But Darien Policeman Handcuffs Them to Auto and Recovers 95 Women's Dresses.

Darien, Conn., June 28.—Policeman Amos Anderson today battled three colored men, arrested them, recovered several thousand dollars worth of wearing apparel stolen from a Bridgeport shop, and notified Bridgeport police who had not known the robbery had taken place.

The prisoners are Edgar Orr, 27, a laborer, of 2412 Seventh avenue, New York; Walter Savage, 32, a laborer, of 1 Escombe avenue, New York; and Clifton Williams, a cook, of 231 West 149th street, New York.

The stolen goods, consisting of ninety-five women's dresses and five fur coats, were all mounted on hangers bearing the name of the Bon Tom Dress Shop, Main street, Bridgeport. Without the hangers, police had no later identification of the goods would have been a problem.

Stops Auto
Anderson, patrolling the Post road at 4:10 p. m., spotted a roadster going rapidly toward New York with three colored men squeezed into the front seat. He held them up and asked what was wrong with the car. "We lost the key," said the driver, Anderson found the key in a side pocket and as he unlocked the rumble seat cover, the lid sprang up, disclosing the wearing apparel.

Anderson ordered the men to return to the center of the village. Orr, driving, sprang at Anderson with a hammer, the policeman said, and Anderson met him with a blackjack, knocking him into submission.

Anderson then handcuffed two of the men to the sides of the car, with the third jammed between, covered them with a gun and had a restaurant keeper telephone for aid. In a few minutes the three men were in cells.

Later in the morning police of Bridgeport and Greenwich arrived here to look the men over and question them. "We lost the key," believe the three may have been implicated in a series of robberies there in the past few months that netted burglars thousands of dollars worth of merchandise, Bridgeport police think they may have been involved in robberies in that city before.

WALKER ADORES SOUTH, HE SAYS

New York's Jimmy Says Presidents Should Go There on Their Vacations.

Houston, Texas, June 28.—"This," said Mayor Jimmy Walker today as he looked over Houston from his 15th story Rice hotel window, "is a sweet spot."

"Do you know I've got to like Houston and the south so much since I've been here that I'm going to suggest to Gov. Smith just as soon as he's elected that he have a Fall White House down this way, just as the presidents lately have had Summer White Houses."

"That would be a smart stunt, if you ask me. It would be good for Al, good for the south and good for the whole country."

"It would be good for Al because it would give him a change, give him a sniff of good climate—not that there's anything wrong with our own climate or Washington's—and get him away for a while from a lot of fellows who are always chattering up Washington and taking up the president's time."

"It's one of the left handed breaks a man gets when he's made president—being nailed to a chair in Washington. Why pick a fellow for the biggest job we have and then make a prisoner of him for four years as a reward? No wonder Coolidge didn't want to be drafted. He meant he didn't want to be sentenced."

WISCONSIN STAGES A DEMONSTRATION

The Wisconsin delegation left no doubt in the minds of the other Democratic delegates at Houston about their choice for president. They are shown in the midst of a little rally for Al Smith.

KU KLUX KLAN BURIED BY DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Little Brown Derby Takes Its Place—Delegates Can Laugh Now Over Their Last Convention.

Houston, Texas, June 28.—The Ku Klux Klan is buried politically today beneath the multi-colored carnival confetti of the happy-go-lucky Democratic convention in history.

The rank of file of the party came to Houston disposed to believe the best of everyone, and harmony was in the air of sunny Texas. They brought more bands than ever have come upon a convention city in modern times and began forthwith to play "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," under the hotel windows as early as 4 a. m., and as late as five the next morning. They filled the air with "Ramona," "Highways are Happy Ways" and "My Blue Heaven" until it was just natural to laugh right out loud at the slightest provocation.

When they went into convention, the spotless white hood which was almost slipped over the head of the Democratic donkey at Madison Square Garden four years ago was handed back as a memento shroud and the spirit of the hooded night rider shimmered out of Sam Houston hall holding its ghostly shroud for laughter over the mournful funeral dirge of—

"East Side, West Side, All Around the Town."

AL SMITH LISTENS IN ON THE RADIO

With Party of 30, Governor Hears Himself Nominated at Houston.

Albany, N. Y., June 28.—Governor Al Smith last night heard, if he could not see, the demonstration at Houston when his name was placed in nomination for party standard bearer at the Democratic national convention, and his foremost thought seemed to be of the "First Lady" of the Empire state.

"They are crowding around his Smith's box," came from the big radio set up in the executive mansion, where the governor got his first-hand description of the convention.

"Crowding around Mrs. Smith's box," he reported to his daughter Emily, now Mrs. John A. Warner, wife of the superintendent of state police. There was a boyish grin upon his face.

Suddenly for the first time in the riotous demonstration the sound of a band came through the ether blaring for the old familiar tune "The Sidewalks of New York." It was being played at that moment in slow waltz tempo. With another and broader grin the governor swung into a typical Bowery waltz step, ending with a slow side kick which would have won the approval of any Broadway dancer.

In Serious Mood
Then in a moment he was serious again. Now he was leaning close over the radio, as he remarked softly to his daughter: "If we only had television now"

HARMONY RULES CONVENTION AS THE NOMINATIONS CONTINUE

Dry And Farm Planks Satisfy Both Sides

Houston, Texas, June 28.—A publican Party for its failure to enact remedial legislation. In sharp contrast to the bitter fights which have rocked the Democrats in the past, the long meeting of the drafting committee of four members was peaceful and harmonious.

It was the most pleasant and harmonious meeting of the kind I've ever attended," said Pittman. "They are the finest bunch of fellows I've ever sat down with. There were no fights, no harsh words—we merely dealt throughout the night with language and phraseology."

He expressed himself as satisfied with the prohibition and farm planks. "It is one of the best platforms I've ever seen," he added. "It is not half as long as the Republican platform adopted at Kansas City."

The prohibition plank was the last approved by the committee. At the outset three different prohibition proposals were submitted: (1) Repeal of the 18th Amendment and modification of the Volstead laws by Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, and (2) a law enforcement plank, by the harmony seekers.

LONG JOURNEYS OF G. B. THAYER END IN DEATH

Widely Known Traveler, Cyclist, Hiker, Dies by Roadside at Manchester Green Today.

George B. Thayer, one of the best known men in the vicinity of Hartford and having a state wide acquaintance, globe trotter, newspaperman, lawyer, judge and war worker, was found dead on the north side of Middle Turnpike opposite the home of Lafayette Robertson at Manchester Green at 11:15 o'clock this forenoon.

Mr. Thayer, clad in knickers, tight fitting jacket and carrying a small satchel and a sun umbrella, had been on a hike. He had been visiting his son in Putnam for a few days and it was his custom to do much walking. It is supposed that he was making his way back to his home in West Hartford, walking along the state highway.

At Bolton, near the Rainbow Inn, he passed Nichol Donsbach of 1029 Albany Ave., Hartford, whom he knew, and they exchanged salutes.

Robinson's decision to avoid entering the vice presidential race and when he is defeated for the presidential nomination virtually assured the nomination of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas second place honors. With Robinson receiving the solid support of the overwhelmingly powerful Smith organization, his nomination appeared as matter-of-fact as that of the New York governor himself.

SMITH IS CALLED "HAPPY WARRIOR"

Franklin D. Roosevelt Nominates His Personal Friend for the Third Time.

Houston, Texas, June 28.—"Victory is his habit—the happy warrior!"

With this prophetic characterization, the name of Governor Alfred E. Smith was presented the Democratic national convention by one of his closest personal friends and political allies, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It was the third time Roosevelt had placed Smith's name before the quarennial assembly.

"The faith which I held, I still hold," he said, in recalling his eight years fight to win the presidential nomination for the man who was the boy of the sidewalks of New York.

The speech was short, uttered in crisp ringing sentences remarkably free from bombast and high oratory.

"Between him and the people is that subtle bond which makes him their champion and makes them enthusiastically trust him with their loyalty and their love."

With that unadorned keynote Roosevelt presented Smith as a new Lincoln and a new Wilson.

"It was Lincoln's human heart, and Woodrow Wilson's passionate desire to bring about the happiness of the whole world which will be best remembered by the historians."

Follows Bowers' Lead
Roosevelt followed the lead of the temporary chairman, Claude Bowers in assailing the "crass materialism" of Republican prosperity.

Flood of Oratory Drenches Perspiring Delegates as Favorite Sons are Named—Cheers Every Time Smith's Name is Mentioned—Platform Agreed Upon to Satisfaction of All Factions, is Latest Report.

Sam Houston Hall, Houston, Texas, June 28.—Peace and harmony, long strangers at Democratic conventions, loomed large over Sam Houston Hall today as the weary delegates trooped back in the hot Texas sunshine for several hours more of oratory before adopting the platform and selecting a ticket agreed upon in advance.

