PRICE THREE CENTS

SMITH, REED, WALSH RUNNING IN PRIMARY

Vote in California Today Will Prove Whether Walsh Will Drop Out of the Battle.

Washington, May 1.—California wrote an indelible page in Democratic history in 1916 by making possible the second term of Woodrow Wilson.

And today, twelve years later, Democratic eyes are again focused on this normally Republican state for guidance and light in a time of party strife and turmoil.

In California today the candidates of the three principal contestants for the Democratic presidential nomination clash head-on at the polls. Nowhere else have Smith, Reed and Walsh met in such a clear-cut test; nowhere else have the voters been given such an opportunity for preference expression; and nowhere else has the contest between this trio been marked with such old-fashioned political fighting.

Democratic leaders and politicians generally considered the California primary today, as it affects the Democrats, as the most important of the year.

Much at stake in a good deal more is at stake than merely the 26 delegates to the Houston convention. On the outcome depends probably they believe, whether Gov. Al Smith of New York can win the nomination at Houston, or whether his road to that nomination is to be made rocky and filled with really formidable barriers.

If Smith emerges from today's balloting a clear-cut victor, it is the virtually unanimous belief of party leaders here that he cannot be stopped at Houston. His friends claim that he cannot be stopped anyway. Irrespective of the result in California, but at the same time they admit that if either Reed or Walsh takes California there is constituted overnight a serious opponent for the New York governor, and a rallying post for all anti-Smith sentiment.

The 26 delegates, numerically speaking, are relatively unimportant to either of the candidates. The moral effect of a victory in California

POLITICIANS WATCH CALIFORNIA TODAY

Republicans For Hoover But Democrats Have Three Candidates in Field.

San Francisco, Cal., May 1.—The eyes of the nation were on California today as her citizens trekked to the polls to record their preference for president.

The Republicans are agreed on Herbert Hoover, but today's primary vote will serve as an official endorsement of the delegation pledged to support him at Kansas City.

It is within the Democratic ranks that the primary assumes national significance. California Democracy is divided among three leading candidates for the nomination. The winner, political observers believe will be a good bet at Houston.

The Democratic issue in California is one and clear cut. It is perhaps the only one in the United States which is sharply defined upon the rival claims of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, for convention support.

Smith Leader
Leading the Smith contingent is former U. S. Senator James D. Phelan. Opposed to Phelan is William Gibbs McAdoo, leader of the Smokey Walsh faction. Oddly enough, Phelan is the man who placed McAdoo in nomination four years ago in New York against Gov. Smith.

The McAdoo-Walsh combine represents the "Dry" wing of California Democracy. Should they win, it is admitted that they will form a nucleus around which the "drys" will rally at Houston in an effort to defeat New York's popular governor.

COST OF WARSHIPS WORRIES CONGRESS

Extras For Ships Under Construction Are Asked by Secretary Wilbur.

Washington, May 1.—The Navy today faced a new Congressional investigation as a result of failure of Navy yards to keep within appropriations for warship construction and repair.

Aroused by requests for new appropriations for modernization of the battleships Oklahoma and Nevada and completion of the Submarine V-4, members of the House naval affairs committee launched the movement for the investigation.

Rep. Vinson, (D) of Georgia, ranking minority member of the committee, announced that admirals in charge of the Navy yards would be summoned before the committee this week.

The action is expected to be coupled with a drive in the Senate to eliminate the Dollinger amendment, requiring eight of 15 new cruisers to be constructed in Navy yards from the $274,000,000 naval program bill.

Private Building
Advocates of warship construction in private ship yards have seized upon the situation to advance their proposal virtually to discontinue government shipbuilding.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur has asked Congress to increase the authorized cost of modernizing the battleships Oklahoma and Nevada from $13,150,000 to $13,600,000. He also asked that the authorization for the Submarine V-4, already commissioned, be increased from $6,300,000 to $6,500,000.

To keep within the amount authorized for the V-4, many necessary devices were left off the ship and should be installed, he said. The Navy secretary defended the Navy yards in both cases on the ground that the submarine was the largest of its type ever built and that cost of modernization work is always difficult to estimate.

With a bill pending in Congress for the modernization of five more battleships at an estimated cost of $32,850,000 the Navy's statement on modernization costs has endangered this program, according to "Big Navy" advocates.

SINCLAIR TELLS WHAT HE KNOWS OF SLUSH FUND

Senate Expects Him to Reveal For First Time His Connection With Continental Company.

Washington, May 1.—Harry F. Sinclair, recently acquitted in the Teapot Dome oil conspiracy case, today took the witness stand at the Senate of inquiry to reveal for the first time his connection with the Continental Trading Company's $3,080,000 Liberty Bond "slush fund."

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat of Montana, the Senate's famous "oil prosecutor," first explained to Sinclair that the Senate was seeking information about the Continental Trading Company and its bonds. After a whispered conference with Martin W. Littleton, his attorney, Sinclair then told of his connections with the Continental.

"The first I heard of it was in October or November, 1921, said Sinclair. I do not know who organized the company. I attended a conference with three representatives of the Standard Oil Company to purchase some oil from the Humphrey interests."

Present were Robert W. Stewart, Henry M. Blackmer and James E. O'Neill. The conference was held in the Vanderbilt hotel, New York City.

New Oil Fields.
Sinclair explained that the Mexia oil field, owned by A. E. Humphreys and associates, was discovered in the early part of 1921. Sinclair said he wanted to purchase some of the Mexia oil. He lunched at the Bankers Club in New York with Blackmer, O'Neill, Humphreys and ex-Senator Thomas, Colorado, on October 15, 1921. He said Blackmer, now a fugitive in Europe, tried to interest him in a re-purchase of the Mexia oil and next day a meeting was held.

"Who were present at that meeting?"
"Mr. O'Neill, Col. Humphreys, his son, Col. Stewart and Senator Thomas and perhaps Beman Dawes (brother of the vice-president)."

Sinclair testified that Blackmer had made "arrangements" to purchase the Humphreys oil prior to the conference.

"The conference was carried on into the following day," said Sinclair, "there was a tentative agreement but nothing definite. All discussions were about purchasing the oil from Blackmer and the Blackmer interests.

The Happiest Event of the Day

Two members of the Bremen's crew had joyous family reunions at the New York City Hall, during Gotham's welcoming fete to the flyers. In this smiling group, left to right, you see Mrs. Koehl, Captain Koehl, Mrs. Fitzmaurice, Major Fitzmaurice, Herta Junkers and Baron von Huenefeld. Mrs. Koehl, Mrs. Fitzmaurice and Patricia had just arrived from England.

Those Barred By D. A. R. To Hold Blacklist Party

New York, May 1.—Prominent persons from various parts of the country who have been barred from speaking before meetings of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Keymen of America will hold a "Blacklist Party" here on May Ninth at the Level Club.

Among the eligible guests for the party, which is to be given under the auspices of the Nation Magazine are two United States Senators, Borah and Reed; United States Representative Fiorella La Guardia, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Scott Nearing and Norman Thomas.

ANOTHER AMERICAN CAPTURED BY REBS.

More Marines Landed to Search For Gen. Sandino's Band in Nicaragua.

Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, May 1.—A second American employed in the mines of the Pis Pis district which were raided by Sandino troops was believed today to be a prisoner in the hands of the rebels.

Harry Johnson, a Swedish book-keeper employed in the Luz mine, who secreted himself during the raid and subsequently made his way here, has reported that an American named Head, the acting superintendent of the Neptune mine, is missing and has probably fallen into the hands of the guerrillas.

Johnson said that the Luz mine was dynamited and totally wrecked by the rebels on April 27. He said that Head left here last week bound for Bluefields but had not been heard from since. Johnson stated he believed Head had fallen into the hands of a band of several hundred rebels reported moving towards Casa Vieja.

Marshall Still Captive
George B. Marshall, of New York, assistant manager of the Luz mine is still believed to be in the hands of the rebels. Caldwell said, "Yet, with politicians opposing it because they cannot understand it, the plan may be held in abeyance for sheer lack of support."

EGYPTIAN CRISIS IS THOUGHT PAST

Warships Were Already on Way When Assemblies Bill Was Withdrawn.

London, May 1.—A solution of the Egyptian crisis seemed in sight today as a result of the decision of the Egyptian Parliament to withdraw the public assemblies bill.

It was the introduction of this measure that led the British foreign office to send an ultimatum to Cairo demanding its withdrawal on the ground it would jeopardize peace and menace foreign lives and interests.

The Cabinet will discuss the situation tomorrow and decide upon the policy to be followed towards Egypt in the future.

Government officials refused to make any statement until the official Egyptian reply to the ultimatum is studied.

Britain Demands
Great Britain had demanded the cancellation of the public assemblies bill. In view of the fact that the Egyptian parliament had withdrawn it, thus postponing final consideration, this not prove acceptable to Great Britain.

Both the Chamber and the Senate of the Egyptian National Legislature decided to shelve the bill for the present session. As parliament will not meet again until November, the interim will give opportunity for exchanges between London and Cairo to reach a permanent settlement.

The Egyptian government is sending a note in reply to the British ultimatum. It is considered that it will dispute Britain's right to interfere with Egyptian domestic legislation.

HERE'S A GOOD TIP

NEXT TIME YOU KISS

Berlin, May 1.—A secret of great importance for all sheiks was revealed today by Dr. Pontoppidan in a Danish medical journal. When kissing a girl, he said, a man should wear rubber-soled shoes. A kiss, Dr. Pontoppidan explained, is merely an electric shock caused by the touch of one pair of lips on another. This shock is increased if the kisser wears rubber-soled shoes which isolate him from the ground and help him store up electricity.

MAY DAY IS QUIET

However 17,500 Policemen Were on Duty as Workers Celebrated the Day.

New York, May 1.—May Day, holiday of Socialists throughout the world, dawned in New York with every one of the city's 17,500 police on duty as 250,000 workers celebrated.

Mayor Walker's home was under guard. So were the homes of the judiciary and outstanding capitalists, as well as public buildings and churches.

Police Commissioner Warren taboed parades and banning of inflammatory pamphlets.

Eleven May Day meetings were scheduled for afternoon and evening. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, was to address five of them.

Designating May 1 as Army Day, Gov. Smith requested patriotic observances in all public schools.

In a letter to Police Commissioner Warren, August Gerber, secretary of the Socialist action committee, demanded rescinding of orders mobilizing the entire police force. Gerber denounced the preparations as "an insult to the intelligence of 250,000 workers, a reflection on their intelligence."

Yours very truly,
Robert T. Hurley,
Commissioner State Police.

FEARING DEATH, ASKS TO BE SENT TO JAIL

Chicago Man Drops Off Train At Hartford and Calls For Police.

Hartford, Conn., May 1.—John Peters, of 45 South Armory street, Chicago, 24 years old, is locked up in the county jail here in default of $5,000 bail to await a hearing in Police Court on May 13 on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Peters dropped off a train from New York during the night and asked a ticket seller to call the police quickly. His request was granted. Peters was given a ride to headquarters and searched. He had a revolver and an unusually large supply of bullets.

Peters explained that he had been a special policeman at the Chicago primary election and ever since had been followed by three men who were trying to kill him. His mother, gave him money to leave town and he went to New York. In New York last evening he was followed by several men who he believed were trying to kill him. He escaped into the Grand Central and boarded a train for Hartford.

Police decided to hold Peters for investigation and to make sure he would not immediately become a gunman's target, sent him to jail.

Mother and Four Children Killed—Only One Able to Save Self.
Uniontown, Pa., May 1.—Eight persons were drowned in the Monongahela River here today when a skiff, ferrying between Masontown and Greensboro, upset after it was struck by a log. Of nine passengers, only one man, a negro swam to shore and was saved. The victims were Robert Kennedy, a ferry company employee; Gemth Gabbis, 22; an unidentified girl; a negro mother and her four children.

