

HEAT KILLS SCORES IN EAST AND WEST

New York Reports 28, Chicago 30, Boston 8; Mercury Up to 100; Showers Are Predicted for Tonight

The torrid temperatures which have prevailed in various sections of the middle west and east yesterday and today have resulted directly or indirectly in the deaths of more than three score of persons.

New York city and vicinity tops the list with a toll of 28, Chicago, 30 lives have been snuffed out by the sizzling heat which brought the thermometers up as high as 100 degrees in some localities.

Boston, with a maximum temperature of 94, reported eight deaths in the city and at points throughout New England.

Yesterday was the season's hottest day in New York, with the thermometers in the sun registering as high as 103 degrees, while 91 degrees in the shade was the maximum. Excessively warm weather prevailed again today.

The heat wave which has covered the states of Minnesota, Missouri, Kentucky, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa, like a suffocating blanket, had somewhat abated today as a result of showers followed by strong winds last night.

In the eastern and northeastern sections of the country the terrific heat was still causing much suffering today with no relief in sight until tonight when showers were promised by the weather man.

IN NEW YORK.
New York, July 9.—Deaths reported early today brought the total fatalities charged directly or indirectly to New York's record smashing heat wave to 28. Many others still in hospitals were said to be in critical condition.

Relief from the heat was expected tonight when thunder showers are predicted. However, the forecast for today was of drenched warm.

Dispatches told of the death of the heat wave in the middle west after thirty persons had died. Thermometers there ranged up to 100 degrees. Washington reported one death from the heat with the mercury at 95 degrees.

Hottest Day.
The season's hottest day, which sent the mercury in New York city to 91 degrees in the shade, with thermometers in the sun registering as high as 103 degrees, was one of the greatest exoduses in the city's history. Between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 persons were estimated to have gone to bathing beaches and various recreation spots. More than 1,000,000 persons went to Coney Island.

Three deaths were charged directly to heat prostration, while nine others died of heart failure, induced by excessive heat. Thirteen persons were drowned, and two were killed in motor car accidents.

One child was killed when he fell three stories from a fire escape where he had gone to lie on a mattress to escape the heat.

Empire State to Take Charge of Affairs Without National Organization.

Washington, July 9.—A national drive to draw into the Republican party a major portion of the 8,000,000 young men and women becoming voters for the first time this fall was put under way today as an additional means of placating Herbert Hoover in the White House.

A special plea to Republican state organizations to enroll the new voters has been sent out by Hubert Work, the new Republican national chairman. He directed all national committees to aid in the drive.

With Hoover as the nominee, Work told his associates the Republican party ought to win not only an overwhelming majority of the new voters but of the independent voters as well. With these two groups lining up with the Republican party, he contended, Hoover would be overwhelmingly elected next November.

LABORITES TO DECIDE BETWEEN THE PARTIES

Washington, July 9.—The executive council of the American federation of Labor will meet at Atlantic City, N. J., July 31 to decide whom it will support in the presidential campaign.

Labor leaders look forward to one of the most spirited meetings of the council in years, for a sharp division exists over both candidates and platforms.

President William Green, who appeared before the platform committees at both Kansas City and Houston, has already indicated that labor's demands were more generously treated in the Democratic than in the Republican platform.

The annual convention of the federation has declared by overwhelming majorities for modification of the Volstead Act in every session since the law became effective in 1920. This is another talking point for the advocates of Democratic support in the presidential campaign.

"AL SMITH MENACE" WORRIES MANAGERS

Wet Atlantic Seaboard Discussed by Hoover and His Advisors.

Washington, July 8.—The Republican directors of Herbert Hoover's campaign are in a quandary as to how to meet what they call "the Al Smith menace" along the wet Atlantic seaboard, from Maryland to Massachusetts.

This was conceded on all sides today as the eastern leaders of the party cleared out of Washington after two days of conferences which failed to develop a clearly defined policy for this important section of the country.

Differences of opinion arose and prevailed throughout the two-day session, and it was because of these that for the first time in many years it appears probable there will be no recognized single eastern Republican campaign manager.

Whether one will be selected remains to be seen. Meanwhile, the question has been temporarily bridged by the announcement that the eastern end of the Republican campaign will be handled by "a board of directors" consisting of the national committeemen from the states affected, aided by a few Republican senators.

Moses May Direct.

Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, declined to accept the directorship of the east unless he was assured of a free hand and full responsibility. Dr. Hubert Work, the national chairman, was reported unwilling to consent to that. Even the personal urging of Secretary Hoover himself, however, was insufficient to move Senator Moses from his position.

There was some exceedingly frank and blunt talk behind closed doors here, it was reported today. Almost all of it related to the east, and how to meet the challenge of Gov. Al Smith's westness in the territory that has shown itself opposed to prohibition in almost every election—New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

HOWARD ELLIOT DEAD, "NEW HAVEN" OFFICIAL

Former Railroad President Has Sudden Heart Attack at Home of His Daughter.

Boston, Mass., July 9.—Two prominent railroad officials were dead in New England today.

Howard Elliot, 68, former president and chairman of the board of directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, passed away following a sudden heart attack at the home of his daughter in Dennis, Cape Cod.

Frank A. Farham, counsel for the New Haven railroad, died at Lake Sunapee, N. H., where he had gone for a rest. He was born in Providence, R. I., in 1858. He entered railroad law service in 1891.

Mr. Elliot, one of the best known railroad men in the country, began his railroad career with the Burlington system at the age of twenty, starting as a rodman in Missouri. His rise was rapid. Later he went to the presidency of the Northern Pacific and personally directed the laying of 377 miles of road. He conducted the rehabilitation of the New Haven road after its collapse, himself suffering a nervous breakdown in the act.

THIS PITCHER WON HIS BALL GAME BY A NOSE

A horse race is often won by a nose, but here is a baseball game that was won by a nose.

Varrick, pitching for the Aces against the McHugh team of Hartford at the Pleasant street grounds yesterday afternoon was going along in good style, cutting down the Aces as they came before him and his team was leading by three runs. In the eighth the visitors started a rally. Three hits placed men on bases and when a hot grounder was hit to the infield Varrick started after it. It took a mean bound and was just his head to pass him. As he turned his head aside, the ball struck him on the nose and bounced back towards the home plate. He recovered the ball, tossed it home and the runner was out.

Time was taken out while the blood flowed from the nose, which gave Varrick an opportunity to pull himself together and his team went out and won the game.

Lutheran Faith

At the afternoon service Rev. H. C. Backman, a former pastor of the church, spoke on the topic: "What the Lutheran Church Stands For?" He said that, although the existence of a Divine Being may be known by the works of creation, or as it is commonly expressed, by Nature, still the true God cannot be known but by revelation, which we find in the Bible. The Lutheran church believes and teaches that the Holy Scriptures of the Old and the

New Testaments are in every part of the inspired Word of God, who is the author of the truths as well as the words of Scripture. Furthermore, that the Bible is clear, so that no person of ordinary intelligence and unprejudiced mind can fail to understand its teachings, and to find in it the way of life.

The Lutheran church also stands for a full and complete redemption by Christ. It believes that God in His infinite mercy, resolved to save mankind, and that the divine Redeemer appeared in Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Mary, and Son of God, who perfectly obeyed the Law of God which man had transgressed, by His sufferings and death paid the penalty for the guilt of the entire world, and by His resurrection from the dead has declared the all-sufficient divine Redeemer.

The Lutheran church holds that who penitently accept Christ as the one and only Savior in sincere faith are justified in the sight of God, have forgiveness of sins, and are made heirs of salvation. Being a member of the Lutheran church, Zion congregation has in the past 35 years adhered to these teachings based on the Word of God and endeavors to continue in these beliefs.

