

FOUR KILLED BY BLAST IN THOMPSONVILLE

Man and Three Boys Horribly Mangled When Explosion Occurs in Fireworks Factory—Were Visitors.

Thompsonville, Conn., June 26.—A man and three boys were killed today when an explosion wrecked a storage shed at the plant of the New England Fireworks company on the northern outskirts of this town.

The main building or other sections of the plant were not damaged and the property loss, it was estimated, would not exceed $7,000.

Were Visitors

The superintendent of the fireworks company, who had given permission to the visitors to visit a shed where chemicals were stored in order that they might fill some home-made bombs for use in a Fourth of July celebration, thought that there was another boy in the party but a search of the vicinity failed to reveal more than four bodies. These had been blown some distance away and were horribly mutilated.

The Dead

The dead, all residents of Thompsonville, follow:
Rosario Farno, 45.
William Dorecki, 19.
Joseph Anzolini, 14.
John Anzolini, 11.

A few people at work in the main factory building felt the force of the explosion but none were injured. A dull thud shook the countryside for a mile around and fire apparatus and doctors hurried to the scene but there was little for them to do.

Five in Party (?)

The superintendent of the plant said that Farno and the boys arrived in an automobile. He thought there were five in the party but was not sure. The company has only a small plant here and as Farno and his friends were well known, the superintendent said he did not hesitate to allow them to complete their Fourth of July bombs.

The quartet had just entered the shed when a terrific explosion occurred. The next moment bodies and pieces of the building shot skyward, some of them being lodged in nearby trees.

TWO PERSONS DEAD AFTER AUTO CRASH

Four Injured in Wreck at Salem, This State; Driver of One Car Held.

New London, Conn., June 26.—Edward B. Lawrence, of New Canaan, was today formally placed under arrest by state police of the Groton barracks, following an accident at Salem, last evening, when Lawrence's car crashed into a car driven by Mrs. Constance Connelly, of New Bedford, Mass., and caused the deaths of John Davenport and Edward Rutledge both of New Canaan.

Mrs. Connelly, her young son Charles, and Mrs. Leah Tripp, of Long Island City, N. Y., as well as Lawrence, were injured in the accident, and taken to Lawrence Memorial Hospital here, for treatment. They were all today reported as being very much improved.

Both Have Fractured Skulls. Police Searching for Driver of Car.

New York, June 26.—The driver of the speedy roadster which wrecked itself against a tree and presently fatally injured two beauties of "Rain or Shine," hit of the current Broadway season, evaded state troopers and police today as the actresses fought feebly for life in City hospital at Glens Falls, N. Y.

How Crash Occurred

The two machines were at the junction of the Norwich-Hartford road and the New London-Hartford turnpike when the accident occurred. Mrs. Connelly, it appears, had the right of way. Following the collision, which upset the Connelly car, the machine driven by Lawrence shot across the road, struck a gas tank and then went into the side of a garage.

Mr. Davenport was flung from the machine and the gas tank pump fell on him. Rescuers from among the garage force lifted the pump. Mr. Davenport was dead.

Cars were found in the neighborhood and the five other victims were taken to the hospital here. Mr. Rutledge died soon after being received.

Mrs. Connelly was bound west on the Norwich road and Mr. Lawrence north on the Hartford road.

The motor chief of the ill-fated Italia, Natale Cecconi, has also been rescued and is believed to be aboard the Citta di Milano. He suffered a broken leg when the dirigible

TWO ACTRESSES DYING AFTER AUTO ACCIDENT

Both Have Fractured Skulls. Police Searching for Driver of Car.

New York, June 26.—The driver of the speedy roadster which wrecked itself against a tree and presently fatally injured two beauties of "Rain or Shine," hit of the current Broadway season, evaded state troopers and police today as the actresses fought feebly for life in City hospital at Glens Falls, N. Y.

A hunt for the man who was at the wheel of the car has been in progress since early Sunday when the roadster crashed near Schroon Lake, in the Adirondacks.

Mothers of the two girls—Frances Shelley and Beth Milton—are at their bedsides. Neither victim has regained consciousness since the accident. X-ray photographs disclosed that the skulls of both girls are fractured.

Accordingly, the name of the driver is not known. All authorities have to work on is the license number of the demolished car and the stories of others in the "Rain or Shine" cast, who said the girls told of plans to motor northward with a friend of Miss Milton.

Southerners Idolize New York City Mayor

Houston, Texas, June 26.—They've rolled up the sidewalks of New York and re-laid them in Houston.

Follow the crowd and you'll find that the crowd is following Jimmy Walker, the mayor of New York, the pal of Al Smith and, since he arrived here, the pal of the south. Jimmy's a pally guy. He calls himself a "guy." In another week the governor of South Carolina probably will be calling the governor of North Carolina a "guy."

Houston knew Jimmy was coming and, knowing that Gov. Smith liked him, was prepared to make it self like him, too. No compulsion was necessary. Houston today likes Jimmy Walker because he's Jimmy Walker.

The mayor was told that several bands, a women's organization among them, wished to serenade him on the mezzanine floor from the lobby of the hotel. The mayor appeared, late as usual—and the Southerners here liked it. They must have, for they cheered him till the welkin quit ringing and began to clank.

Former Secretary to President Coolidge

New York, June 26.—President Roosevelt once told me that it takes four years of consideration by the American people to make a nominee for the presidency. This rule of law has been demonstrated this year at both Kansas City and Houston. Hoover has been before the public as a presidential possibility for eight years and likewise Gov. Smith.

ROBINSON CERTAIN AS RUNNING MATE

Most of the Leaders Have Agreed on the Senator From Arkansas.

Houston, Texas, June 26.—The vice presidential star of Sen. Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, grew brighter today, although a dozen other candidates were widely discussed as potential running mates for the next Democratic nominee for president.

SMITH AND ROBINSON, DEMOCRATIC TICKET, AS CONVENTION OPENS

FARMERS SEEK ALLIANCE WITH SMITH FORCES

Repulsed by G. O. P. Westerners Are Trying to Get Democrats to Put Farm Relief in Their Platform.

Houston, Texas, June 26.—A formal offer of an alliance between leaders of the "Farm Revolt" and Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York was taken under consideration by the Smith managers today.

The proposal, carefully framed by a score of farm organization heads, was presented by Ed. O'Neal of Alabama and Chest. H. Gray of Washington, both legislative representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation. It was received by Judge Joseph F. Proskauer and George Van Name, generalissimo of the Smith forces.

Nothing definite resulted from the conference. A further effort will be made to bring the forces together, it was said by the farm leaders.

Early Predictions Have New York Governor and Arkansas Senator as Standard Bearers—Session Delayed as Delegates Are Slow in Arriving—Big Hall, Seating 16,000, is Packed—Drab Meeting as Only Routine Business is Transacted—Keynote Speech to Be Delivered Tonight So That Radio Listeners May Hear It.

Sam Houston Hall, Houston, Texas, June 26.—The rumble of a Smith band wagon bearing the legend "Smith-and-Robinson" was heard in the offing today as the thousand-odd delegates to the Democratic national convention sweltered their way into this huge mountain of pine and bunting that Houston erected for them almost overnight. Of the Smith part of the ticket, no one had any doubt whatsoever—not even the bitterest last-ditcher from the forks of some southern creek.

Robinson the Favorite.

As for the Robinson part of the ticket, the movement undeniably was growing by leaps and bounds this morning to name the Arkansas Senator early in the proceedings.

The Tammany people were for him, his Senatorial colleagues scattered throughout a dozen delegations were hooting him, and within the next three days there probably will be enough votes lined up to insure his nomination.

The cry was everywhere to make this convention "short and snappy" at Madison Square Garden. The heat, which Houston plentifully contributed to the desire to wind things up as quickly as possible. The principle barrier seemed to be the prohibition plank in the platform but here again was the impatient desire on the part of leaders to have a long argument.

Hands Arrive

Three bands were on hand to keep everybody in a good humor, one was the famous "Old Gray Mare Band," which blared into the arena led by a blonde girl on the original old gray mare. They were tooting the tune, and they got a great hand. "Yankee Doodle," "Dixie" and a lot of other old-timers followed.

Good Natured Crowd

Everybody appeared in a good humor. The inevitability of Smith's nomination apparently has done much to "restore the era of good feeling" in the party. Supporters of the New York governor naturally were happy and the man who opposed him seemed resigned to making the best of it. Democrats who were on different sides of the fence during the last five years found themselves on the same side today and the atmosphere relaxed it.

Slow at Starting

Realizing the drabness of the takeoff, the delegates took their time about getting to the convention hall. A room on one of the top floors of the Rice hotel equipped with electric fans and other cooling devices seemed more attractive than the great barn-like structure that lay sprawling under a merciless Texas sun.

Short Campaign

If the Republican campaign goes according to present plans it will be a short and snappy drive. Real action is expected to start about the middle of August or the first of September, after Hoover sounds the Republican call to arms in California with his address at the notification ceremonies.

Chairman Hubert Work said the campaign would be based on accomplishments of the administration, the internationally known ability of Hoover to organize and administer big projects and a promise of constructive national policies.

There will be no mud-slinging," he said. "We don't under-estimate Gov. Smith's strength, but we don't think we can lose."