As the session got under way it appeared certain that the platform which leaves tomorrow for the ratification of Gov. Al Smith's nomination and the selection of Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas as his running mate.

The accomplishment of this program would make this the shortest Democratic national convention since 1916, when the Democrats, then in power at Washington, met at St. Louis and merely endorsed Woodrow Wilson for another term.

The intense heat that had billowed and eddied about the big auditorium all this week was relieved somewhat today by a strong gulf breeze.

For the first time since the convention opened the flags that decorate it profusely were waving about.

Again, however, the delegates took their time about arriving. The prospect of listening to more of the hours' more of nominating speeches—when everybody knows that it is futile—apparently did not appeal much to either the delegates or the visitors, for five minutes before the hour of convening there were few in the hall.

A succession of singers relieved the tedium of the early arrivals. Four names—Gov. Al Smith of Indiana, Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, Jesse Jones of Texas, Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, although the Ohioans have already decided to make Gov. Smith's nomination certain on the first ballot by giving him the bulk of their votes if he needs them.

That Platform
The glad news was circulating about the platform builders had pretty well succeeded in ironing out their differences. Everybody appeared in a good humor—even the pessimists who came to Houston fearing a repetition of Madison Square Garden, and a split on the prohibition issue.

At 10:35 o'clock, although only a third of the delegates were present, Senator Joe Robinson decided to inject some efficiency into the convention, at least in the matter of starting time, and he called the convention to order. It was the only session of the convention thus far that has got under way anywhere near the hour fixed.

The invocation was delivered by the Rev. J. Frank Smith, pastor of the First M. E. church of Houston. The delegate sections were filling up rapidly as the prayer was finished, although whole blocks were empty.

The roll call of states for the continued presentation of names for the residency proceeded.

Maryland sent to the platform her three-time governor, Albert C. Ritchie. The band went off into "Maryland, My Maryland," and the handsome chief executive received a great ovation.

Gov. Ritchie seconded the nomination of Gov. Smith, in whose favor he withdrew his own candidacy some days ago.

"It is a privilege to second the nomination of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York," said the governor, and the Tammany delegation let out a yell.

"I am here to speak of the creed of a man. It would not have mattered what environment surrounded Alfred E. Smith, for he would have been a great man under any condition."

Gov. Smith is living proof that Democracy can present leaders that are simple and yet great."

Praises Smith
Ritchie paid high tribute to Gov. Smith's personal government and desirable he did not believe any group of people could sit down and talk with the New York governor "and not vote for him," afterward.

"That is true of the people in the north, south, east and west," said the Maryland governor. "I come from the south myself."

"He fulfills the expectations of every Democrat who demands a leader that is all man."

Ritchie took a shy tribute at Herbert Hoover when he declared "you can never have a government that is demoralized, and conducted by so-

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF THE SITUATION

Houston, Texas, June 28.—Here is a bird's eye view of the situation in the Democratic convention today.

Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York seems a certain victor on the first ballot.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, permanent chairman of the convention, holds a commanding lead in the race for vice-presidential honors.

A resolutions sub-committee finally agreed upon a tentative platform after nine and one-half hours of wrangling. The sub-committee presents its report to the full committee this morning and it is probable the platform will be reported to the convention this afternoon or tonight.

Smith, George, Agnes and Woolen have been placed in nomination. Cordell Hull, Senator James A. Reed and others will be placed in nomination this afternoon. The convention probably will come to an end either Friday night or Saturday morning.

Called automatic efficiency experts, and the convention applauded. "I present a man with a living, human, pulsating heart as well as a brain," said Ritchie.

Humble Origin
"Fate decreed for Gov. Smith beginnings which were humble, but would not have mattered had she decreed them to be otherwise. It would not have mattered what environment she had cast around him, what path of life she had laid out for him, or what obstacles she had placed in his way. She would have placed in them a man, and he was destined to realize to their fullest and richest degree the possibilities of America as the land of opportunity."

"Grover Cleveland said the whole art of government is applied common sense and a man with a honesty, with reason, justice and tolerance as handmaids.

"I need not recount his achievements, or dwell on the high purposes and character which move him always, or on the globe which he has won for the highest office in the world."

"I need only say this: Gov. Smith is not only the choice of millions of his fellow Democrats, but he fulfills the aspirations and the hopes of the American people who demand a leader who is all man."

"The Republicans have made their choice. They offer you the embodiment of standardization, centralization and specialization. But they have forgotten human rights."

"I present to you in the name of the State of Maryland, where for 300 years we have both preached and practiced concord and amity, ordered liberty for the individual, local self-government and religious freedom and toleration for all creeds."

Well Delivered
Ritchie's speech was forcefully delivered, and with evident sincerity, for he is a warm personal friend of Gov. Smith. At its conclusion, the convention gave him a rising ovation, with the New York and Maryland delegations leading.

When Massachusetts was reached on the roll call, Andrew J. Peters, former mayor of Boston, came forward and also seconded the nomination of Gov. Smith.

"The selection of a man for this high office should be made because of his contribution to the citizenship of this country, unaffected by extraneous considerations," said Peters.

"At each great national convention we vindicate afresh our theory of Democracy for the future by demonstrating that we are ready to apply our Democratic ideals at a time when the leadership of the nation is involved. Nothing so makes for coherency in our national life as to prove to our own people and to all the world that true Americanism is tested by character and capacity, by fitness to carry on the traditions of this country, and by these alone."

"As a direct descendant of those who were among the early settlers of this country, I deem it a duty to renew the faith of the pilgrims. I know no better way in the fact that I faith than conditions can make possible such a career of Gov. Alfred E. Smith and to recognize that he represents in himself the best proof of American Democracy, and the best promise for the future."

Then came Minnesota to add its word of support for the Smith movement. Andrew Nelson of Duluth, spoke Minnesota's second to the nomination of the New York governor.

Minnesota's Praise
"Minnesota is usually regarded

JAPAN NO PERIL SAYS W. C. CHENEY

Back From Orient, Reports Success of Efforts for Better Raw Silk Grading.

The Silk Association of America last year appointed a committee known as the American Technical Committee to Japan, with William C. Cheney of Manchester as chairman...

The past few years the American manufacturers have had extreme difficulty in securing raw silk of a satisfactory grade, due largely to poor judging, on the part of the producers...

Not To Be Feared Silk at present is the big industry of Japan, Mr. Cheney said.

The report was accepted without comment. A report was given by two collectors, Louis Lane, who was the collector in 1923, and the collector in 1924, reported that he had received a total of $2,958.77...

Richard Manning who was collector in 1923-1924, reported that there was seventeen liens on the list for those two years, one for 1923 and 1 for 1924, which totaled $8,233.

The treasurer's report showed that the receipts, with cash on hand, during the year had amounted to $455.09 and that the expenditures had been $438.74 leaving a balance on hand of $23.25 at the end of the year.

The report was accepted. This disposed of the business leading up to the election of officers. It looked for a time as though there might be no contest on the three members of the school committee...

For auditors James Rohan and Albert Swanson were named, the clerk casting the ballot.

that during the past year there had been some changes made in the school building. They included raising by twelve inches the slant of the skylight, replacing the frame with a heavier one and the installation of stained glass. The sidewalks of the rooms had been painted and in each room there had been built a small cupboard with shelves where the children could keep their lunch boxes.

The desks had been varnished and the floors oiled, but there was need of a new floor in the fifth and sixth grade rooms.

The first and second grade room, he said, was no longer necessary, he said, to leave lunchboxes on the floors, where dogs would sometimes come in and devour the contents.

A report of the hygienic conditions of the school as given him by Mr. Le Verne Himes, Mr. Palmer said, that the bubbles used were of a type that had been condemned by the State Board as a possible breeder of typhoid and they would have to be replaced.

The report concerning the need of walks about the school and the doing away with a dust condition in the basement of the school could, as far as the dust was concerned, be improved and would be, but the walks and school yard would have to remain as they are for a time, at least.

LODGES TO AID IN ARMISTICE PARADE

31 Represented at Meeting to Lay Plans for Big Anniversary Pageant.

Thirty-one Manchester fraternal organizations were represented at a meeting last night called by Clifford D. Cheney chairman of the Armistice celebration, parade committee. The meeting, which was held in Cheney Brothers' main office, was called to outline the American Legion post's plans for the celebration and to see the fraternal organizations to take part.

Clifford D. Cheney outlined the general plans for the big celebration, which will be held here on November 12, and stated that funds would be raised through popular subscription to cover the general expenses. He said that any expense of the fraternal organizations would have to be borne by them, however, because the subscriptions received in a campaign here will be for general expenses only.

