

BRITISH FLIER STARTS AGAIN FOR HONOLULU

Frederick A. Giles, British Aviator Hops Off on Trip To Australia In a Series of Flights.

Municipal Airport, San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 22.—A man-made bird was winging westward today in another attempt to conquer the Pacific.

Delayed by adverse weather conditions for the past week, Captain Frederick A. Giles, British aviator, again took to the air at 7:24 this morning. He hopes to be in Hawaii before noon tomorrow.

Giles' first attempt last Saturday lasted only 45 minutes. He got his heavily laden Hess Bluebird biplane into the air without difficulty, but upon encountering a soupy fog over the ocean returned to the flying field.

If the British aviator reaches Hawaii, he plans to continue his flight to New Zealand, via Pacific points, making the last jump from Australia.

Has Difficulty
Once off the runway, Captain Giles seemed to experience great difficulty in attaining altitude. His maximum altitude before he disappeared was from six minutes after the take-off had not been more than 200 feet.

Near the completion of his circle, the plane lost fully one-third of this altitude and it seemed for a moment as though the plane was going to be compelled to land.

After he completed his circle he headed to the north, toward San Francisco proper. He cleared a small hill that intervened between the airport and the city by not more than forty feet and then disappeared in a northwesterly direction in the smoky haze that hung over the industrial section of San Francisco.

The aviator slept at the field all night, arose at 4:30 a. m., and ordered the mechanics to tune up the motor of his plane.

Small Crowd Present
A small crowd of mechanics an hour before dawn swarmed over his little Hess Bluebird plane, putting on the last-minute touches. The plane was poised at the head of the runway in readiness for the take-off hours before the flight began.

It had 300 gallons of gasoline in its tanks, a near-capacity load. Meteorological experts were at the field, taking readings with special instruments to gauge the wind. A red balloon attached to a balloon with a known ascension speed was sent up. The experts checked the velocity of the wind by this means.

Weather conditions for the hope seemed almost ideal. A gentle breeze in a northeasterly direction was noted.

A low mist bank was hanging over the horizon toward the west. The runway was smooth and hard, despite recent rains.

As Giles settled himself in the cockpit, he looked around casually, smiling down at a group of friends gathered beneath him on the ground and said:

"Well, you'll hear from me in a day or so."

A wave of his hand over the side of the cockpit and he was off.

Food Supply
Captain Giles' food supply for his 2,400-mile hop included four sandwiches, one pint of milk, nineteen cans of concentrated United States Army emergency rations, which would be sufficient, it was estimated.

HOLD WORLD WAR VET IN A BLACKMAIL PLOT

Threatened Life of Heiress of McCormick Millions—Sent Her Black Hand Letters.

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 22.—Death threats against Mary McCormick, heiress to the McCormick Harvester millions, were revealed today as William D. Benjamin, World War veteran, was held in jail here, charged with using the mails to defraud.

Benjamin is accused of being the author of two threatening letters received by Miss McCormick at her Pasadena home.

The letters, adroitly worded, revealed a vision of the heiress' mother appearing in a dream before a soldier of the World War and insisting that an endowment of $5,000 be used to provide a home for boys.

Miss McCormick was told that the vision had prophesied that she and her two brothers would die within the month if the money was not provided.

Miss McCormick is a daughter of Cyrus McCormick, founder of the McCormick Harvester Works, and a sister of Harold McCormick.

LATEST MARRIAGE NOT FOR "PEGGY"

Miss Joyce Is Shocked by Companionate Union Idea—Gives Her Views.

New York, Nov. 22.—"What? Who? Me?" "What—by a companionate marriage?"

"No, I don't want any! But that's the name." The much-married Peggy Hopkins Joyce apparently is shocked over the latest thing in legal love, the "companionate" type of union.

"I think a husband should be made to realize that he's married, not single. Often he can't get the notion through his head even when he lives in the same house with his own wife," she said.

Such was Peggy's reaction to news of the latest wrinkle, "companionate marriage" as planned for Thanksgiving Day by Josephine Haldeman-Julius, eighteen-year-old daughter of a Kansas author and publisher, with Aubrey C. Roselle, twenty.

FIRST WITNESSES IN REMUS TRIAL

One Says He Used Right Hand to Fire Gun—Another Says It Was Left.

Court House, Cincinnati, O., Nov. 22.—Whether George Remus shot and killed his wife, Imogene, with his right hand or his left hand, became an important point in the trial of Remus for murder when conflicting testimony was read into the record today.

Charles Stevens, chauffeur of the "death taxi" in which Mrs. Remus rode to her doom in Eden park, testified yesterday that Remus had "reached into his right hand pocket just before the shot was fired."

Today William Smith, a negro plasterer and eye witness to the tragedy, testified under cross-examination that Remus held the gun in his left hand.

"The left hand?" asked Attorney Charles H. Elston of the defense. "Yes, sir."

Was Frightened
Smith said he saw Remus put the gun in his pocket after the shooting and walk calmly away. He said he was only a short distance away and he was sure glad when that man got out of there. I stayed perfectly still 'til he got away."

Remus laughed with the spectators over this remark.

The indictment against Remus charges he killed Mrs. Remus with his right hand.

Attorney Carl Bassler of the state said there was no danger of a ruling that the indictment is faulty.

Remus himself said he is left-handed.

Several other witnesses testified during the forenoon, relating details surrounding the tragedy in Eden park where Remus had followed his wife, dragged her from a taxi and shot and killed her. She was on her way to court to divorce him.

KILL ALL GANGSTERS CHICAGO'S NEW ORDER

One Killed By Detectives 12 Hours After Sleuths Are Sent Out.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—Twelve hours after Chief of Detectives William O'Connor of Chicago issued his drastic decree to kill all gangsters, police riflemen brought down the first victim, Frank Herbert, chief lieutenant of Joe Salts, master racketeer of the Chicago badlands.

Following the attempt made on the life of Chief O'Connor by a gangster who pulled a gun upon him in the chief's own office, the "war" command was issued.

Answering a call that two suspicious characters were seen lurking in an alleyway in a hoodlum neighborhood, Sergeant John Gibbons and his squad rushed to investigate.

The men were ordered to halt. Herbert reached for his waist where a revolver was concealed.

"Get 'em, men, fire low!" yelled Gibbons.

Detective Gibbs blazed. Herbert fell to the muddy pavement, writhing with mortal wounds.

BOOZE SUPPLY INCREASING
Stamford, Conn., Nov. 22.—Liquor stores continue to pile up in the police station here. The supply was increased today by thirty-five gallons of alcohol seized in a vacant street house and by three packages of rye whiskey taken from a car containing three New York men.

Dominic Tassone, owner of the Spruce street house, denied owning the whiskey but was held in ball of $1,000. The New Yorkers, held in ball of $1,500 each, are Albert Lalano, Michael Calise, and Louis Scotti.

HAREM OF SULTAN GOES TO HIS SON

Fourteen Year Old Monarch To Pick Women From Father's Harem.

Paris, Nov. 22.—Fourteen year old Mulai Mohammed, the new sultan of Morocco, has decided to pick his harem from the women who formerly composed the harem of his father, the late Mulai Yusef, said a dispatch from Rabat today.

Before the French protectorate was established in Morocco it was the custom of the Moroccan sultans to pick any pretty girl that struck their fancy, or to buy girls for the harem from regular slave dealers.

But since the protectorate was set up, slave dealing has been prohibited by the French government and there are no more dealers. However the Sultan may still buy girls from parents who are willing to sell them.

Is Progressive
The present sultan, despite his youth, is a "progressive." He is opposed to the purchase of new women for his harem and, in fact, is inclined to allow the harem to die out entirely.

Special suits are set aside by the Moroccan government for the support of the harem. Women of the late Sultan's harem, who are not selected for the new Sultan's harem, will be supported out of this money.

Three Harems
The palace, at the present time, houses the harems of three former sultans. The women are mostly negroes or half breeds, who range in years from infants of a few months to women of ninety.

There is no "companionate marriage" and divorce for the harem women. They are seldom freed from the harem and are considered virtually slaves.

Mulai Mohammed is already married one, despite his youth, his wife being his own cousin. Under the Koran he is allowed four "official" wives. These are considered political marriages and the wives are generally the daughters of leading caids.

The 14-year-old Sultan desires to introduce reforms in his country and his government, making it more like an European or American state in his travels.

"COMPANIONATE" WEDDING
Girard, Kansas, Nov. 22.—An eighteen-year-old school girl was united in "companionate" marriage here today with a twenty-year-old school boy.

Josephine Haldeman-Julius, daughter of E. Haldeman-Julius, publisher of this city, pledged her "love and faith" to Aubrey C. Roselle before the Reverend L. M. Birkhead, Unitarian minister of Kansas City.

The decision to hold the ceremony today after having previously announced it for Thanksgiving was suddenly decided upon last night by Mrs. Haldeman-Julius "to stop an extraordinary volume of publicity."

STATE TROOPS GUARD MINES IN COLORADO

Five Killed and 60 Wounded in Yesterday's Battle With State Police.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 22.—With 325 state militiamen stalking the Columbine mine district in the Northern Colorado coal field, where the outbreak occurred yesterday morning in which five men were killed and sixty injured, three seriously, quiet prevailed today.

Four strike leaders were being held in jail under heavy guard at Greeley.

A special train was held in waiting throughout the night here to be used in carrying troops to the southern district should occasion arise. It was quiet in the Aguilera and Walsenburg district, however, after the padlocking of the I. W. W. hall at Aguilera by R. R. Malden, state police leader.

DEMOCRATS TO TAKE TAX CUT FIGHT HIGHER

Checked By House Committee Leaders to Carry Battle to the Floor of Congress.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Temporarily checked in the House ways and means committee in their drive for a huge tax reduction program, Democratic leaders today laid plans to carry the fight to the floor of Congress.

Despite the fact that an overwhelming majority of the committee fixed $250,000,000 as the limit of tax reduction to be recommended to Congress Democratic members held that this was a forced compromise and that they are not bound to support it.

Limiting Figure
The adoption of a limiting figure but $255,000,000 more than was fixed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon occasioned surprise in political circles. Two Republican members of the committee have within the last week declared that they favored a $300,000,000 cut.

With the adoption of the limiting figure, the committee also decided to distribute the tax cuts to corporations paying income tax and automobile buyers who must pay a three per cent. purchase tax and to consider reduction of the reduction of admission and club dues taxes.

Inheritance Tax
The committee, at the same time, rejected the recommendation of the treasury to adjust the middle brackets of the individual income tax and to repeal the federal inheritance tax.

The committee also voted to abolish the tax on cereal beverages, which yields but $150,000 a year. This tax had been applied at the request of Lincoln C. Andrews, former Dry "Czar," as an aid to consider reduction of the new treasury enforcement regime told the committee that the tax was no help and should be abolished.