The decision, abandoning an eastern headquarters in New York, meanwhile indicated that Hoover is rapidly conducting the Republican leaders who opposed his candidacy at Kansas City. Now when Hillis protested that the New York Republican organization should be allowed to conduct the Empire state campaign unhampered by national supervision, Hoover upheld his protest.

HOUSEWARMING

Friends surprise Mr. and Mrs. Loveland at their New Bungalow on Hemlock St.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Loveland, who several weeks ago moved into their new bungalow on Hemlock street, were surprised Saturday evening when several automobiles, containing about 20 of their relatives drove up to their door to give them a housewarming party. Beside those present from this town, were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kligor of Riverview, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Mather and daughter, Barbara Jane, Miss Olive Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Austin Colton of Hartford. In behalf of the gathering Wilbur D. Loveland presented to his brother and wife an electric coffee urn. Music and games helped to pass an enjoyable evening and a buffet lunch was served.

Chief Albert B. Foy of the South Manchester Fire department announced today that the kiddies from the East Side playgrounds will be given a shower bath tonight if they will assemble in the rear of the Nathan Hale school about 7 o'clock. These "hose parties" proved most popular last summer, and starting tonight they will probably be continued as long as the weather remains as hot as it has been for the past two days.

KIWANIANS BRAVE HEAT FOR MEETING

Gather at Country Club Today to Hear George H. Wilcox Describe Seattle Trip.

Notwithstanding the extreme heat today, there was an attendance of about 36 members at the Manchester Kiwanis club meeting at the Country clubhouse this noon. There was no special program for today. The meeting was turned over to George H. Wilcox who has just returned from the Kiwanis international convention in Seattle, Wash.

Secretary Wilcox gave a detailed report of his trip out to the convention city, told of the numerous stops made and gave some of the principal happenings along the way. He also gave a brief account of the convention proper. This took the entire time allotted to him and he will be given another half hour at some future meeting to tell of the sights on the return trip. Mr. Wilcox's report in detail will be found in another column of today's Herald.

The attendance prize today was donated by Lewis Sipe of the Home Bank and Trust Company. It was one of their little savings banks and a demonstration was given of the workings. It was won by Merton Strickland.

NEW BEDFORD'S STRIKERS WIN FIRST BATTLE

Guardsmen, mounted, were on hand with the augmented police force but they had little to do. The remainder of the guardsmen were held at the state armory.

Members of the radical wing of the strikers were open in their bitter criticism of Mayor Charles S. Ashley in calling out the militia and threatening impeachment. The mayor's reply was: "They can go ahead as fast as they please."

The whole city was excited as revolve for the state troopers bought from the armory $14 a. m.

Pickets Take Parts

Davidson said that as the strike pickets and their sympathizers took their posts outside the mill gates. Long lines of pickets began marching up and down. Thousands of strikers, men and women, were on the streets engaged in a steady march outside the mill gates.

The local gas and electric company had an extra force on hand ready to turn on power if the strikers decided to go back but shortly after 7:30 o'clock word came from the mills that none of the plants would operate. The strikers had won.

Soon after 8 o'clock a call went out for a meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association this afternoon. Reports were current that some of the corporations were planning to break away from the association and open their mills at the former wage scale.

A majority of those in the ranks of the state troopers had relatives or friends among the strikers.

The strike had been marked by several clashes with police, Texia called as the result of a strike vote by members of the New Bedford Textile Council. A few days after the strike got under way a group of men and women from Passaic, N. J., and elsewhere arrived and formed the New Bedford Textile workers Union as the so-called Radical wing of the strikers.

HALE'S CELEBRATES 31ST ANNIVERSARY

Sale Starts Tomorrow and Ends Saturday—Original Store 50 Years Old.

Fifty-five years ago when the population of the entire town of Manchester would equal the number of employees working in the Cheney silk mills now—a mere 4,500 as compared with 23,000 today—the people of the communities which made up the township were introduced to a new general store, that of Hale and Day's. In that beginning was borne the romance of a business in a town where everyone knew the other fellow—a home life of all the 4,500 people of Manchester. Today, though that store has grown to 21 times the size of the original, its position in Manchester, its importance to people of this town has kept pace with the growth in business itself.

Thirty-one years ago the J. W. Hale Company was founded. It was founded upon the business principles that J. W. Hale laid down as necessary to the success of a general store-keeper. But as business needs have outgrown those of fifty years ago so had this Hale store to outgrow the general store idea if it were to remain a successful institution. Warned that serving

HEAT WAVE DRIVES CROWDS TO LAKES

Manchester mixed ice cream and gasoline to a tremendous extent yesterday in a more or less hopeless effort to duck the effects of the hottest July Sunday in many a year. If a third and less respectable ingredient entered into the attempts at weather fortification it must have been to a very moderate extent, for this town was a sober if wilted population. This despite that automobile traffic, on streets cynically called "Run Rows" was noticeably heavy, even though not actually thoroughfare.

Never before did quite so many Manchester people "beat it" for the presumptive cool spots as on Sunday, July 8, 1928. Long before noon the roads were alive with traffic, many hundreds of local persons taking the pikes for New London, Saybrook, Madison and other seashore resorts, other hundreds making nearby lakes their objectives. The roads to Bolton and Coventry, Crystal, Andover and Columbus lakes swarmed with "outers", numbers of whom, indifferent to the unfitness of the day for the sport, tried to land a bass or two after they reached their favorite pond.

Globe Hollow swimming pool had its biggest day on record; while there was scarcely room in the water for all those who sought to bathe at the lake resorts.

The heat in the mills today was such during the middle of the morning that many of the employees were expecting that there might be a half holiday declared this afternoon, but the slight breeze that came up about 11:30 changed this plan and the operators were back to work as usual at 1 o'clock.

The mason tenders on the construction work of the new building at Park and Main street were to leave work until the change came in the weather and they were back at noon.

The restaurants were not crowded at noon today. Those who make it their custom to eat at restaurants each day decided in many cases that it was too hot and instead crowds were noticed around the soda fountains indicating that the drink lines were getting the business. L. T. Wood, the south end ice dealer, found it necessary to keep an extra truck at work during the morning and the teams that were out covering the routes were all late in getting around. This was due to the demand that was made for ice as the hot spell of yesterday left but little ice in the boxes and those who have taken but a small piece found it necessary to increase the size that was delivered today.

The readings of the thermometer as reported from different places yesterday was given as ninety-two in the afternoon to about 82 at 10 o'clock last night. Today the heat at noon was about the same as yesterday, but the breeze that was noticeable did much to improve conditions in the early part of the afternoon and late morning today.

Globe Hollow was again the gathering place for the youngsters at noon as those growups who could give the time and were not tied down to work also took occasions to visit the swimming pool this afternoon. No heat prostrations had been reported and the Manchester Memorial hospital had no increase in the number of persons admitted up to 1 o'clock this afternoon.

more than an hour to transact the business that will come before the meeting," he said.

At this meeting, Gov. Smith will take over complete control of the Democratic Party. Unless there are last minute changes in the present plans the governor is expected to have his close friend, Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, named as national chairman.

Ready For Campaign

The governor expects to return to Albany Thursday night or Friday morning. After resting at the mansion for a few days, he indicated, he would begin the preparation of his speech of acceptance.

Asked if he would give some information of what he will say informally accepting the presidential nomination, the governor replied smilingly:

"I should say not. No one will know what I am going to say until I begin to speak."

It is generally expected, however, that he will devote a considerable part of his acceptance speech to prohibition.

There is a possibility that the governor will leave the first part of next week for a quiet spot in the Adirondacks to work on his acceptance speech.

