

BOOST IN BANK RATE PUZZLES FINANCIERS

Some Say It Will Tighten Money Market—Others Say It Will Make No Dif- ference.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Official Washington was in a qu. dry today as to the probable effect upon speculation and the national credit situation of the unexpected boost in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rate from 3 1/2 to 4 per cent.

One group of expert saw in the sudden action of the bank, approved by the Federal Reserve Board, a sharp warning to bankers who furnish funds for speculation on the New York market, and expressed belief that a tightening of the money markets of the country would result, especially in conjunction with the absorption of cash through sale of government securities by the reserve banks.

Most of the other federal reserve banks are expected soon to follow the lead taken by Chicago, Richmond and New York in assuming the four per cent level.

Another group of authorities, however, including high treasury officials, who maintained less than a dozen days ago that easy money conditions might be expected at least until spring, do not anticipate any appreciable reaction on general national credit conditions.

There is plenty of money in circulation outside the treasury and the federal reserve banks and institutions making loans do not have to rediscount their paper at the central institution. For this reason they contend that the reserve rates, even if all banks go to the four per cent level, will not tend to boost commercial money rates.

International Standpoint

From the international standpoint the necessity of keeping the New York rate at 4 per cent well under those of London, and Paris appears to have passed. France, although not yet on a gold basis, has plenty of gold, and England, Belgium and Italy have returned to the gold standard. American gold is moving abroad to some extent but there is no further reason to attempt to accentuate its movement, experts said.

Brokers Loans—The money that is loaned on the security of stocks and bonds and considered an index of speculation—showed a $27,135,000 increase at the reserve member banks in New York for the week ending February 1. The level of $3,815,320,000 was within a few million dollars of the peak of three years ago, which stirred several members of Congress to demand an investigation of the speculative business. There is a possibility that these demands for a probe will be renewed.

STEWART DEFIES SENATE PROBERS

Faces Citation For Contempt; Declines to Tell What He Knows.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Facing a citation for contempt of the Senate, Robert M. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil of Indiana, today again defied the Senate public lands committee by refusing to reveal what he knew of the Continental Trading Company's $3,080,000 Liberty Bond fund.

Stewart's refusal to testify on this important point was placed in the record for the second time in order to form the basis for contempt proceedings.

Stewart got into a clash with Senator Cutting, Republican of New Mexico, while on the stand, when the latter told him there was a "possible assumption" that he was committing perjury. Stewart flared with anger, characterized the statement as an insult and threatened to cutting withdrew the remark and peace was restored.

His Answer

The question that Stewart refused to answer was: "Do you know anything about the Continental Company's purchase of Liberty Bonds?"

His reply was: "With all deference to you I have to repeat that I never made a dollar out of it and that's my answer."

It has already been established that the Continental company purchased $3,080,000 in Liberty Bonds, and $235,000 of them have been traced to ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall. The committee is endeavoring to determine who got the balance. There have been many rumors about these remaining bonds.

DUMP SMUDGE FILLS THE TOWN WITH BAD ODORS

Chronic Fire at School St. Disposal Plant Eats Deep and Presents a Serious Problem.

The School street dump, always a troublesome, presented itself as a serious problem today when stifling smoke from a fire which has been burning for a week permeated the atmosphere over the whole of Manchester, prevented many people from sleeping and brought a storm of protests and complaints to the ears of town officials.

A Herald man who went to the dump today saw no flames but plenty of smoke. The whole area in which rubbish and garbage is dumped is emitting smoke that poured up through the covering of sand which had been laid on the dump.

The fire resembled a coal mine fire, something which is not seen on the surface but smoulders underneath. The fire has been burning now for a whole week but only seldom has it become so obvious that the fire department has been called out. Members of the south end department spent many hours from last Friday to today in efforts to extinguish the blaze.

Odor Is Terrific

A sickening odor, the product of the burning rubbish, hangs around that section of Manchester and this morning when the fire reached extraordinary proportions, the smell pervaded the whole of the town. Many persons were awakened by the terrible smell during the night and even in the early hours of the morning the telephones of officials of Manchester carried complaints of citizens who could not sleep because of the acrid smoke that penetrated into houses far removed from the dump.

At the dump this morning a hose had been coupled to the nearest hydrant, for use in case of an emergency, but the best efforts of firemen and town employes had failed to make much impression on the deep seated fire.

The fire has burned its way through a layer of rubbish under the sand. The surface of the dump has sunk in places about 15 feet. The fire has consumed material underground. Last Monday one of the town rubbish trucks was able to run into the dump proper for a distance of about 20 feet on a level area. Today this level surface has sunk to a depth of 15 feet or more.

The garbage at the dump which

BRITAIN MOURNS AT HAIG'S BIER

Prince of Wales Leads Pro- cession at Funeral of Noted British Commander.

London, Feb. 3.—With stirring pageantry paralleling the pomp of the middle ages, Great Britain united today to pay a national tribute in Westminster Abbey to Douglas Earl Haig, British commander during the World War and one of Britain's outstanding soldiers.

In a flash of blazing color, a gigantic procession followed the gun-carriage on which Haig's body was transferred from St. Columba's church to the Abbey.

Leading the procession were the Prince of Wales, Prince Henry, the Duke of Connaught, and a score of the highest military and naval officials and representatives of all branches of the British and allied armies.

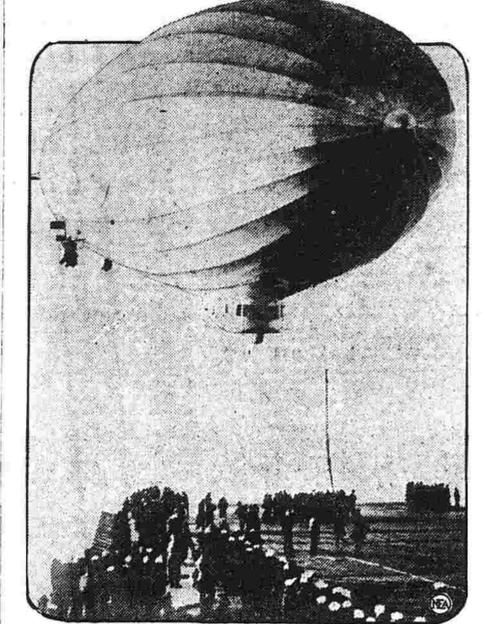

Shops Closed
Almost all the shops along the route were closed, and windows were draped in mourning.

At 12:30 o'clock, the procession arrived at Westminster Abbey.

So that Britons throughout the entire world might hear the tribute to Earl Haig, the impressive services were broadcast over a huge radio hook-up.

The ceremony was over at 1:30 o'clock, the procession reformed, and the march was slowly made to Waterloo station. There the body was put on a train for Scotland, where Earl Haig will be buried.

REMARKABLE AERIAL STUNT

A feat unprecedented in naval maneuvers was the rendezvous which the naval dirigible Los Angeles kept a hundred miles at sea off the Virginia Capes with the airplane carrier Saratoga. Here you see the great silvery dreadnaught, of the sides nosing down carefully to a mooring on the Saratoga's expansive flying deck, demonstrating that a vessel such as the Saratoga may be used in time of war as a mid-ocean refueling station for lighter-than-air auxiliaries of the scouting fleet.

Bungling Of Diplomats Is Real Cause Of War

Washington, Feb. 3.—Assailing the "clumsy bungling of diplomats" as a frequent cause of war, Representative Editt Nourse Rogers, Republican of Massachusetts, advocated today, in an address before the final session of the Women's Patriotic Conference on national defense, the evolution of the world's foreign offices into "departments of peace."

"A nation's first line of defense is its foreign service," she declared. "Issues of peace and war have often hung upon the skill or the lack of skill among our foreign representatives."

"Today patriotism is a thing declared," said Miss Etta V. Leighton of New York, secretary of the National Security League in a vigorous appeal for the suppression of internationalism. "Patriotism, the strong shield of a nation's honor, has gone out of fashion, giving way to a wishy-washy internationalism. Perhaps at no time in the world's history was the danger of war greater than now. Racial and national hatreds appressed for centuries under despotism are bursting forth. In every country there is well-defined propaganda for Communist revolution. Universal disarmament is urged the way to bring peace."

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur urged the women to enlist in support of the $700,000,000 naval building program now before the House. Future wars will be largely decided by navies, he predicted.

ALIENIST EXPLAINS 'FOX'S' DELUSIONS

Killed Little Girl Just to Test His Power of Unemotion- alism, He Says.

Courtroom, Los Angeles, Feb. 3.—William Edward Hickman kidnaped and murdered Marion Parker to "test" his power of unemotionism, Dr. R. O. Shelton, defense alienist, testified today at the insanity hearing for the confessed slayer of the 12-year-old school girl. Dr. Shelton said Hickman made the declaration in his own handwriting.

"Hickman firmly believed he was under the direction of a special providence," Dr. Shelton testified, "and easily would have killed his own mother if she stood in the way of his providence."

"He said he was greater than Jesus Christ," Dr. Shelton continued. "He had greater messages for everybody. He wanted to bring himself to the attention of the world."

"I asked him why he didn't kill his mother instead of Marion Parker."

"Lots of people had killed their mothers. That was just a common ordinary crime," Dr. Shelton said. "Hickman explained, 'But no one ever had kidnaped.' " "I killed a little girl. He boasted that he is the only person that ever lived, is living and ever will live who has absolutely no emotions."

"He killed Marion Parker to test himself," Dr. Shelton continued. "He even played a phonograph record while he slew the girl to prove that he was of this emotionless type."

Dr. Shelton expressed the conclusion that Hickman is the slave of a "delusion of providence." The doctor said Hickman's case is incurable.

Under cross examination by District Attorney Asa Keyes, the alienist told how he had gained Hickman's confidence.

German Editor Lauds American Diplomacy

Says U. S. Is the Only Nation Making a Genuine Peace Proposal — Raps Other Nations.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—America's method of diplomacy and American efforts in behalf of world peace are applauded by the Hamburger Nachrichten, one of the foremost newspapers in Germany. Formerly the newspaper was the mouthpiece of Prince Bismarck, the "Iron Chancellor," and had a semi-official status. It is conservative in politics and is edited by Hans Joachim von Neuhaus, whose name appeared over the editorial praising the United States.

The newspaper said in part: "The cheap jokes about America's 'dollar diplomacy' which were so popular in the old world after the war are gradually giving way to an entirely different feeling towards the only real victor of the World War."

U. S. for Peace
"Gradually the capitals of the shah European victors are being seized by a growing fear of the giant of the other side of the Atlantic, who, for a second time within a short period, is making a simple proposal for real peace. This proposal, somehow, does not fit in with the complicated and cunning tactics of European lawyer diplomacy which takes peace but really means war."

Herr von Neuhaus continued: "If Europe should reject this appeal, I believe it entirely possible that America will take a step which may become very disagreeable to all European cabinets. America has repeatedly shown that she intends to use her position as the creditor of bankrupt Europe for her own purposes."

City Under Martial Law; None Dead, 300 Injured; More Than 8,000 Jobless

Six Hundred Armed Militiamen Guarding Ruins—Twenty- Five of City's Principal Buildings Destroyed; Fire Start- ed at 6:30 Last Night and Burned Until 3 O'Clock This Morning—Fire Companies From Many Cities Assist In Battling Conflagration.

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 3.—Khaki uniforms blended with blue today as National Guardsmen supported by sixty state troops cooperated with local police in guarding the half mile of blackened waste, once the humming business center of Fall River.

The city assumed the aspect of military control although civil authorities were still supreme. Smoke still belched from the smoldering ruins, but the city's problem now turned to the care of its citizens, more than 8,000 of them rendered jobless by the sweep of flames, which did damage estimated at $25,000,000.

Checking up continued today but not a single death had been recorded, which, in view of the rapid spread and intensity of the flames was considered almost miraculous. The account of injured brought the toll to approximately 300, many of these suffering only slight injuries or from exposure.

Two more firemen, John Silva of New Bedford and Charles Bumpats of Fall River were taken to the general hospital today, the former overcome by smoke and the latter scalded about the face.

A remarkable feature of the fire was the small loss in dwellings, and, being destroyed and three or four more slightly scorched. Today Deputy Chief Fred T. Barker was swamped with requests for fire line passes. More than 2,000 workers and some sensation seekers applied for permits. Only the white scores required them to go into the area were furnished with the coveted passes.

The section today, with the thermometer down around 15 degrees above zero presented the appearance of a glacial region with the stark walls of ruined buildings loomed many inches deep with solid ice.

Among the tales of heroism was one of a band of 17-year-old boys from Newport, R. I., who assisted the firemen from Brockton, often risking life and limb in their boyish enthusiasm.

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 3.—Martial law was in effect in fire-swept Fall River today.

Deadlines were established by 600 armed militiamen and sixty state troopers around a mile square area in which sixty-five buildings, large and small were destroyed in an all-night conflagration which was finally under control after causing damage estimated at $25,000,000.

A majority of the population of 134,000 men, women and children were on the streets, hundreds milling about the police lines thrown up in the fire-swept district.

Relief agencies were at work caring for the scores of injured and those in need of food and shelter.

Six hundred damaged by flames were under heavy guard.

Twenty-five of the city's principal buildings were in ruins in an area bounded by High, Bank, Linnawan and Durfee streets. These included three hotels, two theaters, a club, a newspaper plant and a dozen business blocks and mills.

Among the mills damaged were the Pocasset, the Union mill and the Troy Chimney Company's mill.

Ice sheeted and weary firemen from Massachusetts and Rhode Island cities and towns worked in the ruins. The National Guardsmen on duty were commanded by Col. Harry A. Skinner. The state police were under personal command of Brigadier General Alfred F. Foote, state commissioner of public safety.

The fire, which raged from 6:30 o'clock last evening until it was placed under control at 3 a. m., today, recalled the million dollar fire here twelve years ago.

Many times during the hectic night the residential district was threatened as sparks and fire brands fell on roofs.

Hundreds Flee Flames
Scores of families fled to the streets in the near-zero temperature carrying movable belongings.

Belated synagogue on Bank street was destroyed and a hundred families living in the vicinity of the blazing edifice left their homes.

There were many homeless men, women and children to care for after the first excitement of the conflagration subsided. A majority of

GRIM HUMOR PLAYS PART IN BIG FIRE

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 3.—Grim humor played on the nervous strings of spectators and firemen alike when fire began its deadly attack on the Granite building, causing wild tales that many had met death within its walls.

"Fired firemen scooping in the smoke darkened structure came upon many apparently lifeless forms which they rushed to the outer air before it was discovered they were only wax figures—part of a dummy exhibit and including many notorious figures among which were Ruth Snyder and Gerald Chapman."

WIDM RUMORS

Reports that five firemen had lost their lives beneath the falling walls of the Pocasset mills, where the fire started, were discounted when a search of the ruins failed to reveal bodies and the telephone exchanges and the telegraph offices, and service was resumed. Heroic telephone girls, near to exhaustion by handling a tremendous rush of business with fire sweeping about their building, resumed their tasks.

Banks had been forced to move from their quarters. Currency and valuable papers were placed in fireproof vaults or removed under police escort to places of safety. There was no attempt at looting even before the heavy guard of citizen soldiers and state troops came briskly to the scene.

Thousands Jobless

Thousands of unemployed today as the result of the conflagration, but businessmen were making plans to rebuild and resume operation.

The sixty-five buildings destroyed included twenty or more of the biggest buildings of the city, including hotels, theaters, stores, banks and the famous granite building on Main street in what is known as "Cotton Brokers Row."

Starting early last evening in an unoccupied building of the Pocasset mills, the fire spread to the adjoining business district.

One by one the buildings were destroyed, by some of them fanned by a strong northwest wind.

At 3 a. m., today after a nine-hour battle, fire department officials said the fire was practically under control.

At that hour wire communication, which had been cut off for four hours, was resumed.

N. G. Arrives

Six hundred members of the 241st Coast Artillery Corps, National Guard, were thrown around the burned area. The guardsmen, in uniform and equipped with regulation arms, were under command of Col. Harry A. Skinner.

