BIRTHDAY PARTY

Dorothy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Walker of Strong street was 11 years old yesterday and celebrated the event by giving a party for 16 of her friends from the fifth grade of the Hollister street school, Miss Annette Klee's room.

A floral program was carried out in the garden, the guests including the "wedding of the flowers," and other appropriate numbers. The prizes were in pink in keeping with the color scheme of pink and white. Dorothy made the floral basket favors herself and helped with the decorations in the dining room which were streamers of pink and white paper and flowers. A pyramid of pink cake with 11 pink tapers formed the centerpiece. The menu carried out the color scheme as far as possible, ending with various sorts of crushed strawberries. Dorothy received many pretty remembrances.

MANY POTTED PLANTS ORDERED FOR MOTHER'S DAY

According to Earl F. Miner of the Park Hill Flower Shop, Mother's Day, which falls on Sunday next, will be more generally observed in Manchester this year than ever before. He attributes that fact largely to the publicity which has been given the day during the last few years.

Park Hill Flower Shop has the largest supply of cut flowers and plants on hand for Mother's Day it has ever ordered and Mr. Miner reports that the preliminary orders which have already come in, exceed any in previous years.

Mr. Miner said favorite Mother's Day offering this year was the combination pot of assorted plants, many of which include geraniums, petunias and ageratum, and that hydrangea plants are also in heavy demand. Made up bouquets of assorted cut flowers are being ordered but not so many as the potted plants.

A New York man said he became a burglar because the trade looked so easy in newspaper stories. The manufacture of Ford automobiles also looks easy in newspaper stories.

LETTER EXPLAINS D. A. R. ARGUMENT

State Regent Addresses All Members in Regard to Controversies.

Miss Alice F. Dexter, of Talcottville, regent of Orford Parish chapter, D.A.R., has given The Herald a copy of a letter sent to members of the organization by the state regent which fully explains the recent controversies. The letter follows:—

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Elizabeth Rambush and Miss Mary Rutka of Colchester visited friends in Manchester yesterday.

Whist players are reminded of the card party tonight at the City View dance hall under the auspices of the Good Will club of the Fifth District. Refreshments, six prizes for the winners and dancing will occupy the time.

Mystic Review, Woman's Benevolent association will initiate a class of candidates at its regular meeting in Odd Fellows hall Tuesday evening. The officers and guards have been requested to dress in white. A social hour during which light refreshments will be served will follow the business. The committee in charge is Mrs. Margaret McCourt, Mrs. Grace Heyland and Mrs. Mildred Sanders.

Children of the primary department who are to take part in the parents' day celebration "Sunday morning at the North" in the church, are requested to be at the church for rehearsal Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Missionary societies of the South Methodist church have set the date of Thursday, May 24 for their May supper.

Proprietor A. Cohen of the North End Filling Station is preparing for a busy season by having installed the first hydraulic safety greasing lift to be used in Manchester. The lift is operated by air pressure and is easily raised and lowered without risk of mishap.

Frank D'Amico, well-known Manchester swimming lifeguard, who is employed every winter at Ocean Beach in Florida, is also a "home-saver." At least he gave notice today of his entry into the chimney-cleaning business during the odd season months. Affiliated with him in the business will be Frederick Dellenschneider, of Bissett street, who will do the booking.

Representatives of various lodges will meet tonight in K. of C. Hall to arrange for a bazaar that is to be given later in the month.

LAPSED POLICY PAID FOR PUPUL'S BURIAL

When Tony Pupul, dying and destitute, was laid on a park bench by the month who had cared for him for months, and was taken to the hospital and died there, it was assumed that he would have to lie in a pauper's grave. How he came to rest instead in his own six feet of earth, is a separate story.

When Isaac Jackson, local insurance man, read of Pupul's death in last Saturday's Herald, he recognized the name as that of someone who had at sometime been insured in his company through the office here. He looked the matter up and found that Tony Pupul had once carried a life insurance policy but it had lapsed. However, when payments of premiums ceased, the beneficiary, which was Tony's "estate" was credited with a small amount of paid-up insurance. Pupul had never said anything about any insurance, probably didn't know that there was any in existence after he stopped paying.

The money thus provided was sufficient to pay for a burial plot, casket, decent clothing for Tony to go to his last rest in, and such other little expenses as are involved in a "decent burial." There may even be some trifling sum to be sent to Tony's daughter in Poland.

Ten "palefaces" were adopted into the Miantonomah Tribe of Red Men last night.

COMMUNITY ORCHESTRA CONCERT THIS EVENING

Debut of Local Young Folks' Orchestra at Rec. Center; Public Admitted Free.

The Young Folks Community Orchestra, under the direction of Walter B. Joyner, will make its debut this evening in a program rendered in observance of National Music Week. This orchestra was formed by Mr. Joyner, at Kemp's Music House, some time ago, and has been rehearsing faithfully for this event. The orchestra is made up of forty musicians, and includes practically all of the important instruments of the symphony orchestra.

Most of the members are young progressive students of the violin, trumpet, trombone, viola, and other instruments. To support these ambitious young folks, a number of adult players have joined the organization to lend a hand in the development of a Community orchestra. Instruments in the orchestra include the violin, viola, violoncello, bass viol, Eb and Bb saxophones, tuba, trumpets, trombones, flute, clarinet, French horn, drums, and piano. With the exception of a few instruments, this is a full symphony instrumentation.

A very lovely program has been arranged, and will take place at the School Street Recreation Center this evening at 7:30. Assisting artists will also add a variety of musical numbers. The Maxwell Mandolin club, under the direction of Thomas Maxwell, will render several numbers, and there will also be instrumental solos, and duets by members of the club. Leslie Larder, trombone soloist will render solos, assisted at the piano by Wm. Hanna, Albert Pearson, bass soloist, and a member of the Beethoven Glee Club, will render several solos, assisted at the piano by Helge Pearson, who is leader of the Beethoven Glee Club. Katherine Halliday Howard, will render several cello solos, and will also present two of her pupils in a violin, cello and piano trio. Admission is free.

GLOZEL BATTLE
STILL GOING ON OVER OLD FINDS

Paris.—At a time when the aborigines were supposedly dodging the dinosaur and kidnapping their neighbor's wives civilization prevailed from the Mediterranean to Scotland according to Count Byron de Prorok, son-in-law of Mr. W. F. Kaas of New York.

Count de Prorok, who has conducted archeological expeditions to North Africa, thus puts American scientific opinion in the "Battle of Glozel" which is being waged generally over the question of whether neolithic cavemen knew their P's and Q's.

Excavations have been underway at Glozel in central France for some time. Skeptics might have remained apathetically silent if the diggers had not turned up stones bearing the alphabetic inscriptions XYZ. As this would tend to show that neolithic he-men practiced the art of writing doubting scientists muttered: "This is a bit thick"—and the battle started.

One party of Gozelites found a corkcreeper and a piece of bottle in the area of so-called pre-historic riches but warily refused to accept the debris as proving the neolithic age was "anti-prohibition." The opposition planted the corkcreeper to deceive posterity, they charged.

As the controversy waxed hot police raided a farm belonging to the Fradin brothers where most of the alleged relics were found, and reported seizing stones on which letters of the alphabet were freshly carved but even the most learned Glozelites refused to admit a hoax had been revealed. Instead they hinted at a dark plot of their scientific foe.

Count de Prorok's opinion aids in giving preponderance of testimony on the side of those who would elevate the intellectual standard of almost forgotten ages. An official committee of twelve scientists with him, uttered the last word in the matter. They believed the Glozel relics were on the whole genuine but avoided any reference to the alphabetic stones.

Still the "Battle of Glozel" goes on. The French government is interested in the excavations to the extent of $200, an insufficient sum, according to scientists, if the question of whether cavemen knew their P's and Q's is to be definitely settled.

Alvise Pavan, Italian, is being sought as the slayer of Savorelli, the man who fed him. Savorelli, alleged fascist stool pigeon, was shot when he answered the doorbell at his apartment in the boulevard Magenta. Pavan was seen entering the building several minutes before the shooting.

Ludvico Serrachiolli, traveling salesman who lived with Savorelli, told police Pavan had been ordered by a self-constituted court of anarchists to kill Savorelli whom Serrachiolli described as the slayer's benefactor.

Serrachiolli said: "Last summer anarchists of Paris raised $300 to send their one-armed comrade Ghini to Italy for the purpose of assassinating Mussolini. The funds were entrusted to Luigi Bernerini but he kept all but $95 enough to defray Ghini's expense to Italy. "Ghini was wounded while trying to cross the frontier. Being without money he had a hard time returning to Paris, but when he arrived Savorelli told him of Bernerini's duplicity. Naturally Savorelli was marked for death by the anarchists because of this. "Pavan was chosen to deal the blow because he was weak. We know he had been 'tried' by the anarchists for negotiating with their opponents but we thought his attitude for Savorelli would lead him to sacrifice himself rather than kill the man who gave him money in the days of his misfortune."

OUR TREES

DOUGLAS FIR
Douglas Fir really isn't a fir at all, but a sort of false hemlock, named for David Douglas, the young Scottish botanist who explored the remote Pacific northwest a hundred years ago.

Ranking next to southern pines in lumber production Douglas fir commercially is one of the most important trees in America. The present stand of Douglas fir is greater than that of any other species. It grows in most of the forests from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Coast and from Mexico to central British Columbia, attaining its largest size in Washington, Oregon and British Columbia. Here magnificent trees, three to six feet and over in diameter, grow close together and often reach a height of over 250 feet.

Douglas fir is strong, stiff and durable and is extensively used in building, and as railroad ties, piling, car and bridge material. Over the total cut of Douglas fir lumber, approximately 45 per cent, including most of the better grade material, is further manufactured into flooring, interior finish, sash and doors and other planing mill products. The wood is also used for pumps and pipe, furniture, boxes and crates, rollers, agricultural implements and woodenware.

For several years considerable quantities of Douglas fir have been exported to Japan, China, Australia and South America and in recent years smaller but increasing amounts to European countries via the Panama canal.

Although Europe is thought to attract an overlarge number of Americans each year, statistics show that less than half of one per cent of our citizens journey there annually.

Boston, Mass., May 11.—"Not to be opened until my ambition is realized" was written upon an envelope eight years ago. The envelope will be opened shortly as the ambition of Iride Pilla, Lynn girl, will have been realized. STUDEBAKER CAPTURES STOCK CAR RECORDS

President Model Goes 2,000 Miles, Averaging 72.5 Miles Per Hour.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The President Eight, leader of Studebaker's line of champion automobiles, has established 12 new speed records for fully equipped stock closed cars by traveling 2,000 miles in 1654 minutes, it has been announced here.

