

SEE SHREWD MOVE IN LOWDEN BOOM

Republican Leaders Smile at Vice President's Statement That He Will Not Be a Candidate.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Republican leaders gathered here for the party love feast that always accompanies a Republican National committee meeting greeted with bland smiles today Charles H. Dawes' announcement that he is not a candidate for the presidency next year.

It isn't that they question the Vice President's sincerity, nor do they doubt the warmth of his regard for his old friend, Frank O. Lowden, whom Dawes announced he would support. They just do not consider that the general has removed himself from the Republican picture any more than President Coolidge did when he said enigmatically "I do not choose to run."

A Similarity

As a matter of fact, a number of the committeemen pointed out that there is a lot of similarity between the Coolidge and Dawes' statements. Mr. Coolidge said "I do not choose to run." Mr. Dawes said "I am not a candidate," but neither of them stated that he would refuse a nomination if the convention profers it.

The practical politicians that make up the Republican committee feel, however, that the Lowden candidacy has been given a powerful impetus by the Vice President's statement. Some of them interpreted it as meaning that General Dawes not only will not enter any primary contests but will refuse to let his friends put up his name in any state. If that is true, the chances are that Lowden will run a great deal stronger in the spring primaries than he otherwise would have done, for it is admitted that the Vice President has certain strength that he may be able to deliver.

See Strategy

Some of the more cynical politicians who deal in futures professed to see some very deep-laid strategy in the Vice President's position. They do not question the General's sincerity but they know of the fast friendship that has existed between the two men for many years. But they doubt Gov. Lowden's ability to win the nomination even with Dawes' support. What would be more natural then, they ask, than for Lowden, after he has had his run, to throw his strength to Dawes? They believe something like that is going to happen in the convention.

Still Confusion

Meanwhile, the gathering of the committee here to select a convention city, has failed to clear up to any appreciable degree the confusion that still prevails among Republicans generally over Mr. Coolidge's status.

When the President said at the White House last week that he would have "a few remarks" to make to the committee when it calls on him at the White House next week the impression was general that Mr. Coolidge would take advantage of this occasion to clarify his position.

Ex-Senator William M. Butler the committee chairman, dispelled this impression today by passing around the word that the President would have nothing to say about his personal political fortunes.

The campaigning for the convention site really got under way today. Although a dozen cities have submitted their claims, the fight was virtually narrowed down to San Francisco and Detroit, with Cleveland a third contestant. The Detroit people are putting up the strong argument that as Congress probably will run until June the convention should not go to the far west coast, but stay within striking distance of Washington. They are winning some support by this argument.

The Californians, having a third of the committee already pledged to San Francisco, remain smilingly confident, however.

A "Master Mind" Lived Here, So Read About Him

He was a "master mind" and he lived in Manchester. His life was a mystery and people knew no more of his origin than they did of his business. But they made conjectures and some of them were far-fetched. Circumstances, however, disclosed that his profession was not one that could be advertised.

WEST ALARMED OVER MOVE TO KILL PET BILL

Opponents of House Farm Bloc to Fill Vacancies So As to Obtain Majority on Committee.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Alarm spread through the ranks of the House Farm Bloc today when it was reported that an effort would be made to fill two vacancies on the agriculture committee with avowed opponents of the McNary-Haugen Farm Relief bill.

Rep. Elbert S. Brigham, Republican of Vermont, and Rep. John D. Clark, Republican of New York, were said to be the pair elected by opponents of the McNary-Haugen bill to succeed to committee places vacated by ex-Representatives Tincher, Republican of Kansas, and McLaughlin, Republican of Nebraska, neither of whom was re-elected.

The danger of the situation immediately became apparent to Farm Bloc members. A motion to substitute the Curtis-Crisp bill, which is akin to the farm aid plan of Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, failed by the margin of one vote in the committee last year.

Since Tincher opposed the McNary-Haugen bill and McLaughlin favored it, their replacement by two avowed opponents of the measure apparently will prevent it from reaching the floor of the House.

Farm Bloc's Proposal

"We will be satisfied if they select one man for and one against the McNary-Haugen bill, which would leave the committee in the same situation as last year, assuming that all old members will be re-elected," said one Farm Bloc leader. "But we will fight to the last ditch this plan to 'back' the committee with enemies of real farm relief."

Western members immediately began to discuss retaliatory measures.

GOVERNMENT STOPS HUB'S WATER PLAN

Connecticut Objects to Having Its River Water Diverted and Trouble Looms

Boston, Dec. 2.—Federal authority has stretched a long arm to intervene in the project for a new water supply for Metropolitan Boston and to place a tardy finger upon an unsuspected weakness in that project.

The long delayed undertaking to connect the Ware and Swift rivers with Boston water pipes is already nine months advanced. But the Metropolitan Water Supply Commissioners are now faced with the possibility that the undertaking, regarded as a vital necessity to a community of nearly 2,000,000 persons in Greater Boston, may be complicated by government red tape and interstate litigation.

Like Bolt From Sky

A $10,000,000 contract for digging a tunnel under the middle of Massachusetts to the Ware river was about to be let when notification came to the commission from the War Department that a Federal permit is necessary to divert waters that are tributary to a navigable stream.

The commission yesterday laid its problem before the attorney general's office and a petition for a permit has been prepared to send to the War Department.

The commission would like to hope that that will end the matter, but it does not expect it will.

The War Department notification, innocent to look at, was a bolt out of a clear sky. Nobody on the commission had thought of a permit. Nobody knew one was required.

The commissioners felt at once that the notification was not as innocent as it looked, coming almost a year after the water supply bill discussion and volumes of publicity.

Then word came from Connecticut that the state next door is preparing a move to ask the United States Supreme Court to injoin Massachusetts from diverting any

FEAR A DEADLOCK IN LEAGUE PARLEY

Jugo-Slav Delegate Talks Frankly to Colleagues of National Safety.

Geneva, Dec. 2.—Jugo-Slavia feared for her national security and it was this apprehension that led the Belgrade government to sign a treaty with France, M. Markovitch, Jugo-Slav delegate to the disarmament conference, told the security commission today.

Markovitch protested to the commission against the proposed study of the judicial aspects of the security problem. He said he believed that national safety came first.

"We must act along direct lines," said the Jugo-Slav delegate. "My country signed a treaty with France. Why? Because we feared for our security."

"Had Italy joined with us in signing a pact the situation would have been greatly changed."

"Why ask my country to disarm when the political situation is not secure? Albania is protected by the League of Nations. But not even the Albanians or Italy thought that was sufficient. Consequently they signed a treaty. If you think the present European situation can be solved only by regarding the judicial aspect, I am not so naive."

Delegates from the powers are striving hard to prevent the conference from becoming deadlocked over the question of security, which threatens to become a serious stumbling block.

Maxim Litvinoff, angered because the conference refused to take seriously the Soviet's proposals for abolition of armies, navies and air forces within the next four years, said that the Russian delegation might withdraw and leave for Moscow tomorrow.

MORE GANG WARFARE

Chicago, Dec. 2.—In open defiance of four drastic government drives against organized crime in Chicago, gangland answered today with the roar of machine guns and a new victim was added to the long, bloody murder toll in Cook county.

The newest victim was found in an alleyway today—his head shattered with bullets. All marks of identification had been removed from the clothing and pockets.

Only a few hours before a terrific blast shook an entire neighborhood as a headquarters for a gambling and vice syndicate in a two-story building was wrecked by a high-powered bomb.

GRANT CHARGES

New York, Dec. 2.—Removal from office of Borough President Maurice E. Conolly, of Queens, and a state investigation of alleged graft in Queens sewer contracts, were asked today by George W. Harvey, Alderman-elect of the Jamaica-Flushing District, in a petition to Governor Smith.

AGED WOMAN DIES WHEN HOUSE BURNS

Others Rescued and Eleven Forced to Flee in Bridgeport Blaze.

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 2.—Flames sweeping through a three-story frame dwelling at 754 Lafayette street today cost the life of one woman, placed four others in great danger so they were rescued by firemen, sent eleven other people fleeing to safety, and did damage estimated at $15,000 or more.

The dead woman is Mrs. A. D. Elliott, sixty-four, who was carried out by firemen and taken to the home of Dr. Elizabeth Smith, near-by, as Dr. Smith and Dr. C. R. Haverlin, of the emergency hospital staff, worked over her. Her husband, rescued by firemen, was at the bedside when she died.

Roomer Trapped
David Lewis, of Stamford, who secured a room at the house yesterday afternoon, was trapped on the third floor with Miss Elizabeth Weiser, who roomed nearby. Lewis assisted Miss Weiser to a ledge, dropped thirty feet to the ground and secured a ladder to complete the rescue. David Miller, a taxi driver, followed the engine to the fire and then rescued his sister who lived in the building.

The property was occupied by Captain and Mrs. Joseph Herberinger who had a boarding house there. Both were rescued by firemen.

Capital Society Worried Over Canadian Visitors

Washington, Dec. 2.—Social arbiters of the White House and diplomatic corps were today confronted with a snarl in the red tape of social usage.

The problem is what shall be done with Governor General and Viscountess Willington, of Canada, during the two hours of the annual White House reception to the diplomatic corps Thursday evening.

A program covering virtually every minute of the time the distinguished Canadians will be in Washington—from eleven a. m. Thursday until ten a. m. Friday—has been mapped out. But today the White House, the Canadian Legation, and the State Department were silent and apparently in conflict about those two hours.

The difficulty arises over the fact that Canada rates only a legation, and is near the bottom of the list at that, so that the Canadian guests, if they accompany the hosts, the Canadian Legation officials to the reception, would be near the rear end of the diplomatic procession. But, it is obviously socially impossible to place the administrative head of a great nation with the ministers of the small republics.

Their hosts can't possibly absent themselves from the official function, and they can't leave the governor-general and the viscountess at the Canadian Legation all by themselves.

Meanwhile, officials of the White House and the State Department who duty it is to iron out such situations, are busily engaged making precedents.

FLOODS MENACE ROCHESTER AND SURROUNDINGS

Towns and Cities in Western and Central New York Suffering From Heavy Rains.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Emergency pumps were in readiness, an army of men was laboring tirelessly erecting ramparts and temporary dykes, and the entire city was in a state of apprehension today as an eleven foot wall of water swept down the Genesee river channel toward Rochester—the climax of three days of costly flood conditions in western and central New York.