At 12:15 there was a burst of applause when Texas' 40 delegates marched into the hall with the young red-headed governor, Dan Moody carrying the flag of the Lone Star state. Upon the platform of the platform presented an acre of shirt-sleeved men and fanning women whose clothes stuck damply to their backs. With it wasn't any hotter than it was at Madison Square Garden four years ago and that helped.

North Carolina's Ans Tennessee drew the prize seat locations on the floor, being directly in front of the speaker's platform, and emphasizing that this was a Democratic not a Republican convention.

The floor arrangements rather indicated that these Texans were

HERE'S TODAY'S PROGRAM AT DEM. CONVENTION

Houston, Texas, June 26.—Convention met at noon under the call, effected temporary organization, appointed committees and then recessed until seven o'clock tonight.

At the night session the delegates and millions of radio listeners will hear the keynote address of Claude G. Bowers of New York, the temporary chairman.

prepared for anything. Each state standard was embedded in heavy blocks of concrete a foot square and weighing something short of a ton. Into these blocks of concrete were sunk four feet of gas pipes. The standards could be taken out, but not if anybody offered much resistance. The scarred veterans of the standard fights at Madison Square Garden regarded them with interest.

Three bands were on hand to keep everybody in a good humor, one was the famous "Old Gray Mare Band," which blared into the arena led by a blonde girl on the original old gray mare. They were tooting the tune, and they got a great hand. "Yankee Doodle," "Dixie" and a lot of other old-timers followed.

The box holders were the most favored people in the hall. While the delegates sat out in the middle and perspired, the box holders sat on the outer fringe and were cooled by individual electric fans. On the railing of each of the hundred boxes was perched a small electric fan, and all of them were going.

Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, door manager for Gov. Smith, was one of the early arrivals. He took his seat up in the New York block at 11:40 and was immediately surrounded by a group. Roosevelt is popular with the rank and file and they gave him a warm greeting.

Familiar figures of the Wilson administration, ex-Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, Joseph P. Tumulty, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, J. M. C. Smith, of Kansas, Ray T. Baker and others were busy on the floor, renewing old acquaintances and exchanging greetings.

John W. Davis, the 1924 nominee, who is a delegate from New York, arrived a few minutes before the session opened. He came in quiet, and attracted little attention. Such is the feistiness of political fame.

The crowd was regaled with a modest outburst of Smith fervor not long before the general call. The California delegation came marching in with a blue silk banner which was set in the middle of the California section. It bore a picture and the name "Alfred E. Smith." There was a brief burst of applause and cries of "We Want Al."

Mayor Jimmy Walker lived up to his reputation of being late by strolling in unconcernedly at 12:05 p. m.

He almost didn't get in. A burly Texas policeman could not believe that the dapper little figure in the waspish coat really had any business in this convention.

"Are you a delegate?" he inquired.

"Not only that, but I'm the mayor of New York," returned "Jimmy" in a booming voice, and he showed his official dignity.

Before the cop could recover from the wick crack, the mayor had slipped under his arm and was lost in the crowded aisles.

By the time the officer went to look for him, the mayor was wedged in between the bulky figure of Judge George W. Otway, the leader of Tammany, and Franklin Roosevelt. The mayor was one of those who did not remove his coat.

At 12:15 there was a burst of applause when Texas' 40 delegates marched into the hall with the young red-headed governor, Dan Moody carrying the flag of the Lone Star state. Upon the plat-

WOMAN'S VIEW OF PARLEY

Houston, Texas, June 26.—There was some shooting here last night. Not so disastrous as that in Kansas City during the Republican convention but enough to cause uneasiness. A man got tired of waiting for an elevator in the Rice hotel so he pulled out his own gun and fired four times through the door.

I hear that Texas is going to cast its votes for Jesse H. Jones. I suppose that's just a compliment to him in thanks for his services in bringing the convention to Houston. It seems he was the big man who did the work. Why Texas should want to thank him is puzzling to this reporter.

School District Meetings

2ND'S COMMITTEE WINS IN CONTEST

"Green" School Meeting Provides Only Contest; Rogers' Side Victorious.

The annual meeting of the Second or Manchester Green School District, which has succeeded to the "Fighting Fifth" as a purveyor of fireworks, was the only one in town to produce a fight.

Although not officially forecast, the predicted battle over the election of the school committee took place last night. It was the only contest in any of the school meetings, and there was not a murmur of dissent or any other question than the committee personnel at the Green session.

The contest was a continuation of the political feud between William B. Rogers and John Jensen, each of whom accuses the other of injecting politics into school affairs.

Old Committee Wins

The outcome of the meeting was that the present school committee was restored intact with the exception of Mrs. Margaret H. Rich, who gave notice of her retirement prior to the nominating.

Mr. Rogers said it was too bad that politics was being brought into the school affairs and hoped the voters would realize it had no place there.

Mr. England's talk was along just the same lines. He said he was of the opinion that the present committee was dominated by Mr. Rogers and that it was high time there was a change.

After long argument a ballot was taken amid considerable excitement. It was announced that the committee nominated by Mr. Rogers had been victorious by a vote of 33 to 21. Eight split votes were thrown out.

The meeting was attended by about sixty voters. Robert J. Smith was moderator; E. Hugh Crosby was named auditor; Harold C. Alford, treasurer; Ellen J. Buckley, tax collector and William Parks, clerk. The latter succeeds Peter Wind, who resigned.

NO EXTRA POLICE FOR THE FOURTH, IS PLAN

Some Regulars Will Have to Work Overtime, However; Gordon Back Monday.

July 4 is only a week away and while the town has voted against stopping the sale of fireworks the usual effort will be made by the police to prevent their being discharged before 4 o'clock on the morning of the Fourth. No special police will be sworn in for the occasion but some of the regular men will be called on to work extra hours.

Chief of Police Gordon is now in the West attending a convention, but will be back by Monday.

ELECTRICIAN KILLED

Stamford, Conn., June 26.—Oliver Chapin, a New Haven road electrical repairman, was instantly killed at the roundhouse here this afternoon when he came in contact with a live high-tension electric wire while he was working on a motor. Samuel Wilber, his fellow workman tried to save Chapin and was himself somewhat injured, being hurled several feet by the current.

MUST GIVE ACCOUNT OF SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Joint Board Asks for Details On Reported Need of $2,000 Worth.

That a careful watch is now being kept on the money expended for school supplies was indicated at the meeting of the Joint School Board yesterday afternoon. An exception was taken to the lumping of items in the report of the first eight school districts when an item of $2,000 or more was specified as being expended for pencils, paper, ink, crayons and drawing materials.

It was also observed that in the report of estimates in each district the amount asked for in each case was somewhat in excess of the sum of detailed estimates. For instance, in the first district an appropriation of $1,160 was asked while the estimated figures totaled $1,797, a $737 excess.

TRADE SCHOOL WANTS BUILDING CHANGES

Up to Selectmen, It Develops At Meeting of Joint School Board.

The standing of the State Trade School with relation to requests for future expenditure of town money was brought to the attention of the Joint School Board yesterday afternoon.

There is no Trade School Committee and that the selectmen have been looking after its affairs. This was brought to the attention of the meeting by Howell Cheney, who said that a request had been made for changes at the school that would cost about $2,000.

JOINT BOARD SETTLES JANITORS' PAY ISSUE

Town Will Pay for Only 42 Weeks, Is Decision on Moot Question.

The question of who will pay the janitors of the schools in Manchester during the summer months was definitely settled at the meeting of the Joint School Board yesterday afternoon.

A bill of $60 for janitor service in the Fourth District was paid during the summer of last year and the residents of that district questioned the validity of its payment by the district. It was got a ruling on this matter that the question was brought before the meeting.

Nations leader, Rep. Cordell Hull, the Tennessee dry leader, Evans Woolen, the Indiana banker, Rep. Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, and Gov. Vic Donahey, the thrice elected Ohio executive.

The remainder of a list of 20 potential candidates for running mate honors were in the final and hopeless class. These candidates were really hotel lobby possibilities, with few exceptions, and some of them never will hear their names presented to the convention.

AL, BY HIMSELF, LISTENS IN TODAY

Albany, N. Y., June 26.—No greater difference can be imagined, politically speaking, than the manner in which Gov. Al Smith played his parts in the 1924 Democratic national convention and in the present Houston combat.

It takes no great display of memory on the part of any politicians to recall the busy convention days of Gov. Smith four years ago in New York City. Then he was the very center of a maelstrom of activity, personally on the firing line.

Today, while they are fighting it out in the torrid atmosphere of Texas, Al Smith sits calmly in the comparative quiet of the capitol executive offices. A cool breeze comes from the hills across the Hudson, stirring the heavy window draperies, although the governor is now a far better figure than he was four years ago but far more in the background personally.

"Comparative quiet" is the description of the executive offices today, for there certainly are activities enough at least in the outer offices. In the governor's own personal sanctum it is the radio set which has been producing nothing but static so far. The situation was corrected today however, with the installation of another, just as big and far more effective, just outside the door.

The governor was in communication with George Van Names, his friend and campaign manager, in Houston this morning, and as usual he made no comment as to their conversation. He plans to listen to the keynote address at the executive mansion, where another radio has been installed, an engineer from the General Electric Company looked the set over yesterday and declared it is in perfect order, the governor said.

