

SEN. REED'S HAT IS IN THE RING IN CALIFORNIA

Action of Missourian Re- garded as Significant By Democratic Leaders; Af- ter Smith's Delegates.

Washington, March 2.—Senator James A. Reed's entry into the California primary to "fight it out" with other aspirants for the Democratic presidential nomination was regarded by Democratic leaders in Washington today as an event of outstanding political importance and significance.

It means, they believe, a showdown that will throw a lot of light on the question that buzzes continually in Democratic quarters these days, to wit: "Can Smith be stopped?"

Four years ago, California's 26 delegates went for William G. McAdoo. For 103 weary ballots they went down the line for McAdoo without wavering or faltering. McAdoo announced his withdrawal from the 1928 race a year ago, and since that time the Smith people have claimed California's 26 delegates in the '28 convention for their own. The New York governor has many friends in the state and they have been laboring industriously in his behalf.

Situation Changed

Reed's announcement that his hat is in the California ring, and that a slate of Reed delegates will be presented in every district in the state, is a new development in the situation very materially. Where the Smith people had expected an easy conquest, or no contest at all, it now becomes evident that there is to be a real battle for 26 delegates unless the Smith managers evade the issue, and no one here believes they will.

Senator Reed's announcement of his militant candidacy in California caused considerable surprise among his followers here. When the Missourian left the capital on his speaking tour through the west it was understood that he was seeking only to build himself up as a possible compromise candidate—when and if the Houston convention found it impossible to nominate Smith.

After Delegates

His going into the primary in the golden state, however, indicates there has been a change in his pre-convention strategy. By this action the Missourian has shown that he not only is in quest of Democratic harmony, but he is militantly after delegates wherever they can be obtained, Smith's or anyone else's.

The possible outcome in California has Democratic leaders here frankly guessing. Most of them, since McAdoo's withdrawal, have been willing to concede Smith's delegation, although they have been basing that concession largely upon what the Smith people claim, rather than upon their own knowledge of conditions along the Pacific. There are a few of them, however, who believe that Reed, with his acknowledged political sagacity, would elect to enter the contest there unless he thought he had a good chance of winning. Hence they were in a quandary today.

There was also considerable speculation as to whether Reed's announcement with respect to California will be followed by his entry into other primary states. Having taken the plunge, they said, there is now no reason why the Missourian should not put his name up in every state where there is an element of doubt. Most of Reed's friends believe he will, if he does, there is every prospect of the Democratic presidential situation being considerably clarified before the party meets in Houston on June 26.

MARSHAL DIAZ' BODY NOW LIES IN STATE

Placed at Base of Unknown Soldier's Monument in Rome; Funeral Tomorrow.

Rome, March 2.—Between rows of soldiers, that flanked the streets, and in the presence of huge crowds of reverently silent Romans, the body of Marshal Armando Diaz, former commander-in-chief of the Italian army, was borne on a gun carriage from his home to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier today.

Troops escorted the cortege which was made up of high military officials, officers of state and prelates of the church. Representatives of all regiments of Marshal Diaz's former command were in line. The marshal's favorite horse, draped in black, was led in the procession.

The body will rest in public state at the base of the Unknown Soldier's monument until tomorrow morning when it will be taken to the church of Santa Maria Degli Angeli for the funeral service.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, March 2.—Treasury balance Feb. 29: $65,272,230.75.

Baby 'Passed' As Own Heir To Boyer Fortune

Detroit, Mich., March 2.—Joseph Boyer, man of millions and head of the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., will assure the future happiness of four-year-old "Joseph Andrew Boyer," son of an unwed Windsor girl, who, though no blood relation, has passed as a blood heir to the Boyer fortune since he was four days old.

This was learned today from a source close to the wealthy manufacturer.

He plans to create a "sizeable" trust fund for the chubby waif lifted into a fairyland of riches—a fairyland which collapsed when the deception by which he passed as the Boyer heir-apparent was revealed.

Mrs. Laura Boyer, daughter-in-law of Joseph Boyer and wife of Myron Boyer, his son, confessed the deception.

Mrs. Boyer has confessed she bought the baby from a girl in Windsor and represented the child to her husband as their son.

"I did it to save my home," she said.

SEEK DR. CLEMENT IN TORCH MURDER

Deserted Wife Tells Police Her Missing Husband May Be Miss Brown's Slayer.

New York, March 2.—A deserted wife, pretty Mrs. Theresa Flower Van Norden, 26, was questioned by police today on the theory that her missing husband may be the mysterious Dr. Louis Clement, alleged admirer of Margaret Brown, Park avenue governess, who was burned alive near Bernardsville, N. J.

A general alarm has been sent out by authorities for Dr. Clement, gallant and an inventor, in the belief that he may be able to throw some light on the identity of the "torch murderer."

Mrs. Van Norden said she last heard from her husband about seven months ago. Detectives have gone to the city where the man known as Van Norden posted the last letters she received. The name of the city was unrevealed.

Seeks Annulment

A. M. Davis, counsel for Mrs. Van Norden, said his client was seeking an annulment. Davis declared the marriage a year ago was preceded by a precipitate courtship. The bridegroom, employed as a chemist in a laboratory here, was said to have vanished.

"None of us is certain that the Dr. Clement mentioned as on friendly terms with Miss Brown is the man who married me but steps are being taken to find out," said the charming Mrs. Van Norden. "My husband was engaged on a substitute for gasoline not long before our marriage."

Dr. Clement reached the high-water mark of his colorful career when he produced an alleged synthetic substitute for gasoline.

HOLD GREENWICH MAN ON FORGERY CHARGE

Cyrus Turner Arrested in Albany, Says It is Case of Mistaken Identity.

Albany, N. Y., March 2.—Charged with being a fugitive from Justice, Cyrus Turner, of Greenwich, Conn., was being held today in the Albany county jail.

Turner, according to Police Chief David Smurt, is wanted in Greenwich on a charge of forgery. He is alleged to have passed several forged checks on a Greenwich bank, according to the Albany police.

When first arrested, Turner told the local police that he was a victim of mistaken identity. Later Chief Smurt said, Turner admitted he came here recently from Greenwich in the train that struck him.

Greenwich authorities have been notified of Turner's arrest and are expected here tomorrow with extradition papers.

BRIDGEPORT OFFICER RUN OVER BY TRAIN

Pitched From One Coach He Is Thrown Under Wheels of Coach Following.

Bridgeport, Conn., March 2.—Rodwig M. Ludwig, a member of the Bridgeport police department, is in critical condition in St. Vincent's hospital this afternoon following his fall from a train near the railroad station here last night and being run over by a following train. Ludwig's left foot was cut off by the train that struck him.

Ludwig was returning from the Heeney-Delaney fight in New York City on the first section of a special train when the train stopped west of the station and walked to the rear platform evidently thinking the train had started up. When the train started up, Ludwig was pitched off a brakeman at the station and the brakeman ran back with a red light. Before he could reach the man the second section of a train had struck Ludwig.

MARINES MASS TO SEARCH FOR SANDINO'S MEN

Rebels Flee Into Jungles After Attacking Americans; One of 9 Wounded in Serious Condition.

Managua, Nicaragua, March 2.—General Augustino Sandino's rebel force that ambushed a detachment of United States Marines on the Yali-Condaga trail on Monday killing five and wounding nine, has escaped into the jungle and the pursuing marines have so far been unable to establish a contact with them, according to word received today from Jinotega.

It is believed that the rebels got away before the marines could inflict any casualties upon them.

The five dead Americans have been buried near where they fell. Wooden crosses mark the spot.

Of the wounded men only Private L. C. Lewis, of Nixon, Texas, is in serious condition. The wounded will be brought here from Jinotega, where they were taken after the fight.

Marine planes are scouting over the jungle clad hills near the scene of the attack attempting to get some trace of the rebels.

SEARCH FOR REBELS Managua, Nicaragua, March 2.—

Three separate detachments of "Devil Dogs" blazed trails northward through the Nicaraguan jungles today in their search for General Sandino and his guerrilla followers who ambushed a marine pack train Monday afternoon, killing five men and wounding nine others.

Two of the detachments are commanded by Colonels Dunlap and Wallace. A provisional mounted detachment under the command of Major Rocky is supporting these two.

Other detachments are moving northeast from Esteli and south and west from Ocotal.

Express Sympathy

Both President Diaz and General Moneada, liberal nominee for president, have expressed their profound sorrow and sympathy to American Minister Eberhardt for the latest American losses.

Although bitter political enemies, both Diaz and Moneada are rendering every assistance to the American forces in trying to run down Sandino.

GOODWIN OUSTED FROM HIS OFFICE

Bay State Registrar Removed as Result of Dispute With Gov. Fuller.

Boston, Mass., March 2.—Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin was ousted from office today.

The governor's council, after an hour's meeting behind closed doors, voted favorably on an order by Public Works Commissioner William F. Williams removing Mr. Goodwin from office.

Commissioner Williams was in the council chamber for some time, entering and leaving with a folder containing a large number of papers and newspaper clippings.

These were understood to be concerning the controversy between the registrar and Gov. Alan T. Fuller over salary increases for state employees.

Of the seven councillors and Lieut. Gov. Frank G. Allen it was understood that there were only two dissenting votes on the question of removal.

Councillor Mark Duff, of New Bedford, left a sick bed to be present.

Mr. Goodwin remained at his office on Commonwealth street awaiting word to be given a hearing by the executive council but he was not called to the State House meeting.

Serves Friend's Sentence So He Can Get Married

Wheaton, Ill., March 2.—A great-great-grandson of Charles Dickens, this over," said Rinill, "you go to life enactment of Charles Dickens' novel "The Tale of Two Cities," came to light here today when Thomas Novilla, a chivalrous and romantic youth, admitted in his cell in the Wheaton jail that he had substituted for John Rinill, his friend, so that Rinill could embark on his honeymoon.

Rinill, it develops, was arrested several weeks ago for violating the prohibition law. His trial was set for the date on which he was scheduled to be married. He went to Novilla, his best friend, with a proposition.

"WET-DRY" FIGHT IN CONGRESS NEAR

Stalker Bill Putting Teeth In Volstead Act to Cause the Trouble.

Washington, March 2.—Another "Wet" and "Dry" fight in Congress was brewing today over the Stalker bill, raising the maximum penalty for a first violation of the Volstead act, excepting only possession of liquor, to five years imprisonment or a fine of $10,000.

Backed by the Department of Justice, Dry leaders declared they would put the amendment through in the present session.

At the same time the Wets both ridiculed the measure for an alleged "joker" in it and declared that it put a prohibition law violator and a bank robber on the same basis.

Placed on the calendar by favorable action of the House judiciary committee, the bill is scheduled to be called up for a vote in the near future.

Plagues Bootleggers

Rep. La Guardia, Republican of New York, a "Wet" member of the committee, asserted that the amendment would be hailed with delight by the bootleggers.

"The bill does raise the maximum sentence but it also removes the present provisions of the law which make a jail sentence mandatory for a second violation of the law," he argued.

Rep. Hersey, Republican of Maine, chairman of the sub-committee which first approved the measure, asserted that "the Wets have another thing coming if they think there is a 'joker' in this."

A big bootlegger, knowing that he can be sent to prison for five years the first time he is caught, will have more respect for the law, he declared.

Only a jail sentence or a fine not over $10,000 can now be given for a first violation of the act.

"BABY FACED BANDIT" GOES TO DEATH CELL

Appeal Made to Gov. Fuller to Commute Death Sentence to Life Imprisonment.

Boston, March 2.—As they waited here for Worcester, Mass., police to come after them, four Boston boys told local police how they had stolen a high-powered car in Boston and driven it to Worcester where the gasoline gave out.

They abandoned it and stole one from under the very nose of a policeman. The Worcester policeman gave chase but the boys beat him to it and dashed down the Connecticut valley to New Haven and along the shore to Darien, enjoying their ride.

A local mounted policeman saw the boys last evening and ordered them to stop. The driver laughed and sped up, trying when the officer drew alongside, to run him into a ditch. The policeman pumped his revolver into the back of the car and the boys gave up.

LINDY FLIES TO NEW YORK FIELD ON MYSTERY TRIP

AMERICA PREPARES FOR TRAVEL SPREE

Officials Estimate That Five Billions Will Be Spent By Tourists.

Washington, March 2.—Mr. and Mrs. America and family, world champion globe trotters, are going on a traveling spree this summer.

Reports to various government departments indicated today that America's traveling bill this year will total the staggering sum of $5,000,000,000. This is a billion dollars more than the approximate annual cost of running the government.

Shipping, railroad, automobile and airplane officials are preparing for the greatest year in history.

It is estimated that approximately 400,000 overseas voyagers will spend $80,000,000. Last year for foreign travel $115,000,000 was spent in America.

The shipping board announced that indications point to practically all its passenger ships being booked full for the summer.

Another liner, the reconditioned America, will be put in service this month to handle the expected increased traffic to Europe. The greatest increase is in the tourist business.

The commerce department estimates that the tourists spend an average of $1,250 each on a trip abroad.

Travel by Auto.

Additional millions will be expended by Americans traveling by auto and train in Canada and Mexico.

The railroads expect to better the record of last year's when they carried a total of 407,854,000 passengers. The tourist revenue may reach half a billion dollars.

Fully a third of the people of the country will take vacation motor tours, according to estimates of the American Automobile Association. They will spend approximately $3,500,000,000 and will burn up approximately 1,900,000,000 gallons of gasoline.

This would mean that the roads of the country would be choked with an endless stream of motor vehicles.

"From rock-ribbed Maine to sunny Florida, from the Atlantic seaboard to the blue waters of the Pacific, America is preparing to an unprecedented year in motor tourist travel," said the A. A. A.

FINDS EX-HUSBAND; TO REMARRY HIM

Romantic Tale of an International Beauty Brought Back From Egypt.

Monte Carlo, March 2.—The romantic tale of an international beauty who married a prince and then forsook him for a dashing Hungarian and now has divorced the latter and wants to remarry her prince again, was brought here by a yachting party of prominent Americans just returned from Egypt.

According to the millionaire skipper of the yacht, the Countess Paul Palffy D'Erdoes, formerly the beautiful Dorothy Deacon, had divorced her last husband and is going to remarry her former mate, Prince Albert Antoine Radziwill.

The countess is a sister of the present Duchess of Marlborough, who married the duke after the sensational annulment of his marriage to the present Madame Jacques Balsan, daughter of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

Prince Radziwill was a nephew of Prince Leopold Radziwill, one of the biggest stockholders of Bwino at Monte Carlo, who was found dead under mysterious circumstances at the Hotel De Paris, Monaco, last year.

Society Event

The marriage of the American beauty to the Lithuanian prince almost two decades ago was an outstanding event in international society. When she divorced her husband five years ago to marry the Hungarian count, friends thought she had finally found happiness. Only last year she had given birth to a boy.

But domestic difficulties caused another rift in their marital bliss. The countess wanted occasionally to visit Paris to see old American

In probably the briefest address ever listened to by Legislators of Massachusetts, Mrs. Lindbergh thanked the House for the opportunity to be present and expressed regret that Col. Mrs. Lindbergh was given a tremendous ovation as she left the rostrum.

Later Mrs. Lindbergh and Miss Adair left the capitol building. Mrs. Lindbergh did not explain whether or not her son was going to California immediately.

"You'll have to ask him," is her way of evading questions concerning his plans.

MOTHER MAKES SPEECH

Boston, Mass., March 2.—"Calif- ornia claims his presence," said Mrs. Lindbergh in a brief address to the House of regret that her son, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, was not at her side. At that time the "Lone Eagle" with three flying companions was swooping down on Curtiss Field, Long Island, at the conclusion of the first leg of a "mystery flight." Leaving here unexpectedly he said he wanted to enter the life of just an ordinary citizen for a while.

Mrs. Lindbergh was given a tremendous ovation by the legislators and the crowded galleries.

Accompanied by Miss Cornelia Adair, of Richmond, Va., president of the National Education Association, "Lindbergh's" mother was escorted to the House chamber by Gov. Alvin T. Fuller, who halted a meeting of his executive council considering the ousting of Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin.

The two nationally prominent women were escorted to the rostrum of the House by the women members of the Legislature.

Speaker John C. Hull in introducing Miss Adair said that education was the most important work of the nation and state.

The head of the N. E. A., in response thanked Boston and Massachusetts for their hospitality, including southern weather prevailing during the convention of educators.

Speaker Hull lauded Mrs. Lindbergh as the Detroit school teacher whose son, the "flying ambassador of good will" had thrilled the hearts of the inhabitants of the civilized world. Speaker Hull said that like her son, Mrs. Lindbergh was modest and asked to be excused from speaking.