This governor was considerably disturbed when informed that a lawn had been taken from a crippled boy at Indian Lake in the Adirondacks and placed in the executive mansion zoo. He said he knew nothing of the matter except that the conservation commission had sent him the lawn. He said he would see that the animal was returned to the zoo.

HEAT WAVE DRIVES CROWDS TO LAKES

Break in Two Day Spell Comes After Noon—Soda Fountains Profit.

Manchester mixed ice cream and gasoline to a tremendous extent yesterday in a more or less hopeless effort to duck the effects of the hottest July Sunday in many a year. If a third and less respectable ingredient entered into the attempts at weather fortification it must have been to a very moderate extent, for this town was a sober if wilted population. This despite that automobile traffic, on streets cynically called "Run Rows" was noticeably heavy, even though not actually thoroughfare.

Never before did quite so many Manchester people "beat it" for the presumptive cool spots as on Sunday, July 8, 1928. Long before noon the roads were alive with traffic, many hundreds of local persons taking the pikes for New London, Saybrook, Madison and other seashore resorts, other hundreds making nearby lakes their objectives. The roads to Bolton and Coventry, Crystal, Andover and Columbus lakes swarmed with "outers", numbers of whom, indifferent to the unfitness of the day for the sport, tried to land a bass or two after they reached their favorite pond.

Globe Hollow swimming pool had its biggest day on record; while there was scarcely room in the water for all those who sought to bathe at the lake resorts.

The heat in the mills today was such during the middle of the morning that many of the employees were expecting that there might be a half holiday declared this afternoon, but the slight breeze that came up about 11:30 changed this plan and the operators were back to work as usual at 1 o'clock.

The mason tenders on the construction work of the new building at Park and Main street were to leave work until the change came in the weather and they were back at noon.

The restaurants were not crowded at noon today. Those who make it their custom to eat at restaurants each day decided in many cases that it was too hot and instead crowds were noticed around the soda fountains indicating that the drink lines were getting the business. L. T. Wood, the south end ice dealer, found it necessary to keep an extra truck at work during the morning and the teams that were out covering the routes were all late in getting around. This was due to the demand that was made for ice as the hot spell of yesterday left but little ice in the boxes and those who have taken but a small piece found it necessary to increase the size that was delivered today.

The readings of the thermometer as reported from different places yesterday was given as ninety-two in the afternoon to about 82 at 10 o'clock last night. Today the heat at noon was about the same as yesterday, but the breeze that was noticeable did much to improve conditions in the early part of the afternoon and late morning today.

Globe Hollow was again the gathering place for the youngsters at noon as those growups who could give the time and were not tied down to work also took occasions to visit the swimming pool this afternoon. No heat prostrations had been reported and the Manchester Memorial hospital had no increase in the number of persons admitted up to 1 o'clock this afternoon.

more than an hour to transact the business that will come before the meeting," he said.

At this meeting, Gov. Smith will take over complete control of the Democratic Party. Unless there are last minute changes in the present plans the governor is expected to have his close friend, Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, named as national chairman.

Ready For Campaign

The governor expects to return to Albany Thursday night or Friday morning. After resting at the mansion for a few days, he indicated, he would begin the preparation of his speech of acceptance.

Asked if he would give some information of what he will say informally accepting the presidential nomination, the governor replied smilingly:

"I should say not. No one will know what I am going to say until I begin to speak."

It is generally expected, however, that he will devote a considerable part of his acceptance speech to prohibition.

at an unusually high notch, there was a cool and refreshing breeze sweeping the spacious encampment from the Atlantic River and the nearby Sound. The weather was a decided contrast from what it was much of the time last July when rain fell hard, steady and often. Those affected most by the heat were the men detailed to get the tents in readiness for the first night's sleep. The tents themselves were already up, this work having been done by Captain Edwin C. May, regimental supply officer and a detail of fifty men, but there was much other work to be done. This included the unloading of baggage from the trains and automobile trucks; the installing of iron bed cots; filling of bed ticks with straw, and numerous other smaller jobs.

Col. Hunter's Absent

The regiment is under command of Lieutenant Colonel Orville C. Pettit, New Haven, in the absence of Colonel D. Gordon Hunter, who is detained at his home in Hartford because of the very critical condition of his six-year-old daughter Peggy, who is suffering from meningitis.

Colonel Hunter's daughter is not expected to live although every possible medical effort is being made to save her life. Two of the leading specialists in the eastern part of the United States are attending her. It is said that the girl has already submitted to nearly fifty operations, most of them on her spine. One exceedingly serious operation was performed on her skull and she has also been given blood transfusions.

Colonel Hunter sent a message of regret to the regiment at his inability to be here at the opening of the encampment and said that he would come down if possible. Colonel Pettit said he hoped the regiment would cooperate in every way possible to make this the best encampment ever as a tribute to Colonel Hunter.

"G" on Guard

The regiment starts its first day's real work today with the calisthenics and company drilling. At 4 o'clock this afternoon, Company G of Manchester, Captain Herbert H. Bessell, unit, and guard duty after putting on formal guard mount, one of the most impressive of all the military ceremonies, including the standing of retreat. First Lieutenant Arthur M. Grayson of Company E of Hartford was Officer of the Day and Lieutenant Edgar M. Thompson of Company G, Commander of the Guard. This group stays on guard duty until 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Howitzer Company, also of Manchester, does not go on guard duty until the final day of camp, a week from next Sunday.

After the soldiers had completed their preliminary work upon arrival here yesterday noon, they were served appetizing meals. Company G and the Howitzer Company had roast beef, creamed corn, mashed potatoes and hot coffee, which was quite a contrast from last year when all they got for their first "east" at camp were hotdogs.

Movies

An unusually splendid bill of motion pictures has been arranged for camp entertainment evenings. The films this year are shown at the end of the camp ground. In addition to a feature film, comedies and other short-subjects are included. One of these is "Forty Thousand Miles With Col. Lindbergh." Last night, the feature picture was "The Student Prince" featuring Ramon Navarro and Norma Shearer. Tonight it will be "Baby Mine" with a cast that includes Karl Dane, George K. Arthur and Charlotte Greenwood. Tuesday night comes Greta Garbo and John Gilbert in "Love" and Wednesday night William Haines will be seen in "The Smart Set."

Thursday night, Lionel Barrymore and Jaquelin will play in the "Thirteenth Hour" and Friday, Syd Chaplin comes in "Ski-its." The picture for Saturday is Lon Chaney in "London After Midnight" and on Sunday comes Lill-

At the Airport

Seventy-five state troopers augmented the Boston bluecoats to keep the pouring, welcoming crowds at the airport in a safe zone, away from the whirling propellers and wheels of the airplanes. They came to earth—these, in trepid pioneers of the trans-Atlantic air—a stone's throw from the spot where five weeks ago the Friendship soared gracefully from the harbor water, bound north to fame and fortune.

In marked contrast was the completion of the circle for the brave trio. They slipped away quietly for Trepassay Bay, N. F., on a still Sunday morning. They came back amid a whirl of a busy Monday. The thousands out today to bid her welcome a month or so ago had never heard of Amelia Earhart, slender, quiet worker in a settlement house in Boston's Chinatown. Today at the airport Mayor Malcolm Nichols, Lieut. Gov. Frank G. Allen, Commander Richard Byrd and hundreds of "home town folk" welcomed and acclaimed her.

