

PRESIDENT OF FREE STATE IS GIVEN WELCOME

William T. Cosgrave Greeted By Thousands In New York—Visibly Affected By Cheers of Crowds.

New York, Jan. 20.—President William T. Cosgrave of the Irish Free State, a slim soft-voiced man of 47 with sandy hair and mustache, arrived in New York today to pay his respects to America. It was the first time in the long, stormy history of Ireland that an Irish leader had come to these shores bearing tidings of success already achieved in Ireland's fight for freedom.

Nineteen guns from the batteries on Governor's Island boomed a welcome to President Cosgrave as he stood on the deck of the city's reception boat, the Macom, which brought the distinguished visitor up the bay from the liner Homeric.

"My heart is filled with the deepest feelings of emotion," said Cosgrave as he stepped on American soil, at the Battery, shortly before noon.

Police precautions were taken to guard Cosgrave. Fully 3,000 mounted motorcycle police lined Broadway, from the Battery to City Hall, where Mayor James J. Walker welcomed the Irish president. Troops from Governor's Island were massed in the vicinity of City Hall park, where thousands of persons assembled to pay tribute to the visitor. There had been signs of anti-Free State activities. There was no untoward demonstration, however.

Irish leaders of New York, in polished high silk hats, went down the bay in the Macom to welcome Cosgrave on the liner Homeric. Cosgrave was taken aboard the flag-decked Macom while the band played the national anthem and the anthem of the Irish Free State.

Greeted With Cheers
Then, amid tooting whistles and the blowing of sirens on harbor vessels, Cosgrave came up the bay. When he landed at the Battery he was given a deafening cheer by the vast throng that had assembled.

Cosgrave was visibly affected by the warmth of the welcome. "I had not expected this," he remarked.

"To newspaper men, he said: "This is the first time in the history of Ireland that a representative of our government comes to see your country with a message of good will and gratitude for the sympathy and support your country

MEN LIVED A WEEK ON SUNKEN SUB S-4

Expert Watchmaker So Reports After Examining Watches of Dead Sailors.

Charlestown Navy Yard, Boston, Jan. 20.—Many of the 32 men whose bodies were recovered from the sunken submarine S-4 lived from the time of the crash—the late afternoon on Saturday, Dec. 17th—until the following Sunday morning or afternoon, according to testimony to the Naval Court of Inquiry today by Commander A. F. Dysart, quoting the opinion of an expert watchmaker of Boston, who examined watches found in the water and oil soaked clothing of the victims.

The deduction was based on the fact that all watches had stopped at a time different from the hour of 3:39 P.M., the time of the crash between the S-4 and the Coast Guard destroyer Paulding.

The watches had been stopped as the result of water penetrating the cases.

Science To Remould Man Within Century

Washington, Jan. 20.—Before another century has winged its way down the corridors of time, the world will be remoulded to the heart's desire of man—a world devoid of pain, worry, poverty, brutality—emanating from the overwhelming crusher of dreams and achievement—routine.

It is sound psychology that our conscious actions and efforts respond to the vision of an end to be attained. Physical man, his mind and body and soul, will be remoulded along lines that will correspond to the new and ideal conditions of tomorrow—fatiguing, manual labor will be banished and we'll work "for a day at a sitting and never be tired at all."

The Author
Dr. Henry D. Hubbard, an outstanding American scientist and secretary of the United States Bureau of Standards, is the painter of this alluring picture of future life in the civilized world, and he bases his prediction, not on dreams and fancy, but upon the remarkable accomplishments of science.

"Man's mind is far too valuable for creative work to waste on doing the same thing twice in the same way," Dr. Hubbard told the International News Service today.

"Since measurement is the quest for truth and truth makes men free, we begin to see a universal function of measurement—we measure our way to emancipation from the routine by such analysis of skill that we can specify it in units of measurement.

REWARD INCREASED FOR MISSING GIRL Smith Family Offer $10,000 If Daughter Is Found Alive—Mother Collapses.

New York, Jan. 20.—The search for Miss Frances St. John Smith, 18-year-old student who vanished from Smith college a week ago, swung back to New York City today with the arrival here of her brother, St. John Smith, Jr., and a private detective.

Their hurried trip from Northampton, Mass., where the search has centered, stirred rumors that Frances was being held captive by abductors waiting for a further increase in the $10,000 reward offered by the girl's father.

Another report was that the young student had sought seclusion in a thickly populated neighborhood where she was likely to remain unrecognized.

The movements of St. John Smith, Jr., and his companion today were cloaked in mystery. They refused to divulge whether they had any new information or clues.

From various sources reports continued to pour into police headquarters that Frances had been seen in this city.

MOTHERS MESSAGE Northampton, Mass., Jan. 20.— The heart-broken mother of Miss Frances St. John Smith was in a state of collapse at the Northampton House here today.

In poor health, the mother came here to personally assist in the search despite the pleadings of other members of the family.

Time and again during the past week Mrs. St. John Smith has had her hopes raised only to be cast down when a clue failed.

Mastering all that remained of her waning strength, the grief-stricken woman poured out her mother love in this public message to her daughter:

"To Frances St. John Smith:

FRED H. WALL, VETERAN NEWS WRITER, DEAD

End Comes Suddenly and Unexpectedly Though He Had Been Long Ill—Former Postmaster.

Death struck swiftly last night when it took a man who had been fighting it gamely the better part of his life, Fred H. Wall, veteran Manchester news and publicity writer, finally lost his battle, lost it so suddenly that it came in shocking contrast to the long, uphill struggle he had been through. Shortly after six o'clock last evening Fred Wall passed away. He had become suddenly ill at noon-time lunch, fell into a semi-conscious state and never regained consciousness before death.

Born Here.
Fred H. Wall was born in Manchester, but shortly after his birth his folks moved to Talcottville where his father had purchased a farm. In Talcottville Fred received his education. After leaving the grammar school in that village he worked in the card room at the Talcott Brothers plant. Then John Wall, Fred's father, died and the family sold the farm. They moved to Edward street at the north end, and after attending school here Fred decided to look for work.

Fred H. Wall

The Manchester Herald had just located in the building it now occupies on Hilliard street and just shortly before had begun issuing twice a week. Fred Wall wanted to learn the printing business and he secured a position with The Herald as "printer's devil."

He soon took a liking for writing news items, however, and gave up thoughts of the printers' trade to go into the office, help on the books and write news items.

APPE MAN BEGINS LIFE SENTENCE

On Way to Prison Mobs Try To Get At Him—Is Closely Guarded.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 20.—Today he is number 44. A week ago he was Adolph Hotelling, respected citizen of Owosso, Mich., deacon of the Church of Christ; beloved husband and father.

He is beginning the second day of the life sentence imposed on him for the fiendish butchery of five-year-old Dorothy Schneider of Mt. Morris.

He covers in his cell mumbling. He peers furtively at the passing wardens and shrinks in terror from the cold hate in the eyes of his fellow prisoners.

He arrived last night. During the trip he sat beside Deputy Sheriff Mark Palthrope, another eating no sleeping.

Behind him as the train sped on he left the subsiding clamor of the greatest manhunt in Michigan's history. But ahead of him at every wayside station were gathered crowds that pushed and struggled a glimpse of him.

Now to "Bogeyman"
Mothers held aloft their children and pointed to the car window at which he sat. He had become a "bogeyman," this village carpenter who had never spoken harshly to his own little ones, and to whom the children of his neighbors once had run with trusting smiles.

At Soo Junction an infuriated woman hurled a chunk of ice at his head.

Succor for Prisoners of the Deep

There'll be less loss of life in submarine accidents like the S-4's if the device here pictured in tests on the Charlestown, Mass., bridge is adopted generally by under-water craft. As part of a submersible's hull, it would form a separate compartment through which food, water and air could be passed to the crew in case of disaster.

SMITH IS BARRED FROM U. S. SENATE

New Unwritten Law Used to Keep Illinois Senator From Taking Seat.

Washington, Jan. 20.—A new "unwritten law," barring from the Senate men elected through the expenditure of great campaign funds, was drying on the statute books today as a result of the Senate's action in excluding Frank L. Smith, Republican of Illinois.

For the first time in its history, the Senate denied a seat to a senator-elect holding legal credentials, on the ground that excessive campaign expenditures tainted his election with "fraud and corruption."

In excluding Smith, the Senate formally ended the "rule" laid down in the old Newberry case six years ago, that heavy campaign expenditures invalidated an election.

Overwhelming Vote
The vote ousting Smith was so overwhelming that it surprised even his opposition. It was 61 to 23, with 21 Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite and 39 Democrats voting against him, while two Democrats and 21 Republicans voted for him.

Illinois was left with but one Senator as a result of the Senate's action. Authorities here were agreed that the next move is up to Gov. Len Small of Illinois, who can appoint a temporary successor to Smith pending a special election to fill the vacancy or simply permit the vacancy to exist until another Congress convenes, when Smith might try again to enter the Senate.

Up to Governor
The preponderance of opinion here was that Small would appoint a successor, owing to the tremendous majority against seating Smith.

The case against Senator-elect William S. Vare, Republican of Pa., was practically settled by the Smith vote, according to leaders on both sides. The Vare case however, was complicated by the contest filed against him by William B. Wilson, defeated Democrat. The Senate probably will not decide the Wilson contest for months to come, although it may act on Vare's right to a seat within the near future.

FORCE ARBITRATION ON ALL NATIONS IS PLAN OF GUERRERO

Foreign Minister of San Salvador Tells Correspondents His Views At Pan-American Congress; United States Delegates Keep In the Background.

Havana, Jan. 20.—Compulsory arbitration of all international disputes in the western hemisphere is favored by Gustavo Guerrero, foreign minister of San Salvador, this official told the correspondents today. Minister Guerrero was elected chairman of the committee on public international law, one of the most important of the Pan-American conference, and his selection insures the liveliest debate upon the question of codification of international law.

Minister Guerrero said he does not favor the proposal for establishing an arbitration court for the American republics, holding that the existing machinery of the World Court suffices.

He evaded the question as to whether he favored this conference writing a new definition of "intervention," such as proposed by Mexico, Haiti, Uruguay and others.

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 20.—The threatened Latin American insurrection against the Latin American policy of the United States appeared today to be pretty well squelched. Yeoman diplomat work had been accomplished by the American delegation since its arrival in Havana to deal with the Sixth Pan-American Conference. As a result of this work, the conference swung into the committee stage today with the most of the opposition elements in a friendly mood.

Mexico Friendly
Mexico's delegation, for example, is so friendly that Ambassador Dwight Morrow is returning to his post in Mexico City this week-end. Nobody believes that Ambassador Morrow would leave vacant his vacant chair in this Pan-American conference and return to Mexico City if there was any likelihood of Mexico's Delegation upsetting the international apple cart at Havana.

Similarity with other world controversies. Charles C. Evans Hughes, who admittedly is the outstanding international figure in the conference, graciously declined to serve as chairman of either of the most important committees of the conference, those dealing with the codification of public international law and with the future status of the Pan-American Union.

Hughes' Plea
Hughes pleaded that his duties as chairman of the American delegation would prevent his giving adequate time to the work of the committees and instead of accepting the honors himself. He nominated for chairman of the international law committee Dr. Gustavo Guerrero of Salvador, who has been among the most vigorous of the United States' policy in Nicaragua and through Central America generally.

Dr. Guerrero was highly pleased by the compliment of being chosen the chairman of the most important committee of the conference. It is this committee that will have to deal with the question of whether under international law the United States has or has not "invaded" Nicaragua by the dispatch of thousands of marines to occupy the towns and insure a "free election" next year.

Important Committee
The first chairmanship of committee that Hughes refused was that of the Pan-American Union. This is an important committee if for no other reason than that some of the smaller countries of Latin America are insisting that the union be removed from the class of an international debating society and given power to supervise such things as the present American military occupation of Nicaragua.

The chairmanship was given to Enrique Olaya, of Columbia, who, within his diplomatic limits, has not entirely approved of American diplomacy in Nicaragua and elsewhere in Latin America.

The grant of chairmanships of important committees to the Latin Americans, and particularly to those who might be unfriendly, rather than to the large and imposing United States delegation has created a most favorable impression upon the delegates.

The program today called for more committee meetings. The work of the Congress has been all split up in committees and it is improbable that there will be another plenary session for several weeks.

DR. GULFOYLE CHARGED TODAY WITH MURDER

Mrs. Gaudet Dies and Hartford Veterinarian Is Closely Guarded After Police Get Dying Confession.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 20.—Mrs. Max J. Gaudet, of New Haven, died in Hartford hospital at 8:03 A.M. today from the effects of a bullet wound in her body after a shooting affair that took place Wednesday night in the apartment of Dr. Harold Gulfoyle, a federal veterinarian on Maple street.

