COAL OWNERS EXPLAIN THEIR SIDE AT PROBE

Rockefeller Official Says His Firm Is Not Anti-Union; Trouble Started Back In 1919.

Washington, March 26.—The Rockefeller coal companies are not anti-union, George Anderson, executive vice president of the Consolidation Coal Co., told the Senate coal committee today.

A dominating interest in the concern is held by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who, at his appearance before the committee last week requested that Anderson be permitted to present the company's side of the controversy with the union mine workers.

Union Charges The union has charged that when the Consolidation Coal Company allegedly broke its wage contract in 1924, it forced other West Virginia operators to follow the example.

VOICE WISH FOR HOOVER

Reluctance of the Republican party of Connecticut to send an instructed delegation to the national convention has considerable justification—not more this year than any other year but as a general principle. But we see no reason why there should not be a middle ground between hard-and-fast instructing in favor of some one candidate and complete failure of the state convention to express its preferences, for the consideration of its representatives in the convention.

It is our firm belief that the rank and file of the Republican party is in very large majority in favor of the candidacy of Herbert Hoover. There is no obvious reason why that preference should not be expressed, formally, by the state convention. There is very obvious reason why it should be.

Let Connecticut Republicans, by all means, send an uninstructed delegation, insofar as relates to the depriving of the delegates of freedom of action. But let there be no misunderstanding, after the delegates reach Kansas City, as to the wishes of the voters who send them.

DISGUSTED LINDBERGH

Colonel Charles Lindbergh, greatest of fliers, is quoted as being utterly, completely and everlastingly fed up on the gushing adulation which has been showered on him; as being definitely determined to retire from the public gaze and never again, if he can help it, submit to being puffed over and howled at and photographed and manhandled and generally treated like a queer baboon in a zoo on a holiday.

No one can blame him. No one could blame him if he had come to the fixed conclusion that he belonged to a nation of idiots. He doesn't, of course; but the enormous majority of the crowds he sees could lay claim to a considerable degree of idiocy without getting an argument. Say that he visits a town of a hundred thousand people. He will be greeted by a pulling, hauling, crazily excited mob of ten thousand persons. Not all of the ten thousand will be nervous fools, utterly lacking in self discipline and any sense of the proprieties, but it is a good bet that every such nervous fool in the town will be in that mob and that together they will make up its large majority and stamp it with their foolish characteristics. Ninety thousand sane, self-controlled people will remain away—not because they do not want to honor Lindbergh but because they do.

So that the Lone Eagle, as a matter of fact, has had to put up with association of most of the neurotic, half-crazy sap-heads of both sexes in the United States. It is they who rush upon the landing fields, it is they who crowd and jostle him, it is they who shriek "Lindy!" at him till he must be nauseated by the sound of that diminutive, it is they who lie and cheat and pass themselves off for congressmen in order to get rides with him, to brag about the rest of their lives. It is they who have tormented and harassed this naturally retiring young fellow till he has reached the point where he cries despairingly, "I had hoped to do something for aviation, but they won't let me!"

We'll say that he has been ten times a hero. And for ten times as long as ten times a hero could be expected to be. He has a right to think of himself.

"AMATEUR" BOXING

Action by the Connecticut Amateur Athletic Union to suspend all amateur boxing bouts within its jurisdiction, following the death of a seventeen year old boy from injuries received in a bout, has the surface appearance of a reform measure. Whether the reform interest rose below the surface or not will perhaps develop later. In any event it will not, in all probability, greatly influence the belief of sports followers that much that is objectionable and false goes on in Connecticut boxing circles under the camouflage of amateurism.

"Amateur" boxing has become a business in this state. The fact in itself establishes the extent of the amateurism.

Connecticut has an Athletic Commission. It controls professional boxing but it has no authority over amateur events. And so long as promoters can make the claim stick that they are engaged in putting on non-professional shows they remain free from any proper legal supervision. Under the guise of amateur performances they stage probably twenty times as many fights as are given by admitted professionals. In many instances the boxers do nothing for a living outside the ring. Their amateurism is actually that of a bareback rider in a circus.