CHILEAN TRAGEDY

Within a pistol shot of land 300 persons were drowned in the breaking up of the Chilean government transport Angamos three hours after she had gone on the rocks of a lee shore. This morning's reports say there were only four survivors. These people were for the most part army conscripts and nitrate field laborers, with their families—primitive folks. Not one of the lifeboats launched reached the nearby shore. The natural conclusion that the lives were sacrificed to the panic of undisciplined minds. Yet it would be unfair to jump to the conclusion that the horrifying tragedy was due to any inherent inferiority on the part of the Chilean people. We Americans have had tragedies even more intensely illustrative of the mob spirit. More than a thousand persons were lost when the excursion steamboat General Slocum burned in the East River at New York, with not more than a hundred feet of smooth water between them and safety. So long as great masses of excitable, mentally undisciplined people are gathered together in ships, under the control of only handfuls of intelligent, capable officers, so long will there be occasionally these tasks of mad scrambling and wholesale death. And that applies as much to one part of the world as another.

BRAKE ON MOSES

Senator Moses is to be a sort of titular head of the eastern campaign of Mr. Hoover, but he is not to be, as at one time seemed likely, the whole works. He is to be the chairman of an advisory board; which is an excellent place for him. He is not to be the entire board. Mr. Moses is an astute and indefatigable politician. He is, however, one of those individuals who operates much more successfully with four-wheel brakes than with none at all. He is much given to making snap judgments and assuming that because he has made them they must infallibly be right. He needs the advice and co-operation of somewhat slower and also somewhat surer thinkers. By the creation of this advisory board he has been supplied with the needed balance wheel. There is one other thing about George Moses, and perhaps the advisory board will have the sand to tell him about it. He is not, outside his own state, a vote maker on the platform. He has that quality, utterly fruitless in a Presidential campaign, of challenging and ridiculing and setting at odds with him every person in his audience who is not already fully committed to the things he advocates. He is denunciatory rather than argumentative; sarcastic and clever rather than convincing. He will serve Mr. Hoover's cause better in other ways than by taking the stump himself—outside of New Hampshire. This campaign, so far as the Republican party is concerned, can be easily won by a lucid, logical, high-level exposition of facts. It could never be done by daring the independent vote to do anything for Hoover.

THE DEADLY BOMB

Improperly timed explosion of an aerial bomb, the last in a fusillade fired at the conclusion of a fireworks display at Cheshire, this state, killed a twelve-year-old boy, one of the spectators, and injured several other persons. At Peabody, Mass., another boy was killed by a fireworks bomb. It is not so many years since an aerial bomb, falling to explode at the anticipated altitude, fell back into a crowd in an Eastern city and five or six persons were killed outright or mortally wounded. These deadly devices add nothing whatever to the beauty of a fireworks display. They contribute nothing but the excitement of terrific noise to spectacles, which are intended to appeal to the eye and to the imagination. It is doubtful if they ever make a fireworks display more enjoyable to a single individual among the spectators; they certainly detract from the enjoyment of a great many persons who find that in our civilization there is a perpetual overdose of noise without its intentional creation. And they are viciously, needlessly, unpardonably dangerous.

The discharge of a considerable load of high explosive at an altitude of two or three hundred feet is not likely to do any physical damage to either human beings or to property. But at any time something is likely to go wrong and the devastating thing fall back among the crowd before it explodes. It has happened time and again.

Why not take the resolution, here in Manchester, that whatever fireworks displays are held here in the future shall be free from this utterly unnecessary element of danger? Aerial bombs should be "out."

OUR "STONY" FARMS

Speaking of S. McLean Buckingham, appointed as Commissioner of Agriculture, the Bridgeport Post delivers itself of the somewhat platitudinous opinion that "a man who can make a real success of farming on the rocky soil of Connecticut is worthy of the highest respect," etc.

To be sure we have nothing but respect for the Eastern dirt farmer in question, but we have somewhat less regard for this everlasting repetition of the stuff about the "stony," "sterile," soil of Connecticut's "rock farms." As a matter of fact, and in comparison with quite a number of American states not included in "Iron bound New England" Connecticut has a very fair proportion of excellent farm land, and a lot of it is included among the most fertile on earth.

It is true enough that large parts of many farms in Connecticut are not available for field tillage. But it is to be remembered that three-fourths of the entire area of this state has been taken into farm limits. Do that same thing with the state of Idaho—do it, for that matter with the highly agricultural state of Pennsylvania or even with the putative garden state of California—and see whether or not you would have some "stony and barren" farms to write much about.

If Connecticut's farms were as selectively limited in number and boundaries as those of many another state—picking the soft spots for tillage and forgetting about the waste of lands—a truer picture of its physical attributes with relation to husbandry would be presented. There are six hundred square miles of the finest agricultural lands to be found anywhere right in the Connecticut Valley alone. And anybody who rides the length and breadth of this state with his eyes open knows that there are no sweeter sweeps of farm land to be found anywhere than are encountered in almost every section of the commonwealth.

Why perpetually represent Connecticut as a sort of Eastern Badland?

SLOW AND SAFE

There was a remarkable falling off in the number of serious automobile accidents in this state and throughout the East generally yesterday, in spite of the fact that it was far and away the heaviest day of the year for highway traffic. It is extremely well worth noting, in conjunction with this fact, that the usual high speed of the Sunday traffic stream was not in evidence. With the thermometer at 95 in the shade and somewhere around 110 to 112 in the sun, it was an uncommonly reckless motorist who did not slow down in the face of the imminence of burst tires.

The mileage rate per hour for automobiles in Connecticut probably averaged lower yesterday than on any heavy traffic day for several years. This morning's dispatches failed to disclose a single fatal accident.

If the Motor Vehicle Department and the Highway Department, which insist on making speedier traffic their objective, would take this conjunction of circumstances into consideration it might do no harm. But they won't.

ROBOTING

The American husband and father is rapidly becoming a robot whose only function is to cater to the determination of the American wife and daughter to live luxuriously, effectlessly and irresponsibly. Our information to this effect comes from Englishmen, mostly. And, frankly, we don't accept it. We believe it to be possible for even an Englishman to be mistaken—especially concerning purely American phenomena.

This American who toils and molls and sweats for regulars that his women folks spend in surpassing the Joneses—where does he live? Who is he? How many of him are there? How long does he live? And is it overwork that gives him diabetes—or too much lolling in an automobile instead of using the legs that God gave him? As a matter of fact no airplane can crash on a golf course anywhere in America, on any work day of the week, without bumping off one, two or three of these tollers and mollers. No person can stand on any state highway in any part of the United States for an hour, any time without beholding the passing of a dozen or twenty of the robots in cars bearing markers from three hundred to a couple of thousand miles away. No boy can catch a trout any more without poaching on the preserves of individuals living exclusively to provide luxuries for their women. Twenty-five thousand of him fill up the night clubs of New York every night, coming from every corner of the country to chuck the hostesses under the chin. The munition concerns hardly noticed the end of the war, so busy are they making shells for American robots to shoot at New Brunswick Moose and Louisiana ducks. The bootlegger and the cocktail shaker intrude perceptibly on roboting.

Somewhat our English friends fail to convince this part of the jury that it should vote to convict the women of intolerable cruelty to the producers of fortunes.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, July 9.—The surest thing about the coming campaign, in view of the nomination of Governor Smith, is that the religious issue will be uppermost in the public mind.

And the most uncertain thing about the campaign is the extent to which religious prejudice will figure in the result.

It must also be borne in mind that this question is likely never to be satisfactorily answered. If Smith should be elected, it would be proved that most voters paid no attention to his religion. If he should be buried in a greater landslide than any Democratic candidate heretofore it might indicate the opposite.

But if Smith is beaten by a comparatively small majority—something less than those cast against Cox and Davis—no one can ever prove that the balloting was along religious lines. He may be beaten just because he is a Democrat running against a Republican or a wet running against a theoretical dry.