Not only did firemen of this and other cities have to combat the fire in the business section but flaming brands blanketed the city, starting scores of smaller fires that firemen and volunteers were called upon to extinguish. Some of these small fires were a mile away from the blazing downtown blocks. Among the twenty and more buildings destroyed was the city's largest and best known hotel, the Hotel Manhattan.

The Rialto theater, the largest motion picture theater, was in ruins. The famous old granite block on Main street near City Hall was burned out. A show was in progress in the Rialto Theater when the fire reached a building some distance away. The audience left the theater safely and in order. An hour later the theater was a twisted

Then with a mighty sweep the flames spread into the main street business district. HOW FIRE STARTED

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 3.—The conflagration which swept this city started near a blaze of chips over which workmen razing a building of the Pocasset mills were trying to keep warm, fire department officials stated today.

Explosions marked the progress of the fire. These were followed by the crashing roar of falling walls. Many acts of heroism were performed by firemen and volunteers.

All doctors and nurses in the city were on duty early. Those overcome by smoke or injured while battling the onrushing flames were first treated on the scene and then rushed to General hospital and Union hospital.

Time and again the fire threatened the big granite City Hall, close to the Granite block.

Police headquarters, Bristol county court house and the Fall River opera house were menaced as they were close to the roaring flames and the falling walls.

The telephone operators worked with their coats and hats on with smoke swirling through the windows. Then they had to quit as the flames came close to the building. Four hours later the building was saved and service was resumed by the brave operators.

Hundreds of able-bodied men turned volunteers and helped the firemen.

these bonds?" next asked Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana. Stewart did not answer.

Walsh read the Senate resolution ordering the inquiry into the bonds. "Did you understand when I asked about bonds that I referred to the bonds mentioned in this resolution?"

Walsh then read Stewart's statement yesterday that he had "never given any bonds to any political party."

Walsh questioned each of them as to whether they had ever heard H. M. Blackmer, head of the Midwest Refining Co., tell Stewart that if he wanted the Humphreys oil he would have to pay $1.75 a barrel for it.

Walsh asked Stewart if he knew who was going to make the profit out of the 25 cents a barrel differential on the Humphreys oil.

Walsh brought out that Stewart was virtually Blackmer's chief and despite this had allowed the latter to collect what he termed the 25 cent commission through the Continental deal.

"Helen Of Troy" Hits Slapstick Note Among New Super-Productions

Maria Corda and Ricardo Cortez in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy."

By GENE COHN

New York.—Out of three film "super-productions" that have recently been flashed upon Broadway for world premieres that which secured to me most noteworthy was Phyllis Haver, the monotony with which Gilda Gray is supplied with bad pictures and the absolute novelty provided by First National in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy."

After the Pacific production of "Chicago," rushed to the screen in the wake of the highly successful play, Phyllis Haver becomes our favorite interpreter of Mme. Glyn's whatever-it-is appeal.

After Phyllis Haver, who plays the nice fat part of "Roxy," they can line all the Clara Bows end to end and leave us untouched. The picture, of necessity, cannot do justice to the courtroom scene of the play, but it reaches out into background and, while a bit Hollywood at time, provides good melodrama, with as wicked a gal as the screen has allowed to pass the gaze of Will Hays.

In "The Devil Dance," United Artists provides Gilda Gray with a sort of Mary had a Little Llama story. Somehow the film can't forget that Gilda is trying to be a big girl now and, having become a cinema star, might be trying to live down the fact that she got her start in shredded wheat skirts.

In this picture, as in others, "It's on with the dance," with or without provocation. In fact, it is not difficult to vision the none-too-bright young scenarist sitting down with an ancient cameo of the vaudeville Gilda before him.

His story, reminiscent of musical comedy themes, tells of the white baby left on the doorsteps of the good Llamas. She is considered a gift from the gods and reared to be their goddess of indulgence. She is what a Brooklynese might describe as another nautch in their gus.

Of course the handsome white man comes by, and were this a Vitaphone attachment, one would expect him to come to the front of the scene and burst into Broadway tenor. On such a story it wasted some of Samuel Goldwyn's most excellent scenery, out of the studio of Willy Polkany. We still believe Gilda can act, if she ever gets the chance.

In "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," First National sets out to prove that there can be art of slapstick's sake. In all the pictures of the year, we have seen no more truly artistic sets and costumes.

Also it serves to introduce that newest of blondest stars, Maria Corda, who doesn't need to be Helen of Troy. It is sufficient that she is Maria of Budapest. As Maria she is so easy to look upon that American audiences are likely to want to see more of her—which in the light of physical revelations of this particular picture, may seem impossible.

No effort is made to follow the Erskine book. Apparently the large sum paid was for the Erskine name. For the picture follows the Trojan war legend and ends just about where the Erskine book begins. There is no daughter of Helen and no wedding preparations and no Helen of declining years. The picture is highclass slapstick and a real innovation in the flicker realms.

WHALE EXTINCT IN FEW YEARS HUNTERS FEAR

Now Disappearing With Alarming Rapidity, as Hunting Increases.

San Diego, Cal.—The King of Deep is losing his sway. With alarming rapidity the great leviathan of the sea, hunted, hounded and killed by his arch-enemy, man, is going the way of the buffalo—the way that leads to extinction. This would never be the case, according to Clinton G. Abbott, director of the San Diego natural museum, were it not for the appearance and development of modern scientific methods for capturing and killing the whale, largest of all beings on the face of the earth.

One whaling concern, operating off the California coast, alone has bagged 450 of the sea titans this year, a comparatively staggering figure but one which is equalled and exceeded by many other whaling companies operating in other localities.

Many species of the huge mammal are already extinct due to the wholesale depredations of modern scientific slaughter. Abbott pointed out in sounding a warning against the continuance of unlimited whale-hunting. In a day, not far distant, Abbott averred, people will gasp with horrified amazement at the sight of a whale carcass in a museum much as they now regard the reconstructed skeleton of the pre-historic dinosaur with mingled feelings of strange curiosity and awe.

The modern method of hunting the huge denizens of the sea differs radically from the methods of a generation ago, when Herman Melville's "Moby Dick," a mythical whale-monster, was a living reality in the minds of story-readers. All the romance surrounding the business has departed, according to Abbott.

New Methods Used Instead of the sturdy little whalers of New England colonial and evolutionary days, lugging the mighty whales on a whaling expedition that lasted for months and that was considered successful if it returned to port with a whale or two as its catch, the modern picture of the whaling industry presents a huge tanker factory ship steaming out of port with a fleet of smaller vessels accompanying it. Equipped with high-powered engines, the small boats have no difficulty in overtaking the whale when it is sighted. A barb-wire harpoon, shot from the mouth of a cannon, finishes the great animal. He is towed to the mother factory ship, where, in short order, he is reduced to his commercial constituents.

CLUB FORMED BY CROOKS IN PLAN TO GO STRAIGHT

London.—One of the strangest clubs in world, composed entirely of crooks who have decided to "go straight" has been founded here.

And strange as the composition of the organization itself is the place in which it meets—nothing less than the Church of All Hallows, in Mark-Lane.

The club is known as the League of the Straight Road. It was founded by Miss Marjorie Evans, a welfare worker, in company with an ex-burglar who had been disabused in the war.

"My ex-burglar partner," Miss Evans told International News Service in describing her unique organization, "gave me entree into the most distinguished set of crooks in London. It is more difficult to get into this set than into any of the exclusive in Mayfair."

"Here we find men and women who wanted to 'go straight', but who have not had a favorable opportunity."

"Every member of the club has to be introduced and vouched for by member who knows that he wants a chance. For four months he is on probation."

The club at present has forty members, and Miss Evans hopes soon to enlarge it to fifty. She finds employment and provides amusement for her strange colleagues, and devotes all her time to keep them from the temptations which might cause them to go back to crime.

AMERICAN BOOKS FIRST AIRSHIP OCEAN PASSAGE

New Jersey Man Deposits Part Payment on Ticket Next Year.

London.—Six months before the service is scheduled to commence, Samuel Jacobs, of Paterson, New Jersey, U. S. A., has gone on record as the first person to book passage in the proposed airship service from England to the United States and Canada.

Commander Burney, managing director of the Airship Guarantee Company, announces the receipt of a deposit of $25 from Jacobs as part of Jacob's passage money for a trip in the first airship making the journey from New York to London.

Letter Makes Offer. In a letter to Commander Burney, Jacobs says: "I would like to make reservations on the dirigible R101, if and when she makes her first trip from New York to England. I am enclosing $25 as deposit on whatever the fare should be. Should the dirigible not make the trip within the next fifteen months you may return to me the $25."

The R101 is now being built at Howden, Yorkshire, for the British Government, and Commander Burney is superintending its construction. Commander Burney hopes to be able to make demonstration flights early in April.

"Jacobs has made a definite contract to travel in the liner, and he will be the first civil passenger," Burney told International News Service.

"If we are able to cross to New York in April we shall probably bring passengers back with us, and so inaugurate the first air service between the two continents. If the British Air Ministry carry out the tests, however, the decision to carry back passengers will rest with them."

To Charge $500. "If we, as a company, bring passengers from New York, we shall probably charge about $500. It will take approximately forty-eight hours to make the crossing, and during that time those on board will be able to enjoy all the comforts of a ship. They will have cabins, a restaurant, and a dancing floor, and will be able to take 112 pounds of luggage with them.

"The R101 is progressing beyond all expectations. The shell is nearly completed, and I am satisfied with the progress. It will be finished long before April, but I do not think tests will be carried out before then."

Tired people . . .

So MANY women, so many men, can't last through the day. Even mid-afternoon finds them listless and spent. Hopelessly tired.

What a difference it would mean if they but realized how constipation saps health and energy. How it steals youth. Mocks beauty. Kills ambition. How it leads in the end to untold diseases.

And it can be so easily relieved. So surely and safely prevented. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve it promptly and pleasantly. To prevent it ever beginning its deadly work.

Why "all-bran" is necessary

To relieve constipation naturally, the system must have plenty of bulk. ALL-BRAN, because it is 100% bran, furnishes bulk in generous quantity. It carries moisture through the intestines—exercising them, gently sweeping out poisons and wastes. There is seldom enough bulk to properly do this work in a part-bran product. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN—the 100% bran.

Farewell, dangerous drugs

How much better is ALL-BRAN than habit-forming pills and laxatives—whose dose must be constantly increased to remain effective. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a pleasant, healthful cereal food. Don't you agree that it is far safer and far better than to risk pills, drugs or part-bran products?

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle it into soups. Mix it with other cereals. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

But insist on genuine Kellogg's. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served in hotels, restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

O'Neill's 'Strange Interlude' is Epochal

In Four and a Half Hours It Pictures Amazingly the Entire Span of Human Life.

By LEONARD HALL.
New York, Feb. 3.—If it isn't big, it doesn't belong on this narrow silt of stone called Manhattan, where buildings are the tallest, basements the deepest, women (says it) are the most beautiful, and men can make more money (say they) than any other beings erect upon two legs.

Now Manhattan has the biggest play that ever smacked a woody audience fair on the brow. It is "Strange Interlude," written by the acknowledged king-pin of American playwrights, Eugene O'Neill, and produced by the Theater Guild.

When I say big, I do not only mean in size and weight, although the actual playing time of its nine acts is four hours and thirty minutes, not counting an hour and 20 minutes given the audience to go out for a snack halfway in the show. The curtain goes up at 5-15.

Its real business is in its very creation. It is almost incredible that one dark-browed, somber-looking little man could conceive, plan and put on paper this enormous, heart-rending play. It stands as O'Neill's masterpiece—everything he has ever written before is a Singing Midnet by comparison.

O'Neill was in perfect frenzy of creation when he wrote this amazing play. Disdaining petty loves and hates, he has splashed great daubs of color on a canvas the size of an Iowa barn. He has tried to point the whole picture of a human life in one theatrical evening—to answer all the riddles of existence in four and a half hours of blazing words.

To do this he takes one vivid, passionate girl from school-days to the door-step of old age. He almost viciously tells of her thwarted hopes, her little joys, her maze of loves and hopes and agonies. Through all its length runs the thread of desperate human futility. We see the ashes that remain after the fires of life have burned themselves away.

Lynn Fontanne (above) appears to splendid advantage in "Strange Interlude." William A. Brady (below) has gone back to acting after nearly ten years off-stage.

What is O'Neill's answer to those of us who feverishly seek happiness down the years? Simply that it is a stern and almost hopeless chase all the way, and that the better part of life comes alone toward the setting of the sun, when we experience the end of all passions and the beginnings of peace. It is far from a new idea, particularly among poets, but never has it been shown as poignantly as in "Strange Interlude."

It is a great play, in any league, and its splendid Guild production is one of the real events in the history of the American theater.

Its length is due in large part to the fact that O'Neill employs the trick of having his characters speak their real, and bitter, thoughts as well as the actual conversations they are having with each other. He handles the dodge magnificently, most of the time—playing off the terrible truth against the sweet alibi with stunning power.

Lynn Fontanne crowns her acting career with her work in the leading role. All the actors seem inspired by O'Neill's piece.

If you fail to see "Strange Interlude" on a visit to New York you will miss an astounding play some gorgeous acting, and remarkable novelties in writing and playing. But most of all you will miss a glorious, soul-stirring adventure in the world of make-believe.

The veteran William A. Brady—famous as fight promoter, theatrical producer and the husband of Grace George—is acting again. He stepped into a leading male role in his own production of a play called "A Free Soul," and has been putting on the grease paint ever since.

YOUTHS BLAMED IN MAJORITY OF SERIOUS CRIMES

Cleveland, O.—The responsibility for the most serious crime problem in the United States today—the burglaries and robberies committed by youths under 23 years of age—is blamed on prohibition by Dr. Raymond Moley, research director of the New York State Crime Committee and consultant to the Illinois Association for Criminal Justice, who attended a three-day institute on the study of crime sponsored by the Women's City Club here recently. Dr. Moley added that the enormous profits from bootlegging encourage organized crime.

"A survey of 25,000 cases of burglaries and robberies, the majority had been committed by boys under 23," was Dr. Moley's startling assertion.

"It is almost impossible to give the reason for this low age. The minister says it is the lack of religion and the lawyers blame it on slow justice. I don't know what it is."

Popular Misconceptions
The New York criminologist outlined six popular misconceptions regarding crime at the institute.

1. That juries are responsible for letting off criminals and that criminal trials by juries should be done away with;
2. That in determining sentences judges are infallible;
3. That the best known cases are the most important;
4. That heavy sentences deter crime;
5. That probation is sentimental;
6. That an efficient administration of justice is impossible without paying for it.

Dr. Moley suggested that judges should try criminal cases alone. However, he added, they should not be given the sole right to determine the length of sentence.

A plan was advocated by Dr. Moley, whereby a jury or a board to be tried can decide whether he wants to be tried by a jury or by a lone judge.

Agrees With Governor
He agreed with the opinion of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York that sentences of criminals should be determined by psychiatrists or psychologists, assisted by investigators of the convicted persons.

"More and more cases are settled out of court in advance of the trial," Dr. Moley revealed. "More persons are pleading guilty. In New York City out of 5,000 indictments 64 per cent pleaded guilty. In Cleveland the percentage was 64 per cent; in St. Louis 58 per cent; Minneapolis 81 per cent, and in Atlanta 43 per cent.

When the salaries of the prosecuting attorneys, judges and all connected with the administration of justice are increased at twice what they are at present, more efficient justice will be meted out, Dr. Moley contended.

"You cannot expect a $2,000 assistant prosecutor to win from a $50,000 attorney for the defense, he explains.

Have you used our circulating library? If not, why not? It is popular. All the new books—Quinn's.—Adv.

TRAVELING PREACHER SEEKS PRESIDENCY IN 1928 CAMPAIGN

Joplin, Mo.—The Reverend Alonzo F. Workman, itinerant minister of Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas and Oklahoma, has filed notice of his candidacy for the 1928 Democratic nomination for President of the United States.