MARATHON "HUSBAND" FEARS HE'S MARRIED

Meantime "Bride" Object of Research, Plans to Enter Queerest Stunt Dance.

Tony Bernardino of Rocky Hill, putative bridegroom, came to Manchester with three friends last night to interview Miss Jackie Mader, putative bride, regarding their reported marriage during a marathon dance contest in Hartford.

"Where does Miss Mader live? I want to find out about this. Why, the report's all over Hartford? Why, I didn't do anything but dance with the girl. Never knew her till just before the dance started. Say, they can't make a fellow get married can they, just on those certificates and things?"

The last seen of Tony he was searching for the "bride", hoping to get the matter settled. Miss Mader has already denied the marriage and explained the rumor.

Meantime, there is some more or less mysterious activity with relation to Miss Mader on the part of the Humane Society.

When a representative of the Humane Society called at the dance hall in Hartford where the marathon was going on, the management, the Humane Society people intimate, did not appear willing to cooperate in keeping minors out of the contest.

The report of Miss Mader's marriage, in fact, resulted from a sly switching of entry blanks. As a consequence the police here were asked by the society to look up that young lady's status.

Officer Wirralia visited her home on Hamilton street this morning. "Jackie", as she calls herself, admitted that she had danced, but said she was over eighteen years of age. She told the police that she was born in Manchester.

A search of the town clerk's records showed that Mrs. Josephine Mader was born in Manchester on March 16, 1908.

Jackie admitted that she is Mary Josephine, but that she had been called only Josephine. This name she did not like, she told the officer, and had had herself called Does Your Home Have The Mellow Friendship Of Fine Furniture?

Among the homes of your friends, some seem to have caught the air of friendship—of kindness—so much more than you own. Yet, you know that your friends possess no unusual genius in furnishing homes.

They're not all furnished alike. One may be Colonial, tastefully reminiscent of the homes of our Pilgrim Fathers. Another may contain furniture with one of the interesting period influences, or even a suggestion of the fashionable modernistic style. And often you may visit a friend whose home is in reality very simple, but still reflects that same charming spirit of mellow friendship.

You know it isn't superior taste—it's all because these homes have been blessed with furniture of a character and quality that you thought you never could afford. You imagined that fine furniture could only be bought in pretentious stores—and just a thought of the prices they charge makes you shudder.

Our "Low Cost" Store Will Solve This Problem For You

Perhaps you have never realized that a store such as Keith's, located as we are and run on an economical basis with an extremely low cost of doing business, can and does sell the quality furniture you would like to have at surprisingly lower prices. But it is true and its mighty importance to you to know it. You can have that "mellow friendship" in your home if you buy at Keith's, where lower costs permit a guarantee of lower prices.

BIG BROTHERS

The nuisance described in a short news story in the Herald yesterday, relating the experience of one unescorted girl in walking the length of Main street from the south end terminal to the Center, is one which for some inexplicable reason crops up in pretty much every town during its transition from a village into a big place.

During this stage of municipal growth there comes upon the stage that incomprehensible but inevitable breed of youth who suffers from a curious mental lesion—he is possessed by the notion that in order to attain to the status of wise and sophisticated "fellah-ism" he must perforce annoy passing girls and women with audible remarks addressed to them or patently referring to them.

This is a shrewd circumspection about this kind of young fellow, invariably. He is extremely careful to keep his mouth closed with relation to any young woman who is accompanied by an escort who gives the faintest indication that perhaps he packs a wallop. He is also careful to insult or annoy girls and women only when there is no policeman around.

Usually this community disease persists until one of two things happen—either the town grows up and this particular sort of loafer is kicked off the street corners by the more serious and more virile type of gangster—who scorns such entertainment—or else the big brothers of the town take a hand.

We know of one town in New England where the Big Brothers organized. Not very many of them—a mere dozen or twenty. They mutually agreed to paste the daylights out of every dirty mouthed rail bird they saw speak to or at any girl or woman not of their own acquaintance. Then they went to the police and explained the purpose of their union.

"With our blessing!" said the cops. Within a single week there was not a street corner in that town which any girl could not pass in complete immunity from insult. No more kissing noises, no more "How about it, kid?" no more dirty innuendo. A few black eyes, a few loosened teeth, a few kicks in the slats—and lo, it was a nice clean town for girls to walk about.

This experience is respectfully submitted to the big brothers of those Manchester girls who find an evening walk a distressing, even an agonizing ordeal.

CERTAINLY NOT There seems to be, in certain Democratic newspaper offices, an impression that there is especial news value in the fact that Mr. Hoover has given orders that in this campaign there shall be no personal abuse of Governor Smith, assuming that the latter is to be the Democratic nominee. Hoover's plan for a "high minded" campaign appear to be regarded as worthy of good sized headlines.

What, in the name of sense, was to be expected from Mr. Hoover but a decent and courteous attitude toward a man who, it would be ridiculous to deny, has filled the office of governor of the greatest of American states with dignity and ability?

True, there are shortsighted politicians who have deemed it clever to sneer at Smith because his English at times more closely approaches that of Eighth Avenue than that of Harvard, but they are very few indeed and they do not know their business. Also one of the worst blunders that has been made was the silly attempt of Col.

Roosevelt to link the New York governor with the cheap graft of the Albany baseball pools. Because the popular reaction to this sort of thing is exactly the opposite to what is sought.

Mr. Hoover has the right slant. We are inclined to think he could take slant even if it were poor politics, because he happens to be a gentleman as well as a candidate and would be unlikely to countenance a campaign of abuse and mud slinging even if the mud could be made to stick. His claim to consideration over and above Gov. Smith is the soundest kind of a claim; he has had infinitely broader experiences and knows many times more about national and international affairs than the New York governor, who has lived his whole life among the concerns of New York city and New York state government.

Mr. Hoover's record of achievement covers the world; it is part and parcel of the saga of the great war. His is a towering mind and his conceptions of the Presidency and its potentialities are based on the most intimate knowledge of the problems of civilization and their solutions. Mr. Smith has been an excellent governor of the state of New York. He has hardly ever given the slightest evidence that he was aware of the existence of a country west of Buffalo or east of the Connecticut-Massachusetts line.

Mr. Hoover is the candidate of the Republican party, a party of definite policies and achievements, completely united in his support. Governor Smith is expected to be the candidate of the Democratic party, or of a part of it. And the Democratic party in 1928 is a mere party of protest without a constructive program and without the confidence of the country.

Why on earth should Republican speakers and newspapers make personal attacks on Al Smith? They are both ill bred and bad politicians.

NEW CANAAN'S DEAD The little town of New Canaan, this state, has just under four thousand population. Within the last month five of its people have been killed in automobile accidents. Three of the victims were killed singly; two died in the same crash yesterday at the deadly intersection of the Hartford-New London turnpike and the Norwich-Haddam road in Salem.

At this rate New Canaan would lose sixty of its four thousand people in a year as the result of one and another sort of motorized recklessness. Statistics on death rates in this country are based on units of 100,000 of population. A death rate of sixty persons out of 4,000 is equivalent to a rate of 1,500 for 100,000 persons.

Never in the last twenty years, save in the fatal period of 1918 when we were at grips with Germany and American soldiers were being slaughtered on the field of battle and by epidemics of flu, has the death rate of this country reached 1,500. And this rate has been figured on all causes.

It is highly improbable, of course, that any such visitation of motor casualties as that recently befallen to New Canaan will persist in the case of any one community. Nevertheless the case of that town furnishes a striking example of the extent to which the automobile has increased the hazards of existence.

Here is a country in which millions and millions of money and thousands of studious lives are being dedicated to the eradication of disease; the while we are almost deliberately building up an engine of destruction which, at the present rate of progress will more than undo all that sacrificial work in disease research of which we are so proud.

In no single instance of which we have knowledge has an American state seriously attacked the problem of eliminating the growing tragedy of the automobile. Feeble attempts at palliation there are, indeed. But they are established within limits which render them, on the face of it, little better than ludicrous. All attempts to prevent the horrid wastage of life are made with the greatest care not to interfere with the basic cause of the peril—the "right" of the individual to drive what he will, how he will, where and when he will.

Straighten the roads, speed up the traffic, give the public the impression that the seventy-mile an hour car is the proper objective of tomorrow—and let the death rate mount and mount! That seems to be the present idea of automobile control. We have a very active suspicion that a change in this outlook on the problem is not so many years in the future.

SIDE SHOWS The side shows at Houston bid fair to make the big top hard to find, so to speak. The Anti-Saloon League has an army of boosters on hand. The W. C. T. U. is holding parades and prayer meetings. The Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement, Law Enforcement Committees of a Hundred or a Thousand from half a dozen states, the National League of Women Voters, the National Women's Party, half a dozen national farm organizations, to say nothing of every peace organization of any note in the country, has at least a working delegation present and a plank to urge upon the platform makers.

IN NEW YORK New York, June 26—There are still a few theaters in Manhattan that have to retain bouncers. There still are a few where the boys in the gallery kill time before curtain-rise by reading Tip Top Weekly and Old King Brady, and where you are projected back into boyhood days by hearing a brusque voice shout "Take those hats off!"