The crest of the flood that passed over the Mt. Morris power dam at a record height exceeding eleven feet yesterday, was expected to tear through Rochester sometime this afternoon.

Every effort has been made by public utility corporations whose plants and power stations line the Genesee river to remove immense quantities of debris. Several hundred men, assisted by cranes, worked throughout the night to avert the danger of a jam when the crest strikes.

Roads Flooded

Meanwhile, every highway along the river valley has been inundated and work of rescuing marooned farmers and motorists was rushed in expectation of the still higher water.

Tributaries of the Genesee, thrown back by the rising waters, have flooded an enormous extent of lowlands, taxing every agency in the rescue of stock and human beings. Rapidly falling temperatures were adding to the suffering.

At Belmont, Allegheny county, the river had reached its highest point in history today. Waterloo reported its homes without heat and industries idle. Tonawanda creek left its banks and flooded parts of the Batavia, N. Y., business section, and cottagers at Conesus, Hemlock, Canadice and Owego lakes report heavy damage.

Despite the advance precautions of railroad and power company agents, the Route 106 outlet from Canaan to Dresden became a raging torrent carrying bridges and dams before it. Pennyan was without heat or power.

Angelia reported that water mains were washed out and the houses without gas. Small buildings and much livestock were carried away at Addison by the swiftly rising Canisteo river.

MIDWEST TOURISTS LIKE NEW ENGLAND

Figures Show That 80 Per Cent Spend Summer Vacations In This Section.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 2.—Eighty per cent of motor tourists who vacation in New England hail from the territory east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river, according to the motor tourist business development conference, which went into executive session here today under the auspices of the executive committee of the American Automobile Association.

New England's civic, business, hotel, resort, chambers of commerce, advertising and newspaper interests were represented at the conference where a "Come to New England for Your Vacation" slogan was adopted by New England A. A. heads and adopted, with the purpose of bringing more tourists to New England.

Some Statistics

Statistics brought out at the conference revealed that of the total number of 133,016 cars led for New England motor clubs last season, 146,268, or 89 per cent of the tourists were from populous centers east of the Mississippi, that 56 per cent were on a "general tour" of the New England territory.

Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., and ex-officio chairman of the executive committee, presided over a conference committee in which members of all the larger cities east of the Mississippi were present.

Ways and means of popularizing the New England territory as a summer vacation land for motorists of the entire nation primarily concerned the meeting.

ALIBI, DEFENSE PLAN, IN LILLIENDAHL CASE

BOWERS FUNERAL AT 2:30 TOMORROW

Service at Second Congregational Church—Bearers and Ushers Named.

Judge Herbert O. Bowers, who died Wednesday evening, will go to his last resting place tomorrow afternoon in Buckland cemetery which he transformed from a bleak, unattractive spot, into a beautiful, hallowed place for the dead. As Buckland cemetery committeeman for many years Judge Bowers worked incessantly to make it attractive.

The funeral service will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at the Second Congregational church. The pastor of that church, Rev. F. C. Allen, and Rev. Watson Woodruff, of the Center Congregational church, will officiate.

Bearers and Ushers

Bearers will be Arthur F. Barnes, of Bristol, Fred A. Farrar, of Northampton, Mass., Charles Griswold, of West Hartford, William S. Hyde, Nathan B. Richards, and R. LaMotte Russell of this town. All were intimate friends of Judge Bowers. Ushers at the church service will be Harold C. Aylord, Noah A. Burr, Thomas Ferguson, Charles R. Hathaway, Herbert B. House, Patrick J. O'Leary, Robert J. Smith and Clifford R. Burr.

A delegation from the Hartford County Bar Association consisting of W. S. Hyde, Frank E. Healy, L. F. Waldo Marvin, Arthur L. Smith, John H. Buck, George A. Kellogg, Harrison B. Freeman, William E. Egan and Solomon Eisner will represent that group at the funeral. No session of the Manchester Police court will be held tomorrow out of respect for the memory of Mr. Bowers, who was its first judge. Most of the businesses in the north end will be suspended during the funeral service.

Quarrelled Over Chickens

Any quarrels that the slain doctor and the accused poultry raiser may have had, originated solely from their mutual interest in chickens and were only of the kind that two enthusiastic chicken-fanels might be expected to have, the attorney said.

The damaging testimony of Samuel Bark, who declared on the stand that Beach had confessed to him the killing of the doctor, Hedges dismissed with the simple treatment that he would show it "means nothing." The letters that the widow and Beach exchanged, were only harmless notes, he said. Likewise, testimony that the state offered in the attempt to prove that Beach was at the murder scene will be discarded, Hedges concluded.

Beach's wife, son and daughter-in-law were at his side as the defense got under way today, and Mrs. Lillendahl occupied a chair in the midst.

"Our defense, on the whole, is based on an alibi," Hedges revealed, adding that he would prove Beach was not in the vicinity of the crime.

Clinging to the "negro" theme—the defense attorneys took the stand that the negro who killed her husband—Charles Phillips, attorney for the widow, then told the jury that witnesses would be produced showing that two negroes were in the vicinity of the crime less than half an hour before the murder.

The balance of Phillips' talk dwelt on the friendly relations that he says existed between the Beaches and the Lillendahls.

So intense was interest, as the first defense witness, Bishop Mann, told the jury, that the stand of the state, the Daniel Gray, deputy sheriff, collapsed, supposedly from the excitement and the closeness of the courtroom. He was carried out by three deputies, who found it necessary to lift his body high over their heads in order to clear the crowds that jammed the aisles.

Character Witness

Because his daughter is reported at the point of death, the bishop was placed on the stand first, that he might finish his story. His daughter is the wife of Dr. Lillendahl's son by a first marriage. His testimony was purely a testimonial to Mrs. Lillendahl's high character as he knew it.

When Jack Thornborrow, originally a witness for the state, had failed to satisfy the prosecution, was recalled by the defense, Assistant Prosecutor A. Cameron Hinkle seized upon his privilege of cross examination to force a contradictory admission from him.

Thornborrow testified that he saw Beach on the day of the murder but Hinkle compelled him to admit he had once signed a statement declaring that Beach came to him two days after the murder and "tried to make him remember that he had seen him on the day of the crime."

The witness asked permission to strike certain passages from his original statement, which, he now says, are incorrect. He was examined under the rapid fire examination.

His face flushed and his voice excited with anger, Thornborrow, who had been such a failure as a state witness several days ago, today as a defense witness, under cross-examination, scored for the prosecution.

Contradicts Himself

Repeatedly contradicting himself, Thornborrow finally shouted "the statement has a lot of things I don't remember." He referred to the affidavit he signed for the state shortly after the murder.

Mrs. Jane A. Banaman, another alibi witness, said she saw Beach at about ten o'clock on the morning of the murder (the approximate hour of the killing) and recalled the incident because he waved to her. She remembered the date be-

Lawyers For Beach Call On Witnesses to Prove That He Was Not at Scene of Crime—Still Stick to the Story That Negroes Attacked Woman and Killed Aged Doctor—Say Bark's Statement That Beach Admitted Murder "Means Nothing."

Mays Landing, N. J., Dec. 2.—Willis Beach, on trial with Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl for the murder of her husband, had a violent quarrel with the slain man nearly a year ago, it was stated in court today in the opening defense statement.

Edison Hedges, Beach's counsel, told the jury that his client called Dr. Lillendahl a "damn fool," and that the doctor retaliated with the same characterization. Hedges added, however, that the two men later made up their differences and became better friends than ever.

In the fact of state testimony just completed, which tended to show that Beach and Mrs. Lillendahl had indulged in illicit trysts, Hedges went on to declare that he would show that their relations were "of the finest" and that the two families were quite friendly, even Mrs. Beach.

cause a granddaughter was born on that day, she said.

Mrs. Nora B. Pedrick, who was with Mrs. Banaman at the time, substantiated her testimony. Mrs. Pedrick said she was chairman of the Parent-Teacher Association of which Mrs. Lillendahl was a member and that the widow was on one of her committees. She said Beach's reputation was good.

Ray Beach, son of the co-defendant, followed with testimony that his father left home about nine o'clock on the day of the crime and returned about 10:30. When he called his father for lunch at noon he was still there, although he had not seen him in the meantime. The older Beach's car was at the house throughout that time, he said.

STATE'S CASE COMPLETE

Mays Landing, N. J., Dec. 2.—Willis Beach, the smalltown Don Juan, was to face a jury and deny that he killed Dr. Lillendahl when the defense got under way today in the joint murder trial of Beach and Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl, widow of the physician.

With the state's case completed and Justice Luther H. Campbell pushing every point in an effort to reach a speedy conclusion of the trial, the possibility that death may take a hand to halt the introduction of testimony was indicated as court opened.

The mother of Mrs. Grace Wingate, juror No. 2, is critically ill and death is a matter of hours, it was learned. George W. Wingate, the juror's husband, and cashier of the Union National Bank, Atlantic City, came here to make every effort to obtain his wife's release so that she may be with her mother.

Forced to Serve

He asserted that both prosecution and defense counsel were told that Mrs. Wingate's mother was seriously ill, nevertheless she was forced to serve. If death does intervene, it is likely that court will be adjourned and Mrs. Wingate excused under guard of a deputy to attend the funeral.

A bed-ridden witness, Mrs. Lillian H. Tugger of Cloverdale, N. J., is to testify for the defense. Her testimony is expected to establish an alibi for Beach, who insists on his innocence. She was called when Dr. Lillendahl was slain on the morning of September 15.

Mrs. Tozer has been an invalid for several weeks. She may be called into court on a stretcher. Her name was Jane Gibson in the Hall-Mills trial.

Many Witnesses
There will be about thirty witnesses for Beach and sixty-three more for Mrs. Lillendahl, who also will take the stand. It was announced by the defense that two negro handmaids whom the widow blamed for the murder of her elderly husband.

POWER TRUST LOBBY FOR NEXT CONGRESS League Puts Forth Its Claims In Book Being Distributed in Washington.

Washington, Dec. 2.—A superb lobby of the power trust has swooped down on Washington "to mould public opinion and control power" in the coming session of Congress, the National Popular Government League charged today.