The preacher declares he has filed notices in seventeen states, where preferential primaries are held, and that he has received acknowledgment from several, including Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Although the notices were not accompanied by the customary list of five hundred voters sponsoring his candidacy, Rev. Workman indicated he would have such a petition prepared as soon as he receives replies from the other states.

Without a regular pastorate, the minister supplies various churches in this territory, but has considered Joplin his home for a number of years. This will be the base for his presidential campaign, if he is nominated at Houston, Texas, he says.

Rev. Workman declared he gained quite some reputation as a military strategist during the World War, by voluntarily presenting President Woodrow Wilson with plans for the Allies' maneuvers, which, he said, were relayed to General Pershing.

"I feel from within my soul that I will be the next President of the United States," Rev. Workman declared. "My name was brought before the last Democratic National Convention in 1924, and I told them then that I would consider the nomination in 1928," Workman continued.

Rev. Workman asserted he would not become either a "favorite son" or "talking horse" candidate. He said he has not had sufficient time to prepare his platform, but that he would begin work on it immediately.

ILLINOIS PARDON BOARD SCANS PETITIONS ASKING CLEMENCY FOR CONVICTS

Springfield, Ill.—"Blanket" petitions asking clemency for convicts are not looked upon with favor now by the Illinois board of pardons and paroles.

Board members give as their reason for this attitude the fact that many persons affix their signatures to these petitions knowing nothing of the merits of the case in question and "sign on the dotted line" merely to please the person circulating the petition.

The latest instance of this kind came to light during a hearing before the board in which clemency was sought for Leonard Rich, Elmer Wilson and Stanley Hu, collegiate youths sentenced to life state penitentiary when they pleaded guilty to criminally assaulting Dorothy Westervelt, DeKalb Normal college co-ed, on a "speed" party.

While the hearing was in progress it developed that members of the county board of DeKalb county, public officials and others had signed clemency petitions merely because asked to do so by a popular member of the county board.

LEANING TOWER OF PISA INCREASING INCLINATION MAY LAST 1000 YEARS

The inclination of the famous campanile of Pisa, better known as the Leaning Tower, is increasing at the rate of .04 of an inch a year.

The tower is 179 feet in height, and leans from the perpendicular to an extent usually given as 16 feet 6 inches. The tower was not intended to amaze the spectator by its built-in tilt. The tilt is due to a subsidence of the soil while the work was in progress.

Between the years 1829 and 1910 an increase of one foot was measured, and as the result of recent measurements it has been ascertained that the deviation from the perpendicular is continuing.

In theory, an insignificant gradual increase of the Leaning Tower's inclination will not endanger its stability for many years to come, probably a thousand. The unexpected, however, may happen as was the case with the famous campanile of Venice.

The tower is built on a stratum of alluvial soil—sand and clay—under which there is a spring of water whose infiltrations have caused the mischief.

Links On Car Care
What anti-freeze to use in the cooling system depends on the climate as well as the extent to which the automobile is driven.
Where a constant cold spell is expected for long periods, as in the northwest, it may be economical to use alcohol as the anti-freeze. In this case, the alcohol will not boil out, since low temperatures will be maintained for some time, and will at the same time keep the mixture from freezing.
High percentages of anti-freeze have to be used, where the temperature falls down to 20 degrees and more below zero. The higher this percentage the greater becomes the difference in cost between alcohol and glycerine, and the less economical becomes the latter.
Where the average cold spell is short and not too severe, however, glycerine is the best anti-freeze to use. In this case, there isn't the danger that comes with the use of alcohol when a sudden cold snap hits the locality or when the cold changes suddenly to warmer weather.
Whatever the weather, the glycerine remains in the car, ready for the next cold period.
The following table, based on U. S. Bureau of Standards tests, tell what proportion of anti-freeze to use with water, for the degree of temperature expected at any locality or at any time of the winter.
Degrees Fahrenheit Alcohol Glycerine
20 10 22
10 20 32
0 30 40
-10 40 47
-20 50 54
The alcohol here considered is the denatured variety and the glycerine is the pure, distilled chemical that is now being prepared in several commercial forms for special radiator use.
The temperature mentioned is the minimum to which the percentage of anti-freeze shown may be used with safety. Below that temperature, the amount of anti-freeze has to be increased, in proportion to water used.
For instance, if the expected low temperature will be 20 degrees above zero at any period, and alcohol is to be used, 19 per cent of the cooling solution, or about one-fifth

New York, Feb. 3—The system of buying cars "on time" is the main reason why the automobile industry has prospered and is now the leading industry in the country, according to J. J. Raskob, chairman of the Finance Committee of the General Corporation.
"We in the industry estimate that two-thirds of all automobiles produced are sold on credit through installment payments," says Raskob. "If this credit were not available we would have no motor industry as we know it today. Today it is the greatest industry in the world and can be credited almost wholly with the prosperity of our country and its people are enjoying."
"Ten years ago few could foresee the possibility of 25 million automobiles being in use in this country. And without the sound development of installment selling it would have been impossible."
"If every motor car buyer had been obliged to accumulate

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 3

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE

Numerous Connecticut persons who, fifteen or sixteen years ago, were keenly hopeful that in Connecticut there was about to arise a college for women that would not only be abreast of the best in higher education for girls but somewhat in advance of any other school in its spirit and its ideals. It will be likely to watch with close concern the forthcoming meeting of the trustees of Connecticut College for Women.

It is very much to be doubted if any American college, for either sex, ever started off under quite such brilliant skies of promise as Connecticut College under the guidance of the lamented Dr. Sykes. That it has ever attained to quite the plane, either of influence or recognition, to which it was rising when his regime so tragically ended, few would assert. It is a college. It was to have been an inspiring force in the culture of New England.

Whether the stirrings under the surface, which seem to be indicated, may mean something of importance for the future of the school remains to be seen. There are still friends in the state who believe that sometime it may wholly fulfill its destiny.

ANOTHER WAY

Attorney-General Alling has knocked end-wise the theory, held until yesterday by Mr. Stoeckel, that the Connecticut Commissioner of Motor Vehicles had been endowed by legislative enactment with authority to call to legal account "any officer" of the state, including judicial officers such as prosecutors and grand jurors, who might fail to do their duty in the enforcement of the motoring laws. The commissioner is advised by Mr. Alling that the Legislature did not intend to confer any such extraordinary power on his office and that officers referred to in the statute must be considered as meaning those officers having powers of arrest who are appointed by him "and those over whom he can acquire jurisdiction by affirmative act."

This puts up in the air the case of the Wilton grand juror who is charged with scoffing at most attempts of the state police to enforce the automobile laws in the town of Wilton. But it is very much to be hoped that Commissioner Stoeckel will not drop that case merely because he has been shown that his original line of action was predicated on a mistaken assumption as to procedure. Grand jurors are still amenable to the law, if not to the particular new statute in question. If they are guilty of misfeasance in office they can be reached. Even a judge can be impeached.

There is a good deal at stake—so much that the commissioner of motor vehicles cannot afford to let the affair drop. The slaughter on the highways must not go unmitigated simply because a grand juror here and there fails to comprehend his responsibilities.

PORK SHIPS

The New York World, though it is a Democratic newspaper and most of the votes that put the Jones bill through the Senate were Democratic votes, makes no bones of declaring bluntly that the bill is a pork barrel bill and the votes that passed it largely the votes of pork barrels.

One provision of the bill stipulates that the government owned ships which it provides shall be maintained shall be allocated to the various ports of the country as evenly as practicable. Wherefore almost every senator from any state with any kind of a seaport, in the south and the Pacific west, voted for the Jones bill, though many of them are hidebound conservatives to whom governmental ownership is a bitter pill.

This proceeding in itself is as good a demonstration as possible of the reason why government ownership, while it may be good as a theory, in practice is rotten. If we should have a government-owned merchant marine under the Jones bill there would not be the slightest chance—even if we had the good luck to get the wisest and most honest commission in all history to operate the ships—of business-like operation being permitted, Congress would have to be constantly interfering because this or that port was not getting enough of the pork. Ships that ought to sail from New York or Philadelphia or even New London would be demanded by Savannah, Charleston, Pensacola, Mobile, perhaps even Dubuque, and there would be turmoil if they weren't sent there.

INTERVENTION

The Pan-American Union Conference is struggling with a mighty problem in attempting to arrive at a workable solution of the intervention question.

To the second commission dealing with international law Peru has offered a paragraph ameliorating the curt finality of the one proposed by Mexico.

Mexico favored a clause reading: "No state may intervene in the affairs of another."

Peru's proposal is this: All states possess the independent right to work out their own welfare "without intervention or control by other states, but in the exercise of this right they must not violate the rights of other states."

Mexico's offering at least means something. But it is something so something in its rigidity, so formidable in its commitments, as to frighten that statesmanship which is forever striving to see through the curtain of the future. It reeks of the perils of the unknown and unguessable.

Peru's offering, on the other hand, is a pretty sound that means nothing, or can easily be robbed of any semblance of meaning it may have. No nation, no state, ever invades or attacks or interferes with another but it sets up interference with its own rights as an excuse, even if there may be some utterly ulterior reason.

To formulate an agreement that would not arouse the selfish fears of every conferring state, and that yet would not be mere sounding brass and tinkling cymbals, is a job. Perhaps the Pan-American conference may evolve such an agreement. If it does it can well claim a triumph in diplomacy.

COURTING UNHAPPINESS

Socially, Continental Europe ought to be pretty much like heaven to the American Negro actor or entertainer who meets with professional success there, and the number of those who have done so is not small. The peculiar inhibitions under which the intelligent or talented Negro labors in this country are so relatively slight on the Continent, the color line so much less sharply drawn, that it would seem as though such people would not only be delighted with their new freedom and new experience of comparative social equality, but would take the utmost pains to foster that happy estate.

Yet in Vienna they have just had to put a police guard around Josephine Baker, American colored dancer who had captured the admiration of the town, to keep her from being mobbed by students. And the thing that brought about this sudden reaction was the fact that in her jazz opera "Johnnie" a Negro boasts that all white women capitulate to him.

Such arrant folly as the introduction of such sentiments on the stage is simply amazing on the part of American Negroes who know from bitter experience what unhappiness awaits them if they court the sharp drawing of the color line. Of all things one would have expected of these folks the most unlikely was a challenge to Europeans to treat them with the same indignity they meet with here.

WAR DRUMMING

A Roman newspaper asserts that it has unearthed a secret naval pact between France and Jugoslavia, by which France is to organize a Jugoslav fleet of submarines and light craft, train naval officers and create a naval air fleet for that country, while Jugoslavia is to fortify the Adriatic coast. The newspaper demands to know at whom these preparations are aimed—meaning of course that they are aimed at Italy.

In Rome Mussolini announced on Wednesday the incorporation of the Fascist Militia in the regular army organization, making a speech in which he said: "They must become our shock troops which perpetuate the warlike traditions of the Arditi during the war and the Fascist squadristi during the revolutionary period—dagger

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

(56) Sewing Machines

The value of sewing machines, cases and attachments turned out by Connecticut factories today is but little more than it was in 1900. Connecticut was the center for the manufacture of sewing machines which first achieved commercial success.

Connecticut factories during 1925 turned out products in this industry valued at $3,895,928. This was 8.4 per cent of the total for all states, which was $46,293,536. Twenty-five years earlier, Connecticut manufacturers produced 15 per cent of the country's total, the product being valued at $3,170,137. One interesting fact about this industry is that during 1921, when most industries showed a sharp recession in value of product in comparison with other recent years, sewing machines showed an increase in value. Connecticut's output that year was worth $4,029,000.

Illinois led all states in the value of this commodity during 1925, her factories turning out machines valued at $7,180,945. Connecticut ranked second, and Massachusetts, with an output valued at $2,817,181, third.

The average number of wage earners engaged in this industry in Connecticut during 1925 was 1,572, whereas the average number during 1900 was 2,104. Wages for the two years amounted to $1,972,656 and $1,176,622 respectively.

For this reason, the midnight resorts of the "big street" are not faring so well. The "butter and egg man," if he has not completely disappeared, has at least changed complexion so that it is difficult to recognize him.

And speaking of putting on shows, the process of creating a star changes little from season to season. There are certain recognized celebrities who, but for temperamental reasons, do not need their names in the bright lights. And getting an unknown name into the electric bulbs for short sprints of stardom is only a matter of money.

The process is simple. Just glance along Broadway until you find a play that can be picked up for some trifling sum. Perhaps you can get a "revival" for a few thousand dollars. For a few thousand more you can put it on. Then get on the phone and tell the "girl friend" you have a play for her. Cast her in the lead, put her name in the bright lights—and there you are. If, by accident, she really can act, you may have a gold mine in your hands. If, as most often happens, she can't act, you are no worse off than a hundred others that have tried it.

And you'd be surprised to know how often this actually happens. GILBERT SWAN.

CANADA BREWERS AGREE TO QUIT SELLING BEER IN KEGS AND HALF KEGS

Detroit.—Detroit's beer supply received a blow from across the river with the announcement that Ontario brewers will discontinue the sale of kegs and half-kegs.

Action was taken at a meeting of 100 brewers of the province with D. B. Hannah, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Commission. It is aimed at blind pigs and "cheating" by hotels and restaurants. A common practice in Windsor is to sell real brew gulfed as near-beer, the meeting was told.

With the sale narrowed to bottles alone, beer on tap will become virtually extinct, it is believed here. Sale of keg beer is to be dropped as soon as supplies now on hand are sold according to the brewers' agreement.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Feb. 3.—The government has found itself in a bad mess over prohibition enforcement and doesn't know yet how it's going to wade out.

It's a gooey mess, for it involves such components as graft, corruption, the hidden hand of politics and the stupidity of some prohibition agents, which is often synonymous with incompetence, viciousness and brutality.

These factors combine to make a solution vitally important. In the present row between the Prohibition Bureau and the Civil Service Commission over whether present enforcement personnel shall be retained, it is important to remember that the service was put on a competitive merit basis, the Anti-Saloon League and nearly everyone else had agreed that prohibition enforcement was a national scandal which must be cleaned up.

So, today, the great issue is whether there is to be more and better enforcement or worse and less. The former may take years at once and may even be necessary before enforcement can become more honestly effective.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran, finding nearly 75 per cent of his 2,000 prohibition agents disqualified by simple mental written civil service examinations and with perhaps 10 or 15 per cent more almost sure to follow, has shouted for help and predicted a collapse of enforcement unless he can keep his men. The Anti-Saloon League has been worrying.

The plain truth is that no one had ever suspected that Prohibition agents were so dumb. The Civil Service Commission calmly replies that it has only followed its usual procedure and that it will continue to do so. Oral examination of the 4500 survivors, including only 500 prohibition jobholders, who are candidates for 2000 agent jobs, are proceeding.

A rigid character examination will follow. Then, if in some enforcement districts there aren't enough eligibles sifted from the rest, re-examination will be held in those districts.

But meanwhile, the Civil Service Commission has been subjected to powerful pressure, political and otherwise, and if it succumbs and lets down the bars for the existing personnel as is demanded, there will be no assurance of an intelligent, competent enforcement service. The politicians who regard prohibition enforcement as the most lucrative section in the national patronage orchard have shared Doran's dilemma, for most of the present agents are connected with some political machine.

In eight years, some 1300 prohibition agents have been fired and between 600 and 700 prosecuted to the courts. Of the current crop of 2000, the Civil Service Commission claims to have weeded out the dumb and the illiterate and now to be engaged in disqualifying the crooked and otherwise unfit.

Some of the smarter grafters in the service who may have passed the first two tests may have trouble when their records are scrutinized. A man who has been in the enforcement machinery for several years recently told this writer: "I estimate that all but about 2 per cent of the agents are chisel-grafting."

The prohibition agent who can't make $50,000 a year if he desires is a dub. Who thinks that most of these fellows go to work at $1850 a year just for the salary?"

Doran, demanding re-examinations, said many of his disqualified agents would turn to graft in disgust. If so, they must have done that by now in the realization that they must be made rapidly while the sun still shines.