It is still possible to escape from the super-refinements of ushers who have been drilled by West Point graduates. One has merely to go over to Second Avenue where, atop a roof, the burlesque is what they describe as "hot." Here you will find strong-arm men patrolling the aisles in the event that any member of the audience chances to get as rough as—well, the comedian, for instance. Now and then you'll hear the resounding thump of a blackjack against the sole of a shoe. Out of the half darkness you'll hear the sounds of scuffling, and you'll behold a dimly outlined figure leaving the door on his nose.

Over in the Bowery there are one or two such—and so has the Bronx. The world has not completely lost its rough touches. And, not that it makes much difference to the world at large—but bass drum whangers will no longer need to cart their big drums from hall to hall. Many a chuckle has been elicited over the sight of a drummer in the process of trying to wrestle the "big bass drum" into a taxi cab. Many a small street urchin has lagged along behind a stout sweating figure who toted his drum through Broadway. But, so I noticed while strolling about, no new exists the Bass Drum Club of New York. Thanks to my strange sense of humor, I wonder, if a bass drum club might do. And I found out that they have built lockers in halls where dances are held and there they keep a bass drum ever ready for the manipulator.

And, again, not that it makes a great deal of difference, but at 1560 Broadway you would come upon the intriguing notes: "All freaks available for next season, and not under contract, will please send photos!" Glancing at the passing Broadway throng you might wonder, if I did, why so many are hesitant about rushing in and signing on the dotted line.

Anyway, it's such funny little things that spring out at you everywhere in Manhattan that gives life in the big city its sense of humor. Little notes from around town: Those Norman Bel Geddes display windows in a Fifth Avenue store. That answers the question of what the prominent theatrical artists will do in summer. . . . Thanks to the modern art vogue, they'll stage their scenes in the store windows.

Specially monogrammed bath towels for peddled purps. . . . And a monkey hunt in the caverns where they are building the new Eighth Avenue subway. . . . The monkey escaped from the wagon of one of those animal-importing firms. . . . Beer barrels mounting to a second-floor speakeasy. . . . A dentist's display of diamond inlaid teeth. . . . A $20 bill pasted on the outside of a "fire sale" window. . . . Not a soul grabs at it. . . . And were you to drop it on the sidewalk the whole street would try to pick it up for you. GILBERT SWAN.

FOOD MINERALS (Part 2) Sodium is one of the important alkaline forming elements. It causes lime and magnesium to remain in solution. A lack of it therefore produces hardening of the arteries, obstruction of the capillaries, the formation of gall, kidney, and bladder stones, and a caking of the mammary glands. It produces alkalinity of the salivary secretions, pancreatic juices, and bile. A lack of it produces biliousness and the insufficient digestion of starches and fats. While iron plays the part of conveying oxygen from the lungs to the tissues, so the function of conveying the carbon dioxide from the tissues to the lungs. A lack of sodium, therefore, will result in the actual suffocation of the tissues. This may be extended in some cases of diabetes and obesity. Swiss chard, spinach, strawberries, pumpkin, asparagus, carrots, dandelions, lettuce, egg white, and dried figs contain sodium.

Iron has recently received wide publicity because of the important part it plays in preventing anemia. It forms a part of the highly complex hemoglobin compound which gives to the blood its characteristic red color. It conveys oxygen from the lungs to the tissues. Iron is stored in the liver, spleen, and bone marrow. At birth the liver of the baby has enough iron stored away to last until the child has passed through its nursing period, when it can obtain iron from its own food. This is because milk is notoriously deficient in this element. A lack of iron produces insufficient oxidation, anemia and lowered vitality. Do not use iron until the body is after it has been prepared for our use by plant structures. Iron, not organized in this manner, produces softening of the teeth, irritation of the eyes, turning blue eyes to turn brown around the pupils, and produces gastro-intestinal disturbances. A large amount of organized iron may be found in sorrel, lettuce, spinach, truffles, strawberries, parsnips, radishes, Swiss chard, onions, pumpkins and watermelons.

Potassium forms the most important salt found in the muscle structures. A lack of it prevents them from being strong and pliable. It is needed by the and could not store fats, or store sugar in the form of glycogen, or convert peptones and proteoses, which are protein after it has been acted upon by the stomach, into forms that our body can use. Potassium is found in lettuce, kale, tomatoes, celery, cucumbers, cress, turnips, egg plant, lemons and currants.

Calcium gives solidity to the bone structure, and a deficiency results in deformity, develops humpback, decaying teeth, tuberculosis, rheumatism and obesity. Large quantities of this element are found in cress, lettuce, spinach, cabbage, Swiss chard, turnips, lemons, oranges, milk, cottage cheese, asparagus and strawberries.

Magnesium makes our bones and teeth hard and ivory-like. It is present in minute quantities, but our teeth are harder than our bones, simply because they contain one half of one per cent more magnesium. In other tissues, such as the brains, nerves, muscles and lungs, it gives a toughness and elasticity. A lack of it produces softening of the bones, brittleness of the teeth, lung affections, nervous tension and osteomalacia. Magnesium is found in spinach, lettuce, tomatoes, dandelions, celery, pine nuts, beet greens, blackberries, figs and rutabagas. These lists are necessarily abbreviated, and these elements are also found in lesser quantities in other foods. We have arranged them in this manner hoping that they will be convenient for your reference.

Questions and Answers Question: W. J. writes: "I drink several quarts of water during the day, and still I am constipated. Will you explain the reason?" Answer: I am sure that the drinking of large quantities of water is often one of the causes of constipation, and therefore cannot assist in its cure. If you drink more liquid than the body requires, the intestines are discouraged in throwing out their lubricating fluids, and the result appears to be a gradual drying up of the intestinal fluids. To cure constipation, eat plenty of greens, exercise more, and cut down on the starches.

Question: C. M. asks: "Is celery good for young children and also very old people?" Answer: Well bleached celery is good for everyone. It never creates any digestive disturbances and can be used by anyone who is able to use any kind of food at all. Be sure to get the kind that is well bleached, as this bleaching removes certain volatile oils that are irritating to the digestive organs.

Question: J. M. asks: "What would cause one's skin to turn dark in color? In two years my skin has become a dark brown. Can I do anything to get back a white skin?" Answer: If you are not tanned from the sun, your dark skin is probably caused by some form of liver or adrenal derangement. If this is so, take a fruit fast and then live on a careful diet. Take special exercises to stimulate your liver. Supplement these exercises by some kind of manipulative treatment over the gall-bladder and liver area.

OHIO SENTENCES ADDICTS TOTAL OF 900 YEARS IN PERIOD ENDING JUNE 1 Cleveland.—In a recent federal court report on narcotic enforcement here, it was revealed that prison sentences totalling nearly 900 years have been meted to 255 narcotic addicts and peddlers in northern Ohio during the year ending June 1. Morphine and cocaine, valued at $225,000 (retail) was seized, and federal agents say this resulted in prices of these drugs in Cleveland's underworld going higher than in any other large city in the country, owing to the cutting off of sources of supply.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

TRIP TO WEST POINT IS OF GREAT BEAUTY

Military Academy Can Be Visited—Parades on Sunday Afternoons.

A trip to the military academy reservation at West Point, is always replete with interest to the motorist who desires in addition to a splendid motor trip, to visit localities of great historic interest and scenic beauty.

A visit to any of the beautiful buildings, many of which are open to public inspection, or the Cadet Chapel, will long be remembered.

It will no doubt be interesting for the motorist to know that the closing of the Storm King Highway, the wonderful scenic highway just north of West Point, between the hours of 9:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., during July and August, due to target practice of the cadets, has been eliminated and that the Storm King Highway will at all times be open to traffic throughout the year.

Motorists from New England, contemplating making this wonderful trip, should proceed to Danbury, over any of the well-known highways leading to this city.

From Danbury the motorist will follow Connecticut Highway Route No. 119 to the New York State line, and from there New York State Highway Route No. 27, or U. S. Route No. 6, also known as the "Bridge Route," through Brewster and Carmel into Lake Mahopac, a much frequented water resort, with many excellent hotels.

Leaving Lake Mahopac, the tourist continues over this same route to Division street, in Peekskill. A right turn is made into Division street and followed to the Monument, where a left turn is made on "Highland avenue, which the motorist will turn left at the top of Creek Hill on to a section of the Bronx River Parkway connecting the Post Road with the Bear Mountain Bridge Highway.

The motorist crosses the Hudson River, via the Open Air Route, the Bear Mountain Bridge, which is normally available to traffic 24 hours each day of the year.

An interesting booklet describing the various historic points along the Hudson together with a map showing these routes in detail, may be obtained without cost by writing the Bear Mountain Hudson River Bridge Co., at 39 Broadway, New York City.

LADY LINDY'S PLANS

London, June 26.—Miss Earhart, who flew across the Atlantic in the plane Friendship, went to Crofton Airfield this morning to make a flight with Lady Heath, who holds the distance record for women flyers.

It was reported that Miss Earhart and Lady Heath discussed the possibility of attempting a distance flight together at some future date.

Miss Earhart accepted an invitation to be luncheon guest of the American newspaper correspondents at the Savoy hotel this afternoon.

There is a ring belonging to an English nobleman in which the place of honor, formerly occupied by a diamond, is given to a human tooth. It cost $3750 and was the tooth of Sir Isaac Newton.

