

HOOVER MEANS TO DEFEND DRY LAW IN SPEECH

Prohibition to Be Made Definite Issue in Coming Campaign—Candidate Not to "Pussyfoot."

Palo Alto, Calif., July 25.—Prohibition will be made a definite issue in the approaching presidential campaign with Herbert Hoover taking the dry side of the argument in his speech accepting the Republican nomination, it was learned here today on good authority.

The Republican nominee, who virtually has completed his speech, will come out strongly for enforcement of the 18th Amendment and place himself on record as favoring a further test of prohibition. This will bring him into direct conflict with the known position of Gov. Al Smith, his Democratic rival for the presidency.

Prohibition will become a real issue, one of his closest advisers said, because Hoover will not "pussyfoot" on the subject. His declaration on prohibition, it was said, will be far more emphatic than in his reply to the famous questionnaire of Senator William E. Borah last spring, in which the nominee appeared to take a middle of the road attitude.

Hoover does not desire to make prohibition an issue, according to his advisers. The circumstances, however, are such that he cannot avoid it. He will simply speak his mind, it was said, but by doing so he undoubtedly will create an issue that may dominate the campaign in the east.

To Talk Prosperity
The Republican nominee will make Republican prosperity and a continuance of Republican efficiency in governmental affairs his outstanding issues. He will stress both beyond all other issues but the decision as to their importance naturally lies with the voters.

Some of the high spots of his speech, which will contain an interpretation of the Kansas City platform and therefore the Republican campaign book, will include:

1. A careful analysis of the farm problem and a definite constructive program for alleviation of farm troubles.

2. A specific declaration in favor of the Republican protective tariff, couched in such language as to place the nominee definitely in the "high tariff" class of political economists.

3. A demand for a strong national defense, possibly even to the extent of demanding the strengthening of the American Navy pending further international disarmament treaties.

4. A declaration in favor of restrictive immigration with an expression that the present law is partially responsible for American prosperity.

5. A declaration in favor of the outlawry of war and for world conferences to develop arbitrage.

PRESIDENT PLANS YELLOWSTONE VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge and Son May Go to National Park in Few Weeks.

Superior, Wis., July 25.—The magnificent scenery, invigorating air and fine fishing of Yellowstone National Park will lure President Coolidge away from the Brule river Summer White House between the tenth and fifteenth of August, International News Service learned today.

Tentative plans have been in the making for the past few days for a departure from here between those dates for Yellowstone. A return to Cedar Island Lodge for the remainder of the season is problematical. The Coolidges may tour the park in the usual brief fashion and come back to the north woods of Wisconsin, or they may arrange for a more protracted stay and then go straight east to Plymouth, Vt., or Northampton, Mass., for several weeks before returning to Washington.

Fished Constantly
The unusually enjoyable time Mr. Coolidge had during last year's tour of the park, plus the pleas of Mrs. Coolidge and her son, John, are understood to have prompted the decision to journey away from the Pierce estate on the Brule. The President fished constantly, and with great success, all of the five

LABOR KEEPS HANDS OFF IN THE CAMPAIGN

No Talk of Third Party—To Work With Both Parties to Elect Men Favorable to A. F. of L.

Washington, July 25.—Organized labor does not plan to take sides in the present presidential campaign.

Its non-partisan policy is expected to be reaffirmed at the meeting of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor in Atlantic City next week.

Labor will work within both parties to secure election of Senators and Representatives who are favorable to the federation's legislative program.

While withholding comment in advance of the council meetings, federation officials declared today that organized labor has no grudge either with Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover or Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York. William Green, president, and other officials, however, do not believe that the anti-injunction planks in either party platform were strong enough. The federation feels that one of the greatest obstacles in the path of labor today is the alleged misuse of injunctive powers by federal and state courts. They point to the coal strike injunctions as examples.

See Both Leaders
Labor officials have consulted both Hoover and Smith about the injunction question and have requested the candidates to make their positions clear in their acceptance speeches.

