

EXPECT LEAGUE WILL PREVENT POLAND'S WAR

Continental Allied Powers and England Exert Pressure in Dispute; Red Russia as Arbitrator, is Offer.

Under pressure from the Continental Allied Powers and England the Polish-Lithuanian situation was greatly relieved today and opinion now prevails in official circles in London and Paris that the dispute will be settled by the League of Nations.

Soviet Russia has sent notes to both Poland and Lithuania offering to arbitrate their differences. The note to Warsaw, however, warned Poland that the Poles should not take any action that would endanger Lithuanian independence.

Vienna reported that Soviet Russia and Rumania have opened negotiations for a settlement of the territorial controversy between those two states. It is understood that Rumania will make territorial concessions to the Soviets if Moscow will recognize Rumania's claim to the former Russian province of Bessarabia, which Rumania annexed.

The political truce between the hostile political factions in Rumania, which was to last until after the funeral of the late premier, Jan Bratianu, was unbroken today.

EXPECT SETTLEMENT

Paris, Nov. 28.—The Polish-Lithuanian territorial dispute, which threatened for a time to develop into an Eastern European crisis, will be settled by the League of Nations, according to belief expressed today by French foreign office officials.

The foreign office discredited a report that troops were being massed along the Polish-Lithuanian frontier.

"We feel certain Poland will not make any military move against Lithuania," it was stated at the Foreign Office. "It is the intention of the Poles to leave the entire matter in the hands of the League of Nations."

Authentic Statement

Owing to the close relations between the French and Polish governments, the latter was accepted as an authentic indication of Poland's future course.

The League of Nations council will meet at Geneva at the end of this week. Soviet Russia, which is keenly interested in the Polish-Lithuanian dispute, is not a member of the League. The Soviet delegates who attend the League preparatory disarmament conference may remain in Geneva to attempt unofficial persuasion in behalf of Lithuania.

BRATIANO'S FUNERAL

Bucharest, Nov. 28.—Rumania's "Iron Man," Jan Bratianu, lay in his final resting place today—the family vault at Florica.

In a funeral marked by strong contrast, the body of the power behind Rumania's throne was borne from the capital to the family estate. Two hundred thousand people lined the streets to view the procession; a team of oxen brought the body to its final resting place; and a queen wept at the grave.

In Bucharest, the royal family, government officials, army dignitaries and statesmen joined in an elaborate tribute to Bratianu. In a gorgeous procession the body was taken to a special train, on which the journey was made to Florica.

Once arrived at the Bratianu ancestral home, official ceremony dropped. Simple peasants replaced government dignitaries as pall bearers. Placed in a rude cart, drawn by six white oxen, the remains were brought to the family vault.

Queen Marie wept as the body was being interred. With the queen at the funeral services were former King George of Greece, Queen Elizabeth of Yugoslavia, Princess Helena, Prince Nicholas, and other members of the regency.

LITHUANIAN REPORTS

Riga, Nov. 28.—Advises from Kovno today stated that the Lithuanian opposition political factions, supported by a number of army chiefs, have leveled the following demands upon President Smetona:

1. Dismissal of Premier Valdemaras and the formation of a coalition cabinet of Non-Socialists.
2. Re-assembling of the Old Diet.
3. The fact that military support is tending towards the opposition may influence President Smetona to accept the demands, the dispatches added. Opposition leaders were firm in stating that Premier Valdemaras should have no part in the new government and should not be a member of the Lithuanian delegation at the League of Nations meeting.

IS LICENSED DRIVER FOR JUST AN HOUR

Norwalk, Conn., Nov. 28.—Clifford Larose, a local resident, was a licensed automobile driver for just an hour today. He went down to Stamford this morning and took out a license at the State Bureau there. He returned, upset a mail truck with his auto, was arrested, fined one hundred dollars and costs, and then was forced to hand his license over to the judge.

La Rose was convicted of driving while intoxicated. A check-up showed just sixty minutes had elapsed from the time he received his license until he surrendered it.

UNWRITTEN LAW IS RULED OUT AT REMUS TRIAL

Defense Tries to Introduce Witness to Tell Doings of Mrs. Remus and Dry Agent at Miami, Fla.

Courthouse, Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 28.—A bitter legal debate broke out today at the trial of George Remus for the murder of his wife, Imogene, when Franklin Edward Shaw, of Washington, D. C., a race track timer, took the witness stand to put into the records the defense's first "unwritten law testimony."

Shaw claimed to know certain facts concerning Mrs. Remus and Franklin L. Dodge, her alleged sweetheart. Shaw knew them in Miami, Fla.

Taft Objects

Defense Attorney Charles H. Elston had hardly begun to question Shaw when Prosecutor Charles P. Taft rose to object vigorously on the ground that the testimony of Shaw had nothing to do with the sanity or insanity of Remus.

"It is not proper to go into this kind of testimony until they have presented testimony showing conclusively that Remus had a diseased mind," declared Taft. "This is not a defense to get testimony before the jury along the line of the unwritten law, which is not a legal defense in this state."

Elston Explains

Elston denied he was resorting to subterfuge.

"We are merely trying to show the circumstances which drove Remus to temporary insanity," declared Elston heatedly. "I resent the suggestion we are using subterfuge, and I don't care who makes it."

Judge Chester R. Shook said: "You must, Mr. Elston show independent testimony of a diseased mind before you can go into these things which you claim caused the insanity."

The jury was excused while Elston and Taft fought it out.

Judge Shook finally stated that the defense would have to show further evidence of a diseased mind before it could proceed to show the alleged facts of Dodge and Mrs. Remus.

The judge ruled that no independent evidence of a diseased mind had yet been presented by the defense and that Remus could not proceed with his "unwritten law" testimony.

Shaw was withdrawn as a defense witness.

The judge's ruling was a blow to the defense.

Men Of State Are Eager To Become Hairdressers

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 28.—Connecticut men apparently are about to make a concerted dash to become "hair dressers and cosmeticians," to judge from a flood of inquiries pouring in upon the State Board of Hairdressers and Cosmeticians. The inquiries have led the board to issue a statement making it clear that licenses are necessary from the state in order either to be an apprentice to a hairdresser or to practice the trade.

To the query "what is a hairdresser?" the state board has replied: "One who arranges, dresses, curls, waves, weaves, sings, bleaches or colors the hair, or treats the scalp of a female for compensation."

And to "what is a cosmetician?" the board has replied: "Any person who by hands or appliances or by use of cosmetic preparations, antiseptics, tonics, creams, powders, oils or clays, engages for compensation in massaging, cleansing, stimulating, manipulating, exercising, or beautifying, or in doing similar work on the face, neck or arms, or who manures the nails of any female."

The board in charge of licensing such people has Mrs. Mary B. Holmes, of New Haven, for president; and Miss Sarah Raycroft, of Bridgeport, and Miss Lillian Landry, of Hartford, for its other members.

Montreal - Chicago Flyer Smashes Into Freight Train—Probe Under Way

Smith's Falls, Ontario, Nov. 28.—Several of the thirty passengers injured when the Montreal-Chicago flyer of the Canadian Pacific railway crashed head-on into a freight train at Dockrill, Ontario, were in a critical condition today. William Burnett, of Kingston, Ont., the engineer of the passenger train, and three unknown immigrants, two men and a woman, were killed.

Some of the injured were taken to Toronto early today and others were brought here. Railroad officials were unable to identify the dead and injured owing to the inability of the immigrants to speak English.

Cause of Accident

Railroad officials said the crash resulted from the tardiness of the engineer of the freight in maneuvering toward the siding at Dockrill. The Chicago flyer, speeding around a sweeping curve just ahead of the siding, smashed head-on into the locomotive of the freight train.

Both engines plunged over an embankment. The mail, baggage and colonist cars of the passenger train were smashed. Fire broke out, adding to the terror of the injured Europeans.

Working trains were rushed to the scene and railroad officials expected to have the main line cleared for passenger traffic by noon today. An inquest into the accident was to be held today at Lens near Dockrill.

Senator Nye charged that men like Harry Sinclair and William Burns, alleged principals in the late Teapot Dome scandal threatened the nation more than "all the Reds combined."

The Senator said that the oil scandal illustrated the effort of wealth to sidetrack justice and purchase the administrative branch of the government.

Senator Nye declared that events in Mexico, Nicaragua, China, the Vire-Smith cases, and tax legislation should awaken citizens to the danger to their government.

"It should cause Americans to accept the challenge which wealth is offering them," he said.

Senator Nye attacked the claims of William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, to Senatorial seats and prophesied that both would be denied seats.

Assistant Secretary of War Says They Are As Dangerous to Public As Quack Doctors.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Quack aviators are as dangerous to the public welfare as quack doctors. This was the message brought by F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war, to the conference being held here today to speed up the aviation department. Attending the conference are state and city officials and representatives of air transportation companies and manufacturers of airplanes. It was said this was the first conference of its kind ever held in this country.

Aircraft Regulations

Called by the New York state conference of mayors, the session is expected to adopt a program for state regulation over aircraft and pilots. Legislation to provide for such regulation will be introduced at the coming session of the state legislature, it was indicated by William H. Capes, secretary of the mayors' conference.

In addition to Assistant Secretary of War Davison, the speakers will be William P. MacCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce; Porter Adams, president of the National Aeronautic Association; Major General John F. O'Ryan; and "Casey" Jones, famous air mail pilot.

Davison told the conference the time has come to "rid the sky of unskilled pilots and flimsy planes."

"Give Examinations"

"Federal law," he said, "do not apply to aircraft not engaged in interstate flying. For instance, an unlicensed pilot can go anywhere he wants to in New York state in an unlicensed plane. And his plane is usually a flying coffin, lost over due in scrap heaps. A state license is the only curb."

Davison declared that unlicensed planes and unlicensed pilots should not be permitted on any municipal airport in the state.

"Quack fliers are as dangerous as quack doctors and flimsy planes are as dangerous as ships with rotten hulls," he said. "There are certain schools of learning, long on promises and short on results. Their graduates constitute a distinct menace to real air progress."

Davison warned the conference "beware of the pilot who has no license and keep clear of the plane that lacks registration numerals on its wings."

He declared that air regulation and the licensing of planes and pilots is essential for the protection of the public and for the promotion of commercial aviation.

