

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH HAS THEM GUESSING

Politicians at Capital Hoped He Would Clarify His Position as to the Campaign In 1928.

Washington, Nov. 18.—President Coolidge's speech before the Union League Club in Philadelphia was subjected to minute scrutiny by capital politicians today. They had been tipped—and they had hoped—that Mr. Coolidge would take advantage of the occasion to clarify his position toward the 1928 campaign.

There was but little if any satisfaction to be gained from the scrutiny, however. Mr. Coolidge delivered the longest address he has made since his "I do not choose to run" bombshell, but the most powerful microscope could detect no clarification or amplification of that famous statement. The politicians were left just where they were, most of them believing he is "out of it," but a highly vocal minority still convinced that he will run if drafted.

Changed No Opinion

To those who prefer to believe he is "out of it," the speech had the sound of a valedictory. To those who are still vociferously proclaiming that he will run if nominated, it sounded like a platform speech, one in which he changed no opinions and each side found in it something of what it looked for.

Mr. Coolidge delivered, in brief, a resume of his administration and of existing conditions, with a few bits of advice about the future. The country, he said, is more prosperous today than it has ever been, business is good, wages are high, taxes have been reduced and are to be reduced still further. The public debt has been cut one-third, government expenditures have been reduced economically and the home and abroad "the people have pressed steadily forward with their faces toward the dawn." It was a very satisfactory picture that Mr. Coolidge painted for his audience of Republican stalwarts.

Francis T. Sullivan

To the successive years of Republican administration he, of course, gave major credit. He praised the tariff, warned against any tinkering with it, advised against any drastic tax cutting, and, in short, recommended that the national government be content along the lines of present policy.

His warning against any tinkering with the tariff was pointed, and it was directed squarely at the Agrarian Insurgents who have been filling the air in Washington with muttered threats of sabotage in the coming session of Congress.

"Without the influence of a protective tariff," he declared, "it would never have been possible for our country to reach its present stage of diversified development with its liberal rate of wages."

SUSPECT HUSBAND IN WIFE'S DEATH

Stamford Man Arrested Until An Autopsy Can Be Held on Body.

Stamford, Conn., Nov. 18.—Jeffrey Celliveau, for the past month a machinist employed in a local factory, was locked up here today pending the outcome of an autopsy that Coroner John J. Phelan, of Bridgeport, has ordered performed on the body of Mrs. Celliveau, who died yesterday at Stamford hospital after an illness of three weeks.

The Celliveaus came here a month ago from New Bedford, Mass., and Mrs. Celliveau was taken to the hospital shortly afterward. Hospital authorities say she was in a coma most of the time. When she died, Dr. Ralph W. Crane, medical examiner, was called into the case and after he had investigated he reported to Coroner Phelan that the case was of suspicious nature. The coroner promptly ordered an inquest which was started this afternoon.

Funeral Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Celliveau were held from St. Cecilia's church, Springfield, this morning. The husband, who had been in custody since last evening, at first told police he did not want to attend the funeral services. He changed his mind today but when he had been driven to the church the services had ended. Then police took him to the cemetery where they found the body had been placed in a vault. Celliveau was taken back to a cell, and Dr. Crane received instructions to hold the inquest.

RAMOLA REMUS IN COURTROOM TO HELP DAD

Prosecutor Says It Is Just a Plea For Sympathy Staged By the King of Bootleggers.

Court House, Cincinnati, Nov. 18.—A new touch was given the trial of George Remus for the murder of his wife, Imogene, when his attractive daughter, Ramola, came into the court room today and sitting beside her father watched the selection of the jury, and spoke words of consolation to him.

Her appearance seemed to soften the former "King of the Bootleggers," who, as "Remus, the Lawyer," has been battling spectacularly all week to save himself from the electric chair. He patted her arm affectionately, smiled and assured her he was confident of winning this, the biggest case of his career as a lawyer.

Letter Made Public

The State combated any moral effect the arrival of Ramola to show her loyalty to the remarkable man on trial for his life by giving to the press a letter that Remus sent to Ramola on March 6, 1924. He was in prison at Atlanta, serving a sentence for liquor violation. She was in Chicago. In the letter, which was shown to newspapermen by Assistant Prosecutor Walter K. Hibbard, Remus said he did not give a "tinker's damn" for her. Remus, when informed of the letter, told reporters he wrote hastily and in anger, "the result of a misunderstanding."

"Ramola and I have always loved each other," said Remus. "She is as good and pure as her mother."

Married Twice

Remus is divorced from Ramola's mother. It was his second wife, Imogene, whom he shot and killed in Eden Park, Cincinnati, on October 6 last, when she was on her way to court to divorce him.

CONVICT MURDERS KEEPER IN JAIL

Stabs Him Through Heart With File—Grand Jury to Investigate.

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Governor Smith will be asked today to convene an Extraordinary Grand Jury to investigate the stabbing of Principal Keeper James B. Durnin of Auburn state prison by Alexander Kolinsky, Erie county convict. Durnin died from the stab wounds inflicted while the prisoners were being marched to supper in the mess hall last night.

Has Long Record

Kolinsky has a long and bad criminal record. He was sentenced to Auburn prison December 20, 1913 for a term of 20 years. His crime was manslaughter in the first degree. Prior to that sentence he had been at Auburn prison on two convictions of burglary in Erie county, one in 1908 and one in 1912. He had served time in the Erie county penitentiary and the Genesee county jail.

During his present sentence Kolinsky has been troublesome. At times he refused to work, hurled missiles at other inmates and had been disciplined for other violations of the prison regulations. He was one of the gang that participated in the race riot between white and negro inmates in the prison yards in August, 1921.

It Used to be a Fire Wagon!

This was a $20,000 fire-fighting water tower—before a falling wall hit it during a spectacular auto warehouse blaze in New York. The water tower crew escaped with injuries to only one. Two million dollars in property, including 800 cars, was destroyed before the fire was subdued.

Remus' 'Man In The Case' Tells His Side Of Story

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 18.—This is Franklin Dodge Jr.'s own story revealed exclusively today for the first time, of his relations with Mrs. Imogene Remus, who was shot and killed by her husband, George Remus, former "King of Bootleggers," in Eden park, Cincinnati, on the morning of October 6th last.

In it, Dodge, the "man in the case," makes these significant statements: "I was never intimate with Mrs. Remus. She never called me 'Dear,' nor used any such endearing terms, and I most certainly never called her 'Sugar.' "I never conspired to keep Remus in prison, nor plotted with Mrs. Remus to keep possession of his property."

LOCAL POLICE PUT OVER BIGGEST RAID

Visit Eight Suspected Blind Pigs, Make Nine Arrests; Some Old Offenders.

Virtually the entire Manchester Police Department took part in a series of liquor raids last night that resulted in the arrest of nine persons. Eight places were raided and a large quantity of liquor was discovered in addition to three stills and accompanying equipment. From an arrest standpoint, it was the biggest raid in the history of the police department.

McMullin Watched Constantly and Wife Loses Job District Attorney Says

Washington, Nov. 18.—A warning that Burns agents had better "cease molesting" William J. McMullin, the government's star witness in the jury-tampering investigation that grew out of the Fall-Singular conspiracy trial, emanated today from the district attorney's office here. It was intimated that still another form of indictment, that of intimidating a government witness, might be sought unless McMullin is left alone.

TRAPPED IN AN AUTO, THREE PERSONS DIE

Car Crashes Through Guard-rail and Drops Into Canal; One Youth Escapes.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Three young residents of Fulton were drowned and a fourth narrowly escaped death when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through a guard rail and went into the icy waters of the barge canal about five miles west of here last night.

History Within History Is This Interesting Tale

The official history of Manchester gives a record of the growth of this town since it was first settled. But the intimate things, the things in the newspapers and the things that were talked about over the supper tables of families are not there.

RUSSIAN 'REDS' USE MOVIES TO TAME CHILDREN

Picking Up Thousands of Homeless Waifs to Take Part in Films of Fairy Tales.

One of the gravest social problems confronting the Russian Soviet government concerns the tens of thousands of forlorn waifs in the cities, notably in Moscow. Thousands of children, made homeless or orphaned by the great war and the Russian revolution, have been running wild, begging or stealing their food and sleeping in any shelter they could find. Other thousands were separated from their parents in the turmoil of civil war and became a part of this ragged and dirty little army of homeless children. The Soviet government is making every effort to round up the children and place them in institutions where they can be cared for and educated. However, years of wild, free life in the streets, make it difficult for the government authorities to instill any discipline in the untamed wards.

Filming Kiddies

Moscow, Nov. 18.—Homeless waifs of Soviet Russia are being turned into child movie actors, playing in fairy tales which the hard life of the streets had closed to their minds, and reflecting in the sunlight which they once shunned. The movie scheme was devised by the Department of Education as another means of attempting to keep the ragamuffins contented in orphan homes after having been picked up by the gubers.

200 Houses Damaged

Approximately 200 houses in and around Washington were damaged to greater or less degree. Some of these were so knocked about that they could not be occupied during the night, and the occupants were given "strange treatment." Police, aided by soldiers, patrolled the affected area throughout the night to prevent stealing. A steady all-night rain and a sharp drop in temperature added to the discomfort of many residents.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF CHICAGO JUROR

500 MEXICAN REBS ATTACK R. R. TRAIN

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 18.—Five hundred Mexican rebels attacked a southbound Mexican railway passenger train 20 miles south of Zacatecas, Mexico, killing 24 soldiers and 18 passengers, including eight women and four children, said a dispatch to a local Mexican newspaper today.

Probe Demanded

Charles Norberg, the dead juror's brother, demanded an immediate investigation, hinting that his brother may have been the victim of foul play. He intimated that perhaps his brother had been beaten and pushed from the window by jurors with whom he failed to agree.

TRACK WASH OUT

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 18.—A mile and a half of double track on the Connecticut division of the Boston & Maine Railroad was washed out at Westminster, Vt., today in the new flood menace in New England and Eastern and Northern New York.

RAIN IN THE NORTH

Montreal, P. Q., Nov. 18.—Southern Quebec province and the belt of agricultural communities along the Vermont border are studying the skies and the barometer today, praying for let-up from four days of pelting rain. Flood again threatens the countryside. Brief days ago Southern Quebec missed Vermont's fate by a hairs breadth. Railroads were washed out and dislocated, villagers were forced to flee their homes. Stock and farm buildings were destroyed. But human life was spared and disaster averted by a sudden switch to cold weather but late threat had returned today in the wake of ninety hours of teeming rains which have sent river levels mounting and countless tons of water bearing against dams and banks. Hope is seen in the threatening situation in clearing skies and falling temperatures as it stands, more rain will bring on a situation at least as bad as that which prevailed before, whereas a cold snap long overdue on the Canadian calendar, will save the situation.

IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston, Mass., Nov. 18.—While Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover was preparing to go before the New England Council at Springfield today to take over relief and rehabilitation work, a great deluge of torrential rains raged about the New England states and Eastern New York causing grave fears of a new flood disaster.

HEAVY RAINFALL

Only seven times since 1872 has any November exceeded 5.53 inches in precipitation.

Four Days' Rain In Canada and Cloudburst During Night Causes Warnings to Be Sent to Vermont—In Northern New York Villages Are Under Water—This State and Springfield Report Rising Rivers—Blizzards Reported in the West.

Heavy rains for the last four days in Southern Quebec Province, bordering on Vermont and a veritable cloudburst over New England during the night, caused Red Cross officials to send out warnings today to residents of Vermont, to prepare for possible new trouble to come. A drop in temperature during the early hours saved the situation in Canada but in upper New England reports say the rivers are rising.