The skiff was crossing the river, swollen by melting snow, when the log, partly submerged, crashed into the boat. The nine passengers were plunged into the racing water, and it was believed that only one was able to breast the waters and reach shore safely.

Today was the special Baron von Huenefeld's 36th birthday and he planned to celebrate it by cutting a large cake with 36 candles at his hotel this afternoon.

Police guarded the suite of the flyers this morning to make sure they were not disturbed. They had been out quite late, having taken in a performance of the Greenwich Village Follies last night, and also

His First Trial
It was the first time Koehl had taken off and landed on an American flying field while handling the controls. The captain went to the field by automobile, accompanied by A. A. Schroeder, engineer for the Junkers company. It was believed that the F-13 may be the plane that will be used by Koehl.

von Huenefeld and Fitzmaurice on their triumphant tour of the United States which starts a week from today.

Their present schedule calls for their appearance in Washington tomorrow to receive congratulations of President Coolidge. They will return to New York by train Thursday.

Smiling like a happy boy, Captain Koehl returned to the flyers' suite at the Ritz-Carlton on the flying field at 10:05 a. m. and rejoined the Baron and Fitzmaurice. "Pitt," as New York has learned to call the slim Irishman, was delighted by the news carried in an International News Service dispatch from Dublin that his request for a month's leave of absence has been granted.

The Baron was still under the spell of New York's tumultuous reception while he was getting shaved this morning. He told Charles H. Ritz, a barber at the hotel, that "they can do things like it only in America." The baron, who has the reputation of being a liberal tipper, sought to give the barber a tip but the latter held up a politely firm hand in refusal.

It was the baron's 36th birthday, and by radio from Berlin he received congratulations from his mother, the Baroness von Huenefeld. A white birthday cake was set on a table and a half dozen and marked with a single big candle was brought into the flyers' suite.

The flyers were carefully guarded against any radical demonstrations in connection with May Day. The bomb squad assigned four picked men to join the post guard protecting the German-Irish trio.

New York, May 1.—Tired out by the great reception given them by the admiring millions of New York City, Baron Gunnar von Huenefeld, Captain Hermann Koehl and Major James Fitzmaurice slept soundly early today in the Ritz-Carlton. They had retired last night, fatigued but happy after one of the wildest celebrations of welcome ever accorded heroes by New York.

They planned not to leave the hotel until shortly before eleven o'clock when they were to pay a visit to newspaper offices in Park Row. At noon they were to go to the sub-treasury building and Wall street and place a wreath on the Washington statue. Early this afternoon they will call at the office of the British consular general and tonight they will be the guests of honor at a banquet tendered them by the city at the Hotel Commodore.

Abandoned Property Was Home Of Funeral--Goer

Among tax liens filed on property in Manchester this year is one on what many people know as the Sally Hubbard place. Sally Hubbard was not her correct name, but it was the name that she was known by to residents of Manchester fifty years or more ago. Very little was known about her. She lived in a house that stood at the junction of what is now Bidwell street and Wetherell street, on a triangular piece of land. She was a little old woman seen in those days and nights at the "Sally Present Everywhere." At every funeral service there was sure to be "Sally" in poke bonnet of black and a black dress. In due course Sally died. There were no known relatives. The funeral cortege consisted of a hearse and just enough neighbors in carriages, to lower her into the grave. Nobody claimed her property. It remained unoccupied and was a stopping off place forty years or more ago for the boys who went swimming in the old Case pond. Later it was burned. Somebody found building sand on the property and people just helped themselves to it. A big excavation was the result of this practice and afterwards there was used as a dumping place for old cans, glassware and crockery. Several times an effort has been made to locate relatives, but without success. Now, with another lien on the property, it will probably be foreclosed by the town for the back taxes.

CHENEYS PAY TAXES IN $259,605 CHECKS

Town's Biggest Payers Boost Intake of Collector on Busiest of Days.

Town Tax Collector George H. Howe had the busiest day of his career as tax collector yesterday, extending into the night. The money came in so fast, and in so many lots that when the tax office finally closed last night he could not make a statement of the total amount collected. Never before, however, had there been so many in line for so long a time as during yesterday.

In the mail this morning Collector Howe also received a large number of checks. While Collector Howe was busy in his department Town Clerk Samuel Turkington was also occupied in the issuing of dog licenses. His office was kept open until 9 o'clock last night and both he and Miss Hattie Strickland, assistant town clerk, were on duty. Over 100 licenses were issued during the day in addition to other work of the office.

Both offices will be open tonight until 9 o'clock. This is the last day for payment of property taxes without penalty. Cheneys Pay $259,605.

Out of a total grand list of assessment of $711,111.90, Cheneys Brothers, as a manufacturing concern and three subsidiary companies, pay one-third of the total taxes in Manchester. This is shown by the four checks given to town tax collector yesterday afternoon, carrying a total of $259,605.92. Of this amount Cheneys Brothers paid as a firm $248,817.97 and for their subsidiary companies $10,787.95.

These amounts do not include the individual payments that are made by members of the Cheney family.

293 REDHEADS GIVE BOOKKEEPER THE RAZZ

"I never knew there were so many red-headed people in Manchester," declared Manager Jack Sanson yesterday afternoon after he had watched his profits dwindle as nearly three hundred of the unquarrelsome walked in free to the matinee performance of Clara Bow in "Red Hair" in accordance with an advertisement. "They came in all shades of red—small ones, tall ones, fat ones and all—men, women and children—it made no difference," said Manager Sanson, who stood ready to make affidavit that by actual count 293 red-heads were admitted to the matinee free. Jack said he was tempted to switch on the lights in the theater during the show just to see how many red-heads would look in one audience, but didn't quite think it etiquette.

Lady Roberts Lodge, Daughters of St. George, will hold its regular meeting in Tinker hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. After the business a social hour with refreshments will be enjoyed. The attendance prize will be donated by Mrs. Mabel Appleby.

The Manchester Public Library will be closed the remainder of the week. During the vacation of the school there is no heat in the Robertson school building where the library is located.

The Past Matrons association of Temple Chapter, O. E. S., will hold its regular meeting tomorrow evening with Mrs. Herbert W. Robb, 234 Center street.

EMERGENCY DOCTORS ABOUT TOWN

Dr. N. A. Burr and Dr. Howard Boyd will be on duty to answer emergency calls tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Walter Williams, local singer, will take part in the entertainment program which will follow the annual banquet of Western Union employees of the state tonight at the Hartford Yacht Club.

Members of the Ladies Sewing Circle of the Lutheran Concordia church are reminded that the outing to Trinity Lutheran church, Hartford has been postponed to Thursday, May 10. At this time the local women will be guests of the Sewing Circle of the Hartford church at a social. The Ladies Aid society will meet as usual, Thursday at 2:30 at the church on Winter street.

Loyal Circle Kings Daughters will conduct its spring rummage sale at Center church parish hall, Thursday and Friday of this week, the proceeds to be used in charitable work. Mrs. William Keane, chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Albert Angell and Mrs. William Crockett. Donations will be called for if any of the committee, or the leader, Mrs. Hood, is notified at once.

Members of St. Margaret's Circle, D. of L., after their dinner in the Hotel Sheridan last night in observance of their fourth anniversary, attended the State theater.

There will be a meeting of the Memorial Day committee in the selectmen's room in the municipal building this evening.

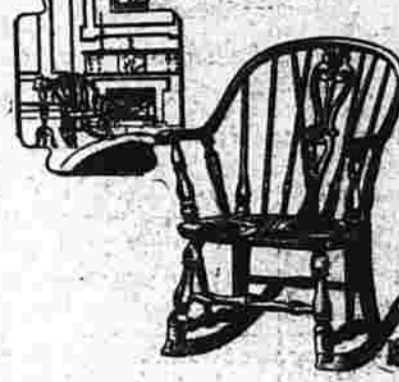

A special meeting of the highway committee of the board of selectmen was held in the selectmen's office yesterday afternoon with a general discussion of spring and summer work and several matters that have been referred by the board to the highway committee. Among these were application for curbs and gutters for various streets and road improvement in different parts of the town.

FOUR NOTABLE SINGERS HERE ON SUNDAY NEXT

Brick Church Solo Quartet, Appearing in S. M. E. Musicale, High Class Artists.

For the final musicale of the season, to be given on Sunday night at the South Methodist Church, there has been engaged as solo artists four singers of exceptionally high reputation.

Well-known in church musical circles as the solo quartet of the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue, New York, they occupy a conspicuous position. But aside from the matter of reputation in church work they are practically well known in the world of secular music. Seldom, if ever, has an ensemble of singers with such a high reputation ever appeared at any musical function here in Manchester or vicinity.

The soprano is Mrs. Corleen Wells, a lady whose interpretation of devotional works has placed her on a high eminence in New York. As a concert singer she possesses many of the qualities which are many, and in all sections of the country she is recognized as a brilliant artist.

Miss Rosa Bryant the contralto, is noted as one of those contraltos that one hears of, but seldom has an opportunity of hearing possess everything of power and accuracy and in addition that peculiar appeal so characteristic of, and yet so rare in, the finest voices of this class.

Charles Stratton, tenor, is the owner of a distinctive voice and has attained wide celebrity in a distinctive field. He is noted for his work as solo artist with the "Boston Symphony" orchestra. Upon his first appearance with this group, he was instantly re-engaged for a series of concerts in the course of which he added lustre to his fame.

The baritone, Alexander Kisselburgh, is not a stranger here. In May of last year, he assumed the baritone solos at a presentation of Gounod's "Redemption." At that time his singing earned for him spontaneous congratulations, and the admiring he made them, will be highly pleased to learn of him coming again. He sends word that he is anticipating the pleasure of meeting his many friends in Manchester again.

The oratorio "Hora Novissima" (The Celestial City) by Horatio Parker, has had a unique tribute paid to it just within this last week. The National Music Week Association, which is responsible for the observance of Music week, May 6 to May 12, took a vote of 150 professional artists as to what native works represent the "American music" best known and liked by musical Americans. In vocal ensembles, this oratorio held first place by a large majority.

With such an expression of opinion from those best able to judge, it is with interest that the work will be heard here. And with such talented artists assisting the choir, an assured success is predicted for the function.

BISHOP IS INSTALLED; 1,000 PRIESTS PRESENT

Newark, N. J., May 1.—Installation of the Rt. Rev. Thomas Joseph Walsh of Trenton as the fifth bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Newark in the new cathedral of the Sacred Heart today was witnessed by a large congregation, including civic representatives and delegates of other religious sects.

A large number of Catholic clergymen from all parts of the country came to Newark to witness the ceremony. More than 1,000 priests took part. It was one of the most spectacular pageants in local religious history.

Long before the hour set for the ceremony, the streets surrounding the cathedral were lined with people and the 3,500 seats in the edifice were filled.

CAPT. KOEHL SLIPS FROM HOTEL TO FLY

The Sharkey-Delaney prizefight at Madison Square Garden were cries of "speech!" "speech!" and each of the flyers had to make a brief talk in which they again expressed their appreciation of the acclaim accorded them. They were quite amused by the reaction of the audience gave them but were more confused when a bevy of sprightly chorus girls pranced into their box and showered them with hugs and kisses. The baron almost lost his monocle in the excitement. When they left the theater for Madison Square Garden their brand new dinner jackets were smeared with powder.

At The Garden
At the garden they were introduced from the ring by the clarion-voiced Joe Humphries, the well-known announcer. Fifteen thousand light blue checked themselves hoarse. As each flyer was introduced, Humphries raised his right hand and the crowd roared. The trio then returned to their ringside seats beside Mayor "Jimmy" Walker and several other dignitaries. Thrill from seeing Jack Sharkey knock out Jack Delaney in one minute and 13 seconds.