"The sooner we eliminate reckless and irresponsible pilots, the sooner will air transportation take its place among our great public utilities," Davison said.

Companionate Marriage Ends in Tragedy—She Turns on the Gas.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—An attempt to save Ruth Snyder from the electric chair by the application of psychiatry such as featured the defense in the famous Leopold-Loeb case, was said to be the aim of Dr. Clarence A. Neymann, noted Chicago alienist, who today is speeding toward New York.

Dr. Neymann conducted elaborate tests on the two slayers of Bobby Franks and his testimony had no small part in saving the youths from the gallows.

The Snyder defense, it was reported here, will attempt to establish through Dr. Neymann that Mrs. Snyder and Judd Gray comprise a supreme case of "Folie A Deux"—insanity of two. It is said to be the rarest combination known to psychiatric science.

This defense was used for the first time in American criminal jurisprudence when that mystery pair of college boy thrill slayers—Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb—faced the gallows. It implies complementary insanity, meaning that one would have led a normal sane life if he had not met the other.

Former Judge Edgar P. Hazleton, Mrs. Snyder's counsel, is understood to have retained the famous Chicago alienist, with ordinary legal avenues closed against his client, Hazleton hopes that Dr. Neymann can prove the case of "Folie A Deux," after which the attorney will appeal directly to Gov. Smith.

TURK'S VISIT HERE IS INSULT TO U. S.

Ex - Ambassador Gerard Questions Authority of President, in Statement.

New York, Nov. 28.—The constitutional authority of the President to exchange ambassadors with Turkey on the basis of the rejected Lausanne treaty is questioned in a statement made public today by James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany and vice-chairman of the American Committee Opposed to the Lausanne Treaty.

Gerard declared that the presence in America of Moustakar Bey, Turkish ambassador-designate now on his way to this country, should be considered as an "intolerable insult to the American people." He charged Moustakar Bey with official responsibility for the murder by the Turks of 30,000 Christians at Alexandropol in 1920, and the subsequent decimation of the Armenian republic.

The Statement

"In August, 1920, Turkey attacked Armenia, but was repulsed," the statement reads in part. "She again attacked her in September, (while the Bolshevik threatened her from the northeast), and avowedly butchered, according to an official Bolshevik report, thirty thousand Christians in the region of Alexandropol and laid waste 147 villages and hamlets."

"We are compelled to state that the presence in America of Moustakar Bey, under those circumstances, should be considered as an intolerable insult to the American people."

KILLS TORMENTOR ON SCHOOL CAMPUS

Man Refused to Stop Blowing Automobile Horn; Killer Claims Self-Defense.

Great Barrington, Mass., Nov. 28.—Unintentional killing in self-defense was the claim of Gilbert Stanley, 30, whose right arm was crippled by a bullet in the World War, one of four brothers who starred in hockey at Yale and who was under arrest today charged with slaying Peter Fulco, 28, former high school basketball and baseball star and semi-professional baseball player.

Fulco, of recent years a stone mason, was killed by a double barreled shotgun as he rushed at Stanley on the campus of the Berkshire preparatory school at Sheffield, where Stanley was employed as superintendent.

According to police, Fulco early Sunday morning, drove up to the campus in his automobile with Michael Cleary, Mrs. Mabel St. James, wife of a Chicago station radio announcer, and Miss Edith Budniski, a maid at the school. While Cleary was escorting Miss Budniski to the door, Fulco began abusing the school by blowing his automobile horn and shouting to Mrs. St. James.

Gets Gun

Stanley, police said, told Fulco to keep quiet but the latter refused to heed the warning. Whereupon Stanley got a double-barreled shotgun and ordered Fulco to leave the campus. Instead Fulco left his car and dashed at Stanley. One shot was fired and Fulco dropped dead in his tracks.

Charged with manslaughter, Stanley was held in $10,000 bail for a hearing Thursday.

Mrs. St. James, who was separated from her husband recently, and Cleary were charged with intoxication today.

Startling Charge Made By Assistant Prosecutor In Opening Address at Lillendahl Trial—Says Poultry Dealer Offered to Give Jewelry For Cash to Help His Defense; Was at Scene of Crime and Blood Was Found on Widow's Clothing, State Claims—Jury Chosen In Less Than An Hour.

Co-Defendants

Court House, Mays Landing, N. J., Nov. 28.—Willis Beach, alleged clandestine lover of Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl with whom he is jointly accused of murdering the woman's husband, admitted the murder on the day a warrant was sworn out for his arrest. Assistant Prosecutor S. Cameron Hinkle declared before the jury in his opening statement here today.

Beach, a poultry raiser and neighbor of the Lillendahls, confessed to a friend that he had slain Dr. Lillendahl, the prosecutor asserted. "He was trying to raise funds for his defense when he went to his friend with the admission," Hinkle declared.

The startling charge came near the close of the prosecutor's opening statement and revealed a heretofore unannounced "Ace" in the State's hand.

Prosecutor's Argument

"We will show that when Beach disappeared the day the warrant was sworn for him, he tried to raise money to get rings out of pawn in another city. We will show he pleaded for funds, that he was in a jam," the prosecutor continued. "We will show that he killed Dr. Lillendahl and needed funds had. He offered to give the friend rings if he would help him with cash."

With the same swiftness that had characterized the drawing of the jury, which includes five women, Hinkle concluded his opening statement and the parade of witnesses was on.

Hinkle in his address to the jury explained the dual indictments against the widow and her neighbor.

Launches into Case

First tracing the early married life of the Lillendahls, Hinkle launched into his case, declaring that the state would show that Beach had threatened the life of Dr. Lillendahl, that Dr. Lillendahl, in fear of Beach; that while carrying on their clandestine affair, Mrs. Lillendahl and Beach were found in compromising positions and that Beach made indiscreet remarks about the widow.

The prosecution's opening statement revealed for the first time, much of the State's case.

Continuing, Hinkle asserted that the State was prepared to prove that Beach had consistently disregarded the rights of the elderly doctor as a husband and that the doctor had reproved his wife about her action. "We will also show that Beach was at the scene of the crime in his car at the time Dr. Lillendahl was killed," he said, adding that the widow had repeatedly given conflicting accounts of the murder.

Found Blood

The assistant prosecutor, in outlining the alleged untruths that the widow related after her husband's murder, declared that on a theater program in her purse, blood had been found. "Her man blood had been found. Her clothing also bore marks of human blood, yet she says she never touched her husband nor went to his help when he was attacked," Hinkle said. "In her husband's sweater he was killed, showing a premeditated plan to go into that lane."

Turning to Beach, the speaker said, among other things, that the State would show that Beach had confessed to a friend that he killed Dr. Lillendahl, Hinkle would back up his statement with a review of the "signals" that he said the couple arranged in their conspiracy, clothing and marks on the spot where he was killed, showing a premeditated plan to go into that lane.

When court recessed at 12:30, Chester Wrightmeyer, surveyor, the first state's witness was still on the stand. Wrightmeyer's summary of the geographical summary of the murder scene when turned over to the defense for cross-examination.

PICKING THE JURY

Court House, Mays Landing, N. J., Nov. 28.—With a housewife drawn as the first juror and with the indications that for the first time in history a woman would be foreman of a murder jury, the trial of Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl, 42, and her neighbor Willis Beach for the murder of the woman's 75-year-old husband, got under way shortly before ten o'clock today. Mrs. Carrie L. Calkins, of Atlantic City, the first member of the panel called for jury service, was accepted by the state and defense without question, although both sides were entitled to 20 peremptory challenges.

Only four minutes elapsed from the time Mrs. Calkins was called until she had been sworn in. As it is customary for the first juror chosen to assume the foremanship, it was considered probable that Mrs. Calkins would be named foreman.

Fast Work

The dispatch with which both sides were proceeding was in striking contrast to the slowness of New Jersey's other sensational murder trial—the Hall-Mills case, when two days were required to select the first juror.

Within the next ten minutes, another woman had been called and sworn in. She was Mrs. Grace Wingate, housewife of Denton City. A man and a negro were excused on peremptory challenge of the defense. Just ahead of Mrs. Wingate.

The First Curor

Mrs. Calkins, the first juror, is a large, motherly-appearing woman. She wears glasses, a checkered pearl about her neck, a small furbonnet and maroon-colored dress.

Selection of the jury started immediately after Justice Luther A. Campbell took the bench at 9:50 a. m.

Willis Beach, co-defendant, talked a few moments with his wife, Mrs. Amanda Beach, whose affection seems undisturbed by state charges that Beach and Mrs. Lillendahl had been carrying on a clandestine affair, before taking his seat in the courtroom.

Former Attorney General McCarter, chief counsel for Mrs. Lillendahl, shook hands cordially with Louis Repeto, state prosecutor, and with his Assistant Prosecutor Hinkle, as they met entering the courtroom. The attorneys exchanged pleasantries and compliments and squared off for action.

Big Crowds

Ropes around the courthouse grounds had kept back spectators. Mrs. Lillendahl, dressed in deep mourning, entered the court room while the clerk was calling the roll of inquestmen. Her eight-year-old son, Alfred, was at her side, a pale, shy youngster. A heavy veil partly obscured the widow's face.

She made no comment as the two women were selected to be among the twelve men and women who

Two Old Residents
Victims of Tragedy

Mrs. E. S. Bolar Dead, Miss Anna Daley Dying, From Suicide's Act.

One former Manchester resident is dead and another dying as a result of a suicide tragedy in Hartford Saturday night. Mrs. Edward S. Bolar, about 70 years old, of 1154 Park street, Hartford, is dead and her sister, Miss Anna Daley, about 60 years old, is at St. Francis hospital not expected to live.

The cause of the tragedy is believed to be that Mrs. Bolar had worried herself into a fit of despondency over her husband's illness. When he was taken to St. Francis hospital she became still more despondent and after her sister, who had come to her home only a few days previous to assist in caring for Mr. Bolar, had retired, police believe Mrs. Bolar closed all the doors and windows tightly and then turning on the two gas jets in the room. The tragedy was discovered by Mrs. John W. Roberts, a third sister in the family who lives down stairs.

Mr. Bolar is suffering from a bad attack of grip but his case is not considered critical.

