

BREMEN CREW PLAN 10 DAY TRIP IN U. S.

To Fly to Philly, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Detroit, Boston—Then to Go Home.

Washington, May 3.—Out of hundreds of invitations to visit cities, large and small, in various parts of the country the Bremen trans-Atlantic flyers have decided upon a ten-day aerial tour which will include receptions in but half a dozen cities in addition to New York and Washington already visited.

The trip will be made in the F-13, a sister-ship of the Bremen in case it is impossible to get the Bremen to New York from Greenly Island by May 9, when the trip begins.

The announcement of the tour from the German embassy said it was impossible to get the Bremen to New York from Greenly Island by May 9, when the trip begins.

The itinerary follows: Wednesday, May 9.—Reception in Philadelphia.

Thursday, May 10.—Flight to Chicago.

Friday, May 11.—Reception in Chicago.

Saturday, May 12.—Rest.

Sunday, May 13.—Visit to Milwaukee.

Monday, May 14.—Flight to St. Louis.

Tuesday, May 15.—Reception in St. Louis.

Wednesday, May 16.—Flight to Detroit.

Thursday, May 17.—Reception in Detroit.

Friday, May 18.—Flight to Boston.

Saturday, May 19.—Reception in Boston.

PLANNED BUSY DAY
New York, May 3.—Major James Fitzmaurice, Baron Gunther von Huenefeld and Captain Hermann Koehl were in for a busy day here today.

Following their arrival from Washington, the flyers were to attend a luncheon given by the Merchants' Association at the Hotel Astor in the afternoon.

In the evening they will attend the gathering of the United Seaman Societies at the Metropolitan Opera House.

The Junkers Corporation plans to bring the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen here from Greenly Island.

Pilot Fred Meinhart hopes to fly to the ice-bound island and return in the Bremen. He will be accompanied by another pilot who will fly back in Melchior's plane.

ONLY FOUR COUNTIES BEAT GOV. AL. SMITH

Other 54 in California Returned Him Winner by 30,000 Votes.

San Francisco, Cal., May 3.—Governor Al Smith's overwhelming victory in California's Democratic primary election was further emphasized today as tabulation of returns from the few remaining precincts proceeded.

While votes cast for Herbert Hoover, sole Republican candidate on the primary ballot, continued to pile up into a huge total well over the half million mark, Smith's edge over the combine, pool of his Democratic opponents, Senators James A. Reed and Thomas J. Walsh, maintained itself at approximately 30,000.

Reed, running second to Gov. Smith, had a lead over Walsh of approximately 13,000.

All but four of the 58 counties in the state returned Smith victorious in the Democratic voting on the basis of returns already tabulated. Reed won two counties, Walsh one, and the fourth registered only Republican votes.

FLIERS IN NEW YORK
New York, May 3.—The Bremen flyers, Captain Herman Koehl, Baron James Fitzmaurice and Major Gunther von Huenefeld, arrived at Miller field, Staten Island, at 11:33 a. m. today in the Junkers monoplane F-13, sister ship of the Bremen. They left Washington at 9:28 a. m.

The flyers were met by members of the mayor's commission, who were to bring them to Manhattan in automobiles.

SCHOOL HEADS DISCUSS KEITH COST ANALYSIS

Ninth District Committee Maintains Expenses Here Are Not Above Average of Other Cities.

George E. Keith, member of the Board of Selectmen, has made a careful analysis of the cost of schools in Manchester as compared with seven other towns and cities in the state whose school enrollments approximate that in Manchester. These figures were turned over to the Ninth School district committee for examination with a view toward studying the differences in costs and toward decreasing school costs here if possible.

After a thorough study of Mr. Keith's figures the Ninth School district committee prepared a discussion of the analysis. The Herald prints herewith the Ninth District committee's study of Mr. Keith's figures, in full:

Committee's Discussion
"A careful analysis has recently been made by George E. Keith of the Board of Selectmen as to the cost of schools in Manchester compared with the cost in the following towns:

West Hartford, Bristol, Naugatuck, West Haven, Torrington, Stratford, and Middletown.

"The author of this study selected the above towns because the number of pupils enrolled compared more nearly with those enrolled in the schools of Manchester than did those of any other towns. On the basis of a comparison with these towns, it was shown that the cost of elementary schools was $78.25 per pupil in average attendance, while in the Town of Manchester it is $99.04.

The high schools cost in these eight towns an average of $136.64 per pupil in average attendance, while in Manchester the cost of the high school was $133.45 per pupil in average attendance.

"If the enrollment of all schools, including elementary and high schools, is combined, the average cost in the eight towns mentioned was $88.52 per pupil in average attendance as against $107.59 in the Town of Manchester. The average cost for the support of schools in these towns, omitting Bristol as to which accurate figures could not be secured, was 10.94 and in the Town of Manchester

SENATE IN DISPUTE ON TAX SLASHING

Divided Into Two Camps on Question of Debt Retirement Today.

Washington, May 4.—The most important fiscal issue facing the American government lay beneath the surface warfare today in the Senate fight over the new tax reduction bill.

The Senate was divided into two camps on the question of debt while the other favored its gradual refunding over a period involving the current fiscal year. Of this real issue as debate started over the administration plan for a $203,000,000 tax reduction and the Democratic substitute for a $338,000,000.

Insurgents' Plans
The insurgents were reported ready to line up with the administration on the smaller reduction plan as they favor using all treasury surpluses for the retirement of war debts. A year ago, Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, sponsored the resolution, which directed the treasury to use a $400,000,000 surplus for debt retirement.

In the ten years since the war, the public debt has been slashed from twenty-six to eighteen billion dollars. Another billion dollars will be repaid by June 30, the end of the current fiscal year. Of this nine billion dollar slash, all but a few hundred millions came from general taxation, although the original debt retirement law provided that only one-half of the debt—$13,000,000,000—should be repaid by general taxation over a period of forty years. The other half was to come from foreign repayments.

Democrats Call
The Treasury Department, aided by Congress, has devoted nine billion dollars in the ten-year period instead of the $2,250,000,000 contemplated by the law. The Wilson administration started it, and the Harding and Coolidge administrations kept it up under Mellon. Now the Democratic party in the Senate has demanded a halt, the elimination of wartime taxes and a return

President Decorates the Bremen Flyers

King Of Afghanistan Visits Soviet Russia

Moscow, May 3.—Red Russia, they were greeted by President Kalenin, a former peasant.

Both the railway station and the Kremlin were decorated in honor of the visiting royalty. The station platform was covered with garlands of evergreen while Red Russian and Afghan flags flew overhead. A military band played the Afghan national anthem. In addition to the Soviet president the greeting committee included General Voroshilov, commissar for war and marine; Georges Tchitcherin, commissar for foreign affairs, and N. A. Semashko, commissar for public health.

Rev. Dr. S. G. Hagglund, of Boston, was elected president of the New England conference of the Swedish Lutheran church in America, at today's business session of the conference which is being held at the Swedish Lutheran church here.

This is the eleventh consecutive term in the presidency for Dr. Hagglund. He served as acting president for a year previous to that.

Other candidates for the presidency were Rev. Dr. Abel Ahlquist of New Britain, Rev. Dr. C. S. Ohlund of New Haven, and Rev. Dr. Peter Froberg of Brockton, Mass. Dr. Hagglund was elected on the third ballot and upon the motion of Dr. Ahlquist the election was made unanimous.

Rev. Hulteen, Secretary of the Swedish Lutheran church in America, was unanimously elected as vice president and Rev. Julius Hulteen of Hartford was re-elected secretary on the first ballot. Rev. Hulteen holds the longest period of service among the officers, having served since the organization of the conference with the exception of one year. Other candidates for the presidency were Rev. A. M. Bendamer of Boston, Rev. John Nelson of Waltham, Mass., and Rev. A. J. Laurel of Worcester, Mass.

The following were elected as the committee on credentials: Rev. William R. Frensborg, of Brockton, Mass., Rev. Fritz Soderberg of Thoms.

32. John S. Addis, Robert H. McEntee, 33. J. Henry Fagan, Anna M. McEntee, 34. Thomas P. Kirwin, Mrs. Mary Bride, 35. Ozoro Hanks, Fannie Dixon Welch.

TO VOTE FOR SMITH
Hartford, Conn., May 3.—Connecticut's delegates to the Democratic national convention will go to Houston, Texas, next month, bearing instructions from the party to vote for Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, as candidate for the presidency until they are released by the governor himself. Such instructions were voted when the Democratic state convention assembled here today for its final session. A rising unanimous vote adopted the instructions.

Harmony fairly prevailed when the convention started at 10:34 a. m. Flights in Bridgeport, New London and New Haven were ironed out and the convention seemed well satisfied with everything that had been done.

At the outset of the session the committee on permanent organization presented a report making recommendations of the gathering the permanent ones. This was adopted without dissent.

The town of Orange was finally recognized by the convention today. In all future Democratic conventions the state's youngest town is to have two delegates. The committee on rules made the recommendation and the convention adopted it without dissent.

Following this, the resolutions committee presented the word to instruct the delegates to the national convention.

Elections of Delegates
Elections of delegates from the state's five districts followed according to recommendations already made. When the Third District's turn came, David M. Richman, youthful candidate for secretary of state two years ago, moved that the Third District election be

PLANS PLANE FLIGHT OF OVER 4,200 MILES

To Hop From Rockford, Ill., to Greenland—Then to Stockholm, Sweden.

New York, May 3.—Bert Hassell, a big blonde aviator of Rockford, Ill., was in New York City today completing arrangements for his contemplated flight of 4,200 miles from Rockford to Stockholm, Sweden, by way of Greenland. This far north route, in his opinion, "is the most feasible way to cross the ocean to Europe."

"The longest stretch of water that I will have to span is 548 miles, a fact that obviously cuts down the danger of coming down in mid-ocean," said Hassell. "This is quite a contrast from the 1,900 miles of water that must be crossed in flying other trans-Atlantic routes."

"I am going to try and make Stockholm in two jumps. I will hop off from Rockford the latter part of June or early in July for Mount Evans, Greenland, a distance of 2,100 miles, and the only contemplated stop. From Mount Evans I will take off for Stockholm, an additional 2,100 miles."

Hassell will be accompanied by another pilot whose identity has not been disclosed. Before taking off from Rockford, Hassell will be in radio communication with Prof. William H. Hobbs, of the University of Michigan who for the past four summers has conducted a meteorology station at Mount Evans.