Using a woman's prerogative, Mrs. Lindbergh changed her mind. In probably the briefest address ever listened to by Legislators of Massachusetts, Mrs. Lindbergh thanked the House for the opportunity to be present and expressed regret that Col. VELMA WEST WORRIES NOW.

Plainesville, Ohio, March 2.—Velma West, 21-year-old flapper "hammer slayer" who goes on trial for the murder of her husband, Thomas Edward West, next Monday, is losing her air of nonchalant indifference as the ordeal approaches. Sheriff Edward Ramussen said today. She has shown increasing signs of worry and she is being constantly watched by a matron. Velma is held at the county jail, inaccessible to visitors. She smokes many cigarettes and spends much of her time reading magazines. Mrs. West killed her husband with a hammer in a "blind rage." They had quarreled in their honeymoon bungalow. She picked up a hammer and struck him about a dozen blows. Then she calmly washed her hands, changed her clothes and went to a party in Cleveland where she was quite successful playing bridge.

BUSINESS GOOD IN U. S.

New York, March 2.—Business conditions in America remain fundamentally sound and there should be no cause for uneasiness, declared Daniel Wind, chairman of the First National Bank of Boston, who returned from the West Indies today on the liner Zacaapa. Easy money conditions for some time come will continue to give impetus to the advance over world money markets, he said. Victor Cutter, president of the United Fruit Company, returned from a business trip to the West Indies and Central America on the same boat. He declared that conditions in those countries show much improvement and progress is apparent. The company expects a satisfactory fruit crop this year and, so far as it can be indicated at this time, earnings should be better than those reported for 1927. Cutter stated.

BUSINESS BLOCK BURNS

Kittanning, Penna., March 2.—Firemen believed they had checked a blaze here today that raged for eleven hours. Breaking out anew intermittently until damage estimated between $350,000 and $500,000 was done. Five store buildings and offices above were destroyed by the flames as firemen from seven nearby towns attempted to bring the conflagration under control. One fireman, Herb Caldwell, of Ford City, was overcome by smoke and Jack Tippet, Kittanning, suffered a sprained ankle when he slipped on ice and fell. The blaze started in the basement of the King shoe store about 5:30 o'clock yesterday and spread from building to building in the block.

DOCTOR GETS CHAIR

Chicago, March 2.—Dr. Amante Rongetti, head of the Ashland Boulevard hospital, must die in the electric chair for the death of a patient in an illegal operation, of Miss Loretta J. Enders. A verdict finding the doctor guilty and fixing his punishment at death, was returned in Judge Frank B. Comerford's court last night by a jury which had deliberated three hours. Dr. Rongetti is the first convicted murderer in Cook county to face the newly installed electric chair. He is also the first person in Illinois to receive the extreme penalty in connection with fatal consequences of an illegal operation.

MRS. GOODHUE CHEERFUL

Northampton, Mass., March 2.—Mrs. Lemira Goodhue was considerably cheered today because of the arrival and visit of her daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Goodhue, who is herself recovering from a recent attack of grippe. Mrs. Goodhue made two visits to the Dickinson-Cooley hospital following her arrival, and planned to spend most of her time there today. The condition of the 78-year-old Mrs. Goodhue has not materially changed for some time. Dr. E. J. Hayes, her physician, stated she is in no immediate danger. She was falling slowly because of her advanced years. Mrs. Goodhue was stricken with an attack of influenza early in the winter and has been convalescing very slowly.

SMALL BOYS' BODIES FOUND IN A CANAL

Had Been Bound With Wire and Weighed Down—Not Identified.

Indian Harbor, Ind., March 2.—A nation-wide search for the fensish slayer and for the unknown parents of two little boys who were brutally slain and their wire-bound bodies hurled into the Indiana harbor ship canal was started here today.

Unknown motives confront police. The identities of the boys are unknown. The manner in which they were slain is unknown.

Ten days ago the first body, fully clad, floated to the surface. Yesterday the second boy's body appeared. Examination revealed the boys had been killed, their bodies bound with identical wire, and had been weighted down.

From the similarity of the features, and from the similarity in the type of clothing, police believe the boys were brothers. Although thousands of distracted mothers and fathers whose children have been missing have passed through the morgue where the body of the first child lay, not one was able to identify it as their child.

For this reason police believe the children may have lived in locality near from Indiana harbor and that their slayer kidnaped them, probably held them for ransom, and failing to receive it, murdered them and cast their weighted bodies into the murky waters of the canal.

N. Y. SUB WORKERS MAY STRIKE TOMORROW

New York, March 2.—Subway and elevated workers on the Interborough Rapid Transit Company's lines here are expected to go on strike at midnight tomorrow unless intervention by Mayor James J. Walker today is successful.

Mayor Walker was to confer at noon today with William D. Mahon and William B. Fitzgerald, president and vice-president respectively of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway employees, in a final effort to avert the walk-out. The two national labor chiefs came here from Detroit to take charge of the strike and to provide the local workers with funds from the amalgamated treasury.

Meanwhile 700 strikebreakers, guarded by police, have been imported by the Interborough and are ready for duty. Motormen are being trained hurriedly.

PIAN NEW PARLEY

Geneva, March 2.—Belief that the British will propose a new international conference on limitation of naval armaments was strengthened today by a report that the London government is already sounding out French official opinion, regarding another naval limitation parley with representatives of the United States, France, Italy and Japan.

It is believed to be part of British policy to take the leadership in having another conference arranged so as to offset the charges made by United States officials that the British were responsible for the collapse of the last naval limitation conference held here.

HOOVER WITHDRAWS

Washington, March 2.—Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, will withdraw from the Wisconsin Presidential primary, it was announced today.

George Akerson, Hoover's assistant, declared the secretary's name was entered in Wisconsin by an "unauthorized person." His name will be withdrawn today. Tomorrow is the last day for filing for the primary election to be held on April 3.

PASSED BAD CHECKS.

Hartford, Conn., March 2.—William H. Austin, traveling salesman living on Edgewood avenue, Longmeadow, Mass., was fined thirty dollars and costs in police court here today. He was convicted of giving worthless checks totaling thirty-six dollars. His promise to make restitution on the checks saved him from a jail sentence he was told in court.

20 YEARS AN INSPECTOR.

Hartford, Conn., March 2.—William J. Warner, of Hebron, today started his twenty-first year as deputy food and dairy inspector for the state and recalled being the lone milk inspector of Connecticut when he joined the state's forces in 1908. He has fourteen under him now. He received anniversary gifts from nearly every section of the state.

TRAIN LEAVES RAILS

Toledo, Ohio, March 2.—Thirteen coaches of a fast New York Central passenger train from Chicago, enroute to Cleveland, left the rails at Swanton, 20 miles west of here, early today, two of the cars overturned. The train carried 131 passengers but none was seriously hurt.

Another train was rushed to the scene and passengers resumed their journey on this train.

TRIBUTE TO BROOKS

Detroit, March 2.—The Ford airplane factory was put down from 11:20 to 11:30 a. m. today as memorial services were being held there simultaneously with those at Melbourne Beach, Fla., for Harry Brooks, pilot of the Ford flier plane, who fell to his death last Saturday off the Florida coast.

CONGRESSMAN SPEAKS ON POISON LIQUOR

Washington, March 2.—The House was turned into a classroom today for a lecture on poison liquor by Rep. Sirovich, Democrat of New York, but only after a thirty-minute quarrel between Wets and Drys.

Just before Sirovich arose to talk, Rep. Cramton, Republican of Michigan, dry leader, made a point of order against the speech. He withdrew it after Sirovich promised he would make no laboratory experiment and would not offer any Congressman a drink of poison liquor.

Sirovich's purpose was to convince members that industrial alcohol, when denatured without poisons, notwithstanding the declarations of treasury chemists.

Sirovich confronted the members with menacing looking test tubes filled with kerosene, kichloride of mercury and other poisons which now are used to prevent industrial alcohol from satisfying the palates of the thirsty.

"There is no objection to drugs that would denature alcohol so long as they are not injurious to the body," said Sirovich.

"My contention is that any drugs that are in there which are not injurious, from the standpoint of poisoning may be safely used as a denaturant."

Poisonous denaturants originally were put in industrial alcohol to prevent it from escaping taxation. They were continued after prohibition to help enforce the Volstead act.

"Six million gallons of diverted and converted industrial poisoned alcohol are put in human consumption and is responsible for the murder of 12,000 citizens annually," he said.

ACTRESS GOES TO JAIL

San Quentin, Calif., March 2.—Dorothy Mackaye, actress, is No. 44,960 in San Quentin state penitentiary today.

Having failed in an eight-months struggle to avert a prison term of from one to three years for concealing circumstances surrounding the fist-fight death of her husband, Ray Raymond, musical comedy star, the actress still has hopes of coming back to the stage. She insists that she is innocent of the charges upon which she was convicted.

Beneath the same roof Paul Kelly, motion picture actor, also is serving a term for manslaughter growing out of Raymond's death.

BURIED UNDER COAL

Hartford, Conn., March 2.—Andrew Mocha, an employe of the Mason Coal Cor., was buried under ten tons of coal this afternoon when he accidentally fell in front of a coal chute which was being unloaded.

Police reserves were called and when finally rescued he was taken to Hartford hospital where he is in a serious condition.

Lord Askwith says American husbands face famine if the tin supply runs out. We hope it doesn't run out until Europe has paid up, anyway.

HIRAM REED DENIES HE USED DYNAMITE

Ottawa, Ill., March 2.—For the second time Hiram Reed, 24-year-old farmer's son, accused of the attempted murder of Miss Iola Bradford, Pleasant Valley school teacher, reiterated on the witness stand this afternoon that he did not place dynamite in the school stove and confessed only to mild Miss Bradford, his former sweetheart.

"I didn't do it. I didn't do it. I never had any dynamite. I never put any in the school stove. I wanted to marry Miss Bradford," he testified. He is accused of having planted dynamite in the school stove which exploded and injured Miss Bradford.

William E. Tydemann, chemistry instructor at the Ottawa high school testified that an accumulation of coal gas in the Pleasant Valley school stove might have, and could have caused such an explosion as occurred December 1 which seriously injured Miss Bradford. The state charges the explosion was the result of a dynamite charge set by Hiram Reed.

A dozen character witnesses had testified in behalf of Reed.

HANGMAN NOT WORRIED OVER EXECUTING WOMAN

Montreal, Que., March 2.—Arthur Ellis, Canadian hangman who is scheduled to execute Doris McDonald on March 23 at Valleyfield, declared today that the task of hanging a woman does not worry him.

The secretary of the Canadian Prisoners' Welfare Association had asked Ellis whether his nerves would be affected by the ordeal.

"The idea of hanging a guilty woman does not worry me in the least," Ellis said, "and though I feel flattered by the society's concern for my health, I can assure them that it will be unaffected by the ordeal. If they feel we ought to have a woman to hang a woman, let them find one and I will gladly make room for her."

STEWART INDICTED

Washington, March 2.—Colonel Robert W. Stewart, who yesterday was re-elected chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury here today for contempt in refusing to answer questions propounded to him by the Senate public lands committee.

There were two counts in the indictment, based upon Stewart's refusal to answer questions on two days as to his knowledge of the disposition of the $3,080,000 Liberty Bond "slush fund."

The penalty for conviction is a maximum of $1,000 fine and twelve months imprisonment, and a minimum of $100 and one month.

Stewart is now at liberty on $5,000 bond after having been arrested by the senate sergeant-at-arms for refusing to answer questions.

ARMS PACT FAILS

Peking, March 2.—Despite belief in diplomatic circles that an international effort may be made to renew and tighten the 1918 arms embargo convention, it was admitted today that serious obstacles exist. Three of the most powerful of the signatories have little sympathy with the agreement and may refuse to join a new convention. They are Japan, France and Italy.

Japan is willing to join a new pact if all nations sign it and pledge themselves to make it effective, but such a development seems highly unlikely.

NOT A BIGAMIST

Berlin, March 2.—Alexander Zoubkoff, 27-year-old brother-in-law of the former Kaiser, who is understood to have left Berlin for Bonn, denied today through friends, that he was already married to a Russian girl when he married 62-year-old Princess Victoria Ze-Schaumburg-Lippe.

A report was printed in a Czechoslovakian newspaper at Bratislava, quoting a woman who claimed to be Zoubkoff's sister, as saying he had a wife when he married the German princess.

Zoubkoff declared he has no sister, and that he had never been married until he led Victoria to the altar.

Mr. Weed was secretary for the Y. M. C. A. in Springfield, Mass., Pittsburgh, Swickley and Greensburg, Pa., and Greenwich. He went to Greenwich as the first Y. M. C. A. secretary and served from 1917 to 1922, living in that town nine years.

Moving to Stamford in 1922, Mr. Weed became associated with the Obelisk Waterproofing Company, of New York.

EX-SLAVE DIES

Windsor, Conn., March 2.—Edward Hill, who was born in slavery seventy-six years ago, and who in the past sixty years gained a considerable fortune as a tobacco raiser, died suddenly at his home here today.

Hill, who was freed by virtue of the emancipation proclamation, came north in 1867 and found work in Windsor. He secured capital to engage in an independent tobacco grower and prospered.

Black Gold, Hero Horse, Made Good On Deathbed Wish Of Al Hoots

Pawhuska, Oklahoma.—"Black Gold," one of the greatest horses the world ever has known—a freak who absorbed human life with his oats, and returned his owners a stream of dollars as great as comes from any of the oil wells gushing the liquid for which he was named—was the product of a peculiar wish, and prophecy made by an old-time jockey on his death-bed.

Al Hoots, in his early days a jockey, married an Osage Indian woman; a blanket Indian of three-quarters blood. But they really loved each other, according to testimony of numerous acquaintances in this city, for they were married in the days before the Osages became the richest tribe in the world.

Owned One Horse.

Hoots owned one horse, a mare named "Useet," which had earned for his master a number of tidy purses on Texas tracks. He was a bluff type of fellow, but was known in the sport world as an honest lover of horses. In 1919, Hoots took his prize-winner to Tia Juana and entered her in a claiming race. Useet was an easy winner over the field, but was taken from Hoots, as is customary in "claiming" races; and sold to two Mexicans. Hoots afterwards swore that he did not realize the race was of the "claiming" variety.

Heartbroken, the jockey pleaded with the Mexicans for the return of the horse, but they refused to hear him. In the dead of night following the race, and with two big "six-guns" strapped to his hips, Hoots raided the barn where Useet was stabled; took her across the International bridge into the United States, and by easy stages brought her to the race track near Pawhuska. Not for several months did he realize his predicament, for when he tried to run the mare again, he learned that he was barred from every track in America, Mexico and Canada.

Dies In Despair.

Hoots died soon after, and many cling to the theory that his passing resulted from a broken heart. As he lay on his death bed, Hoots called to his Indian wife, and in parting, said:

"If you love me, do just as I say. Take Useet to Kentucky. Breed her to Black Toney. Train the offspring, and win the Kentucky derby! You can do it!"

The woman promised, and well and faithfully she kept her word.

The offspring of Useet and Black Toney was a scrubby little black colt, hooted at by experts, and loved by no one save his owner. Then came Hanley Webb, a Cherokee Indian trader. He had a vision and stayed with the colt through thick and thin. The little horse was named "Black Gold," for it was at the time of the oil boom, and on the land given Mrs. Hoots by the Indian allotment, sufficient oil was found to insure the thorough training of the colt.

Black Gold was put into training as soon as his baby legs would hold him, and in 1923 was taken to New Orleans for the winter meeting.

Owners frowned on the scrubby racer from "the sticks," but Webb continued to pet and care for his black baby. Finally, as a two-year-old, Black Gold won nine races and a total of $19,013, a record for two-year-olds.

Webb took the horse to the Osage Hills, and in the Spring of 1924, returned to the south with him, where he won the Louisiana Derby, which paid Mrs. Hoots $17,500. In this race, the colt so far outdistanced his competitors that he had only to gallop the last four furlongs.

His Big Year.

The following year came the "big break" and the horse won more than $100,000 for his owner who followed him always, pitching her Indian tepee on the race course and watching over him as anxiously as his trainer. Judge A. Mooney, the jockey and Webb always slept in a stall beside Black Gold.

After eighteen months on a farm, which it is claimed made his bones soft, he was taken to New Orleans for his last race.

He was limping when he went to the post, but in the running was well up, being but three lengths back of the leader when his left foreleg snapped at the 16th of the mile. He stumbled but never fell into the stretch—other horses leading—Black Gold's wonderful will power and fearless spirit carried him on, until he fell at the fire, within only a few feet of the finish. The jockey slid off gently, and willing hands lifted the poor suffering warrior off the track. A veterinarian approached to put Black Gold out of his misery.

Al Hoots had said: "get revenge for the dogs that tricked me." And Black Gold had made good!