Doran had the privilege of replacing such crooks with temporary appointees who had passed the first examination, but apparently didn't care to use... It should be noted that administration whom he quoted as attacking the commission's tests were part of the old regime—the only two administrators, then, under civil service being those at Boston and Buffalo.

ANN ARBOR TO REPEAL ORDINANCES AFFECTING HORSE CAR AND SALOON

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Ordinances of the city of Ann Arbor which designate the hours saloons may be open, define the boundaries of the districts in which they operate, and which order horse drawn cabs to be "securely tied unless under the absolute control of the driver" will be repealed soon if the plans of Roscoe Bonisteel, city attorney, are carried out.

These and other equally antiquated laws are on the city statute today and are being widely attacked.

VALUED HEIRLOOMS DISAPPEARED FROM FRENCH STOREHOUSE

Paris.—More than 10,000 pieces of period furniture, priceless tapestries and national heirlooms which cannot be replaced have disappeared from the official storehouse of the French government within the last thirty-five years. Upon the demand of Senator Gaston de Kersaint, minister of Public Instruction, Herriot has promised an investigation.

Ordinarily the furniture is used by the state only on rare occasions for furnishing a Palace in preparation for receptions to foreign sovereigns, in embellishing ministerial offices for special occasions and for embellishing the Palace of Versailles for meetings of the National Assembly.

The last inventory of state furniture, supposed to be guarded and kept in repair by custodians of the National storehouse, was taken in 1894.

Since then, according to Senator de Kersaint, backed up by Le Martin, piece after piece, has been loaned out to individuals, to patriotic organizations both of the war and semi-official organizations, most of which have not been returned to the storehouse. In many cases furniture and furnishings actually returned to the storehouse were in such bad condition as to be beyond repair.

Custodians of the storehouse apparently hold no receipts for furniture thus loaned, hence they can make no demands to have the furniture returned. Minister Herriot has promised to take steps to prevent such disappearance of state property in the future.

The amount thus lost during the last thirty-five years is valued at more than $250,000.

EGYPTIAN MAN GO WIVES; FINALLY GETS DIVORCES

Cairo.—Charged with marrying sixty wives in thirty years and getting rid of them by fraudulent divorces, Ismail Sherif Bey has been tried at Tanta Assize.

He was acquitted on the criminal charge, but the Court treated the case as a civil one and ordered him to pay $10,000 each to the two former wives who initiated the pro-

Science Sheds Some Light on 'Emoting'

Today's Girls Wear Feelings Close to Surface—Why Gentlemen Pick Blondes.

BY GENE COHN

New York, Feb. 3.—Science, having stepped in as referee of that ancient controversy over the relative emotionalism of blondes and brunettes, is preparing a decision in which the blondes appear to advantage in the emotional sprints.

But for long distance emotional endurance, put your money on the brunettes!

This qualified verdict, accompanied by many highly interesting commentaries, comes as the result of twelve years of experimentation on the part of Dr. William Marston, of Columbia University's psychological department. Dr. Marston's most recent test, made upon an equal number of blonde and brunette Broadway chorines, attracted national attention.

The chorines were harnessed, two at a time, to instruments that registered upon a revolving drum their fluctuating blood pressures, pulse rates and respiratory changes. Upon a regulation movie screen was then flashed an exchange of high-pressure passion between Greta Garbo and John Gilbert. The girls' varying emotional reactions were recorded. On paper, the brunettes seemed to win on points.

However, as Dr. Marston points out, one should not hop at conclusions. After all, gentlemen do not prefer blondes without some reason.

Only One Chapter

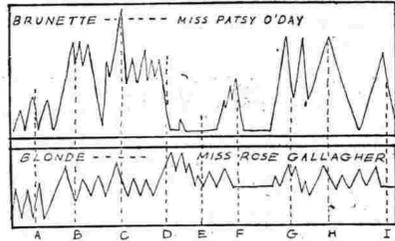

The chorines provide but one chapter of Dr. Marston's investigations into human emotions. He has been busily engaged for years making laboratory tests of college students, housewives and others. From these experiments can be drawn some rather generalized conclusions:

That blondes are quicker of emotional response. In their classification are to be found the greatest number of "thyroids." These are types whose thyroid glands are most active. The thyroid gland is contained in the neck. Its activity is blamed for susceptibility to quick emotional reaction.

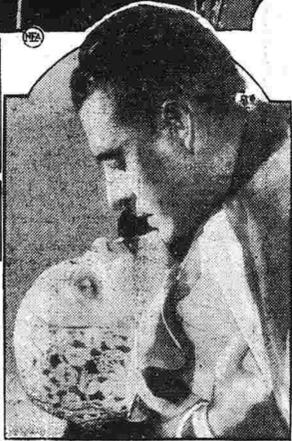

That brunettes, while slower to react, have greater emotional depths than the blondes and carry them over a greater length of time. Also they have a "siren-sense" that blondes lack.

That girls of the modern generation wear their emotions closer to the surface. There is more than theory to the notion that they are far less inhibited than their sisters of yesteryear. Tapping emotional depths not so many years ago was complicated by these inhibitions, since the girls tried to hide and deny their emotions. It is much simpler now, the professor finds.

THAT BLONDE-B RUNETTE TEST

After Money, Love

That men are not so moved by the "love interest" and such. They show more marked emotional reaction to such things as money and business and sports and adventure, whereas feminine reactions are the more pronounced when the appeal is to love, heart-interest, home, children.

That 60 is generally speaking, the "unemotional age." From 50 to 60 is a time when the waning of emotion seems noticeable. It was found that reference to childhood events brought the most noteworthy reactions from elderly persons.

Which, it would seem, may furnish a solution to the "gentleman prefer" problem. For if, as indicated, the blondes are quick of responsive, why should not men, who have not much time for love-making in this busy world, prefer them?

HOUSTON TO PREEN GETTING READY FOR FUTURE EXPANSION

Houston, Tex.—While business is looking forward to a great expansion because of advent in June of the democratic convention here, other factors are laying plans that will make this town one of the most beautiful in the state.

Already probably the foremost Texas city as far as park development is concerned, Houston now proposes to redouble its work in this and other beautification lines.

Herbert Godwin, chairman of the park board, has announced a campaign during which thousands of quick growing shrubs will be planted, artificial lakes will be dug and the banks of Buffalo Bayou, which bisects the city, will be beautified.

This last item, beautification of the Bayou banks, is expected to be one of the most progressive steps the city has taken and has long been contemplated. The Bayou winds in short curves through the entire city down to the Gulf of Mexico, its first entrance to the city at the attractive River Oaks residential section, probably the town's most fashionable home district. Then it winds through parkland to suddenly enter the heart of the business area. For miles and miles industries line both banks until the steam reaches a basin made by man. It is here that ocean-going ships berth.

From the turning basin to the sea is 50 miles and there is scarcely a place on its banks not occupied by some industry. The "cleaning" plans extend close to the homes and business houses where fullest co-operation has been promised.

TO STABILIZE FRANC

Paris, Feb. 3.—Premier Poincare told the Chamber of Deputies today that he is desirous of having the franc stabilized as soon as possible at the present rate of exchange.

"But first," he added, "a method of stabilization must be found which would do the least harm."

REGINALD DENNY HEADS DOUBLE BILL AT RIALTO

Famous Comedian at His Best In "Cheerful Fraud": Is One Of Two Features Today and Saturday.

A splendid double feature program of unusual interest awaits patrons of the Rialto Theater tonight and Saturday. In fact, the entire bill is one of the biggest and finest that Manager Campbell has ever presented. The performance on Saturday is continuous as usual from 2:15 until 10:30.

Farce is only drama in humorous terms.

That is the definition supplied by William A. Seiter, one of the screen's leading directors, of farce and light comedy, whose latest production, "The Cheerful Fraud," starring Reginald Denny comes to the Rialto today and Saturday.

Farce comedy plots in most cases might easily serve as dramatic stories except for their treatment and the performance of the leading man. It is here that Reginald Denny shines above all others. The manner in which he puts over a picture has brought him the popularity he enjoys. In "The Cheerful Fraud," Denny is at his very best supported by a capable cast of stars including Otis Harlan, Gertrude Astor, Charles Carrara, Emily Fitzroy and Gertrude Olmstead.

The other big feature for over the week-end is "Closed Gates," a smashing drama of love and hate filled with thrills and action. Featured in the stellar role is beautiful Jane Novak.

The Rialto Short Subjects, always carefully selected, include the latest chapter of "Hawk of the Hills," starring Alene Ray and Walter Miller, and an Our Gang Comedy.

"Les Miserables," the Universal Film de France picturization of Victor Hugo's immortal classic, comes to the Rialto for a three day engagement beginning on Sunday night.

CONNECTICUT COMPOSERS ON HARTFORD PROGRAM

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 3.—Connecticut composers will be featured in an anniversary program given by the Travelers Insurance Company's radio station here on the evening of Friday, February 10, according to announcement made here today.

Among composers whose works will be used are Horatio William Parker, once dean of Yale Music School; Ethelbert Woodbridge Nevin, former New Haven; and Henry De Koven, a native of Middletown. Selections from "A Connecticut Yankee", from Frank Twaits' book with music done by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart also are to be given.

The concert is to be sent from twenty-one principal cities at the same time, starting at 8 p. m. The Travelers station starts its fourth year on February 10.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The second annual High School carnival will be held February 21. The great success of last year's carnival made it seem advisable to repeat the affair and it is expected that the attractions will surpass those of last year.

The tryouts for the triangular debating team will be held next Monday afternoon. Candidates are to present arguments on the topic of capital punishment.

High School girls went back to the days of childhood yesterday when they all appeared with huge vari-colored hair ribbons in observance of the annual Ribbon Day.

Report cards were issued today and pupils marks showed a great increase in the number of those on the honor rolls. Out of 150 on both honor rolls the largest number in the history of the school there were 26 on the A Honor Roll.

There are two basketball games scheduled for the week-end. This evening New Haven Hillhouse, runner-up in the Yale tournament last year comes here for the first game between the two schools and tomorrow the team plays a return game at West Hartford.

Yesterday at the assembly an informal debate was held with Bristol High on the subject. "Resolved that the Japanese should be admitted on a quota basis." Manchester defended the affirmative and was represented by Carle Cumberly and Caroline Prete. Bristol on the negative side, was represented by Elizabeth Chimevitz and Elizabeth McCumber.

RAYON PRODUCTION

Rome, Feb. 3.—Rayon production in Italy during 1927 was estimated at 48,400,000 pounds today. This was an increase of more than 10,000,000 pounds over the previous year.

ONE TICKET IN ITALY

Rome, Feb. 3.—The parliamentary reform bill, restricting elections to one ticket and suffrage to members of Fascist Guilds, was endorsed today by the Fascist Grand Council, with Premier Mussolini presiding.

The substance of the bill was approved last fall by the council but it was then thought to be a temporary measure.

The measure is a radical step toward the complete obliteration of all opposition to Fascism, since there will be only the Fascist ticket, only members of industrial guilds can vote; and only faithful Fascists can be members of the guilds.

SOUTH METHODISTS EAT 130 POUNDS OF TURKEY

Over 200 People Attend Annual Ladies' Aid Society Meeting Held Last Night.

Over 200 attended the annual turkey supper given by the Ladies' Aid society at the South Methodist church last evening. Collins Drigg's orchestra furnished music during the meal hour. Mrs. Gertrude Trotter, general chairman of the committee in charge, was congratulated on the success of the project. About 130 pounds of turkey and practically all the dishes on the tempting menu were prepared in the completely equipped church kitchen. It included turkey with all the fixings, mashed potatoes and turnips, creamed onions, cranberry sauce, celery, pickles and olives, rolls, tea and coffee, squash pie and suet pudding.

Mrs. Jessie Winterbottom supervised the dining room arrangements. The tables were very attractive in red and white. Mrs. Trotter had made many miniature cherry trees of red and green paper. These were in small flow pots and added a cheerful touch of color.

Mrs. Edith Dowd, chairman of the entertainment, provided a pleasing program of music, readings and a sketch, entitled "The Bachelor's Reverie." T. Walter Reichard was the bachelor. Mrs. Louis St. Clair Burr recited with good effect the descriptive passages as the girls passed in review. Miss Florence Wilson was the country girl, Miss Metcalf the tennis fan, Miss Helen Gardner, yachting; Doris Keeney, skating; Charlotte Reichard the nurse, Margaret House the Manchester girl, Thelma Carr the choir girl and Bessie Maguire the bride. Mrs. Robert Gordon played the incidental music and also accompanied the singer, Miss Etta Otto of Broad Brook. Miss Caroline Deuse, 13 year old Hartford educationist, gave a number of readings.

Under the direction of Mrs. Harry Anderson home-made candy was sold before and after the entertainment and a neat sum was realized from the sale.

The jewel case was most baffling to Vance. It had been opened with a steel chisel after usual precautions had been taken, and it was found in the room with the murdered Margaret O'Connor. Spotswood had gone out with her the evening of the murder. When he left her he had seen at the switchboard, to call a cab. They heard a scream from a room, but when they reached the door were told everything was all right. The next morning she had been found strangled. Vance believes another man was in the apartment besides the murderer and that he hid in the clothes closet. Investigation has been seen with her a lot and he is brought in for questioning.

CHAPTER XVII

"I CAN eliminate myself easily enough," Cleaver proclaimed, with easy confidence. "There's a speeding summons from Boonton, New Jersey. Note the date and time—September the 10th—last night—at half past eleven. Was driving down to Hopatcong, and was ticketed by a motorcycle cop just as I had passed Boonton and was heading for Mountain Lakes. Got to appear in court there tomorrow morning. Darn nuisance, these country constables."

He gave Markham a long, calculating look. "You couldn't square it for me, could you? It's a rotten ride to Jersey, and I've got a lot to do tomorrow."

Markham, who had inspected the summons casually, put it in his pocket. "I'll attend to it for you," he promised, smiling amiably. "Now tell me what you know."

Cleaver puffed meditatively on his cigar. Then, leaning back and crossing his knees, he spoke with apparent candor. "I doubt if I know much that'll help you. . . . I liked the Canary, as she was called—in fact, was pretty much attached to her at one time. Did a number of foolish things; wrote her a lot of damn-fool letters when I went to Cuba last year. Even had my picture taken with her down at Atlantic City."

He made a self-condemnatory grimace. "Then she began to get cool and distant; broke several appointments with me. I raised the devil with her, but the only answer I got was a demand for money. . . . He stopped and looked down at his cigar ash. A woman had gleamed from his narrowed eyes, and the muscles of his jaws hardened.

"No use lying about it. She had those letters and things, and she touched me for a neat little sum before I got ten back. . . . "What was this?"

There was a momentary hesitation. "Last June," Cleaver replied. Then he hurried on: "Mr. Markham—his voice was bitter—"I don't want to throw mud on a dead person; but that was the case of the shrewdest, coldest-blooded black-mailer I've ever been my misfortune to meet. And I'll say this, too: I wasn't the only easy mark she squeezed. She had others on her string. . . . I happen to know she once dug into old Louey Mannix for a plenty—he told me about it."

"Could you give me the names of any of these other men?" asked Markham, attempting to dissimble his eagerness. "I've already heard of the Mannix episode." "No, I couldn't," Cleaver spoke regretfully. "I've seen the Canary here and there with different men; and there's one in particular I've noticed lately. But they were all strangers to me."

"I suppose the Mannix affair is dead and buried by this time?" "Yes—ancient history. You won't get any line on the situation from that angle. But there are others—more recent than Mannix—who might be looking into it. If you could find them, I'm easy-going myself; take things as they come. But there's a lot of men who'd go red-headed if she did the things to them that she did to me."

Cleaver, despite his confession, did not strike me as easy-going, but rather as a cold, self-contained, nervous person whose immobility was as all things dictated by policy and expediency.

Markham studied him closely. "You think, then, her death may have been due to vengeance on the part of some disillusioned admirer?"