It was said at the hospital this afternoon that Miss Daley was still unconscious and that little hope is held out for her recovery.

The funeral will be held from the undertaking parlors of James P. O'Brien, 104 Main street, Hartford, Tuesday morning at 9 a. m., with requiem mass at Our Lady of Sorrows church.

SMASH UP HIRED CAR,
THEN PARTY FADES OUT

Police Can't Learn Whether Hartford Motorists Were Injured or Not.

An automobile owned by the Daniels U-Drive Auto Renting Company of Hartford and operated by Carl Oakes, 22, at 452 Main street, Hartford, was totally wrecked early yesterday morning on the Bolton Road when it skidded and overturned. The occupants miraculously escaped death.

Manchester police investigated but their efforts to locate either driver or his companions who were believed to be returning from a dance, were unavailing. They are believed to have been picked up by a passing automobile and taken to Hartford. Therefore whether or not they were badly injured could not be ascertained.

REV. J. A. ANDERSON BIDS CHURCH ADIEU

Pastor Preaches Farewell Sermon to Congregation of Swedish Church.

Rev. J. A. Anderson, pastor of the Swedish Congregational church, said farewell to his congregation yesterday morning in his last sermon as pastor of that church.

He has been appointed superintendent of the Swedish Young People's home in Cromwell and will assume his new duties within the week.

Rev. J. A. Anderson

On Tuesday evening a farewell supper will be given in the church at 7:30. The arrangements include a musical program and other numbers. In charge of the supper will be Frank Johnson, Charles E. Nielson, Samuel D. Nyman, Paul Carlson and Carl Johnson. This committee has also been appointed to secure a new pastor for the church.

Rev. C. E. Green of Waltham, Mass., will preach at the church next Sunday and from then until after Christmas the preacher will be Rev. A. L. Anderson, a former pastor of this church, now living in Worcester.

SPEAKER HERE BLAMES SOVIETS IN CHINA WAR

Rev. S. H. Littell, Long Resident There, Lays Trouble to Russians.

Conditions in revolutionary areas in China were described in St. Mary's church last night by Rev. S. H. Harrington Littell of Hankow, China. Rev. Littell has been in that country for many years and has witnessed a number of revolutions and uprisings there.

He is inclined to lay the blame for all the trouble in China to agents of Soviet Russia, who, he says, have been inciting the natives of the country to revolt against their rulers. Intelligent Chinese, he said, prefer to keep quiet and get out of the way when revolutions start and usually take no active part in them.

There is no opportunity in China for talk against the ruling factions, for the punishment is death, usually at the hands of the headman. Because of this, Rev. Littell said, Chinese who are wise and wish to keep their lives safe keep their mouths shut.

Rev. Littell believes that reaction has set in and that China is beginning to stabilize herself. Soviet agents, he says, have been driven out of the country in numbers within the past six weeks and with their influence gone he thinks that China will arise out of chaos stronger than ever.

ABOUT TOWN

Mrs. John Robb of Orchard street is confined to her bed with illness.

Four members of the local lodge of Ladies of Columbus conducted a successful whist on Saturday evening in the K. of C. hall. Winners were Mrs. William Campbell, first; Mrs. William Barrett, second; and Mrs. Paul Strange, consolation. The hostesses were Mrs. William F. Quish, Mrs. Wilbrod J. Messier, Miss Lillian Tournaud and Miss Beatrice Sweeney.

New boundary lines which were voted on at the recent meeting of the South Manchester Fire district yesterday, in the Town hall on Saturday. The lines were extended to include some parts of the West Side, Highland Park and other outlying parts of Manchester. They were described in detail in The Herald at the time of the district meeting.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR 75 YEAR OLD

A surprise party was given Sunday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Fina Anderson at her home at 39 Cooper street, the occasion being her 75th birthday.

Dr. Abel Ahlquist, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church of New Britain, spoke and Prof. Olson, organist of the same church, gave a number of piano solos. Other features of the program were a vocal solo by Miss E. Erickson of New Britain, piano solo by Frederick Lavey of this town, and readings by Walter Neilson and Stuart Anderson of Hartford, all grand children of Mrs. Anderson.

ROBITUARY

ALBERT W. CAMPBELL
Albert W., three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Campbell of 89 Oak street died last night.

There are three other children in the family, two sisters, Gloria and Constance and one brother, Paul. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

MEN OF THREE TOWNS JOIN MOOSE LEGION

Manchester, Rockville, Hartford and Middletown men were initiated into Moose Legion No. 29 at the quarterly meeting of that body held in the K. of C. hall here yesterday afternoon. Members were present from all lodges in the district controlled by No. 29, including Hartford, Middlesex, Windham and Tolland counties.

A discussion on Moosehaven, the Moose home for old people at Jacksonville, Fla., was carried on and it was later voted to spend money to bring Christmas cheer to that home and also to Mooseheart, the home for orphans in the middle west.

It was announced that the annual banquet of the Legion will be held on Sunday, January 29 at Middletown.

G CLEF CLUB GIVES MUCH OF PROMISE

New Women's Chorus Highly Pleased Large Audience in First Ambitious Program.

On Saturday night at Orange hall in aid of the funds of the Sves Hall Association, the G Clef Glee club made what might be called its debut as an established musical organization. Its work was well received by an audience of 250.

Numbering 35 voices, this woman's choir obviously has opportunity to a useful work in a musical sphere heretofore untouched in this town.

The director, Helge Pearson, is manifesting a degree of enthusiasm that can hardly fail of building up this choir to a point of eminence at no very remote period.

The volucres are mostly fresh and youthful and there is evidently material at hand to make its mark. The parts are well balanced, and blend in tone very well, while attention to the lead of the director is a promising detail.

A slight note of nervousness was obvious in the opening number "Good Night Beloved," but as the singers went along in the program this little fault soon disappeared. In this number a good quality of soprano voice was heard.

In the second number "Spin, Spin," nice tone was heard, with excellent expression.

Outstanding, however, was the "Medley of Southern Airs," a composition giving equal opportunity to each of the parts and it was in this item that the material of which the choir is composed was most fully shown, as the changing of key, variations in tempo and various expressive moods were very well brought out. This was the best number, as well as the most difficult on the program.

Other numbers were, "Darling Nellie Gray," a setting by Barnby, and "Lullaby."

In general, the choir was notably attentive to matters of expression, enunciation and phrasing, and is to be congratulated on its good work. Success is apparently just ahead of these singers and all good wishes will be extended to this very promising musical club.

Other numbers were solos by Rudolph Swanson, a tenor with a good quality of voice, who was heartily applauded.

Miss Beatrice Johnson gave two readings in her usual finished and accomplished manner, and was brought back for an encore.

Gunnar Johnson, another reader, also was very well received in his numbers.

Female workers in Germany number nearly 50 per cent more than they did in 1907.

TONIGHT'S CONCERT

The annual pair of concerts of the Manchester Men's Choral Club have become so completely a Manchester institution that attendance upon them has developed into something very like a rite on the part of appreciators not only of good music but of steadfast, loyal effort.

This is written only by way of reminder to those interested persons who may possibly have forgotten, for a few hours, that "tonight's the night" of the opening concert of the year.

There has been enlargement on the stellar features of tonight's program; we presume with all justice. But the warm place which these events has come to occupy in the hearts of the people of the community has perhaps been earned by the fact that a very unusual contribution has been made to the cause of good music by a band of devoted, hard-working singers of our very own. And it is more particularly in behalf of these of our own people that the Herald bespeaks an audience so large that not a single empty chair will confront the Choral Club when it rises, after many weeks of preparation, for its first number this evening.

O'MAHONY

The strange death of Big Jim O'Mahony, known as the most dangerous convict in Wethersfield, is bound to stir up a lot of talk. The circumstance that O'Mahony was permitted to move about his hospital cell at will while suffering from peritonitis consequent on an abdominal gunshot wound, will inevitably result in plenty of criticism, and that the unfortunate criminal lunatic died alone and apparently without any realization of the gravity of his condition on the part of the prison authorities is pretty sure to add to the indignation of sentimentalists.

Without attempting to anticipate the result of any possible investigation, however, it is only fair to suggest that dealing with a deranged person like O'Mahony is a very different matter from treating a rational patient or even one not normal mentally but still not as dangerous as a rattlesnake. This man, whether as a consequence of his war experience or otherwise, was filled with a lust to kill. The crime for which he was confined was a causeless, senseless murder, growing out of sheer blood mania. Prison attaches had every reason to fear him. He was also, secretive and nimble witted, possessed of a genius for deceit.

Neither keepers nor physicians can be expected to handle such a case as his in anything like a normal matter. The chances are that they could not, even if they had no reason to be thinking somewhat of their own safety while dealing with it. Regrettable as it may be, it is fairer to think of the task of the prison hospital authorities as more akin to the treatment of a great wolf with the rabies than to the care of a normal sick or wounded human being.

It is an excellent occasion for the reservation of fault finding at least until all the circumstances are developed.

A STRAW

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States is a highly important body and particularly it is a representative body. It is doubtful if any other group stands so definitely for the aspirations, ideas and fixed theories on economic and business of so large a number of individuals. It is, naturally, a highly self-respecting body. It takes itself seriously.

The fact that President Coolidge has seen fit to stigmatize as "absurd" the tax program seriously advocated by such an organization as this, and to dismiss the advocacies of the national Chamber as impatiently as if presented by a Coxey's army, seems to us to be one of the best indications yet appearing that the President quite conclusively meant what he said about not choosing to run in 1928.

The manner of Mr. Coolidge's rebuke to the Chamber for its advocacy of a $400,000,000 revenue cut can hardly be visualized as the way in which an aspirant for re-nomination would treat so large and influential an organization. Not that we imagine for a moment that Mr. Coolidge were seeking another term he would allow the Chamber's insistence on so large a tax reduction to influence his attitude toward the taxation problem. But he would be rather more than human if, in such a case, he did not go somewhat further than he did in adorning his rejection of the plan with suavety.

RIVALRY

The extent to which athletic rivalries may develop into something approaching social antagonism has been brought out this fall by the competitions between the north end Cloverleaves and the south end Cubs in Manchester.