CORONER IN HOSPITAL
New Haven, Conn., May 3.—Eli Mix, veteran coroner for New Haven county, entered New Haven hospital today for observation. Coroner Mix's condition suddenly developed such a serious trend that physicians ordered him to the hospital. He has been ailing for some time.

BIG CHANGES IN OFFICIALS OF DEMOCRATS

State Leaders in Many Cases Name New Members at Hartford Convention; The List.

Hartford, Conn., May 3.—A radical change was made in the roster of the Democratic state central committee here today when the state convention assembled for its second convention in Foot Guard armory. In several districts a complete sweep of committee members was made, while in others either the man or the woman member was supplanted by a new person.

Elections in the Eighteenth and Twenty-third districts were postponed until the convention assembled as a whole.

State central committee members as elected today included the following:

District No. 1—Col. John L. Purcell, Marian Roberts.

District No. 2—Ufa Guthrie, Edith T. Lowry.

NOBILE'S DIRIGIBLE OFF ON FIFTY HOUR 'LEG' TOWARD POLE

Leave Stolp Before Dawn For King's Bay, 1,600 Miles Away; Refueling Stop at Vadsoe, Norway, Is Possibility; Italia's Little Dog Mascot Still in Flying Party.

Stolp, Germany, May 3.—The dirigible Italia left Sedin hangars near here, at 3:33 a. m., today on the second leg of its flight to the North Pole with King's Bay, Spitzbergen, as its destination.

General Umberto Nobile, commander of the giant airship, stated before his departure that an intermediate landing might be made at Vadsoe, Norway, for refueling, if weather conditions permitted.

General Nobile decided upon starting this morning when he perceived word that the terrific storms over northern Norway, which had prevented him from starting yesterday morning, had subsided.

Hisana, the fierce ferocious mascot of the Italian, accompanied Nobile and his crew of sixteen on the flight. About 200 persons, including the Reichswehr soldiers who aided in getting the ship out of the hangar, witnessed the start.

Starts by Searchlight
With searchlights playing on it from the field, the ship ascended rapidly and was soon lost in the darkness. After a few moments, even the drone of its motors could not be heard.

Mrs. Nobile and her daughter bade the general goodbye affectionately just before he jumped into the gondola of the ship. They smiled bravely and seemed confident of the success of his venture. They will return to Italy at once.

The dirigible is expected to cover the 1,600 miles to King's Bay in between forty and fifty hours. Its cruising speed is about 80 miles an hour but this will be lessened greatly by expected headwinds.

The Norwegian government is keeping men in readiness to aid the Italia to make a landing at Vadsoe if Nobile should decide to stop there. Vadsoe is about 900 miles north of here.

On Tuesday night Chief of Police Samuel G. Gordon was called at his home and informed by the people the man was living with that he was dying and that they wanted him removed to the State Aid hospital in the comptroller's office in Hartford.

Mr. Segar made an effort yesterday to find a place in a tuberculosis ward, but there was no room at the time. Last night there was another call when he was informed that Nobile could no longer stay in the house. The chief gave such information as he had concerning the case and assured them action was under way.

Dumped on Roadside
This did not seem to be satisfactory for at 8 o'clock this morning the dying man was brought to Manchester, helped from the automobile and given a seat on the convex row of seats at the northeast corner of the park near the State Aid hospital. There Chief Gordon notified him.

In the meantime word was passed on to Charity Superintendent Waddell of the condition and he tried to reach the State Aid office. There was no time to wait for the police car was brought in, the man lifted into the car by Mr.

JAPS AND CHINESE IN BLOODY BATTLE

Former Tries to Stop Looting—Are Greatly Out-numbered by Chinese.

Tokyo, May 3.—A sanguinary battle between Japanese troops and hordes of soldiers of the Nationalist Chinese army is raging at Tsinan today, according to official information given out by the Japanese War Office.

Fierce fighting broke out when the Japanese attempted to stop looting by the Nationalists who were in possession of the town, the war office stated.

The Japanese are believed to be greatly outnumbered. The number of casualties is not known.

Shanghai, May 3.—A hostile airplane attempted to bomb the Nationalist Chinese air force in Lunghua in the southern suburbs of Shanghai today. Nearly a score of bombs were dropped, but the arsenal was not struck. A woman was killed.

The plane—a bomber—was believed to have flown from a northern encampment near the scene of fighting along the Shantung peninsula.

The attack was made at noon. In addition to one woman killed another was wounded. Some cattle grazing in a field were killed.

Nationalists opened fire with rifles but the plane flew off in the direction of Wootung.

Lunghua is about ten miles from the foreign settlement.

Tokyo, May 3.—A sensational report was current here this evening that 100 Japanese residents of Tsinan (Tsinanfu) have been killed by Chinese. The origin of the report was not given. Violent fighting developed between Japanese troops and Chinese Nationalists at Tsinan when Chinese began looting Japanese-owned property. There were casualties on both sides. Tsinan is the capital of Shantung Province.

POPE PIUS AGAINST ATHLETICS FOR GIRLS

Does Not Believe in Public Contests For Young Girls, He Writes.

Rome, May 3.—There were indications today that some of the grippiest entered in the Pasdici field sports beginning tomorrow may withdraw as a result of the deep displeasure expressed by Pope Pius XI over young women taking part in public athletic contests.

The Pontiff's disapproval was voiced in a letter to Cardinal Pompili, vicar of Rome. He deplored the holding of the first athletic competition for girls in Rome saying:

"The Roman bishops must all deplore that, after twenty centuries of Christianity, Rome is showing less respect for girls than Pagan Rome did for Pagan Rome excluded girls from athletic competitions."

The Pontiff explained, however, that he believed rational exercises should be followed by women for the benefit of their health.

FIGHT - INSECTS
Hartford, Conn., May 3.—To aid the state experiment station at New Haven to continue its fight against insect pests in Connecticut, the state board of finance and control today voted $15,000 to the station. The money is to be devoted chiefly to fighting the Asiatic beetle and the corn borer.

French Artists Grow Too Lazy; Art Near Death

Paris.—French art is dying. Artists are growing lazier every day, according to some of the best critics.

"The young painters and sculptors that I meet these days," says Antoine Bourdelle, one of France's finest authorities, "seem to disdain their trade, the technique of their art. One sculptor recently came to me with a figure which seemed to have been hacked out with an axe. He pretended that it was a 'synthesis!'"

Thomas Still Up in Try for Record

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., May 3.—At 12:30 o'clock this afternoon, exactly 24 hours since he took off in an attempt to establish a new record for sustained airplane flight, Lieut. Royal V. Thomas was still circling lastly over Roosevelt Field, Long Island.

Rev. Karl Ruf Stolz, Ph. D., who will preach at the morning service at this church on Sunday morning will be remembered as the teacher of bible study at the religious institute held at the South Methodist church last winter under auspices of the Manchester Council of Religious Education. He is the dean of the Hartford School of Religious Education.

Report No Trace of W. H. Chapman

Accounts at Filling Station O. K., Says Partner, Fear Accident.

There are no developments in the sudden disappearance of William H. Chapman, who left the gas station at the corner of Center and Adams street, Monday morning without a word to relatives or his business partner. The police have sent out a description of the man and yesterday had it broadcast through station W.T.C.

ABOUT TOWN

A son, their second, was born Monday at the Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Straw of South Main street.

The High School Washington platoon will return home tonight. Judging from letters and postcards, hundreds of which have been received at the post office here, the members of the party have had a wonderful time.

Harold Cude of Long Island will remove here next week with his family, making his home on Pitkin street. He is an official of Case Brothers Paper Manufacturing Company.

R. A. Petcolas of Wetherfield, an engineer with the Century Indemnity Insurance Company of Hartford, will remove here shortly to occupy a house on Porter street.

Contractor Comollo Ganbolati is building a new brick Dutch Colonial house on Pitkin street which will be placed on sale following completion. He is also building a carpenter shop on his own property on McKee street.

Frank Polozil has sold to John and Annie Moske his six room bungalow on Glenwood street. The sale was made by the James J. Roman agency.

L. C. Clifford, Jr., of Foster street, whose health has been slowly improving has gone to Winsted again as the climate there appears to agree with him especially well. He is staying at the Hotel Beardsley.

Miss Irene Tibbets and her sister Frances, local school teachers, are spending the vacation week in New Britain visiting their brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Kesh and family of 104 Cooper street have removed to 183 Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. Saman left today to spend the remainder of the week, visiting their son, Robert, who is a student at Colby College, Waterville, Me.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company has already started its regular Sunday afternoon excursions to New York City. During the summer months, many Manchester people take advantage of the cheap rates for the round trip to the Metropolis. Another excursion will be run next Sunday. The train leaves Hartford at 8:15 daylight saving time.

At noon today Tax Collector G. H. Howe had succeeded in opening his mail and extracting the checks, money orders and money. To those who did not enclose a returned address stamped envelope there will be no receipt given, the check being considered as sufficient.

Manchester held about its average in April in the number of deaths which were 19. There are twelve marriage certificates returned, but under the law any person performing a ceremony has until five days to return the license after the close of the month. The doctors have ten days to make their birth returns, which today numbered 25.

Spruce street is receiving a coat of Tarvia along its entire length today.

Mrs. E. E. Sagar of Main street entertained at bridge this afternoon.

The Cosmopolitan club will hold its regular meeting tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. George E. Keith, 19 Lewis street.

Manchester and Wapping Granges will furnish a part of the program tomorrow evening at Vernon Grange's "Neighbors' Night."

Mrs. Henry A. Nettleton returned home yesterday afternoon after a visit of several months with friends and relatives in California and Iowa. She reports a delightful trip but is glad to be back again in Manchester.

STATE WITHDRAWS SUIT Hartford, Conn., May 3.—Connecticut's suit against North Carolina to recover on bonds issued by a "carpet bag" government of that state and later repudiated, was ordered withdrawn today by the state board of finance and control.

The suit was instituted in behalf of the State Training school and hospital at Mansfield, in the name of which the bonds are registered. The amount of the bonds is just under $300,000.

The suit recently was presented before the United States Supreme Court. Fessenden, Kenesly & Ryan, of Stamford, represented the state in the suit.

THREE HURT IN PLANE CRASH

Chicago, May 3.—Two persons were reported dying today and a third was seriously injured as the result of an airplane crash.

Those believed fatally injured are Miss Dora Montgomery, 24, and Eugene Apfelbaum, 24.

Dr. Milton H. Weil, pilot of the plane, was seriously hurt.