That was the end of a big day for Von Huenefeld, Koehl and Fitzmaurice and they retired to their hotel for much needed rest.

Tomorrow they will go to Washington for the official reception at the capital. They will make the flight in the F-13, the Bremen's sister ship.

BOYS SCOUTS TO GUIDE VISITING LUTHERANS

Boys Will Assist in Entertaining Delegates; Conference to Open Tomorrow.

Most of the delegates to the New England Conference of Swedish Lutheran churches will arrive in Manchester tomorrow morning and expectations are that somewhat more than two hundred persons, representing fifty odd churches of all the New England states, will be present. A few, who have to attend an advance meeting tonight, were due here this afternoon.

The conference begins officially at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at which time the visiting pastors and laymen will hold separate executive sessions at the Swedish Lutheran and German Concordia churches here respectively. The conference will end Sunday evening.

Although the program does not open officially until tomorrow, there will be a meeting of the Mission Board at 8 o'clock tonight at the Swedish Lutheran church parlors with the view to making various recommendations at the business session of the conference Thursday morning. The Mission Board consists of eight ministers and four laymen.

The Mission Board will be entertained at supper by Rev and Mrs. J. P. O. Cornell at 6:30 to night. The delegates are all supposed to be here tomorrow noon at which time they will be entertained at dinner in the basement of the Swedish Lutheran church by the women of that organization. During their stay, in Manchester, the delegates, clerical and lay, will be housed by Manchester Lutheran. Boy Scouts of Troop 5 will act as guides, ushers and aides during the convention. Six boys will be on duty each day.

PARIS DIVORCE

Paris, May 1.—The Seta Court today granted a divorce to Mrs. Eleanor Roelker, Tweed on the ground that her husband, Harrison Tweed, refused to admit her to his home. The couple were married at East Greenwich, R. I., on June 24, 1914.

CROSSING THE WAY

Manchester people will watch with keen interest the innovation of business on the west side of Main street at the South end. The impending inauguration of a branch of a great mail order house here would in itself be a departure sure to be watched with much speculation as to its effects on general trade in Manchester; coming in association with the unprecedented adventure of crossing that wide and stately avenue for the establishment of mercantile houses, it is bound to result in a deal of guessing.

It will be with some sighs that Manchester folk will witness the fracture of that unbroken line of park, residence, school and church property which faces our principal business district. But times change and so do conditions, and perhaps a new era is opening with this undertaking.

HOOPER VS. BOODLE

If, as has been alleged, the opposition of certain veteran politicians to the candidacy of Herbert Hoover is predicated on a suspicion that the international bankers might not subscribe to the campaign fund if he were the nominee, their reason is not a good one. If this were Charles D. Hilles' explanation of his efforts in behalf of "anybody to beat Hoover" provided he cared to explain—it would mean no more than that the banking house of Morgan does not like Hoover. And the Republican party is not being run for the purpose of electing Presidents picked by Mr. Morgan.

Let it become general knowledge that Mr. Hoover's campaign is likely to be handicapped by a paucity of contributions from the financial magnates of the Morgan class, and let a popular subscription be started among the rank and file of the party, the response would be certain to be prompt and ample to make up any deficiency in contributions from such sources.

What the Republican party needs this year is a candidate, not a boodle. There has been plenty of the smell of money in recent elections, and it has done no good. We doubt if there is a Republican or doubtful state in the country, whose voters would not themselves supply all the necessary funds for the proper conduct of the Presidential campaign within its borders, and make a sufficient contribution to the national war chest to cover all needful expenses.

If the Republican party turned down the Hoover candidacy because it was feared that a few great banking houses would refuse to contribute a hundred thousand dollars each, it would deserve to lose the election.

EGYPT

For many years the always-bossed kingdom of Egypt has been more or less under the thumbs of Great Britain, the form of the surveillance varying from time to time, but nevertheless always as effective as deemed necessary for the protection of the Suez canal and incidentally of the interests of British holders of high rate Egyptian bonds. At the time of the beginning of the World war, however, England was about as nearly "out" of Egypt as she has been since the bombardment of Alexandria in 1882; and the Land of the Nile was nominally under Turkish suzerainty.

Britain considered annexing Egypt as a war measure, but she had her allies to think of; so, in December, 1914, the British Foreign office issued a proclamation declaring Egypt to be a British protectorate. The next day the then khedive was deposed and another king was proclaimed by the British government. The Egyptians gave little trouble and many of them volunteered for military service against the Turk and his allies. But at the end of the war, when small nations everywhere were demanding autonomy and getting it, there was a sudden development of the nationalist spirit and a demand for complete Egyptian independence.

From that day to this there has been more politics in Egypt than there ever was before, all put together, since Cleopatra's time. In the meantime a new constitution has been created, but the Egyptians have become possessed by a determination to achieve complete autonomy, and the spirit will not down.

It has crystallized on a resolution to put into effect a law permitting freedom of political assemblage, probably because the British supervisors of Egyptian affairs object to it. It is not apparently, a very serious matter one way or the other, being merely a measure prohibiting police interference with public gatherings, except at the request of the organizers or when grave disorders actually occur. This, of course, would give the fallacious free rein to damn Great Britain to their heart's content, though not to do any shooting or throw any bombs.

On the eve of the expected passage of the bill by the Egyptian Senate Britain sends another fleet to Alexandria, following orders to the Senate not to concur with the Chamber in enacting the objectionable law.

Such in brief would appear to be the situation in Egypt. It is seriously to be doubted whether Britain would risk a repetition of the blunder of 1882, which she has been kept explaining ever since. But it evidently is going to be a good while before the Egyptians settle down to a state of contentment in a situation where they are ordered about by foreigners—and especially by foreigners of an alien religious faith.

TRYING TO BEAT SNOW

Hope revives in the Herald editorial breast. For years we stuck to a vague sort of belief that somehow or other it was possible to melt snow instead of carting it from the streets, if the right kind of a device were only invented. But somehow we never seemed to be able to instill any faith in the idea in any person of engineering brains. Finally a couple of the foremost technical authorities in the country, on being timidly approached, assured us that the idea was a general one, but otherwise no good at all. So much of the heat must be wasted on the atmosphere as to make any such system of snow removal prohibitively costly; even as compared to the old fashioned method of hand shoveling and horse carting. So, with sobs, we gave it up.

Now pops up, not a revival of our idea, but a kindred one. Out in Reno they are contemplating the heating of sixteen miles of highway in that county so that the snow will be melted as quickly as it falls. That is an obvious improvement on the Herald's vision of mopping up snow banks with some sort of a flame thrower device or moving incinerator.

Years and years ago, before the trick of protecting steam pipes with asbestos to prevent radiation was learned, certain downtown streets in New York, through which ran many pipes carrying steam from central plants to wholesale stores and offices, used to be so well warmed by the leaking heat that they defied any ordinary snowfall to collect on the pavement—it was melted as it fell, even in weather cold enough to warrant its survival elsewhere.

We await with anxiety further information as to how Reno is going to heat its roads, whether by steam or electricity or whatever—and who is going to foot the bills.

LICKED

With regrets not too poignant to be borne Connecticut yields to her neighbor the Bay State whatever chance New England may claim of attaining the distinguished honor of including within her residents a heavyweight pugilistic champion. Our agile Mr. Delaney, Park City "rapper," once the niftiest and most artistic of ringster sharpshooters, fell most ungraciously and unostentatiously before Boston's savant of the haymaker, and so Connecticut is done, all through, finished and checked out in the matter of big pug contenders.

These two Irishmen—one a French Canadian and the other a Lithuanian—have tested out the merits of the two New England localities, and the result is conclusive. Connecticut admits that Massachusetts is the tougher of the two as well as the bigger.

But that does not mean that Connecticut intends to quit in the matter of Connecticut river water diversion.

WARRING DEMOCRATS

It is perfectly obvious that the Democrats of Connecticut entertain some spark of hope that Al Smith will not only be nominated as their candidate for President but will be elected—a hope perfectly understandable in a party whose outstanding virtue is its capacity for clinging to the thousandth chance and its refusal to give way to despair. It is also perfectly obvious that not even the most sanguine of its members are able to delude themselves into the faintest shadow of expectancy that Smith can carry Connecticut. Because the members of the party have taken this very special occasion to engage in as bitter an internal fight as the always militant Democracy has staged in this state in a long time.

What Connecticut Democrats appear to be solely interested in is control of the state organization, not in the results on election day. Seeing, or thinking they see, in Smith a candidate with an outsider's chance to win, they are as busy as so many bees fixing up matters for the control of the patronage in that happy event. Which is resulting in a knock-down and drag-out within the party that would destroy any chance of carrying the state in the election, even if such a chance existed.

NEW YORK

New York, May 1.—Broadway rounders are the most liberal patrons of a tiny doll shop in the Times Square zone, I am told. After a few visits to the neighborhood speakies the playboys grow a bit sentimental and are inclined to buy a doll for the "girl friend," or to "square it with the wife," or to "tickle the kiddies."

And chorines, and ladies of the night club world are not so sophisticated or hard-boiled as to run away from such a gift. In fact many a heavy daddy has been urged to bestow such a gift—particularly if the doll happens to be one of those French-looking, sleepy models that smokes tiny cigarettes through a little tube connecting with a rubber bulb.

Most chorines' dressing rooms boast of at least one doll and there are few dressing rooms of stars, for that matter, without some sort of toy or hobby. Ed Wynne keeps one of his first funny hats hung over a make-up mirror. Roland Young has a large collection of small looking toy penguins about his room. Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, "grand old lady of the stage," always demanded a staid English print of some sort. Joe Cook gathers all sorts of odds-and-ends, which he brings forth from time to time as "properties" for some quickly invented novelty number. And so it goes.

Through the eerie black tunnels of the subway there is a continuous patrol of men who seldom see the sun. Their days are spent underground and they come out after night has fallen. They are the track walkers, and their beat covers 140 miles of steel rails. It is their job to spot the slightest flaw in the rails and to guard the trains, insofar as possible, from accident.

Now and then, as your train whizzes through its black hole, you can catch a fleeting glimpse of one of them, perched upon a bit of underground scaffolding, lantern in hand, waiting for the train to pass. Few who thus speed by stop to consider the importance of these coopers in the serious business of keeping the line safe from danger. Just a few months ago, during a subway strike, these walkers came upon an internal machine that would have caused death or injury to scores of innocent travelers.

Careless individuals in the subway crowd have often menaced lives and property by thoughtlessly tossing bits of wire or metal from open windows, contact with a third rail would have led to a "short," a fire and possible disaster.

Intoxicated gents often find their way down the track and are saved from death. Innumerable stray cats and dogs go exploding in the underground and once or twice an adventurous boy has been prowling in the half-light.

Aviation in and about Manhattan is slowly ceasing to be a toy or a three-day sensation. While new thrill seekers still pay their $5 for a night's flight, amateur flyers are taking up huge ground space by the city's outskirts and passing up golf for flying. Equipped with club rooms and hangars, these organizations hire expert flyers to act as trainers. These are paid several hundred dollars for a single lesson in flying. The vogue, because of its cost, is limited largely to the little children of the rich. Roger Wolf Kahn son of the millionaire banker, practically deserted his night club jazz band life to pioneer in the realm of fancy flying. Scores of other whose daddies' names appear in the "Who's Who" have followed his lead.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, May 1.—If you haven't been in Washington during these last few weeks, where on earth were you? Everyone else has been here. Perhaps you stayed home because there were no hotel reservations to be had. Thousands found that out.

The town has teemed with tourists. All day long corridors of the Capitol are thronged with parties of them, being lectured by guides.