Four years ago, at a council meeting in Atlantic City, the federation decided to stray from its non-partisan policy and endorsed the La Follette independent candidacy. Senator La Follette polled less than 5,000,000 votes, and carried but one state, Wisconsin, in the electoral college. Proposals have been made to enlist the federation in a new third party movement which would be built up during the next four years and enter the lists with a presidential candidate in 1932.

The movement would be centered around the La Follette-Norris Progressive group in the Senate and a cold shoulder has been turned to

MYSTERY SHROUDS QUEER GEM THEFT

Woman Buys Half Million's Worth for Family—Sells Them for $63,000.

New York, July 25.—Although the district attorney's office is in possession of all information and evidence in the half-million dollar Wanamaker jewel seizure, action either civil or criminal was being held in suspense today pending the return from Europe of Captain and Mrs. Isaac E. Emmerson of Baltimore to whose account at Wanamaker's the items were charged by their housekeeper, Mrs. Maria J. Leslie.

Mrs. Leslie remains in a sanitarium in Connecticut. Harry Winston, Fifth avenue jeweler, who purchased the jewelry from her for $3,000 and then unwittingly offered it back to Wanamaker's for $113,000, is withholding civil action against the woman.

Officials of the John Wanamaker store likewise are waiting to confer with Captain Emmerson before proceeding against Mrs. Leslie, to whom the $480,000 worth of jewels were delivered and charged against the Emmerson account.

No Evidence of Crime
Assistant District Attorney Pecora indicated there is not yet any evidence that a crime has been committed and that action by his office will await arrival of the Emmersons from Germany where they have been inspecting a new yacht.

The seizure in replevin by deputy sheriffs was the largest ever made here and followed an investigation instituted by Wanamaker's in which Noel C. Scaffa, famous gem sleuth, had a prominent part as representative of an insurance company.

According to the story told police, Mrs. Leslie obtained the jewelry by presenting a letter purporting to be signed by Mrs. Emmerson giving her authority to make the purchase. The store called the Emmersons and upon receiving a reply called in detectives. Mrs. Leslie meanwhile had sold the jewels to Winston, who believed he was acting in full good faith in buying them.

HOOVER KISSES NO BABIES!

But He Will Pat Them.

One of the nation's time-honored political gestures was cast into the discard when Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, refused to kiss a baby that was held up to him at Montello, Nev. When the mother held up the child, the crowd cried, "Kiss the baby!" Hoover's reply was "I'm not kissing babies for publication." He patted the child and handed it back to its mother, as shown above. The picture was taken by the NEA staff photographer with Hoover.

SHOOTS TWO OFFICERS AND IS KILLED HIMSELF

Fairfield Man Runs Amuck; Hides in Barn, Wounds Second Officer and is Then Killed.

Fairfield, Conn., July 25.—One man is dead and two others, police officers here, are suffering from bullet wounds today as the result of an attempt to arrest a local man who was threatening his family. The dead man is Joseph Hazay, 32, of Brentwood road, father of five children. The wounded are Hezekiah R. Elwood and Arthur Beckett, local constables.

Hazay went on a rampage at his home about midnight. His wife telephoned for protection and Constable Elwood responded. Elwood was met by a volley of revolver shots when he reached the Hazay home. One bullet entered his left breast and another was deflected by his badge, while a third shattered a finger on his left hand.

Hazay Escapes
In the confusion this resulted Hazay escaped. The constable made his way back to the center of town and was given treatment. He refused to go to a hospital.

An all-night hunt by state police and local officers followed without result. Joseph Krivensky, a farmer, of 224 Meadow road, went to his barn after daylight and found Hazay there in hiding. Krivensky is the father of Hazay's wife. The men engaged in conversation for a few moments and Krivensky, aware of the situation, slipped out and locked his son-in-law in the barn while he telephoned the police.