The question of the effect of Smith's religion on the voters is a fascinating one for study, but extremely speculative. The Democratic party is betting that the Catholic vote won't be as large as some of its members fear it is going to be. Ordinarily no major political party would take such a chance; none ever has before. But Smith owes his nomination partly to the fact that no formidable opponent arose to fight him for it and partly because many party leaders long ago began to realize that to turn him down would cause many Catholic voters to quit the party in indignant disgust.

If Smith loses in November it seems likely that the size of the margin of voters against him will decide whether he is to be renominated in 1932 and whether it is smart politics to nominate any Catholic for the presidency under present conditions.

In fact, the important question, whether the northern Democracy will be permitted to dominate the party after this election, will depend largely on Smith's capacity for impractical leadership—and the number of votes he gets.

The northern Democratic machines are wet and Catholic; western and southern Democrats are Protestant and dry. Whether these differences are to be submerged in a common cause big enough and broad enough to appeal to everyone concerned will depend on Smith and the kind of a campaign he makes.

Neither of the candidates will dwell on the religious issue, except under extreme provocation. But if it isn't aired on the stump or radio it will surely be discussed everywhere else.

Past experience and the anti-Smith campaign which has been in progress for some time show clearly that a desperate undercover campaign will be made to beat the Catholic candidate. The Republicans can't afford openly to encourage this, and won't, but they won't have to.

Politicians expect to see the country flooded, for instance, with copies of the fake "Knights of Columbus oath," which has sometimes been used in lesser political campaigns against Catholic candidates.

One of Smith's assets in the face of such propaganda will be the fact that he wouldn't have a Chinaman's chance to deliver any of the presidential power to his church, coupled with his completely non-sectarian record as governor of New York. Any president who attempted to play favorites among the churches probably would arouse such a popular furor as to cause his impeachment.

(148) Connecticut Fraternal Societies.

Connecticut is the domicile of five secret or fraternal societies. These societies have a membership of approximately 275,000, assets of $30,000,000 and a total yearly income of $6,000,000. In all there are 52 secret or fraternal societies operating in Connecticut, 47 of this number having their home offices in other states or countries.

Twenty years ago there were seven societies having headquarters in this state. Forty-four others with headquarters outside of the state had a membership of several thousand in Connecticut.

On January 1, 1927, the assets of the Connecticut societies totaled $28,422,287. This was 1,122% greater than the assets of 1907, which amounted to $2,525,202. The assets of the out-of-state societies doing business in Connecticut a year ago totaled $443,290,347. Twenty years ago the assets of the same group of societies amounted to $50,072,734. The assets of these societies, however, did not increase as rapidly as the Connecticut societies, being only 678% greater in 1927 than in 1907.

In the increase in membership from 1907 to 1927, Connecticut showed to a better advantage than did the societies of other states. In 1907 Connecticut societies had a membership of 74,765, while the total membership of the societies of other states doing business in Connecticut was 3,234,404. A year ago Connecticut societies had a total membership of 274,841, 267% more than in 1907, and the societies of other states had a total of 4,815,803 members, only 49% more. HEAT FATALITIES.

Every hot season brings a toll of deaths from heat exhaustion and sunstroke. This occurs when the individual has not taken the proper precautions or made changes in diet and clothing which are necessitated by the change in temperature. Heat exhaustion develops from inability of the body to adapt itself to a rapid rise of temperature. This occurs most frequently when the air is very humid or the clothing is too heavy, which prevents a rapid evaporation of perspiration. By sensible changes in our diet and clothing, we can avoid much of the unpleasantness of the hot weather.

In one of the middle western cities I saw a number of cases of heat prostration in individuals soon after they emerged from a very cool theater into the sweltering external heat. Heat stroke may occur even when one is not in the sun. It comes on slowly and leaves the surface of the body and the temperature sometimes sub-normal. These individuals always have a sluggish circulation. It is well to place them on a fruit fast for several days, with tepid or warm shower baths, hot enemas, deep breathing exercises, and dry friction baths.

A sunstroke differs from heat exhaustion in that it is caused by a congestion of the blood to the head. The effect is sometimes immediate unconsciousness, and is often produced by not wearing a hat while in the direct rays of the hot sun. Children, light complexioned people, and those under the influence of alcohol, are especially susceptible. Sometimes death occurs almost immediately. Where this does not occur, there are sometimes serious after effects, such as a partial paralysis of brain or legs, dizziness, fever, and complete prostration. The individuals who recover are peculiarly susceptible to heat of the sun for a long time after.

Because of the profound shock which occurs with the disorder, one must use extreme care in the treatment. Ice packs to the neck will cool the blood in the head and reduce the pressure in the brain. I do not recommend the ice cold enemas that are usually given to lower the temperature, since I am of the opinion that it is more important to secure a thorough cleansing, and warm water is more valuable for this purpose. The cooling may be accompanied by sponging the skin with ice water or use cold shower baths.

The fever of sunstroke sometimes becomes very high, and degree upward. One who is recovering from a sunstroke must conserve his vitality by as much sleep and rest as possible.

While sunburn is very painful, hardly ever is serious enough to cause death, although this has occurred in several instances. Much relief may be had by using cool showers or ice water compresses whenever the pain is severe. The skin should be covered with an alkaline oil, such as caron-oil, which is a mixture of lime water and linsed oil. This is obtainable at any drug store, and will keep out the air and at the same time neutralize some of the acid products of the decomposing skin. You should time yourself when in the direct sunlight, because the burn may occur even though the skin does not become hot.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question: F. W. asks: "Will you please tell me if the menus printed once a week in your column are reducing menus? I am too heavy and would like a balanced diet which would take off ten or fifteen pounds. Have been following your instructions but do not lose by using your weekly menus."

Answer: If you want to reduce, I would advise you to change the weekly menus somewhat. A simple way to do is to substitute a fruit meal in place of any meal including starch. If you are overweight and will do this, you will probably lose from three to five pounds a week.

Question: M. asks: "Is it healthy to drink a glass or two of sweet milk just before retiring every night?"

Answer: Not unless you are on an exclusive milk diet, in which case your schedule might extend to bedtime, depending upon how much milk you were taking. Ordinarily, when milk is used at all, it should be used as a meal itself, and not in an addition to any of the customary three meals a day.

Question: S. H. writes: "I am a young man of 20 years and have heart trouble (mortal stenosis) which has existed since birth. I have heard that near my 21st birthday I may expect a change for the better, the explanation being given that during youth at intervals of seven years a change occurs. Is this true?"

Answer: It is true that heart disorders of childhood often gradually disappear after adolescence, but do not depend too much upon this possible change. Begin eating correctly so that you do not have an excessive amount of gas pressure against your heart, as such gas pressure is the most common cause of all heart derangements.

New York, July 9.—On the dusk-dim concrete platforms of the subway stations, Manhattan stages thousands of tense and tragic dramas; thousands of romances, thousands of comedies. They flash by in the course of a day, as the subway trains flash by. . . they flash by and are gone and forgotten, even as the red lantern of the departing train is swallowed up in the ebon-black tunnel. They are staged in the unreal half-light of a world that has been created under the earth's crust. Oftentimes the lightning is stranger and more fantastic than the cubist effects of the modern theater. Often the sun pierces the air ventilators of the street and is filtered into a long and even line of miniature spotlights that play brightly down in fascinating patterns.

Picking up a morning paper, you read that a young girl from the Ghetto had left her baby upon a subway bench. You read that there was pinned to the child's dress a note, scrawled in Yiddish characters. And this note, you learn, told a story of careless trust and more careless love; of the coming of the child and the orthodox family which would not recognize the father of the child because he was not of their faith and race.