Everyone goes to the Capitol. According to the sight-seeing bus impresarios, the next most popular places are the White House, Bureau of Engraving, Lincoln Memorial, the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the Washington Monument.

The Bureau of Engraving is where the money is made, hence its rank in popular interest alongside the White House and Capitol. Once the Monument was the most popular point and motorists wanted to make the 855 foot trip to the top. Now they're content to look at it.

According to bus chaperones these are three stock questions:

Who lives in the White House? Many persons think Coolidge sleeps in the Capitol.

What's the name of the Unknown Soldier's mother—it's so hard to remember.

And at Mount Vernon: Where's the cherry tree Washington was supposed to have chopped down?

One of the more important candidates who shared in the recent victory of comparatively respectable politics in Illinois was in Washington a day or two ago. "Pineapples elected us," he said. "Just pineapples. When they started throwing pineapples we stopped worrying."

It's seldom an American congressman gets any better treatment for a bill in the parliament of another government than he gets in Washington.

But I. Guardia of New York introduced a bill to allow the people of Porto Rico to elect their own governor instead of being forced to accept a presidential appointee.

Our own Congress probably will pay little attention to the bill, as President Coolidge opposes Porto Rican self-government, but both houses of the Porto Rican congress "passed" it unanimously.

On the same day the House held Sabbath memorial services for the late Congressman William Magee of New York and the late Senator A. A. Jones of New Mexico. The record shows that seven congressmen quoted poetry in paying their tribute, including lines from Bryant's "Thanatopsis" and Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar."

It's now or never for most of the Republican presidential candidates. Al. J. S. Secretary of Commerce Hoover's comparative youth is being urged by his supporters as one reason why he should be the choice—and the age of the others a factor of unavailability. Four years hence the nomination of any of them but Hoover—unless he were then president—would be practically out of the question.

If nominated and elected, Hoover would be only 54, and 58 on March 4, 1923. But Lowden and Curtis will be 72 on that date, Dawes 67, Watson 63 and Hughes 70. Only three presidents over 61 have been inaugurated, and two die in office.

One might suppose that there would be a certain sentiment in the party to give one of these elderly gentlemen, all with long records of party service, a nomination while there is yet time.

But sentiment flies out of the window when politics comes in the door. If any of them is nominated at Kansas City, sentiment will be the one absent factor.

BRITISH HEALTH IS BETTER THAN EVER, SAYS MEDICAL EXPERT

London.—An extremely optimistic outlook on the health conditions of the people of Great Britain, was expressed by Sir George Newman, chief medical officer to the Ministry of Health, in a recent address here.

Sir George said that great improvement could be noticed in health conditions in the last 75 years.

"In that time," Sir George declared, "the population has more than doubled. The general death rate for England and Wales has been cut in half. Child mortality under the age of five in London is one-third of what it was. Deaths under 50 are now 32 per cent, as against 71 per cent for 1838. Expectation of life at birth extends 12 years for boys and 14 years for girls.

"Why was human life longer and healthier in the 19th century than in the 14th," he asked. "I think the answer is two-fold—social and scientific.

"We must give up the idea that health is comprised in sewerage, disinfection, the suppression of nuisances, the burial of the dead, notification and registration of disease, fever hospitals, and endless restrictive by-laws and regulations. Health springs from the domestic, social and personal life of the people."

Chicks get from Purina LIFE and GROWTH

FROM the time chicks step out of their shells, they look to you for protection and care to live and thrive. Poultry yard facts show that more than 90% of the chicks fed Purina Starters and Purina Baby Chick Chow live and grow rapidly into plump broilers and early laying pullets. Isn't it sound business economy to feed Purina, which saves 9 out of 10, instead of average mixtures on which 5 out of 10 chicks die? Come in and let us show you how to save chicks and get them to early maturity.

ON the night her engagement to Nathaniel Dann was to be announced, Virginia Brewster's father died and she learned that he was a bankrupt instead of the wealthy man she had always thought. . . . What was she to do—marry Dann, the penniless artist, or listen to the tempting proposals made by men of wealth? . . . Can a girl reared in luxury be satisfied with the crumbs of life and the man of her heart? . . . Was love in a garret a fair exchange for the only sort of life she had known?

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Tuesday, May 1. Honorable Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will be the main speakers of the American Child Health Association program which will be broadcast by W.E.A.F. and the Red network at 6:30 P.M. Tonight the final concert of the Philhellenic Society of the Apollo Club of Brooklyn, with Florence Easton, soprano; Poppyann Company soprano, and guest artist, will be relayed by WJZ and the Blue network stations at 8:30. John Henry Brewer is director of this famous chorus of 90 voices. During an intermission in the two-hour program the national string quartet will present a classical program. Two soloists of exceptional merit, one a leading horn player, the other a violinist of the first rank, will be heard in the ever-ready hour through W.E.A.F. and the Red network at 8:30. Frederick Gunster, concert tenor who has appeared at soloists with many of the principal musical organizations of the country, will be heard in concert with W.E.A.F. at 8:30. Michel Guskoff, concert master of the New York Symphony orchestra. Both soloists were accompanied by Nathan Shilkret's orchestra. Other highlights for this night include concerts by the Stamboulou male quartet through the Blue network, the Selberling Singers through the Red network and the Hartman male quartet through W.G.

COLUMBIA

Columbia had three pupils on the Honor Roll of the fifth marking period of Windham High school. Clayton Hunt, Jr., of the sophomore class was on the high honor roll. Gladys Rice, a senior, and Joseph Kresewicz, a junior, were on the 80 per cent honor roll. Miss Marion Holmes spent the week-end with her friend, Miss Gertrude Gates of Hartford. Mrs. Bashore of Willimantic, who has been caring for Mrs. Emily Little, has returned to her home, and Mrs. Austin of Carborough has come to take her place. Mrs. Horace Griggs, for 35 years a resident of Columbia, died at her home in Holliston, Mass., a few days ago. The funeral was held in Willimantic Sunday and burial was in Willimantic Cemetery. Mrs. Griggs was 88 years old. Misses Adella and Abner Budge spent Saturday night with their friend Gladys Lowman. The annual meeting of the Columbia Improvement Association was held at the Town Hall Saturday night. Members being present. The following officers were re-elected for the coming year: President, Joseph N. Clarke; vice president, William Wolf; secretary, Mrs. C. A. Hutchins; treasurer, H. W. Porter. The following Board of Directors was chosen: W. H. Carpenter, William Wolf, Clayton Hunt, Mrs. Fannie Collins. The secretary and treasurer reports were read, showing that nearly $400 was raised during the past year for the work of the association. It was voted to amend the constitution by decreasing the number necessary for quorum from 20 to 15. Plans were made for raising sufficient money to purchase a power lawn mower with roller. A subscription paper was started at the meeting, $39 being pledged. The paper will be further circulated, throughout the town. A resolution was adopted naming the President and Secretary to send to the family of the late Erwin S. Collins, an expression of the appreciation of the association for his gratuitous services at the hall in behalf of the association. The Willimantic C. E. Union will meet with the Columbia society Saturday afternoon and evening. The afternoon session will be at 7:30 and the evening session at 7:30 both daylight saving time. Supper will be served to the out of town visitors by the local society between the sessions. Everyone is invited to these meetings, which will have interesting speakers. Rev. Duane Wain preached Sunday morning on "Christianity, the Key of the Arch."

RICHARD DIX HEADS BIG BILL AT STATE

Manchester's Favorite Here Today and Tomorrow in His Latest—'Women's Wares,' Co-Feature. Ideas on how not to get rid of money are sometimes as valuable as those on how to accumulate money. Richard Dix, in his latest Paramount farce comedy, 'Easy Come, Easy Go,' manages to hold on to a great deal of money even when he is more or less up to date American flavor. Messenger boys, shop-girls and housewives still are humming 'Hallelujah' which has already become history in the United States. France has a plethora of comedians and dramatic stars who play to full houses in small theaters, but the crowds are elsewhere, their ears vibrating or their feet twitching to saxophone and anardrum. Most of the music hall revues are ninety-nine per cent girls and American cynicism. The remainder is boulevard humor that used to be served in large quantities before the tango yielded to Charleston. The daily total of amusement-seekers in France is 1,658,000, but the statistics fail to reveal what percentage of the 778,250 remaining in the Parisian jazz and film devotees enjoys dance and spectacle in the provinces. MAINE INDIAN TRIBES GIVE BOSTON COLLEGE SAMPLES OF HANDWORK. Boston.—Two chiefs of Indian tribes in Maine, Chief Great Friend and Chief Daylight, recently came to this city to return a token to Boston College. The Redskins brought a complete collection of all the handicraft of the Penobscot tribes for the museum at Boston College. The presentation was made by Chief Great Friend and Chief Daylight in the College Auditorium before several thousand students and friends. The Indian chiefs are from the tribe that was originally converted by Father John Baps, S. J. The presentation of the collection was in gratitude to the Society of Jesus whose members comprise the faculty of Boston College.

JAZZ AND MOVIES WIN PARIS CROWDS; SHUN LIGHT OPERA

Paris. More than one-fourth of the population of Paris daily seeks relief from workaday in jazz and the movies. The total population of the city is estimated at 3,000,000. Of this number 777,780 shun French light opera and dramatic plays for music hall revues, dance palaces and motion pictures, all of which have a more or less up to date American flavor. Messenger boys, shop-girls and housewives still are humming 'Hallelujah' which has already become history in the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Griswold of Hartford spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Holden Brown. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Platt and son of Manchester and Edward Frink and son of Hartford were callers at A. E. Frink's Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamilton and family attended the funeral of Mrs. Sarah Griggs in Willimantic Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Griggs was the grandmother of Mrs. Hamilton. Mrs. Ellen E. Jones and family spent the week-end with friends in South Coventry. At a meeting of the Board of Selectmen and the town road committee called by First Selector George A. Merritt, Friday evening, it was voted to reject an estimate made by State Highway Commissioner J. H. McDonald, whereby a state aid road might be built in the southern part of the town towards the Glead town line at a cost of $84,000 and covering a distance of less than a mile. It was not deemed advisable to put the town in debt to the extent of some $80,000 in order to accept such an estimate and which was thought by the committee would be rejected by the town should a meeting be called to vote on the proposed offer by the State Highway Department. The next thing we expect to see is a testimonial from the Murray Bay, Quebec, Chamber of Commerce, with signed statements from the men of the Evemen, telling why they chose that neighborhood to land.

GILEAD

Some friends, sixteen in number, of Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Deeter passed the week-end at the parsonage. They started from Kansas several months ago in automobiles.

Three Pontiacs and a Dodge have toured through the south. Their next stop is Boston. One of their number, Rev. Houston from Oklahoma, delivered a snappy and interesting oration at the church Sunday morning.

The Tri-County C. E. Union held sessions at the Hebron Congregational church Sunday at 3 p. m. also so at 7:30 at which several local folks attended.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Warner of Hartford spent the week-end at their local home. The state round-up of the 4-H clubs was held in Hartford, Friday evening and Saturday, the young folks were the guests of the Hartford Chapter of Commerce.

The Misses Hattie and Lena Generous of Buffalo and Mr. and Mrs. Fogel of South Manchester were the week-end guests at Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Fogel's.

Wyckoff Wilson of Beverly road, West Hartford, was a caller at Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Post's Sunday.

TALCOTTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. William Potter accompanied by the Misses Agnes Ferguson, Dorothy Moriarty spent the week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Frazier.

Mrs. J. E. Bradley is spending the week-end in Worcester, Mass. Miss Irene Clark of Rockville was a recent guest of her aunt Mrs. James McNally.

The Misses Virginia and Helen Diamond of Huntington, Massachusetts, are the guests of Mrs. Jackson McKee.