Under this cloak of amateurism the most extravagantly unfit matches are made—matches that would not be countenanced by the Boxing Commission if they were admittedly professional. It is notorious that adequate medical examination of contestants is the exception. Adolescent boys who ought never to be allowed in a prize ring are put on to take beatings from which they are likely to never fully recover. The lad whose death has precipitated the present crisis is said to have been seventeen—at least two years too young for the grueling, pitiless game of the prize ring.

Boxing, under the best of conditions, is a sport verging perilously on the questionable, though we would not be understood as advocating its prohibition. Boxing, under the conditions of "amateur" faking has run wild in Connecticut. That the A. A. U. will control it or can control it and make it respectable is utterly improbable.

The authority of the Athletic Commission should be extended to embrace complete control of "amateur" boxing.

NO LYNCHINGS

Connecticut has been pinning a rose on herself of late because she has discovered that the records show that she has never had a lynching. Doubtless the record runs true to the facts, and doubtless the gentleman whom a posse once chased into the woods, and who was later found hanging from a tree, carried his own rope with him. It was all a long time ago and we should be foolish not to give ourselves the benefit of the doubt, especially in view of the old time coroner's verdict of suicide in the case in question.

Nevertheless we have a feeling that perhaps, in this matter of lynching, we in this part of the country may be just a wee bit pharisaical. It may not be so settled a matter as we assume it to be that it is better never to lynch, though murder grows apace, than it is to lynch and put a stop to homicides—under any and all conditions. We can't help believing that if California had waited for the law courts to clean up its bad men the development of that state would never have proceeded at all. We can't help believing that if an orderly body of Vigilantes had stopped the Leopold-Loeb trial in Chicago and functioned according to Vigilante traditions, little Marion Parker would still be alive in Los Angeles and a number of other "perfect" murders would have gone undone.

It seems to us that an honor roll for states which have had no murders in a year might be of more value than such a roll for states which have never had a lynching. We are not so sure that it wouldn't be a good idea to include in the order of merit such communities as might be able to show that they had never lynched the wrong person.

Lynching is, of course, a dangerous practice. Where there are courts which actually function it is inexcusable. But when the choice comes between a community protecting itself by summary proceeding and permitting countless numbers of homicides to go unavenged, we are frank enough to assert the belief that the question becomes debatable.

Ardent supporter of Governor Al Smith as the New York World has been, that newspaper is beginning to show signs of doubt whether he is the party's best bet as a candidate for President of the United States. Long ago the World hinted to the governor that, while he enjoyed a wonderful reputation in his own state as an executive and a vote getter, the country at large would be interested in his views on national and international affairs if he were to become a presidential candidate; and that if he had such aspirations in view it would be well for him to begin to express some of those views. Now the newspaper is beginning to actually nag the governor because he has failed to do anything of the

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, March 26.—The distinction between a politician and a statesman is sometimes hard to determine, but it may be that a statesman is the fellow who goes out and tackles a few issues while the politicians are all busy lining up votes, delegates and jobs in the next administration.

At the moment Senator William E. Borah is a towering figure in the cause he is about the only big man of influence who is concentrating on issues instead of votes. For that reason he may exert an important effect on the forthcoming Republican convention and on the conduct—assuming it's Republican—of the next administration.

Idaho is booming Borah as a presidential candidate. He is much more than a mere favorite son, for he has a large number of supporters and followers over the country. He is not a likely nominee because he has always been an independent Republican, refusing to follow the politicians and standpatters except when he agreed with them. Borah knows as well as anyone that his course has cost him the support of the party politicians.

Borah, being a statesman, is disregarding many appeals from over the country that he campaign for nomination or lead a third party because he feels he can do more good by keeping out of political fights and campaigning for what he considers issues that are vital.

The principle of Coolidge administration committed to the principle to the point that it has gone so far as to put Foreign Minister Briand of France in an embarrassing hole because Briand won't go as far in that direction as we will.