The President's new accomplishment gives Studebaker possession of every official endurance and speed record for fully equipped stock cars—closed as well as open—from 5 miles to 25,000 miles.

The President's sensational run began at 2:25 o'clock on the afternoon of April 29, at the Atlantic City Speedway. Every lap of the entire test was timed and checked by officials of the American Automobile Association who have certified the President's new records. An average speed of 72.5 miles per hour for the entire 2,000 miles was made by the President. Both before and after the run the car was checked by the A. A. A. Technical Committee, which certified it to be a strictly stock model.

The President's run eclipses the performances of automobiles costing two or more times as much and gives Studebaker undisputed supremacy in the fully equipped stock car speed field. The Studebaker Commander, Dictator and Erskine Six all hold speed and endurance records in their price classes.

GRAND JURY INDICTS ICE BOX BANDITS

Springfield, Mass., May 11.—Nine indictments were returned against the allied so-called ice box bandits, Albert L. Raymond and Roland G. Lalone, here today. Both defendants pleaded not guilty to the charges and were held without bail.

It was expected that before the case comes up before the court again next week that the two alleged bandits will have been extradited by the state of Connecticut on a charge of murder in connection with the killing of State Officer Irving H. Nelson.

The indictments returned against Raymond and Lalone today, included assault with intent to murder Officer Raymond Gallagher, three accusations of assault with intent to rob, larceny of an automobile and four charges of carrying revolvers.

The state in its case, will attempt to prove, officials said, that Raymond and Lalone were the ice box bandits who for many weeks perpetrated robberies in this section, locking up clerks and owners of stores in the refrigerators of their establishments. The government will try to prove officials added that the two alleged bandits fled from this city with Officer Gallagher in their wake. After leaving Massachusetts, they were said to have entered Connecticut and to have shot and killed State Officer Nelson who attempted to apprehend them.

A new glass said, to admit health-giving ultra-violet sun-rays, is being moulded into hats for women.

AT-A-BOY HERB!

The grilling of Herbert Hoover by the Senate campaign fund committee on Wednesday disclosed a quality in the secretary of commerce concerning which the people of the country at large knew very little, though those who have frequently come in contact with him were aware that he possessed it. And it is that peculiarly delightful attribute, a temper.

Once in a blue moon there is a really big man who either hasn't a temper or who is so afraid of it that he hides it successfully, even though it seriously cramps his style to do so. But ninety-nine worth-while men in every hundred can get what we in America call mad—good and frankly and candidly mad—and do it, too, on a proper occasion.

Mr. Hoover was riled when his torturers asked him if he had made a lot of politician patronage pledges in connection with his Presidential candidacy. He took a good clean shot at the committee when he said, after declaring that he had made no pledges, that if such a question were asked outside of an important committee hearing he should describe it as offensive.

He was riled again when, after he had implicitly denied having called a meeting of chinaware manufacturers to urge an increase in prices, members of the committee tried to ask him the same thing over and over again in thinly disguised forms. "I wonder, Mr. Chairman," he said, "if the committee is not getting down to dealing in a pretty low type of street slander."

We may pretend to admire the individual who never under any circumstances permits himself to have feelings. But there isn't one in a hundred of us who hasn't ten times as much admiration for the man who will blaze up when his honor is attacked.

George Washington had a temper which has become historic. Andrew Jackson was cyclonic. Even the sainted Lincoln, with his marvelous sense of humor, was capable of a mighty wrath. Roosevelt's temper was something that it took a courageous person to arouse deliberately. Wilson, behind his icy exterior, was capable of a very prompt display of anger on occasion.

Herbert Hoover may not have added to his popularity with the Senators who innuendoes he frankly and angrily resented, but among the millions of his admirers throughout the country he gained more than a little. We may respect a martyr, but we can only love, after all, a man who will fight when he is being crowded and insulted.

GO-GETTER STUFF

Those gentlemen who organized and operated the National Associated Investors, Inc., and who apparently turned over large gobs of their assets to a young person calling himself Roger W. Watkins, on mere fragmentary memoranda, are perhaps to be congratulated on having possessed such a sublime and innocent faith in their fellow men—for that is a rare and precious attribute in these days—but that they should have put their faith to quite such a test as they did is to be regretted, for various reasons.

If a story writer had anticipated the performance of the investors concern, with relation to the proverbial drum-beater from nowhere, he would have had his manuscript sent back by every editor who read it, annotated, "ridiculous improbable; 1921 stuff."

We do not know how long this so-called Watkins person has been within the ken of the National Associated Investors office, but County Detective Hickey has discovered that so recently as fifteen months ago he fit out of Memphis, Tenn., after having promoted a wildcat chain store enterprise. And previous to that he had been several different persons in all sorts of financial adventures with other people's money in various parts of the country. That this J. Rufus Wallingford could walk into Connecticut, whose financiers and business men are not supposed to be feeble minded children, and in a year or so establish himself that an investment trust would hand over scores of thousands of dollars in securities to him on his mere say-so, without having the remotest idea who he was, is a decided commentary on the degree to which the breezy go-getter is being over-valued in this particular era.

We can't imagine why Mr. Watkins didn't sell the state capitol building to the National Associated Investors, Inc. But perhaps he did.

GOADING THE CLERGY

One of the present Connecticut diversions is watching the game being played by the Ministers' Association of Waterbury and the Republican, newspaper, of that city. The Ministers' Association, stirred to the depths by conditions of lawlessness and vice which Waterbury police were apparently unable or unwilling to cope with, introduced spotters from the Watch and Ward Society, gathered a deal of evidence, brought about a state police raid on gambling houses, that momentarily rattled the teeth of the sports and gangsters of the Brass City.

That was on April 4 and was heralded as the beginning of a mighty war on vice and crime. But the treatment of the raid prisoners by the courts was not sensational, and perhaps the ministers found that the clean-up job was not so easy as it looked. Perhaps, and we have been inclined to think so, they suddenly realized that arresting misdemeanants does not eradicate criminals. Anyhow, nothing has been done since.

And now the Republican, having conceived the idea that there is something funny in the sudden quittal of the ministers, keeps girding and spurting at them, just as the ministers used occasionally to spur and gird at the police from the pulpit.

We have a keen admiration for the Republican, but we can't see where it is playing quite fair with the ministers. After all, in spite of their sporadic and perhaps emotional grabbing of the night stick, they are not cops.

GLANDULAR CRIME

Suspicion that criminalism is very often the result of physiological predispositions has been taking a stronger hold not only on the medical profession but on even casual observers in recent years. Dr. Walter Timme of the medical board of the Neurological Institute has just made a report on the result of seventeen years of research which has led him to the conclusion that deficiencies in three glands are responsible for an amazing amount of the world's crime. These three glands are the thymus, in the upper chest, the thyroid, in the neck, and the pituitary, at the base of the skull. A rather startling citation in support of his conclusions is that twenty-five life prisoners were examined in one New York prison and twenty-four of them found to display abnormality in one or more of these glands.

There is nothing very new in the general theory that glandular deficiencies are sometimes responsible for erratic functioning of parts of the human mind, but the Timme research would seem to be leading to something definite.

The lay mind is apt to run away from scientific thought, once it gets started on one of the latter's trails, and the question that first suggests itself to the non-scientist is: "Suppose you prove all this and learn where to place the blame for each variety of criminalism—how are you going to cure the disease?" It is to be imagined, however, that such students as Dr. Timme will be content to cross that bridge when they come to it. First they will want to make sure of their premises before tackling the problem.

NORMAL TRIAL NEWS

Perhaps the tabs and the yellowa have found that insanity-defense murder trials have lost some of their interest among readers. At all events they are paying little attention to the trial of Major Cecil Campbell, former army aviator, who is accused of killing his wife with a hammer in a hotel in New York last February. Campbell at the time admitted the killing and said it was in partial fulfillment of a suicide pact, the complete carrying out of which he had intended but lost his nerve.

Possibly because the man is penniless and there is no money to pay a flock of alienists to testify for him, this case is getting small notice even from the newspapers of the city where the trial is going on. Yet there is more matter of real interest in it than in half a dozen Ruth Snyder cases.

However, the trial, while pretty well kept off the first pages and not played up at all, is actually re-

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

(123) State School for Boys and Girls. Connecticut's juvenile offenders are sent to the Connecticut School for Boys and Meriden and the Long Lane Farm, state school for girls, at Middletown. In addition the state pays the board bills—$6.50 a week each—of girls committed to the House of the Good Shepherd at Hartford and the Florence Crittenton Home at New Haven.

The Connecticut School for Boys, which was opened on March 1, 1854, accommodated last year a daily average of 450 boys. The officers and employes average 67. Almost all the inmates are sent there for juvenile delinquency. Maintenance expenses for the year totaled $178,619, while net construction cost $185,896. Receipts from sales totaled $20,152. The grounds and buildings are valued at $890,995. The average per capita cost was $5.32.

The Long Lane Farm was established in 1868 as the Connecticut Industrial School for Girls, a private corporation in receipt of state aid. On July 1, 1921, the property of about 200 acres was transferred to the state. Last year the average daily number of girls present was 247, the average per capita cost being $13.62. The total maintenance cost was $194,778, and capital expenditures totaled $48,226. Sales receipts totaled $1,411. There was an average of 81 employes. The Farm is valued at $470,196.

Last year the state paid out $50,149 in board bills for girls committed to the House of the Good Shepherd, while $11,428 went to the Florence Crittenton Home for board of girls there. The average daily number of inmates at the former last year was 115, and at the latter, 27.

Monday—Local Tax Receipts Increase 464% ceiving all necessary publicity. It is simply not being over-played. Maybe the public's appetite for criminal trial sensations has been satiated. It ought to be.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of six articles reviewing the story of America's public lands. By RODNEY DUTCHER. Washington, May 11.—When Albert Bacon Fall was made secretary of the interior, the conservationists nearly went into convulsion fits.

Fall was given jurisdiction over millions of acres of oil lands, coal lands, phosphate and potash lands, grazing lands, forest lands and all the great resources of the public domain in Alaska. In the preceding nine years, as senator, he had consistently opposed conservation measures and favored nearly all measures designed to grant public resources for unprotected private exploitation.

