SAYS THAT BEACH ADMITTED MURDER

State Plays Its Ace In Lillien-dahl Case When It Produces a Witness From Baltimore.

Court House, Mays Landing, N. J., Dec. 1.—Willis Beach, 50-year-old alleged illicit lover of Mrs. Margaret Lillien-dahl, and jointly accused with her of murdering her husband, confessed to Samuel Bark, in Baltimore, shortly after the slaying that he had fired the fatal shot, Bark testified today.

In Bark's testimony, at the opening of the fourth day's session this morning, the state had played its ace.

For three days dozens of witnesses have marched off and on the stand amidst a maze of questioning designed to pin the murder on Mrs. Lillien-dahl and Beach by a net of circumstantial evidence, but not until Bark's appearance on the stand today did the state definitely link Beach with the killing.

Bark plunged immediately into the high spot of his testimony. After stating that his home is in Texas but that he was temporarily stopping in Baltimore, Bark declared that Beach had come to him and admitted that he had shot the doctor and needed money to get out of the jam.

Questions and Answers The questions by Assistant Prosecutor Hinkle, and Bark's answers follow:

Q. How long have you known Beach?

A. A year.

Q. Did you see Beach in a Baltimore park in September? (The murder occurred September 15th).

A. Yes.

Q. What did he say to you and you to him?

A. There was a man named Thompson with me and I said to Beach "I see by the paper they want you pretty bad." He said "not very bad." We sat in the park and talked a while.

He said "I'll give you a chance to make some money." I said "something must be wrong if somebody will give me a chance to make money." He said he wanted $600.

He said he wanted to take some jewelry out of me. He said it didn't take that much but that he needed some more for expenses. I said I didn't have any money for such a deal. Thompson asked him how the jam occurred and he said he and the old man had a racket and he shot him. Then he got $20 from Thompson.

Over defense protests, the witness was permitted to describe Beach's story of the killing after declaring that Beach had wanted him to "set some money for Mr. Phillips." (Mr. Phillips subsequently was named a member of the defense counsel.)

Court Asks Question Justice Campbell, the trial judge, interrupted the questioning to ask: "Did Beach say anything about where the shooting took place?"

Bark answered: "Thompson said to Beach, 'It looks from what the paper said it was an awful lonesome place' and Beach said 'Yes, we had to do something so we could make a get-away.' Beach said when he drove up to the lonely place, the old man started raising hell and he shot him and as he walked off (he Beach) hollered back 'You Yee' and Mrs. Lillien-dahl gave the alarm."

Bark's testimony was a terrific blow by the state. His statements completely contradicted Mrs. Lillien-dahl's story that two negro thugs killed her husband at the lonely spot and bore out the state's opening charge that Mrs. Lillien-dahl was at the murder scene with Beach.

Testimony late yesterday implicated Beach and Mrs. Lillien-dahl in a compromising love trust and tended to show that the slain doctor had been aware of his wife's clandestine meetings with Beach.

Other witnesses had partially identified Beach as the man seen leaving the murder scene on the day of the crime, one witness being positive in identifying a photograph of Beach wearing a hat but not so sure when confronting Beach "in the flesh."

Bark, under cross-examination said he was a trick roper with shows and lived 154 miles up the Rio Grande from El Paso. He explained his presence in Baltimore as a party to the conversation in the park, had introduced him to Beach a year ago at Philadelphia.

Bark said that Beach came to see him again on October 1 after notifying Thompson that he was making the trip. The witness, during further cross-examination by Attorney McCarter, noted Hall-Mills counsel, said he had practiced law at one time in El Paso but that he had an independent income.

During his testimony, Mrs. Lillien-dahl and Beach sat rigid with attention. They did not relax until

THROW RED PEPPER WOMEN ARE ADVISED

Chicago, Dec. 1.—Lesson Number Two on "How to Foll Bandits," was given the women of Chicago today by Chief of Detectives William E. O'Connor.

He advised women to carry a package of red pepper to be hurled into the faces of morons and would-be holdup men.

"Throw the pepper and then scream as loud as you can," said the chief.

Lesson No. 1 told residents to leave a light burning when they go out for an evening, thus making it appear to would-be house-breakers that someone is at home.

ENGLAND LAUGHS AT SOVIET PLAN

All But One Paper Derides Russia's Scheme to Dis-arm Whole World.

London, Dec. 1.—The Russian proposal at Geneva calling for complete disarmament by all nations was greeted by almost unanimous amused derision in today's English press.

The Manchester Guardian was almost alone in defending the sincerity of the Russian plan. The Guardian pointed out that the fact that Russia may wish to prove the futility of the League of Nations did not prove that her proposal lacked sincerity.

The Mail, the Chronicle and the Westminster Gazette, however, at London's starting declaration that Russia was willing to participate in a general scrapping of all armed forces.

"The scheme can only be described as grotesque," the Gazette said. "It would result in a return to the Stone Age."

Guardian's View The Manchester Guardian, however, pointed out that the Russian delegation has given the powers something to think about at least, adding:

"Russia would have little to lose and much to gain by general disarmament. The spectacular romanticism of the proposal may be foolish, but it is doubtful whether it is more effective than the equally impossible search for security based upon bayonets."

Attack Plan Most of the morning papers also attacked the Russian plan. The conservative semi-official Morning Post refers to the proposal as "babbling to the moon," and compares the idea to "the amputation of the arms of every able bodied man."

On the other hand, the Laborite Daily Herald declared that Lillien-dahl "has done one of those simple things which are startling by their simplicity. He has invited the disarmament commission to discuss disarmament."

SMITH SETS A DATE FOR SNYDER APPEAL

To Hear Pleas of Slayers the Last Week of Month at Albany.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Governor Smith will hear pleas for executive clemency for Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray the last week of this month, it was indicated at the executive chamber today.

Mrs. Snyder and Gray, convicted of murdering the woman's husband are scheduled to die in the electric chair on January 12. While it is usually customary for the governor to hold the hearing for clemency just before condemned persons are to die, it is understood he will give the Snyder-Gray hearing ahead of the rest of the opening of the legislature on January fourth.

No formal application for the hearing for Mrs. Snyder and Gray has been received at the governor's office but one is expected shortly, it was stated by Peter A. Seller, chief of the clemency bureau today.

Several other defendants were acquitted at the trial held here recently.

LADY BEAVERBROOK DEAD London, Dec. 1.—Lady Beaverbrook, wife of the Canadian peer, died of heart failure today in her London residence.

She was the third daughter of the late General Charles William D'Urville, of Halifax, Nova Scotia. She was married to Lord Beaverbrook in 1906.

REMUS INSANE AT TIMES SAYS NEWSPAPERMAN

St. Louis Reporter Describes Bootleg King as a Madman—Was With Him For Weeks.

Court House, Cincinnati, Ohio, Dec. 1.—John T. Rogers, St. Louis newspaperman, "as recalled to the witness stand today and graphically described an occasion in Indianapolis when George Remus, slayer of his wife, Imogene, behaved like a madman when he was told that his wife was enjoying a highball party with Franklin L. Dodge in a room at the Claypool Hotel.

Rogers is the Pulitzer prize winner of 1926 for meritorious journalism. He had spent "weeks at a time" with Remus for a period of almost two years before Remus shot his wife. Rogers had been assigned to get the story of Remus' intricate bootleg operations.

Upon being recalled this morning, he was asked by Defense Attorney Charles H. Elston if he had overlooked any instance that had led him to believe the defendant was insane. The witness replied affirmatively and was told to relate that occasion.

Tells His Story "It was in Indianapolis during the Jack Daniels liquor conspiracy trial," said Rogers. "Remus was a government witness in that case and was quartered at the Claypool Hotel. George Connors (Remus' business partner) and I were with him. One night John S. Berger of Los Angeles, a promoter of expositions, came into the room in which Remus, Connors and myself were talking. Berger said: 'George, your life and Dodge are now down on the fourth floor in Dodge's room having a highball party.'

Starts To Shriek "Remus leaped to his feet. His eyes almost popped out of his head. He gave a shriek. Connors and I seized him and, after a violent struggle, overpowered him. We finally set him back into his chair and then put Berger out of the room."

"For five minutes Remus upbraided us for not letting him get at Dodge and, as he put it, 'avenge his honor, Connors and I.' We finally set him back into his chair and then put Berger out of the room."

"Describe the intensity of the struggle," Elston suggested to the witness.

Fought Wildly Rogers said Remus "fought wildly" and that it required all he and Connors could do to hold him. He described a strapping, well-built, six-footer.

"Remus sank into a state of nervous collapse when the struggle was over," Rogers related. "Perspiration broke out over his forehead. He apologized for the trouble he caused us, Connors and I."