Two hours after Mrs. Gaudet died, Frank J. Carlton, prosecuting attorney for the City of Hartford, announced he had issued a warrant charging Dr. Gulfoyle with the murder of Mrs. Gaudet. The warrant will not be served, the prosecuting authorities refused, until the doctor improves sufficiently for him to leave the hospital. At present the doctor is pronounced on the road to recovery and is being guarded 24 hours a day.

Get Confession
Prosecutor Carlton and William J. Hill, city detective, interviewed Mrs. Gaudet just before she died and obtained a signed statement, according to the prosecutor. While the real story of the shooting affair is in the hands of the authorities through this statement the authorities refuse to divulge what actually happened.

John T. Gulfoyle, of Philadelphia, father of the doctor, came to Hartford during the night and was permitted to visit his son. When Mrs. Gaudet died he exclaimed: "I had feared this might happen but I hoped she would live."

Mrs. Gulfoyle, who is locked up at Police headquarters following her arrest as material witness and her failure to secure a $10,000 bail, had her mother return to her today. The party were warned they must converse only in English. Any attempt to talk in German, they were told, would lead them to be escorted from the station.

CHINESE FACES DEATH IF HE RETURNS HOME

Legal Battle Starts Over Radical Student's Actions In California.

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 20.—Whether Tsing Hai Tsing will be allowed to remain in the United States or must return to his native China, after these face possible execution is the question to be decided by the Federal District Court here tomorrow.

Tsing was permitted to enter the country as a student. He enrolled in Stanford university, where he was active in radical circles and once engaged President Ray Lyman Wilbur in a controversy over the advisability of sending American troops to China. During an absence from the university the immigration bureau ordered him deported on the ground that he had lost his status as a student and had disseminated inflammatory literature.

Tomorrow's hearing will be on habeas corpus proceedings brought by several leading citizens of San Francisco on the Chinese student's behalf.

To depart Tsing to China would be to send him to almost certain execution because of his affiliation with the Nationalist Party, according to Austin Lewis, attorney retained to fight deportation. If he is permitted to remain in the country he will enroll in Columbia university, according to the attorney.

Rockville

Fish and Game Banquet Two big events that are attracting statewide interest will be held in Rockville next week and plans for both affairs are practically complete. The first of these prominent affairs will take place Thursday evening, the 26th, at the Rockville House when the officers and members of the Rockville Fish and Game Club assemble for their annual banquet. A turkey supper will be served for the party which will number 100 with Governor John H. Trumbull as guest of honor, also members of the Fish and Game Clubs of Manchester and Stafford in attendance. Following the banquet there will be a vaudeville program by professional talent and music will be furnished during the evening by Carl Buckmaster and his orchestra.

Y. G. A. A. Ball On Friday, Jan. 27th, the entire city and a generous representation from throughout the county will center its interest on the 44th annual Masquerade Carnival and Ball of the Young German American Association to be held at the Princess hall room. Few events that are held in Rockville attract the people as does this annual affair. Pretentiously arranged in every detail, each succeeding committee in charge does its utmost to surpass prior achievements until nothing is left to be desired in the way of elaborateness of decorations, costumes, music and refreshments. This big event of the year will open Friday evening, the 27th at eight o'clock with a concert program by Max Kabrick and his orchestra of ten pieces and from 9 o'clock to 1 o'clock, Saturday morning, dancing will feature a grand prize march participated in by the maskers who will be awarded several valuable prizes by the association. A dance program of unusual excellence has been arranged by director Max Kabrick and a "rent" breaking crowd is sure to attend the time honored event of the city.

Notes A large delegation from this city and surrounding towns will attend the Three-in-One club dance at Ellington Town Hall Saturday evening. Music will be furnished by Carl Buckmaster's orchestra of eight pieces.

Burpee W. R. C. will hold a public whist at the home of Mrs. Frank Hall of Brooklyn street this evening. There will be prizes and refreshments.

Mrs. William Davis entertained a bridge Tuesday evening at her home on Elm street. Mrs. George Dickson was the prize.

RAYON ONLY NEW TEXTILE PRODUCT

Others Centuries Old, Get Together Club Members Are Told at Cheney Hall.

Rayon, described as "pure cellulose treated by chemical and mechanical processes to produce a textile fibre", and the only fabric the ancients didn't know about was explained to 300 members of the Cheney Together Club of Cheney Brothers last night by William C. Cheney. A few people not members of the club took advantage of the public meeting to hear about the product.

A New Product Col. Cheney's story of rayon was told largely through the exhibition of a film furnished by the Viscose Company, the largest manufacturer of the fibre in this country. It was explained that all four of the major textile fabrics—cotton, wool, linen and silk were made of cellulose even ages ago. The knowledge of silk making was held by the Chinese 4,000 years ago.

But, rayon dates back not much further than 1910. Chemists had experimented with cellulose, trying to imitate the silk worm many years before that, but it was not until 1910 that a cellulose fibre was satisfactorily produced. Today large plants are working night and day, and some of them seven days a week, turning out rayon threads. Cheney Brothers are using great quantities of it in making cloth, either wholly of the fibre or in combination with pure silk.

The Name Rayon is a coined word used by the trade to get away from any reference to artificial silk. It was in its origin a "look" exactly like "artificial silk" and "lustron". The latter word is more indicative of the product than any other, because it has a brilliant sheen.

Every step in the manufacture of rayon was clearly shown by the motion pictures. Both wood pulp and cotton are used in the manufacture of the product, but it is being found that cotton produces the best results and this is being used more extensively than wood. The cotton or wood are ground up, washed, chemically treated, and finally converted into a sticky material that "looks" exactly like molasses. This material is squeezed through fine holes in a steel plate into acid which hardens it immediately into a fibre. Then it is twisted into a thread, washed and dried and is ready to be knit, or woven.

Previous to the motion pictures and talk on rayon the Get Together club members enjoyed a chicken à la King dinner in the lower hall. It was prepared by Chef Urbano Osano and was one of the best dinners the club has enjoyed in some months.

Immediately following the dinner election of officers was held and Herman E. Montie was unanimously named as president for the ensuing year. He was given the obligation by ex-past-supreme-grand-vice president Charles Stays and received a croquet mallet for a memento. Then followed a group of good stories and impersonations by Frank Hicking and a couple of old country songs by Samuel Herron. A group of executives from the Hockanum Mills Company attended the meeting as guests of the club.

ANOTHER CANDIDATE Washington, Jan. 20.—Another favorite son entered the Republican presidential sweepstakes today when John Nolan, of Boston, opened headquarters here in the interests of Governor Alvan T. WIDE-VARIETY IN THE PHASES OF PASTORAL Chadwick's "Noel," to Be Given At S. M. E. Church Sunday, Of Unusual Interest.

Chadwick's "Noel," which is to be given by the choir at the South Methodist church on Sunday evening, has been found to possess an unusual appeal wherever it has been presented, perhaps because of the wide variety in the various phases of the pastoral, which range from the most delicate, subdued pianissimo to jubilant, sonorous fortissimo.

There is a chorus number, set for female voices, "Parvum Quando Cerno Deum," which, when this work was produced last year, was much commented on for the beauty and intensity of its expression. The women members of the choir are striving, this year, to excel last year's performance of this number. The final chorus, "And Tugue," "How Lovely Shines the Morning Star" is a fitting conclusion to a musical composition noteworthy for the high excellence of its themes.

Equally distinctive and meritorious are the solo numbers, and on Sunday's production they will have the benefit of especially adequate interpretation. Each of the four soloists is well known and as well known to be fully at home in the exactions of "Noel." Director Archibald Sessions has rehearsed his choir in every detail of the composition and feels certain that the cantata will be successfully produced. In his work at the organ Mr. Sessions has a difficult problem of interpretation, but as his is a master hand, there is no question on that score.

Mrs. Bertine Lashinske

The soloists are Miss Eleanor Willard, soprano; Mrs. Bertine Lashinske, alto; Fred W. Reichard, tenor; and Robert J. Gordon, baritone.

These are the numbers: Organ prelude, "The Star"; chorus, "This Is the Month"; chorus and soprano solo, "From the Eastern Mountains"; alto solo, "O Long and Darksome Was the Night"; chorus for female voices, "Parvum Quando Cerno Deum"; bass solo, "I Was a Foe to God"; also solo and chorus, "While to Bethlehem We Are Going"; soprano solo, "Hark a Voice"; carol (14th century), "A Child is Born"; tenor solo, "O Holy Child"; quartet, "Hither Come, Ye Heavy Hearted"; chorus and fugue, "How Lovely Shines the Morning Star."

being, according to Hubbard, and that is a human devoid of meanness and jealousy of mind, without the many other ugly qualities that make up the unhappiness-free from the physical ills that contribute so much to the misery of life.

"We are beginning to prove all things and hold fast to what is good," Hubbard said. "Measurements today are the greatest factors in artificial selection which is gaining intelligent control of the evolution of plant, animal and that part of the earth we inhabit. "Today we have faith that even the intangibles like intelligence, emotion, attention, ability, resilience, to disease, can be measured with results even more striking than those attained with cosmic material and forces."

Science is freeing the mind and hand of man for creative thinking and dreaming and doing, at the same time giving him undreamed-of powers, according to Hubbard. "It gives him power to reconstruct himself and the world, moulding each to his dreams and ideals. It gives him an externalized set of perceptive and creative powers in automatic mechanism, which continuously harvests new knowledge for his use. "Measurements and intelligent handling of their application is so coordinating man with his world that mastery is inevitable," Hubbard said.

STORM WARNINGS Washington, Jan. 20.—The Weather Bureau today issued the following storm warning: "Between 10:30 a. m., storm warnings changed to northwest north of New York to Eastport, and warnings down south of Sandy Hook to Jacksonville. Storm of great intensity over western Quebec will cause strong winds and possibly gales tonight along the north Atlantic coast from Sandy Hook northward."

CHAMBER HAS KEPT $9,000 IN TOWN

Saved Much Cash to Folks Here That Swindlers Were After.

Direct results obtained by the Chamber of Commerce and the benefit to Manchester people during the past year through the protective service afforded by the chamber are detailed in a folder which is to be distributed to the membership of the organization this week.

A definite saving of nearly $9,000 has been made possible to Manchester people who became involved in transactions with shady corporations or with companies whose methods of doing business were not up to the best ethical standards. Some of these savings in individual cases amounted to as high as $2,400. Others run all the way from amounts less than ten dollars to $1,000.

Off Sucker Lists Manchester was taken off the mailing lists of companies which do business by sending merchandise and later making demands for payment. The chamber endeavored to educate people here to hold their merchandise and refuse to pay for it, thus making it necessary for the seller to come and get it himself.

Solicitation of advertising by firms and people whose references would not stand investigation was reduced to a minimum and "charity" societies which were not what they were represented were exposed and money which would ordinarily have been given them was saved. One society particularly had been getting regular subscriptions from several Manchester persons. The chamber investigated this concern and found that very little of the money collected was going to charity and as a result the regular subscribers withdrew from the list.

Foreign Born Protected Foreign-born persons were particularly susceptible to the wiles of agents and representatives of firms who painted glowing pictures of what could be earned on a small sum of money. Some of these cases were unearthed only after a lot of money had been invested in these projects.

In one case of this kind payments were stopped on a $500 check which had been sent to the Buffalo-Texas oil company, which has been dead for several years, to the "interest" of the subscriber. If this matter had been brought to the attention of the chamber previously something like $3,400 might have been saved.

Another similar case showed that the Chamber had saved $150 on a protection charge after the investor had sunk $2,000 in a finance and mortgage company.

Building Lot Bait Building lots and the promise of free fire insurance in various parts of the country were the bait which many people were hooked. A number of cases of this kind were brought to the chamber's attention and the owners were recovered. Manchester people were advised to go to the Chamber of Commerce when in doubt about any concern which solicits money for merchandise or any concern which is solicited for several years, to the Chamber of Commerce. MAYOR OF STAMFORD IN ANOTHER DISPUTE

Stamford, Conn., Jan. 20.—Another political battle was in the offing here today, Mayor A. N. Williams, Jr., announced he would seek dismissal on John C. Williams, city engineer, and Mr. Williams retorted by engaging Paul Conroy, of Norwalk, as counsel to fight the mayor.

Williams, who was appointed city engineer in 1923 and was then confirmed by Phillips, who was serving his first time as mayor, was reappointed in 1927 and again confirmed by Phillips who was in his second term in office.

