

AWARD AHERN CONTRACT FOR WALKS, CURBING

Local Man to Do Work
Again—Selectmen Hold
Sidewalk Building Line
Hearings—Pay Bills.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING SUMMARY.

Henry Ahern awarded sidewalk contract.
Sidewalks to be built on Hartford road at McKee street, on McKee south of Summer, and Lewis street.
Academy street acceptance deferred.

Eldridge street building line change tabled. The selectmen held a hearing on the curbing of Birch street property owners object to widening.

Henry Ahern, of Bond street, was awarded the contract for building sidewalks and setting curbstone in Manchester this year. Mr. Ahern has been building sidewalks here for the past five years and his work has been so satisfactory that the Board of Selectmen was pleased to award him the contract to build sidewalks on the following streets: Hartford road at McKee street, on McKee south of Summer, and Lewis street. Three concerns bid 38 cents a square foot for concrete walks which was the low figure.

The concerns submitting bids were: D. Lewis, Schenectady, N. Y.; Henry Ahern, Manchester, N. Y.; J. Morgan, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; John Cronin, of Hartford, Conn.; Squatriglia and Son, Waterbury; Peter Cuzio, New Britain. Bids closed at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. Work will be started immediately on the sidewalks.

Four hearings were held by the Selectmen last night. Property owners on Academy street were present to give their opinions of the recommendation of the street's acceptance. Carl W. Olson was the only objector. He maintained that the property owners had agreed to bring his land to grade when filling in the highway after sewer construction. All others being in favor the matter was referred to the highway committee.

The property owners who appear at the Academy street hearing were Lucius M. Foster, Hugo Kohls, Joseph Tedford, Robert Lathrop, Emma Kohls, and Carl W. Olson. Sidewalks for West Side.

Sidewalks and curbing were ordered constructed on Hartford road from the end of the present walk to McKee street. The only property owners interested were Cheney Brothers and Edward J. Holl. Cheney Brothers were represented by John H. Hyde, chairman of the board, and they offered no objections. Edward J. Holl was present and favored the construction, being the petitioner. The walks will be five feet wide and granite curbing will be set.

Mr. Holl was also the petitioner for sidewalks on the east side of McKee street from Summer street to Hartford road. Karl Marx was the only other property owner interested. He has no need for sidewalks along his property since he conducts a large poultry farm there but was not strongly opposed to the construction. The board voted the construction and these walks will be five feet wide and the curbing will be granite.

Routine Matters
A 30 foot building line and a 20 foot veranda line were established on Gerard street from Cone street to East Center street. None of the property owners on this street were present at the hearing. This is a street in the Marvin Green tract and the lines are made necessary by the construction of a house there by W. Harry England.

Renewal of a permit for the gas-line station at the junction of Tolland Turnpike was voted. Archie Haug asked that Hemlock street be put in better repair. His request was referred to the Highway committee. Action on the Eldridge street building line change was tabled.

Birch Street Again
Mrs. Julia Reese, Mrs. Christine Foligno and Mrs. Angelina Dell sent a letter to the Selectmen saying that they were not in favor of the widening of Birch street and the expense of moving their houses back so that they will not be so close to the proposed street line. Since the matter of widening the street has already been before a town meeting and passed it is beyond the Selectmen's power to make any changes now. The letter was ordered placed on file.

A Center street man wrote the board saying that his dog couldn't

FALL ORDERED ALL TO KEEP DEAL SECRET

Ex-Secretary Made Sure That Public Would Have
No News of the Teapot
Dome Lease.

Washington, April 11.—A mantle of secrecy and silence hung heavy over the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Harry F. Sinclair, the government developed today in the oil man's trial for criminal conspiracy to defraud the nation of that land.

So great was the desire of ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, who negotiated the lease, to make sure that no inkling of the deal was to get out until six full days after the deal had been consummated he caused a memorandum to be circulated among his subordinates warning against publicity "of any kind" in connection with the oil reserves.

This was developed in the course of the examination of Assistant Secretary of Interior E. C. Finney, who identified the memorandum. Fall, co-defendant with Sinclair, is charged with having taken a $233,000 bribe to put over the lease. He is too ill however, to stand trial.

Not only the public was kept in ignorance, it appeared, Finney, whose job it is to personally handle all public land leases, never saw the Teapot Dome lease, was not consulted about it, and first heard of its existence six days after it was signed, he testified.

Further he revealed in his testimony that the general practice of advertising for competitive bids had not been followed in the case of Teapot Dome.

The departmental memorandum that Finney identified admonished inferior officials that the naval oil reserves were being handled by the secretaries of interior and navy, "but not in the routine manner."

It was dated April 13 1922. The lease had been signed April 6, but there was no mention of the fact in the memorandum.

BLACKMER ABSENT
Washington, April 11.—The name of Harry M. Blackmer, former American oil man, was called frequently three times today at the criminal conspiracy trial of Harry F. Sinclair.

Blackmer is one of the three missing witnesses in the Teapot Dome case. At present, he is in France with a subpoena in his pocket which is being ignored. To question him, James E. O'Neil, also in Europe, and Henry Smith Osler, last heard of in Africa, about a peculiar oil deal which resulted in profits for them and Sinclair which were later turned into Liberty Bonds. Certain of these bonds, to the amount of $233,000, found way into the hands of former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and it is the government's contention they were a bridge to induce Fall to lease the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Sinclair. Fall, named as a party to the alleged conspiracy, is too ill to stand trial.

Federal Prosecutor Owen J. Roberts had no answer to his name. He had it called merely so later he could tell the jury of the significance of his absence.

The business of "padding" Blackmer's name was just been mentioned.

TRIAL OF MRS. KNAPP
TO BE HELD APRIL 30
Bail increased to $8,000; Eight
Indictments Are Returned Against Her.

Albany, N. Y., April 11.—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state, and first woman ever elected to high office in New York will go on trial on Monday, April 30 for alleged juggling of the $1,200,000 1925 census fund.

The date of the trial was fixed shortly after ten o'clock today by Supreme Court Justice Stephen Callaghan.

Mrs. Knapp will be tried on an indictment charging her with the commission of a felony. Special D. P. Attorney General George Z. Medalie, who is prosecuting the case for the state, indicated.

Storm Proves a Jonah to This Whale

Hundreds of curious folks went down to the sea in flippers when word came that a giant whale had been ashore during a storm of Wrightsville Beach, near Wilmington, N. C., the other day. Fishermen pronounced it a sperm whale and as soon as this picture had been taken they lost no time in diving up the prize. It measured 54 feet in length and weighed nearly 60 tons.

City Surrounded By Water, Still No Place To Bathe

New Haven, Conn., April 11.—More nearly surrounded by salt water than any other town in the state, New Haven may have no place where, next summer, its people can bathe. The Board of Health plans to issue a ban against bathing at Lighthouse Point because of the condition of the water by reason of sewage that is dumped into the harbor and permitted to ride in and out with the tide. The ban will

ARMED WOMEN HELPED KLAN START RIOTS

Men Were Furnished Revolvers and Women Clubs—Facts About the Ku Klux Klan.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 11.—Hiram Wesley Evans, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, was directly responsible for the riots at Carnegie, Pa., in 1923, in which one Klansman was killed, N. C. Hogue, of Switzville, former Keagle of the order, charged in Federal Court here today.

Despite the fact that Carnegie officials had refused the Klansmen a permit to parade, Sam Rich, Klan leader, gave the order to march. Hogue said, saying that "Evans had ordered it."

Hogue said he had conferred with Rich, Pennsylvania Grand Dragon, two or three times a week prior to the riot and had been told to be prepared for trouble. A conference with Klan officials were held in Pittsburgh, and the men were ordered to be ready for any emergency.

Swearing abruptly from the Carnegie riot, counsel for the five ousted Klansmen being sued for $500,000 by the Klan called L. E. Landman, an Oklahoman, to the stand. Landman told of seeing two Klansmen whipped by Klansmen near Tulsa for alleged advances to a girl. He said that the men were compelled to whip each other and were beaten by Klansmen.

Women also were armed by the Klan to participate in riots, Mrs. Walter E. Bittner, of Homestead, Pa., testified. She said that at a demonstration at Wilkensburg in which 1,000 Klansmen participated, each was issued a riot stick. Several thousand Klansmen in the parade were armed with revolvers, she said.

Judge W. H. S. Thomson's courtroom was crowded, following reports that additional sensational testimony was to be heard today. The opposing counsel, arranged to meet at a "conference" this afternoon.

"About fighting?" he was asked. "About private business," Dempsey answered.

Some members of the reportorial audience were unimpressed as Johnston's connection with "private business" is unlisted. He is known generally only as a fight promoter.

GERMANY PROTESTS SHOWING OF "DAWN"
Film Concerning Execution of Edith Cavell May Cause Trouble Here.

Berlin, April 11.—The German government has decided upon formal action to prevent the showing of the war film "The Dawn" in America, it was learned this afternoon.

The foreign office will instruct the German ambassador at Washington to make representations to the state department for the suppression of the film in the United States.

This film, which portrays the execution of the English nurse Edith Cavell by German soldiers in Belgium in 1915, was suppressed by the British Board of Censors, after representations had been made by Germany to the British government.

BIG BILL IS DEFEATED BY OVER 450,000 VOTES

Will Big Bill Quit? Let Him Answer It

Chicago, April 11.—When asked if he would resign from the office of mayor of Chicago as he had declared he would in the event State's Attorney Crowe was defeated, William Hale Thompson said here today:

"The only serious loss from the point of view of the city administration is that of the state's attorney's office. I was very sorry to see Bob Crowe defeated."

"Yes, Mayor Thompson, but are you going to resign?" he was asked. "While we concede defeat of Small, Dalley and Crowe," continued "Big Bill the Bulldog," "we believe that we have won a victory in the sanitary district of Chicago. Our candidates who have been defeated are mainly downstate men."

"Yes, and about that resignation, Mr. Mayor?" chorused a group of reporters. "We will still fight on for Chicago. That's all, gentlemen," boomed Big Bill.

Chicago, April 11.—With a majority of 450,000, Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson, heading the U. S. Senator Charles S. Deneen faction, swept to victory on the Republican side in the Illinois primary election, it was computed from returns received at noon today.

Judge John A. Swanson, marching in the wake of the Emmerson plurality over Gov. Len Small in the gubernatorial race, defeated State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe by 200,000 for the Cook county prosecutor's office.

Frank T. Lowden won eight out of the 20 delegates to the national convention. Otis F. Glenn, Deneen candidate for U. S. Senator triumphed over Col. Frank L. Smith of Cook county and added 150,000 more votes down state.

EARLY BULLETINS
Chicago, April 11.—It was characterized as "the greatest political upheaval in the history of Illinois" by the state Republican faction headed by United States Senator Charles S. Deneen has scored a landslide victory over the "Anti-landslide" forces headed by Governor Len Small, Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, and Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney of Cook county.

Incomplete returns today from 200 precincts indicated that Deneen, secretary of state, has defeated Governor Len Small for the Republican nomination for governor by a majority of 350,000 to 400,000.

Returns from approximately two-thirds of the state's 6,634 precincts show Emmerson is leading the present governor by more than 250,000 votes. Additional returns are expected to swell this total at least 100,000.

Others swept in With Emmerson setting the pace, practically every important Deneen candidate in the state, and in the Cook county contest County Clerk Otis F. Glenn, the Deneen entry for the nomination of U. S. Senator, won over Frank L. Smith, the rejected former Senator-elect, by an estimated majority of 150,000.

Gov. Len Small and Mayor William Hale Thompson have conceded defeat of the ticket headed by Deneen in the Cook county contest between State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe and Judge John A. Swanson for the nomination of state's attorney, the Deneen ticket won the county by a landslide, which indicated he had carried an estimated majority of 125,000.

Emmerson carried to victory his running mates for lieutenant governor and secretary of state, Fred E. Sterling, incumbent, won the former berth and William J. Stratton, the latter.

Jesse E. Carlstrom, attorney general, who sought renomination for the office under the Deneen banner, was successful. State's Attorney Charles S. Deneen, former U. S. Senator, won the "America First" combine.

Kuth H. McCormick and Henry R. Rathbone won the nominations for Congressmen-at-Large in the 11th and 12th districts. Emmerson, in winning the Republican nomination for governor, appears to have smashed all records of recent years, on the basis of today's incomplete returns, which indicate he has carried an overwhelming majority of the state's 102 counties.

Figures from 3,554 precincts out of 6,634 in Illinois give: Emmerson, 533,805; Small, 315,138.

The outpouring of voters was the greatest in any primary election ever held. Upwards of 70 per cent of the total registration is believed to have gone to the polls. State Gov. Small received the returns while at home in Kankakee. Up to midnight, he held the hope that Chicago would ally poll a lead substantial enough to prove him victor.

The names of Herbert Hoover, Vice President Charles G. Dawes and Mayor Thompson were written on the ballots by some voters.

Frank T. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, and the state's "favorite son" in the race for the Republican nomination for president, polled an enormous preference vote. His was the only name that appeared on the Republican ballot.

Lowden gained practically 30 delegates to the national convention from Illinois without contest as a result of yesterday's vote. He is assured of eleven more delegates.

OVER 40,000 ACRES IN STATE FORESTS

In Last Three Years 29,000
Acres Have Been Added to Public Domain.

Hartford, Conn., April 11.—In three years of existence the state forest and wild life commission has added 29,000 acres of land to add to the public domain available for use by residents in Connecticut.