The league, which is actively supported by ex-Governor Elnicot of Pennsylvania, described the power trust activities in a twelve-page brochure entitled "Who's Who in the Super-Power Lobby."

The principal objectives of this lobby are to kill the Boulder Canyon bill, deliver Muscle Shoals to the power companies, sidetrack the reclamation investigations, the power trust as proposed by Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, and to turn over an invaluable power site belonging to the Flathead Indians of Montana to the Montana Power Company without just compensation to its owners," said the League.

25,000 MAIMED CALI CHILDREN WILL BE AIDED

New Age of Miracles to Open For Little Cripples Under State Aid.

Sacramento, Cal. — For California's crippled children—the lame, the halt and the maimed—a new age of miracles will dawn shortly, if the State of California can make it so.

The miracles will be wrought by the state's leading orthopedic surgeons, according to Dr. Walter Dickie of San Francisco, director of the State Department of Health, under California's crippled children's program, adopted and financed by the last legislature.

In the new age of miracles, as in the scene by the sea of Gallies, the half-clad and maimed, the girl of twisted limbs and little money—the child whose parents are financially unable to employ great specialists—will receive equal attention with the youngster of well-to-do parents.

Preliminary Work The program, Dr. Dickie points out, essentially is for those children who would go through life without hope of release from their handicap save for state aid.

Preliminary work in the great salvaging effort already is under way under the direction of Miss Winnifred Tougas of San Francisco, named by Dr. Dickie to conduct a survey which will reveal the children demanding assistance and the nature of this task, diagnostic clinics will be established in leading cities of the state to undertake the first step in the remedial program.

More than 25,000 crippled children were found in the state during a pre-legislative survey conducted by the Farmers, the Rotarians, women's clubs, and other organizations, which sponsored the state program. An accurate check on the number of cases to come before the state's free clinics now is being obtained in reports from the recently concluded census of minors.

The school census is expected to furnish data on any physical handicap which would prevent a child from attending class work, or impair his ability to profit by school work. Information also has been secured on the defects, but this phase of the work will be handled by a special school commission.

State Has Fund To finance the crippled children's program at the outset, says Dr. Dickie, the board has been provided with $250,000, the state has secured, augmented by donations from interested organizations and other interested groups. This money, however, will be used merely as a revolving fund the act providing that each county shall be billed for the work in its area.

The great "necery program" will be carried out with the aid of the leading orthopedists of the state, according to Dr. Dickie, who declared that the work, on a statewide scale, will be not unlike that now carried on in the children's ward at the University of California hospital.

"By corrective operations," he stated, "we hope that many twisted little bodies will be made straight and the children born with a great handicap will be made able-bodied. This is one of the greatest humanitarian movements attempted by the state and we trust that for many children it will actually mean new hope and new life."

water from the drainage area of the Connecticut river. Connecticut Objected The commission was reminded that the state of Connecticut had objected to the damming of the Swift river at the time the bill was under discussion. Connecticut sent representatives to watch the project and to make formal protest. Connecticut had approached Massachusetts with a proposition for an agreement between the two states to safeguard Connecticut's interests in the taking of the water.

Massachusetts never took Connecticut's protests very seriously and never considered the agreement proposition. But it appears now that Connecticut will object to having any fraction of the Connecticut river held back in Massachusetts.

Samuel Stevenson of Wadsworth street, testifying for himself in the suit brought against him by Mrs. Sarah Smith of Knox street, executrix of Mrs. Stevenson's will, to recover $6,000, which he drew out of local banks before his wife's death, told the superior court yesterday that he had given all his wages to his wife over a period of years to provide for their old age.

Mrs. Smith sets forth that she can do nothing about the settlement of the estate until the estate itself is recovered from Mr. Stevenson. She alleges that the defendant obtained an order from his wife in 1925 to draw out the money on the representation that he wished to use only the interest for the shingling of their house.

Witnesses bore out Mr. Stevenson in his assertion that he had been in the habit of giving his wife all his savings. Other witnesses attested to the intimacy and affection between Stevenson and his wife. Defense counsel, however, introduced a document said to have been written by Mrs. Stevenson, repudiating the permission she gave him to draw out the money.

The case will be resumed on Tuesday morning with cross-examination of Mr. Stevenson by Attorney William S. Hyde of this town, counsel for Mrs. Smith. It is expected that it will require until 11:30 on that day to complete. Attorney John T. Robinson is counsel for Mr. Stevenson.

ROD-GUN CLUB TO ELECT NEW OFFICERS TONIGHT

The Manchester Rod and Gun club will meet tonight in the Recreation Center on School street at 8 o'clock to elect officers for the coming year. Various matters of importance to the members will be discussed and it is desired that there be as full an attendance as possible.

The club will hold its regular shoot tomorrow afternoon at the Rainbow range in Bolton. All trapshooters, whether members of the club or not, are invited. A turkey shoot is planned for Saturday, December 24, at the Rainbow range. This will be a handicap affair for members only.

RADIO IN ENGLAND KEEPS VILLAGE FOLKS FROM GOING TO CITY

London.—The rush from the villages of England to the big towns has been stemmed, according to an official Government report.

This is caused by the reorganization of village life during the past few years. In the winter, villagers now have dances, concerts, lectures, and dramatic performances in their homes they have the radio, electric light and heat, and most families keep a runabout.

The old horse carrier has given way to the motor omnibus and communications between villages and country towns has become rapid and convenient both for passengers and produce.

Mechanical appliances on farms give opportunity also for the ingenuity and resourcefulness of the farm worker. And the radio almost puts the villager on an equality with the townsmen in regard to news.

The villager today, the report adds, can now have as much fun and amusement out of life as anyone.

SCIENTIFIC COP URGES WATCHING BOYS AND GIRLS

Old Fashioned Chaperone Needed to Help Young In Proper Paths.

Berkeley, Cal.—Revive the old-fashioned chaperone and there will be fewer boys in the penitentiary and fewer girls treading the path from which there is no return.

E. O. Heinrich, consulting criminologist of Berkeley and noted "scientific cop" expressed this opinion today in discussing "flappers and crime."

Drawing on his own experiences, Heinrich figuratively rolled up his sleeves and plunged into the subject with the declaration that young people are dominated by two instincts, food hunger and sex hunger.

Lack of proper control between the ages of 12 and 16, when the young boy or girl instinctively seeks the companionship of one of the opposite sex, is the fundamental underlying cause of crime, he said. "I do not urge segregation of young people," he added, "but a return to some condition approximating the chaperone of a number of years ago."

Boys Without Ideals Heinrich opened his address with a recapitulation of the famous De Autremont case in which three brothers, following a six-year search, were captured and convicted of murder in connection with the Siskiyou tunnel holdup of 1921. Heinrich deduced the evidence on which they were convicted.

"These three boys were without ideals," he said. "Like many others, they reached the danger time of their lives and were unable to withstand its pitfalls, hence went on to destruction. They grew up without guidance; their ideas were formed from external contacts."

"Children of 12 have little conception of right and wrong. They are unable to differentiate. This brings upon the child a real danger when the period of adolescence is reported.

"The young girl, having reached this period, doesn't know what it's all about yet she craves the association of one of the opposite sex. The inward effect is a state of emotional instability.

"One thing a woman craves, from adolescence to dotage—romance. The chief desire of the male is to possess something which others may not possess.

"The girl, imbued with this roseate idea of romance, is at the parting of the ways. The boy at that critical stage of life is standing on the verge of success or failure.

"These two fanciful ideas—so common to boys and girls between 12 and 16 are at the basis of child behavior in the adolescent stage.

"This boy, in his desire to possess, may turn to crime. And the desire of the young girl for romance may bring her a saint or a sinner.

"The adolescent girl begins to blossom out like a flower. She is possessed with a strange and powerful desire to more emphasize her charms and, without adequate guidance, often succeeds in making herself unduly attractive.

Attention to Styles

"These young people, then, are driven by a power which they themselves do not, and which their parents either do not or will not, recognize.

"Touching on the styles of girls' clothing, Heinrich advised the club women not to lay too much stress upon that question but rather to consider "more fundamental" problems.

"We are living in a machine age," he went on. "The rhythm has speeded up to the tempo of the saxophone and the drum. Vocational training for young people is on the decline, and the young people have been given their own way to a dangerous extent.

"Boys and girls of the adolescent age require more restriction. If this is not forthcoming, they are pretty sure to go on the rocks.

"Statisticians tell us that the prison population of this country is increasing more swiftly than the resident population—20.3 per cent. The average age of prisoners at San Quentin, California's State Prison, is 22.

"These figures, I think, speak for themselves."

THRILLS AND SUSPENSE IN "CANYON OF LIGHT"
Tom Mix Stars in Western at Circle Theater Tomorrow; "Minck" Plays on Wednesday.

For sheer excitement, thrills and suspense, Fox Films "Canyon of Light," the feature picture which has its first showing at the Circle Theater tomorrow afternoon will be hard to surpass. With Tom Mix in the star role and Dorothy Dwan in the feminine lead, plus a fine cast and an absorbing story and with Tony, the wonder horse, playing a prominent part, this is one Western that is sure to please every type of theater patron. Added to this wild beauty of the background, for this picture was filmed in Yellowstone National Park, and the result is an entertainment long to be remembered.

The story deals with Tom Mills, played by Tom Mix, who at the opening of the World War, takes a troop of cowboys overseas, where he acts as captain of dispatch riders. The battle scenes in this part are a great deal more thrilling than in many so-called war pictures. While Tom and his men are away the western community from which they come, becomes a prey to a gang of desperadoes who are led by Ed Bardin, Tom's brother-in-law, and played by Carl Miller.

On his return Tom finds a band of vigilantes have captured Bardin and are preparing to hang him. How Tom tries to save that worthy's neck for the sake of his sister and how the latter repays Tom's kindness makes a suspense holding story.

FRIDAY, DEC. 2, 1927

FLIGHTS

We have the greatest admiration for Governor Trumbull and such confidence in his sound common sense as a business man and as an executive; but, frankly, his predictions as to the early future of aviation, like those of other enthusiasts even of so high standing as Commander Byrd, do not excite us much.