Dr. Weil, owner of the plane, was an unlicensed pilot. Miss Montgomery was a Gainesburg, Ill., school teacher.

KILLED AS PLANE FALLS

Sturgis, Mich., May 2.—Fred H. Newman, 16-year-old son of C. C. Newman, theater proprietor, was killed when the plane in which he was a passenger crashed to the ground. Lieut. Gerald Smead, the pilot, recently graduated from Kelly Field, Texas, was seriously hurt. Dewey A. Gross, 27, a passenger, was probably fatally injured.

Commandant Fitzmaurice said the crew of the Bremen began to see mirages on nearing America. Wait until they're here a while. They ain't seen nothing yet.

COULON NOW A PROMOTER

Johnny Coulon has returned to the fight racket. The former holder of the world's bantam title is a promoter on Chicago's west side these days.

WOULD MAKE OLYMPIC TEAM

Lieut Orville H. Hewitt, better known as "Tiny" Hewitt of football fame, is now in training at West Point for the Olympic trials.

The West Side Baseball team will hold a meeting at the West Side Rec tonight.

CHANNEL TO HOLYOKE

Connecticut should find herself in full accord with the proposition presented to the House of Representatives by Massachusetts members, providing for a hundred foot channel in the Connecticut river from Hartford to Holyoke. This ambitious but entirely sound economic scheme is not new. It was recommended to Congress by Army engineers in 1915, but like many another piece of good legislation it was lost sight of in the excitement of war times.
 The proposed amendment to the Rivers and Harbors bill deals with the problem of the license already granted to the Federal Power Company for erection of a dam at Windsor Locks, by providing for larger locks than those called for in the Federal Company's license, the government to assume the extra expense.
 A hundred foot channel in the Connecticut, with a depth of twelve feet extending from Hartford to Holyoke might cost three, possibly four, million dollars, including the expense that the additional size of the locks at Windsor would involve.
 In the providing of tidewater freight rates for coal, oil, lumber and other bulk commodities that enter into New England manufactures, such an expenditure would be justified a dozen times over.
 Daily New England is approaching that point where the far cheaper cost of waterborne freights will have to be seriously considered. We are not now taking full advantage of our waterways, by any means; but it is inevitable that we soon shall do so. And the development of the Connecticut river to the farthest possible extent ought to be a matter of concern to all of us.
 Nothing is surer than that if the Connecticut is made commercially useful to Massachusetts, its recognition as an important avenue of trade will be much more general, especially in Congress, where hitherto its only interested friends have been the Connecticut delegation—and they, sometimes, not too deeply interested.
 By all means let Connecticut back this enterprise.

THE AVERAGE DRIVER

Pointing out that in his state in seven years there have been killed by automobiles more persons than the state lost in the World war, and more persons injured than the state had wounded in that war, Governor Fuller of Massachusetts declares, out of his long and intimate familiarity with the automobile situation, that it is the "average driver" who is responsible for most of the casualties.
 Even the drunk-driver, intolerable menace as he is and as many terrible accidents as he precipitates, is not, the governor says, the cause of anywhere near as many deaths on the road as the ordinary citizen, suffering from an attitude of mind very common throughout the country, namely, that liberty means the right to do anything you like within the law.
 "We need," said Governor Fuller, "to have more respect for the rights of others. I ask you this question in all fairness: If a person is crossing a street and a motorist is bearing down on him, which will give way, in nine cases out of ten?"
 That hits it, exactly. The pedestrian will dodge the automobile, not because the car has the right of way but because he is fearful it will kill him. And the motorist continues on his way, not because his time is necessarily any more valuable than that of the pedestrian, nor because it is any easier for the pedestrian to jump than for the motorist to slow down, nor because he has any legal right of way over the man afoot, but solely because he knows that the danger is to the pedestrian and the pedestrian will probably yield to him. In other words, because, when he gets back of a wheel, the average driver is a bit of a bully and cares nothing about abstract rights.

 We may raise a new generation of automobilists who will have consideration for others, some time. But we will have to begin the lessons in the kindergartens. The decent people on the road—there are a good many of them, and they do not cause the killings—are those who are decent everywhere. The others will have to be bred to general decency by the schools.

ARKANSAW METHOD

In no other walk of life is there such indomitable enthusiasm and cock-sureness as among the sports writers. These bubbling souls are to be envied their effervescence and their utter and abiding faith in the things of the moment. For the sports writer there is no past and no future further off than tomorrow night. He picks up that which is of today and plays with it gaily and happily. No experiences of the past weigh not upon him. Yesterday's bloomer forecast was forgotten this morning. Tonight's is just as confidently made as if it had been proven impossible for him to go wrong.
 Last week one Sharkey was a lemon, a tart, a flat tire, a wash-out, a thing without honor, hope or friends. He patted one Delaney flat. Now he is a fistic marvel and the coming champ. The sports writers are like the Arkansaw hogs.

It was a stranger who was driving along an Arkansaw woods road. He was attracted by the curious antics of a group of razor-backs. They were standing still, ears pricked up, when he sighted them. Then with one accord they rushed in a solid pack ten rods to the east; then stopped dead. Then they rushed, north, and stopped; then south, and stopped. And this queer series of rushes kept on, without apparent motive or cause.
 The stranger drove on. He came presently to a shack where sat a cracker in front of his shack, whittling.
 "Good morning."
 "Maw'nin', stranger." The cracker's voice was thin and aspirated.
 "Those your hogs back in the woods?"
 "Reckon they be."
 "What's the matter with them, rushing around that way, first here, then there. Never saw hogs act like that."
 "Wal, tell ye, stranger," wheezed the cracker. "Them haws don't get none too scrumptious pickin's in them woods, 'n I feed 'em some cawn. Allus been totin' the cawn to that there snake fence 'n dumpin' it o'var. Then I'd call 'em. But I got this cold 'n lost my voice. So when I dumped the cawn I'd pound on the fence with a stick, 'n they got to know the signal and come a-runnin'. But two days ago a passel o' them dummed Yankee woodpeckers come down here from up north 'n ever since them haws has been plum crazy."
 The sports writers are picking somebody to lick Mr. Tunney on just about as sound a basis as the Arkansaw hogs picked dining places.

A LONG SHOT

Once in a long while therebobs up a political forecaster who labors under the impression that Connecticut may possibly cast its electoral vote for Al Smith next November. It is generally a forecaster who lives a long way from New England.
 Granted that Connecticut Democrats are unanimous for Smith—which of course they are not—there are still not enough of them to carry the state for Smith or anyone else, even if the party machinery were well fitted and oiled and in the best of running order. And as to that aspect of the situation the Democratic state convention at Hartford sheds a white light.
 On the eve of the Presidential battle the Connecticut Democracy has been staging as pretty a row as any in its long record of rows. Waving a Smith banner in one hand each little leader and almost each delegate has been brandishing an axe, intended for the decapitation of some other Democrat, in the other.
 The army that advances into battle swinging the butts of its rifles against its own skulls is unlikely to win, especially against a superior force occupying a strong position.
 We should say that the persons who bet that Connecticut will go for Smith next fall ought to get at least a million to one in odds.

MILITARY PARKS

The secretaries of war and the interior have asked Congress to transfer seven national military parks from the jurisdiction of the War Department to that of the Department of the Interior.
 They point out that the National Park Service, created 12 years ago, has charge of most of our national parks, and that the transfer of these military parks will be in the interests of economy and efficiency. Included in the proposed transfer are some of the most famous Civil War battlefields, such as Gettysburg, Antietam, Shiloh and Fredricksburg.

 The main thing is to see that these parks are kept up. As shrines for patriotism they are of incalculable value. No one can visit such a field as that of Gettysburg without coming away a better American. It is to be hoped that Congress will look into the matter and take such action as will best preserve these parks for future generations.

WALKING

Interest in cross-country walking seems to be reviving. There is, first of all, C. C. Pyle's "bunton derby" across the continent to emphasize that we don't need automobiles or airplanes to get from place to place. And the indefatigable Eleanor Sears of Boston has undertaken a 70-mile hike through New England just for the fun of it.
 There are few better forms of recreation. If you aren't used to it, go slowly at first; wait until your feet and legs are properly toughened before you try long hikes. But if you keep at it you will find it great sport. Fresh air, sunshine, exercise, the joys of the open country—they are all yours, and they bring great enjoyment.

New York, May 3.—Valets, chauffeurs and butlers of Wall Street figures suddenly find themselves persons of importance. Servant girls and maids in the homes of the rich have been surprised at their sudden popularity. Their phones have buzzed and they have received endless invitations to theaters and suppers.
 The notion has prevailed that they were in a splendid position to get "inside information" on the Wall Street activities of their employer. They have been "spotted" and trailed; their market orders have been watched. In a few instances there was some reason for this, but as a general rule employers discourage speculation among their employes and their friends. A few chauffeurs and butlers now drive their own cars, thanks to the friendly market. And a waiter in a Wall Street cafe who really had gathered for breakfast made $85,000 in three days.
 On the other hand, the man who hears more "inside" information than anyone outside the "street" never gambles a dime. He is a barber, favored by a score of market manipulators. He has been given hundreds of "good things." But he never plays them. He has passed some of them on to close friends, and he has seen them get the "market fever." He is content with a rich patronage that recently made it possible for him to open a $100,000 shop.

Statistics show that some 2000 girls leave the small towns of America each year to come to New York. These same statistics show that the average age of a runaway girl has dropped from 17 to 15. And statistics being what they are, they change little from year to year—particularly where motives are concerned. Girls leave home to come to New York, so the records show, because of unsympathetic homes; because of a romantic-mindedness that gives the "big city" a magnetic lure; because of an unpleasant or embarrassing incident in the home town which breeds a desire to get as far away as possible and find shelter on a place "where nobody knows you"—and, of course, the usual assortment of stage-struck maidens.
 A woman who has mothered thousands of these runaways tells me that they have wandered in from every city and hamlet upon this continent. "And they're not quitters," she tells me. "I've known them to wander up and down the streets, without food and without shelter. They're game kids—these youngsters who come to fight New York. And that is one of the reasons I can say that I never have them to wander up and down the streets. What you'd call them bad, but I claim they are the victims of lack of education and lack of understanding. Their homes have never been proper homes, their lives have been an endless story of struggle. They're not bad, but just don't know and haven't had a chance."
 GILBERT SWAN.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER.
 Washington, May 3.—Three old inventors, who have invented things all their lives and are still at it, today figure in another episode of an ancient feud which has been brought before Congress.
 One side is Thomas A. Edison. On the other side are Emile Berliner and C. Francis Jenkins of Washington.
 The fight centers on a bill introduced by Congressman Randolph Perkins of New Jersey which provides for the striking of a congressional medal in honor of Edison and his many achievements. Congress seldom grants such a medal. Its last recipients were the Wright brothers and Colonel Lindbergh.
 Berliner and Jenkins, both of whom claim important inventions popularly credited to Edison, don't want Edison to have that medal.