When the commission was established in 1925 the state owned 11,600 acres that could be turned into tree sanctuaries. The total acreage today is 40,000. The State Forestry Department, founded in 1903, accumulated land gradually whenever extra money could be saved from small appropriations, and at the end of twenty years had 11,600 acres in its name.

Latest Purchase
In the first three months of this year the state forest, and wild life commission has purchased additional range of hills in East Hampton, an 4,400 acres of forest land, according to a report here today by Elliott B. Bronson, of Winsted, field agent for the commission. Mr. Bronson reported his latest purchases as eighty acres of land in East Hampton, to be added to the Mesomassie state forest, and twelve acres of land in Watertown, including the Sand dam pond and dam sites, to be added to Black Rock state park.

The noted scenic Sleeping Giant park, which is the largest of the vast range of hills at Mount Carmel in Hamden is to be taken into the state park system gradually, according to the commission's plans. The peak known as Mount Carmel, a prominent figure, has been partially blasted away over a number of years by a trap rock concern, but the general features of the giant will be saved to posterity, it is believed. Appraisers have just been named by the Superior Court to determine the value of 168 acres of land along the Sleeping Giant to form the newest addition to that park.

DR. DOLAN SLATED TO GO TO HOUSTON

Practically Sure to Be Delegate Either at Large or
From the District.

Dr. Edward G. Dolan, delegate from the First Congressional District to the Democratic National convention in New York in 1924, will in all probability be elected either delegate-at-large from this state or delegate from the First District, at the state convention which will be held in Hartford on May 2, Democratic leaders in this town said today.

Dr. Dolan has more than 16 delegates already pledged to his support, eight from this town and eight from Windham. Radio reports last night stated that delegates from the town of Avon had also been instructed for the Manchester man.

Politicians look for Dr. Dolan's election both because he was a delegate to the convention of four years ago and because he is a personal friend of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New Haven, Conn., at Pomfret, Conn., and who staged a wild flight through Windham, Conn. He is an ardent supporter of Governor Smith and was one of those who took a prominent part in the fight for the nomination against William Gibbs McAdoo in the last convention.

The local Democratic caucus last night elected eight delegates, all favorable to Dr. Dolan. They are Edward J. Murphy, Dr. Dolan, Michael O'Connell, C. S. McFie, Thomas Sheridan, Mrs. Andrew Healey, Charles I. Balch and Mrs. John Sheridan.

A town committee was also chosen, consisting of Edward J. Murphy, M. J. O'Connell, Mrs. Murphy, and Dr. Dolan.

Charges of assault with a dangerous weapon and with refusing to halt on order of an officer may be sidetracked if sufficient evidence is at hand to turn them over to Connecticut state authorities in connection with the slaying of Trooper Nelson, police said.

The "Ice Box Bandits", who got their name for locking their victims in store ice boxes, had been sought in the woods between Webster and Pomfret, Conn., but slipped through the great police manhunt during which machine guns and airplanes were used.

Quarreling.

Pittsfield, Mass., April 11.—The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Peppin and another man believed to be Mrs. Peppin's brother were discovered today in their gas filled home in one half of the double dwelling house at 114 Dewey avenue. Gas was flowing from two open jets of a gas stove.

The bodies were on the floor near the stove. Mrs. Peppin's face bore bruises.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sacco, owners of the house and occupants of the adjoining apartment, said they heard a quarrel in the Peppin apartment Monday evening. No sound was heard after that and today Mr. Sacco notified police. The doors were broken down and the bodies discovered.

WARRANT FOR GYPSY
Hartford, Conn., April 11.—Sergeant John F. Madigan, of the local police department, left for Washington, D. C., today armed with requisition directed against the chief justices of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, calling for the extradition of Pedro Nickols, a Gypsy, who is wanted here to answer a charge of obtaining money while operating under the guise of a fortune teller.

BIG MARKETS IN WALL ST. MAKE MILLIONAIRES

New York.—Many new millionaires have been made throughout the country—and in Wall street, too—as a result of the spectacular rise in prices during the recent run of record-breaking 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 shares a day markets on the New York Stock Exchange.

George Briggs Buchanan, who has been a member of a century, says that more than 300 new millionaires were made all over the United States. How many Wall street men ran their profits up into a million or more is problematical. The significant thing about the big boom market which started on March 3 and ran on for weeks was, however, that the general public participated in it more than has ever done before.

"The public took the market away from the big operators in Wall street," was the assertion of Buchanan, who has observed the trend of the market since long before such glamorous figures as the late Russell Sage and E. H. Harriman dominated it.

Public Takes Part

In Buchanan's opinion, the tremendous listing of stocks from all over the country and the participation of the public from coast to coast in the market have made it impossible for any group to materially influence the Wall street market except in a temporary way.

Many of the new millionaires around the country had bought certain stocks early and held them while they were going up, playing a less conservative game than some of the experienced Wall street traders who were constantly anticipating a reaction. However, many of the so-called "big fellows" are credited with heavy winnings. They include John J. Rascoe, of New York, the general motors official; Arthur Cutton of Chicago; Michael J. ("Mike") Meehan, of at large when the Republican state convention meets April 20.

Smith Wins Delegates

Gov. Al Smith of New York added at least 52 delegates from Illinois in yesterday's Democratic primary. He is practically assured of eight additional delegates when the Democratic state convention meets.

Taking hold of the state and county campaign two weeks ago, when it appeared almost hopeless, lost, Senator Deneen injected such vim and vigor into the battle that sentiment began to grow almost overnight.

The change in public sentiment, it is conceded, was hastened by the killing of "Diamond Joe" Esposito, Deneen lieutenant in the 25th Ward, and the bombing of the Senator and Judge Swanson's home the night of Esposito's funeral.

Gov. Len Small's defeat was attributed more to the third term jinx than public dissatisfaction with his two administrations. Illinois never had elected a governor for a third successive term. Even Senator Deneen failed to make the hurdle after spending eight years in the executive mansion in Springfield.

TO START PROBE

Chicago, April 11.—Even before the count of the ballots was complete, machinery was set in motion today to prosecute those responsible for the widespread disorders that marked yesterday's frenzied primary election.

The campaign reign of terror that made the primary the most bitterly contested in the history of Chicago reached a climax at the polls. Bloodshed and rioting were more or less general throughout the city.

The crowning act of violence was the assassination of Attorney Octavian C. Grandy, Negro candidate for committee from the 20th Ward under the Deneen banner.

Two Murdered

Grandy was the second Deneen ward candidate to be shot to death by gangsters. "Diamond Joe" Esposito having been slain several weeks ago.

Grandy was cruising the district in his automobile when four gangsters rode up behind him in another car and filled his body with slugs from sawed-off shotguns. The slayers escaped.

Raleigh H. Taylor, personal bailiff of Judge Rush, was sent to the hospital after four men slugged him into insensibility in front of a polling place. Numerous such sluggings and disorders occurred throughout the city and county.

Kidnapings were frequent and scores of attempts to intimidate voters were reported. Several attempts to steal ballot boxes or stuff them with fraudulent votes were frustrated by guards.

MOTHER-GIRL NOTE IN FILMLAND FASHIONS

Hollywood, Cal.—"Like mother like daughter" is Hollywood's byword in fashion!

Enid Bennet, in private life Mrs. Fred Niblo, is credited with introducing the mother-daughter ensemble.

For spring sports wear, I design several lines of sleeveless dresses with three-quarter coats of self-material," adds Mrs. Niblo, a star in her own right. "So convenient are these simple models that I order duplicates for my six-year old daughter, Loris.

When she wears an orchid tinted ensemble, I harmonize with the same style in peach tones, and continue. "Complimentary colors offer interesting contrast. Linen costumes are especially comfortable and crisp for summer time.

Florence Vidor also patterns many of Suzanne's dresses after her own. Sparsely is the keynote of all sportswear, so that women's and children's models may be exactly copied and remain in perfect taste."

VERMONT'S VOTE.

Washington, April 11.—The Vermont delegation to the Republican national convention will go to Kansas City instructed to vote as one man for the nomination of its native son, Calvin Coolidge, Senator of Vermont, announced today.

The Vermont Senator made the statement in denying an article published in New York saying the Vermont delegation will go to the convention with six votes instructed for Coolidge and five for Hoover.

INJURY JINX STRIKES DARTMOUTH'S CAPTAIN OF FOOTBALL SQUAD

Hanover, N. H.—The injury jinx that nearly always strikes Dartmouth captains has hit Dartmouth early. Usually the jinx does not arrive until the football season opens.

Dick Black, Illinois boy who will captain the Big Green on the gridiron next fall, is confined to the college infirmary as a result of an operation on his knee. There is a bad muscle sprain under the kneecap, with possible water of knee, and at the present time, it is doubtful if Black will compete for Dartmouth again in any sport.

Dick was forced to abandon football last fall, just at the time when his smashing line thrusts were most needed by the Hawley coached eleven. This winter he had to forego hurdling with its many trips from Hanover to New York, Boston and Philadelphia.

CHARLIE BIRGER BADLANDS CHIEF SOON WILL HANG

Benton, Ill.—Charlie Birger, gangster generalissimo of the southern Illinois badlands, once the most powerful figure in a land torn with strife and bloodshed, is scheduled to go to his death on the gallows here April 13, for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams, of West City, Ill.

With the execution of Birger, which will occur unless something unforeseen should happen, the middlewest will lose one of the worst but one of the most colorful bandits of all time.

Brave as a lion, cautious as a fox, with the false courage of a potentate backed by powerful gangsters, Birger never hesitated when a deed of violence was consummated.

Into villages and good-sized towns, he strode, two guns strapped to his hips, head up, snarling defiance at law and authorities the dapper gangster would go. He asked his enemies to meet him on the streets, to "shoot it out." He asked no quarter and gave none himself.

Thinning Ranks

With him in his illicit liquor and vice enterprises were such noted worthies in "Bloody Williamson" County as Carl, Earl and Bernard Shelton, "Ray" Hyland, Art Newman, Connie Wooster and others, "that was years ago."

Since then the ranks have been diminished due to hard work by prosecutors and gangster guns.

Newman is serving a life sentence for participation in the same murder for which Birger is sentenced to hang. Carl, Earl and Bernard Shelton have been sentenced to serve 25 years in prison for a mail robbery. They are now out on bond appealing the decision to the federal court.

Hyland is serving a life term. Ritter, hunted in the bayous of Louisiana when he had fled ratlike when the Sheltons were arrested, was finally nabbed and was held for trial.

The gang is gone. Gone also are the machine guns, the roadhouse, the place where many murders were planned, the armored car with which Birger terrorized his neighbors, the airplanes and bombs.

Plans All Fall

Once they were all together, Birger and the lot. But internecine warfare sprung up—fueled by hatred in the liquor rackets and soon all were snatching at one another's throats. Birger and Newman allied themselves against the Sheltons to the latter's sorrow.

Then Birger and Newman from opposite sides of a court hurled anathemas at each other to no avail.

Birger, cornered and sentenced, while still in a cell here recently told that he had been given a "deal." He broadcast an appeal for help among the people of southern Illinois whom he defied for years. He asked them to give him clemency for his "wife and babies" the same way and babies whom he plunged into an atmosphere of all that was not clean.

He begged of the supreme court of Illinois to save his life which failed as the court concurred with the sentence of the original court. He hinted perhaps he was insane.

"Even if I did kill Joe Adams I don't feel that I should be hanged," he said. "Everyone knows that Joe Adams was gunning for me at the time and that he harbored that Shelton gang."

All his pleas have failed.

He is sentenced to hang although he had a call here recently in jail because he was found guilty at a time when hanging was the law.

MEMPHIS BEING FLOODED WITH VISITING GANGSTERS; POLICE RUN THEM OUT

Memphis, Tenn.—Deportation of visiting gangsters by police continues in Memphis with much vigor.

Several northern gangsters, from St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit and New York, have been taken into custody in the police clean-up drive here, taken to the state line and given an "official send-off."

"They will not come back," once they go through one of our deportation ceremonies," say police officials.

Memphis is flooded with visiting gangsters, say officials.

BRITISH RECORD RUNNER TO TURN PROFESSIONAL

London.—Arthur Newton, who at 45 has set up a new world's record for running 100 miles, is to turn professional. He has accepted an invitation to compete in the International Trans-Continental race from Los Angeles to New York City, starting on March 8.

Newton says he regrets losing his amateur status, which he greatly prizes, but he says he is finished financially, having spent a small fortune in pursuing a claim against the South African Government.

If he is lucky in the present venture, then he will return to South Africa and start farming all over again. He sailed for New York on February 4, and believes at his chances of winning are second to none.

NAME BIRTH CONTROL FOR 750,000 FAMILIES HAVING NO CHILDREN

London.—Within the past four years British births have risen over forty thousand. At the present time, out of 1,500,000 married couples, without children in the country, 750,000 deliberately refuse to become parents.

Not only Britain's birth-rate lowest in Europe, but it is the lowest in that country for eighty-nine years. During 1927 there were 300,000 fewer children born than in 1920, and in every quarter of that year the birth rate was lower than in 1926. In 2,500,000 homes there is today only one child.

Birth control, coupled with the high-cost of living, is blamed for this present, supposedly dangerous, state of affairs.

APPOINT LIBRARIAN

Cambridge, Mass., April 11.—Robert Pierpont Blake, assistant professor of history and tutor in the division of history, government and economics at Harvard University, has been appointed director of the University library, it was announced last night.