It is seriously to be doubted whether any public question, no matter how vitally concerning the welfare of the people of the community, has so importantly commanded the attention of perhaps a majority of the inhabitants under 40 years of age, in several seasons, as this matter of whether the "North End" had the better football team.

Far from condemning a lively interest in athletics and sports, even the vicarious sort of sports in which a few participate with the muscles of their bodies and the vast majority only with the muscles of their jaws—it is still possible to wish that Manchester fans might have occasion to root unanimously for their joint team than to be divided into two acrimonious camps over such a matter as sectional superiority in a game which, at best or at worst, contains a considerable element of sheer luck.

There is a tendency on the part of partisans in such cases to lose their sense of proportion, to attach a wholly undue value to the matter of supremacy in a rough and tumble sport; to talk and think about little else; to bet more money than one can afford to lose and to quarrel with one's neighbors and friends.

Now that the great Cloverleaves-Cubs business is settled for this season, possibly it may be that a small part of the street corner debate will turn to the question of a town high school. We said "possibly."

AIDING SUICIDE

In New Jersey a woman dipsomaniac wrote a note which constituted a sort of death warrant, stating as it did that her husband desired her to kill herself; and the husband signed it. Then she took her life with chloroform. That, at least, is the apparent circumstance of the woman's death. The man is being held pending further investigation.

Whether it is the idea of the authorities to charge the husband with a crime in case the affair proves to be as appears on the surface has not been stated. Whether, under New Jersey law, there is anything to charge him with, we do not know. Whether, even the man had any realization that he might actually be contributing to the death of his wife is problematical.

But in New York state, where suicide or attempted suicide is a statutory crime, there is little doubt that he could be held as an accessory, if not for some form of homicide.

Every once in a while there crops up one of these cases where some individual either prompts or encourages or tacitly consents to the suicide of a distracted human being under conditions where a different course might easily prevent the tragedy. Generally speaking the law deals with surprising gentleness with such contributors to the violent termination of a life.

It will be interesting to note whether the New Jersey attitude is as complaisant in this case.

DIFFICULT

"Geraldine Farrar Trips Over Hem of Dress and Falls on Stage." This headline in a morning paper is to gasp.

A woman with a laceration on her forehead was in court as a witness against her husband, accused of beating her. As frequently, she had related overnight and was trying to get the "old man" off.

"But how did you get that mark on your forehead?" demanded the judge.

"I—I—yer honor, I did it myself."

"How?"

"I—I—I bit it, yer honor."

"You bit yourself—on the forehead?" the judge, skeptical and severe.

"Yes, sir, yer honor. Ye see, I stood on a chair."

whether he shall eventually gain freedom through the avenue of commitment to an insane asylum. The thing at issue is whether any individual with a spark of the actor in his makeup can plot a murder, commit it in the open and then escape its consequences by behaving in any unusual manner afterward.

If Remus gets away with this insanity defense, then it should only be necessary hereafter, in the state of Ohio, for a murderer to kill his man in the street instead of in secret, and in place of running away climb a tree and chitter like a squirrel. Or for the gunman who drops his man, instead of getting himself shot in a battle with the police, to stand over the body and deliver Marc Anthony's oration, interspersed with giggles.

Post-homicidal mania should be the easiest and most effective of all ways of dodging the consequences of murder—if Remus gets off. But maybe he won't.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—When a statesman makes a speech or talks for the newspapers, he is apt to be something of a bore.

But when he talks "not for publication, but for his own ears," he is likely to have something interesting to say. The reason for that is that the statesman—or politician, if you prefer—knows full well that if he speaks his mind, he is likely to offend someone or express what many always has one eye on the voters or the bosses or financial backers on whom his career may depend, and when he says something any of them are likely to hear or read, he chooses his words very carefully.

The situation causes some of them to become apparent victims of repression. Your correspondent, who originally arrived in the capital weighted down by great awe, somehow became hep to the fact that most of the important gentlemen interviewed were platitudes or bunk or else repeating parts of their previous speeches.

He consequently adopted the habit of assuring all interviewees that they mustn't say anything for publication. Those tactics do not put some of them at ease. Others who feel that their views seldom receive proper newspaper attention are disappointed.

Still others, perhaps the most important ones, seem glad to take the opportunity to get something off their chests. These are the ones to pass along ideas and facts of interest without quoting anyone, the only drawback being that if they were attributed to the actual source they would often be good for eight-column headlines on Page One.

For instance, an outstanding leader of the Democratic party who often has been suggested for the presidency unburdened himself the other evening of certain beliefs which, publicly expressed, would cause him to be cussed and damned by Democrats wherever they are to be found.

"Our political set-up," said he, "is based on silly, artificial lines established by Civil War. We have men on our side of the Senate who are no more Democrats than Coolidge and Republicans on the other side who are no more Republicans than I am."

The only thing that keeps the Republican party dominant is the fact that we have a solid south. The north has been warned against putting 'the south in the saddle' and enough of it votes that way to elect Hardings and Coolidges.

The only solution I see is to break up the solid south and the best way to do that is to nominate Al Smith. I admire Smith, but he would take a terrible licking.

"Smith wouldn't carry one state, let alone the south," said another. "The more states he carried elsewhere the better for the party but he couldn't win."

"Then, with the south an open field, we would have a national party. There wouldn't be many more of these fearful land-slides, and there would be real content in nearly every state. I don't see any other way out for us, because except in case of a terrific depression, the correspondent often takes advantage of the peculiar situation, dresses them up in his own words and puts them out as his very own."

THE NEW FORD CAR

An announcement of unusual importance to every automobile owner

NINETEEN years ago we made and sold the first Model T Ford car. In announcing it to the public we said:

"We will build a motor car for the great multitude. It will be large enough for the family, but small enough for the individual to run and care for. It will be constructed of the best materials, by the best men to be hired, after the simplest designs modern engineering can devise. But it will be so low in price that no man making a good salary will be unable to own one."

"If I were starting in business today, or asked to restate my policy, I would not change one sentence or one word of that original announcement. In plain, simple language it gives the reason for the very existence of the Ford Motor Company and explains its growth.

IN THE last nineteen years we have made 15,000,000 Ford cars and added to the world nearly 300,000,000 mobile horse-power. Yet I do not consider the machines which bear my name simply as machines. I take them as concrete evidence of the working out of a theory of business which I hope is something more than a theory of business—a theory that looks toward making this world a better place in which to live.

"The Model T Ford car was a pioneer. There was no conscious public need of motor cars when we first conceived it. There were few good roads and only the adventurous few could be induced to buy an automobile.

"The Ford car blazed the way for the motor industry and started the movement for good roads. It broke down the barriers of time and distance and helped to place education within the reach of all. It gave people more leisure. It helped people everywhere to do more and better work in less time and enjoy doing it. It did a great deal, I am sure, to promote the growth and progress of this country.

"We are still proud of the record of the Model T Ford car. If we were not, we would not have continued to manufacture it so long. But 1927 is not 1908. It is not 1915. It is not even 1926.

We have built a new car to meet modern conditions

"We realize that conditions in this country have so greatly changed in the last few years that further refinement in motor car construction is desirable. So we have built a new car. To put it simply—we have built a new and different Ford to meet new and different conditions.

"We believe the new Ford car, which will be officially announced on Friday of this week, is as great an improvement in motor car building as the Model T Ford was in 1908.

Smart new low lines and beautiful colors

"The new Ford is more than a car for the requirements of today. It goes farther than that. It anticipates the needs of 1928, of 1929, of 1930.

"The new Ford car is radically different from Model T. Yet the basic Ford principles of economy of production and quality of product have been retained. There is nothing quite like the new Ford anywhere in quality and price.

"The new Ford has exceptional beauty of line and color because beauty of line and color has come to be considered, and I think rightly, a necessity in a motor car today. Equally important is the mechanical beauty of the engine. Let us not forget this mechanical beauty when we consider the beauty of the new Ford.

by
HENRY FORD

"The new Ford has unusual speed for a low-price car because present-day conditions require unusual speed.

"The world moves more quickly than it used to. There are only so many hours in the day and there is much to be done.

"Fifty and sixty miles an hour are desired today where thirty and forty would have satisfied in 1908. So we are giving you this new speed.

Quiet and smooth-running at all speeds

"The new Ford will ride comfortably at fifty and sixty miles an hour. It has actually done sixty-five miles an hour in road tests.

"Since modern conditions demand more speed, they also demand better brakes to balance this speed. So we are giving you four-wheel brakes in the new Ford.

"The new Ford will be quiet and smooth-running at all speeds and you will find it even easier to handle in traffic than the old Model T Ford.

"The new Ford has durability because durability is the very heart of motor car value. The Ford car has always been known as a car that will take you there and bring you back. The new Ford will not only do that, but it will do it in good style. You will be proud of the new Ford.

THIS new Ford car has not been planned and made in a day. Our engineers began work on it several years ago and it has been in my mind much longer than that. We make automobiles quickly when we get in production. But we take a long time planning them. Nothing can hurry us in that. We spent twelve years in perfecting our former Model T Ford car before we offered it to the public. It is not conceivable that we should have put this new Ford car on the market until we were sure that it was mechanically correct in every detail.

"Every part of it has been tested and re-tested. There is no guessing as to whether it will be a successful model. It has to be. There is no way it can escape being so, for it represents the sum total of all we have learned about motor car building in the making of 15,000,000 automobiles.

The new Ford will sell at a low price

"The price of the new Ford is low in accordance with the established Ford policy. I hold that it is better to sell a large number of cars at a reasonably small margin of profit than to sell a few cars at a large margin of profit.

"We never forget that people who buy Ford cars are the people who helped to make this business big. It has always been our policy to share our profits with our customers. In one year our profits were so much larger than we expected that we voluntarily returned $50 to each purchaser of a car. We could never have done that if this business had been conducted for the sole benefit of stockholders rather than to render service to the public.

"No other automobile can duplicate the new Ford car at the Ford price because no other manufacturer does business the way we do.

"We make our own steel—we make our own glass—we mine our own coal—we make virtually every part used in the Ford car. But we do not charge a profit on any of these items or from these operations. We would not be playing fair with the public if we did so. Our only business is the automobile business. Our only profit is on the automobile we sell."

WE ARE able to sell this new Ford car at a low price because we have found new ways to give you greater value without a great increase in our own costs.