Fall promptly astonished nearly everyone by an attempt to take the national forests from the jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture, where they had been since 1905. It was alleged that he was working for paper manufacturers who wanted dense pulpwood forests in Alaska. A bitter row between Fall and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace broke out. A great howl went up over the country. The American Forestry Association grabbed everything in sight to fling at Fall and such conservationists as Gifford Pinchot and Howard Slattery joined with the forest service itself to save the forests. Fall lost.

The old gentleman, before and since his retirement, has been accused of a great deal more than looting the naval oil reserves. He has been charged with favoring his friends as he hastened to open up the oil and coal lands and to have violated frequently the law in disposition of these and water and other rights.

Indians and their friends charged that the Fall-endorsed Bureau bill of 1922 would have robbed the Indians of all or most of their property, amounting to more than a million dollars. The General Federation of Women's Clubs and other organizations lobbied successfully to beat the bill and the storm of criticism helped hasten Fall's exit from the cabinet the next year.

Having obtained the naval oil reserves from the Navy Department through executive order and handed them to favored interests, Fall then went after the navy's oil. When he took office, the navy had five reserves—petroleum reserves at Elk Hills and Buena Vista, Calif., and Teapot Dome, Wyo., plus two shale reserves in Utah. When Fall left the cabinet the navy had its two shale reserves, which no one wanted. Do they had Elk Hills—which he said was worth $100,000,000 to him; the Southern Pacific and the Honolulu Oil Company had divided up Buena Vista with Fall's help and Harry Sinclair had Teapot Dome.

Fall had obtained jurisdiction over those reserves, which his predecessors in the government had carefully set aside and preserved from raids of the predatory. Naval officers charged that his disposition of the reserves "risked the national existence of the United States."

Corruption was alleged in the leases of Elk Hills and Teapot Dome, but the instance in which Fall overruled subordinates who tried to save Buena Vista, has not had as much publicity. It is said that for years previous, Fall had supported a campaign of the oil interests to deliver the three reserves, but it was never successful until he took office.

The supreme court has branded the Sinclair and Doherty leases as fraudulent or corrupt and ordered return of the reserves of the navy. Charges that "mass prominent in government made cleanups" in Sinclair stock after the Teapot lease has never been proved.

Fall resigned March 4, 1923. He had been constantly under fire. Later he was credited with persuading President Harding to visit Alaska in furtherance of his schemes to open up the territory's resources to the hungry hordes. But Harding, proceeding to Alaska, became converted by the opposition and in his last speech before his death, at Seattle, endorsed the principles of conservation and blasted the hopes of Fall and his friends.

The last conservationist outburst followed the dismissal of Director A. P. Davis of the Reclamation Service in June, 1923. Fall is understood to have plotted Davis' dismissal, but the man's reputation as an outstanding scientist of great ability and integrity always saved him. Then Secretary of the Interior Work, while Congress was out of session and he and Harding were en route to Alaska, got rid of Davis. It was charged that Work promised Davis a new position if he would make his resignation appear voluntary.

Work contended that the job needed a business man instead of an engineer. He gave the job to ex-Governor D. W. Davis, a former banker and grocer. Work obtained an executive order exempting D. W. Davis from civil service requirements, despite protest to the Civil Service Commission. Engineers and conservationists branded the deal as "political spoilsmanship." The Federated Engineering Societies of America, with 50,000 members demanded an investigation and protested on behalf of loyal, underpaid government scientists whose jobs appeared jeopardized.

DEEP WELLS FILL ROGERS CO. TANKS

Artesian Supply Adds to Efficiency of Plant of His- toric Concern.

The Rogers Paper Manufacturing Company is making extensive addition and changes in its mill on Charter Oak street. The work which has been going on for a month, will come to completion probably within the next two days. The Charter Oak street mill has been used for the making of pressed paper which is later finished at the company's mill at Prospect street and Hartford Road, for pressed board, novelties and other lines that require this grade of paper. Part of the improvement work has consisted in sinking artesian wells on the grounds. These bored to a depth of about 250 feet, have produced a permanent flow sufficient to maintain the water in the tanks at the required volume at all times and the water is clean and pure. Complete cleanliness of water is especially desired in the making of the grade of paper produced at this mill. The company is awaiting the arrival of a pressure filtration system that will further clarify the water before it mixes with the stock. This is one of several changes that have been planned by the new organization, headed by Charles Ray, that is now conducting the business. It was in November, 1832, that Peter Rogers leased a mill that stood beside the present Hartford Road. It has been used as a powder mill. He operated the mill by water power, the location of the dam and the sluiceway still being discernible on the west side of the so-called Rogers dam, west of the bridge over Prospect street. The building was a wooden structure 24 by 30 feet and two stories high. Later on he leased another paper mill from Halsey Hollister. These two mills were in operation in 1839. The Hollister mill was located on the north side of Charter Oak street just across the street from the present mill and got its water from a pond east of Grove street, where there was also at one time a stockette mill. It was at this time that Henry Rogers, a son of Peter, became interested in the mill and the site of the present East mill, on Charter Oak street, was purchased. In 1858 Henry Rogers started the erection of this mill and disposed of the mill on the north side of the street, to a man named Ingalls. Used print paper was used here for the first time in making new paper. This was made possible by the discovery by Henry Rogers of a bleaching process. The original mill, the old powder mill was destroyed by fire in 1889 and a new frame building was erected, but the business had largely increased and a larger brick and office building was erected there in 1893. This mill was further added to in 1900 and again in 1916 when Miss Gertrude Rogers was the manager head of the company. Her father, Henry E. Rogers remained active in the business for many years, but after her graduation from college, Miss Rogers became interested in the business and with her brother, Knight, carried it on. The death of her brother left her in full charge. It was while she was the directing head of the plant that the four story steel and concrete building was erected on Charter Oak street. The incorporation of the Rogers Paper Manufacturing Company took place in 1901. At that time the company put in its own printing presses and cutting machines and in addition to the press board business also engaged in the manufacture of index cards of all kinds. The capacity of the mill at that time was 6,000 pounds daily, but here has been a steady increase. Early in the year, Miss Rogers, who had been interested in drama and in writing, disposed of her interest to a corporation and retired from her work at her mills. She has written several plays and just at present has one show on the road.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

NATHANIEL DANN, struggling artist, gives a party at his studio in honor of his fiancée, VIRGINIA, beautiful daughter of RICHARD BREWSTER, Wall Street banker.

NIEL's model, CHIRI, is jealous of VIRGINIA and tells him that he will spoil his career if he marries a wealthy girl who cannot appreciate his art.

VIRGINIA's father dies suddenly of heart failure and she is prostrated with grief. The doctor advises that death was caused by worry and shock. It is later revealed that BREWSTER had lost his fortune in speculation. NIEL sees an immediate marriage but his pleading is interrupted by FREDERICK DEAN, an old family friend, who persuades VIRGINIA to come and live with him and his daughter CLARISSA, who is a girlhood chum of hers. He wins her over by saying that to marry NIEL, now that she is poor, would wreck his career and be disgraceful to her father's memory. NIEL is furious when she tells him her decision, for he suspects DEAN's motives.

Chiri appeared, took the receiver off the hook and greeted the caller with a lazy "hello."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

VIRGINIA continued to stare at Nathaniel as though he had suddenly changed to an entirely different person right before her sight. Jealousy was blazing in his eyes and turning his lips to stone. It frightened Virginia to see him so aroused.

"Mr. Dean only said what I already knew was right," she faltered.

"When you are going to live with him," Nathaniel asked grimly.

"Don't be so hard, Niel."

"Hard! If I dared be as hard as I feel I'd find Dean and wring his confounded neck. What right has he to interfere between us?"

"He's my oldest friend and he promised father . . ." Virginia's words broke off in a tear-wet handkerchief.

Nathaniel was instantly ashamed of having hurt her.

"Forgive me," he begged. "I'm sorry I lost my temper, but you don't know how much I hate to think of you living in that man's home, seeing him every day, being where he can see you, even touch you."

together once she had entered the Dean menage.

"I'd like you to, Niel dear, but you've been so devoted all through everything—you must be dreadfully weary. Are you sure you wouldn't rather go home?"

Nathaniel was sure.

"Are you sure you won't mind an interrupted evening, however? All day Virginia had been turning away condoling friends, but before the dinner hour Clarissa arrived and insisted upon staying.

"Dad tells me you've promised to marry that fellow," she chirped to Virginia, palpably seeking to create an air of cheerfulness, however false. Grief was not sacred to Clarissa.

Nathaniel frowned as he saw Virginia wince.

"Are you sure you won't mind?" she returned doubtfully.

"If I should?" Clarissa's tone indicated as plain as day that not one other person's troubles could interfere with her life.

Nathaniel thought she might at least have some effort to make sure Virginia of a welcome.

"Of course you will have to put up with a lot of noise," Clarissa went on unfeelingly. "Russell and I are about to shoot our love from the house tops."

she laughed, and began to talk of something else.

Nathaniel was utterly weary of her before the evening was over but she ignored his several hints that he would like to be alone with Virginia. To pay him off for talking sides with her fiancé, he decided. A petty spirit. It troubled him to think of Virginia at the mercy of her shallowness and his walk home was filled with plans for getting Virginia into a home that he would make for her.

When he opened the door of his studio he saw that his reading light was turned on. A cup and saucer stood beside a smoky coffee pot on the teakwood table.

He looked around and saw no one. It occurred to him that one of his friends who knew where he kept his door key had been in, entertained himself with coffee and gone out, leaving the light burning.

Nathaniel had eaten practically nothing at dinner, unable to enjoy food, while Virginia left her's untouched. The sight of the coffee pot stirred an appetite for a cup of the stimulating beverage. He carried the pot to the cubby-hole that the real estate agent called a kitchen, put fresh water to boil and went into his bedroom for his lounging robe.

He snapped on the light, dug his robe from the closet and turned around to remove his coat. Then, for the first time, he saw that his visitor had not departed.

"I might have known it was you," he scolded, shaking the sleeping girl by the shoulder. She put up a feeble hand brushed hastily at his fingers, turned her head on the pillow and relaxed into slumber.

Nathaniel noticed that the bed was made, the extra blanket folded neatly at the foot. He glanced over her shoulder—now and then she sneezed, making comely plegly just to show her friends that she was human, she said—and on the arm that she had thrown up over her dark, hit and miss bob.