Among the proposals being considered by the committee for the final draft of the tax reduction bill, it was learned, are: reduction of the corporation tax 13 1-2 per cent., total $172,000,000; reduction of the automobile tax fifty per cent., total $35,000,000; with the remainder applied to the relief of small corporations, theater and other admissions under $2.00; and the war stamp taxes would remain.

Young's Report
High points in Young's official report to Secretary of Commerce Hoover, include:

"Airplane construction in the year just closed in this country was valued at more than $20,000,000, a sixty per cent. gain over 1925.

Airplanes of new design are replacing the war surplus type, which have been doing service up to the present.

"New air routes are being charted in all parts of the country; cities vie with each other in the construction of improved air ports. Thousand Airports
"It is estimated that by the end of 1928 a thousand airports will be in operation, a large percentage municipal.

"Numerous cities and towns are becoming 'air marked,' one company alone having painted city names on more than 4,000 of its stations."

On June 30, there were 4,121 miles of lighted airways in operation.

Everett Wolfe, of Greenwich, is named as the agent of the Sinclair Company who delivered the punch. The first witness in the suit was Dr. Arthur C. Smith, of Danbury.

SINCLAIR, BURNS CITED BY JUSTICE SIDDON'S

American Purity League Makes Its London Debut

London, Nov. 22.—"Purity," in the form of a shouting, unidentified man, reputedly American, swooped down on the London stage last night and sensationally interrupted a dance number in a musical comedy being presented at the Gaiety theater.

Bare female legs seemed to be the provocative issue.

The audience was enjoying the performance of "The Girl from Cooks." Jean Barry, an American dancer making her first London appearance, came on with Jack Holland, both attired in Spanish costumes.

Miss Barry's legs were without benefit of hose. Suddenly—"I protest against this dance in the name of the American Purity League. It is a barbaric, disgraceful exhibition."

The dancers stopped. The audience gasped. The shout had come from a man who had risen from his stall seat to deliver it.

After his outburst of indignation, the man left the theater. He refused to give his name but he told the management that the American Purity League was starting a world campaign against bare legs and had already established a branch in London. He added:

"Wherever there is a disgraceful exhibition of bare legs on a stage, some one will protest against it." After the performance Miss Barry said she had a similar experience in Rhode Island.

"Some people," she said, "are just too Puritanical for anything. But we have danced this dance in Paris and Boston without complaint."

Hands Off Policy In Miners' Strike
Government Will Sponsor Peace Conference But That's All, Coolidge Says.

Washington, Nov. 22.—The Coolidge administration doesn't intend to become actively involved in the soft coal strike.

It is willing to sponsor a peace conference between Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia operators and miners only if both sides signify beforehand that such negotiations would be likely to be successful. It doesn't want to assume any blame if a meeting is called and then fails.

Government's Position
An outline of the government's position has been given to John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, who was a member of the labor delegation that asked the president to summon a peace conference to end the strike of 150,000 miners.

Government officials expressed the belief today that the operators would decline to enter negotiations at this time, in which case the government will continue its "hands off" policy.

Demand a Probe
The union will press its demands for a congressional investigation of an alleged "conspiracy on the part of the big railroad corporations to beat down the price for coal and degrade the living conditions of the miners." The President suggested that these charges be laid before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"If it takes the commission as long to investigate these charges as it does to decide most cases, the miners will die of old age," he said.

POLICE AFTER HIM HE TRIES SUICIDE

Stamford Man Dying in Hospital After Leaping Into the River.

Stamford, Conn., Nov. 22.—When Frank Przecieski, of 115 Brown street, failed to appear in police court today to answer a charge of selling liquor, two policemen went in search of him, and finally located him in Stamford hospital. Przecieski had leaped into the Ripowam river near the railroad viaduct in an effort to end his life, and had been rescued by two men in a rowboat. His condition is serious.

Przecieski was listed as a fifth offender on the police docket. The latest paid on his restaurant in Manhattan street yielded ten gallons of liquor. In his place also Patrick Usher was found dying in November from what was supposed to be poison liquor but investigation later found that death was due to another cause.

Przecieski was at liberty under $1,000 bail.

STOLE AUTOMOBILE
Stamford, Conn., Nov. 22.—An automobile they were supposed to deliver in Boston but which they drove to Stamford, in an effort to get to New York, was captured with four New England youths here today. Washington, Nov. 22.—President Coolidge declared today that he hoped that circulation of petitions asking him to run again in 1928 would be discontinued.

It was the second time since his famous "I do not choose to run" statement that he has publicly sought to discourage those who are zealously trying to draft him as the party's nominee.

On an earlier occasion, he rebuked Senator Fess, Republican, of Ohio, who has been a leader of the draft movement.

Four Others Must Appear On Dec. 5th to Show Cause Why They Should Not Be Adjudged In Contempt of Court—Prompt Action On Attorney Gordon's Petition.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Harry F. Sinclair, multi-millionaire oil magnate, two of his business associates, and three officials of the Burns Detective Agency were cited today by Justice Frederick L. Siddons to appear before him on December 5th and show cause why they should not be adjudged in contempt of court.

The citations were issued because of the revelation that Burns private detectives kept the jurors in the trial of Sinclair and Albert B. Fall under "improper surveillance," it having been shown that from the outset of the trial a staff of Burns agents trailed the jurors and lived deeply into their private lives and affairs.

Those Cited
Those named to appear besides Sinclair were:

H. Mason Day, vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Co., who is said by the government to have been the "contact man" between his chief and the Burns agents.

A. Sheldon Clark, vice president of the Sinclair Refining Co., another alleged "contact man."

William J. Burns, titular head of the detective agency.

W. Sherman Burns, his son, acting head of the agency.

Charles Veitsh, manager of the Baltimore branch of the Burns agency, who the government contends, was the "paymaster" for the Burns squad.

Prompt Action
Justice Siddons acted with promptness in citing the principals to appear after District Attorney Gordon had gone into court this morning and presented a petition requesting the action.

"Well," said the court, "what day in December do you want them to appear—the earlier the better." Gordon suggested December fifth, and the court so ordered.

Justice Siddons asked Gordon why the names of Juror Edward Kidwell and Juror J. J. McMillen, in the list for whom citations were asked, Kidwell was the loquacious juror in the case who has been named in two affidavits as stating that he expected to come out of the Sinclair-Fall trial with "an automobile as long as a city block."

Already Before Court
Gordon replied that Kidwell's name was not included because he considered that Kidwell's case was already before the court in the affidavits mentioned.

The court, however, thought that Kidwell's name should be included.

"Well," said Gordon, "we will draw up a separate petition for him and present it later."

Today's action is entirely separate and distinct from the Grand Jury proceedings in the case. A Federal Grand Jury some months ago investigated the events leading up to the mistrial ever since it was declared, and is understood to be about ready to report. Indictments on several counts, jury tampering, conspiracy to obstruct justice, and subornation of perjury, may emerge from this investigation. William J. McMullen, a Burns operative who turned government witness, has sworn that the elder Burns caused him to make and swear to a false affidavit in the case, as well as render untrue reports on the activities of the one juror.

Maximum Penalty
The maximum penalty for contempt of court, if adjudgments should be made, is $1,000 fine and a year in jail for all concerned.

Sinclair already has been convicted in one contempt action. A jury in Federal court some months ago found the millionaire oil magnate guilty of contempt of the Senate. He is now at liberty on bond, pending an appeal to the higher courts. His conviction in this instance grew out of his refusal to answer questions of a Senate committee that was investigating his leasing of the Teapot Dome reserve from Albert F. Fall.

Gordon's petition demanded that the citations be issued because there were large numbers of Burns operatives engaged in close, intimate, objectionable and improper surveillance of the Fall-Sinclair jurors, their relatives, neighbors and friends.

William J. Burns was named as the operating head of this work.

Sinclair, too, was named as the direct instigator of the Burns operations. The petition set forth that Sinclair "ordered and directed" Day and Clark to engage the Burns men for their "improper surveillance."

Two Manchester Men Among Them—Fights "Pigs" In Cell.

Special to The Herald Rockville, Nov. 22—Eight alleged violators of the state auto headlight law were in Rockville city court this morning following a roundup by state policemen in this section. All of the eight with one exception pleaded guilty. The exception was Julius Chagnot, Jr., of Manchester.

Chagnot claimed that his lenses were in perfect focus and that when Officer Griffin of the state police tested them his was not on level ground. When it was suggested that the lights be taken to a garage and tested the judge discharged Chagnot.

The guilty parties were fined one dollar and costs amounting to $5. One of them was Frank B. D'Amico of Manchester. W. H. Griffin, whose headlights and tail-light were both defective, was fined two dollars and costs.

Officers Heinhold and Griffin of the Stafford barracks conducted the "raids" in the vicinity of Union and West streets.

Joseph Chapel who lives with Alexander Burger in South Windsor was before Judge Fiske charged with intoxication. He had been arrested when found "completely out" in an automobile. The little daughter of Gilbert Dodrowski, who was seriously injured in Rockville Sunday when her father, who was carrying her in arms, was so grievously hurt by a speeding automobile that he died a few hours later, is reported at the Rockville hospital today as showing great improvement in her condition. For some time after the three-year-old girl was taken to the hospital Sunday night it was feared that her injuries, like those of her father, would prove fatal.

The High school assembly hall was packed this afternoon to hear the cantata, "The Man Without a Country" which was given by the combined Boys' and Girls' Glee clubs of the High school, about eight voices. It was the first time that this musical drama has ever been presented at the High school. Miss Olive Nyman was the guest soloist. TEAMS OF RED CROSS KEEP RESULTS QUIET

Call For More Membership Cards But Only One Person Team Reports.

Memberships amounting to $200 reported today by Miss Alice Cheney, who is handling memberships among the Cheney family in the annual Red Cross Roll Call, have brought the total receipts for the campaign to $325, it was announced today at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, headquarters of the campaign.

It is expected by Fred Van Ness, chairman of the drive committee, that more teams will report today. Only three have reported to date, one of them being Miss Cheney, who is team and captain also. The American Legion team and the Center Congregational church team have made reports and between them have turned in more than 100 memberships.

Calling for Cards As soon as the teams report their total memberships will be published in The Herald. The drive has been going on for almost a week and each team has been working hard. At headquarters it was said that team captains have been returning time after time to obtain more membership cards and this is regarded as a sign that the drive is going forward.

Memberships are being taken in at the temporary headquarters in the O'Leary building on Main street. This place is kept open for the purpose of enrolling prospective members who have not been approached by members of any of the canvassing teams.

The office is in charge of Mrs. Mabel Rogers and is open from 1 to 6 in the afternoon. It will be open on Wednesday and Saturday nights also until store closing time.

DISCHARGE BUILDING COMMITTEE AT GREEN

Voters Believe Work is Done and Do Not Wait For Report From Chairman.

Although the building committee in charge of the Manchester Green school addition has not yet made a report nor has turned over the keys of the new structure to the district committee, voters in Manchester Green district decided that the new addition was completed and that there was no further need of a building committee. By a unanimous vote the twenty odd voters present at a special district meeting in the school assembly hall the building committee of which John Jensen is chairman was discharged.

