In New York

New York, May 2.—Grand street is, to all intents and purposes, just another highway on New York's East Side. Like such highways it is cluttered with cheap shops the windows of which fairly shout their bargains. If there is anything to distinguish it from other business streets of the ghetto district, it is its pushcarts. This is the commercial heaven to which all good little pushcarts go when they live and grow prosperous. In Orchard street, in Rivington street and the other cart-cluttered thoroughfares, a pushcart is a pushcart and the wares are hawked in the simple, primitive fashion of the foreign market place.

But in Grand street a pushcart becomes something half-way between a peddler's pack and a real store. The pushcarts here take on airs. They build display racks and have a stock-in-trade. At night, under the flaring gasoline torches or the strings of electric lights, they become riotously colorful with shirtwaists, stockings and whatnot. These are suspended from fence-like structures, crude ticks and imitation shop windows. It is as easy to get a phonograph record as a radio loud speaker, from the stands are miniature department stores. Most of the stores of Grand street are owned by immigrants who made their money at the grubstones. It is the last stepping stone to a business of their own. It has the eternal flavor of a fair or a festival. It is like nothing else in America.

So much for the physical elements of Grand street. But it seems that this street has a certain spiritual pride as well. From its sidewalks have risen some of New York's most prominent citizens. And so the Grand Street Boys' club is an organization unique even in a city such as Manhattan, where the unique paradoxically becomes almost commonplace.

Glancing over the list of some 7000 names, one is inclined to feel that the judge has tempered his eulogy—for here is the proof of the melting pot that is America. Here is the name of Max Steiner, one of the best known lawyers of the realm, who began by peddling matches. In the late afternoon he would sell papers on the corners. Here is Judge Cornelius Collins and Judge Morris Koenig, who well know the struggle of parents to give their children an education. Here is Judge Mancuso, who came from the Italian quarter. Here is Governor Al Smith, who came off "the sidewalks of New York." U. S. Senator Royal Copeland; George Olvany, the leader of Tammany Hall; Senator Robert Wagner, Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson and that famous team of Weber and Fields, Irving Berlin and a score of others. Barefoot boys of the city streets—all of them. And each one of them with a story of struggle to fame such as only Manhattan's East Side can write.

Campaign Portraits—Senator Charles Curtis

Curtis' Story Reads Like Fiction

Senator Charles Curtis

This, the 21st in a series of Presidential Campaign Portraits written by Robert Talley, tells the story of Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas. Tomorrow's article will discuss Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana.

By ROBERT TALLEY Washington, May 2.—The combined imaginations of Zane Grey and Horatio Alger never pictured a more colorful career than that of Senator Charles Curtis, the dominant but silent figure who serves as Republican leader in the Senate.

In youth an Indian boy on a government reservation, at 10 a jockey riding horses on Kansas race tracks, at 15 a new "butch" at railway depots, at 17 a hack driver in Topeka, at 21 a self-educated lawyer, at 25 a headstrong prosecutor in Shawnee county, at 32 a congressman, at 47 a senator—now Curtis seeks to climax his 32 years in Washington by being elected president. He was the first candidate to announce, having entered the race last Oct. 26.

Senator Curtis is 68, the oldest of all the candidates. His hair and mustache, until recent years coal black, are just now beginning to turn gray. He is of medium height, round and solid of figure, wears wrinkled and baggy clothes, does not try to pose as a statesman and is willing for people to take him at his own worth. He is a Methodist and a strong prohibitionist.

As the Senate's majority leader, Curtis is the man behind the legislative gun. It is his role to keep the wheels of legislation oiled, to put through the measures that the White House desires to line up the necessary "votes" and have them ready when the time comes, to know the position of every senator on every question, to advise the president when something is hopeless so it will not be attempted with resultant failure.

Senator Curtis, chosen to succeed the cultured and scholarly Senator Henry Cabot Lodge as majority leader of the Senate when the latter died in 1924, was born on an Indian allotment farm in Kansas and spent part of his boyhood in the tepees of the Kaw tribe.

His great-great-grandfather was Chief Pawhuskie of the Osages. Three generations ago, Princess White Plume, the chief's granddaughter, married a French trader and trapper named Conville. Their daughter, Julie Conville, was Senator Curtis' grandmother, being the wife of Louis Pappan, another French trader, Bilen Pappan (daughter of Louis Pappan and Julie Conville) was Senator Curtis' mother. She married Capt. Orrin A. Curtis, who had moved to Kansas from Indiana. And so, on Grandmother Julie Pappan's Indian allotment farm near Topeka, the future senator was born on Jan. 25, 1860.