The mayor today made public a letter which he had sent the engineer, accusing him of disregarding the mayor's orders, and announcing that the mayor would serve him with a writ of mandamus to make checks for Williams after midnight on Jan. 28. The engineer replied by saying: "I will take no orders from either the mayor or the Board of Finance but will do what the Commission orders me to do, and I will do it." Then he announced he had an attorney to aid him.

TO CALL GOVERNOR IN GREENWICH CASE

Greenwich, Conn., Jan. 20.—Carl H. Meyer, a Riverside resident, announced today he would seek out Governor Trumbull next week and ask the appointment of a special prosecutor to push a case against Silas D. Ritch, former tax collector, who is alleged to have been short some $35,000 in his accounts with the town of Greenwich. Mr. Meyer's appeal to the governor follows an appeal to Loren Willis, assistant state attorney of Fairfield county, and with Henry D. White, town prosecutor, for the prosecution of Ritch. Mr. Meyer declared both had failed to act, and he himself would wait only a few days before going to Hartford.

A special town meeting held here in December voted to accept from Ritch assets estimated at $31,000 in settlement of the shortage. Of this amount $15,000 was to come from the National Surety Co., Ritch's bondsman as tax collector, and $16,000 from real estate owned by Ritch.

Meanwhile town officials have announced that State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett has threatened to act against Greenwich for alleged illegal abatement of taxes to fraternal organizations here. According to one official Mr. Blodgett wrote "you have been getting away with murder in regard to tax abatements." A state investigation is now expected.

NO CONFIRMATION OF SANDINO DEATH

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 20.—Confirmation of reports that General Augusto Sandino, rebel leader, had been killed during an air raid over his headquarters by U. S. Marines, is still lacking today. Airplanes returning from the rebel zone said that no activity was observed. Aviators observed great flocks of buzzards over the top of El Chipote, (the district bombed last Saturday), which was taken as a sign that casualties were heavy.

Rear Admiral Sellers, U. S. N., conferred today with President Diaz, but the subject under discussion was not revealed.

CONGRESS MAY SAVE BONUS RIGHTS FOR U. S. ARMY ALIENS

Washington.—Hundreds of perhaps thousands of aliens who served with the American forces during the World War or alien dependents of American soldiers are on the verge of losing the soldier bonus voted by the American Congress. Failure to prepare and forward application in time to reach the War Department before January 1 will preclude their sharing in the bonus unless Congress should grant a retroactive extension of the time limit after it reconvenes. This question has been taken up officially through diplomatic channels by some of the foreign governments whose nationals would thus be deprived of their bonus rights, but the War Department construction of the law, they have been informed, precludes any time extension to either American citizens or aliens, unless by direct Congressional authorization. Specific request was made by the Swedish government, through the legation here, for a period of grace that would take into account the time for mails to come from Europe, so that the belated papers of a number of Swedish claimants could be accepted, but without avail. In the correspondence between the legation and the War and Navy departments, transmitted through the State Department, it was pointed out that many Swedish claimants who would be eligible to the bonus, because of their absence from the United States, had not been acquainted with their rights in the matter. The Swedish government, it was stated, had endeavored to locate such claimants through advertising and other means, but that in a number of cases the claimants had not been located until too late for them to have their papers prepared and forwarded on mail steamers due to reach New York in December.

Nationals of other neutral and allied countries are in the same situation. There were thousands of aliens who fought with the American forces who remained in Europe or returned there after the war. Others who were killed in action or have since died left parents or other dependents overseas who would under the terms of the bonus law be eligible to their bonus rights. It is but natural that these people, many of whom do not speak or read English, would be slow to learn of their privileges.

Patrolman Benjamin Harris is credited with firing the fatal shot although he was one of the more serious casualties.

SCHOOL CHILDREN BACK COAL STRIKE

Cadiz, O.—Children of union coal miners refused to attend classes at Adena, Harrison county, when the children of non-union miners were admitted to the public school there. Superintendent George Roach succeeded in settling the strike after lengthy conferences with the union men. The agreement has, for the time being at least, quieted the fear that trouble at the mines would spread to schools of the district.

Ford, Jr., Bass. 7:30 Austin Organ Recital—"A Day in Venice," a descriptive composition by Nevin, will be played by Miss Eileen Nelson tonight in the Austin Organ Co., through WTIC of The Travelers. This work depicts dawn; a rippling quiet melody at first, suggesting the sun rays as the faintly tinged canal waters; then a more vigorous sweep of melody at the suggestion of the criers beginning their daily tasks, the splashing of oars, and the din of the day's work. The next section is a lighting melody. It suggests the oarsmen's little gondola singing as they glide from one canal to another. Then comes a rousing melody. This part brings out the boldest cry of the oarsman who is telling prospective customers of his rates; the song of the contented man who has done a profitable day's business. The last part is a dreamy tune which suggests slowly moving gondolas on a moonlit stream; blinking house lights; an occasional guitar and song; and finally the silence of midnight. Bach-Gounod's "Ave Maria," arranged for the organ, will also be played. The favorite "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise" will conclude the program. I Suite—"A Day in Venice" Nevin. a. Dawn b. NEGRO MURDERER ASKS NEW TRIAL IN N. CAROLINA

Raleigh, N. C.—Is 60 hours sufficient time in which to apprehend a murder suspect, try him, convict him and sentence him to death? This is a question that will have to be decided by the North Carolina Supreme Court at an early date. The case involves the appeal of Larry Newsome, 32-year-old negro, convicted of the gruesome murder of Beulah Tedder, 15, Wayne county, white girl, for a new trial. Newsome, following one of the most spectacular trials on court record, was sentenced to die on that doubly hoodooish day, Friday, January 13, but appeal by his counsel automatically stayed execution until the supreme court acts one way or the other in the case. Unusual Incidents Several factors, outside the speed in which Newsome was caught and sentenced to die, go to make the case one of the most unusual ever recorded in North Carolina. Newsome was convicted and sentenced to die during what is believed to have been the first Sunday court session ever held in North Carolina. A short while before the jury received the fate of the negro, an armed mob attempted to take him from the little courtroom at Goldsboro. Eric Tedder, father of the girl, and William, a brother, led a mob in an attempt to take the negro from the prisoner's docket. Shouts of "get him" arose from the crowd. Audience Scatters The audience broke and rushed for exits as shots were fired into the ceiling and a rush call for the Goldsboro unit of the National Guard was sent out. Officers formed a guard around the prisoner, beating off the would-be lynchers, and presently Newsome was whisked into an adjoining room where a heavy guard was placed over him until troops arrived. A gray-haired jurist, Judge Henry A. Grady, former head of the Ku Klux Klan in North Carolina, brandished a pistol from the bench as he called for order, and the huge automatic within easy reach during the remainder of the turbulent session. The jury returned a verdict of guilty in 15 minutes.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (190) Locks Uncivilized man did not dream of locks—there was nothing worth stealing. But as he began to move upward, becoming a herdsman, farmer and mechanic in a rude way, he acquired pots, pans, kettles, weapons and tools. It took him so long to make these that he had to think of some way of safeguarding them while he slept or was away from his cave. At first the Greeks and Romans had very simple safeguards. A leather thong tied in curious knots around a handle kept the doors closed. Then bars and bolts were used and we read in old writings how the ancients' invented devices for controlling them. The bolt was the first rude lock. Some of the locksmiths of the Middle Ages did very beautiful work and made ingenious structures which, however, could not resist master keys. Some of these mediaeval locks are monsters in size, with keys two or three feet long. Others, made with crude handmade tools, are beautiful miniature locks, with keys a half inch long. 50,000 VACCINATED
IN NEW HAVEN NOW

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 20.—Upward of 50,000 persons have been vaccinated here since the first case of smallpox in the New Haven district was discovered six days ago. The vaccinations are proceeding at the rate of more than 10,000 a day with every physician working at top speed, some until midnight and all until the supply of vaccine on hand runs out. Not since New Haven's great typhoid epidemic a generation ago, has the community been so stirred as it is today over the smallpox situation. Thousands of the vaccinations have been done without charge in ten clinics maintained by the city. All comers are vaccinated without questions and lines numbering more than 1,000 individuals have formed at the clinics at times. To safeguard the gatherings the city has detailed physicians to patrol the lines and seek possible signs of illness among those seeking treatment.

Dozens of the city's 400 policemen have volunteered their services as crews to man the smallpox ambulance established by the police department. The car is on duty 24 hours a day ready to respond to any all though no call came in the first 12 hours.

Only two definite cases of smallpox have been found in the city though a suspect was located in an apartment house and promptly given attention while possible contacts were ordered quarantined. As usual rumors of the disease were spread at various times but all were found to be without foundation.

When the smoke cleared, three policemen, a fire captain and three civilians were injured and the bull was dead with fifteen bullets in his body.

HARRY LANGDON SHOWS AT CIRCLE TOMORROW

"Three's a Crowd" One of Two Features—"Fangs of Justice" Is Second

Harry Langdon, the serio-comic hero of many a comedy is at the Circle theater on Saturday and Sunday in one of his latest comedies, "Three's a Crowd." This is one of two features on the program, the other being "Fangs of Justice" with Johnny Walker, June Marlowe and Silverstreak, the famous dog, in the leading roles.

Langdon, who always has unusual and sometimes revolutionary "stunts" in his productions, has outdone himself in "Three's a Crowd." In the characterization of his heroine, Gladys McConnell, he has introduced a surprise which even outshines his introduction of a blind heroine in his late "The Strong Man."

There is another incident, one occurring on Christmas Eve, which is absolutely without parallel in film comedy.

Langdon's genius for comedy-building was never better than in "Three's a Crowd." Months were spent by the star in obtaining the new effects and new story angles which are shown for the first time on the screen.

Johnnie Walker shares equal honors with "Silverstreak" in "Fangs of Justice" and doesn't seem to mind it a bit. As "Janet Moran," the secretary of the rich contractor, cleverly portrayed by George Irving, June Marlowe adds a few more leaves to her already well furnished laurel crown. Wheeler Oakman signals his return to Hollywood by allowing "Silverstreak" to attack him several times in a manner both startling and vicious, much to the joy of the kiddies among last evening's patrons. The direction of Noel Mason Smith leaves nothing undone, while the settings are splendidly adequate.

MRS. CROSS DEAD

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 20.—Mrs. Wilbur L. Cross, wife of the dean of Yale Graduate School, is dead at her home here today after a one-day illness with pneumonia following an attack of the grippe sustained on Sunday. Funeral services will be held at 24 Edgemoor road Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Cross leaves her husband, two sons, a sister and a brother. The brother is William Avery, of Waterbury, and the sister Mrs. Arthur Gates, of Willimantic.

York, Pa., served as the capital of the United States in 1777.

SEEK QUALIFIED FLYERS FOR U. S. ARMY AIR CORPS

Washington.—Examinations to fill existing vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant in the army air corps will be held in the week of February 27 to March 3. The War Department has announced. These tests, authorized by the President, will be conducted at Mitchell Field, Long Island, N. Y.; Bolling Field, Washington, D. C.; Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala.; Wright Field, Fairfield, O.; Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill.; Marshall Field, Fort Riley, Kas.; Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex.; Grissley Field, Prestidio of San Francisco, Calif.; and Vancouver Barracks, Wash.

"Eligibility to compete in the examination," the announcement stated, "will be confined to candidates who are qualified flyers falling within the scope of the following classification: "Those who have graduated from the air corps primary flying school and from the air corps advance flying school within the past five years. Others who satisfactorily demonstrate that they have qualified for flying within the past five years."

SOLONS A JEALOUS LOT.
Washington.—Our worthy solons in Congress are a jealous lot. Take for instance the other day when Congressman Eaton of New Jersey became so unkind of the dignity in the House of Representatives that he referred to the Senate as "the higher body." Came a chorus of protests and the record was revised to "the lower body."

FRED H. WALL In the sudden passing of Fred H. Wall Manchester loses one of its chief exponents of the religion of friendliness.

A fine type of citizen and one who has been of the largest usefulness to the town; a resolute "north ender" without trace of rancor in his half frolicsome loyalty to his particular neighborhood.

That, and a lofty courage which for years sustained him in "carrying on" in living an active existence and participating largely in the affairs of the community.

BAM! It would be interesting to know just how DeWolf Hopper came to be invited to speak at a service of the Central Baptist church in Hartford and how he came to accept.

WATER GRABBERS As solid a hammering as has been handed to the Boston Metropolitan Water Supply Commission for its methods in trying to steal the waters of the Ware and Swift rivers is contained in a rebuke by the Springfield Union, which calls the commission to account for endeavoring to further its purposes secretly and by trickery.