SMITH, REED, WALSH IN PRIMARY FIELD

Smith is all-important to all of them. Today's Rumors There were reports today that if Smith scores a decisive victory, the candidacy of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat of Montana, will be abandoned.

There were reports today that if Smith scores a decisive victory, the candidacy of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat of Montana, will be abandoned.

The Smith candidate has been marching steadily forward for weeks, encountering but little serious opposition.

To date, 534 of the 1,100 delegates at Houston have been selected, and of this number Smith has garnered 434, or roughly 75 per cent. Thus the New York governor has been progressing at a rate of three-fourths the delegates, instead of the necessary two-thirds.

His opponents hope that in California today he will receive his first definite set-back. If he does, it will galvanize his now drooping opponents into renewed action and hope.

MAYOR TAKES OFFICE

Hartford, Conn., May 1. — Walter E. Batterson, successful leader of many Republican election campaigns, became mayor of Hartford at noon today. His predecessor, Norman Stevens, also a Republican, was not on hand to greet the new mayor, being in Florida for a rest.

POLISH BANDIT DIES WITH SMILE AND CIGARETTE

Paris.—Wladek, the Polish bandit met death with a cigarette in his mouth and a smile on his face. "Au revoir, messieurs," were his last words.

Two other outstanding features marked the execution of the Pole. He was the first to be conducted to his execution accompanied by a woman, his lawyer, Mile, Erllich.

It was also Monsieur Delbier's 27th execution. Monsieur Delbier is the State Executioner.

While M. Delbier hastened to raise the 150 pound knife that had just descended upon the neck of Pachowski, Wladek sat in the "Black Maria" that had brought them both from the gates of the Sante Prison, and smoked and joked with his woman lawyer.

"There's a lot of thieves in my cuff buttons. I wonder how much of a rope I can give me if I promised to tell 'em all about the crooks in the Prison?"

"Please take off your glove, Maitre, I want to kiss your hand, thank you for all you've done for me. It's my turn now."

Wladek stepped from the prison wagon followed by his lawyer. His hands were tied behind his back. He resembled a prize fighter with his shoulders hunched as if about to meet his opponent in the middle of the ring.

He smiled at his faithful advocate. Shrugged his shoulders. Monsieur Delbier's men seized him from both sides. He turned his head over his shoulder and flung out these words with a smile: "Au revoir, Messieurs!"

The knife fell.

During the past seven years the United States has imported more wool than the country produced, with the exception of 1920 and 1924.

The building line on the east side of Emerson Street is to be twenty-five (25) ft. east of and parallel to the east line of said Emerson Street, from West Center St. on the north to Summer St. on the south.

The veranda line on the east side of Emerson Street is to be fifteen (15) ft. west of and parallel to the west line of said Emerson Street, from West Center St. on the north to Summer St. on the south.

BELGIAN MILLIONAIRE TO TOUR U. S. BY PLANE

London, May 1.—May Day was observed throughout Europe today with parades, demonstrations and a general cessation of work. The observation had taken on a menacing aspect in some places, notably in Vienna and Budapest where the Communists threatened trouble.

Workers in all parts of Britain observed the day. There was a parade in London and a mass meeting in Hyde Park where speakers from the Labor Party lauded Socialist-Communist ideals.

A strong force of police was on duty to prevent disorders.

ACTRESS ALLOWED TO DANCE

Budapest, May 1. — Josephine Baker, the American negro dancer, has succeeded in having the ban lifted from her performances here by convincing Foreign Minister Szytowski that there was nothing out of the way in her interpretation of the Terpsichorean art.

She staged a private performance which the statesman attended. He saw nothing wrong with her various gyrations and ordered the ban against Josephine lifted.

OLD GOLFER DIES

Stamford, Conn., May 1. — Frank McNamara, once known as "one of the ten best golfers in the world," died at Stamford hospital today from the effects of an operation performed ten days ago. He was thirty-three. His wife and two children survive. Funeral services will be held Thursday morning.

McNamara was a professional at Cherry Valley, L. I., Sound Beach and Hartford. He was a salesman in recent years. He won an open championship at Philadelphia eleven years ago, then reaching the peak of his career.

"BRAIN CONTEST"

Cambridge, Mass., May 1.—The Harvard and Yale teams, each comprised of ten scholars, were resting up today, following their strenuous battle of wits, over the subject of English literature, the first of a series of intercollegiate culture-contests.

Neither side will know who won for at least a month, for the committee in charge stated it would take that long to correct the papers.

Just like the traditional college football hero, Henry Thomas Dolan, of Scranton, Pa., star member of the Harvard team, took the examination in Brook's hospital, Brighton, where he was confined with a broken kneecap.

ORPHAN ALONE

BY ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Ward of the state orphanage since she was four, SALLY FORD is "strapped on" to GLEN CARSON the summer she is 16. She needs DAVEN BLACK, his eyes working on the farm during vacation. David hits Carson when he makes remarks about David's friendship for Sally. They run away and join a carnival, David as cook's helper and Sally as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

In Capital City, location of the orphanage, Sally is discovered by one of the little orphans, who are charmed by a beautiful "Lady Bountiful." Quick action on the part of GUS, the baker, saves Sally. She learns from ABSTUR VAN HORNE, handsome easterner, that she may be with his intentions, that the beautiful orphanage is ENID BARR, wife of a wealthy New Yorker.

In another state Sally and David believe danger of detection is over and they escape freely. He gives Sally a surprise engagement ring. Mrs. STONE, matron of the orphanage, follows Sally and confronts her in the sidewalk. Again Mrs. Stone comes to get away. She and David are arrested without Sally. They find a "marrying parson" and he is just beginning the service when Mrs. Stone and Enid Barr rush in and stop them. Enid tells them she has with her and how only recently she learned the truth. Sally clings to David and insists on going with him to marry him. Enid, who has different plans for her newly-found daughter, tells her she cannot marry David Nash.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

with the caressing tips of her fingers. "You're a good boy, David, and Sally, the orphan, the girl alone, would have been lucky to marry you. But you understand, don't you? She's my daughter, will be the legally adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Barr. Anyone in New York could tell you what that means. She will have every advantage that money can offer her—finishing school or college, if she wants to go to college; travel, exquisite clothes, a place in society, a mother and father who will adore her, a girlhood rich with all the pleasures that every normal girl craves. Help me to give her these things, David. You would give her if you could!"

"This is all nonsense!" Mrs. Stone spoke up sharply. "You know perfectly well, Mrs. Barr, that these two foolish children can't get married without your consent. For one, think you're wasting your time. Simply put your foot down and take your daughter home with you."

Sally flushed angrily and struggled to rise, but David held her back. "I'll have to go with you, darling. Remember how you've always wanted a mother? You have one now, and she wants you with her, wants to make up to you for all you've missed."

As only mute rebellion answered him, she wisely changed her tactics. "Do you think you could ever be really happy, darling, knowing that you had hurt your mother, cheated her of the child for whom she has grieved all these years? She'll never have another child, Sally, and she needs you as much as you need her."

When Sally's mouth began to quiver with new tears, Enid Barr took the girl in her arms. At last Sally raised her head and searched her mother's face with pitiful intensity. "Do you really need me?" she cried. "You'll love me—a real mother to me? You don't just want me because it's your duty?"

Tears clouded the clear blue of Enid's eyes as she answered softly: "I'll be a mother to you, Sally, not because it's my duty, but because I already love you and will love you more and more. If I had searched the whole world over for the girl I would have liked to have as my daughter, I could not have found one who is as sweet and pretty and dear as you are. I'm proud of my daughter, and I shall hope to make her proud of me."

"Then—I'll go with you," Sally capitulated, but she added quickly: "If David will promise not to love any other girl until I'm old enough to marry him."

"I'll always love you, Sally," David said gravely, as he rose from the sofa.

Sally struggled out of her mother's clasps and sprang to the boy's side, her arms reaching for his little center table for his hat. "Where are you going, David? Don't leave me yet! Oh, David, I can't bear to let you go! How can I write you—where? Tell me, David! Oh, I love you so! I feel like I'll die if you leave me!"

Defiant of the tight-lipped disapproval of Mrs. Stone and of the anxious signal which Enid's blue eyes were flashing him, David put his arms about Sally and held her close, while he bent his head to kiss her.

"Then you write me here, general delivery. I'll stay here for a while, I think, until I can make plans—"

My husband is in Capital City now, David," Enid interrupted eagerly. "I am going to have him interested with the authorities for you. You can return to Capital City as soon as you like. There'll be no trouble, I promise you. It is the only thing we can do to repay you for your great kindness toward—our daughter."

"Then you can go back to college, David," Sally rejoiced, her eyes shining through tears. "And when you've graduated and—gotten your start, we can be married, can't we?"

"If you still want me, Sally, darling," David answered gravely. "Thank you, Mrs. Barr. You'll try to make Sally happy, won't you?"

"I promise you she'll be happy, David," Enid answered, giving him her hand. "May I speak with you alone a moment?" she added impulsively, and linking her arm in his drew him toward the door that opened into the little foyer hall.

"David! You're not going? Without telling me goodbye?" Sally cried, stumbling blindly after them.

"Goodby, my darling." He put his arm about her shoulders and laid his cheek against her hair as he murmured in a low, shaken voice: "I'll be loving you—always!"

When the door had closed upon her mother and her almost-bus-husband, Sally did a surprising thing; she went stumbling toward Mrs. Stone, and dropped upon her knees before that majestic, rigid figure which she had feared for 12 years.

When Enid Barr returned a few minutes later, two round spots of color burning in her cheeks, she found her daughter in the orphanage matron's lap, cuddled there like a small child, trustfully sobbing out her grief.

Enid Barr left with her daughter for Kansas City that night, after wiring her husband, Courtney Barr, who was still awaiting word from her in Capital City. For two days Sally and Enid shopped for a suitable wardrobe for Sally, went to shows together, explored the city, spent many hours talking. Whenever the question of Sally's future arose, Enid spoke only in generalities, evading all direct questions, but about Sally's childhood and young girlhood in the orphanage and on the Carson farm, and about her experiences with the carnival, Enid was minutely candid and invariably sympathetic. Sally sensed that her mother was anxiously awaiting Courtney Barr's arrival before making any definite plans, and gradually the girl grew to dread the ordeal of meeting her mother's husband, the man who would become her father by adoption.

And when at last he came she knew that her troubled intuition had been correct. However "wonderful" he had discovered that her father had not been born dead but was alive somewhere in the world, Sally felt instantly that his kindness and generosity toward Enid would not extend to herself.

Courtney Barr was meticulously groomed, meticulously courteous man who had, in slipping into mid-dle-aged, lost all tracks of the boy and youth he must have been. To Sally's terrified eyes, this rather heavy, ponderous man, on whom dignity rested like a royal cloak, looked as if he had been born old and wise and cold. She wondered how her exquisite, arrogant little mother could love him so devotedly.

Almost immediately after the awkward introduction—"This is our Sally, Court!—the three of them had had dinner together, a light meal, so that Sally was concerned. She had felt that the Enid with whom she had talked and laughed and wept these two days had slipped away, leaving this sophisticated, strange woman in her place, a woman who was in no wise connected with the Enid who was merely Mrs. Courtney Barr.

They left her alone for an hour after dinner, an hour which she spent in her own room in writing a long, frightened, appealing letter to David. At nine o'clock Enid knocked on her door and invited her to join them in the parlor of the luxurious suite which had been such a delight to orphanage-bred Sally.

She found Courtney Barr seated in a large arm chair, her mother perched on the arm of it, one tiny foot in a silver slipper swinging with nervous rapidity. The man smiled bleakly, a smile that did not reach his cold gray eyes, as Sally took the nearby chair that he indicated.

"Mrs. Barr and I have been discussing your immediate future, Sally," he began ponderously, in tones that he evidently thought were kind.