Naturally, they haven't rushed to the Capitol Hill to make public protests. But they're intensely interested in the efforts of a girl lobbyist who is working against the bill on their behalf.
 And they hope to have it stopped, even though the House Committee on Coinage has reported it favorably and the Senate Finance Committee, who makes the government medals, is said of favor it.
 The anti-Edison movement is based on the contention that Edison has claimed or appeared to claim that he invented the microphone, the continuous current transformer, the gramophone and the motion picture machine.
 Berliner claims to be the inventor of the first three and Jenkins claims the movies. Mrs. Clara Louise Leslie, who is trying to persuade Congress to take the bill, has collected a stack of evidence to show all concerned.

The argument as to the invention of the motion picture seems to rest on the point whether Edison's kineograph, designed to take motion pictures, or Jenkins' intermittent shutter, enabling them to be reproduced in the screen, was the me that they have wandered in from every city and hamlet upon this continent. "And they're not quitters," she tells me. "I've known them to wander up and down the streets, without food and without shelter. They're game kids—these youngsters who come to fight New York. And that is one of the reasons I can say that I never have them to wander up and down the streets. JWS CHERISH WRITINGS OF AHAD HA'AM, FAMOUS ESSAYIST OF HEBREWS

Jerusalem.—The modest house in Tel Aviv, which the last few years of his life of the late Ahad Ha'am, the Hebrew essayist, made his home, and which he was able quietly to assemble his writings spread over more than half a century and half a dozen countries, has been made a national Jewish institution by decision of the Council of Tel Aviv. The small home of the late leader was dedicated as a library and museum housing all that remains in book and manuscript of the man who preached reasonableness and cold steel logic to his contemporaries in Zionism.
 A world Jewish society for the purpose of spreading Hebrew culture to be named after Ahad Ha'am, whose given name, Asher Ginsberg, has nearly been forgotten, was proposed at the ceremony by Ch. N. Glilik, the Hebrew poet and disciple of Ahad Ha'am.

 "Oh — I'm sorry, but we haven't a telephone."
 She may see him again—and she may not. At any rate, she is not within speaking distance of many good times. A telephone in her home would save her much embarrassment.
 And what a convenience it would be! What satisfaction to know that her friends could reach her at all times, for the value of a telephone is not alone in the calls she could make, but also in the calls she could receive. What a contrast to her present isolation a telephone in her home would make.

And a telephone costs so little!

Most every home today has a telephone. It's a real economy, a great convenience, a faithful protector. In times of extreme emergency its value cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents.

You can have a telephone in your home for a monthly charge of as little as $2.00

Don't deny yourself and your family the benefits that a telephone in your home can bring. Put your home within calling distance of anyone, anywhere, any time. Get a telephone now.

The above rate applies in the base rate area of the local Exchange. Service Connection charge $3.50

CAMPAIGN PORTRAITS — SENATOR THOMAS J. WALSH
Walsh Won Fame
 As Oil Investigator

This, the 22d of a series of Presidential Campaign Portraits written for NEA Service and The Herald by Robert Talley, describes the career of Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana. Tomorrow's article will discuss Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska.

By ROBERT TALLEY

Washington, May 3 —A former country school teacher, 69 years old, who has devoted much of the past five years to giving the nation a free course in oil, politics and graft, now aspires to the presidency. Senator Thomas J. Walsh, hero of the Teapot Dome investigation, has announced his candidacy with the blessing of William G. McAdoo, but is making no active campaign. If the Democratic National Convention at Houston thinks his services to the party have been worth while and chooses to nominate him, a postcard addressed to Room 426, Senate Office Building here, will find him. Meanwhile, he intends to remain in Washington, probing deeper into the long chain of sordid events that marked the leasing of the naval oil reserves to Edward L. Doheny and Harry Sinclair by Ex-Secretary Albert B. Fall.

It has been five years since the Teapot Dome investigation began and the end is not yet. Bit by bit, word by word, Senator Walsh has drawn the long story from an army of witnesses, and exposed colossal bribery and corruption. There is something about this "Man From Montana," with gray hair and icy blue eyes, that spells Dignity with a capital "D." He maintains a reserve and a distance that nothing seems to melt. He came to Washington 25 years ago—a stranger then and, more or less, a stranger now.

Senator Walsh is a widower, his wife having died in 1917, 27 years after their marriage. Socially, he is somewhat of a bridge fan. He dresses neatly but plainly, spurning frock coats, flowing neckties and double-breasted white vests that some senators seek to think the job requires. He spends his summers in a cabin beneath the snowy peaks of Glacier National Park in Montana, large colored pictures of which adorn the walls of his private office, and look down on his disordered desk, strewn with books and papers.

In conversation, he is courteous but none too warm, eyeing his interviewer quizzically over his glasses.

Heralded as the Senate's greatest investigator, Walsh uses no tricks or cajolery in cross-examination. Those pale blue eyes, set in serious and expressive brows, stare into the witness from across the table while questions are hurled at him as by a machine gun.

Three men exiled themselves in Europe to escape that relentless ordeal. Another man—Will H. Hays—but his name has gone under that searching gaze and few have emerged feeling very comfortable. Hoover has been likened to a beaver, Borah to a great bear, Norris to an owl. Walsh—he of the frosty hair and icy eyes—makes one think of a Serbian tiger.

Like Al Smith, Walsh is a Catholic, but there all similarity ends. Walsh is "dry," serious, reserved, even cold, shakes hands frigidly and is obviously the kind of man who never slapped anybody on the back in his "whole life. Gov. Smith may be "Al" to millions, but Walsh is "Senator Walsh" to everybody.

Nor is there any love lost between the two, according to their closest friends. Privately, Walsh is said to have expressed his dislike for Smith in strong terms.

Regardless of the personal aspect, Senator Walsh has turned the spotlight on gigantic bribery and official corruption and given his party one of the greatest issues in history for the 1928 campaign.

True, the oil scandal was an issue in 1924 and proved a wash-out, but at that time the Republican National Committee had not been linked with $260,000 of the ill-gotten profits of Teapot Dome advanced by Sinclair. Nor had Senator Borah, with his usual knack for embarrassing his party, begun collection of his famous "conscience fund" to pay back the Sinclair money.

Walsh has had experience with oil ever since he was 10 or 12 years old, having been employed as a boy to light the street lamps in his home town of Two Rivers, Wis. There he was born on June 12, 1859, the son of a poor Irish immigrant who had come to America a few years before from a Catholic colony in Ulster, north Ireland.

He was educated in the public schools. Later, he taught school, saved his money and entered the University of Wisconsin to study law. Upon his graduation in 1887, he went to Redfield, S. D., to practice law with his brother. He was married in 1889 and in 1890 he decided to try his luck farther west, stopping at Helena, Mont. There he made his home as a lawyer in suits against Montana's big copper mining companies and this led to a political career. In 1907 he was beaten for Congress, in 1910 he was beaten for the Senate, but in 1912 he ran again. He was elected and has been in the Senate ever since.

The World War found Senator Walsh one of President Wilson's most trusted supporters and closest advisers. In 1916, he managed Wilson's western campaign from headquarters in Chicago. After the war, he took a leading part in the Senate fight for American entry into the League of Nations and other measures that Wilson desired. At one time or another, Wilson broke with nearly every one of his closest advisers but Walsh remained his friend throughout.

In those days, Senator Walsh's hair was coal black. He wore a set of long, drooping mustaches—something like the handle bars of a bicycle—that gave him something of a walrus or piratical appearance. Then one day, the unexpected happened—the drooping mustaches were clipped to something little more than toothbrush size. So it remains today, though it is no longer black but gray.

In 1922 and 1923 came the first rumblings of the oil scandal, and Walsh started on the road that was to make him a national figure. About the time that control of the oil reserves was transferred from the Navy Department to Secretary of Interior Fall and Teapot Dome leased to Harry Sinclair, western rumors came to certain senators. These rumors hinted that something was rotten—not in Denmark, but in Wyoming, where the Teapot Dome field was located.

The matter was referred to an investigating committee of which Walsh was a member. Walsh asked Secretary Fall—who had been his personal friend when both were in the Senate—for data on the oil reserves and Fall sent him a ton or so. Reading the stuff proved a long job and a waste of time.

Secretary Fall was voluble in his explanation that the reserves were being drained by off-set wells of others, that they had been leased to patriots to conserve the navy's oil supply, and hinted darkly of a threat of war on us by some great power in the Pacific.

Walsh listened to all of this—and then began digging. By October, 1923, Walsh was ready for the first public hearing and examination of witnesses. Nearly five years have elapsed and during that time the nation has seen exposed one of the greatest scandals in its history.

By means of Carl C. Magsee, a Scripps-Howard editor in New Mexico, Walsh showed that soon after the naval reserves were leased there had been sudden evidences of great prosperity around Secretary Fall's dilapidated cattle ranch near Three Rivers, N. M. From Edward L. Doheny, lessee of the Elk Hills reserves in California, Walsh wormed the story of the little black bag containing $100,000 in cash that Doheny delivered to Fall in Washington.

And so the relentless parade of accusing evidence has continued. Only recently Walsh has been able to prove definitely that some of the proceeds of Sinclair's dummy Continental Trading Co. reached Fall's hands, that more of these profits helped pay off the 1920 debts of the Republican National Committee.

The hundreds of witnesses who have faced Walsh's cold blue eyes across the mahogany committee table range all the way from Secretary Mellon and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to Al Jennings, the extra-robber.

Nearly a decade has rolled by since this sordid drama of oil began, many of the original actors are now dead or retired from the political stage, but the show still goes on with Senator Walsh still playing the hero's leading role.

TOMORROW: Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska.

WAPPING

East Central Pomona Grange, No. 3, will hold its next regular meeting, on May 16th with Granby Grange, No. 191, at Granby Center. It will be an all day session with the dinner at noon. The morning session will begin at 10:30 and the afternoon session at 2 p. m. The subject of the meeting as provided by the lecturer, Mrs. Caroline M. Bidwell of Good will Grange, Glasstonbury, will be "Gardens, Paper and Flowers." There will also be a flower drill by members of Suffield Grange; recitations, music, and a talk on "What shall I plant in my garden?" Guests will be present from Springfield Pomona Grange. This meeting will be held on eastern standard time.