JOE PAVICH In Spokane a bootlegger named Joe Pavich, sentenced to a term of two to five years in prison, could not abide the idea of making the journey to the prison town in an ordinary railroad train such as is used by common ministers, commercial travelers, newly-weds, and the like.

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

(44) Silk in Connecticut. Connecticut which boasts the largest silk factory in the world is fourth in the value of production in this industry. While Connecticut has increased the actual value of manufactured silk from $12,378,981 in 1900 to $55,500,718 during 1924, the percentage increase has fallen far short of the percentage increase for all states.

Massachusetts standing fifth in national ranking had a product valued at $36,608,014. Rhode Island followed close with an output valued at $34,855,263. Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, in the order named, led Connecticut, the former's goods valued at $329,121,493.

WINTERS "Never saw such weather at this time of the year; did you?" To which the answer is, Yes. It is only nine years ago since there was a very similar winter up to this date, and the open mild weather lasted considerably later than it has lasted this season, so far.

FLOOD CONTROL
PLANS OFFERED
U. S. CONGRESS

Washington—Three major plans for Mississippi River Flood Control are before Congress for consideration. They are:

1. A bill authorizing adoption of Major General Edgar Jadwin, chief of Army engineers, plan, introduced by Sen. Jones, (R) of Washington, and referred to the commerce committee, of which he is chairman.

A bill abolishing the present Mississippi River Commission and forming an organization for permanent flood control to be called the "Mississippi Valley Waters Control Commission," introduced by Senator Hawes, (D) of Missouri.

3. A bill continuing and enlarging the powers of the Mississippi River Commission, introduced by Senator Robinson, (D) of Arkansas.

Ask State Aid
Senator Jones' bill calls for a federal appropriation of $263,960,000 for the work, but provides that the states shall, when possible give financial aid and provide "without cost to the United States such drainage works as may be needed in the maintenance of any levee when it is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Secretary of War that the levee cannot be adequately maintained by local interests."

"In an emergency," say this bill, "funds appropriated for the execution of the project may be expended in the maintenance of any levee when it is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Secretary of War that the levee cannot be adequately maintained by local interests."

This bill places the flood control problem entirely in the hands of the War Department.

Ten Year Plan
Senator Hawes' plan calls for the largest appropriation. He asks for a fund of $1,000,000,000, which shall not be expended in excess of $100,000,000 annually. His Mississippi Valley Waters Control Commission would come directly under the control of the governmental administration, being composed of five executive members chosen by the president. Two of these would be engineers, two civilian and one experienced executive ability.

In Robinson's plan, the Secretary of War is authorized to "carry on continuously the plans of the Mississippi River Commission, to be paid for as appropriations may be from time to time be made by law, and a sum not to exceed $10,000,000 annually is hereby authorized to be appropriated for that purpose, for a period of six years beginning July 1, 1924."

NEW HEAVY TOURNEY
New York, Jan. 20.—Promoter Humbert J. Fugazy has announced plans for a series of heavyweight eliminations in opposition to the tournament which Tex Rickard is conducting. Fugazy said he proposed to break Tex Rickard's "monopolistic hold" by producing an opponent Tunney cannot sidestep.

Fugazy is negotiating for a match between George Godfrey, new black monee, and Knute Hansen, who hasn't been able to get a match here since he stopped Phil Scott in a round.

Fugazy hopes to bring either Luis Firpo or Victor Campolo here for a match with Roberto Roberti. Campolo, a highly-touted young Argentine heavyweight, is said to be sailing for New York this month.

WORLD GYPSY TRIBES
GIVE ROYAL FUNERAL TO DEAD CROWN PRINCE

Vienna.—Gypsies throughout Europe and America are mourning today for the Crownprince of the tribe of wanderers, whose death in the little town of Parany drew thousands of his nomad subjects to witness the royal funeral. Beloved by his court and by his comrades of the road, the young prince Miklos was entombed with a magnificence which called the world's attention for the first time to the fact that the Empire of the Gypsies is a real one with a sovereign and a throne.

Thirty gypsy bands and one hundred gypsy dancing troupes played waiting music of the Romany vagabonds and danced the dances of sorrow for five days while four thousand gypsies from every country in Central Europe rendered obsequies to their prince.

Dressed in gold brocade, the body of Prince Miklos was entered in a coffin of costly ebony. In his right hand was put a whip, fit scepter for the roving ruler. On one side of him was laid a bottle of whiskey and on the other side a bottle of wine, to treat his friends in the gypsy heavens.

Prince Miklos died of consumption at the home of his father, the present ruler of the empires of Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Austria, in Parkany, village of Slovakia, where the funeral took place.

GERMAN RAILROADS
OFFER COMFORT BAIT
TO WIN TRAVELERS

Berlin.—New bait for the American tourist has been prepared by the German railroad company in its new sleeping and dining cars, designed to win the title of the most luxurious in the world. The new sleeping cars are eight feet longer than usual permitting the beds to be made larger. There are but eleven compartments to each. Each compartment, finished in grade one maple and birch with Gobelin draperies and Persian carpets, is equipped with hot and cold running water, a large mirror and reading lamps. A thick layer of closed more than 100,000 Americans visited Berlin. The authorities reckon upon at least 150,000 next year, as the result of their intensive propaganda, of which the plan to inaugurate a "Berlin Sea" for the months of May and June is an important part.

SAP ASKS COURT TO MAKE HIM A STEM
Boston.—Louis Sap of Farmingham has been a Sap for 47 years. He's tired of it. But to avoid getting away from the tree family he has petitioned the Middlesex Probate Court to change it to Stem.

Sap told the court that he has been held up to ridicule and greatly embarrassed by his inherited surname, both in social and professional life.

At the same time Paul Butensky of Malden, dealer in general merchandise, similarly petitioned the court to change his name to Butters.

Treasure Tomb Shows Mesopotamia More Civilized Than Egypt Of Old

BY E. L. RAWLEY

Philadelphia.—Discovery of a treasure-filled grave in Ur of the Chaldees, strewn with the bodies of musicians, servants and richly decked women who accompanied their master in death, by the joint archaeological expedition of the University of Pennsylvania and the British Museum is expected to provide material that may radically reconstruct present theories of the history of civilization. The treasure-filled tomb, although the body of the king is missing, reveals that Mesopotamia civilization of 6,000 years ago was far more advanced than even that of Egypt, according to the report of C. Leonard Woolley, director of the expedition. The find supplies definite information regarding ancient civilizations that is entirely new to historians and students of the history of civilization.

Grave Is Different
The grave is entirely different from the hundreds of others excavated in the Ur cemetery in which the expedition is working, and provides material for far-reaching theories concerning the history of civilization. The very presence of the bodies of more than a score of men and women who constituted the king's household offers the first proof that in 4,000 B. C. there were practiced in Mesopotamia burial rites and ceremonies which later tradition fails to reveal.

A decorated chariot and harp, gold and silver vessels and various other treasures found in the grave serve to illustrate the wonderful degree of civilization which Mesopotamia enjoyed and how far it was in advance of contemporary Egypt, according to the report. "The first object found was the harp," Woolley states in his report. "A staff-head of gold was turned up, and then several copper nails with large gilt heads. Discovery of these disclosed a hole running down into the earth, from the shaft of which a set of stairs projected into the void left by the decay of the original wood of the harp. The hole was filled with plaster of paris, thus making a cast of what proved to be the upright beam of the harp with the remaining nails, which were the keys, in their correct positions."

Chariot Found
"The second big discovery was a chariot. Here, too, the wood all had perished, leaving only hollows in the soil, but the decoration again enabled us to recover the original design. And the decoration was marvelously rich in realistic modeling which must rank as one of the masterpieces of ancient art."

"We had never hoped to recover from the salt-laden soil of Iraq, the design of things so perishable as these. Now for the first time, we can realize the extraordinary richness of the furniture which a Sumerian king might possess in the middle of the fourth millennium before Christ."

"The chariot had been drawn by two asses, and at the head of each ass lay the groom, as if still holding the reins, while a third groom lay nearby. The whole group reminded one of the description that Herodotus gives of the funeral of a Scythian king. On three sides of a 'clothes chest' and under the offerings piled against it, we found human bodies, not properly laid out for burial but huddled up as if death had overtaken them suddenly."

Other Bodies
"In a shallow trench sunk in the floor of the main shaft and a little to one side of the chariot lay the bodies of five men, and a sixth was on the trench's edge. These had nothing to distinguish what service they were to render for their dead master."

"At the far end of the shaft the harp with the golden calf's head stood at the head of a trench in which was thirteen bodies. One body was crunched against the harp, the arm-bones actually mingling with the decayed wood of the sounding box, as if death overcame the harpist as he played."

The King's Harem
"It must be that they, like all the others buried here, were subordinated to a common purpose; it was not their grave, but the king's for there is no question here of the faithful servant dying and being buried with his master. The grooms at the asses heads were killed in cold blood. They were chattels which the king took with him in case he might need of them hereafter, just as he took his silver and gold vessels, his heavy copper axe, a set of spears with golden heads and shafts bound with gold and silver bands the women of his harem, and his gaming board and dice."

Among the offerings piled against the 'clothes chest' were stone vases, jars of white calcite or alabaster, great bell-shaped steatite bowls, a circular pomade box with close-fitting lid of steatite, a vase of black and white granite, an oval bowl carved from a large block of obsidian, and a spotted cup of lapis lazuli.

"One very charming object was a small semi-circular silver box with a lid of inlay work revealing a lion in white shell engraved with red set against a lapis background, and close to this was a little gold toilet set of thimble and tweezers on a gold ring."

"There were a few copper tools and weapons, the most interesting being a pair of axes of a very primitive type such as are represented on shell reliefs found at Kish, and, even more surprising, a set of gold chisels and a full-size saw also made of gold, perhaps the last thing one would expect to find in that metal."

"There were piles of copper bowls and tumblers, one inside the other, and facing these were fifteen silver tumblers nested in sets of five; silver bowls, round and oval, and a tall jug and a patten."

"Right against the earth wall at the back of the shaft we found four magnificent gold vessels, the most precious of the offerings dedicated to the dead man. Two plain and two decorated with fluting and engraving."

"One of the plain vessels was a lamp with a long trough spout; the other a chalice beautifully proportioned. One decorated vessel also was a lamp, but of a different type, and the other was a straight-sided tumbler. These four pieces, must rank with the finest examples of gold work ever, yet unearthed in Mesopotamia."

"THE DESIRED WOMAN" ON RIALTO SCREEN

Delightful Film Stars Irene Rich—Is One of Two Features Today and Saturday.

To round out a week of glorious screen entertainments, Manager Campbell of the Rialto Theater is presenting another double feature program for tonight and Saturday. The performance on Saturday is continuous from 2:15 until 10:30.

"The Desired Woman," a Warner Brothers special production starring the beautiful and captivating Irene Rich, will be the first feature. Adapted from the well known magazine story by Mark Canfield, this gay comedy-drama of modern social problems has met with spectacular success wherever it has been presented. Irene Rich, the star, needs no production to Manchester moviegoers, as she has entertained here dozens of times. Every one of her pictures has won the audience's heart and soul. In "The Desired Woman," she is said to surpass all of her previous performances. Supporting Miss Rich in the cast are William Russell, another old favorite, John Miljan, Douglas Guillard and Jack Acroyd. Michael Curtis was responsible for the direction of this picture and it certainly ranks with some of his best.

The companion-feature is Buddy Roosevelt in "Ridin' 'Em High," his latest Pathe release. In this thrilling western drama the daring Buddy rides, shoots and fights his way through a hundred breath-taking adventures that will keep the spectators on the edge of their seats. An all star cast of stars support Roosevelt in this picture.

The Rialto Short Subjects, always carefully selected, include the current highlights of the serial "Hawk of the Hills," and an Our Gang Comedy featuring the famous Hal Roach Rascals.

MIGHTY FILM DRAMA "COMING TO RIALTO"

"Michael Strogoff" Here Three Days Starting Sunday Night.

The perfection of color photography as applied to motion pictures is said to have been reached by a new invention exhibited in this country for the first time in the Universal Film de France production "Michael Strogoff," with Ivan Moskin in the title role, which comes to the Rialto Theater on Sunday night for a three-day engagement. Surely no finer opportunity for gorgeous color effects could be given a director than this famous old melodrama of Jules Verne's, which in book and play form has achieved a popularity with all ages and races. The color scenes include the palace of the Czar; the Imperial Court Ball; the camp of the Grand Kahn of Tartary; the haven; the dance of the bayaderes; thousands of wild Tartar tribesmen in their picturesque and gaudily colored flowing robes of silk, and many others.