Shrubs, flowers and an American flag mark the horse's grave, in the oval where he ran his last race. Soon a marble slab will be erected there.

WAR NEVER ENDS FOR THIS VET

Dr. Louis Julian Genella, first U. S. soldier to shed blood in the World War, now he heals other stricken veterans.

New Orleans—Back in 1898 a young medical student persuaded Dr. James Chaille to excuse him from delivering the valedictory address at the graduating exercises of Tulane medical school, so he could ship to Santiago, where American guns were barking.

In the World War, July 14, 1917, in a tank trap along the Hindenburg line that same medical student was the first soldier in the United States army to shed his blood on the field of battle.

He is Dr. Louis Julian Genella, a native of New Orleans, and for him the war never has ended. For now he spends his days tending the soldiers who are still disabled.

These men are veterans now and their wounds are old, but he gives them the same attention they received when he was at Base Hospital No. 6, in Savannah, near Seves, where 26,000 beds held bullet-torn bodies of men.

Dr. Genella is medical expert associated with the United States Veterans' Bureau in New Orleans.

"I feel as though the war had never ended," he says. "All day long I see these men coming in for treatment and examination. I look at their wounds and see the effects of diseases they contracted out front. It's just like it was in the hospital in France."

For sixteen months Dr. Genella served as first lieutenant in the front line trenches. He was wounded by shrapnel, his "face, hand and knee getting in the way of a big shell," as he tells it.

Owners frowned on the scrubby racer from "the sticks," but Webb continued to pet and care for his black baby. Finally, as a two-year-old, Black Gold won nine races and a total of $19,013, a record for two-year-olds.

Webb took the horse to the Osage Hills, and in the Spring of 1924, returned to the south with him, where he won the Louisiana Derby, which paid Mrs. Hoots $17,500. In this race, the colt so far outdistanced his competitors that he had only to gallop the last four furlongs.

Washington.—Fifteen Burns detectives, who were engaged in surveillance of Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial jurors will be juggled over the country and put to work in widely separated areas at the close of the Burns-Sinclair contempt proceedings.

This is necessary, W. Sherman Burns, acting head of the organization said, because publicity given the trial has made generally known the identity of these men. Their value to the big private detective agency is thus destroyed in this section.

Maybe those Liberty bonds traced to the Republican national committee by the Teapot Dome investigators were really gullitged securities.

Denver—Following announcement that new money in smaller sized currency would be available for distribution by the treasury department, probably later this year, a movement is under way here for adoption of a silver dollar considerably smaller in size than the present familiar "cartwheel."

An increase in the mining industry of Colorado is seen in the proposal, offered by Coloradans, for the new, scientific silver dollar adopted by the federal government.

The new coin, according to present discussion, would be composed of one ounce of silver, 47 cents worth of gold and three cents worth of alloy, mostly copper. Such a composition is pointed out as being a fair, equitable representation of the value of the country's wealth which is based on gold and silver.

Size An Advantage.

Another advantage of the new dollar, as contemplated under the proposal, would be its size, for it would be slightly larger than the 50-cent piece and of a thickness 50 per cent less than the half dollar.

Were such a piece adopted, Colorado being one of the largest producers of silver in the land would naturally benefit in a proposition whose features would offer advantages to everybody. Manufacture of the coin would necessitate an increased production of silver and this would stimulate mining, put more money into circulation and cause a greater prosperity, the proponents declare.

Discussion of the proposal brought to the cumbersome of the present "iron man," the disadvantage of whose weight has caused the eastern section of the country to shun it and substitute the dollar bill.

See Few Dollars

It is seldom that a silver dollar is seen east of the Mississippi river but the bills are omnipresent and their repositories are not always the cleanest or most sanitary, leading various banks to establish bill laundries for their cleansing.

In consequence, the Coloradans interested in the proposal point out that the bill is one of the world's greatest mediums for the distribution of diseases, and contrast it with their suggested new coin which would be sanitary because it would not gather filth.

VILMA AND RONALD MUST PART

THEIR ROMANCES ON SCREEN FOUND TOO COSTLY.

By DAN THOMAS.

Hollywood, Calif. — Wanted: A lover and a heroine. Apply at the offices of Samuel Goldwyn.

The lover's job will be to woo beautiful Vilma Banky. The heroine's job will be to accept attentions and kisses from Ronald Colman.

All other words, what I am trying to tell you is that Colman and Miss Banky have kissed their last kiss. This couple, who have come to be known as the most popular team of screen lovers, have been separated.

They're Expensive.

Goldwyn, who controls the destinies of these two, has decided that it costs too much to make pictures co-starring them—their salaries are prohibitive. Further, he believes that either of them is big enough to carry a picture alone.

There may be another reason, too, since it is a known fact in the innermost circles of filmdom that Colman and Miss Banky cannot get along at all. Their love scenes appear very real on the silver sheet, but between shots they're just as apt to be throwing things at each other as not.

What They Say About It.

Some time ago, when Goldwyn intimated to me that one more production, "The Passionate Adventure," would be the couple's last, I asked them what they thought of a separation.

Miss Banky, always the actress, replied, "I do not want to be separated from Mr. Colman—we get along so well together in our usual food rations reduced to about half.

No New Fields

"I must emphasize the fact," he continued, "that no fresh productive fields of any real importance have been discovered for a great many years, and that we are still faced with the probable exhaustion of all the known world resources of tin within the course of the next two or three decades.

"Bearing this in mind, we must recognize that there are two cardinal reasons, which in themselves furnish sufficient justification for the control of prices. ### CHINA BREAKING IN SMALL PARTS BY CIVIL WAR

Washington.—China, on the surface at least, is still apparently breaking up into ever smaller political units, although apart from political and military control, the Chinese remain indissolubly united both racially and economically. Late advice from the Far Eastern country show that there are now from 12 to 15 governments, of which ten may be a pretense of being independent.

Most prominent among the independent "governments" is that of Chang Tso-lin in Peking. Marshal Chang holds sway over the greater part of the ancient empire of Gheugis Khan, including the Three Eastern Province of Manchuria as well as the provinces of Chihli and Shantung. His hold on Kansu and Honan provinces has been none too certain and at this time he is threatened from the west and the south.

Moderates Strong

Next in apparent strength is the Moderate Nationalist government at Kai-shing, which is led by Chang Kai-shek and members of Dr. Sun Yat-sen's family except Mrs. Sun, who is bitterly opposed to the policies of the Moderates. Although this group's dominion over the provinces of Anhwei, Hupei, Chekiang, Hunan, Kiangsi, Fukien and Kwangsi is not so strong as that of Chang Tso-lin over the territory he holds, it represents a more important spread of territory. Recently the Nanking group wrested control of Kwangtung province, including the city of Canton, from a native government.

Hankow is still independent of the Nanking rule and is inclined toward Peking for the moment, but a movement is being slipping that controls little more than the industrial cities of Hankow, Wuchang and Yangtze.

Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang has no definite seat of government, although in general he controls a part of Mongolia and the provinces of Kansu and Shensi in the west. Shansi province, ruled for 16 years by Yen Hsi-shan, is still under his control. Yen's recent thrust at Peking, however, weakened his position considerably and he is threatened on one side by Marshal Fen, on another by Marshal Chang and on a third by the Hankow forces.

In Other Provinces

On the Tibetan border is the province of Szechwan, which has been completely dominated by General Yang Sen for a number of years and appears likely to remain so for some time.

Kansu, Kowoner and Sinkiang provinces in the northwest while momentarily in the possession of Marshal Feng, are in fact independent politically. They are members of an autonomous but loosely organized Mohammedan confederation.

To the southwest, bordering French Indo-China, lies Yunnan, which France manages to keep fairly stable for use as a buffer state between Indo-China and China proper.

Tibet has been independent for a number of years. It was at one time a part of China, but latterly its independence has been encouraged by British influences.

Outer Mongolia, excluding that part which has been held from time to time by Feng, is a member of the Soviet Union, although not directly dependent upon Moscow.

SET TIN PRICE FOR WORLD TO SAVE SUPPLIES

London.—The belief that a failure to stabilize the price of tin without further delay can result only in an acute world shortage of the important metal, was expressed by Sir William Henry, Chairman of the Tin Selection Trust, Ltd. in his annual report to the organization.

Sir Henry stated as his belief that with the present condition of the country being such that the supply was but little ahead of the demand, an artificial depression of world prices would result in the abandonment of the low grade workings and the discouragement of prospecting, leading directly to the accentuation "of what I believe to be the real danger, namely, an acute shortage of tin."

Limited Stocks

"The actual stock of metallic tin in warehouse in the United Kingdom and in the United States is at present no more than 3,600 tons," Sir Henry declared, "and this quantity would not suffice to keep the wheels of the world's tin consuming industries revolving for even as brief a space of time as ten days.

"Nobody can question the wisdom of stabilizing tin. This is a vital commodity in the economic life of the world today, and excessive fluctuations in the controversy of the natural trend of the price can not fail to injure both the producer and the consumer of the metal.

"From statistics in our possession I have estimated that half the food consumed by the United States today is tinned food. This means that if you suddenly stopped the supply of tinned food, or if, for some reason, it became impossible to keep up the supply of tin, for a time, at any rate, the people of the United States would find their usual food rations reduced to about half.

No New Fields

Pittsburgh's Master Violin Maker Builds 25 Instruments In Lifetime

Pittsburgh.—Violin lovers passing through Pittsburgh always visit the shop of Gabriel Marc Francois, contemporary master and generally esteemed expert in the art of making fiddles.

For Francois, who started out to be a doctor, has served a ten-year apprenticeship in the violin making art, and devoted 25 of the best years of life to building them. All this in addition to working in his father's shop in Mir-court, France, when he was a young man.

And Francois has made only seventy violins during the 25 years he has been established here.

But Francois had started to become a doctor. His father and forefathers all had been violin makers. The young man determined to branch off into another profession. During the first years of his life, he had been employed in his father's shop.

It was natural that when the youth started to study medicine, he should attempt to defray part of his expenses by doing odd jobs in his father's shop. Later he served an apprenticeship with the famous Paul Bailly. He worked for Bailly ten years.

Models of Masters

During his apprenticeship Francois learned to reproduce models for all the great masters. So adept had he become that he established a reputation for himself that was nation-wide. He still persisted in his study of medicine however, and gave up violin making when he graduated from the University of Paris.

His reputation established however, made it impossible for him to remain in France and attempt to practice his newly acquired profession. There were too many demands on his time.

So the young Frenchman left his country and settled in Boston, there to practice medicine. During odd hours, he whittled away his time by carving out the

New York, Mar. 2.—Just a few of those little tales they are pleased to call "Manhattan delights." . . . He was an old circus man . . . had been out with Ringlings for 21 years. The tankard was his land, for he had started as a stake driver and had gone through the whole program from cook-tent stinky to bally-o man backing in front of the side-show. He had saved his money, figuring that when he had enough he would open a "beer saloon," somewhere around Broadway. . . . When that hour came, prohibition had been a leap ahead of him. So Ben opened speakeasy. But he missed the circus. And, having rolled up a comfortable sum from his Martinis and such, he recently retained one of the finest painters in New York to paint lions on the speakeasy walls. They're the best lions you'll find painted anywhere in New York. And Ben feels more at home now. So he's named his place "the circus."

For 15 years the tenemented streets of the East Side had accepted them as a daily event, like the rising of the sun or the dull pangs of hunger. Rubino and his wife would make their slow rounds from morn to night, with Delaney street as a sort of intermittent headquarters. From morn to night Rubino would grind at his hand organ and the "missus" would take the pennies or dimes, or whatever came their way. Year on year they played for the children or for the strange heads that came to windows and leaned out to listen. They saw dancing children grow to manhood and womanhood and when there was a wedding they would crank their organ just around the corner, knowing well that spirits would be high and contributions liberal.

About three months ago Rubino appeared without the "missus." He looked years older and very tired. Yet he came, day after day. He really didn't need to. When the "missus" had been alive they had a dingy room, with the gas on the wall and a new hurdy-gurdy playing on Delancey Street.

You'll see him almost any night at Lew Leslie's supper club, "The Ambassadors." He's a middle-aged negro, soberly dressed, with a black mourning band about his coat sleeve. He sits alone at his table and waits. Sometime around midnight a young negro girl takes the center of the floor and begins to sing. She rounds her program of blues and ballads and then she comes to one which starts something like this—"I'm only a black-bird." When she is finished the colored man applauds heartily. Then he quickly rushes his hand across his eyes. For the man is the husband of the late Florence Mills, the "Harlem blackbird" and her successor is singing the song that Florence made famous.

The scene changes to a big auditorium. It is well filled, although the night is none too pleasant. Outside the boards inform you that Antonio Castano Lopez, the Spanish baritone, "will make his first appearance tonight." What it doesn't tell you is this: Not so many months ago "Tony" Lopez was a counterman in a cafe on Nassau street frequented largely by "the boys" from newspaper row.

PRINCE HUMBERT'S UNION WITH BELGIAN PRINCESS WINS GENERAL APPROVAL

Brussels—The ghost of Napoleon I will undoubtedly return to place his seal upon the union of the royal Prince of Italy with the young Princess Marie-Jose of Belgium, if the much-talked-of marriage is culminated next spring. Princess Clémentine, daughter of old King Leopold II, is the aunt of the present King Albert and grand-aunt of his daughter, Princess Marie. She is the widow of Prince Victor Napoleon, son of Prince Jerome Bonaparte and Princess Clothilde, sister of King Humbert of Italy. Thus, she is also the grand-aunt of the Prince of Italy. The Prince belongs to the house of Savoie, son of Princess Helene of Montenegro. His grandmother was a Princess of Savoie and his great-grandmother, the wife of Victor Emanuel I, a Princess of Austria.

The Queen of the Belgians, mother of Marie-Jose, is a Bavarian Duchess of the branch which never occupied the throne. Her grandmother was a Hohenzollern, also of a branch which never reigned. Her great-grandmother was Princess Louise d'Orleans, daughter of King Louis Philippe of France.

The commonwealth of the monastic republics of Mount Athos, Macedonia, has no female population.

THEN ALL-BRAN SAVED HIM FROM CONSTIPATION

A message for people who use laxatives

Mr. Skiles wrote us a voluntary testimonial after Kellogg's ALL-BRAN had saved him from dreadful constipation. Read his tribute: July 12, 1927. "For years I have been so constipated. After trying every kind of drug possible, I could only get temporary relief. I became discouraged and gave up hope, when a friend told me to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I had read so many testimonials I had no faith. I was of the opinion testimonials were put out by friends. I will not only give you the privilege to use my name, but I will go on the witness stand and testify to my statement. I cannot express words great enough to meet with Kellogg's food." —ARTHUR SKILES, 325 N. Kedzie Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

If constipation is preying upon your health, check it before too late. If you are using habit-forming laxatives, stop it before this harmful practice fastens its grip too tight. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. A 100% bran cereal—delicious with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use in cooking too. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Friday, March 2

Swarthmore College will send its musical clubs to the microphone of WTIC at 8:30 on Friday night for a highlight that should be both entertaining and educational. At 8 o'clock the 100-joy hour with WGY featuring Kolin Hager, baritone, will be broadcast by WGY and a concert by the Shirley string quartet, which has been arranged by WNAC. A number of vocal and instrumental soloists and groups will be heard during the Shirley hour which will be relayed through Blue network stations at 9 o'clock. "Stay Out of the South" by a vocal octet, will open this program from the Magic Isle. Also at 9 the Brooklyn Orchestra Society quartet will appear for listeners of WTIC. Three of the big highlights for this night will go on the air at 10 o'clock. They are concerts by the Euterpeans mixed quartet through WOL, Shaver's Jubilee Singers through WLS, and the Palmolive hour through WEAF and the Red network. At the end of each three months' period of its broadcast will feature events of the Palmolive hour programs. TOLLAND

The officers and members of the Tolland Fire department will give an entertainment in the Town hall Friday evening, March 9th to be tendered to the families and friends of those associated with the department. The present arrangements include many fine specialties and the entire show will present a performance that will remain in the memory of those attending for many months to come. The management feel they have been very fortunate to secure the services of talent that will do so much to make the program an interesting and pleasing one. The regular meeting of Tolland Grange will be next Tuesday evening in the Church Vestry and the Past Masters will have charge of the program. The Study Club met in the church parlors last Monday evening with a good attendance. Mrs. C. Hibbard West, Mrs. Ivan Wilcox and Miss Lydia Olson were hostesses. Mrs. Samuel Simpson read a paper on the British Isles giving Mrs. Simpson and friends for nearly three months visiting historical and noted places in Scotland, England, Ireland and Wales. Miss Olson gave a reading. Both the paper and reading were much enjoyed by the listeners. Delight refreshments consisting of ice cream, sandwiches, cookies and cake were served by the committee in charge. The Happy Helpers Poultry Club of the 7th and 9th districts will hold a meeting at the school house Tuesday afternoon, March 6th, at 3:30 o'clock. It is desired that new members be added to this club, so come and join and be among the Happy Helpers. Mr. Gaylord from Storrs college will be present. The Union Missionary Society held the monthly all day sewing meeting in the Federated Church parlors Thursday. The Ladies Aid Society of the Federated church will serve their regular monthly supper, Friday evening in the church dining room. Mrs. Samuel Simpson, Mrs. William Ayers, Jr. and Mrs. Emery Clough are the supper committee. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the Federated church service, Sunday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Newman and Mrs. John H. Steele attended the funeral of Alfred U. Charter, Wednesday afternoon, held at the Crystal Lake church. Next Monday, March 5th, at 2 o'clock, there will be a town meeting to lay tax and to act upon any other business proper to come before said meeting.