There is a good deal yet to be found out about aviation in America; too much for anybody living to make a highly intelligent forecast as to how long it will be before, as the Governor puts it, one may go to the theatre in Hartford, thence to Brainard Field, go to sleep in a berth on a glant air liner and wake up in time for breakfast in Chicago.

In the first place it might not be unreasonable to estimate how much chance there may be a couple of years hence, of anybody on earth wanting to go to Chicago for breakfast or anything else; whether there will be anything to eat there unless one likes to chew machine gun bullets—whether there will be any Chicago at all after a few more months of Big Bill and the gang wars, since the latter appear to have invaded the field of industrialism.

In the next place it might as well be realized that maintaining aviation schedules is one thing in Europe, where the climates, good or bad, approach to something like known quantities, and in the United States, where the weather is as wild and anarchistic and utterly unreasonable as the Chicago gunmen themselves. In the next place the sleeping-car airship may be as a practicable device, one year away or fifty—and neither Governor Trumbull nor anybody else knows which.

It is all very well to harrow and cultivate the ground of public opinion in preparation for the reception of aviation development. But what we most need in that direction, it seems to us, is a few handfulls of good healthy needs in the ground. If we are not much mistaken a great deal more is being done for aviation by such undertakings as that of the Fords and Clarence Chamberlin, who are both planning to build little airships that will stay up until their operators want to come down, than by imaginative pictures of air Titanic liners that are really all cobweb and nebula.

Rudyard Kipling, twenty-five years ago, in a short story entitled "The Night Mail," invented a trans-oceanic flying machine which was much more convincing than was Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis. Yet a quarter of a century has elapsed and the mails still cross the ocean in steamships. It is still difficult to transport one's physical body a thousand miles between dusk and dawn on the wings of a mere flight of imagination.

EASY TO SAY

Arthur A. Shurtleff of Boston writes to the New York Times pointing out the vital necessity of co-ordinating in planning the rebuilding of towns and villages of northern New England, devastated by floods, in order that further disasters may not be needlessly risked.

"Faulty planning" even upon a small scale, upstream, may precipitate a chain of cumulative disasters below, says Mr. Shurtleff. "The millions of dollars which will be required for the re-establishment of highways, railroads, highway bridges, railway bridges and new homes cannot be spent unless a large margin of risk" without all these communities plan their utilities and control their watersheds with an eye to the probable recurrence of disastrous rainfalls. Something more comprehensive than local village planning, town planning or even metropolitan planning is needed. The states of Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire must combine in this realm of planning to escape large losses of treasure and life in the future."

Mr. Shurtleff is a landscape architect and town planner of parts. He had much to do with the creation of the metropolitan parkway system around Boston.

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

For 100 miles along Long Island Sound there stretches the southern boundary of a busy little commonwealth. The eastern boundary runs 45 miles northward, and the western 76 miles in the same general direction. Connecting the northern extremes of these two lines and running approximately parallel to the Sound is the northern boundary.

Within these modest limits lies one of the original thirteen colonies, busy, thrifty, inventive and conservative—Connecticut. To the northward, the westward and the eastward lie three other of the thirteen colonies that started the United States. To the north it is Massachusetts; to the west it is New York and to the east it is Rhode Island.

The 4,965 square miles, of which 145 is water, within its borders make Connecticut the 46th state in area. The average length of the state is about 95 miles and the average width 57.

In comparison with other New England states, Connecticut is fifth in size, only its neighbor on the east being smaller. Besides Rhode Island, Delaware is the only other state that is smaller. Connecticut occupies 1-10 of the total area of the 48 states and 1-13 of the total area of the New England states. Connecticut is slightly larger than Jamaica and a third as large as Switzerland.

Connecticut lies between the parallels 40 degrees 59 minutes and 42 degrees 3 minutes north latitude, and the meridians 71 degrees 47 minutes and 73 degrees 43 minutes west longitude.

Tomorrow—Connecticut From The Air.

He knows his groceries in his own line. But we have never heard of him as exactly a financial engineer nor yet as a psychologist. And our impression is that, if rehabilitation in Vermont, New Hampshire and northern Massachusetts must wait until the people of Vermont and New Hampshire agree upon some more than local plan of rebuilding, very large portions of the Granite and Green Mountain states will have reverted to wilderness and the wolves will howl there before restoration shall have arrived.

Two elements would appear to be conspicuously lacking from the dream of the Boston landscape expert. One is the money to support those numerous stricken communities over the years to elapse before some inter-state commission decides what to do. The other is a willingness on the part of the people in those hidebound little up-country communities to act together for the common good.

Building a parkway system for greater Boston took a great many years. But was graver compared to the task of co-ordinating the waterways system of the upper Connecticut with a view to eliminating all danger of broken dams and of turning barns into floating battering rams. The human equation enters in.

TOTAL DISARMAMENT

Nothing could more vividly have revealed the difficulties in the way of general disarmament by the nations than the proposal of the Russian representation at Geneva that the nations actually and literally disarm—disarm to the last gun and ship.

Despite the terrific losses of the country of the Bear during the World war, there are more than a hundred and thirty millions of Russians. Great, sturdy people physically they are. Strip all of Europe of its arms and the hundred and thirty million Russians, armed with knives and clubs, could sweep over any single country in Europe, probably over any two or three.

There were murderous, devastating, depopulating wars before there were machine guns and T. N. T. and poison gas—before there were gun-armor or Toledo blades. There could be as devastating, depopulating wars again, if all these things were annihilated and human beings returned to the pitchfork or the sling for their armament. The suggestion of Russia brings this fact startlingly, appallingly to realization.

Disarmament—physical disarmament—would eliminate terrible burdens from the backs of overtaxed peoples; it would relieve "much of such temptation to war making as swung Germany into a sea of blood in 1914. But it would no more make war impossible, or less horrible, than it would change the rotation of the earth from easterly to westerly or drag the stars from the heavens.

THE SHAVIAN WAY

Of course there is nobody like Bernard Shaw. And the worst of the old devil is that he always tells the truth. But such truth, sometimes! Truth that shines so brilliantly on a single face of a hundred faced situation that all the ninety-nine other faces are left in utter darkness, and in our admiration of the brilliance of the exposure we can't see the bulk of the question, whatever it may be, at all.

Here we have him calling his own Ireland "an incorrigible beggar" and advising Americans never to send that country a single cent for anything. This when asked to second an appeal to America, for shoes for the poverty stricken children of Dublin. "Ireland," says the Irrepressible One, is perfectly able to feed and clothe her children if she chooses; she can afford shoes and a couple of changes of warm woolen stockings every week for every one of her children, and if she is a bad mother and prefers to leave her children go barefooted and hungry while she enjoys herself, at race meetings, regattas, horse shows and the routine of sports and fashion generally, I do not see why America should encourage her."

This, of course, is a typical Shavian attack on the established economic order of things. It is the utterance of a radical who feels that all his responsibilities for his fellow beings are discharged when he tells them that they are living under a hideous system and who jeers at them for taking its consequences.

He is very light-hearted, is Shaw, and extremely entertaining. But we doubt if any little blue toes in Dublin will be any the warmer this winter for this sort of disposition of their case.

GALL

No finer example of unadorned brass was ever put on exhibition than the charge by Dr. S. E. Nicholson, associate superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, that former Senator Wadsworth of New York, in planning to fight for a wet plank in the Republican platform next year, is "dealing a disastrous blow to his party."

This is the same Anti-Saloon League which last year stabbed the Republican party in the back by running a rump dry candidate against Wadsworth in New York, thereby succeeding in electing a Democratic senator from that state and depriving the Republican party of its clear majority in the national Senate.

Under the circumstances, for an Anti-Saloonist to utter the name of Wadsworth in the same breath with party disloyalty is to rise to hitherto unscalped heights of sheer effrontery.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Millions of words have been written concerning President Coolidge's "choose" statement at Rapid City and its implications. Much of this mass of literature has been mere twaddle.

This is as good a time as any to bring the Coolidge situation up to date. Politicians and the rest of us have reacted in several ways to that statement. It should be pointed out that there is no proof that the president has taken a living soul into his confidence and that, such being the case, probably no living soul to this day can speak with definite authority as to just what he meant. But there is no law against trying to reach a logical conclusion on the basis of known facts, even though, for ulterior reasons, most commentators have refused to do so.

Those who paid any attention to the "choose" statement at all may be divided into these main classes: 1—Those who believed Coolidge didn't want to be re-elected and who so resigned themselves.

2—Those who believed Coolidge didn't want to be re-elected, but felt he should be drafted.

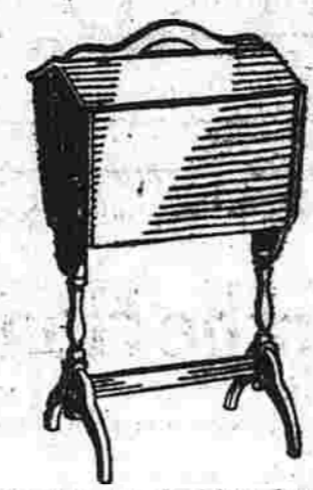

3—Those who believed Coolidge did want to be re-elected and were glad to help the good work along.

4—Those who believed he wanted to be re-elected and who did everything possible to persuade the country that he didn't in the hope that he might be shamed out of it.

5—Those who believed he desired re-election, but felt that his statement had given the party leaders an eagerly accepted opportunity to ditch him.

There were few who knew Mr. Coolidge who believed that he would strongly object to another term. There were many who believed that he had the idea of regaining a chance at the nomination, even though he had expected his announcement to work to his political advantage.

Lately that assertion hasn't been made so frequently or so emphatically.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc.

THE CHRISTMAS STORE

New York, Dec. 2.—Of such materials as this is the pattern of Broadway.

They are two of the funniest and highest paid comics in the world. Of course you know them—Eddie Cantor and Ed Wynn. They call Wynn the "perfect fool." He has merely to slap a funny little hat upon his head and cut a few capers to send any audience into hysterics. Yet for years he has come to the stage door with a sad face and left the theater with a sad face. His wife has been seriously ill and still is. Almost nightly between acts he will go worriedly to the phone to inquire concerning her condition. These, as the curtain call sounds, he will grab up his comic hats and come drolly before the spotlight. He is unknown to the nightlife world. Now and then you will see him dropping in at Rubins for a sandwich after theater. This "perfect fool" prefers the solace and quiet of his great library.

