methodist Presentation of Famous Cantata. On Sunday night at 7.30 o'clock, the choir of the South Methodist church, under the direction of Archibald Sessions, will present the second musical service of the season. The "Gloria Domini" of Terzani Nobis will be sung. This brilliant and scholarly work of the organist of St. Thomas church, New York, is a setting of words from the Old Testament relative to the dedication of the temple of Solomon, and is particularly appropriate at this time, because this month marks the two years since the opening of the new church at Main street and Hartford road. The cantata is written for baritone solo and chorus. The solo part will be sung by Robert Gordon, who sang it here so convincingly last year. The regular choir has been augmented to 35 voices and a fine production is promised.

MEXICO'S REASONS FOR INTERFERING

One of these telegrams, addressed by Calles' chief of state, General J. El Paso, Texas, Nov. 15.—Railroad service between El Paso and Mexico City was interrupted today by an attack of rebels on a passenger train near Leon, State of Jalisco, according to cables received here from Mexico City. The express messenger and a mail clerk were injured but the passengers escaped unscathed, the dispatches stated. Another dispatch from Torreon today stated that a passenger train was delayed in Zacatecas Friday by the activities of revolutionists. After federal troops killed twenty rebels in the battle that followed, the railroad line there was again opened, according to the Torreon dispatch.

Billy Evans Says

Coach Hanley explains a recent Northwestern defeat by saying his boys were saving their plays for the junior prom. They probably did not choose to run 'em that day. From Trotter O'Goofy volunteers to play in that game. He doesn't fear being penalized for holding. The backs would have to be more than halfbacks to draw much attention. Such a game would be merely a matter of lines. Yet he can't see why the plays are saved for the dance hall when there are so many other plays to be used there. The Northwestern boys can't be of Scotch blood, or they would never make a saving that drew no interest. Every coach, however, can't blame a defeat on that reason. A lot of teams have no plays worth saving. In the New English dictionary, which after 53 years of work is nearing completion, 52 columns of references are devoted to the word "nut."

Rockville THREE CANDIDATES FOR MAYOR NAMED

Rockville Voters Now Have Choice of Kuhney, Foster and Stengel.

(Special to The Herald.)

Rockville, Nov. 15.—A city without a candidate for mayor, the case yesterday afternoon, nominated three candidates for the office at the general caucus held last night. All caucuses were held in the Town Hall building. The Citizen ticket, which was an unknown quantity until the call, written on typewriter paper on the official sign board of the town, was first to get its caucus underway and lost no time by placing in nomination Frederick W. Stengel. He was the only candidate named by the caucus, which started just before 8 o'clock and was over just as the reporters were trying to decide which caucus to attend first. There were eight persons in the room and Andrew Trull was their chairman.

In the upper hall in the building the Republican caucus was called to order by William Schmidt, chairman of the City Republican committee, and Parley Leonard was named as chairman. Stephen E. Yost was the clerk on the invitation, "The first will be for mayor," Roger Murphy was on his feet and placed in nomination William Kuhney, a former councilman, who had announced late in the day that he would be a candidate if the party wished. It was the first time that his name had been mentioned and it caused considerable surprise but the nomination was seconded and he was named without opposition.

Other candidates nominated were: City clerk, R. A. Hunt; treasurer, Parley Leonard; assessors, Frank Harlow, Sigmund Dupula. The first of these two officers was to succeed himself.

The Democrats sprung the surprise of the evening. They had been slow in starting their caucus, probably for a reason, for it was not until the Republican caucus was over that the Democratic caucus was called to order by Charles McCarthy, chairman of the city committee. Former Mayor Frederick Hartenstein was named as chairman. After the reading of the call by Charles Murphy, the motion was offered by States Attorney Noone that the caucus proceed to vote for mayor on an informal ballot. This being done it was found that Former Mayor Hartenstein was nominated on the first ballot and before he could object the motion was made formal and unanimous, Mr. Noone putting the motion.

Mr. Hartenstein used, because of business reasons, to run. He thanked the voters for having nominated him, but again said that he wished to be released. Action to that effect was finally taken. This being done it was found that Former Mayor Hartenstein was nominated on the first ballot and before he could object the motion was made formal and unanimous, Mr. Noone putting the motion.

The chairman appointed George Dunn, Timothy Clark and Thomas F. Fay a committee to drive to the home of the former mayor and see if his consent could not be secured. After a recess of about fifteen minutes they returned with the signed statement from Mr. Foster that as Rockville was in a bad way in many respects he would, for the sake of his native city, consent to be the candidate.

In order to get men to serve with him, the city committee, which was elected at the meeting was empowered to meet with the candidate and they would have the power to make further nominations on the city ticket and of the councilmen and aldermen.

The final meeting of the present officers of the city of Rockville will be held this evening. All outstanding undispensed bills will be ordered paid and such matters as have been lying over will be cleared from the calendar as far as possible. The exact financial standing of each department cannot be told at this time and it is doubtful if even tonight's meeting will tell the story, as the auditors will not be able to get to work upon the figures until payments ordered tonight have been made. Those who have been members of the council for the past two years or more believe, however, that practically every appropriation has been overrun and that any unexpended surpluses there may be will not be sufficient to offset the overdrafts. The snow removal fund has not been overdrawn, as there is about 44 cents left in that account. At the city meeting, which is held the first Monday in December, representatives from the finance board of health will be present and explain the need of the sewage being cleaned up in the Hockanum River, especially Rockville's part. He will offer such assistance from the state as it is possible for it to give. It is also probable that the residents and storekeepers living or doing business on the east side of

Market street may get a hearing on their parking petition. Men's Union Frolic

The Men's Union of the Congregational church on Thursday and Friday will present "A Night at the Club."

There will be a cast of 70 and a chorus of 50. The soloists are to be Dorothy A. Waite, Edith M. Ranson, Irene Scharf, Percy L. Cooley and Fred Hamilton.

APPROVE PLAN FOR HOLLISTER SCHOOL

Directors Accept Design of Architect For 6-Room Addition.

The plans submitted by Architect Isaac Allen of Hartford to the directors of the Eighth school and Utilities district last night, for an addition to the Hollister street school, will fit in nicely with the ideas of the board in caring for the increase in school population in the district for several years to come, it was said by one of the directors today.

It has been estimated that the Eighth district school population is growing at the rate of a room and a quarter a year. The addition, which will contain six rooms, will care for this increase until 1933 or 1934.

Mr. Allen's plans were approved by the directors, although no figures were submitted. The new wing would conform with the architecture of the present school. The matter will later be presented to the voters of the district.

Other Business

The directors spent two hours in their meeting, most of the time being taken up in the examination of the plans. Other business was transacted, however, and action was taken on a recommendation made some time ago by Edward F. Coleman, chief of the fire department, that double-jacketed fire hose be purchased to replace the single jacket hose being used at the present time.