Institutional timidity closed down upon Sally; under those cold eyes she lost that ephemeral beauty of hers which depended so largely upon her emotions. It was her institutional voice—meekness hiding fear and rebellion—which answered: "Yes, sir."

"Enid begged, 'You're scaring my baby to death. He fancies himself as an old pro, Sally, darling, but he's really a dear inside. You see, Sally, I was so eager to find my baby that I made no plans at all.' Courtney Barr said, 'I think I'd better do the talking after you're done. Your sentimentality—natural, of course, under the circumstances—would make it impossible for you to state the case clearly and convincingly.'"

Sally's cold hands clasped each other tightly as she stared with wide, frightened eyes at the man who was about to arrange her whole future for her.

"I have made Mrs. Barr understand how impossible it will be for us to take you into our home at once, as the adopted daughter," Courtney Barr went on in his heavy, judicial voice.

Sally sprang to her feet, her eyes blazing in her white face. "I didn't ask to be found, to be adopted!" she cried. "If you don't want me, say so, and let me go back to David!"

This And That In Feminine Lore

Be sure and look over the hand-woven rugs at Mrs. Elliott's Shop. She is giving a special discount every morning this week.

A reader of this column has contributed a recipe for caramel cake which she assures me is very good and economical, with the filling thereof. The cold, wet weather we have been having, inspired her to write a verse on summer. They both appear below.

Summer.
Summer, oh beautiful summer,
How we long for thy bright, glad-some hours;
When the hills and valleys are covered
With Nature's beautiful flowers.
The fields will be white with daisies;
The buttercups, too, will be there.
And the brook through the meadows go running.
So happy it will not care where.

Caramel Cake.
1 egg
1 cup milk
1 cup sugar
½ cup shortening
2 teaspoons baking powder
Flour to make medium batter.
Salt

Before putting in the flour, take three tablespoons of cocoa of a good quality, wet up with a little water or some of the milk and use one teaspoon of vanilla for flavoring.

Filling.
½ pound confectioners sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Butter size of a butternut
Add milk to make the filling the right consistency to spread.

Mrs. Robinson will make sample waves on your own head to guide you in choosing the most becoming permanent wave for you, whether curl, medium or softly flowing waves. Ring 1671 for the Lily Beauty Shop service.

The cold, wet weather and the floods in the southern states have materially affected the vegetable crops, so that those coming from the South at this time of the year are much higher in price than usual.

The lightest weight, transparent velvet will be worn this summer for wraps and formal evening clothes.

Rice Souffle.
This is a heart dessert and suitable to serve after a light meal. Four tablespoons rice, ¼ cup milk, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ cup stoned and chopped dates, ½ teaspoon vanilla, few grains salt.

Cook rice in boiling water until tender. Drain and blanch. Add milk and cook until water is absorbed. Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon colored. Add sugar and salt and add with butter to rice. Cook over hot water for three minutes. Remove from heat and add dates. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff with a diluted sort of higher education, reduced and adapted to their particular needs—generally by some man, according to his judgment of what they ought to want!"

Macaroni Fruit Salad.
One cup cooked macaroni, 2 oranges, 1 cup shredded fresh pineapple, 2 bananas, 1 egg, 4 tablespoons sugar, 2 lemons, 1 cup whipped cream, few grains salt.

Cut orange sections in small pieces. Dice bananas. Beat egg, sugar, salt and juice of lemons well, using a duster beater. Cook over hot water until thickened. Cool and fold in whipped cream. Add to prepared fruit and macaroni and serve on hearts of lettuce.

Nurses themselves are said to be advancing the new plan of securing trained service by the hour for the middle-class family who cannot afford a full-time nurse. The very poor are given expert care free through the visiting nurses' associations in the cities, while the middle class find the problem a grave one. So many live in small apartments that nursing is prohibitive and where the needs of the patient are such that removal to a hospital is unnecessary, this new plan of securing a visiting nurse for whatever time she is required is proving a great blessing. In spite of the high prices graduate nurses command, with time wasted between cases, their average yearly remuneration is not as high as women in other fields of industry.

MARYE and MOM Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

My dear Marye:
I really think Alan ought to be told about your friendship with that "Reds," as you call him. Dear me, I do hope you don't call him that to his face. It's too familiar, Marye. It may be only a straw, but it shows that you're thinking of him informally. I'm sure you can see that you mustn't let him know that.

The sort of boy friends you had before you were married might have known that you didn't mean anything by whatever you called them but what would you do if this man suddenly addressed you as "Marye"? I hope you insist upon being called Mrs. Meredith by strangers, though I doubt that you do.

I declare it takes my breath to hear Frank's boy and girl friends calling each other sweetheart, darling, or anything else. I've never heard of anything else they can think of.

Anyone coming from another country and listening to them would think America was a land of free lovers. Oh yes, I'm using that expression in a prohibitive way. I've heard it so much it no longer shocks me. And that's proof of what I've been telling you. Humans can get used to almost anything no matter how terrible it seems to them at first. I wouldn't wonder if we old folks go wrong yet, from the example set us by our offspring.

Anyway I'm sure you'll need a new vocabulary soon if you want to use an endearing term that means something. It's got so that strangers use words that even engaged couples blushed over when I was a girl.

But of course, I know he didn't mean to be insulting. He's typical of most of the modern boys and girls, however. And I'm afraid that an ultra modern girl like you, Marye, with your easy speech, will be a puzzle to a man who comes from a country where the boys and girls are more reverent toward their parents. I've now heard that the young folks of the Argentine are not like the younger generation in America. Mr. Northrop told me. He's been to South America.

When you wrote about your new "friends" I went over to the Northrops and had a talk with Bert. If I didn't have to go and out some rhubarb for supper I'd tell you what he said. But I'll write again soon. In the meantime, Marye, please don't encourage that Senor Pedro.

Lovingly,
MOM.

The WOMAN'S DAY

BY ALLENE SUMNER

Mrs. John Morris of a town I know of civic or personal improvement. The youngest of them are in the thirties, and there are not many of these. Gray heads, bobbed probably, but indisputably gray, prevail at their meetings; comfortable matronly figures—the figures of the town that are the backbone of the town as it rises money for the school, the Red Cross, or direct the sale of seats for high school pageants.

"Practically all the subjects in the college curriculum today seem to me as valuable to women as to men," she declares.

"Certainly they are as essential to the one charged with creating a home and rearing children as they are to the husband pursuing a business career."

"To think straight, to have of the forces of Nature and the works of men, to know how to find out about a new subject to be acquainted with some of the joys in a home as outside."

"We apparently face again an old peril which we thought was conquered years ago—the idea that all women be educated as women only, and not as human beings entitled to their full share of the intellectual heritage of the race."

"From many directions during the last two or three years we have heard a recrudescence of the ancient assertion that women need only a diluted sort of higher education, reduced and adapted to their particular needs—generally by some man, according to his judgment of what they ought to want!"

What Time

The woman who showed me coats in my favorite store this noon was white-haired and soft-voiced and very, very much "a lady." I said something to the effect that it must be tiring work on such warm days.

"Honey," she said, "I never had such a good time before in all my many days. When I think of all the years I was making angel food cake with fresh cocoanut frosting for church suppers all for nothing, and when I think of the interesting jobs in the world that beat church suppers all to pieces, besides getting paid on top of it, I just get mad to think what I've been doing all this time."

And there's another phase of "this woman business" that we haven't heard so much about.

We are living in a money-making age and an age of personal independence. The only natural for a woman of capabilities to present giving her time and energy and talents to unpaid and often thankless causes and to have the fame of her neighbor who works for hire and individual glory sung into her ears.

What About the Clubs

But where is it all going to end? A writer in a current woman's magazine writes—

"Ask yourself what new blood has come into your organization this year. What are the ages of the youngest women in the thousands of clubs organized a score or two score years ago for one form or another of civic or personal improvement? The youngest of them are in the thirties, and there are not many of these. Gray heads, bobbed probably, but indisputably gray, prevail at their meetings; comfortable matronly figures—the figures of the town that are the backbone of the town as it rises money for the school, the Red Cross, or direct the sale of seats for high school pageants.

CROWD-EXISTENCE DEMANDS CAUTION

Ever increasing knowledge of physiology and the conditions under which most of us live today are combining to make new demands upon us in the care of our health. This is the third of a series of six articles on "The Physiological Life." Tomorrow: Stimulants and Drugs.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The third thesis of Professor A. J. Carlson's analysis of the physiological life is as follows:

"As a consequence of the industrial developments and growth of cities, a large population of men are more crowded, more subject to polluted air, polluted drinking water and industrial poisoning than our ancestors.

"Investigations made by scientists all over the world indicate definitely that the packing of human beings together in proximity in such places as halls, motion picture palaces, office buildings and kitchen apartments has resulted in the spread of those diseases that are passed from man to man.

Task For Engineers

"When men are thus assembled in vast numbers, it is necessary to bring into play modern plumbing and sanitation and all of the intricacies of modern engineering to provide them with safe water for drinking, with sufficient water for bathing themselves and washing their dishes and linens, with artificially circulated air, with light for vision, and with ultraviolet light to take the place of the invisible rays of the sun.

"It is necessary to develop methods for the prevention particularly of the diseases that attack the nose, sinuses, the throat and the lungs, since these respiratory diseases particularly are passed from one human being to another.

"It is necessary for preventive inoculation to protect man against diseases associated with contaminated food and water and against the germs that are coughed or expelled from the mouth and throat.

Artificial Aids

"If modern civilization is to be saved, the human being must be enabled to live in modern civilization under safe conditions. Hence artificial methods of providing human beings with the things provided by the outdoor life are being developed in increasing proportions.

As is pointed out by Doctor Carlson, a continued increase of population means increased growth of cities, increased industrial concentration and increased industrial poisoning. The battle for life of the future means increased research to meet these new problems.

WHAT PRICE BROKEN HEARTS

By Olive Roberts Barton

They say that fools rush in where angels fear to tread. Class me as you wish but I hereby announce that I am no friend of the great American Institution known as the Breach of Promise Suit.

That there are exceptional cases where it may be justified is perfectly true. But in order to appraise the actual worth of anything, we must look at results. And the results of the breach of promise suit are indisputably bad.

For one thing, it is making men skeptical and wary. They are losing faith in women, fast enough without the shadow of a court hanging over their heads. I am expecting a shower of protests from the four corners of the globe, telling me what beasts men are, breakers of faith and hearts, ruiners of virtue and reputations, and all that.

But although some men may be all these things, most are none of them—so it won't do any good to write. Like the school marm in "A Day Out," I've made up my mind.

How many girls change their minds after they get engaged? Thousands of them—often without any excuse at all. Does it ever occur to their jilted lovers to sue them, whether they are rich or not? I never heard of a case. So if for any reason or other a man changes his mind, why should it be right for his ex-fiancee to sue him?

If they have been living as man and wife beforehand, and marriage has been promised, I still cannot see that the claim of a few hundred dollars can compensate for the lack of a minister. And I also believe that under the circumstances men should not have to take all the blame.

More than one young man has remarked in my hearing, "I wouldn't write a letter to a girl these days for worlds. I know better."

That's what it has come to. And this lack of faith in femininity is spreading. No other nation of women on earth flies to court for compensation like American women. That it is not an easy world for women I'll confess, but by such tactics we are only making it harder for ourselves and those who come after us.

Campaign Portraits—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie

Ritchie May Inherit Gov. Smith's Votes

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the 20th of a series of Presidential Campaign Portraits written for The Herald and NEA Service by Robert Talley, tells the story of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Maryland. Tomorrow's article will discuss Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas.