Nathaniel felt a moment of softness for her. "Poor little donkey," he murmured. He stood and looked at her sleeping for a while, then turned, reached for the blanket and threw it over her feet. The studio was a bit chilly as the weather had turned unexpectedly cold for late Spring.

A little later, over his coffee, he mused on the ways of women, particularly women of Chiri's sort. An inspection of the place had acquainted him with the reason for her deep sleep. Apparently she was dead tired. The studio had been scrubbed from end to end, but in a way that would not disturb him. Only the dust that gathers so quickly in the Village had been removed. Scattered papers were still scattered.

He felt warmly grateful and more than a little annoyed. Surely Chiri must know that she could gain nothing by slaving for him. Yet, on the other hand, he appreciated what she had done. Hired cleaning women made so much bother. Still he could not let her spend the night there simply because he was grateful to her. But she had looked so darned tired. It wouldn't be necessary to turn her out until he was ready to retire.

There was a pile of new novels on the table. Nathaniel turned his attention to them. He came to one that promised to absorb his interest and began to read. He read only occasionally, but when he did he liked to finish whatever it happened to be—novel or article.

He read on and on, forgetting both Chiri and time. But he did not reach the end before his head had drooped many times, finally to settle down firmly in overpowering sleep. The book slid unperceived to the floor.

He was awakened by the ringing of a telephone. He was half awake that it had been ringing for some time. The instrument was on a small stand near his bedroom door and before he could stir himself to answer it Chiri appeared, took the receiver off the hook and greeted the caller with a lazy "hello."

At first Nathaniel did not grasp the significance of what she was doing. Those who live in the Village are not given toward consideration of appearances. But his first thought naturally was of Virginia and then he realized in a flash that she would scarcely understand being answered by a feminine voice when she was calling him in the middle of the night.

He sprang up hastily. "Who is it?" he called.

"I think it is Miss Brewster," Chiri told him.

"Niel, you're not jealous, are you?" The idea seemed to Virginia so unlikely that she smiled over it. "Sure that can't be what you were so wild about just now?"

"Call it jealousy if you like," Nathaniel said a trifle sulkily; "but I don't trust him, and when he gets near you I begin to creep all over."

"I can't think of anything more absurd than for you to be jealous of Uncle Frederick," Virginia replied; then more seriously, "but, of course, you aren't. I think you're blaming him for influencing me more than he did, Niel. That isn't fair. It's very kind of him and Clarissa to want me with them at this time."

"I might think so if I didn't believe that it will make Uncle Frederick happier than it will you."

"I am not expecting to be happy, Niel," she reminded him quietly, and Nathaniel did not have the heart to offer further objections to the plan.

"When are you going there?" he asked delectably.

"I'd like to go at once. There are too many memories in these rooms, Niel."

"Not today?"

"No, tomorrow, perhaps."

"Then would you mind if I stay and have dinner with you? If you aren't too tired."

It was in Nathaniel's mind that they would have little time alone

together once she had entered the Dean menage.

"I'd like you to, Niel dear, but you've been so devoted all through everything—you must be dreadfully weary. Are you sure you wouldn't rather go home?"

Nathaniel was sure.

"Are you sure you won't mind an interrupted evening, however? All day Virginia had been turning away condoling friends, but before the dinner hour Clarissa arrived and insisted upon staying.

WOMEN WIN EQUALITY IN ART WORLD

Have Forced Recognition by Sheer Ability, Says Mabel Conkling

The element of struggle is one thing that is apt to be overlooked when one sees the ever-increasing number of women successes in artistic fields, according to Mabel Conkling, eminent artist and past president of the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors.

"Women occupy a very important place in the field of art today," Miss Conkling says. "But I often wonder how many people stop to think of the difficulties they have had to overcome to reach that goal."

"Thirty-five years ago, women had no chance in the arts. It was impossible for a woman to have her work accepted in any exhibition.

"Today their work is welcomed everywhere. Prizes and medals are showered on women. There is no sex handicap left today in the field of art. But through the struggle to achieve this, countless women artists acquired qualities that have been of tremendous value.

"The fact that today we have women in every branch of art of whom it is said, 'She has no equal,' is the result of the struggle for recognition that made women determined to overcome every obstacle through the sheer quality of their work."

The WOMAN'S DAY

By AILENE SUMNER

After a quarter of a century of matrimony to an economically unreliable mate, Bessy has gone to work. The children are able to clear themselves and take care of themselves, and the mounting taxes and interest on long accumulated debts meant that something had to be done. Bessy was over 40 when she got her job and she'd been calling herself middle-aged for some time.

It was Bessy's young cousin, a married working woman, who remade Bessy. "Look here," she said roughly to her cousin one day. "You've spent nearly 25 years of your life in frantic worry over how your bills were to be paid. You admit that your husband will never be a family provider. You've almost lost your health and looks and you're now griped on life from worrying about the whole thing."

"Why in the name of Jehosaphat have you let it go on this long? Since you don't want to leave him, why didn't you just assume 10 or 15 years ago when the children were old enough to get along without you, that you couldn't expect to be a supported wife? After all, why should any wife be supported? No, snap out of it—stop wasting your abilities on no-pay jobs like committee chairman of this club and that one and manager of Ladies' Aid suppers and get a job."

"But I'm too old," said Bessy.

"Stuff and nonsense!" said her cousin.

A Busier Bessy

It's a long story, but Bessy got her job. There were weeks of re-adjustment of course. Weeks of teaching her family that mother, the wage earner, could not also be housekeeper. Weeks of teaching her offspring to see that their bread and butter depended upon their own sacrifice of a few good times in order to pinch hit at home. But the worst is over and Bessy with her pay envelope, her regular hours with time so full that she has no time to stew and worry about how the bills are to be paid, is happier than she has been in years, and wonders why she never got a job before.

The only "negro in the killdng" is Bessy's mother. Bessy and her mother are small town inhabitants. Bessy was nourished all her life in a town where people would say, "Small town wives of any standing whatsoever no more dreamed of working outside the home in Bessy's mother's day than of murdering their families, and even today small towns do not take the working wife as much for granted as does the city."

What Will Folks Say?

Bessy's mother, therefore, is not only alarmed, but humiliated. She "never heard of such a thing." What will people say? What will become of her poor children with their mother not home as she should be? (The "poor children" are 23 and 20.) And Bessy's mother so nags and tirades and expostulates that she takes away much of the serenity which Bessy has found in her own solution.

Bessy and her own mother are not the only examples to be found of the older generation viewpoint waging havoc with that of the younger generation. Bessy's mother's viewpoint is the natural product of her age. Economic necessity just couldn't, and never did, drive a wife out to work in her day because she couldn't—that was all. She had more than a full-time job at home. That changing conditions have changed the wifely status and its opportunities she refuses to see.

But it makes life harder for the Bessies!

MARYE and MOM Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Mom, Darling:

One thing in life is certain. We've got to live while we're young. And I know I'm not going to be young all my life no matter how much encouragement I get from the beauty specialists and others who pretend to know the real secrets of eternal youth. They might have kidded Ponce de Leon but they can't kid your truly.

So then, why not get all you can out of life while there is yet life to live. Nobody wants to live simply any more. It might have been a wonderful thrill in your day for the folks to sit around the stuffy parlor to gossip about your neighbor's daughter, or to work like the dickens in the kitchen baking pies and making cakes that would give Dad indigestion, but we girls of today don't look at those things like you did. What do we care what the neighbor's daughter is doing so long as she's a good kid; and take it from me, Mom, we girls are just as good as the old-fashioned kind only we're not hypocrites. And that word is meant to cover a lot of territory.

And as for Alan's tolerance, he knows my code.

So then, a clear lighter, Mom. If it should happen that I meet a man I cared for more than I do for Alan, I'd tell Alan first. I don't believe anything like this will happen, however, though you never know. Today marriage is a highly speculative game, much more than any game you might find in the stock market. At least there's some honesty about us youngsters. We don't promise to love forever because we ourselves realize we don't know whether we can live up to such promises. But if it isn't proper to love more than once, why did nature make us that way? Capable of it, I mean.

Suppose your answer will be that if I missed my own business and didn't see any men, I wouldn't be in danger of falling for a new one. It might be the loeman in that case.

Well, suppose you'll be glad to hear that Florence is leaving for home next week. I haven't said much about her because she was going through a crisis. It's one of those things that not even a fortune teller could explain. I'll tell you all about it next time.

Sweet love,
MARYE.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby

Babies Have Nerves

By RUTH BRITAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Restlessness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration. But when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.

OYSTERS ARE UNSAFE IN WARM MONTHS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

With the passing of the months that contain "V" oysters temporarily pass from the public interest. The time is ripe, however, to discuss some of the reasons why oysters are unsafe in the warm months and some of the methods that science is adopting to control the sanitation of the oyster supply for the future.

Oysters that have been grown in polluted water, as pointed out in a recent bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture, are undesirable as food. Even if they are free from germs they can cause disease in human beings.

Oysters that have been contaminated with filth during handling are dangerous to human beings.

Sanitary Surveys

In order to protect the public against such oysters, sanitarians and state authorities now make sanitary surveys not only of oyster beds but of all of the surrounding country from which drainage from polluted beds might reach the oyster beds. In some states the authorities do not permit oyster fishermen to remove oysters from polluted beds.

In other states fishermen are permitted to take oysters from the restricted areas and to transplant them into clean water. Since the oyster is a living being, it possesses the power of self-purification and of ridding itself of contamination. When transplanted therefore into clean water, it can in time recover.

When tests show that it is safe for edibility, it may be removed and sold. The cleansing process requires but a short time, particularly when the current of water and the arrangement of the oysters are such that there is free circulation of pure water among the oysters.

Chlorination Experiments

Attempts have been made to apply to the purification of the oyster the chlorination method that is used for controlling the potability of drinking water.

Although it has been revealed that proper chlorination does not cause a change in the appearance or the flavor of the oyster, the work has not been carried far enough to establish the practicability of this method on a large scale.

Step Right Up, Ladies and Gents—

By Olive Roberts Barton

Circus time again! The cry of the balloon-man and the crunching of the peanut are heard in the land.

Along in May every year I begin to watch the billboards anxiously for the familiar blare of posters with their shining elephants, hoop jumping ladies, and rollicking clowns. What if they should not appear? So many of the things that tied us to our childhood days have gone! Will this go too?

Then when the advance men come along and the city suddenly blossoms out like an African jungle, I breathe a great sigh of relief. For one more year, at least, we are safe.