Borah, of course, regards war as an evil thing. But he is not campaigning against liquor as an evil thing. He believes that constitutional government is in danger as a result of the breakdown of prohibition enforcement of wide areas. He believes that the increase in crime, and especially of horrible crimes, is traceable to wide contempt for the dry laws.

Hence, he has said not merely that the law must be enforced, but that they either must be enforced or repealed to end an intolerable situation. He would have parties recognize responsibilities other than to business.

It has been shouted back at Borah that his questionnaires to presidential candidates were useless because they bound no one to spend the hundreds of millions needed for real enforcement. But Borah holds that it is important to get a president on record in favor of enforcement at the outset—it never has been done before, and that it is especially important to get the party organization on record because a general enforcement attempt can only be had by co-operation of the executive and his party leaders. Further, he believes that much better enforcement is attainable with no more than the money now spent.

Borah is not satisfied with his party's enforcement record. But instead of hurling rocks at Coolidge and Mellon he is working constructively with the party for an honest party attitude on enforcement which can be pursued by an administration definitely committed to honest enforcement effort.

Now, he steps into the limelight nationally, by talking a collection to Harry Sinclair the $160,000 bonds the oil man gave the national committee in 1923. It is tainted money, Borah says, and the party must give it back.

At the Kansas City convention he may figure importantly in one way or another, but until he has finished his fight on issues he will take no part in the pre-convention campaign either in his own behalf or otherwise.

If things get too tough down at Houston in June, of course we always can send Lindbergh.

Rec and Community Reach Agreement On Series!

Town Basketball Series Starts On Friday Night

First Game at Rec, Second at Armory; Play on 60-40 Basis; "Red" Ball Referee; Hurley Only Out of Town Player; Agreement Surprise to Fandom.

BY TOM STOWE

The Rec and Community have agreed! Manchester fans are not to be cheated out of a chance to see a town championship basketball series after all.

The first game will be played at the Rec next Friday night with the second at the State Armory the following Friday.

A third game, if necessary, will probably be played at the Rec, at least Manager Ben Clune has the right to select the site inasmuch as he won the toss of coin for that decision.

The teams will play on a sixty-four per cent basis to be extracted on the total receipts for the whole series, not on each game individually as is often the case. With the exception of "Babe" Hurley, no out of town players will be allowed and each manager agreed to stick by his present team.

The decision of the Rec Five and Community Club to play, will no doubt be received with considerable surprise by many basketball fans here. Because of the deadlock between the rival managers, it had become the opinion that there would be no series this year. Several discussions between officials of both organizations had only served to further complicate matters. Yesterday afternoon, however, the writer succeeded in getting the managers and directors of both teams together again and an agreement was reached. Coach Jerry Fay of the Community Club had talked the matter over with his superiors and decided that if the south would not toss a coin to decide where the first game would be played, there would be no series.

And so, rather than let this happen, Fay decided to consent to play the first game at the Rec. That is the whole story in a nutshell. Jerry said he considered the point too small to rob Manchester fans of a deserved series.

In order to start the series Friday night, the Rec had to cancel its game with the Hartford Yankees. Likewise, the Community agreed to call off its scheduled game with Arnold's College of New Haven for Tuesday night. Both managers agreed not to book any home games during the series.

Those present when the arrangements were made were Managers Ben Clune and Joe Hanley, Directors Lewis Lloyd and Jerry Fay and the writer. There were no heated arguments or lengthy discussions. Everything went along serenely.

The question of whom would be secured to referee came up for a period and it was finally decided to give "Red" Ball of Springfield the first choice. Nothing was said about an alternate in case Ball is already scheduled for the series dates. However, this point can be easily cleared up.

It has been decided to start all games at exactly nine o'clock. Considerable criticism has been voiced of late because games were not started on schedule. It has not been decided what the preliminary games will be. Either the Rec Girls or the West Side Rec will probably furnish the "opening act" at the Rec with the winners of the two Community Club Junior Leagues playing the one at the armory. Dancing will follow the games, the music being furnished by McKay's Serenaders.