It was reported that Mr. Jensen had been asked for a report but had not furnished one. He was not present at last night's meeting and no one spoke for the building committee. The school addition has been completed now five months and the voters felt that there were no further duties for the building committee. Since school opened in the fall there have been two district committees functioning, in reality. The building committee controlled the new addition and the district committee controlling the old building. This was not considered the proper way to carry on the school affairs and last night's action was the result.

The score of voters at the meeting voted to appropriate $1,800 to be spent as the district committee sees fit, to remedy the heating conditions at the school. The recent addition to the school having rendered the sectional boiler now in use inadequate. The committee consists of Mrs. Margaret Rich, Ray Goslee and Walter Buckley.

There was no opposition to the appropriation. After the conditions at the school had been explained, it was unanimously agreed on that expenditure for improvement was unavoidable. The question of building a retaining wall on the west end of the school for beautification purposes was tabled until the annual meeting next June.

TEXAS S. A. REVIVALIST WINDS UP CAMPAIGN

Adj. Westbrook Talks Straight Out of the Bible at the Citadel.

Adjutant J. H. Westbrook of Texas finished his revival services in the Salvation Army citadel last night, preaching to a large audience. He spoke on the text, "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." Adjutant Westbrook drew comparisons between the right and the wrong, serving God and Mammon, and illustrated his points by direct quotations from the Bible. As a matter of fact, there was little in his sermon that was the revivalist's own, for he quoted scripture continuously throughout his talk. He referred at no time to the Bible, but gave the quotations word for word without the slightest hesitation.

He proved a popular speaker while at the Citadel, and his songs, accompanied by banjo music, were highly pleasing to his audience. He came here as a substitute for Colonel Addie of Chicago, who is ill and unable to complete his revival tour.

HEADLIGHT RAIDS

Without any desire to be unduly critical of the State Police or any other authority for enforcing laws which are manifestly for the protection of the public, it isn't the easiest thing in the world to enthrone over the kind of a drive which State Police Commissioner Hurley has just started against defective headlights.

Wholesale arrests, saving of a crap game raid or the breaking up of a riot, made suddenly and without any special warning, and coming after six years of mere moral suasion, to cite the commissioner's own words, take on the appearance of either a grandiose gesture or a burst of temper.

There is not the slightest doubt that the headlight peril has grown until it has reached an alarming point. But it is not a spontaneous growth and it is a permitted growth.

Authorities, and these certainly and especially include the State Police, have obviously failed to act effectively throughout these six years that Mr. Hurley speaks about. And the public has regarded headlight regulations largely as a dead letter.

Even now the State Police are apparently making more of a matter of the one-headlight offense, which at any time may be a perfectly innocent accident, than of the vastly worse offense of carrying the blinding lights which cause a major part of the fatalities on the highway, especially the killing of pedestrians.

What would seem to be needed in the enforcement of automobile regulations is steady diligence and firmness rather than sporadic outbreaks of frenzied slashing about.

HARTFORD TRAFFIC

The Hartford Times rather objected recently to gentle intimations in this newspaper to the effect that the Capitol City was bungling its traffic problem. None the less there would seem to be tacit confession of need for improvement when it is now proposed, and as good as accomplished, to abandon the too-many-cook system of regulating vehicular movements by common council edict and to repose to all responsibility and authority in the hands of a single official, who is to be a captain of the police department.

That a complete reorganization of the police force of the neighborhood is contemplated at the same time is essentially and solely a Hartford concern. It is nobody's else business whether the Capitol City organizes its police force on a basis applicable to a city-four or five times as big and a department four or five times as numerous. But it will bring joy and comfort to all of us hinterlanders who are compelled now and then to visit the capital to know that at last it is proposed to make the planning of traffic the exclusive business of a single individual possessing presumably plain common sense combined with experience.

SURPLUS MINERS

Tragically dramatic is the appeal issued by the American Federation of Labor to its members and to the working public generally for aid to the striking bituminous coal miners of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. According to the appeal 750,000 persons—150,000 miners and 600,000 dependent women and children—are facing the coming winter in the last degree of destitution after seven months of strike and lockout, primarily the former.

Not all the tragedy of the situation, apparently, lies in the present plight of this three-quarters of a million human beings; for conceivably they may be fed and clothed for a time if their fellow unionists are sufficiently earnest in their cause. Their temporary sufferings are perhaps less in real importance than the suspicion that, in the economic structure of the country, there may be no real place for these seven hundred and fifty thousand.

For seven months the bituminous mines in which they worked have been idle, producing no coal. Yet if there is such a thing in the United States as a bituminous coal scarcity, let alone a famine, it is a secret that is being well preserved. Plainly these miners, or at least most of them, are excess labor; else the loss of their productiveness would have made itself felt in a fuel shortage in the industries. If the country can go about its affairs without the coal that they might have dug had they been employed, during a period as long as seven months, it would seem to be entirely possible for it to get along without the labor of the idle miners indefinitely, permanently.

It is notorious that the mining of soft coal has been over-exploited for years. It had not been generally appreciated, however, that there were any such number of people connected with any single industry who, instead of being an economic asset to the nation, were really a liability.

Seemingly the problem of the striking bituminous miners is not merely one of feeding and clothing even a large army of helpless people for a few weeks or months, but of finding this huge group, or its equivalent, some other place in the industrial organization of the country. If the soft coal industry has 150,000 more miners than it needs, somehow, somewhere, the surplus workers will, eventually, have to be absorbed by other lines of effort. They cannot forever continue to exist as objects of charity.

They cannot live like human beings by sharing the digging of what coal is needed with the miners who have been doing it these last seven months.

CHILD MARRIAGES

The "companionate marriage" promises to spring into the center of the controversial stage with the announcement of free approval by E. Haldeman-Julius, widely known Kansas publisher, of such a marriage for his daughter, still a high school girl. The prospective groom in the case is a twenty-year-old college boy whose parents also approve.

The companionate marriage, according to the publisher, is like any other marriage except that it is not expected that either of the young people shall assume any financial responsibility or that a home shall be established, while it is definitely understood that should the parties to it become weary of the bond there shall be a divorce. Mr. Haldeman-Julius figures it out that this is a "trial" marriage. He thinks, however, it is the natural and proper solution of the situation where two young folks are attracted through powerful emotional impulse.

Probably we shall have all sorts of opinions from all sorts of experts, religious, moral, biological and economic, concerning this freshly boosted subject. Perhaps also the lawyers will be interested. Maybe the educators will feel it incumbent on them to take a hand. It may not be so many years before somebody is called on to decide whether a high school girl and boy who have been married and divorced shall be required to rectify in the same classes; the question may arise whether the regular rates in divorce practice shall be reduced to half price for children; and parents of the Haldeman-Julius school of thought may find themselves required to determine whether Little Daughter shall confine herself to one youthful husband during her school years or whether, if she happens to be a bit fickle, she may be permitted half a dozen.

In Connecticut, at all events, we still have an age-of-consent limit which probably will continue in force for a time yet.

AIR FLIVERS

All sorts of lovely things have been said about Clarence Chamberlin, transoceanic flier, and now Mr. Chamberlin is going to show his gratitude by arranging to have his thousands of admirers bowled down in rows, like playing card tents, by way of acknowledgment of their compliments. He is going to put on the market flivver airplanes that will sell for not more than $1,500 and can take off on land inside a hundred foot space.

The air-flivver are to be fool proof, it is asserted. Sadly does one reflect that this means only that fools can't put them out of commission. If it could only be an air-flivver that no fool could put into commission we should feel better about it. But in these days when almost any boy can rake up a thousand dollars from Dad or Aunt Ida or somebody, the Chamberlin contribution to civilization seems morally certain to be a skyful of little air roadsters which may be expected to come down at the most inopportune times and in the most unreasonable places.

Heretofore one has been fairly safe from being bounced off the fender of an automobile so long as he stuck to his own back yard and kept the gate shut; but the time is now at hand, apparently, when daily we shall have news items relating how Mrs. John Smith was moved down while digging in her pansy bed by an air-flivver that ran out of gas and was forced to land where he could.

As for Main street, Manchester south end—what chance for your life or your white alley? A bright and shining mark, that broad and pleasant boulevard, for flocks and swarms of overhead joyriders in sudden need of ice cream or cigarettes.

After the air-flivver, let's have the little individual tank in which the harassed citizen may hide himself and move about on his affairs in some small measure of security. At about forty dollars, please.

ESTATES TAX

Despite many predictions to the contrary, the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday rejected Secretary Mellon's recommendation for repeal of the federal inheritance tax. The spectre of the Florida constitutional provision against a state inheritance tax may be blamed for the committee's failure to adopt the recommendation. Of what good would be the restored power to the states to collect their own estate taxes when one of their number offers sanctuary and exemption to every millionaire who will transfer his legal residence to that state?

Toward the rest of the states of the Union this smart trick of the Florida boomers is what, among nations, would be known as an "unfriendly act." It robs every other commonwealth of the country of the natural right to collect revenue from inherited estates, and is of no good to Florida so long as the federal tax exists.

New York—New slang is coined by the minute and hour, but only the most picturesque and colorful survives.

Broadway and the show-world is, perhaps, the largest mint of argot that comes into general use, though the underworld has created a "slanguage" all its own, a great deal of which has reached polite society.

From the underworld came such expressions as "in hock," "the big house," "up the river," and "harass bull."

Various authorities on such matters supply me with a few choice new ones, fresh from the vernacular of crookdom:

"Goulash" is misinformation. A "guinea football" is a bomb. "On the heavy" is a hold-up. "Hip Gee" is "wise money." The "ice box" is solitary confinement and a "woop" is a sentence of less than a month. To "clip" is to kill and a "keyster" is a suitcase that can easily be picked up.

Restaurant slang also has undergone many changes. "On me at Childs" tells me that the "crusher" has been put "on such colorful expressions as "Adam and Eve on a raft" when referring to poached eggs; "two eackles and a grunt" when referring to ham and eggs; "cannibal" meaning rare roast beef and "goldfish" meaning salmon.

About Manhattan the word has been passed to the little ladies of the white apron that they are to "become refined" and "ladylike." They must call ham and eggs by that name.

Whatever the temptation they no longer can cry for a "graveyard stew" when they mean milk toast; "clean up the kitchen" when hash is desired or a "pair of rubber heel" when bicuit are ordered. Dignity has come to the lunch rooms along with the latest efficiency methods.

Broadways, bright lights have been sung in song and story, to say nothing of the columns such as this. But few stop to think of the strain on the pocket book these wriggling, writhing and gliding signs may prove.

Some slight idea may be gained from the latest triumph of glitter and glow. At 49th and Broadway recently appeared a huge sign announcing the current attractions of Madison Square Garden. The annual rental, I am told, is $125,000.