In Northern New York, several villages are reported under water as dams burst and bridges were swept away.

From Springfield comes the news that the Connecticut river is again rising.

Norwich in this state reports that the Moosung and Yantic rivers are particularly high today.

VILLAGE UNDER WATER

Watertown, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Rivers continued to rise at the rate of an inch an hour in Northern New York today following a 36-hour downpour, and already one village, Philadelphia, is half under water. PRINCE GEORGE

ON BATTLESHIP

AS INTERPRETER

On Admiral's Staff as Promotion Comes After Eleven Years Work.

Portsmouth, Eng.—The idea that a young officer has an easy time in the British Navy has been dispelled by the career of Prince George, youngest son of the King of England.

This young man has just joined the staff of the mighty battleship, Nelson, and has taken up duty as an interpreter on the Admiral's staff. But to get so far, he has had to engage in eleven years of hard work.

He joined the Navy in 1916, entering the Royal Naval College at Osborne in September of that year. The great war was then at its height, and the boy was thirteen and a half years of age.

Became Midshipman

A little over five years later, he passed out as a full-fledged midshipman, and was appointed to the Iron Duke, flagship of the Mediterranean fleet, in whose crowded gunroom were 21 other young midshipmen. After two years in this ship, the royal midshipman was transferred to the Queen Elizabeth, and in May, 1923, he became an acting sub-lieutenant, being promoted as a "one-striper" in the February following. Then came a few months in the destroyer flotilla-leader "Mackay," which led to his taking the courses at Portsmouth which resulted in his qualifying as lieutenant in January, 1925.

Posted to the cruiser Hawkins flagship on the China station, his term of duty in the Pacific being terminated in the Yangtze Valley, including the tragic affair at Wahsien.

Appointed Lieutenant

He received his actual appointment as lieutenant in February, 1926, but it is noteworthy of the rigid impartiality of the naval examining board that he only gained a second-class certificate in seamanship, and no more than a third-class in navigation, gunnery and torpedo.

On returning home he was detailed for a special course in French. He studied in Paris, and incidentally qualified as a good dancer, sufficiently so to win the approval of his brother, the Prince of Wales. Now that he is a fully qualified interpreter, he will probably stay in that capacity for some years before any further promotion awaits him.

Although the British Navy is not such a swell job even for a British royal prince.

COLUMBIA

ODDS OF 6 TO 1

MURDERERS ARE NOT CAPTURED

12 To 1 Against Being Found Guilty; 102 to 1 Against Execution.

Chicago.—A man committing murder in the United States today has a 6 to 1 chance that he will not be caught.

If arrested the odds are 12 to 1 against conviction.

The odds are 102 to 1 that he will not be executed for the crime.

These were the bald statistics presented here by Judge Marcus Kavanagh, veteran Cook county jurist, who for years has presided in the Criminal Court.

"The United States is the most law-ridden and most lawless nation on earth," Judge Kavanagh said. "The reasons for this are three. First, lawyers are organized to save criminals and cheat the law through technicalities.

"Second, the police in the United States are the worst organized, the poorest paid and most inefficient of any country in the world. They are too much in politics.

"Third, the people shirk jury duty and take no active interest in law enforcement. The foundation of law lies in the home and American homelife is fast passing away.

America has far too many laws now, Judge Kavanagh contended. He said it is a mistake to send lawyers to Congress and state legislatures.

"Elect hard-headed, business men who do not care about the technicalities of law but are interested in furthering justice.

Laws Need Changing

"Our criminal laws are utterly unfit for present-day criminal activities," Judge Kavanagh added. "An attacking technicalities. The technicalities which free most criminals were never established by any legislature; they were created by judges to save poor wretches guilty of some trivial crime from the death chamber, which was never intended to protect innocents."

"Too many times public opinion controls the acts of legislatures and also makes or modifies the final decisions of courts.

"The country needs not new laws as much as it requires in our courts a new turn of mind, new purposes and quickened ideals."

St. Clairsville, O.—Bridgport's little black Santa Claus is back today after spending nearly a year in the Lancaster reform school because of his desire to shower that community with gifts last Christmas.

The colored Kris Kringle is little Benjamin Richardson, 12, who obtained money with which to buy gifts for his mother, brother and sisters and for neighbor children as well by the simple expedient of robbing the United States mails.

Robbed Mail Bag

The youngster hid in a telephone booth in the post office in Bridgport when the office closed for the night just a few days before Christmas. The clerks, tired after a hard day's work, looked up without noticing the black boy hiding in the shadows of the phone booth. When the office was clear of possible interference, the boy crawled to the mailing room where there were a number of sacks of mail brought from Wheeling, W. Va., just across the Ohio River, to the city for dispatch on a Cleveland-bound train.

In one sack he found a package from a Pittsburgh bank addressed to a Flushing Bank. This he took with him and slid out a back window. On the shores of the river, he removed the wrappings and soon was potential millionaire.

Became Millionaire

The boy spent money until tired. He bought every possible kind of gift for his relatives and friends and buried the rest. Next morning his trail of Christmas cheer became the talk of the mercantile district about the time that the postoffice robbery was reported to officials.

In a few hours the police had Benjamin, the surplus cash and his confession. That same afternoon he was brought to Belmont county juvenile court and sentenced to Lancaster.

He was a model prisoner, obeying every rule. Accordingly, he has been sent home to remain during good behavior.

Professor Galpin of Trinity College and Mansur Mordau, of New Britain spoke in behalf of college teaching trying to show the cultural value of teaching French.

Three Raid Periods Last night's series of three raids, which were made between 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 12 o'clock at night, had been planned for more than a week.

Stool pigeons had made purchases for evidence. Under the direction of Chief Samuel G. Gordon the following officers took part in the raids: Captain Herman Schedel, Lieutenant William Barron, Sergeant John Crockett, Patrolman John McGinn, Arthur P. Seymour, Gerald R. Risley, Winfield R. Martin, Michael F. Fitzgerald and David F. Galligan.

In accordance with Chief Gordon's plans three separate raids were made, one about 5 o'clock, the next shortly after 7 o'clock and the third about 10 o'clock.

At the same time Lieutenant Barron and Officers Martin and Risley, at Galligan found a pint of liquor at the home of Samuel Barabae on Maple street.

The second raid, affecting two places, resulted in three stills, a gallon and a half of liquor and 58 two-quart bottles of beer being found under an olive tree in the cellar of the Merrill home in Homestead Park.

"Dumping" Suspected At the store conducted by Goldberg and Silver on Walnut street, Lieutenant Barron and Officers Risley and Martin found a quart and a half of liquor hidden in a shoebox on one of the shelves.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH HAS THEM GUESSING

its unprecedented distribution of living, and its high standards of living.

Income increasing "Any material reduction in our general tariff rates would ultimately result in drastic deflation of agricultural and industrial values, in the rate of wages, and in standards of living."

Under our present system our foreign commerce has reached the highest peace-time record and our national income has steadily increased to the enormous proportions of $90,000,000,000 for the last calendar year.

This represents a volume of production and trade far in excess of that which any other country ever reached. It is the zenith of our prosperity. All this should be considered in any appraisal of the worth of our long-established policy.

One other warning Mr. Coolidge stressed emphatically was against the government "getting into business." He declared "We have placed the enterprise of the country unreservedly in private hands" with reasonable regulation to prevent abuses.

It is the very antithesis of common sense, "but it has raised the general welfare of the people to a position beyond even the promises of the extremists."

So far as the national defense is concerned, Mr. Coolidge pledged that "We will round out our Army, Navy and Marine Corps to insure armament equality with the rest of the world."

ways been of the most proper character.

How He Met Her "I only met her in connection with government service while in the service of the government and upon leaving the government service I only met her for the purpose of discussing her private business affairs."

"She has never given me any money except what was necessary to pay expenses that were incurred by me while in her employment. At no time have I squandered or dissipated any of the funds or property of Mr. or Mrs. Remus. I have no interest whatever in the property of either of them."

Remus has charged that Dodge and Mrs. Remus mulcted him out of his valuable holdings while he was within prison walls following his conviction for violating the prohibition act.

Scrubbed His Cell "I visited Mrs. Remus in 1925, in the Clark county jail at Athens, Georgia," said Dodge. "She was engaged in fixing up food delicacies for her husband, who was a prisoner in the jail. I saw her get down on her knees and scrub the floor of his cell."

Dodge denied that when Remus was in jail at Atlanta and Dodge was in that city that he had ever visited Mrs. Remus in her apartment, when she was alone. He did dine with her in the presence of her husband and others.

He also denied he had ever taken undue liberties with Mrs. Remus in the warden's office in the Atlanta penitentiary, as alleged.

"He admitted he met Mrs. Remus 'on one occasion' in her magnificent dream palace in Cincinnati and on that occasion Miss Blanche Watson was present. He said he always addressed Mrs. Remus as 'Mrs. Dodge,' and she called him 'Mr. Dodge.' At any time Mrs. Remus was 'very ladylike.'"

Dodge admitted, too, that he had been employed by Mrs. Remus for the purpose, he explained, of assisting her in the indictment under which she was being held in the Jack Daniels case. Never, according to Dodge, did he conspire with Mrs. Remus, "or anybody else," to keep Remus in prison under an exorbitant bond.

EXPLOSION ON FREIGHTER Baltimore, Md., Nov. 13.—One workman was killed and a number of others were injured, two probably fatally, in a terrific explosion today aboard the freighter John Luckenbach in drydock in the Union Shipbuilding Company's yard at Fairfield, near here.

The last apparently was caused by the bursting of a sealed oil tank in the steamer's hold. The freighter cracked in the middle and was severely damaged. The explosion shook houses and buildings in South Baltimore.

The injured workmen were repairing the boat and the explosion caught them without a chance of escape.

ney's office here that "they are running me ragged."

Without specifically naming the Burns agency, District Attorney Peyton Gottoy said:

"This would seem to be another plain attempt to obstruct the due administration of justice and also an attempt to intimidate a government witness whose disclosures in a sleuthing matter should be applauded by all law-abiding citizens."

According to Gordon's information, McMullin's wife has lost her position since the Burns expose here, and McMullin himself has been subjected to constant surveillance, intimidation and annoyance.

The Grand Jury re-convened here today after a recess to continue its consideration of the jury-tampering charges. Gordon and his assistant, Neil Burkinshaw, were to go before the jury today and explain the statutes, under which the government will ask a number of indictments. It is expected the Grand Jury will hand down true bills on Monday.

PILL-TAKER FREED FROM HIS HABIT ALL-BRAN brought natural relief from chronic constipation

Constipation is almost a universal curse—father of more than forty diseases. Yet there is real assurance in Mr. Ladue's letter:

"After sixteen years of taking pills, it cured me. If the millions of people that suffer from constipation only knew what Kellogg's ALL-BRAN would do, some of the pill-makers would go out of business. Every doctor should recommend it. I tell all that I know so that they can get the joy out of life I am getting since I started on Kellogg's ALL-BRAN 3 months ago."

thrill by Miss Remus' unexpected appearance, and a buzz of conversation swept the courtroom. So excited and noisy did the crowd in court become that the judge was forced to demand order.

"It's a plea for sympathy," commented Prosecutor Charles Taff, former President of the United States.

No Jury Yet The jury had not been completed up to noon but there was every indication that twelve men and women would be decided on very soon.

Remus engaged in only one heated argument with attorneys for the state; and that was precipitated by Remus asking a question of the fact that he had acted at one time as a union lawyer would prejudice him against the defendant. The state objected and the jurors were excused while Remus argued the point before the court.