Shoots Constable
Constable Bennett rushed out to the farm armed with a riot gun. As the constable opened the barn door Hazay fired twice at him, one shot striking the constable in the left breast. Though wounded the constable let his barrels of his gun drive at his assailant. One charge smashed Hazay's right shoulder, the

POLAND-LITHUANIA ARE AGAIN NEAR WAR

Danger of Conflict Looms; Newspapers in Bitter Fight Over Note.

Berlin, July 25.—Danger of a conflict between Poland and Lithuania again falls the eastern horizon today. A dispatch from Vilna quoted the newspaper Glos Prawdy as saying that one Polish soldier was killed and several others wounded in a clash with Lithuanian border patrols. The Poles claim that Lithuanian troops have been concentrated on the frontier.

Warsaw, July 25.—"The Lithuanian firebrand threatens to start a new war and it must be extinguished immediately," said the newspaper Glos Prawdy, organ of Marshal Pilsudski, today.

Polish newspapers comment bitterly over the Lithuanian note to the League of Nations, complaining of Polish military maneuvers near Vilna.

According to press reports, Lithuanians invaded Polish territory and destroyed frontier markers.

SEN. HARRISON IN CHARGE OF DIXIE'S DEMS.

To Direct Campaign From New York—Denies the "Solid South" Plans to Move Against Smith.

New York, July 25.—The Democratic national campaign in the solid south will be waged under the personal direction of Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, from the national headquarters in New York.

Following announcement by Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic national committee that he saw no necessity for an independent southern headquarters, Harrison, a member of the national advisory committee, brought the Democratic chieftrain renewed assurances that "there is no doubt about the south running true to the Democratic Party."

The decision to give Harrison personal direction of the Dixie strategy followed. The Mississippi plan will spend most of his time in the new national headquarters in the General Motors building here. But will make brief scouting trips whenever he deems it necessary.

"The Democratic Party has a finer chance for success than it has had in any general election for a generation. We are going to make the country Democratic this year—a Democratic president and Congress is our goal," Harrison said.

Denies Rumors
He denied vehemently that considerable sections of the Democratic south were not cordially disposed toward Gov. Al Smith. He predicted that the south's representation at the notification ceremonies at Albany, August 22, would reveal the true sentiment of that section. Besides the regular representation, Harrison plans to bring up every member of the national committee, including the women, every governor, state party chairman, Senator and member of Congress. In addition, he said, Smith clubs throughout the region are preparing to send special delegations on their own initiative.

"The governor's popularity is confined to no section," he said. With the closely organized and definitely under way in the eastern, southern, middlewestern and border states fight from the direct supervision of a member of the advisory committee stationed here, Raskob turned today to a section of a Pacific coast member to handle the campaign west of the Rocky Mountains. Several Californians are under consideration for the committee place, but a decision will not be made for several days.

No More Offices
No additional district offices are expected to be opened, Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, chairman of the advisory committee, said today. Senator Hawes of Missouri will continue the border states fight from the St. Louis regional bureau and the inter-mountain fight will be centered in the Salt Lake office, under the direction of Fred W. Johnson of Rock Spring, Wyo., who shouldered the burden of the Smith

DETROIT TO STOCKHOLM FLIGHT IS POSTPONED

Weather Bureau Reports Bad Weather Over Labrador; Ready for Tomorrow.

Rockford, Ill., July 25.—Flying and flight promotion breed philosophers. Rockford's merchant backers of the one-stop Hassell flight to Stockholm today consoled themselves for the adverse weather reports which postponed the take-off until tomorrow by declaring a half holiday for ceremonies attendant on the opening of a new $375,000 bridge over Rock river.

"Flash" Hassell and Parker "Shorty" Cramer, his co-pilot, navigator and radio operator, received weather bureau news of strong westerly winds over Labrador which has characterized their long months of preparation for the flight.

Covered with grease and grime, they were ready for another day contentedly taping up, tuning up and oiling the broad-winged Great-tri-stinson monoplane "Great-er Rockford."

Weather reports for Thursday are all that could be asked.