In 1868, when Curtis was eight years old, a band of roving and war-like Cheyennes attacked and surrounded the reservation of the friendly Kaw. Because he could speak both English and Indian, young Curtis was chosen to slip from camp under cover of darkness and make his way to the military post at Topeka for aid. The Kaw horses had been captured, so Curtis made the 60-mile trip on foot in less than two days. The cavalry came and chased the Cheyennes away.

But Curtis did not go back. Born to the saddle, he got a job as a jockey at Topeka and was riding in races by the time he was nine years old. He toured a large part of the west and on one occasion, it is related, Jesse and Frank James held up and robbed the box office at the race track where he was riding. In the winters he attended the public schools, living with his father's people in Topeka.

Increasing weight finally forced Curtis out of the jockey game, so he returned again to the Indians. The Kaw, traveling west, were camped six miles out of Topeka. To Grandmother Julie Pappan's feast he went, prepared to rejoin the tribe. But Grandmother Julie was wise; she wanted her daughter's child to grow up to be a white man, not a roving Indian. So she persuaded young Curtis to return to Topeka and try to get an education.

Back in Topeka young Curtis sold fruit and candy at the railway station and worked in stores while finishing his schooling. He lived with his paternal grandmother, Parmella Curtis, who likewise encouraged him to get an education. As Curtis grew older he felt the need of more income. Knowing horses, he naturally applied to a livery stable owner. The latter gave him a job as hack driver. Then he began the study of law, often reading his textbooks by the oil lamps on his hack while waiting for a fare. Impressed by the youth's determination to get ahead, a veteran Topeka attorney took him into his office.

At 21, Curtis was admitted to the bar. When he was 25 (in 1885) he was elected prosecuting attorney. Kansas already had a prohibition law, but nobody paid any attention to it. Curtis, however, considered it his duty to enforce it. He closed every saloon in Topeka in 30 days and kept them closed throughout his four-year term. He has been a strong prohibitionist ever since. In 1892 Curtis was elected to Congress. He served seven terms there and in 1907 he was elected to the Senate. In 1912 he was beaten, but he came back in 1914 and has been in the Senate continuously since that time.

COURT RESTRAINS CHAIN STORES TAX

Maryland Judge Declares That They Are Blessing to Society.

Judge Albert B. Doub of the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, has issued a permanent injunction restraining the enforcement of an act of the General Assembly of Maryland taxing any chain of stores operating more than five stores within the state $500.00 for each store over five. This act was held by the Court to be unconstitutional in such a way as to discriminate between certain stores in the same line of business.

Judge Doub in his decision states, "Looking at the community as a whole, the chain stores, by purchasing direct from the manufacturer and the producer and eliminating the profits and expenses of the wholesaler, jobber and broker and the cost of delivery and selling for cash and thereby escaping the usual losses resulting from sales on credit, are more likely to give to the farmer, truckman and consumer part of the middle man's profit and so to become a blessing to society and the public generally. Indeed, the very elements so earnestly insisted upon by the defendants as a justification for this extra license are the very elements that would seem to justify the development of the chain store."

"The testimony shows that the chain stores are more cleanly and sanitary than others; that they are conducted with skill and efficiency; and that they do not delude the buyer into purchasing goods by giving him credit when he is unable to pay for them; that they turn over their stock more rapidly than other stores and do not keep on their shelves goods long enough to deteriorate and become unwholesome or impaired in quality and that through them the tendency is to reduce the cost to the consumer. With the rapid development of means of transit and the increase in the number of automobiles, now owned by almost every family in the Country, delivery of goods by the merchant is no longer so necessary, and the buyer can save something of the cost of operating his automobile by saving the expense of delivery. Moreover, chain stores help to insure regular rentals, furnish regular employment, stabilize the value of real estate and spend a large part of the proceeds of their sales in the community."

"Freedom of trade without interference on the part of the State always develops competition and this will protect the consumer against the danger of monopoly. As the chain stores have developed in numbers, in resources, in capital and in efficiency, they have perhaps become essential for the efficient distribution of merchandise to the general public."