Frank Billings who has been working for his brother, Walter E. Billings of the Wapping store, will leave his employment. Mr. Billings will go on the "cash and carry" system at that time, and will not run his delivery truck and longer.

Miss Majorie Felt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Felt, left Monday morning for a trip of a few days to be spent in New York City.

The Federated Workers will hold their next meeting at the home of Mrs. Asher A. Collins, on next Friday afternoon at 2 p. m., May 4. Miss Loin Stiles will assist Mrs. Collins as hostess.

The Sunday School Board will hold their regular monthly meeting at the vestry of the Federated church, next Thursday evening.

Therefore there is a long ditch to be dug from the parsonage to the parish house. Everyone is invited to

NEW AIR APPLIANCE IS CLAIMED TO MAKE BIG SPEED POSSIBLE

Cleveland.—An invention which many revolutionize flying, according to A. C. Rutzen, of Cleveland, its sponsor, is nearing completion here. With his principles applied to airplanes, Rutzen predicts the heavier-than-air machines will be capable of making a speed of 350 miles an hour; will use less gas by one-half than the present machines and be able to take-off on land without danger on roofs of large buildings. His invention, Rutzen claims, may be used for dirigibles or planes.

Rutzen said he had made successful secret tests here with model airplanes which had attachments of tubes and other equipment. He said he is now ready to apply his inventions to a regular sized airship.

"The new type of airship does away with outer forces of strong air currents by having the propeller operated inside tubes," Rutzen explained. "Two tubes run through the center of a dirigible and under the wings of an airplane. They operate through air suction."

"The top of the plane has an arrangement that prevents it from tipping to a dangerous degree. It can be elevated and lowered by working the tubes. With such tubes, it will be possible to raise it

PARIS FACES DARKNESS;
 SOON TO RIVAL LONDON
 FOR ITS PEA SOUP FOGS

Paris.—Visibility in Paris, "The City of Light" is decreasing at such a rate that 1920 may find it in perpetual darkness, according to Louis Sesson, chief of the municipal weather bureau.

Besson reported to the Academy of Science the result of a twenty-five year study of atmospheric conditions over the city. He found that the density of dust and smoke particles in the air has increased fifty per cent since 1903, and warned that the growth of industrial enterprise in the metropolitan area might make Paris a close rival to London for pea-soup fogs, composed chiefly of particles of soot and dust.

Paris.—"I could see that the Prince of Wales had played before by the way he put a twist on the ball," said Frederick Faulkner, 17-year-old lad who played ping-pong with the Prince of Wales at the John Benn Hostel, Stepney.

"He didn't play long enough for me to see what he really could do" the lad continued, "but he certainly knows how to use the bat and ball and might give anybody a good game. I should think he would make a good player with practice."

The Prince put down his racket after ten minutes and told Frederick: "You are far too good—out of my class."

SPLIT THE DIFFERENCES
 HUSBAND (after heated argument): But, dearest, don't you admit that I'm usually right in such matters?
 WIFE: I don't admit anything of the kind unless you'll admit that I'm usually right, too.—Life.

"Personally, I have never acquired a taste for tobacco. For most cigarettes seem to burn my tongue and sting my throat. The only time I ever smoke, therefore, is in courtesy to someone coming to my house, who would lay her accustomed cigarette aside unless I at least lit one, too."

"It seemed absurd, at first, that I should be chosen to attempt this blindfold test . . . except that never having become a smoker, my taste is extremely sensitive to the burning harshness of the average cigarette."

"But I was very much surprised to find that I had chosen OLD GOLD as being perceptibly smooth, stingless and pleasant to taste. In fact, I now quite easily understand why the OLD GOLD compartment in my general cigarette box must be so constantly refilled."

CHICAGO PLANS HEAVY PROGRAM FOR SCIENTISTS

Chicago.—One of the most noteworthy gatherings of scientists of the year will take place at Northwestern University in Evanston from July 23 to August 18. The Institute of Chemistry of the American Chemical Society, in its second annual meeting, will consider such fascinating and fundamental questions as the processes of formation and maintenance of life, public health, farm relief through science and national defense. Twenty-eight conferences, in which scientists from the universities and the industries will describe developments in major fields of chemistry, will feature the 1928 work of the institute. According to the plan the institute will function as an international clearing house of knowledge in chemical science. The Evanston gathering will attract hundreds of chemists, both men and women, from the United States, Canada and Europe. General Problems During the week of July 23 seven conferences will be held on the general problem of developing new markets other than food for agricultural products by means of chemistry. A second group of seven conferences during the week of July 30 will take up fertilizer, catalysts, hydrogenator, organic chemistry, antioxidants and the utilization of energy of high intensity in producing chemical reactions. Health, the use of physics and chemistry in studying life processes, chemical hazards, petroleum, resins, lacquers and paints will be taken up at several conferences in the week of August 6. Sanitation of the packing industry, leather, chemical literature, ceramics, alloys and chemistry and other sciences in national defense will be discussed at a series of seven conferences in the concluding week of August 13. The chemists will discuss ways in which they can provide farm relief by developing new markets for agricultural products, said a statement issued by the national society. "One aim will be to wipe out wastes, proper conversion of which, it is estimated, would mean an annual gain in the value of farm products of $3,000,000,000. Foreign Delegates "Through chemistry," scientists vision the rise of great industries based on raw materials of the farm now un-utilized. Among the foreign scientists who will come to America to participate in the institute in Sir James Colquhoun Irvine, principal and vice-chancellor of the University of St. Andrews, Scotland. Sir James, internationally known as an investigator of sugar, will deliver lectures both to professional chemists and to laymen. The Chicago institute is one of the three big national gatherings planned by the American Chemical Society for the year. The seventy-

FOOD GROWS HAIR ON BALD HEADS

Scientists have found that baldness comes from lack of necessary food elements that the human hair requires. "Foods found in Mother Earth grow, nourish and retain hair," says F. A. Thomas, 1947 America Fore Bldg., Chicago, the World's leading hair specialist who operates over 40 treatment offices in the U. S. and Canada. He further states that hair roots always stay alive and that in 85 per cent of cases where hair is falling or baldness has set in, a growth of new hair can be had in a short time by following his simple directions. He will gladly explain his method without cost to those interested in restoring or saving their hair. Write him today.—Adv.

He's about to try out a Flying Cloud of 1929, this man you see here. He's going to drive a motor car faster than he ever has before. And it won't be simply because this Flying Cloud will easily hit a higher speed than any car he ever owned. But he can step on the gas and the front end won't shiver when the speedometer flicks from seventy up. There won't be any bumps in the road, no matter how fast he goes. And if he wants to pass a car ahead, he'll learn a few things about acceleration that aren't taught by most automobiles.

DIRIGIBLE AND PLANE SERVICE OVER CONTINENT Cleveland.—With a trans-continental dirigible passenger air service in the making and passenger airplane service between Chicago and Cleveland, and Pittsburgh and Cleveland to be inaugurated late this summer, Cleveland will become an important air port in the United States, it was revealed here. Roy Knabenshue of Los Angeles pioneer ballonist and national engineer of aeronauts, who was here to inspect the local airports plans to build dirigibles to carry 40 passengers from the Pacific Coast to New York regularly at a low cost of operation due to a new fuel he said he expects to use. Practical Fuel. The fuel, obtained after all other ingredients have been taken from oil, has been found by California engineers to be practical for aviation purposes, Knabenshue said. The Californian said he contemplates building a dirigible slightly smaller than the Los Angeles. It will be 430 feet in length and 78 feet in diameter to be propelled by the engines. The aid liner will have a capacity of 1,500,000 cubic feet, capable, aside from carrying passengers to carry thousands of pounds of express and mail. 200 Trips Yearly. Knabenshue declared that one of the contemplated dirigibles, operating 200 trips yearly, and carrying 10 passengers each trip would pay all costs. The coast to coast fare will be $250 which includes meals and berth. Southern dirigible routes are also under consideration, it was said. The northern route will make stops at Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland. FARREL AND CRUICKSHANK IN NEW GOLF CONTEST AT MIAMI SHRINE MEETING. Miami, Fla.—Two eternal rivals, Johnny Farrel, winner of the 1900 La Gorce Open Tournament last month and Bobby Cruickshank, runner-up in the same tournament, will meet here again in an exhibition match of 72 holes during the Shrine convention which opens May 1. It was announced at Shrine headquarters. Their coming match over the Bayshore Course will be the high light of the Shrine sporting events. Preceding the special match will be a two-day handicap medal tournament for visiting Shriners under the auspices of the local Shrine club and the Forty Thieves, national amateur golf association.

Fradin's Fifth Anniversary

The above illustration was taken at the time of the spring exhibition held in the town in March. It shows the two display windows of quality woman's apparel shop throughout. These windows attracted a great deal of attention and drew much favorable comment from the hundreds of friends and customers of the store.

Thursday marks the opening of the wonderful windows, the fine store front, the beautiful store interior and the array of merchandise that characterizes Fradin's would not have been if it were not for the confidence that hundreds of women in Manchester have had and do have in this establishment. Their confidence has caused them to continue their patronage year in and year out, and through this very thing Fradin's has grown and is continuing to grow each year in popularity, in its scope of merchandising and in the favor of Manchester women for they know that merchandise purchased at this store is authentic in style, of highest quality and is being sold at as reasonable prices as possible.

Mr. Fradin does all the buying for the store and he says that due to many things too numerous to mention, but including his good judgment and the wholesalers' anxiety to sell due to very poor weather, he has secured some very exceptional values in many lines of merchandise especially for this

ENGLAND MAKES AVIATION STUDY AT BIG AIRPORT

Croyden, England.—"We shall be very happy indeed to have you see what we are doing and trying to do" in commercial aviation in England," said Sir Seton Brackley, director of Civil Aviation of Great Britain.

Croyden Airfield is forty minutes ride from Croyden. The buildings at the "Liverpool Britannia's Air" are of substantial stone, the hangars are huge and are built of steel and concrete. A new hotel is just being completed.

Major Brackley, manager of the Imperial Airways, and Captain Markham, commanding air officer of the Air Ministry, were kind enough to explain the workings of the great airport.

Airplane, as they are built today, need a vast amount of room in order to clear the ground. The field here is about a quarter of a mile square and soon is to be doubled. It is not unusual for thirty or forty planes to arrive and depart from this port in a day. English, French, Dutch and Belgian companies operate here.