Judge Chester Shook ruled in favor of Remus and permitted him to ask the question. During the argument, Remus in a powerful, resonant voice declared:

"The defendant Remus will take the witness stand where his life is in the balance. Of that I am sure. Remus' 78-year-old mother, Mrs. Frank Remus, of Chicago, came into the court room just before adjournment was taken, until two o'clock this afternoon."

"BLOOD SHIP" IS ONE OF STATE'S FEATURES

Here Today and Tomorrow With "One Woman to Another"—Lollipops at Tomorrow's Matinee.

Two of the greatest features ever presented on a single bill in any theater are on the program at the State theater for today and tomorrow. First of all is "The Blood Ship," said to be the mightiest of sea dramas, with Robert Bosworth in the leading role. The second is Florence Vidor's big success, "One Woman to Another."

A starkly realistic story of the sea out of the pages of the distant past is "The Blood Ship." It tells a tale of the days when the clipper ship plied the seven seas and steam vessels were unknown. This was a time when only a real two-fisted man could follow the sea for a living. The captain of many of these "greyhounds" of the ocean were brutish incarnate. Such a one featured in the film, and his maniacal treatment of the crew (poor brutes who were shanghaied aboard in the dead of night) is vividly realistic. So much so, that when in the end he is thrashed to death in a thrilling fight to the finish, there is a sigh of satisfaction from the audience.

"One Woman to Another" directed by Frank Tuttle, is an adaptation of Frances Nordstrom's play. It has been cleverly pictured by J. L. Campbell and presents a number of exceptionally amusing situations. It is the story of a girl and her sweetheart whose plans to marry immediately are interrupted by the appearance of her brother who places two children in her care. Then comes a quarantine on her home, and the man takes an interest in another woman. With Olive Gresham, played by Hedda Hopper, Miss Vidor plots a somewhat daring promising scheme to make the man marry her.

Tomorrow afternoon the State is giving away 1,500 lollipops to children who attend the matinee performance. And on Sunday evening the great picture, "Annie Laurie," starring Lillian Gish and Norman Kerry, comes to Manchester.

PARSONS THEATER

"Let's Move"

One of the happiest theatrical events of the season in Hartford will be the engagement of the new farcical comedy "Let's Move" with Russell Mack as the featured player, which has been selected as the special Thanksgiving attraction at the Parsons' Theater opening Monday night, Nov. 21 for the entire week with matinees on Thanksgiving day and Saturday. This farce is announced to open a New York engagement, at the Klaw Theater on Monday night, November 28 and the company to be seen at Hartford is the one selected for Broadway.

Aside from the clever comedian Russell Mack who is happily remembered for his splendid achievements in "The Little Spitter," "My Girl" and other New York successes the company includes that delightful artist Mary Eburne who is regarded as the foremost eccentric comedienne on the stage today, Betty Lawrence a delightful young actress who won everybody in "Charm," Dorothy Tierney, Russell Fillmore who was a Hartford stock favorite for two years, Charles Hamlyn, Hans Hansen and numerous others.

"Let's Move" is a farcical story by Jessie Helm—Ernst and Max Simon and is written around the experience of a young married couple who buy a home in the country and build a romance around the idea such as two young people very much in love can only do. What happens forms the basis of three acts of constant fun and laughter that drives away all care and worry and keeps the audience in a happy mood long after the play is over.

The production was directed by Clifford Brooke with stage settings designed by Livingston Platt. The enterprise is under the direction of Carl Reed a factor assuring the best in every detail.

GIANT PODS STARTLE MAIN ST. SHOPPERS

Shoppers on Main street have had their curiosity aroused by the presence in the window of Garone's market near the high school of two Japanese beans. The beans look like anything else but beans, for the pods are more than three feet long. They are shaped more like the club of the giant in a fairy tale, and at some points are nearly six inches in diameter.

WESTERN AND COMEDY FEATURED AT CIRCLE

"Venus of Venice" and "The Devil's Saddle" Tomorrow and Sunday—Lollipops Tomorrow.

A dashing Western picture and a light comedy affair that would draw laughs from a stone are the features offered at the Circle theater for Saturday and Sunday. "The Devil's Saddle," with Ken Maynard in the leading role, is the cowboy picture, and the second feature of the program is "Venus of Venice," starring Constance Talmadge and Antonio Moreno.

"The Devil's Saddle" is the story of Harry Morrel, hell-bending son of the sheriff of Neutral Saddle, who has a run-in with Ladley, the meanest gunman in the southwest. Ladley is suspected of the murder of two gunmen.

From then on the story revolves into a chase with Morrel on the trail in search of Ladley and the proof with which to convict him of murder. It is a story full of thrills, hard riding and straight shooting. The right triumphs in the end.

"Venus of Venice" is a rollicking story, in which Constance appears as an impulsive, mischievous little canal gypsy whose life is one of thievery among the gondolas of the Venice canal. Diving into and swimming through the canals with the utmost abandon whenever occasion demands it, she has earned the sobriquet of the "Water Rat." And it is one of her darlings who escapes that brings her into contact with an American artist in Venice—an acquaintance that is productive of more excitement, more thrills and greater joy than ever has been crowded into her life.

In the leading male role opposite Miss Talmadge, Antonio Moreno appears as the American artist. And the director is Marshall Neilan, past master in the creation of light comedy.

At the afternoon performance 1,500 lollipops will be given away.

HYPNOTISM AS AID TO SURGERY STIRS CHICAGO

Two Successful Major Operations Without Any Anaesthetic.

Chicago.—Hypnotism as an aid to surgery has taken Chicago by storm following two successful major operations performed here in hospitals while the patient was under the influence of the mental narcotic.

Although hypnotism has long been recognized in the experimental laboratory and the theatrical field, it has not been until recently that physicians have accepted its merits as an aid in performing operations.

Under the brilliant glare of mercury lamps a woman patient was placed upon the operating table with Dr. Harry W. Fink of Chicago and Zecca G. Bunszheim, hypnotist, in attendance.

Patient Asleep

The patient gazed steadily in the eyes of the hypnotist and physicians stood by with ether should the experiment fail.

"Sleep! Sleep! You must relax and sleep," commanded Bunszheim.

The patient slept.

"You are insensible to pain," droned the hypnotist. "You will feel no hurt. You are alone—you and I. I shall protect you and you shall feel no pain. Sleep."

The woman relaxed and deep breathing rewarded the efforts of the hypnotist. Once, when a physician jabbed a needle into her arm, the patient moaned slightly and flickered an eyelid. Bunszheim continued his monotonous goety.

Dr. Fink and his brother, Dr. E. G. Fink, worked silently and rapidly.

Nurses proffered scalpels, sponges, gauzes and clamps. From another room came the faint odor of ether used in a different operation.

The patient stirred slightly. Bunszheim continued his mesmeric incantation and the woman again resumed her labored breathing.

Felt No Pain

The operation proceeded to its close. The incision was closed and bandages were applied. The patient was taken to her room. A quarter of an hour later Bunszheim approached her bedside and broke the hypnotic spell.

"I felt no pain whatsoever," the patient declared. "I don't even remember the operation."

As waves of pain assailed her Bunszheim placed her under the hypnotic influence and continued to do so until the wound began healing.

"Hypnotism," Dr. Fink declared, "can be applied only in certain cases when the patient is willing to cooperate fully. But when there is fear in the patient of gas or ether and the sickening after effects, hypnotism is invaluable."

"In major operations, as a rule, the knife cuts into nerves not controlled directly by the mind and pain is felt. In such cases hypnotism is of no use. It is useful, however, to place the patient in a sleep and then apply ether or gas."

ANCIENT IRELAND PAGEANT SUBJECT

Brilliant Production at Cheney Hall Tuesday Night By St. Mary's Parish.

Ancient Ireland in song and story will be the subject of the magnificent pageant which St. Mary's parishioners are to present next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in Cheney hall, with a cast of about 75 men and women.

The pageant has been written especially for St. Mary's parish and therefore is to be produced for the first time under the direction of the author, Miss Inez Temple of Hartford, who for several weeks past has been supervising the rehearsals. Miss Temple has not only prepared the manuscript, but has designed and made the colorful costumes, conforming as closely as possible with the type of garments worn by the people of that race and period, and has created appropriate scenic features and stage settings for the different episodes.

Those who have witnessed the rehearsals and are sure that the pageant with its early Irish history are loud in their praise of the pageant and the success of the author in portraying Erin's legendary history in its proper atmosphere by a series of tableaux, folk dances, old ballads, descriptive readings and music on the rich-toned harp, a favorite stringed instrument of medieval Ireland. Many of the scenes call for action of some kind—dancing, chanting, or dialogues which hold the interest and lend variety to the program.

The story progresses through a series of 14 different episodes from the coming of the Firbolgs from the north a few thousand years ago when Ireland was a land of forests and filled with wild animals. Old Gaelic records describe this race as dwarfish, dark and of forbidding face. Later they were dominated and overrun by the Fomorians, a race of taller stature, also dark but with handsome features. To this race is ascribed the building of the cromlechs and standing stones found not only in Ireland but in Norway, Britain, Brittany, Spain and Africa.

In the second episode is a tableau of the Druids, often mentioned in Irish legends. A fresh set of invaders then came to Ireland in the tribes of the God Danu of the Tuatha De Danann, who fled from Greece on account of a Syrian invasion. This race is ascribed the building of the central monarchs at Tara. From that time followed a period of growth, clearing of forests, sowing of cornfields and the establishing of early industries.

Rev. J. Stuart Neill, rector of St. Mary's will read the prologue and descriptive passages, some of which have been gleaned from manuscripts at the Belfast Museum. Miss Dorothy Silcox will play the harp. Mrs. Arthur Jobert and Edward Delert will be the soloists. Miss Ruth Chapman is the accompanist and Miss Ruth Knox is directing the dances. Miss Sarah McKinley, president of St. Mary's Girls Friendly society is manager of the production.

Mrs. Walker had a complication of diseases, and has suffered several shocks recently. She leaves eight children and several grandchildren. The funeral will be held from her home on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock and the burial will be in the Wapping cemetery. Stanton, the two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hertzog of Simsbury, underwent a serious operation at the Memorial hospital in Manchester on Tuesday morning. The child is a nephew of Mrs. Asher A. Collins of this place.

This evening at the Center school hall, the three act drama, entitled "Forest Acres" will be presented by the Y. M. C. A. boys and the High school girls. Miss Catherine Larrabee and Miss Elizabeth Larrabee teachers of the East Hartford High school will sing, between the acts. Harry Frink of this place will sing a solo, also. The South Manchester High school orchestra will furnish music. The proceeds will go toward fixing up the parish house.

Mrs. Emma A. Skinner who has been nursing week in Manchester caring for her brother, Jessie Ames, who has been sick for the past few months, returned to her home here, on last Saturday afternoon.

They have chosen as their officers: President, Elizabeth Pierce, vice-president, Lois Foster, secretary and treasurer, Dorothy Dewey.

The next meeting of Pomona Grange will be a special meeting held with East Hartford Grange on Friday evening, December 2, and it will be Officers Night, each officer furnishing one number for the program. All Pomona members are invited to attend.

Everett A. Buckland and son, Clayton E. Buckland have returned recently from a weeks business trip to New Hampshire. Mr. and Mrs. Community club met at Wolcott chapel in South Windsor on Monday evening. Supper was served at 6 o'clock.