The new art is called the French stencil process, and is said to give more faithfully the colorings of the objects photographed than any that has heretofore been shown in America.

"Michael Strogoff" is heralded by leading motion picture critics as the biggest and finest screen production of 1927.

MORMON FOUNDERS BODIES IDENTIFIED

Nauvoo, Ill., Jan. 20.—Two bodies, removed from unmarked graves on a lonely prairie near here, were positively identified this afternoon as those of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, founders of Mormonism.

Identification was made by Frederick M. Smith, grandson, from clothing and certain marks. Close by was found the graves of Emma Hale Smith, wife of the leader of the religion.

Joseph Smith, founder of Mormonism, and his brother, Hyrum, were shot and killed by a mob on June 24, 1844.

This little town was the early stronghold of Mormonism. The Smiths lived here. Joseph and Hyrum were buried secretly by loyal followers, long since dead.

Basement Graves

The bones of the two men were found in graves in the basement of an old ruins, near by the old Smith homestead stood. In one skull was a bullet hole, indicating that it was Hyrum Smith's. He was shot through the head.

Other evidence, supported by data in the possession of local members of the present day Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, is considered conclusive proof of the identity of the remains.

W. O. Hand, a Kansas City, Mo., civil engineer, and members of the reorganized church, discovered the graves and conducted the investigation.

Joseph Smith and his brother were shot down in the Hancock county jail at Carthage, Ill., following their arrest on charges of treason growing out of the destruction of a newspaper, which exposed polygamy as a Mormon article of faith.

The discovery of the graves ends an 84-year-old controversy as to whether the bodies had been removed—two years after death—to Salt Lake City by Brigham Young and his followers.

side near the piano. "Oh, they fit into the ensemble," returned Vance. "They're all light pieces of furniture which could easily have been knocked over or thrown aside, by the heavy gentleman who rode these rooms."

CHARACTERS PHILIP VANCE JOHN F-X. MARKHAM, District Attorney of New York County MARGARET O'NEILL (THE "CANARY") CHARLES CLEAVER, a manufacturer KENNETH SPOTSWOOD, a manufacturer LOUIS MANIX, an importer DR. AMBROSE LINQUIST, a fashionable neurologist TONY SKEEL, a professional burglar WILLIAM ELMER JESSUP, telephone operator HARRY SPIVELY, telephone operator ERNEST HEATH, Sergeant of the homicide Bureau

CHAPTER V "GUESS that's all, doc," Heath decided. "I'll get the body to the mortuary right away. Let's have the post-mortem as soon as you can."

"You'll get a report in the morning. And despite his apparent eagerness to be off, Doctor Doremus stepped into the bedroom and shook hands with Heath and Markham and Inspector Moran before he hurried out."

Heath followed him to the door, and I heard him direct the officer outside to telephone the department of public welfare to send an ambulance at once for the girl's body.

"Such detachment!" Vance said to Markham. "Here are you stewing most distressingly over the passing of one damned fair and frisky girl, and the medical men are bringing only over a sluggish liver brought on by early rising."

"What has he to be upset over?" complained Markham. "The newspapers are act riding him with spurs. . . . And by the way, what was the point of your questions about the torn dress?"

Vance lazily inspected the tip of his cigar. "Consider," he said. "The lady was evidently taken by surprise; for, had there been a struggle between her and the murderer, she would have been scratched, bruised, or perhaps even strangled down. Therefore, her gown and corsage were undoubtedly intact at the time she was seized. But—despite the conclusion of your dashing Paracelsus—the damage to her toilet was not of a nature that could have been self-inflicted in her struggle for air. If she had felt the constriction of the gown across her breast, she would have snatched the bodice itself by putting her fingers inside the band. But, if you noticed, her bodice was intact; the only things that had been torn was the deep lace flounce on the outside; and it had been torn, or rather ripped, by a strong lateral pull; whereas, in the circumstances, any wrench on her part would have been downward or outward."

Inspector Moran was listening intently, but Heath seemed restless and impatient; apparently he regarded the torn gown as irrelevant to the simple main issue.

"Moreover," Vance went on, "there is the corsage. If she herself had torn it off while being strangled, it would doubtless have fallen to the floor; for, remember, she offered considerable resistance. Her body was twisted sidewise; her knee was drawn up, and one slipper had been kicked off."

"Now, no bunch of silken posties is going to remain in a lady's lap during such a commotion. Even when ladies sit still, their gowns and hand-bags and handkerchiefs and programs and serviettes are forever sliding off of their laps on to the floor, don't you know?"

"But if your argument's correct," protested Markham, "then the tearing of the lace and the smothering of the corsage could have been done only after she was dead. And I can't see any object in such senseless vandalism."

"Neither can I," sighed Vance. "It's all devilish queer."

Heath looked at him sharply. "That's the second time you've said that. But there's nothing what you'd call queer about this mess. It is a straight-away case. He spoke with an overtone of insistence, like a man arguing against his own insecurity of opinion. "The dress might've been torn almost any time," he went on stubbornly. "And the flower might've got caught in the lace of her skirt or it couldn't roll off."

"Fancy that, now! One can't lock a closet door with the key on the inside—can one, Sergeant?"

perplexedly. "You never can tell why some of these crooks act the way they do."

"Tut, tut!" Vance chided him. "There should be no such word as 'never' in the bright lexicon of detecting."

Heath regarded him sharply. "Was there anything else that struck you as queer?" His subtle doubts were welling up again.

"Well, there's the lamp on the table in the other room."

"We were standing near the archway between the two rooms, and Heath turned quickly and looked blankly at the fallen lamp."

"I don't see anything queer about that."

"It has been upset—eh, what?" suggested Vance.

"What if it has?" Heath was frankly puzzled. "Damn near everything in this apartment has been knocked crooked."

"Ah! But there's a reason for most of the other things having been disturbed—the drawers and pigeonholes and closets and vases. They all indicate a search; they're consistent with a raid for loot. But that lamp, now, if you see, doesn't fit into the picture. It's a false note. It was standing on the opposite end of the table to where the murderer was committed, at least five feet away; and it couldn't possibly have been knocked over in the struggle. . . . No, it won't do. It's got no business being upset, any more than that pretty mirror over the gatelegged table has any business being broken. That's why it's queer."

"What about those chairs and the little table?" asked Heath, pointing to two small gilded chairs which had been overturned, and a fragile tip-table that lay on its side near the piano. "Oh, they fit into the ensemble," returned Vance. "They're all light pieces of furniture which could easily have been knocked over or thrown aside, by the heavy gentleman who rode these rooms."

"The lamp might have been knocked over in the same way," argued Heath.

Vance shook his head. "Not tenable, Sergeant. It has a solid bronze base, and isn't at all top-heavy; and being set well back on the table, it wasn't in any one's way. . . . That lamp was upset deliberately."

The sergeant was silent for a while. Experience had taught him not to underestimate Vance's observations; and, I must confess, as I looked at the lamp lying on its side on the end of the library-table, well removed from any of the other disordered objects in the room, Vance's argument seemed to possess considerable force. I tried hard to fit it into a hasty reconstruction of the crime, but was utterly unable to do so.

"Nothing else that don't seem to fit into the picture?" Heath at length asked.

Vance pointed with his cigaret toward the clothes-closet in the living-room. This closet was alongside of the foyer, in the corner near the Boule cabinet, directly opposite to the end of the davenport.

"You might let your mind dwell a moment with the condition of that clothes-press," suggested Vance carelessly. "You will note that, though the door's ajar, the contents have not been touched. And it's about the only area in the apartment that hasn't been disturbed."

Heath walked over and looked into the closet.

"Well, anyway, I'll admit that's queer," he finally conceded.

Vance had followed him indolently, and stood gazing over his shoulder at the sergeant.

"The key may not mean anything," Heath observed hopefully. "Maybe the door was never locked. Anyway, we'll find out about that pretty soon. I'm holding the maid outside, and I'm going to have her on the carpet as soon as the captain finishes his job here."

Every one in a while we suspect that our term of "modern woman," and our casual assumption that women never did very much until this epoch, are both ludicrously wrong.

"Gallant Ladies," which is a collection of the stories of ten adventurous ladies of history whose exploits make the "modern woman" look like a chimney corner.

There is a new book, "The German Spy," by two English pirates, Mary Read and Anne Bonney, and Belle Star and Calamity Jane, bandit ladies, represent our own country.

Hot air If there's any one thing that pulls the chin whiskers of my pet Angora, it's these damned hot-air driers now taking the place of good old towels in our nation's washrooms. Of all the messy, treacherous, you pedal and treadle and wheeze and shake and bow and then go forth for chapped hands, I'm stopping my charge accounts in all stores with hot-air driers.

USE MILD CHEMICAL STAIN REMOVERS The woman who does her own housework and more particularly her own cooking, is often deeply chagrined by stained hands. Perhaps there is a card party in the evening and she wonders how she is to get her hands in good shape before that time.

She has already bathed and brushed them with hot water and soap, and still they look soiled. She has tried cold cream with no appreciable effect and as her hands are tender, she dare not try scouring them. Here chemistry steps in to aid her.

If the discolorations are the ordinary ones caused by handling vegetables in preparing food, the probabilities are that the stains have become more deeply set by the alkali in the soap used in washing the hands, and that by using an acid which neutralizes and helps dissolve the coloring matter, she may be able to entirely remove it. But there are acids and acids. Some of the powerful acids will remove any stain very quickly—and the cuticle and flesh as well.

So it is well to choose for this purpose one of the milder acids, such as citric, tartaric, or acetic. Most of the stain removers on the market are made of one or the other of these; though sometimes oxalic acid is used, particularly when ink is the source of the offending stain.

Perhaps the source of lemon juice as a trusty stain remover. Lemon juice is citric acid in almost pure form. Tartaric acid is formed from grape juice, and household vinegar is acetic acid diluted, colored and flavored. Never use any of them unless well diluted.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

"Ideal Fashions" by Jean Belle Hamilton

The Circular Silhouette

A great office building in a certain city recently fired all its girl elevator operators and replaced them with boys. The firm explained that the girls refused to take orders from the two women starters, stopping and proceeding when they felt like it, and utterly refusing to heed the starters' signals. The men follow the women's orders implicitly, the management says.

We hadn't heard about women refusing to work for other women for some time, but there's no denying that all of us do hate taking orders from them, even if it does seem far-fetched to refuse to start an elevator when a woman starter says "go."

I suppose that women know another woman's game (too well and perhaps, too, we're all out after the same spoils and find it only good business to take a crack at a competitor. This is woman's really big fight—to work and play fairly with other women.

NOSE POWDERING How many times a day does and should a girl powder her nose? This weighty question pops up in our daily press. The same research in London revealed that the London girl powdered her proboscis four times an hour. The average over here seems to run six times a day. Well, what of it? If this is started by an office efficiency worker I recommend that he next start an investigation on the number of times a day a man stops work to light and smoke his fags or pipe.

While pleated, draped, and tiered skirts are shown for elegant afternoon frocks, the simple day dress retains a youthful flaring line with the chic of slightly fitted bodice and hip, creating a slender silhouette. The versatile collar opens in a deep V disclosing a vest of contrasting material. Fabric ties caught into the shoulder seams are characteristic of the new mode. This frock has particular style interest for the woman of larger proportions since all appearance of bulkiness has been eliminated. Designed in sizes 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust. Size 38 requires 3 1/2 yards 39-inch material. Price of pattern 15 cents.

PLANTS' BATHS If your ferns, Jerusalem cherry trees and other plants look peaked, put them in the bath tub and turn the shower on gently. Plants need baths as much as humans.

IT'S ALL ON ONE FLOOR

"The little brown cottage on one floor" best describes the homeliness and convenience of "The Dayton." Its brown stained boards are restful and the trimmings of cream attractive. Its compactness makes it the ideal home for the couple who both work, or the couple with perhaps one or two children, when the mother wants something in her life besides housework. For "The Dayton" is so well-arranged that the housekeeping problem is lightened materially.

All on one floor—steps are saved, there is no extra room such as halls that need eternal cleaning; little furniture is required to make it cozy and yet there is space enough to commend it.

There is special advantage in the way the house is laid out. The living is an exceptionally long room for so small a house. Its 9 by 9 dimensions insure a certain spaciousness usually entirely absent in a home of this size.