BY ROBERT TALLEY

Washington, May 1.—Fifty-one years old, tall, good looking and a bachelor, Albert C. Ritchie, three times governor of Maryland, is a receptive although not an avowed candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Gov. Ritchie, an Episcopalian, is a close friend and a loyal supporter of Al Smith. As long as the New Yorker is in the race Ritchie intends to fight for him. But if the history of Madison Square Garden is repeated at Houston and another deadlock makes Smith's nomination impossible, Gov. Ritchie may be trotted out as the second choice of the Smith forces as was Oscar Underwood in 1924.

Refreshingly frank, Ritchie admits that the mention of his name in connection with the presidency is pleasing to him. Equally candid, he admits that he entered politics when a young lawyer because a judicious amount of politics helped his law business.

Ritchie is a "wet," a strong advocate of state rights and perhaps the greatest vote-getter in the history of Maryland.

He is the only man who has ever served more than one term as governor, in the long history of that state. He was first elected governor in 1919 by a bare majority of 155 votes, re-elected in 1923 by a majority of 41,000 and re-elected again in 1927 by a majority of 61,000.

He entered politics as a deputy city solicitor at Baltimore, then became people's counsel for the Maryland Public Service Commission, was next attorney general of the state and finally became governor.

Gov. Ritchie views prohibition enforcement as a failure, with the explanation that the mass of the people do not want prohibition, and assails the federal dry law as an invasion of state rights. He thinks every state should be permitted to decide the question for itself.

Maryland is one of the four states that have no state prohibition law and it offers no aid to federal authorities in this respect. Ritchie takes the position that it is a government law and therefore it is up to the government to enforce it—if it can. He is a "wet," he admits it and offers no bunk about "the sacred duty to uphold the Constitution."

"We have spent nearly $150,000,000 trying to enforce prohibition," he says, "and have lost nearly four billions in revenues while the effort was being made—and our last state is worse than our first was."

Gov. Ritchie is best known for his anti-prohibition view, but this is only one item in his general state's rights program. It has attracted the most attention merely because it is the most colorful item.

Broadly, Ritchie believes that the nation is suffering from too much centralized government from Washington. He says a multiplying number of federal bureaus, federal commissions and federal laws are gradually extending their power over a people who want really local government, and not government dictated by somebody who is perhaps 3,000 miles away.

Gov. Ritchie is on record as having said: "The Democratic party has always stood for the rights of the states, because it believes that through local self-government we can best attain efficient government and best preserve individual liberties."

This reliance upon and acquiescence in federal power is being overdone to an extent that imperils not only the future of the states as states, but the Union itself as well.

"Our government has become the most regulatory in the world, except Russia and Italy. Inspectors and spies and official regulators follow the 100 per cent American from the day he draws his first nourishment from his mother's inspected breast."

"This great problem (prohibition) is the Democratic party's responsibility."

cannot be settled by trying to standardize human conduct. A yardstick cannot be applied to it throughout the country. The communities which resent this law cannot be clubbed into taking it.

"He (the citizen) is told what he may eat, what he may smoke and everything that he may not drink. What he may read or write or see on the stage is prescribed, too, and not content with this the government advises him how to hang curtains in his home, what meat to cook for his dinner and in the year 1927, under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture, there was distributed throughout the country a treatise entitled 'A Pocket Essay on Kissing.'"

Maryland's Democratic and equally Democratic governor—a favorite alike with the farmers, the oystermen and the city folks—is such despite the fact that he comes from the upper crust of Maryland aristocracy. The Ritchie family line in Maryland runs back for nearly two centuries.

The son of a Baltimore judge, young Ritchie grew up in a circle of quality and means. He took his A. B. degree at Johns Hopkins in 1896 and later studied law at the University of Maryland, from which he graduated into politics by making soap-box speeches at ward rallies.

He does not play golf, he reverses his aged mother, who is his closest companion, he has never driven an auto because he prefers not to and has no hobby but work. The latter has brought about almost a complete reorganization of the state government during his three terms and doubtless explains much of the vote-getting popularity that has been his.

TOMORROW: Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas.

EACH CHILD REQUIRES DIFFERENT TRAINING

Noted Psychiatrist Explains Problems That Threaten First, Second and Third Born.

By JULIA BLANSHARD

New York, April 30.—How to treat your first, second, or third child or your only child so his character will develop properly is a most perplexing problem to parents in this day when so much is blamed on "suppressed" desires and "thwarted impulses."

Dr. Alfred Adler, eminent psychiatrist, founder of the behavior clinic in Vienna's public schools, feels that all first born, all second born and so on have group characteristics which, if understood, could be guided to happiness.

"First-born children have the biggest chance at being famous or being neurotic," he contends. "Being first born is the first position in a family of children. The success or failure of first borns, unfortunately, depends tremendously on the attitude of the family towards the child. Too often the advent of the second child diverts attention from the first, and leaves him a thwarted individual."

Threatened by Depression
Dr. Adler says of the first child, "Unless he can overcome in the struggle for supremacy in his universe, he is apt to become depressed, peevish, more or less hopeless and will show his hopelessness later in life if confronted by problems. If he is strong enough he becomes a fighting child."

Parents could prevent this, if they knew how and took the care to, this psychiatrist insists. First of all they should prepare the first-born for the coming of the second.

"No child is too young to be told of an expected brother or sister," he says. "Tell him what an influence for good he may be and how helpful. Then when the younger child arrives and occupies the whole household's attention, see that the older one is kept busily employed either at a nursery school or at home. In that way the shift from parental attention from himself to the newcomer will not appear a catastrophe to him."

Competitive Difficulties
The second child has his troubles also, according to Dr. Adler. For he is apt to find a pacemaker in his older brother. Always confronted with the older child, he sees work and play in the light of a competitive race. He is naturally a rebel against recognized power and is likely to be revolutionary. But, if not able to compete successfully with the older child in work and play, he either seeks short cuts to success or loses hope.

"Much can be done for the second child," says Dr. Adler. "Avoid comparisons within the family. Set each child tasks suitable to his age and ability and refrain from chiding one because he does not read, run, mind or play like the others."

Girls Develop Rapidly
If the older child is a boy and the younger a girl, the boy is in a difficult situation. Because nature supports the girl mentally and bodily until her seventeenth year. She develops more quickly, placing the boy at a disadvantage.

The third child is likely to become lazy and an excuse-maker, the doctor warns us. He comes into a world of rivalry like the second child. But in the average family he has no successor. Therefore, when capable, he often overcomes the older children by his sense of importance. If this fails, he may get out of things by hiding behind the fact of being spoiled and end up lazy, escaping from tasks, wasting time and making excuses throughout his whole life.

Favors Adoption
But neither the first, second or third child of a family has any edge on the only child for difficulties, according to this psychiatrist. His one remedy for the only child's problems is to adopt a playmate or send him to a nursery school as young as 18 months so he may learn social living with other children.

Parents, however, need not feel absolutely discouraged by the problems they face with their children, according to the optimistic doctor.

"If parents will educate their children to be courageous and independent and have a social feeling for their fellows, these difficult situations can be avoided," Dr. Adler says.

When the hot weather really comes we'll bet an old pair of pants guards against a 1921 straw hat that there are still some people who will be terribly surprised about it.

A meeting of the South Windsor baseball club, members of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A. League, was held at their club room at East Windsor Hill, Saturday, at 8 p. m. and the following officers were elected:

John Driscoll, president; Emil B. Goehring, secretary and treasurer; Albert Ahern, manager; J. Troy, assistant manager; V. Benjamin, captain; George Hills, assistant captain.

The club also invites all the young men of the town interested in playing ball for their membership and would gladly enroll as many as possible at their next regular meeting, Friday, May 4, at 8 p. m., eastern standard time.

For information call Albert Ahern, Laurel, 231-2. The regular meetings will be called the first Friday evening of each month.

JONES-HUGHES

Miss Ethel Hughes of 162 Bliswell street and Norman Jones were married Saturday evening by Rev. J. E. Neill of St. Mary's church. Miss Agatha Wright was maid of honor and John Hughes, brother of the bride was best man. The bride's dress was pink georgette trimmed with cream lace with a picture hat to match. The maid of honor's dress was blue crepe de chine with hat to match.

The groom's gift to the best man was a gold pinc and the bride's gift to the maid of honor was a gold bracelet. After a short wedding trip the young couple will make their home with the groom's aunt for the present.

BOY MURDERERS

Chicago, May 1.—Five boys, ranging in age from 15 to 22 years, were found guilty today of the murder of a storekeeper and their penalty fixed at 25 years in the penitentiary.

The jury had been out all night, deliberating 12 hours before agreeing on a verdict.

The convicted youths are Mike Cloz, 22; Harry Zdum, 15; Stanley Lucas, 17; Roman Balcewjak, 18; and Casimir Petrowski, 19. Their victim, killed during a holdup, was Joseph Szepanski.

Death in the electric chair for all five boys had been asked by the state.

BOLTON

Frank Saunders, a delegate from the Health Club at Bolton Center School and the teacher, Miss Rose Niewiedzial, Lillian Sall and Norma Place delegates from the South school and their teacher, Miss Lillian Switzer and the assistant sewing club leader, Mrs. Alice Lee and Ruth Lee, Clarance Dietrichsen, delegate from Bolton Mountain school and the teacher, Mabel Capshaw, attended the "Round Up" at Hartford, Friday night and Saturday. They spent Friday night at the Garden Hotel and attended the banquet at the Bond. About 400 were present and many interesting reports were given from other club workers.

A community whist will be held at Mrs. Arthur Rookwell's today. Miss Lavinia Fries, who has been at the Hartford hospital for eight weeks has returned home.

Margaret Massey, Dorothy Saunders and Ruth Lee united with the church Sunday.

The South school has been closed two days this week due to the illness of the teacher.

Miss Dora Pinney of South Manchester spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pinney.

Charles Loomis of Pawtucket and Northrup Loomis of South Manchester spent the week-end at their homes.

Miss Doris Lipovsky spent the week-end at her home in New Haven. She has her contract to teach in New Haven next year.

At the regular meeting of Climax Chapter, No. 38, O. E. S., at Masonic hall, Merrow, Wednesday evening, there will be initiation followed by a May Basket, Social and Leap Year party. The chairman of the committee in charge is Mrs. Byron W. Hall; warder, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Kingsbury. Miss Gladys Orcutt, Miss Lillian Ayer, Byron W. Hall; sentinel, Walter S. Haven and the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Walter S. Haven, all of Coventry. The hour for the meeting is 7:30 p. m. standard time.

Step by Step

We have built this lumber business of ours slowly but surely, using the old reliable tools known as Quality, Service and Fair Prices. Satisfied customers have spread the word till it seems as though everybody should know that this is the place to buy lumber. Still, there may be a stranger in town, so we'll run this ad anyway and tell him!

Land For Addition Now the Property of Eighth School and Utilities District.

Dr. F. A. Sweet, president of the Eighth School and Utilities District this morning filed with Town Clerk Samuel Turkington two deeds, one from Arthur Knoffe and the other from Paul J. Volquardsen, both made to the district. The deeds were executed on April 27 and are clear titles, a clearance of the Knoffe deed having been filed last week. This gives the district the necessary land for the addition to the Harding School on Hollister street.

The plans for the authorized eight room addition, Dr. Sweet said this morning, are being prepared by Architect Isaac Allen, Jr., and will be ready in time to ask for bids by the first of June, if not before.

A woman in New York posted a $10,000 forfeit to charity in event she fails to climb the steps of the Woolworth Tower in 90 minutes. Probably she got her training living in apartments.

NEW YORK "Y" LEADER SECURED AS SPEAKER

Albert E. Roberts, National Y. M. C. A. Executive to Address Anniversary Gathering.

The local entertainment committee planning for the Tenth Anniversary Convention and Dinner of the Hartford County YMCA, to be held in the South Methodist Church Monday evening, May 14th, has received word that Albert E. Roberts of New York, National head of the Town and Country work of the YMCA, has been secured to be the principal speaker for the dinner.