About $30 was cleared at the public supper held at Wolcott chapel last week under the auspices of the United Workers. Mr. and Mrs. William Armour moved from their tenement to the east side of the house, recently. Mr. and Mrs. Percy West who have been living in Wilbur C. Hills tenement house in the north part of the town moved into William Skinner's tenement house last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank House, Mrs. Walter S. Nevers, Miss Alice Nevers, Mrs. Emma Skinner and Harold Hart, all attended a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hart of Hartford, the occasion being the twentieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hart. Mrs. Hart was before her marriage Miss Ida May Skinner of this village. They were presented with a one hundred piece dinner set from their friends. Mrs. George Fernald composed a fine poem for the occasion.

At a special meeting of the First Congregational church of South Windsor, a unanimous call was extended to the Rev. William Malcolm to remain as pastor another year. It is the custom of the church to make yearly contracts with the pastor. Mr. Malcolm has been there since last December.

MRS. CATLIN IN MURDER CELL IS WRITING POEMS

Bride Accused of Killing Father to Go on Trial at January Term.

Wentworth, N. C.—Loneliness is preying heavily upon youthful Mrs. Alma Petty Gatlin in the county jail here where the comely bride of a few months is awaiting trial for the gruesome axe-murder of her 60-year-old father, Smith T. Petty. Finding her dreary existence between four drab walls in vivid contrast to the days less than a year ago when she was a belle of Reidsville, the diminutive prisoner has turned to writing poetry.

Possessed of a desire to give vent to her emotions through poetical expression, a trait which her friends say manifested itself even in her school days—the alleged patricide recently has found time to turn out recitals of poetry, some of which has been published in a county newspaper. No visitors are allowed to visit the accused murderer save close relatives and members of her array of counsel, and she spends several hours each day with her Muse, according to jail officials. She reads a few magazines and books, they said, left by visitors.

Mrs. Gatlin is faced with several months more of jail life until January, when her trial is scheduled to be called in Rockingham Superior Court here. The trial, which will bring together some of the best of North Carolina legal talent, is expected to last for a week or more.

Much of the time of the trial probably will be taken up with the testimony of Rev. Thomas F. ("Thunderbolt") Pardue, minister-evangelist and star prosecution witness who played a stellar role in the investigation which led to the alleged murderer's arrest.

Confession Revealed The erstwhile divine instigator of the murder investigation when he divulged to authorities a confession which he claimed Mrs. Gatlin confided to him in a religious exaltation after she attended a revival that Rev. Pardue was conducting at Reidsville.

The minister told the authorities that the 20-year-old bride confessed she had killed her father a year before with an axe as he was eating his breakfast, and had then concealed his body. Petty, a cotton mill foreman, had been missing for a little over a year, but no play had been suspected in connection with his disappearance. Acting on the information furnished them by the evangelist, authorities began an investigation which ended in the finding of Petty's axe-hacked body buried in a shallow grave in the basement of the Petty home. Mrs. Gatlin was arrested and charged with the horrible crime on the day the gruesome find was made. She denied making the confession to the minister.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (138) Preparing Tungsten

Tungsten gave four times the light of the old carbon-filament lamps for the same cost. Electricity became the cheapest substitute for sunshine instead of the dearest. Fortunes have been spent working out problems connected with the manufacture of the little bulbs which light our homes. The Tungsten filament represents years of experiments.

Tungsten is prepared from wolframite, a crude ore. After it is mined, wolframite is crushed, mixed with soda-ash and roasted.

The slugs, each the size of a fountain pen, are raised to an intense heat and beaten with rapidly moving hammers, until pliable. The heated slugs are forced through a diamond in which a tiny hole has been drilled and the metal is literally squirted out into one long filament. A length of this filament is sealed into the glass bulb.

BRITISH WATCH U. S. INDUSTRY; EXPECT DECLINE

Report Indicates Drop In Activity In Leading Industrial Lines.

London.—British business men are anxiously watching the industrial stage in the United States following the publication of a report from the British government's commercial advisers at Washington, in which it is stated that a definite and serious decline in American industrial activity has set in.

Dated May-June, 1927, the report, which has received wide attention from industrialists and the Press here, points out that "a depression in American industry, or even a serious halt in American industrial activities, would create now much more surely than in early periods a disturbance the consequence of which would be immediately and widely felt abroad."

Showing Decline
Agriculture, iron and steel, building, the automobile, the petroleum industries have all dropped, states this report, from the high levels of prosperity of last year and the first months of this year, and manufacturers are reported to be examining the high rates of industrial wages to reduce their costs. Profits have been cut to narrow margins, according to these authorities.

The British Board of Trade Journal, sums up the report cautiously indicating "the possibility of a serious pause in the long-sustained forward movement," and this would appear to be the official attitude of the British government toward the report.

"The installment system has apparently reached a point whence it cannot be much further expanded with safety," in the opinion of the authors of the report.

"A super-abundance of investment funds based, in the last analysis, on a large supply and continued influx of gold, has produced inflation in the securities market," they declare. "With the notable exception of one or two branches of industry and a few individual concerns the profits of industrial corporations, even some of the strongest and most efficient, have been reduced by keen mutual competition, high wages, largely developed producing capacity and a declining tendency of wholesale prices to very narrow margins."

"Foreseeing a still more severe struggle for markets, and with no great prospect of curtailing producing costs much farther by improved mechanical equipment, many manufacturers are beginning to turn an inquiring eye on the high levels of industrial wages, and a prolonged lay in activity would undoubtedly give rise to a vigorous canvassing of the possibility of a general wage reduction."

Cost of Distribution
"Costs of distribution, generally speaking, are very high, and there is a noticeable lack of correspondence in many lines between wholesale and retail prices."

"Notwithstanding an encouraging rise in the prices of some agricultural commodities, there is still a wide margin between general agricultural and general industrial prices, and the position in some sections of the farming community, which has been a weak link in the chain of general prosperity, continues to be unsettled and uncertain."

"The position in the motor car industry, another prop of general activity, is mixed, a few manufacturers having gained ground in a severe competition and many more have lost it, with the general result of somewhat curtailed output.

"The iron and steel industries, after a very active period early in the year, have slowed down to a notable degree, with forward orders lower than they have been for a long time past and prices at unprofitable levels."

"The soft coal mining industry has been in the throes of a costly strike. The petroleum industry is in a critical state owing to over production and congestion of crude oil and gasoline. Over production also hampers the woolen and silk textile industries."

FRIDAY, NOV. 18, 1927

WAR MACHINERY

On Wednesday there went into commission at Camden, N. J., a warship like none other that ever sailed the seas. She is the world's biggest airplane carrier and if every family in the United States were to put a two dollar bill in an envelope and mail it to the treasury department the resulting sum would just about settle the bill for her building...

This ship is the Saratoga. Originally she was to have been a battle ship. But the 1922 arms limitation agreement at Washington put up the bars on the completion of any more battleships and so, ironically enough, she was converted into something presumably more effective than a dozen battleships.

She carries, or is to carry, eighty-three airplanes—fighting scouts, bombers, observation and general utility—which can be launched from her plane deck and sent on their errands of destruction.

She has a device called a "mechanical mathematician" for automatically calculating the altitude and speed of approaching enemy planes and automatically aiming and firing guns designed for the purpose of sweeping such unpleasant neighbors from the skies. She carries eight eight-inch guns, twelve five-inch guns and four twenty-one-inch torpedo tubes.

Her ship's company will include officers and crew to the number of 1,365 men besides 450 members of the aviation service.

The presumption is that this ship will be able to lick many times her weight in maritime wildcats. The Navy Department has every confidence in her. Her officers and crew will, if they are like any other naval officers and crew, come to have still more. The Big Navy men will gloat over her and the officers and men who daily fondle the mechanical range finder for planes and the great torpedo launching apparatus and all the other brand-new delects of warfare will be a bit more than human if presently they do not develop an itch to try out the great ship and her and her novelties in a practical demonstration. And the fact that there can be no practical demonstration of such a machine as this ship in anything but real warfare will not keep the itch from increasing.

The history of the world presents no single example of the erection of a great and splendid military organization which was permitted to fall into rust for want of use. A nation with an overwhelming army or navy is like a boy with a new and shining shotgun. He absolutely cannot rest till he has killed something with it.

Give the United States half a dozen of such creations as the Saratoga and a score and a half of new ten thousand ton cruisers, and if the sober minded part of the population succeeds in keeping us out of war with somebody it will be something utterly new in the world. That is what the Big Navy party wants; and to yield to it is to throw a monkey wrench in the wheels of peace.

CHARLES S. MELLON

For the delusions of grandeur which dictated the career of the former president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, now dead at Concord, N. H., the people of Connecticut paid a price greater than any they have ever paid for any sin or error of their own, comparable only to the penalties of war. Ruin and poverty came to thousands of families who saw their little fortunes or their lesser savings swept away in the debacle of New Haven shares which followed the frenzied, ruthless gambling with their properties by the railroad manipulators of the Mellon regime.

The career of Charles Sanger Mellon was a career of inordinate desire for greatness and power superposed on a mediocre intellect. The man was simply incapable of comprehending the basic principles of mathematics and economics. He had less real vision than the smallest shopkeeper, who knows that his intake must exceed his outgo by the amount of his overhead and his living expenses, or bankruptcy must come. His dreams of railroad empire were wove of fog and moonshine. And yet, for many years, he looked down on the crowd from the heights of a structure of straw—and the crowd looked up at him in gaping wonder that one man could do so great.

It was the tragedy of the situation that Mellon should have found, for the purposes of New Haven exploitation, the backing of a great financial magnate of somewhat his own order of mentality. And that the sound of the name of Morgan should have lulled the people of Connecticut, real owners of the New Haven whose money was financing the crazy gamble, into a sense of false security while the game of chance, utterly disregardful of the killing odds, went on.

When the collapse came—and nothing on earth could have prevented it from coming—the support of countless Connecticut families, the life's profits of thousands of savers, were swept away. The wreckage was enormous. The scars left have never healed.

There are those who still maintain that Charles S. Mellon was a genius, ahead of his time. That will do to tell elsewhere. In Connecticut there is a fixed belief that there are on every train brakemen with a truer financial and economic balance than this adventurer. His one distinguishing quality was a lust for power and high place.

REALLY BIG BUSINESS

Assuming that the postwar industrial and business development of the United States is about completed and that the time has come to turn to the economic strategy of the future, President Coolidge yesterday, in an address to business leaders in Washington, outlined several great undertakings which he declared must command the attention of the nation at an early day. Among them, aside from a rounding out of naval strength, he named food control, a deep waterways system for the Mississippi valley, a St. Lawrence outlet from the Great Lakes, the Colorado river project, a privately owned merchant marine, the development of defensive air forces largely through the encouragement of commercial flying. These are among the achievements which the President calls the "test of prosperity"; if we accomplish them we shall have stood the test; if we do not we shall have failed.

As a matter of fact how deeply do the people of the country feel about any one of these matters? Individually the American people surpass any on earth of their grasp of big business problems. Collectively, in our grasp of really national business—for these things are just that—we are far behind the times.

If President Coolidge succeeds in diverting the minds of American politicians from their own jobs long enough to look at any of these great and imperative problems from the responsible view of statesmanship, he will have proved himself something of a wizard.

SEAFARING

Oddly enough, some of the same people who have witnessed the departure of airplane expeditions whose objective was the other side of the Atlantic, and who have cheered the aviators in serene confidence that they would "get there," watched the sailing of the ketch Kirchsels and its crew of four from New York for Hamburg, a day or two ago, with much shaking of heads and dubious forecasts of disaster.