The fraternal organizations were invited to participate in the parade either with groups or by entering floats. The floats are more desirable because a better showing can be made with them. Although nothing definite could be decided upon last night all the fraternal representatives were enthusiastic and believed that their respective organizations would enter into the project by that time so that the committee can proceed with plans for the celebration.

we could see your mother standing right up in the box there." There was the suppressed feeling of history in the making in the little group that gathered in the executive mansion last night to hear the governor's name placed in nomination. First the photographers, movie and still, had their innings, with dazzling Klieg lights set temporarily in the reception room.

A group of perhaps thirty occupied the chairs which had been set about the radio. Besides the governor and his daughter, there were Major Warner and his mother, Mrs. J. Foster Warner of Rochester, Rep. Parke Corning of Albany and Mrs. Corning, Chief William A. Humphrey and Charles M. Winchester, close personal and golfing friends, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, respectively, a political adviser, and members of the Governor's official family, and many newspaper men representing various papers in New York and Massachusetts.

Radio Stops. The photographers had just about finished their "shooting" when suddenly the radio stopped and several of the lights in the room went out. A fuse had blown. Everyone jumped. In a few moments the set was working again, and the governor suggested that the Governor's name be placed in nomination. First the photographers, movie and still, had their innings, with dazzling Klieg lights set temporarily in the reception room.

"I enjoyed Mr. Roosevelt's speech very much, and the demonstration, too." When for the first and only time the nominator mentioned the name of "Alfred E. Smith," a smile lighted the governor's face. His daughter was sitting on a low settee close beside her father. Her hand stole over and clasped his.

"Every once in a while it comes over you what a wonderful thing this radio is," said one of the newsmen to the Governor, as they sat listening to one of the second speeches.

"It is wonderful," said the governor, a fact on which he has frequently commented since the beginning of this convention. "Just think of it, in this same house Grover Cleveland sat and knew nothing about what that telegram telling him he had been nominated—not even a telephone wire."

ABOUT TOWN

A son was born last night at Miss Hollister's Maternity Home to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. McCann of Benton street.

THE HOUSTON "SIGN"

Nobody has ever accounted fully for the decision of the Democrats to hold their convention in Houston. Not even the presence of an enthusiastic financial angel in that city—an angel rejoicing in the celestial name of Jones—is fully acceptable to the inquiring mind as a sufficient reason for going to such a terrifically hot town in June.

Perhaps superstition had something to do with it. Sam Houston, after whom the city is named, did the greatest comeback in history. A Tennessee lawyer, he went to Congress from that state and became its governor. Then his wife quit him and he did a strange thing. He walked away from his gubernatorial office, loaded several score of barrels of booze onto wagons and trekked away into the wilderness, where he took an Indian squaw as his maid and lived for years in drunken sloth.

One day he quit that life, made his way to Texas, which was attracting American adventurers, became General Houston, led his force of frontiersmen in the war of liberation of Texas from Mexico, and when the Republic of Texas was formed became its President. When the Lone Star state was admitted to the American Union Houston became its first United States Senator and later governor.

He enjoyed the distinction that has never befallen to any other American of being governor of two states and also a member of Congress from two states, to say nothing of being president of a republic.

Unless the Democrats thought they saw, in the selection of Houston, a "sign" of a comeback against all natural betting odds, it is impossible to reconcile the picking of that torrid burgh as a summer convention city with any sort of sense, common or uncommon.

TWO-THIRDS RULE

The two-thirds rule, occasion of many a ruction in Democratic national conventions but in effect for almost a century in those gatherings, has a valid reason for existence that is not generally understood. It was instituted and has been adhered to in order to prevent the possibility of nominations being made by majorities of delegates which do not represent anything like majorities of the voters of the party.

Such a majority of the voters of the party. Such states as Vermont, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Illinois and others in which the preponderance of Republicans over Democrats is enormous, have precisely the same representation in Democratic national conventions as if the party strengths were reversed, the representation being two delegates for every electoral vote assigned to the state by law.

It can readily be seen, under this arrangement, that states which never by any possibility give their electoral votes to Democratic national candidates, might exercise an undue influence in the choice of nominees if a mere majority were allowed to prevail.

The Republicans have a different system which cuts down the number of delegates from hopelessly Democratic states and creates a sort of "bonus" of three delegates from any state that was carried by the party in the last previous national election.

Thus both parties attempt to keep the nominating strength measurably in the hands of delegates which represent election day strength. They do it in different ways but approach to some where near the same objective.

FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT

One of the most interesting figures in the Democratic convention at Houston is Franklin D. Roosevelt, nominator of Governor Smith. A man of broad culture and many public services, long assistant secretary of the navy under Wilson and himself vice-presidential candidate of the Democrats in 1920, illness, to some extent, and the play of political events, to an extent much greater, have combined to make him just the dependable, chronic nominator of Al Smith in Democratic national conventions. In intellect, in ideals, in the experiences of larger politics, in all-around capacity, Franklin Delano Roosevelt is vastly the superior of nine-tenths of the men and women who dominate the course and policies of his party. He possesses great personal charm and it is doubtful if in the entire party organization there is a single individual who is more sincerely liked by more people on the sheer basis of personal knowledge and acquaintance.

Yet it is only when the New York Democracy appreciates the necessity of demonstrating that it is not entirely made up of "dis, dat and dose" elements that Franklin Roosevelt is trotted out to represent the finer things as a party decoration.

ROADS You can't eat your cake and have it, too. You can't have roads under repair and fully open for use at the same time. If they are used they must be repaired, and it is our hard luck that no way has been found of doing roadwork successfully in any other season than the season when the highways are most in use. The consequence is that the greatest number of roads are closed to travel, or partially closed, just when they are most needed.

As the automobile traffic increases and better roads are provided, this problem is likely to become more and more intensified. It is improbable that we shall ever be able to construct roads that will be, in any true sense, permanent. We are asking more of the roads than any conceivable type of road can be expected to deliver—the withstanding of enormous loads traveling at extravagant speeds. Constant rebuilding and repairs appear to be inseparable from the situation.

The upcome is likely to be the realization that we must not only have enough roads for the traffic requirements, but "spares" in roads just as we carry spare tires on our cars—must build our more important highways in pairs, one to be open while the other is closed for rehabilitation. A "retire" system for the highways, the same as they have relief systems in industries where one gang spells another at some occupation too strenuous for regular service.

One has nightmares, in fact, in which the entire state of Connecticut is occupied by roads, with nowhere to put our houses and our factories and no place for the trees and crops to grow. Nightmares, however, seldom come 100 per cent true.

DOUSED

The New York World, which is a serious morning newspaper, does not care greatly about the kind of politics expressed in the Houston keynote speech of Claude Bowers, editorial writer on the New York Evening World, which is a somewhat flippant afternoon paper owned by the same interest as the Morning World.

"It is unbecome," says the morning paper, "to pretend that either party has a monopoly of either virtue or vice." Mr. Bowers' thunder-and-lightning speech roared and flashed at "Republican corruption." Such campaigning is "sheer partisan nonsense," says the World.

Well, if the rhetorically excellent ghost dancing of Mr. Bowers meets with that kind of a reception under what might be termed his own roof, of how much serious account is it likely to be in determining the choice of a President by the people of the United States?

Mrs. Bowers is not greatly to be blamed for going a bit loco over his own wit of expression. It is seldom that an anonymous editorial writer in this country gets a chance to hop into the spotlight. This one got his chance and went to it, with a bang. What could you expect of a young editor, trying to get along?

WASTAGE

We find some difficulty in finding, in the probable sacrifice of the life of Explorer Amundsen for the life of Explorer Noble, that compensation of spiritual accretion which just now it is the fashion to exploit. Examples of heroic sacrifice are always inspiring, to be sure. But is there the slightest reason to believe that Amundsen, fearless and self-forgetful as he has proved himself in this affair, or any of the others so gallantly fighting for the lives of the Noble party, would have taken his life in his hands so willingly to accomplish the rescue of some obscure individual in deadly peril in the ordinary routine of life?

It is the call of the clan, the fellowship of the pack, that has sent these men dramatically to the aid of their adventuring kin. Fine and impressive, the sheer physical courage that makes it possible for them to go. But it seems to us to have little to do with that deeper instinct of humanity that prompts a man to leap into a freezing current to save the life of a drowning stranger. Material advantage, scientific wisdom, personal reputations, may gain much from such adventures as these polar enterprises. But we fail to see that mankind as a whole is going to be greatly uplifted by recklessly adding to the list of the frozen dead.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

WAKEFULNESS.

In our present stage of evolution it is necessary for us to spend about a third of our time in sleep. Sleep seems to be a state of self-hypnosis, during which time the body is able to rest and the nerve cells store up strength very much as the radio battery is recharged during the night when it is not being used.