The replacement is asked for because of the increased pressure given by the new pumper of the department. Acting on the recommendation the directors voted to purchase 500 feet of double jacket hose. The present equipment of the department now consists of 1,000 feet of double jacket hose and 700 feet of single jacket hose.

McKEE GOES IN SEARCH OF CHRISTMAS TREES

William McKee of Griswold street left yesterday on a two-day tour of northern Massachusetts and Vermont. Mr. McKee hopes to purchase one or more carloads of Christmas trees which he will sell in Manchester. He plans to visit the flooded sections of New England while on the business trip, camping out on the way.

Christmas trees may be scarce in Manchester this year, Mr. McKee said, because of the difficulty in moving rolling stock on the railroads that have been damaged by the flood. He hopes to be able to have his trees routed through New York state.

$600 ATTACHMENT ON LOCAL TOBACCO FARM

An attachment was placed yesterday on tobacco farm property and stock in the towns of Manchester and East Hartford owned by Joseph and Alice Winkler by deputies acting for the E. D. Chittenden company of Hartford, fertilizer merchants.

The Chittenden firm asks for $600 damages, part of which is contained in a bill of $357 which the Winklers are said to have contracted in the purchase of six tons of fertilizer at $59.50 a ton. Included in the attachment are seven acres of land, and the contents of a four-acre shed of broodstock tobacco. The tobacco cannot be moved from the place and has been attached as it hangs in the shed. The suit is returnable on the first Tuesday in December.

KIWANIS LADIES NIGHT TO WITNESS SURPRISE

C. P. Quimby, Entertainment Boss, Isn't Telling the Things He's Planned.

Ladies Night will be observed by the Kiwanis Club at the Masonic Temple next Monday evening and plans have been made to accommodate two hundred persons. Guests are coming from Hartford and New Britain.

The program will start with a dinner, served at 6:30, which will be followed by an entertainment. C. P. Quimby is in charge of this feature and is keeping the nature of the entertainment a secret. He said today, however, that he was sure the program would prove satisfactory as well as surprising.

Harlowe Willis is chairman of the general committee and N. B. Richards is in charge of dinner arrangements. Possibly, he may have some venison steak from the Maine woods but this isn't regarded as highly probable, for it is understood his supply is exhausted and likely to remain so until he goes on another hunting trip.

OPEN "SMART SHOP" HERE THIS WEEK

New Store to Sell Popular Priced Dresses, Underwear and Women's Novelties.

A new ladies apparel shop is announced for opening this week in the State Theater building by a group of New York business people. The new store will be known as The Smart Shop and will be located just south of the lobby entrance to the State Theater in the location formerly occupied by Rawicks.

The Smart Shop will deal in popular priced dresses, underwear and all kinds of women's novelties. A direct connection with a large New York wholesale house gives the store the advantage of purchasing in large quantities and as a result, a better retail price on all goods. Some of the best lines obtainable in dresses have been secured for exclusive distribution in Manchester.

In preparing the store for the opening of The Smart Shop the interior has been entirely renovated. The woodwork and walls have been painted in ivory and mulberry giving a rich finish to the store. The windows have been remodeled and so arranged that attractive displays can be placed in them.

The store will be in charge of a group of New York managers and efficient service is assured to all its patrons. Herald readers are urged to read the opening announcements of The Smart Shop which will be carried in The Herald advertising columns this week.

RED CROSS

If there is one cause the solicitation of funds for which should require no boasting, it is that of the Red Cross. Also a Red Cross campaign is the hardest kind of campaign to boost, try as you may...

Manchester's Red Cross is about to ask the people of the town for the little annual contribution from each person, the driplets which, united, constitute the community's substantial bit to be joined to the offerings of every other town, city and hamlet in the country in the creation of the great reservoir of helpfulness which has so often stemmed the tide of misery that threatened to overwhelm it.

It has been a year of many demands. The Mississippi floods brought opportunity and obligation—opportunity for the Red Cross to once more prove its inestimable worth, obligation to see hundreds of thousands of their homeless victims through their period of stress and agony. It cost millions. And now, close at home, the victims of the New England inundations are being fended for, kept from unspeakable wretchedness, by the same dauntless Red Cross.

It is not much that the Red Cross asks from each of us. Surely this is no year to meet the asking with denial.

REBUILT CRIMINALS

An extremely interesting case in criminology is that of a young man belonging to a prominent Staten Island family whose defense to a charge of automobile theft is that he was in an abnormal physical condition which caused the development of criminal tendencies at the time of the robbery but that the evil instincts have now been removed by surgical and medical treatment.

The young man, whose name is Lyle, ordered an automobile in a Staten Island show room and asked for a demonstration. At the end of a mile ride in the country he displayed a revolver, it is charged, and ordered the salesman to get out and take to the woods. Then he drove away in the car. Afterward he was arrested.

An alienist who had been connected with the Thaw case testified at a preliminary hearing that sinus trouble had prevented proper circulation of blood in Lyle's brain, causing criminal propensities, and the case went over pending an operation. The sinus operation was performed and also Lyle's tonsils were removed, five abscessed teeth were extracted, there was an operation for intestinal trouble and treatment for abnormal blood pressure.

When he was all fixed up, criminal propensities amputated and everything, it was expected by Lyle's friends that the case would be dropped. But the salesman, who may have colds in the head and headaches himself but still felt that he ought to behave himself, objected so strenuously that it has been necessary to bring the Lyle chap to trial.

In all probability there will be a stiff effort made to show that the sinus trouble and the bad teeth, not Lyle, was responsible for the gunplay and the automobile theft, and that the good, healthy young Lyle who is being tried is not at all the diseased, criminal young Lyle who turned the felonious trick; that to punish him for it would be, in effect, to punish him for the deed of a quite different person. If it should succeed there will automatically be added to the already large number of ways of dodging the penalties of crime a device which most certainly will become popular, especially among those criminals whose connections are so respectable that the easiest thing imaginable is to conclude that "he must have been out of his mind." But maybe it won't succeed.

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY Those Manchester poetry lovers who attended the own-poetry reading of Edna St. Vincent Millay at Hartford last night might well have been a bit surprised over two matters concerning the personality of the Maine girl who stands pretty much at the head of the list of American woman versifiers.

One of these points is the utter physical and temperamental contrast provided by the petite, sandy headed, essential feminine Millay and the robust, dominating figure and manner of that other great woman poet the late Amy Lowell, with which so many New Englanders were familiar.

It would be difficult to conceive of two women more unlike in looks, size and personality than these two gifted songsters; and yet upon both there had rested the endowment of inborn genius, differing in some of its manifestations, to be sure, but one in the sublime quality of setting rare and beautiful thoughts to the divine music of the spoken word.

The other point—and that is what is especially interesting and must have been brought forcibly to the minds of Miss Millay's audience—is that this thinker of wonderful thought and builder of wonderful phrasings, small and slender and friendly and ingenuous, should be one of those who ramped the streets of Boston in defiance of the majesty of the law and of authority to the end that the world should notice the thing that was being done at Sacco and Vasselti.