Just before Rogers took the stand, Elston read to the jury a copy of a contract introduced as evidence late yesterday, which purports to show that Dodge contracted to sell more than 2,000 barrels of whiskey to Remus. This contract, to which Dodge's name is signed, said: "The New York draft for $12,000 issued by the Phoenix National Bank of Lexington, Ky., is made out to Mr. Hinkle, but is the property of Mrs. I. Remus."

EX-CHIEF OF POLICE GETS JAIL SENTENCE

Two Years and Fine of $2,000 For Breaking the Prohibition Law.

Salem, Mass., Dec. 1.—Former Chief of Police Harold Congdon of Salisbury, accused with four others of a rum conspiracy at Salisbury Beach and Plum Island, today was sentenced by Superior Court Judge Joseph F. Quinn to serve two years and a half in the House of Correction and to pay a fine of $2,000.

Everett George, Ruel S. Gatchell, ex-Salisbury selectman, and Howard F. George and Warren S. Frothingham, former Salisbury policemen, was sentenced to serve two years in the House of Correction and pay $1,000 fines each.

All defendants were granted a stay in view of an appeal to the Supreme Court.

The five defendants sentenced were convicted of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law in the landing of rum cargoes under the eyes of the coast guard at Plum Island and Salisbury Beach.

Several other defendants were acquitted at the trial held here recently.

HERE'S A REAL WEDDING GIFT

Ross Gives Couple His Entire Business, One of the Best in City.

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence S. Hellstrom believe they are the most favored newlyweds in the world today. Thanks to a wedding present from "the boss," the couple was J. W. Work.

The wedding, which took place during the past 35 years has built-up one of the most profitable real estate concerns in Evanston.

Here was Work's gift to the newlyweds:

His entire business, including office, fixtures, good will and every asset that comprises "The J. W. Work Agency," with no strings attached.

In addition, he gave his two faithful employes his pretentious home on Orrington avenue with most of its furnishings.

Then, with a final benediction and wishes for success and happiness, "Ma and Pa" Work hopped into their automobile and hit the trail for the open spaces.

Mr. Hellstrom who was Miss Florence Quirk, had been employed by Work for sixteen years; her husband had been with the firm nine years.

The retiring "boss" and his wife will spend the winter at Clearwater, S. C., and will then begin an automobile tour of the country that will end in California.

NEW BANK RULING ANNOUNCED TODAY

State Savings Banks Have No Legal Right to Invest In Subsidiaries.

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 1.—Benjamin W. Alling, attorney general, today ruled that savings banks of Connecticut have no legal right to invest in the stock of any bank or trust company where the ownership of such stock carries with it ownership in a subsidiary corporation in which the bank can not legally invest. The opinion was given to John B. Byrne, retiring bank commissioner, who called to the attorney-general's attention the fact that within the past few months the Capitol National Bank, of Hartford, has been organized and carries a proportionate interest in the Capitol National Company. The stock of the bank, according to an opinion of a former attorney general, was not considered a permissible investment for savings banks. Also within a few months the Home National Bank, of Meriden, formed a subsidiary company and declared a special dividend to stockholders to pay for such stock.

Official Announcement Mr. Byrne announced: "We have accordingly considered the stock of that bank as being illegal for purchase by savings banks since the purchase of such bank or trust company stocks is a misappropriation of trust funds, to the extent that such investment is in corporations in which savings banks have no legal right to invest, no savings bank should invest any part of its assets in the stock of any bank or trust company where ownership carries with it ownership of a beneficial interest in any other corporation or organization in which such bank cannot legally invest."

The attorney general says: "It is my opinion that investments in the stock of such bank or trust company stocks is a misappropriation of trust funds, to the extent that such investment is in corporations in which savings banks have no legal right to invest, no savings bank should invest any part of its assets in the stock of any bank or trust company where ownership carries with it ownership of a beneficial interest in any other corporation or organization in which such bank cannot legally invest."

Too Noisy an Eater Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 1.—When William Wardley ate celery "it sounded like a horse going over a cobble pavement," his wife, Lulu E. Wardley, declared in her divorce complaint filed here today.

The injured, who were removed to Middlesex hospital at Middletown, are A. A. Clark of East Hampton, and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hill, of Colchester. Mr. Clark and Mrs. Hill apparently received dangerous internal injuries.

YOUNG WOMAN KILLED East Hampton, Conn., Dec. 1.—Muriel Clark, twenty-one, of East Hampton, was instantly killed, and several persons were badly injured in a collision between two automobiles at North Store corner here shortly before two o'clock this afternoon.

The same alliance probably will function smoothly in authorizing several new Senatorial investigations, including an inquiry into the so-called political trust.

Paris, Dec. 1.—The mysterious "Peter Bond, of Charleston, Mass.," who lived for one week in Paris guarded night and day by French detectives, turned out today to be Governor Alvin T. Fuller, of Massachusetts, who figured so prominently in the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Gov. Fuller is enroute home today, having sailed from Cherbourg on the liner Olympic yesterday. One of his last acts was to place a wreath upon the tomb of the French Unknown Soldier, just before he left for Cherbourg.

Accompanied by his mother and a physician, Gov. Fuller arrived from London on Nov. 23, and registered at the Hotel Dalba as "Peter Bond." The police identification cards of the party listed the governor's mother as "Florence Bond, 63, of Malden, Mass." Dr. Fuller, the physician, identified himself as "Dr. Cook, of Hull, Mass."

For fear of demonstrations by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers if the governor's identity should become known, the French government furnished detectives to guard the party constantly.

Dawes all along has been favorable to the Lowden candidacy. After his conference with the President, Dawes reiterated that he had come to the White House only to pay his respects. He intimated strongly that he had not discussed politics or legislative policies.

His Views Besieged in the corridor of the executive offices by newspapermen, Dawes was asked for his views on forthcoming congressional issues. In answer to a question as to the probability of a new fight for the McNary-Haugen bill, he said:

"Anything might say at this time would have no weight and could only be of interest as affording a basis for a possible interpretation of my political or personal motives. Let me say again, lest there should be any doubt about it, that I am not a candidate for the presidential nomination and favor the nomination of Frank O. Lowden. This assumes that President Coolidge is not a candidate."

Mill Official's Body Found Propped Up Before Mirror In His Home.

Salem, Mass., Dec. 1.—Discovery was made today of the body of Orrin S. Bennett, 67, widely-known textile man, propped up before a mirror in the kitchen of his home here with a bullet wound near the mouth.

Medical Examiner Frank Atwood pronounced it a case of suicide.

Mrs. Bennett, who discovered the body upon her arrival home stated that her husband had been worrying over private financial investments.

NEW CONGRESS TO FORGET OLD PARTY CONTROL

Blocs to Hold Balance of Power in Major Matters In Both the Senate and House.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The incoming Seventieth Congress today appeared doomed to a rule of blocs and alliances instead of the usual party control.

The Western Insurgents will hold a balance of power in the Senate and also in the House, if the administration falls at any time to hold all Republicans in line. On many legislative matters, the insurgents are preparing to revive their old alliance with the Democrats against the administration ranks.

All indications point to bloc rule on the three outstanding legislative measures confronting the new Congress. These are the tax bill, a farm relief measure and flood control legislation.

The Tax Bill On the tax bill, the Insurgents side with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon against the Democrats in his demand for a limited reduction of $25,000,000. On the other hand, they disagreed with Mellon and side with the Democrats on how this reduction should be applied to existing taxes.

On farm relief, the far west, middle west and southwest have lined up generally against the east, New England and southern seaboard. At present, party lines will be dropped entirely in the farm relief battle and the administration itself may give the final "balance of power."

Flood Control On flood control, the lines will shift again, without regard for the two old parties. At present indications are that the south will form a strange alliance with New England because of their floods. The east may organize some opposition to their program, although the legislation is still buried in committee.

Party lines will be dropped again when the "Big Navy" fight opens over the construction of new cruisers. Here the administration will get Democratic as well as insurgent support, the French government having applied to legislation, affecting military aviation.

Different alliances will be formed when the Boulder, Dam and Muscle Shoals bill comes up for consideration. The administration probably will hold a "balance of power."

On the Smith and Vare election contests, there will be a revival of the old Democratic-Insurgent alliance.

The same alliance probably will function smoothly in authorizing several new Senatorial investigations, including an inquiry into the so-called political trust.

The legislative outlook is such, in fact, that neutral observers are unable to predict a single possible major instance in which both branches of the new Congress would divide on "strict party lines."

30,000 Londoners Hoaxed By Prince Of Wales Joke

London, Dec. 1.—The magic of the name of the Prince of Wales used over the telephone by a practical joker, resulted in a vain six-hour wait by an expectant crowd of 30,000, disruption of traffic, and the cruel death of a theatre manager's fond dream of royal patronage.

And all the while his royal highness was being splashed with water while watching a swimming meet, utterly unconscious of a social engagement made in his name.

The manager of the Mile End pavilion, a little house, answered the telephone early in the evening, was informed by a man identifying himself as the prince's equerry, that his highness would visit the theatre at 8:30 p. m.