Cleaver carefully considered his answer. "Seems reasonable," he said finally. "She was riding for a fall."

There was a short silence; then Markham asked: "Do you happen to know of a young man she was interested in—good-looking, small, blond mustache, light blue eyes—named Skelly?"

Cleaver snorted derisively. "That wasn't the Canary's specialty—she let the young ones alone, as far as I know."

At this moment a page-boy approached Cleaver, and bowed. "Sorry to disturb you, sir, but there's a phone call for your brother. Party said it was important and, as your brother isn't in the club now, the operator thought you might know where he'd gone."

"How would I know?" fumed Cleaver. "Don't ever bother me with his calls."

"Your brother in the city?" asked Markham casually. "I met him years ago. He's a San Franciscan, isn't he?"

"Yes—rabid Californian. He's visiting New York for a couple of weeks; he'll appreciate Frisco more when he gets back."

It seemed to Markham that this information was given reluctantly; and he got the impression that Cleaver, for some reason, was annoyed. But Markham, apparently, was too absorbed in the problem before him to take notice of the other's disgruntled air, for he reverted at once to the subject of the murder.

"I happen to know one man who has been interested in the Odell woman recently; he may be the same one you've seen her with—tall about forty-five and wears a gray checked coat and a hat with a gray crested plume." (He was, I knew, describing Spotswood.)

"That's the man," averred Cleaver. "Saw them together only last week at Mouquin's."

Markham was disappointed. "Unfortunately, he's checked off the list. . . . But there must be somebody who was in the girl's confidence. You're sure you couldn't cudgel your brains to any advantage?"

of these exclusive society specialists—a neurologist he calls himself—and I believe he's the head of a private sanitarium of some kind for nervous women. He must have money, and, of course, his social standing is a vital asset to him—just the sort of man the Canary might have selected as a source of income. And I know this: he came to see her a good deal oftener than a doctor of his type would be apt to. I ran into him one night at her apartment, and when she introduced us, he wasn't even civil."

"It will at least bear looking into," replied Markham unenthusiastically. "You've no one else in mind who might know something helpful?"

Cleaver shook his head. "No—no one."

"And she never mentioned anything to you that indicated she was in fear of any one, or anticipated trouble?"

"Not a word. Fast is, I was bowled over by the news. I never read any paper but the morning Herald—except, of course, The Daily Racing Form at night. And there was no account of the murder in this morning's paper. I didn't hear about it until just before dinner. The boys in the billiard-room were talking about it, and I went out and looked at an afternoon paper. If it hadn't been for that, I might not have known of it till tomorrow morning."

Markham discussed the case with him until half past eight, but could elicit no further suggestions. Finally Cleaver rose to go.

"Sorry I couldn't give you more help," he said. His rubicund face was beaming now and he shook hands with Markham in the friendliest fashion.

"You wanted that viscid old sport rather cleverly don't you know," remarked Vance, when Cleaver had gone. "But there's something deuced queer about him. The transition from his gambler's glassy stare to his garrulous confidences was too sudden—suspiciously sudden, in fact. I may be evil-minded, but he didn't impress me as a luminous pillar of truth. Maybe it's because I don't like those cold, boiled eyes of his—somehow they didn't harmonize with his gushing imitation of open-hearted frankness."

"We can allow him something for his embarrassing position," suggested Markham charitably. "It isn't exactly pleasant to admit having been taken in and blackmailed by a chambermaid."

"Still, if he got his letters back in June, why did he continue paying court to the lady? Heath reported he was active in that sector right up to the end."

"He may be the complete amoralist," smiled Markham. "At any rate, he's a queer one. Doctor Lindquist, a possible source of information."

"Quite so," agreed Vance. "And that's about the only point of his whole passionate unfoldment that I particularly put any stock in, because it was the only point he indicated with any decent reticence."

My advice is that you interview this doctor without further delay. "I'm dog-tired," objected Markham. "Let it wait till tomorrow."

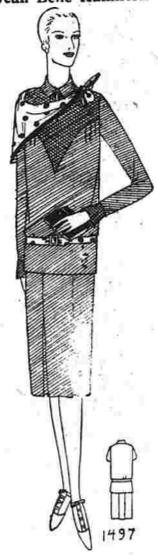

Markham glanced at the great clock over the stone mantel. "It's lateish, I'll admit, but why not, as Pittacus advised, seize time by the forelock?"

"Who lets slip fortune, her shall never find; Occasion once past by, is bald behind."

But the elder Cato anticipated Cowley. In his "Disticha de Moribus" he wrote— "Comel!" pleaded Markham, rising. "Anything to dam this flow of erudition."

Two-Piece Sports Frocks Gain New Interest Through Fabric Contrasts

An interesting contrast in line treatment is revealed in this two-piece sports frock of light and dark green crepe, which chooses the curved and pointed lines of a yoke to give a smart sectional division, and note of color contrast on the slightly bloused bodice. The skirt is fitted to a lining top and has wide box-pleats in front and back. Additional chic is lent by the kerchief scarf and belt of beige with green polka-dots. This design is adaptable to both silk and wool materials and as pictured here uses jersey for the dress with crepe de chine yoke and flared cuffs. It is designed for misses and small women in sizes 15, 18 and 20 years. Price of pattern 15 cents.

NAIL POLISHES AND CLEANSING WASH

Some like a high polish on their finger nails, and others prefer a dull glow. Good taste dictates a not too high brilliancy.

Upon examining your manicure case, you will find that the polish is in one of three forms—powder, cake or liquid. Just at present it is rather fashionable to color these preparations a bright pink or red, especially the liquid polishes which would be more correctly named varnishes.

The powder, cake and paste polishes are generally made of one of the chemical combination of tin, since the salts of tin impart such a beautiful luster to the nails when applied to them by means of a chamois buffer.

However, if the nails show roughened spots, (not need smoothing down, a polish made of cuttle-fish bone or pumice stone combined with talcum powder is best for the purpose.

Brush the liquid quickly on the nails. When necessary to remove it, wipe off with the polish itself, or with a little chloroform or ether. Liquid nail polish or varnish: Paraffin wax, 60 grains. Cholesterol, 2 fluid ounces. Oil of rose, 3 drops.

Should the nails be discolored, remove the stains by applying this cleansing wash: Citric Acid—30 grains. Rose Water—1 fluid ounce.

BOW B.E.N.D.S. New felt hats use bows more and more for decoration. A navy blue tricorne hat with bows on each corner and a band that is beveled in front and back.

WANTED: GOOD TASTE!

By Olive Roberts Barton

What is good taste? Some people will tell you, "It is that which rests and brings peace and tranquility to the eye of the observer."

Others will say, "It is that which exhilarates and inspires without jarring."

Some say it is the artificial reproduction of nature, adhering closely as possible to lines and color combinations found in the great outdoors. There are those who insist that it is mere simplicity. Opposed to these are the devotees of Oriental profusion.

No one can say just what good taste is. Brussels carpets, Nottingham curtains, Victorian furniture and Federal architecture used to be good taste. They have joined the ranks of horrors.

"Beautiful but not conspicuous," is probably as good a definition as any. But then it is again! What I consider beautiful my neighbor would abhor, and vice versa. How are we to know when things are even beautiful? There is no rule for line—there is no rule for color.

One travels in England. He sees the Georgian and the Tudor style of architecture, comes home and builds his country house accordingly. His neighbor travels in Italy and puts up an Italian villa. Another neighbor favors the high peaked gables of the French farmhouse. Nearby stands a Southern Colonial.

Shades of Sir Christopher Wren! Why cannot we develop a style of American architecture that is American and is as good taste as those styles of our European neighbors? Surely we have architects who can do this in harmony.

The reason for a purely American type of house, or the adoption of Southern Colonial, is obvious. We are developing a mongrel style that is a mixture of everything. I have only recently beheld a new allotment of medium sized houses in an eastern city that are fitted and wonderful to behold. On some of them were even the brass bandings which in the hands of the skillful, and properly placed, are very acceptable. A throw back to the Grecian, I believe, but in a cheaply constructed building-plan house, I imagine, kind friend, what it is like.

Yes, we need an American standardized type of architecture, at least for the moderate sized house, something of good taste, too.

THRILLING TALES FOR YOUNG MEN BY VARIOUS INDULGENT AUTHORS

By MARY GRAHAM BONNIER. It may not be fact that they are unduly indulged by their parents or teachers but when it comes to authors they are well treated. There are always many more good books for boys than for their sisters in the same teens.

In fact there are so many worth while ones that I wish now to draw to your attention that I mention of them must be brief so as to be adequately inclusive. By Chelsea Fraser (Thomas Y. Crowell Co.) is a new edition of a well prepared book, brought up to recent date, the title of which indicates that Lindbergh has flown into this too.

"Piloting the U. S. Air Mail," by Lewis E. Theiss, illustrated by Harold Cue (W. A. Wilde Co.), is accurately written and is sure to interest many an adventurous youth, and is told sensitively and concretely.

"The Boys' Life of Colonel Lawrence," by Lowell Thomas (The Century Co.), is the unbelievable yet quite true story of that amazing colonel's adventures in Arabia. The author shared in many of these adventures and the book is fascinating, absorbing and unusual.

"The Newspaper Game," by Hiram Wallace Hayes, illustrated by Lee & Shepard Co., would be of great interest to all who thought of newspaper work as their future vocation. It is obviously written by a newspaper man and so has the real stuff in it. The story of his kind I have read for many a day.

Then there is "The Silent Force," by T. Morris Longstrech (The Century Co.), a tale of the Mounted Police of Canada, carefully told and hence more stimulating. It is a most inclusive volume, rich with authentic material, valuable and worth while.

Oh yes, authors are good to boys!

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

These various male food champions of one sort or another who are going about the country drinking 25 dozens cups of coffee at a time, eating 300 hot dogs and as many pancakes and devouring 50 fried chickens at one sitting, are no surprise to wives at all. Most wives are convinced that men can eat and eat and eat just plain stay thin, but if a woman just plain stays fat.

Working Wives. The subject of working wives again! Someone discovers now that nearly 5 out of every 100 working wives work because they must or for any other reason than that they wish to. This follows right on the heels of sundry other savants' discoveries that most wives work only because they must. In fairness, however, it must be admitted that the 100 women selected by the investigator who learns that women do want jobs outside the home, were the "career" type—writers, painters, translators, decorators, genealogists, et al. It's one thing to choose to work at a "self-expressive job." It's another thing to count nuts and bolts because it's the only job to be had or that one can do.

What "Figgers" Prove. Anyway, figures prove that of the eight million and a half American women who go to work each day, nearly one-fourth of this number, 2,000,000 of them, are combining job with home, husband and family. Nearly one million of the total eight million and a half, 6,000,000, are working in offices as stenographers and typists. Two million engage in domestic service. Nearly two million more go into industry. Almost another million work on farms. There are 140,000 trained women nurses, 178,000 telephone operators, but only 9,000 women physicians, 10,000 women college presidents and professors, 15,000 librarians, 900 authors, editors and reporters.

It's this latter group of professional women who are working for choice, probably, but they hardly represent enough women to be symbolic of the choices of all of them.

Longer Skirts. Skirts are to be longer in the spring, say they. Let's see, haven't I heard that before? Just an inch or so's okay by me. I agree with Monsieur Paul Poiret that they have more than reached the limit "as is." But I prefer that limit to a too-long one. And we're such extremists! It's always one too-much or another too-much!

DETROIT ORDINANCE WILL SOON PLACE CURB ON CABARETS. Detroit.—Detroit's night life has attained such proportions that a move has been started to control revelry.

An ordinance governing the operation of cabarets has been brought before the Common Council by Nathaniel H. Goldstick, corporation counsel; William P. Rutledge, commissioner of police; and Elmore Hutzell, head of the woman's division.

Although Detroit has several scores of cabarets, there is no ordinance controlling their operation. They are licensed as restaurants, dance halls, and soft drink emporiums.

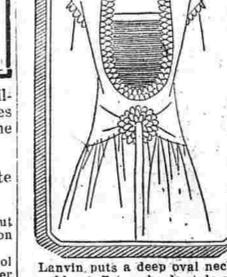

In the proposed ordinance a cabaret is defined as "any place offering musical entertainment, singing or dancing in conjunction with food or soft drinks."

All cabarets would be licensed for fees of $100 to $200 a year, and would be under control of the Department of Recreation. License may be revoked by the mayor for conduct "not fit and proper," and violators would be subject to $500 fines and prison terms of 90 days.

Life's Niceties HINTS ON ETIQUET. 1. Should one allow her children to attend parties at homes where she does not know the hostess? 2. When is it all right? 3. Should the children write their own acceptances? The answers: 1. It never used to be done, but now it is better not to stand on ceremony always. 2. When the party is for school friends or children met at other parties that were all right. 3. Yes.

ELECTRICITY IN COUNTRY IS AID TO AGRICULTURE

Topeka, Kansas.—Electricity in the rural sections of the United States, is responsible for the greatest strides being made today to place agriculture on a modern basis. H. S. Hendricks, of the United Power and Light Company, declared in a farm conference address here.

Electric units on the farm are making life more attractive, more remunerative and more efficient, Hendricks said. Not only are farm homes being made as modern as city houses, but farm labor is being saved, cost of preparing products for market is being cut down and farmers are equipping their home uses of electrical machinery more rapidly than they adopted telephones in the early days.

Increase In Service. Hendricks explained that a recent survey made in twenty-seven states, showed an increase of 36.6 per cent in the number of farm homes receiving electric service, between January 1, 1924 and January 1, 1927, and he declared most of the larger power companies now are making it possible to establish rural electrical service.

Many uses of electrical energy on the farm were explained, some of which included the filling of silos and grinding of feed. The fact that water and ice problems are being solved in a satisfactory and economical way, and the work of housewives is being lessened greatly, was cited as an outstanding achievement. In many cases electrical power makes it possible to irrigate farm crops as well as modernize the home in every way. Hendricks said.

Aid To Homes. "Running water, as supplied by automatic electric pumps, is one of the most important contributions of electricity to the modernization of the farm home.

"Such units are easily arranged to be entirely automatic, thereby giving the same service that can be had from any municipal water system. These pumps also can be equipped to pump water direct from the well at the simple turn of a faucet, a feature not possible with a municipal supply.

"A small electrical pump on one of our dairy farms supplies all the water for the home with a family of seven for the dairy, for cooking milk, watering live-stock and during the summer, an average of 1,000 gallons a day for irrigating a fine bluegrass lawn. An average of 52,775 gallons a month was used during 1926 at a cost of $2.38 per month. If we add to this a farm-precision interest and repair charge for pump and well, the total cost per month is only $5.36. This is cheaper than the rate for the same quantity of water in a nearby city."

Hendricks declared electrical refrigeration for the farm home is not a luxury. A comparison, he said, of the cost of ice and the cost of operating an electric refrigerator, including investment charges, is in favor of electric refrigeration without considering the convenience, cleanliness or low temperature of the latter form of refrigeration.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

GOTTER OCCURRENCE IS GREATER AMONG GIRLS. By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN. Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Since the World War numerous investigations have been made in various places in the United States to determine the prevalence of gotter among people in the communities concerned.

The United States Public Health Service has made extensive gotter surveys in Idaho, Oregon, Colorado, Montana, Connecticut, Massachusetts and in Cincinnati, Ohio. These surveys show 55,124 boys and 128,814 girls over 10 years of age. The prevalence of gotter in the United States is 10 per cent among boys and 15 per cent among girls.

While the prevalence of gotter in the United States is 10 per cent among boys and 15 per cent among girls, in France, sets comprise necklaces, bracelets, buckles and earrings.

CANADIAN PASTOR ST. MARY'S CURATE

Rev. Alfred Clark, New Year's Day Preacher Here Accepts Appointment.

Rev. Alfred Clark of Scarborough Bluffs, a suburb of Toronto, Ontario, Canada, has been appointed curate of St. Mary's Episcopal church and will begin his duties here about the first of March.