The inability to sleep is often purely mental. I have heard many patients say that they are sleepy until they go to bed, after which they are wide awake. If a person believes that he can fall asleep as soon as his head rests upon the pillow, he usually will but there are many physical causes as well as mental which keep a person from sleeping or getting rest even if they do sleep. Most of these can be traced to some type of toxin or stimulant which comes from the digestive tract.

One of the most frequently used stimulants which prevents sleep is coffee when taken late at night. Wrong combinations of food, leading to intestinal gas, is another type of irritation that prevents sleep. The next time that you suffer from insomnia which you know is due to every day mental causes, just tap your abdomen and see if it is not ballooned out with gas. This type of sleeplessness can almost always be over come by the use of a warm drink followed by a fairly warm enema. Once the intestinal tract has been cleared out, and much of the gas expelled, a person will be very apt to fall into a refreshing sleep.

The finest prescription for sleeplessness that a doctor can give is to recommend eating correct combinations of food, and the use of hard physical exercise. One who is tired from muscular labor has no problem of wakefulness. Sleep is absolutely essential to preserve our vitality. It gives strength to the kidneys and other organs; it keeps the blood pure and the brain clear. A person who does not have enough sleep is liable to retain the systemic poison in his body, and almost invariably will find such a person is constipated or suffers from cold, catarrh, or nervousness.

A congestion of blood in the head will prevent sleep, and in order to avoid this, one should take a few minutes of exercise before retiring. If the feet are cold, place a hot water bottle in the foot of the bed. Eight hours of sleep seem to be required by the average adult. Children require more sleep than this. It is important that children form the habit of retiring early.

If reading is to be done, it is much better to do it with the light of day rather than to use artificial light because the night is the natural time for sleep. I have never known of a case of insomnia that could not be cured by using a combination of treatments for removing internal irritation, increasing the physical exercise, and the use of the proper mental suggestions.

When next you are bothered with insomnia, try to concentrate your mind on your hands and feet, relaxing all of your muscles as if you intend to fall apart. If you can successfully imagine that your arms and legs are dead weights and that sleep is gradually approaching from the milk diet, or should I start on the milk diet at once without a fast?" Answer: It is generally a good plan to make a short fast on orange juice before starting on the milk diet, but if you suffer from any disturbances while taking the orange juice it would be safe for you to begin on the milk diet at once, taking four to eight ounces of milk every hour at first and then gradually increasing the amount of milk until you are taking three to four quarts daily. Be sure to take at least one banana a day while on this fast, as milk is constipating unless you take at least six quarts daily.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: E. W. L. writes: "I have a growth in my head, which has almost closed the air passage. I have to breathe through my mouth most of the time. Any dust causes me to sneeze, my nose to water, and my head to stop up so bad. I will appreciate anything you can advise to get relief." Answer: Most nasal growths can be cured through dieting. The trouble is generally that the membranes of the nose are inflamed and swollen by the irritations of toxins which are thrown out through the mucous glands. Local treatments to the nose are sometimes helpful, but the systematic cause must be removed if you are to expect a complete and permanent cure.

Question: Mrs. K. H. asks: "Should Melba toast be buttered?" Answer: Melba toast should be buttered as it is being eaten. By actual experience I have found that there seems to be some interference with the other foods eaten with Melba toast when the butter is allowed to melt on the toast as it is being made. This may sound a little unreasonable, but my advice is to butter each bit as it is taken.

ALL NIGHT SESSION FRAMING PLATFORM

Prohibition and Farm Relief Planks Not Decided Before Meeting.

Houston, Texas, June 28.—As the first gray glow of dawn streaked over the eastern horizon, 11 weary, heavy-eyed men sat huddled around a table in an upper floor of an office building today.

Shortly after 4 a. m., it was reported that the platform had been but two-thirds approved, with the troublesome prohibition and farm relief planks yet to be discussed. They were left to the last, for over them a serious fight was brewing.

No Hard Feelings. No hard feelings marked the session, as was the case when the drafting committee considered the dry plank in open hearings. There was a first fight between Senators Glass of Virginia, a Dry, and Tydings of Maryland, a Wet, was narrowly averted. Tydings objected to a characterization of Maryland by Bishop Charles J. Cannon of Richmond, W. Va., which jumped to Cannon's defense, Tydings rushed menacingly toward Glass, his arms flaying the air, but was stopped by Senator Blease of South Carolina.

The planks thus far approved by the sub-committee included the one on corruption. It was characterized as a "vicious attack" on the Republican party, along the lines sounded in Claude G. Bowers' keynote speech. Foreign relations, reclamation, finance and other party declarations were also approved.

Dry Plank. Both the Wets and Drys carried a fight to the committee over prohibition, the former demanding repeal of the 18th Amendment, and the Drys pressing for a plank calling for strictest enforcement of the 18th Amendment by name. From the tenor of remarks by committee members, it was indicated the dry plank would pledge the party to enforce all provisions of the constitution.

There was some wrangling over the language of the farm plank, but all leaders were agreed upon the necessity of promising the farmers more than the Republicans did at Kansas City. It was likely the equalization fee principle would be mentioned by inference, without naming the McNary-Haugen bill. The agrarian plank attacked the Republicans and called for a remedy of the needs of agriculture.

The tentative draft of the platform was presented to the committee by Senator Pittman of Nevada, chairman. Considerable time was spent in rearranging and rewriting some of the declarations.

Toward morning sandwiches and coffee were taken in to the members, who said they were prepared to sit continuously to finish the platform for the convention today.

DARK HOLLOW SECTION RATTLESNAKE BELT

Veteran Reptile Hunter Says Glastonbury Area is Infested With Poison Snakes.

Special to The Herald. Hebron, June 28.—George Cone, veteran rattlesnake hunter of the Dark Hollow district in Glastonbury, had a look of satisfaction on his face when interviewed yesterday in the vicinity of the "Ten Curves" on the Hartford-Marlborough road. He was suspending from one hand a four foot diamond back rattler which he had just killed back in the woods. The reptile was minus a head and Mr. Cone explained that in killing rattlers he was always careful to remove the heads completely and to bury them, as sometimes dogs get hold of the heads with serious results if left on the ground.

The snake, according to Mr. Cone, had been gorging on some kind of prey, and was easily killed owing to its somewhat torpid condition. He said that it was "full of venom, its cheeks sticking out like a chipmunk's from its mouth." Mr. Cone has spent much of his time hunting and trapping through the warm seasons but winters in Hartford. According to him the Dark Hollow region is a regular rattlesnake belt, there being thousands of the rattlers in the woods thereabout. He says that about huckleberry time the rattlers begin to get lively and are a menace to berrying parties. He has killed hundreds of these snakes and says he hopes to kill a great many more. He explains that the snakes work off their deadly venom to a considerable extent by their fights with each other. The specimen which he was exhibiting had nine rattlers. On shaking these a hollow, never-to-be-forgotten sound, as of bits of wood striking together was given out. Mr. Cone has never been bitten by one of these "snake-bites." He recommends plenty of whiskey for snake bites, explaining that the poison from the fangs so effects the action of the heart that a stimulant is necessary, otherwise heart failure would result. The alcohol does not, as some think, counteract the poison, but simply keeps the heart from stopping its work. It is said that an old time resident of those parts who liked a drop all too well (and sometimes found it difficult to get trusted) was in the habit of being suspiciously careless in the matter of snake bites when his peculiar thirst was upon him. He staggered once to the village store with a live rattler in his hands shouting that he had been bitten three times. It is needless to say that first aid was quickly rendered and the story is told by eye-witnesses that the old stager was none the worse for his adventures after recovering from the effects of his coveted dose.

Mr. Cone says that the longest rattler that he ever killed measured six feet. "Just as many feet long," he said smiling, "as I myself am tall."

"GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES" AT STATE

Famous Anita Loos Story is One of Two Features Today and Tomorrow.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," Paramount's screen version of one of the most popular novels of the day, is one of the film attractions that is being offered at the State Theater for today and tomorrow.

It is funnier than the book. And that is saying a whole lot, for Anita Loos' slim little satire on the American gold-digger and the men she fleeces has established itself as one of the comedy classics of the age. And don't let's forget one of the greatest casts ever assembled in a picture. In the first place there is Ruth Taylor, who plays the role of the innocent looking but oh-so-dangerous Lorelei, the gold-digger heroine. Miss Taylor, it is said, was selected from a list of nearly one hundred candidates for the stellar role. There is no doubt as to her selection being a choice one. Besides her, there are Alice White, Holmes Herbert, Chester Conklin and Ford Sterling.