The manager flew into action. He emptied the best box of its occupants, draped it with flags and made other necessary preparations to receive his royal guest.

The news flew faster than the crowd. At six o'clock a huge crowd gathered in front of the theatre. As the hours passed, the crowd grew larger and traffic suffered. The crowd waited for the prince. So did the manager.

But midnight came, and no prince. Grumblingly, the crowd slowly dispersed. The manager closed his theatre.

"It was nothing but a cruel hoax," a member of the prince's staff later told the International News Service. "His highness spent the evening at the Y. M. C. A. headquarters at Tottenham Court road and watched a swimming meet. The prince stood so close to the tank that his clothes were drenched."

LEADING ATTORNEY HERE TAKEN BY BRAIN ILLNESS

Was College Graduate But Never a Freshman

Judge Herbert O. Bowers graduated from Hartford Public High School and from Yale College and Law School but was never a freshman in either high school or college.

How Mr. Bowers attained such a unique record makes an interesting story.

When Bert Bowers graduated from the grammar school here he wanted to go to high school. But he had to work. He secured employment in a grocery store here and after having successfully passed entrance examinations for Hartford High, he could not afford the expense of schooling that year and continued as a grocery clerk, but kept up his studies.

The next fall he took the examinations for the sophomore class and began actual study in the Hartford school as a sophomore. When he graduated from high school he passed the examinations for entrance to Yale. Here again lack of finances prevented Mr. Bowers from continuing but he accepted a position as a school teacher in East Hartford and at the same time kept up first year studies.

Then with sufficient money to attend college he took examinations for the sophomore class at Yale and was allowed to continue with that class. So it resulted that although a graduate of both high school and college he was never a freshman.

The funeral service will be held at 2:30 Saturday afternoon at the Second Congregational church. Rev. F. C. Allen, pastor of the Second Congregational church and Rev. Watson Woodruff, pastor of the Center Congregational church, and a close friend, will officiate. Burial will be in the Bowers family plot in the Buckland cemetery. Mr. Bowers was for many years a member of the Buckland cemetery committee.

Herbert O. Bowers' name meant more, in actual work performed, to the growth of Manchester's municipal government and educational system than any one man. The town's charter drafted by him, still lives, a model that was without a doubt, a decade ahead of its time. Today the form of government Judge Bowers worked so hard to adapt to Manchester is popular throughout the west and is gradually being adapted to town and city systems here in the east.

For a long period of years, Mr. Bowers had served the town as advisory counsel. His good judgment and persuasive argumentative ability has guided the town safely through many of its trials.

Drafted District System The district system under which Manchester's grammar schools are conducted was planned largely by Judge Bowers. The Eighth School and Utilities district, in which he was born and brought up, now carries on under a charter which Judge Bowers drafted. The north end's school, sewer and fire activities are controlled through one governing body as a result of Mr. Bower's plan.

WHOLE TOWN MOURNS JUDGE BOWERS' DEATH

Soon after starting his practice here he was named to the joint school board and in 1899 and 1901 he represented Manchester in the General Assembly. He held the position of secretary of the joint school board for a long period of years.

Judge Bowers believed in carrying out the representative form of government as far as possible. He strongly opposed any movement to dissolve the Manchester district school system, arguing that by consolidation the respective districts lost their individuality, and the residents of those districts lost their part in the pride and interest in their schools and town affairs in general. He was an able educator and his foresightedness helped greatly to give Manchester the educational facilities it now possesses.

Civic Pride
He possessed a great amount of civic pride and loyalty. He worked to make Manchester a good town to live in and even harder to keep it that way. He professed that he did not want to see the town grow any larger. He feared the lack of interest on the part of residents in their town, if Manchester ever became a city of any size.

Judge Bowers was a nature lover, and the study of plants, trees, birds and animals became a hobby with him. His recreation he secured largely in his garden and about his home at Woodbridge and North Elm streets. What few hours he allowed himself to be taken from his work he generally spent in caring for flowers and shrubs, and during the summer, in growing garden products for his own enjoyment.

Loved Trees
Judge Bowers hated the man who maltreated trees. He looked upon the stately elms and handsome maples as God's best handiwork and worked earnestly to preserve any tree that was in danger of being lost. He served the town for years as tree warden and anyone who cut down or in any way injured a tree along the town's highways did so at the risk of a severe scolding from Mr. Bowers. It was because of his insistence that the trees must stand that the section of Main street between Middle Turnpike and Depot Square has such handsome elms and maples now. When the permanent road was constructed in this section and street lines and sidewalks were established rows of trees seemed doomed. But Judge Bowers opposed any such loss to the town, and because of his interest the town today has an adequate highway there and retains the beautiful trees.

Mr. Bowers enjoyed hunting and fishing and nearly every year he went to Maine for two weeks' enjoyment of these sports. About two years ago he and Mrs. Bowers and Charles E. House were enjoying a cruise through the Mediterranean. They visited the Holy Land and returned by way of England.

Fraternal Connections
Judge Bowers was not keen for a social or fraternal life. He rarely attended functions of local societies, preferring to spend his evenings in reading and working. He was a member of Manchester Lodge of Masons, however, and progressed in Masonry, becoming a member of Delta Chapter, R. A. M., Wolcott Council, R. and S. M., Washington Commandery, Knights Templar and Sphinx Temple of the Mystic Shrine. He also belonged to King David Lodge of Odd Fellows. Although not a frequent attendant at the regular meetings of these lodges, he did appear at special functions of the Masons and Odd Fellows. Because of his baseball prowess while at Yale he was named to serve on the graduate committee on athletics for the university. He also held a membership in the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and was a charter member of Hose Company No. 2 of the Manchester Fire department.

His Family
On May 12, 1897 Herbert O. Bowers married Miss Lillian B. Shephard of West Hartford. Mrs. Bowers and two sons survive him. The elder of the sons, Sherwood G. is a graduate of the Connecticut Agricultural school, and is now conducting a farm of his own on Deming street in the Oakland district. The other son, Raymond R., is a graduate of Yale college and is at present studying at Yale Law

Built Up Practice
By strict attention to his attorney's duties, Judge Bowers gained the confidence of the people of the town and within a few years he built up a large practice and with it, an enviable reputation. His office remained in the old Cheney store until the fire which destroyed the block in 1898. When the present Bowers Block was built on Main street in 1904 Judge Bowers took rooms there and remained there until the Manchester Trust Company building was constructed in 1921. Because of the amount of business Mr. Bowers transacted for the Trust Company he decided to be near at hand and took a small office on the second floor with Judge William S. Hyde.

Judge Bowers identified himself early in his legal career with the Republican party in politics. He was from the first a staunch believer in Republican principles. For years he was an active member of the Republican town committee and for a long period was looked to as the local leader of his party. He proved to be an unusually successful organizer and a proven leader in his politics as he was in his business. No details were ever neglected with Judge Bowers at the helm and men who have worked with him in campaigns he conducted marveled at the knowledge of the voters and the voting lists which he possessed.

Honorary With Office

school. It seems natural that Judge Bowers' two sons should adopt as their life work the two outstanding practices of their father. One is following Judge Bowers' bent for things agricultural. The other seems to have inherited his father's talent for things legal.

Only two years ago, on November 12, 1925 Judge Bowers' older brother, Arthur E., died. Arthur's devotion to the town and his untiring efforts in Manchester's behalf were equal to those of his brother. It is a severe blow to the civic and business life of Manchester that two such important figures should be taken within such a short period of time.

OPEN FORUM

THANKS TO THE BOYS FROM GOD'S COUNTRY.

The "natives" of the Sunny South wish to take this opportunity to express our sincere appreciation to the boys from God's country for their kind criticism of our parade and rally on Monday night. It was a "nice" parade, indeed, and none the worse for roughness it is true, but I wonder what might have happened had the situation been reversed and the Cloverleaves were parading in our territory. It might be well to state that roughness on the part of any gentlemen is an indication of ill-breeding and, of course, one does not look to a Southerner for such characteristics. However, there is a place for everything and we can assuredly say that the Northern eleven were sufficiently supplied with gentlemen's roughness when they took their stand against the Cubs on the 27th of November.

Evidently the Northlanders believe in that old proverb, "He who hesitates is lost" since they made it their business to supply themselves with practically the same fun-makers, as were later obtained by the Cubs, with which they anticipated coming south to make "farmers" of us.

It has previously been stated through the columns of The Herald that the parade Monday night was a mile in length and no one who viewed the entire procession can truthfully deny this fact. Perchance someone did go to the bother of counting twenty automobiles, they must have given up his task in dismay before he had viewed even one-third of it.

"The better team always wins," readers, and Sunday's game proved this to at least 3,000 spectators. Thanking you again for your criticism, we remain,
The Rooters from God's Country on This Side of the Track.