Bolton Palace Attracting Many Dancers From Distant Cities As Weather Improves.

A new orchestra, a new promoter, and a better time for all is promised those who attend Thursday night's dances at the Rainbow Dance Palace in Bolton. All modern dancing is enjoyed at the Rainbow on Saturday nights, with the usual modern and old-fashioned numbers every Thursday night.

CALIFORNIA PARTY HAS EXCITING TIME IN ASIATIC HOLD-UP

Bombay.—Conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson of San Francisco, a party of distinguished Californians had an exciting adventure in Cambodia, French Indo-China, recently, when they were held up at the point of a revolver in which they were riding.

The party, which is on a world tour, started from San Francisco on October 15 last. Already they have visited Honolulu, China, Japan, and various parts of India, where inland excursions have been made.

At Cambodia the party chartered an automobile for an inland tour and they had journeyed several dozen miles when they proposed a return to their ship.

The driver demanded an exorbitant fare for the return journey. Unfamiliar with the ways of the East, they were, however, so confident in the ways of the world to refuse the extravagant charge demanded by the driver.

He, however, reinforced his argument at the point of a revolver which he drew from his pocket immediately on seeing the hesitancy displayed by his fares.

The land lying under the Zuyder Zee. Five years later he resented his plan, but the Dutch government did not decide to undertake the great task until 1918. The work is now well under way.

DE LUXE AUTOS WITH BARS FOR FRENCH TRAVEL

Cherbourg.—A fleet of ten "grand luxe" auto-cars fitted with a bar, at which the passengers may be served their favorite cocktails during the voyage, will be ready to transport incoming tourists to Paris this season, according to plans being made by a large travel agency.

The directors of the company say the cars will be Pullman cars on wheels with special springs for riding qualities and will deliver passengers in Paris eight hours after their arrival from the liners.

A stop will be made at the half-way for lunch in some picturesque Normandy "Auberge." A barman will be attendant who will also be in the capacity of guide and will point out the interesting sights along the route.

"A passenger on our buses," says the manager, "will know more about France upon his arrival in Paris than in the past. We intend to show them the Cathedrals along the way and also the towns of Bayeux, Caen, Lisieux and Evreux—all historic at the time of William the Conqueror.

"The cars will pass the Malmaison and the Castle at St. Germain into Paris and will drop the passengers at their hotels."

The management of the new bus lines point out that the new transportation will enable passengers on the small liners to get better service into Paris than heretofore.

Up to the present time the railway company would not furnish special trains for the liners arriving with a small number of tourists. These passengers were obliged to take "local" trains that made ten hour run into Paris. With the new system the company hopes to get the unfortunate ones into Paris as soon as those passengers off the big liners.

HOLLAND COMPLETING ENGINEERING FEAT OF DRAINING ZUYDER ZEE

Cambridge, Mass.—Dr. Cornelius Lely, renowned engineer and inventor of the vast plan to drain the Zuyder Zee and claim a new land from the sea for Holland, arrives here shortly on a lecture tour. Dr. Lely will deliver two lectures on Holland's fight with the waters.

During the middle ages, large areas of Holland were washed in to the sea and much of the Zuyder Zee was at one time land. In 1886, Dr. Lely was commissioned to study the problem of reclaiming the land lying under the Zuyder Zee. Five years later he resented his plan, but the Dutch government did not decide to undertake the great task until 1918. The work is now well under way.

This great engineering feat includes the construction of approximately twenty miles of dykes, sea dykes in the world, which will separate the Zuyder Zee from the North Sea, making the latter an inland lake.

The dyke is under construction from the shores of North Holland to Friesland, on the Island of West-Gen being a connecting link. That part of the dyke between Holland and the island, a distance of more than a mile, has been built. The remaining section, nineteen miles long, will take about eight years to construct.

In the dyke will be two locks and three sluices. These are for controlling the waters which are carried to the sea by the Yessel River, one of the branches of the Rhine.

When the huge task is completed Holland will have reclaimed more than 500,000 acres of land which is expected to be valuable for agriculture. This land will accommodate 500,000 people and relieve to a great extent the overpopulated condition of the country.

JAFAR, IRAQI WAR HERO, HONORED BY BOTH SIDES, ANGRY AT KING FEISAL

Bagdad.—One of the few leaders in the Great War to have won honors from both sides in Jafar Pasha who recently resigned as Prime Minister of Iraq, following a sharp clash with King Feisal.

The disclosure of the different honors which fell to Jafar Pasha is made by Robert Graves who in his "Lawrence and the Arabs" recalls that Jafar was awarded the Iron Cross in 1925 for fighting on the side of the Germans in the desert west of Egypt. He was captured by a British regiment and while a prisoner realized that the better side for Arab independence was the British.

The British who set him free to join the Emir Feisal, now the monarch with whom he has fallen out, Jafar became commander-in-chief of the Arab army, being awarded by the British, after the capture of Damascus, the title of Commander of St. Michael and St. George.

Sidewalks were ordered built on Lewis street between South Main and Spring streets. They will be four feet wide and granite curbing will be set. The street is to be widened three feet, a steep bank on the west side being partly on the street line. Thomas Hickey offered to give the town gravel on his land as part payment on his taxes. The highway committee will investigate, but the board was of the opinion that it would not be good policy to establish the precedent. Engineer Bowen will prepare cost figures on the regrading of Franklin street so that work can be started there this summer.

BRITAIN MUST GET $40,000 FUND FOR OLYMPIC EXPENSES

London.—Unless $40,000 can be raised by public subscription before the end of April, the British Olympic Council will be compelled to inform the Dutch Olympic Committee that Great Britain cannot participate in the 1928 Olympic Games, according to Lord Rochdale, chairman of the British Committee.

The extraordinary confession that the British Olympic Council is in dire financial straits is contained in a circular letter issued by Lord Rochdale to the press, in which he appeals for funds.

"Twenty-five thousand dollars has already been collected," Lord Rochdale says. "To send a full team of about 300 it is necessary that $40,000 more, as a bare minimum, should be raised.

"If this is not forthcoming by the end of April we must inform the Dutch authorities that, through lack of funds, Great Britain cannot participate in the Games.

"We know we have worthy representatives, but we have not the funds. The British Government does not subsidize the British teams, as do the Governments of other countries. If Great Britain falls out now, she must lose her position in the world councils of sport, and her influence in upholding its highest and best traditions."

The newspaper appeal to the sporting public to respond generously to the appeal and to ensure that Britain sends a team to the Games.

PEKING THRILLED AS JAPANESE COUPLE WED WITH ORIENTAL RITES

Peking.—Peking enjoyed a picturesque wedding ceremony of old Japan when Miss Masako Yoshizawa, daughter of the Japanese Minister to China, became the bride of Mr. Sadao Iguchi, Oxford graduate and promising young diplomat.

The bride dressed in the ceremonial kimono with its family crests and the white head-dress and hair ornaments knelt upon a mat facing the kneeling bridegroom across two small uchikaki or miniature tables placed a short distance apart. The go-between, Mr. Hori, councillor of the Legation, handed to each of the young pair the three cups of sake or rice wine. It was the joint sipping of these cups that sealed the marriage.

Following that was the singing of the utai, the ancient wedding song of Japan, by one of the male guests. Only a few relatives and intimate friends were permitted to witness the impressive rites and they were garbed in formal Japanese clothing.

In contrast to the purely oriental wedding ceremony was the official reception held at the spacious Japanese Legation immediately afterwards when three hundred members of the diplomatic and official circles of the Chinese capital came to wish the Iguchi good luck. Some twenty nationalities were present in morning coat and top hat as well as Japanese kimono and Chinese silk gown.

The bride graduated last year from the Peers School in Tokyo and coming to Jeking fell in love. Mr. Iguchi who had just returned from service at the Japanese Embassy in London.

CARS PARKED OVERTIME GROW A CROP OF TAGS

Manchester police today launched another campaign against parking violators who have been ignoring the one hour parking limit established for the east side of Main street from the south end from School street to the Center.

Patrolman John McGlinn "chalked" scores of automobiles and tagged some of them when they were allowed to remain too long. This is taken to mean that some of the cases in police court tomorrow morning may concern parking restriction violators.

For some time it has been apparent that motorists have been ignoring the time limit and the action taken by the police today had been expected. The new ordinance prohibits parking for more than one hour between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. on all days except Thursday and Saturday, when the restriction holds good until 9 p. m. Sundays are excepted.

FIND FLYER'S BODY

Washington, April 11.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Commander T. G. Elyson and two companions in a naval seaplane while enroute from Norfolk to Annapolis a month ago was partially cleared up today when the body of Commander Elyson was washed ashore at Willoughby Spit, near Norfolk.

Elyson and his companions left Norfolk before daylight for the comparatively short trip to Annapolis where the commander's young daughter was in the hospital.

The fact that the flyer's body was washed ashore from the ocean indicated to naval experts that in the darkness and early morning fog the flyers became confused and got off their course.

CHICAGO CRIME LISTS SHOW 100 GANG WAR DEAD

Chicago.—A "birds-eye" view of the crime situation in Chicago today shows that more than 100 men in the last sixteen months have been killed in gangland feuds over liquor, vice and gambling. Ninety per cent of these murders are unsolved.

The entire south and west sides of Chicago are said to be controlled by a vast liquor syndicate headed by "Scarface Al" Capone, and his chief lieutenant, Jackie Cusick. This syndicate handles gambling, vice and liquor and is said to receive annually $75,000,000.

The north side, until quite recently, was controlled in part by Alvin Karpis and his associates. The man Titus Haffa and his associates were indicted by the federal grand jury on numerous counts charging violation of the prohibition law.

Smaller politicians
The northwest side has still another group, headed by Billy Skirmish and Barney Berisch, formerly minor politicians.

More than 65 bombs have been exploded in Chicago, directed as a means of terrorism, at the homes of politicians, beer barons, labor heads and others.

Six of these bombs were directed at prominent city politicians and one against United States Senator Charles S. Deneen who heads a major political party here.

There have been more than 1,500 major robberies, the largest of which was the blasting of a mail train, the thieves obtaining $133,000 in cash. The men were later arrested by federal agents, however. These robberies do not include petty thievery nor pocket picking but only those robberies boldly executed by force.

There have been about an equal amount of burglaries.

There have been no execution as punishment for murder, although Dr. Amante Rongetti is now in the county jail awaiting his death on the gallows April 13 for the murder of a young girl by a criminal operation and the murder of her newly born child.

Slot machines
More than 3,000 slot machines, the pettiest form of muling school children's money, have been placed in advantageous spots in the city's poolrooms, candy stores, cigar stores and other places. It is not generally known who has placed these machines in stores, Capone denied contemptuously that he sought gambling money on such a cheap scale.

Two prohibition agents in Chicago have been arrested and indicted by the federal grand jury for accepting bribes and for their connections with the Haffa alleged alcohol ring, which also involves a prominent west side politician.

POLICE COURT

Antonio Muscillo of Homestead street was before the Manchester town court this morning on two charges, that of keeping liquor with intent to sell, and of non-support of his wife and family. He was defended by Attorney William S. Hyde. In the absence of Judge Raymond A. Johnson, the deputy judge, Thomas Ferguson, was on the bench. The witnesses for the state included Edward Elliott, Jr., probation officer, Miss Jessie Reynolds, social service nurse, as well as Lieutenant William Barron, Sergeant John Crockett and Patrolmen Michael Fitzgerald and John McGilgan. Other witnesses included Mrs. Muscillo, their son and Camilla Tilano, aka, a sister of the defendant. When the policemen visited Muscillo's home yesterday they found 71 bottles of beer, 7 quarts of liquor, an 8-gallon and a 5-gallon still, 8 cans of malt, 10 gallons of beer and 50 pounds of brown sugar. It was brought out in the evidence that the defendant was convicted on a similar charge last November and paid a fine and costs. He has done little or nothing since that time other than to make hooch. His wife works in a tobacco shed in Glastonbury and is the main support of her three children. The house was ill-kept and there was little or no food to be found in the place yesterday according to the officers.

Prosecuting Attorney Hathaway said he thought it was about time this man was punished for selling liquor. He recommended that he be sent to jail for 30 days and a fine of $200 imposed. Attorney Hyde said that about the only thing he was interested in was the penalty imposed. He argued that the man could not very well support his family if he was sent to jail. However, the prosecutor stated that they could get along very well without him as he had failed to support them in the last six months.

Judge Ferguson found Muscillo guilty on both charges and imposed a fine of $200 and costs and a jail sentence of 30 days for keeping liquor with intent to sell. On the non-support charge he gave him a jail sentence of 30 days and suspended the jail sentence on condition that he pay his wife $10 for her support. Judge Hyde gave notice of an appeal to the Superior Court and a bond of $3,000 was furnished by Dominic Mastropietro of 92 Clinton street, for his appearance there.

Ernest H. McNeill paid a fine of $10 and costs for speeding. He was arrested by Traffic Patrolman Wirralta on North Main street yesterday afternoon. The officer said McNeill drove through Depot Square at the rate of 40 miles an hour and increased that speed to 46 at the Second Congregational church.

Two other cases were before the court, that of John Stavolo, for theft was continued until April 14, and Thomas Morrison for reckless driving was continued until April 18.

CAMBRIDGE STUDENTS TURNING TO LABOR, GIVING UP SPORTS

Cambridge, Eng. — Cambridge students, according to the statistics, are turning more to work and less to pleasure and sport. "We insist on getting more out of the University than the character-training and good time which sport offers," says a recent number of the "Gowman," a Cambridge student journal. "An element of seriousness has entered the University; the existence and flourishing state of the Appointments Board is significant.