The roof of the building on which this sign appears has been in considerable demand and, I am told, a million dollars has been offered for the lease. The fortunate lessee of the building, I am further informed, enjoys a rent free establishment—what is more he actually makes money on the roof space. Eddie Cantor the well-known comedian, has five daughters. "Oh," commented the Broadway wisecracker, "Raising his own chorus."

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington — Armistice Day found numerous speakers dilating on the glories of war, but few bothered to mention the expense. The merest glance at the federal government's expenditures reveals that war is far and away our most costly luxury. Obviously, the greatest loss of the World War was to be compiled from the casualty lists, but it has been over for nine years and the American people are still paying out more than 75 per cent of all the money that comes in and goes out of the treasury to defray the direct cost of that war and of preparedness for the next.

The treasury collected more than four billion dollars in the fiscal year of 1927 and paid out more than three billions for war bills and the national defense. The figures for 1928 will show no great divergence. Receipts were $4,129,384,000. The surplus was $635,000,000 and that was applied to debt reduction, making a total direct war and defense outlay of $3,165,000,000.

The money was split up as follows: Debt retirement ... $1,156,000,000 Interest on debt ... 787,000,000 Army and navy ... 690,000,000 Veterans Bureau ... 391,000,000 Pensions ... 221,000,000

Seventy million dollars should be deducted from the army appropriation in figuring the total war burden to approximate the amount spent on rivers and harbors.

For various reasons, the burden will not soon be lightened appreciably. These reasons include the likelihood that European nations will eventually pay no more than a fraction of their debts to us and the fact that disarmament conferences have failed and that even now large appropriations for new cruisers are being demanded in Congress.

There may never be any more huge surpluses like those of 1927 and 1928, which means that while a few hundred millions less in future years will be taken from the taxpayers and applied to the war debt, neither the war debt itself nor the enormous interest charge can be radically reduced.

Another big war in the next few years probably would force us to pay large sums on debts and other martial obligations until well after the year 2000.

Since 1920, the annual debt reductions have gone up and down from year to year. The figure paid exceeded a billion dollars in 1920, 1922, 1924 and 1927. In 1921 it was $321,000,000. In 1923 $614,000,000, in 1925 $735,000,000 and in 1926 $873,000,000.

The annual interest charge, which ate up approximately one-sixth the national revenue at its last year's sum of $787,000,000, had dropped from more than a billion dollars in the years 1920 and 1923.

War and Navy Department appropriations reached their present peace-time level in 1924, but they represented a terrific gouge at the national pocketbook for two or three years after the armistice. In 1920, army and navy expenditures were $2,347,000,000 and in 1921 $1,752,000,000, as compared with $832,000,000 in 1922 and $880,000,000 last year.

The Veterans' Bureau expenditures, which includes those for hospitalization, insurance, vocational training and other benefits for ex-service men, have averaged more than $400,000,000 a year since 1922, reaching a peak of $462,000,000 for 1923.

Pensions expenditures have remained about the same. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is understood to have compiled an exhaustive and detailed analysis of war costs which will be included in his annual report for 1926-27, to be sent to Congress next month.

In his report for 1925, Mellon went out of his way to point out the enormous cost of war. "While it is not possible to segregate entirely expenditures which might fall in this category," he said, "if we add to the disbursements for public debt retirements interest on the debt, War, Navy, Veterans' Bureau, and pensions, other extraordinary expenditures, such as adjusted compensation and the increased outlays by the treasury, the expenditures which are directly or indirectly attributable to war and the national defense compose over 80 per cent of total federal expenditures."

"The amounts spent by this government in aid of agriculture and business, for science, education, better roads and other constructive efforts are insignificant when compared with outlays due to war and national defense."

"This will be the inevitable situation as long as war is the method of settling international disputes. These facts should be faced squarely by those who clamor for reduced government expenditures and at the same time oppose the world's efforts to devise rational methods for dealing with international questions."

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (141) Rontgen's Discovery

Rontgen had discovered that the X-rays penetrated the black paper which had been wrapped around the tube. It did not take him long to discover that the rays also would penetrate human flesh.

The tube in which X-rays are made is pictured above. The electric current tries to leap across the space between the two poles inside of the tube. In the center of the tube, however, is a device for stopping them. This throws them back and changes their character so that the rays they give off pass through the glass and strike the object to be photographed.

W. B. ROGERS TELLS ADVERTISING NEEDS

Speaks at Hotel Elton, Waterbury, Today Urging Ad Club.

(Special to The Herald)

Waterbury, Nov. 22—Speaking at the meeting of the Waterbury Advertising club, at the Hotel Elton, Monday noon, Police Commissioner Willard B. Rogers, of Manchester, who is advertising director of the Hotel Bond company, at Hartford, said in part: "Throw out the Life-Line. Throw out the Life-Line. Someone is Drifting Away," is a song most of you have sung or heard sung. Without a far-fetched imagination, it is not very difficult to consider the advice contained in those lines as most applicable to many business men of today. But, the up-to-the-minute business man doesn't exactly need a life-line to keep his business from sinking. He has taught himself and his associates to swim and is not wallowing about in a sea of business uncertainty hoping against tremendous odds that someone will happen along at the psychological moment and save his business from what—from being penalized out of the picture entirely because the executive heads of the business have tenaciously clung to an obsolete policy which, again in the parley of the sea, is a boat so thoroughly shattered by modern business policies that it hasn't a chance of staying afloat.

Turning now to the air, which man is mastering, for another illustration, we find that while tail-spins are much more hazardous than straight flying, every student aviator is made to tail-spin his ship many times so that should the uncertain winds suddenly precipitate his ship into a tail-spin he will know how to save himself.

Yet, those of us who look about find any number of businesses either sinking or sunk or in a tail-spin with an untrained aviator piloting and with failure the inevitable result, all because many business men persist in the viewpoint that because their school-days are over they have no further need for education or development. This preface brings me to my subject: "Why An Advertising Club?"

In a city less progressive than Waterbury, I might well talk upon "Why Advertising?"

While it may seem elementary, I would like to give my own definition of advertising which is: "Advertisement is the greatest known force to build and maintain good will." Of course, I could amplify this by recalling that in addition to building and maintaining good will, advertising actually is the motivating force in the development of a business for a well-prepared advertisement forces the organization back of the advertisement to display almost superhuman effort in living up to the advertisement either as regards quality or service. This is proven by the fact that the companies that have advertised extensively but have not lived up to its self-made standards has found that ill-advised advertising brings disaster to a business.

A well-conducted advertising club is nothing more or less than a modern business school. Its sessions are held once a week and the luncheon hour so that every business man with a properly organized personnel can conveniently spend an hour and a half a week not only in a pleasant social atmosphere but also in a school which each week should teach members not only of the value of correct advertising fundamentals.

I venture to say that the saving to modern business through the advertising clubs in clearly pointing out the few successful and business-producing methods has amounted to millions of dollars.

There are not many media that are business producers in the retail field and I assume that most of you are in the retail field. Newspapers are, in my opinion, your best bet. Suffice it to say that if you have used newspapers without results the fault is that of your copy writer and not the newspaper. If a newspaper develops a big circulation and handles your copy in an attractive and presentable manner it has done its duty. From that point on, the job is yours and to condemn newspaper advertising is but an indictment of your advertising manager.

It is also interesting to note while we are discussing newspapers that national advertisers are more and more turning to newspapers and one of the outstanding companies is, I am told, about to spend all of its advertising appropriation in newspapers alone in 1928.

Supplementing newspaper advertising, I consider direct-mail the next media. Here, too, we frequently hear much criticism but when boiled down we invariably find that the direct-mail matter has been poorly done, is too palpably an advertisement, is sent out with a faulty mailing list and is the victim of inexperienced men who need not only a life-line but in some cases even a new pilot.

For those of you who are in the retail business, too much cannot be said of the importance of your show-windows. People have a right to judge your store by the appearance of your show-windows. If they are not well dressed and if I mean dressed in a manner which instinctively causes passers-by to stop and look at your display, they not only are not an advertisement—they are a detriment.

But, back of your advertising and even quality of merchandise with right prices, must be a trained merchandising organization. By that, I do not merely mean an organization which knows your merchandise and knows how to discuss it intelligently, I mean an organization which fairly radiates a welcoming and hospitable atmosphere through your store.

Your telephone operator should be the very exemplification of courtesy and should have a pleasing and not an offensive voice. Your sales organization ought to be made to understand that business goes where it is invited and stays where it is welcome. There is no room in a modern business where that attitude is not an outstanding feature.

Your credit department ought to be made to understand that more customers can be driven away from a business through this department than can be brought to a business through years of advertising and good merchandising. You first ought to know to whom to extend credit and having done so you should have only outstanding diplomats in this department.

This then is in no sense a defense of either advertising or advertising clubs.

It is but a plea to you, the jury, in favor of a personal inventory by each of you. Too many men in this age think only of physical inventories, profit and loss statements, and give little or no thought to the part the human element plays in business. That human element factor starts with you, the heads of the business. Just as water reaches its own level your associates will be but a reflection of you. If you are right in your attitude toward the world and your fellow-man, if you religiously adhere to high business standards, if you start the day right in your business with a smile in your greetings to your associates, if you practise modern business methods and let the world know of these through judicious advertising, you will have no perplexing problems.

But, if you are wrong in any of these important factors, you can bet your last dollar that your organization will be weak in points and just as a chain is no stronger than its weakest link, so your organization is not better than its weakest department.

Approaching as we are, then, a new year which promises to be replete with prosperity for those entitled to it, I urge you to get behind your advertising club, resolve to attend every meeting and by the end of 1928 I predict you will all agree that many seemingly difficult problems have been solved through your contacts and attendance at ad club meetings and incidentally that you know your fellow business man a little better. That in itself ought to be a big argument for luncheon once a week with your fellow business man.

The BENSON MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

CHAPTER LX JUST as a sculptor, who thoroughly understands the principles of form and composition, can accurately supply any missing integral part of a statue...

"I might add, parenthetically, that all this blather about the missing arms of the Aphrodite of Melos—the Milo Venus, 'y' know—is the utter fiddle-faddle. Any competent artist who knew the laws of aesthetic organization could restore the arms exactly as they were originally...

"Now, the problem of circumventing suspicion is an important detail in every deliberated crime. And since the general conception of this particular crime was positive, conclusive and concrete, it followed that each one of its component parts would be positive, conclusive and concrete.

"Therefore, for the Major merely to have arranged things so that he himself should not be negative a conception to fit consistently with the other psychological aspects of the deed. It would have been too vague, too indirect, too indefinite.

"The type of literal mind which conceived this crime would logically have provided a specific and tangible object of suspicion. Consequently, when the material evidence began to pile up against the Captain, and the Major waxed vehement in defending him, I knew he had been chosen as the scapegoat.