FOUR DIE IN CRASH

Decatur, Ind., Dec. 1.—Four persons lost their lives here today when a train struck an automobile. The dead, all from Willshire, Ohio, were:
Miss Hazel Lumonion, 24; Mrs. Kenneth Hoblet, 23; Alfred Stutler, 36; Hobart Strickler, 33.

All but Strickler were killed instantly. Strickler died later at the Decatur hospital.

Frost on the windshield of the sedan in which the four were riding was believed to have prevented the driver from seeing the train.

HERALD LEAGUE RACE IS MUCH CLOSER NOW

Another Session Tonight; Masons Lead the Field But May Falter.

The Masons are leading the Herald Bowling League, which convenes for its weekly session tonight, with eleven out of a possible twelve points. They have won eight out of their nine games, losing only to the Knights of Columbus.

The Masons will be opposed tonight by the British American Club at Murphy's alleys, Highland Park and Bon Ami meet at Murphy's as do the Cloverleaves and Beethoven Glee Club.

At Conran's, the Cubs and Knights of Pythias clash on one pair of alleys and West Side Rec and Center Church on the other. The Knights of Columbus meet St. Bridget's at the K. of C. alleys. The league standing follows:

| | W. | L. | Pts. |
|---------------|----|----|------|
| Masons | 8 | 1 | 11 |
| Center Church | 5 | 4 | 8 |
| West Side Rec | 5 | 4 | 7 |

NEW ENGLAND ALONE HAS AIR MOTOR SKILL

Clarence Chamberlain Says His Motors Must Be Built in This Region.

Hartford, Dec. 1.—Clarence Chamberlain's "fivver" airplane factory may be located in Hartford, the trans-oceanic flier told diners at the Connecticut Insurance Day banquet here last night.

In any event, Chamberlain declared, the motors of the proposed new planes will be built in New England because it is in this territory above all others in the country where there is an adequate supply of the highly skilled labor needed in the manufacture of such precise machinery as airplane motors. It is in New England alone, said Chamberlain, that there are enough "men who know their micrometers."

THURSDAY, DEC. 1, 1927.

paper has striven for accentuation of the fact that "skilled labor" is the prime asset of New England, particularly of southern New England, and an asset which, properly employed as the basis of argument, will for all time make this section invulnerable to competition in a thousand lines of industrial effort—lines the most profitable and the most permanent and the least subject to fluctuation and the caprices of the hour.

Every chamber of commerce and board of trade in Connecticut ought to seize upon this casually dropped truth of the famous aviator and make a slogan of it—"Connecticut, the state where men know their micrometers." A thousand budding industries, handicapped by trying to make tool makers out of farm hands and first class lathe men out of ham-fingered laborers in states where the lathe is as alien as the iceberg, need but a real knowledge of Connecticut artistry to bring them here on the run.

We have the finest machine shop workers in the world, right here in Connecticut—thousands of them, and other thousands of born mechanics only needing the opportunity for development, to supplement them. But we have waited for a man out of the air to come along and tell the world about it. At least we ought to follow his lead.

PATIENCE

There is one thing to be said for the League of Nations—it has never faced the business of achieving world peace as if that desideratum must be reached within a certain time or not at all. It is characteristic of the League and of those unquestionably able men who have been its moving spirits since the beginning that they have apparently endless patience and are apparently wholly lacking in capacity for discouragement. If we cannot do the thing we hope to do today, then perhaps, by keeping at it, we shall do it tomorrow or next year or in the next century—that seems to be the spirit of the League; and perhaps on the whole it is the best possible spirit.

It is a million miles away from being the American spirit, to be sure. But the League is not American; it is not even wholly occidental. It is the meeting of many civilizations, some of them very old and very slow and, there is reason to believe in some instances, very wise. Such peoples do not think in terms of hours and minutes. There has been a great deal of time; man has existed and has fought for a long while; there will be a great deal more time; it may take a long while to woe him from his fighting. But it will not take so long a time as if there were no force at work to bring about the change.

It is conceivable that into this sort of a mechanism America would not fit at all. We are too given to demanding spot results. We have not lived very long as a nation. It is not easy to fancy ourselves working for an objective to be attained perhaps fifty or a hundred years hence. But we ought, at least, to be able to admire the indefatigable, patient plodding of the League. We ought not, at least, to treat it with flippant contempt.

Now, the world did the probabilities of a disarmament agreement look less bright than at this moment—as the Preparatory Commission of the League meets at Geneva. Yet calmly, earnestly, the Commission proceeds to the task with as much interest as if the prospect for success were of the best. And somehow we have faith that this will continue to be the attitude of the League, through every vicissitude; though it takes decades to gain a foot of ground. The foot will be worth gaining.

IN THE SAVIOR'S NAME

It transpires that the John Beyer who recently shot to death a man from whom he had just purchased liquor in South Beloit, Ill., was an informer working on a split-fee basis for the enforcement of the liquor law. He held no legal status as an officer. He had no right to carry the pistol with which he did the killing. The man he slew was a war veteran with a good record. It will be remembered that there was no attack on the informer, the bootlegger's immediate offense lying in his having attempted to upset the glass holding the evidence.

Beyer is in jail. His defense is being organized by the W. C. T. U. and the Anti-Saloon League of surrounding towns. Women of these organizations are sending him flowers and dainties.

Gentle old ladies, mothers of children and mothers to be, women who kneel at prayer o' nights, are subscribing to the yelp of the blood-dripping pack, "Kill the bootleggers!" And this in the name of the Nazarene!

BRAY

If Irving A. Priest, Boston banker and secretary of the Republican town committee of Sudbury, has any objection to being regarded and described as a most distinguished as he should act less like one. He is the spokesman for the Sudbury committee and so it is fair to assume that he is the author of that magnificent asinine document, broadcast to the nation by his little country town committee, urging that the salary of President Coolidge be doubled and that he be re-elected for life.

The ex-cerated Dr. Burchard, at his worst, with his "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" boomers, never conceived anything more injurious to his party or to a candidate's chances than this Sudbury menagerie with its "perpetual presidency" boom.

The trouble is not that the Sudbury blab will have the slightest on anybody in New England, either way. Because here everybody knows a bray when he hears it. But there are hundreds of thousands of nincompoop voters in the west who will be told that this is actually the New England attitude, and they will be ignorant enough to believe it.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington.—Some of the wets and some of the dries, who regard prohibition as an important national issue, are incensed because the two political parties are manifesting the same degree of enthusiasm toward grappling with the question as the ordinary Saturday night bather does toward jumping into his tub with a porcupine.

One hears sneers and jeers every day. Biting remarks are made about the "cowardice" and "insincerity" of the parties. Critics on both sides advance the opinion that the party which declared unequivocally for strict enforcement or modification, as the case may be, would ride atop a landslide in November. The ordinary citizen who is either very wet or very dry seems to feel that way.

Amid all this hubbub, certain pertinent facts are often obscured. The easiest answer to the whole question, of course, is: What can you expect in a country operated by politicians and, to some extent, for politicians?

A prohibitionist is a prohibitionist first and a politician afterward. A politician is a politician first and a prohibitionist afterward. If it were demonstrated that there was a strong majority demand in the country as a whole for either strict enforcement or modification, both parties would topple all over each other to prove to the voters that the popular will could find expression sooner and more effectively through one party than the other. It may be that such a majority demand exists. There are many spokesmen for both sides who insist that it does. But no one can prove that the sentiment can be consolidated into voting strength sufficient to insure presidential and congressional victories to the party which might crusade on the strength of it.

Get complete details
TOMORROW
at Ford salesrooms

FOR several years we have been working on the new Ford car. For weeks and months you have been hearing rumors about it. For the past few days you have been reading some of the details of it in the newspapers.

Whatever you do tomorrow, take at least fifteen minutes to get the full story of this new automobile.

You will realize then that it is an entirely new and different Ford car, designed and created to meet modern conditions—a car that brings you more beauty, speed, quiet, comfort, safety, economy and stamina than you ever thought possible in a low-price car.

Automobile history will be made tomorrow, for the new Ford is not only new in appearance and performance . . . it is new in mechanical design. Many features of it are exclusive Ford developments. Some are wholly new in automobile practice. Its low price is a reflection of manufacturing improvements and economies that are as epoch-making as the car itself.

Nineteen years of experience in building 15,000,000 automobiles are behind the new Ford car and have counted in its making. Resources unmatched in the motor car industry are its heritage and its birthright.

The Ford policy of owning the source of raw materials, of making virtually every part, of doing business at a small profit per car, has cut many dollars off the price you would ordinarily have to pay for a car like this.

So we say to you—learn about this new Ford car tomorrow. Compare it with any other car in the light-car field for beauty of line—for comfort—for speed—for quick acceleration—for flexibility in traffic . . . for steadiness at all speeds . . . for power on the hills . . .

for economy and low cost of up-keep . . . for its sturdy ability to stand up under countless thousands of miles of service.