One wonders whether some of the folks in that Hartford audience did not speculate, afterward, about that tragedy of the electric chair—whether there may not have been at least as much of righteousness to the poet's protest as to the verdict of the courts.

RIVAL PORTS

Portland, Me., looms as another and powerful rival for the location of the terminal of the four-day steamship line, as against New London and Montauk Point. In behalf of the Maine port it is held out that already the terminal facilities there are already adequate for the handling of a huge amount of passenger business in an entirely acceptable way.

This may very well be true, and it may very well be true that so far as matters of present dockage are concerned the Maine port actually has something on the Connecticut candidate. But if the promoters of the proposed line permit themselves to be influenced by such an entirely minor matter as this, then we shall miss our guess. Interests which could jealously contemplate the expenditure of scores of millions of dollars in the founding of a terminal at Montauk Point, would not seem likely to be heavily influenced by a possible saving of a few hundred thousand dollars in the cost of adapting the New London terminal to passenger business when the alternative would be the adoption of a location a whole day's journey farther away from New York and the west.

If the Boston and Maine railroad were fostering this new steamship line, then the selection of Portland as its American terminal might have, from that company's exclusive viewpoint, certain points of advantage. But when the fundamental idea is to shorten the time between the centers of population in the United States and the ports of Europe, then Portland would appear to have about as much chance of selection as Oskaloosa.

STUPID

As the Fall jury tampering inquiry proceeds there comes a change in the color of the light thrown on the Burns Detective Agency. At first the public was quite set to learn that this celebrated organization, believed by the majority of people to be an able upholder of the law, was capable of being engaged in the dubious business of endeavoring to invalidate one of the most important trials in the country's history by bedeviling members of the jury. What, the citizen asked himself, are we coming to if we have to combat not only gigantic conspiracies but also the unofficial police of the country, with their infinite skill and cleverness, into the bargain?

Now, however, the same citizen has reason to believe that it may not, after all, insure success for the crooks to have on their side even the extraordinary cleverness of the Burns. Because the clever Burns seem to have been very far from clever indeed; so far from clever that they did not suspect that they were employing at least one government agent who carried every Burns move straight back to the federal authorities. There is less to fear from detective agencies as stupid as this, even if they do see fit to ally themselves on the side of law-breakers, than if they had as much sense as the office cat, which at least can tell the difference between another cat and a bulldog.

"FAMILY TIES"

The Presbyterian church of America contemplates the elimination of desertion as a sanctioned cause for divorce "in an effort to strengthen the family ties of the nation."

What the Presbyterian church does in the line of countenancing or discountenancing divorce is, we should think, a moral and religious matter to be handled according to the religious and moral convictions of the governing body of the organization; but just how the step just now proposed can have any effect in strengthening ties between deserted wives and deserting husbands living in parts unknown is a cut beyond our comprehension.

How oft against the sunset sky or moon

I watched that moving sign of spread wings in forgotten Autumn gone too soon.

In forgotten Springs! Creatures of desolation, far they fly

Above all lands bound by the curling foam; In misty, fens, wild moors and trackless sky

These wild things have their home. They know the tundra of Siberian coasts

And tropic marshes by the Indian seas; They know the clouds and night and starry hosts

From Crux to Pleiades. Dark flying rune against the western glow

It tells the sweep and loneliness of things. Symbol of Autumn vanished long ago!

Symbol of coming Springs! —Frederick Peterson: Wild Geese.

SKY LOSING ITS BLUE AS SOME "CLOUDINESS" ALTERS ITS APPEARANCE

London—That the sky is losing its blue is the opinion of Sir Napier Shaw, one of the world's most eminent meteorological experts and formerly head of the British Meteorological Office. Something strange is happening to the sky, according to Sir Napier, something which is altering its appearance and its climatic behavior. That something, according to this authority, may be "some cloudiness which is not cloud," but rather some foreign substance perhaps connected with a mammoth unrecorded volcanic upheaval in remote parts.

"The sky is a very pale blue and has been so for eighteen months," Sir Napier declared in an interview. "The loss of blueness could be measured by apparatus, but it is quite obvious, and you can see almost any time, during sunrise, that the sky is not the proper blue it should be."

Somewhere At Sea.—(Homeward Bound)—Sea-sawing up and down the "fratricidal Atlantic," I find myself in a deck chair adjoining that of Dorothy Caruso, widow of the great tenor who will be wed this winter to Alexander Moore, the former ambassador to Spain.

Moore, you will recall, was married to the late Lillian Russell. And Mrs. Moore Caruso, upon a certain time twilight confessed how annoying become the questions of the world as to the breakfast food of M. Caruso, how he shaved himself and how he behaved on the nights of great triumph. And so, she said, she had put it all into a book.

And, upon another twilight, she told me of poor Michael Arlen, whom she has seen in St. Moritz. And this merry wag, it is said, battles in the mountains against death. What a tragic ending for a fellow so young and clever!

And so to a game of bridge with Winifred Shackville Stoner, poetess the most famous prodigy of this generation. At 11 she could speak half a dozen languages, or something, recite the history of the world and all that. And my partner, was Mona Morgan, the Shakespearean actress, who was the former leading lady for Walter Hampden. And for all the brilliance of Miss Stoner, we collected several dozen francs.

Will someone please tell me how one wins a ship pool?

Then for a walk with James Gerard, our ambassador to Germany during the war. And he told me a tale of how, when America was hesitating about plunging in, the Kaiser remarked: "But America can't get in. We have 500,000 Germans in America ready to take up arms if war is declared."

To which Gerard replied: "Yes, your majesty, and we have 500,000 lamp posts to hang them on if they try it."

But I gathered that the Kaiser had a human and merry moment and that his son, in spite of all the fun that has been poked at him, is an intelligent and decent fellow.

Next morning for a walk around the deck with General "Billy" Mitchell. America can't get in. We have 500,000 Germans in America ready to take up arms if war is declared. And the general was just back from flying around Russia, which, he said, seemed in fine shape, though he had difficulties in getting in. We have 500,000 Germans in America ready to take up arms if war is declared.

But one finds that anywhere in Europe. Moscow seemed in better financial shape than most of the cities in Europe, while the opera, the theater and the ballet were giving some of the finest productions he had ever seen; the theaters were crowded and the prices were high.

But there was much congestion in Moscow, since the population has jumped amazingly since the revolution.

Then for a chat with Madeline Kettle, the Boston girl, who has been appearing in grand opera in Paris, Lisbon, Italy and way points, though America heard her only when she was in her toddling steps and was being taken on tour by Fontaine Gail. And to luncheon with Fred Kelly, the Ohio wag who writes "Kellygrams," and who had been wandering all over Ireland looking for his home town.

And with him Robert Brinkerhoff, the cartoonist, who makes as much fun over great food as a Frenchman. For which, after some slight experience with the chef of the Paris I cannot blame him.