"At first I admit, I suspected the Major of having selected Miss St. Clair as the victim; but when I learned that the presence of her gloves and hand-bag at Benson's was only an accident, and remembered that the Major had given my Pfyfe a source of information about the Captain's threat, I realized that her projection into the role of murderer was unpremeditated.

"A little later Markham rose and stretched himself. 'Well, Vance,' he said, 'your task is finished. Mine has just begun. And I need sleep.'

Before a week had passed, Major Anthony Benson was indicted for the murder of his brother. His trial before Judge Randolph Hanchacker, as you remember, created a nationwide sensation.

The press associations sent columns daily and for weeks the front pages of the country's newspapers were emblazoned with spectacular reports of the proceedings.

How the district attorney's office won the case after a bitter struggle; how, because of the indirect character of the evidence, the verdict was for murder in the second degree; and how, after a retrial in the court of appeals, Anthony Benson finally received a sentence of 20 years to life—all these facts are a matter of official and public record.

Markham personally did not appear as public prosecutor. Having been a life-long friend of the defendant, his position was an unenviable and difficult one, and no word of criticism was directed

This And That In Feminine Lore

Your hair won't be a mass of "kinky" curls, but like a perfect marvel if you'll allow Mrs. Robinson of the Lilly Beauty shop in the House & Hale building to give you a Circuline Permanent wave. If you already have a permanent go there for your shampoo or fingerwave, or any other beauty work which they do so skillfully.

Very new ideas are brought out in candlestick styles. Some designs are very tall with the candle down inside shading its light indirectly. Some are brilliantly painted and in that case black tapers are used.

The newest damasks have woven in them famous Shakespearean characters—Romeo, Juliet, Macbeth, Hamlet and so on. There are also colorful new damasks in any shade or pattern. A novel idea in napkins is the "lapkin" a non-skid napkin appropriate in a white and white. Its width, however, is about the size of a dinner napkin folded once, and the purpose is to allow its user to lay it across the knees and tuck each end under him or her so it can't slide to the floor.

The table center should be low, of fruit or flowers in rich autumn colors, or one of the jewel-like crystal trees or flowers. A low cost centerpiece is one in which a pumpkin is placed in a prominent part. Cut off the top, hollow out the pumpkin, fill with fruits of various kinds, allowing bunches of grapes to hang over the sides. The pumpkin flower holder may rest on a bed of ferns, placed right on the tablecloth. An-placed right on the tablecloth. An-placed right on the tablecloth.

Thanksgiving week brings a bustle into even the most efficient of modern kitchens. The dinner menu is planned carefully and early, the china, linen, silver and glassware are looked over, market lists are made up, and the bird for the coming celebration is usually selected at least two days before.

This year's Thanksgiving dinner should cost, comparatively speaking, as little as any since pre-war days. According to reports prices of commodities are fairly low due to the mild fall weather. Western turkey keys can be had as low as 50 cents a pound. The root vegetables are plentiful and cheap. Granges are scarce and high and eggs are high for this time of year.

For the table this year crystal sets are frequently used instead of China. A new idea is polka-dotted crystal dots, being blown in irregular sizes. Goblets are squat in some of the new sets and plates are square. Black hands enclosures are some of the latest glassware objects.

Leather used for making shoes is much higher; a leather is up 25 per cent compared with a year ago, and the material used for uppers is 50 per cent higher.

"I hadn't noticed; I was talking with my wife all evening."—Tit-Bits.

"Rather sharp thunderstorm we had last night."—Tit-Bits.

"I'm always at your service, old chap, don't you know," Vance rejoined. "I rather fancy, though, that it's when your legal evidence is leading you irresistibly to your victim that you'll need me most."

And the remark, though intended merely as a good-natured sally, proved strangely prophetic.

THE END.

When Aluminum Verses the Screen, How Idols Fall!

By Olive Roberts Barton

One of the most discouraging things a woman has to face is the haunting knowledge that in spite of all the cleaning, cooking, sewing and other household she does, the pocketbook in her bureau drawer is empty most of the time.

True, there may be money in it for groceries, the milk man and the wash woman but for her own personal wants it is as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard.

"If only I had a little spending money of my own, I could go on with the work and not mind it. I could get out once in a while and do things like other people," is the thought paramount in her mind. Her husband always has money! Why can't she have some, too?

Many of the quarrels in otherwise happy homes arise from this very problem. There is the husband with the sound of silver in his pocket, complacently smoking a cigar and reading his paper, while upstairs lies the tragic pocketbook, empty in spite of the fact that all week she has worked as hard—or harder—than he has!

Our sympathies is with the woman, but let us also consider the position of the man.

A man's problem is different from a woman's. Out in a world fighting to keep his job, he works alone. He needs every ounce of confidence and self-respect he can muster up to carry on. He knows that if he lets down a minute there are a dozen others ready to jump into his place. Men have told me that nothing plays havoc with morale so much as to go to business with absolutely empty pockets.

But after all that doesn't let him out entirely. His wife suffers for just that same little bit of change, in a different way, but just as acutely.

A good plan is to take the monthly income and first of all play a little game called "One for you and one for me." Husband and wife get to what is left.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUMNER

The most beautiful and fashionable of a certain German town recently came down the church aisle as a bride. The fashionable audience gasped in admiration at the gowns of the bride and her attendants—knee-length in front but trailing into trains at the back. The pastor gasped, too, but it was not with admiration. He ordered the bride party either to wear the choir surplices or leave his church immediately before it was further desecrated by "such indecent exposure."

And then they wonder why "the church doesn't seem to have any influence with young people any more!" Perhaps if this pastor and a few others would look at things as rarely and decently as youth and make no more to do over a knee than a nose, they'd have an answer!

"Such Bunk!" A few irate taxpayers of New York are asking why in tarnation they should pay school taxes in order that their children may learn how to hold a tea cup or how to make a girl to dance, for courses in social form have been installed in most of the New York schools.

Spout as they will, the truth is that anything and everything learned in classes of "social form" will do more for their children towards making an easy and pleasant life than all the typewriting, cooking, or carpentry imaginable. It's all very well to know how to make a living but an easier way than through carpentry or plumbing is through a charming personality.

Dog's Perfume. Are you very careful, Milady about matching your dog's personality with the "correct" perfume?

More Women Haters. Another bunch of women-haters is a secret Mohammedan clan waging war and mutilation upon women in Turkestan who have welcomed the State Soviet decree which permits them to doff the veil and have full equality with men. This secret clan says that their behavior "betrays Mohammed, the prophet." Women have been slaughtered, mutilated, ridiculed and hounded until hundreds of them have committed suicide. Members of the clan send women of their own families to death, proving again that religion is stronger than even family bonds of human love.

MAINTAIN CHILD HEALTH BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

During the World War 47 men out of every 100 were found to have physical defects and 21 out of every 100 were rejected because of defects which made it impossible for them to undertake military service.

Out of 5000 persons examined fully in a recent investigation, 8 per cent had serious defects requiring immediate attention, 15.9 per cent had moderate defects requiring minor attention, and 25 per cent had moderate defects requiring medical supervision.

Children's Health. One of the greatest authorities in relation to the physical conditions of children has asserted that 15,000,000 or 75 per cent of American school children have defects that may be detrimental to their health and that most of these are preventable and can be properly benefited by good treatment.

The indictment seems startling, and it should not be the basis of phobia. Many of the defects concerned are of such a nature that they can be controlled with relatively little cost and without interfering greatly with the ordinary existence of the person concerned.

THE STORY THUS FAR
 CALDWELL, Kan., in 1880 was a wicked cow town, close to the border of the Indian territory. There GORDON W. LILLIE, later to be widely known as PAWNEE BILL, was waiting on table in a restaurant, when JOE CRAIG, foreman of the Bar K ranch in the Cherokee Strip, came to town and quarreled in the restaurant with TOM BENTON.

Scuffling under the quarrel, Benton later that night picked a fight in a poker game with JEFF HARRISON, professional gambler, who had come to Caldwell with his small son, TONY, and shot him.

CHAPTER II

HARRISON, in the act of rising from the table, collapsed upon it, his right hand still fumbling for the holster beneath his arm pit. Confusion descended on the place. Men came running from the bar, from adjacent tables. The faro bank was deserted and the chant of the croupier as he announced the degrees of chance at the wheel was stilled.

Tony Harrison was clutching frantically at his father's shoulders, begging the fallen man to speak to him. With an effort, Jeff Harrison moved his lips. "Anthony," he gasped, "Anthony." Then he was still, and Tony Harrison threw his arms around him and pressed his face against the lifeless cheeks.

An angry murmur of voices broke about Benton, who, still holding his gun, was backing toward the door and repeating, "He was drawing; I beat him to the draw."

Benton's two companions had moved close beside him, their guns drawn, and were retreating with him toward the street. Still no one made a move toward the killer.

Someone moved over to where Harrison lay sprawled across the table and pressed his hand against the gambler's chest. "Dead," he announced with a shudder of his head.

Tony Harrison whirled suddenly, his face contorted, his eyes blazing hatred. His hand had darted to the holster beneath his father's coat and in one breath brandished the heavy six-shooter.

"Why didn't you kill him, some of you?" he cried, his eyes searching for Benton. But that worthy, flanked by his two cronies, had made good his retreat.

The boy tore at Lillie's restraining hand. "Where is he?" he cried, and dashed for the door. "Come back here," he shouted at Benton. Then he leveled the weapon and fired.

There was a shout, and an answering shot. A bullet tore into the framework of the doorway against which he was clearly outlined. Then came the sound of galloping hoofs, followed a little later by more shots.

Only a few moments, like Benton, to tether their horses outside the saloon, and these he had had forethought enough to untie and run off. Those who could find their mounts pursued the fleeing trio, but two hours later they returned empty-handed to find Joe Craig, self-appointed guardian of the boy and boss of the situation, reviling those about him for not killing Benton the moment he had fired.

"But Joe, it happened so quick. I didn't think he'd have the nerve."

"And Harrison was drawing on him when he fired."

"You all make me sick," Craig said angrily. "It was murder. Wish to God I'd been here." He exhibited his hat, through the top of which a bullet had drilled two clean holes.

"The skulls of a pot shot at me, as he rode off and I didn't know who it was till I come in here. This here town has come to regard human life too careless. The marshal was killed today in a literary argument and this boy here was orphaned by an ornery bully who don't know how to lose at poker and shoots only when he's got the drop."

"Why didn't you kill him, some of you?" he cried.

He put an arm around Tony Harrison. "Son, I'm hoping you'll sort of let me look after you, unless you've got some relatives you'd rather go to. I liked your daddy a powerful lot in the short time I knew him. I'm aching to take you back to the Bar K with me and give you a horse to ride and make a cow puncher out of you. How about it?"

The boy during all this had stood a silent, tragic figure, his eyes fixed moodily on the floor. They had picked up Jeff Harrison and laid him down on a blanket and thrown another one over him. Now, being directly addressed, Tony looked up into the broad-shouldered cowboy's face and voiced the question upon most in his mind. "Where did Benton go?"