Then you will know why tomorrow will be remembered as one of the greatest days in the entire history of the automobile industry. . . . Then you will know why the new Ford car will be your car.

DOUBLE FEATURE BILL AT STATE ON FRIDAY

Special Program Scheduled for Tonight Also—"Man Crazy" Is One of Tomorrow's Pictures.

A special program has been arranged to take the place of the furniture and country store night and for the first program Manager Sanson has engaged three little girls who dance, sing and do several other things that are guaranteed to please.

The feature picture is "The Whole Town's Talking," with Edward Everett Horton in the leading role. This is the story of a small town sheik who becomes one of those things to keep up a reputation somebody has given him. It is a comedy of the first water and Horton is just the actor for the role to which he is assigned.

Two features will be shown at the State on Friday and Saturday. First is another success of the Mackall-Mulhall team, "Man Crazy," dramatized from the Saturday Evening Post story, "Clarissa and the Post Road." Mulhall is better than he usually is and Miss Mackall is just as good.

The plot of the story is laid in Stamford, on the Boston Post Road and involves the daughter of a rich family on the highway and a truck driver who is bootlegging and hijacking, whenever the mood strikes him. Adventure galore is found in the picture and thrills are there in abundance.

The second picture is "In Old Kentucky," a racing picture that is different from the ordinary run of these films. James Murray and Helene Costello are featured in this drama of the southern race courses. Many racing pictures have been shown with the climax a horse race in which the favorite comes through, in spite of being stolen, doped and otherwise put hors de combat, but this is the first picture in which the race is carried on through a driving rainstorm. But it is effective—and it is different. On Sunday and Monday the "Gorilla" will come to town.

The scientific name for laziness is ergophobia.

THE TOUGHEST OLD COUGH CAN NOW BE STOPPED

Obstinate, lingering, coughs—the kind that hang on and hang on and rob a man of his sleep—the kind that makes him peevish and all worn out.

Those are the breed of coughs that prove that common sweet cough syrups are about as useful as a bottle of ginger pop.

The quickest and surest way to get rid of a persistent, contrary, die hard cough is to take a teaspoonful of Broncholine Emulsion four times a day.

This REAL cough medicine is made to stop the old timers—the tough ones—the obstinate ones—and it does it without any loss of time.

And remember, there is no chloroform—no sugar—no dope in this grand cough medicine. It is a prescription for stubborn coughs and that the kind it speedily conquers.

For ordinary coughs—two doses is usually enough. Magnell Drug Co., So. Manchester, will gladly supply you so will dealers everywhere.—adv.

Severe Head Colds and Sinus Trouble
THE MOST ANNOYING OF ALL AILMENTS

Any stuffy nose from a cold that does not clear up in a few days produces Sinus Trouble. Some sinuses are large cavities in the nose, others are small (like honey-comb), and when a cold gets into them it causes pain, or pressure in the eye balls, over eyes, in temples, and back of head, fullness in ear, and mucus dripping in throat. This leads to a tickling cough, sore throat, head aches, and catarrhal deafness, due to improper drainage. To clear this up vaporize CAMPHOROLE, and inhale according to directions.

CAMPOROLE opens up the nose, and gets into the sinuses, killing the germs that multiply by millions in the sinuses. It reduces the inflamed swollen mucous membranes, and gives good drainage for the discharge. This is what every specialist tries to obtain in order to get results. It is impossible for germs to live in the antiseptic vapors produced by CAMPHOROLE. Keep a jar handy and use at the first sign of a cold.

THE STORY THUS FAR

The story begins in 1880, in the wicked little town of CALDWELL, where, close to the Indian territory border. TONY HARRISON, 15-year-old son of JEFF HARRISON, a handsome gambler, is orphaned when TOM BENTON, a card shark, shoots his father in a poker game. The boy is befriended by GORDON W. LITTLE, then a restaurant waiter and later to be known as PAWNER BILL. JOE CRAIG, foreman of the Bar K ranch, who takes Tony to the Bar K to live, and by COLONEL TITUS MOORE, owner of the ranch. Little thinks somewhat of joining DAVID PAYNE, who is settling for the capital of the Indian territory lands, but he gets an offer of a school teaching post in Pawnee and accepts it. At the Bar K Tony Harrison meets RITA MOORE, married to the daughter of Titus Moore. That fall Tony accompanies Joe Craig to Caldwell, where he encounters CASHION, companion of Benton on the night of the shooting.

CHAPTER IX

CRAIG stared at him contemptuously. "I suppose you'll be saying next thing that you didn't help him get away."

"He didn't need my help," Cashion protested. "I didn't know what kind of a man he was and I rode off with him. What would you have done if you'd been in my shoes?"

Craig ignored the question. "What made you decide to desert Benton after you'd been so friendly with him?"

"I made up my mind that I was through with him when I saw him shoot Jeff Harrison. I wouldn't of gone with him, but how could I of stayed? I figured I wasn't safe around here until they'd cooled down some."

"You sure were smart in figuring that way. You'd have dangled from the end of a rope and no mistake." Shafer, the town marshal, approached at that moment and Craig questioned him directly: "Shafer, what did Cashion, here, tell you about parting company with Tom Benton?"

Shafer was a heavily built man, dark and with large overhanging eyebrows. He glanced quickly at Cashion before replying to Joe Craig's question.

"He told me he wanted me to know that he wasn't associating with Benton. He came to me right after I was appointed marshal, or pretty soon after."

"You succeeded Fortune?" Craig asked.

"Yes, I knew about Benton killing Harrison and was on the lookout for him. When Cashion came to me I was right favorably impressed with his good faith. When you come right down to it, there's nothing to be said against Cashion, I guess."

"Except that he made the mistake of traveling in bad company. In some places that's quite considerable."

Shafer laughed mirthlessly. "Did you happen to ask Cashion where he had left Benton?" Craig asked.

Shafer answered with some asperity. "Of course, he said Benton would be hiding down in the Strip. Don't you suppose I know what my duty is?"

"It didn't occur to me to question it," Craig blandly answered. "But since you raise the subject I'll bet that if I'd been marshal here I'd have gone straight to the federal marshal or one of his deputies and asked his advice. Of course, you haven't any authority in the Strip, but the federal men cover quite a lot of territory. They might have found Cashion right useful leading them to Benton's hangout."

I've got Cashion's admission that Benton fired the shot that went through my hat.

Cashion's story, Shafer said angrily. "I do. When a man comes to me like he did I believe he's shooting square."

"We all have a habit of believing things when we want to believe them," Craig remarked sententiously.

Shafer reddened and glared at him. "Meaning just what?" he demanded truculently.

"Just that and nothing more," Craig turned to the boy beside him who had been standing quietly and taking in every word. "Come on, Tony, I've got a little business to transact."

He lingered a moment to hurl a final remark at Cashion. "In case it transpires that you run across Benton some time you might inform him that I'm right anxious to exterminate him."

"I didn't know your personal informant in Benton was so strong," Shafer volunteered. "The law will take care of him when he's found."

"The night Benton left Caldwell in a hurry," Craig told him, "somebody had a hole through my hat. It wasn't my fault my head wasn't in the way."

"You're sure it was Benton?" "Well, Benton had expressed a mild distaste for me," he added, significantly. "It wasn't him it was somebody with him, and looked at Cashion."

"It was Benton, all right," Cashion hurriedly told him.

"Now, if I was marshal," Craig said innocently, "and convinced of the actual faith of Cashion here, as you are, I'd take that statement as proof that Benton tried to commit

The boy was silent. That night Craig sat with Colonel Moore and dwelt at some length on his encounter with Cashion. "Cashion was lying, Colonel. Coyotes like him don't get afflicted with a sudden stroke of morality."

"Thus Moore pulled out a talk I had with my eye peeled for Benton or one of his friends; I run into Cashion and find him on friendly terms with the town marshal, who backs up his weak-kneed story that he quit Benton when he found out he was a killer; and from a talk I had with Johnson—the United States deputy marshal, I learn that Shafer has intimidated the evidence against Benton isn't as strong as it might be."

He accepted one of his employer's cigars, bit off the end and thoughtfully lit it. "The trouble is, a jury might let Benton off anyway, there being several witnesses ready to swear that Jeff Harrison was going for his gun when Benton killed him. The fact that there'd be others ready to swear that that was Benton's game, inasmuch as he had the drop on Harrison, might not make a bit of difference; it would depend on the jury. But why should Shafer act the part of attorney for the defense? However, I dug a little trap for him."

"I must have overlooked the digging," said Colonel Moore. "Elucidate."

"Sure. There's a charge of murder against Benton. If Cashion and Shafer are successful in getting the charge dropped, I'll be right active in complaining about an attempted murder. I've got Cashion's own admission, made in the presence of the marshal of Caldwell, that Benton fired the shot that went through my hat."