"There may still be many of us here who have jobs waiting for us, but the tolerance of fathers and uncles; there are many more who realize that their future employers may not be so tolerant to sons and nephews not their own. "A university training is still a qualification, but nowhere a necessity.

The majority of Cambridge men today know that success will only come from their own efforts and that they must begin early."

TO TRY GAMBLERS
Waterbury, Conn., April 11.—A jury was being drawn here this afternoon to try thirteen men, arrested last week in a series of raids by state police on alleged gambling places. Five of the prisoners are accused of conducting gambling places and are under bonds of $5,000 each, while eight are charged with assisting and are in bonds of $3,000 each. Judge Edwin C. Dickenson, of the Superior Court, will preside over the trial which is scheduled to start at ten a. m., tomorrow. A week hence fifty-four persons arrested as frequenters of gambling places will appear in City Court.

BANDIT ROBS TRAIN
Red Bluff, Calif., April 11.—A lone bandit held up the Shasta Limited, a crack Southern Pacific train, and robbed a score of passengers of money and jewelry today. Boarding the train here the bandit went through the Pullmans, flashed a gun on occupants of berths along the curtained cars, and forced them to surrender money and valuables. He swung off the last car as the train whirled into the Redding yards.

K. C. GANGS RAID AND ROB CITY'S CABARET PLACES

Kansas City, Mo.—Cabarets and alleged "soft drink" palaces are the latest victims of gangs from Kansas City's underworld. Three such places have been completely "sacked" by robbers in the last few days.

"It's just like a band of bandits holding up a gang of robbers," one police official asserted. "The hold-up men are aware that most of these houses sell all kinds of liquor, run gambling games, and other devices, all operating outside of the law." They likewise know there is little possibility that the police when he is liable to be arrested himself. The majority of the patrons of such dives will not report their losses as they want the affair hushed up.

Profits To Bandits
These places offer the greatest profit to the bandit, at the least risk of getting caught. Chief William A. Shreeve, of the Kansas City police department, believes. "All efforts to arrest anyone in connection with such robberies, and obtain positive identification of the incident, are almost always futile," Chief Shreeve stated.

The raids, usually made between midnight and dawn when the places are at the height of their rush, often net the plunderers thousands of dollars, for in recent cases several hundred persons were searched, it was said. And because of the fact that many of the victims are girls from prominent families, or husbands accompanied by someone other than their wives, they are not prone to make complaint about the incident fearing notoriety.

In an instance, the bandits were so sure of their ground that while one stood guard over the victims lined against a wall, the others liberally collected all of the nickels, dimes and quarters that had been played in them. Then searched the customers taking their jewelry and pocket-books, and all of the proprietor's funds.

Still another method of extracting loot from those who habituate the post prohibition haunts has come to light here recently. In this procedure bandits pick a wealthy customer, usually a prominent business man, and kidnap him as he makes his exit from a "dive." His closest associates are informed they will have to pay a handsome reward for his freedom.

This is most usually given, as the victim's friends, cognizant of the situation under which he was captured, are afraid to enlist the aid of the authorities, in apprehending the kidnapers. Several such cases have been strongly intimated recently, and one it was rumored that a $40,000 ransom was paid.

URGE NEW SCHOOLS AND NURSERIES FOR CHILDREN 2 TO 5

Cleveland.—A mistake has been made in neglecting the education of children between the ages of 2 and 5 and the time is not far distant when nursery schools will be established, where these kiddies, just out of their cradles will attend.

This prediction was made by Miss Josephine McLatchy, of the bureau of education's research of the Ohio State University, who has just completed a survey of kindergarten schools of Cleveland and vicinity for the International Kindergarten Union.

FALL ORDERED ALL TO KEEP DEAL SECRET

mer was done thoroughly, however. The clerk first called for his presence, and three deputy marshals were then sent through the court house corridors dreading out "H. M. Blackmer" repeatedly.

Roberts then called half a dozen western bankers who produced Fall's account in 1922. These witnesses were on the stand only briefly and their testimony was merely for the purpose of further verifying the fact that Fall had the Sinclair Liberty Bonds in his possession. There was no cross examination.

Letters Introduced
Having completed the establishment of the Liberty Bond transaction, Roberts then reverted to the beginning of the Liberty Bond oil negotiations and started the task of revealing to the jury what led up to the leasing of Teapot Dome. First he introduced in evidence a multitude of letters, telegrams and government files. This was tedious work, as the defense examined each document closely.

A telegram revealed that Sinclair, a former attorney, the late J. W. Zevely, visited Fall at his New Mexico ranch Christmas week, 1921. Apology was made for intruding on the secretary's holiday, but it was explained the incident was of the nature of the "business" in question was the first proposal to lease the naval oil reserve.

On February 23, 1922, Sinclair made a formal offer to Fall for the reserve, agreeing to supply the navy with fuel oil in storage and to build a 1,000 mile, $18,000,000 pipe line to the Atlantic coast in exchange for the privilege of working the field.

Five days later, G. T. Stanford, Sinclair lawyer who was called to the stand, testified, Sinclair organized the Mammoth Oil Company to handle the expected lease. A million shares of stock, no par value, were issued, and later an additional 1,005,000.

On March 11, 1922, Sinclair wrote Fall and advised him of the birth of the Mammoth Oil Company. Sinclair wrote that, as he "personally would own all the stock," he could guarantee fulfillment of any contract.

Bids for Dome
Accompanying this letter was a bid for several small claims then staked out on the oil reserve. At the cost of about $1,000,000, Sinclair had bought out these claims—of questionable validity, the government asserted—and turned them back to the government as an added inducement to get the lease of the whole reserve.

Roberts read the jury a deposition taken from Zevely shortly before the latter's death. Zevely, in it, told of the December visit to New Mexico and subsequent details of drawing up the Sinclair proposition.

MOVIES PLAN TO MAKE SUBMARINE PICTURE EXPOSE

Hollywood, Cal.—While nations quarrel over the status of the submarine, the movies are preparing to take the lid off the sub-sea boats so that the public may know how they "tick."

Dana Burnet, noted short story writer, arrived here to develop a photograph of the daring men who gamble their lives below the sea's surface. Burnet comes direct from the Navy sub base at New London, Connecticut where he "dove" in sister-ships of the ill-fated S-4.

Sannuel Goldwyn, pioneer film producer, who is to make the story, said: "The submarine is on trial before the world. It is the best publicized and least-known thing in world news.

Help In Solution.
"With every nation on the edge of serious decisions regarding submarines, I feel that the film industry owes the world a sincere effort of assistance in the solution of one of the most absorbing questions of the century.

"The thought we have been met with the interested sympathy of high naval officers. They have been handicapped by the ignorance and misconceptions of the public.

MENTAL DISEASE MAY BE AVOIDED AS ANY ILLNESS

Sacramento.—Mental disease may be avoided just as surely as physical illness.

So declares Dr. Anita Muhl, director of the state department of special education and noted psychiatrist, today.

"No one ever goes insane without warning, although the expression 'he went insane suddenly' is common enough," Dr. Muhl says. "There are always danger signals before a breakdown. It may seem to a community that a man or woman goes 'off' without notice but close inquiry always reveals a period of unusual behavior preceding an irrational attack of any kind. And often they will admit 'he was always queer as a child'."

Start in Childhood
And it is in childhood that the foundation for psychopathic conditions is laid according to the state's educational psychologist. Hence she claims it is necessary to study the peculiarities of children in order to direct their mental lives into healthy and normal channels.

"The time to begin avoiding insanity and nervous disorders is as soon as the individual shows a lack of adaptation to his environment," the woman physician asserts. "The child who mopes and appears unsocialable with his playmates should be studied carefully and his morbid tendencies corrected."

Frequently some forgotten emotional experiences of early life is repressed and returns to haunt an adult, Dr. Muhl explains. "For instance, I studied the case of a man with a suicidal desire to jump off a bridge," she recounts. "He was wealthy, happily married, had everything in fact to live for. "Upon exploring his subconscious memory an incident which occurred in his seventh year was found to be the cause of his insane desire for self-destruction. At that age he had witnessed the drowning of a child. He stood on a bridge unable to swim and saw his playmate go under. Instead of jumping in he ran for help. The youngster had sunk before help arrived. At the time he suffered keenly from the feeling that he should have plunged from the bridge in an attempt to rescue the other boy. He had forgotten the circumstances years before, but the hidden memory of it tormented him, as soon as it was drawn out into the open, the man was cured of his morbid impulses."

Parents should make a distinction between self control and repression. Self control cannot be taught too young, but the child should not be forced to bottle up his emotions without understanding them, Dr. Muhl insists.

CONNECTICUT FOGS DANGER TO FLYING; AIR MAILS SUFFER

Putnam, Conn.—Airmen fear the bleak spaces of northeastern Connecticut where a winter fog runs in from the ocean and follow the Thames river into its wooded sources near here. Twice in the course of a few months the night mail has been wrecked, once with the loss of the aviator.

Though Connecticut is but a few miles across and many state air beacons fling long arms of light around a circle on the skies, this section of the Boston-Hartford-New York route has become a region compared to a reedy shore of the ocean. A thick wall of fog arises from the ridges here and blots out the beacons, sometimes while sections a few miles away are clear.

Howard Stark, of Boston, ran into such conditions, this spring, and was forced into his first emergency landing after putting more than one thousand flying hours. Stark lost his bearings and went down. He landed and then crashed while taxiing over the ground, wrecking his plane.

Daniel Cline, of Boston, went down early in the winter. He cut the fog in his plane and went head-on into trees, losing his life. Many hours afterward searchers found his body and the wrecked plane.

The "wreck of the night mail" has taken on a new meaning in this district since in July, 1926, the planes began to drone across on the chief New England route.

TREE MAKES COME-BACK AGAINST A SAUCY FORD

Being Merely a Warning to Those Cars That Wander Too Far on High Street.

"Ford Makes Come-Back" might well be the heading on this story, if the facts in the case were not so pointedly against the Ford.

Miss Marguerite Bengs, local welfare nurse, parked her Ford sedan on High street yesterday afternoon. Now High street beyond Cooper street is a high street in make-it-on-high and you leave the car in high going the other way the driver is liable to land on high.

Evidently the emergency brake wasn't doing so well by duty for not long after being parked the Ford started to roam.

The Ford hit the tree head-on, right in its own midriff. The tree bent back as though amazed at the Ford's action.

STEPHENSON TELLS MORE ABOUT KLAN

Says Ku Kluxers Tried to Ruin the Character of U. S. Senator Fess.

Editor's Note: This is the fourth of a series on the deposition of D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana Klan leader, and exposing the alleged operations of the Ku Klux Klan.

Chicago, April 11.—David C. Stephenson, former Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, who made a lengthy deposition in Indiana state penitentiary where he is serving a life term for murder, told yesterday how the Klan was alleged to have used women to besmirch the characters of honest men.

In the installment today, he tells how Senator Simeon D. Fess was made the object of a plot because he had voted against a bill to abolish parochial schools by national legislation.

Stephenson tells too of plots of a similar nature against other men and of how his life was threatened when he protested the killing of Tom Austin, Klan agent.

The Affidavit
The affidavit continues: "Another instance was an attempt made to involve the name of Senator Simeon D. Fess in a compromise with a woman because Senator Fess (then Senator-elect but a member of the House of Representatives) while a member of the House, had voted against and had opposed the Sterling-Towner bill. The bill had to do with the abolition of parochial schools. The bill was entirely un-American, an unjust, unwholesome thing, and sought to delegate to the government powers not primarily intended to be vested in the federal government.

"I endeavored to enlist the active opposition of all members in the states over which I had control against the bill and succeeded in stirring up some sentiment against it.

Senator Attacked
"A Klan magazine published a series of articles violently attacking Senator Fess. I received a letter which I still have telling me that some men had been sent into Ohio with a view to having them besmirch the name of Senator Fess. I immediately called a conference which resulted in over 2,000 letters of protest against the Klan's character assassination of Senator Fess.

"Another instance in which a woman was used for illegal purposes was when Big Nettie was sent to Muncie, Ind., to a man to whom she told a sob story to the effect her daughter had been kidnapped and against her will had been placed in a convent in California. 'Big Nettie' told him she had since learned the girl was in an Ohio convent just east of Muncie. 'Big Nettie' was sent because the man was known to be a fannel-mouthed hate-prophet against the Catholic people.

Stephenson then related in his deposition that he was approached by this man and promised an investigation. Stephenson said he learned there was a girl placed in a California convent and later one in Ohio and that the girl wished to be allowed to live with her mother. But, Stephenson related, it was learned the real mother had a court record and was found to be not a fit person to assume guardianship of the girl. Also it was shown "Big Nettie" was not the mother.

"The story is briefly," the deposition continues, "that it was thought that by appealing to this man he could excite some sort of violence on the part of the Klan in this part of the country and thereby drag it down to the moral level of the Klan in the states of Texas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee, where, as a part of their 100 per cent Americanism, 15 or 20 heroes, of their own opinion, at least, take on unfortunate covering individual into the woods, unmercifully beat and torture him, even to burning him alive.