"We did not set out to make a new car to sell at such-and-such a figure. We decided on the kind of car we wanted to make and then found ways to produce it at a low price.

"The new Ford car, as I have said, will be officially announced on Friday of this week. In appearance, in performance, in comfort, in safety, in all that goes to make a good car, it will bear out everything I have said here. We consider it our most important contribution thus far to the progress of the motor industry, to the prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

WAPPING

Wallace Hayes, of Pleasant Valley is improving the looks of his house by painting and shingling it. George English, who was taken seriously ill last Wednesday morning and fell in the street and was taken to the Manchester Memorial Hospital later in the day, passed away at that institution later in the evening. He has no relatives in this part of the country, but a sister and brother survive him in England.

Francis Billings, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Billings has been ill at his home since last Wednesday evening.

Mrs. John L. Vollinger, of Deming street has been confined to her bed by illness all this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snow and family and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Snow of Glastonbury, spent Thanksgiving Day with Mrs. Snow's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bishop and family of Andover.

A son, Donald Francis, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frances Wetherell of Oakland on Friday afternoon, at the Manchester Memorial hospital.

Nearly one hundred were present at the Federated Sunday school on Friday evening at the Parish House. Games were enjoyed all the evening and refreshments were served.

S. Frank Stoughton, who works in Philadelphia, Penn., and his son, Dwight Stoughton, of Albany, N. Y., came home for Thanksgiving and the weekend. They returned to their work on Sunday evening.

The schools will all open on Monday morning after the holiday vacation, and on Tuesday at the winter school. The soup kitchen will open with Mrs. Frank Stoughton taking charge of it.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Collins and Mrs. Eva L. Stoughton motored to East Hartford and spent Thanksgiving Day with Mr. Collins' sister, Mrs. E. Donnie Barber and Miss Myrtle Barber.

Miss Etta I. Stoughton is up and around again after five weeks of suffering from a fall which she sustained at an auction sale of antiques at Mr. Newberry's in South Windsor.

Charles J. Dewey took his son and family to Florence, Mass., on Saturday. They have been spending Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Nevers and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond De Wald, who have been living at the J. C. Stoughton place moved from there to Elmwood, West Hartford, on last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennan, who have been boarding at Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stead's since last August have gone to their homes. Mrs. Kennan was taken ill about two weeks ago, but is improving now. Miss Marjorie Felt, of this place and a junior at the South Manchester High School, won a two dollar and a half gold piece as the first prize for the best article which was contributed to the first issue of the "Somanhls Events."

The funeral of Mrs. Eva Kilbourne Elmore was largely attended from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert E. Stiles of Pleasant Valley, on Friday afternoon. Rev. Truman H. Woodward officiated and the burial was in South Windsor cemetery. There were many beautiful flowers.

"WHAT PRICE GLORY" THRILLS BIG CROWD

State Filled as Famous Picture Has Premiere Last Night; Remains Here Until Wednesday.

"What Price Glory" is undoubtedly the biggest and best picture that has ever been shown in Manchester. That is the consensus of the great crowd which attended the first showing of the war epic at the State theater last night. The picture, incidentally, will remain here for tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday.

A big orchestra, engaged especially for the showing of the production here, was good in the many effects required to put the picture across. There will be three showings of "What Price Glory" each day during the run here, at 2:15, 6:45 and 8:45.

"What Price Glory" is a sardonic comedy, picturing war as it really is. Captain Flag and Sergeant Quirt, the two principal male characters, are members of a regiment shoved into the thick of the fighting in the latter World War.

Dirt and mud, hard duty and blood, love and hate, all figure in the plot of the great story and the result is a picture that will never be forgotten while wars are still fought. Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe are the featured characters, and Dolores Del Rio is the heroine.

The nation's foremost screen critics have been unanimous in their commendation of this motion picture masterpiece, declaring that it surpasses the celebrated play by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson in every particular despite the greatness of the stage attraction.

It is proclaimed by all those in authority as the greatest motion picture of the year. It is not a war picture. War is its background. It is no more a war play than a love comedy laid in a sylvan setting would be called a rural play. Its authors took war as the canvas on which to sketch their story; was as the great influence on men and women that would bring out pathos, comedy and a human appeal as no other crisis in the affairs of nations could bring.

Above all else there is comedy. Probably no picture ever made along the edge of a great world tragedy ever had so much comedy. "What Price Glory" on the screen is peopled with real and human characters that will at once win favor. They are not just types. They are the genuine thing in front of the camera, which make no mistake. "What Price Glory" is not only a great and absorbing picture, with thrills and heart throbs and a world of comedy, but it is crowded with incidents that will bring a chuckle and a thrill after the moment you see it.

DESERTS BABY
Brockton, Mass., Nov. 28.—Brockton authorities today were seeking a young mother, who registered as Mrs. Richard Brown of Manchester, N. H., at a hotel here last night, and who disappeared leaving a three-weeks-old baby boy. While the mother, who was about 24, was believed to be still in her room, a telephone call was received from the outside. The woman said it was Mrs. Brown, at that she had fallen and been injured and would not return for her baby. The infant was taken to Brockton hospital, where it will be held until its mother is found, and if not, will be turned over to the state.

How Policemen Relieve Aching Feet

Policemen who stand on their feet all day say that when they get home they like to bathe their feet in a Sypho-Nathol solution—one teaspoonful to a quart. It relieves the soreness and ache. Instantly takes out the sting and stops the burning. Ends callouses, unjoints, corns. Refreshing in bath, too. Get Sypho-Nathol at all dealers.

G. H. WILCOX HEADS BUSINESS COLLEGES

Named President of New England Business College Association.

G. H. Wilcox of the Connecticut Business College attended the 21st annual meeting of the New England Business College Association at Hotel Bellevue, Boston, Friday and Saturday. This association is made up of 35 of the foremost business schools in New England and meets twice a year for the purpose of talking over new methods of teaching commercial subjects.

The association voted to continue the typewriting contest held during the spring and C. H. Swisher of the Pequot Business College of Meriden was selected to carry on the contest for 1928. A contest in arithmetic will be conducted by E. B. Hill of the School of Commercial Science of Woonsocket, R. I.

The annual election of officers resulted in the following: G. H. Wilcox of the Connecticut Business College, president; E. D. McIntosh of the Lawrence Commercial College, vice-president; R. C. Smith of the Stone College, New Haven, secretary and treasurer. The next meeting will be held during the last week of May at some central hotel in the Connecticut valley.

MARRIED 11 YEARS, WILL NOW "REARRY"

Parents of Girl Who Figured in Companionate Union to Be Wed Again.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 28.—E. Haldeman-Julius, publisher and author, and his wife, Marcell, today went shopping around for a new wedding ring.

Not that they have any more adopted daughters who contemplate "companionate" marriage, but the old knot tied in the Haldeman-Julius family has become "unsatisfactory."

"You see it was eleven years ago when Marcell and I were married in Cedarville, Ill.," Haldeman-Julius declared today. "A Presbyterian minister said something about the 'Holy Ghost.' Now, the Holy Ghost has nothing whatever to do with our marriage. Love cannot grow out of images like that. For these eleven years I have brooded over it. We are going to be re-married here in Kansas City."

Haldeman-Julius last year announced that they would "re-marry." A date was set. Judge Ben S. Lindsey was to be "best man." The ceremony was postponed.

A Lipstick Is Less Harmful To Any Girl Than a 16-Inch Waistline

The World's Woman Tennis Champion Discusses and Sketches The Modern Girl

Illustrations and Text Both
BY MISS WILLS

I AM a member of the younger set and I should like to speak up for my generation. Not that we have been neglected, for what hasn't been said about the modern girl is negligible, but the praise or condemnation has been mostly from people looking back or down upon what they call the younger generation. And undue emphasis has been placed upon the minority group.

The wildness of a few has been made symbolic of the majority who because they are wholesome, healthy and unselfish, sort of short-haired and short-skirted editions of their mothers and grandmothers, have been underplayed and overplayed. I have met young women in all parts of the country from San Francisco to New York, and I have studied them from long distance and close up. I am a college girl myself, and have lived and studied with college girls in the University of California, one of the typical colleges of the country. Some of my most intimate friends are so-called society girls. Others are in the business world. And for the life of me I cannot understand why a sensational few should be allowed to represent the whole group.

Haven't we always had extremists in every age? Since the days of Helen of Troy and Cleopatra haven't there always been women who just naturally stood out from the rest and usually made trouble? And isn't it just because they were different and less conventional than those around them that their exploits were conspicuous?

Are the young people of today as wild as they are painted would anyone notice them? Wouldn't they just be taken for granted?

Where do people get the impression that the modern girl has lost the fine ideals her mother and grandmother were supposed to possess; or why is the modern girl regarded as so wild, so headstrong and so material?

Of course it takes some fire to produce smoke. It's true there are girls in their teens who smoke, drink and make up their faces to excess and go to absurd extremes in trying to make conquests, but aren't they the ones who would, in any age, be the faddists?

"Observe how the modern girl acts with men," I have heard older women gasp. No subject is forbidden. Conversation is free and unrestrained. They respect no limits.

I honestly believe that much of the freedom between young men and women today is really freedom of speech. The modern girl, educated much as her brother is, in class rooms where boys are trained and often under men teachers, studies biology, psychology, and various subjects which bring her close to life. Sex to her isn't nearly so much something to blush about as it is to understand and be rational about.

One of the most encouraging things about young people today is that men and women are articulate and actually talk together and become friends. Men idealized women more, perhaps, when women were more mysterious and aloof from everyday life. Today there is less curiosity and more companionship.

It is my opinion that women were bored trying to stay up on pedestals. Men were just as bored trying to keep them there. Women would rather be treated as the human beings they are than the divinities they cannot be.

BUT look at the way young girls drink and smoke now, the reformers point out. You would imagine from them it was the modern girl who discovered alcoholic beverages, yet they existed long before the Bible was written. The hip flask is really the only new angle to drinking, and that was the

NOTHING BACKHAND ABOUT THESE SHOTS

MUCH of the freedom between young men and young women today is only the freedom of speech.

SEX to the modern girl isn't so much something to blush about as something to understand and be rational about.