"And if Cashion and Shafer deny that the admission was made?" "Then I'll know exactly what kind of men I'm dealing with. . . . Some time I might come to you with a request for a short leave of absence. Will it be all right?"

The colonel rose. "I guess I'll have to grant it, Joe."

There followed for Tony Harrison a long period of unbroken activity. Rita Moore and her mother had gone back to Kansas and would not return until the Christmas holidays. Once a week someone from the ranch rode to Caldwell for the colonel's mail. It was an all-day trip and meant an early start and a late return. For Caldwell was 80 miles from the ranch. There were plenty of a horse, even for the tough, wiry beasts that the cowpunchers favored.

Autumn passed, and one morning he arose to find Cottonwood Creek gleamed over with the first snow fall. That afternoon the first snow fell and Tony ventured forth with his revolver and came back with four rabbits.

"One got away," he told Titus Moore, as he exhibited his kill. The colonel seemed to be ably assisted by the nature of the admission. The following week, he told Tony, they would drive to Caldwell in the buckboard and meet Mrs. Moore and Rita. "Besides," he added with a grim tightening of his lips, "there'll be something in Caldwell I want to see."

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

This pink for a boy and blue for a girl, or vice versa, business comes to puzzle the material world. For years we have been bewildered as to whether to present new nephew Johnnie with pink or blue booties, and whether to put pink or blue ribbon on the bonnet for brand new baby niece Betty.

But no public agitation was given the subject until it was noted about that Crown Princess Astrid of Belgium, expecting a son and heir, had optimistically prepared a pink bassinet only to have to change it to blue when the little baby princess arrived. "What ho!" cried the critics. "She's all wrong. It's pink for a girl and blue for a boy."

Layette departments of stores cast just about a 50-50 vote for both. Why not settle the difficulty by having it blue for both? It's as much to do with a little pink-faced baby to wear pink as to trust that fate upon a red-headed girl.

"When Company Comes" One of our leading home magazines printed a schedule not long ago for the woman who does her own work and is serving Sunday dinner for six people. The schedule began at 9 a. m., though it was assumed that breakfast was well out of the way and the actual dinner preparations were beginning. That means a 7-o'clock rising, at least, and then she'd have to go to bath and dress.

From 9 a. m. till 2 p. m., when the six are supposed to sit down to the groaning board, believe it or not, every single minute of those five hours were consumed in preparing the average "company dinner" of appetizers, soup, roast, potatoes, vegetables, salad, warm buttered rolls, coffee and dessert. And this was the systematic schedule of a scientist in this business of food preparation!

Her Own Fault One of the most unjust things with which the home-making woman has to contend, it seems to me, is the 7-day week. Their husbands and wage-earning sons and daughters may slough off all responsibility of any sort on Sundays, but "Ma's" work goes on at the same old stand, with the general day of rest only one of complete fatigue for her.

But then—it's probably a case of getting just what she bargains for. If wives and mothers would not follow the course of least resistance and be imposed upon because they enjoy it for a while, they would find it easier to get a fair deal when they're tired of playing the door-mat role they have created for themselves.

"Don't Marry For Love" The "companionate marriage" idea has launched an onslaught of attacks and eulogies on the institution of marriage. One of the most unusual explanations for our muddled marriage state comes from a lady writer who assails our American custom of marrying for love.

"In every civilized country except America," she says, "some thing besides love is taken into consideration when marriages are arranged. To marry merely for love is to invest one's life savings in oil stock because the shares are handsomely engraved. It is strange that sex love, so brief, so transient, so unimportant in the whole scheme of marriage, should be, while it lasts, so intense."

Poor kids! What with this one telling them never to marry except for love, and that one telling them to have brains enough to marry for something other than love, what are they to do?

BY JEAN PATOU

Paris, Dec. 1.—Although it has been widely accepted during the past few years that the trend of feminine fashion had become practically stationary, an observant eye can see that this is not true. Lines have been shifting every season, and the present mode shows a decided change from last year. The general idea of straight lines to follow the figure has been maintained. The modern woman demands freedom and grace, and she will, I hope, continue to demand them. Neither she nor her dressmaker wants to go back to the horrible old days in dress. But fashions are by no means at a standstill.

The Well-Dressed Want Change Well-dressed women want changes, but that insistence for freedom was a challenge to the couturier. I have been trying to free myself from the fetters of uniformity and at the same time give fashions a tone of stability.

If you examine a collection of sketches covering the period of the past five years, you are certain to detect, however inexperienced your eye, a gradual change in line from year to year. I think there has been an improvement each season, and yet the flowing lines have been maintained.

In the winter season of 1923 we had the exaggerated low waistline. The next season the waistline was lifted with the aid of pointed effects. In 1925 came the pronounced influence of sport in women's dress. This was manifested in afternoon and evening frocks alike. The realm of afternoon and evening dress was overwhelmed.

Last year I struggled to get away from this and women finally began to see the advantage of a more feminine movement. A definite reaction set in and has been continued this year. We now have very feminine afternoon and evening dresses, but nothing much has been sacrificed in freedom of movement.

A Gradual Movement We have witnessed a new evolution of La Mode. The movement has been gradual because women adopt slowly, though progressively, a style that remains in favor longer than anything that is heralded with too much enthusiasm. The sport style was quickly greeted with enthusiasm, but it is not surviving.

Women are dressing again for afternoon parties. This trend is quickly discernible in any gathering of smart women. If at the Ritz at teatime you see many women faithful to tailored suits, these will be in velvet and with them is worn a lame blouse. Not so very long ago I trembled to see women arriving at a tea party in sports suits. We are stabilizing fashions. Each frock is studied for the moment and the environment in which it is to be worn. This is the first requirement of any creation in order that it may help to make up an ensemble of elegance and good taste.

MUSIC FILLS THE AIR—AND THE MILK BUCKET, TOO

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Regardless of the impression that so many have concerning the efficacy of modern research, the evidence seems to warrant the belief that it is devoted for the most part to practical problems of economic interest to the human race.

German investigators recently have made available the results of a study of the amount of milk obtained from the cow under various circumstances. In the period preceding the milking of the cow, some milk collects in the udder; while the milking is taking place, additional milk is secreted rapidly by the glands.

There seems to be a tradition in Germany to the effect that the cows give more milk when the cowherd and the milkmaid sing. It was even reported that some cows would give milk only when they heard a certain song.

Concerts for Cattle An investigator in Statten performed the experiment of giving concerts for the cattle in their stalls and reported that the cows were particularly susceptible to the gramophone and the violin.

There Are Varieties of Self-Protection

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Younger once but not now. Eleanor is forty but looks fifty. The only thing in that room that was not peaceful was the weary, worn look on Eleanor's face."

Then followed the tale of Tom's health breaking, and his wife going back to her work. Later came children, one of whom had been a cripple. She had been a good housekeeper, as well as a nurse in between times. There had been no rest. Her life had been hard. She was weary.

Her husband had finally gone west for a year and scarcely was he out of sight when a letter came asking her to take the invalid child. Eleanor had written "yes." "What do you think about the telegram?" asked his anxious friend. "Did I do right to tell her aunt not to come?"

"Yes," I said. "Some people have to be protected from themselves and not from others. You did perfectly right." And I think she did.

High School To Lose 7 Gridsters By Graduation

CAPTAIN KEENEY INCLUDED BUT DOWD AND TREAT STAY

Coach Kelley Confident Next Year's Team Will Be Just As Strong; Windham and Bristol Both Pummelled.

Captain George "Doc" Keeney and seven other varsity members have played their last game of football with the South Manchester High School. They will be graduated next June. Included are four backfield men, both ends, a star guard and tackle.

Those who have donned the S. M. H. S. moleskin for the last time besides Captain Keeney are Luddie Hansen, quarterback, Francis Gill and Terry Shannon, halfbacks, Lewis Farr and Ab Lupien, ends; Welles, guard and Radding, tackle.

Local Sport Chatter

The All-Manchester basketball team travels to Danielson tonight to oppose the town's team of that place in its second game of the season. The locals dropped a 33-30 decision at Windsor Locks the other night but hopes to score a win tonight. Ty Holland and Jimmy Gorman, star forwards of the team, are expected to lead the All-Manchester five.

Now that the football excitement has died down, attention here is being turned to basketball. The high school team will open its season a week from tomorrow at the School Street Rec against Hartford High. Coach Clarke has cut his squad to ten players.

If the weather holds good, the Cubs and the Cloverleaves will close their football seasons Sunday. The Cubs tackle the Bristol Maple Ends and the Cloverleaves meet the Bridgeport Mohigans. Both games will be played in Manchester.

During the football celebration excitement over north Monday night, one young man was noticed standing in seclusion near the railroad station with a basket full of eggs in one arm. It is said his marksmanship was near perfect.