The Rec Girls and Community Girls will not mingle in the preliminary games for the town championship inasmuch as the latter team is much more experienced and would be an easy winner. It would be an injustice to the Rec Girls to pit them against such opposition. Director Lloyd feels. He concedes the Community the title. The Rec Girls have made a creditable showing this season under the coaching of Elmo Mantelli and a series with the Community might do more harm than good.

The senior life-saving class at the Rec will reorganize Wednesday evening for weekly sessions. Frank Busch who has been highly successful in this work, will again be in charge.

The Suffield High swimming team will come to Manchester Wednesday night to engage in a meet with the local high school at the Rec starting at quarter of eight. The inter-class meet starts today and concludes Wednesday.

The Heights baseball team will have a meeting tonight at 228 Oak street to make plans for the coming season.

EASTERN RUNNERS WELL UP IN DERBY

Pyle's Athletes Are Now In New Mexico and Keeping Up Splendidly.

Grants, N. M., March 26.—C. C. Pyle's Bunton Derbyists jogged through the Laguna Indian country toward their 23rd control at Old Laguna Pueblo, 34 miles from Grants today.

Twelve miles of yesterday's trek from Throau to Grants, 30.5 miles, were through detours in the sage strewed desert. The route had been mapped out with the designating arrows to guide the throng and as a result little difficulty was experienced by the field.

Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, jogged at a grilling pace yesterday when he averaged almost eight miles an hour over the lava bed route.

Arpe Souminen, Detroit medico, trotting in second, held first place in the grind, while Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., was third to retain that place in the elapsed standings.

NO CHANCE OF JONES QUITTING AMATEURS

Atlantan Champion Could Make $100,000 a Year and He May — As a Lawyer.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

Several years ago a number of prominent professional golfers were on the point of asking Bobby Jones to be a good sport and either turn professional or confine his activities in championship contests to the amateur events only.

Two years ago, in Scotland, when Jones was knocking the spectators pop-eyed with a series of astounding performances in the British Open championship, a number of pros were discussing in the clubhouse the effect of Jones' golf upon the American professional game.

The American pros pointed out to their British brethren that if Jones continued for a number of years to toy around with the professionals in the big British and American Open events that the pay for their profession would be reduced until they would be almost in the class with laborers.

After Tommy Armour came through and won the American Open championship last year, there was little heard from the professionals about the Jones menace to their business. Armour's victory restored some of the prestige lost by the pros, but some of them were dubious even when they heard that Jones was considering semi-retirement until he gets established in his legal practice.

"Yes, one of them suggested, 'he may retire from everything but the American Open championship and then he will go out and win that with some kind of a sensational score that will make us look foolish.'"

The professional players, of course, are not of one mind on the subject. "It would be crazy to ask Jones to stay out of open competition," one of the best known professional players said. "As long as he is good enough to qualify, he ought to be welcomed as an entry. As long as he is good enough to beat the best of the professionals, he ought to do it. You must not lose sight of the fact that a victory for a professional in the open championship is all the more valuable when Jones is in the field. If Jones didn't play in the big open events the public would say of the winner: 'Yeh, he won the championship, but Bob Jones could knock his ears off.'"

Practically all of the professionals, most of whom have not had the opportunity for a career that was accorded to Jones, think he is foolish in not turning professional before he passes the peak of his game. But he may not pass that peak for years, even if he does succeed as he has reached it now.

Gene Sarazen, who ought to know something about the business end of the game, estimates that Jones could make $100,000 a year as a professional in the next three years, and if his game had left him by that time he would have enough to keep him in a chariot that Jones ever will turn professional.

His golf will help him in his legal business and there are more lawyers making from $25,000 to $100,000 a year, year in and year out, than there are professional golfers at that pay.

Murphy Beats Brennan By Margin Of 256 Pins

IT'S JACK'S EARS NOW, THEY CLAIM

Dempsey Can't Hear Rickard When He Offers Him a $250,000 Guarantee.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, March 26.—Hard upon the heels of another of Our John's retirement statements, made over the week-end, the latest Dempsey story hit Broadway today and this one is authority for the declaration that it isn't bad eyesight, after all, that is driving the great man into self-imposed exile. He can see all right, they say, but has had a lot of trouble with his ears on several occasions during recent months. It seems that he just couldn't hear Rickard at all when the promoter is declared to have offered him a $250,000 guarantee for a third meeting with Tunney.