TOLLAND

Raymond B. Ladd, son of Mrs. L. R. Ladd and the late Lafayette R. Ladd of Tolland and Miss Lydia Olson of Poquonock Bridge, Conn., were married at four o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 24th at the home of the bride's father in Poquonock Bridge. Rev. William C. Draby, pastor of the Federated church of Tolland, officiated.

The bride wore a powdered-blue crepe dress and carried a bouquet of shell pink roses. The bridesmaid wore a pale pink dress and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Among the number who graduated from the class of 1923 R. H. S., were Miss Sarah Charches and Miss Doris Miff of Tolland.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Underwood with two children and Mrs. Alice Underwood of Swampscott, Mass., were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mirian Underwood.

Mrs. Virginia Fullinwider of Birmingham, Alabama, Mrs. Zoe Beckley Gollomb and Leete Stone of New York City have been recent guests of Mrs. Eliza Harney, Mr. George Bartlett and other relatives in town.

Mrs. Gorky and son of New York City are here to spend the summer in the village with Mr. Gorky's brother.

The Tolland Grange will visit Tuesday evening with Echo Grange, Mansfield Center and furnish the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pearson of Hartford were guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ernest Hall, Friday afternoon last.

Miss Helen Chapin returned to her home in Oradell, New Jersey, after spending several weeks here with relatives.

Miss Hazel Graham of New York City has returned to the home of her mother, Mrs. Ann Graham for the summer.

A large delegation of Tolland ladies were present at the home of Mrs. Sara Dimock, home demonstration agent, where County Better Homes Day was observed.

Franz Walkup has returned from Framlingham, Mass., where he attended the funeral of his sister. Mrs. Alida Lewis, a guest of her son, Frank Lewis and Mrs. Lewis in Boston, Mass.

"BEAU SABREUR" OPENS AT THE STATE TODAY

Picture Has Big Cast of Film Favorites—"Ladies of the Night Club" is Co-Feature.

A cast thoroughly commensurate with the dramatic strength of the production has been assembled by the production for "Beau Sabreur," the companion-picture to "Ladies of the Night Club," which shares honors with another big feature at the State Theater today and tomorrow.

In the title role is Gary Cooper, the young westerner, who first gained nation-wide prominence through his superb acting in "The Legion of the Condemned." As Major Hendrix of the French Foreign Legion, Cooper has greater opportunities than ever before, and he handles these opportunities in an excellent manner.

Evelyn Brent plays the part of the girl, Mary Vanbrugh. She is a veteran in pictures, although young in years and has been before the public as a star for several years.

Local movie fans will remember her recent triumph with George Bancroft in "The Drag Net."

William Powell, famous screen villain, Noah Beery, Mitchell Lewis and Arnold Kent make up the big supporting cast.

"Beau Sabreur," tells in a vivid and thrilling manner, the story of a handsome young French officer who solemnly vows never to look at another woman—then he meets one and falls desperately in love with her while on a mission for his country. It is a story of the Foreign Legion and the Sahara desert, filled to the utmost with ten-drama and moments of comedy, plus a generous amount of thrills and action.

The associate feature for today and tomorrow is a sparkling story of the Broadway night clubs. It is called "Ladies of the Night Club," and presents Ricardo Cortez in the stellar role.

The story centers chiefly around a handsome young scion of wealth, who becomes suddenly infatuated with a pretty little dancer in a cabaret. Situations develop in such a fashion that the young man soon finds out that the girls who work in night clubs just to entertain the pleasure-seekers, are not as bad as they are painted.

A superlative cast supports Cortez in this production. Thursday and Friday brings to the State another pair of splendid film features. They are "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," the famous Anita Loos story, and "Lady Raffles."

WAPPING

Wapping Grange will hold its eleventh regular meeting at the Wapping Center school hall this evening and it is to be Gentlemen's Night. The committee in charge of the program is as follows: Chairman, Thomas Heritage; Harley Newcomb, Ralph Wetherell, Walden Collins, Lucius Platt, Walter Battey, Phillip Evans, Joseph Krist and Arthur Sharp.

St. John's Day was observed by the Evergreen Lodge of Masons, A. F. & M. No. 114, by attending the Sunday evening service at the Federated church in a body, there being about thirty-six members present, who listened to a sermon by Rev. Truman H. Woodward who is also a Mason. There was a male quartet of Masons from Manchester Lodge who sang four selections, which was greatly appreciated by an audience of about one hundred. The church was very prettily decorated by a committee from the Masons.

D. W. Donahue and his friend Robert Coppins from Schenectady, N. Y., spent the week-end at his home here.

Frank W. Congdon, of Laurel Hill, who received the Master Mason degree at the special meeting of the Evergreen lodge last Friday evening, at their Temple at East Windsor Hill, was presented with a beautiful Masonic ring by the Masons who are employed at the State Capitol. At the close of the meeting they all enjoyed a supper of strawberry shortcake and whipped cream and coffee.

Miss Alice Spencer of Avery street spent the week-end at the home of Miss Doris Benjamin.

Edgar J. Stoughton and family spent the week-end at their cottage at Black Point and Miss Irene Buckland accompanied them.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Spencer of Avery street and Mr. and Mrs. John Watson of Newington Junction motored to Milford last Sunday and spent the day as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bolites Browning of Bradenton, Florida.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service
by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED
VIRGINIA BREWSTER is in love with an artist, NATHANIEL DEAN, but she is tricked into promising to marry FREDERICK DEAN in one year if she fails to secure $10,000 that her father cheated him out of. BREWSTER had lost his fortune before his death and VIRGINIA is left destitute.

She dreams some of her jewelry and OLIVER CUTTER promises to invest the money for her. She seeks work without success. She discovers that DEAN is having her watched, and that he bribed the agency not to give her work. OLIVER gains her confidence and shows her attentions which NIEL resents, but then she does not like the familiarity with which his model, CHIRI, treats him.

VIRGINIA finally obtains a position she likes. After a while she is charged by CUTTER's wife with trying to alienate his affections. She appeals to him to explain, and demands an account of her investments. Then CUTTER confesses that he has not made a penny for her, but that she should give it to her if she will so leave with him.

She denounces him and leaves his office. Her company offers to send her on a voyage as a bride. She goes to the studio to ask NIEL's advice, but the presence of CHIRI spoils the evening.

The break between the lovers is further widened by NIEL's doubt of her after receiving a letter from DEAN setting forth the CUTTER charges and saying that VIRGINIA was merely dangling him on her line while she sought for money. She suffers in silence but a ray of hope comes from reading her father's diary.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLII
NATHANIEL maintained a strict silence in regard to Virginia's forthcoming voyage. He was convinced that she did not dread the separation. On the contrary he believed that she looked forward to the cruise as though it were a honeymoon trip—with a millionaire husband, he reflected bitterly.

Virginia's own manner was partly responsible for his opinion. She was eager, breathlessly eager, and whenever she spoke of it her eyes held a light that chilled Nathaniel with its clearly apparent anticipation.

"Guess you like the tropics," he said once, and Virginia started at the ardent quality of his voice. She gave him a searching look in an effort to see if there was anything in his face to justify her in hoping that he opposed her sailing.

But the mask she had come to know and apprehend had settled over his features and she could gain no inkling of his true feelings from his expression.

She believed he was indifferent. They were hopelessly ignorant of the reasons with each other, misunderstanding, misunderstanding, both playing a part. But they held on, each doing enough, showing enough affection, to avert a complete rupture. They dined together as formerly but parted soon afterward. There was no more discussion of money, of Oliver, or of their own future. The thought that Virginia's coming trip would be an answer to all those things was uppermost in the minds of both. There was no need to talk about the past.

Virginia knew that her fate would be definitely settled before her return as far as Frederick Dean was concerned in it, and Nathaniel thought that it would afford Virginia an opportunity to break off with him without a fuss if that was what she wanted.

It was a turning point in their lives, they knew, and they approached it with white-lipped pain when there was no one to observe its effect.

The steel of pride kept a mock smile on their faces when they were together and neither guessed what the other was suffering.

Virginia's boat sailed at noon one bleak day in November and Nathaniel was not present to bid her farewell. He had purposely gone on to the boat to avoid this moment. To Virginia it was a gesture of callousness.

But that night, after she had done her best to be an ideal hostess, she admitted in a moaning whisper to her pillow that she couldn't have endured the parting if NIEL had come to the boat.

She was very busy that morning, conscientiously trying to be faithful to her duties. As so many of her "guests" were under the influence of mal de mer she devoted her free time to visiting the steamers and ordering clipped beef and crackers with ginger ale, or champagne for those who preferred it.

The deck steward came to her to organize a shuffleboard tournament and the swimming pool attendants wanted ideas for the races they were scheduled to arrange.

A group of hardy husbands thought she ought to be around when the 10 o'clock bouillon was served on deck, and the dining-room steward wanted her help with the flowers.

Every steward and stewardess of the ship turned to her for instructions whether or not it lay in her line of duty to advise and assist them.

They were all under orders and a promise of a bonus to make the cruise a memorable one and they knew Virginia Brewster's background and that she represented the standard of hospitality the Blue Capella wished to establish on the Agena.

There was little time for Virginia to think of her own troubles. For as she began to make acquaintances among the passengers she found that not a few of them expected to make her a repository for tales of woe that they considered very dreadful but which caused Virginia to smile.

Trouble with servants! Trouble with obesity! Trouble with the sources of supply and what vile stuff it was when you got it!