"SILVER VALLEY" ONE OF CIRCLE FEATURES

Here Today and Tomorrow With "The Little Snob." Tom Mix and his famous horse Tony are featured in "Silver Valley," one of two films showing at the Circle theater today and tomorrow. The second feature on the bill is "The Little Snob," starring May McAvoy. In "Silver Valley," Tom Mix is cast as an aviator, and his antics to master the intricacies of an airplane lead to many hilarious and thrilling situations. Tom's efforts to fly the plane meet with the disapproval of the ranch owner. Unable to lift the plane off the ground, Tom demolishes half the ranch and his frantic efforts to gain control of the machine convulse the cowboys as well as the audience. Tony, Tom's horse, is deeply concerned at the welfare of his master and follows Tom and the plane across the ranch where Tom finally wrecks the plane and barely escapes with his life. Tom applies for the job as sheriff of Standing Rock and his thoroughness at retaining law and order incur the enmity of Black Jack Ludlow, a leader of highwaymen. An active volcano forms the background to a number of smashing sequences, actual scenes of Vesuvius in eruption, photographed specially for this production being among the high lights of the picture. "The Little Snob," a Warner Bros. production, starring May McAvoy, is the Circle theater attraction for the coming week. The story is that of a poor girl whose father runs a Coney Island concession, and saves until he is able to send his daughter to a "finishing" school, which almost does just that. Her return to Coney Island with her fine-feathered friends, the return of her regard for the sideshow barker who soundly thrashes her swanky beau, and a score of other exciting sequences make "The Little Snob" a rare and unique comedy. The cast includes Alec Francis, Robert Frazer, Virginia Lee Corbin, John Millan and Frances Lee. John Adolfi directed Robert Lord's screen adaptation of an E. T. Lowe, Jr., story. "The Little Snob" is worth you while.

How's She Hitting?
Hints on Car Care
By ISRAEL KLEIN
As important a part of the automobile as the motor is, it isn't alone in demanding attention from its owner. For there are other parts that make up an automobile and that require consideration, if the entire machine is to run smoothly.
The body is far from a mechanical apparatus, but it has moving parts and it is subject to breakdown and annoyance just as is the motor itself. It requires watchfulness and periodic attention, if driving is to remain pleasant and the automobile is to maintain its good looks.
The motor usually outlasts the body in service for the simple reason that immediate attention is paid to it when it shows the least sign of balking. A squeaky or muddy body, on the other hand, can be tolerated without handicapping the operating of the car.
Eventually, however, the squeaks and dirt leave permanent marks on the car, rattling becomes an everyday affair and the automobile is worth much less than one to which attention has been paid.
Yet care of the body is easier than attention to the engine. It requires only occasional checking of bolts and other parts. And it demands only a matter of cleanliness on the part of the owner.
It isn't much, for instance, to have the body bolts tightened when the chassis is being greased. No matter how well built the car may be, its tie-down bolts loosen with the vibration of travel, and its doors and other movable parts squeak on their hinges.
Closed bodies, especially, should be adjusted after the first 1,000 or 1,500 miles of use. If the doors squeak, most likely the tie-down bolts to the chassis are loose.
Squeaks come from such insignificant causes as glazed contact points between doors and pillars, between hood and fender, at the hood clamps and at the door lock. All they need is slight lubrication, a drop of oil in the lock, or a touch of grease along the contact edges.
Slight rattles come from parts loosened by the inevitable vibration of the car, and jars over rough pavements. The bumpers can thus be loosened enough to rattle disturbingly. The trimmers inside the car can become loose and squeak. Wires in the ignition system may trail and strike against the body or chassis as the car moves along.
All that's needed is tightening. As important as a squeakless body is a clean one. Let mud remain over winter and its mark will become permanent thereafter. The car will no longer look as fresh as it should.
What the car needs is a periodic cleaning, even through the coldest winter days. Water should be played gently on the body, or applied with a sponge. No hot water nor soap should be used, or it will injure the finish. The body should be wiped dry with a piece of chamofa. If left to dry, the entire body will be spotted with tiny dirt marks.

HONEST OFFICIAL

A first class rumpus between Governor Fuller of Massachusetts and Frank A. Goodwin, state registrar of motor vehicles, brought on by the latter's efforts to get salary increases for attaches of his office and developing extraordinary acrimony, with charges by Goodwin that Fuller had broken faith with state employes, has resulted in the removal of the registrar.

Goodwin has been in the public eye all over the East for a number of years through his outspokenness and because of a brusque determination to enforce the laws. He has displayed about as much tact as a bull in a china closet, and has frequently been a thorn in the side of Bay State officialdom. The wonder is that he has held his job so long.

Which suggests the thought that perhaps it isn't entirely possible to be both tactful and wholly honest in the administration of a job like Goodwin's. A registrar of motor vehicles who goes to the newspapers with the records of persons who have been arrested forty or fifty times for driving without licenses, driving drunk, stealing automobiles, committing hit-and-run offenses—without ever serving a day in jail—is obviously antagonizing politicians of considerable influence. His life cannot be a very happy one.

That is the kind of an official Goodwin has been. And he has fought so long against graft and indifference and laziness and crookedness in the courts that he has perhaps developed the almost inevitable bitterness of outlook that such struggles set up, and which has had the not unheard-of result of convincing him that he is the only honest person around.

It is such an effect that has brought about the downfall of more than one honest and serious-minded official.

COLLEGE PRODUCTS

In one of the countless editorials concerning the problem of college educations for the masses, so to speak, the New York Herald-Tribune expresses the view that of those institutions which ought to heavily cut their freshmen classes the most obvious are the schools of applied science. "If one counts merely in human units," says the Herald-Tribune, "far too many graduate engineers, for example, are now turned loose on the world each year. Many of them must and do find other occupations."

It seems to us that the newspaper is ever so wrong. The more engineers there are in the world the more work will be done—not only in construction of bridges, skyscrapers, waterworks, roads, etc., but in every conceivable department of mechanical and industrial activity, perhaps of politics and government. Every sound engineering mind is a world asset; every engineering education adds to the sum of the nation's economic strength.

The Herald-Tribune, on the other hand, says nothing about the enormous plethora of lawyers annually produced by the law colleges. The surplus of these, however great the excess, do not, as the Herald-Tribune says of the engineers, turn to other occupations—where their special training is sure to bring about better methods, better products, further contribution to the national well-being. They hang onto an already overcrowded profession, contribute nothing whatever to the well-being of society but find their opportunity for a livelihood, in literally thousands of cases, in teaching dishonest persons how to safely evade the penalties of wrong doing.

If every adult American had in the back of his head the training of an engineer, we conceivably might still have a very comfortable and very prosperous nation here. But if every adult American were a lawyer—imagine the situation if you can.

DIVORCES

We do not pretend that our memory for the statistics may not be subject to correction, but the impression is that if Bainbridge Colby had gotten his French divorce instead of having it denied to him he would have been something like No. 18 among American husbands to have obtained his freedom from the marriage bonds in a French jurisdiction, while several hundred American wives have received divorces in Paris and Versailles. At all events the number of women among American suitors for French divorces exceeds the number of men by at least ten times, which is about five times as great an excess as in this country, where the divorces granted to women are about twice as many as those granted to men.

From which some sociologists argue that the rapid increase in divorce is attributable to a complete change in outlook on the part of the wives.

Perhaps it wouldn't be a bad idea, before such drawing deductions, to check up on the premises—to make sure that nine-tenths of the French divorces are not financed by the so-called defendants, as it is quite certain that plenty of uncontested suits, brought by women in this country, are.

COSTLY

We wonder how many Americans know that we have just finished playing a little game of out-smarting with Cuba and that we took a licking.

Cuban cigar makers have been anxious for a long time to obtain the right to send by parcel post to the United States packages of cigars containing less than 3,000. In expectation that the privilege would be granted the Cuban government some time ago acquiesced in requests of American manufacturers for an increase in the size of parcel post packages sent from this country to Cuba.

A Congressional committee reported favorably a bill granting the Cubans' right to ship small packages of cigars. Somebody, however, managed to get the bill killed.

Now all of a sudden Cuba has abrogated the entire parcel post agreement with this country. There is no more parcels post. You can't send a necktie or a pocket handkerchief to Cuba any longer except by freight or express.

American merchants have been doing a very large business with Cuba in small lot shipments. It has run far into the millions. In protecting the cigar makers of the country against Cuban competition Congress has walloped a whole flock of other manufacturers and wholesalers.

That Cuban business is going to be missed.

NOT FULL HEIR

There are a good many old timers who will be willing enough to admit that Jack Barrymore is a better actor than was his celebrated father, but who would never admit that, had there been photoplay producers in the days of the agile Maurice, any one of them—or any two—would have been able to blacken the eye of the senior Barrymore, as Myron Selznick did the eye of son Jack the other day.

Quick and hard and ready were the fists of Maurice Barrymore, and many the eye he put in mourning along Broadway in his day and generation. Nor did he care how big the other fellow was—"the bigger they come the colder they knock" was his joyous creed. If there is sorrow in the Beyond, we can imagine an unhappy Maurice learning of son John's being licked by—of all creatures!—a movie producer.

OUT!

What's this about Princess Victoria Schaumburg-Lippe, 65-year-old sister of the former kaiser, trying to pawn her jewels to finance an air voyage across the Atlantic for "Baron" Alexander Subkov, her young debauchee husband?

There is one bird that we simply don't want and won't have in the United States. If that bum undertakes to fly to this country, and if he has the proverbial's sou's luck and gets across alive, we hereby move that he be at once provided with a load of gasoline and compelled to repeat his flight forthwith, in the opposite direction, on pain of being booted into the sea.