For a moment Craig seemed surprised. Then his lips widened in a slow smile. "Tony, I'm liking you better every minute. Benton's probably crossed the line into Indian territory. You see, there ain't any state authorities there. You have to have a federal warrant to get a man out of the territory, and getting a federal warrant is what you might call a tedious process."

He led the boy toward the door. "We're going over to your cabin now and pack your belongings. The skulls of a pot shot at me, as he rode off and I didn't know who it was till I come in here. This than ten miles to his next door neighbor. But the decent folks here are in the majority and they're trying to get along peaceable like and tend to their business. They want to make a living and raise children and amount to something, and this here riotous bunch that's swarmed in is clogging the wheels of progress. I'm not denying that the beef industry has contributed somewhat to the general state of delinquency. Some of the boys feel like they had to spill over when they come into town for a spree after riding the range for weeks at a time without much company except senseless cows—"

"If you'd only say that from my pulpit some time," the minister interrupted. "It encourages me to feel that a man like you is on the side of righteousness. It would do more good than any sermon I could preach."

"Who, me?" Craig stared at him and reddened beneath his tan like a bashful boy. "Why, mister, I'd stampede your whole congregation if I was to mount that platform of yours. Come on, Tony."

Gordon Lillie, between whom and Joe Craig the son of Jeff Harrison had stood while the funeral service was being read, trailed along with them. It was time, he reflected, to be returning to the restaurant—another day of marking time until the opportunity came. He swung his head around to the south. Between him and the horizon stretched an invisible barrier, halting the southward flow of civilization. Beyond it lay a vast empire of fertile ground, broken by the plow. It was a red man's empire; his home, his hunting ground. The settlers stopped at its boundaries; the white man might pass through but not linger, by order of the government at Washington.

The thought evoked some bitterness in him. "The government at Washington," he told himself, "isn't doing much toward keeping the big cattle men out." Where lay the fairness in barring the country to home seekers and at the same time tolerating the presence of the cattle men who were turning much of the Indian territory into grazing land?

Even now the Cherokee Strip, that ribbon of land bordering Kansas and stretching, 60 miles deep, from the Arkansas river to the western boundary of the territory, 200 miles away, was the home of some of the biggest ranches in the southwest. A gigantic cattle industry was in the making; rumors already were afloat that a cattle-men's association was to be formed, to lease millions of acres from the Cherokee nation.

Craig noticed his preoccupation. "What's troubling you, Bill?"

"I was just thinking. All that land down there some day is going to be thrown open for settlement. If you and I are alive it will be a sight worth seeing."

Craig made a scornful reply. "You're a cowboy; you worked for a big cowman, Colonel Titus Moore, thousands of whose cattle were at that moment quietly grazing in the strip. You're talking nonsense, Bill. You go and absorb any more of those fool ideas of Dave Payne's."

Thus do men ignore the prophets in their midst. A decade more and the first great rush of settlers—tens of thousands of them—was to storm across the barrier into Oklahoma. Caldwell and I'm not aiming to. A man like me feels sort of cramped at the thought of living any nearer

BREMER TULLY RADIO

Six and Eight Tube Sets

Ability Plus Experience

The reputation these products enjoy is the result of exceptional quality—a reflection of the rare technical and engineering skill of B-T executives. No name stands higher.

Being inventors and designers as well as manufacturers, B-T are far better equipped to detect weaknesses and select sound design than the average radio manufacturer.

Bremer-Tully are one of the few concerns who invent circuits, design all of their own parts and manufacture every essential of Counterphase receivers.

The advantage of this all-around ability and experience from your standpoint is at once apparent.

The B-T position is vastly different from that of those manufacturers who depend upon engineering advice from one quarter and parts from another. B-T products have always sold on performance rather than advertising claims.

Every B-T product has been an outstanding success because this organization has never released a product no matter what the public demand might be until they were fully convinced of its lasting merit.

B-T advertising claims are never exaggerated beyond the point of realization. Long ago B-T dealers coined the slogan "Every B-T customer is a B-T booster."

Investigate Before Investing.

Buying a radio receiver without knowing something of the manufacturer is like buying a watch without asking the make—or a real estate lot without knowing the location.

Year after year B-T products have gone higher and higher—the natural result of superior radio knowledge and manufacturing ability of the highest order.

No one in radio can point to a better record—in fact, in many respects the B-T record has never been equaled. Products, like individuals, may be judged by the company in which they are found.

RED GARRISON MUTINIES

Berlin, Nov. 22.—Street fighting broke out in Odessa following a mutiny in the Red garrison and an attempted uprising against the Soviets by adherents of the Trotsky-Zinoviev opposition party, according to unconfirmed reports received here today.

Dispatches from Bucharest said that Rumanian newspapers printed advices from Constantinople quoting travelers as saying they had seen fighting in Odessa. Attaches of the Soviet Embassy denied that any counter-revolt existed in South Russia.

A large number of Trotsky's followers in South Russia have been expelled from the Communist Party.

The pith of the sunflower is being used in Germany for making life preservers. The material is said to be four times lighter than cork.

FIND BOMB IN SUBWAY

New York, Nov. 22.—A red, oval tin box, labeled "gunpowder," discovered at the north end of the north-bound platform of the B. M. T. subway created a panic among patrons at an early hour today. The box was immersed in water. Police declare the lack of wires or machinery for setting off the powder make it harmless unless a train passed over it.

The box was to be opened by members of the bomb squad and are department, bureau of combustibles, later today.

CHARGED WITH ABDUCTION

New York, Nov. 22.—Abduction, impersonating a policeman and violation of the Mann Act are charged today against Harry Doramus, a Brooklyn real estate agent. He is accused of bringing Mrs. Antoinette True, 23, and Miss Helen Bruse, 15, to New York from Montpelier, Vt. He was arraigned in the Flatbush Court and held without bail for a hearing.

'MINICK' PROFITS MOSTLY FOR OPEN AIR SCHOOLS

Rehearsals Suspended Till Nov. 28, Then to be Held Nightly.

There will be no further rehearsals for "Minick," the three-act play to be given by the Town Players on December 7, until Monday, November 27. Rehearsals from that time will be held every night until the evening of the presentation.

"Minick" will be presented in the Circle theater under the auspices of the Educational Club and most of the receipts will be given over to that organization for work among the pupils in the Open Air schools. Mrs. F. T. Blish, Mrs. James A. Irvine and Miss Ella Washburn form the committee from the Educational club.

Tickets for the play are expected to be placed in the hands of the Educational Club and Town Player members by the end of this week. Members of these groups will have first call on reserved seats, which will be available at the Recreation Center on School street and at the Dewey-Richman store on Main street.

"Minick" is being directed by Louis Smith, who was responsible for two of the successes of the Players last year. Miss Ruth Calhoun, director of the Town Players, is in charge of the production.

OPEN FORUM PROTESTS REMOVAL OF SQUARE'S TURF

Editor, The Herald, May a resident of the North End of the town, who has watched Depot Square evolve from a bleak, dusty, germ-laden plot to its present state of attractiveness, use as forum to put in a plea that it be not greatly changed? May we also register a protest against the removal of that beautiful sod, even if the thought of those in authority be to replace it with shrubs of some kind? We have just watched shrubbery, that had a good start there, snatched up as a menace to public safety. This will doubtless be done all over again if they are replaced by many times their number.

It is asking a great deal of faith from us to expect us to believe that any shrubs collecting leaves and papers from the Square will equal in beauty that well-established lawn, that has been so carefully tended by one of our fellow townsmen, and that, on one plot, still extends from curb to curb. If this may remain intact many of us will be very thankful.

MUSIC OF OLD ERIN TO FEATURE PAGEANT

Real old Irish music will feature the presentation in Cheney Hall tonight of the Irish pageant which is to be given by a cast of performers belonging to St. Mary's church, under the direction of Miss Inez Temple of Hartford. The pageant has been written especially for this occasion by the director.

Legendary Irish history, stories of the saints and heroes whose names have been by-words in the Irish household for hundreds of years, will be featured. St. Columba, St. Patrick, missionaries who brought Christianity to Ireland and Scotland, are among the characters in the pageant.

Irish folklore, with leprechauns, fairies and the "little people" will be personified by members of the large cast. Rev. James Stuart Neill, rector of the church, will read the script and the incidents will be portrayed by the players.

Before the war England was building only about 60,000 houses a year. By the end of 1927, however, 230,000 will have been built in one year.

THANKSGIVING DAY

If we had lived in the long ago
Among that Pilgrim band,
We'd need no interpretation of the word,
We would fully understand.
If we had stormed the waves to come
To find a better land,
And strained each nerve to fill the board,
Yes, we would understand.
They thanked God for their freedom,
They thanked Him for their bounteous store,
They were brave men and true hearted,
Those folk of days of yore.
And while there has many a year elapsed
Since that eventful day,
We still can gather round the board
And thank God in the same old way.
We can thank God for our freedom,
We can thank Him for our bounteous store,
We have created many a wave
Like those folk in days of yore.
We thank Him for those fathers
And for the paths those fathers trod.
We thank Him that 'twas here they found
"Freedom to Worship God."
Mrs. Carrie A. Taylor.
Folks are talking in the mill and out of the mill, on the street and in the trolley cars and everywhere, about the attractive furniture at Beggan's. They say he has them beat to a standstill as far as prices are concerned, and why not? Come in and see the home of Good Bedding, 549 Main street.—adv.

Mrs. Ruth Jacobs spent the week end at Spring Hill at the home of her sister, Mrs. Herbert Gillette.

Columbia people feel that they have sustained a great loss in the death at Lansing, Mich., of Mrs. Lulu McCorkell. Mrs. McCorkell bought the Tucker house on the Green a few years ago and has since made it her home except in the winter months. She was visiting her sister in Lansing at the time of her death. She was a member of the local Grange and Ladies Aid Society, and was a most willing worker, always ready to do her part. Her charming personality and friendliness endeared her to all who came to know her, and she will be greatly missed in the life of the community, and especially to her near neighbors on the Green, who knew her best of all.

Rev. Duane Wain preached a Thanksgiving sermon Sunday morning from the subject "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits towards me." Miss Marion Holmes was the leader of the Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening and her subject was "Blessings we often forget."

Next Sunday evening the Tri-County Union of Christian Endeavor comprising several towns will meet with the Columbia society. Rev. Mr. Johnson of South Coventry will at that time give Steription lecture "God as shown in nature" showing scenes from Norway.

Two one act plays are to be given by members of the C. E. Society Wednesday evening at the Town hall, also special music and readings. The plays will be suitable for the Thanksgiving season.

Mr. and Mrs. George Champlin are moving into their new house on the Green next to the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hutchins had as dinner guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stanley and little daughter of Andover. Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon Little and daughter Anne and Mrs. Luelle Little of Willimantic, and Mrs. Emily Little and Mrs. Bromley of Columbia.