It is expected that a much larger attendance will watch the next amateur boxing tournament to be staged by Cheney Brothers next Tuesday night at the School Street Rec. These tournaments proved extremely popular last winter. Bill Taylor's appearance alone should draw a large crowd. Local boxers who wish to take part should get in touch with Jack Jenney.

A large crowd of Manchester soccer fans are expected to follow the Cheney team to Charter Oak Park Sunday to watch the local outfit attempt to beat Waterbury in the semi-final of the state cup.

According to reports at the south end, the goat which the Cloverleaves trotted out onto the gridiron in "honor" of Jack Dwyer has died from a broken heart. Joe Coughlin, who led it about the field, insists that the animal is "out on the farm" getting ready for 1928.

CHOICE RESERVE SEATS FOR BOUTS

C. B. A. Officials Expect Large Crowd Tuesday Night at School Street Rec

Reserve seats for Cheney Brothers' amateur boxing show at the School Street Rec Tuesday night will go on sale Friday morning. It is the plan of C. B. A. officials to interview as many persons who bought reserve seats last season as possible in effort to ascertain if they want them again for the entire season.

It has been practically decided to remove the bleacher seats at the Rec and replace them with moor comfortable chairs. An overhead light will also be provided for the ring so that the action of the bouts may be more clearly seen from all directions.

Reserve seats for next Tuesday's show will be on sale tomorrow morning at the following places: Army and Navy Club, Mather's Smoke Shop, Houston's Store, Pritchard and Walsh's, Conran's Bowling Alleys and the City Lunch in Rockville.

It was announced today that arrangements have been completed for the appearance here of a stable of five Springfield boxers, one of which will be a heavyweight. Five more boxers from Providence and Billy Taylor from Hartford are expected to complete the show.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At Philadelphia—Jack Gross, Salem, N. J., heavyweight, scored technical knockout over Homer Smith, Kalamazoo, Mich., in fifth round.

At New York—Dominick Petrone, New York featherweight, won decision over Johnny Green, also of New York, ten rounds; Eddie Petrovick, Bridgeport, Conn., lightweight, won decision over Johnny Menjone, four rounds.

At Meadville, Pa.—Johnny Ryan, Boston bantamweight, won from Freddy Vincent, Toronto, ten rounds.

Tex Beat Tunney Out Of $115,000

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor
New York, Dec. 1.—Just how Tex Rickard was alleged to have "smarted" Gene Tunney out of $115,000 by a midnight telephone call four days before the first Dempsey fight in Philadelphia was revealed today for the first time.

The alleged revelation was aired by Bill McCabe, personal caretaker of the heavyweight champion, and was offered in the way of evidence that purported to support Tunney's claim that Rickard wasn't disposed to treat him in the manner his position in life demanded. The $115,000, it seems, represents a kick-back to Tunney supposed to have been given by Rickard, calling it is alleged, for 17 1/2 per cent of the receipts. What the champion admits he actually received was a flat guarantee of $200,000, whereas McCabe claims Tunney would have got some $315,000 if he had insisted upon the promoter carrying out the terms of the contract to the letter.

That he did not insist was due to the goodness of his heart or something, according to McCabe. For Rickard, keeping Tunney standing by a daffy telephone for upward of an hour, is said to have pleaded with the fighter that he Rickard, was "in a bad hole" with the directors of the Madison Square Garden corporation because he thought he was spending too much on the fight and that, therefore, it was up to Tunney to help him out. This, says McCabe, Tunney ultimately agreed to do.

ENTER SEA MASKS

New York—Gas masks now are provided for seacraft passengers on the North German Lloyd liner Stuttgart and she came into harbor the other day with the report that 80 per cent of the usual sickness was relieved on this trip by a device perfected by the ship's surgeons. It is nothing but a mask that supplies good, fresh oxygen with the tang of solid earth in it.

From Belgium

A young Belgian fighter, named John "Cyclone" Van Hombek, weighing 203 pounds in fighting condition, is the latest European contender to arrive here for a bout with Champion Gene Tunney. The Belgian is managed by Tommy Burns, former heavyweight champion of the world, and Burns thinks his man will eventually get Tunney's crown.

Cheney Soccer Eleven In State Title Game

Cheney Brothers' soccer team will go to Charter Oak Park, Hartford next Sunday and play Waterbury in the semi-final of the state cup. Andy York of Torrington will referee with W. Faulkner and J. Watt as lineemen. T. D. Jeffers, secretary of the C. F. A. will be the delegate.

There will be no league games played Sunday, owing to the state cup game. Now that the Cubs are football champions of the town, Cheney Brothers intend to be champion of the state in soccer.

It is expected a large crowd of fans will watch this game. The Hartford Scandias and followers are coming out in full force to see the struggle. Waterbury beat the Scandias, but it took two games to do it, the first game being a tie, the other game 2-1 for Waterbury. Cheney Brothers team has been greatly strengthened by the addition of four players, namely, J. Kelly, A. Gowans, T. Cunningham, T. Ferguson. Godsman, the new player from Scotland and late of Shawfield Juniors, has been playing well in his last two games on this side. The lineups of both teams will be given later. The Cheney Brothers team will have an extra training session at 7:30 tonight at the West Side Rec.

IL DUCE ALIVE

Rome, Dec. 1.—The rumor circulated on the London Stock Exchange today that Premier Mussolini had been assassinated, is not true. Il Duce was at his desk today in perfect health. The source of the rumor is unknown here.

MONTH'S WEATHER REPORT

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 1.—The month of November created a new record by deluging Connecticut with the heaviest twenty-four hour rainfall on record, and supplied a record number of cloudy days but failed to set a new total rainfall record, according to figures provided by the local weather bureau office. A total of 6.71 inches of rain fell in the last month, according to Mr. Tarr's rain gauge, as compared with the record of 7.73 inches that fell in November, 1899. Other rainy Novembers were 1875 with 7.44 inches, 1872 with 7.11 inches, and 1907 with 6.97 inches. During the past month more than five inches of rain fell in two storms.

SMALL CHARGE FOR ALTERATIONS

TOMMY KELLEY

Despite these admittedly heavy losses, Coach Tommy Kelley hopes to have another strong team on the field next season. He has two aces about which to build his backfield in the persons of Ernie Dowd and Bob Treat. Four regular linemen have another year to play with the school. They are Spencer, Mercer, L. Cheney and Healy.

In addition to these veterans, other members of the squad expected to report next season are Johnson, Johnston, T. Lupien, McKinney, Scarlato, Robertson, R. Cheney and the two Davis boys. There may be a few candidates from the incoming Freshmen class.

During the past season, Manchester High played nine games and won five of them. Three defeats were suffered and one scoreless tie game was played. Included among the victories were the scalps of Manchester's two foremost rivals, Williamantic and Bristol. The victory over Williamantic was the first since the revival of the sport here several years ago. Strange to relate, both Bristol and Windham fell a victim to the same score—19 to 6. Coach Kelley is despondent. Of credit for the fine work he has done in building together a machine that could win its biggest objective games.

CAPTAIN KEENEY

Captain Keeney was the outstanding performer on the school's combination. He scored seven of the eleven touchdowns his team registered and was also the strongest defensive player on the team, bar none. Without Captain Keeney, Manchester High would have fared much worse.

Lewis Farr, brilliant left end, who receded to Keeney in the scoring column, crossing the goal line twice, both the result of 75 yard gallops on forward passes. Ernie Dowd and "Pit" Healy tallied the other two touchdowns. Extra points were picked up by Ab Lupien, Cheney and Mantelli. The latter made his in the Alumni game in which he was eligible to compete.

Manchester High opened its season by losing to West Hartford on the latter's gridiron, 24 to 6 and the following week administered a 19 to 6 setback to Bristol High at the McKee street stadium. The next week resulted in a 6 to 0 victory over Bulkeley High at New London and then Manchester posed out East Hartford High at the Velodrome 7 to 6. Next, Meriden came to town and pummeled Manchester 19 to 6. This was followed by a scoreless tie at Middletown. The team brought the season to a close by defeating Williamantic, 29 to 6, and turning back the Alumni 7 to 0. Manchester was outscored by its opponents 88 to 70.

CAPS and GOWNS MAY BE HIGH SCHOOL VOGUE

Cheaper Than New Gowns and Suits, Seniors Argue, For Graduation.

Senior students at the High School here are considering wearing gray caps and gowns at graduation next June but as yet have arrived at no decision. Many schools throughout the country are adopting the college vogue.

It is pointed out that the gowns are far less expensive than new suits and dresses. They can be rented for less than three dollars.

Another advantage is that they add uniformly. Last year's senior class was evenly divided on the matter. If the 1928 class adopts the caps and gowns it will be the first class in history of the school to do so.

Y. M. C. A. WORKER TELLS OF RUSSIAN CONDITIONS

Ralph W. Hollinger of Cleveland, O., who has had many years of experience with Y. M. C. A. work in Central and Eastern Europe, gave an address before the student body at the High School here this afternoon, speaking on conditions in Russia.