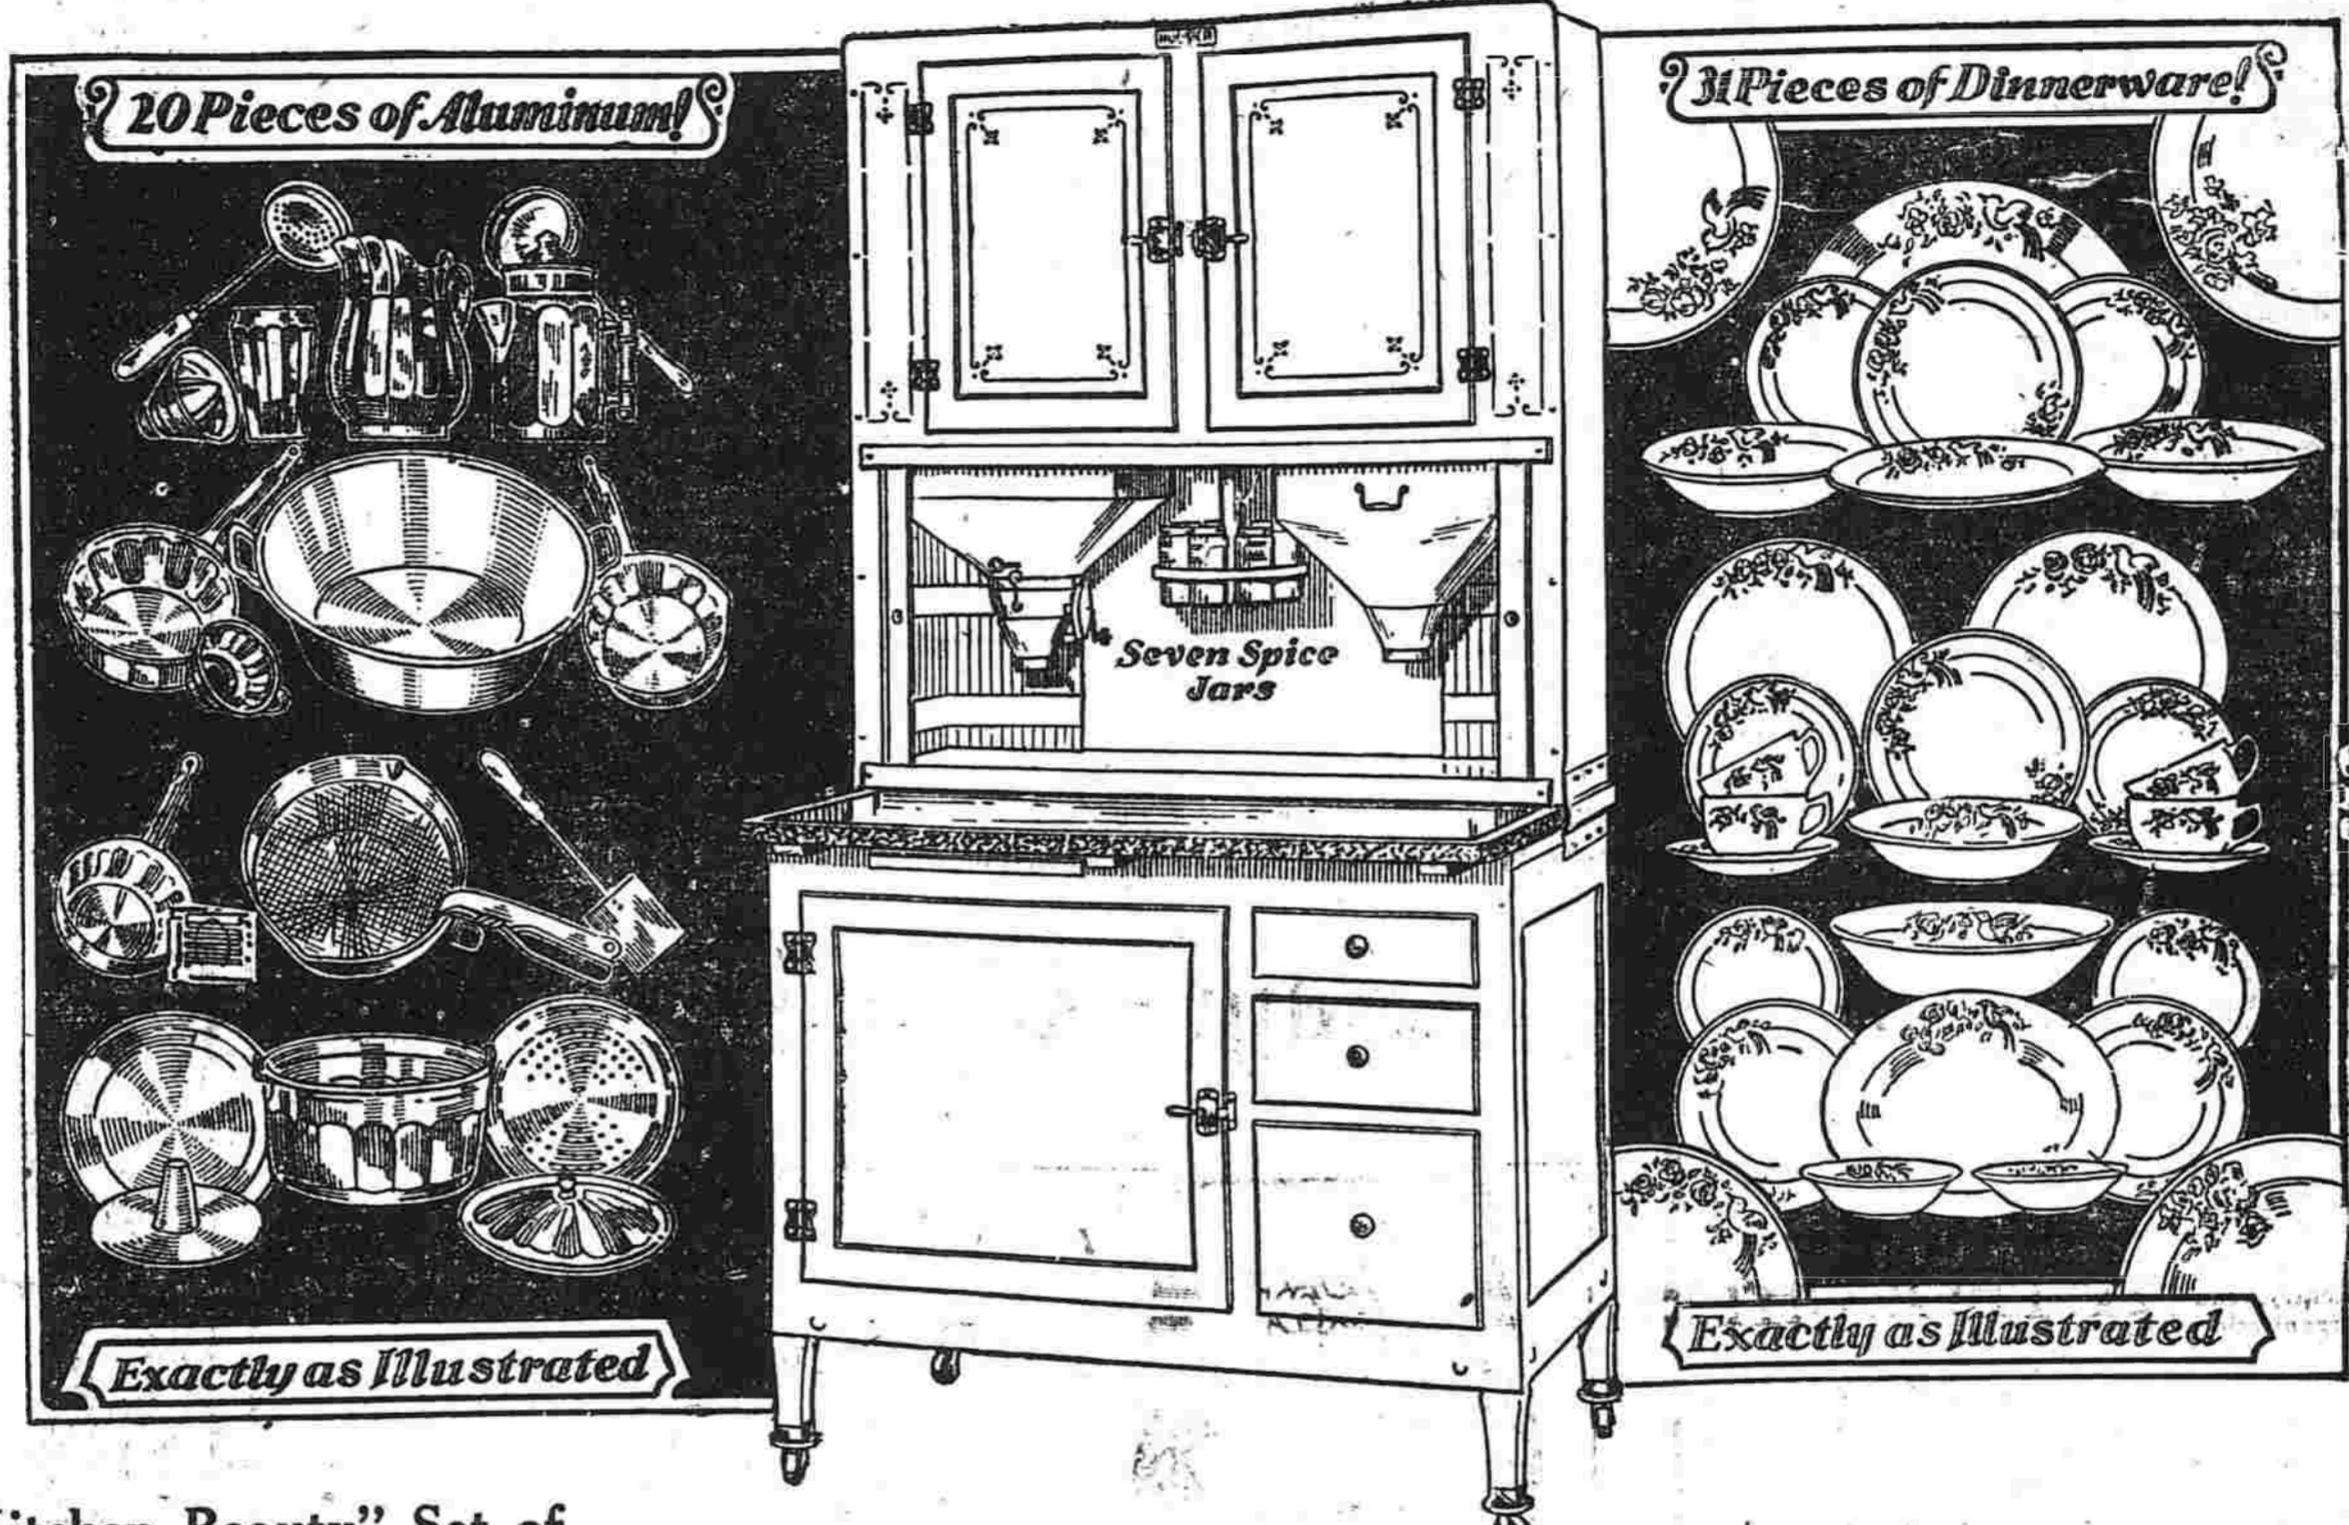

We have learned, here in America, to put up with some pretty inferior sort of people—but we haven't yet been educated down to the Subkov level. No passport yet invented ought to be potent enough to secure him a four months stay in this country.

NO FORLORN HOPE

It is gratifying to learn that the League of Women Voters is not, after all, officially committed to the attempt of the W. C. T. U. to keep Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler from going to the Republican National convention from the 19th New York Congressional district. Gratifying because one doesn't like the idea of seeing a lot of nice women take a licking, and especially so through the bringing out of the fact that no such performance could be staged, anyhow, without violating every principle of the Constitution of the League. So says Mrs. Caspar Whitney, regional director.

COLORADO PRISON SETS NEW HIGH RECORD WITH 1083 INMATES REGISTERED

Canon City, Colo.—The Colorado State Penitentiary reached a new record for number of inmates last week when 1083 were named on the register. The previous high mark was set in 1926 when on less than that number were confined behind the walls.

Because of the few prisoners that are scheduled for release in the near future, the number is expected by prison officials to reach 1099, resulting in a serious housing problem to officials at the prison which was originally built to care for 700 prisoners.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Mar. 2.—Those of us who managed to make out our own income tax returns—aided last year ought to be able to do it again.

The rules remain the same. In fact, one of the very best tips for a taxpayer is the suggestion that he retain a duplicate of his return for reference next year. The figures will be larger, it is to be hoped, but any forgotten kinks of procedure will be there to refresh one's memory.

First, get your return blank. Incidentally, you will find plenty of valuable information attached to the return.

If you're a single man earning less than $1500 net income you're fortunate for two reasons. The second one is that you needn't file any return. Married persons of that $3500 net income are well off in the same respect, but anybody whose gross income is more than $5000 must file the blank.

The tiny 1040A blanks are for net incomes not above $5000 when derived chiefly from salaries and wages. The 1040 blanks are for all other individual taxpayers. Net income is gross income minus deductions for such matters as business expenses, losses, interest paid, bad debts, depreciation of business property and taxes other than federal income tax.

Probably most of us are especially interested in the deductions we can take off to lower our taxable or net income. No one should have trouble entering his items of gross income.

Interest which has been paid or accrued on indebtedness comes first. The only exception is when one pays interest on another's debt.

Taxes on personal property and real estate paid in 1927 are deductible and so are state income tax payments. So are customs duties. Admission taxes, too, but the government insists that you must have kept an account of them all year long, which is generally too much bother.

Losses are deductible when incurred in a transaction entered into for profit or in case of fire, storm, shipwreck, flood, frost, other casualty or theft, whether connected with business or not, insofar as they are not covered by insurance. Loss on a house or automobile purchased for other than business use, for instance, may not be deducted. Jewelry, stolen, may be counted in, but jewelry merely lost may not.

Bad debts, if incurred on money loaned with expectation of repayment, may be deducted. The Bureau of Internal Revenue asks for an explanation of these with the return. Contributions to charitable, religious, scientific, literary, educational or humane organizations may be deducted up to 15 per cent of net income exclusive of them, but anyone who deducts 15 per cent for contributions had better be prepared to prove them. It is necessary to list such contributions on the return, of course, and gifts to individuals don't count.

World War bonuses, pensions and allowances are generally non-taxable. Strike benefit payments aren't. The value of goods on board and lodging received in payment for services is taxable. Traveling expenses when on business are deductible, except for commuters, but full statements of these should be attached to the return. Depreciation may be claimed on business property for exhaustion, wear and tear and obsolescence. If using form 1040, one must distinguish between earned net income and other income. Salaried persons are entitled to a 25 per cent cut on the former. All net income up to $5000 is considered earned net income, although net earned income means wages, salaries, professional fees and other compensation for personal service. The 25 per cent reduction on the earned net income is provided for on the 1040 forms. Other net income is taxable at the regular rates, which are 1-2 per cent on the first $4000 above personal exemption, 3 per cent on the next $4000 and 5 per cent on the rest.

The exemptions are $1500 for single persons, $3500 for married persons living together and heads of families, plus additional credit of $400 for each person under 18 years of age, infirm, ill or mentally deficient persons dependent on the taxpayer which doesn't include his wife. If one married during the last year, he or she must figure the exemption out proportionately. For some reason, the taxpayer is required to enter stock dividends in adding up his income and then allowed to deduct them from his net income in computing the final taxable balance, so there's no sense concealing those.

Everyone knows that income taxes must be taken or sent to the nearest collector of internal revenue by March 15. The important thing to remember is that March 15 isn't far away now.

With a good excuse, one can arrange with the collector of internal revenue for an extension. There are various penalties, but the worst is a maximum of five years in prison, a $10,000 fine and 50 per cent of the tax provided for those who file fraudulent returns.

Bear in mind that everyone who pays anyone else money in excess of the $1500 and $3500 exemption figures is required to report these payments to the government. The government claims to check these reports with out individual returns and thus to be all set to grab us if we fib.

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(80) Worsted Goods.

Of the half billion dollar value placed on worsted goods manufactured in the United States yearly, Connecticut factories furnished around 3 per cent. During 1900 Connecticut factories turned out 3.7% of the total for the United States. The 1925 output was 2.9% of the total. The value of product of factories in all states was 395.6% greater in 1925 than it had been in 1900, but the value of the Connecticut worsted goods was only 293.3% greater in 1925.

From 1923 to 1925 the total value for all worsted goods made in the United States decreased $102,000,000. The value of Connecticut's product, however, increased $3,046,769.

Connecticut stood sixth among all states when the last census of manufactures was taken in 1925. The value of her product was $17,856,835, that for the entire United States being $598,265,304. Massachusetts led with an output valued at $216,448,325. Other states with a greater output value than Connecticut follow: Rhode Island, $125,503,602; Pennsylvania, $82,682,268; New Jersey, $78,892,704; Maine, $24,920,845.

The number of wage earners employed yearly in this industry average 2,500. The wages paid in a recent year amounted to $3,153,529, and materials cost $11,274,881. During 1900 the total number of persons engaged in this industry was 2,255, and the payroll amounted to $968,684. Materials cost $2,971,926.

PREDICTS BIG SALES FOR FRIGIDAIRE

More electric refrigerators will be installed in 1928 than in any previous year in the history of the business, according to Alfred A. Grezel, local Frigidaire dealer who has returned from a regional convention of Frigidaire Corporation held recently in Hotel Astor, New York City. At this convention Mr. Grezel saw new household models exhibited for the first time and inspected a new electric water cooler that has been added to the Frigidaire line.

Twenty executives of Frigidaire Corporation were in attendance at the convention, which was one of a series of eight held by the corporation during the month of February. The convention was the most enthusiastic in the history of the organization, Mr. Grezel declared. Facts presented at the meeting, he said, clearly indicated that 1928 will see more Frigidaires installed than in any previous year in the organization's history.

"A very interesting fact brought out at the convention was that Frigidaire is being installed in all types of homes," said Mr. Grezel. "In 1927, fully one-fourth of the equipment sold on extended payments was purchased for families having an annual income of $2,000 or less, it was stated. This clearly indicates that modern refrigeration is now well within reach of the average home."

Charts, playlets and various other forms of instruction were used at the convention in presenting various points of Frigidaire superiority, including designing, engineering, appearance and cost of operation. The convention was ended with a banquet in the evening at which a number of unusual entertainment features were presented.

JOLSON'S "JAZZ SINGER" AT COLONIAL, HARTFORD

The marvelous production of Al Jolson's great success "The Jazz Singer" with Jolson's own personality and charm accurately reproduced by the magic of the Vitaphone, will be shown at the Colonial theater, on Farmington avenue at Sisson avenue in Hartford, for four days, beginning Sunday, at regular prices. Never before has a picture combined the modern magic of the screen with the miracle of the Vitaphone as this picture does and the result is an achievement that brought a Broadway audience to its feet with cheers at its first showing and which has swept the audiences of the country to the highest pitch of enthusiasm.

Founded on the story of Jolson's own life, this production tells of a Jewish boy whose father, a cantor, wants the lad to follow in his footsteps and so severely disciplines him that he runs away from home to go upon the stage. In a cabaret on the Pacific coast he is recognized as a genius by a talented little dancer, played by May McAvoy, and with her assistance he rises to the point where he is about to make his debut as a Broadway star—when words come that his dying father wants him to sing in the synagogue.

How the boy's loyalty and ambition fought for supremacy, what the result was and how he triumphed in the end make a picture in which laughter and tears, romance and drama, the squalor of the ghetto and the luxury of the Winter Garden all appear. By combining the Vitaphone with the motion pictures throughout Jolson is heard in six songs and conversation is likewise reproduced. The fine supporting cast includes Warner Oland, Cantor Rosenblatt and Eugene Bessner. Warner Brothers have mounted it gorgeously and the mastery direction by Alan Crosland is on par with his other biggest pictures, including "Don Juan."

Not in years has so important a picture been offered the public of Hartford and its surrounding towns at the popular prices the Colonial offers.

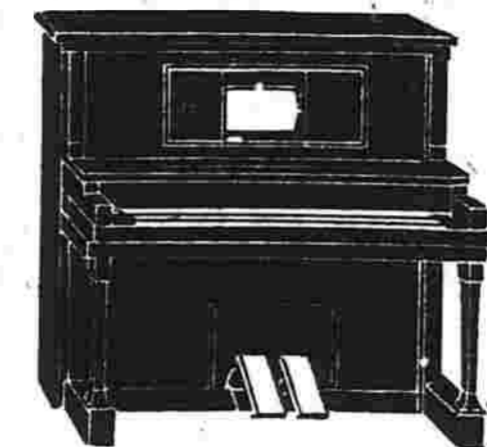

It is shown at 2:30, 7 and 9 daily and at 5, 7 and 9 o'clock Sunday.

THE STORY THIS FAR
 Skeel's finger prints were found in the apartment of the murdered Margaret Odell, but Vance does not believe him. It is proved later that three other possible suspects had been in the apartment on the night of the murder. The truth comes out that Mannix had been calling on a young lady in the apartment adjoining the "Canary's", that Cleaver had been in the building around midnight and that Dr. Lindblad, knowing Spotswood's plan was frustrated when Spotswood jumped into a cab. Skeel's telephone that he will come to the district attorney's office and tell who committed the crime. They wait for him. He does not appear, and when they go to his room they find him dead. He had been just as Margaret Odell had been.

CHAPTER XVI

(Sunday, p. m., Monday, a. m., September 16-17)

The investigation into Skeel's death was pushed with great vigor by the authorities. Doctor Doremus, the medical examiner, arrived promptly and declared that the crime had taken place between ten o'clock and midnight.

Immediately Vance insisted that all the men who were known to have been intimately acquainted with the Odell girl—Mannix, Lindquist, Cleaver, and Spotswood—be interviewed at once and made to explain where they were during these two hours. Markham agreed without hesitation, and in order to Heath, who at once put four of his men on the task.

Mallory, the detective who had shadowed Skeel the previous night, was questioned regarding possible visitors; but inasmuch as the house where Skeel lived accommodated over twenty roomers, who were constantly coming and going at all hours, no information could be gained through that channel.

All that Mallory could say definitely was that Skeel had returned home at about ten o'clock, and had sobered and undressed before he repudiated all knowledge of the affair. She explained that she had been "ill" in her room from dinner-time until he had disturbed her recuperation the next morning.

The front door, it seemed, was never locked, since her tenants objected to such an unnecessary inconvenience. The tenants themselves were questioned, but without result; they were not of a class likely to give information to the police, even had they possessed any.

The finger-print experts made a careful examination of the room, but failed to find any marks except Skeel's own. A thorough search through the murdered man's effects occupied several hours; but nothing was discovered that gave any hint of the murderer's identity.