Yet the ketch is a tight and able little craft of 69 tons, which is 29 tons bigger than the caravel Nina in which Christopher Columbus made his return voyage from the West Indies to Portugal after a stupid steersman had piled up his 100 ton Santa Maria on the shores of Santa Domingo. She is of 31 tons smaller burden than the Santa Maria, which was Columbus' flagship on that famous voyage of discovery of the western world, but infinitely more seaworthy than that snub-nosed, high-pooped, staggering little ship, which in a gale would make twice as much leeway as headway.

The voyage across the Atlantic and the North sea will probably be a tumblesome one for the Kirchsels, but there is nothing to fear if the seamanship of her little crew is as sound as their tiny ship. The purposes of transatlantic voyaging, up to yet, the smallest of sailing-ships is a far, far safer vehicle than the biggest of planes.

A PUZZLE

Passing strange is the effect of an advertisement issued by Commander George W. Dyott at New York for a fourth man to join with Dyott and two others in an exploring expedition in the Amazon country, when no less than fifteen thousand persons of every conceivable walk in life have applied to be taken along. Dyott painted the task ahead of the expedition in no glowing colors. It is to search for another explorer, Colonel P. H. Fawcett, and for the ruins of a lost civilization, rumors of which have been persistent for years. Dyott made it clear that the labor would be herculean, the climate probably the worst in the world for a white man, the recompense next to nothing. He asked for a volunteer "to whom money, the comforts of life and life itself mean very little."

And fifteen thousand beg the privileges of the adventure, with the applications still pouring in! One might wise-crack and say that the applicants were probably tired of dodging the perils of city streets and longed for the relative safety of the jungle, snake, poison arrows, fevers and heat stroke. But the problem is too intriguing to be passed off with a joke.

What gandy of unrest has bitten this nation that a full regiment of its citizens are fighting for the single opportunity for such a martyrdom as these folk seek? Seriously, it is a puzzle.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By ROONEY DUTCHER Washington, Nov. 18.—The latest immigration problem suggests the perhaps beneficial expedient of setting up immigration boundaries along state lines.

Congress probably would not consider such a proposal seriously, but it has possibilities. Mexican immigration is the problem referred to. The present quota law, designed to restrict the great hordes of aliens from Europe, does not apply to Mexico or Canada. Mexican immigration has been increasing rapidly. Official records show the arrival of more than 300,000, including 66,766 for 1927, and large numbers are supposed to have crossed the border unofficially.

Labor unions, Secretary of Labor Davis and certain congressmen have urged the inclusion of Mexicans within the quota law and the question will come before the next Congress in the form of the Box bill, which proposes to place Mexican immigration on the same quota basis as European immigration. There will be a fight over the bill, however, with areas along the Mexican border lined up against it. The sentiment behind the Box bill is based on the fact that Mexican laborers are penetrating the country to northern steel mills and railroads and doing the heavy jobs formerly performed by European workers.

Their work is mostly unskilled labor, but they are offering the same competition which the quota laws erected against Europeans was supposed to stop and their presence presumably aggravates unemployment conditions caused by our own surplus of labor. If the 1924 quota law were applied to Mexico, immigration from that country would be cut to about 3 per cent of the present figure.

The opposition to the Box bill and similar proposals comes most vigorously from California and South Texas, which areas depend importantly on Mexican labor for agricultural purposes. Every year, during the fruit and vegetable season, thousands of Mexicans cross the border from Sonora and Lower California to help harvest the crops. Some of them stay and work as farm hands the year around. The demand of this section for labor is a seasonal demand, and Mexico offers the cheapest, if not the only source.

Business men and representatives of agricultural and horticultural interests, banded together in the Association for Development of California, have appointed a commission to come to Washington and oppose the Box bill. The South Texas Chamber of Commerce was expected to take some similar action at its meeting in Brownsville Nov. 14 and 15.

Secretary Davis has suggested limiting Mexican immigration to "skilled workers of the kind accustomed throughout the United States," which he believes could be effected by extension of the quota law, but this hardly would solve the question for the border farmers who may be joined in their attitude by some industrial employers of unskilled labor.

On the other hand, someone may yet make the novel proposal that a border for immigration purposes be drawn around the California and Texas American borders or on some line between those and the Mexican border. This would limit Mexican immigration to the sections where Mexican labor is most desired and prevent it from seeping into the unskilled labor markets of the north. It might be a scheme which would make everybody happy.

GOLD RUSH AT DENVER BOOMS NEWLIN GULCH

Hundreds Flock to Old District Where Precious Metal Is Found.

Denver.—A "gold rush," reminiscent of the days of '59, when ox cart caravans crossed the plains containing pioneers in search of the valuable metal that made Colorado famous, is being re-enacted within ten miles of Denver.

Hundreds of persons have flocked to the Newlin Gulch district, south of Denver, where development work is under way and where already large quantities of the precious metal have been taken from a newly discovered gold reef, believed by many to be one of the most valuable ever found in Colorado.

Several leases have been let to prospectors, all containing the provision that they sink a shaft to a depth of at least seventy-five feet.

It is thought by some geologists that the deposit may resemble the famous Rand Reef, Transvaal District, South Africa, and precautions are also being taken to unearth any deposits of platinum that might be hidden at a depth.

Gold On Surface
Officials of a placer gold company who have been taking gold from the surface in profitable quantities since the first of September, believe the deposit is situated in an old volcano crater. Others forward the opinion, however, that all the gold found there has been washed down from the nearby mountains.

The metal now being panned assays at $20.10 an ounce. The 238 million dollars of gold mined in Cripple Creek prior to January 1, 1927, averaged between $18 and $10 per ounce. Pure gold is worth $20.67 an ounce.

Gold is being panned daily by hand in the newly discovered area and the placer company has a machine of recent invention that pans ore automatically.

Belief that the discovery is producing gold local to the area is expressed by several mining engineers, although some have contended that the metal panned has been washed down from the mountains.

The fact that the placer gold is jagged edge and rough indicates, according to those who favor the "local area" contention, that the metal is from a reef in the district, and not from a distance.

Commenting on his belief that the Newlin Gulch discovery is a new reef of fabulous value, J. D. Caidon, 83-year-old geologist, who was a pioneer in the Johannesburg and Rand area of South Africa, declared:

Due to Old Volcano
"Make no mistake about it, this Newlin Gulch area is identical with the Rand area. The metal is surface gold, fine and flaky, and is identical with the Rand reef production. The surface rocks are the same and the entire geological content is very similar. I have traced the formation for more than fifty miles in a ragged, horseshoe shape, which indicates a gigantic volcano formation extending over the entire area."

This volcanic eruptions, according to Caidon, is much older in geology even than in the great peaks of the Continental Divide.

"When the eruption took place," Caidon said, "possibly millions of years ago, the crater walls stood above the surface, just as they evidently did in the Rand. In the process of time they were eroded away and the roof, or crater, was buried beneath its own debris."

Caidon claimed there was every indication that the Newlin Gulch gold was finer than any.

SCHEDULE A-3

Optional Combination Lighting and Cooking Schedule for Residences.

This Schedule is for Private Residences who desire to use Electric Ranges or other large Electric Units. The 4 cent per K. W. Hr. Energy charge enables a customer to operate an Electric Range at a much lower rate than is obtainable on our regular 5 1/2 cent Residential Area Schedule.

Call at our new office, No. 773 Main Street, and let us explain these New Rate Reductions.

POWER AND APPLIANCE DEMAND.

50% of Kw. of Counted Load, except that in no case, shall this be less than 75% of the largest Single Unit.

LAMP RENEWALS UNDER SCHEDULE B-2.

For Customer's whose demands do not exceed 100 K. W., Lamps will be renewed as in Regular Commercial Lighting Schedule, B-1.

EXAMPLE

SHOWING THE METHOD OF FIGURING BILLS ON SCHEDULE B-2.

The bill is made up of two parts: The Flat Rate, and the amount based on the meter readings.

Assume that the customer has 8 K. W. of Lighting Load and 1 H. P. in several motors. The Billing Demand would be made up as follows:

LIGHTING—

100% of the first K. W.	1 K. W.
85% of the next 2 K. W.	1.7 K. W.
Total Lighting Demand	2.7 K. W.

POWER—

50% of 1 K. W.	.5 K. W.
Total Billing Demand	3.2 K. W.

The yearly Flat Rate would be: 3.2 K. W. at $45 a Year—$144, or per month..... $12.00

To this is added the amount determined from the Meter readings.

Assume this customer used 480 K. W. Hrs. for Light and 100 K. W. Hrs. for Power.

This would amount to:
500 K. W. Hrs. at 5.....	$25.00
80 K. W. Hrs. at 4c.....	3.20
Total Monthly bill, Light and Power under this New Rate	$40.20

The Customers Combined Light and Power bills under the Old Rates would be..... $46.67

Saving to customer who uses his installed Load freely..... $6.47 per month

Schedule A-3 Optional Combination Lighting and Cooking Schedule for Residences

This Schedule is available only for Private Residential use, as an option to Regular Residential Lighting Schedule A-1, for Lighting and the usual small household appliances, when combined with an Electric Range, Refrigerator, or other large Current Consuming devices, subject to the approval of the Company as to sizes and types.

- (1) Flat Rate, $1.08 per year for each 100 Sq. Ft. of Floor Area, payable monthly. (Same measurement basis as in Residential Lighting Schedule A-1.)

Plus (2) 4 cents per Kilowatt-Hour, by meter.

LAMP RENEWALS UNDER COMBINATION LIGHTING AND COOKING SCHEDULE.

The Company's Regular Lamp Renewal Policy.

Schedule B-1 Commercial Lighting MONTHLY CONSUMPTION

For the First 200 Kw. Hrs. $1.0 per Kw. Hr.
For any part of the next 800 Kw. Hrs. .09 pr Kw. Hr.
For any part of the next 1500 Kw. Hrs. .07 per Kw. Hr.
For all excess .06 per Kw. Hr.
Minimum Monthly Bill $1.00.

DISCOUNT FOR LONG BURNING HOURS.

2% for over 100 Hours use of installed load per month
5% for over 115 Hours use of installed load per month
10% for over 140 Hours use of installed load per month
15% for over 165 Hours use of installed load per month
20% for over 195 Hours use of installed load per month

The Long Burning Hours Discount will be figured by dividing the meter Kw. Hrs. by the Customer's Installed Load as follows:

Empty Sockets counted at 25 Watts; appliances at their K. W. Rating; one H. P. of motor is counted as 1 K. W. Portable devices not exceeding 680 Watts capacity, operated on detachable cords are not counted.

THE BILLING DEMAND is the sum of the Light and Power demands after the following percentages are applied to the count.

LIGHTING DEMAND
100% of the first Kw. of Counted load, or any part.

Because mignonette gives the impression of liveliness and buoyancy it is particularly effective for the woman who is reticent and may even overcome an inferiority complex.

The athletic girl should use lavender while Iris is most suitable to the Auburn blonde.

Avoid flowery perfumes and use oriental, spicy scents to become exotic.

Her honeymoon over, Vilma Banky is dividing her attention between taming the cooking of Rod LaRoque's breakfast eggs and the script which Alice D. G. Miller is preparing from Baroness Orczy's "Leatherstocking." This Samuel Goldwyn production, which has not yet been given its final title, will be the last picture co-starring Miss Banky and her husband before the famous couple come to the parting of their film ways to pursue separate cinema careers.

Hair registers emotion on the screen, declares Director Fred Niblo. "An actress' culture is becoming an index to her characterization," he contends. "The hands, eyes and mouth have all been emphasized as emotional features, but the modern screen star does not underestimate the importance of her hairdresser."

Lillian Gish, for example, arranges her hair in three different ways in the Viennese production of "The Enemy" to express as many stages in the heroine's life.