And so, upon the "party" night, to dance with Pearl White, who once was heroine of the "Perils of Pauline," but who has been abroad for many a year. And there were Moss and Fontaine, those famous ball-room dancers, who made my telephonic efforts seem sad indeed, even when my partner happened to be Mrs. W. C. Bobbs, widow of the Indianapolis publisher who has been abroad painting.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER Washington, Nov. 15.—A few nights ago the National Press club held a meeting to vote on its new constitution. A newspaper correspondent was called out of the meeting to answer a telephone call.

The voice on the other end of the wire was of such quality that the correspondent thought a drunken man must be talking to him. It advised him that he and the mysterious caller were not known to each other, but that the correspondent was known to the latter by reputation.

According to the correspondent the other man talked vaguely and not very coherently. The other man said he had something to tell about the "Sinclair trial." But he was so mysterious and ambiguous that the reporter became impatient, after vainly trying to learn what it was all about.

Finally, he hung up, asking the mysterious stranger to come to his office and see him. That correspondent has been kicking himself ever since.

Later that evening, a desk man on a Washington paper received a telephone call from one J. Ray Akers, a street car conductor, who asked whether the newspaper was interested in "a new lead" on the Fall-Sinclair trial.

There was considerable hesitation and hemming and hawing, before Mr. Akers, according to subsequent affidavits, added that there would be a "hung jury," and that he had been so informed by Edward J. Kidwell, one of the jurors.

The newspaperman succeeded in making an appointment with Akers. According to subsequent affidavits, they went to a barroom on South-west 4 1/2 street, where Kidwell indulged in indiscreet conversation about the possibilities of reward in case Sinclair and Fall were acquitted.

The newspaper which Akers had interested in the story subsequently put over a tremendous "scoop" when it announced three days later that the government would ask that a mistrial be declared and that the evidence was such that the mistrial would be granted. Akers and the newspaperman furnished two of the affidavits in which the mistrial decision was based and these affidavits repeated Kidwell's alleged remarks.

In the old days, before prohibition, ubiquitous private detectives and sometimes even newspapermen, it is to be feared—occasionally took unsuspecting persons to saloons and bought liquor for them until they gave up the information that was sought. Everyone, of course, knows that tendency of more men to talk more than he should when under liquor's influence.

But the little place on 4 1/2 street is a "soft drink parlor" despite its exact resemblance of an old time saloon and it is less than two blocks from the Prohibition Unit headquarters, so it is hardly to be supposed that Akers, in revealing his story, acted under the influence of anything except pure patriotism or that Kidwell's tongue was loosened by anything other than a frank and naive disposition.

We entered the dingy little dump while looking for Akers. We were quickly assured that no beer or liquor was for sale. In fact, the only refreshments available were bottled ginger-ale and lemon soda for five cents a bottle. Yet, it appeared that these soft drinks were popular enough and profitable enough to keep the place in operation. We two reporters certainly were impressed with the commercial possibilities of five-cent lemon soda and five-cent ginger-ale.

It certainly was a quaint little hole—this soft drink barroom in a dirty part of Washington, where one of the most momentous criminal trials in American history had been upset by a garrulous leather worker-juror and a street car conductor who had to tell the world what he heard!

There was more to the evidence demanding a declaration of mistrial than what was said behind those greasy swinging doors, however. That evidence was supplemented, and in fact overshadowed, by the rather grim discovery that the jurors were being shadowed by private detectives. The connecting link between the Kidwell incident and the raid on the headquarters of Burns detectives when reports of operatives were seized by U. S. assistant district attorneys has not been revealed. Perhaps there wasn't any.

The jurors, who now express the most bitter enmity toward Kidwell, never realized that their every movement was being shadowed or that detectives whom the government says were in Sinclair's employ were trying to make contacts with them.

"Who tipped you off to the shadowing—a juror?" one of the government officials was asked. "No," said he. "A detective."

"I can't tell you," he replied. "One of the assistant district attorneys was questioned in exactly the same manner and replied in exactly the same words."

Sixteen detectives are alleged to have been on the job at one time. Whether one of them "sold out" to the government, as private detectives have been known to do, may become public information in the near future.

BEERY AND HATTON AT THE STATE NOW

'Now We're in the Air' Is Their Funniest — Butcher Shop on Thursday Night.

Aviation is a serious proposition but Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in their latest picture, 'Now We're in the Air,' which has its run at the State theater today and tomorrow, show that it can be a humorous affair.

For instance, there is the funny side to being stranded in a balloon thousands of feet in the air, with anti-aircraft guns shooting away parts of the rigging.

First the two of them, chased by a hard-boiled top sergeant, run into a wind tunnel where propellers are being tested. They emerge from this ordeal without a stitch of clothing on them, and immediately get into another mess.

Back of the German lines in pursuit of a spy, they get inside a camouflage cow and then the fun begins for them. They are acclaimed as the greatest of the German spies and are sent out to do some more work for the Fatherland.

On Friday and Saturday 'The Blood Ship' and 'One Woman and Another' will be the features. Sunday afternoon will bring the benefit show for the East Hartford food victims.

VAUDEVILLE BILL AT RIALTO 2 DAYS

Three Acts and Ten Reels of Movies Start Tonight; Brief Facts About Vaudeville.

Three acts of vaudeville will be shown at the Rialto Theatre tonight in conjunction with ten reels of moving pictures. The feature film is, 'Publicity Madness' with an all-star cast. In addition, there will be a comedy and news weekly.

The vaudeville entertainment is furnished by Clements Entertainment bureau of Hartford. The three acts they sent out last week to other theaters in the vaudeville season here drew large audiences and this week is expected to be no exception.

The first act on the program tonight will be Mabelle Barnes in vocal selections. Miss Barnes is a very charming young lady, has a beautiful voice, costume changes and is very popular. Her program is especially adapted for mixed audiences.

Next will appear Chouinard and Logan, better known throughout New England as the 'Dancing Sals' boys. They are a pair of fast stepping boys who put on a very snappy program and engagements for their services always have to be way in advance because of the demand for their appearances.

The third and final act will introduce Ernest K. Scheldge in an exhibition of magic and ventriloquism. Mr. Scheldge is a master of both arts. His program of magic is complete in itself and provides a very popular entertainment.

ACTED IN SELF DEFENSE
Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 15.—Thomas Curran, 60, has been in jail here on a charge of first degree murder since November third when he stabbed and killed James Reynolds, 33, in a street brawl. Coroner John J. Phelan today issued a finding in which he announces Curran was justified in stabbing Reynolds.

According to the coroner, the two men met on a street corner in Bridgeport and after a conversation Reynolds attacked Curran, beating and kicking him until Curran managed to draw a pocket knife and defend himself. Curran plunged the knife into Reynolds' right side three times, inflicting a wound that had fatal results some hours afterward.

The stabbing, Coroner Phelan finds, was an act of self-defense.