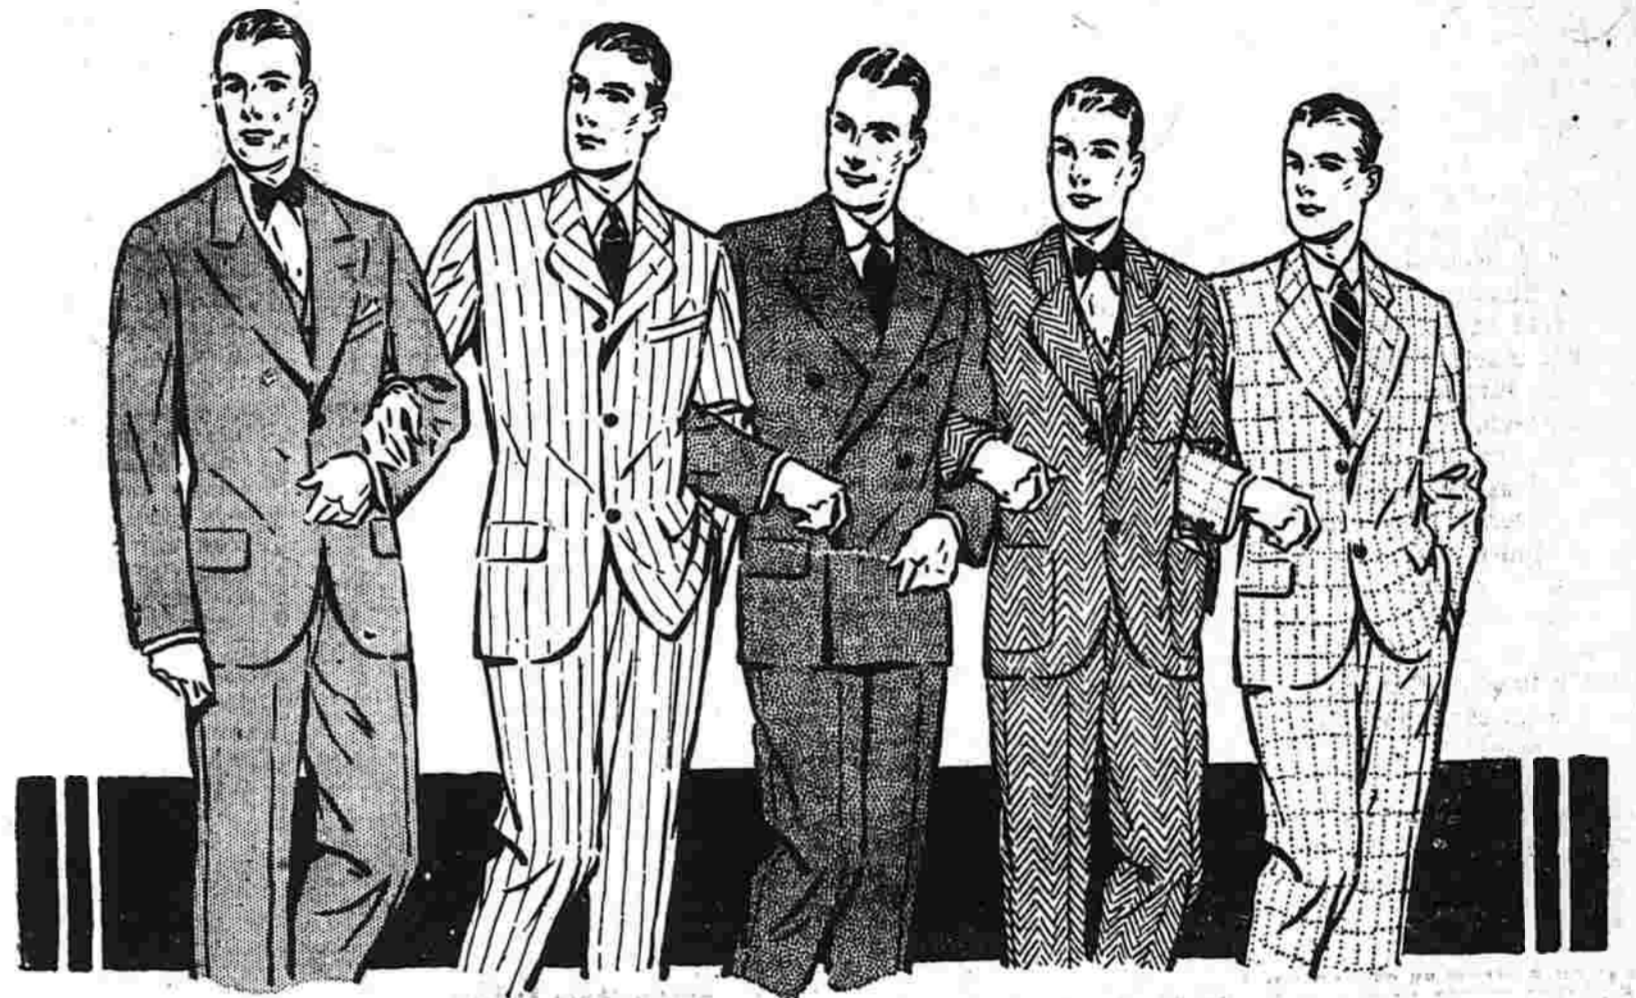

FIRE IN PAINT PLANT New York, May 2.—A fire swept the John A. Casey paint, oil and varnish works in Brooklyn was brought under control this morning after causing damage estimated at $100,000. GAS BUGGIES—The Post-Mortem