The kitchen, on the other hand, is small. And any housewife knows the steps saved over a period of a year or two, when the kitchen has been planned conveniently dismountable. Here a good arrangement of cupboard next to refrigerator and table under the window and nearby range cuts the steps down also.

The bathroom is conveniently located between both bedrooms but on a little hall so entrance can be made without going through either bedroom. Each bedroom has its closet, which is another feature that will appeal to the woman who lives to keep her home spick and span. Also most appealing is the price of "The Dayton," which is from $2200 to $3200.

For further information about "The Dayton" write The Standard Homes Company, Colorado Building, Washington, D. C.

LACQUER RED A dark room was livened appreciably by a small table and a cheap lamp being painted a lacquer red. Orange might do as well.

COLORED CURTAINS New bath curtains in vivid colors add a charmingly cheerful note to a bleak white bathroom. Towels and bath mat might match.

LINEN BLOUSE Printed handkerchief linens, in the season's colors and designs, are the media for some new interesting blouses. Many are hand-blocked.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

SCIENCE HELPS US HALT INFECTIOUS DISEASES By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Modern medicine has developed various procedures for helping persons to resist infectious diseases. Unfortunately, it is not possible to vaccinate people against every disease or to inject serums that invariably will be potent.

Briefly summarized by Hygiene, the health magazine, the following are the conditions in which active immunity can be produced: In smallpox, vaccination provides immunity, enduring in some persons for life and in others for variable periods.

Against diphtheria, immunity is secured by the inoculation of toxin-antitoxin. The degree to which immunity has been secured can be readily tested by the Schick test. How long the immunity lasts it is not possible to say, though undoubtedly in most cases six or more years.

Against typhoid and paratyphoid fevers, inoculation has abundantly proved its worth. It saved many thousands of lives during the World War.

A Little Fling Now and Then

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Forewarned is forearmed" goes the old saw, and what the middle-aged woman won't be doing now to keep an eye on her middle-aged husband, Hawkshaw didn't know about it. It has become common knowledge in the last few years that Don Juan's are not always twenty, or even thirty or forty, but quite as often much older. Divorce records prove it.

Seriously speaking, it is perfectly true that with the weight and responsibility of family cares slackening there does come a time in many men's lives when the home fires lose a bit of their lustre. Then they are likely to take one last look outside the window before old age overtakes them.

If the other half of the family finds it out, there is bound to be unhappiness and even perhaps a break altogether.

But if the right kind of love lies behind it, wives will be patient and understanding and overlook matters that are harmless enough in themselves. A little fling often isn't as serious as it may look. It may pay to wait and see what happens before hurrying off for a divorce. I know one such woman. Her husband after twenty-five years of happy married life thought he was in love with another woman, younger and more attractive than she.

He dined pretty constant attendance on his new affinity for a while, took her driving, sent her flowers, and did even the more un-forgivable thing of asking his wife to make a fuss over her also. Her friends protested. "Just wait," she

MICROSCOPE TO AID SOVIET WAR AGAINST KISSING OF IKONS

Moscow.—The microscope has been drafted in the fight against religion. Members of the Academy of Sciences have made hundreds of photographs of church ikons, and announced that the sacred treasures, kissed by hundreds of persons daily are literally swarming with disease germs.

"Don't kiss ikons!" is the warning on posters which are being nailed on billboards all over the country. "You can't cure your ills by kissing ikons. You'll only contract disease," continues the admonition.

Members of the Academy have consented to go on lecture tours telling the people that miracle cures performed by priests at shrines are not due to acts of God but to ordinary hypnotism.

One lecturer told the story of the British physician Davay who is reported to have cured a paralytic merely by putting a thermometer in the patient's mouth with a certain amount of heat.

The religious operations of Steinhach and Voronoff are widely cited in the lectures as examples of the power of science.

STATE DOUBLE BILL

IS THE BEST EVER

Rollicking Comedy and Western Story on Program Today and Tomorrow—"Noose" on Sunday.

"Clancy's Koshier Wedding," one of the two features at the State theater today and tomorrow, is considered one of the funniest comedies which has been produced for the screen during the past few years.

The story is full of gag spots and fast, snappy action and none of these incidents are dragged in by the heels.

The trouble is finally traced out when young Tommy Clancy fights a Jewish boxer, Izzy Murphy, and both Clancy and Cohen stake their whole fortune on the result of the contest.

The second feature on the program is Zane Grey's famous western story, "The Open Range," starring Betty Bronson, Lane Chandler and Fred Kohler.

The hero is a handsome, cocksure cowpuncher who doesn't give a hoot about anything or anyone until he meets the heroine.

Clifford Smith directed "Open Range" from John Stone and J. Walter Ruben's scenario.

The initial appearance of "The Noose," starring Richard Barthelmess will be made at the State on Sunday evening.

FEAR MOB'S VENGEANCE

Concord, N. H., Jan. 20.—Fearful mob vengeance, a heavy guard was thrown about the state hospital today where Charles W. Dean, Lebanon storekeeper, father of five children, was held for observation following an alleged attack on a 13-year-old state ward.

Threats were made against Dean when it was alleged that after attacking the young girl, he beat her to intimidate her, and was also alleged to have burned her tongue with matches.

Dean's wife was charged with aiding him. She was at the Hanover hospital where she gave birth to a child last week.

The Masons outted the Cubs right and left last night and as a result still head the bowling league although the West Side Rec kept close on their heels. By beating the Cubs all three games, the Masons dropped the football champs down to third place. Last night's Pylthias by three pins, captured the league and schedule to a close. A meeting of the league officials and team captains will be held in the Herald branch office on Blenheim street next Monday evening at 7 o'clock for the purpose of discussing the second round schedule and considering "any other business to come before the meeting."

It had been rumored during the afternoon that the Masons would insert Axel Anderson in their lineup against the Cubs but this proved false. The Masons grabbed the opening by 38 pins, the second by 21 and the last by one lone pin. The Cubs had chances galore to win the last game in the ninth box but slipped.

Meanwhile, the West Side Rec, after being fortunate enough to win the first game from the Knights of Pylthias by three pins, captured the next two by 25 to 75 pin margins respectively. Ray Bidwell's 121 was high single.

The biggest surprise of the evening was the victory of Highland Park scored over the Beethoven Glee Club, at one time league leaders. After losing the first game by 17 pins, the boys from the hilltop rallied to win the next two by 37 and 14 pins. Hansen's 114 was high.

The Cloverleaves kept plugging right along toward first place by winning three points from the Center Church, winning the first by the scant margin of three pins. The church team won the last game by a comfortable margin. Seven Cloverleaves' scores were over 100. Bob Brennan was high with 115. He also hit 110.

The British Americans slowed up the Knights of Columbus with a two-to-two deadlock in the closest match of the evening. The former team won the first game by 32 pins and that proved enough to win the total pinfall point by two pins. Incidentally the second game was won by the Knights by only two pins. The K. of C.'s 815 in the third game was just short of a three point victory. Alex Wilson was high for the night with 124.

THE NUT CRACKER

By Joe Williams

What Tex Rickard's elimination tournament needs is about four no-draws. Then, Mr. O'Goofy suggests, why not have a battle royal for the heavyweight championship?

Toss Tunney, Henney, Sharkey, Dempsey, Rickard, Paulino and the other lads into the same ring and we'd still bet on Tunney. It is our idea that he would win going away.

Mr. O'Goofy advises any and all not to go into the ring and out because of any break in relations between Tunney and Rickard. Both gentlemen's health is so good they don't have to do any business for it.

Something just has to be done to warm the boys around the coal stove these winter evenings, and a break in relations never has failed to heat them up.

Of course, if Tunney should wish to fight for someone other than Mr. Rickard, 't would be easy. Among the many gens Tex hasn't signed to fight exclusively for him are James J. Corbett, Rogers Hornsby and a couple of Democratic delegates that can't be located.

In other words, Tunney can fight anybody, anywhere, except one of the heavyweights. Maybe he could get some action in Nicaragua.

A man has left $50,000 for the blind. Both Mr. Barnard and Mr. Heydler, however, insist that these gentlemen are well paid.

Mr. O'Goofy suggests that if the Braves should want to trade Hornsby, they ought to try to get a bid from Tex Rickard.

Bobby Jones refuses a $50,000 house and Von Elm says he'd rather beat Bobby Jones than make a million. Gosh, but these golfers are big-hearted guys.

Gene Tunney recently wrote an article on boxing in which he criticized four-mile races, saying he had seen oarsmen "crumple and fall limp." This thing never happens in the cauliflower business, of course.

Oarsmen wear agonized expressions, perhaps, but have you ever watched a knight of the tire tape break into smiles when told the game didn't quite meet his guarantee?

But let us not be concerned too much about rowing. It's a shell game, anyway.

HEENEY AND DELANEY TO FIGHT MARCH 1

New York, Jan. 20.—Having corralled Tom Heeney and Jack Delaney for a 15-round bout, here on March 1, Matchmaker Jess McMahon today will submit to the bidders an agreement by which the winner of a bout between Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko.

This competition should develop for Gene Tunney if the champion insists on defending his title in June or for Jack Dempsey in the event the former champion decides to fight again and Tunney is willing to wait until September to meet the survivor of those eliminations. Delaney and Heeney will sign articles today for their bout. Sharkey and Risko have not been signed but it is understood they will be available for March 12 at Madison Square Garden. The final elimination will be scheduled for May.

THE IDEA IS BECOMING CONTAGIOUS

TWO FIGHT PLAN LOOKS PLAUSIBLE

Champion May Take On Dempsey In June and Jack Delaney In September.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH, L. N. S. Sports Editor

New York, Jan. 20.—Details of an agreement reached by Gene Tunney and Tex Rickard, whereby the champion is to be allowed to "beat" the uncompromising terms of the Rickard contract so that he can fight for his boy friend, Jim Mullen, in Chicago, came to the writer today from a source within the official family of the Madison Square Garden Corporation.

The compromise, it was declared, called for two provisions. First, that Tunney would defend his title under Rickard's banner not later than July, which immediately would take the curse of the Rickard option. Second, that Tunney, now forbidden in the matter of legal obligations, would then be free to discharge a purely personal one by fighting somebody, probably Jack Delaney, for Mullen in September.

Tunney's Reason With this statement came the alleged reason for Tunney's sudden desire, expressed a few months ago, to fight twice in defense of his heavyweight championship next summer, already under contract to Rickard because of signing the famous pact in St. Louis last winter. It was stated that Tunney knew that he must fight twice. Otherwise, his friend, Mullen, would be able to do himself almost no good and Tunney's oral promise after the last fight in Chicago would become worthless.

So, it was said, Tunney began shouting Rickard, with the inevitable result that they are getting together and, in fact, already have done so. The getting together is supposed to have represented concessions purely on Rickard's part because Tunney was in a position to make none. The promoter, for one thing, wanted to keep his meat ticket happy and, for another, he thinks one heavyweight championship fight a season is ample. He is quite willing, therefore, to let Mullen worry about the second one.

Sounds Plausible

Right or wrong, the whole story adds up beautifully. Why, otherwise, would Rickard suddenly begin talking about a June date for Tunney when, previously, he had talked only in terms of September? There couldn't be two fights if he held Tunney religiously to the terms of their contract by making his fight in September. Then, too, Tunney suddenly has abandoned his attacks upon Rickard and from Miami has given three rousing cheers for the promoter's June program. Why not? It is supposed to have been his, Tunney's, in the first place.

Dempsey First

Dempsey quite naturally is the choice opponent for the June date. But why do you think Jack Sharkey was sent before the Staff Athletic Commission to file a challenge to Tunney? Not because he was entitled to do so after what happened in the Henney fight. He was told to do so in order to establish priority claims on a Tunney fight here in the event that there proved to be anything in the tales that Dempsey was going blind or that he had decided that enough was much too much. It is no star chamber secret which Rickard looks to Sharkey as the logical substitute challenger in the event that Dempsey is not available.

TENDLER MATCHED

New York, Jan. 20.—Lew Tandler, veteran Philadelphia welterweight, will tackle Ace Hudkins of Lincoln, Neb., in a 10-round bout here tonight. Hudkins is a 2 to 1 favorite. He beat Tandler once before.

The Boston Whirlwinds will play at Plainfield next Wednesday night. The team from the Hub has trimmed Plainfield twice this season and the latter team is anxious to even the series if possible.

HOOKS and SLIDES

NOT FIRST INSTANCE

Granting that the owners of the New York Giants were telling the whole truth when they said they traded Rogers Hornsby to Boston only for the purpose of avoiding future conflict in the management of the club, it still looks like a peculiar way of visiting discipline on a pretender to McGraw's throne and also a costly one.