The picture is doubly interesting to those who have read the book, for it elaborates on Lorelei's early life, which was only touched by the story. She is seen first on a farm in Arkansas, then in Little Rock, then Hollywood and so on to New York and Paris where she finally lands America's richest bachelor. How she does it and how she fleeces all the other men with whom she comes in contact with, are details which should not be divulged, for that would be spoiling a rare treat which is in store for the movie fans.

The other feature for today and tomorrow is "Lady Raffles," a thrilling melodramatic story of a beautiful female bandit's hair-raising adventures in a big city underworld. Estelle Taylor is starred.

Delight in Trip to States But Are Anxious to Get Back to Methodist Memorial.

Rev. Julian S. Wadsworth, who has been visiting friends here while on a leave from his work at the Methodist Memorial, in Chateau-Thierry, France, will sail with Mrs. Wadsworth for France on Wednesday. While in Manchester the Wadsworths have been guests of M. and Mrs. A. L. Crowell at their Highland Park home.

Though Dr. Wadsworth characterized this visit to the States as one of the most pleasant experiences of his life he was anxious to return to his work. The Methodist Memorial has been called by Dr. S.

Parkes Cadman as the finest monument erected in France since the World War. The work it does is remarkable. Children who otherwise would be without even an elementary education are given schooling and taught a trade. In connection with the Memorial Dr. Wadsworth says there is conducted the largest collection of war mementos in France. Among the relics on display there is the motor which was in Quentin Roosevelt's airplane when that young hero was shot down. Last year close to 17,000 visitors were at the Memorial, most of them from the States. Dr. Wadsworth expects daily to meet some friend or acquaintance among the visitors, and extends a hearty invitation to all who have an opportunity to go to France to visit the Methodist Memorial. Dr. Wadsworth visited the Herald office yesterday to say goodbye before leaving for France. It was his first visit with The Herald's editor in 34 years.

Moths are afraid to nest in a Garber Brothers Living Room Suite

The "Mothguard" construction unit is a scientific solution to the Moth-pest problem . . . It checks the Moth hazard . . . It prolongs the life of Living Room Suites and it is built into every Garber Brothers' Suite . . . See this new scientific improvement before you select any other suite

The MOTHGUARD sanitary construction functions on the following principle: When an occupant sits and rises, the expansion and compression of the spring structure in the base of the chair forces air currents through the interior. These air currents passing through the MOTHGUARD Chemical, generate a non-injurious gas that automatically sterilizes and fumigates the inside stuffings, thus keeping the pieces in a healthy and sanitary condition.

This marvelous new improvement puts a greater value on Garber Brothers living room suites than ever before. All the covering materials we use have gone through a mothproofing process in the factory . . . and this new invention now prevents moths from getting in and breeding beneath the covering.

May we show you just how a Garber Brothers living room suite is built and also what the MOTHGUARD means to you in the way of cleanliness . . . in the longer life of the suite . . . and in value. A visit places you under no obligation . . . none whatever.

NEW POSTAGE RATES EFFECTIVE ON JULY 1

Private Mailing Card Charge Cut in Half; Many Changes Have Been Made.

Postmaster Oliver F. Troop today called attention to the fact that the new postage rates will be effective next Sunday, July 1. Some of the changes are radical. For instance, private mailing cards can be sent for a cent again, whereas they now require a two cent stamp.

The so-called two cent service charge on fourth class or parcel post matter is eliminated as a service charge but retained in part by adding two cents to the rate on the first pound in the first three zones.

The eighth zone rate of thirteen cents for the first pound and twelve for each additional or fraction thereof applies to fourth class matter between any point in the United States and Hawaiian Islands and any point in Alaska and between any two points in Alaska, or parcels delivered to the Canal Zone, Philippine Islands or its possessions.

Special Handling. The special handling postage charge on fourth class matter is reduced and graduated according to the weights of the parcels, namely ten cents for parcels weighing not more than two pounds, fifteen cents for those weighing more than two pounds but not exceeding ten pounds, and twenty cents for parcels weighing more than ten pounds.

Mail other than that of the first class will be given the same expeditious handling and transportation as is accorded first class mail matter and in addition receive the immediate delivery at the office of address upon payment of a special delivery fee of fifteen cents for parcels not weighing more than two pounds, twenty-five cents for parcels exceeding two pounds but not weighing more than ten, and thirty-five cents for parcels exceeding ten.

Indemnity up to $1,000 has been provided for the loss, rifling or damage of domestic registered mail, whereas the limit used to be $100. WALKER ADORES SOUTH, HE SAYS president down here, say in September and October before Congress convenes. Al knows more about the south and its problems than a great part of the south suspects. "The south ought to know Al more in a personal way and not by his record and achievements. That's what I like about the south—it's clubby, intimate. I think it ought to be real clubby with its president. "These far-out places like Texas and California hardly ever get a squint at the president, except through the news reels. They think from seeing only these pictures that he's a fellow who spends most of his time laying cornerstones and shaking hands with folks on the White House lawn and who is picked on by the cartoonists. Lots of Republicans "We've had lots of Republican presidents and the south probably wasn't anxious to get chummy, because it felt it had no staunch friend in the White House then. Now, when we're going to have a Democrat, a friend of the south, I say 'let's get together.' "All the north and east ought to know that the new south, with its industries and its tremendous water transportation developments, is not the old south recovering from reconstruction blunders—the old south that most northerners pictured as a sleepy place that lifted its nose out of a mint julep once in a while just long enough to give the Yankees a cursing. "The big boys in Washington ought to keep their fingers on the pulse of a place growing as fast as the south is. You can't keep your finger on anybody's pulse when you're standing in the next room. "That's what I mean by saying I think a little more contact between our presidents and the whole country would be good for the whole country. California, I'm sure, would like to see its president once in a while in person. California's square shooting with us, isn't it? It lets us see its film stars once in a while in person. "I'll bet Mr. Coolidge would like nothing better than a little rest in California next October. He'd probably get a big kick out of its climate. At least a California fellow once told me the climate out there was simply swell. "If Al came down here once in a while, I'd like it, too. In visiting him I'd have a good excuse to come down here myself. I like it here—no fooling."

SEES BETTER FUEL FOR FUTURE AUTOS

University of Michigan Professor Tells About Coming Fuel Era.

New York, June 29 —Gasoline will be sold on its merits as a motor fuel even more than motor cars will be sold on their merits as motor cars, says George Granger Brown, professor of chemical engineering in the University of Michigan.

Prof. Brown foresees "the gasoline of tomorrow" in a statement made public by the American Chemical Society. Dr. Brown is director of research of the National Gasoline Association of America. His conclusions are the result of a careful study of tendencies in the petroleum and automotive industries, in which he points out the influence of motor car designs on the qualities of motor fuel.

Refiners no longer are shifting the problem of better motoring on to manufacturers, says Brown. The introduction of ethyl gasoline, for instance, marks the turning point.

Three Fuel Eras
"The relation between these two industries may be divided into three periods," Prof. Brown states. "The first period, from about 1900 to 1916, covers the rapid development of motor cars during the first years of which the fuel, gasoline, was considered essentially a by-product or waste of the petroleum industry."

"The second period begins with the World War, in which it became necessary for the refiners to cut deeper into the crude oil in order to supply the large demands of the fighting forces for aviation and motor fuel, making gasoline at least temporarily the major petroleum product."

"This sudden and marked change in the quality of gasoline, at least in its one outstanding property, volatility, forced the motor car manufacturers to make certain important changes in the construction of their motors in order to utilize satisfactorily this low volatile fuel."

Gas Fits Motor, Now
"The last period begins with the introduction of ethyl gasoline in 1922, which indicates the beginning of a period in which the refiners and the producers of motor fuel are making a conscientious effort to improve the qualities of their fuel and to adapt the fuel to fit the needs of the motor.

"Perhaps all of the refiners have not yet fully awakened, but the number which still considers it simply a problem of the motor car manufacturer to produce a car or motor that will handle any fuel that the refiners may choose to market is rapidly diminishing."

As the present tendency in motor fuel is to emphasize those properties which determine superior engine performance, says Prof. Brown, it seems likely that the motor fuel for the immediate future will be marketed upon the basis of performance, and that the characteristics which indicate superior motor or engine performance will be those demanded in a motor fuel.

How She Hints Car Care

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

No matter how good the condition of the engine may be, the gasoline used for it must be appropriate for its best efficiency. There are two types of engines today—the high compression and low compression. For each a different grade of fuel is necessary if the motor is to run smoothly.

In the high compression motor only a high test or "doped" gasoline should be used. In the other type any kind of fuel is operative, but here also it should be remembered that the cleaner and purer the gas, the higher will be the efficiency of the motor.

The biggest mistake automobile owners make is buying their gas wherever they happen to be, irrespective of the grade of gas the tank formerly held. Mixing grades isn't helpful at all, and mixing poor gasoline with the good is obviously harmful.