MEN idealized women more, perhaps, when women were more mysterious and aloof. Today, there is more companionship.

WOMEN are bored trying to stay up on pedestals. Men are bored trying to keep them there.

THE hip flask is really the only new angle to drinking.

GIRLS are always ready to give up smoking if the man they care for really objects.

ISN'T a lipstick less harmful to a girl than a 16-inch waistline?

THE heart beneath a sports frock today beats no less romantically than the heart that beat beneath the stayed bodice of a generation ago.

direct result of prohibition. There was no need of it in the old days.

I admit frankly that I have seen flasks in evidence at college proms. I have also seen chaperones in evidence. I have never seen anyone forced to imbibe against his or her wishes. I have never seen a girl who was a wall flower because she didn't drink. In dining in public places and in being entertained in private homes, I have noticed that cocktails were not limited to the younger set.

Yes, the modern girl smokes more than her mother did. It happens to be the smart thing to do now and it was not the smart thing to do in mother's age. Most of my friends smoke, but it has not made them less feminine. I don't smoke myself. Probably the knowledge that I must always be in as perfect physical trim as possible keeps me from the habit.

For while no one has definitely proved much against the cigaret, athletes are advised to take no chances. A friend of mine who is a singer also refuses cigarets because she takes every precaution to protect her voice. Neither of us claims any virtue for not smoking. And I honestly think it makes no difference to anyone but ourselves whether we do or don't.

True, many girls smoke because they don't want to seem old-fashioned if they don't. That seems very foolish to me. They regard cigarets as indicative of sophistication. Girls are always ready to give up smoking if the man they care for really objects. They like to be reformed.

Smoking, again, however, is not limited to the younger generation. Some of my friends smoke with their mothers. I know grandmothers who like their cigarets with the after dinner coffee. So what can we expect from the young people? After whom can they pattern but their elders?

I hear the young girl criticized loudly for her manner of dress, for her rouge and for her short skirts. And yet every woman loves the present day simple, comfortable, straight little frocks, and our mothers and grandmothers have dieted and starved in the most heroic fashion so that they can be slim enough and straight enough to wear them.

PERHAPS a young girl does overdo the matter when she first experiments with lipstick and powder. Taste, unfortunately, is not always inborn. But was there ever a time when women didn't try to enhance their beauty? And isn't a lipstick less harmful, when you come to think of it, than 16-inch waistlines, cramped feet, and enormous hats to make pompadour expansive? They say that the natural beauty of youth needs no enhancing, but youth is always going to try.

Certainly in making the natural figure popular and in restoring some of the ideals of physical beauty of the ancient Greeks, the younger generation deserve much credit. Even our dancing is attacked. But the waltz was shocking in its early days and the two step was a rowdy affair. Dancing is essentially a personal expression, and girls today would be most artificial if they danced as their grandmothers did. Long, trailing ball gowns that made only short steps possible and tight corsets that restricted even normal breathing forced the dancing of half a century ago to be what it was. Girls who ride, skate, play tennis and golf want dancing that is exercise as well as merely a social grace.

I would not say that the modern girl is more attractive than her grandmother was at her age. You cannot compare what is so separated in spirit and in environment. I maintain, however, that the modern girl is just as consistent as her grandmother, just as much a product of her age and a reflection of her time. I like to flout the theory that careers and modern life have made modern girls less romantic than formerly. The modern girl may be less sentimental, more knowing, and more cynical, but in her heart she treasures the idea of marriage and a home. The heart beneath the sports frock today beats no less romantically than the heart that beat beneath the stayed bodice of a generation ago. And why not list some of the virtues of the modern girl? How many of them do you know who are content to sit

Miss Wills sketched two studies of the typical girl of today. Then she drew the charming 'athletic' girl of the last generation. And she lets you choose between the two types—the 'lipsticked' or the 'was-waisted.'

idly at home, even if their fathers are amply able to provide for them, just waiting for Prince Charming?

Isn't the modern girl showing intelligence and character when she serves as well as accepts? College educations, music, art, languages, business training, social service—these and a hundred other pursuits keep modern girls happy and interested and enable them to make comfortable livings and have full lives if the Prince delays his coming, or does not come at all.

FAIL to see why any girl should be expected to renounce the opportunity to lead a happy, busy life for the uncertain hope that some eligible male will eventually turn up and marry her. She should not be asked to take such a chance.

There has been a great deal of talk about "women's wiles" which are usually thought of in connection with her alleged eagerness to attract a mate. Is the modern girl less artful than her sister of a century ago or not?

The old-fashioned girl is supposed to have waited passively at home until some handsome fellow called and fell violently in love with her. After repeated urgings to leave her dear parents the fair one finally yielded and became a blushing bride. And the adoring couple lived rapturously ever afterwards.

It is a romantic picture, but I doubt if it is a very real one. It is much more likely, I suspect, that the crinoline girl's passivity was really pretty active. The male may have believed that all the action was on his side and it is certain that the girl did not disabuse him of the idea. But actually he had far less say in the matter than he thought he had.

To the girls of that day the business of getting a husband was all-important. Who can blame them, therefore, if they used every art to succeed in that business? They may have remained at home more than their modern sisters, but I think it is safe to say that they worked harder to attract the men. They had to. There was nothing else they could do.

BUT the modern girl is not faced with the alternative of finding a husband or becoming an old maid. There are other things she can do. And so, until Prince Charming appears on the scene, she does them. I think she is therefore less artful and wily than her earlier sisters.

Some time ago we stopped telling people what religion they should embrace. It seems to me that it is about time we stopped telling our girls what kind of lives they should lead.

Competition is the keynote today. Women compete in business, in sports and in social and professional life. They have to learn to lose as well as win, to give and to take. They are not content to watch life from the sidelines—to borrow a tennis term. They want the experience of taking part in the adventure of earning a living, and being individuals as well as of getting a husband.

The modern girl can keep pace with the modern man. He probably understands her much better than her elders do, for he has helped make her what she is. I believe she is as safe today as if she were singing in the church choir in the days of long ago.

The Blazing Horizon by ERNEST LYNN

THE STORY TELLS FAR... The story begins in 1880, in the wicked little town of Caldwell, Kan., close to the Indian territory border.

CHAPTER VI... JOE CRAIG rode up the gentle rise and when he reached the top he reined in his horse.

"Why don't you come for a ride with me?"

"Son, you're all wrong. She rides like all hell turned loose. She's 12 years old and she's been in the saddle pretty near ten."

He urged his horse forward. "Come on, Tony. We'll go and meet her before she breaks her neck."

"Why, Tony, that'd be downright impolite. You can't treat the ladies like that. Come on, son."

He rode forward, waving his hat, and getting an answering wave from the little demon that was galloping toward them.

"Twenty yards away, the girl brought her horse to a sudden stop. The animal reared back on his hind legs and its rider rose in her stirrups."

"Howdy, Miss Rita. How've you been? I declare to goodness your hair's redder than ever."

"Behave yourself, Joe Craig. I'll tell my daddy to fine you if you don't stop teasing me."

"Well, I can't help telling the truth. Miss Rita, this is my friend, Tony Harrison. He's staying at the Bar K."

"Daddy was telling me about him." She studied Tony coolly, much to the boy's embarrassment.

"I'm glad to know you," she said, "and we're very glad to have you with us. Joe, I'll race you back to the house."

Rita Moore had inherited her red hair from her father. From him also she had inherited a masterful disposition. She was the only person that Titus Moore did not rule with an iron hand. She was fiery, imperious; even the colonel himself was like so much putty in her hands.

She and her mother spent most of the year in Kansas City, where Rita attended a boarding school.

Katherine Moore had readily persuaded her husband that rough ranch life, while it was desirable from many points of view, held forth very little in the way of educational opportunities for young girls.

As for Kansas City, that was a compromise. Katherine Moore had wanted her daughter educated in the east; the colonel thought Wichita was far enough removed from the base of operations, so Kansas City had been agreed on.

She had been agreed on, with the colonel assenting to an eastern school when the time should come.

The colonel's wife was a slender, gentle creature with considerable pride in her blood. She was a Virginian and, what was more, a Pridemore. Above everything else, she wanted her daughter to be reared as a lady and eventually to make a good match.

"I'm afraid she'll break her neck. Thus, the way she rides that horse of hers."

And Titus Moore chuckled. "Let the girl alone, Katherine. She can take care of herself. You can't raise Rita like a hothouse plant. She's too much like her daddy."

This latter was quite evident from Mrs. Moore's sigh. "Marguerita" (she was the only one who called her Marguerita) "will do something foolish some day when she's a little older, and you'll see that I was right." Men, she added, didn't understand about such things.

"No? Well, I wouldn't bother about it if I were you."

That was the way such discussions always ended.

As for Rita herself, the coming of Titus Harrison meant but one thing to her: that one more person was around to do her bidding.

All of the cow hands, from Joe Craig down, had been her slaves, and there was no reason for her treating Tony any differently.

The day after they had first seen each other she came upon him while he was helping in the building of some fence. She jumped down from her small horse and looked on curiously.

Finally she spoke. "Why don't you come for a ride with me?"

Tony appeared to notice her for the first time. "I'm working," he announced briefly.

"But I want you to come with me."

"Can't." He turned his back and resumed his task.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

"If a man wants a hat, he goes free he was from tradition and how well he did his own thinking. On the woman question, the ablest and the weakest: all seem strangely alike."

Nowadays, with the majority of women doing their shopping on their noon-hours of freedom from the job, buying a hat has necessarily become for them just an incident instead of the event it once was.

Male Wisdom... No book has caused such a furor in many rooms as John Langdon's "Secret History of Woman."

Mathilde, the market woman who sells scallions and flet de sole to none less than Georges Clemenceau, "Tiger" of France, wears one of the old-fashioned lace bonnets just to keep the former premier of France a satisfied customer.