But seriously, there seems to be little danger of losing the circus. The answer is obvious—the old story is supply and demand. What the public wants it will pay for, and it still wants a circus. I've seen towns where there had been no work for months, mills closed, stores going in bankruptcy, no money anywhere, pack the Big Top to its canvas walls when the circus arrived.

But I refused to believe that this bit of fakery and that flash in each year, think only in terms of dollars and cents. The financial end of it is, after all, a gamble. Last year was an unusually wet season all over the country. Week after week, circus people lost money. Yet here they are again, not one whit discouraged. I take off my hat to the powers that reign over these diversified hosts. It is no easy game to play.

Mr. Coolidge, they say, laughed at the glows when he and the First Lady went to the big show in Washington.

be held in Somers, May 15. The Tolland Library Association held its regular monthly meeting Monday afternoon in the library rooms. After the business the literary program in charge of Mrs. Steele was as follows: Reading, Stark Young, by Miss Lucille Agard; a biography, which may grow to much importance, of Herbert Hoover, by Mrs. Lella Hall; Sale of Alice in Wonderland, Mrs. Marion Baker; Today's Essays Face Up Facts, Mrs. Oscar Leonard; Up From the Slums, read by Mrs. Senk; Livingstone House Saved, by Mrs. Searles; Changing Seasons, by Norma Patterson, read by Mrs. Steele. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Daniels and Mrs. Jewett.

LOYD GEORGE LIKES OLD FASHIONED FILMS; MOVIES IN LIBRARY

London—David Lloyd George, who promises to add a reputation as a private movie exhibitor to his reputation as a politician and organizer, likes old-fashioned films. In his library at Churt, which he can turn into a little picture theater, he has already had first views of important films, among them, "Les Miserables" and the "Guns of Loos" and has seen a whole succession of the popular favorites. "My own preference," he states, "is for what I suppose would be called old-fashioned films—those with stories of the Wild West, and set in beautiful scenes, cowboys and horses and so on.

The nearest cinema to four is six or seven miles away so we have to do something for ourselves." The ex-premier's library-movie is in accordance with his political policy of making life in the country more attractive. He has built three of the most up-to-date labor-saving houses for employees, he makes his own electric light from a stream, he is reclaiming swampy land by planting hundreds of fir trees, and he is planting twenty acres of fruit trees. Movie shows, he finds, adds considerably to the attractiveness of country life from the viewpoint of those who work there. His movie operator is his chauffeur. His exhibitions are always packed and he thinks this the right way to check the drift-to-the-cities movement.

Cantilever The Smart Shoe for Comfort

"RIVIERA"

THIS strap pump illustrates one of the most important fashions of the season—the shoe that is utterly simple in line, but is given interest by the skilful use of contrasting materials. It is very much in the spirit of the innumerable new day-time frocks that are deceptively simple in silhouette, amazingly intricate in cut.

Every Cantilever Shoe is made with a flexible shank, so that the important foot muscles can gain strength through exercise, thus correcting or preventing weak arches and kindred ills. By keeping the foot well balanced and permitting it to function naturally, Cantilever Shoes enable you to go gaily through a busy day.

These new models fit perfectly at the heel; they hug the ankle; they fit the arch; and they provide room for the toes.

They give you a beautiful fit—and a beautiful foot. Come and see them.

BOOKS and SLIDES

With Glenna Collett playing in the British woman's golf championship, the chances of an American victory in one of the foreign classes are considerably increased. Miss Collett is without doubt a great player in any kind of great company and for this reason it is not to her discredit to guess that she will have less competition than Walter Hagen, Jim Barnes, Gene Sarazen, Bill Mehlhorn and Tommy Armour will have in the men's open.

Cecil Leitch and Joyce Wethered, the two greatest golfers in England, are not entered in the woman's championship and the most formidable opponent Miss Collett will have is Miss Simone Thion de la Chausse, the charming French girl. Miss Collett is just out of a very successful winter season in Florida and it is only fair to assume that her chances for victory would be perhaps, if the two great British stars were in the tournament.

Miss Wethered is universally recognized as the greatest woman player in the world, a Lenglen of the game, for she is not far behind her. But they are not playing because, by their own admission, they cannot stand championship competition. This temperament, with all disposition to be fair, certainly is no credit to them. Real honest-to-gosh champions usually thrive on the strain of championship competition.

In comparison to the attitude of the two great British stars, the willingness of Miss Collett to make the long journey to England and to play under conditions that always will handicap a visiting player makes her a champion at heart at least.

Too Popular to Lose.
Since Jack Kearns, Jack Dempsey and Tex Rickard are golf players of some ability it may not defile the atmosphere to speak of them in the same breath. Dempsey beat Kearns in the suit for $700,000 back pay and the victory recalls a statement Rickard made before the first trial was called in Newark. "No fighter manager ever can beat a popular fighter in court," Rickard said. And then he gave some reasons that can't be printed in a family periodical.

Dempsey outsmarted Kearns, but it took a game man to do it. Those familiar with the inside of the case know that Kearns wanted a settlement and thought his threat of "exposures" would force Rickard to settle. But Dempsey's wife wouldn't stand for a settlement and Dempsey had some exposures to throw back. No real dirt was thrown, if there was any to be thrown, and Dempsey's case was won when his lawyers won the argument for a jury trial. Try and swing that Dempsey for anything in a jury trial.

ATHLETICS MADE JUST 41 RUNS IN THEIR LAST FIVE CONTESTS

Mackmen, For First Time Since 1914, Have Everything That Goes Into a Classy Team.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, May 11—There seems to be nothing for it but to open the attack of roses today and sprinkle its essence over the physical subdivision known as Connie Mack. He is entitled to something special right out of the neck of the bottle for what he has done, or seems to have done, for, with and to the Philadelphia Athletics of 1928.

The Athletics, a sardonic soul called them once. But that was some years ago when they were endeavoring to recover from their 1915 debacle and were playing Class ABC ball during the process. Today, they are about as apathetic as the Wall Street explosion.

Forty-one runs in their past five games. That's apathy, provided you think St. Vitus was maybe a bit too stolid for England's standing army. The Athletics are the only club in either major league that has lost but one game since April 18. They have won eleven in the meantime for a percentage of .917 and, if someone doesn't stop them soon, the Athletics will have a record due to be closer than a coat of paint, Yankees or no Yankees.

The immediate answer is that, for the first time since 1914, Connie Mack seems to have marshaled all the forces that go into the creation of a winning combination—hitting, pitching, reasonably fair defense behind the pitcher and the will to win.

The outfit had hitting in 1926 and 1927 but the pitchers didn't have much beyond the right idea. But today Grove and Walberg are standing up like the best man and lately Rommel and Quinn have begun to show signs of human life. Of course, Everybody is winning with a club that plays at the rate of .917 and has been unbeaten for weeks but the boys have every particular about the number of runs they allow, anyhow.

Over the last five-game stretch, the opposition, which happened to be the Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Browns, averaged less than three runs a game, which like the four-cent nickel, isn't quite enough.

NEW COLLEGE GRAPPLER

Boston, Mass., May 11—From a football player to the "crown prince" of the wrestling game in four months is the record of Gus Sonnenberg, Dartmouth and the University of Detroit, all America tackle for some six to eight years. Gus, last evening, scored a victory over Wayne Munn, former world's heavyweight champion in the mat game, of two clean tackles. Gus, you know, plays football on the matfeasterable success. He leaves the wrestling to his opponents and they are always the fall guys.

Munn was the former University of Nebraska tackle, so the bout took something of a collegiate tinge, with the green of the Wah-Hoo-Wah on the top.

Gus has now won some thirty matches in four months, with nary a defeat on his escutcheon. His next match will probably be with Stranger Lewis, the champion.

BRASS CITY GIRLS GET PART REVENGE

Win First Two Games From Murphy's Girls But Drop Last Two; Seven Scores Over Hundred.

The Genot Girls of Waterbury scored partial revenge from Murphy's Girls in a state league match last night in the Brass City by winning two out of three games. Manchester had taken all three in its match here Tuesday night.

Seven scores were rolled over a hundred and Waterbury made five of them. Miss Molasky had high with 116. Clara Jackmore was the only member of the Manchester team to beat her opponent and she was only three pins ahead of Miss Degnan.

Next Tuesday night, Southington rolls at Manchester and on Thursday night, the local team travels to Southington for a return match. Last night's scores:

SUHIE-SARGENT COMBINATION BEAT McLAGAN AND CONRAN IN FIRST HALF OF THEIR CONTEST

Sargent Only One to Make Creditable Average; Suhie's 129 is High; Final Leg at Conran's Monday.

The south once more triumphed over the north last night when Joe Sargent and Mike Suhie took the first leg of their home and home ten game match with Tom Conran and Pete McLagan.

The southerners took the first half of the match by a margin of 97 pins, winning all except the last game. The final five games will be rolled next Monday night at Conran's alleys. The match last night took place at Joe Farr's Charter Oak place on Oak street.

On the whole, the bowling of the four men last night was not over and above impressive. Joe Sargent was the only one to hit the wood consistently. He went over a hundred in four of his five efforts and the twice registered 128. His average for the night was 111.3.

Sargent made two strikes and 14 spares; Suhie, two spares and 8 strikes; McLagan, one strike and 8 spares and Conran no strikes and 10 spares.

Although Suhie copped the high single for the night with 129 in the second game, he was not up to his usual form and the same can be said for the north end pair. Only half of their ten games were over a hundred and Suhie went over only once.

The north end pair, although realizing that they will have to hit wood every minute, are confident they will overtake the Sargent-Suhie outfit in the final five games. It is much easier to overcome a big one-man match. Two good scores matched against two poor ones will make a whale of a difference, one way or the other.

A good sized crowd watched the match last night and a bigger one is expected to be on hand next Monday night. The scores follow:

GOLF LEADERS

Sandwich, Eng., May 11.—The five leaders at the end of the third round of the British open golf championship today were:

Walter Hagen, America, 220.

Jose Jurado, Argentina, 221.
Archie Compston, Great Britain, 222.
Bill Hehlhorn, America, 225.

The Nut Cracker

Who asks O'Goofy is, this guy Shakespeare that Gene Tooney gave all that swell publicity?

ANYHOW, THE CHAMPION'S ADDRESS AT YALE OUGHT TO HELD THE SALE OF THE BARD'S BOOKS. NOW THAT TUNNEY APPROVES OF THEM, THEY CERTAINLY MUST BE SAFE.