Poignant drama here! Lifting the curtain of life, for a moment, one can envisage the scene in some squalid tenement room . . . the terror of the girl . . . the hushed family conference . . . the excited, hysterical flow of questions and answers . . . the patriarchal father, in his small skull cap, wringing his hands and calling upon his fathers and his father's fathers; calling upon the Torah and upon the God of his fathers; ambulating away at last to his synagogue to chant far into the night the mother, trying to see a way through; trying to protect her young against stain and harm . . . the final decision! . . . Even if everlasting disgrace come upon the household the girl cannot marry out of her faith and race; nor can she submit to surgery that might or might not solve her problem and hide her evasion of the moral codes. . . . And so, in the half light, before the dawn brings willing crowds to the platforms, two figures slip by the gate and leave a little bundle on a bench and slip out again unnoticed. . . . And the police read a tear-stained note to the world, "to be kind to this baby."

Another paper tells you that traffic was held up for 20 minutes during the rush hour, when an unidentified man threw himself from a subway platform and was crushed to death. . . . There's probably one such a day. Sometimes two or three. What is there about the grinding wheels of the subway trains that draws the life-weary? . . . Is it the suggestion of sudden dispatch? . . . of death achieved with a sure and dramatic flourish? . . . Or is it the depressive sense of the underground the night-blackness which whips the despondent to act?

Upon another bench two bums are sleeping . . . upon another bench young lovers sit in the half light, hour upon hour . . . head against head, hands clasping, staring out into the darkness, unaware of the clatter of trains that slip in and slip out, of crowds that pass . . . There's the lost child and the confused visitor . . . the panhandlers; whining their wares and the gay, theater-going crowds . . . the tired workers and the tired shoppers, the tired commuters and the droning guards. . . . "Step lively, there!"

Life, death, tragedy, comedy, romance . . . all helter-skelter. Like the crowd . . . mingling in the gray-black of the subway platform.

From Hoover As A Boy

Here is one of the earliest known specimens of Herbert Hoover's handwriting—a page from the memory book of a school mate at West Branch, Ia. Then he was a youngster there. The inscription, written in a book owned by Addie Colp, who is now Mrs. James Clark, reads: "To Addie: Let your days be full of peas"—which was his way of spelling peace—"Slip along as slick as grease." All his life, it is said, Mr. Hoover has had trouble with his spelling.

OUR ANNIVERSARY

CELEBRATING 31 YEARS OF THE ROMANCE OF BUILDING A BUSINESS

Sale Starts Tuesday, July 10th and Ends Saturday, July 21st

We Celebrate By Offering
Fine Buying Opportunities
In All Departments

The Romance of Growing Better As Well As Bigger

There is nothing too good for the people of Manchester. And whether it is linens from Ireland, potteries from Czechoslovakia, or furs from Siberia that are fashionable at the moment, discriminating shoppers will find them here. If we were to tag every piece of merchandise in the store with the name of the country from which it came, you would realize how many stones we turn and how many miles the world's rarest treasures travel to come to your front door. For us, though, it is part of the romance of business and it is a pleasure for us to serve you in this way.

The Romance
of Hale & Day's

Just picture this old store on Charter Oak Street back in the 1870's. "Jud" Hale, then a young man, jumping on the delivery wagon and starting out in the morning to collect orders for the day's business, or the next day driving to Hartford for he was also doing a general express business because there wasn't quite enough money in the grocery business. The old charge books the writer remembers distinctly. Mr. Hale had kept on family through sickness until their grocery bill exceeded one hundred dollars and when they finally decided to leave town without paying him a cent the only thanks he received was—"You were foolish to have charged us, you might have known we could not pay you." Those were the good, old grocery days and yet they contributed more than their share, putting real romance in our business.

Collecting the World's Best Treasures

Bigness, alone, is not to be admired, but those who scoff at bigness often forget that in this very competitive age, an organization grows bigger only as it grows better. Bigness, whatever else it may stand for, certainly is a monument to service satisfactorily rendered, confidence which has been deserved, faith which has been justified. And so as we celebrate this anniversary our boast is not that we are bigger but better than when we started. We are glad that given an opportunity to serve this community, our physical growth gives evidence of the sincerity with which we have discharged our obligations.

Planning for the Future

Times change, needs change, tastes change, standards change, and the way this store does things this year won't answer the demands of next year. In fact, it's because each day presents new problems to be met in new ways that there is romance in business. Each day is a challenge to the best that is in us, and so we are constantly looking ahead, planning for the future and dreaming of ways to make this organization a more helpful, friendly, modern, up-to-the-minute store—a store that is first in service, first in fashion, first in values, and held high in the esteem of its customers.

The Romance
of Hale's Self-Serve

And so a period of fifty years elapsed and in spite of the warning of Mr. Hale—"Don't ever go into the grocery business"—we find The Hale Company in 1920 launching into a mad experiment—a grocery department without clerks. Everything sold for cash. Cleanliness, variety, fresh food products at all times, and above all else the lowest prices, savings for the women accustomed to telephoning their charges rank as high as twenty per cent. The business has grown by leaps and bounds. Over 800,000 people in a town of only 28,000 population visited our food departments last year. The greatest romances in history pale beside a romance such as this.

Shouldering a Civic Responsibility

The modern department store is much more than a market place. In clothing the people and furnishing the homes in any community it shoulders a civic responsibility just as surely as do the police and fire departments. In keeping people informed on the new trends in fashion and interior decoration, in fulfilling an educational job as certainly as do the schools, in arranging exhibits, fairs and special shows, in fulfilling a public service as certainly as do libraries and museums. To realize that we contribute to the cultural as well as to the material side of this community is to find romance in business.

Everyday Tasks Well Done

To greet each customer with a smile, to fill out each sales slip correctly, to answer questions pleasantly, to wrap a package securely, to pack a tea cup safely, to deliver a parcel promptly—these are all little things, but it is the satisfaction that comes from doing little everyday tasks well that puts romance into business for our employees and pleasure in shopping for you.

The Romance of Daily Contacts with Friendly People

There is no theater without an audience, no store without customers, and the success of either depends upon the people. "Out front!" The people behind the counters may play their parts well, but unless you meet them half way with a friendly smile, their "act falls flat." And it is because of the generous spirit with which the people of Manchester have helped to build this business that we thank them sincerely.

Bristol Team Plays Smart Baseball To Triumph

BOARD MAY THROW OUT PADDOCK ON PROFESSIONALISM CHARGE

Walsh Thinks It Rather Odd That Charge Should Not Have Been Brought Before Time of Sailing.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, July 9.—Charles W. Paddock who may be no longer the greatest sprinter in the world but certainly the most notable, was due in New York today to face the necessity of proving himself innocent of a charge of which he previously had been held not guilty. The A. A. U. sponsored this evidence of oblique jurisprudence, this putting of the legal cart before the horse, when it delivered itself of a statement yesterday that Paddock would not represent America in the Olympic games if, by July 19, the closing date for the entries, there was no charge in the existing situation.

It will not be necessary for the registration committee to prove him guilty, according to Frederick W. Rubien, mouthpiece of the organization. All they ask of Paddock, it seems, is that he prove himself innocent and, if you want the judgment of the average layman, to so-called "fastest human" simply lacked the necessary speed to keep up with the fast ones of the A. A. U. and the American Olympic committee put over on him.

Lecture Tour.

This was the majority idea of the case, anyhow. The writer who content himself merely with the observation that a man presumed innocent until proven guilty and that in the case of murder, no man can be tried the second time on the same charge. Only a few months ago, Paddock's lecture tour and moving picture activities, the cause of the present action, was being discussed along the Southern Pacific Association by the A. A. U. for judgment, with the understanding that its decision would be final. The association gave the runner a clean bill of moral health, persuaded him to return to Los Angeles for his tryouts and its race and century with Wykoff and then brought him on to Cambridge for the final trials last week.