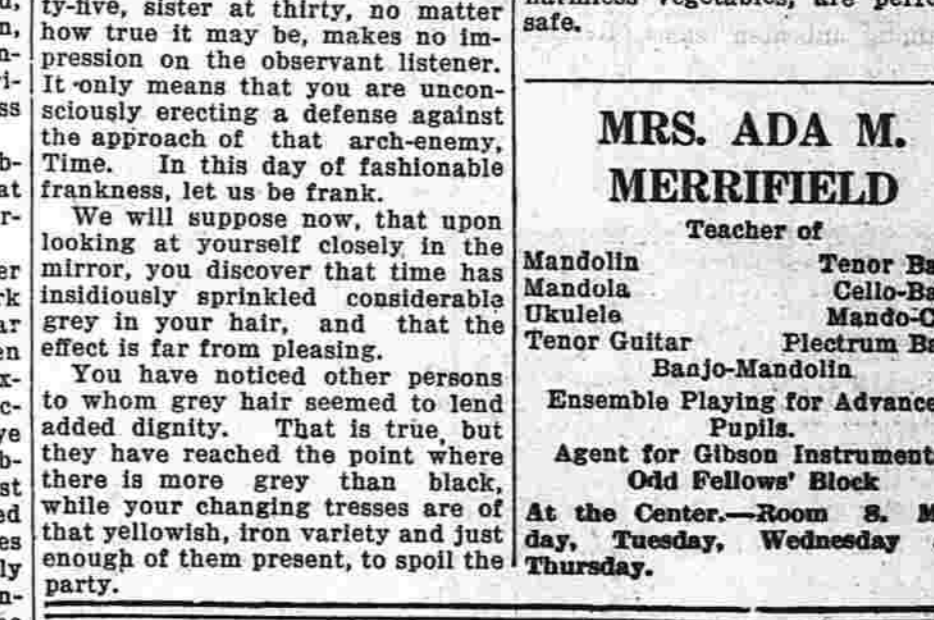

One of the most important items in the day's news to women is a report of the recovery of the Minnesota woman who, having given birth to twin babies, just after an automobile accident, lay in a state of coma for over a month.

As it is now called? That is the thing to do, provided it can be done artistically. It helps you retain a claim to youth and in that way bolsters up your morale.

IF YOU MUST TRAVEL WITH THE BABY, BE CAREFUL... By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Most specialists in diseases of children when asked about traveling with a baby are likely to say: "Don't."

Whenever possible, the baby is to be kept in its usual diet. This is simple if the mother is nursing the baby even during a few feedings, but most difficult if the infant is fed entirely on artificial mixtures.

Change Ahead of Time... It is known that the journey is to be taken and the child's dietary habits are to be changed, the new foods should be established at least a week before the trip is taken.

Nearly 1,000,000 cubic feet of logs were ratted from Russia to Estonia this year.

The food mixtures should be boiled at least for ten minutes and then placed in individual bottles containing not more than two feedings.

On reaching the train, the milk mixtures may be placed in the ice-box of the dining car or the buffet car, unless an icebox such as exists in drawing rooms or compartments is available.

Nipples should be boiled and kept in a wide-mouthed, well sealed bottle for application just before the child is fed.

Most modern hotels in large cities are provided with accommodations for infants and will provide on request suitable cribs, electric heating stoves for use in the room, boiled cereal and certified milk.

For years the word feminist meant the militant suffragette, the more or less masculine creature who donned men's clothes and shouted to high heaven for her rights.

Having won her war, the feminist has laid aside her armor and her weapons. She can afford to be charming once more. She is dressing beautifully and behaving beautifully, it seems. What woman doesn't, when she is having her own way?

For years the word feminist meant the militant suffragette, the more or less masculine creature who donned men's clothes and shouted to high heaven for her rights.

According to a recent article written by a woman who gives every evidence of knowing what she is talking about, the new feminist is an entirely different creature; she divulges a few interesting facts about her.

To avoid confusion, it is well to keep in mind, in any discussion of the woman question, that there are today three absolutely distinct types of women. First, the domestic woman who has never had any desire or necessity to change her status. Second, those women who are in business, art or professions, largely from necessity, but who would prefer domesticity if it could be possible without too much worry.

ONLY SEVEN TEAMS UNBEATEN SO FAR

Georgia, Illinois, Pittsburgh, Wash. & Jeff., Minnesota, Tennessee and Texas Aggies in the field.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
I. N. S. Sports Editor.

New York, Nov. 23.—Two abiding facts were on the record today, self-evident and without contest, at the last will and testament of intercollegiate football for the season of 1927 was about to be admitted to probate. One of these was that, given sufficient time, it will be necessary to award the national championship to the Smithsonian Institution by acclamation; the other that Howard Jones, of Southern California, must have the rules changed whereby the goal posts will be moved forward to midfield.

These facts are stated in the order of their importance to everyone with the exception of Howard Jones. On Saturday against Notre Dame his Trojans did exactly what they did in the same circumstances last year, meaning that they did what they didn't do. They failed to score the point after touchdown and one of the few remaining unbeaten records went into the ash tray with the other dead ones. If memory serves, U. S. G. has blown a coast title or so by this jolly old method, so the thing must be part of the curriculum like freshman Latin and bell-bottom pants.

Redeem Field. Anyhow, Notre Dame's seven to six victory reduced the field to undefeated team to seven, namely, Georgia, Illinois, Pittsburgh, Washington & Jefferson, Minnesota, Tennessee and Texas Aggies, and all of these really belong. Georgia and Pittsburgh have the best records but, before one starts placing halos and awarding sleeve garters, one would do well to wait until the complete testimony is in.

This cannot happen until Georgia beats Tech next Saturday, if at all, and Pittsburgh disposes of Stanford in the annual Pasadena inter-sectional affair. It is possible that both Georgia and Pitt will must these contests, in which case the national sweepstakes simply will become a claiming race.

Those Eligible. Among those who will be eligible are the remaining unbeaten teams, mentioned above, and Yale and the Army, which just about lets in every outfit that lost only once during the season.

The Army won its annual game from the Navy on Saturday, fourteen to nine, a fact that neither aids nor impedes any argument it might care to start. Other teams have beaten the Navy but they didn't have to be as good as the Army found it necessary to be on Saturday.

Still, the cadets really are poorly placed in any national debate, even more so than Yale is. For they lost to the Bulldogs who lost to Georgia, which to date has lost to no one. Frankly, the one-defeated teams may be the greatest ever but the records persist in making a couple of tramps out of them.

The records also deprecate the importance of Illinois, Minnesota, Washington & Jefferson and Tennessee. The Illinois were tied by Iowa State, which lost to Marquette by a large majority and what can one do about that? Offhand, I would suggest that one can accept the Big Ten championship and be proud of it. Minnesota also suffered several ties and one of them was with Indiana, which ends that story rather abruptly.

Washington & Jefferson finished the season in a dead heat with West Virginia, this being an extremely dead finale, West Virginia having lost to Pitt, Georgetown, Carnegie Tech and Missouri. As for Tennessee, it was tied by Vanderbilt, which lost to Texas, which lost to Texas Aggies.

A little more of this and I will have the Tennessee doctors and Gustavus Adolphus in a play off for the title.

NORTH ENDS PLAY HOME NEXT SUNDAY

The North Ends will practice at the North End Playgrounds Tuesday evening at seven o'clock sharp. All members are requested to be on hand promptly. The team will play the Frog Hollow Echoes of Hartford next Sunday afternoon at Hickey's Grove for the Junior Championship of the state. The Echoes are the Junior champs of Hartford, having defeated the South Ends and St. Anthony Reserves, besides having a fine record of six wins and only one defeat. Two years ago under the name of the Frog Hollow Senators, they played both the Cloverleaves and Cubs, losing to the Cloverleaves by the score of 6-0.

The North Ends have also beaten the South Ends and St. Anthony Reserves of Hartford by the same scores as the Echoes. They also beat the Meriden Mohicans, the only team to beat the Echoes this year and so are confident that they can do the same to the Echoes.

BIG MEN OF YALE
Nine of the eleven men regarded as regulars at Yale are more than six feet tall.

Cheney Brothers Defeated 2 to 0

The undefeated Scandias of Hartford defeated Cheney Brothers in a hard fought rough game at the West Side yesterday. The score was 2-0.

The visitors were easily the best team. The team work of the Cheney forwards failed to function properly. Time after time the locals had chances to score, but lacked the finishing punch. The Scandias captain won the toss and Lindsay kicked off. Scandias attacked and forced three corner kicks in succession without scoring due to the splendid defense of Tortenson and Godsmann. The Cheney team attacked without avail. After 25 minutes of play Carroll scored for the visitors with a pretty shot after splendid team work.

At the interval the visitors were ahead 1 to 0. On the restart first one team attacked and then the other, and in a mixup in front of the Cheney goal Malm scored a goal that bounded off Manson's back giving the Cheney goal no chance to save.

The lineup: Cheney Bros. Tortenson g, Godsmann rfb, Watson lfb, Holtman rfb, Hamilton chb, Wiley lhb, Christensen osr, Kindholt Illstrom lsr, Manson cf, Carroll Keefe isl, Welch osl, Wallquist Referee—Pearson. Linesman—Johnson and Barton.

ST. JOHN OUTSTANDING HERO AS SOUTH OUTCLASSES NORTH

MANTELLI-TO-MOZZER FORWARDS AND ST. JOHN'S LONG END RUNS PAVE WAY FOR LEFTY TO SCORE

Brunig Moske Scores for Cloverleaves After Blocked Punt; Winning Tally Made in Last Three Minutes; Cubs Make Many More First Downs and Threaten Much More Often; Dwyer's Strategy Wins; Big Parade Tonight.

By THOMAS W. STOWE

The better team won! There is no question but what the 13 to 6 victory which the Cubs scored over the Cloverleaves yesterday afternoon at the McKee Street stadium was richly deserved. Under the brainy direction of Coach Jack Dwyer, the south end eleven clearly outplayed and outclassed the plucky gridsters from the other end of the town to bring the crown back south of the turnpike. Arthur "Lefty" St. John, was the outstanding hero of the day for the winners making both touchdowns and skirting the ends for repeated gains throughout the contest. His 35 yard run around his own left wing in the last few minutes of the game put the Cubs in a position to score. In brief, St. John gave one of the best exhibitions of his career. Captain Brunig Moske made the only score for the Cloverleaves following a blocked kick.