"For youthful gaiety she chooses to wear curls down her back," her director explains. "Braids wound around her head in duchess fashion characterize the dignity of her marriage, while straight hair parted in the middle is most appropriate for the tragic sequences."

"The Goddess Girl," next of Cecil B. DeMille's personally directed pictures, will not be as rigorous in theme as its title suggests, but is a romantic melodrama with the American high school and reformatory furnishings a modern background. Jeanie MacPherson has finished her continuity on the story by Author Ernest Pascal.

MOTHER OF NUNGESSER THINKS HE STILL LIVES

Paris, Nov. 18.—"My son is the victim of amnesia. He received a blow on the head and he still lives somewhere but she doesn't know where he is or who he is."

Mme. Nungesser made this statement this afternoon when Theodore Rousseau, manager of the Paris branch of the Guaranty Trust Co., presented her with a check for 100,000 francs and 30,000 francs worth of French bonds—the tribute of American admirers of Captain Charles Nungesser, who, with Francois Coll, has been missing many months after hopping off from Paris on an attempted flight across the Atlantic ocean.

"This money belongs to my son," said Mme. Nungesser as she accepted the gift. "It is very kind of the Americans to remember me but I will not touch the money. We'll save it until we have news of my son."

MAN VS. INSECTS IS WORLD FIGHT WARNING ISSUED

Battle to Finish With Bugs
With Human Race Asking Reinforcements.

Berkeley, Cal.—Man vs insects—a fight to the finish—supremacy of the world the reward!

The battle is being fought in every civilized country, and today the shock troops in the California sector issued a call for reinforcements.

Warning that millions of dollars in crops is being destroyed annually, that orchardists and vineyardists take steps to combat the attacking myriads of insects.

Not that California losses from insect pests are greater than those of other states. On the contrary, the destruction is lighter in some respects than elsewhere.

Constant Battle
But a constant battle must be waged if the losses are to be held to their present level, and extraordinary efforts must be put forth to reduce them.

Professor S. J. Holmes, once declared insects were man's strongest rivals, due to their amazing capacity for organization.

Even now the insect hordes are organizing for the annual spring drive, their goal the fertile fields of grain and flowering orchards, vineyards and truck gardens.

The codling moth, grape leaf hopper, purple scale, red spiders, white fly, woolly aphid, black scale—like allied armies have joined forces to set upon their hereditary enemy—man.

New Armies Born
New armies will be born. The black scale alone will reproduce from 1500 to 2000 young, each of which will have but one object in life—to attack and destroy citrus trees.

At Davis farm, a department of the college of agriculture, the general staff of the army organized to repel the myriads of hungry invaders is preparing today for the next drive. J. L. Stahl of the Pomology division suggests that farmers everywhere in the state literally go to war to protect their crops. Comparable to the wartime training school, a short course to teach the best methods of combatting insects of every description is to be given at Davis farm, Nov. 28 to Dec. 3.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT

New York, Nov. 18.—Miss Clara E. O'Reilly's suit to force William F. Alexander, wealthy insurance broker, to fulfill an alleged promise to pay her $1,000 a month for life, came to a sudden end today with the announcement of a settlement out of court. The terms were not divulged. Miss O'Reilly's home is in Denver, but she left the parental roof at nineteen to become a movie actress.

STUDENTS QUIT HEAVY DRINKING AT CAMBRIDGE

English University Men Now
More Temperate, Is Report of Winesellers.

Cambridge, Eng.—Heavy drinking is a thing of the past among English university students, and in comparison with the American college man, the Englishman does not drink at all.

According to J. F. Miller, well-known as a wine-seller in Cambridge for forty years, the wave of temperance which has swept British universities, is due largely to the fact that the students are finding distractions in other directions, around any more, and neither do the boys drink.

hills, and that they are being brought up to believe that it is more to their advantage to control their thirsts than to give them a free rein.

Can't Afford It
"Finance is another reason," Miller declared. "The boys can't afford to drink, but even before autos and movies became general, and before the war made finances bad and pocket-money scarce—way back there began this wave of temperance which today sweeps Oxford and Cambridge."

"The real secret is that the boys come from homes where it's just not done, and that is what's wrecking my business."

"In the old days there used to be carousing. Nights like the occasion of the boat race used to find all Cambridge in a state of intoxication, and scaffolds, building material, lumber of all sorts used to be taken up to Market Hill and set on fire."

"After I had been in the business some time, fathers whose college days I had known would bring their sons to me and introduce them that the boys might know where to get a good harmless drink. My drinks are as harmless today, but fathers don't bring their boys around any more, and neither do the boys drink."

"Parents are bringing up their boys with the idea that a 'gentleman controls his thirst,' and that seems to mean the omission of the real drink."

Miller was also of the opinion that almost general participation of English undergraduates in athletics was accountable for considerable less drinking among students.

"Players never touch it," he said, "and that is another thing that would account for more drinking among American college men, for fewer of them take any part in athletics."

"We hear tales about drinking in America. I think sometimes if we had prohibition law here, we would find our business improving."

AUTO DEALERS HIT BY COURT RULING

Cars Laden With Booze 'Ar
Confiscated Even If Not Al Paid For.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 18.—Judge James A. Lowell today ruled in Federal Court that automobiles seized under the Internal Revenue Act and in which was intoxicating liquor or merchandise on which taxes were due the government automatically were forfeited to the government.

The ruling by Judge Lowell comes as a blow to the automobile dealers whose cars, sold on the part-payment plan, were used in the transportation of liquor. Here before dealers or others who held liens on cars so seized could, by convincing the court that they had no knowledge of the illegal use of the car, obtained a return of the automobile to them.

Judge Lowell's ruling came in the settlement of the case of the government against Frank Grazini of East Boston.

SATURDAY GAMES TO DECIDE TWO CHAMPIONSHIPS

It's a Toss Up, Says Walsh; Anyway It Will Decide Big Ten Winner.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH (I. N. S. Sports Editor)

Chicago, Nov. 18.—"Business as usual," a Chamber of Commerce slogan, is the best that can be said for collegiate football tomorrow...

It can do some strange things, too, to the Pacific coast conference championship, provided California wins from Stanford and Southern California blows one to Washington State...

What should happen is a conventional and wholly orthodox victory for both Stanford and U. S. C. sending the final answer to the coast race over to December 3rd...

The Tigers, who top the conference at the moment without a defeat, will have to win both of their remaining games to escape a tie with Nebraska...

The remainder of the schedule for the days means not so much, unless Harvard beats Yale, Drake takes Notre Dame and Mercer halts Georgia...

Yale hasn't scored a touchdown in the Harvard stadium since Hefelfinger lost his toe, if he ever did, but if they don't start tomorrow they never will and, as to that, what if it if they don't?

that past performances mean nothing to these teams, both having spent half their lives in beating the other out of the Big Ten championship...

Minnesota can win the championship by beating Michigan but only provided the Illinois team loses to Ohio State...

KNOCKOUTS APLENTY ON LAST NIGHT'S CARD

Bill Palmer Shows Yellow Streak—Billy Taylor Wins Over Providence Boy.

A fifty-fifty show would describe the boxing card at Foot Guard hall last evening. There were plenty of knockouts but the matches did not click so many of the fans were disappointed...

Bill Palmer, the Windsor Locks giant verified the popular opinion that he could not take it last night when he flopped to the floor twice in a round when he hardly even was slapped by a colored gentleman from Providence...

Bill Taylor won over Joe Brusso, of Providence, whom he fouled last week. Taylor was not impressive and seemed to be playing with his man. He still has his old habit of watching his opponent from the corner of his eye and experts figure that it may spell doom for him if he tries this stunt on Pinkie next week...

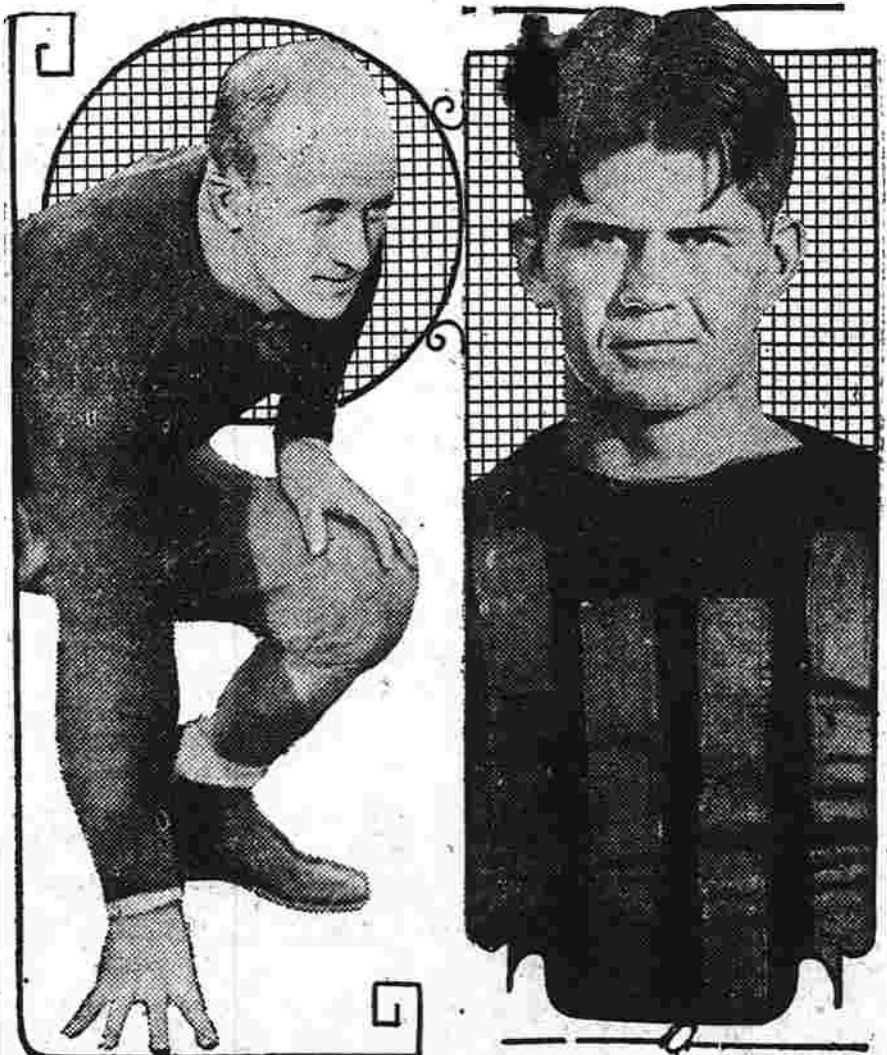

Here are the results of the bouts: 136 pound class: Frank Colombo, Windsor Locks, won the decision over Barney Youseman, Hartford; 150 pound class: Vic Morley, Hartford won the decision over Walter Main, Providence; 140 pound class: Johnny Clinch, New Britain, won on a knockout in the second round over Charley Romano, Hartford; 133 pound class: Marino Pagoni, Springfield, won a four round decision over Pancho Villa, Hartford; 152 pound class: Stanley Ziemnicki, Springfield, won on a technical knockout in the third round over Frank Keenan, New Britain...

SUHE ROLLS 146 SETTING NEW HIGH SINGLE RECORD

Masons Grab Four Points; Rest of Matches All 3-1 Except Beethoven-British American Deadlock.

Dissecting Grid Rules by O'Brien

CRAWLING PENALTY By E. J. O'Brien.

Captain Mike Suhle of the Cubs bowling team hit a score of 146 in the Herald League last night thus establishing a new high single record and one that may stand for some time...