MOTHER
A Cross, Sick Child is Constipated! Look at Tongue

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given. If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste.

MOTHERS can rest easy after giving this harmless, 'fruitly laxative' because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste.

The BENSON MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE © CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

THIS HAS HAPPENED
After preventing the arrest of several suspected persons, Vance promises to solve the mystery on certain date. He works up hypothetical cases against all those persons involved and then turns them to a—prepare Markham to accept his case against the real murderer. He takes Markham to Major Benson's apartment to check up on the Major's alibi.

CHAPTER LIV
WHEN the boy had left us, Vance turned a pleading gaze upon Markham.
"Now, old man, for the protection of society, and the higher demands of justice, and the greatest good for the greatest number, and pro bono publico, and that sort of thing, you must once more adopt a course of conduct contrary to your innate promptings—or whatever the phrase you used. Vulgarly put, I want to snoop through the Major's apartment at once."

Markham was vehement in his remonstrances, but Vance was equally vehement in his insistence; and a few minutes later we were trespassing, by means of a pass-key, in Major Benson's apartment.

Vance walked directly back into the living-room. On the right-hand wall was a fireplace and a mantel on which sat an old-fashioned mahogany clock.

Next to the mantel, in the far corner, stood a small table containing a silver ice-water service consisting of a pitcher and six goblets.

"There is our very convenient clock," said Vance. "And there is the pitcher in which the boy put the ice—imitation Sheffield plate."

He turned and stood a moment looking into the passage-way.

"The boy could easily have seen the light go out in the bedroom, if the door was open. The reflection on the glazed white wall of the passage would have been quite brilliant."

Then, retracing his steps, he entered the bedroom. It contained a small canopy bed facing the door, and beside it stood a night-table on which was an electric lamp.

Sitting down on the edge of the bed, he looked about him, and turned the lamp on and off by the socket-chain. Presently he fixed his eyes on Markham.

"You see how the Major got out without the boy's knowing it—eh, what?"

"By levitation, I suppose," submitted Markham.

"It amounted to that, at any rate," replied Vance. "I induced the genius, too. Listen, Markham:—At half past twelve the Major rang for cracked ice. The boy brought it, and when he entered he looked in through the door, which was open, and saw the Major in bed."

"The Major told him to put the ice in the pitcher in the living-room. The boy walked on down the passage and across the living-room to the table in the corner. The Major then called to him to learn the time by the clock on the mantel. The boy looked: it was half past twelve."

"The Major replied that he was not to be disturbed again, said good-night, turned off this light on this night-table, jumped out of bed—he was dressed, of course—and stepped quickly out into the public hall before the boy had time to empty the ice and return to the passage."

Home Page Editorial WOMEN WANT TO BE ONLY WOMEN

By Olive Roberts Barton
Dr. George Dorsey wrote in his book "Why We Behave Like Human Beings":
"Shorn of her locks and dressed in man's costume, woman is still woman."

In another place he says, "A man is a man to his very thumb, and a woman is a woman down to her little toes."

Now Dr. Dorsey has six letters after his name and he ought to know. He has studied race history from Adam down. I am afraid we must heed what he says and if possible make husbands listen in also—those who have husbands!

To those who have not, we might suggest that the doubting Thomases, the Missourians, and the Bluebeards are ripe for missionary work.

Women are not trying to be men, and they are not trying to play men's roles. But there are many men who believe religiously that they are. After woman's place in politics and its attendant discussion has been dead and buried for years, what does a man up and say and do recently? That the nineteenth amendment ought to be repealed!

I don't believe women want careers—not first, last and all the time, anyway. I believe that "women are women to their little toes." They want homes, but decent ones. If they can't play the role of

Time: have changed. Have men changed to meet the emergency? Very little. Have women? Yes. Not by nature, but by adapting themselves to circumstances. They have done it unusually well.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

"Why do people find eating the only way in which to enjoy themselves?" a friend of mine asked the other day as she found two dinner, three bridge-tea, and four bridge-luncheon invitations in her morning mail. "Sometimes it seems to me that I just can't look another bowl of cream of mushroom soup, and other plate of chicken salad with stuffed olives and celery at the side, another chocolate éclair, or dish of salted nuts, in the face. And where do people get the money?"

Sometimes I wonder if we are a nation of gourmets. We talk about our simplicity of living, our balanced meals, our economy and thrift, but every middle class home knows the taste of anchovy paste and whipped cream desserts. The average Sunday dinner in the great American home would be a king's banquet to most peoples of earth.

"People aren't interested in food any more," the woman at my right said at a club luncheon the other day, eating her lobster a la king with gusto and beaming upon the dessert plates with their great gobs of ice cream, fruit and whipped cream which the waiter was bearing in.

"Yes," said I politically, "why is it then that we can't think of business without getting our 'prospect' to tea or lunch or breakfast or dine with us, and why we can't even think of entertainment in any sense but refreshments? Why is it that we spend practically ten times as much per capita for food in this country than the next nation of best-eaters does?"

Of course the answer to the last question is obvious—we have more to spend. It's not, perhaps, that we eat or prefer food more than other human beings; it's just that we can get what we want and need, and they can't. And yet—what moanings we hear from people about how they must lose their homes and can't have a winter coat and the children need dental care, and how many people we see economizing in each and every way except in the obvious one of setting a plainer but just as nourishing a table.

In fact, I believe that just because of the proportionate wealth of this country, our food is less nourishing and healthful than that of more poverty-stricken nations. An occasional Sunday dinner of roast beef and rice pudding would be much better for most families than the children's vest dental care and vanilla ice cream.

What a confession we all must make of the absence of our own resources when a guest means to us simply more and more expensive foods, table favors, and the best linen and silver.

To be sure, our busy, complex, modern world answers largely why we always combine our recreational and social life with eating. One must have lunch and dinner, we reason, and since it is possible to eat and listen at the same time, why not be efficient?

But with all explanations aside, I am almost convinced that from the time of Eve herself, food at its preparation has been by very nature woman's basic interest, so much so that even today when she "kicks herself" that she has expand-

POMAINES OFTEN CONFUSED WITH PARATYPHOID GERM
BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Of all the misnomers that have seized upon the popular fancy the term "pomaine poisoning" seems most difficult to eradicate.

Actually most of the cases of so-called pomaine poisoning represent infections with bacteria of the colon-typhoid group, and principally the germ known as paratyphoid B.

In a series of cases recently collected this germ was isolated from crab-meat, oysters, ice cream, sausages, corned-beef hash and several other foods. The germs of course can get into any kind of food that are not properly protected against contamination.

What We Think In Sports

By THOMAS W. STOWE

CUB LINE STRONGER?

When the Cubs and Cloverleaves clash next Sunday to settle the town championship, the work of the forwards of both teams will be a deciding factor although they will probably not get one-tenth of the credit given backfield men. This is a mistake. A backfield is, to a great extent, made either a success or a failure by its forward line. And so it will be Sunday. All of which leads to the discussion as to which team has the better line.