Cut Off Ears
"In many instances they even branded them, cut off their ears and turned them nose as the last walking delegate of the frightful walking delegation of the Klan. Another instance was when they tried to direct Tom Austin to employ a woman to use in an attack upon me. Austin refused. They therefore arranged to assign him to New Jersey or lower New York. Austin obeyed the assignment, went to the designated spot, and very shortly after he arrived, the gunmen stationed there with instructions to kill Austin, met him on the street and began firing at him. Austin returned the fire and both men fell dead.

"Still another instance when they tried to use a woman to besmirch the name of a man was in my own case."
Stephenson said at some length in his deposition that he had been summoned to New York and at a conference in the McAlpin hotel he had heated words with certain Klan leaders.

Stephenson said he took a train to Columbus and noticed a man following him who later registered at the Desha hotel there about the same time he did.

A Frame-up
"I retired," the deposition continued, "in one of the hotel rooms. I was awakened during the night by a terrific noise. I got up and found two boys and two men dressed in policemen's uniforms in my room. One of them had a bottle of liquor. There was a lot of fighting between them and I was arrested and was told charges would be placed against me. They never were.

"Later they claimed I had been banished from the Ku Klux Klan

How Henry Ford Mines His Coal

Auto King Paying High Wages and Has No Labor Troubles While Other Operators Fight Miners.

Above, Twin Branch, W. Va., Henry Ford's coal mine town, where neatness and cleanliness have replaced the traditional mine town squalor. Below, at the right, is the power house with its expanse of trim lawn; left is a group of miner's children shooting marbles; below them is the clubhouse, where recreational facilities are available for miners.

EDITOR'S NOTE: How is Henry Ford able to operate his coal mine profitably at a wage equal to $7.50 a day, the scale that other mine owners abrogated when they broke the Jacksonville agreement and thereby brought about the coal strike? The Herald and NEA Service sent Bruce Catton to Ford's model mine town to find out. Here is his story.

BY BRUCE CATTON

NEA Service Writer
Twin Branch, W. Va.—Here in the heart of the West Virginia soft coal field, which the rest of the country often looks on as the abiding place of strife, poverty and misery, there is a coal mining town.

Where miners are averaging between seven and eight dollars a day for eight hours work.
Where their trim, neatly-painted homes make up as pleasant a village as you would care to visit.

Where contentment is the prevailing note—among workers, wives and children.
Where cleanliness has replaced the traditional squalor of the mining town.

Where an armed guard is never seen.
The town, and the mine which has called it into being, are owned and operated by Henry Ford. Elsewhere miners may be hungry and idle, but here they are happy and at work.

Twin Branch, which is the Ford town, is tucked away in the mountains in the center of McDowell county, richest of all of West Virginia's bituminous coal fields. It lies in a half-pen bend of Tug river, surrounded on all sides by high, heavily wooded peaks. To reach it one follows a winding, precipitous road a dozen miles from the county seat, Welch.

Entering the town, the first thing you notice is its cleanliness. Senator Gooding of Idaho, chairman of the Senate's coal strike investigating committee, has called the coal town a blotch on American civilization. But the dirt, refuse heaps, unpainted shacks and squalid desolation that provoked his remark are not seen here. The houses are painted a neat blue-gray, with white trimmings. Most of them as a part of this affair and said there had been a woman in the room at the time. If there was a woman present she was dressed in men's clothing.

"Another instance was when a Miss McVoy or McVoy came to my office and told such a distressing tale I was touched and agreed to aid her. I called up a lady I knew and asked her if she would help the girl. When I hold this Miss McVoy what I had done she seemed to resent it and told me she expected to stay in my home. I told her I was not in the habit of entertaining motherless girls.

"She finally disappeared and later I learned her condition was feigned and that she had been employed to go into my house on the pretext of approaching motherhood and thereafter file a civil law suit accusing me of being responsible for her condition.
"When the full truth came to light I regarded it as one of the most damnable, hideous, repulsive things that a man ever tried to do by using a woman toward a sinister end."

He replies, "We have an eight-hour day here where other mines have nine, ten or more; but our eight hours are eight honest hours of work. When a man is on the job here he's on the job. You won't find a man stopping to chin with a visitor or look at the scenery when he's supposed to be working.
"And we have better men than the average. Every man who gets a job here has to pass a strict doctor's examination. We know that every man in camp can stand it, physically, to work hard for eight hours every day. We don't hire anyone if he can't."

Homan produced from a drawer a thick sheaf of printed slips—probably 300 or more.
"Here's the men we've rejected recently," he says. "Look at the slips. You'll find most of them suffered apparently minor defects. But those defects would have been just big enough to keep these men from giving eight hours of solid work."

When operators in this section are inclined to sniff derisively at Ford's mine.
"Sure, he pays seven or eight dollars a day," they tell you in Welch. "But his mine has only been operating two and three days a week lately."

He repeats this remark to a miner in Twin Branch. The miner stopped raking the topsoil over his new patch of lawn to answer:
"Yes—but when we only work two days a week we make as much money as most other miners do when they work full time. And when we work four, five or six days a week—there's nothing can touch it."

And Superintendent Homan adds: "We're starting full-time operation next week."
The men in Welch also tell you that Ford is not making money; that his mine is being run at a loss so that he can get fuel for his factories in Detroit. An official at Twin Branch only grinned when I passed that along to him.

"Of course, you'd have to get our figures from Detroit," he said. "But I'll say this, Henry Ford has a whole lot of money. And he didn't get any of it by running any branch of his business at a loss."
In fairness to West Virginia, it should be stated here that McDowell county has few mines to compare with the worst exhibits of Pennsylvania and Ohio. McDowell county last year led all West Virginia counties in coal production, and West Virginia led all other states. Conditions in this region are probably better than anywhere else in the country. There are a number of mines where living and working conditions are good; people in Welch have high rates, for instance for the camp at Gary Hollow, owned by the U. S. Coal and Coke Co., a subsidiary of the U. S. Steel Corporation.

But the men at Twin Branch—the plain, ordinary workers, not the officials—insist there is no other mine equal to Twin Branch from the viewpoint of the miner.
A husky miner in the club house dining room explained it to me:
"Work two days a week and you've got your month's rent," he says. "Work three or four more days and you've got the rest of your living expenses. The rest you can salt away—or spend. I tell you, there's nothing like this camp."

H. S. Homan is superintendent at Twin Branch. When you present yourself he gives you carte blanche to look around, talk to miners and take photographs.
"How does the wage scale here compare with the union scale?" you ask.
"I'll be darned if I know," he replies with a grin. "We don't know there is a union here. We've never had any trouble and we never will have."
You counter with another question:
"How is it, that when mine owners elsewhere are paying wages as low as four and five dollars a day and even then say they aren't making money, you people are able to pay such a high rate?"

"It's the old story—efficiency," he replies. "We have an eight-hour day here where other mines have nine, ten or more; but our eight hours are eight honest hours of work. When a man is on the job here he's on the job. You won't find a man stopping to chin with a visitor or look at the scenery when he's supposed to be working.
"And we have better men than the average. Every man who gets a job here has to pass a strict doctor's examination. We know that every man in camp can stand it, physically, to work hard for eight hours every day. We don't hire anyone if he can't."

Wages in the soft coal field are based, in most instances, on ton production.
At Twin Branch an average experienced loader draws 93 cents a ton and loads eight tons in his eight-hour day. His pay, accordingly, ranges around $7.50 a day. The ton rate elsewhere in the coal field ranges from a minimum of 30 cents up to a customary maximum of 45 cents.
Inside day labor—the lowest grade at the Ford camp is paid from 30 cents to $1.25 an hour. Living conditions here are as cheap as the wages are high. The houses rent for $2.50 per room per month. A married man can get a five-room house, therefore, for $12.50 a month. Not only is this rate below the coal field average; the houses are distinctly above the average—miles above it, if you compare Twin Branch with some of the choice specimens in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

GERMANS PLAN NEW DEVICE TO LIFT SUBMARINES

Berlin—The loss of the United States submarine "S-4" with numerous hands aboard has stimulated many engineers in their efforts to building a reliable submarine rescue apparatus.

Berthold Faack, Berlin mechanic, who served in the German merchant marine for many years, has invented an apparatus by which he claims, disasters like the one that befell the "S-4" could be avoided with almost a hundred per cent certainty.

Faack does not propose to save the boat, but to rescue the crew. He has constructed a cigar-like tube made of duraluminum, which could easily be installed in the new submarines at the comparatively cheap price of about 1500 dollars. For safety's sake two tubes would have to be installed on the boat, one astern and another on the foredeck.

At Any Depth

As soon as the submarine sinks and cannot rise again, two men enter the tube from the inside of the boat, close it, unscrew the cover, fasten the tube to the deck and at the same time forming the cover of the tube and shoot up to the surface.

Arrived on the surface they signal the crew to haul the tube down by means of a wire rope fastened to the lower end of the tube and to the deck. In parties of four the whole crew could thus be saved and brought to the surface. The tube is equipped with electric light, a telephone and oxygen masks.

Faack claims that the tube can stand an atmospheric pressure of about 25 atmospheres, so that the inmates do not run the risk of being blown to pieces or severely injured by the terrific pressure exerted on them when they shoot upward from depths of about 50 to 60 meters.

The inventor even claims that his apparatus can be applied in any depths, while other apparatuses employed by the German submarines during the war, and later on, by private firms can only be applied in certain depths.

In 45 Minutes

Faack proposes to rescue, within about 45 minutes, the entire crew of a modern submarine, that is about fifty men. In normal weather the crew could remain afloat by means of rubber boats for a week or so, but even in stormy weather Faack believes that the saved crew could remain alive for at least four or five hours.

Faack offered his invention to the German navy, but since the Versailles Treaty stripped Germany of submarines and forbade her to build new ones the Reichswehr ministry rejected his invention.

After learning of the disaster of the "S-4" Faack has made up his mind to offer his invention to the United States Navy. He is ready to go to the States and supervise the construction of the tube. Also he is willing to prove the feasibility of his invention by making the first trial shoot himself.

MISSOURI AVIATION SCHOOL NOW HAS 270 CIVILIAN STUDENTS

Marshall, Mo.—In less than three years time the Marshall Flying School, a unit of the Nicholas-Beazley Airplane company here, has developed into what its officials declare to be the largest and most completely equipped civilian aviation school in the world.

The school at present has an enrollment of 270 students, representing every state in the United States, and three foreign countries. Several of the student-fliers reside in Canada, China and the Panama Canal zone.

The official of the school point out that their project was enjoying only a meager success until the long distance flights of last summer came to the fore. After several successful trips were made across the Atlantic, they say, the institution grew as fast as they could accommodate new students, and installed new equipment for their training.

The school is equipped with a modern airport and landing field three miles south of here. The surrounding land is very smooth and thus eliminates many hazards for the student pilot.

Russell Nicholas is president of the airplane company, and Howard Beazley secretary. C. H. Miller is general manager of the flying school.

NANCY PRICE, FAMOUS ACTRESS WORKED AS BOY ON SHIP DURING WAR

London—Nancy Price, famous actress, worked on a drifter for six months during the war, disguised as a boy, it is now revealed.

Trained from girlhood to understand the sea and its ways, Miss Price is a skilled yachtswoman. When war broke out she was determined to use her experience in the service of her country.

Without telling anyone of her intentions, she cut off her hair, assumed male attire and took employment as a ship's boy on a drifter.

It is a remarkable fact that for six months she was able to carry out her job without anyone on the drifter, except the skipper, realizing she was a girl.

She took her turn at the wheel, stood her watch and did the cooking.

Nearly 250,000 persons are employed by manufacturing plants of Wisconsin.

DENMARK QUEEN ENJOYS HOLIDAY ALONG RIVIERA

Nice, Alpes Maritimes.—The Queen of Denmark, who seems to be very much enjoying her winter holiday on the Riviera, takes great delight in exploring curious points of interest. One day last week she had her usual game of tennis in the morning, a rule which she very seldom breaks, and then visited the old church on the Suquet, which is one of the most historical spots along the southern coast. After luncheon she set out again and made the ascent by the funicular railway to Spuer-Cannes and went on to the top of the Observatory.

In company with His Majesty the King, she is very often seen around the "louis" table at roulette at one of the Casinos or the Sporting Club of Monte Carlo.

The royal couple is also very fond of polo and frequently attended the matches at Mandelieu and other sports.

Interest in small yachting this season was very much stimulated by the fact that the King of Denmark has taken up racing during his visit to Cannes. His Majesty sailed his own boat in a six meter race on Monday and held his own throughout the run although he finished up seventh.

Prince Carol Seen

Another royal visitor who has been attracting a great deal of attention this season is Prince Carol of Rumania who is very much seen on the Croisette or the Promenade des Anglais with the famous red-headed woman, Madame Lupescu. Friends of his declare that he is about to spring a surprise which will be especially interesting to the "louis" table. But the Prince refuses to have anything to say about it and for the present, is living at the Hotel Negresco contenting himself with having a very good time.

Impromptu cocktail parties have now become quite the thing on the Riviera and have become the gathering places for interesting painters and notables. Very often they take the form of small exhibitions. Everyone drops in to see a new collection of pictures and the man who shakes 'em is kept very busy.

Hunt Antiques

But not all the Americans who find their way to the sunny south of France go there to paint and sketch. "Antiqueing" is becoming one of the favorite sports mostly indulged in by Americans. The greatest field for it is back in the mountains, in such picturesque old villages as Venice where several Americans have become proprietors of antique-shops.

Near Menton, two Americans who were obliged to settle there for their health, came across a charming old olive-mill one day, and turned it into one of the most delightful tea-rooms along the Riviera. They left the old olive-press standing in one corner of the room and picked up other pieces of antique furniture.