Mr. Hollinger's talk showed that he was very familiar with conditions in not only Russia, but in Siberia, Egypt, China and Japan. He was secretary of the "Y" in Petrograd from 1914 to 1918 and later affiliated with the same organization in Wladivostok, Siberia.

Mr. Hollinger came here to talk on the recommendation of Elmer T. Thienes, general secretary of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A.

NO DECISION AS YET ON 'GREEN' TRANSPORTATION

Committee Hears Plaints of Parents and Will Report to Town Board.

No decision has been announced by the Town Board of Education regarding the petition of six families regarding full transportation to and from Manchester Green school. The families in question live less than half a mile from the point to which the bus now goes on the Bolton Road and are transported from that point.

The names of the six petitioners are: Clifton McKee, Harley Miner, Raymond Streeter, Ralph Von Deck, Frank Billings and John Calve. In all, about ten school children are involved.

Only two members of the town board were present at the hearing, Mrs. George H. Wilcox and Edward J. Murphy, and they acted as a committee to report back later to a session of the full board. Not until such time, will their decision be known.

JUNIOR MISSIONS FESTIVAL TOMORROW

The Sunday school of the Swedish Lutheran church will hold a Junior Mission Festival in the church basement tomorrow night, beginning at 8 o'clock. Mrs. John Benson of New Haven has been secured as the speaker. Her husband, Rev. Benson is a missionary in China, and as Mrs. Benson has spent considerable time with him there, she will without a doubt have some interesting stories to tell the children and their parents about China tomorrow night.

There will also be a number of musical numbers on the program. The Sunday School teachers will serve refreshments.

The regular monthly meeting of the teachers will precede the festival at 7 o'clock.

So few men leave footprints in the sands of time because most of them are always busy covering up their tracks.

This would be a better world if the folks in it were as ashamed of having a prejudice as they are of having the itch.

It happened on a West-bound stage, out in God's country. The coach had rounded a dangerous curve and several passengers were discussing stage robberies.

"I was on a coach several years ago, and we were held up on this very spot!" remarked the gay little flapper. "I saved my vanity case by sitting on it." "Umph!" snorted the hard-boiled traveling man, who had been on the same trip. "I wish my wife had been along. We could have saved our suitcase!"

LETTER GOLF

THIS IS NO YARN

From SILK to HOSE is five strokes, and this is no yarn either. If you can't do it in five, see the par solution on another page.

SILK

Grid for letter golf puzzle with letters S, I, L, K, H, O, S, E.

HOSE

The Rules

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW TO HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

THE KNYMITE'S STORY BY HAL COCHRAN - PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Down at the bottom of the grade, my, what a splash the Buddies made! Their wagon slid right through the stream, and out the whole bunch stopped. Wee Clowney was the first to rise. He wiped the water from his eyes, and said, "I'm glad it isn't deep. 'Tis well the wagon stopped." The Buddies stood up to their necks, and one exclaimed, "We sure are wrecks. And then he turned to Clowney, saying, "You're the one to blame. You should have held our wagon tight. Then everything would be all right. Just look, we are shivering. This really is a shame." Poor Clowney surely felt real bad to think of what had luck he'd had. Although the Buddies made him work, he disliked to be mean. "It was an accident," he cried. "I'll take you for another ride." And then he almost laughed. The Buddies made a funny scene. "Well, we'll forgive you just this once although you were a perfect dunce," one little Buddy loudly cried. "What say we take a swim? As long as we are soaking wet, we would enjoy it. I'll just bet. I'll race with anybody here. I feel in perfect trim." So Clowney sat upon the shore. The little Buddies made him roar. They'd do a lot of water tricks, then jump and laugh and shout. Then someone yelled, "I've had enough. I've grown so tired it makes me puff. Let's all run up on shore and dry. It's time that we were out." Then Clowney was surprised. When they came out he realized that they had turned from black to white. The water washed them clean. "Oh, now we'll all be good, not bad," one Buddy said. "Oh, gee, I'm glad. Whenever we are white it makes us nice instead of mean." (The Good Buddies give Clowney a ride in the next story.)

"Who do you mean?" cried Darling. "Why, neither Price Hargon nor 'Cub' Maddox played, to name two of them," answered Jack. "Still worse, the sops knew our signals." "I had to change the signals in the game," said the freshman captain, "and that hurt, for the fellows weren't up in the second code." "Rotten treachery!" cried Willis. "And Sinnott's one of the 'Black Hoods' that Hargon got together to work against you." Lockwill's roommates went on. "You took a flashlight snapshot of them pulling their hoods off. Where's the print of that?" He sprang to the dresser and yanked open a drawer. "What do you want of it?" Jack asked, rising. "I'm going to show them up!" declared Willis. (To Be Continued.)

Miss Avis Montgomery of Knox street was tendered a surprise miscellaneous shower Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. H. M. Austin of Hamlin street. A number of her girl friends were present and showered her with gifts of silver, linen, cut glass and other choice wares. Mrs. Austin had her home tastefully decorated in pink and white for the party and served a dainty buffet lunch. Miss Montgomery is to be married in the near future to Albert Bennett of Water-ville, Vermont.

The Cosmopolitan club will have its regular meeting tomorrow afternoon with the president, Mrs. H. A. Nettleton of Huntington street. Mrs. Edward E. Fish will be the hostess.

The standing social committee of the Lakeview Parent Teacher association will run another whist social in the school hall on South Main street tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Six prizes will be given and refreshments served.

Many friends viewed the remains of Dr. Myron M. Maine, Manchester's premier dental practitioner, at Holloran Brothers' undertaking parlors today. The body will lie in state and may be viewed until the funeral at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Joseph Cooper will officiate. The body will be taken to North Stonington for burial.

Miss Jeanette Sumner has been elected Captain of the Sigma Athletic club at Howard Seminary, West Bridgewater, Mass. She plays on the soccer, basketball and hockey teams and is a member of the Glee club and the French club. Miss Sumner is the daughter of Charles F. Sumner of Bolton.

The High School Juniors easily defeated the Sophomores at football yesterday. The score was 18 to 0. This is the second inter-class game at the High School here, the sophomores having recently triumphed over the Freshmen.

Miss Ruth McLagan, who is to be married on Saturday afternoon to Dr. E. Victor Gordon, was honored with a kitchen shower last evening. Mrs. Roy Matson of Center street gave a bridge at her home and invited the prospective bride and a number of her former classmates at High school. After the prizes had been awarded and the refreshments served, Mrs. Matson presented Miss McLagan with a large basket filled with the gifts of her friends.

SUSPEND COURT TO HONOR JUDGE BOWERS

Judge Raymond A. Johnson this morning announced that there would be no session of the Manchester Police Court on Saturday out of respect for the memory of Judge H. O. Bowers who was the first judge of the town court. The flag at the Center park was flying at half mast today because of the death of Judge Bowers, town counsel for many years.

PINOCLE CONTEST AT THE NORTH END

From all indications it would seem that Pinocle will be the most popular game at the Community Club this winter among the younger card enthusiasts. As a result of the unusual interest shown in the game Director Washburn has organized a junior pinocle tournament. The tournament will start this Saturday evening, Dec. 3rd at 8 o'clock. And thereafter every Saturday evening for the next ten weeks to a conclusion for the winning team. Each team will be composed of two men each and will line up as follows:
 Team No. 1, Taylor, Fairbanks.
 Team No. 2, Anderson, Jillson.
 Team No. 3, Odermann, Warner.
 Team No. 4, Coleman, Tuttle.
 Team No. 5, Fiedler, Nielsen.
 Team No. 6, Nakowski, McIluff.
 Twenty hands will be played during the evening. A small charge has been agreed upon by each team for the grand prize which will go to the winning team at the close of the ten weeks' session.
 Regular lessons have been instituted by the director and are held each evening, without charge, to those who may be interested in the game. The director plans a similar tournament for the men should the interest warrant.

ROBITUARY

FUNERAL OF MARY B. NELSON
 The funeral of Miss Mary B. Nelson of 364 Woodland street will be held at 2:30 Saturday afternoon at Holloran Brothers' undertaking parlors. Rev. P. J. O. Cornell, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church will officiate. Burial will be in the East cemetery. CONSTABLE ARRESTED AFTER ALTERCATION

James W. Foley Placed Under Arrest by Patrolman Seymour After Row.

Because of an altercation with Arthur Barnes of Wapping yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of the Manchester postoffice, Constable James W. Foley was placed under arrest by Patrolman Arthur Seymour and ordered to appear in the Manchester police court. Mr. Foley engaged Attorney William S. Hyde to defend him. Mr. Hyde asked for a continuance of the case because he had a trial in the Superior Court in Hartford this morning. Four witnesses for Barnes were in court this morning prepared to testify, when Judge Johnson continued the case until Monday morning.