Mr. Clark preached at St. Mary's church at both the morning and afternoon services on New Year's day, January 1. The large audiences that attended both services were very favorably impressed with him. He himself seemed to be pleased with the church and with Manchester and the rector, Rev. J. Stuart Neill, who has induced him to come here as his assistant.

Rev. Mr. Clark is about 40 years old and has a wife but no children. They will move to Manchester as soon as convenient.

HALE'S DRUG COUNTERS SERVE RECORD CROWDS

Many Take Advantage of Big Sale—Herald Only Medium Used For Advertising.

Hale's drug department broke all records yesterday, not only for the amount of business transacted but in number of customers served. In Wednesday evening's Herald the J. W. Hale company announced a three-day sale of drugs with special cut prices. The advertisement was unusually attractive not only because of the reduced prices, but of the well-planned layout. Herald readers as usual took advantage of the low prices in the drug department and the result was that a number of additional clerks were brought in to handle the business yesterday afternoon and evening. People came to the store with The Herald advertisement in their hands, with the items they intended to purchase marked and read them off to the clerks. Others jotted down on a piece of paper the drugs wanted and handed it to the clerks.

Alexander Lang, head of the drug department, told a Herald man this morning that the business transacted over the drug counters yesterday exceeded any day's business since the drug department was established. In fact it was beyond anything they had anticipated. He said also that the only announcement made of the sale was through the advertisement on the back page of The Herald.

The sale will continue today and tomorrow, up to the closing hour, 9 p. m.

It provides that nothing shall pass through the mails leading up to or concerning the conferring of such degrees, "unless the institution or corporation granting or conferring any such degree shall, before the same is granted or conferred, prescribe and require of each and every student or other person applying therefor, or proposing to receive such a degree, at least 180 days of actual residence and study, at the principal place of business and situs of such institution, in fulfillment of conditions and in preparation for receiving such degree."

No mention is made in the will of $95,000 insurance policies on the life of Albert Snyder, who was killed by his wife and Henry Judd Gray, her paramour.

Mrs. Snyder's will was written in the death house at Sing Sing prison eight days before she was executed.

SANSON PRESENTATION AT STATE NEXT WEEK

First Big Revue Featuring Local People to Be Staged Wednesday and Thursday.

"Jack Sanson's Stage Presentation," the first big revue featuring all local people, will be offered to Manchester theatergoers next Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the State theater. Mr. Sanson has had this revue in preparation for over three months and rehearsals have been held regularly and the show has now reached the point of perfection.

Each summer Mr. Sanson presents a "Kiddie Revue" at the State theater and this feature never fails to please all who see it. Mr. Sanson arranges all his own presentations, directing the tableaux and dancing personally. In this new production he will even direct the orchestra during the revue.

The first of the annual "stage presentations" will offer to Manchester people a group of unusually talented local people in songs and specialty numbers. Most prominent of these is Billie Shea, the little fellow who played one of the leading parts in last season's "Kiddie Revue." Billie has a new song and he will present it in his own inimitable manner. Then there will be the special orchestra, the Silk City Syncopators, all Manchester musicians, all of them youngsters, and gathered together just for this revue.

"The Spirit of '76," that popular trio of drummers and fifers, Michael Barry, Julian Palmes and Joseph Ferguson, gives a prominent part in the production. The Harmony Trio, three young fellows, will sing several of the scenic musical numbers. There will also be the Three Dancing Maids. These girls will offer a number of different military steps and several sketches from the new musical comedies.

Perhaps one of the most pleasing features of the Sanson presentation will be the scenery. Mr. Sanson went to New York and selected the principal dresses and other pieces for the show. Edgar Anderson, a local artist, has painted several scenes and effects for some of the numbers.

There will be absolutely no increase in price for this presentation and the usual motion picture program will be maintained both evenings. The feature for Wednesday and Thursday, the dates of this show, will be "Baby Mine," the same stars of "Rookies" playing the leads. Charlotte Greenwood, the famous musical comedy actress plays a prominent role in the picture. The feature will be shown both matinee and evenings next Wednesday and Thursday, but the Sanson presentation will be shown evenings only.

ARMED GUARDS KEEP LOOTERS AWAY FROM OLD CHALDEAN TOMBS

Bagdad.—Four armed guards mounted over an ancient grave at the Chaldeans dug up by the British Museum and the University of Pennsylvania Expedition under C. Leonard Woolley were able to keep away looters during the six months that excavations were suspended when the expedition ran out of funds.

Digging stopped, just when the expedition gained access to the best discovery of the season, a grave in which were found a gold dagger and spear, with the promise of infinite treasure in stone.

Mr. Woolley took care when he left the "dagger grave" that no gold was showing above the surface, where the scratching of a few inches would reveal gold objects in abundance. He appealed to the Sheikh of the area in which the excavations were being conducted who told of four men as sentinels.

Although Ur is a lonely place and the Arabs there a desperately poor and lawless people nothing was touched.

Hundreds of gold heads and pendants, gold and silver ear-rings, masses of beads in cornelian, lapis lazuli and shell plaques, as part of the treasure which would have rewarded any plunderer able to defy the armed sentinels.

These objects were lying around higgledy-piggledy five or six yards from the surface, having been flung into the shaft of the grave by the ancients just as it was being filled up with earth.

A hundred graves of a later date have also yielded objects of value. These include rings, head ornaments and above all a series of cylinder seals finer than anything produced on this site before, some of them real gems of stone cutting, ranking high as works of art, as well as helping Mr. Woolley and his associates in dating the material found in the grave.

High School Game Tonight, Rec Tomorrow Night

MERIDEN HIGH ONLY DEFEATED N. H. HILLHOUSE BY 2 POINTS

So Manchester Will Have to Shift Into High At Very Start and Remain There; Visitors Won In Other Sports.

Not much is known hereabouts as to the caliber of the New Haven Hillhouse basketball team which opposes Manchester High tonight at the School Street gym. But what Manchester an excellent idea as to what kind of a game will ensue.

Meriden High, which defeated Manchester here recently in a close game, holds a two-point victory over New Haven Hillhouse, the result of a rally in the closing minutes of play.

What's more, Manchester High is smarting under football and swimming defeats administered by the New Haven school and is most anxious to score a victory in basketball tonight.

No changes have been announced in the local lineup and none are anticipated. Kittel and A. Boggnini will no doubt start at forward.

Keeneey at center with Jowd and N. Foggnini in the backcourt. The local team has been practicing hard for this game despite the fact that it has been idle for two weeks.

Manchester was scheduled to play in Middletown last week Friday and the game was indefinitely postponed because of the smallpox epidemic which has been raging in that vicinity.

The complete schedule for the Community Club Volley-Ball league was announced today by Director Jerry Fay. It lasts until March 9.

Each match will be two games. Members of the league are requested to clip out the following schedule as it may come in handy:

DR. PELTZER BEATS FIELD EASILY IN FIRST RACE HERE

German Track Star Shows That His Advance Notices Were Not Faked.

By Davis J. Walsh, I. N. S. Sports Editor
New York, Feb. 3.—Herr Otto Peltzer would turn out to be a very good doctor of philosophy in the event or any sudden or painful illness on the part of...

Eddie Markley

Manchester High's crack swimming team has been struck a severe blow by the loss of Eddie Markley, which was announced today by Manager and Captain Leslie Buckland. Markley was one of the best all-around swimmers on the team and good for points in almost any event.

Markley's loss to the team is the result of his physician's advice not to compete in swimming meets for at least the remainder of the winter season. The youth just recently recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia and his strength is not sufficient to make his participation in athletic activities advisable.

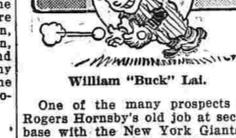

Manager Buckland said that the team would miss Markley considerably in its meets with Bristol High at the Rec tank at 2:30 Saturday afternoon. The program of events was announced as follows: 40 yard dash, 60 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 40 yard breast stroke, 40 yard back stroke, diving and 160 yard relay.

MCTIGUE—LOMSKI TONIGHT
New York, Feb. 3.—The first of a new series of light heavyweight eliminations brings together the ancient Michael McTigue and the Aberdeen Assassin, Leo Lomski, in a ten round duel at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Lomski hopes to whip over a damaging punch at the outset and either flatten Old Mike or wound him so badly that he will be compelled to make a purely defensive fight. On the other hand McTigue is the better ring craftsman.

McTigue thinks so well of his own powers of punishment that he has wagered $1,000 against $5,000 that he will stop Lomski.

NO OPPONENTS FOR HIM

Bon Ami Sinks W. S. Rec; Masons, Cubs, K. of C. Win; Interest In Cellar Race

The weekly surprise in the Herald Bowling League which held another session last night was provided by the Bon Ami at the expense of the West Side Rec, a team that will long remember its four-point victory over the Masons.

The Masons still held the league with 38 points. The Cubs gained a point on them by winning four from the Beechovs while the team minus having a tough time winning three points from a stubborn Highland Park team.

The boys from the hitlop won the first game by 18 pins, thanks to Jimmy Nichols' 128 striking out. The Masons then won the second by 36 but almost lost the third. Their margin of 24 pins in this game was not gained until the last three boxes.

With Archie Haugh, their new addition, hitting the timbers right and left, the Center Church spanked the British-Americans three times in a row. The first game was won fairly comfortably but ten pins decided the last. Haugh was not the only new man to roll well. Tom Miner of Highland Park hit good scores, as did Pete McLagan, of the Cloverleaves and Les Stevenson of the British-Americans.

The Knights of Columbus pulled up out of the immediate danger zone in the fight for the cellar position by trimming the St. Bridget's four points. Three pins decided the first game. This fight to keep out of the bottom position is developing almost as exciting as the other end of the ladder. Highland Park is drinking the wine at present but has showed signs of "sobering up."

The Cubs hit very good scores in trimming the fast-slipping Beechovs Glee Club four points. Their first game total was 511 and the last was 537. The Beechovs lost the first game by seven pins.

SKATING CARNIVAL IS POSTPONED FOR INDEFINITE PERIOD

Attempts to Flood Center Springs Pond Fruitless; Globe Hollow Unavailable.

Unless some unforeseen weather development looms very shortly, the ice skating carnival will not be held Sunday. This was the sad news reluctantly given out late yesterday afternoon by Park Superintendent John Y. Keur after he had conducted an extensive investigation of ice conditions with Chief Albert C. Poy of the south Manchester Fire Department. It cannot be held until the ice and weather are suitable.

An attempt to flood Center Springs Pond by using 500 feet of hose proved hopeless. Globe Hollow Reservoir cannot be secured for the occasion and it is pointed out that to flood a portion of the West Side Playgrounds would be almost impossible. No one feels worse over the unsatisfactory ice conditions which the recent snow storm have brought upon us than Supt. Keur. Here is what he had to say about the matter last night:

"On Wednesday morning, an attempt was made to flood the surface of the pond at Center Springs Park. Many people seem to be under the erroneous impression that such a thing could be done simply by closing the gate. The gate was closed and no water allowed to flow out. After 48 hours, the situation was just as it was before.

"Some water has come up over the edges but the larger part of the surface is not flooded at all and that ice is lighter than water and floats to the surface. The effect of closing the gate has been to raise the whole surface of the pond, ice and all.

"Yesterday afternoon, a new attempt was made to flood the surface. Chief Floyd of the S. M. Fire Department kindly loaned the Park Department 500 feet of hose and a hose line was run from the top of Edgerton street down to the pond. The water turned on but it was found impossible—as in previous attempts—to get sufficient water over the surface to melt the remaining snow. In order to cover the pond with only 3 inches of water more than 200,000 gallons are needed."

TAFTVILLE WON FIRST BATTLE FROM REC QUITE COMFORTABLY

Community Girls Under Rec Girls' Name to Meet Winsted in Preliminary; Dancing to Follow Until Midnight.

Time was when Saturday nights were dull evenings for Manchester's young folks but with a good basketball game on the books, a remedy seems to have been provided.

The attraction for tomorrow evening is a basketball game between the Rec Five and Taftville Club at the School Street Rec preceded by a girls' preliminary game and followed by dancing until midnight. You can't go wrong on this bargain.

Taftville, it will be remembered, defeated the Rec Five and Taftville Club at the School Street Rec on the season up in Taftville. This was under professional rules, but tomorrow night it should be a different story under the amateur code. This despite the fact that Taftville is said to be very much to home in the amateur game.

Manchester held Taftville on practically even terms the first half up in Taftville but fell to pieces the next half and was outscored in field buckets thirteen to three. Since then, however, the Rec Five has improved under the coaching of Manager Ben Clune.

The starting lineup for the Taftville game has not been announced. Against the Diamond-Match Company, Faulkner and Mantell started at forwards, Norris at center with Madden and Parr in the backcourt. This combination rolled up a 20 to 2 lead the first quarter upon which it coasted to a hard-pressed victory. This same combination may start tomorrow night. Taftville will have Brown and Normand, forwards, Harris at center with Eggleston and Murphy in the backcourt.

In the preliminary the Rec Girls will meet the Winsted Girls. The former will consist entirely of Community Club girls but inasmuch as all of the latter team are not available for duty, the team's reputation will not be put at stake. Ethel Richmond and Peggy Boyle are the forwards, Miriam Welles, center, with Evelyn Gillman and Peggy McLaughlin playing guard positions.

AGAINST CA' DRIBBLE
Dr. Meanwell, of Wisconsin, and Craig Ruby, of Illinois, are said to be opposed to the use of the dribble in basketball games.

IN NEW SCENERY
Arthur Lomberg, Northwestern case coach, is in new scenery this year after serving as coach of the nationally known Washburn (Kas.) College team for four years.

Local Sport Chatter

Ben Clune, manager of the Rec Five, will go to New York Saturday on a business trip which means that the reins of the team in the game with Taftville will either be held by Director Lewis Lloyd or Captain Harold Madden. It will probably be a combination.

An All-Manchester bowling team which Howard Murphy has organized, will meet the All-Rockville team Monday night in a special match in Rockville.

Eight of the twelve teams in the Herald Bowling League have announced the name of the new addition to their club made permissible by a recent league ruling. The Bon Ami put in the name of Jay McLagan; the British-Americans, Les Stevenson; the Beechovs, Harry Gustafson; Highland Park, Tom Miner; the Masons, Leonard Berry; the K. of C., Jack Reggerts; the Center Church, Archie Haugh. The other four teams, if they plan to use a new man, must send his name to the writer immediately. Last night was the closing time, but a little leeway will be granted.

"Bob" Farrell, the new owner of the Hartford Baseball Club of the Eastern League, is well known in Manchester. Back in 1924 and 1925, he pitched for the St. Mary's of this town. Farrell worked in ten games for the Saints and won all but one. He beat the Red Men in the Manchester Twilight League by one run. Jim Healey, who is Farrell's nephew, also played on the Saints' team at that time. Perhaps Healey will get a tryout with Hartford this season. He surely is a fine ball player.

Classy Bout, The Feature Of Massasoit A. C. Show

BY STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Probably one of the best fights ever seen in Connecticut was staged last evening at the Massasoit A. C. boxing show at Foot Guard hall, Hartford. Also it was the first time in eastern boxing history where both fighters were on the floor at the same time taking the count. This happened only once before and that was in a professional at about years ago between Joe Rivers and Ad. Wolgast for the world's championship in their class.

The classy bout was furnished by Ray Taylor, of Terryville and Joe Champ of Hartford. Taylor won the decision because of a last round rally but before that it was anybody's fight with the Terryville boy on the defensive.

The star bout between Joe Hessel of Meriden and Mike Raffelle, of Springfield resulted in the latter winning.