Babe Ruth was asked about his views on Shakespeare the other day, and said it was his understanding that that guy had been left down south.

Tunney, you have to give him credit for this much anyway. . . . Did score a knockout (with that speech).

Tunney read the advice of Ulysses to Achilles, urging him to make the most of fame while he had it. Mr. Tunney doesn't differ with Mr. Ulysses at all on that score.

It would have been most appropriate if he had referred to that seventh round in Chicago when he rose to his feet after a right merry count. The quotation there he should have used and brought down the house: "A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse!"

Baseball Shifts Into High Here Over Week-End

TWO GAMES TODAY INCLUDING TWILIGHT TILT AT NORTH END TONIGHT; HIGH SCHOOL IS AWAY

M. H. S. at Meriden Today and at New London Tomorrow; Community's Two Games; Heights Play Home Sunday.

With the first twilight game of the 1928 season scheduled for this evening and with other Manchester teams having plenty of work laid out for them, the baseball season here shifts into high gear this week end and thus relieves the monotony that always exists between sport seasons.

This evening at the Community Club Playgrounds, the Community Club will meet the Rockville A. A. in the season's first twilight contest. Jim O'Leary will call play at 6 o'clock. Coach Jerry Fay will use his regular lineup which incidentally includes two of the leading players in Rockville.

This afternoon, Manchester High is battling Meriden High in the Silver City with Billy Dowd doing the twirling for the local outfit. Tomorrow afternoon, Coach Tommy Kelley's charges are booked to appear in New London against Bulkeley High. Hugh McConkey may pitch. Coach Kelley has managed to squeeze in three victories already in as many games despite a most uncertain pitching staff.

Sunday afternoon, the only major game in town will be played at the Heights Bowl where the Hartford Senators will do battle with the Heights. The Capitol City team has been together for about five years and is very fast. Gleason or Senbitt will pitch for Manchester. The lineups will be announced tomorrow.

Owing to the illness of Coach Bill Brennan who injured his side at practice, the Rec Nine will not practice tomorrow but notice of the next practice session will be given out shortly. Brennan was emphatic in declaring that the south end is going to have a first class team, rumors to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sunday afternoon will find the Community Club playing a state league game with the Bristol New Departures in the Bell City. Rus Fisher will twirl for Manchester.

New York, May 11.—The ineffectiveness of Ray Kremer, once the ace of the Pittsburgh mound staff, has been the chief cause of the Pirates' poor start this season. Fitzsimmons and Hogan, the New York battery, drove in four runs between them.

The Pirates dropped clear down to fifth place. The Clis increased their hold on first place, as Cincinnati lost to Boston, seven to six, in ten innings.

Scoring three runs in the eighth, St. Louis nosed out the Phillies, five to four, and jumped to third place. The Cards have copied four straight and the Phils haven't yet won a game in the west.

PIRATES DROP TO FIFTH PLACE; KREMER'S INJURY HAMPERS TEAM

By LES CONKLIN

New York, May 11.—The ineffectiveness of Ray Kremer, once the ace of the Pittsburgh mound staff, has been the chief cause of the Pirates' poor start this season. Still suffering from an injury to his foot last year, he has won only one game in five starts. Yesterday Kremer was beaten by the New York Giants, five to four. Fitzsimmons and Hogan, the New York battery, drove in four runs between them.

The Pirates dropped clear down to fifth place. The Clis increased their hold on first place, as Cincinnati lost to Boston, seven to six, in ten innings.

Scoring three runs in the eighth, St. Louis nosed out the Phillies, five to four, and jumped to third place. The Cards have copied four straight and the Phils haven't yet won a game in the west.

Seventh Homer
Babe Ruth's seventh homer of the season, with two runners on the sacks, staked the Yankees to a 2-1 win over Cleveland. Fipgras and Hudlin did the throwing. Fipgras, with five victories and no defeats, is now leading the pitchers of both leagues.

Bob Fothergill's bat won another game for Detroit. Robust Robert's double in the tenth, his third hit of the game, gave the Tigers a 6 to 5 verdict over Washington.

One of these days the Senators are going to win a ball game and then there will be a real scandal at the capital.

Wallopings three St. Louis pitchers for fifteen hits, the Athletics chalked up their fifth straight victory, 11 to 1. Joe Hauser hit his sixth homer and Mickey Cochrane collected four singles, while the St. Louis batters got nothing but exercise in swinging at Jack Quinn's spitters.

The Red Sox folded up under the curves of Ted Blankenship of the White Sox and slid back into the old Homestead, the American League cellar. Score—Chicago 9, Boston 2. Bill Regan, Boston second baseman, made his first error of the current campaign.

Chicago had lost seven straight.

ROLLS-ROYCE USING BUICK TYPE MOTOR

More than a million Buick owners in America will meet a glow of satisfaction at the announcement that England's most expensive motor car, Rolls-Royce, has recently adopted the valve-in-head engine.

Besides confirming the judgment of the Buick Motor Company, which pioneered that type of power plant and now offers it at its finest in the Buick models, the announcement is a tribute to the discrimination of every Buick owner.

This British car's similarity to Buick does not end with the engine, but includes also cellular radiator, worm and split-nut steering gear, torque tube drive, floating rear axle, and cantilever springs. Comparison of specifications tend to support the already overwhelming evidence—collected by 2,000,000 Buick owners—in favor of these advanced details of engineering.

A point of more than passing interest, in the opinion of Buick officials, is the fact that this British prototype of Buick at a much higher price than Buick. The explanation is two-fold. The Rolls-Royce is of course a much larger and heavier car, and naturally costs more to manufacture. That accounts for a large part of the difference.

In the second place, each of the features listed is more costly than the corresponding part in cars of conventional design. In the aggregate represented by the completed car, the difference becomes very great.

Rolls-Royce builds for limited consumption. Hence, even were the specifications of the two cars identical, Buick's volume production would make Buick's price relatively low. Volume manufacture alone makes it possible to sell such a combination of expensive features at a figure within popular reach.

The British manufacturer's announcement, it is pointed-out here, also shows the European trend toward American ideas in automotive engineering. That Buick's signal success abroad played its part in bringing about this latest adoption of the valve-in-head engine is regarded as certain.

BRIDGEPORT DIVORCE

Bridgeport, Conn., May 11.—Mrs. Lillian Conlea Speth, of Stamford, today was granted an uncontested divorce from William H. Speth, a Stamford fireman, on the ground of desertion.

Hattie Petersen Coglian, of Glenbrook, was divorced from John H. Coglian, of Stamford, for desertion.

SUES HIS SISTER

Westport, Conn., May 11.—Lemuel Gonnell, a local farmer, today instituted a $10,000 action for malicious arrest and prosecution against his sister, Evelyn Gonnell Barger, a New York actress. Gonnell claims that he was arrested April 12 on a charge of theft of a saw and a lawn mower, and was kept in a cell "in the common jail" until April 23 when he was discharged though his sister was in court as a witness against him. Gonnell declares the charge against him was brought for malice and that there was no reasonable ground for his arrest.

JUST BELOW CAPITOL THEATER

New York, May 11.—In restaurants where the tipping is plentiful, waiters must now pay for the privilege of getting a job.

In several eating places the "waiting privilege" is sold as a concession, just like the hat check room or the cigaret stand. The concession holder collects a weekly amount from each waiter. And, strange as it may seem, I am told that waiters bid to get these posts.

During a court action for the collection of wages, it was revealed the other day that in one coffee shop in Grand Central station the waitresses pay $10 a week in order to hold their jobs.

"But," pleaded the manager, "they make up to $15 a day in tips."

To learn what the visitor is most likely to be interested in, I recently engaged the attention of members of a seeing-New York party from Stroudsburg, Pa., learned that they were making the Manhattan visit for $19 a person.

With one day to spend in the city, what did they do with it?

Well, they started from their mid-town hotel, toured the length of Fifth Avenue and Riverside Drive riding atop the sight-seeing buses, then rode the length of Broadway, attended a Broadway matinee, ate at an automat and went through the two Broadway "cathedrals of the movies."

That's really quite a day, and perhaps a typical day out of a visitor's life. There certainly is no bigger dime's worth in the town than the Fifth Avenue bus and the round of Broadway is certain, to be in demand. By going to the foot of Broadway one gets a pretty good notion of the Wall Street belt, the skyscraper zone. And, true it is, that most tourists demand to see at least one Broadway production and to look into the wonders of the widely advertised movie palaces.

But somehow, if I had my way about things, I'd manage to cut out the movie visit, or the matinee. After all you can get movies at home. And you can't see the Manhattan skyline from Brooklyn Bridge without going to Brooklyn Bridge. Nor can the favor of New York be completely caught until you have seen the struggle of the immigrant and the milling barterers of the pushcart belt. Nor should one miss a dinner hour rush in the Times Square shuttle. And personally, I like the Battery; I like Second Avenue just after the dinner hour when the races of the world are on parade; and I like Gramercy Park and Washington Square at sundown.

And, oh well, probably no living human could do it all in a day.

A friend tells me I'm all wet, anyway. Says he, if he had a day to spend he'd go to the Stock Exchange and watch it in action; he'd lunch at France's Taverna and visit the Poe Cottage, the Roosevelt home and the Cooper Union and a lot of other historic spots. But then he has a penchant for antiquities and for history.

And I know loads of people who, arriving in New York, can't be dragged away from the art center belt around 57th Street, and a lot more who begin to haunt the concert halls the minute they arrive; others try to take in six shows in three days and never so much as glimpse the city itself.

To me the most interesting thing in New York always will be New York itself—it crowds and its noises, its ironclad and its comedies, the dramas that run into you at every turn, its beauties and its ugliness, its sheer humanity and its utter lack of humanity.

GILBERT SWAN.

WILLIS' DEMOCRATS PLAN WET CAMPAIGN

Second Congressional District To Come Out in Open For Al Smith.

Willimantic, Conn., May 11.—Democrats of Eastern Connecticut are to organize on a strictly wet basis to campaign for Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, for President, according to plans announced when town chairman and registrars of the Second Congressional District met at Nathan Hale hotel here.

A. W. Citron, of Hebron, was declared to have set the keynote for the coming campaign in Connecticut when he expressed his opposition to prohibition and quoted the Bible extensively to back his opinions.