The comparative modesty of this figure is understood to have been made necessary by the Garden directorate, which was somewhat irked by Mr. Rickard's generosity with other people's money in connection with the Chicago purse. George is yet might be anxious to get an amount to get out from under on the next fight for not more than $800,000, which, of course, is all very uninteresting to our John.

It was their contention that Jones in the pursuit of a game as an amateur was making them look bad in a business upon which many of them depended for a living and if he didn't want to capitalize his skill he should not keep others from getting the best price for their services.

Hold Out Little Longer
"Still them a little longer," is alleged to have been the gist of Dempsey's reply. "What the good man really wants, I am informed, is a guarantee, most equal to that which will accrue to Tunney. The latter is understood to hold a contract with Rickard, calling for a flat guarantee of $25,000 plus a percentage of the receipts. Dempsey, they say, wants a guarantee of at least $450,000 and doesn't care where it comes from."

That last crack is said to mean that he would be only moderately irritated if some of it came as a result of a "kick back" from Brother Tunney himself; that is, it would be almost all right with him if he had made up a portion of his guarantee from a portion of Brother Tunney's original purse.

Considering the money he could get with Dempsey and the money he won't get with Joe Windmill and the other heavyweights who are so busy fumbling on their own 5-yard line, Brother Tunney might do worse, at that.

THIS PINOCHLE TOURNAMENT "POST-GRADUATE" AFFAIR

A "post-graduate" pinochle tournament has been started at the Army and Navy club and play will continue for six weeks with sittings each Friday night at 7:30. Partners were selected by drawings and will not be changed throughout the tournament. Several tournaments have already been held at the club.

The scores for the first night's sitting in the latest tournament, held on Friday, follow: Donze-Custer, 1154; McCormick-Chagnot, 1072; Gleason-Anderson, 1069; Radv-Sonniksen, 1032; Hartnett-Lamprecht, 1007; Hope-Person, 1001; Quish-H. McCormick, 993; McCaughey-Hultgren, 922.

125	217	105
98	237	79
1079	256	991

Even though he lost, Bobby Brennan did twice as good against Howard Murphy in the final leg of their twenty game match than he did in the first. The town champion won the last ten games by 88 pins Saturday afternoon on his own alleys at the South end. Added to the 168 pin margin he gained in the first half of the match rolled on Conran's alleys, this gives Murphy the match by a total of 256 pins.

Murphy won eight of the ten games the same as he did over Brennan. Only three did he roll under a hundred while Brennan went over, only four times. The south enders 127 in the fourth game was high. Murphy's average was 107.9 which, added to the 114.5 he rolled over north, gives him a mark of 111.2 for the twenty games compared with 97.8 and 99.1 for Brennan's average of 98.45.

DR. KAVANEK IS HIGH AMONG TRAP SHOOTERS

Breaks 93 Out of 100 and Also Leads in Doubles; Dave Mullen Hits 24 in Row.

Excellent weather brought out a fine field of gunners to the Manchester Rod and Gun Club trap Saturday afternoon and several good scores were made.

Dr. Kavanek broke 93 out of 100 and once more was high gun for the day. Dave Mullen lost the first bird in his second string and then went 24 straight. In the doubles, Dr. Kavanek led with 41 out of 50.

Let the NEW Veedol prove these claims

THOUSANDS of motorists have already tried the new Veedol Motor Oils and are convinced of their superiority. These new Veedol oils are heavier, tougher and longer-lived than ever. Although designed specifically to solve the difficult problem of correct lubrication for the new high-compression motors, they are better oils for all motors. Car owners find that the new Veedol oils give:

- 1 Greater motor protection (heavier body and added heat resistance).
- 2 Greater mileage (being heavier, they last longer).
- 3 Greater economy (they cut operating costs and reduce wear, tear and repair on the engine).