A few weeks ago, the wife of Eddie Cantor lay desperately ill in a New York hospital. She was about to become a mother. Complications came that a blood transfusion was necessary. The little comic paced the back stage, night upon night, his eyes tortured and hollow from lack of sleep, his face drawn and his mind in a turmoil. He volunteered to rush from the theater and give his blood to save her.

Yet no one in the audience so much as applauds the back-stage drama. He would come dancing on with his songs and patter. Within a week the crisis had passed. A baby was born to the Cantors. Of course no one can tell how much longer he could have stood the strain.

And, a year or so ago, there was Al Jolson who, following a series of illnesses, came on night after night to sing his mammy songs though his health was at the breaking point. In the end he had to give up and take a long rest.

Just a few months ago another comic of the "big street" left the stage, hurried to his make-up room, washed off his paint and started for his apartment. At the stage door he was stopped and a cable handed to him. It told him that his wife who had been in Europe, was dead.

Ten years ago she was "queen of Greenwich Village." Everyone knew Polly. Polly was one of those rare souls who really believed that art is that artists must starve. Polly opened as strange an eating place as the world has ever seen. It was completely and finally 100 per cent Bohemian. One went about and selected one's food at ridiculously low prices and, now and then, someone actually paid cash. Struggling artists could "cuff" their meals and it was quite astounding how many artists began to struggle. More than twenty than one would imagine they eventually paid.

Such a place could not go on forever. In the end Polly and the ghost and went to Africa, or somewhere. I saw Polly Holiday the other night at a Greenwich Village artists' dance. She looks sadly out upon the Village that was and sighs as one skyscraper apartment after another rises about Washington Square. Again she sighed as she related how the quaint studios one could rent for those days—$25 a month now—bring $15 to $100 from the cloak buyers and brokers who now rush to the one-time camping ground of Bohemia.

Old Masters

Mother Earth, are the heroes dead? Do they thrill the soul of the years no more? Are the gleaming snows and the popples red? All that is left of the brave of yore? Are there none to fight as Theseus fought? Far in the young world's misty dawn? Or to teach as gray-haired Nestor taught? Mother Earth, are the heroes gone?

Their armor rings on a falser field Than Greek and Trojan fiercely trod; For Freedom's sword is the blade they wield. And the gleam above is the smile of God. So, in his sails of calm, calm, calm, Jason may sleep the years away. For the heroes live and the day is bright. And the world is a braver world today. —Edna D. Proctor: From Heroes

HEAVY DOCKET WAITS UPON 70th CONGRESS

Taxes, Flood Relief and Farm Bill Head List of Jobs to Be Done.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Nov. 30.—With the opening of the Seventieth Congress almost upon us, it is becoming evident that an important country is about to witness two things: a considerable amount of good, hard work, and a tangled succession of gorgeous political scraps and deals.

There is a lot of work waiting for this Congress. There is also a presidential campaign ready to dawn. The combination insures a very busy winter for the assembled statesmen.

First on the program comes the senatorial decision on the fight which William S. Vare and Frank Smith are making for admittance to the Senate. This fight, which will be bitter, probably will be brief. It looks as if the two will be excluded, but no one is advised to make any heavy bets.

Face a Heavy Program With this matter disposed of, the Senate and the House face a heavy program, on which the problem of flood relief has a leading position.

The House doubtless will tackle this measure first. The plan of the army engineers for a "levees only" system of curbing the Mississippi probably will be adopted as a sort of stop-gap measure, with a special commission possibly being appointed to draw up a more comprehensive solution.

Next comes tax reduction, and here, too, something unquestionably will be done. With a presidential campaign only a few months off, the senators and representatives will be straining at the leash to slash the tax bill, and it seems safe to say that automobile and "nuisance" taxes will go by the board with a total reduction of something like $300,000,000.

With tax reduction out of the way, farm relief will be next in order. Here the political aspect of the situation is so clouded that nothing definite can be predicted. It may be that the approaching campaign will lead to enough compromises in both houses to put through a bill fairly satisfactory to the farmers.

Confirmation of certain presidential appointments is considered doubtful, especially that of Eugene Meyer as chairman of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

For example, practically every major measure that comes up will be highly important to the political fortunes of one or another of the candidates for the presidency. Flood relief, for instance, is more or less tied up with Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, and it is obvious that some of Hoover's enemies will fight bitterly to prevent any kind of a bill that would add any lustre to his reputation.

It is the same way with tax reduction. Farm relief is in a similar situation, and as was pointed out above, a desire to embarrass President Coolidge as a potential candidate may raise hob with the farm bloc's bill.

Third Term Question Up In addition, there is the question of the anti-third term resolution which certain senators have been discussing. It seems probable that the Senate will be more, or less an anti-administration organization with the "progressives" wielding the balance of power, and it is probable that it will find a number of ways to harass the chief executive.

LaFollette is expected to introduce his resolution protesting against a presidency that lasts more than eight years, and this resolution may pass.

All in all, Congress will have a busy session. It will be a stormy colorful session; a good deal of work will get done because a presidential campaign is approaching, and a good deal more will not get done for the same reason; and the whole thing will doubtless be highly interesting and instructive to watch.

CONGRESS PROGRAM Here is the program facing the Seventieth Congress, with the probable disposal that now seems in store for the various measures:

TAX REDUCTION: automobile and "nuisance" taxes due to go, federal estate tax likely to be kept; total reduction, probably $300,000,000.

FLOOD RELIEF: army engineers' "levees only" system apt to be adopted as a stop-gap measure, with commission appointed to fix permanent system.

FARM RELIEF: situation extremely tangled and political considerations may prevent any bill from passing.

CONTESTED ELECTIONS: President Coolidge is expected to press for some kind of farm relief; and it may be that his enemies in Congress would rather see no farm relief at all than let him get the credit for it.

Confirmation of certain presidential appointments is considered doubtful, especially that of Eugene Meyer as chairman of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

NAVY APPROPRIATIONS: eight new cruisers likely to be voted.

Other bills are in doubt: Boulder Dam and Muscle Shoals bills face stiff opposition, Senate may pass "anti third term" resolution, and several Coolidge appointments may fall of confirmation.

HAREM CARAVAN FOR KING OF ARABIA IS SHIPPED FROM LONDON

London.—A wonderful motor caravan has just glided through the streets of London enroute for the desert.

The car will carry the Royal wives across the desert at 55 miles an hour, says Marr. "The King is constantly making long journeys from Mecca to Medina and across to the Persian Gulf. He naturally wants his wives to go with him. But they must never be seen by men, and the King is very strict about it. So these cars—there are two of them—were made to carry his 24 wives from place to place. There are no windows, light being admitted through opaque glass in the roof. The 12 wives are locked in, and an electric fan keeps them cool—more or less. They may have to travel as much as 1100 miles in there. They sit six aside, on the pile of carpet which is fixed to the floor of the car.

There are also four touring cars for the King and his suite. These will do 65 miles an hour. "The fleet of eight cars has cost $55,000. Each car is covered in polished aluminum. Enormous tires, costing $375 a set, were specially made to bear the load in the rough desert."

Queen Marie had been more of a runaway model and one which one might expect to be first, comes second. The big argument, of course, is, suppose we grant this second "unwritten law" whether or not a person's unfit for life, whether or not their agonies are without hope, whether or not they themselves prefer death to life, ever if full of pain?

Runaway Girls Today's runaway girl runs away, not for romance, but for a good job according to the head of a large city's policewomen's bureau, who has just completed a survey of runaway girls, why they do it, how many, and with what result. The chief motive, she finds, is the desire to escape from squalid home surroundings. September is the biggest

THE STORY THIS FAR
The story begins in 1880, in the wicked little town of CALDWELL, Kan., close to the Indian territory border.
TONY HARRISON, 12-year-old son of JEFF HARRISON, a handsome gambler, is orphaned when TOM BENTON, a cattle thief, shoots his father in a poker game.
The boy is befriended by GORDON W. LILLIE, then a restaurant waiter and later to be known as PAWNEE BILL; by JOE CRAIG, foreman of the Bar K ranch, who takes Tony to the Bar K; and by COLONEL TITUS MOORE, owner of the ranch.
Lillie takes somewhat of Johnnie DAVID PAYNE, who is assisting for the opening of the Indian territory, but he gets an offer of a school teaching post in Pawnee and accepts it.
At the Bar K Tony Harrison meets RITA MOORE, spirited little daughter of the ranch.
That fall Tony accompanies Joe Craig to Caldwell, where Joe encounters CALDWELL, a combination of Benton on the night of the shooting. SHAFER, marshal of Caldwell, explains that Caldwell was the victim of circumstances. Later Colonel Moore goes to Caldwell to meet Rita and her mother, who are returning from Kansas City.

Gordon Lillie (Pawnee Bill)

CHAPTER X
THE week following was the week of Dec. 12, 1880. On that day, which was Sunday, there was a large parade and demonstration in Hunnewell by David Payne's Boomers. Led by Payne himself, they marched through the streets of Hunnewell 500 strong, singing and shouting. An inspiring sermon was delivered by a preacher who evidently believed in Payne's cause. He spoke of how Moses led his followers into the Promised Land. It was a day of high hopes and exultation on the part of the agitators for free homes in Oklahoma. Banners were borne through the streets and David Payne was something of a hero, although there were many who looked on in doubt or contempt.

As they passed Mag Woods' place her eyes suddenly turned toward Tony's with a puzzled expression in them. "Why is that man staring at us like that?" she demanded.
The boy turned in the direction indicated by her and beheld Shafer, the marshal. He was leaning in toward Tony's direction, picking his teeth, and was regarding them with an insolent stare that seemed to hold some amusement.
"That's the marshal of Caldwell," Tony explained to Rita. He noticed Mrs. Moore redden angrily and avert her face as she glanced to look in Shafer's direction and decided it would be as well not to mention the incident to Colonel Moore. The colonel was the sort of man who would kill another who looked at his wife in a way she didn't like. Tony had that on the authority of Joe Craig.
"What was Shafer's action to do?" Rita asked. "He was looking at you like that?" she demanded.
"That's the marshal of Caldwell," Tony explained to Rita. He noticed Mrs. Moore redden angrily and avert her face as she glanced to look in Shafer's direction and decided it would be as well not to mention the incident to Colonel Moore. The colonel was the sort of man who would kill another who looked at his wife in a way she didn't like. Tony had that on the authority of Joe Craig.

stuffed but friendly Irishman, had advised him to quit before he broke under the strain of such strenuous labor.
Largely his weakness had been due to a severe illness back in Bloomington, Ill. He had contracted it through exposure during his first visit to Kansas and before the rest of his family had joined his father at his new home in Wellington.