Mr. Roberts is not only an authority on the County Work of the YMCA, but is a speaker of unusual prominence.

Charles W. Holman, chairman of the local arrangements committee, announces that Mrs. Lawrence W. Case has consented to be chairman of the ladies to plan for entertaining the ladies of the Convention during the afternoon business session of the association.

Tickets for the dinner, which is open to the public, are being distributed through George Rix, of the Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the ticket committee, and have already been placed in the hands of the following local men: Fayette Clarke, Earl Rogers, Calvin Davidson, Ray Pillsbury, Jerry Fay, J. E. Rand, Lawrence W. Case, George Nichols.

MAYFAIR CARNIVAL OPENS TOMORROW

Program to Be Furnished by Children of St. James's School—Comedy Thursday.

Tomorrow evening, the opening night of the Mayfair Carnival at St. James' parish hall, the children of St. James' school will furnish a program. The hall will be transformed by the addition of crepe paper and other decorations into a scene of beauty, and the audience will be entertained by Mother Goose and her many children, all in costume.

The second evening the young people of the parish will present a one-act comedy entitled "The Travellers" by Booth Tarkington.

The cast follows:

Mr. Roberts, Terrence Shannon. Mrs. Roberts, Maria Fillere. Jesse Roberts, Arlyne Moriarty. Mrs. Fildoll, Mary McVeigh. Freddie Fildoll, Francis Sullivan. La Fara, Jose Dellaferra. Salvatore, Isabel Marcin. Maria, Loretta Gleason. The chauffeur, Maurice McKeever.

There will be dancing each evening and on Friday night a drawing will take place on the handsome Chest, the latest style hope chest, and its contents.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Romolo Pagan of 139 1/2 Oak street and Florence Seelert of 24 Ridge street were the only patients today reported as admitted to Memorial hospital.

Those discharged were Courtland Harland of Vernon street, Gottfried Larson of Forest street, Mrs. Raymond Maniere of East Hartford and Florence and Elsie Benson of 51 Lily street.

GERMAN ACCEPTS PACT

Washington, May 1.—German acceptance of the United States draft treaty for the renunciation of war added little today to the gloomy prospects of the broad venture, in the opinion of informed diplomatic observers here.

The German note constitutes an unqualified acceptance of the treaty submitted by Secretary of State Kellogg as a basis of negotiation between France, Great Britain, Germany, Japan, Italy and the United States, but it contributes nothing to the deadlock existing between France and the United States on the scope of the proposal general treaty.

German acceptance had been almost a certainty. No other power has replied.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (277) Parrots

Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Brancher

To most of us there seems little in common between the stealthy, soft-flighted Owl of the night and the joyous, chattering Parrot. But the fact is the Parrot claims cousinship both with the Cuckoo and the Owl. The artist has sketched here a meeting of parrots, from the painting by Henry Stacy Marks.

Some ornithologists count more than 600 species of parrots. Few enter the temperate zones. The bird shown above is a Green Parakeet.

First in the Parrot family come the Nestors of New Zealand. They are the Kea and the Kaka, both with long beaks and fringed tongues. The Kea, strange terrible bird, has become a sheep-killer. It settles on sheep's backs, delves with its hooked beak into the flesh and exposes vital organs, causing the poor sheep to die in misery.

MAYFAIR CARNIVAL OPENS TOMORROW

Program to Be Furnished by Children of St. James's School—Comedy Thursday.

Tomorrow evening, the opening night of the Mayfair Carnival at St. James' parish hall, the children of St. James' school will furnish a program. The hall will be transformed by the addition of crepe paper and other decorations into a scene of beauty, and the audience will be entertained by Mother Goose and her many children, all in costume.

The second evening the young people of the parish will present a one-act comedy entitled "The Travellers" by Booth Tarkington.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

SENSE and NONSENSE

A Few Tips for the Driver Drive right and more pedestrians will be left. Watch your step on it. Taking the other fellow's dust is better than "to dust returneth."

The trouble is, we fear, that many of our spirited young people will regard going 65 miles an hour in the new Ford not only as a physical possibility but as a moral obligation.

When You Lose You Win If you race the train for the crossing and it's a tie, you lose. If you race the train for the crossing and the train gets there first and has passed before you reach the track, you win.

'Tis a long boulevard that has no sparkling places.

Dr. Meadows drove up to a small town garage and asked if he could get a puncture fixed there. The young mechanic looked at him closely a minute and then asked:

"Ain't you the guy that took care o' my wife last year?" "I am, sir, but what has that to do with my tire trouble?" "Nuthin'. Only you ain't diagnosed it proper. You got a violent case of circumferential flatulency of the perimeter, and it will cost you five bucks."

The modern woman is a marvel. She can drive an automobile for years and years and never touch a steering wheel.

A modern definition of a hick town is a place that does not have over a dozen filling stations.

Gladys tearfully confesses that some girls accept automobile rides and others have just as much fun squeezing in a street car.

Hiram—What became of that hired man you had? Farmer Ezra—Aw, he used to work in a garage in town and yesterday the idiot crawled under a mule to see why it wouldn't go.

When the motorist stops, looks and listens, there's something wrong with his engine.

A hick town is a place where you can buy a stamp when the postmaster finishes examining the new Ford that stopped in front.

Go the wrong way on a one-way street and you will find yourself at the wrong end of a one-way argument with a traffic cop.

The very last words of one Percival Jinks Were: "My driving improves with a couple of drinks."

There's been a lot said about the girls who go for automobile rides and walk home. But many a girl goes for a walk and comes back riding in an automobile.

There are too many picnics, with the stewed articles in the driver's seat.

As any pedestrian will tell you, it's cheaper to move than to pay hospital rent.

VETER GOLF

FOR SPRING FEVERITES

Here's one for that tired feeling so prevalent this time of the year. The letter golf editor says you can go from YAWN to GAPE in five steps. Perhaps you can do better than that. One solution is on another page.

Word game grid with letters YAWN and GAPE.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

A Tail

Mary had a little dog With pedigree quite tony; It tried to cross the street one day, Hoak, honk, bologna.

Mandy—"In Blackberg they call me the "Village Queen." Fanny—"That's because so many Poker players have held you."

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.

At bowling all the Tinymites had sure presented funny sights, but course it all was new to them so they were not to blame. They knew they had to learn when each had finished with his turn, so Scouty, to the two dwarfs said, "We'll watch you bowl a game."

RADIO CROWD WAITS FOR 73 SECOND BOUT

After waiting patiently for close to an hour for the Jack Sharkey-Jack Delaney heavyweight prize fight to start at Madison Square Garden last night, Manchester radio listeners were treated to only 73 seconds of action before one of the combatants was knocked into dreamland.

A blow-by-blow description of the battle was received at the branch office of The Evening Herald on Bissell street and a crowd was on hand.

The broadcast was obtained through a six-tube Atwater Kent radio furnished by Watkins Brothers and the reception was excellent despite the fact that weather conditions have been better.

PLAN PAST COMMANDERS NIGHT FOR LEGION POST

Hope to Have Unusual Program at Monday Night's Meeting.

Dilworth-Cornell Post No. 102 of the American Legion will hold its regular meeting next Monday evening, May 7th, at the State Armory, at 8:15 p. m.

In order that nothing will be unfinished to obstruct the officers in their endeavor to perfect the "Armistice Day Celebration Program," arrangements are being made to hold initiation at this meeting and all uninitiated members have been requested to appear. It is sincerely hoped that after this obligation the "decks will be cleared for action" on the many important items to be discussed.

An attempt is being made to get enough Past Commanders together for this next meeting to fill the chairs and hold a past Commanders' Night. Nearly all of the past Commanders have signified their intentions of being present should such an occasion be observed. Further announcements will be made when the details are completed.

THE PRICE PER CARTON

New Brand at New Lower Figure Starts Competition in Fags by Carton.

A price war is raging between companies making various brands of cigarettes with the result that most of the makes are selling about eight cents per carton cheaper today than they were a month ago; it was stated today by a Manchester dealer.

The reduction, however, is so slight that retailers find it impossible to cut the price per "deck" without losing money, but where a carton of ten packages is sold, the price can be reduced slightly.

The reason for the drop in prices of most of the popular cigarettes is said to be "throat cutting" by the United Tobacco Corporation of New York, makers of a new brand of cigarettes known as "Three Castles" which have been placed on sale forty cents a thousand cheaper than most of the other brands.

The other companies have cut their price to meet that set for the "Three Castles." The price of the "Lucky Strikes," "Chesterfields," and "Piedmonts" have been cut to meet the lower price. "Old Gold" is one cigarette to remain at its former price. The Herbert Taylor cigarette, also put out by the United Tobacco Corporation, has been reduced from twenty-five to fifteen cents a package.

POLICE COURT

Joseph Collins o. Hartford was before the Manchester police court this morning on the charge of speeding. He was arrested by Traffic Officer A. L. Roberts on Saturday, April 21.—He was represented in court by Attorney Fred A. Scott of Hartford, who entered a plea of not guilty.

According to the traffic patrolman, Mr. Collins drove his car on Center street from McKee to Cooper at a speed of 46 miles an hour. He had never been arrested before for any offense and had never been in police court before. Deputy Judge Thomas Ferguson suspended judgment upon the payment of costs.

50c Down—50c Each Week

Our New York buying syndicate Jay and Company, resident buyers of one hundred and eight department stores including some of the largest stores in the country, have recently contracted for several thousand pairs of all wool blankets made by one of the country's leading blanket mills.

Our buyer, of course, could not let such an advantageous deal like this go through without getting in on it. He immediately placed an order for five hundred pairs of these blankets, ten pairs to be delivered now for samples and the balance September first.

OUR PLAN

Our blanket club will be open to our customers in Manchester and vicinity until June first.

Through the club plan we are able to offer you a blanket which is made to retail at $12.50 at the special price of $10.50. 50c down and 50c each week for twenty weeks. Payments must be made at the store and they must be completed not later than October first.

The blanket you are buying is a 100% pure wool blanket. Size 70x80 inches. Weight, over 4 1/2 pounds. Beautiful block plaids in the colors—blue, pink, tan, gray, green, rose, gold, lavender, black and red. Neatly bound with a fine, four-inch satine binding with four rows of stitching.

Delivery of blanket to be made when the payments are completed.

You probably do not need a blanket now but, no doubt, you will need a new one next fall. The small sum of 50c a week will never be missed. When the final payment is completed you will be the possessor of a pair of beautiful blankets.

If Unable to Come to the Store Fill Out the Coupon Below and Samples Will be Sent to You

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

BARON, MAJOR, CAPTAIN

New York is making a proper amount of fuss over the German-Irish fillets. The baron, the major and the captain are being sufficiently lionized, shown the sights. They will probably see everything from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine to the Barge Office—everything, that is, that New Yorkers number among their "lions." But we'll bet a nickel that nobody will have the wit to take them in and show them a model American food shop—and that would be a sight for any one of them to see.

If there's anything in which modernism has brought about a change, in this country, it's in the handling of the nourishment destined for the tummies of the American people. Some Europeans affect to sneer at the way in which we mechanize our food products instead of pawing them over by hand and the way we pack them in hygienic containers. The lavish use of protective paper alone makes some of these folks gasp. Yet nowhere is food so cheap. All these protective hygienic measures pay for themselves in the prevention of wastage of food alone—to say nothing of the infinite advantage in public health and in appeal to a decent fastidiousness.

Pinehurst is as bright and sparkling and immaculate a food shop as there is anywhere. We'd give something pretty to have the baron, the major and the captain drop in and see it. It wouldn't be the least surprising or the least interesting thing they will see.