But the antiques are not all that makes the place so interesting. These two Americans know all kinds of delicious dishes to tickle the palates of any stray patriots. Once you try their old-fashioned chocolate layer-cake with chocolate icing, angel-food, pumpkin pie, chili sauce, American pickles, etc., etc., you will never care whether you return to the Land of the Free or not.

HOUSE OF COMMONS HAS BILL TO ASSIST SMALL PLAY ACTORS

London.—A bill to protect chorus girls and lower-paid theatrical artists from extortion, fraud and immorality on the part of agents has just been introduced into the House of Commons.

It is being sponsored by Frank Rose, M. P. and Mrs. Hilton Phillips, formerly Mabel Russell the famous actress, is the sponsor. The bill is described as the chorus girls charter.

It provides that no greater commission than 10 per cent of their salaries is to be taken from these artists by agents who place them in employment, and also that the commission is not to be continued for more than ten weeks.

All theatrical agents will have to be licensed, and licenses will only be issued to those who are regarded as being fit persons.

Penalties of $1250 and six months in jail are provided in the event of the contravention of the rules laid down.

HARTFORD MUDDLE

From the street, it looks as though the Hartford election dispute may easily convert itself into a muddle, the quite possible outcome of which might be the invalidation of the election in which Walter E. Patterson was, on the face of the returns, the successful candidate for mayor by the close plurality of 261 in a vote of more than 41,000.

That part of the recount order issued by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court which orders the city moderator to test the voting machines for discrepancies and inaccuracies appears to have almost unlimited potentialities. The possible finding of some slight defect in one machine might open the way for endless expert controversy over what that machine "might" have done in the way of improperly recording the voter's wish, without the possibility of ever ascertaining exactly what, if anything, it did do.

Then there is another question, which is whether or not the machines are chargeable with an apparent discrepancy between the number of votes registered and the number of voters checked off the lists. What proof can there possibly be that the check list clerks at the polling places actually did, in every instance, check the voter as he was passed into the booth? There are a hundred possibilities in this connection, none of them involving intentional misconduct on the part of election officials. Every person who has had experience of election work knows that in any crowded precinct, where there is a heavy rush of voting, bona fide voters occasionally and innocently reach the ballot box or machine without being checked, despite the watchfulness of the officials. To convict the machines in Hartford of having made duplicate registrations, just because the machine count does not agree with the check list, would be to presume the infallibility of the checking system—and experience all shows that that system is not infallible.

On the whole an interesting situation impends in Hartford—one that possibly may have an important bearing on the entire question of machine voting.

PINCHING SPEEDERS

It has become a quite common practice—and we are not disposed to condemn it—for Manchester police to arrest and bring into court motorists who drive their cars through this town at a rate of speed assumed by the police to be in violation of the law against reckless driving. Sometimes a conviction is obtained, sometimes not. If the person arrested or summoned hires a lawyer and presents a witness or two who will testify that he had a clear road and will dispute the opinion of the police officer that the car in question was being driven at a speed to endanger life, his guilt of an infraction of the law is not likely to be altogether easy to prove. Yet the policeman was probably an excellent judge of safe speed—or at least of extremely unsafe speeds.

The action of the Legislature in repealing the definite speed limits placed a difficult burden on all local police and the courts in the regulation of automobile speed, even within the widest latitudes. But it is quite possible that the police and the local courts are not, in all cases, doing the utmost possible to lighten their own task.

If there is—and there must be—a point beyond which a car cannot safely be speeded in a settled community, and if the experience of the authorities in that community has told them that that point is, and if they are sure enough of their ground to risk arrest and prosecution of persons for exceeding that point of speed, then they must have fixed, in their own minds and for their own guidance, a definite speed limit. Yet in many cases they do not, as they prefer-ly well might do, make that speed limit for the community known to the public, either their own public or the guest public passing through.

Now if it is the theory of the Manchester police that a person driving through Center street, say, or through North Main, at a rate of 40 miles an hour is driving at a rate which in itself is a threat to life, and if that is the minimum at which they intend to arrest and prosecute violators, then forty miles is the speed limit for Manchester. If they hold the theory that thirty-five, or thirty, or twenty-five, or twenty, or whatever, is the limit of safety, and that to exceed that limit is to imperil life, and if they are satisfied that they can bring convictions on any of these bases, then the speed among these at which they propose to prosecute becomes the speed limit for their jurisdiction.

But who knows it, aside from the police and the court officials? Certainly not the semi-idiot who imagines that he is complying with the law against recklessness by having the good luck not to hit anybody or anything even if he is tearing through the center of the town at sixty-five miles an hour—and his name is Legion. He doesn't know what the Manchester standard of safe driving speed is, because he has never been told.

The point of all this is that, if the police have an understanding of what constitute a limit of safe speed and intend to govern themselves accordingly, that understanding ought, by every right, to be extended to the motorist, both native and visiting varieties. In other words there ought to be road signs at each highway entrance to the town limits, plainly and unmistakably setting forth the speed limit for Manchester. This in all fairness to the passing motorist.

And after that, any speed bug who drives his car a single mile an hour faster than the fixed speed limit ought to get the limit in fines.

CHICAGO

The state of Illinois has repudiated Len Small and the city of Chicago has repudiated Big Bill Thompson and Robert E. Crowe. Terrorism, hooliganism, corrupt diversion of the police power, election day violence and ballot box crimes failed to save the day for the graft ring of the Windy City when the decent people of the community finally, after years of sloth, aroused themselves and buried the ring under the avalanche of ballots. There is only one reason why the forces of evil failed to prevail in yesterday's Chicago primaries—and that reason is that the number of well disposed people in the great live is, as it always is in every American city, infinitely greater than the number of the criminally minded, the immoral and the indifferent. If they will only bestir themselves.

That Chicago is to suddenly become a clean and pretty town is not on the cards—not even if the Deneen faction and its candidates prove themselves to be worthy of the trust reposed in them. There is still an election to be held. There is room for every conceivable kind of deal between the grafters and the parties. And in any event there will still be in Chicago an enormous number of chronic law violators. Perhaps we shall not be able to note any tremendous improvement in the performances of that dumping ground.

But at least Chicago has made a huge gesture in the direction of decency. It is immensely encouraging.

NEW BRITAIN "BAROMETER"

"Three cheers for Al Smith!" shouted Mayor-elect Paonessa, Democrat, at New Britain last night, when it was discovered that he had been elected chief executive of his city. And his Democratic friends staged a carnival parade in which the name of "Smith" led that of "Paonessa." Because New Britain is a pretty stiff Republican town, most times, and in the Paonessa victory they visualized a forecast of November.

One thing Mr. Paonessa and his excited partisans seem to have quite overlooked. Which is the fact that twice before, in the same Republican town, Mr. Paonessa had been elected mayor—and what did Al Smith have to do with the New Britain man's success on those occasions? Just as much, in all probability, as he did yesterday.

As a matter of fact, the best gauge of November prospects in this state provided by yesterday's events is to be found that in no less than twenty-five towns in Connecticut the Democrats held no caucuses though it was the day set for the selection of delegates to the state convention.

A political party demoralized and lacking in the essential quality of interest to the point where it cannot, in any one of twenty-five towns, even go through the motions of perfunctory existence, is in a pretty bad way. If it can find ground for hope in the fact that it

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

STONE MOUNTAIN

It was an unusual proceeding to unveil the titanic statue of General Robert E. Lee on Stone Mountain at a point in the development of the huge memorial when only part of one figure, out of the many which are to make up the granite ensemble, was completed. As a rule, a certain sense of the fitness of things operates to keep folks from acclaiming their achievements until they are achieved, but perhaps ordinary custom cannot be expected to apply to such an extraordinary conception as the Stone Mountain memorial to the "Lost Cause"—still so dear to the heart of some Georgians as to recently impel a number of them to protest violently against a legislative resolution of admiration for Abraham Lincoln, whom they termed "Barbarian."

Still, one wonders a little. And, wondering, he speculates as to the possibility of a connection between the Stone Mountain memorial and the coming Presidential election. It is rather notorious that, in starting the huge carving, Georgia bit off a tremendous financial mouthful. Loud shrieks for more and still more financial aid are to be expected before the work is much further advanced. Also Georgia is not supposed to be unfertile soil for the planting of a bolt if Al Smith is nominated as the Democracy's candidate. Again, there are many rich Democrats up north, who want no bolt; Synchroline: the need of a "barrel" to finance the Stone memorial with the need of Georgia's vote for Al Smith—and what have you? The answer is, an interesting situation.

All in all, there might have been, possibly, a less effective time for bringing Robert E. Lee's stoney counterfeit into the daylight.

MILLER NOT TO TRY TO GO TO OLYMPICS. TO QUIT WRESTLING.

New Haven, Conn.—Burr Churchhill, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., is not to try for the Olympic wrestling team, and he is not planning to turn to professional wrestling. Mills, who was captain of Yale's 1928 Varsity wrestling team, has announced two facts here, clearing up various rumors concerning his future career.

Miller, who graduates next June, is considered the greatest collegiate wrestler yet produced. He has never been thrown in all his years of college grappling, and he has been defeated by time advantage just three times.

The next Yale wrestling team is to have Burwell Dodd, of New York, as its captain.

America is a country where couples who can't be amicable get an amicable divorce.

Washington, April 11.—Motion picture producers have been called many things, good and bad, but no one—except Will Hays—ever before had the nerve to compare them with Jesus Christ.

A motion picture trade weekly in a recent issue carried a Page One editorial entitled "They Know Not," which undertook something of the sort in a plea for forgiveness for the scribes and pharisees within the industry who had supported the Brookhart bill to regulate the block booking evil.

"Our own George Washington only survived the jealousies and petty treacheries of men about him by amazing patience, stamina and fortitude," one reads. "To go into a more exalted record we find the Great Teacher beset on all sides by those who, for petty causes, sought his downfall and who, succeeding through lashing the unthinking multitude into a frenzy, caused his crucifixion. . . . Likewise from Him who suffered most came the message of most importance in situations where misguided and furious men have, because of one condition or another, sought to tear down the temple. . . . 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.' . . . Likewise from Him who suffered most came the message of most importance in situations where misguided and furious men have, because of one condition or another, sought to tear down the temple. . . . 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.' . . . From this supreme source we may with due reverence receive a practical and workable plan for the righting of conditions in the business structure of the motion picture industry. . . . we can call upon the leaders of our business to forgive those who, through mistakes, anger, or plain stubborn ignorance have blindly tried to bring our business under political control, who have maligned and traduced it in the market place, and who have borne witness against it in the camp of its enemies."

A sort of "voters' guide" is offered by the People's Legislative Service of Washington, which offers to provide individuals or groups interested in politics with the records of their senators and representatives on all the important measures before Congress in the last few years.

"There," says an announcement of this organization, "you will find the explanation of the vast difference between pre-election promises and post-election performances. There you will behold the Cemetery of Sacred Pledges that have been buried along with the hopes of a deceived electorate and a betrayed public.

"How can the people know and judge of the intelligence and faithfulness of their own representatives? How can they get hold of the revealing facts with which to elect the right man and defeat the incompetent and unfaithful? . . . Only by having in their hands a synopsis of the most important public measures and an absolutely accurate statement of the votes on these measures."

Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work, who was called a "coward" on the Senate floor by Garway of Arkansas, operates under the handicap of an unpleasant manner. He is sometimes known as "Hard-Bolled Hubert." More than one stranger who has called on Work has left the secretary's office balking with rage at what he felt was the old gentleman's rudeness.

On the other hand, Work has a reputation for being very easy to see. Men in high position down here generally hedge themselves around with enough secretaries and clerks to enable them to avoid seeing all but the most welcome. When one doesn't do that, as Work doesn't, he probably has to be prepared to bark many persons out the door in short order.

Caraway complained that Work had "insulted" a wounded war veteran who came to him to protest test an Interior Department report. Work denied throwing or showing anyone out of his office. It is more likely that he merely told the wounded colonel to "get" out.

Campaign Portraits—The Story of Jim Reed

Reed's Greatest Victory

Re-Election to Senate in 1922 Followed Hard Uphill Battle—In Last Fight of His Career Now.

Senator Jim Reed campaigning for re-election in 1922, when he won a seemingly hopeless fight.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles on outstanding presidential candidates, written for The Herald and NEA Service by Robert Talley. This article concludes the story of Senator James A. Reed; tomorrow's will begin the story of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover.

BY ROBERT TALLEY

Washington, April 11.—One of the favorite quotations of Senator Jim Reed, the fiery Missourian who is now campaigning for the presidency, is the old Russian proverb: "The darkest hour comes just before the dawn."

The summer of 1922 found Jim Reed in his darkest hour. For his part in beating the League of Nations plan, leaders and members of his party had applied epithets that made "traitor" and "renegade" seem mild. The ominous shadow of Woodrow Wilson's hatred hung over him, a shadow tinged with popular sympathy for the sick man at his home on S street here.

Reed, running for re-election for another six-year term, was opposed in the Democratic primary by Breckinridge Long, who had been third assistant secretary of state under Wilson. In a public letter, Wilson denounced Reed—as he had done many times before—and asked Missouri Democrats to vote for Long.

It seemed that every man's hand was against him. Even his opponent was campaigning with the blessing of the party's leader, a fallen but still mighty star. It was up to Reed to placate the hostility he found everywhere. He must make peace.