Government Owned
The field is owned by the British government and all companies pay rent and landing fares.

But in order to handle this traffic without planes crashing into each other, a dispatcher is necessary and this office, the control tower, is on top of the Air Ministry building, which dominates the entire field. This is the center of activity. Of course there is the weather bureau and the wireless receiving and sending apparatus and the lights and beacons, instruments but they are all merely agents of the officer in the control tower.

The tower is fifty feet above the ground. The director is a busy man. With headphones on his ears and a great map before him showing the south of England and the Western part of Europe, with little flags indicating each plane, he keeps track of every plane within a radius of several hundred miles and carries on a running conversation by radio with half a dozen planes in the sky going out or coming towards Croyden.

If a plane gets lost in the fog, the pilot switches on his transmitting set and calls Croyden.

In a second the control officer knows the direction from which the plane comes, he gets two other stations by wireless two hundred miles away to call the plane. They get the angle and immediately relay their reports to the control officer.

Locates Lost Plane
Then with the "direction finder" and a rapid calculation in three minutes he telephones back to the plane giving the pilot his exact location on the map.

Pilots ask for weather, for condition of the field in landing. Reports come in hourly from weather bureaus in northern France and Belgium and the south of England.

"The channel is the worst of our worries," explained the control officer. "We have landing fields almost everywhere in England and France where a ship can put in but if a ship goes down in the channel we must know immediately where it is. We have a tug for instant call on both sides and only once have we had a plane land in the water."

ANDOVER HOPES PRESIDENT MAY HEAD SPEAKERS

Andover, Mass.—Only an unexpected prolongation of the Congressional session will prevent President Calvin Coolidge from attending the 150th anniversary of the founding of Phillips Academy here. Announcement to this effect was made by Alfred E. Stearns, headmaster of the Academy, following receipt of an official communication from the White House.

The President, it was learned, has long wished to attend this notable celebration of the anniversary of one of the oldest preparatory schools in New England on May 18.

Mr. Coolidge will meet at the Phillips Academy sesquicentennial a noteworthy group of American educators. On the programme for the two day celebration are President Lowell, of Harvard; President Angell, of Yale; President Hibben, of Princeton; President Butler, of Columbia; and President Farrand, of Cornell.

Both Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Massachusetts and Governor Huntley N. Spaulding of New Hampshire will be among the speakers, as will James J. Davis, secretary of Labor in President Coolidge's cabinet. William Phillips, the American minister to Canada, will represent the Phillips founders, of which he is a descendant.

President's Speech
Most of the addresses will be delivered in the Case Memorial Building. President Coolidge, in his speech on Friday, afternoon in the open air, will speak from the porch of Samuel Phillips Hall, one of the stately colonial structures on the new Andover campus. It is expected that the President will be greeted by at least two thousand graduates of the school, with their wives and families, together with a large number of other distinguished guests.

Phillips Academy, the oldest of the great American preparatory schools was opened in April, 1778 with thirteen students. The act of incorporation was signed by John Hancock. The great seal was made by Paul Revere.

Consider

in Buying Furniture

Consider Price also but NEVER Price alone

The thousands of people who came to Garber Brothers did not buy furniture here for the sole reason that our prices were the lowest possible.

They bought furniture here because the low prices were backed by a standard of quality that left no room for question. It was positively the best quality that could be produced for the price.

And Garber Brothers backed up every purchase with a satisfaction guarantee.

To-day this tremendous family of satisfied customers is our most valued asset.

When looking at furniture... ask yourself this question... What do I get in return for my money? And in answering that question think of the quality, think of the workmanship, imagine the furniture as it will look a few years from now. Remember this... Price speaks but once, but quality keeps on talking forever.

Visit Garber Brothers the first opportunity you get. See one of the largest displays of quality furniture in America. Whole pages of complimentary descriptions about our store could not tell you a more interesting and convincing story than this visit. There are many things one can learn from our vast display.

Compare with Garber Brothers' Standard of quality... Compare with Garber Brothers' Everyday prices... and you'll find that furniture of unquestioned quality costs no more than furniture of no particular quality.

8.26. Here, however, Manchester's tax rate may not be comparable with that in the other towns mentioned because it does not include the amount spent by the outside districts, but does include the amount spent by the Ninth District. The analysis in question went further and divided the factors of the cost per pupil in a valuable way as between the costs of instruction, supervision, administration, materials for instruction and hygiene.

Towns' Abilities. "Mr. Keith's comparison of the cost of Manchester schools with these seven towns entirely neglected to consider the ability of various towns to support schools. On this basis it was interesting to note that out of these eight towns, Manchester has next to the highest ratio of taxable property per pupil in average attendance, as shown by the following table:

Table with 2 columns: Town Name, Total Cost Per Pupil in A. D. A. Values range from West Hartford ($113.32) to Stratford ($70.36).

"It will be seen at a glance that while the cost of elementary schools in the Town of Manchester appears to be high in comparison with the towns in question, and while the cost of high schools appear to be low, the Town of Manchester has next to the greatest ability of any of the towns in question to pay for schools of the highest grade and quality.

"It has seemed to the Ninth District committee that the very detailed comparison given by Mr. Keith omits some of the more important measures because no consideration is taken of the town's ability to support education. To arrive at a more equitable basis, we have selected seven towns that had the next lower ability to support schools and seven towns which had the next higher ability to support schools and have then measured their cost relative to that of the Town of Manchester. This is illustrated by the table given below:

Table with 2 columns: Town Name, Grand List Per Pupil in A. D. A. Values range from Westport ($19,288) to New Canaan ($67.47).

Manchester, 10th, average 104.45; 2 below mean; 3 below average.

Table with 2 columns: Town Name, High School Cost Per Pupil in A. D. A. Values range from Norfolk ($253.98) to West Hartford ($123.75).

Table with 2 columns: Town Name, Total Cost Per Pupil in A. D. A. Values range from Old Lyme ($157.21) to New Canaan ($85.56).

Table with 2 columns: Town Name, Tax Rate. Values range from West Hartford (9.56) to Sprague (6.29).

Westport, Manchester, 5th, 3 above mean. "From the above table it is clear that Manchester is conducting its elementary schools at a lower cost per pupil in average daily attendance, than are the average of the towns considered, and ranks third below the average. On the basis of high school cost per pupil in average daily attendance, Manchester ranks fifth below the average and on the basis of the total cost per pupil in average daily attendance, Manchester ranks fourth below the average. These figures would seem to indicate that if ability to support education is a fair indication of a town's reasonable appropriations for education, Manchester by no means extravagant, in fact it seems to be distinctly below the average.

How Many to Support? "Does not the problem in the long run tend to become the same kind of problem as with an individual family? The amount a father can afford to spend upon the education of a child depends not only upon his total income, but upon the number of children he has. A father with one child can be more liberal with that child's education than can a father with six children on the same income. So a town must inevitably consider its total resources and its total children in attempting to make a fair provision for the education of its youth. Any attempt to compare educational costs must constantly bear in mind the ability to support education and here Manchester, in endeavoring to have schools of the highest grade, does not appear to have exceeded the sacrifice made by other towns of approximately similar capacity.

"It is well to bear in mind here that we are not dealing with a problem that is local to Manchester, nor even to Connecticut. The United States Bureau of Education's 1927 Bulletin No. 39 gives the following significant figures: "The total expenditures for public elementary and high schools in 1900 for the whole country was $20.21 per pupil in average attendance. In 1924 it was $102.05 per pupil in average attendance. If we raise the 1900 dollar to the purchasing power of a dollar in 1913 and reduce the 1926 dollar to a dollar of the same purchasing power of that of 1913, we get the following figures: Average cost per pupil in average attendance for the whole country in 1900—$25.10; and in 1926—$67.58 which represents an increase in terms of the 1913 dollar of 169.2 per cent. between 1900 and 1926.

"We have gone back to the old records of the Ninth District and find that in 1900 the cost per pupil in average daily attendance, including elementary and high school pupils, was $21.32. As noted, this increased in 1926 to $107.59. If we reduce these two figures to the value of the 1913 dollar on the same ratio as the figures for the nation, we find that the 1900 cost for the Ninth School District in terms of the 1913 dollar would be $70.78. It is curious to note that this is an increase of 168 per cent. over the 1900 cost, whereas the increase for the whole nation was 169.2 per cent.

"When we consider our condition relative to that of the country at large and make allowances for the much higher average increase in wealth in this locality over that of the country at large, we will appear to be better off as regards relative expense. Even positively, our average cost of $107.59 per pupil in average attendance, for elementary and high school pupils combined, compares favorably with the figure of $102.05—the total cost per pupil in average attendance for the country as a whole. It would be expected that Manchester's averages would have gone higher than that of the whole country. It is quite surprising that there is such a striking similarity between the two comparisons."

600 U. S. STUDENTS IN COMPETITION FOR U. OF C. SCHOLARSHIPS. Chicago. — An interscholastic competition will be held at the University of Chicago on May 11 when nearly six hundred high school students of the country compete for thirty scholarships. Points will be awarded for each scholarship and honorable mention won by the representatives of the various schools, and the contest has resulted in greater interest among schools than ever before. This year the contest is open to all graduating seniors, instead of being restricted to affiliated secondary schools. Entries so far total 503 with Oak Park, Ill., which made one of the best showings last year, entering 69 students. The contest is being held from Greenwich, Conn.; Cincinnati, Ohio; Little Rock, Wis.; Milwaukee, Wis., and other cities are sending their prize students. The announcement of the winners will be made in the evening, the faculty of the university being mustered to mark the papers during the afternoon. A full scholarship is worth $300.

GERMAN DESERTER TELLS OF HARD LIFE LED IN FRENCH FOREIGN LEGION. Aberdeen.—"The brutal treatment, bad food and unbearable conditions were more than I could bear," Fritz Stinz, a 21-year-old German declared upon his arrival here after his escape from the French Foreign Legion. Stinz, who was sent back to his native land, said that he made his escape from Suisse, North Africa, where he had been stationed by obtaining a suit of civilian clothes. While waiting for a vessel on the African coast, he was recognized, and an Arab attempted to capture him, Stinz said, but he struck the man unconscious and made a successful getaway.