He told all this to Major Bowman after the latter had commented in a pleased manner on Lillie's improved appearance.
"I very nearly died," he related to Bowman. "In fact, the doctor gave me up, but the butcher we used to get meat from, he pulled me through. Every time he slaughtered a cow he took me along in his wagon—I was flat on my back—and he made me drink the hot blood by the cupful."
Bowman smiled. "I think," he said dryly, "that I'd rather have died."

The Indian agent was always ready with advice. It was he who impressed on Lillie the importance of being firm with his Indian students.
"If you're afraid of any of them don't, for the love of heaven, let on or they'll make life miserable for you."
"I haven't run across any mutineers yet," Lillie told him. "And maybe you won't. If you have any trouble come to me."

The first difficult situation he had to deal with was precipitated by Spotted Horse, a Pawnee chief. The Pawnees were a peace-loving and tractable tribe, but Spotted Horse, who was not a hereditary chief at all but only by reason of his own aggressiveness and force of character, was the meanest of them all.
He entered Gordon Lillie's class room one day, accompanied by his son, Frank West, and demanded a suit of clothes for Frank.

Lillie patiently explained that the government allotment of clothes was something he had nothing to do with. "You'd better see Major Bowman," he advised.
Spotted Horse was obdurate. "You get it for him," he spoke in Pawnee.
The Pawnee chief glared and tapped his knife menacingly. Lillie shook his head obstinately.
The knife flashed and the young school teacher turned pale. But instead of retreating or capitulating, he advanced steadily on Spotted Horse and pushed him out of the room. The Indian, either out of fear of the probable consequences of a knitting or respect for this display of fearless courage, made no further show of hostility.

"From what I had heard about Spotted Horse," Lillie said afterward, "I was pretty scared. If any of the Pawnees was capable of sticking a knife into your ribs, he certainly was. I figured I'd better migh turn the trick and it did."

His second encounter with a rebellious red man was not to end so mildly. Blood flowed, and Lillie came very near to joining the ranks of those who were thrown so far and so fast from the frontier in that day and of whom it could be said that they had killed.
Lillie was a peace-loving young man; he had no desire to own a gun with notches on its handle. But when his own life hung in the balance he was not lacking in the instinct to protect it.
(To Be Continued)

The young school teacher narrowly escapes the fate Joe Craig had laughingly predicted for him. Read the next chapter.

less feeling as I sat down to a meal, like the girl who had to dip out the sea with a spoon.
In the other house, the hostess hadn't much appetite herself, and she couldn't see why other people should care to eat. Breakfast and lunch could be covered by a word, bread, tiny dabs of butter, and never quite enough food to go around. The "girl" never looked in to see if you would have more of this or that. I usually left hungry.

I wish you could see the women today, both about sixty. The first is strong, healthy, clear-skinned, and full of plans for the next twenty years. The other is in a wheel chair with a nurse, suffering from a disease of the tissues, caused by under-specialists.

LIFE SPAN IS MEASURED BY KIND OF WORK WE DO
BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Actors, architects, bankers, musicians and teachers have rates lower than the average. On the other hand, brokers, traveling salesmen, dentists and restaurant proprietors and tailors have more than the average amount of illness.
The expectation of life at the age of 20 is eight years less for industrial workers than for agricultural, commercial and professional workers.

The death rate from tuberculosis is two to three times higher among industrial workers than in farming, commercial and professional classes. Pneumonia has twice the death rate among industrial workers.
Bootleggers are subject to all sorts of unusual hazards and accidents. To the insurance companies, these factors are of great importance because it is necessary they be taken into account in estimating premiums against loss of time from illness or against death.

What We Eat We Are

By Olive Roberts Barton

You must eat to be well. I believe there is no further argument about it. But sometimes it is difficult to make growing girls believe even a truth. They are inclined to think that as long as no bad results are apparent now from their dieting there is nothing to worry about. They are going to be young forever and all that!

They look well, feel well, are well. But they are like a cheaply built house—their materials will crumble soon, unless they start to reinforce them before it is too late. I remember well two homes in which I used to visit years ago. At that time the "girl" put dinner on the table and didn't bother changing her blue checkered gingham for nifty black and white. She would open the swing door into the dining room, a crack, now and then, to see if the bread and butter were holding out, or to say "Anybody need more coffee?"

When you sat down at the table you knew the worst of the best. Your fate as far as that meal was concerned lay before you.
Both hostesses went to extremes. In one house, I shall never forget the platters of meat and turkeys of vegetables. The sliced tomatoes were heaped up in a pyramid that would have delighted a dozen hungry thrashers. I used to have a heinous

The average mortality rate for men of the age of 25 to 65 is fifteen per thousand, but liquor handlers and cooper and lead miners have a rate of twenty per thousand, and doctors have a higher rate than either lawyers or ministers.
The high rate for physicians is accredited to the fact that their lives lead them into much overwork and exposure. The disabilities of men also vary according to their occupations.

DESERTED PARIS PICKING UP AS SEASON OPENS

Beginning of Winter to Bring Society In Force to French Capital.

Paris.—Society comes to Paris now at the beginning of the winter season, or soon after the Christmas holidays. But from early spring until late autumn the French capital is completely deserted by the chic "upper crust." Their mansions and luxurious apartments along the fashionable Avenue du Bois de Boulogne or in the stylish Sixteenth Arrondissement are boarded up during the summer months when hordes of students, school teachers and wealthy Americans take possession of the city. Formerly the "400" class of American visitors, came in the spring. Now only wealthy aristocratic South Americans mingle with democratic "Main Streets" from the United States during the period from April to October.

The main factor responsible for this change in travel tides has been the fast growing popularity of "tourist-third class" accommodations which were introduced two years ago by all big steamship companies. The United States lines deserve all credit for discovering a means of recouping the losses in stowage, passenger traffic resulting from recent immigration restriction laws in the United States.

Steerage Improves
The admittedly miserable condition of stowage, class passage for trans-Atlantic crossings have disappeared. As a substitute the United States lines first offered clean and really agreeable accommodations at rates proportionately the same as the old "steerage" fares on their fast, gliding machines. Levittan. Thus the cost of North Atlantic transportation was reduced to a figure below the price of a crossing on even slower, smaller cabin ship.

Reuniting the sound business logic of this innovation the Cunard, French and White Star lines quickly followed the lead of the United States lines. In fact, "tourist-third class" service on the big express lines that it was extended to the slower cabin ship services last year. The Hamburg-American line, a company operating 8-day steamers, will inaugurate "tourist-third class" service on its boats next spring, according to Ernest Schmolck, managing director of the Paris agency.

Tourist-third rates appeal not only to school teachers and the student-American, who now complete his education by actual contact with foreign countries, but also to middle-class Americans who are enabled to spend their vacation tour Yellowstone Park and the Pacific coast.

Another explanation of the greater lure of European travel has had in recent years for Americans apart from the wealthy class who spend from three to six months abroad every year. More than one million American soldiers saw France and England during the years 1917, 1918, and 1919. For months after their return their conversations very naturally were chiefly confined to their experiences "over there." Twenty thousand delegates to the American Legion convention, including five thousand in the wives and sisters of ex-service men, came to Paris in late September from all parts of the United States. They arrived when the students and school teachers were hurrying home for the reopening of American colleges. The last of the Legionnaires didn't go back until late October.

Prosperous travel agents in Paris whose clientele includes Vanderbilts, Astors, Morgan, Hildes, Rogers, Mackays, Belmonts, and Rockefeller, were questioned by the correspondent.

FLOATING THEATER MAY PLAY COASTS

Genoa.—The Mississippi River in the old "Show Boat" days must have been the inspiration for a project that soon is to be started in Genoa. It will be the most remarkable vessel ever built—a large and fully equipped opera house. With seating accommodations for 2000 persons and a stage large enough for the production of the most elaborate grand operas, the boat will have to be as large as the average steamship. Two Genoese engineers, Carlo Giorgetti and Mario Moccacchio, are designing it. They plan to take a large Italian opera company on tour, giving performances in all the principal ports of the world.

NAVY MAY THIRST AS HONOLULU DRY WAR STOPS ISLAND STILL

Honolulu.—On the outcome of the industrial war waged by Ma-

for J. H. Cooper, prohibition director for the territory, will rest the decision whether the U. S. Fleet will have a plentiful supply of spirits. Some liquor is desired when it visits here in spring. Island moonshiners are busy laying in a stock of distilled liquors against the fleet visit, for there is tradition in the distilling business here and it is a matter of pride among the old timers that their liquor must be "aged" for at least three months before being sold. Last month Cooper's forces destroyed caches containing about 500 gallons of liquor, seized eleven large stills, and dumped about 3,675 gallons of mash.

But in the meantime, in a deep valley on the island of Hawaii, and on the slopes of Haleakala on Maui, strong silent men are busily engaged in seeing that the it root is properly baked for distillation and that the core mash is just right for rendering into the noted "Maui Corn."

On Hawaii, in fact, the cognac cent may have delivered to their names neat bottles bearing the label: "Guaranteed pure Corn. Made in Waimea."

And supplies of okolehao, commonly called "oke" are being burned by industrial Japanese, Chinese, Filipinos, and for that matter being buried deeply in order that the wants of the visitors in spring may not be unsatisfied. But the market price today is going up. Whereas good oke was purchasable three months ago for $6 a gallon, the activities of the new prohibition chief have raised it ante to $8.

Electricity is finding increasing employment in the sterilization of water, the impurities being transformed into substances which further the process of sterilization while the oxygen is turned to ozone.

(F. O. B. Detroit)

THE new Ford car has been on the market only a few days, but it has already created unusual interest throughout the country. Millions of people got the full details of it last week for the first time and were delighted with the story of its beauty, speed, comfort, safety and low price.