BIG BOUT TOMORROW NIGHT.

Graham McNamee's blow-by-blow description of the Gene Tunney-Tom Heeney world's heavyweight boxing championship bout to be fought in the Yankee Stadium in New York City tomorrow evening, will be broadcast from the branch office of the Manchester Evening Herald, located in the State Theater building on Bissell street at the south end. There is ample space for a large crowd to hear the returns, both from the street and the vacant lot across the street. In addition to other versions, The Herald will carry Davis J. Walsh's expert opinion of the bout the next day. Watkins Brothers are installing a receiving set for the broadcast.

Malmgren's Fate Again Brought In Limelight

Moscow, July 25.—The Malmgren mystery was again brought sharply to public attention today when Aviator Chuchnovsky made an official report to the Soviet Relief Commission repeating that he saw three figures on the ice when he located the Malmgren party on an ice floe on Tuesday night, July 10.

This report was made in response to inquiries wireless to the Russian ice breaker Krassin by the Soviet Relief Commission which is trying to clear up the conflicting reports which were received at the time A. Mariano and F. Zappi—the two survivors of the Malmgren party—were picked up by the Krassin the day after the group had been located by the airman.

Chuchnovsky reiterated his previous declaration that he had seen three human figures on the ice. Two were alive, he said, but the third was lying prone with arms outstretched.

When the Krassin reached the floe only two men—Mariano and Zappi—were found. The erroneous report that Malmgren's body had been taken aboard the ship arose evidently from the aviator's radiogram that he had located the party and that one member was lifeless. After being revived Zappi told his rescuers that Malmgren had been left alive on the ice at Brock Island, at his own request because he had been unable to travel any further.

BLODGETT SCORES CHAMPION TO FLY TO SCENE OF BOUT

State Tax Commissioner Says Officials Are on a Financial Joy Ride.

Hartford, Conn., July 25.—Tax Commissioner W. H. Blodgett today sent Thomas F. McGrath, of Waterbury, a five-page letter in which the commissioner reviews the problems of finance and taxation in Waterbury and criticizes officials of the city to the point of suggesting resignations as a remedy. He says Waterbury is on a "financial joyride."

The commissioner declared his opinion is based on reports submitted to him by public accountants who have been studying the Waterbury situation for some time.

The letter says that expenditures over appropriations for three years ending in 1927 were about $255,000 and in the same period expenditures were $1,452,000 in excess of budget items.

"This budget," the letter says, "is required by the charter to be made up by the board of finance. What kind of a board is it which permits this condition of things to obtain year after year? Anyone familiar with provisions of the charter will observe that expenditures above appropriations are in violation thereto."

The very ridiculous showing which the board of finance has made in the three years past indicates very clearly that it is not functioning, or seriously attempting to function, according to the provisions of the charter of Waterbury. If there had been any effort on the part of the board of finance to fix the budget and function under the provisions of the charter there could not have been any such condition obtaining. Further, if the comptroller of the city had been observant of his obligations under the charter the conditions obtaining could not have existed. Why should not suit be brought on the bond of the comptroller against him to act in his obligations under the provisions of the charter?"

"By some method of plan the city officials should be required to observe the provisions of the charter. Until this will have been accomplished Waterbury will continue its financial 'joy-ride.'"

"Unquestionably, there should be some very prompt and resolute resignations in Waterbury. If the conduct of officials cannot be squared with the provisions of the charter, such officials should give way to others who will at least act as such."

The present plans are to have the plane leave here in time to reach New York by noon. An automobile, with motorcycle police escort, will whisk him to the Garden, where the official weighing in ceremony is due to take place.

After that there is no announcement of where Gene is going to go. The champion will slip away from the Garden and will go into seclusion some place near the Yankee Stadium until just before the time for him to enter the ring arrives. Needless to say, no one but the Tunney handlers will be with him after the weighing in.

Washed Up on West Coast of Jutland—Has Markings Like French Machine.