ELYSEES BEACH COCKTAIL HOUR DRAWS SOCIETY

Paris.—"The Lido," the latest newly created "beach" in the Champs Elysees, continues to be Paris' most fashionable rendezvous. Cocktail hour finds it invaded by every nationality that comes to Paris—and this means practically every one of them in bathing suits. Women bathers wear the most striking and eccentric of costumes. Almost anything is allowed, provided it covers up a few square inches of anatomy. Faces are well-powdered and painted. It won't come off for they do not splash. The water is nice and warm and there are rubber rafts, rubber horses and ducks floating about. One is allowed to bathe at any time from before luncheon to the early hours of the morning, but there is a very definite rule that bathers shall not approach the dance hall without changing costume. The dance floor is square and raised slightly above the ground level. Innumerable small tables are dotted about over the illuminated floor. The swimming pool is a most luxuriant affair made in pastel shades of marble glistening through pure green limpid water. At intervals some twenty fountains are turned on at either side of the pool. These spray, forming a perfect rainbow arch which is reflected in a large mirror at the end of the hall. Dancers perform during the supper hour and there is a Neapolitan guitar orchestra. All around are pergolas profusely decorated with lamps representing flowers. One side completely separated from the men quarters are the women's dressing rooms, decorated in red and blue. There are about one hundred of them. There is also a Hamman.

With the Lenten season over and priests once more able to bless the marriage-union, the Mayor of this city broke all records a few hours before Easter dawned, by performing one hundred and eleven civil ceremonies. They all said they wanted to spend Easter of 1928 as man and wife. They sought the Church's blessings during the following week.

The First Chamber of the Paris Tribunal has just fined Madame Jean St. Paul two hundred dollars for having changed her mind when she was only a bride-to-be. The civil ceremony was performed at the "Mairie" of the ward, as is required by French law, and the following day, a large crowd of people turned up at the church to witness the religious complement. But the bride and bridegroom kept them waiting so long that the bride finally announced that the marriage would not take place. Upon leaving the Mairie the day before, it was then learned, the bride had suddenly announced that she did not intend to go any further toward matrimony. The groom, considering himself a married man, took steps for divorce and obtained it. The woman in question married again and went to Spain. When she returned the other day she found that the Court had fined her for a little capricious change of mind causing her would-be-husband moral damage.

"Touch not, test not," reads the new sign put up in French bakeries according to a police regulation which forbids the use of the customer's fingers to select his loaf or rolls. This rule was really made a few years ago, but like many a French law, very few have heeded it. There is an almost universal habit of taking a few experimental pokes to test the respective hardness, softness, dampness, or dryness and other qualities of the bread arrayed in rows on the bakery shelves. The bakers themselves have tried in vain to prevent it by separating the well-baked loaves from those that are soft, but now they will point to the poster on the wall which states in good-sized letters that customers must choose their bread by sight alone.

PANTHEON FOR FASCISTS IS DISCUSSED IN ITALY. Rome.—The erection of a pantheon for Fascist heroes is being discussed. The Pantheon in Rome, now a church, contains the graves of Italy's first King Victor Emmanuel, besides the tombs of Italy's most famous painters. It is proposed to bury the heroes of Fascism in the vast subterranean chambers running beneath the imposing monument to Victor Emmanuel on the Capitol Hill. There are two museums in the subterranean galleries, but there is plenty of room for what may come the Hall of Fame of the new Italy. It is understood Mussolini approves of the idea.

69 YEAR COAL FIRE SOON TO BE PUT OUT, MINE OFFICIALS SAY

Harrisburg, Pa.—Fire which has slowly eaten its way through the interior of the anthracite mine of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company at Summit Hill, Pa., for the past 69 years will soon be extinguished, according to Frank Hall, deputy secretary of mines. Hall, who has been with the Mine Department for 43 years, made this prediction in the face of facts which show that practically every known method of extinguishing mine fires has been used in the mine and has proved fruitless. He said he based his belief on new methods which are now being used in the burning mine. Present plans call for construction of a thick concrete wall, several hundred feet thick, across the shaft of the mine, he declared, adding that it was believed that this huge mass would be more effective than any other method that had been tried, and would finally prove successful. Engineers have estimated that the stubborn, creeping blaze has destroyed several million dollars worth of coal during the years it has been smouldering. Hall has been one of the most active persons in studying the weirdness with which the fire has defied all efforts to check it, but he believes that the new concrete wall will cause its extinction. According to Hall, the fire started when a workman who attended one of the large stoves, which were formerly placed at the foot of the slopes for the comfort of the miners, accidentally shovelled a pile of hot coals into a wooden mine car and went to another part of the mine. The coals ignited the mine car and the flames spread to supporting timbers, finally igniting the coal.

COHEN AND McNAMARA OPEN AT STATE TODAY

Famous Funsters Starred In "Why Sailors Go Wrong"; Billie Dove in Co-Feature.

That pictures sometimes live up to claims of their advance notes is proven by "Why Sailors Go Wrong," the new William Fox comedy, which had its local premier at the State theater this afternoon. This production features Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara, the famous comedy team of "What Price Glory," and is one of two splendid features at the State today and tomorrow.

The story in brief is that of a taxi and hansom driver who is helping a young lover, played by Nick Stuart, to board a yacht are themselves made prisoners and taken over the briny deep. Together with the young lover and his sweetheart, played by Sally Phillips, they are at the mercy of the villain. Situations developed in such a manner that they soon find themselves shipwrecked on a tropical island. Here they have all sorts of hair-raising adventures. They are chased by lions, captured by cannibals and tempted by hula girls. A laughter picture is the only way to describe this latest Fox production.

Patrol with the Cohen and McNamara feature is "The Heart of a Follies Girl," a story of life behind the scenes of Broadway show-life. Billie Dove, more beautiful and charming than ever, is featured in the stellar role. Pretty girls, gorgeous gowns, cabarets, night clubs and a sweet love story are woven into this fascinating drama of a footlight favorite who spurned men with millions for a poor boy with millions in love. Billie Dove again shines and lives up to her undisputed reputation of being the screen's greatest emotional actress. Lowell Sherman and Larry Kent also have excellent roles.

Saturday brings a complete change of program, with the show running continuously from 2:15 until 10:30. Five acts of selected vaudeville are scheduled.

BASEBALL NOW SETTLED DOWN TO ITS STRIDE, WALSH ASSERTS

First of East-West Inter-sectional Meetings Tomorrow Will Give Experts Good Line on Teams.

By DAVIS J. WALSH. New York, May 3.—After giving its customary slapstick prelude of early April, Major League baseball may be depended upon to settle down to legitimate roles in the next fortnight, beginning tomorrow with the first of the east-west inter-sectional meetings.

For another, it may show how far John McGraw can hope to go with his Giants this season. The club is moving west today in first place, regardless of injuries to O'Doul and Walker and the failure of Vic Aldridge to report.

All the speed of the National League field, barring the Giants, is in the west. Therefore, their next 16 ball games figure to prove just what they are made of.

The Giants open their western invasion in Cincinnati tomorrow. Then they double back to Pittsburgh jump over to Chicago and finish in St. Louis.

Western Clubs. The Giants, of course, will be taking on a recognized contender in each series. The three other western clubs meantime will be fattening on the Phils, a natural victim; the Braves, who are shot up like a bull's eye with injuries and illness, and the Dodgers, who are beginning to discover that baseball requires a minimum of nine (9) players.

As for the status of the Browns and the Indians, it may go unchallenged for four or five days. St. Louis will open in Washington tomorrow and the Senators at the moment seem to be all spread out like a creditors' investigation.

Now they stand. LEADING LEAGUE HITTERS. National League. Grantham, Pirates472

Boys Like Girls Who Play Sports

HELEN FILKEY AND HER MOTHER

Day of Smoking, Drinking, Dancing Flapper Is Passing Says Helen Filkey, Famous Girl Olympic Star, Flapper Type Ridiculed Too Much.

Chicago, May 3.—The days of the cigarette smoking, gin drinking, up-all-night dancing flapper are passing and a new style of athletic, good sport girl is coming to take her place.

Those not familiar with the field of athletics may have to be told that Helen Filkey is one of the most capable girl athletes in the world, a record holding sprinter and hurdler and a sure member of the American Olympic team.

"The boys today are tired of the flapper," she said. "They want companions and good sport girls who are interested in athletics."

"I never want for a good time and I don't smoke nor drink and I never miss the chance to spend an hour with a nice date. I don't believe I am just one of a type because I believe the majority of the girls my age are taking better care of themselves than the girls did two or three years ago."

"I would advise girls who want to be popular and have nice boy friends, as they call them, to take up athletics. The boys like to go around with a girl who is known as a good athlete and to entertain her."

"I didn't take up athletics to become popular and acquire boy friends or to become good-looking. I had to on account of my health. I was so delicate as an infant that my parents almost despaired of raising me and a few winters ago I had to go to California. I took up athletics then and the results were so beneficial that I took second prize in a health show last year and would have won first place if I had not been a pound under weight."

"I have to give up pickles, candy and pastry when am in strict training but otherwise I live about the same all the time," she said. "I am going into training May 1 for the Olympic games and then I am through with dances, movies and parties and I will be in bed every night. The good feeling that results more than makes up for the sacrifices, however."

The Nut Cracker

The Philly Nationals are a great singing team, says a dispatch. Well, it's nice there's some attraction.

We suggest a song for the other Philadelphia teams, that of Mr. McGillicuddy, "Among My Souvenirs."

To Cobb is only hitting .400. But you can't expect much this early in the season.

Jack Johnson tried a comeback the other night and the sports writers say he was knocked out. Knocked, or pushed?

Mr. Richard believes the Tunney-Hemery bout will draw a million and a half, he says. Tex has a good poker face. He didn't even smile when he said it.

Richard says he's convinced that Dempsey is through. We'd almost believe he was, if so many people didn't feel so sure about it so often.

The supremacy of the white race, of course, is undisputed. As an example, the other day we saw a picture of Pyle's runners struggling across the country, followed by a long line of Indians in automobiles.

VIC ALDRIDGE HAS BEEN SUSPENDED BY MCGRAW. AND WHEN MCGRAW SEES HIM HE'LL PROBABLY SUSPEND HIM AGAIN. THE PROBLEM IS: HOW DO YOU GET SUSPENDED WITHOUT PUTTING ON A UNIFORM?

Tris Speaker stole a base the other day. We also heard that John D. Rockefeller's governess spanked him for getting into the jam pot, and Thomas Edison's dad took him to the woodshed because he broke a china closet with his toy engine.

Mr. Speaker also got four hits in the same game. But these rookies usually hit well early in the year, until the veteran pitchers and catchers get onto them.