All day long and far into the night, great crowds gathered in hundreds of Ford salesrooms from Maine to Florida and from New York to San Francisco. Never has such interest been shown in a new car. Never has any new car so far exceeded expectations.

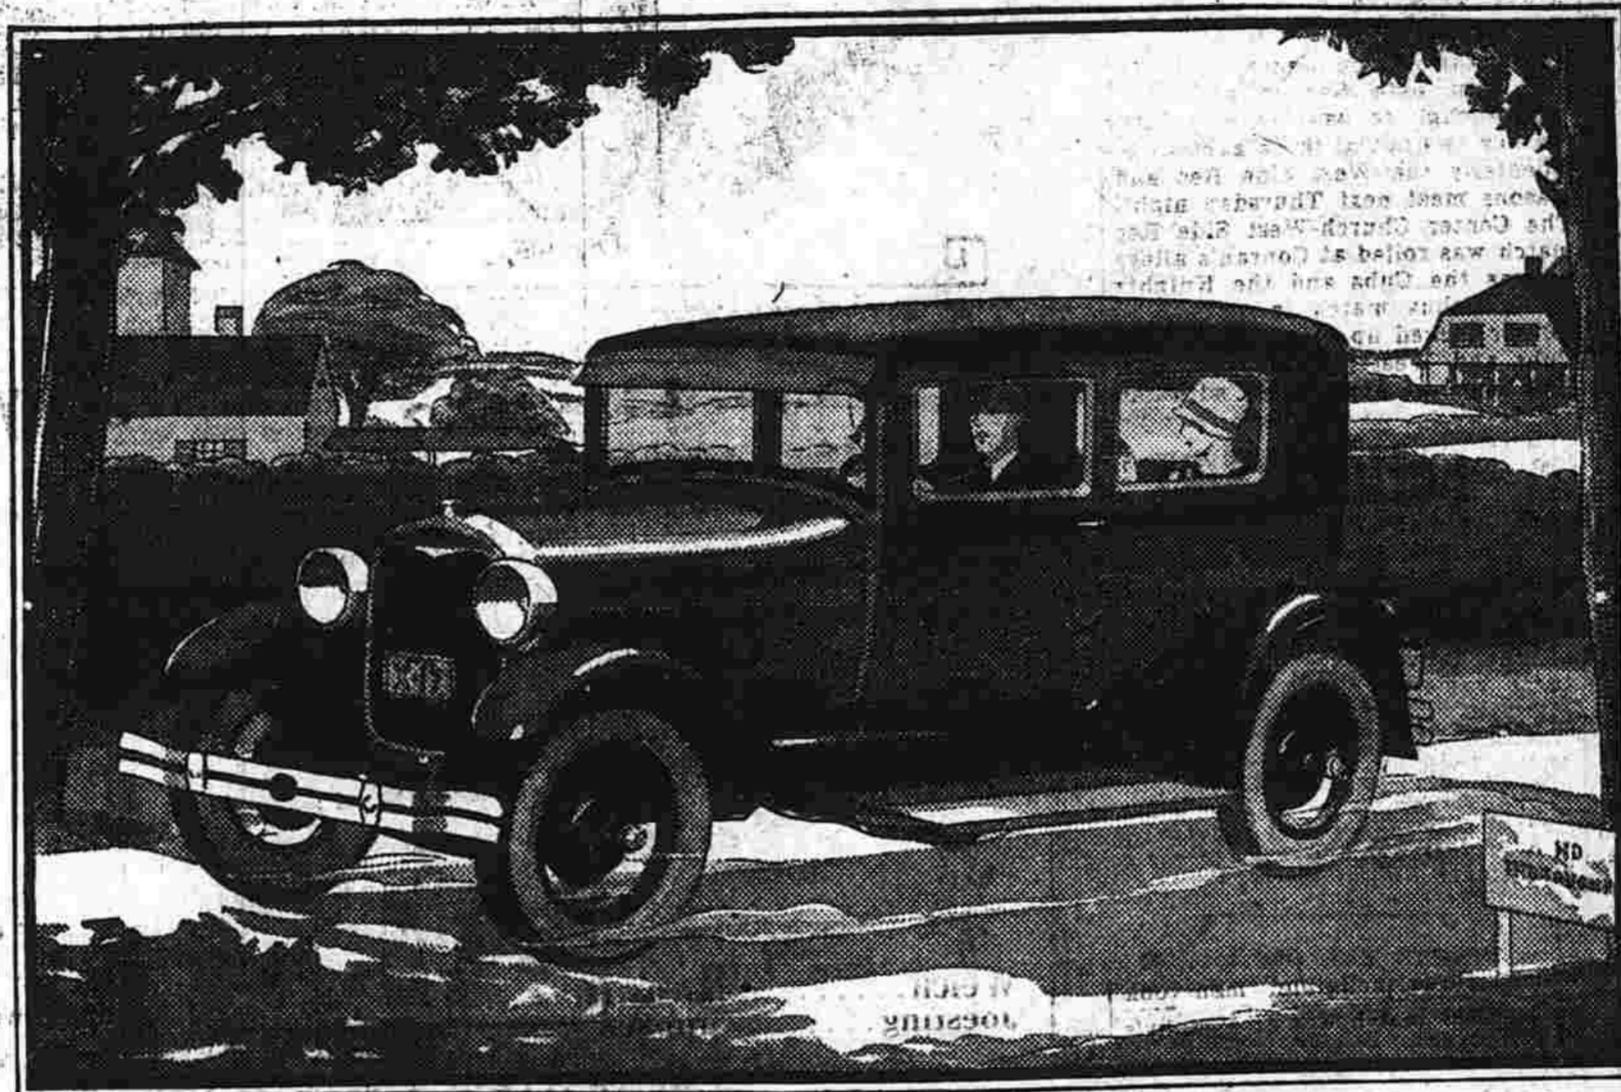

People knew that Ford was making a new car. They knew it was a good car. They had read announcements about it. But they had no idea it would be a car like this. Their quick appreciation of it is shown by the record-breaking sales.

Greatest day in the history of the automobile industry

Thousands upon thousands of orders for the new Ford car have been received since last Friday. These, and the advance orders placed with us by motorists even before the car was officially announced, will keep the entire Ford plant working day and night for weeks to come.

Such figures are a clear and unmistakable reflection of the value that has been built into the new Ford car. It is, without question, the outstanding purchase of all time in the light-car field.

car—ride in it—know the thrill of driving it easily and safely through thickest traffic or step it up to sixty and sixty-five on the open road, you cannot begin to appreciate the extent of the many mechanical improvements embodied in its construction.

It is difficult to believe that so much speed, power, beauty, quiet, comfort and safety can be had at such a low price. It would be impossible if this new car were made by anyone but Ford.

Only Ford could sell such a fine car at such a low price

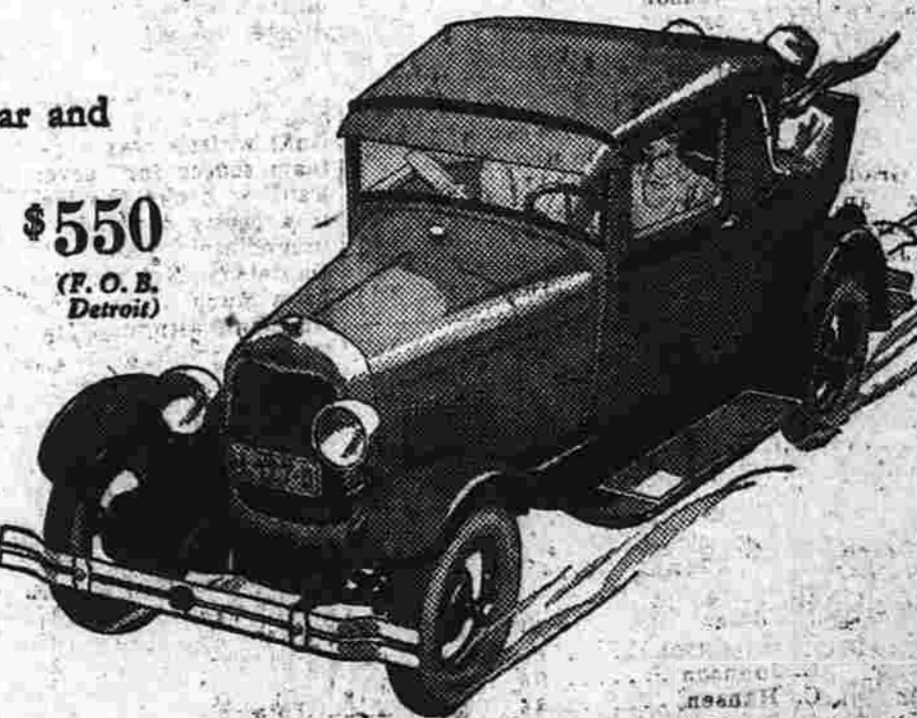

The low price of the new Ford car and its exceptional performance are the result of manufacturing practices and economies as unusual as the car itself. The new Ford is more than a new automobile. It is a new idea in modern, economical transportation.

By all means, take a little while today to learn about this new automobile. You will know that there is nothing quite like it anywhere in quality and price.

MULHALL, MACKAILL SCORE AT THE STATE

"Man Crazy" One of Two Films Showing Tonight and Tomorrow.

Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackaill have scored heavily again in their newest picture, "Man Crazy," which is one of two features at the State theater today and tomorrow.

"Man Crazy" is pictured from the Saturday Evening Post story, "Clarissa of the Post Road," and treats of a rich girl who goes out in search of adventure and love on the Boston Post Road in the vicinity of southern Connecticut.

The heroine of this story is the daughter of an old New England aristocratic family who horrifies her people when she starts a dog stand along the road. She falls in love with the truck driver a short while after she sees him and she goes with him through many adventures.

"In Old Kentucky" is not the orthodox racing film. As a matter of fact, it is very unorthodox, and that is what gives it the flavor that is different from most other films written around the track.

NEW FORD LOOKS LIKE A BABY LINCOLN

Here are the pictures the country has been waiting for—the official photos of the new Ford models, released by the Ford Motor Co. Above and below are two views of the new Tudor Sedan.