Arguments prevail in favor of both teams in this respect, but it is my notion that the Cubs have a stronger line than the Cloverleaves defensively, at least. A man-to-man comparison tends to bear this out although games with the Wallingford Eagles were further proof. Young Felix Moszer, left end for the Cubs, would not surprise, if he proves to be the outstanding defensive lineman in the game. He is sure-tackler and menace to any interference formation. But while Moszer looks the best of all the ends, he hasn't a margin to brag about over Ted McCarthy of the Cloverleaves. The latter is another dandy defensive player but isn't quite as aggressive. Billy Schoneski, the third best end on the teams, looks better than anyone the Cubs have except Moszer.

The tackle positions seem to be a "clean sweep" for the Cubs. The Cloverleaves have Ambrose, Cosco, A. Moszer and Coughlin for this assignment and the first two may start. Camillo Vendrillo, Walter Harrison, Captain Jimmy Finnegan and Jim Quinn, give the Cubs a quartet of tackles in which there are at least two players better than those over north.

Although the south end considers Red Happeney the best of all the guards, my vote goes to Willie Mullen, left guard for the Cloverleaves. "Whitay" is a tower of strength on the offensive as well as the defense and his size should prove to his advantage. Happeney is good but Mullen looks a shade better. Happeney has one advantage over Mullen, that of being a reliable place-kicker. At the other guard "Big Jake" Greenberg, if he starts, should have the edge over the rangy Lippencott, whose biggest fault seems to be high tackling. The Cubs also have a strong defensive player in Merrer.

At center, it looks like a toss-up. The Cloverleaves have Cy Tyler and Charlie Smith; the Cubs have Al Pentore and Sobby Vendrillo. If anybody gets the edge, it looks like the Cloverleaves because of Tyler's ability to break through and block punts and Smith's ability to get many tackles. Pentore and Vendrillo, however, are exceptionally aggressive and may outshine their rivals.

The biggest fault of both lines will probably be the inclination to tackle high instead of low. McCarthy, Moszer and Schoneski will grab 'em around the shoulders, but many of the others may handicap their team's cause by high and inaccurate tackling. This is often the case when the feeling between two teams is not what it might be.

Keith's Bowling Team Strong One

Keith's Specials defeated Keith's Go-Getters in a special bowling match last night at the Center alleys. The margin was 1,782 to 1,279. Ed Kratt, the oldest member of the Keith's Specials was the highest bowler of the match with a three-string of 808.

Summary of bowling scores for Keith's Specials and Go-Getters.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Coach Doble was giving his badly pounded Cornell warriors a rest today with scrimmage postponed until Wednesday when the squad, still suffering from the Dartmouth massacre, gets down to training for Pennsylvania.

Cambridge, Nov. 15.—Harvard gridgers, fresh from a Monday lay-off, reported early today for the first of a three-day session of intensive drill as the varsity prepares to indulge in the traditional Yale affair. Confidence that Harvard will turn in its almost annual victory prevails despite Yale's great showing this year.

Loses But 8 Games During 11 Seasons

By BILLY EVANS

Knute Rockne is one of the most interesting figures in the sport world. If there is anyone who doesn't have the lowdown on this fellow Rockne, he is the football coach at Notre Dame.

In all probability, Mr. Knute Rockne is one of the very few, if not the only coach, who doesn't have to worry from year to year as to his football berth. The reason: Knute Rockne always delivers, no matter how many stars he may lose from year to year. Somehow, among the freshmen class he always seems to have in reserve, players just as good.

It was in 1918 that the name of Rockne first broke into the headlines. He was then a star player. It was that year that the forward pass combination of Dorals at quarter to Rockne at end smothered a great Army team 35-13 and was the street of an amazing string of victories over the West Pointers.

Rockne was the captain of that team as well as an outstanding star. In 1917 he took over the coaching reins. His captain that year was Jimmy Phelan, now head coach at Purdue, the man who treated Harvard to a real surprise this year by trimming the Crimson, 19-0.

In the 10 years that Rockne has coached at Notre Dame, prior to this year, his record reveals 83 victories, eight defeats and two ties.

ROCKNE'S RECORD

Eighty-three victories in 93 starts is the remarkable record made by Coach Knute Rockne in the 10 years that he has spent at Notre Dame prior to the present season. He has hopes of going through 1927 undefeated, bringing the string of wins to 93.

Table showing Rockne's record with captains in charge from 1917 to 1926.

In 93 games played, victories in the first five games of the present season brings the games won total to 88, a most remarkable record. Despite the fact that Notre Dame for years has played the hardest sort of schedules, in no season has a Rockne-coached team lost more than two games. In three of the 10 years, his teams were undefeated.

Football experts look on Rockne's team of 1924 as his greatest achievement. That was the year he gave to the football world the "Four Horsemen," another name for one of the greatest backfields in the history of the game, composed of Stuhldreher, Crowley, Miller and Layden.

While Rockne has produced countless great players at Notre Dame, I have his word for it that he regards George Gipp as his greatest. He goes even further by saying there was a great back field star.

Local Sport Chatter

Sunday's town championship football game between the Cubs and the Cloverleaves will start promptly at 2 o'clock with out of town officials in charge. The result will be split winner-take-all. The agreements call for the game to be played regardless of weather conditions.

Five members of the S. M. H. S. football squad dropped off the team at yesterday's practice. They were utility players and will not handicap Coach Kelley any in his preparation for the Windham game Saturday. A scrimmage was on the program for this afternoon.

Both the Cubs and Cloverleaves are practicing four nights this week in preparation for their game Sunday. Both Coach George Moonan and Jack Dwyer are working hard in effort to get the best possible polish. The starting lineups have not been announced. The Cloverleaves, however, will probably use McCarthy and Schoneski, ends; Cosco, Moszer or Ambrose, tackles; Mullen, Lippencott, guards; Tyler, center; Moonan, quarter; B. Moake and McLaughlin or Benny, halfbacks; W. Moake, fullback.

The North Ends will hold a meeting at 845 North Main street tonight at 7 o'clock. All members are requested to be present. Plans will be laid for a benefit dance to be run at Turn Hall for injured players.

The year 1927 corresponds with the year 5687-8 of the Jewish era.

Britain May Withdraw Teams From Olympiad

By DAVIS J. WALSH, I. N. S. Sports Editor.

New York, Nov. 15.—Complete withdrawal of all of Great Britain's athletic teams from the Olympic games at Amsterdam some six months hence was a strong possibility today, according to advice received from London. The British, it seems, have become rigidly opposed to the practice, in vogue on the other side, of payment of sums of money to competing soccer players for so-called "broken time" during the games and are inclined to make their withdrawal stand as an official expression of their displeasure.

The official view, as expressed by the British Olympic Association today, was that the status of their own athletes would be effected by competition with Europeans who, in the opinion of the English, were professionalizing themselves and that possibly they would not be justified in engaging in such an association. This view was expressed upon receipt of information from Lausanne that the executive committee of the International Olympic Association had voted to continue the policy of permitting "broken time" payments during the next games.