OHIO STATE COACH LAUDS TEAM DESPITE CRITICISM

Sends Spirited Answer to Those Who Protested Eleven's Poor Showing Last Week.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 22.—Praise for the showing made by the Ohio State football team in the face of widespread criticism and a spirited rejoinder to those who held responsible for the wave of protest that followed the team's poor showing this year was voiced here today by Dr. John W. Wilce, head football coach at the university, in an address before 150 Ohio alumni.

Declaring that a team can do "no more than reflect the spirit, power and tone of the university behind it, together with the technical handling by the coach and the conditions existing in the State," Dr. Wilce said that he had been forced to devote half the time he should have been coaching to writing letters to "dissatisfied coaches."

Any idea that Dr. White intends to resign under the criticism of the 1927 team was cast into the discard when he referred pointedly to the heavy schedule Ohio is obliged to face next year.

Fast running backs, who were lauded as "prima donnas," at the start of the season by Ohio followers, who expected too much, became the source of embarrassment, Dr. Wilce declared later in the season, when it became apparent that graduation last year had robbed the team of hard blocking backfield men.

Next year's schedule in response to the "demand that the Western Conference be held intact, while we establish relationships with Eastern universities," Dr. Wilce said, calls for games on successive Saturdays with Northwestern, Michigan, Indiana, Princeton and Iowa with Illinois two weeks after Iowa.

The Ohio coach declared that Western Conference teams most consider the establishment of a training table such as is used at Princeton and Dartmouth. The spirit of fraternity established around a training table, he said, is one of the strongest elements in building a team with the will to win.

NAVY IS PRAYING FOR A RAINY DAY

So Used to Training on Soggy Field That Middies Like It.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 22.—The Navy today was offering up gentle prayers for a bit of rain Saturday. Not because the Navy's business is generally wet but because the Middies feel they have become exceedingly adept under wet ball conditions. "Training, much of the season, has been under dripping skies and on a soggy field, while several of its major contests have had similar scenic background.

Today's training session was no exception. The field was heavy and the ball somewhat waterlogged.

Dummy scrimmage and signal drill has entirely replaced any heavy line scrimmage with its possibilities of injuries, and the first string backs, Hannegan, Ranford and Clifton, were hard at work over new formations.

Possible change in the regular line was foreseen today in the official favor being bestowed upon Fred Beans, sub left end. Beans has developed so rapidly that speculation has him replacing Ted Sloane, former Drake star, at that position against the Army Saturday.

Billy Evans Says

THE OLD COLLEGE SPIRIT

"Well, I gave it the old college try." That is a term often used in big league baseball, when some player keeps on going after a fly ball, usually in foul territory, with the odds about 10-1 he would never reach it.

Teammates of such a player often beat him to it by shouting in unison, with the thought of humor uppermost in their minds.

"Well, kid, you certainly gave it to the old college try," as he falls short of making the catch.

On other occasions, when some player does something that a professional player might not ordinarily attempt, such as colliding with a fielder who had the ball ready to touch him out, in the hope that he might make him drop the ball, regardless of the danger he was courting, someone is sure to say, often ironically, if the speaker happens to be one of the players in the field:

"That's the old college spirit."

In professional circles, there is a realization that there is a difference, but the treatment of the situation is more or less from the humorous angle.

Lived Up To Agreement

Within the past week or so, we have seen a number of concrete examples of the college spirit and what it means.

Perhaps the most notable was the sportsmanlike attitude of Princeton relative to the status of Bruce Caldwell.

"By all means let Caldwell play," was Princeton's answer to Yale's action in declaring Caldwell ineligible, because as a freshman at Brown he had played two games of football.

That was typical spirit of old Nassau. I have always had the greatest admiration for Princeton but the attitude toward Caldwell greatly increased that feeling.

The transfer rule adopted by Yale, Princeton and Harvard really had no bearing on a case like Caldwell's. However, since it did apply in a technical sense, Yale ruled its star should be barred.

That was the old college spirit that Princeton displayed when it urged that Bruce Caldwell be permitted to appear in the Yale lineup.

Gave Opponents a Rest

The Georgetown-Lafayette game of a recent date offered a chance for Captain Claude Grigsby to display his sportsmanship, and he rose to the occasion in true All-American style.

Georgetown ran rough-shod over Lafayette, winning 27-2. In the second period, while still having a chance, Lafayette, after a drive of 40 yards, had one of its players injured. About to take him out, Captain Cothran of Lafayette discovered he had gone the limit.

"I can't afford the penalty for excessive time out," he told the referee and ordered play to resume.

Captain Grigsby of Georgetown overheard him and finding he still had one more time out for his team, said:

"I'll take time out for Lafayette. Charge it to Georgetown."

That was more than a mere gesture on the part of the Georgetown captain. It was the old college spirit and it rang true.

A Way To Take Defeat

Another interesting demonstration of the spirit that pervades the ranks of our colleges, was the reply of the University of California, through the president of its student body, to the head of the University of Southern California undergraduate, after California had suffered defeat. It read in part:

"The University of California sends its heartiest congratulations to the Trojan varsity for its victory over the Golden Bear. Southern hospitality is not merely a slogan, it is a reality."

The NUT CRACKER

by JOE WILLIAMS

A Western center cut his lip but went right back into the line. Lucky for the coach—we mean that he didn't cut him.

A coach's jaw, these days, is far more valuable than the well-known bone that Samson used on the Phillistine's aggregation.

Head Linesman O'Gootty says he didn't even know Philadelphia had a team in "them days."

A center can play football with a cut lip, but it puts him in a deuce of a fix on Saturday night.

Soldiers guarded the Ohio eleven in their preparation for the game with Illinois. Is that the only way Wilce could keep his players in?

Ohio should have saved the soldiers for Saturday, and let 'em snipe at "Pinky" Grange going around the ends.

Kearns sued Dempsey for only $333,333.33. Big-hearted like, says Mr. O'Gootty, he didn't even mention the other one-third cent.

O'Gootty was down for the opening of the trial. He mistook Paddy Mullins, ex-director of the H. Willis enterprises, for a bowler, he said because Paddy wore a bowler hat.

Tunney wants three fights in 1928. But maybe Dempsey doesn't want to battle that often.

Dempsey may be planning to retire, figuring that he's still champion by comparative scores.

Sharkey can't fight Heeney just now, thank you, because he hurt his hand. Indicating the birth of a new kind of propaganda—that Sharkey really fights with his hands.

Bill Thompson, of Chicago, covering in fear of a British invasion of some kind or other, should consider Phil Scott—and get in a good night's sleep.

Upsala College at East Orange, N. J., scored nothing in seven games, while its opponents ran up 285. The coaches are planning for a touchdown some time next season.

Mr. O'Gootty says there is a college that is over-emphasizing football.

By the time that team crosses the enemy's line the goal-kicker will be head of the table in the Old Folks' Home. His toe will be about as useful as a Klan hood at a Hilberian picnic.

In one game this season Upsala's goal line was crossed only once by the enemy. Alumni are overjoyed by that victor.

A former coach is suing the college for $25,000, charging breach of contract. "Maybe he still thinks he was hired to coach a football team."

But then, cheer up. One of these days there may be an upset at Upsala. There's many an upset caused by a setup.

DEMPSEY'S LEGAL TANGLE

Dempsey intends to press two more suits which Jack Kearns has pending, one in New York and the other in Philadelphia. "Jack will be too busy with these suits to go into training or indulge in any fighting," Rickard said.

Arrangements For Second

Title Game to Be Discussed Tonight; Teams at Odds Over Field; Vendrillo Is Manager Again.

The Cubs are not going to rest until Sunday in preparation for the second game with the Cloyerites, which may be played at the McKee street stadium. It was announced today that the south-end eleven will tackle the Windsor Locks aggregation here Thanksgiving Day afternoon. The kick-off will be at 2:30.

The meeting scheduled between representatives of the Cubs and Cloyerites last night will be held tonight instead of not until such time will it be known whether or not the two teams will clash again next Sunday. The Cubs are going to insist that the game be played at the McKee street stadium. The meeting is called for 7 o'clock.

But in the meantime, Coach Jack Dwyer is taking no chances at having his team grow stale. He will run his team through a secret practice session tonight at the State Armory and will have the whole team in uniform Thursday afternoon. The Cubs hold a 14 to 0 decision over the Windsor Locks eleven but the latter team has strengthened considerably since that time and pinned a 7-0 defeat on the Maple Ends at Bristol.

Red Vendrillo has been reinstated as manager of the Cubs. He announced that a second string lineup would take the field Thursday but that the regulars would be sent in if the "shock troops" should fail to stand the pack.

I've just got to tell somebody

NO, I'M not going to be married. Neither have I fallen heir to a lot of money. But I have discovered the one tobacco that makes a pipe come through a thousand per cent—Prince Albert!

Yes, Sir, Prince Albert—the world's largest-selling brand. I was sitting with a fellow-commuter the other morning, when he was filling his pipe from a bright-red tin. I got a whiff of that tobacco and said: "Do you mind if I borrow a load?" He passed the tin over, and I filled up and lighted up.

I never tasted anything so good in my life. It was wonderfully cool and sweet, with a mildness I had never met before in a pipe-tobacco. Mild, as I say, yet it had that rich, rare body that put satisfaction into every pull. What a taste!

I could hardly wait till the train pulled in to get me a supply. I've smoked enough of this cool, mild, long-burning tobacco to know that it gives you deep-down contentment in every load. Try Prince Albert. You'll say so!

BOSTON IS AWARDED OLYMPIC PLUMS; CUTBILL REINSTATED

"Flying Parson" Has Suspension Lifted—Final Field and Track Trials to Be Held at Harvard.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 22.—Accompanied by sharp and sometimes acrimonious debate, the American program for participation and preparation for the 1928 Olympic games took definite shape today so far as it is controlled by the Amateur Athletic Union, in annual convention here.

The principal Olympic decisions consisted of paving the way for selection of Dawson Robertson of the University of Pennsylvania as head coach of the American track and field team next July and in awarding sectional or national Olympic tryouts, which in the case of track and field sports, boxing, wrestling and gymnastics, will be combined with the 1928 national championships.

At the same time the convention passed its decision of approval on 125 record performances, which included 31 in track and field and 94 in swimming, and lifted the suspension of Harold C. Cutbill, Boston clergyman and erstwhile "Flying Parson" who was named in 1925 for receiving alleged excessive expense money.

Three of the major Olympic tryouts "plums" were awarded to Boston, including the final track and field trials, to be held in Harvard Stadium July 6 and 7, the amateur boxing tryouts, probably in May, and the marathon trial, to be held in conjunction with the annual Boston A. A. grind on April 19. In each case the national championships as well as Olympic tests will be involved.

The award of two of these events to the New England city—boxing and marathon—developed the most spirited controversy of the opening day's session, attended by delegates and athletic officials from all parts of the country.

WHAT WILL LOU GET?