Comic strip panel 1: THAT'S WHAT I SAID, ALEC SMART AND COLDRIP ARE MY FRIENDS. THEY EXPLAINED EVERYTHING. IT WAS RUSTY WHO SKIPPED WITH THE DETRIEVED GAS COMPANY'S DOUGH, THE DAY THEY LEFT FOR SOUTH AMERICA.

Comic strip panel 2: FURTHERMORE... THEY NOT ONLY PROVED THEIR INNOCENCE BY COMING BACK, BUT THEY'RE GOING TO DEVOTE THE REST OF THEIR LIVES, IF NECESSARY, TO REIMBURSE US FOR ALL THE JACK-WE'VE LOST. THEY'VE GOT SOMETHING BIG UP THEIR SLEEVE, THAT I'M GETTING IN ON.

Comic strip panel 3: I'M BEGINNING TO THINK YOU MUST'VE SPENT TOO MUCH TIME RIDING BACKWARDS ON A MERRY-GO-ROUND, WHEN YOU WERE A BABY. BEFORE I ANSWER ANY MORE QUESTIONS, I WANT SOME FOOD. MY HEAD FEELS DIZZY.

Comic strip panel 4: HERE YOU ARE. NOW, HOW DO YOU EXPLAIN THIS, IF YOUR FRIENDS ARE SO HONEST, HOW DOES IT HAPPEN THAT THE GAS PELLET THEY WERE PROMOTING, PROVED TO BE SUCH A FAKE... WELL... WHY DON'T...

Comic strip panel 5: In South America we find the Macaws, shoviest of all the parrots. In general they are large, but their tails give them a suggestion of prodigious size. The Blue-and-Yellow Macaw, shown here, is the commonest. All Macaws are great choppers of nuts. Tough palm nuts which man cannot penetrate without tools this bird soon reduces to a pulp.

LETTER GOLF

THIS SOUNDS DANGEROUS.

Many an unexpected SKID develops from a sudden TURN, but in letter golf it can be done on purpose in just seven months. One solution you may be able to beat is on another page.