Other speakers were Rev. George B. Gilbert, William Citron, and L. O. Ryan of Middletown; Thomas J. Spillacy, of Hartford; P. J. O'Sullivan, of Orange; Mayor George Forster, of Rockville; Nathan Liverand of Colchester; Wallace N. Jewett, of Hampton; and Frank B. Fenton, of Willimantic.

A permanent organization is in process of formation today.

It's Daylight Saving Time again. Got to fool ourselves some way, and you know the country's dry.

A "PECK" OF MEDICINE DID NO GOOD

But ALL-BRAN brought natural relief

Read what Kellogg's ALL-BRAN did for Mr. Hamilton—a chronic sufferer from constipation.

"I am 55 years old and truly believe I have taken a peck of medicine, costing a good many dollars, for constipation, and all I got was temporary relief. Now since I began taking your ALL-BRAN I have had a bowel movement (with a single exception, and that was my fault) every day. From a grateful user of your ALL-BRAN."

W. N. HAMILTON, Export, Penna.

Constipation causes headaches, blotched skins, sleeplessness, spots before the eyes. It is father of more than forty serious diseases.

Guard against it. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend Kellogg's because it is 100% bran. Because it is much more effective than part-bran products could possibly be.

A health cereal too! Serve with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Use in cooking. Recipes on every package. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

5 VAUDEVILLE ACTS AT STATE TOMORROW

To Be Offered With Big Double Feature Bill—Harold Lloyd Sunday.

Five selected acts of Metropolitan Vaudeville, together with a big double feature program, will be seen at the State theater tomorrow. As is customary on Saturdays, the performance is continuous from 2:15 until 10:30.

Topping the stage bill are the Three Bernard Sisters, a trio of very attractive and talented young ladies, offering a song and dance fest that is as clever as it is original.

Next comes Vornetta and Young with their hilarious fun and screaming dialogue that is sure to have the audience in an uproar. The remaining acts include Lee and Clara Barry, Henry Barnes, and Weston and Young.

Jack Holt, Dorothy Revier and Pat Harmon make a fine combination in "The Warning," one of the two film features scheduled for tomorrow at the State. The picture is a detective drama in the locale of Hong Kong, the fascinating and mysterious city of China. Hair-raising thrills and eager moments of suspense will hold you spellbound to the final reel. All in all, "The Warning" is a picture made to meet the average movie fan.

For the second feature presented on the same bill will be "Beware of Married Men." If you won't beware—be wary!

So says Irene Rich, beautiful Warner Brothers star, as she gives you a vague glimpse into the married life of our present generation. It all happens in her latest starring vehicle, "Beware of Married Men." The story is both amusing and dramatic. Clyde Cook, Audrey Ferris and Myrna Loy are seen in the supporting cast. Each contributes a very impressive and striking performance. On Sunday, Monday and Tuesday the management present that famous Prince of Merry-makers, Harold Lloyd in his latest and greatest laughfest "Speedy." A special Children's Matinee will be held on Monday afternoon enabling all of the kiddies to see their favorite fun-maker. Admission for the children's show will be ten cents.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW YORK

Good morning, motor

"SORRY, BOSS, but it's not good morning for me. I'm sick. If you have the time I warned you, it's that cheap gas you've been buying. I'm as choked up with carbon as a kerosene lamp in a country store. My valves are about as tight as a broken sieve. Can't you grasp the idea that I'm as delicately adjusted inside as a watch? I get really peeved at the stuff you dump into me. Where do you get it, anyway? How much do you save? A few pennies—and then pay dollars to get me back into shape. And while I am getting this grouch out of my system, I want to say a word about oil. If I don't get a crank case full of good oil pretty soon, you'll be walking. I've been working for a week on nothing much but mud and gasoline. A wheelbarrow wouldn't stand for it. My bearings feel like sandpaper. I haven't enough compression to blow up a toy balloon. Treat me right and I'm good for another twenty thousand miles. Give me good gas and oil, Boss, please."

HAVE YOU TRIED SOCONY SPECIAL GASOLINE?

If you haven't, it's probably because of the stiff competition of the Socony Gasoline pump right alongside it.

It's pretty hard to convince a man who has been using Socony Gasoline for years with never a snort nor a splutter from his carburetor that he ought to pay a few cents more a gallon for something different.

However, if you have an old car or a new high compression motor and want to test the capacity of your engine on a particularly creamy cut of anti-knock gasoline, Socony Special is worth trying. It gives you a little better pickup in traffic, a little finer silk in the purr of your engine, and a stronger, more dogged flow of power on hills.

You may get along perfectly well without these "extras" but you can scarcely help enjoying them, and you surely will appreciate the absence of knocking.

Fill up your tank with Socony Special today. Like Socony Gasoline and Socony Motor Oil it's tested thirteen times before it reaches your car.

Let your motor be the judge

PHONES

Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

TEAM WORK

Saturday, of course, is the "peak load" day in any food shop. The Sunday dinner is still an American institution. Besides that, with the stores closed on the Sabbath, two days' trading has to be done in one. So the natural result is a scramble—scramble by the customer, scramble by the store folks, scramble to get deliveries made. Unless something's done about it.

A couple of years ago Pinehurst did something about it. Something that worked. We started our special Friday night phone service.

Every Friday night, after the store is closed, the phone service operates for three hours, or till 9 o'clock. Madame calls up No. 2000, tells Pinehurst what she wants delivered next morning—and by 8 o'clock next morning the order is delivered. That's all. But it's a lot, in its effect.

All the Saturday scrambling avoided, for Madame. The road all clear for Pinehurst workers to buckle into a good hard day's hustling, but nothing more than can be done with the usual painstakingness. None of the unhappy results of jamming the wheels of business.

Team-work, between Pinehurst and its customers, in this phone proposition, has saved an immense amount of Saturday worries all around. We invite you to try it.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Sneaking in during the wee small hours should be pretty soft.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Mother (Mother's Day, May 13th) They say man rules the universe. That subject shore and main kneel down and bless the empery Of his majestic reign: But a sovereign, gentler, mightier, Man from his throne has hurled. For the hand that rocks the cradle Is the hand that rules the world.

The man went into the hat shop and he asked for a derby. "Fine," said the salesman. "What color?" "Oh, it doesn't matter what color," said the man. "So much the better," said the salesman. "What size?" "Well," replied the man, "I don't care very much about the size." "This," said the salesman, "is indeed strange. You come in here and request a derby and don't care about the color or the size!" "No," said the man. "You see, it's for my trombone."

Slogan for the dunned: "Aintgot-it."

Stubs—I flatter myself that, as the saying goes, honesty is printed on my face. Smart—well-er-yes, perhaps—with some allowance for typographical errors.

A man once had a hunch that a million dollars would drop in his pocket if he just sat down and waited. Twenty years have proved his confidence was misplaced.

Midnight intruder (politely):—"Pray don't be alarmed, Madam. I am demonstrating how poorly you are protected against thieves. I represent the Neverfall burglar alarm system. I have a specimen of their device in my bag. Permit me to exhibit it."

A bricklayer said to a foreman on a new job: "I'd like to work here, but I can't find a place to park my car." The foreman replied: "I guess you won't do. This is a high-class job and we want only bricklayers who have chauffeurs."

Toast to the Ladies "Here's to the ladies, Lord bless 'em! You recall how we used to help dress 'em; It was 'Honey, hook this, Or 'Dearie, pin that,' 'Please lace my shoes,' Or 'Straighten my hat.' A man had to be little John on the spot In the old-fashioned day, whether willing or not.

"But now, what a joy and a blessing! We live in the days of sane dressing. There's nothing to fasten On silken hose trim Nothing to lace up And nothing to pin. And so here's to the ladies, Lord bless 'em! They're as fair as they were when we dressed 'em."

Sounds Like Scotch "Abe, it's your turn to treat us all." (laughter) "Don't esk now. You'll all had a left et my eggspenze."

LETTER GOLF

GROOM LAST—AS USUAL. People always pay more attention to the BRIDE than they do to the GROOM, but in today's letter golf they're equally important. Par is nine, but perhaps you can beat the solution on another page.

Word search grid with letters B, R, I, D, E and G, R, O, O, M scattered throughout.

THE RULES

- 1.—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2.—You can change only one letter at a time. 3.—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4.—The order of letters cannot be changed.

Folks thought the Wild West bandit had died out. He merely moved East where the going was easier.

THE TINYMITE STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.

The funny band played long and loud and quite amused the little crowd. Said Clowdy, "Say, who trained them? They are doing very well." A Black-eyed Susan smiled reply. "Who trained them? Mercy me, 'twas I! I've made them practice day and night, as you can likely tell. "At first 'twas rather hard, but then they'd play things o'er and o'er again. And after awhile they kept good time, and sounded very sweet. You Tynmites are the first to her them play, except the flowers 'round here. And now we flowers will dance for you, if you'll just have a seat." The Tynmites scampered, with a bound, and sat together on the ground. "Oh, go ahead," yelled Clowdy. "We're as anxious as can be. We know that it will be real good. We'll clap our hands, just as we should." No wonder they were tickled o'er what they were going to see.

"Come, forth, you flowers," a daisy cried, "and stand together by my side. Do only what I tell you and we'll get along all right. I want to show what we can do. We'll dance a little step—that's new." And, as the flowers gathered 'round, it was a pretty sight. And when the daisy waved one hand, and loudly cried, "Strike up the band!" Again the music started and the air seemed full of pep. The flowers all watched the daisy's lead, and then they danced with lots of speed. 'Twas really very clever how each one kept right in step. Of course this dance was shortly done, and Clowdy shouted, "That was fun. Please do another one for us, and maybe we'll join in. We cannot dance as well as you, and so whatever we may do, we hope you will not laugh at us." This made the flowers all grin. (Fireflies come to the rescue in the next story.)

ALEXANDER AND NEHF DISPROVE ADAGE THAT YOUTH MUST BE SERVED

By BILLY EVANS.

That old adage—"youth will be served"—is being buffeted around considerably this spring in major league baseball circles.

In this day of the lively ball and slam-bang tactics, a shutout is the unusual among the 16 major league clubs. As a matter of fact, the New York Yankees were blanked only once during the entire season of 1927.

That will give some idea of what a difficult matter it is for a team to hold the opposition runless for nine innings.

Despite the adage that youth will be served and that whitewashing the opposition is a most difficult matter, two veteran pitchers in their initial start of the 1928 campaign turned in shutouts.