Why was the question of Paddock's status re-opened after he had qualified for the team? It is understood that the A. A. U. investigation on the case had already, just as the selection committee was sitting down to its deliberations, Rubien said the American objection was entered when Paddock's name was brought before the committee. Where was the conscientious souls while Paddock was helping to draw 50,000 admissions at the Los Angeles trials and about 40,000 at Cambridge on Friday and Saturday?

Little Sympathy. I'm afraid there can be little sympathy with a charge that is withheld until the show is over and the piper paid. If these objectors felt he was a professional, they must have reached a sudden decision. Otherwise, why did they let him play with the Hils with the great chance of contaminating them, in the event that the officials' doubts were sustained.

Paddock was named in the team selections for the 200-metre event yesterday with the proviso that, if he hadn't proved his innocence by Wednesday, the sailing date, Roland Locke would be taken along as alternate and the matter decided en route. From what Rubien said, it was judged that if Paddock hadn't proved his innocence by July 19, Locke would start his place; also if nothing of any sort developed in the meantime, Locke would get the nod. Heads they win, tails he loses.

His case will be passed upon by the national registration committee, 24 in number, with Daniel J. Ferris as its head. Ferris will interview Paddock today, ask him questions it is presumed he already has answered and pass along the result by wire for the consideration of the committee in the 24 districts. A majority vote of 13 will decide the matter, either way.

The Finals. The selections in general followed the order of the finish in the final trials this being true of the two dashes, the 400-metre, 800-metre and 5,000-metre runs, the three jumping events, the pole vault, shot put, hammer throw, discus, javelin and decathlon. Only a disqualification of Paddock would break up the continuity in the 200-metre event but Lloyd Hahn displaces Orval Martin in the 1,500 metre, this.

MANCHESTER FANS TO SEE ALL-STAR COLLEGIATE TEAM

Sam Massey, Gil Wright and Dodger Dowd Head Local College Stars Wednesday Night.

After several years of patient waiting Manchester's baseball population, a few cousins and other relatives, will have a first hand opportunity of watching a real collegiate squad composed of local talent perform against a real rival Wednesday evening at the West Side playgrounds.

The local outfit will be headed by Sammy Massey and Gil Wright as the outstanding players. Both these boys are well known to the fans hereabouts and need no introduction. And to further arouse the apparent lagging interest in baseball locally, a Rockville team will be their opponents. That alone ought to draw a banner crowd for the first time this season.

There will be singing supporting the cast of players with the above-named aggregation and it is safe to assure the fans beforehand that a real struggle will ensue. However, Rockville has always managed to get the better of any silk city team and the suspense of exactly knowing just how the Collegians will make out against the "natural rivals" will be relieved when the teams take the field Wednesday night.

Tennis and horseshoe pitching along with a band concert will round out the evening's entertainment. The baseball game will start at 8:30 o'clock sharp and the other events shortly after.

Local Sport Chatter

Many of the old time local football players will be astonished to learn that the ancient enemies of Hartford, namely the Bulldogs, are teaching their youngsters to play golf. Recently the writer saw "Nanny" Fitzgerald, former star from the Hollow, now a member of Hartford's finest and he admitted the truth. But Fitz would not talk much on the subject being content to bat out a few yards of the experiences he had gained with the football in the days when the knock 'em down and drag 'em out days. He said that Manchester always gave the Hollow team a real battle.

Football games with the West Side teams of Hartford were always ways sure to draw a big crowd and Nebo held many a gathering in the old days when the Capitol City games were scheduled to play in Manchester. What a colorful aggregation they were. The Bulldogs could scrape. Horse Courtney, Dorsey, Cherry Chase Fitzgerald and a hefty gang of followers fought many a bitter battle in this happy hamlet.

Wednesday evening a Manchester-Rockville sports night has been arranged over at the West Side Rec ground. Five or twenty years ago such an event would never be attempted. The sports followers of Rockville and also Manchester were always happy when they were far apart.

Perhaps the change for the better between the old enemies has worked out all the old time feeling. Let us hope so. But just a reminder to our old friend Jack McTear, for instance, baseball is not Rockville ever had we would like to ask one little question. "What became of the money, Mac, that was taken to the police station after the last farce?"

Friend Stowe has stated that perhaps the question local sports will be discussed during his absence. That it might or might not be a good subject but there is one fact that no one can deny. That is, briefly, Manchester always gave its fans a real team in every sport. But the local competition spoiled every attempt at a united Manchester. Take, for instance, baseball. Only one team and one of the best back in years. This season there is one good team representing the old burgh. Baseball is referred to in the above. A few years ago there were at least five good teams and a town aggregation to support and that was asking too much from any hamlet the size of Manchester. Perhaps we shall have the answer to the lack of patronage within the next ten days. Maybe.

IT IS SPORTS-FOR-ALL

Approximately 2,500 students at Texas A. and M. participated in the intra-mural sports program of that institution this year. It was announced recently. This set a new record.

GARCIA'S ABILITY TO PLEASE FIGHT FANS WELL KNOWN

Former Menace in Junior Lightweight Ranks Meets Leo Kid Roy at Drome This Evening.

Forty rounds of high class boxing is scheduled for the Velodrome in East Hartford this evening and if current reports can be relied upon there will be action in every one of the forty bouts. This card is headed by Bobby Garcia, the bad boy of the squared circle, who will draw for his opponent, one Leo (Kid) Roy of Montreal, Canada.

Little is known of Roy around these parts but it is rumored that he has a mean punch and also states that he is a willing mixer. Garcia has fought them all. He can be a whirlwind in one bout and a dud in the next. Never a real topnotcher in the junior lightweight ranks he has nevertheless met 'em and here the fans a full sized array of thrills when meeting the title challenger. His bout two years ago with Louis "Kid" Kaplan in the same ring he will fight in tonight bears out this statement. He met the Meridian buzz saw when the Kid was at his best and suffered one of the three kayoes credited to his record. But in defeat Garcia was dangerous until the referee stopped the go in the ninth.

After this disastrous battle he came back for a brief time and then started down grade on the well-known "hasbeens." Getting another chance he showed a complete reversal of form and lost his only really important "comeback" battle to Bruce Flowers the Georgia Deacon in a furious ten round battle in New York City on October 29.

Garcia's style of fighting in the ring is a weaving, bobbing steady bombardment of his opponent's mid section. It is this sort of a fight that permanently blotted Johnny Drew of Dorchester out of the pugilistic picture.

Several first rate bouts have been "washed out" not to mention the athletic style of equal importance. Matchmaker Arthur Greaney announced last week that ladies would be admitted free if accompanied by an escort. The first bout will get under way promptly at 8:15 o'clock eastern daylight time.

COLLEGIANS LOSE FIRST TILT 10-6 TO GROCERY TEAM

Sammy Massey Hits and Fields in Brilliant Manner Against Economy Squad.

Playing their first game of the season the Manchester Collegians went down to defeat in a seven inning game at the West Hartford playgrounds yesterday afternoon. The Economy ball toters managed to nose out a 10 to 6 victory but only after Dowd weakened in the fifth.

Sammy Massey led both outfits in hitting and handled several hard chances in the field. It was agreed by the teams at the start that only a seven inning game would be played on account of the heat.

The Economy proved to be in better condition to stand the heat than the Collegians and managed to stage a rally in the fifth that placed them well out in front. Dowd and Pat Carlson both played well but could not stop the slaughter in the fatal fifth. The summary:

Rec Girls Planning Fast Baseball Team

The Rec Girls have organized a baseball team for the remainder of the season and the first practice session has been called for tomorrow evening at the West Side playgrounds. It looks as though the fair sex have decided to place the South End on the baseball map and show the rest of this happy hamlet that the athletes south of the line are, at least, ready to carry on.