Test those claims by getting a crankcase full of the new Veedol at the next orange and black Veedol sign. Tide Water Oil Sales Corporation, 11 Broadway, New York City.

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2-You can change only one letter at a time.
3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

THE TINYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN - PICTURES BY KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

One cookie said, "If you won't neek, we'll play a game of hide and seek. That really is a lot of fun, and I'll be it, right now. I'll count to twenty very quick, but if you all are very slick, you'll have a lot of time to run and hide on me somehow."
The whole bunch scampered here and there, all promising that they'd play fair. The little cookie counted up to twenty, very loud. And then the Tinies heard him shout, "I'm coming now, you'd best watch out." He opened his eyes and, near at hand, saw all the crowd. "For goodness sakes, why don't you hide?" the puzzled little cookie cried. "We can't," replied the Clowny. "No good places can we find. There are no trees nor bushes near. You'd quickly see us all, I fear. Some other game that's better is what we'd best try to find."
Just then the baker came in sight, and yelled right out, with all his might, "Get back into that cookie jar. You've played, now, neek enough." Of course the cookies all obeyed and in the monstrous jar they stayed. At first the Tinies thought the baker man was in a huff.
But, soon he said, "Well come with me and other things you'll shortly see. I'll take you to some new friends whom you all will like real well. Don't ask me who they are until we reach them. Then you'll get a thrill." And Copsy said, "We're glad to go. I'll bet this will be swell."
They shortly reached an oven door, where Mister Baker stopped once more. Right on the edge the Tinies saw some lady-fingers small. The Tinies watched them as they ran and hopped into a long, long pan. It seemed the jump would hurt them, but it didn't. Not at all.
(Clowny puts on a baker's suit in the next story.)

SENSE and NONSENSE

An old negro preacher was making a visit to the revenue warehouse.
Revenue Officer—"What'll it be, Erasmus?"
Erasmus—"Ah wants some sacreligious wine."
Revenue Officer—"Some sacreligious wine, don't you? And what kind do you want?"
Erasmus—"Well, boss, at last Sunday's meetin' the congregation took a vote, and it was unanimous for gin."

Maggie, an old-time Virginia dandy, was always doing favors for people. She never considered herself first. During her teens and 20's she had worked steadily as a maid for several large Virginia families and she began to consider marriage as a change from the "humdrumness" of life, as she called. A young Negro swain who had paid her much attention finally asked her to be his blushing bride, and she answered "shuah!" At last the wedding was over and the bride and groom were supposed to be off on their honeymoon. So, naturally, Maggie's employer was surprised when she returned the same day to resume her work.
"Why Maggie," he was asked, "how is it that you are not on your honeymoon; weren't you married?"
"Yes, Ah was married all right," Maggie replied. "But Ephraim wanted to go to Memphis, and Ah had been theah befo' so let's mah sistah go in mah place."

"Yassum," said Callie, the negro cook, "I been engaged now for goin' on ten days."
"Who is the bridegroom?"
"Wellum, he's a mighty nice man."
"Have you known him long?"
"Yes, indeedy. Don't you remember, Miz Aponoff, dat about two weeks ago you lemme off one day right after dinner-time so's I could get to the fun'el of a lady friend of mine?"

A High Recommendation.
Two colored men stood on the fringe of a crowd where a politician was making a speech.
"Who am dat man, Sam?"
"Ah don't know what his name is," Sam replied, "but he sure do recommen' hisself mos' highly."

A Confirmed Optimist.
A negro waiter employed in a certain cafe "sees good in everything." One afternoon a customer entered and ordered soft-shelled crabs. When they had been served he said to the waiter, "Henry, these crabs are very small."
"Yessuh."
"An' they don't seem very fresh, either."
"Well, suh, it's lucky den dat they's small, ain't it?"

Sambo was asked what kind of chickens he preferred. "Well, suh," he replied after a few minutes' consideration, "all kinds has dere merits. De white ones is de easiest to find in de dark; but de black ones is de easiest to hide afaah you gets 'em."

Orderly (giving out pajamas and bathrobes to new patients): "Rastus, have you pajamas?"
Rastus: "No suh; mumps."