A short inspection reveals radical differences between the new model and the old "lizzie." Note how the hood and radiator lines have been changed so that the Ford now resembles a "baby Lincoln." Note also the four-wheel brakes and bumpers which are standard equipment. See how the lines of the windows and doors have been changed to give an appearance of lowness. The wheels in this model are not wire wheels; the spokes are in reality thin steel tubes, said to give added strength. Standard gear shift is a feature of the new model. The gas tank is under the cow; see the cap in front of the windshield?

NEW ROAD WORK BRINGS RECORD NUMBER OF BIDS

Contractors Make 102 Offers of 11 Jobs—Important Parts of Highway System to Be Rebuilt.

State highway work in eleven towns recently advertised for bids closing November 30 brought an extraordinary high number of contractor offers from various construction firms in Connecticut and neighboring states, the total number of bids submitted being 102 which figure is greatly in excess of the usual number, according to a statement made today by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. The bids were submitted in the customary sealed fashion for the reconstruction of 30 miles of Connecticut highway, 23 miles of Connecticut concrete and cadam.

Among the more important pieces of reconstruction covered in the bids was 29,100 linear feet of reinforced concrete on the road connecting Glastonbury with Portland on the east bank of the Connecticut River, which will eliminate the only stretch of unimproved trunkline road between the two towns. Another notable piece of reconstruction will entirely complete the road between Middletown and New Haven which has been under reconstruction during the past year. The bid calls for 28,925 feet of reinforced concrete in North Branford and North Haven. The contract covering 7,000 feet of concrete in Milford will be another step toward the completion of the double width Boston Post road between West Haven and the New York State line near Greenwich.

Other bids included 15,184 feet of concrete on the Valley Road to Saybrook in the town of Hadam; 7,285 feet of waterbound macadam between Washington Green Hill and Hotchkissville in Washington; 12,986 feet of macadam between Clinton and Deep River; 1,958 feet of concrete on North Avenue, Norwalk; 15,743 feet of macadam on the Mansfield Center-Warrentonville road; two sections of 6,422 feet and 11,346 feet of concrete on the Danbury-Ridgefield highway; and 20,150 feet on the Bridgeport-Newton road.

SENATOR REED RAPS INSULT IN ADDRESS

Fiercy Missourian Says Financier Bought Senator F. L. Smith.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—The political pot was boiling here today following a vitriolic speech delivered by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri before the Cook County Real Estate Board. The high light of the address was Senator Reed's denunciation of Samuel Insull for his alleged aid in electing Frank L. Smith as Senator from Illinois.

by name, the fiery Missourian referred to him as "the head of the public service corporation." Senator Reed also attacked Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon for his financial assistance in the Pennsylvania elections and assailed the principals in the Teapot Dome disclosures. Centering his fire on Smith and Insull, Senator Reed said:

"After he is seated in the Senate whom will Smith represent? Did the shrewd investor in public franchises make a mistake when he invested in a United States Senator? Is the man who accepted this stupendous sum of money free to consider only the interests of the Republic?"

were somewhat aghast today following the assertion of Cambridge University debaters that modern women in the colleges of today are "thumb tacks in the seat of learning."

The English team, consisting of Hugh Macintosh Foot, Herbert Lionel Elvin and M. A. B. King-Hamilton, won the decision over California debaters. The question was: Resolved: That modern woman warrants disapproval.

HOME SHORTAGE IN ENGLAND IS STILL PROBLEM

Report Showing 600,000 New Houses Are Needed In Country.

London.—That an acute housing shortage seriously detrimental to the nation's health and well-being still exists in England is revealed by a report prepared by the National Housing and Town Planning Council. According to this report, there is an immediate and urgent need for at least 600,000 new houses.

The report follows official government assurances that the housing shortage has been surmounted, and that more and more houses are being built.

Terrible instances of overcrowding and details of vile slum areas are described by the Council's medical officers, and an appeal is made that the whole situation be immediately reviewed by the Minister of Health with a view of alleviating the plight of thousands of persons living in slum districts.

Conditions Reported. From Coventry there is reported a case of a bedroom, barely 1,200 cubic feet in capacity, being occupied by a man, his wife, and their four sons and two daughters.

In Stepney, a notorious London slum district, 10,765 houses were found to be unfit for habitation, while in Kensington, generally regarded as one of London's well-to-do districts, 3,868 verminous children were treated at the public wash-houses during one quarter.

Birmingham reports a shortage of 27,500 houses, a fact which is exciting some comment since Birmingham has hitherto been regarded as one of the model areas. Manchester presents a vivid picture of deplorable conditions existing there.

WANTS WOMAN CANDIDATE

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 2.—At the suggestion of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the New York State League of Women Voters, in session here today launched a drive to have a woman nominated for a state office by both the Republican and Democratic parties at their next state convention. The woman nominees, Mrs. Roosevelt declared, should be chosen by the women in both parties and should not be candidates picked by men and handed out to the voters. Mrs. Roosevelt is a Democrat.

BILLIARD BALL

HEADS NOW GET HAIR SEWED ON

New Method of Curing Bald Pates Disclosed By Norwegian Scientist.

New York—Science has now come forth with a method of putting hair on bald heads, even though they be as bald as billiard balls. The hair is "sown" into the scalp in much the same manner as young tomato plants are transplanted to the spring gardens. The first demonstration in this country of this latest scientific achievement was carried out recently when Professor Christian Askhagen of Oslo, Norway, sewed a patch of curly bronze hair into the head of Miss Peggie Tudor, who says she is a descendant of the noble English family of that name which figures so prominently in English history. The hair was sewn into a bald patch about the size of a quarter where the natural hair had been killed by a beauty parlor accident.

Process Explained
Professor Askhagen later explained the process of inserting this foreign hair into the scalp. After disinfecting and applying local anesthetics on the part of the scalp under treatment, he explained, two root ends of hair are fixed into a gold ring that is so small it scarcely can be seen with the naked eye. By means of a hollow needle the ring to which the hair is attached is then pressed into the hair canal down to the hair follicle, the needle is drawn back, and the ring to which the hair is fixed remains behind in the follicle. It does not irritate the skin, for it passes easily down the hair canal to the follicle, and it is only by means of its springy nature that it holds the hair fast in the hair canal. In this way the hairs take a natural position, they do not get tangled on being washed, it is easy for them to draw moisture and fat from the scalp and they are thereby kept supple and strong.

To Last 2,000 Years

This sewed-in hair will stay in the head forever, the professor says, or at least for 2,000 years. Professor Askhagen said he has worked at his discovery for the past eighteen years, during which time he has covered many European domes with hair where once they were perfectly bald. "That takes time," he explained, "because only a small bald patch can be filled at one sewing. For a large head perhaps 32,000 separate hairs are used." Curly hair raises technical difficulties, the professor said. In covering a bald spot he always starts along the edge of the natural hair, so that the spot gradually grows smaller until it disappears.

PICTURE ON STAMPS

Bucharest—It always has been the custom of the Rumanian government to use the picture of the reigning sovereign on postage stamps. In accordance with this, 6-year-old King Michael's likeness is to appear on a forthcoming issue, even though he is not an active ruler. The portrait shows the boy in a simple white shirt of American design.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Women who claim they're on a diet should remember that figures don't lie.

LETTER GOLF

HANG IT UP, WILLIAM
From COAT to RACK is merely five strokes, but it seems a long way to the rack for William, who often hangs his on the floor.

COAT
RACK
A grid for a word game where the goal is to change COAT to RACK using one letter at a time.

1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

Henry doesn't seem to have any better luck in keeping his cars out of the ditch than he did in getting the boys out of the trenches by Christmas.

"What was the name of the hotel you stopped at in Hartford, dear?" "Oh, I can't remember the name. Just a second and I'll look through my towels."

SENSE and NONSENSE

December
I saw her with her rosary of amber rays
And on her eyes a veiling haze
Of misty blue.

All a musician does for a living is play around.

A friend is one who is glad when you win and sorry when you don't.

A woman's tears and a dog's limp are not always what they seem.

The main trouble with the girl of today is she refuses to act like the girl of yesterday.

Disillusion
He swore by her, she swore by him.
But ah, what bitter tears now blur
Their eyes! They married, now
With vim
She swears at him, he swears at her.

If you think men are bosses still, observe how few now sit on the front porch without their shoes.

There have been over 16,000,000 inventions patented, but the best of all have been entirely overlooked—an adjustable engagement ring.

The young doctor coughed rather gravely. "I am sorry to tell you," he said slowly, looking down at the very sick man in the bed, "that there is no doubt you are suffering from scarlet fever and, as you know, it is extremely contagious."

"Dearie," he said in a faint but distinct voice, "if any of my creditors call, you can tell them that at last I am in a position to give them something."

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

He'd Make It Easier for Santa

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"So, now you're good," wees Clowny said. And then he shook his little head. "I have my doubts, but even so, I hope that you are right. If falling in that little stream's to blame I'm glad. It's like a dream." And then a Buddy answered, "Yes, we're good when we are white. That water washed the black from us and now not one of us will fuss, no matter what may happen. We will all be very gay. That's something we can prove to you. Just tell us what you'd like to do, and we will gladly join you whether it is work or play." This puzzled Clowny for a spell, and then the Buddies heard him yell, "Let's take your wagon from the stream before it breaks in two. 'Twill come in handy, now and then. You all may want to ride again." The Buddies cheered, and said this was the proper thing to do. Down to the stream they gally went, and 'bout a half an hour was spent before they got the wagon out, and safely on the shore. They had to work with all their might. Some rocks had held the wheels real tight. Poor Clowny tugged, away so hard it made his muscles sore. They all sat down to rest a while. One Buddy then began to smile. "I'll tell you what we'll do," said he. "It's Clowny's turn to ride. We'll pull him in the wagon fast to where the other Tynites are." Then Clowny jumped up to his feet. "That will be fine," he cried. So, in the wagon Clowny jumped. He was so thrilled, his wee heart thumped. "I'll soon see all the other Tynites," said he. "Hurry!" The Buddies quickly grabbed a hold, and o'er the hill the wagon rolled. They laughed and shouted merrily, when they were on their way. (The Good Buddies become Bad Buddies again in the next story.)