Results of the bouts follow:

128 pound class—Adolph D'Onofrio, Hartford, won on a foul over Del Pouliot, New Britain, in the second round; 135 pound class—Ray Taylor, Terryville, won the decision over Joe Champ, Hartford; 175 pound class—Ray Strong, Hartford, won the decision over Tony Juliano, Hartford; 135 pound class—Zeke Mazur, Hartford, knocked out Joe Zetter, New Britain, in the first round; 130 pound class—Gerald Emard, Holyoke, won the decision over Johnny Angelo, Hartford; 145 pound class—Johnny Clinch, New Britain, won the decision over Harry Ryder, Hartford; 160 pound class—Ed Ella, Springfield, knocked out Jim Smith, Hartford, in the first round; 130 pound class—Frank Nicholls, Windsor Locks, won the decision over Ernest Langiller, Holyoke; 175 pound class—Vic Carlson, Terryville, knocked out Barney Fox, Windsor Locks, in the first round; 160 pound class—Joe Trucelli, Ellington, knocked out Bill Bruno in the second round; 175 pound class—Ray Sanborn, Hartford, knocked out Lou Carmel, Holyoke, in the first round; 175 pound class—Mike Raffelle, Springfield, won the decision over Joe Hessel, Meriden.

TO ATTRACT THE FANS
Commercialization of personalities in baseball has become a vogue in major league baseball since Babe Ruth produced figures to show the magnates that as far as gate receipts are concerned there are individuals who are bigger than the game.

New York, with its expensive layouts, its big payroll and its cosmopolitan population, was the first to see that a hero of a certain nationality would be an asset at the box office.

The Giants had an inducement for Spaniards to pay money to see a game some of them knew nothing about when Senor Mike Gonzalez was one of their catchers and when might have been razed out of the game, but it is to be hoped that these are tolerant days and that when a man can take a hard chance and win a rally with a double play or single with the winning run on third his nationality should not be held against him.

There have been some great Jewish fighters, football players, and there is no reason why they should not be able to play baseball.

1 Minute Interviews

EARL SANDE LAYS:

I feel quite sure that I will be reinstated and allowed to get back into the saddle before the spring race meetings open. I have always felt that I was not guilty of a malicious foul, though it must have looked like one to cause the officials to take such drastic action in setting me down after that race in Maryland. Jockeys, you know, who are riding always to win as I always have done, have to take chances that even imperil life and limb and often the mistakes who lose his head in a packed field make the other fellow look like the offender. The older boys who were riding in that race were willing to back me up, but it didn't do any good.

It has been suggested to me that I go to England or France to ride and while I know it would be easier to ride in those countries because of the weight handicap, I don't want to leave the American track because the game here and the fans, too, have been awfully nice to me.

COHEN ENTERS SCENE
Then the Yankees produced a pair of outer gift-edged drawing cards in Buster Gehrig, who is as good as his name indicates, and Poosh-Em-Up Tony Lazzeri, wallo if there ever was one. There also is Mark Koenig on that ball club and v. h. that name he can't be anything but German.

The fad, for commercial purposes only, recently has turned to Jewish ball players since John McGraw announced that he would give the left field bleachers for a young Hebrew star. If he could develop a great Jewish ball player, especially an outfielder, you can imagine how those seats that are hard to sell would sell.

The Giants have one now, Andy Cohen, but he is a second baseman. He is in a good ballyhoo spot, however, as he is the young man McGraw says is capable of filling the place left vacant by the great Hornsby.

"He's as good as Hornsby. Didn't McGraw fire Hornsby to use him?" the east-side boys in New York will say.

Some promising things have been said about Cohen and the ball players say he really is a "comer," but he didn't come up with much ballyhoo with the exception of that Hornsby angle and that may hurt his playing.

YANKEES NOT ASLEEP
The Yankees—those lucky birds, as the Giants may figure them—got a jump on the Giants when they learned that a young Mr. Reese from the Pacific Coast League, who was bought with a little pal for $125,000, is a Jewish boy named Goldsmith and that he was born in the New York ghetto before his family got a yen for climate.

You can bet that his name will be changed, but the mere fact that he chose to work out west as Reese may not warm up his people to him. Sam Bohne, who used to okay second base for the Cincinnati Reds, was Jewish and he might have been worked up into a big card, but the Jewish people in New York and Chicago didn't think so much of him because he didn't use his own name—Cohen.

The Cleveland Indians recently signed a Jewish infielder from the University of Syracuse named Jonah Goldman.

Johnny Kling was perhaps the most illustrious of the Jewish ball players and there is no reason why the young fellows of his nationality could not be good players.

HUMAN SOUL IS WIRELESS TOWER SCIENTIST SAYS

San Francisco.—What is the human soul?
This question, which for ages past has baffled the greatest philosophers and engrossed, in Medieval times, the energies of necromancers and metaphysicians, now promises to be transferred from the mystic domain of theologians into the calm sphere of science.

"The soul is a wireless tower."

This was the answer given today by Captain Thomas J. F. See, professor of mathematics at Mare Island and Naval Reserve and discoverer of the "New Theory of the Aether."

And if we are to regard that elusive soul as we look upon a radio transmitting and receiving station, delicately attuned to send and receive messages, wherein not one word is uttered nor one glance noted, then we may, in terms of science, explain mental telepathy, thought transference, will imposition, dreams and their effects, and all the other strange psychic phenomena which have puzzled men for centuries. Such is the contention of Captain See.

Instances Cited
Historic instances of premonition, the obedience of a sleeping man to the commands of one who is awake, hypnotism, soul harmony, personal magnetism and personality itself, if Captain See's theory is developed, will become subjects for scientific experimentation and threaten to disrupt the sciences of psychology, of which psychologists themselves admit, man has but reached the beginning of knowledge.

Blanketing the psychological ramifications of his study beneath his recently enunciated "New Theory of the Aether," Captain See, explained that all those eerie phenomena, heretofore regarded as merely the workings of some mysterious will beyond the scope of men's minds, are truly but one aspect of his general theory that other vibrations, enveloping the entire universe, of certain lengths and combinations, account for mental and spiritual, as well as physical phenomena.

"Mental and psychic phenomena," Captain See asserted, "are a part of the wave-theory of the universe. In fact, since radio telegraphy is so well known and so universally used, we may regard psychic phenomena as analogous to radio wave action."

Like Wireless Sets
"Persons who are unappreciated, or in psychic accord, are like two wireless stations or sets attuned to transmit and receive thought-messages. Either station may call the other and thought-transference goes on. Each soul is a center of wave activity. The head of every person is surrounded by an Aetherial aura, not unlike the halo of glory shown by the old artists about heads of saints."

The ether is composed of the smallest particles in the world, the noted physicist continued, known as aetherons or corpuscles 4,000 times smaller in diameter than hydrogen atoms. These aetherons, have not only the distinction of being the smallest objects in the universe, but they are also the speediest.

"By means of this new theory," Captain See declared, "we have a solid basis for psychic research. It will be by a study of mind waves that psychology will be reduced to a true science. In that study we have up to now made only a slight beginning."

NEW ENGLAND IN QUANDARY OVER WINTER WEATHER
Boston.—New England folks are figuring that there is something wrong with the weather of the section. In the good old days the summers used to be hot, very hot, too, and the winters were wont to be very cold, with much snow piled high in the streets of Yankee land.

In recent years, though the seasons have shown a tendency to swing around bit by bit as if they were seeking to exchange places with the other.

The summers have been really chilly in Massachusetts. Overcoats are in style in Maine at all times during the summer. Portland, metropolis of the Pine Tree State, has been dubbed "The Felt Hat City," by visiting salesmen and journalists, who never see a straw hat there in the summer.

No White Christmas
The famous Old New England winters, have only been contradictions to their memories. The white Thanksgivings and Christmas Days of years ago are no more. Snow, in any quantity, rarely comes before January.

February for the past five or six years, has been a chilly month, but always the ground has been in evidence, uncovered by its usual white blanket, for more than a few days in the whole month.

The snow carnivals of New England have suffered to some extent. Frequently talk has been heard of taking snow down from Canada in freight trains for some of the winter celebrations.

And now to top the long list of calamities, the charts of the United States Weather Bureau at Boston show that the summers are getting colder and the winters warmer.

What Records Show
If such conditions continue, New England folks will be spending their summers in Virginia or the Carolinas and their winter in the far north State of Maine or Nova Scotia or Newfoundland. They will have to do so to feel at home.

Here are the maximum and minimum temperatures at the Boston bureau for the past six months, with temperatures for the same months in 1926:

NAVY TO BOMB WRECKED SHIPS ON CALL COAST

San Diego, Cal.—The hulks of the seven destroyers which piled up on Point Arguello four years ago in the greatest peacetime disaster ever suffered by the American navy, are still lying in relatively the same position in which they came to rest when, "following the leader," they crashed one by one upon the rocky shores of that fatal, foggy morning of Sept. 8.

And now, like Pandora's chest of superstitions, the disaster has popped up again to trouble the navy department, for the hulks have been declared a menace to navigation. It is feared that the steel plates and beams which for so long have gripped tight to the ragged rocks may be waved clear by the pounding of the waves and possibly drift, partially submerged, out into the steamer lane and endanger California coastwise shipping.

To Be Destroyed
Commercial salvaging companies having failed to remove the hulks because of the extreme difficulty of operating around the Point Arguello, the navy department has decided to write into the record of the catastrophe, and has ordered that the skeletons of the warships be destroyed.

The hulls will be rent by high explosives until all possibility of separate compartments or other parts floating away, is removed. Whether work of destruction will be done by bombs dropped from airplanes operating from the carrier Langley and the tender Arctostook, or by charges of dynamite set by a landing party from the main fleet, has not been decided, it was said.

As a preliminary measure, Captain Frank R. McCrary of the naval air station has been ordered to send an observation plane to photograph the Point Arguello disaster area as a shock to the navy as well as to the country at large. Twenty-three lives were lost, seven warships were totally destroyed, and two others, bringing up in the rear of the column which was proceeding south in single file, caromed off the rocks and escaped, with torn hulls.

Score Court-martialed
Nearly a score of officers were court-martialed. Two aboard the flagship were found guilty of negligence and punished by the loss of numbers in grade, the others being absolved because of the doctrine of "follow the leader."

The board of inquiry investigation and later court-martialed proceedings were conducted over a period of six months.

The division's flagship, the Delphy, was set ashore by a strong, shifted current, or whether the column's speed was retarded by an uncharted northward current which lead the leader's navigating officer to believe, from decisions on taken many hours before from far up the coast that he already had passed the point when he changed course and veered slightly left in order to steam down the coast. The Delphy's compass bearings from the Point Arguello station contrivance, was never definitely established.

ILL. JAIL SLAYERS STILL AT LIBERTY; SOUGHT IN MEXICO
Joliet, Ill.—A year has passed away since the slayers of Deputy Warden Peter Klein of the Illinois state penitentiary here were found guilty and sentenced to hang, yet two of them, Benardo Roa and Charles Shader, are still at liberty following their sensational escape from Will county jail in this city.

In addition a third, James R. Price, who escaped the day that Klein was murdered May 5, 1926, also is a fugitive.

There were seven men in the gang that stabbed the prison official to death. Price escaped at the time. The remaining six were tried and found guilty on November 26, 1926. The court overruled motion for a new trial and fixed the date of execution for Feb. 11, 1927. The state supreme court, however, issued a writ of habeas corpus, before the high court had considered the case, the jail break was sprung. Roa, Gregario Rizzo and Alberto Torrez were corralled by the Chicago police, one officer being killed in the gun battle preceding their capture. Roa again escaped but the other two were taken back to prison.

Last June, just before the supreme court handed down a verdict sustaining the death sentence imposed by the lower court, a second break for liberty was staged. Shader, Duschowski, Stalesky and Rizzo attempted to force their way out of jail. Shader alone escaping. Rizzo was shot to death.

On July 15, the remaining three were hanged. Since that time police of the entire nation have been searching for Roa and Shader. They are believed, however, to have fled to Mexico.

GEYSER BREAKS BONDS
Fallon, Nev.—After spouting boiling water form many years through its alive and casing, the hot water geyser at Stillwater near here, broke its bonds and ran wild. Albert Lebau, owner of the geyser, offered $500 to anyone who could put it under control again, for he plans to build a bath resort on the site.

AMERICAN FLYERS GAVE COTTBUS NEW AMBITION IN LIFE
Berlin.—When Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine landed in Cottbus they brought with them a dose of American initiative which is still working in the veins of the Cottbusers. The little city of 52,000 then and there resolved that it would not let the world forget too quickly its international fame and to-day Germany is enjoying a moving picture of Cottbus life which would do credit to the best efforts of American town boosters.

At no inconsiderable cost the municipal authorities re-staged for the movies the whole story of the Americans' landing just outside the city. The Miss Columbia' resting in the swamp, the ride to the city in a farmer's automobile, the triumphant luncheon gotten up in big time, the crowds which cheered the flyers, the ceremony in the City Hall where the first official honors were rendered the overseas adventurers, are shown in lifelike reproduction. The only significant event omitted was the historical fact that an overzealous forestry official threatened to arrest Chamberlin and Levine before they knew who they were, on the ground that by landing in a meadow they had spoiled several dollar's worth of fodder grass.

Entitled "The Rhythm of the Times," the Cottbus hosting film uses the Americans landing as the takeoff for a description of the city industrial and business opportunities. It was shown here for the first time at a press tea presided over by Oberbürgermeister Dr. Drentz, whose professional ambition is to make his city "the liveliest most up to date and American town in Germany."

Nearly all the members of the U. S. Senate find it easy, as a rule, to express themselves. And Senator Tom Heflin, whose expansive battle front is pictured here, is no exception to the rule. Whether the efforts of his fellow solons to quiet him will be effective remains to be seen.

COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE NOW MEANS NOTHING

New York.—Companionate marriage "really means nothing at all," in the opinion of Count Hermann Keyserling, Estonian philosopher and author of the "The Book of Marriage," who has arrived in the United States for a lecture tour.

Companionate marriage, which has received such a great deal of publicity during the recent weeks, is merely a "more or less new formula set up by women to produce the same-age-old conventional results," Keyserling said. "Companionate marriage does not mean the early death of the old fashioned marriage. Instead of greater freedom which it is supposed to produce, it will merely make for more conventional results. 'People will marry earlier—and often.'

Era of Emergency.
"If men had made the rules, Keyserling continued, "they would not have invented companionate marriages. They would say, 'Let's enjoy the world first and marry afterwards.'

Keyserling continued, "they would not have invented companionate marriages. They would say, 'Let's enjoy the world first and marry afterwards.'

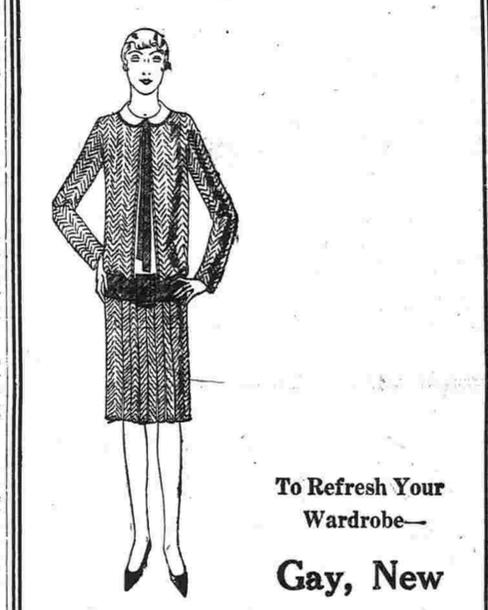

"This always has been true of America, where women began to predominate from pioneer times, due to their scarcity and great demand. They developed a matriarchal civilization, where, ostensibly, the man rule, but where the power behind—the real living power—in the hands of women. Women make the rules and men break them.

Marriage Is Best.
"The conventional marriage is superior to any temporary arrangement" Keyserling added. "People in the masses need institutions—need something bigger than themselves. Perhaps that is why people in the East are happier in their domestic relationship, because they submerge their individuality and their quarrels in the institution."

Anyone who thinks conventional marriage is due for an early death because of the development of and the competition offered by companionate marriage, is due for some disappointment, Keyserling thinks. Neither will companionate marriage cure the divorce evil, the Count thinks. Instead of approaching the problem from the proper angle of encouraging more sober thought and reflection on the part of principals before contracting matrimony, companionate marriages encourages matrimony first and thought afterwards.

COSGRAVE, VALERA ARE IN NEW YORK

Both Irish Leaders in Same City at Same Time; Their Views.