That the British threat is no idle one may be judged from the fact that the English soccer football team was withdrawn from the 1924 games in Paris. However, to a man on a limb, it would appear that the scratching of an entire entry list just because your soccer men may feel themselves contaminated by association with "broken time" amateurs is going rather far and possibly the British will come to feel that way about it before the mobilization at Amsterdam begins.

U. S. Only English Team. If they did decide to turn up absent, it would mean that the United States would be the only English-speaking team at the games, unless Canada, Australia and South Africa decided to go it alone. It also would mean that three defending champions, Harold Abrahams in the 100 metre dash; Eric Liddell in the 400 metre run and Douglas Lowe in the 800 metre event, would not be among those present, to say nothing of Stalder, star middle distance runner, and Lord Burghley, a leading hurdler.

In brief, a British withdrawal, in part or in toto, is not desirable from any standpoint and, therefore, it is to be assumed that it will not be permitted to occur. The "broken time" proposition has its antagonists and protagonists, the latter halting from Continental Europe and the former being found in England and the United States. We, however, take a more passive view of the situation than do the British.

The plan, at that, has its points but, as the fellow said, so has a barbed wire fence. Anyhow, it helps to take care of the families of artisans and others whose wages stop automatically when the husband and father hies him away to the field of honor, or something. While he is gone, at least part of his wages is paid, thus removing an unnatural burden from his manly shoulders.

Of course, that, strictly speaking, is not quite the way for a gentleman amateur or an amateur gentleman to act. And what of it, if at all?

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 15.—With Ursinus on the program for Saturday, the great Army machine was doing its practicing chores today with little or no effort. Army came through the Notre Dame victory with no serious casualties. Nave, flashy quarter, whose leg was hurt a few minutes after he had dashed fifty yards to a touchdown, had recovered today.

FOUR MATCHES AT MURPHY'S, LIST OF ELIGIBLE PLAYERS

S. M. H. S. T. S. Facilities Clash; Two Matches at 7:30 and Two at 9 O'Clock; The Pairings.

Pins start falling tonight in the newly organized Commercial Bowling League at Murphy's alleys. There are eight teams in the league, all apparently on a par. The circuit is expected to prove a big success. Keen interest is being taken by all participants.

Because only four alleys are now available for use at one time on Tuesday nights, it will be necessary for two matches to be rolled at 7:30 and the remaining two at 9 o'clock or as soon as the first ones are over. The 7:30 match tonight will bring together the High and Trade school faculty "Aves" and Manchester Trust vs Atlantic & Pacific Stores. The 9 o'clock match will pair up Keith's Furniture Company vs Manchester Plumbing and Shipy and Watkin Brothers vs Manchester Construction Company.

Following are the lineups of the teams: Manchester Plumbing & Supply: Fred T. Blish, Jr., Joseph Barrett, David Tindal, Wilfred Smith, Martin Alvord, R. L. Carter, F. T. Blish and Raymond Gardner. Watkin Brothers: Edward Glessner, Joseph Sergeant, William Wiganowski, John Lovett, Raymond Hennequin, Harold Richmond, Ralph Hennequin, Harry Roth, Frank Limbacher, Eskil Buckland. Manchester Construction Company: William A. Knoth, Albert C. Knoth, Arthur A. Knoth, Elmer C. Knoth, Frederick C. Knoth, John Ther, Clayton Gilbert, Alex

Andersson, Oscar Johnson, Iver Scott. South Manchester High School: Chester Robinson, Charles Wigren, Thomas Kelley, Ralph Broctor, Henry Miller, Warren James, Philip Emery, Francis Lee, Edson Bailey, Clarence Quirby. Manchester Trust Company: Harold Alvord, Thomas Clarke, Reid Richardson, Russell Hathaway, Robert Gorman, James McKay, John Corley, Vincent Ingraham, Clarence Thomson. Keith Furniture Company: G. E. Keith, W. I. Keith, E. T. Keith, Edward Kratt, L. L. Hennequin, J. Shalen, Wallace Pralle, Edward Modcan, Clarence LaCos, R. Sanderson.

Trade School: John Ehmalian, William Roscoe, A. A. Warren, Paul Volguarden, Ralph Kingsley, Harry Kitching, Thomas Orchard, Alex McBride, Howard Fisher, Robert Taylor.

All teams must submit a forfeit of ten dollars to Treasurer Harold Alvord tonight. The league is being run on points, not percentage, and players should remember that four points are at stake in every match, one for each of the three games and the other total pinfall.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At Philadelphia—Tommy Laughran outpointed Pat McCarthy, Boston, ten rounds. At New York—Hilario Martinez, outpointed Andy Divodi, ten rounds; Joe Gluck, Williamsburgh, outpointed Jack Berstein, ten rounds; Bruce Flowers outpointed Sammy Vogel, ten rounds; Clyde Hull, South Dakota, knocked out Johnny Indrisano, Boston, first round. At Holyoke, Mass.—Jimmy Becker of Bayonne was defeated by Frankie Curcio of Providence, R. I., ten rounds.

We know what we like, don't we, Old Pipe!

PRINCE ALBERT, and plenty of it, huh? Well, we can justify that on any number of counts. It's more than mere preference. There are sound reasons for liking Prince Albert above anything else.

Take fragrance, for instance. P.A. has 'em all stopped there. Every time I open the tidy red tin, I get a brand-new thrill. A tobacco that smells like that would have to be good, if you ask me. Yes, Sir!

And then take taste. Every puff tells a man that P.A. is cool and refreshing, with a mellow-mildness that is a revelation. Mild, yes, but not wishy-washy. P.A.'s rich, full-bodied flavor balances its mildness and makes it a smoker!

But all the talk in the world won't do a man any good, unless he acts on it. A load of long-burning P.A. in the bowl of his pipe will tell him volumes—and in language he likes. It's the personal test that counts, after all. I don't believe I can add to that.

School Heads and Teachers of State Will Meet at Sheridan Thursday.

There will be a meeting of the Connecticut Round Table Association, which consists of school superintendents, principals and male teachers, at the Hotel Sheridan at 6:30 Thursday night.

There will be a debate on "The Objective of Modern Language Teaching." A college professor will argue that the mental training involved in a formal study language, laying particular stress on drill in word construction, is more beneficial to the pupil than the utilitarian value of the language itself. He will be opposed by a representative of high school teaching, who will defend the claim that the more important thing is to know the language and enjoy it.

Superintendent William A. Strong of Deep River is president of the association and Past-President C. P. Quimby is to be the champion of this meeting. Between fifty and sixty persons are expected to attend.

Piles Into Parked Car Then Takes Nap in Woods at South End.

Arthur C. Bazinet, of 16 Prospect street, Willimantic, pleaded guilty to a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor in Manchester Police Court this morning and Deputy Judge Thomas Ferguson imposed a fine of $125 and costs.