Whatever the grade of gasoline used, no matter even that it is a cheap, poor fuel, that should be the only type bought at all times. Only by doing this will the best efficiency be obtained from the motor under the circumstances.

The reason for such practice is obvious. The carburetor is adjusted, let it be understood, for the efficient injection of a definite grade of fuel. If a lower grade is used, with the same adjustment, the engine will miss, there will be sputtering and stopping, and it will be hard to maintain an idling speed.

If a higher test gasoline is used, for a certain carburetor adjustment, the motor will get too heavy a mixture for the grade of fuel used and may choke up. Furthermore, there will be a waste of fuel and resultant inefficiency. The gasoline will fall to give the mileage it should and the gasoline refiner will be blamed for the motorist's negligence.

Of course, there's no need of warning motorists not to buy cheap fuels, especially from unqualified stations. These fuels may be "mixtures" of cruder grades or left-overs, after the better grades have been tapped. They may be "doped" in order to boost their efficiency, but are nevertheless harmful because of their excessive contents of sulphur and other crude oil elements.

Such fuel can easily put a good engine out of commission in short order. It's cheaper, in the long run, to buy costlier fuel.

likely it is of the ordinary grade, with the dope added to raise its explosive efficiency.

A cheap, inefficient gasoline can easily be detected by the appearance of the lubricating oil in the crankcase. If this oil thins fast, despite the fact that the motor is in good running order, it's a sign that the gasoline injected into the cylinders isn't burning properly. Some of it, unburned, finds its way into the crankcase and dilutes the oil there.

A good grade of gasoline burns up in the cylinder head almost completely and therefore leaves nothing, or very little, to flow into the crankcase.

FIND BODY IN CHANNEL

Stamford, Conn., June 28.—Police today recovered from the channel opposite Hallowe'en park the body of Erasmo Iovino, 17, of 465 State street, who was drowned some time yesterday afternoon. Iovino went to the park with companions who swam the channel, leaving him at the park shore. When they returned Iovino was missing. Later when they failed to find any trace of the boy, police were notified and after working for hours they found the body in the channel.

Iovino was known to be almost unable to swim, and is believed to have tried the channel as a test.

SCENES FROM RUTH DEWEY GROVES' NEW SERIAL--"LOVE FOR TWO" Beginning In The Herald Tomorrow

Bertie Lou and Rod were modern An idyllic honeymoon completed the Returning home, they found Lila. Budgets that wouldn't work... Tom returned to Wayville from Not large enough to permit night club parties and the rest of New York evening. They cleared $12. Friday evening they go to Grand with the whir... Especially after Lila came. Read the answer in Ruth Dewey Groves' newest serial--"Love for Two," an unusual story of youthful married life.

Billy Evans Says

Records in sports are made to be broken. When Babe Ruth made 59 home runs during the season of 1921, I was firmly convinced he had established a record that would stand for all time.

Then along came Ruth just six years later to propel an even 60 home runs out of the all park. Undoubtedly, this super feat on the part of Babe Ruth was made possible by Lou Gehrig.

Another record which I had placed in my mind was that of a pitcher who would pitch with Ruth rather than pass him up for Gehrig.

Campus Comments

Your all-round college athlete, the one who makes three and four letters for his alma mater, are getting scarcer and scarcer these days. While three and four sport stars always have been exceptional, you find them few and far between now.

There probably are others in this class, but we don't think the list would be very long if we had them all.

Football is the big sport in practically all colleges. The prospective football player is the one most eagerly sought. And football, in some colleges, is a sport taken more practically all your time the entire year. It is practice from Sept. mber to December and usually about six weeks in the spring.

But the big idea in development of the sport he shows the most promise.

At the close of 1927 Sewell had played in 783 consecutive games. With the American League season more than a month under way, he has already passed the 800 mark.

When A Girl Loves

THIS HAS HAPPENED VIRGINIA BREWSTER is in love with NATHANIEL DANN, but she is tricked into believing that he is really in love with her.

English. Virginia smiled. "I'm getting one of the stewardesses to accompany me as a guide. She knows Port au Prince well. But thank you very much for your thoughtfulness, Mr. Flance. Sorry to lose you here."

They passed along the hot road, but no one addressed them. They passed cabins where naked pickaninies swarmed through open doors and windows and spilled out on the road.

Webster turned the matter over to Virginia at once. The latter produced a card, wrote a message on it and asked the servant to take it to his master.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XLIV PORT AU PRINCE. Hills rising back from the city. Coconut palms making a fringe where they reared against the horizon. A hot blue sky and a blue sea.

From the shade of the umbrella they carried for their own protection Virginia looked out at the lathered sides and thin, shaggy legs of the tiny pony with great pity.

"My, how he's let it run down! Well, I think a bachelor always does down here in the tropics." Virginia did not trouble to inform her that Mr. Leigh was not a bachelor, or rather that, until recently, he had had a wife.

Virginia followed the servant up the dusty, uncarpeted stairs, down a torrid hall and to an open door on the north side of the house.

HARDENING OF ARTERIES SIGN OF BODY WEAR The arteries are the blood vessels that carry the blood directly from the heart to the farthest portions of the body.

When the current of blood is sluggish in its flow or when it is interfered with by inflammation of the blood vessel wall, blocking of the vessel may take place.

There is about twice as much elastic tissue as muscle in the largest arteries and much less in the smallest ones. The amount of stretching in the vessels and the amount of resistance to the passage of the blood stream are factors which influence to some extent the blood pressure.

This process is not, however, the same as the hardening of arteries that is sometimes called arteriosclerosis. In that condition there is a deposit in the walls of the blood vessels of substances which indicate degeneration and breaking down of the tissue.

Risko Beats Godfrey In A Tedious Bout

Walsh Thinks Negro is Out of Picture as a Contender; Godfrey Stalled Through-out Fight.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 28.—Johnny Risko, the man who won't take "no" for an answer, did us all a personal favor last night when he out-mugged the all-black menace, George Godfrey, in the ten tedious rounds at Ebbets field. He staked Godfrey to height, reach and 4 1/2 pounds in weight. He gave away everything in fact, except fighting heart and, in this important essential, the black finished so far back that I was forced to stretch a point in even giving him second place.

Risko simply "bulled" a bigger and broader man out of the decision in the last three rounds. Rushing in headlong, he drove home punch after punch to Godfrey's middle and all that worthy could do about it was to clutch the other in a series of "John Gilbert love scenes."

It was a terrible fight, and Godfrey was mainly responsible. The bromide that it takes two to make a fight was never so thoroughly sustained.

Wins Two Rounds

The first two rounds were uneventful, but Godfrey easily won the third and fourth. He swung the white man around at will, meaning time clubbing that cruel right to the kidneys and occasionally hooking a left up above. The body punches had John's knees drooping.

Risko, however, stepped briskly around the mammoth one in the fifth, shooting two rights to the rotunda that made Godfrey bend double. Thus encouraged, John began charging under Godfrey's guard and from that moment the fight was "in."

Godfrey had no defense against that punch. From then on he fought a defensive fight and a far from successful one, at that. For Risko, having bluffed Godfrey out of all fighting ideas, was now free of those right hand counters to the body and showed his appreciation by swarming all over the colored man for the last five rounds, clipping his tilted head with left swings and immediately scoring with the same punch to the body.

That was about all there was to it. The man with the big body lost. The man with the big heart won.

CHAPMAN FAVORITE

IN TONIGHT'S RACE

George Chapman, six-time motor-paced champion, and Francesco Zuchetti, the great Italian rider, are the favorites to win in the motor-paced special race which will be the feature of the bike race meeting at the Hartford Velodrome tonight.

Chapman is the outstanding favorite because of his pre-eminence in the game and because of the fact that he is now in the best physical condition of three seasons, George having spent the winter months down in Florida where he rounded into the pink of condition. Zuchetti is accorded an excellent chance to win because he is riding at a great clip this season, having only last Sunday at New York defeated a brilliant field, including Chapman.

Either of the other two entrants may win, these motor-paced races furnishing many upsets; the other two entrants are Larry Gaffney of Brooklyn and Dan Idechiar, an Italy. Fischione took Frank Keenan over of Revere into camp at the race meeting at the Velodrome last week, beating Keenan in two straight heats.

There will be several other professional and amateur events on the program bringing a record field into competition. The first race will start at 8:15. Tassilo's Band will give a concert before the races and will play the riders down the home stretch in the various events.

LOUGHRAN FAVORED IN TONIGHT'S BOUT

If Emanuel Weighs in at 175 the Fight Will Be for the Title.

New York, June 28.—Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight champion, is a 3 to 1 favorite to defeat Armand Emanuel, San Francisco barrister and protégé of Jack Dempsey, in their ten-round bout here tonight. It is whether Loughran will be defending his title will not be determined until the fighters weigh in this afternoon.