London, July 25.—A portion of a wrecked plane bearing markings similar to those upon the plane of Charles Nungesser and Francois Collin has been discovered at Blaavand, upon the west coast of Jutland, according to a Central News dispatch from Copenhagen this afternoon.

Nungesser and Collin hopped off at Paris for New York in the plane "White Bird" on May 8, 1927, and were never heard of again. At first it was believed they had been lost in the wilderness of eastern Canada and extensive search was made for them in that region, but no trace was ever discovered. Finally they were given up for dead in the belief their plane had been forced down in the Atlantic.

Secretary Kellogg has become sympathetic to the Nationalists' request for revision by the powers of the Chinese treaties. Removal of troops is regarded as the forerunner of a conference to discuss the treaty question. It is also further evidence of the administration's belief that the Nationalists, in control of north and south China, are in a position to assure a stable government, the requisite laid down by Kellogg for recognition.

FRENCH OFFICE FORBIDS TRIP ACROSS ATLANTIC

Defective Motor Makes Hop Impossible for Flyers Now at the Azores.

Paris, July 25.—A defective motor has ended the trans-Atlantic flight of Lieutenant Paulin Paris who came down in the harbor at Horta, Azores, while attempting a voyage to New York.

The Ministry of Marine, it was learned today, ordered Lieut. Paris to cancel the flight and remain at Horta until a French warship can be sent to the harbor to take the seaplane Frigate on board. The plane will be brought to France for the installation of a new motor and it is possible that another attempt will be made later in the summer.

Officials of the Ministry of the Marine feared to allow Lieut. Paris and his two companions to continue on their flight after making temporary repairs upon the damaged motor.

The Frigate hopped off at Brest, France, on Sunday, reaching Horta on Monday morning. The plane had been lifted upon the break-water at Horta and the airman were making repairs when the order arrived from Paris to discontinue the flight.

SUPREME LAW

There seems to be a good deal of indignation among the Democrats over a deduction by William Allen White concerning Governor Smith's probable course in the matter of prohibition.

"He," says Mr. White, "will not wait for a dry Congress. Many learned, respectable, famous lawyers believe that the Eighteenth amendment is unconstitutional. The undertakers are looking wistfully right now at three members of the United States Supreme Court, and with Al Smith as President he would have in that court as quickly as he could name them three of those distinguished, learned, respectable lawyers from the seaboard. . . . These lawyers would declare the Eighteenth amendment unconstitutional before a cat, even so agile as a cat as the tiger-cat, could wink her eye."

And at that the Democrats begin to roar. Why, we cannot for the life of us see, for a reason that we shall presently explain. Some of the indignant Democrats, fearful lest this idea of a "packed" Supreme Court shall gain headway, to the peril of Smith among the dries, hurry to make the point, rather strained, that even if the Eighteenth amendment is contrary to the spirit of the Constitution it is now part of that body and not subject to judicial review.

We can't see wherein this possibility of a change in the personnel of the Supreme Court, as a matter of fact, affects Mr. Smith or Mr. Hoover at all. We have always had the most sublime faith that sooner or later the Supreme Court will knock the Eighteenth amendment gallely west, but we don't believe that three or four justices appointed by Smith would be a bit more likely to perform that good deed than three or four appointed by Hoover. What will cause a practical self-reversal by the Supreme Court will not be the hand-picking of the appointees to that tribunal, but the passage of time and time's revelations.

It will in all probability be Mr. Hoover who will have the duty of selecting a successor to one, perhaps successors to several justices of the Supreme Court. Mr. Hoover would hardly be accused of picking his appointees with a sole view to their attitude toward the validity of the dry amendment. Yet, since he would be sure to select jurists superior to factional clamor and possessing profound wisdom, there would be little to fear from the resubmission to them of the question of the Amendment's conflict with the spirit of the Constitution. For that matter, if a majority of the present membership of the court had not fully committed itself to the opinion of June 1920, that the amendment was valid, a resubmission at this very day would be gratefully welcomed by most of the lovers of temperance and good order who believe federal prohibition to be an error.