Kiki Cuyler is smacking the berry this season. The theory is that you can get more hits at the plate than you can on the bench.

When Bill Thompson holds his world fair in Chicago in 1928, he says, all the world's sports championships will be contested there. Italy, we understand, will send some of her best bombers to compete with the champion Chicagoans.

Of course there'll be no cricket championship. The game is played with an English accent.

A CHALLENGE. The Hartford Aces have organized for the coming season and would like to arrange games with any of the leading amateur or semi-pro teams in the state.

This is the final of six articles in which Roland Mackenzie, one of America's leading golfers and a member of the Walker Cup team in 1920, talks about golf and what he thinks of it in an interview with Herby L. Farrell, The Herald and NEA Service sports writer. This is the first time that Mackenzie has ever been interviewed to this extent on his favorite game.

By HENRY L. FARRELL. Washington, May 3.—In these days when you hear fighters talking of knocking the block off the champion, baseball players boasting of their swarzes and runners threatening a watch, it is pleasant to hear a real good young athlete speak conservatively of himself.

After concluding a very pleasant interview of Roland Mackenzie and wishing him success during the approaching season, the writer asked him—"Hasn't Bobby been beaten before?"

And young Mackenzie came back with a quick—"How many times?" He went on to add that there wasn't a law against trying but that any golfer who thought too much of beating Bobby was lost.

"I was scared to death of Watts and I rather think he was afraid of me and we were under a heavy handicap but Watts didn't crack. He started to give me the beating of my life and he got bridle on the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth, as I recall it."

Watts and I always have been the best of friends. I am sure we always will be," Mackenzie said. "We have palled around a lot and last year at the Intercollegiate we were staying in the same house. We even occupied rooms across the hall from each other."

Like the vast majority of other golfers, Mackenzie pays tribute to Bobby Jones as the superb and the perfect artist. He rates Jones and George Duncan as the perfect stylists, but he leans to Bobby as the only one from whom every golfer can learn something of everything.

He suggested that there is only one way to tell anyone how to become a perfect golfer—and a great one because volume and a complete course can be given in these words—"play like Bobby plays."

LETTER GOLF

FOR BASEBALL FANS

In letter golf, as in baseball, a WALK may develop into a RUNS if it comes in a tight place. Today's par is six, but you may be able to beat the solution on another page.

Letter golf grid with words WALK and RUNS.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2-You can change only one letter at a time.
3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

No, Maude, if you doubt a woman's judgment, just look at some of the husbands they pick. If husbands went every place their wives told them to go there would be fewer divorces but more widows.

Johnnie Rapp gazed at his stunning date, as she gracefully descended the stairway. His heart beat violently as he realized that all this beauty was his. Charmingly, she stood before him and whispered, 'How do I look, dear?' 'Sweetheart,' he murmured, as he took her in his arms, 'you look mighty good to me.' 'Don't let your impressions mislead you,' she breathed, snuggling closer.

Jim—Knowledge is better than wealth. Tom—Yes, I know, but I'd rather have the inferior article.

'A forty-dollar saddle on a twenty-dollar horse' looked silly; and that may explain why a college boy doesn't wear a hat.

If a fellow stays more than ten minutes in a phone booth while others are waiting he deserves the wrong numbers he gets.

THEIR STRANGE HABITS Spring, summer, autumn and winter more or less peacefully come and go every year. Not only in Springfield, Massachusetts, but all over the country, we hear.

Springfield, Mass. Union. Spring, summer, autumn and winter come each year to practically all of the states.

But out here in Newark, Ohio, we now and then feel that they have mixed their dates.

Newark, Ohio, Advocate. Spring, summer, autumn and winter come by and visit us every year as a rule.

THE TINYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN - PICTURES BY KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.

The old wheelbarrow rode along, and Clowdy burst out into song. 'We are a happy bunch,' he sang, 'as happy as can be. The garden-er is a real good friend, 'cause on him we can all depend. He'll take us to his garden, where we'll see what we can see. 'When everything is said and done, this ride is really heaps of fun. We travel o'er the hillside with a bumpy-bumpy-bump. But, shucks, if we all hang on tight, I'm sure that things will be all right, and we won't fall whenever we hit a rough place with a thump. 'My goodness,' said the garden man. 'Sing on some more. You surely can! I like to hear your voice ring out. It makes me feel so glad.' 'All right,' said Clowdy, 'here I go!' And he kept singing, high and low. The other Tinies clapped their hands. It really wasn't bad. And then the whole bunch heard him shout, 'I've sung enough. I'm all tired out. Please tell me where we're heading for, and when will we arrive?' 'Don't worry,' said the garden man. 'I move as quickly as I can. You Tinymites are heavy! I can't gallop. Sakes alive!' Right soon they passed from rocky land, and found an open space at hand. 'Now, there's my spacious garden,' said the garden-er, with a grin. 'I have a heap of work to do, and I'll be pleased if all of you will help me. Kindly say the word, and we will all pitch in.' 'You bet we will,' the Tinies cried. They rushed up to the garden-er's side. 'Just give us all a shovel, or a little rake, or hoe.' Then, with a very merry shout, the implements were handed out. 'Now, watch us work,' cried Scouty. 'We are clever. Here we go!' (The Tinymites meet some flow-ers in the next story.)

The Manchester Kiwanis club will meet on Mondays hereafter and next week's noonday meeting will be at the Hotel Sheridan. Ben Allen, lieutenant governor of Division No. 1 will be present and will bring with him the Rev. John F. Johnston of Hartford, who will talk on "Kiwanis." The members are urged to turn out in good number to welcome, not only the lieutenant governor, but Doctor Johnston, who has spoken before the Manchester Kiwanians on a previous occasion and is a favorite speaker with local audiences.

Frank Cheney, Jr., will furnish the attendance prize at Monday's meeting.

CASSELLS-TEDFORD

Miss Annie E. Tedford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tedford of 144 High street and Clarence Davitt Cassells, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cassells of 54 Orford street were married this afternoon at 3 o'clock at St. Mary's Episcopal church. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. J. Stuart Nettl, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends from this town and elsewhere. Organist John Cocker gave a short concert prior to the wedding march from Lohengrin as the bride party proceeded up the aisle and took their places at the altar. The attendants were Miss Violet Tedford, sister of the bride as bridesmaid, and Howard Cassells, brother of the bridegroom, as best man.

The bride was gowned in white satin trimmed with lace and rhinestones. She wore a veil of tulle which fell from a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas.

The bridesmaid's dress was of coral georgette trimmed with lace with hat to match. Her arm bouquet was of pink sweet peas. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, attended by about fifty guests.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a string of pearls and to his best man, white gold cuff links. The bride's gift to the bridegroom was a white gold watch chain and to the bridesmaid a ruby ring.

Mr. and Mrs. Cassells, on their return from a motor trip to New York and Niagara Falls, will make their home for the present with the bride's parents.

PAGEANT, MUSIC FOR "Y" DINNER

Entertainment to Feature Anniversary Gathering Here on May 14.

The general committee arranging for the Tenth Anniversary Dinner of the Hartford County YMCA to be held in the South Methodist church Monday evening, May 14, at 6:30, daylight saving time, is giving especial attention to the entertainment and exhibition features of the dinner.

The pageant being presented under the direction of Rev. Truman H. Woodward of Wapping will use Wapping Y boys and leaders as characters portraying the story of "Ten Years in Hartford County." Such familiar figures as The Friendly Indians, The Pioneer, The Stalwart Athlete, The Torch Bearer, are woven into a narrative that depicts in dramatic form the contribution Hartford County Y has made to "Father Hartford County's" boys. Among those who will appear in the pageant are: Friendly Indians, Clyde Johnson; Pioneer, Donald Johnson; Hi-Y, Paul Smith; Country Boy, Homer Lane; Young Man, Luther Burnham; Athlete, Russell Stoughton; Camper, William Tripp; College Man, Wesley Smith; Group Leader, Robert Sharp; Church Worker, Truman H. Woodward; Torch Bearer, Guy Smith.

Moving pictures of activities of the Wapping Friendly Indian, Buckland Pioneers, and Manchester High School Torch Club have been taken and are being prepared to be thrown on the screen at the banquet. Exhibits of handwork and other activities carried on by County Y Groups are also being prepared to illustrate the work being done in the county at large as well as locally. The musical features of the dinner are being featured. The High School Ensemble, led by Edward Dzadlis, will play for the general social hour preceding the dinner, and during the dinner. "Larry" Emmons, who made such a hit in the Kiwanis minstrels, with his banjo, has been secured to give several numbers—and as a novelty feature the recently-organized Junior Y band of Marlborough will make its first public appearance, playing several numbers under the direction of A. E. Lyman of Columbia, director also of Junior bands in Rockville, Willimantic, South Willington, and Eastford.

Tickets for the dinner have been distributed to a number of local men by George Rix, chairman of the ticket committee. The dinner is open to ladies and gentlemen of the general public.

What to look for in buying a REFRIGERATOR

DON'T buy a refrigerator on its looks alone. Make sure that it is soundly constructed, well insulated and scientifically designed for proper air circulation. See that it has the proper food chamber and ice chamber capacity for the size of your family.

Have a good refrigerator, keep the ice chamber well filled with ice, and you will get the full benefit of all the ways in which ice saves.

We will gladly advise you in regard to the selection of a refrigerator.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

STREET LITTER.

Money a muckle makes a muckle, says the old Scotch proverb. A half inch scrap of paper on the length of Main street is not seriously defacing. Let a Broadway canyon snowstorm of such scraps hit this business street of ours and it would take all of George Waddell's sturdy men weeks to dig the street out from under.

An empty cigarette package is a negligible thing—chuck it away, anywhere. A torn envelope is a nuisance for the pocket—throw it into the street. A kid drops a candy wrapper on the sidewalk. Presently we have a rather shabby looking thoroughfare, despite the care of the householders and store keepers.

Just a matter of a wee lack of care, of interest in keeping things spick and span. And easy to train ourselves away from that lazy indifference.

How easy it is, we Pinehurst folks know. Once upon a time we made up our minds that a little thing mislaid here, another thing a bit out of place there, something else momentarily laid down, to be put away later, all together made for something short of absolute tidiness. And we made up our minds that we would avoid all the things that interfered with spick-and-spanness.

No trouble—really no trouble at all. All you have to do is just not do the little things that create messiness. Manchester streets could be just as immaculate, from street standards, as Pinehurst is judged by the fustier modern food shop standards.

Anyhow, we politely suggest that it wouldn't do any harm to try.