Although veteran pitchers—any hurler over 30 years of age is so regarded—are supposed to need plenty of hot weather to be at their best, the two feature pitching performances of the first week of play had old time stars pulling the hero stuff.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, 41 years of age and his 18th years of major league baseball, stepped right out and scored a shutout in his first start. Even more important, Alexander didn't pick any soft spot for his stellar performance.

In whitewashing the opposition, he is the kalsomine brush on the pennant-winning Pirates of 1927, one of the hardest hitting clubs in baseball.

Then, just to keep Alexander from hogging the spotlight, Artie Nehf, 37 years of age, blanked Cincinnati in his opening game by the tight score of 2-0, being forced to beat down through the entire game.

The fact that Cincinnati gave Nehf a trial after John McGraw of the New York Giants figured him through, only to have the Reds turn him loose, must have made the victory all the sweeter. Nothing pleases a ball player more than to beat the club that gave him the gate.

This particularly true of a pitcher, and, of course, a shutout victory makes the conquest all the more satisfying to Nehf.

The two unexpected shutouts scored by the 41-year-old Alexander and the 37-year-old Nehf are a real tribute to pitching art. There are few hurlers in baseball who give more thought to their work than Alexander and Nehf. It is more than a mere throwing contest when they ascend the mound. Back of every ball pitched is a desire on the part of the two to outguess the batter.

The Alexander and Nehf of today are mere shadows of the two stars of 10 years back. There are a score of right and left handers in the two major leagues who have twice the stuff of either of the veterans, but few have their infinite cunning.

The remarkable performance of these two old timers in their first

By producing 428.36 lbs. of butterfat and 6,933 lbs. of milk in an official 305-day test, Rosette Radiant Storr, a purebred Jersey cow in the herd of the Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs, easily won a silver medal awarded by the American Jersey Cattle Club.

She was started on this test when she was 1 year and 11 months of age and she carried calf 226 days of the ten months. Her milk averaged 6.18 per cent butterfat for the test.

Rosette Radiant Storr's sire is Owl-Interest Rex, and her dam is the silver medal cow, Radiant Romance Storr, which has two excellent records to her credit; one of 621.80 lbs. of butterfat and the other of 648.56 lbs. of butterfat.

Check Flow Of Mexican Peons Over Border, Urges Congressman

Washington—The border states now 65,000 Mexicans, approximately 30 per cent of the whole population of the city. In Los Angeles county, California, including the city of Los Angeles, there are 250,000 Mexicans, he declared.

These figures, he said, are illustrative of the situation throughout Southwest Texas, Southern California and in Arizona and New Mexico.

The migration is penetrating from these states North and East until it is already being felt to a serious degree as far as Kansas City, the Texas representative said.

Native Americans are being driven off the farms and ranches and out of other lines of employment because they cannot survive the cheap labor competition of the Mexican peons, he declared.

Not Desirable. Box described the Mexican peon as an inter-mixture of the offspring of Spanish peasants who came over with the invading Spanish armies.

Box also described the Mexican peon as a stock of the stalwart warrior Indian of the North, negroes, the latter fugitive slaves from the United States and laborers brought in from the West Indies. The United States is the direct objective sought by Box, though in dealing with this problem he proposes to apply the same rule of measurement to all other Latin Americans and to Canadians as well.

The Box bill proposes to fix quotas for all the American states and dominions on the basis of 2 per cent of the population native of those countries as shown by the 1890 census. This is the basis of which quotas are now fixed for immigration from Europe and other areas where the quota law applies.

For several hours Box, who is a member of the immigration committee and who was one of the leading advocates of the existing quota law passed in 1924, held the committee's attention as he drew a picture of the problem presented by the rapidly increasing population in the Southwest.

The Mexican population in the United States today is estimated at more than 2,000,000. At the present rate of influx, he declared it would double itself in 10 years, last year, he asserted, 65,000 came in legally and nearly that many more slipped across the border illegally, adding 150,000 to the number already here.

According to Box, there were approximately 250,000 Mexican-born in the United States in 1890. Applying a 2 per cent quota to that figure would reduce the legal entry to around 3,000 a year, instead of the 65,000 now legally admitted through operation of a quota law.

Through operation of a quota law, he said, 238,000 came in from these non-quota areas, against the 184,000 permitted to enter from quota countries.

Sensational Flights Defended In Book of Commander R. E. Byrd

New York—"Sensational flights" are defended by Commissioner Richard E. Byrd who is now engaged in planning an expedition to the South Pole next fall in a trimotor monoplane. In his first book, called "Skyward" Byrd refers to spectacular flights as "the italics in the story of the progress of aviation."

Such flights accelerate progress, he writes, "for when the flight is decided upon necessity produces inventions and developments which, in the ordinary course of events, would tend to be slow and uncertain."

Byrd makes it plain in his book that he believes that aviation is only in its infancy. He foresees by 1936 a passenger plane with four or five engines housed in the wings—out of air resistance.

"It is conceivable," he says "that high altitude exploration may soon be combined with high speed flying."

He is of the opinion that 500 miles an hour is not far off. He believes the 100-hour reliable engine is at hand.

Byrd justifies spectacular flights as necessary to the progress of aviation and of civilization itself and says that the accidents that occur in such ventures should not be held against the development of commercial aviation.

"Commercial aviation, as I have tried to point out, can today be made safe as a railroad train," Byrd writes "with no fewer risks to life to bring the unknown into the column of the known. I have always believed that no matter how hazardous an endeavor may be, it is justifiable if the end sought is human knowledge and augmented progress."

Byrd describes all of his flying experiences, including his Greenland trips, his flight with Floyd Bennett to the North Pole and his trans-Atlantic hop with Bert Acosta, Lieut. G. O. Noville and Bert Balchen. He reveals for the first time that nearly ten years ago he began agitating for a trans-Atlantic flight and that at that time he first suggested the flight be made with navy equipment. It was largely through efforts made by Walter Camp, with whom he first discussed the project, that high navy officials began consideration of the flight of the NC-4.

His Own Plans. In telling of his plans to fly over the South Pole, Byrd cites the difficulties, financial and otherwise, faced in an endeavor of this character.

"Of the toll and the anxiety that now go into the organization of a big expedition the public hears but little," he writes. "Of the anguish the leader must suffer in this preparatory phase none can know who has not been through it."

"It cost Columbus $2,115 to discover America. It cost the world $200,000,000 and hundreds of lives to discover the North Pole. I don't intend to argue that either was worth more or less than the cost, but the overhead of a Polar work hasn't gone down since the date of Peary's discovery."

"My North Pole expedition in 1926 was made just about as cheaply as possible. We spent hours and hours trying to get things done economically. Yet it cost in cold cash about $140,000. Nor does this take in a very large sum represented by men and material which were given at cost or donated."

"On the South Pole will cost about $450,000. As we have to be ready to winter on the Antarctic ice barrier and cover about 24,000 miles in the round trip from New York the cost rises much beyond that of a North Polar trip."

enough provisions for two months. "The problem of how the four of us will manage in this tiny space for so long is worrying us more than anything else. We have had to discard our radio set because it took up too much room."

"M. Pokker, the aeroplane designer, is coming out to meet us in New York Harbor in his motorboat. He will tow us in."

OIL IS LEADING OVER COAL FOR HEATING SHIPS

London—Oil is beating coal in the race for supremacy in shipbuilding. It is revealed by figures issued by Lloyd's the great mercantile marine insurance concern.

For the past year the tonnage of motor shipping being built throughout the world has exceeded the tonnage of steamships, the figures show. At the moment the shipbuilding world is experiencing a boom in motor-driven vessels.

The first signs of the boom became noticeable in the quarterly returns for June of last year, when there was a preponderance of 93,000 in the motor tonnage. In the September quarter it had become 120,000 tons. Figures for the March quarter of this year show that oil is leading coal by 100,000 tons.

Cost To Stay. Experts, however, ridicule statements that in the next few years coal driven vessels will have ceased to be laid down. It is pointed out that the most important fact in the return issued by Lloyd's is that in Great Britain, which still leads in shipbuilding, steam tonnage shows a tendency to increase its supremacy over motor tonnage.

The subject of oil versus coal has become an important controversy among shipbuilders here and in other parts of the world. Sir John Latta, one of the most experienced shipping men in England, disagrees emphatically from those who expect the rapid disappearance of coal from the seas.

"For higher speeds," he said in an interview with the "Daily Mail," "the Diesel engine is the best. But for speeds below eleven knots I have found that coal is the better. For slow speeds and rough cargo there is no sign that oil will displace coal."

Still In Dispute. "The Diesel engine has given some owners an incentive, and in some ways an advantage, in world transport which they did not possess when substantially on steam coal. This in a measure may account for the enormous increase of tonnage building in that quarter."

"It does not prove, however, that Diesel ships, cost for cost, with oil at today's prices, can carry goods more economically than steamers—which is what matters. The real issue is, can a steamer of say 10,000 tons be built and operated as cheaply as a motor vessel of 9,000 tons. My experience proves that it can."

The controlling factor is the price of oil fuel compared with the price of coal, in my opinion."

London.—At the age of sixty-two the Duchess of Bedford, wife of the 11th Duke of Bedford, is learning to fly.

The Duchess thinks flying is the most exhilarating of all sports, and has recently acquired a small airplane, which Captain Barnard, a famous civilian pilot, is teaching her to fly.

She uses the front lawn of her husband's magnificent residence Woburn Abbey, as a taking-off ground.

"For me," the Duchess says, "flying has been the thrill of a lifetime. There is none of the dust and dirt of ordinary traveling when you go by air."

40-FOOT LIFE BOAT IS RIDING ATLANTIC ON WAY TO NEW YORK

London—Manned by four Dutchmen, the forty-foot lifeboat, Schuttevaer is now on her way across the Atlantic Ocean bound for New York.

She left London March 19, with the intention of calling at the Azores enroute. The journey, which is being made entirely by sail, is expected to last forty to fifty days, and provisions, all good, well, the vessel should make New York Harbor about the beginning of May.

The Schuttevaer, which is claimed to be unsinkable, is built of oak, but is remarkably buoyant. A large keel, ballasted with water, is responsible for its buoyancy, and is designed to prevent the vessel from capsizing even in the roughest seas.

Her crew are J. P. Schuttevaer, the sixty-eight year old inventor of the boat, G. G. Schmidt, her captain, G. Kruihof, first mate, and Theo. Gellison, second mate.

"The time on voyage takes will depend entirely on the weather," Schuttevaer told International News Service before he left London. "Perhaps it will be forty, perhaps fifty or sixty days. We have