A .38 Colt automatic, fully loaded, was found under one of the pillows on the bed, and eleven hundred dollars, in bills of large denomination, was taken from a hollow brass curtain-rod. Also under a loose board in the hall, the missing steel chisel, with the fissure in the blade, was found.

But these items were of no value

ing to their statements, had remained at home the night before. The weather had been inclement; and though Mannix and Spotswood admitted to having been out earlier in the evening, they stated that they had returned home before ten o'clock.

Mannix lived in an apartment-hotel, and, as it was Saturday night, the lobby was crowded, so that no one would have been likely to see him come in.

Cleaver lived in a small private apartment-house without a doorman or hallboys to observe his movements.

Spotswood was staying at the Stuyvesant Club, and since his room was on the third floor, he rarely used the elevator. Moreover, there had been a political reception and dance at the club the previous night, and he might have walked in and out at random a dozen times without being noticed.

"Not what you'd call illuminating," said Vance, when Markham had given him this information.

"It eliminates Lindquist, at any rate."

"Quite. And, automatically, it eliminates him as an object of suspicion in the Canary's death; also, for these two crimes are part of a whole—integers of the same problem. They complement each other. The latter was conceived in relation to the first—was, in fact, a logical outgrowth of it."

Markham nodded.

"That's reasonable enough. Anyway, I've passed the combative stage. I think I'll drift for a while on the stream of your theory and see what happens."

"What irks me is the disquieting feeling that positively nothing will happen unless we force the issue. The lad who maneuvered those two obits had real bean in him."

As he spoke Spotswood entered the room and looked about as if searching for someone. Catching sight of Markham, he came briskly forward, with a look of inquisitive perplexity.

"Forgive me for intruding, sir," he apologized, nodding pleasantly to Vance and me. "But a police officer was here this afternoon inquiring as to my whereabouts last night. It struck me as strange, but I thought little of it until I happened to see the name Tony Skeel in the headlines of a 'special' tonight and read he had been strangled."

"I remember you asked me regarding such a man in connection with the Odell, and I wondered if, by any chance, there could be any connection between the two murders, and if I was, after all, to be drawn into the affair."

"No, I think not," said Markham. "There seemed a possibility that the two crimes were related; and, as a matter of routine, the police questioned all the close friends of Miss Odell in the hope of turning up something suggestive. You may dismiss the matter from your mind. I trust," he added, "the officer was not unpleasantly importunate."

"Not at all," Spotswood's look of anxiety disappeared. "He was extremely courteous but a bit mysterious.—Who was this man Skeel?"

"A half-world character and ex-burglar. He had some hold on Miss Odell, and, I believe, extorted money from her."

A cloud of angry disgust passed over Spotswood's face.

"A creature like that deserves the fate that overtook him."

We chatted on various matters until ten o'clock, when Vance rose and gave Markham a reproachful look.

"I'm going to try to recover some lost sleep. I'm temperamentally unfitted for a policeman's life."

Revenge is Sweet—Why?

By Olive Roberts Barton

Marie Corell once wrote a book called "Vendetta." I read it surreptitiously when I was about fifteen and probably remember the name and plot because of its stolen sweetness. Wasn't revenge sweet? "Vendetta" was all of that.

I began almost to think it had gone out of style, this vendetta business, until a little incident of another woman came to my attention recently. Real vendetta in real life is unpleasant cruel and mean. I know of no quicker, surer barometer of character than the thirst for revenge that some women have.

One time two girls at boarding school became enemies. One thoughtlessly told a secret the other had entrusted to her and the latter never forgot nor forgave. After a few years in which each married they came together again to live in the same city.

The one who told was the last to move in. The other was already established. The woman who couldn't forget nor forgive kept up a regular systematic persecution of her former enemy, who tried to make amends, tried to apologize, tried to explain, but couldn't. The other would listen.

In reality she had forgotten her thirst for revenge. Our minds seldom hold spite so long. What she did really was to dramatize herself and her emotion. Some people are happiest when hating. Emotional dissipation is what it is. If you're trying to get even with someone, stop and think. Aren't you enjoying it immensely? It isn't because you think it is your duty to punish them, is it?

ADDING LIFE TO THE HAIR WAVE

If you will apply waving or curling fluid to the hair just before setting the wave or curl and hold the wave in place by means of hairpins and not until it is entirely dry, the hair will retain its wave or curl for a much longer time than usual.

The following formulae for curling fluids have been tried out with great success:

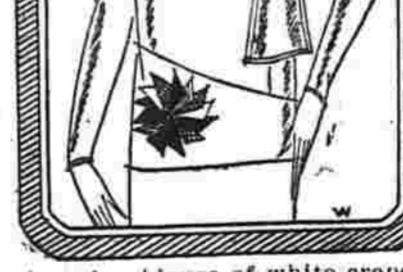

Gum Tragacanth, 120 grains.
 Water, 12 ounces.
 Alcohol, 2 ounces.
 Oil of Rose, 5 drops.

Directions—Macerate the gum tragacanth in the water over night. When the gum is thoroughly disintegrated, strain under pressure through a piece of cheese cloth and add the alcohol, with which the oil of rose has previously been mixed. A thicker mixture may be had by increasing the amount of gum tragacanth.

Here is a formula in which quince seed furnishes the mucilage:

Quince seed, 180 grains.
 Water, 15 ounces (1 pint).
 Soak the bruised quince seed in the water, heated to a point just short of boiling, with frequent shakings, until a thick mucilage is formed. Strain and add 2 ounces of cologne water in which 30 grains of salicylic acid have been dissolved.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

"No woman has ever told the whole truth of her life. The autobiographies of most famous women are a series of accounts of the outward existence, of petty details and anecdotes which give no realization of their real life. For the great moments of joy or agony they remain strangely silent." Thus does Isadora Duncan, the dancer who met a tragic death just a few months ago, describe her own story.

It is solid with kernels of thought. Here is one: Her baby, lovely little Deldre, has been choking with croup. Frantically, Isadora sought a doctor. She was late for her matinee and so trembled that she could hardly dance. She writes—

"How strong, egotistical and ferocious a possession is Mother Love. I do not think it is very admirable. It would be infinitely more admirable to be able to love all children."

"One of the fine things the soviet government has done is the abolishment of marriage. With them two people sign their names in a book and under the signature is printed: 'This signature involves no responsibility whatever on the part of either party, and can be annulled at the pleasure of either party.' Such a marriage is the only convention to which any free-minded woman would consent, and is the only form of marriage to which I have ever subscribed.

"Many women to whom I have preached this doctrine of freedom have weakly replied: 'But which is to support the children?' It seems to me that if the marriage ceremony is needed as a protection to insure the enforced support of children, then you are marrying a man who, you suspect, would under certain conditions, refuse to support his children, and it is a pretty low-down proposition. For you are marrying a man whom you already suspect of being a villain. But I have not so poor an opinion of her parents as I believe the greater percentage of them to be such low specimens of humanity."

One can so easily shoot poor Isadora's beliefs full of buckshot. They are presented solely as of interest because they explain her.

In the first place, who have a "marriage" at all if neither party assumes any responsibility to the alliance? Where would Isadora herself be if neither of her parents had assumed any responsibility to her? And, whether it means having "a low opinion" of men or not, social statistics prove that an infinitesimal percentage of men support children whom they are not forced to acknowledge through the institution of marriage.

MARYE and MOM
 Their Letters
 BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Dear Mom:
 You don't know men at all, you innocent darling, if you think they have to be lured into "forgetting themselves." Why, there isn't any more sex appeal in a pair of pretty legs than there is in a pretty face. Old-rain-in-the-face Martin is just the kind he is because he is that kind, and I hope you won't attempt to deny that men get fresh with girls even in your day of so-called modest fashions.

But I suppose someone always found a reason for replacing the blame on the girls. Maybe because they lifted their eyelashes and let the men peep into their souls!

But listen, Mom, if men are going to worry about the way girls dress there won't be much business done. That old tosh about dressing like a mummy for the office is as dead as a dodo.

When I recall those photos in the old red plush album groan to think of the faith the little she-woman had when she placed in a lot of gingham and what-not to protect them against insulting sheiks.

"The way women dress hasn't anything to do with the morals of a country. I've heard of Africa, practically unknown and the natives wear no clothes at all!"

Of course, I wouldn't advise any girl to try a "Lady Godiva" down Main street, but I do insist that if she should attempt such a feat in one of her weak moments it would be only a natural-born polygamist who'd try to start something with her. That's what old Martin is, and if Florence had been dressed like her grandmother-er he'd have "pawed" her just the same.

The millions of men who are holding onto their stenographers in spite of scanty attire and short skirts, should mean something to you. It does to me. It means that men are not losing their heads at the sight of feminine figures revealed by modern dress.

I'd hate to think that Alan was such a crumb he couldn't be trusted to withstand the "temptation" of an up-to-the-minute girl in his office. I wouldn't want him to be so unimaginative as to prefer a homely stenographer to a swell looker, either. No more than I'd want him to lose his taste for anything that's attractive. Goodness knows I still admire a good-looking man and I don't see that it hurts anyone.

Lovingly
 MARYE

VARICOSE VEINS EASY AILMENT TO DIAGNOSE

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
 Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

When a vein becomes dilated and lengthened, it does not have room to run straight in the path which it ordinarily follows, and therefore twists upon itself.

It bulges visibly through the skin so that anyone may make a diagnosis of varicose veins. Usually the veins of the legs are first affected for the simple reason that the power of gravity affects them more than veins higher up in the body.

Motormen and other workers who are accustomed to stand for long periods during the day suffer more frequently with these complaints than other persons.

Blocking the Blood
 Women who are to have children are likely to develop varicose veins because of the blocking of the return flow of the blood through the veins. The veins of the legs have little valves in them which permit the flow of the blood only in the direction of the heart.

The arteries carry the blood from the heart and the veins return it. Sometimes the valves break down due to the pressure upon them, and under such cir-

GENTLE WINTER HELPS HIGHWAY SPRING PROGRAM

Dept. Gains Two Months on Summer Work, But Maintenance Jobs Increase; Employment Aided.

Connecticut's highway department has both profited and lost because of the extremely mild and open weather prevailing this winter, according to a statement made today by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. Although the statement may seem somewhat paradoxical, it is nevertheless true for while the department has been able to make considerable progress with its spring and summer road building because of the mild weather, it has nevertheless had additional maintenance work placed upon it by the continual recurrence of frosts and thaws and their resultant damage to highway pavements.

As far as the motoring public is concerned, however, the "profit" from the open winter will far outweigh the "loss." As soon as it became obvious that mild weather could be expected, Commissioner Macdonald took steps to let contractors for the spring and summer work far in advance of the customary time in order that contractors might proceed with their preliminary work of grading and of preparing generally for the construction season. This plan has worked especially well, for practically all of the grading work has been completed at this time and contractors are ready to proceed as soon as it can be determined with reasonable certainty that the frost is definitely out of the ground.

Commissioner Macdonald estimates that the completion of this work will enable the department to finish all of the summer reconstruction at least two months in advance of the usual date. In other words, reconstruction jobs which might ordinarily be finished in September this year should be completed in July. Thus the customary closing and one-way traffic will be over before the annual August rush of traffic takes place and motorists will be able to use Connecticut highways without inconvenience at the height of the motoring season.

Moreover, the fact that contractors are able to proceed with the preliminaries on summer work at this time creates better employment conditions, affording jobs for laborers normally out of work at this time of year. Commissioner Macdonald this week communicated with all contractors having department work at the present time, urging an early resumption of activities both because of the clear weather and because adequate and proper labor is available.

The lack of cold weather or rather the continual alternating between cold and warm weather, has its disadvantage, too. Thus far, the frost has been in and out of the ground five times and from present indications will be in and out at least twice more. Connecticut has had five "springs" already and is due for more. The cracking and crumbling of pavements which usually occurs but once when the frost leaves the ground in the spring has occurred five times this winter and has necessitated considerable additional maintenance work. Moreover, the lack of snow has not reduced maintenance costs to any great extent, for it has been necessary to retain all snow removal crews as a matter of precaution whether or not snowfalls occur. Many of the men in these crews have been used on other work, but the number of employees cannot be cut down until after the danger of snow is gone.

OFFICIALS FORESEE BUMPER AUTO YEAR

Chicago, March 2.—This should be a bumper year in the automobile industry, according to C. A. Vane, general manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, and William W. Webster, commissioner of the Automotive Equipment Association.

Webster foresees the expenditure of many millions of dollars this year, many more than the $8,000,000,000 automotive bill of the United States last year.

Sixty cents of every dollar spent by the motorist, he says, will go for service and supplies and maintenance parts. The other 40 cents will go toward car sales.

"This year," says Webster, "will witness the greatest movement of motor vehicles on the roads of the United States, and consequently the greatest demand for maintenance and service, since quantity production of automobiles began."

Repair bills and maintenance bills are now taking the larger part of the car dollar. In 1915, the motorist spent but 20 cents of his car dollar for service, while in 1922 he spent 60 cents.

C. A. Vane, makes the prediction that 4,000,000 automobiles will be sold in this country this year.

The American family is becoming sold on the two-car idea, according to Vane.

"The only obstacle is the lack of garage facilities," he said. "The automobile industry is now working with architects to promote the building of two-car garages in connection with each dwelling."

REGINALD DENNY AT RIALTO TODAY

Manchester's Favorite Here in His Latest—Buddy Roosevelt in Co-Feature.

Leave all your troubles at home and put on your best laugh mask for Reginald Denny, Manchester's favorite comedian, who has come to town. This popular star, who has already established himself in the hearts of local theatergoers with such recent successes as "The Cheerful Fraud" and "What Happened To Jones," will be seen in "Fast and Furious," his latest Universal-Jewel production. In this picture Denny is seen in the role of a racing expert, the kind that was created some years ago by the beloved Wally Reid. Laughter, thrills and romance reign supreme throughout the entire production and the climax has one of the most fascinating automobile races ever filmed. "Fast and Furious" was written by Reginald Denny himself, making this all the more reason why it should be a great picture.

The companion-feature presents Buddy Roosevelt riding and shooting his way through another thrilling drama, "The Phantom Buster." Lovers of adventure picture will thoroughly enjoy this production.

The final chapter of "Hawk of the Hills" that thrilling serial starring Allan Ray and Walter Miller and an Our Gang comedy will round out the bill.

LON—No. 2 Theaters
Lon Chaney—a paradox and a joy forever!

No one in the world can look so "hard boiled," menacing and utterly malevolent as Lon Chaney—and no one can look so sympathetic in the very same role, as this self-same Lon. He is the enigma of the screen.

For instance, in his latest vehicle, "The Big City," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sensational romance of New York underworld life, which comes to the State on Sunday, Chaney plays one of the most dastardly characters in the world, a New York gangster leader. And no character could be more dangerous for an actor. He has to carry the very embodiment of menace and cold-blooded peril—and still be as human as anyone else. No less than a Lon Chaney could play this complex role, and of it Chaney has made a new acting masterpiece.

He plays a gangster leader, using a cabaret as a cloak to his sinister activities, his "moll," operating a clearing house for stolen goods, hiding this under the guise of a little costume shop. In this setting he introduced a little shopgirl, innocent of the true nature of the pair; to her they are good friends—and her belief in them precipitates a climax as amazing as it is heart-gripping.

FOUR NATIONS RUSHING PLANS TO FLY OCEAN

London.—With transport organizations of four nations speedily pressing forward their schemes for operating aerial transport services across the Atlantic, 1928 is expected to go down in history as marking the inception of the first definite steps towards regular Transatlantic services in which aircraft will play a part.

tween Southern Europe and South America is expected actually to come into operation, a combined air and sea line; and a British and a German airship will cross the Atlantic in keen rivalry to be first.

Aeroplane, airship, and combined aeroplane and steamship undertakings are being planned, the full details as at present known being as follows:

United States: The Transoceanic Shipping Company is projecting a type of carrier-liner, resembling a naval aircraft-carrier, for passenger service.

France: An air mail service between Seville and Buenos Aires with the L127; and three big flying boats are being built for transoceanic service.

Germany: The Zeppelin Company are planning a service between Seville and Buenos Aires with the L127; and three big flying boats are being built for transoceanic service.

Germany's Hopes. Germany hopes to be able to make the trip across the South Atlantic by midsummer, and to start the service during the Spanish-American Exposition and on the anniversary of the discovery of America. Britain at present is unwilling to give any definite date regarding when the R100 will make its initial trip.

R100 is a ship of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity and a gross lift of 150 tons. It is 740 feet in length, and by comparison with previous airships is somewhat dumpy in appearance. It will be inflated with hydrogen and driven by heavy oil engines.