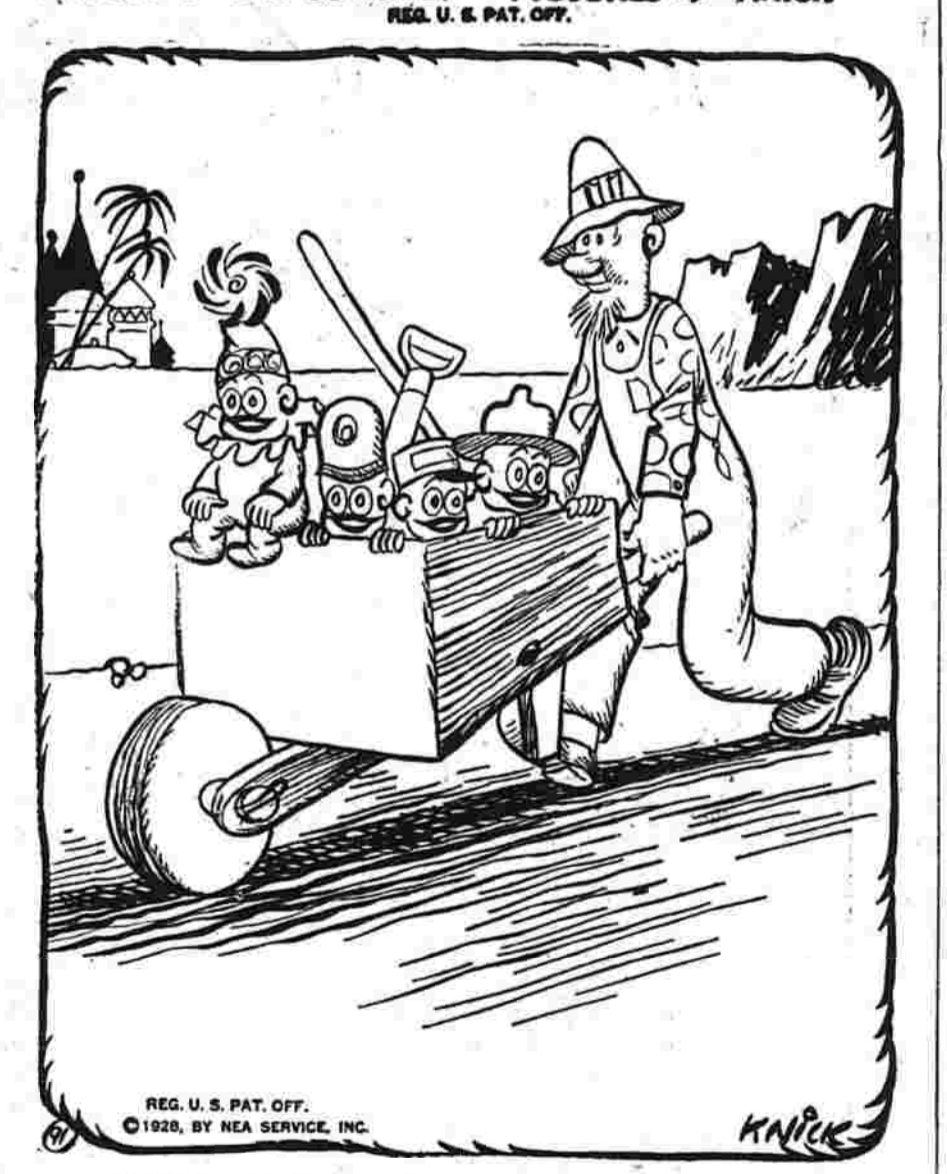

TURN SKID grid with letters T, U, R, N, S, K, I, D in a crossword format.

THE RULES.

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in part, a given number of strokes. Thus to change Cow to Hen in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

THE TINYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

When both the dwarfs were out of sight, the strange man eyed each Tinymite. "Well, who are you?" he finally said. "I've never seen you before. Like real nice lads you all appear. Now, tell me, do you live near here? If you're sightseeing visitors, I've lots of things in store. Then Scouty raised his little head. "We're Tinymites," he proudly said. "We travel all around the world to see things that are new. We never harm a thing; you see. We're just as careful as can be. We're very glad to meet you, but please tell us, who are you?" "Why I'm a gardener," said the man, "I raise most everything I can. I have some dandy vegetables if you would like to eat. My old wheelbarrow's right near by. Come on and I will let you try whatever you may care for. It will be a dandy treat."

8-YEAR-OLD BREAKS ARM FOR THE SECOND TIME
 Little Robert Sherwood, Follows Up Cycle Accident With Fall From Swing.

Robert, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ora C. Shaw of Coon street, Manchester Green, is once more laid up with a broken arm.

A year ago at this time, Robert was riding on the handlebars of a bicycle and was thrown to the sidewalk when his foot caught in the spokes of the front wheel. His left arm was broken at the elbow. Yesterday afternoon while playing in a swing at the Manchester Green school playgrounds, Robert fell and broke the same arm. The attending physician said it was a very bad fracture, both bones being broken.

Robert was standing in the swing, "pumping" back and forth when he lost his footing and fell face down. He instinctively threw out his hands to check the fall but the left arm crumpled.

He was taken to Memorial hospital, the hurt was X-rayed, and then removed to his home. He is in the third grade at the Manchester Green school and it is possible that the injury may keep him out for most of the remainder of the school year.

PARTY FOR BRIDE-ELECT
 Miscellaneous Shower Given Woodbridge Street Girl—Is Soon to Wed Bristol Man

Miss Helen Yourkshot of Woodbridge street was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower given Monday evening at the home of Miss Henrietta Pinney of Hartford. The young women who numbered about 30 were her associates in the office of the Aetna Fire insurance company. A mock marriage, games and music helped the time pass merrily. The dining room was decorated with blue and white streamers and a dainty lunch was served.

Miss Yourkshot is to be married in the near future to Adolph Selnan of Bristol, Conn.

O'CONNELL, 'COMES BACK' FROM 'FATAL' INJURY

Local Man Badly Hurt in Hartford Bus Accident Is Out of Hospital.

William J. O'Connell of Prospect street, this town, who has been in the employ of the Connecticut Company as an automobile mechanic, has returned to his home after seven weeks spent in St. Francis hospital, where he was taken, it was thought, in dying condition.

He was called out to make repairs on a bus of the Connecticut Company which had gone wrong at the top of Asylum street. He found the trouble to be in one of the wheels. Crawling under the car he asked the driver to "back up a little." The driver blundered and moved forward, the car rolling over O'Connell's body. When he was picked up he was found to be badly crushed and there were fears of internal injuries and at the time it was expected that he would die.

While he has not fully recovered he is able to get around the house and yard a little each day and hopes to return to work after a few weeks.