New York, Feb. 3.—Ireland's two foremost political leaders—William T. Cosgrave and Eamonn De Valera—are in New York, stopping at hotels a stone's throw apart yet neither has taken official cognizance of the other.

And they probably will not.

Both are here on separate and distinct missions. Both depart shortly for Ireland, on different thurs, and when they get back to the old country they will lay the foundation for a good old fashioned Irish political battle.

At least De Valera will.

For De Valera, who is head of the Republican Party of Ireland and leader of the minority in the Dail, believes that he will be able to dislodge Cosgrave at the next general election in Ireland.

Cosgrave's party now holds 61 seats in the Dail, De Valera's 57.

Politically, they are miles apart—their views irreconcilable. De Valera advocates complete national independence for Ireland. Cosgrave, who is president of the Irish Free State, has agreed to a compromise with Great Britain. He accepts the situation that exists today—that is, Ireland is partitioned and subject to British domination. He believes, however, that the Irish Free State, which governs itself, has attained freedom. But De Valera thinks the Irish nation should be an entity and that the King of England should have no voice whatever in its government.

Neither Cosgrave nor De Valera have discussed their conflicting views here. They have chosen to ignore each other.

De Valera First

De Valera came here in advance of Cosgrave. He visited Boston, Providence, Rye, New Haven, Conn., Newark, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco. His purpose was to obtain financial support for the establishment of a daily newspaper, costing $1,600,000, to be published in Ireland. He proposed to raise half that sum among the friends of complete Irish independence in this country.

Cosgrave came a little later, on a mission of good will, chiefly to show and express his gratitude to America for the aid and sympathy accorded the Irish cause. He visited Chicago, Washington, D. C., and Ottawa, Canada. He called upon President Coolidge and was warmly welcomed by the financiers in New York. He made no mention of an Irish loan.

De Valera's Plans

In addition to his object of raising funds for the Irish Dail, De Valera made an inquiry to determine what business could be developed in Ireland in the event that the Republican Party overthrows Cosgrave and comes into power.

Cosgrave and De Valera head the two biggest political parties in Ireland. De Valera's organization is known as the Flanna Fail and has 1,300 branches or clubs. Cosgrave's is the Cumann na nGaeil and is not so highly organized. The other political parties are the Redmonites, which have two members in the Dail, the Labor Party, which has thirteen members, the Farmers which has six and the Independents, which have twelve. The Redmonites and the Labor parties usually support De Valera when critical divisions arise while the Farmers and Independents are in the habit of supporting Cosgrave.

Political experts say that on a critical division in the Dail, Cosgrave today can control 79 votes and De Valera 73.

De Valera's secretary informed International News Service that there were two general elections in Ireland last year, that De Valera's party in the June election with 52 seats and came out with 45; that De Valera went into the September election with 45 seats and came out with 57. He said that shows the way the wind is blowing in the Emerald Isle.

President Cosgrave will be the guest of honor at the annual Emerald ball here tonight, and will sail early tomorrow on the Olympic for Ireland. De Valera has been incommunicado as far as newspaper men are concerned and his secretary refused to say whether De Valera would attend the ball.

De Valera will be given a farewell reception at the Mecca Temple Sunday night, at which a "pronouncement of unusual importance" will be made. He will sail for Ireland shortly afterward.

CALLS FOR VOLUNTEERS TO SAVE ICE CARNIVAL

If Skaters Will Shovel, Then Skaters May Skate, Seems to Be Situation.

There was still a bare possibility today that the ice skating carnival may be held Sunday despite unsatisfactory conditions at Center Springs Pond which caused Park Superintendent John Y. Keur to announce last night that it would be best to postpone the carnival indefinitely until weather and ice were more suitable.

Failing in their attempt to flood the pond by hose yesterday afternoon, efforts were being made by a group of workmen from the park department and volunteers to shovel off the snow. William McKee, a member of the general committee in charge of the carnival, asked the Herald to publish a request for skaters to report at the pond tonight with shovels and help along the work. The flood lights will be left on for that purpose. The park commission does not feel justified in spending the money to employ sufficient men for the work.

If the ice can be cleared, it will be watered by hose under the direction of Chief Albert C. Foy of the South Manchester Fire Department afterward. It was also announced today that twelve of the cleverest members of the Hartford Skating Club have offered to come here next Sunday to make the affair a success. Their expenses will be defrayed by a collection.

The U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce estimates that Americans spend $650,000,000 a year abroad, most of it in Europe.

CO. G DENIES DEBT

Company G, 11th Infantry, C. N. G., today through its attorneys, Seymour and Parmele, Hartford attorneys, filed formal answer in the Town Court of Manchester to the civil suit complaint brought by the Manchester Plumbing and Supply Company seeking settlement for a basketball equipment bill which the firm claims was contracted for several years ago. The answer was in the form of a general denial of all allegation. The case is returnable to the local court February 13.

RUMANIA PEASANT PARTY MAY CHANGE ITS PLAN TO BACK PRINCE CAROL

Bucharest.—Former Crown Prince Carol, whose hopes for regaining the Rumanian throne were high after the death of King Ferdinand and Premier Bratianu, has apparently been merely a pawn in the political game of the various parties battling for power in the state.

The National Peasant Party, heretofore Carol's most important supporter, is rapidly pushing Carol in the background as the party grows stronger. The Peasant party supported Carol because both saw in Premier Bratianu their greatest enemy.

A test of strength between the National Peasant party and the government still in the hands of the liberal party under Bratianu's brother, is due soon.

GETS JUDGMENT AGAINST FORMER RIALTO OWNERS

Johnson Electric Co. Wins Suit For Pay For Work Done on Picture House in 1926.

The Johnson Electric company of this town was given a judgment yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas by Judge Thomas J. Mollay for $1,408.54 against the Arcadia Theater and Realty corporation. The local firm asked payment for work and supplies furnished for the Rialto theater here in the fall of 1926.

David Weinstock, who came to Manchester as the representative of the Arcadia company, took over the Park theater, changed its name to the Rialto and conducted it for some time. Apparently the business did not flourish and the Hartford man withdrew from the theater.

Since that time the theater has been under the management of two different men and it still being conducted by the second. A Boston man, Shaban All, ran the theater for some time but was unable to make a go of it.

The Arcadia company is said to be the owner of the Grand theater in Hartford and several other theaters in this state.

CAR TAKES FIRE WHEN ITS OWNER TRIES TO START IT

A Studebaker coach owned by John I. Olson caught fire this morning when Olson tried to start it in his garage on Hawley street. Mr. Olson succeeded in getting the car out of the garage and Rose Company, No. 3, responding to a still alarm, did the rest with chemicals. The car was not badly damaged. It was caused by a short circuit in the ignition system.

Belknap's 75th birthday, by many of her relatives and friends. She was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, among which was a large birthday cake with the 75 candles. Mrs. Belknap although not in the best of health enjoyed the day very much.

R. K. Anderson of Watkins Brothers Points Out Advantages of New Models.

"The good old days may have been all very well," R. K. Anderson of Watkins Brothers said yesterday, "but I think my stars live in an age when people realize what health is and want to keep it. When a carload shipment of the brand new line of Leonard Cleanable refrigerators came into our store the other day, I realized with something of a start the vast changes that have taken place in recent years in healthful food preservation."

The primitive methods of keeping food in the 'ideal' bygone days and in days not too far removed from our own—startle one familiar with the approved sanitary and healthful conditions of a modern refrigerator.

One looks at the gleaming, one-piece interior of one of the new models, one feels the airy-cold that is a result of the perfect insulation of a two-inch cork board lining sealed with asphalt felt, and one wonders how anything less than these precautions could be considered satisfactory.

Today the old fashioned, ugly-looking icebox is as out of date as the oil lamp. Once the thing to do was to keep the refrigerator out of sight. Now its attractive lines and finish make it an asset to the kitchen furnishings. The beautiful new French Gray trimmings, for instance, on the new Leonard refrigerator, are in perfect harmony with any scheme of kitchen decoration. The discerning housewife of today demands beauty in her "ref" and she gets it!

People are realizing nowadays that the refrigerator is as vital in winter as in the heat of summer days. The fresh crispness of vegetables, the safety of milk, butter, meat, etc., no longer depend upon the whim of her relatives and friends. Electricity, ice or gas keep Leonard refrigerators the right temperature inside no matter what the weather conditions are outside.

Any size from hotel size to that of apartments, in porcelain, wood or steel, like particular needs easy to satisfy.

In Siberia people buy milk solidified and for convenience, let it freeze around a stick which serves as a handle to carry.

HIGHLAND PARK

Instead of the regular Saturday evening dance, an unusually interesting program of entertainment will be provided at the community clubhouse tomorrow night. Miss Lillian G. Grant of Cambridge street, well known soprano, will give several readings. A number of reels of motion pictures will be shown. There will be no admission charge whatever and the committee in charge is hoping for a large turnout of the people of the community. A number of the Girl Reserves of Highland Park will go to the Hartford Y. W. C. A. to attend the banquet this evening and take part in the biblical pageant. The troupe of Highland Park church will provide music and a number of the Girl Reserves from that church will act as ushers.

Chamber on Trail of "A Charity" Salesman

Investigation Claims of Man Who is Taking Orders For Extracts Here.

Reports have been received at the Chamber of Commerce offices of a salesman making a house-to-house canvass for extracts, and representing himself to be in the employ of Hoyt Brothers, Newark, N. J. He is reported to be claiming that part of the proceeds of the sale of the merchandise goes to an orphan asylum.

Last August a similar report was received of a man making sales for Hoyt Brothers, and claiming that the proceeds were being devoted to the relief of the Mississippi Flood sufferers.

The public is warned by the chamber against giving this salesman orders until it has had an opportunity to investigate the truth of his statements. The chamber is now in correspondence with Hoyt Brothers with a view to learning if the man is authorized to use the charity clause in his solicitations.

Hoyt Brothers may be a perfectly reliable firm; it is even possible that the man's story is correct. If such is found to be the case and he represents himself at the Chamber of Commerce, he will be given an approval card.

The Chamber of Commerce announces that it would appreciate it if anyone who has given this man orders would refuse to accept the goods until such time as the Chamber establishes the fact that the funds are being devoted to charitable purposes.

Menjou at the State Today and Saturday

One of Two Films Has Popular Actor as Star.

Adolphe Menjou, the most polished villain on the screen, whose prowess as an actor has raised him from the ordinary heavy roles, is the star of one of the two big features being shown at the State theater tonight and tomorrow. He is starring in "A Gentleman of Paris," and as such he is a knockout.

"Menjou plays a grand duke with the same authenticity that he plays a barber. He creates a character by studying it from every angle just as the artist of the brush and palette studies his subject.

Menjou has never yet played himself on the screen. He has always been the finished actor, the finished artist, if you will.

"Menjou's characterizations are thorough and convincing, whether he is playing a barber, a waiter, a country gentleman or a noble because he is a student of life, a close observer, as well as a natural dramatist.

LONG DRAWN IT IS IN COURT

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 3.—State Court Judge John R. Booth of Danbury has taken under advisement the action of Dr. William A. Borden, of New Haven, who is seeking to acquire the title to a piece of land at Compo mill pond, West of town, which both Dr. Borden and the Town of Westport claim.

The case has now been through the Superior Court twice and through the Supreme Court of Errors once.

Dr. Borden lost the decision when Judge Leonard J. Nickerson heard the case at Bridgeport two years ago and appealed to the Supreme Court which upset the decision and sent the case back for another trial. Judge Booth heard the evidence in the case at Bridgeport last year and listened to the arguments here, taking the matter under consideration today.

Two Big Features at Circle Today

"White Pants Willie" and "Coney Island" on Screen.

Johnny Hines in "White Pants Willie" and Lois Wilson in "Coney Island" are the feature attractions in the Circle theater today. On Saturday and Sunday the Circle will throw on the screen two more features, Pauline Frederick in "The Fighting Three" and Jack Hoxie in "The Fighting Three."

"The Fighting Three" is an original story written for the screen by William Lester and was directed by Al Rogell who has handled the last six Hoxie pictures.

The story concerns the stirring adventures of a man, his dog and his horse. The laocle is the great West, with its towering peaks and glorious skies. Thrills, mystery, throbbing chases that will race one's blood through the veins, love and romance fill this masterly portrayal of the West that was.

His leading woman is Olive Hasbrouck, who makes her return to Westerns after a triumphant appearance in the "Universal-Jewel," "The Cohens and Kellys." She is one of the most popular feminine players in the whole realm of Film-land.

Other members of the cast are William Malles, Martin Soals, William Nestor, Bailey, William Fanny, George "Buck" Connors, Ives, Warren, Bert DeMarc.

"Scout," the almost human horse and "Bunk" the wonder-dog, also appear with Hoxie in "The Fighting Three."

These men are placing china that has been decorated into another kiln to fix the colors. Nothing like the same degree of heat is needed, however, that is used in the first firing, too, for the minerals used in the colors—cobalt, iron, copper, manganese, gold and so on—are sensitive to heat.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (202) Decorating China

Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Braucher

We have seen how the china has been baked in kilns. After it is removed, it is prepared for the glaze. The glaze is really glass which has been ground fine and mixed with water. Into this fluid our cups and saucers are dipped so skillfully that every part is evenly covered with the glaze. Then they are ready for the kiln again.

Fine porcelain is painted with flowers or designs or tinted all over. Some china is decorated before the glaze is baked on.

When the glaze has been fired china is ready for the decorators. Cheap, heavy cups are decorated with transfers.

Mr. Siler will preach and the choir will sing 'The Lord Have Mercy Upon Us.' Mr. Siler read the notice but said nothing. In his sermon, however, he spoke of the wonders of silence, and especially of airships. 'It will not be long,' he said, 'before they will be in common use. I can imagine many of this congregation getting into a big airplane Sunday morning and going to church many miles away to hear some good music.'" to HARD is a mere five steps, according to par, which is on another page.

Here's a SOFT one. From SOFT

Grid for Letter Golf with words SOFT and HARD.

THE RULES

- 1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2—You can change only one letter at a time. 3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

And then he said, "I wish I had a whip to make him go, I'd crack it loud up in the air and that would give him quite a scare. It really isn't thrilling when he travels on so slow." "Well, goodness me, aren't you ashamed? You ought to be," someone exclaimed. "It isn't kind to use a whip upon a friendly hound. He's going fast enough for me, and anyway, you ought to see that it's not easy for one dog to pull us across the ground." "This made poor Clowny hang his head. "I guess perhaps you're right," he said. "I quite forgot that all of us are heavy as can be. 'Tis best we treat this old dog right. We'll just stay here and hang on tight, and let him take us where he will, to see what we can see." So, on they went, across the hills, and several times almost took

LIST OF TAXPAYERS IN HERALD TOMORROW

Fifteen Feet of Them Paying
 On $10,000 or More to Be Printed on Saturday.

In keeping with The Herald's custom, the list of taxpayers who will be assessed this year on a property valuation of ten thousand dollars or over will be published in this paper on Saturday. Two Herald men spent five hours yesterday in making up the list.
 They wrote their figures on a continuous roll of copy paper and when they were finished they found that it had required more than 15 feet of paper.
 Formerly The Herald published the list of taxpayers who own property valued at five thousand dollars or more. The increased valuation of property under the Lindser system, however, has made it impossible to take in the five thousand owners so the minimum was raised to ten thousand.

MORIARTY IN HOSPITAL, HIS CASE POSTPONED

The case of Leo P. Moriarty of 127 Main street, charged with drunk driving, will not come up for a hearing in police court this morning because the defendant was still in Memorial hospital where he was taken after an automobile he was driving struck a tree on Woodbridge street about 2 o'clock yesterday morning.
 Prosecuting Attorney Charles F.
 Hathaway said that it had not been decided when the case would come up for a hearing. It depended on Moriarty's condition, he said. At the hospital this morning, it was said that Moriarty would be discharged during the day. His case may come up in court tomorrow morning or may be continued until next Monday.