The Zeppelin L127, designed by Dr. Eckner, will be the biggest Zeppelin ever made, having a capacity of about 3,700,000 cubic feet and a gross lift of 110 tons. Its length is about 710 feet, the design being slenderer than the new British type.

Both airships are luxuriously appointed and is claimed will embody every comfort.

Masons Get 5-Point Lead, Cubs Stop Center Church, Highland Pk.-Bon Ami Win

THE SCORES

Team	W.	L.	P.
Masons	27	14	51
Cubs	33	18	46
W. S. Rec	30	21	41
Cloverleaves	30	21	49

Brit. Amer.	18	33	26

K. of P.	16	33	21
Highland Pk.	16	35	21

The Masons increased their lead in the Herald Bowling League to five points over their nearest rival last night by cleaning up their match with the St. Bridgets church team while the Cubs were able to win only three points from the Center Church. The Masons won all three games by wide margins, hitting over 500 twice.

Surprise victories were recorded by Highland Park and the Bon Ami. The latter just about killed the pennant ambitions of the Cloverleaves by winning two of the three games and pinfall for three points. The defeat, coupled with the four-point victory of the West Side Rec over the Beethoven Glee Club, pushed the gridsters back to fourth place and brings the Rec back to third again.

Highland Park's three-point victory over the Knights of Columbus together with the defeats suffered by the St. Bridgets and the Knights of Pythias makes all three teams tied for the cellar position with 21 points apiece. With the Masons enjoying a comfortable lead for the present at least, interest is now focussed on the last place fight. An idea how high the interest runs may be seen on the fact that only last week, Highland Park used a dummy score. Yet, it hit 535 with an 83 dummy score in the second game. The first game was decided by four pins and the last by eleven. The Cubs won from the Center Church by five pins on pinfall and the other games were close.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

KNOW YOUR SPORTS

What are the distances of the Kentucky, Latonia and Tijuana derbies? Who were the Cub outfielders during the time that Evers, Tinker and Chance were with the Cubs? Was it as great an outfield as it was an infield they had?

The Kentucky derby distance is one and a quarter miles, the Latonia derby one and a half miles, and the Tijuana derby one and one-eighth miles. The outfielders at that time were Jimmy Sheppard, Frank Schulte, Artie Hoffman and Jimmy Slagle, but they were not considered as great an outfield as the Cubs' infield rated among infields.

John D. Jr. has been doing his best to help clear up what Senator Walsh laughingly calls "the crude oil situation."

Both Are Eliminated As Real Contenders

That Is Walsh's Opinion of Last Night's Bout; Clinching and Infighting Makes Contest Uninteresting.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH (I. N. S. Sports Editor)

New York, March 2.—A couple of eggs were well eliminated from Tex Rickard's heavyweight tournament last night at Madison Square Garden as Tom Heeney, the poor but honest prize fighter, outlasted Jack Delaney to win the decision at the end of fifteen rounds. By that time, it really didn't matter who they said was the best man, for the best couldn't be any worse than Kipling's worst.

Heeney was in there working so perfectly that it was obvious to the 10,000 odd and assorted mugs just why Mr. Rickard, as seldom at a loss for a word as for a dollar, called this an elimination tournament. He, Mr. Rickard, and it, the tournament, eliminated not one man but both last night.

Meanwhile, Brother Tunney is sunning himself in Miami waiting for an opponent for his June fight. Brother Tunney is a patient man and all that but it is hardly credible that today he considers either Heeney or Delaney seriously. Eleven days hence, they will hold another of these disqualifying rounds between Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko but no one looks forward to this with glee or anticipation.

Tried All the Way Heeney tried all the way, a fact that probably earned him the "duke" He had nearly twenty pounds in weight on his man and wanted to see just what he could do with it. But Delaney would have no part of this, holding so desperately in close that Heeney pulled him all over the ring in his rage to break loose.

Delaney's holding, however, simply served to make a bad fight look worse. Any good heavyweight could make the fragile Delaney fold up before the end of 15 rounds. The same good man could pop Heeney silly with a fast left.

Crowd of 18,000 A total of $174,444 was in the house and the paid admissions numbered 13,009. Delaney's right hand didn't seem to even irritate Heeney last night. However, Jack's left hook staggered Heeney in the first round and another stung Thomas at the start of the third. Heeney's surging attack nailed Delaney at the outset of each of the fourth, fifth, seventh, eighth and ninth rounds. This was all that really happened in these rounds, for Heeney must be credited with having taken the play away from Delaney after the latter had piled up an early lead. Among the incidental details also was Heeney's right cross to the head in the twelfth, which went to the poor but honest prize-fighter. But, at that, Delaney, who looked like a bad bet in mid-fight and pantomimed a foul in the tenth when Heeney hit him low, came on later to outscore the man who was supposed to wear him down at the end. Delaney left-handed his way through the eleventh and seemed to have well the better of the thirteenth and fourteenth but Heeney came along to take the final round and I suppose that gave him the fight.

SANBORN DEFEATED BY TERRYVILLE BOY

(By Staff Correspondent)

Several hundred local fans saw Ray Sanborn, Hartford's promising heavyweight, knocked out by Vic Carlsson of Terryville, last night. The Hartford lad looked good in the first round and had Carlsson down for a count of nine but the Terryville lad rallied in the second and with a couple of stiff body blows bent over the big boy until his chin came down into range and then it was all over. This is the first defeat for Sanborn since he entered the ring.

Following are the results of the bouts:

115 pound class; Bob Elliott, Springfield, won the decision over Adolph D'Onofrio, Hartford; 129 pound class; Ray Strong, Hartford, won the decision over Trip Callaro, Worcester; 123 pound class; Charley Pepe, Windsor Locks, won the decision over Tom Georges, Hartford; 145 pound class; Gene Jones, Hartford, won the decision over Mickels Windsor Locks; 150 pound class; Hector Perry, Worcester, won the decision over Frank Nickols, Windsor Locks; 165 pound class; Jack O'Dowd, Terryville, won by a knockout in the third round over Paul Groszkovitz, Hartford.

112 pound class; Eddie Reed, Hartford, won the decision over Johnny Villa, Worcester; 147 pound class; Vic Morley, Hartford, won the decision over Charley Steens, Hartford; 150 pound class; Joe Howard, Hartford, knocked out Joe Preston, Worcester, in the first round; 175 pound class; Vic Carlson, Terryville, won by a knockout in the second round over Ray Sanborn, Hartford.

Newsy Notes From The Training Camps

Clearwater, Fla., March 2.—Manager Robinson has invited Roland Locke, famous Nebraska sprinter, to try out for a berth in the Brooklyn outfield. Locke wants to get expert opinion on his ball playing ability if the test will not impair his amateur standing. Locke is a great admirer of Dave Bancroft, Brooklyn shortstop.

Augusta, Ga., March 2.—Thirty-two members of the New York Giants were a bit stiff today following two long inaugural workouts yesterday. Five regulars are still absent, but pitcher Vic Aldridge is the only holdout. Incensed by Jess Doyle's failure to report, Manager McGraw shipped the young man back to Toronto.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2.—With Babe Ruth still wandering among the bunkers and sand traps, four rookies are monopolizing the spotlight at the camp of the world's champion Yankees here. They are outfielder Sam Byrd, a Carolinian; catcher Herbert Bryant, of Cartersville, Ga.; outfielder Dusty Cooke, of Alabama; and Bill Dickey, a catcher from Jackson, Miss. The young catchers are getting plenty of work because Pat Collins is laid up with a heavy cold and Benny Bengough has not yet reported.

Catalina, Island, Calif., March 2.—Elwood English, the Cubs high-priced shortstop, has been given to the custody of Kiki Cuyler for some expert advice on sliding. Several other youngsters not up to Manager McCarthy's idea of par in this department were also turned over to Prof. Cuyler.

Shreveport, Pa., March 2.—Today was Arnie Day at the White Sox training camp here. Some of the younger talent, eager to show their wares, gambled too freely on the first day in camp and are now a mass of aching joints.

Paso Robles, Calif., March 2.—Donie Bush, peppy manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, National League leaders, is an excellent slave-driver. Everyone in camp agreed to that today as Bush applied the axle-grease to his player's elbows and sent them through one of the toughest workouts they have experienced since training began.

Pitcher Ray Kremer bumped his knee but a medical examination revealed no complications.

Tampa, Fla., March 2.—George Sisler and Garland Braxton, a hurler, were the only two prominent absentees from the Senators' camp today. Their arrival will complete the squad.

AL DOWD LOSES HIS 2ND FIGHT

Drops Decision to Jack Quinn at Willimantic; Madden, Campbell Lose, Marino Wins.

Three of the four Manchester young men who took part in an amateur boxing program at Willimantic last night were defeated. Al Dowd, sensational local featherweight dropped the decision to Jack Quinn of Norwich in the feature bout. It was the second defeat the local boy has ever received in the ring. Vin Labella of Middletown proved the other. Billy Madden was kayoed in the second round. Ross lost the decision and Joe Marino won points in the other bouts concerning Manchester boxers.

A summary of the bouts follows: 145 pound class; Ray Hall, Willimantic won the decision over Frank Comer, Willimantic; 113 pound class; Jack Yeater, Worcester, knocked out Billy Madden, Manchester, in the second round; 112 pound class; Vernon Cromier, Worcester, knocked out Frank Gustin, Hartford, in the first round; 135 pound class; Joe Marino, Manchester, won the decision over Josh Dillon, Danielson; 130 pound class; Lou Boullier, Danielson, won the decision over Ross Campbell, Manchester; 140 pound class; Ollie Koski, Worcester, won the decision over Dan Cotter, Hartford; 126 pound class; Billy Carmen, Hartford, won the decision over Charley Goulette, Danielson, in four rounds; 146 pound class; Sid Gunnings, Hartford, won the decision over George Brusso, Worcester; 126 pound class; Jack Quinn, Norwich, won the decision over Al Dowd, Manchester.

CONNIE SIGNS UP TY COBB FOR 'A'S' Veteran Manager to Have Cobb, Speaker and Simmons in His Outfield.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 2.—Cobb, Speaker and Simmons! That's the powerful "Big Three" of American League baseball that Connie Mack will send to the Athletics' outfield this season in a desperate attempt to wrest the league championship from the New York Yankees.

have an outfield next season that will electrify the nation. "I'm one manager who never thinks of age when selecting a ball player. All I want to know is what they can do. Both Cobb and Speaker are along in years, but they can still play the game up to the hilt, and that is good enough for me."

In 1921 Simmons batted .392, Cobb .357 and Speaker .327, so the new Athletic outfield as a unit hit .358 as late as last season.

Mack declared he would switch Simmons to left field and post Speaker in center where in fielding he has never been equaled by any other for speed. Cobb will cover right. It is not believed that the two veterans will play every day, and some of the heavy hitting reverts such as Big Miller, Walter French, Dewitt Lebourveau and George Haas, will see more or less service.

It was the end of a perfect day for the team leader of the Athletics for previously Tris Speaker had rolled into camp ready to begin practice today. Then came dinner time and the Georgia peach wire that he would be back again. Ty will report for duty March 8.

CALDWELL LIKES YANKEES

In dealing with the case of Bruce Caldwell, Yale football, baseball and basketball star, the New York Yankees let it be known that they are ready and willing to pay large sums to Caldwell if he would sign a contract.

It might be necessary to mention that the Yankees are engaged primarily in the baseball business, that they recently made a new record in winning the American League championship and in knocking off the Pittsburgh Pirates in four straight games in what is known as the fall classic.

As it has been necessary to point out that the main business, now at least, of Col. Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, is the manufacture of championship baseball teams, he wouldn't want to put out this money for the making of a baseball team that had a Yale basketball or football star, because those Yale fans aren't such customers, unless also happens to be a baseball star.

Caldwell not only is said to be a baseball star, but one of the best turned out in years, one as good as Mac Aldrich, who turned down a half dozen offers several years ago. Caldwell, he has an infielder and he had the stands full of scouts every afternoon Yale played.

But Aldrich couldn't see professional baseball, he had some influential friends playing around the stock market and he went into business with them. Caldwell is a poor boy and he has to work, and there-in may be the difference for the Yankees.

Any way, the say Caldwell can play baseball, and he has had some staggering offers made him.

ABOUT GRID CAREER

Before Caldwell became an out-and-out non-amateur pro, the moguls of professional football forgot some of the things they had said about ethics.

Caldwell has not turned professional at Yale. Princeton and Harvard merely had said that he played one game as a freshman at Brown and that as far as his future at Yale was concerned he could continue to play class baseball and basketball.

There were some offers made to have him play pro football but Tim Mara, owner of the New York Giants, refused to be a party to any such intrigue.

"Professional football," said Mr. Mara, "will have nothing to do with Mr. Caldwell until he gets his diploma at New Haven."

Perhaps Big Bill Edwards also said that. And Mr. Pyle and Mr. Red Grange. At any rate, Caldwell did not go in for the pro racket last fall when he was disqualified. Now it is understood Mr. Caldwell wants to play pro football at least two seasons. He is sure to be given a chance.

Which brings up the policy of the baseball owners to lay off the boys until they get through school. "They might repudiate the contracts if they get too smart," some say, "as it has been done in the past."

What chance will the talking movies have against the people who are telling their neighbors "how it happened in the stage play"?

SAVE VALUABLE LOGS BURIED IN RIVER 50 YEARS

Pittsburgh.—Millions of board feet of finest white pine timber will be dug up from the bottom of the Allegheny river here where it has been buried as "piling" a half century or more.

Approximately 52 years ago some of the best white pine along the banks of the Allegheny river was cut down to make timbers sixteen inches square to be driven into the river bed so as to form the base of piers on which could be built Old Point Bridge, landmark where the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers join to form the Ohio River.

But the old bridge was torn down recently. The piers on which it rested were removed, and a new bridge was built close by.

Recalled by Old Timers Steamboat men and veteran river pilots recalled the huge pieces of timber had been embedded under the bridge piers to form a base upon which they could be constructed.

At first it was believed the pines were waterlogged and would never be either river traffic. The War Department had issued orders concerning the removal of the bridge, but nothing had been said about the timber.

One day one of the huge logs was loosened from its bed. It immediately shot up to the surface and floated down stream. Steamboat captains and rivermen became frightened lest the river's constant surge around the pines should loosen more logs, and some boats damaged or destroyed.

An appeal was made to the City Council, and rather than endanger the lives of the boatmen, it was decided to remove the old logs.

Profit to Contractor The piers rested on bases 34 by 34 feet square, and the depth to which the old piers were driven is not known, but believed to be anywhere from 25 to 50 feet or more. There will be millions of feet of perfectly good lumber brought to the surface.

Although the City of Pittsburgh will spend in the neighborhood of $2,500 to have the timbers removed, it will not profit by the sale of the lumber after they have been thoroughly dried and prepared for marketing, it was stated here. The contractor who has agreed to undertake the task of digging up the huge logs will derive the entire benefit from their resale.

OXFORD STUDENTS GIVEN PERMISSION TO PRACTICE FLYING

Oxford, England. Undergraduate flying, long prohibited by the authorities of Oxford University, has now been agreed to under adequate safeguards, and flying is in full swing on an improvised field twelve miles north of the University grounds.

Three planes have been provided by the Air Ministry for the use of the Oxford University Air Squadron, and the aerodrome arrangements provide for the instruction of ten undergraduate members a day.

The regulations require that before joining the Squadron each student shall obtain the written consent of parent or guardian and his college authorities, and shall pass a medical examination.

The British Air Ministry bears practically the whole cost of the flights and training. The cost to the undergraduate aviator, including a fortnight's compulsory camp at an R. A. F. flying station, is less than five dollars.

Soldiers in San Francisco passed in review to honor "Arizona," an army mule, decorated for valor in the World War. All those who can get a laugh out of that probably never saw a second lieutenant at his best.

HALF MILLION BLAZE. $500,000 FIRE IN THE HEART OF THE BUSINESS DISTRICT

Peekskill, N. Y., March 2.—A $500,000 fire in the heart of the business district here early today destroyed ten stores and one factory before firemen finally brought the blaze under control at seven a. m.

Firemen from Peekskill and six nearby towns battled the fire for two hours before they were able to check the conflagration.

The fire started shortly before four o'clock this morning. It destroyed the Woolworth department store and offices in the Woolworth building, and razed nine other stores on the same block. A clothing factory also was burned to the ground.

LEAGUE'S PEACE FOR LITHUANIA IS SHORT LIVED

Berlin.—The joy over the "peace victory" of the League of Nations at its last session, when it supposedly ended the theoretical state of war between Poland and Lithuania has been short-lived and the war alarms that preceded the Geneva peace pact are again thundering through the European press. Chancelleries are anxiously watching developments, notes and instructions are flying back and forth between the capitals, and the diplomats of the big powers are going in and out at the Kovno and Warsaw foreign offices counseling moderation.