Virginia listened politely but always got away as soon as she could. She was grateful at these times for her many and varied duties that afforded her pretexts for excusing herself.

By the time they reached Cuba and steamed into the historic harbor of Havana she had recovered from the first pain of Nathaniel's failure to bid her bon voyage. Her chief emotion now was one of agonized suspense. Would she find "Oddy" Leigh? And if she did would he help her?

It set her frantic when some of the passengers remarked that they wished the Agena would stay in the harbor a few days longer than the itinerary called for and spoke of asking the captain to make the change.

Haiti would be their next stop. Any unnecessary delay in getting there would be unbearable for Virginia. Her limit of endurance was already reached by the extra demands made upon her time and strength while they were in Havana.

On the last night in port there was a roof dinner given to the captain. The guests of honor showed a decided disposition to monopolize the attentions of the ship's hostess and so Virginia found herself compelled to dance with an old seadog whose steps might have been perfect on a heaving deck but impossible to follow on land.

She was sure it pleased certain of the crew to see her so disposed of and accordingly made no effort to induce him to choose another partner. It was his night and he knew it.

But it filled her heart with sadness to be whirling around in his arms under the low-hung moon and brilliant stars of a land that was fashioned for romance.

If only she could close her eyes and imagine she was dancing with NIEL! But when she tried this she always got her toes stepped on, and the illusion, if it had existed, was instantly dispelled.

It was a very gay crowd, except for those who had walked too much in the tropical sun and drunk too much beer at the Tropical Gardens.

The roof was a garden of palms and flowers and the delicately colored buildings of the city below stretched out to a moon-shimmering sea like a water color painting.

The beautiful evening dresses the women wore and the white dress suits the men had donned were in perfect harmony with the scene, but Virginia wished she could stand a moment at the parapet and be alone with the spirit of beauty that hovered over the city.

There was laughter; there were toasts, stories and music. And far away, under a cold northern sky, a man tramped for miles and miles in a great city's midtown park and thought of a ship at sea with a girl whose world was laid down in worship at the feet of Mammon.

And it was all so futile, he thought. For what could she buy to match the jewels of the sky? Gems were only to look at. Why did men lay down their lives to had but to walk out into the night and look upward to see the greatest gem collection human eyes could behold?

And a daisy in a window box could mean more to a happy heart than a crown of roses to a miser, Nathaniel knew. He was unable to believe that a mortal could be happy who loved material things more than his soul, and anyone who thought he could was due, to make a sad discovery, he added in his mind.

"I'd lost her because she loved someone else I could still respect her," he thought bitterly. It had cost him dearly to discover, as he believed he had, that Virginia lacked appreciation of her soul. She had been a shining light of truth and beauty to him, an inspiration, and now she had turned his heart to a lump of mud.

His mural work was suffering. The face of his central figure was taking on a hard, worldly expression that Nathaniel, kindly as he ruled him, felt he could not correct. And he could not.

He was working now on a contract he had received as a result of his success with his first serious endeavor in art. It was a bad time for him to lose faith in mankind. . . . the one person he could really stake his life upon as being real was NIEL.

His bitterness was reflected in his work. It was driving him to distraction, for when he could not lose himself in his work he could not forget Virginia, even for a moment.

Sleep had departed and he was haggard and disheveled. His only measure of solace was found in tramping through the streets from dusk to dawn, as he was doing now, finally returning to the studio to drop exhausted and fully clothed upon his bed.

ChirI assiduously thrust her sympathy upon him, persisting in spite of his rebuffs, until he paid no further attention to her.

While he tramped, and followed a far-off ship with poignant longing, this girl who had patiently stalked the man she wanted, was waiting, knowing that sooner or later the night would come when he would return before dawn and feel the need of someone who could understand.

HEALTH IS FIRST

Upon Physical Well-Being Depends Child's Character, Says Mrs. Barton.

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
Back of character training is habit training, and back of habit training is health. The whole thing begins with the baby.

The physical habits and mental development of a baby are so closely related at the beginning of his interesting career that it is necessary to lay more emphasis upon his bodily care than upon his behavior.

Instinct governs him entirely—he knows when he is hungry, or sleepy, or uncomfortable, from the beginning. In a few short weeks he will get the things that will make him comfortable.

It is bad business, however, to allow a baby to get to the stage where he has to cry for things before he gets them. If he is comfortable he will not cry. His life should be run on schedule, and his wants anticipated. Not for one day, but for all days. Nothing should interfere with his regular routine of eating, sleeping, bathing, airing, or other needs. But it is bad business to allow him to get into the habit of crying for things he does not need.

We must get over thinking of him as "only the baby." Really he is the most important member of the family and should be treated as such. The highest percentage of deaths among babies occur in the first year. Intelligent care has reduced the figures in the last few years. However, constant vigilance is necessary. A baby cannot be systematically bathed, fed, aired and all the rest of his regimen carefully attended to one day, and be carelessly neglected the next. He is just as susceptible to cold or bacilli from an unclean bottle one day as he is another. He never should be left to an untrained, indifferent, or too young nurse. Constancy and consistency are the watchwords for his safety.

Clothes for a new baby should be simple, soft, plain, and easily washed. No embroidery is necessary. Enough changes of clothing should be provided, if possible, to keep him immaculately clean at all times. No ruffles or gathers or things difficult to iron—indeed ironing, except for appearance, is not absolutely essential to a baby's laundry. But all clothes should be washed thoroughly, rinsed thoroughly with hot water, and dried thoroughly before using.

If a baby is artificially fed, his bottles must be washed, in warm suds, rinsed thoroughly and then boiled for half an hour. Bottles must be boiled too. This destroys germs that breed in the milky film left inside. It may look clean and yet be dangerous. Only boiling can make it pure.

If possible, the mother should nurse the child. One thing science has not been able to do is make a food quite as perfect for young babies as mother's milk.

NEXT: Prime factors in baby care.

MARYE and MOM Their Letters

Marye, dear:
I suppose I was foolish to feel so upset about your taking a job as a model, particularly since Alan does not mind and since it amuses you so.

My feeling I suppose, is this: that if a married woman gives her job of homemaking to another, and goes out to work herself, it ought to be at something important—more important, at least than what she is giving up.

And just showing clothes all day seems so trivial to me. And I can't help feeling that there are lots of girls in the city, who really need to support themselves, who should have these jobs, rather than two girls such as you and Miss Smith who are amply provided for and are merely amusing yourselves by working.

One hears so much about unemployment and the difficult times in cities that it is easy to understand why they resent this competition from women who do not have to consider wages, and who can, if you say, walk out on a job at any time it becomes a bore.

If it causes you to appreciate your home more, and makes it possible for you to welcome a quiet evening, however, I ought to make no objections. And I do not.

Tell Alan I am sending a box of preserves, all nicely labeled, for his particular benefit, and that he may do as he likes about sharing them. And I'm going to have more for you later on as the other berries come in season. I have so much time now that I really love to fuss with this sort of thing.

I think you may expect Florence back most any time, since she has about convinced her mother that life here is impossible for her. She wants to have a little apartment of her own, she says, where she can devote herself to the development of her career without the cramping influences of her family.

Have you written to her that you are modelling? I have said nothing to her about it. She is such a gossip, and people here will think it very strange that you are working. It will reflect on Alan. So I think it is best not to start any conjectures. They never would understand your attitude.

Are you planning to come home later in the summer? Everyone is anxious to see you and you will disappoint them dreadfully if you don't—so say nothing of how I shall miss you. Perhaps you would like to be here for the fair week that will be the first of September. But any time that will suit you will be splendid for me.

Devotedly,
MOM.

EMOTIONAL REACTIONS AFFECT OUR BODIES
By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Specialists in medicine are realizing more and more the necessity for keeping in mind the effects of emotions upon the body when studying not only mental diseases but even the tremendous number of cases that are included under the headings of heart disease, digestive disease, and constitutional disorders.

The importance of psychic factors is recognized, for instance, in the statement that when there is a sudden break in the stock market a large number of men suffer temporary symptoms of diabetes. Sudden stress or worry produce a prompt rise in the sugar output of the body.

Worry and Indigestion
Dr. J. S. McLester has reported many cases in which the first appearance of digestive symptoms took place following social reverses, business worries, or sex disturbances. The diagnosis was made primarily on the appearance of an unusual intensity of interest by the patient in his symptoms.

In such cases very careful examination, including all of the refinements of modern diagnostic methods, served to assure the patient that there was nothing organically wrong with him, whereas as the worry as to the physical condition promptly disappeared.

Dr. N. B. Foster has reported a variety of mental disturbances associated with diseases of the heart, including disturbances of sleep, hallucinations, and occasionally the development of delirium relative to persecution. In many instances people with a slight degree of physical disability use the comparatively mild symptoms as an excuse for persistent failure to adjust themselves to the demands of their environment.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

I went to the grocery store the other night. It was the night before a holiday, which is why the store was open in the evening. It is a little bit of waiting in line, and said divers uncomplimentary things about the servant problem, the expected company and the impossibility of getting in the order on time and the very, but there was no line. The clerks tumbled over themselves in an endeavor to be useful. There was no more sign of a summer holiday in this store than a pair of rhinoceri with gold-filled tusks.