When Emanuel was substituted for Jimmy Slattery last Saturday as Loug's opponent, he agreed to come in at catchweights so that Emanuel's title would not be at stake. Now, however, the Jewish boxer finds he weighs less than 175 the lightweight limit. If he does not weigh more than 175 this afternoon and outpoints Loughran, he undoubtedly will be in a position to claim the title, according to William Muldoon of the New York Boxing Commission and other astute authorities.

It was reported this morning that if Emanuel proves to be a legitimate light heavyweight on the scales this afternoon, Loughran will demand that the bout be lengthened to the championship distance of 15 rounds and the contracts altered to increase his share of the gate receipts to 37 1/2 per cent, the customary champion's end.

BOXERS READY AGAIN

FOR LIGHTWEIGHT GO

King Tut and Lope Tenorio resume training for clash at Velodrome tomorrow night; if it isn't postponed.

King Tut, the Pacific Coast lightweight who meets Lope Tenorio of the Philippines at the Hartford Velodrome Friday night, the bout having been postponed from Monday night because of threatening weather, has resumed his training at the Charter Oak gym.

Tenorio returned to New York, accompanied by his manager, Ike Dorgan, publicity representative for Tex Rickard. The boys weighed in Monday afternoon. Tut weighing 136 and Tenorio one and one-quarter pounds more. They will not be required to weigh in again Friday.

Dorgan says the winner of the Friday night bout will be given a "show" against Jimmy McLarin in New York next month.

Tut and Tenorio are hard hitters and there is prospect of a merry clash as they get together Friday night in the big sports arena on the Connecticut Boulevard.

The semi-final provides a warm engagement as those bitter rivals, Frankie Portelle and Pinkey Kaufman, both of Hartford, are to meet in this bout. Kaufman is a hard hitter, dangerous at twice, 4 to 1 and Portelle is a clever boxer.

Romeo Roche meets Benny Keller in a sixer, Kewpie Ledoux of Holyoke takes on Joe Triano of New Haven in another six-rounder and Mickey Roberts of Hartford battles Roland Roche of Holyoke in the opening bout of four rounds.

Ladies will be admitted free, if accompanied by escorts.

COLLEGIATE GOLF

Rye, N. Y., June 28.—Match play in the annual inter-collegiate golf championship begins at the Apawamis course today. Maurice McCarthy, Jr., of Georgetown, took the medal with 147 for 36 holes, equalling the course record with a card of 72 for 18 holes yesterday. Princeton won the team championship with a total score of 608 for its four players. Next came Georgetown 627, Yale, 633, and Ohio state 647.

OLYMPIC HOPES

JOIE RAY

As one of America's greatest middle-distance runners, the holder of numerous records and the owner of a flock of trophies, little Joie Ray made two foreign trips with American Olympic teams and is scheduled for a third journey this year to Amsterdam.

In a spectacular transformation within a few months, Ray made himself over from a miller into a marathon runner of such potential capability that he not only may place as the No. 1 Amsterdamer but may win the Olympic championship in the event.

He is also an outstanding candidate for the 10,000-meter run and he may have a chance to avenge the several beatings the great Nurmi has given him if Lawson Robertson, the American coach, allows him to run in both races. Robertson, who persuaded Joie to try distance running when he was through as a miller, has indicated that he will start him in two races. Ray didn't live up to hopes in the 1920 and 1924 Olympic games because he was handicapped with a bad leg and had the bad luck to be matched against the freak Nurmi.

Ray says he's "in the thirties" but just starting to run and when he's not running on his dogs he runs a taxi in Chicago. He is also a boxer of more than ordinary ability. And the cockiest guy in the world.

ERRORS PAVE WAY FOR TRADE'S LOSS

Connelly Makes Five Mistakes; Fraser Pitches Well; At Bridgeport Tomorrow.

Manchester Trade School's baseball team seems to be pursued by some sort of a jinx—an error jinx would be a good title. Again yesterday they lost an extra inning contest by one run and the winning team scored all of its three runs on misplays. Torrington Trade was a 2-2 winner in Torrington.

Herb Fraser, former High School pitcher, now affiliated with the Trade School, pitched a game that was deserving of victory, but got the short end of the count because his mates were credited with nine errors.

Landeen scored both runs for Manchester, and they, too, were unscathed, inasmuch as Landeen reached first both times on errors. Manchester scored in the first and in the ninth, the latter tallying the count. Connelly, local catcher, was guilty of five errors most of which figured in the scoring.

Tomorrow, Manchester plays at Bridgeport. The summary yesterday:

OLD TIME FAVORITES SHOULD ATTRACT CROWD TO WEST SIDE

Supples Will Pitch for Community if Arm is Right; Two New College Players With Silver City.

When Meriden comes here for a twilight state league encounter tomorrow evening at the West Side Oval at 6:15, Manchester baseball fans will have a chance to renew diamond acquaintances with such well known old time stars as Eddie Zeilke and "Smoke" Halback.

This pair of ball tossers have played many a game up on Mt. Nebo when baseball was in its prime here and each made a favorable impression with fandom. Zeilke, of course, is a first baseman and Halback guards the dizzy sack.

Other stars in their lineup are the Fernald brothers, Gibson, Curylo and Allard. The latter comes from Connecticut Aggies. Coach Jerry Fay of the Community team which will oppose Meriden, said "his morning he had received word from Meriden that two college players would also be in the Silver City lineup tomorrow night."

Tommy Supples will start on the mound for Manchester providing his arm is right. Weber and Edgar will both be ready in case of an emergency. In his local pitching debut of the present season last week, Supples allowed only three hits.

Ralph Russell and Bill Brennan will do the "umping."

LEGION BOYS PLAYING SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

Roy Fraser and Johnny Hedlund to take care of Pitching Burden; Hartford Here On Fourth.

Roy Fraser, brother of Herb Fraser, former high school pitcher, will be on the firing line for the local American Legion boy's team in its initial Hartford District contest with Thompsonville at the West Side Playgrounds at 3:30 Saturday afternoon. Chester Sendorowski will complete the battery.

Sunday, the local team will journey to East Hartford for a game with an aggregation representing the Legion post of that city. Johnny Hedlund will be in line for box duty for the local outfit.

Hartford will play at the West Side on Fourth of July afternoon at 2 o'clock and Fraser will pitch that game.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

The first-year-of-married-life-bits are the hardest.

LETTER GOLF

LINEN PAPER is stationery and both linen and paper are used in making collars and today's letter golf puzzle. Par for the distance between them is five. One solution is on another page:

Letter golf puzzle grid with letters L, I, N, E, N and P, A, P, E, R.

THE RULES 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must use a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed. The fish sucker is hardest to catch; the human the easiest. Old Flame-Bill, there used to be something about you that I liked. Her Ex-Beau-Yes, that was before I spent it all.

Quick Exchange To this patent fact you should never be blind. And it should not make you feel sore; When love flies out at the window, you'll find, Alimony walks in at the door. -By An Ex-Husband.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Customer: "I am sorry but I have no money to pay my check." Manager: "That is perfectly all right. We will write your name on the wall and you can pay it the next time you come in." Customer: "Oh, don't do that. Everybody who comes in the restaurant will see it." Manager: "Oh, no, they won't. We will hang your overcoat over it."

My girl is like a crowbar. She's not much to crow over and she doesn't bar anything.

Fable: Once there was a woman who stopped at a fine hotel and didn't become dissatisfied with the bathroom at home.

Reporter: How many men do you think work in your factory? Manufacturer: Roughly speaking, about one in ten.

The lighter a man's head the more he has to support it with his hand when he has his picture taken.

"Who is Thomas Edison, anyway?" asked a backwoodsman. "He's the man who invented the phonograph to keep us awake, so we would stay up all night and use his electric lights."

June is what the poet asks what was so rare as a day in.

It is the time people are crazy about. Especially do people who are subject to rosecolts go crazy, about June.

Just about. Maybe, if the season is forward, they go crazy in late May.

The rosecolt people who are offered lovely bouquets of roses in June, are as vindictively inclined toward the donors as are the hay-fever victims toward those who send them large clusters of goldenrod in August.

Somebody's going to get hurt doing one of those things yet. June is a time for brides.

It is one of twelve of our best-known months thus characterize. It's also a time when sweet girl and sour boy graduates are turned loose on a supposed-to-be-helpless world. But this old ball has stood a lot of punishment. And many a graduate has retired from the conflict with a bloody nose and a piece of raw steak festooning the purple shanty over one eye.

June is when you replant if the cutworms have got in their deadly work effectively enough or if it has rained thirty-two days in May, finishing with a grand clearing-up shower on Memorial Day when everybody was lured out with their best clothes on.