Hornsby's case is not the only one where a great star caused family troubles within a baseball club, but it is one of a mighty few that can be called to mind where the management had to cripple itself to restore harmony.

It was no secret for years that Ty Cobb was not idolized by the players on the Detroit club and it was the conviction of any number of smart baseball men that the chances of the Tigers to get into the world's series were greatly reduced when Cobb assumed the management.

Cobb, however, remained as the prize member of the Detroit Club until circumstances over which the owners had not control made necessary his release.

Cobb, it must be remembered, was a Detroit institution and he was a tremendous drawing card. Hornsby was not a drawing card in New York.

NO HERO IN GOTHAM

Attention also might be called to the fact that New York is a great gambling town and no matter how hard you try to put it more delicately, Hornsby joined the class of what the gambling element calls "what-ers" when he pleaded his way out of a suit on the grounds that his debts could not be collected legally.

Harry Wills and getting on record with the first challenge, a circumstance that forced the Dempsey-Tunney fight in 1926 out of New York. And if you think this bid of Sharkey's may not receive the gravest of consideration you have only to remember that Jimmy Johnston has been declared in on ten per cent of the fighter for what is suspected to be just such an emergency.

However, it is possible that, by this move, the Sharkey Camp may defeat its own ambitions. Tunney may not care to defend his title here with Johnston in the Sharkey Management but, at that, he may not have to do so. If Dempsey comes back again, and no one has any real reason to suspect that he won't, Rickard and Tunney will forget Sharkey, pronto.

By that time, the $400 top price for tickets is expected to be inaugurated in New York and it won't make the slightest difference to Rickard whether the bout is held in early summer or early fall. Not having seen a heavyweight championship fight since 1923, the boys who want to be there and when they get that way, there is no stopping them.

There will be a meeting of all league officials and team captains in the Commercial Bowling League at Murphy's alleys at 7 o'clock next Tuesday night. The purpose will be to decide on the manner in which the prizes will be distributed and to consider "any other business" which may come before the meeting.

SABA AND HELLER EXPECTED TO BE VISITORS' BEST BET

Wapping Defeats Thompsonville by Score of 43 to 36

Wapping scored a seven-point victory over Thompsonville at Wapping last night in one of the best games of the current season. The outcome was in doubt until the last minutes of play.

Wapping led at halftime 31 to 24. Bobby Boyce sunk six field goals in this period but Thompsonville covered him successfully in the second half with the result that he went scoreless.

Each team showed a better defense in the second half holding each other to an even dozen points. "Hap" Madden's three baskets in this half helped Wapping considerably.

NEXT ROWING REGATTA

New York, Jan. 20.—The Inter-collegiate Rowing Association has named June 19 for the annual regatta at Poughkeepsie.

The members of the rowing association, Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Syracuse, will enter eight in all three races, and it is highly likely that five non-member crews will paddle up to the starting line of the variety race. Invitations have been sent to California, Washington, Navy, Wisconsin, Princeton and Massachusetts Tech and at least four of the six are expected to accept.

FLYING EAGLES WIN

The Flying Eagles defeated the Pylthias last night at the Center church by the score of 35 to 26. Furkington was high with nine field goals. The Eagles are anxious to book games with any teams who think they can soar as high in the scoring column. Last night's summary:

ANDY COHEN'S PROSPECT

The hopes of the club are placed in young Cohen, not only that he might fill the position acceptably but that he might develop into a great star. The Giants for years have been trying to develop a great Jewish star for gate purposes.

Cohen had a great year in the International League last year and is regarded highly as a prospect by baseball men.

Since Babe Ruth crashed into the big print the Giants always have been a half-mile behind the Yankees in getting publicity and even Hornsby failed to inject any great color or drawing power into the club.

Even with Ruth and Gehrig the Yankees have not been asleep and they have been scouting for Jewish boys to entertain a couple of million in New York.

It may be that the Yanks have beaten the Giants to it again. They say that Colonel Jake Ruppert does have luck. After the Yank's had announced the purchase of Larry and Reese from the Pacific Coast League for $125,000 it developed, rather surprisingly, that Reese is a Jewish boy by the name of Goldsmith and that he was born on the lower East Side of New York.

Local Sport Chatter

Mac Sherman won the silver loving cup offered by Howard Murphy for the highest three-string made during the first half of Cheney Brothers girls' bowling league. Her score was 298. Gertrude Nelson hit 199. Edna McCourt has a chance to win the cup for the second round because of the 302 which she hit recently.

Frank Cervini's high single of 157 and Carl Hansen's three-string of 385 stand a pretty good chance of being high at the completion of the second round which starts next Thursday night.

The schedule for the second round will be the same as the first at least insofar as the matching of teams is concerned. For instance, the matches scheduled for next Thursday night are as follows: Cubs vs. West Side Rec, Cloverleaves vs. Highland Park, St. Bridget's vs. British Americans, Beethoven vs. Bon Ami, Knights of Columbus vs. Masons and Knights of Pylthias vs. Center church.

There will be a meeting of all league officials and team captains in the Commercial Bowling League at Murphy's alleys at 7 o'clock next Tuesday night. The purpose will be to decide on the manner in which the prizes will be distributed and to consider "any other business" which may come before the meeting.

Chain Hazards

Safe as chains are, there is an enormous danger in them to the untwist and turn almost without ill effect. But at the same time he who feels their safety and proceeds almost recklessly on the strength of that. While others drive with extreme caution over a slippery pavement, the man with chains on his rear wheels lacks that spirit and hastens through traffic as though it were on a bright mid-summer day.
The danger lies not in him, but in the driving of others. He may stop short. He may speed and wreck havoc in the minds of those unfortunate who have no chains on which they may rely for safety.
The chained car's sudden stop, or its swerve before another machine, may cause an accident for which responsibility is hard to place. Consideration for others, however, would relieve their minds and avoid many an accident.
Chains may reduce hazards in traffic, but only when used judiciously.

AUTO HAS BIG BACKING
The "cash in hand" value of the nine largest automobile companies, excluding Ford, for this year is $361,000,000, an increase of $45,000,000 over last year. This is surprising, since 1927 has been marked by a slight decline in business.

TIRE EXPORTS GAIN
Exports of automotive rubber goods from this country to Italy for the first nine months of 1927 increased more than 34 per cent over the same period of 1926. The returns for this period total nearly $4,500,000.

OWNERS PAY LARGE TAXES
About ninety per cent of the country's taxes are paid by owners of automobiles.

HINTS FOR GREATER ENGINE EFFICIENCY

Don't drive with a rich mixture of gas vapor.
Don't allow your engine to pump oil.
Keep the entire spark plug clean.
See that the electrodes are cleaner from time to time, and that the distance between them is neither too great nor too small. About .025 of an inch between the points is proper.
Too rich a gas mixture and pumping of oil cause pitting of the spark plug electrodes and eventually may cause a short circuit, destroying the plugs' efficiency.

MOTORISTS, BEWARE!

A ruling by the U. S. Supreme Court says that a motorist, who crosses a railroad crossing, depending on his hearing or signal to escape danger, and takes no further precaution to protect his life and property, does so at his own risk.

ACCIDENTS RARE

Hawaiian police and their severe driver's tests are responsible for the low accident rate there. The test includes driving up a steep hill, stopping near the top and starting again. Parking and eye tests are also their inling.

How's She Hitting? Hints On Car Care

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

"Stance" has as much significance in motoring as it has in golf. Only in the case of motoring it's the sitting position that counts.

The driver's sitting position is as important for his comfort as it is for the economical performance of the car. For, singularly enough, the way the driver sits at the wheel has much to do with the mileage he gets.

Some drivers have the habit of shifting constantly from throttle to brake, pedal and back. This is especially true in traffic. That practice leaves no room for ease and comfort at the wheel, for the driver mentally is always on the alert and physically is adding a strain on himself.

The reason for his doing this, most likely lies in the fact that too much gas is flowing through the carburetor while the engine is supposed to be idle with the foot throttle in closed position. The result is that the car keeps moving forward faster than the traffic allows, and so the brake has to be applied constantly to check it.

The remedy lies in adjusting the stop screw at the carburetor, where it regulates the position of the throttle. It is supposed to be closed. Turning the screw back a little will permit less gas to be fed through the carburetor and so keep the engine idling more slowly.

As a result, the driver will be relieved of the strain of working both brake and throttle in traffic to such an extent. He will find driving more restful. And he will get more mileage.

Another contribution to discomfort in driving is the opposite to riding the clutch. So much has been said about this that many drivers do exactly the reverse and find their left foot jumping back and forth, when in heavy traffic.

Riding the clutch is harmful if enough weight of the foot is put on the pedal to cause the disks to slip. But heavy traffic, where there is much stopping and starting, would say the energy of anyone trying to obey this warning.

In a case like this it is enough to allow the foot to rest lightly on the clutch pedal, so that pressing down on it and letting go up to the point of releasing the disks entirely would still leave the foot in a ready position.

This relieves the driver of quite a strain. It prepares him for quicker emergencies. And it permits him to keep up close to the fellow in front.

Chains take a great punishment, during a winter's usage, but they return a proportionate amount to the car.

On a 30 by 4.40 tire, it has been pointed out, a cross link hits the pavement 500 times in a mile. When the car has gone a 100 miles, each cross link has come into contact with hard pavement or ice 66,000 times.

Add to this the strains of braking, starting and pulling, and little more may be expected of them.

In return for the hard usage, the chains take their revenge out of the tires, force the engine to work harder and can rip holes into the fenders.

That is, of course, if the driver is careless about them.

GAS CHEAPER WHERE OIL IS SCARCE

Washington, Jan. 20.—According to the American Automobile Association, the gasoline dollar will buy ten gallons of gas in Peoria, Ill., a city located in a territory that produces practically no oil, and will buy only four gallons in Phoenix, Ariz., where oil is plentiful.

It seems the closer to the oil fields the motorist gets, the more he has to pay for his gas.

and careful driving will afford the most possible benefit out of the chains and the least possible harm to tire, engine or other parts of the car.

In the first place, the chains should be put on right. They must be loose enough to allow them to work their way around the tires. If they are tight, they will stay in one position, cutting into the casings and causing tire trouble.

A little play will cause even wear on the tires all around.

The chains, however, must not be too loose, or they'll rattle against the fenders when the car goes at any considerable speed and break easily. Furthermore, constant tapping of a chain on the same spot of the fender will eventually wear a neat hole there.

In the case of the new type of rubber links, on the contrary, the chains must be applied as tight as possible. The tires should be blown to their requisite pressure and then the chains may be applied tightly.

The reason for this is that rubber chains are flat and smooth, and therefore do not need to have free play around the tires. In fact, if applied loosely, they are liable to break easily.

Applied tightly, rubber chains will help lengthen the life of the tires. These may be kept on all winter, no matter what the weather, for they are no bother either in driving or in the way of comfort.

With the chains on, motorists might think they are free to speed along the worst sorts of highways with utmost safety. They may be there, but the wear and tear on the chains and tires won't be.

Tire chain manufacturers say that drivers should not go faster than 25 miles an hour, to get the best out of them. Weather conditions alone should compel motorists to keep within this limit.

"The fact that chains are necessary or advisable," says one maker, "is a warning in itself that high speeds should not be attained and that caution is in order."

Because of the modern hard pavements, it is advisable to keep chains on the tires only when necessary. Chains on dry pavements are harmful to the tires, make uncomfortable riding, are a strain on the engine and wear out faster.

The exception to this is the case of rubber chains.

has given us, and also for the opportunities afforded our people coming to this glorious, free country."

Cosgrave said Ireland is making splendid industrial progress, that his country is "moving along" and that internal strife has become a thing of the past.

He declined to comment on the presence of Eamonn De Valera, leader of the Irish Republicans, in this country. He said his visit had no connection with that of De Valera.

Talks to Reporters
Cosgrave was interviewed by a score of newspapermen aboard the Macom. The first question asked him was how was Ireland, "very fine," he smilingly replied.

"How does she stand?" asked a reporter with a slight Irish brogue. "She doesn't stand—she's on the move," Cosgrave flashed back.

"How's the liquor situation in Ireland?" came another question. "No liquor can compare with Ireland's for quality," he shot back. Then seriously: "There are 16,000 liquor licenses out in Ireland today but we are planning to reduce the number 25 per cent."

Cosgrave smilingly denied that this forehad prohibition in Ireland.

Country Peaceful
Asked if internal strife still existed he replied that the country is now peaceful, asserting that the number of prisoners in Irish jails have been cut down fifty per cent since the signing of the Irish Free State treaty.