St. John alone gained more ground than the whole Cloverleaves' team put together. He had runs of 35, 27, 15, 16, 17 and 14 chalked to his credit. The second biggest ground gainer was Captain Moske who punched his way through the stubborn Cubs' defense for 73 yards. The Cubs outrushed the Cloverleaves in every period by the following margins, 45-43, 48-14, 64-22, 124-36. St. John was tickled pink after the game but he found time to pay a word of thanks to Frankie Busch, local boxing instructor, who, in a no small way, is responsible for St. John's excellent physical condition.

It was a most cherished victory and it will be several days at least before the town gets back to normalcy. The south end celebrated into the wee hours this morning. Not in many long years has this placid little town seen such terrific excitement. When the winning score was made, thousands of fans swarmed onto the field in a frenzy of excitement and carried the Cub players about on their shoulders. For a time, it was feared that the game could not be finished but the police soon chased the spectators back to the sidelines.

Plans held true, there will be a big old time in town tonight. The demonstration last night which culminated in the request of Chief of Police Samuel G. Gordon that the celebration be postponed until the night on account of the sabbath. More than a hundred dollars was collected last night by solicitors to help finance the parade in which they will be at least one band. In the front part of the procession which will form at Farr Brothers at 7 o'clock will be a hoarse and holed line of march which will be over north, around Depot Square several times and then back south. Police protection has been granted. Last night eggs were hurled at the occupants of a group of cars which attempted a parade over north.

Yesterday's contest was without a particle of doubt one of the best, if not THE best, football game ever seen in Manchester. It packed thrills galore. Supporters of both teams were given occasions to go wild with joy. The Cloverleaves had their big celebration shortly before the end of the first half while the south end supporters "raised the roof" twice in the second half when the Cubs crossed the goal line.

The game was remarkably free of dirty playing but both teams were penalized many times for illegal plays, the majority of which were committed by over-cautiousness rather than intention. The Cubs were penalized six times for a total of 70 yards while nine wrong-doings cost the Cloverleaves 85 yards. On first downs, the Cubs had a decided advantage, registering fourteen as compared to four for the north end tribe.

Weak Pass Defense. One of the main secrets in the downfall of the former champions was their weakness in backfield defense against forward passes. Both of the south end scores came as a direct result of accurate passes from Elmo Mantelli to Felix Moszer. The Cloverleaves were at a loss how to stop the aerial attack. They broke up several, but the south completed the vital ones.

Stubborn Defense. The Cubs pressed hard from start to finish and threatened to score several times. They were in position to score two or three times the first half, but lacked the final punch the same as in the first game. Once in the second quarter, the Cubs had the ball in their possession on the Cloverleaves' four yard line and were unable to advance further than the two yard line in four plunges. That gives one an idea of how hard the Cloverleaves fought. The Cubs got this chance when Benny fumbled Farr's punt on his own 19 yard line and Schubert recovered. Three line bucks failed and on the fourth play, the Cubs were awarded a first down on the four yard line for interference with the receiver of a pass.

Cloverleaves Score. The Cloverleaves' only score came shortly before halftime. Ted McCarthy eluded the Cubs' backfield defense to completely block Farr's punt that rolled from midfield to the Cubs' ten yard line where he fell on the ball only to fumble it and have Crockett recover for the Cloverleaves. Eddie Gill slashed through tackle for seven yards and two more plunges by Captain Brunig Moske punctured with the Cubs' defense for a touchdown. The north end fans went wild aided by police quickly dispersed to the sidelines. It was a great spectacle when the fans charged onto the field after St. John had scored, one that will forever linger in the minds of all who saw the classic struggle. Passes Prove Futile. Throughout the remaining two minutes, the Cloverleaves tried desperately to score through an aerial attack but the Cubs' defense was airtight and shortly afterward the timer's whistle ended the game resulting in another mad rush on the field by the army of south end fans. The too numerous of the greatest battles in the history of Manchester between the north and the south. Probably it was the greatest. Anyway it was one that will long remain in the memory of those who witnessed the spectacle.

Outstanding

ARTHUR ST. JOHN

Now that it is all over but the shouting it is interesting to look back at the strategy used by Dwyer. Raked over the coals by many for the thousand and one shifts he has made in the Cubs' lineup this season, Jack came through yesterday in grand style and now has the laugh on many of us who feared he was playing with fire. Before yesterday's game, he announced he would start his so-called shock-absorbers but many did not take his word for it. He came through yesterday and Jack fulfilled his intentions by trotting out "Red" Cervini and "Chuckie" Minceucci in his starting backfield and they more than lived up to Dwyer's expectations.

Mantelli Big Star. Another decidedly important factor in the Cubs' victory was the last minute shift of Elmo Mantelli to quarterback. Used throughout the season as an end, Mantelli was drafted into the role of practice last Monday night. Inside of a week, he developed into the headiest signal barker on the team. His work yesterday was of the highest order. He was the spark plug of the Cubs' machine. One thing can be said in favor of the Cloverleaves and that is that when they did have a real scoring opportunity, they made no delay about scoring. After McCarthy blocked Farr's punt, it took the gritty Cloverleaves but three bucks to get the ball over the final stripe. The Cubs' had much more difficulty in scoring. Both teams put up a hard fight and the playing of both lines was extraordinarily good, especially when threatened by a touchdown.

Brunig Gains Ground. As had been predicted, both teams succeeded in blocking a punt. Moszer partly stopped one of Gill's smashes and McCarthy did the trick for the north enders. They are surely a sweet pair of ends. Although he was checked the Cloverleaves' greatest threat, was the north's best ground gainer. When he was needed most on the south's five yard line, Brunig came through in grand style, plunging through for a touchdown. "Hook" Brennan, who has been out with an injured ankle, played part of the game but did not trouble much. The same three officials who worked the game a week ago, were in charge and handled the game in excellent style with fear of no favor to none. Their decisions were made without hesitancy and were rigidly enforced. It was felt that the Cubs clearly should have rolled up a bigger score.

The officials commented favorably on the splendid layout of the playing field at the stadium. The field was marked out in the legs style by "Dodger" Dowd and Peter Happeny. Every five yard line, and even oblique lines through the end zone were marked out.

SENSE and NONSENSE

"I'm saving up for a rainy day." "Gonna buy a closed car, eh?"

The saturation point seems to have been reached in the automobile business and it is rapidly becoming soured.

What has become of the old-fashioned girl who used to walk home from auto rides? One of the most scathing remarks about women drivers: "Here comes one now!"

The poor fish who used to jump out of the frying pan into the fire now dodges a flivver to land under a truck.

Some men take good care of an automobile; others treat it like one of the family.

Now that there are so many automobiles and so much to eat nature will have no need of war to prevent over population.

There are rear-seat drivers in every kind of a job.

Is he dumb? Listen, he wanted to get a double garage when his dad bought a twin-six.

LETTER GOLF

It takes 18 strokes to go from DRUNK to SOBER, but maybe we're all wrong and you can get SOBER quicker than that. At any rate, the par solution is printed on another page:

DRUNK

Grid for Letter Golf game with letters D, R, U, N, K in the first row.

SOBER

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in part a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW TO HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2-You can change only one letter at a time.
3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

Burke-You say your car stalled right on the tracks in front of a fast train? How did you escape being hit? Johnson-Luckily I think quickly. I simply threw a lighted match in the gas tank and blew myself across.

Probably the man who once wrote, "Let me live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man" would now put it, "Let me keep a garage at the side of the road, and mend the tires of man."

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinies, captives in the cave, looked up and saw the Buddies wave. Then one exclaimed, "Don't worry, now. We're watching over you. No harm can come while we are here, so none of you have cause for fear." Then, down the Tinies sat 'cause there was nothing else to do. The hole above let in some light, but now 'twas drawing near to night, and as the dusk fell, Scouty said, "Oh, let's not be forlorn. At least with shelter we are blessed. We might as well all get some rest. Then we will be in trim to face what happens in the morn'g." So, all the Tinymites stretched out, and then they heard a shrill voice shout, "We Buddies hope you'll sleep well until another day. Remember, nothing can go wrong, for we'll be up here all night long. Perhaps, tomorrow, we will let you out, so you can play." By this time, everything was black, and Cloway, flopped upon his back, said, "Good night, bunch, and pleasant dreams while in your slumber deep." The others all replied "Good night," and then each little Tinymite just cuddled up and closed his eyes, and soon was fast asleep. "Hey, hey! Wake up!" The voice rang loud and startled all the Tiny crowd. The night had gone and day had come. The cave was light again. A Buddy's voice, from up above said, "We've got something you will love. It's something that we Buddies have for breakfast, now and then." Said Carpy, "That sounds good to me. I'm just as hungry as can be." Then, little bowls of breakfast food were lowered to the bunch. The Tinies started in to eat and found it really was a treat. Said Copsy, "Gee, I hope we have this same good dish for lunch."

(The Bad Buddies put Cloway black, and Cloway, flopped upon to work in the next story.)

Jack Lockwill Back at Rocklake

by Gilbert Patten

Price Hargon and his players were astounded when Jack Lockwill led the freshman football team on to the field that afternoon. The shock so upset the plotters that they didn't rally and fight their hardest until the game was in the final quarter. Even then, they couldn't stop Lockwill. He made a flashing run for a touchdown in the last two minutes.

When Jack told of his thrilling race to get back to play in the game, in which Hargon's team was soundly thrashed, there followed a rush of students toward Rock Lake.

They found two revenue officers salvaging the plane of the run-runner from the lake. "He got away," admitted one of the men, "but we know him. He can't escape."

After much long-distance telephoning, Jack learned that the boy who had stolen the motorcycle had been arrested while trying to escape on Dynamite, and that the pony was safe. The freshmen players unanimously elected Jack captain of the team. He was forced to make a speech at the ensuing celebration. "Now, let's all get together and work for our class," he said. "THE END. NEXT STORY: Jack Lockwill's Fighting Blood."

Your Local Building Material Dealer

Our grandmothers had their storerooms filled with flour, sugar and other kitchen essentials. Today the grocery store gives the housewife a selection of hundreds of foods, many of them ready for the table.

Just so the building material dealer fills an economic need of our present life. He gathers together a hundred and one materials suited for as many different needs. They are available at a moment's notice. He has at his finger tips the knowledge that prevents clumsy and costly mistakes in building.

From a purely selfish standpoint any community should support its building material dealer for this reason—to increase the service obtainable through him.