On the return of Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig to New York after a tour that started at the close of the world series and carried them as far as the Pacific coast, some one asked Gehrig how much money he expected to get next season.

There is no need to recall that for almost the entire season of 1926 Gehrig averaged $30,000 a month in the limit in the battle for home run honors. Not until after both had passed the 40 mark did Ruth begin to draw away.

Ruth received $70,000 last season for playing right field and making 60 home runs, batting .374 and contributing many fielding innumerable other things that contributed to the winning of the pennant by the Yankees.

Gehrig, I understand, drew $10,000 for playing first base, making 47 home runs, batting .374 and contributing many fielding innumerable other things that contributed to the winning of a pennant. Ruth hit .356.

Naturally a lot of folks are interested in what Lou Gehrig will draw down next season after the greatest year of his career.

Due for Big Raise
"I hope to get a raise, of course, was Gehrig's answer to the query as to what his salary would be. "However, I am not worrying about that, for I am sure Colonel Jack Ruppert will pay me what I deserve."

That was a mighty smart reply on the part of Gehrig and shows that he is something of a diplomat aside from Ruth's greatest rival as a slugger, Colonel Ruppert, who pays the Yankees' salaries, is always eminently fair.

Ruth's salary will be the same as last year. Prior to the opening of the 1926 season he signed for three years for the sum of $210,000, making his yearly stipend a measly $70,000. Not hard to take.

While it is a cinch that Gehrig's increase won't bring him even close to the Babe in money matters, it is certain to make him one of the highest-paid players in the game.

There is only one Babe Ruth. He has more color than a paint shop and is the only player who dilly packs them in at the gate. He is not only a great player but the game's greatest drawing card.

How the Babe Acts
It is strange how a home run by Babe Ruth sets the fans wild, while an even longer hit by some other player gets no more than passing attention.

In this connection I recall a game of a few years ago in which Bob Meusel hit a terrific drive far up into the left field bleachers at the Yankee stadium. The fans applauded but Meusel didn't even

VALE CONQUERORS PLAY TWICE MORE

Georgia Finds Alabama and Georgia Tech In Path On Road to National Recognition.

BY BILLY EVANS

Just because Alabama is experiencing an off season after winning the Southern Conference honors for three successive years, the all-absorbing topic what team is entitled to be rated as national champions.

While such a title is purely a mythical one, still the experts afford a lot of amusement for their readers each year by trying to dope out the team entitled to number one rating.

Alabama won fame for the south by journeying to the coast in 1925 and defeating the great Washington team 20-19, in one of the season's biggest grid battles. Last year it held the record for the most wins, coast champions, to a tie, 7-7.

With Alabama now in the also ran class, Georgia rises to the occasion with one of the best teams in years. At present, Georgia is backing in the national limelight for the first time since its sensational victory over a great Yale eleven, 14-10.

Now that the real strength of Yale is apparent, as a result of its victories over Army, Dartmouth and Princeton, the eastern experts are giving Georgia the credit, the southern team richly deserves.

While Georgia's victory over Yale, as well as the fact that it is unbeaten and untied up to the present time, entitles it to national recognition, there are still breakers ahead for Coach Woodruff's team. The odds are that opposition is right at home.

Twice before the close of the season the acid test will be put to Georgia. If it comes through these two games with a clean slate, then Georgia may be expected to do something to break the record of the southern team richly deserves.

Alabama is the first stumbling block in the path of the conquerors of Yale. This game is played on Thanksgiving. Alabama has Georgia's jinx. In recent years, Georgia's percentage of wins over Alabama has been very slight. Last year was the first time in five years a Georgia team has been able to score on Alabama. Since Coach Wade took charge of affairs at Alabama, Georgia has been easy picking.

Often the experts have given Alabama merely a slight edge, only to have Georgia soundly trounced. This year Georgia is certain to be the favorite, which may be taken to mean that Alabama, if it lives up to its reputation, has a chance of winning by a scant margin.

The other game is against Georgia Tech on Dec. 3. I have no doubt but that Georgia would prefer a victory over these state rivals than any other team on its schedule this year, not excepting Yale.

Two years ago these two Georgia institutions resumed athletic relations after a stretch of about 20 years of inactivity. Tech took the first game by a 3-0 score, while Georgia won the game last season by a one-point margin, the score being 14-13. This year's game will be in the nature of a rubber.

Regardless of the outcome of these two games, Georgia unquestionably has a great team. If fortunate enough to go through the season undefeated, the south may enthusiastically if it speaks most enthusiastically of Georgia's great showing.

Recognize the greeting. That is a way Bob has.

Ruth followed with a towering fly that almost passed from view, yet just did fall into the short right field stands. It was an ovation for Ruth from the moment the ball cleared the fence until Babe reached the Yankee bench.

Ruth smiled, bowed, shook hands with himself to let the crowd know his feelings and doffed his cap a dozen times as he trotted on his way to the bench.

That is what is known as color. Ruth has it as has no other player. Another reason why he is the highest salaried star in baseball.

Bill Courtney Goes Over For Only Touchdown of the Game; Freshmen Outplayed But Not Outgamed.

A heavier Sophomore eleven triumphed over the Freshmen team in the annual football clash yesterday afternoon at the McKee street stadium. The margin, however, was close, 7 to 0.

Bill Courtney made the only touchdown of the game when he dove across the final chalk mark after a steady march down the field. He tossed a pass to Schiebel for the extra point.

Although outplayed, the Freshmen team was not outgamed. It fought hard from start to finish and succeeded in preventing the Sophomores from further scoring although the latter team had chances.

The lineup:
Freshmen: Turkington lc, McCormack lt, C. Jamroga lg, Davis, Kerr c, McKinney rg, McCormack rt, Spears re, Trueman qb, Atken lb, Kerr rfb, J. Jamroga fb.

Sophomores: Scariato ls, Muzzer lt, Potterton, Aignone, Peterson lg, Moriarty, Sullivan c, Murphy, Lindbocker rg, Nicoll, Duncan lhb, Courtney rfb, Holtman rb.

Referee: Hansen; umpire, Gill.

Zuppke Declares Reitsch Is Wonder

BY BILLY EVANS

Coach Bob Zuppke has a great team at Illinois this year. It's going to be even better next season. There are a lot of sophomores on the eleven. A year's experience under their belt is going to give them added poise.

Once upon a time "Red" Grange hogged the Illinois spotlight. Grange's great feats dwarfed the brilliant work of the line that was making them possible.

When Grange made his exit, "Frosty" Peters made his entrance. The ice man gave way to the fire man in the battle for publicity. Peters got plenty of press attention, but he failed to live up to the advance dope as did Grange.

This year a great Illinois team is steam-rolling over the rest of the Big Ten minus a "Red" Grange or "Frosty" Peters in the back. It is called the team without a star.

What about Captain Bob Reitsch? I ask you. Coach Bob Zuppke of the University is not given to praise of his football players during the season, but he recently broke a long-established rule in coming to the defense of Captain Bob Reitsch who has been the victim of widespread stories to the effect that Illinois has a "starless" team.

Zuppke characterized Reitsch, practically unanimous all-conference center last season, as a great player and a great leader, the most aggressive captain Illinois has had since Ralph "Blochie" Chapman, first Illinois All-American and one of the great heroes of the World War, who captained the 1914 eleven, Zuppke's first conference championship team.

Reitsch is playing his third year at the pivot and in his senior year is playing the best game of his career, snapping the ball accurately for the intricate plays of Zuppke-coached backs, making tackles over the field and encouraging his men by his example and his personality.

Zuppke attributes a large measure of the success of the 1927 Illinois team to the playing and leadership of Captain Reitsch and reverts the insinuation that the Illinois team is "starless" when he believes the skipper of the crew is the leading western candidate for All-America honors.

HARRY SEECHE-ROLLO ROLAND MAY CLASH IN THE STAR BOUT

Large Crowd Expected at Rec to See Season's First Bill; Seven Bouts on Card; Eddie Camp, Joe Reed, Ray Strong on Entry List.

Amateur boxing, a sport which entertained hundreds of Manchester people at Cheney Hall last winter, will be renewed for the first time this season tonight at the School Street Recreation Center when Cheney Brothers' Athletic Association will present a card of seven bouts beginning at 8:15. Walter Vennart will be the third man in the ring and Ed McCarthy will do the announcing. Herb Bissell, Jack Copeland and Waterbury amateurs will present a card of seven bouts beginning at 8:15. Walter Vennart will be the third man in the ring and Ed McCarthy will do the announcing. Herb Bissell, Jack Copeland and Waterbury amateurs will present a card of seven bouts beginning at 8:15. Walter Vennart will be the third man in the ring and Ed McCarthy will do the announcing.

21 Boxers Entered
For the 1927-28 christening program, Cheney Brothers have secured the names of 21 boxers from Hartford, Waterbury and Danielson. The Springfield team will not appear on this card. The ability of the Hartford and Waterbury amateurs is well known here but the outcome of the bouts involving Danielson men will be looked forward to with interest. Danielson men have never shown as far west in the state as Manchester, having confined their efforts to Norwich, Westerly and Providence cards. For tonight's show, Danielson is sending a five-man team.

Seecher vs. Roland
Unless the unexpected happens, the star bout of the evening will be the three or four round go between Harry Seecher of Hartford and Rollo Roland of Waterbury. Seecher is the boy who twice stamped defeat on Joe Bard and licked countless others. Seecher's popularity has grown in leaps and bounds. He has been a big favorite with Manchester fight fans who have been attending the Massachusetts A. A. cards in Foot Guard Hall at Hartford. Seecher is expected to weigh in at about 147.

Rollo Is Heavier
In meeting Rollo Roland, Seecher will be up against a shifty, heady fighter who packs a punch in addition to being very "clever" on his feet. Seecher will have to move fast to connect. Roland as he was last winter would be too light for Seecher but the Brass City youth is reported to have picked up plenty of weight since his last appearance here. Roland won his way into the hearts of local admirers here when he won a well-deserved decision

Rec Popularity
Cheney Brothers' officials hope that the change from Cheney Hall to the Rec will prove very popular with the fans. The building is much more centrally located and is almost directly on the trolley line. The seating capacity is considerably larger and it will be easier to see the bouts. The boxers will also have the use of the shower baths which will be greatly appreciated.

Samuel J. Houston will have charge of the cafeteria on the main floor and fans will find home made pie and other foodstuffs on sale. Candy and tobacco will be included.

over Johnny Clinch last winter at Cheney Hall.

Hartford Favorites
Our old favorite, Joe Reed of Hartford is listed among the entries. He may meet either Del Hawkins of Waterbury or Jack Porcin of Danielson, but the latter two may be matched instead. It depends to a great extent how the boys weigh in. Ray Strong, another Capitol City favorite, is carded in the 115 pound class and may see action. The same holds for Eddie Camp of Hartford in the 110 section. Johnnie Angelo of Hartford and Lucien Gregory of Waterbury are the only entrants in the 125 pound division and will probably swap punches.