"Will Ireland ever have complete independence?"
"That is for the people to say—they must decide their own destiny," he replied.

Cosgrave showed pride when he discussed the industrial progress of Ireland under his regime. He said one hundred new factories have been built in the last five years. The biggest project in Ireland today is the Shannon (river) plan of furnishing power and light to the country at cheap rates, he declared. The plan was denounced when it was outlined but now everybody expects that the distribution of power will begin by 1929.

Landlordism
"The Irish people in the last 24 years have been working to get away with landlordism," he said. "So much progress has been made in the last four years that today all the land is in the hands of the people or the Irish Free State."

Did he plan to see Gov. Al Smith while here? Possible, he hoped so. He had met the governor's daughter, Catherine, a few years ago, and would like to meet her father. Yes, he thought he would see Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago.

"Do you approve Mayor Thompson's plan to revise the public school text books to eliminate alleged English propaganda?"
"I don't understand much about the plan," he said evasively.

Employment Situation
The employment situation in Ireland is improving and there is no immigration problem, Cosgrave said. He reiterated that his real purpose in coming to America was "to thank the people here for all they have done for Ireland and to tell them some things about Ireland—to get even better acquainted."

Mayor Walker remarked that he himself was the son of an Irishman and recalled his recent visit to Ireland where, he said, he received a most cordial reception.
"My father did not brag much," said the witty Walker, "but I used to make exceptions for him when he talked about Ireland."

The mayor then handed President Cosgrave a scroll from the city commemorating his visit.
"I pay tribute to the great work that the American people have done for my people," said Cosgrave in reply. "I am proud to be here, among your magnificent buildings and after having seen the majesty of your harbor."
"But greater than all are the cordial feelings extended to me by the people of New York through your mayor. It is a typical, heartening American welcome."
"This indeed is a historic occasion fills me with deep emotion. I thank God that I lived to see this day."

STATE HAS 37 MILLION IN GENERAL PURPOSES

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 20.—Connecticut will have nearly $37,000,000 to use for general purposes in the two years ending June 30, 1929, according to the annual report of the State Board of Finance and Control issued here today. The old board of finance, which went out of existence last June, estimated that $33,921,000 would be received in the same period. For the first quarter of the biennial period the state received $13,765,171, beside over $8,000,000 received in receipts for specific purposes. The State Highway Department is to get $5,500,000 for the bills in the quarter.

Total Income
Receipts in the first quarter included over $9,200,000 in taxes payable but once a year and therefore the next quarter will show a smaller income though mutual life and fire insurance and non-resident stock taxes are due in April. The total estimated income for general purposes for the entire year from June 30, 1927 to June 30, 1928, is $18,000,000 or more.

The report of the board shows the state has forty different sources of income. A comparison of estimates made by the new board shows that receipts in the first quarter ran from 25 to 50 per cent above the original estimate. The notable decreases were in taxes on street railway companies and express companies.

REWARD INCREASED FOR MISSING GIRL

come to father and me or send word to us here at Hotel Northampton or, if it is nearer and easier to Miss Hamilton and Nanna at 129. We long so for the happiness of having you back and we need and miss you so. Dearest love, "Mother."

The reference to "Miss Hamilton and Nanna at 129" is to the Smith home in New York City, and members of the household there.

Mother Collapses
After writing this appeal to her daughter the mother from her bed in the local hotel insisted that the reward be increased from $1,000 to $10,000. Then she collapsed.

James H. Smith Jr., uncle of Frances denied today that the increase of the reward was prompted by any secret demand for ransom. The reward, he said, was increased for the sole purpose of arousing keener and more widespread interest. The $10,000 reward can be claimed if the girl is found alive, $1,000 otherwise. Mrs. Smith said that relatives had not given up hope that Frances may be found alive.

State Detective Joseph V. Daly, in charge of the state search, who has explored one tip after another, is convinced that the missing freshman is dead. He has centered his investigation in a search of rivers, ponds, canals and woodlands in this vicinity.

postmastership Fred Wall became executive secretary of the committee which was preparing for Manchester's Centennial celebration. In this work his experience as a newspaperman and as secretary to Congressman Lonergan stood him in good stead. He was thorough and painstaking in every task and to a considerable degree the success of that celebration was to his credit. During the war Fred Wall had served on nearly every committee, giving freely of his time to aid in putting the drives "over the top." He was conscientious almost to the nth degree, never satisfied unless he was serving some good cause.

Takes Rest.
For several years following his Centennial celebration work Fred Wall took a rest. He strove to build up his health, but he frequently allowed his duties to himself to be pushed to the background by serving other causes. He was always ready to write news stories and publicity that would tend to bring before the public the worthiness of some enterprise.

About three years ago Fred Wall joined the Carlyle Johnson Machine Company. He acted as secretary and wrote advertisements for trade publications. In his spare time he continued writing publicity for many different organizations which appeared in the columns of The Herald. He gave most of his own time to boosting the Manchester Community club and that organization will sorely miss his faithfulness.

Besides his membership in the Manchester Community club Fred Wall was active in Chamber of Commerce work. He was frequently drafted to aid in putting some undertaking across for the Chamber. He was also a member of two fraternal organizations Court Manchester, Foresters of America, and Campbell Council, Knights of Columbus.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning from St. Bridget's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. C. T. McCann the rector will officiate.

The bearers will be Thomas Ferguson, representing the newspaper fraternity; Mark Holmes, the Manchester Community Club; Meredith Stevenson, the Carlyle-

COMBINATION NEEDED

Washington, Jan. 20.—Great combinations are necessary to the public utilities industry and have improved the service given to the public, George B. Cortelyou, former secretary of the treasury declared today at the Senate hearing on an investigation of the industry. Nevertheless the power interests are opposed to the proposed inquiry on the ground that federal authority to legislate in that field is strictly limited, he added.

Troop 5 held its regular meeting Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. Inspection was easily won by Patrol 2. The attendance records were checked and showed that 25 boys were present. Calisthenics were next in order each Patrol Leader taking over his patrol for a few minutes. The three Junior Assistant Scoutmasters acted as judges and all three decided that Patrol 1 had the best variety of exercises and they put them over with a snap-ness that was good to see.

Work on contest events was begun and the teams were sent thru their paces over and over again. No speed market any of the events as the teams have been stifle so long it will take a few weeks to get them in shape again. In the individual events many of the veterans of the last contest are being made to show their stuff by others who are trying their hardest to be the ones to represent the troop in the coming meet.

After an hours time the boys sat down to practice the songs for the broadcast at W.T.H.C. At the rate the boys are going now it looks as if this years Glee Club will be much better than last years. Rehearsal lasted about 15 minutes.

Notes
At a meeting of the Patrol Leaders last Sunday a new Senior Patrol Leader and a new Patrol Leader were elected. The officers of the troop now are:

Scoutmaster—Helge Pearson.
Asst. Scoutmasters—Arthur Anderson, Herman Johnson and Rudolph Carlson.

Senior Patrol Leader—Erik Moden.

Junior Asst. Scoutmasters—Irving Carlson, Lawrence Anderson, and Dexter Peterson.

Patrol Leaders—Roy Johnson, Herbert Brandt, Raymond Benson, and Carl Bengtson.

Asst. Patrol Leaders—Elmer Anderson, Leonard Berkman, Ralph Swanson and Arvid Carlson.

Scribe—Erik Moden.

Troop 5 has held two overnight hikes this year to their camp in Glastonbury. Last week a party, consisting of the Patrol Leaders, went to the camp on Saturday afternoon. The weather was perfect and the afternoon was spent in chopping wood and cleaning up about the cabin. By the side of the pieces of wood that were being chopped one would think he was watching the match makers over in Sweden. Supper passed uneventfully although it was some time before the stove was made to function properly. After supper everyone sat around taking things easy until bed time. In the morning everyone had a bite to eat and then we started for home and Sunday School.

An overnight hike will be held this week end and all those who wish to go should bring enough food for two meals. There are enough blankets to accommodate about eight boys. C'mon boys, let's go!

ALL STAR CAST PICKED TO FILM "THE NOOSE"

Barthelme Heads Roster of Stars in Feature at State on Sunday and Monday.

One of the finest all-star casts in motion picture history supports Richard Barthelme in "The Noose," the screen version of the famous stage play which comes to the State Theater on Sunday and Monday.

Lina Basquette, former dancing star of the Follies, plays the feminine lead opposite Barthelme. It is her first important role in pictures and advance reports acclaim her a genuine sensation. Alice Joyce enacts the role of the mother, one of the greatest parts of this splendid actress' career. This is the first time Miss Joyce has appeared with Barthelme.

The most unympathetic role in the film version of "The Noose" is that of Buck Gordon played by Montagu Love. Robert T. Haines plays Governor Bancroft, Thelma Todd, the beautiful blonde "discovery," appears as "the other woman," Ed Brady, Fred O'Beck, Bob O'Connor, Fred Warren portray gangsters.

An unusual chorus was made up of Hollywood girls and included Corliss Palmer, Kay English, May Atwood, Yola D'Avril and others. Jay Eaton plays the part of the dancing comedian of the Box Stall cafe cabaret. Other important roles are taken by Bill Walling, Charles Gylden, and others.

"The Noose" is regarded as one of the most dramatic stories in which Richard Barthelme has yet appeared. His role of Nickie Elkins, offers him unexampled opportunity to display his rare histrionic talents. John Francis Dillon directed it from a screen story by J. T. O'Donohoe. Henry Hobart produced the film and James van Trees photographed it. It is from the play by Willard Mack and the story by H. H. Van Loan.

The person who will lash and rasp, 'I'll break every bone in your body,' might get fine-practice upon his own head.

'I'm a very busy man, sir. What is your proposition?' 'I want to make you rich.' 'Well, leave your receipt with me and I'll look it over later. Just now I'm engaged in closing up a deal by which I expect to make $7 in real money.'

Home

It may be a mansion, it may be a dump; it may be a farm—with an old oaken pump.

It may be a palace, it may be a flat; it may be the room where you hang up your hat.

It may be a house with a hole in the floor. Or marble hotel, with a coon at the door.

It may be exclusive or simple or swell. A wee bit of heaven or one little well.

Just try to remember, wherever you roam, That Shakespeare was right, kid! 'There's no place like home.'

LETTER GOLF

There's considerable rivalry among the makers of small cars this year. In Letter Golf the change from NEW to CAR just takes four strokes, a very easy matter. Par solution is on another page.

Letter Golf grid with words NEW and CAR.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW HEN.

Among famous last words should be included the masculine 'I do' of the marriage ceremony.

LITTLE HOPE HELD FOR JOHN CROCKETT, SR.

Death Expected Momentarily; Aaron Cook Holds Own; R. M. Reid Recovering.

Little hope was held out today for the recovery of John Crockett, Sr., of Summit street, who is critically ill at Memorial hospital with Bright's disease. His death was expected momentarily, it was said at the hospital. He is alternately conscious and unconscious. Mr. Crockett, who is 56 years old, for the past year and a half has been janitor at Police Headquarters. He was admitted to the hospital on January 13.

The condition of Aaron Cook, 85, well known Manchester Green resident, was reported today as slightly improved. Mr. Cook spent a good night and was reading more comfortably this morning. It was stated at the home that, barring another shock, there was a fairly good chance that Mr. Cook might eventually recover from this illness. He was stricken eleven weeks ago, at which time he suffered two shocks. The first one was mild.

Robert M. Reid, of 201 Main street, well-known Manchester auctioneer, who has been seriously ill in the Hartford hospital, is improving slowly, it was said at his home this morning. His condition is no longer regarded as critical. The attending physician believes an operation for appendicitis will eventually be necessary, but it will not be performed until Mr. Reid gains sufficient strength.

COURT "TOO CROWDED" FOR MANDAMUS PLEA

Further delay has occurred in the Manchester Green School fight. Attorney F. R. Manning, counsel for petitioners, did not go before the superior court in Hartford yesterday to seek the much talked about writ of mandamus to compel the Second School district committee to call a special meeting to take action on the discharge of the school janitor. Mr. Manning said last night that the court was crowded and he would seek the writ today. However up to press-time, no information to the effect the writ had been granted was obtainable.

The state furnishes the vaccine.

Dr. Robert P. Knapp, head of Cheney Brothers Medical Department, said today that already a dozen persons had taken advantage of the opportunity. He does not expect that there will be any great rush unless a case is reported in Manchester or the immediate vicinity.

So far, no case has been reported by Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, head of the Manchester Board of Health. Dr. Knapp said that anyone who has not been vaccinated in the past five years is susceptible to smallpox.