Bazinet was arrested last night by Sergeant John Crockett after an automobile accident on South Main street when an Essex coach he was driving smashed into a parked Buick sedan owned by Alexander Eagleson of 127 Cooper Hill street.

Eagleson's car was parked on the west side of the street facing north and the parking lights were on when Bazinet's car, coming south on the street, crashed into it. Both machines were considerably damaged. When the officer arrived he found Bazinet lying in the woods nearby.

EMBLEM CLUB PLANS A SOCIAL MEETING

The Emblem club which has many members among Manchester women, will have a social meeting at the Elks home in Rockville tomorrow at 2:30. A large turnout is hoped for as plans will be discussed for a benefit whist at the Elks home some evening in December.

The club is very proud of the fact that its float won first prize in Rockville's Armistice Day parade, $10 in gold, with the Elks coming in second. The float was decorated in purple and white.

Several of Rockville's prettiest girls represented Charity, Justice and Truth, with Uncle Sam in front. All credit is due to Eric Crawshaw of the J. W. Hale Company who decorated the float.

Priests will be in attendance from Hartford, Rockville and Springfield. Those who usually attend the 10:30 mass are requested to attend the 9:30 mass next Sunday in order that there may be plenty of room for the members of the confirmation class and their relatives and friends.

Let me park in a car by the side of the road and hug the daughters of man. Church membership without religion is as useless as an automobile without an engine. The breadwinner of the garage is the mechanic who can listen to your motor and tell you what you must have done for $27.50.

If every motorist would memorize the following, it would be a piece of accident prevention: 'When I am driving on the street Where little folks I'm apt to meet, Who dash across the street in play—I hope I'll drive in just the way That I would drive if mine were there Upon that crowded thorough-fare.'

The only time a horse gets scared now-a-days is when he meets another horse.

We're still old-fashioned enough so that we look away, after a minute or so, when we see a well-dressed young woman sliding out of an automobile seat, facing us, as they sometimes do.

'Can you drive with one hand?' asked the girl in a gentle voice. 'You bet I can,' replied the young man eagerly. 'Then have an apple,' she said sweetly.

Thus to change COW TO HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

THE TINYMITES STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The barrel on which Clowny stood, it seemed, was treating him real good. It rolled along real slow and he stayed upon his feet. The other 'limes ran along, all set if something should go wrong, to save him from a tumble which they knew would not be sweet. Then, suddenly, wee Clowny cried, 'Oh, goodness me, I fear this ride will land me in some trouble. I am coming to a hill. But, gee, I hate to jump off now. Perhaps I'll keep my feet some-how. But, if I don't, please grab me, 'cause I'll likely take a spill.' Then to the hill they shortly came. It really seemed an awful shame for surely 'Clowny couldn't stay upon the barrel top. The barrel quickly picked up speed and all the Tinymites agreed that Clowny's ride was near an end, and he was sure to flop. Although the whole bunch ran real fast, the little barrel shot right past. Then, as it hit a little bump, wee Clowny flew in air. He turned a somersault with ease, and landed on his hands and knees and, as the others reached him he exclaimed, 'I guess I'm there!' 'Look what upset you,' Carry cried. A pumpkin then, the whole bunch spied. The barrel just had hit it. That's what made wee Clowny fall. They watched their barrel jump and hop and then they saw it slowly stop, and they were much relieved to see it wasn't smashed at all. Said Copy, 'Now for quite a treat. This pumpkin's mighty good to eat.' And then he found a pointed stick and cut his pieces out. The whole bunch gaily gathered round. They liked the food that they had found. 'This satisfies my appetite,' they soon heard Scouty shout. (Another surprise comes out of the barrel in the next story.)

'You're right, Hargon, old cheese!' confirmed the unknown. 'I've got the Anti-Lockwill League! I've mugged the bunch unmasked and holding your pretty heads.' Then the still disguised boy likewise unmasked. The laughter-wreathed face of Jack Lockwill was exposed. 'This is Custard's nightcap,' he said, waving his hood. 'Orab him!' shouted Hargon. 'Don't let him get away with this! Smash that camera!' Leaping forward, he met a surprise. Instead of dodging, Lockwill plunged into him like a battering-ram, and sent him sprawling. 'Center rush!' whooped Jack joyfully, as he smashed Cub Maddox down and went ripping through the others, knocking them right and left. (To Be Continued)

TEACHERS' NIGHT HELD AT "THE WHITE HOUSE"

Cards and Refreshments at Community Club; Prizes at Bridge and Whist.

More than thirty teachers of the Eighth district schools gathered last evening at the "White House" at the invitation of the director, Miss Esther Anderson, chairman of the committee in charge, announced that bridge and whist had been chosen as the most popular pastime. Eight tables were comfortably arranged in the tea room and each favorite chose the game she preferred. At a late hour scores were counted and the following winners of whist were announced: Miss Esther Anderson, first; Miss Katherine McGuire, second. At bridge the successful two were Miss Eleanor Stoughton and Miss Mabel Lamphear.

The committee in charge then cleared the tables, and doughnuts and coffee were served. Each guest received a small souvenir of the garden club showing of chrysanthemums also held at the club last evening.

Director Washburn said that these "Community Nights" would continue throughout the winter months taking in all the organizations both fraternal, patriotic and educational.

EXPECT LARGE SUM TO AID E. HARTFORD

Benefit Performance at the State Theater Already Promises Well.

Manchester is expected to fall in with the movements to give East Hartford flood victims some of the things they lost recently when the Connecticut River flooded the meadows there.

A ready response to the sale of tickets for the benefit which will be held on Sunday afternoon at the State theater is expected and the committee in charge is confident that a considerable sum will be sent to those in charge of the relief in the neighbor town.

Floods in New England, particularly in Vermont and New Hampshire, have been almost as far away from the thoughts of Manchester as has the Mississippi flood. But the flood this time struck close to home and left 75 families without a thing, their dwellings flooded and their effects lost or destroyed.

No Community Chest. Hartford has been giving money for the relief through its community chest. Manchester has no community chest for it has never needed one, and when money has been needed for a worthy cause it has usually been raised through popular subscription or through benefit entertainments.

Manchester is asked to respond this time as it has in the past, with a whole heart.

The committee consists of J. P. Lamb, chairman of the local chapter of the Red Cross; John L. Havens, of the East Hartford Red Cross; Town Treasurer, George E. Waddell, Manager Jack Sanson of the State and Henry Needles of the Hoffman Brothers' Enterprises. Tickets are now on sale at the State Theater.

CORRECTION

Because a reporter broke into the horrid song to the accompaniment of his typewriter, walling the Cow-boy's Lament far, far off key, a Herald headline writer, distracted, pulled a compound fracture of fact in the caption of a news item yesterday. He made the Second School district read the "Eighth" and the date of its meeting last night instead of next Monday. The musician will warble no more.