According to the Geneva "settlement" the state of war was declared at an end and Lithuania and Poland were to start direct negotiations for the resumption of normal relations. The League did not dare to say a word, however, about the chief issue between these two countries, namely the ownership of the district of Wilna which Poland took from Lithuania by a military raid that was later sanctioned by the council of ambassadors, but which Lithuania claims as her capital.

Lithuania Defiant. Now Woldemaras, premier and dictator of little Lithuania, declares in defiance of all the efforts of the Big Powers to hush him up, that the establishment of normal relations is impossible unless Poland returns Wilna to Lithuania; that he will receive a Polish ambassador only in Wilna, and that even in economic and postal regulations Wilna must be excepted because Lithuania will never acknowledge it as Polish territory.

Meanwhile Pilsudski, who went to Geneva with his sword in his suitcase, and whose blunt soldier talk shocked the soft-peddling league members, is watching developments with impatience. Pilsudski is reported determined to end the conflict with Lithuania—even if he has to swallow Lithuania itself. Woldemaras' declaration that he will receive a Polish ambassador in Wilna only is characterized in Polish circles as an "open declaration of war."

It is held significant in this connection that Zaleski, Polish foreign minister, has suddenly assumed a very friendly tone toward Poland's two "hostile" neighbors, Russia and Germany, both of whom have declared that she will never tolerate a Polish annexation of Lithuania, because that would put Poland as a barrier between them.

In the background, moreover, looms the whole problem of Germany's eastern frontiers and the abolition of the Polish corridor is cutting Germany in two. At every actual or latent crisis in the east, Germany there crops up a project that is variously attributed to English, German and Polish sources and which proposes that Poland give the corridor back to Germany and annex Lithuania as compensation, using as her outlet to the sea the former German port of Memel, now Klaipeda, instead of Danzig, which is an independent state under League supervision.

Pilsudski is said to favor this plan. Political observers, at any rate, believe that a Polish-Lithuanian war would inevitably lead to a reconstruction of the German as well as Polish and Russian frontiers, and then it is considered doubtful whether the conflict could be confined to that area.

SOFT COAL MEN PLAN A SECOND MEET THIS YEAR

Pittsburgh.—The International Conference on Bituminous Coal, held under the auspices of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, is such a gigantic enterprise that preparations have been begun already for the second conference, despite the fact that it is not to convene until November 19, 1922, nearly eight months hence.

To formulate plans for the conference, Dr. Thomas S. Baker, President of the Carnegie Institute, has departed for Europe for a tour of England and the countries of the Continent. His purpose is to confer with experts over there concerning the various phases of the conference.

The first conference, held here last year, was declared one of the most important achievements in the history of the bituminous coal, technical and scientific viewpoint.

Conference Aims. The conference aims at the maximum development of the uses and possibilities of bituminous. Discussion centers are going on and out at the main themes. Experts of nearly all countries in the world report the strides made by science in establishing new by-products and uses of soft coal, declared to have more components than any other natural produce of the earth.

The interchange of new facts and theories about bituminous coal provides a solid foundation that is expected to result in more rapid and greater accomplishment of all benefits possible from soft coal.

The Carnegie Institute of Technology is well-equipped to handle an affair of such magnitude. Its institutions are located in the heart of the richest bituminous region in the world and ranks among the foremost technical schools in the world.

Fine Cooperation. In addition, the best cooperation available is furnished by the United States government through its Pittsburgh Bureau of Mines, the largest and best-equipped mine bureau in the United States. Its representatives transfer to the conference the latest ideas in safety-first mining, first aid and other mine technical data.

Political economics and partisan discussions have no part in the conference.

Our forests are going, but things could be worse. Just suppose some fashion leader should come down the street wearing a wooden leg.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON OPENS NEW BUILDING FOR WOMEN INMATES

San Quentin Prison, Cal.—Standing as a monument to prison progress, the newly-constructed women's building at San Quentin state penitentiary, has been opened for occupancy.

As fate removed from the obsolete character of the traditionally accepted dungeon as the medieval ox-cart is from the airplane, the new quarters for female prisoners embraces within its walls the most modern of conveniences.

It is equipped with fine executive offices, spacious recreational and vocational rooms, large white dining room, up-to-date kitchen and laundry, rows of apple-green doors, opening up on cells which are like chambers in a girls' boarding school, and the infirmary, equipped with five white beds, a diet kitchen a magnificent bath and shower rooms.

And in a corner of the spotless infirmary, there is a little white crib in readiness for such emergencies as arise more frequently in the experience of a prison matron.

"We haven't much use for that crib now," the San Quentin matron says, "but sooner or later we'll get a case entering which will be a maternity case, and a baby will be born within these walls."

BRITAIN WILL TRY TO GRAB AMERICAN WATER SPEED RECORD

London.—Britain next year hopes to take from the United States the honor, long held by the latter, of having the fastest speed craft on water.

There is now in course of completion a secret British motorboat with a designed speed of 90 m. p. h.—40 m. p. h. more than present British records, and about 22 miles more than the maximum rate which F. Garfield, the crack America motor-boat racer has attained.

The boat has been designed by the Sunbeam firm, of Wolverhampton, and will have two power units developing 500 h. p. each. The hull is of remarkable hydroplane design.

The boat will be ready for trials on Southampton water immediately after the motor-boat season opens, and Major Seagrave, holder of the world's record for motor speed on land, will pilot it.

ABOUT TOWN

TO PUT A STOP TO

PARK PATH MAKING

Arrests Will Follow Persistence in Crossing Lawns at Center.

Crossing the lawns of the Center park by pedestrians must stop, according to John Y. Keur, park superintendent. A group of workmen were busy today erecting a fence of chicken wire on the east and west sides of the biggest lawn on the park.

If the fence doesn't stop crossing on the lawns, Supt. Keur says that people who persist in crossing will be arrested and brought into police court. This has been done before in the cases of persons crossing the park despite the "no crossing" signs which have been erected.

Two paths have been worn in the lawn, leading from the east to the west side of the park. The fences are being erected at the terminal of these paths. Mr. Keur said today that with the ground soft from thaws the wearing of paths across the lawns would make them difficult to get into decent condition for the summer.

To Grade U. S. Lot The department will start next week on the job of grading the land owned by the United States government at the corner of Main and East Center streets, adjoining the new Masonic temple. Edward J. Holl will use the gravel which will be removed from the site.

This plot of land was purchased some years ago by the government as a site for a new post office. It has never been graded nor its appearance improved.

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT AT GREEN TONIGHT

Community Club to Present Play and Sketch; Supper by Ladies to Follow.

The committee in charge of the entertainment and supper tonight at the Manchester Green school has worked hard to arrange a varied program that will afford an hour and a half of clean comedy. First will come the play—"Elizabeth's Young Man" in which Miss Irene Griffin will appear as Elizabeth. She will be ably supported by Mrs. Wood Walker as "Aunt Abbie" and Mrs. Charles Howard as "Cousin Lucretia." John Garcia stars as the young man. The farce is highly entertaining. The number following will be a rapid fire exhibition by lists. The audience's best cartoons enjoy seeing pictures grow under his magic touch. Mrs. Frank Rieg who needs no introduction to Manchester people will give some of her snappy monologues that always prove enjoyable.

The last number on the program will be a black-face sketch presented by William H. Cowles and G. A. Chappell. This will be their first appearance on a stage together but they are both well known locally as entertainers. Something entirely new is promised by the pair.

Directly following the entertainment the house committee of the Green Community club will serve supper in the basement of the school. Mrs. Ray Moonan, chairman of the committee promises plenty of good things cooked by the ladies of the community. The popular price of the tickets includes both entertainment and supper with half price for children under 12.

Those who patronize the affair will be well repaid and will at the same time help a worthy cause. The Manchester Green Community club aims to assist in the social activities of that section of the town. They have done many things for the educational improvement of the Green school, the most recent of which is the purchase of a stereopticon machine to aid the teachers in "visible education" of the pupils.

"CHICAGO AFTER DARK" AT THE STATE TODAY

Story of the Underworld and the Law at State in Double Feature Bill.

The roar of guns, the constant fight between the blue-coated guardians of the law and the underworld rats, that is, "Chicago After Midnight," one of two features playing at the State theater today and tomorrow.

The picture tells the story of the crime regime in the Illinois city with such certainty that its purpose cannot be doubted; that of showing the superb morale and intrepid bravery of those who uphold the law. A true picture of the follies and foibles of cabaret and club life is painted by the magic lens of Ince's camera.

Ralph Ince plays the part of an underworld baron who, after causing the murder of his betrayer, allows the blame to be laid on a young orchestra leader. Unknown to him, his daughter, whom he had not seen in fifteen years, is in love with the youth. Finally Boyd learns the truth and, after confessing his crime, sacrifices his life in a terrific battle with a band of rival gangsters.

Ince is masterful as the gun chieftain and his performances is rivalled by that of Helen Jerome Eddy as the mother, Joia Mendez as the girl, and Bob Selter as the young musician.

The second feature is "Feel My Pulse," with Bebe Daniels in the leading role.

The exploits of a healthy girl who believes herself very delicate is the funny premise used for Bebe

Daniel's "Feel My Pulse." In addition to this, a great deal of the action is worked around two rival underworld groups, one a gang of bootleggers and the other their deadly enemies, the hi-jackers.

Richard Arlen, William Powell, Charles Sellon, Heinie Conklin, George Irving and Melbourne MacDowell, support Miss Daniels in the production. Gregory La Cava directed.

BUGLARS IN LITCHFIELD

Litchfield, Conn., March 2.—Burglars cleaned out a show window in the Ernest G. Fritz jewelry store during the night, securing goods valued at $1,500. Neighbors say the job was done by a group of ten men who operated from two automobiles. The men fled toward New Milford when frightened away.

The burglars removed the entire front window and cleaned its contents and those of one show case. Then a gust of wind blew the window glass to the ground, making a loud clatter which woke the whole neighborhood. Neighbors saw the men pouring from the store and running to the machines. It is believed that the noise frightened the burglars as they were getting ready to force a safe in the store.

TOBACCO TROUBLES
 Editor, The Herald:
 The following copy of a letter, which I have just mailed will no doubt be of interest to tobacco growers in Manchester.

Chairman Fourth District Conn. Valley Tobacco Assn.
 Burnside, Conn.,
 March 1, 1928.

Mr. A. E. Nelson, Treasurer
 Conn. Valley Tobacco Assn.,
 Hartford, Connecticut.

Dear Sir:
 I have just learned of the vote passed by the directors at their last monthly meeting, which forbids you sending the minutes of meetings to any member who has violated his contract with the association.

It is understood Director Hickey of the 4th District was the instigator of this vote.

The members attending our last district meeting February 20, 1928 felt that I was their last legally elected chairman and am still a hold-over chairman being in the same position as the hold-over directors. The members in my district feel entitled to certain information about their own tobacco in association warehouses and they look to me as their chairman to obtain it for them, regardless of how Mr. Levi Hickey feels about it.

It is true I was one of many growers who, through necessity, was forced to sell my 1925 crop, independently of the association, as bitter experience had taught me the lesson, that the Alsop-Hickey force, were unable to sell good tobacco at a profitable price. I was sick and tired of delivering crops to these men, allowing them to deduct their big salary checks and then get nothing in return. Under such circumstances, I am proud to be called "a contract violator" as Mr. Hickey terms it, and only wished I had "violated" it in 1922, instead of waiting until 1925.

It is well to bear in mind, the tobacco owned by us "violators" in association warehouses, has been heavily assessed, together with the non-violators "for general overload expenses" out of which the salaries of the officers, including Levi Hickey, have been paid. The unsold tobacco how-on hand, a good portion of which belongs to us "violators" is still to be taxed plenty to pay the operating expenses and your big salaries and directors' monies. Levi Hickey, Director of the 4th District, refuses to accept his duties which directors have been drawing monthly, for he says, "It is an imposition to take the farmers' money." We have waited in vain for our director to follow Mr. Tryon's fine example.

There are many members who feel Director Hickey and Mr. Alsop should return 90 per cent of all the large salaries they have received, to the families of grower members, who are now in poverty and distress. Instead of getting vindictive motions, these men should try to relieve some of the members of hardship and suffering. That the association has caused.

If I can get my unsold tobacco out of the association warehouse, together with my share of the $300,000 reserve fund, which you stated was on hand February 1, 1927, I will gladly resign as chairman. The action of Director Hickey at your meeting of February 21st in offering the vote he did, appears to the growers in my district, as very high-handed and vindictive, but in line with his usual actions at board meetings. With men of this caliber directing the association it is not strange it should fail.

Yours truly
 ALBERT E. FRICKE.

ARMY RESERVE CORPS

Washington, March 2.—The Army reserve corps would be raised to a new plane in the scheme of national defense under a bill introduced in the House today by Rep. James Republican of Mich. It would create a reserves' bureau in the War Department.

Much dissatisfaction has been caused among the 113,000 organized reserve officers and mechanics, their affairs are handled by five different departments of the Army, James said.

The bill, he said, would place the reserves on the same status in the War Department as the National Guard.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (226) Battle of Titans

Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Braucher

Sperm whales keep to warmer latitudes than the Arctic or Atlantic Right Whales. Here the Sperm Whales find the great sea squids, grim tentacled fighters of the deep, and the struggles between the two tax the human imagination. These Sperm Whales have such power in their jaws that they have been known to crush whale-boats.

Here is a picture of a great sea squid whose frightful tentacles, armed with claws and grim suckers, measure thirty or forty feet.

The artist here has imaginatively sketched a seventy-ton Sperm Whale locked in combat with one of the terrible squids.

A model of a Rorqual, largest of all the whales, is housed in the American Museum of Natural History. The artist has sketched it here. This beast is called a Sulphur-Bottom because of the color of its under parts. Imagine this monster

THE RULES
1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

Why are you scratching yourself, Doris?

He (shyly)—May I call you by your first name?

A Manchester man is worried about how his boy is going to earn his way through college.

MODEL 1928 GRANDMA
My dear when I was a girl your age, I thoroughly knew what cooking means.

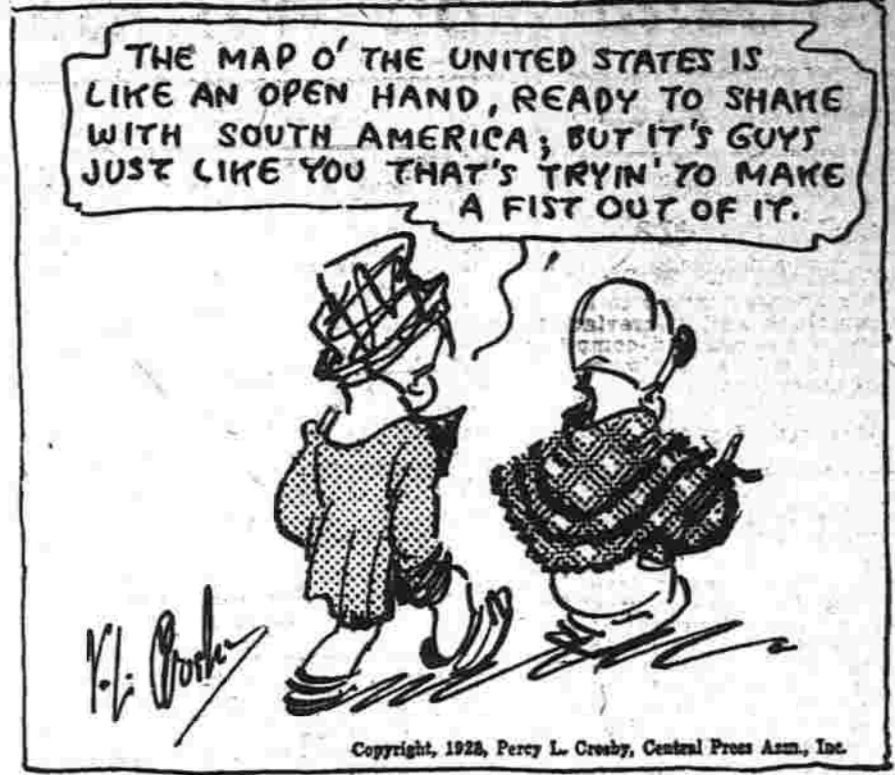

My child, in the matter of cleaning house I swoon at the things you girls don't know.

My love, in speaking of needlework, The sewing today is a frightful sin.

Such slovenly work I never saw— (Will you kindly hand me a safety pin?)

My lamb, you girls think more of men Than ere young ladies did before. (Ah me, is my henna rinse still in? For old Mr. Smith is at the door!).