How did he do it? With a snarl! With a fierce, bitter, last-ditch campaign in which he asked no quarter and gave none. With a fighting on his enemies and a refusal to soften or apologize for a single one of the acts that had brought him unpopularity. That was Jim Reed's way of making peace.

"Fighting . . . fighting . . . fighting; all I ever got in this world I've had to fight for," has been Reed's cry through life.

Here is a sample of Jim Reed's tactics during that historic campaign of 1922 when he started his "come-back."

Before a platform illuminated by kerosene flares in a small Missouri town, a dense crowd of farmers and their wives are packed. Reed, in his shirt sleeves, moved to the front of the platform and looks out sternly over his audience. Presently, in a harsh, rasping voice he speaks. "Who told you that a president has the right to think for you and me, anyway?" he begins. Thus he meets the charge that he had been unfaithful to Wilson.

Then he grins a broad, good-humored grin and his voice becomes playful. "Did Brecky Long tell you that?" he asks. "Why see here, folks—what if I should be elected president some day and Brecky had to let me do his thinking for him? Don't you see what an awful fix we'd both be in?" The crowd chuckles.

Suddenly, Reed's face distorts to a snarling mask, his harshness returns and he thunders out: "When I opposed some of the things that the president wanted I wasn't fighting the president. I was fighting for you people. This is a one-man government. This is a government of 110,000,000 men and women. You sent me to congress to agree with the president when I believed he was right and to fight him when I believed he was wrong—didn't you?"

So the speech went on, shifting to homely humor at times but always carrying the incisive cry of defiance. Act by act, Reed took up his record, shouting his explanation and renewing his assault on Wilson. With variations, the scene was repeated nightly throughout Missouri.

He refused to be put on the defensive. He was forever attacking, attacking, attacking . . . fighting, fighting, fighting.

Reed was renominated triumphantly and re-elected by 43,000 votes. He returned to the Senate to resume his spectacular career.

For a time, he seemed subdued—wary and disheartened—but not for long. In the 69th congress he got into three outstanding fights for his reputation and prestige increased. He took the leadership of the anti-World Court crowd away from Borah and held it to the end. He assailed the Mellon tax bill. He was one of the leaders in the fight over the Italian debt settlement.

In 1926, he suddenly picked up the prohibition issue and made it alive again. During the ordinarily routine consideration of wet and dry bills by the judiciary committee, he dragged a high prohibition official on the stand. He developed that 60,000,000 gallons of bonded alcohol were escaping annually from the government; drew out an estimate that there were 1,700,000 illicit stills operating in the United States and got General Lincoln Andrews, enforcement chief, to say that prohibition enforcement would be greatly simplified if the sale of beer was legalized.

Reed wanted to cross-examine the late Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, but Wheeler was canny enough to appear at this hearing as counsel. Reed wanted to probe the whole league from end to end.

But finally the chance came. During Reed's scathing investigation of the Vire election in Pennsylvania—which he started, as the result of charges of fraud—the Anti-Saloon League asserted that excessive use of money had helped defeat Governor Pinchot, the dry candidate.

A less keen man might not have seen the opportunity, but Reed leaped upon this statement and made it one of his excuses for dragging the whole prohibition question before his committee. He got away with it.

From Wheeler, on the witness stand, Reed drew the entire story of the prohibition movement. He learned that the league had spent $3,000,000 to bring about the passage of the dry law, and that it was spending a million dollars a year in New York alone. He established that congressmen and senators were being paid money for making speeches for prohibition. In all, he had quite a merry time.

Reed's outstanding recent achievement has been his investigation into the election of Vire, in Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, in Illinois, it being alleged that these millionaires "bought" their way into the Senate with excessive campaign expenditures. The Senate has already voted to deny Smith his seat; meanwhile, Vire is standing aside until his investigation is completed.

Reed occasionally practices law. In Aaron Sapiro's $1,000,000 suit against Henry Ford as the aftermath of Ford's anti-Jew campaign, Ford is said to have retained Reed at a fee of $100,000. The suit was settled by compromise and never came to trial.

Today, at 66, Jim Reed is still fighting . . . fighting . . . fighting. It is not only his greatest fight, but probably his last. If he is defeated in his effort for the presidency, he plans to return to Kansas City and settle down to the practice of law.

TOMORROW: "Plain Mr. Hoover."

them away from the mysterious doorway down which disappear the wagons and the lumbering elephants.

Within the Garden, morning after morning, the "acts" go about their business of being "limbered up." A man in overalls puts a group of trained dogs through their paces; an acrobatic act, fresh from Europe, tries to pick up the American customs in circus behavior; the "glittering galaxy" assembles in a side corner to prepare for the rehearsal of the bigger-and-better opening number. The great gardens spin with a discordant activity. It is, for the moment, a triumph of the individual performers. Soon, under the preparation of the superintendent, who pieces the show together as a child makes a jig-saw puzzle, they will all become cogs in the great machine and begin their mechanical round. Soon they will be clocked and timed and stop-watched until their acts click off to the harmony of a prescribed routine. Soon they will be off and away to the road, to bring sleepless nights to millions of small boys the country over.

At times like this, I'm glad I wasn't a small boy in New York. I'm glad my boyhood was spent in Lapee county, Michigan, and Port Huron and Saginaw and Bay City.

Spring was a thrilling season then, what with the circus boys appearing on the barns and the first wintergreen berries to be found in outlying woods, and a bunch of wild violets to be taken home as a peace offering to parents who had long since heard the news that you had played hooky from the afternoon session of school; what with frogs beginning to croak in the ponds and pussy-willows growing fat along the shores and cat-tails luring from the safety of a marsh; what with the ransacking of closets for last year's marbles and the careful shining up of the "glasses" and "allies."

New York youngsters, I have so often noticed, are handicapped even at marbles. They must play from the safety of street gutters or take chances on being hit by passing autos; they must seek out tiny earthen spots in public squares and keep their shooting within a radius of a few feet.

Notes from around town: Mechanical Harold Loyds being sold in Times Square; Ann Sutherland, the leading light of the theater, now runs a ham-and-egg emporium in the Village that you can't miss because it's painted like a circus wagon. . . . And, strange though it may be for a New Yorker to admit it, she says it's patented after "Coffee Dan's" in San Francisco. . . . The most elaborate tattoo parlor I've seen in years now flourishes on the Bowery around the corner from Chinatown.

HORSE THIEVES IN KANSAS USE MOTOR TRUCKS

Hugton, Kan.—Stealing horses and using motor trucks to skin them for their hides is believed by authorities here to be a new practice being extensively employed in southwestern Kansas and eastern Colorado. Hundreds of horses have been discovered out on the prairie near here, minus their hides. Stockmen believe that many of the animals show evidence of having been skinned alive.

Two Oklahoma men have been arrested and charged with the theft and cruel slaughter of eighteen head of horses.

The method, as described by authorities who witnessed such an act was to fasten the animal's neck to a crowbar driven deep into the ground, then to draw off the skin leaving the carcass of the animal where the job had been completed.

The two men arrested, Homer Sweek and Virgil Jackson, were taken into custody at Woodward, Oklahoma, where it is alleged they were attempting to contract for the wholesale delivery of horses' hide to a dealer there. The pair will face trial at Springfield, Colorado, where a number of ranchers have reported the loss of their horses.

As the men were arrested by Colorado authorities, in Oklahoma, it was necessary for the officers to convince Governor Henry Johnstone that they had sufficient evidence to prove the two had carried on such a practice of slaughtering before they could remove their prisoners to Colorado.

Officials advance the theory that the prisoners are but two of a large ring operating near the border of the two states, and merchandising the hides through unscrupulous dealers. They have signified their intention of making a thorough investigation in the hope of apprehending more such violators.

It is fair to assume that this world is of comparatively recent origin. The term "comparatively recent," laymen took to mean that this world is only a few billion years old.

DEMPSEY IS DUE TO ARRIVE TODAY

When He Gets to New York He May Be Able to Clear Up Some Matters.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, April 11.—Jack Dempsey, the well known ex-fighter, will arrive in the town where the critical money flourishes about soon today and, if he follows the script faithfully, he will hasten to re-affirm his several denials of the canard, freely circulated by those of an unethical trend of mind, that sooner or later he means to retire from retirement. This part of it probably will be simple enough. The difficulty will come in explaining the purport of those personal messages he has been sending, from time to time, to business and personal friends in the east.

The last of these asked Jimmy Johnston to meet him at the Ambassador hotel at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon and, unless you assume that he wishes to talk to James about the high cost of Roman canoes, you naturally would connect the conference with boxing. Anyhow, Johnston has taken the message to mean that he will be asked to manage Dempsey and all I can say is that I hope James is enough of a philosopher not to go jumping promiscuously off tall buildings later in the day and injuring a lot of people he really wouldn't wish to know socially.

No Chance Now
For one of Dempsey's intimates assured me today that, if Johnston ever had a chance with the boy friend, he has almost none now. The idea is that Dempsey isn't likely to consider that managerial acumen or any other kind has been copiously displayed by a man who rushes into the streets to read a confidential telegram in a loud, firm tone.

However, as far as the writer is concerned, it is all so much gum arabic that he refuses to commit himself on Dempsey, beyond saying that, if he doesn't fight this year, he is very likely to be back in 1929. The many contradictions between the young man's public and private declarations clearly indicate that much.

He, for example, is known to have messaged Billy Duffy, his second in the Sharkey and Tunney fights, not to pay too much attention to what he saw in the newspapers "for the next few weeks." The message was received "a few weeks" in advance of Rickard's announcement that Dempsey was through.

Other Reports
Dempsey, at or about the same time, asked Leo P. Flynn to be ready to take charge of him in June at the Orangeburg, N. Y., camp of Gus Wilson, a staunch Dempsey man. And to another friend, who said he had to "stall" certain parties about Dempsey's retirement and wanted to know the answer, Dempsey is said to have replied, in effect, "stall them a little while longer."

As I say, I don't profess to know Dempsey's mind. There isn't a man in this world who does, not even excepting our John himself. The observations above recorded merely are offered for what they may be worth. So, too, is the evidence, showing the irreconcilable calm and resignation with which Rickard and Tunney are accepting the situation. They not only admit that Dempsey is out; they insist that he is.

Somehow, I am unable to view the retirement of Dempsey as something for Rickard and Tunney to be so highly pleased about.

Whatever else the senators investigating the oil situation have been able to bring forth, they certainly haven't found among the witnesses any gushers.

GIRL ALONE

BY ANNE AUSTIN "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED
The summer she is 16, SALLY FORD is "faded out" to GLEN CARSON and David Nash. She is a plump, the only home she has known from the time she was four. At the time she was four, DAVID NASH, athlete and university student, working during the summer. When Carson makes insulting remarks about her friends, David strikes him a terrific blow and not knowing then whether the man is dead or alive, Sally and David flee.

They join a carnival, David as cook's helper and Sally in a side show, disguised as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.
NITA, the Red Fox, becomes infatuated with David and threatens Sally with exposure. Sally goes to Capital City where she doesn't keep "hands off" David. Sally hears they are going next so many years in the orphanage. She tells David she will meet her that night after the train is headed to talk to her. They stroll to a clump of trees and sit down to talk. Sally takes her in his arms and for the first time they confess their love for each other.

There was no glow of pride, no sense of home-coming as she trudged through the almost deserted streets, but every time she passed a policeman idly swinging his "billy" on a street corner she thanked Pop Bybee in her heart that he had cautioned her to don her disguise. For beyond a casual interested glance at her brown face and hands and her long, swinging braids of fine, lustre black hair, the law did not seem to find her worthy of attention—certainly not of their official notice.

If only David could pass that cordon successfully! Probably he had gone to the carnival grounds. But Pop Bybee, true to his promise to protect the boy, had decreed that he should become private chef and waiter to himself and Mrs. Bybee, remaining cooped up all day in the privilege car of the show train. Poor David! Dear David! Her heart ached passionately for his loneliness, for his magnificent body caged in a hot box of a kitchen, when it had been so gloriously free in fragrant, sun-kissed fields before she had met him.

When Sally was awakened soon after dawn the next morning—Wednesday—by the shouts and songs of the "white hopes" unloading the carnival on the outskirts of the Capital City, the question which had insisted on worming its way through the heavenly joy of knowing that David loved her sprang instantly to the foreground of her mind: who was "Steve" with whom Nita had quarreled and bargained in the dark last night?
Sally and David had met or had had pointed out to them nearly every member of the show troupe, and there was no Steve among them. Of course Steve might be one of the roughneck white rousters. But a star performer, such as Nita considered herself, would hardly consort with such a man. The two classes—simply did not mix, except in rare instances. David, of course, was different. Everyone connected with the carnival knew that he was a university student, working in the kitchen with Buck only because he was hiding from the police.

It was still not seven o'clock when Sally joined the straggling procession of performers headed for a quarter of a mile from the show train. She knew very little of the city itself, since the orphanage was situated on its own farm in a thinly settled suburb.

There was no glow of pride, no sense of home-coming as she trudged through the almost deserted streets, but every time she passed a policeman idly swinging his "billy" on a street corner she thanked Pop Bybee in her heart that he had cautioned her to don her disguise. For beyond a casual interested glance at her brown face and hands and her long, swinging braids of fine, lustre black hair, the law did not seem to find her worthy of attention—certainly not of their official notice.