The Masons continue to lead the league as a result of winning all three games from the Cloverleaves. Howard Murphy had a three string of 333. Highland Park came to life and spanked the Knights of Pythias twice to get three tallies...

In the last match, the Beethoven won the first game by 11 pins and the second by five but lost the third by 31 thus breaking even. Following are the scores:

Table with columns for team names and scores. Includes Bon Ami (1), Cubs (3), Cloverleaves (0), Masons (4), Highland Park (3), K. of P. (1), St. Bridgets (1), and West Side (3).

Crawling is any attempt on the part of the player carrying the ball to advance after he has touched the ground with any part of his body except his feet and hands, while in the grasp of an opponent...

In previous years, a man was never convicted of crawling until after the whistle had blown to declare the ball dead. However, according to the interpretation of the rules at this time, the player may be guilty of crawling even before the whistle has blown...

NO BREATHING SPELLS

It is doubtful if there ever was a season in the history of collegiate football that compares with the present one for upsets. Every Saturday since late September there has been anywhere from four to a dozen games that have resulted directly contrary to the predictions of the experts...

Recently I had the opportunity to discuss this unusual condition with a former All-American star of about 10 years back and he offered a rather logical explanation of the many form reversals in football. "Too hard a schedule, necessitating that the coach point his team for too many consecutive games without having a breathing spell in between," was the solution offered by the All-American star...

"Football is a strenuous sport and you can't ask too much of the youthful athletes who play it. The strain is such they are bound to go stale unless they have a chance to taper off, relax a bit."

It strikes me that the All-American star who has been through the mill and knows what he is talking about, just about hit the nail on the head.

Michigan is Example Take the Michigan schedule, for instance. After two preliminary games to get the boys hardened up, the Wolverines playing Ohio Wesleyan and Michigan State as conditioners, the trouble began for the Ann Arbor boys...

From that time until the close of the season, Michigan's schedule called for such formidable opposition as Wisconsin, Ohio State, Illinois, Chicago, Navy and Minnesota on successive Saturdays. That's six tough ones in a row.

Michigan had to be on edge to beat Wisconsin, was at top form against its traditional rival, Ohio State, but slumped badly against Illinois and, minus Gilbert, suffered a most unexpected defeat, 14-0. The team seemed dead on its feet, in no way resembled the brilliant aggregation that swamped Ohio State.

Few teams are able to weather six tough games in succession without having the athletes go stale, despite the most careful conditioning upon the part of coach and trainer.

Not Like Old Days In the old days when there was no huge overhead because of the big stadiums, two or three big games would draw more than enough people to make the season a success financially.

The modern stadium has changed this condition entirely. There must be from four to six big home games with a couple on the road. Incidentally, the coach must turn out a patronage that will pack the stands.

The case of Michigan is merely one of perhaps 20 that could be named. Consider Yale. In the second game of the season the Blue took on the strong Georgia team. The Southerners pointed for Yale, started work early in September, while Yale used Georgia as a conditioner. The result, Yale suffered an early reverse, 14-10.

One can find a similar happening in the records of a majority of the leading teams because there is a spot in most of them where the team is stale and suffers.

However, since winning isn't everything from the collegiate angle, and since the huge stadiums must be filled to take care of the overhead and look after the expense of other sports, hard schedules will continue and upsets will occur.

NORTH ENDS FEEDING JACK DWYER'S GOAT

The North End cheering section had a very enthusiastic practice last night under the direction of James Copeland. Saturday afternoon they will practice at Hickey's Grove in the section set aside for their use in the game. Last night's practice showed that the fans picked an able leader in Copeland and his two assistants, Flynn and Moriarty...

JUMPS FROM WINDOW TO SAVE CHILDREN

Her Clothes Afire, Grandmother Performs Heroic Act; Children Saved.

New York, Nov. 18.—When flaming grease from a cookstove splattered Mrs. Paula Colon and transferred her into a flaming torch she jumped out of a window in her home to save the lives of her two baby grandchildren, hospital authorities said today.

Her heroic effort to prevent the apartment from catching fire would have been entirely successful if she hadn't brushed window draperies in her plunge.

They caught fire, and neighbors who saw them smoldering turned in an alarm. Firemen extinguished the blaze and rescued Pauline Colon, 2, and Ramon, 5 months. The grandmother's condition is serious.

All America?

Herb Joesting, the big blonde back of Minnesota, hopes to make the mythical All-American team this year despite stiff opposition being offered by Lewis of Northwestern, Hoffman of Stanford and Amos of W. and J. He has staged many a drive down the field by his pile-driving line smashes, and seems as good as won this year as he was last year. He has not, however, left a very wide margin of play over several other fullbacks after the mythical berth. To Joesting is due much credit for the Gophers' 1927 wins.

Rec Boxing Class Grows Under Busch

More than fifty young men are taking instructions in the art of boxing at the School street Rec from Frankie Busch, popular instructor in the fist industry.

Among them are many of the amateur boxers who are taking part in tournaments hereabouts. With Cheney Brothers to hold their bouts in the Rec, it is thought that the attendance at these classes will increase further.

Under the present system, older boys receive boxing instructions from 7 until 8 o'clock on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings in the small gymnasium. The business men's class is from 5 until 6 on Wednesdays and Fridays while the junior boys' class is from 5 to 6 on Monday evenings.

Mr. Busch feels the loss of Tiger Flowers who died suddenly day before yesterday, very much as he has boxed with him many times. Busch was in Flower's stable.

Celtics-Scandias Play Here Sunday

There will be only one soccer game in Manchester over the weekend and that will be between the Celtics and the Hartford Scandias at the West Side grounds. Play will start at 2:45. The Scandias Workers recently held the British Americans to a tie score, so a fast game is expected. The Celtics hope for a large crowd Sunday.

At New Britain, Cheney Brothers and the Swedes will play while at Hartford the Scandias and Germania clubs mingle.

POST SEASON GAME

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 18.—Georgetown, Dartmouth and Harvard officials were in conference here today in an effort to secure permission from the Harvard corporation for the use of the Stadium on November 26th for a post-season game between Georgetown and Dartmouth, the proceeds to be equally divided between the flood sufferers of Vermont and New Hampshire. The Stadium has never been used for anything but intercollegiate sports in which Harvard has participated except twice for charitable purposes.

GETS NEW CONTRACT

Mike Donahue recently accepted a contract to remain as football coach at Louisiana State for the next six years.

BEST HALFBACK OF SECTION

Glenn Presnell, Nebraska halfback, is considered the best halfback in his section.

College Officials to Work Sunday's Championship Game

Fans who journey to Hickey's Grove to see the Cubs and the Cloverleaves play for the town football championship day after tomorrow may rest assured that they will see a real football game for their fifty cents for the contest will be in the hands of competent officials.

James E. Keegan, managing director of the Pittsfield Boys' club at Pittsfield, Mass., will referee and H. F. "Dad" White, head football coach at Amherst College, will umpire. The head-linesman, whose name has not been announced, is also from Amherst. These officials were secured by the sporting editor of the Evening Herald in the presence of representatives of both organizations.

Experienced Officials Mr. Keegan, who will referee, has officiated in four Yale games at New Haven this season and will referee the Boston College-Connecticut Aggie game at Clarkin Field in Hartford tomorrow afternoon. At Yale, Mr. Keegan worked as a referee twice and as a field judge twice. During his career, he has worked as a referee twice and as a worker in many important college games. He was secured on the recommendation of Tad Jones. "Dad" White, who will umpire the game, is widely known as an official of wide experience. He will furnish the head-linesman.

With this set of officials in charge, both the Cubs and the Cloverleaves will have to play real football every minute.

Prices Not Raised According to inquiries coming into this office, a rumor has been spread to the effect that the admission to the game Sunday will be raised. This was emphatically denied last night by both Manager Bill Griffin of the Cloverleaves and Manager Connie Dietz of the Cubs. Adult admission will be 50 cents and ladies and children will be charged 25 cents. Fans should remember that the game will start promptly at 2 o'clock. It will be preceded by a preliminary bill featuring the North Ends and the Meriden Mohicans.

There is a rumor that the St. Louis club may trade Pilot Rhem and Lester Bell to the New York Giants.

Local Schoolboys In Most Important Game Of Season At McKee St. Stadium

Manchester High and Windham High meet in the most important schoolboy game of the season tomorrow afternoon, at the McKee street stadium. The kickoff will be at 2:30. Competent neutral officials will be in charge.

Manchester and Willimantic have long been arch rivals and every time these two towns meet on the field of battle, a battle royal results. In football last year, Manchester took a 12 to 0 pasting, but the locals are determined this will not occur again this year.

Under the supervision of their coach, Tommy Kelley, the S. M. H. S. gridsters have been practicing hard for the coming contest. Special emphasis has been laid on solving Windham plays which were brought here by scouts who have watched Windham in action. The scrubs used these formations and plays against the varsity during the week.

Willimantic's attack will be based around Heller and Saba, two husky gridsters who are said to possess plenty of football knowledge. Nichols and Warren are also on the Windham team and should make matters interesting for the home team.

Manchester's lineup, while a bit uncertain, will probably be Lupien and Farr, ends; Spencer, Healy, tackles; L. Cheney, Welles, guards; Moore, center; Hansen, quarter; E. Dowd, Treat, Shannon, Gill, halfbacks; with Captain Keeney, fullback.

HOW THEY HIT BARNSTORMING

PACIFIST PROFESSOR CHURCH NIGHT SPEAKER

Prof. Bainton Pictures Horrors
Of War, Questions Responsibility For Last.

Despite the unfavorable weather two hundred attended the first church night supper and program last night at Second Congregational church. The vestry was filled with long rows of attractively set tables with vari-colored candles and decorations of green and yellow paper. The meal was an appetizing one of hot corned beef hash with tomato sauce, salad of prunes stuffed with cheese and peanut butter, mixed pickles, rolls and coffee, home made pies of different fillings and cheese. Chorus singing of popular songs followed with Mrs. R. K. Anderson the church organist at the piano and Will Taylor leading.

Rev. Frederick C. Allen, the pastor, made a few remarks, told a witty story and introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. Roland Bainton of Yale college, professor of history there. His subject was "War and Peace" and he handled it in a scholarly manner with frequent touches of humor or pathos. He gave statistics showing the terrible toll of life in the World War, read a quotation from an English officer depicting the horror of it from his actual experiences at the front. A war that cynicism was, if another should occur at the present time with the progress that has been made in gases and death-dealing agents, whole populations could be wiped out in a single night. Dr. Bainton said we are now being flooded with literature by authors and historians giving their theories as to how it all happened and who was to blame. It is always the case after any war. Some writers now contend that Germany was relatively less to blame than some of the other countries. He explained the events that led up to the World War in a lucid, informing way and the attitude of the Balkan and other nations concerned in it. He gave many pathetic instances showing that the common people harbored no hatred for those they were fighting with although their governments were warring.

As to the stories of atrocities accredited to German soldiers, Lloyd George made the statement that he had not been able to trace the case of a single child in Belgium whose hands had been cut off by them, and Admiral Sims declared there was no foundation in fact for many of the submarine horrors attributed to the Germans.

Dr. Bainton held the close attention of his audience throughout his address and when he had finished they arose and warmly applauded him.

The MOVIE PEOPLE

Hollywood, Calif.—There seems to be quite a bit of foreign news trickling into this column of late. Today's mail brought a letter from Joe Fisher, one of the leading exhibitors of the Far East, which sheds considerable light on the activities of the British.

"Australia has just enacted a law that every theater show 2000 feet of British or Australian film on their programs," says Fisher. "The new ruling comes under the heading of 'The Quota' and is meeting with much opposition. Exhibitors are merely stuffing their programs with poor homemade scenic and other local products in order to comply with the new law. And patrons are kicking."