June is when most people are hard pressed for money. The other months when this is true of the same people are July, August, September, October, November, December, January, February, March, April and May, and w and y.

If there is anything else you want to know about June, find it out. I might add she was named after Juno, a goddess whose appearance would indicate that she either (a) never heard of calories or (b) could not count.

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.

Brave Scouty watched the monkeys eat. They thought the apples quite a treat. The other Tines looked surprised, and stayed behind a tree. "Be careful now," one Tiny cried. "A monkey's right up by your side. If he should grab you, you'd get hurt. He's big as he can be." "Oh, don't you worry," Scouty said, "they're always good, while being fed. I'm sure the monkeys like me now, since I have been so kind. Why don't you all come over this way? Don't be afraid. You needn't stay behind that tree. Just run right out. The monkeys will not mind." Then Clowny cried, "Come on! We're game. And out the hand of Tines came. The monkeys squealed a little bit, but didn't start a fuss. As one took hold of Coppy's hand, we Coppy said, "They understand that, we're not going to hurt them. They are making friends with us." And he was right. They all jumped round and very soon the Tines found that all the monkeys knew fine tricks, that made the Tines grin. Said Carpy, "See how fast they run. To race with them would be no fun, 'cause though we all travel fast, the monkeys sure would win." Two monkeys then climbed up two trees, and hung down by their tails with ease. "We don't try that," laughed Scouty. "It would be to no like me now, since I have been so kind. Why don't you all come over this way? Don't be afraid. You needn't stay behind that tree. Just run right out. The monkeys will not mind." And then the two monkeys switched around and dropped their tails down toward the ground. They hooked their tails together, and was Clowny shouted, "Oh! That makes a very handy thing. Just watch me now. I'll have a swing." And then he jumped right in and soon was swinging to and fro. (The monkeys give the Tines some more laughs in the next story.)

ABOUT TOWN

Dr. and Mrs. Edward Higgins left today for Boston, where they will remain for a few days, returning to Manchester on Sunday.

Graves of deceased members of the Hartford Veteran Corps, City Guards, buried in Manchester, were decorated yesterday, the occasion being the annual memorial observance of that organization.

All members of Memorial lodge, No. 38, Knights of Pythias, are urged to attend the memorial service which will be held in the Lodge rooms, Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, D.S.T. Members are also requested to bring flowers. At the close of the service in the lodge rooms the members will go to the local cemeteries and decorate the graves of the deceased brothers.

About 35 of the officers, teachers and substitute teachers of the Second Congregational church school enjoyed an outing at Bolton Lake last evening. Tables were set for supper on the grounds at the hotel and the meal consisted of cold meats, salads, sandwiches, cakes and lemonade. Outdoor games were played, a number went out in boats on the lake and the trip home was made after 9 o'clock.

Tax Collector G. H. Howe has ready to be served by Constable James Duffy, sixty-nine more tax warrants. As in previous cases a warrant is not issued until a letter or notice has been sent to the person who has not paid the tax. An additional charge is made of $2 for drawing the warrant and there is also a charge by the constable for mileage covered and a fee for the collection.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Williams of Evergreen avenue, Hartford and their daughter, Eugenie, who recently completed her freshman year at Wesleyan college, will leave tomorrow on a trip to California, where they will visit Miss Emma Williams, formerly of this town who has not been east for more than 17 years and who lives at Carleby-by-the-Sea. Mr. Williams, who is a brother of John M. Williams of Hudson street, with his wife and daughter have planned a six weeks' sight seeing tour, traveling by the northern route to the Pacific coast and returning by the southern route.

A special meeting of the Manchester Garden club has been called for Monday evening at 8 o'clock to hear reports of the June flower show, to approve bills and to transact any other business proper to come before it. The meeting will be held in the Manchester Community clubhouse.

Mrs. John McMenemy of Marble street, who underwent a major operation at St. Francis hospital about three weeks ago has returned to her home and is making good progress toward recovery.

All branches of the local Salvation Army corps are combining forces for the annual strawberry festival, which will take place this evening at 7:30 on the lawn in the rear of the Citadel. The Salvation Army band will provide music. The admission fee will be minimal but on the grounds there will be ample opportunity for everybody to assist with the good work by the purchase of articles made by the ladies of the home league and other organizations in the corps. There will be an abundance of strawberries served to suit the individual preference in shortcake, with cream, in college ice, hot frankfurters, as well as a variety of cool drinks. The weather is promising for an outdoor festival of this kind and the committees are anticipating a large attendance.

FORECLOSURE GRANTED ON UNCLAIMED LAND

Heirs of Original Owner Could Not Be Found, So Lose Their Equity.

Among deeds filed in the town clerk's office this morning there is one which brings to light that there are twenty-eight acres of land in Manchester which heirs to the property evidently do not know about. The property was owned by Elizabeth G. Sparks of Hartford and on it was placed a mortgage to Lily W. Granger. The owner of the property died, an administrator was named, but the property never passed to the heirs. Failure to pay the mortgage obligation resulted in a foreclosure and an effort was made by the Superior court to locate the owners, four in number. There whereabouts was unknown although they had formerly lived in Hartford. The redemption day was set for June 26. No trace being found of the heirs the necessary papers were drawn and the property now passes into the hands of the holder of the mortgage. The land is so described as to indicate that it is not located on any road, but it seems to be in the northeast part of the town.

George Stiles of 125 Hollister street has done a creditable piece of work in moulding a neat bird bath of cement, which has been placed on the lawn at his parents' home. Mr. and Mrs. W. F. He is spending his vacation doing the concrete work above and in carpentering; has built a fine grapevine arbor and a small house for his guinea pigs.

POLICE COURT

Two Buckland young fellows allowed their Fourth of July enthusiasm to run away with their better judgment last evening when they threw a large firecracker at Traffic Officer Roberts. He was just passing the filling station opposite the Hackett farm on North Main street when the firecracker exploded in his lap. John Jamroga and Carl R. Magnuson, both under age, were in a car at the filling station, which was closed for business. Roberts placed them both under arrest. They denied having anything to do with throwing the cracker, claiming that another fellow who ran away was the guilty party, and they didn't know him they said. In court this morning Patrolman Roberts testified that the firecracker came from the car in which the young men were sitting and he saw nobody else around there. When he took them to the police station later he found two boxes of firecrackers which had been thrown hurriedly into the frame of the automobile. Judge Johnson was at first inclined to consider it a boys' prank, but because they did not adhere to the truth on the witness stand he imposed a fine of $5 and costs. Three men were arrested yesterday afternoon, each charged with non-support. Harold Wilson of Stockhouse road, Hugh McIntosh and Charles H. Russell both of the south end. The prosecutor asked that the cases be continued until Saturday and that each of the cases be placed in the hands of the probation officer in the effort to settle family differences.

TWO AUTOS COLLIDE ON CENTER STREET

Passengers Shaken Up But Not Seriously Hurt When Cars Come Together.

A collision at the corner of Church and Center streets at 10:15 this morning resulted in the damaging of a Buick sedan driven by Mrs. William Dillon of 9 Oak Place. Mrs. Dillon drove out of Church street very slowly and was about to make a left turn into Center street when a Chevrolet coupe driven by Fremont Frost, 20 Girard avenue, Hartford, which was going east between 25 and 30 miles an hour, according to witnesses, smashed into the left side of the Buick sedan, damaging the left fender and running board. Mrs. Harold Douglas, a friend and her young son who were riding with Mrs. Dillon were badly shaken up. The automobile driven by Mr. Frost, which is owned by the Consolidated Rendering Co., of Hartford, was damaged only slightly. Officer Galligan investigated but made no arrests.

PHONES Pinehurst
"GOOD THINGS TO EAT"
FISH CATCH INCREASES.
The United States Fisheries Bureau has just issued its report of landings for April. It shows that there was an increase in volume over the preceding April of about 16 per cent, for the New England ports. One-sixth increase in the take of fish means one-sixth increase in the consumption of fish. Not so bad, in one year.
Pinehurst has had something to do with that increase. Oh, we don't mean that extra boats are being commissioned and more fishing crews are being shipped, just to supply our trade. Hardly! But Pinehurst is one of a great many New England food shops that in recent years have been paying more attention than formerly to the possibilities of the fish business—taking full advantage of improved opportunities for lightning-fast shipment of fresh fish from the landing ports; providing the most approved appliances for the care of the product; developing higher skill in its preparation for the table; taking extreme care that none but absolutely sound and sweet-conditioned fish goes to the customer.
We have been doing our part in the encouragement of the fish habit—which even yet hasn't been acquired by half enough people. And so we have helped to bring about this increase in New England's consumption of New England fish. We are glad of it, because we know very well that a proper proportion of fish ought to enter into the diet of our customers.