They soon discovered that she was restless and lonely. The carnival had no glamor in these early hours. Without the crowds there was no glamor; the crowd, however, though they did not suspect it, furnished the glamor with their naive credulity, their laughter, their free and easy spending, their susceptibility as a relief from the monotony of their lives, to the very spirit of carnival for which they dragged old hordes of a show was made.

When Sally was awakened soon after dawn the next morning—Wednesday—by the shouts and songs of the "white hopes" unloading the carnival on the outskirts of the Capital City, the question which had insisted on worming its way through the heavenly joy of knowing that David loved her sprang instantly to the foreground of her mind: who was "Steve" with whom Nita had quarreled and bargained in the dark last night?
Sally and David had met or had had pointed out to them nearly every member of the show troupe, and there was no Steve among them. Of course Steve might be one of the roughneck white rousters. But a star performer, such as Nita considered herself, would hardly consort with such a man. The two classes—simply did not mix, except in rare instances. David, of course, was different. Everyone connected with the carnival knew that he was a university student, working in the kitchen with Buck only because he was hiding from the police.

It was still not seven o'clock when Sally joined the straggling procession of performers headed for a quarter of a mile from the show train. She knew very little of the city itself, since the orphanage was situated on its own farm in a thinly settled suburb.

They soon discovered that she was restless and lonely. The carnival had no glamor in these early hours. Without the crowds there was no glamor; the crowd, however, though they did not suspect it, furnished the glamor with their naive credulity, their laughter, their free and easy spending, their susceptibility as a relief from the monotony of their lives, to the very spirit of carnival for which they dragged old hordes of a show was made.

Then the thought of David dismissed Nita and her threats and David of course, to appear in Capital City, even in the dress or cook tent, without her "Princess Lalla" complexion, which she was to apply with exceeding care so that the disguise might be impenetrable.

The WOMAN'S DAY

BY ALLENE SUMNER

If you like stories of women who have succeeded, someone is bound to tell you to read Alice Foote Macdougall's "Autobiography of a Business Woman." I hope you don't. I did, and it's almost made me "agin" all business women. This is only a little untried girl without any experience with the glamour of the world.
And this man sounds like a tarantula to me. He can't be much if he hasn't anything better to do than to attract a lot of silly, idle women. But I'm judging him by what you said about the stories of his past. Do you want to see him make a conquest of your sister-in-law?
You said once that we didn't protect girls well enough when you were growing up, but let me tell you, Marye, that trusting a girl with a nice young man was a relative matter with us from trusting her with a lady-killer. We didn't approve of men giving teas, either. Not in my town. It may always have been a fashion in the city but I've been told that there was always a hostess, a near relative of a close friend, to preside at the tea urn for the occasion. Any grown-up man fluttering white, manicured hands over a tea tray would have been an object of contempt with us. And certainly for summer—or winter—reading.

MARYE and MOM

Their Letters BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Marye, my dear:
Haven't you any feeling of responsibility at all toward Florence? How can you let her risk the influence of a man such as you describe this artist Michello to be? After all, even though she does consider herself sophisticated, she is only a little untried girl without any experience with the glamour of the world.
And this man sounds like a tarantula to me. He can't be much if he hasn't anything better to do than to attract a lot of silly, idle women. But I'm judging him by what you said about the stories of his past. Do you want to see him make a conquest of your sister-in-law?
You said once that we didn't protect girls well enough when you were growing up, but let me tell you, Marye, that trusting a girl with a nice young man was a relative matter with us from trusting her with a lady-killer. We didn't approve of men giving teas, either. Not in my town. It may always have been a fashion in the city but I've been told that there was always a hostess, a near relative of a close friend, to preside at the tea urn for the occasion. Any grown-up man fluttering white, manicured hands over a tea tray would have been an object of contempt with us. And certainly for summer—or winter—reading.

They say it's a common practice in the city for men to entertain girls in their apartments without causing gossip. Well, that custom hasn't reached our town and if Florence goes alone to an artist's studio and it is ever found out around here she will be talked about you may be sure.
Her mother is getting anxious to have her come back and I don't know but that I should hint to Mrs. Meredith that she ought to insist upon it. Besides, Betty isn't feeling very well and Clyde is complaining that she is having too much to do. I guess he does not like "bathing."
I asked him to stay with us but he refused. He's very independent. I took over a pie to him and one to Mrs. Meredith. I'm wondering who is going to stay with Betty when the new baby comes. Don't you think you could come out and keep house for Clyde and Junior while she is in the hospital? That would be a great help and maybe Clyde will soon be able to work, and then they can afford a girl for a while after you leave. Please do look after Florence a little more carefully.
With all my love,
MOM.

SCIENCE STUDIES HABITS OF WORMS IN CHILDREN
BY DR MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and Hygeia, the Health Magazine.
More and more American investigators are beginning to find important a study of the parasites that invade the bodies of human beings.
The division of medical sciences of the National Research Council has worked out an arrangement whereby the American Child Health Association will support an extended investigation of the way in which the common round worm attacks the child in the United States. This worm has been known as a parasite of man since the time of Aristotle.
When it invades the intestines it may grow to a length of 12 inches. It deposits an enormous number of eggs which pass out of the body and develop.
Mostly Children
The preliminary investigations made by Prof. W. W. Cort, who has charge of the department of helminthology, which means worm investigation, in the Johns Hopkins University, indicates that the worms are primarily associated with children, and indeed that children are infested about five times as often as adults.
Recent studies seem to show that the worms may attack the lungs as well as the intestines and some physicians are of the opinion that strange lung conditions in children may be due to the passage of the worms through the lungs. The worms that attack children par-particularly are the whip-worm and the hookworm.

Among the problems that the new commission plans to investigate, in addition to the manner in which the ascariis or round worm may attack the lungs, are the various factors in its development, the way in which children become infested, the influence of climate on the growth of the worms and on their spread, and the exact role of the pig in disseminating the disease to the human body.
A form of infestation with worms of a similar type occurs in pigs, and many students of the subject think that the disease in the pig is similar to that in the human.

A great leader once said, "The smaller the man, the greater the grudge." A great writer remarked, "No slight should last overnight." The great Teacher said, "Lord, forgive them, for they know not what they do."
There isn't a psychiatrist who does not tell us that in the long run it is our emotions that kill us. Acid dispositions kill more people than acid stomachs. Vindictiveness is a weapon that kills its bearer more quickly than the person toward whom it is directed.
So it is with anger, jealousy, hatred—the whole gamut of elemental passions that at time become our masters.
Civilization rests with individuals, not with colleges. It is the get-even spirit that retards civilization, for the thing that actuates vengeance in a small way is the thing that lies behind war.
It is foolish to bear a grudge. What is done is done. "Put the unhappy event in a drawer of the mind," as one statesman expressed it, "close the drawer, lock it, and throw away the key."
Springtime should be the beginning of a spiritual New Year. Why not make a resolution to have a spring cleaning of grudges, and throw out all the bitterness and brooding?
The happiest moments of our lives are those in which we make friends with a sworn enemy.

Tom Heaney's Story Like Fiction Book

Farrell's First Installment on Heaney—Harvey Episode Makes Others Much Awaited.

By HENRY L. FARRELL

"America, the Land of Opportunity" has been discovered so many times in real life, plotted so often in fiction and moralized so much from the pulpit and the teacher's desk that the barefoot kid in the stocks and the hard-boiled little egg on the sidewalks of New York think it is a lot of junk.

Heaney's Purse Not Known

Rickard didn't announce what the challenger would get in purse money for fighting the champion, but the sport fan knows what the challenge means in any heavy-weight championship fight.

From time to time the papers hold up to the kids the life stories of John D. Rockefeller, Henry Ford and the founders of million and billion-dollar fortunes.

THE HEROES OF TODAY

Much of the real romance of success today, to the kids' notion, is wrapped around the rise of Babe Ruth from an orphanage, the climb of Jack Dempsey from the rags under a box car, and the graduation of Earl Sander from half-mile tracks in the pasture country where the roof of every barn leaked.

TOMORROW: Heaney stuck to Harvey, despite "raps" against the latter.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At Portland, Me.—Johnny Lynch, Boston heavyweight, won decision over Joe Lopez, New Bedford, Mass., 6.

Baseball Season Opens In Eight League Cities

New York, April 11.—Approximately a quarter of a million rabid fans in eight Major League cities scanned the heavens with anxious eyes today, left instructions to be telephoned to the office that they were violently ill, and forthwith departed for the park of their favorite baseball team in the best of health and spirits.

Humphries Beats Murphy Neither Man Impressive

Local Man Wins Seven of Ten Games But Hits Poorly in Other Three; Both Men Roll Below Form.

Table comparing Humphries and Murphy statistics including Lead, Wins, Losses, etc.

Bert Humphries won only three out of ten games from Murphy last night in the final half of their home and home duckpin match in Thompsonville, but those three were enough to pull him through to victory.

below a hundred in every one of them. As a result, Murphy's lead of 14 pins increased to an even fifty.

The Humphries came to life and Murphy went to sleep, so to speak, the Thompsonville champion turning in the high single of the night, 127, against an 86 for Murphy. This 41 pin gain cut the lead from 50 to 9 and when Murphy followed by playing a joker instead of a trump card, Humphries went ahead by sixteen. Or, to put it another way, Humphries' 103 to 78 victory followed by a 112 to 95 win marked the finish of Murphy.

Howard won the last two games but the margins were slight and only served to reduce the lead to 27 pins for the twenty games and 43 for the final half. Humphries averaged 102.1 and Murphy 97.1 last night, both men being far below par. The Thompsonville man felled two strikes, sixteen spares and missed seventeen. Murphy had three strikes, thirteen spares and missed fifteen. In the sixth, seventh and eighth games which spelled defeat for Murphy, the local man made a total of only one strike and two spares. He got a spare in the sixth, nothing in the seventh and one of each in the eighth. Will even fair bowling in these three games, Murphy would have been the winner of the match.

OUT OF LUCK. Warden: Everybody here has to learn a trade. What would you like to be? Convict: A commercial traveler.—Buen Humor, Madrid.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

When good marriages die, they go to Paris.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Hearsay Evidence That riches bring no happiness. They constantly are showing; But I shall have the chance, I guess, Of ever really knowing.

Before criticizing your wife's faults, remember that it may have been those very defects that prevented her from catching a better husband.

"Wild flowers will soon be peeping forth in the fields and woods. City folks should remember that they look their best in such a setting."

When one observes certain types of the new and perky generation, one is moved to repeat with the poet the line, "Oh, for the smack of a vanished hand on the place where the spank ought to be."

"That's my mistake," muttered the doctor, as the undertaker drove off with the hearse.

"We know we must toll if ever we win."

Some other day: But we say to ourselves, there's time to begin. Some other day.

And so, deferring, we loiter on, Until at last we find withdrawn The strength and hope we leaned upon.

Some other day.

If you're not having a little fun every day you're missing something.

"Why the gloom, Osmond? Girl not coming to the dance?" "Oh, she's coming all right, but she can't even send a telegram without saying 'stop' after every sentence."

The real people sell their faces and names for beauty testimonials. The imitation people are still doing cigarette stuff. At the bottom, trying to break in, is the constipation crowd.

This will be a brighter world with, if ever, the cantaloupe severs relations with the pumpkin.

"Thankful! What have I got to be thankful for? I can't pay my bills."

"Then, man alive, be thankful you are not one of your creditors."

And those who are worrying now about where to go this summer would be happier if they'd go to work.

Do all the good you can as you roll along. Life is a one-way street, and you're not coming back.

"My grandfather lived to be nearly ninety, and never used glasses."

"Well, lots of people prefer to drink from a bottle."

"Babe Ruth walked twice today."

"Gosh, she should be more careful whom she rides with."

A young woman, earning her own way, complained that she had worn out six pairs of shoes in as many months. "I guess I'll get married, she said.

LETTER GOLF

TIME FOR LETTER GOLF If these weeks before summer vacation seem a little long, take consolation from today's letter golf puzzle—a WEEK is really not much different than an hour after all. You may be able to do it under the par five. One solution is on another page:

Grid for letter golf puzzle with words HOUR and WEEK.

THE RULES

- 1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par a given number of strokes. To change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

The freight train soon pulled out of sight, and little Clowzy Tiny-nite said, "Well, what shall we do, now that the meat men all have gone? Nearby's a very dandy tree. Come on, why don't you follow me, and we will flop and have a snooze 'rom night time until dawn."

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT" CHICAGO ELECTION.

Yesterday's election in Chicago was an example of a choice arrived at through conflict of ugly, seething emotions, every fellow angrily, brutally fighting for his own selfish interests. It wasn't a pretty picture—more than a little revolting, in fact. All the good in one shrinks from determinations made in that spirit—the spirit of force, of war.

It has just occurred to us how different is the spirit of ordinary, orderly business. Imagine, if you please, how far Pinehurst would have gotten in establishing its clientele, if it had sent out a swarm of people to hurl abuse and invective, gunnery to coerce people into becoming customers, bomb throwers to eliminate competition. Ridiculous? Insane? To be sure. But is it any more ridiculous and insane to do such things in private business than in public business—and what is politics but public business?

However, we haven't the slightest fear that legitimate private business is ever going to try to win by the methods of Chicago politics—not any more fear than that a flock of bears is going to come out of the Birch Mountain woods and eat up the Municipal building. The time for all that passed along about 1450 A. D. The time for winning in business even by telling lies is long, long gone by. The time for winning by clean, decent methods, squareness and fairness has been here for a long time.

Maybe, even in Chicago, politics will follow the trail of private business. Maybe, some time, it will even catch up with it.