"The trouble is that the majority of British films are made for England and are unsuitable for exhibition to Far Eastern audiences. I recently told Captain Geoffrey Malins, who is now touring the world on behalf of the British film industry, that if he could name four British films suitable for the Far East, I would buy them. Captain Malins couldn't even name one.

"The only remedy for the situation is for England to start making pictures that will have a universal appeal. However, instead of doing that, they are depending upon laws to put their films across. And theater owners are forced to buy American films as well as the British in order to attract the fans."

Even the film actors find that it is better to work in Hollywood than in England. Several months ago Percy Marmont had a row with producers here and went back to England to make pictures. But he returned to the movie capital a few weeks ago, fully decided that he is better off here than across the Atlantic, even though there is a little friction now and then.

The same barn that Jesse Lasky used when he made his first film in Hollywood and which he later dressed up as his office is now being used by his employees as a gymnasium. When the Lasky company was moved into its new quarters about a year ago, the barn also was moved to the new lot and "pensioned." But it hadn't remained idle very long when Lasky hit upon the gym idea and now it is one of the most popular spots in the studio.

CHAIR MAKING IS PREACHER'S JOB IN N. C. PRISON

Rev. Jordan Not Picked For Chaplain, As State Officials Object.

Raleigh, N. C.—Hope of Rev. Willis T. Jordan, erstwhile chaplain of the Methodist faith whose one too many martial ventures placed him behind the bars of State Prison here, to become chaplain of the prison, has been blasted once and for all.

Instead of playing the role of spiritual adviser to the prison's variegated population, the famous "amnesia parson"—now State Convict No. 20940—is learning the intricacies of making chairs in the prison chair factory.

Rev. Jordan let it be known that he wanted authorities to make him the prison chaplain, but Governor McLean intervened with an emphatic "No" to this proposal. Nor would any of the officials of the prison agree to the clergyman's proposal.

He was allegedly thrice-waded bigamist was assigned to the chair factory after he had been admitted to the Mecklenburg County jail. He was convicted of bigamy in Mecklenburg County and sentenced to from 18 to 24 months.

Council for the minister planned to make an appeal from the Superior Court decision, but this idea was abandoned, and the "amnesia parson" was transferred to Raleigh to begin his prison term.

Following his mysterious disappearance from home in Ga., the minister recently was the subject of a nationwide search, and was found in a Grand Rapids, Mich., hospital, where the bigamy warrant sworn out by Mrs. Emma Landridge Jordan, of Washington, was served on him. It was alleged that he had two other living wives.

Governor McLean of North Carolina was emphatic in setting to rest rumors that were going the rounds that prison officials were considering making the convict-minister chaplain of the State Prison.

Governor's Views

The Governor declared: "If he (Rev. Jordan) is not worthy to be spiritual adviser of men and women outside the prison, he is certainly not worthy to be the adviser of those who are unfortunate enough to be confined in prison.

"However, in the hope that this statement may serve to end discussion, I will say that I am sure the management of the state prison would not consider for a moment permitting this prisoner (Rev. Jordan) to undertake the work of chaplain."

Rev. Jordan when he has served his sentence, plans to continue his ministerial career.

"I may have to change my faith," Rev. Jordan said. "But I have always preached, and I don't know how to do anything else. If I were younger, I might try something else."

The convict-minister plans to write his biography while an inmate of the big prison.

ELECTRIC COMPANY'S OPENING AUSPICIOUS

2,000 Persons Visit New Offices and Floral Testimonials Are Sent by Merchants.

The Manchester Electric company had a very auspicious opening yesterday at its new location in the Dewey-Richman building. More than 2,000 persons came into the office. It was said there.

The new home of the electric company was decorated with flowers and in addition bouquets came from the J. W. White Company, Dewey-Richman Company, Park Hill Flower Shop and the Manchester Trust Company.

Although ordinarily the office is closed Saturday afternoons and evenings, it will be kept open tomorrow as a sort of continuance of the party in order that those who have not already been able to visit the office at its opening may do so.

EX-SHERIFF DIES

East Hampton, Conn., Nov. 18.—Thomas Southmyd Brown, a former sheriff of Middlesex county and president of the East Hampton bank, died at his home here today after a short illness at the age of 73 years. Mr. Brown served as deputy sheriff from 1877 to 1889 and as sheriff from 1889 to 1903. He also represented the town on the floor in the Legislature. He was a Republican.

With A. J. Atwater, Mr. Brown organized the local bank twelve years ago and was its president until the time of his death. He was a past master of Amherst Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and belonged, also to higher Masonic bodies including Crene Commandery, Middletown, and Sphinx Temple, Hartford.

As sheriff Mr. Brown secured a reputation by tracking and capturing Edward Rogers, wanted for murder in 1893. Rogers is still in Wethersfield.

Funeral services will be held here Sunday afternoon.

NOBODY CAN HEAR AT N. E. CONFERENCE

Delegates Find Acoustics of Springfield Auditorium Not So Good.

George E. Rix, secretary of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, attended the sessions of the New England Conference in Springfield yesterday. He was the only Manchester representative at the council and attended the morning and afternoon sessions.

Many of the delegates had difficulty in hearing the speakers because of the noise and confusion and the indifferent acoustics in the Municipal auditorium where the sessions were held. Only one Connecticut speaker was on the afternoon program, Samuel Ferguson, president of the Hartford Electric Light Company.

LETTER GOLF

MAKING MONEY
Four twists of the wrist and a DIME becomes a HALF. An easy way to make money. If you can't make it in four strokes turn to the par solution on another page. If you can do it in fewer, look at the solution anyway, to see how you fooled the Puzzle Editor.

A 4x4 grid for a letter golf puzzle. The top row contains 'D', 'I', 'M', 'E'. The bottom row contains 'H', 'A', 'L', 'F'. The rest of the grid is empty.

The Rules
1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW TO HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2-You can change only one letter at a time.
3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

New brooms sweep clean; but the new fall dresses are in no danger of doing that.

"Lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine" said the old-fashioned girl. But now the modern flapper says "Whatya got on your hip old says? I'm dryer'n a catfish."

A flapper who is anxious to be listed as a high brow, refers to her sweater as a perspirer.

SENSE and NONSENSE SKIPPY

In the game of life, too many people are trying to pitch and too few are willing to play in the outfield.

The doctor gazed at his patient's eye. "You say you have trouble with it," he said. "But there's something more. On looking at it I see signs of liver trouble, of anemia, and, I fear a chronic nervous affection."

"Look at the other eye," said the patient. "This is my glass eye, you see."

Tom, Jack and Pat were arrested for stealing a horse, cow and wagon. Tom was put on the stand and the judge asked him how long he had owned the horse. He replied, "Ever since it was a little calf."

The judge then asked Pat how long he had owned the wagon. Pat hesitated an instant and replied, "Ever since it was a little wheelbarrow."

Often when we command Satan to get behind us we secretly hope he'll push us into what we want to do but oughtn't so's we can lay the blame on him.

The man who gets up in the world must also get up in the morning.

Two small girls were out playing when the doctor, who happened to be passing, stopped and inquired how they were.

"I don't think we had better tell you," said one of them. "Why not?" she asked. "Daddy told us that when you called the other week and asked how we were, it cost him $3."

Old Gentleman (in street car): "Has anyone here dropped a roll of bills with a rubber elastic around them?"

"Yes, I have," cried a dozen at once.

Old Gentleman (calmly): "Well, I've just picked up the elastic."

"My wife," said Brown, "has a terrible memory. She simply forgets everything."

"Well," remarked Jones, "mine used to be that way, but I found a way to cure her."

"How was that?" "If there is anything I am anxious for her to know and remember I write it on a card and put the card in my trousers pocket."

By the time he "pops the question," she has already decided what she'll wear at the wedding.

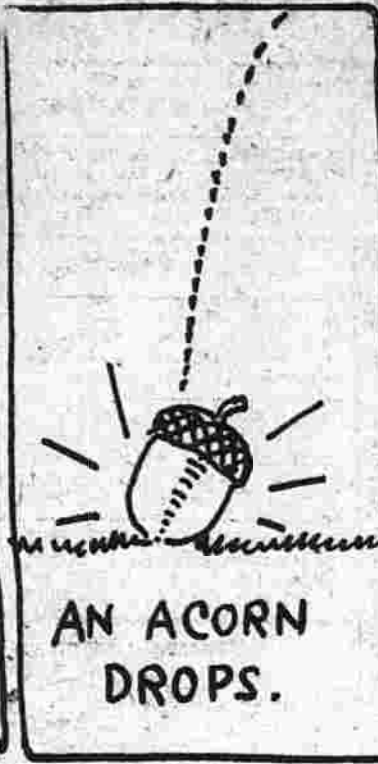

The woman who conceals her instep now has a daughter who shows her step-ins.

Oh, yes, I've thought of marrying. I've thought of it a lot. Because I've thought of it so much, it is just why I have not.

"Stick it out, old man," said the executioner, as he prepared to cut off the murderer's head.

THE TNYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The ladder rope sailed on with ease, and shortly passed above the trees. Wee Scouty shouted, "Careful now, so none of us will slip. I'm sure that things will be all right, if all of us just hang on tight. I don't know where we're going, but we'll all enjoy this trip."
Up, up they rose, and sailed along. Then Clowzy broke out into song. "Ti, ho, we're sailing on the breeze, and on our merry way. Of course we don't know where we'll land, but anyhow, this trip is grand. I hope we reach the ground again before the end of day."
And then the bunch heard Carpy shout, "Hey, Clowzy, you had best look out. A bird is circling o'er your head. He has a monstrous bill. It looks like it is sharp and strong. I'll bet he doesn't like your song. Perhaps he'll try to peck you, so I think you'd best keep still."

But Clowzy sang with all his might, and then the bird flew out of sight. Then Clowzy laughed and said, "That was a foolish thing to say." Then Carpy answered, "No siree. In fact it really seems to me your singing was the thing that really scared the bird away."
A thrill then came to all the crowd. The ladder drifted through a cloud, and my, but it was misty just as misty as could be. It scared the Tnymites for a spell. Then out they came, and all was well. "How thrilling," shouted Cappy. "Why, I couldn't even see."
Just then the ladder seemed to stop. The Tnymites wondered if they'd drop. Said Scouty, "Why we don't move on I cannot understand." Then Clowzy shouted, "Goodness me, You-ought to see what I can see. This ladder's being held right now by someone's great big hand."
(The Tnymites meet a giant in the next story.)

EXPECT BIG ATTENDANCE AT DEMOLAY INITIATIONS

Hartford Chapter to Demonstrate Degree Work Before Manchester Masons.

The main lodge room of the Masonic Temple here will be filled to-night with members of Manchester lodge of Masons and members of the Order of DeMolay when the Hartford chapter of DeMolay will work two degrees. A group of 27 candidates, 25 of whom are Manchester boys, will receive the DeMolay obligations.

An automobile truck went to Hartford yesterday afternoon and brought the paraphernalia belonging to the Hartford chapter to the local temple. A considerable amount of scenery is used in the degree work of the Order of DeMolay and all this has been transported to Manchester from the Hartford home.

After the Hartford boys have demonstrated the work of DeMolay to Manchester Masons it is hoped that the local lodge will vote to sponsor a chapter here. Now that the Masons here have a large and beautiful home a chapter of the Order of DeMolay can easily be accommodated.

During tonight's degree work a Manchester boy, George E. Nelson of Middle Turnpike, will occupy the master tumpike's chair.