"Had a busy day, I suppose?" I attempted to make the conversation with the clerk. "Just an ordinary day," he said. "Didn't really do as much business as on Monday." Then warming up to his theme and his grievance, he went on:

"Holidays don't mean anything to the grocery store any more. People don't go on picnics, and they don't even eat at home. It's the car; everybody gets in the car and drives to some hotel or farmhouse or roadhouse or inn which has a reputation for good food. The grocery man's out of luck."

It is one of those conditions, of course, which most everybody just takes for granted, and never is moved to wonder upon. But some of us who were born and reared in the holiday picnic habit can no more think of Fourth of July and Decoration Days and Labor Days without a picnic basket than we can imagine Christmas without snow and holly wreaths.

Just as everybody else in the world may "eat out" on holidays, but we fuss and stew and tire ourselves out and buy and pack and worry over whether we've forgotten the salt and the squeezed lemon, just to sit down under an oak tree and munch sardines and hard boiled eggs and cold ham sandwiches and pickles and cheese and potato salad and cold baked beans and bananas and oranges and cookies and lemonade. Thus endeth the day's bill of fare!

It is foolish, as the grocer himself admitted.

"I don't blame people," he said. "You can buy a meal nowadays as cheap as you can get it yourself, and the women folks need a day off." Which explains the situation beautifully. To me, a newspaper

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Here after, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

To encourage bidding on the part of your partner is the primary purpose of the opening bid. Your opening bid conveys a partial description of your hand that partner can use to excellent advantage.

Suits in the order of their encouragement are as follows:

Risko Looms Favorite On Eve Of The Battle

Godfrey Has Weight But Lacks Punch; Expect Record Crowd at Tomorrow's Bout at Ebbets Field.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, June 26—It is to be hoped that nothing further will interfere with the proceedings, scheduled now for tomorrow evening, whereby it is possible we will be well rid of an insufferable bore. Usually, this type is evoked pointedly and with all haste, both socially and professionally, but George Godfrey, the negro heavyweight, enjoys an immunity that is denied all others of his petiferous breed. They don't avoid George. They pay to see him.

Therefore, a reasonably generous outpouring of the populace, may be looked for at Ebbets Field tomorrow night when Godfrey will be tossed in with Johnny Risko for ten rounds and the writer sees, in the prospect, only the coming of an apparent evil. He wants as many as possible to know Godfrey for what he is and he thinks Risko is just the demonstrator needed.

A great towering black, with the torso of a hindo god, Godfrey has a physical heritage that few men know. Given the fighting instinct of Dempsey, the body of Godfrey probably would reign supreme through the ages. Instead, he is just a human negative. You don't hurt him much. He hurts you even less. In spite of his great strength, he hasn't mastered the trick of bashing another on the nostril with any consequence nor does he seem to have any great stomach for the life he has professed.

I understand they like him in Los Angeles. If that is so, there is no accounting for the trick of bashing the best o. my knowledge, he hasn't made a good fight in the east and in all truth, he has had full many a chance. They say Godfrey hurt his Los Angeles reputation just a bit in his fight with Paulino. In consequence, there seems to be an excellent chance that he will be discontinued and abated tomorrow night, for Risko has more on the ball than Paulino showed in these parts.

Call Off Velodrome Fight for Fear of Rain; Then Sun Shines; Suburban Fans Not Notified.

The Herald regrets the disappointment caused any Manchester boxing fans who went to the Hartford Velodrome last night expecting to see King Tut and Lope Tenorio stage their twelve round tussle only to learn that the program had been postponed.

The card was postponed at some time about noon by Matchmaker Art Greaney. He claimed that "it looked as though it might rain" and that the wet weekend had left the arena in no condition for a boxing affair. However, the sun broke through early in the afternoon and clear skies prevailed toward dusk. In the opinion of local sportsmen, the move was entirely too hasty.

Furthermore, no notice of the postponement was sent to The Herald by the officials in charge; consequently the misleading information in last night's issue. The Hartford Times was given the news, but apparently the out of town dailies were overlooked. The result was many persons were caused the inconvenience of making a trip to the Velodrome; something for which The Herald was not responsible.

The Community Club will play Meriden in a state league encounter at the West Side field Friday night. The team will also play home Sunday but the opposing team will not necessarily be a league team, no such game being scheduled.

The protest which the Bon Ami lodged against the North Ends in a twilight league game in which the latter team used Ab Lupien and Nino Boggioli, ineligible players, has been upheld by President Joseph Wright and the game ordered replayed. The protested Talcottville Heights game resulting from a disagreement over the length of the game, has been decided in favor of Talcottville.

The boxing bouts scheduled for the Hartford Velodrome last night, but postponed when the promoters feared another rainy night only to have the sun shine during the afternoon with the moon and stars shining brightly at night, may be held Friday night.

The Community Club junior team beat Wapping in the Midget League last night 8 to 3.

One of the players recently dropped from the high school baseball team because of playing with an outside team, says he has umpired games this year in which players from other high school teams have played in violation of the rule.

The Aces are without a game for Wednesday night and would like to play any team in the Community Club Twilight League. A practice session is in order for this evening at the West Side Oval at 6 o'clock.

Sammy Kotesch, who has just joined the Community club is due to start hitting Friday. In his first seven times at bat, he has failed to get a safe blow.

SCHOOLBOY BEATS PADDOCK!

One of the big surprises of the season came in the southwest Olympic trials at Los Angeles when Frank Wyckoff, Glendale high school boy, defeated Charley Paddock in the 100 and 200-meter races. In the picture above the youngster is shown beating Paddock by a yard in the 100-meter race in 10 3-5 seconds. His winning time of 20 4-5 seconds in the 200-meter race equaled Paddock's world's record. The sprint races were billed as the "Sprint of the Century" as Charley Paddock was expected to start but he could not enter the race because of physical disability.

FM FINE, HOW'S THE KING?

Complaining that government subsidies such as were awarded to the German, French and Swedish Olympic teams force real British amateurs to compete against professionals, W. H. Bailey, coach of the British Olympic team, says his boys have no chance to win at Amsterdam.

Commenting upon the American team, which he admits is financed by popular subscription like the British teams, he complains nevertheless as follows: "It is well known that some of the athletes who oppose us in the Olympic games are open to suspicion. In America, any brilliant young athlete, footballer, or boxer can get a free university education because competition between the varsities is so keen that it is a matter of advertisement to win the athletic contests. Those who are given facilities they could not afford to pay for are not really amateurs. They get free training and coaching and that would disqualify them under the strict English rules.

"Most of the British athletes who oppose these young men are forced to work and work hard, for a living. They can spare only a limited time for training, and I know, through my coaching duties this year, that many of them can get time off to go to Amsterdam only with difficulty."

Clever Tactics Needed at Net

By George M. Lott, Jr.

ARTICLE 17

The net game requires clever tactics and keen anticipation to be effective. The advance to the net is really the finishing touch to a long rally.

If a player comes into the net and is successful he owes his success in nine cases out of ten to the fact that he has put his volley away. Of course there are phenomenal volleys like Vincent Richards who can advance to the net on most any kind of a shot and still win the point. But the average volleyer has to pave his way carefully.

Against most players the best time to come into the net is after a forcing shot to their backhand, or if the player has an exceptionally strong backhand his forehand would be the most advantageous to attack. A general rule is to force the weakness of your opponent with only an occasional shot to his strong point to keep him from covering up his weakness.

After getting to the net on a forcing shot it is still necessary to have speed on your volleys. If, when getting to the net, you soften your shot you lose the advantage you have gained by getting there. The volleys should be punched to the corners and aggressiveness maintained until the point is over. It is best to chop the volley. A block volley is less effective especially against a shot that has spin on it, because the minute a ball with spin hits the racket its spin takes effect and the only way to nullify this spin is to impart spin to the ball on your own shot.

The main thing, though, is to pick the proper time to go in and when you do go in keep forcing. (Copyright, 1928, NEA Serv., Inc.)

Depot Square Beats Highland Park; Green Scuttles Heights 10-0; Wilson Goes Good as Bon Ami Drubs Gibson's Garage 14-4; Brennan Gets Five Hits; Games Next Thursday.

Frank "Woody" Wallett is well known in baseball circles hereabouts as a catcher but last night he was on the starting end of the battery for the Depot Square team and pitched a no-hit, no-run game, narrowly missing retiring every one of the twenty-one batters who faced him. Highland Park was the team that found his delivery so ultra-puzzling.

The game, one of the three played in the Community Club Twilight League, was a pitchers' battle between Wallett and Kissan. Depot Square won only five hits of the later and won by the scant margin of 1 to 0. It was easily the best performance was far and above the outstanding individual contribution.

The only run of the game came in the fifth inning when "Mac" Macdonald singled to center, raced to third when Catcher Nichols overthrew second as he was stealing and scored on Tyler's single. Wallett retired sixteen on strikes, nine in a row. Jimmy McKay was the only Highland Park man to get on base. He walked in the first, stole second, but got no further. The box score:

SUITS FOR EVERY ROOM

Three of our newest 1923 models—speaking of models would you expect your family or ask your friends to ride down Main street with you in a car as old as the furniture in your home? A personal question, but a fair one. You cannot expect to do with happiness in the home as an atmosphere of cheer, comfort and up-to-date surroundings that remind them of the war. You can buy new quality furniture at Holmes Bros. Furniture Co. on the same easy credit terms that you bought the car—and a liberal trade-in allowance will be made on your old model furniture as part payment on new. Fed perfectly free to talk the matter over with us here. Always welcome to look around.

crashed on the morning of May 25. Apparently the second rescue was made in the same manner as that of Noble, but dispatches telling of it made no mention of the identity of the rescue party.