According to the best information at hand there will be a league in Washington before many more days have passed. Apparently the girls from Cheney Brothers, the Recreation Center and Manchester Green will form the circuit. It seems that the talk of forming such a league has been under discussion for some time and during the past week came to a head.

The makeup of the Manchester Green and Cheney Girls is still in the dark. That is, of course, just what the girls want. They are dependent upon to furnish plenty of opposition to any and all teams. The athletic fervor now apparent in the eastern section of Manchester is at fever heat and needs not the slightest breeze to keep it going.

At one time they had a first department out there which accounts for the lack of interest in anything else. But since the department surrendered its right to a better and more up-to-date equipment the baseball fever has run rampant and threatens to embrace the entire town.

PELTON'S HITTING FEATURES AS LOCALS LOSE AT HICKEY'S

Home Run and Three Singles by Laney Loft Fielder; Horby's Great Play Also Shines—Score 9 to 5.

Pelton's hitting, a sparkling stop and a great throw by Horbeker featured the game between Bristol and the Manchester Community team which the former won, 9 to 5 at Hickey's Grove yesterday afternoon. Dick Edgar started for the local aggregation but his wildness coupled with a wild pitch which landed square on Pop's dome removed the local twirler from the pastime the fourth. Weber finished the tilt.

The intense heat really was to blame for the rather listless encounter. Both teams were even counter the third and when Edgar hit Edgar Goodridge on the head with a pitched ball seemed to upset the silk city heaver. But four hits were registered off Pop and the same number were gathered up by Commerford. But Bristol managed to annex base runs in this frame on four hits, a wild pitch and two free trips to the first sack.

Right away Fay's Pauliers laid down a barrage of hits, mingled with a base on balls that netted four tallies when St. John cleared the sacks with a scorching single into deep centerfield. It was in this frame that Commerford nicked Edgar on the head and Linnell running for the local heaver scored in the wild scramble that followed. Lefty's double.

Table with columns: AB R H P O A E. Rows include O'Flaherty, Surmolin, Kelly, Cumming, ham, Levitt, Brown, Havens, Neville, Galvin.

It was a wild fifth inning for Manchester when Bristol really tucked the game away in the bag. After two were out, Weber walked a man, a wild heaver by himself placed a man on the base and an error by Linnell, excusable under the conditions, filled the sacks. Eddie Goodridge smashed a single to center and two runs trickled across the plate. Baldwin inserted another single past Stratton for the final marker of this torrid session.

Manchester tallied its last run in the seventh when Pelton socked a round trip hit into deep center field. This chap also made a fine catch of Reilly's bat in the sixth when he reared up the slope and gathered in a screeching line drive. At the time Weber was in trouble. Bristol also scored its last run in this frame on a pass, a steal and single to right field.

But the penalty part of this game did not develop until the fifth inning. Can you imagine a Bristol and Manchester game without a single argument until the fifth frame? But it was true, nevertheless. Horby was passed and he was sacrificed to second and took third on an infield hit and then he foolishly tried to score. Fay's perfect throw to the plate caught him and then the visitors set up a loud thumping as the ball was sent to Bill Brennan stood firm and waved the crack infielder out. Thereafter both teams subsided until Manchester got two men on in the last frame but could not score. The summary:

CAR GOES OVER BANK ON JOHN TOM HILL

John McCann, Seriously Hurt When Emil Hicking's Auto Leaves the Road.

A car owned by Emil Hicking of Cottage street, in which he and John McCann of Maple street were riding Saturday went off the road at a sharp turn on the John Tom Hill road in Glastonbury, down a bank and into a tree, badly smashing the automobile and throwing McCann and Hicking from the wreck. McCann was picked up unconscious and taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital where his condition was at first reported as serious and his injuries given as a fractured skull. During the night, however, and yesterday, he showed improvement and last night there were indications that the skull had not been fractured, but that he was suffering with a bad concussion of the brain. He will recover.

Hicking was driving from Gilead and had come up the hill on the east side of the mountain and was coming down the grade towards Buckingham. There is a sharp curve a short way down the hill near two stone houses and he did not realize that he was so near the curve until it was too late. The road is of a heavy slippery clay and the car went off the road, down a steep short bank and in doing so struck the trees. One side of the car was torn toward the top of the frame and engine knocked from their positions.

McCann was taken away by Samuel J. Kemp of this town, who was passing, and Hicking remained at the scene of the accident until aid came from Manchester. The accident was reported to the Glastonbury authorities and Hicking was notified to appear in court in Glastonbury tonight.

HOPS SIDEWALK WHEN HE SPEEDS ON CURVE

Because he did not know the road William Morris of Broad Brook went off the highway at the corner of Prospect street and Hartford road Saturday night. The machine went over the curb and brought up against No. 1's hose house, minus one wheel, and when it came to a stop the frame was bent the fender on the left side had been ripped off and the car could not proceed.

To Officer Donaldson, who was called, Morris told of being unacquainted with the road and said he did not know that there was a sharp turn at the bottom of the hill after crossing the bridge. The road was cut from view by the trees that line the south side of Hartford road and it was too late for him to get around the corner. In going over the curbing the front left wheel caved in and the driver lost control of the car, it coming to a stop when it was in the south yard at the hose house. No arrests were made.

GLOBE HOLLOW'S POOL HELPS TO COOL 2,000

Globe Hollow was the Mecca for boys from six to sixty yesterday and they were not alone for the girls and women were also there and when noses had been counted and the day ended, Frank Busch, who was in charge of the swimming pool estimated that 2,000 had gone to the pool.

The crowd started in the morning and kept at it all day and even at noon there were so many at the pool that the guards remained on duty during the noon hour. Many who found it too hot and the traveling too heavy, decided not to go to the shore and visited Globe Hollow instead.

OPEN CORNER STONE BOX AT OLD FIRE HOUSE

In tearing down the small concrete fire house at the corner of Oakland street and Apel place, the workmen found in the corner stone a small galvanized iron box which contained a history of the house company that built it. No. 2, also a copy of The Herald of the date that the corner stone was laid, Tuesday July 10, 1906. The paper and manuscript were in good condition and were turned over to the present foreman of Hose Company No. 2, the late Orrin G. Hollister at a cost of $350. It served as the meeting place for No. 2 for a number of years, or until the district built the fire house at Main and Hilliard streets.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT" NO SEAL BLUBBER WEATHER. Nothing could be better for the Eskimo than the seal blubber that he gobbles with so much avidity when he can get it. That's not so much because he's an Eskimo as because of where he lives. If you, Civilized Friend, were to spend half a lifetime in the Arctic, you'd probably need to eat seal blubber, too—and come to like it. Respectfully submitted, however, that this is no seal blubber weather. This is weather for salads and nice lean cold cuts and for cereals and fruit and green vegetables. We haven't figured it up, but we'd almost bet offhand that Pinehurst can supply the materials for thirty or forty different kinds of perfectly corking salads—every item in perfection. And, Madame—for pity sake don't add to the discomforts of this torrid spell by wasting time in the kitchen making desserts. With peaches and berries galore and cantaloupes and those marvelous honeydears at their best—to say nothing of prepared desserts—why cook? Why cook so very much, anyhow, till it's cooler? Pinehurst will do almost all the catering—providing the finest kind of seasonable foods that need little if any cooking. Call us up, if in doubt. For the Best in Fruit and Vegetables. Call 2000. We are glad to tell you that we will have Fresh Peas from Paggoli of Birch Mountain Tuesday. Native Green Beans, Celery, Tomatoes, Cucumbers, Lettuce, Parsley, Summer Squash.