General Noble also discussed with the pilots his plans for the rescue of the ten other members of the dirigible's crew who were separated from his party. Three of these set out, out over the ice floes to search for aid. Noble gave the pilots details of the route they planned to follow.

The other seven were carried aloft with the gas bag of the Italia when the crash occurred and were separated from the rest of the crew. Noble described the direction which the bag took before it disappeared from view.

Meanwhile, relief workers con-

When a girl uses rouge, she hasn't the face to deny it.

WATER GOLF FOR PUGILISTS.

It's better to GIVE than to TAKE—in the prize ring, particularly—but in later golf there isn't so much difference between the two. Par is four and one solution is on another page.

Word puzzle grid with the words GIVE and TAKE.

THE RULES 1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

The goose had been carved and everybody had tasted it. It was excellent. The negro minister, who was the guest of honor could not restrain his enthusiasm.

THE TINYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The Tynmites jumped off to the beach. The monkeys scampered. They soon were pecking out between the branches of some trees.

SENSE and NONSENSE SKIPPY

Two darkies who were discussing the relative merits of the sun and the moon said: "De sun am de bes'; dey can't be no doubt about that," said Sambo.

A Negro Cook explains her family affairs to her white mistress as follows: "Yas'm, I got five chillun; I had two by mah fus husband, an' one by dis Sambo husband I got now—ana' den I had two by mahself."

Negro Jelly Bean: "Did ya git dem flowers I sent ya?" Negro Flapper: "I didn't git nothin' else!"

A colored lad met the owner of a vicious bulldog on the street. "Boss," he said, "dat big dawg o' yours done chased me dis mornin' an' tuck away de most usefulest part o' mah pants."

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Frost and three children, of Huron, South Dakota, are guests of Mrs. Frost's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gardner of Cambridge street. They drove from Huron, a 1,500 mile trip, making several stops along the way to visit relatives.

A special meeting of the Manchester Green Community club will be held at the school Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Arthur Cook, her daughter, Miss Jennie Cook and nephew, Charles Luce of Tolland are enjoying an automobile tour of Maine. The Misses Irene and Frances Tibbets, teachers in local schools, accompanied them on the trip, returning home for the summer vacation.

Temple Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will observe past matrons and past patrons' night tomorrow evening at the Masonic temple. At 6:30 a supper will be served in the banquet hall under the chairmanship of Mrs. F. H. Jones. The initiatory work at the business session will be exemplified by the past matrons and past patrons.

Flowers for the annual flower mission of the W. C. T. U. tomorrow at Center church may be left there at 2 p. m. or after, or in the morning at Mrs. A. B. Mann's, 32 Linden street or Carter's market, Main street at Charter Oak.

Miss Esther M. Johnson of West Center street, a teacher in the Lincoln school, will leave this evening for Clear Lake, Minnesota, where she plans to spend the next two months with relatives.

Dr. Robert P. Knapp, medical director at Cheney Brothers, has returned from Minneapolis, Minn., where he has been attending the annual conference of the American Medical association, stopping en route for several days' observation at the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn.

They used to hold famous strawberry festivals in East Glastonbury years ago. In fact they always serve good suppers at that church and they are holding their annual strawberry supper in the church vestry Wednesday evening with salads, meat loaf, baked beans, shortcake and other good things. The first table will be ready at 6:30.

Dr. and Mrs. M. H. Squires of Woodbridge street have as their guest, Mrs. Squires' mother, Doctor Nettie Campbell of Davenport, Iowa.

A cottage prayer meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. John Kanehl, 111 Florence street, under auspices of the Church of the Nazarene.

Mrs. George F. Borst of Cambridge street is spending the week at her shore cottage at Point Woods.

EMERGENCY DOCTORS

Dr. A. B. Moran (Tel. 781-2) and Dr. Mortimer E. Moriarty (Tel. 2513) will be on emergency call in Manchester tomorrow afternoon.

The meeting of the Bazaar committee of the North Methodist church will not be held tomorrow evening as previously planned.

Miss Doris Osborn, for nine years in charge of the School of Household Arts in the Ninth School District, will teach domestic science and have charge of the cafeteria at the Farmington High School next year. She is leaving this district because that branch of school work has been discontinued with the abandonment of the Open Air School.

The eight members of the committee which has managed the weekly Saturday night dances at the Manchester Greer school will go to the City View Dance Hall on Leeney street next Saturday night for a sort of a social get-together.

Word has just been received of the death of Joseph Fleming of 50 Odin street, Portadown, Ireland. Mr. Fleming had been in poor health for some time and had been confined to his home for over five weeks. Death was due to heart failure. Mr. Fleming is survived by his wife, three sons and three daughters. Mrs. William J. Boyle and Joseph Fleming of 18 Pine street, South Manchester, are the only children in the United States.

MRS. TROTTER'S PUPILS IN PIANO RECITAL

Affair Held in Kindergarten of Lincoln School Yesterday.

More than 80 parents and children attended the closing recital yesterday afternoon at the Lincoln school, given by the piano pupils of Mrs. Harry R. Trotter. A program of some 20 odd solo, duet and trio selections was interspersed by violin music and dances. Vivian Little who gave violin solos was accompanied on the piano by her sister Doris. Betty Werner and Dorothy Schreiber danced the Highland Fling accompanied by Eleanor Werner.

Junior McKee won the prize among the boys for the greatest number of hours spent at the piano. Joseph H. Brown won two prizes, one for perfect attendance during the work in the forenoon. Those who assisted were Viola Weigold, Alice McKee, Hilda Glaman, Louise Janssen and Lucile Murphey.

The kindergarten, where the musicale was held was beautifully decorated with corseopsis, delphiniums and their flowers by a committee of the older girl pupils who did the work in the forenoon. Those who assisted were Viola Weigold, Alice McKee, Hilda Glaman, Louise Janssen and Lucile Murphey.

STATE STORE CLOSING SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Connecticut Chamber of Commerce Lists Towns in Which Regular Closing is Observed.

The Connecticut Chamber of Commerce has issued a summer store closing schedule for this state showing the afternoons on which stores throughout Connecticut will be closed during the summer months. A great many towns and cities do not observe any regular closing days and among those that do, Wednesday seems to have a preference.

Those towns and cities in which there is no closing agreement are: Brantford, Bridgeport, Clinton, Glastonbury, Groton, Guilford, Lakeville, Middletown, Milford, Mystic, New Canaan, New London, Niantic, Norwalk, Sharon, West Hartford, Windsor Locks and Winsted.

Both Willimantic and East Hartford close Wednesday afternoons during July and August while Manchester is listed as observing Wednesday afternoon closing the year round. In Hartford part of the stores close Wednesday afternoons and part of them Saturday afternoons. In New Haven most of the stores are closed on Wednesday afternoons and the specialty shops, opticians and jewelers close Saturday afternoons.

King David Lodge will hold a Memorial service Friday evening, June 29, at Odd Fellows Hall. Sunset Rebecca Lodge and the Shepherd Encampment have been invited to attend.

How well he Built WASHINGTON A. ROEBLING completed the building of the famous Brooklyn Bridge, which had been designed by his father. His span of life covered 89 honored years. Before crossing the "great divide" Mr. Roebling bridged his wishes for his heirs and their protection by means of a will which he took the precaution to have administered by an enduring institution like ours. It is our business to bridge these gaps between the "now and then" of human destiny. We see to it that the wishes men express in their wills are carried out to the letter and in a spirit of kindly human understanding. You have heard the expression, "Corporations do not die." That explains why you can so certainly count upon us to be here to act in your stead—and to give to the beneficiaries of your will the kind of service and the type of protection which you would want them to have. Let us tell you of the many personal services we have been privileged to do for the families of men who named us as executor and trustee under their wills. THE MANCHESTER TRUST CO. PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT" ABOUT EGGS Eggs are queer birds—potential birds. Sometimes not altogether potential. Tee-hee! But, jokes aside, they are queer, exceedingly queer, in the trade descriptions of them. We know a lot about the food business but, frankly, we don't know how many different kinds of fresh eggs there are. Fresh western means one thing and fresh Kansas means another and fresh York State another and there are fresh this and fresh that and some of them are a mighty long way from being what you mean when you ask for a fresh egg. But here is what is meant at Pinehurst by a strictly fresh egg: It's an egg that was laid never more than three days, usually not more than two, before it is delivered to you from this store. We get ours from only two sources—from Fred Luck at Hillstown and from Petritto's poultry farm in Rockville. So we know what we are getting and you know what you are getting. And what you are getting is an egg that is not only strictly fresh in the fullest meaning of the term, but was "fed" right. There are all sorts of ways of feeding hens and if you want to know whether the feeding affects the egg, go down to Noank and buy half a dozen eggs from one of those fishermen who keep hens and feed them on fish scrap. They may be new-laid within the hour—but unless you were brought up to that kind of eggs they'll turn your stomach over. Pinehurst eggs are "fed" for the perfection of new-laid egg flavor.