Mr. White is good and well right when he says that many distinguished, learned and respectable lawyers believe the Eighteenth amendment to be unconstitutional. And he can be assured that any appointee of Mr. Hoover's to the Supreme Court would be just as liable to help destroy the abominable amendment as any of Mr. Smith's. A tremendous lot of water has flowed under the bridges—and a tremendous lot of poisonous hooch has flowed down American throats since the Supreme Court gave its sanction to the Eighteenth amendment eight years ago.

In 1857 the Supreme Court delivered itself of the famous Dred Scott decision denying a slave his freedom which he sued for on the claim that it had accrued to him through residence in a free state. That decision was reached under section 2 of Article 4 of the original Constitution, which reads: "No person held to service or labor in one state, under the laws thereof, escaping into another shall in consequence of any law or regulation therein be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due."

The Thirteenth amendment, ending slavery, was not ratified, and so did not become part of the Constitution, until December, 1865, after the close of the Civil war.

Yet is there anyone, anywhere, who will maintain that if there had been a reintroduction of the Dred Scott case any time between 1861 and the close of the war, the Supreme Court would not have reversed itself absolutely?

The Supreme Court of the United States is not a pettifoggery, rule-of-thumb tribunal. It interprets the times as well as the original thought of legal documents. In 1920 it had no way of knowing what sort of thing this Eighteenth amendment was. There was no precedent and no way to read the future. Eight years have passed. If the Eighteenth amendment in 1920 could not be seen by a majority of the Court to be in conflict with the body of the Constitution that was because there was, in those early days, no way of weighing and evaluating its inner meaning. Now the meaning is clear. Its effects are manifest.

When again, as it surely will, the validity of the amendment is questioned in the presence of the Supreme Court the evil and error of it will be as clear as the evil and error of Paragraph 3, Section 2 of the Fourth article of the Constitution, which made a slave a slave in every free state of the Union—and which it took a great war to nullify.

ONE HOOVER REASON

A number of representatives of large business interests in the neighborhood of the Housatonic river from Stratford to Shelton, including on the side Bridgeport interests, argued before the Rivers and Harbors Commission at Washington yesterday for the recommendation of an appropriation of less than a million dollars to deepen the channel of the Housatonic from its mouth to Shelton. They presented imposing figures on the amount of tonnage assured to the river if the improvement were made.

The commission has already frowned on the project, and the hearing is not likely to have any particular effect—though of course there is a bare possibility that it may.

It should not have been a local group that appeared in support of this enterprise. It should not be a local group to get back of the project to deepen the channel of the Connecticut to twelve feet from Hartford to Holyoke. It should not be a local group to be interested in promoting the four-day-line at New London. All Connecticut ought to be not only interested but enthused and highly vocal in favor of these betterments for water-borne commerce.

And because the improvement of its waterways is immensely vital to the future industrial and commercial development of Connecticut the people of this state ought to understand that with Herbert Hoover in the Presidential chair an entirely new outlook on such questions is certain to animate the federal government. As an engineer-economist and one especially interested in inland waterway development Mr. Hoover will make, so far as Connecticut's need of cheap transport is concerned, far and away the best President we ever had.

Such projects as the Hartford-to-Holyoke and Stratford-to-Shelton channels will not be regarded as trivial bores by a Hoover administration, but as keys to the solution of the industrial future of America.

THE MAN BEHIND

The presence in New York of the great Harlem colony of Negroes, without the occurrence of race riots, has been one of the wonders of America to those who are given to speculating on race psychology. Here is actually a great city of black people within a greater city of whites, many of both races lacking in culture and self discipline, and yet for years the two peoples have dwelt side by side with scarcely a sign of friction. Suddenly, and almost out of a clear sky, comes a vicious and unprovoked assault by a whole Harlem neighborhood on police officers engaged in nothing but the routine of their calling, protecting colored people against colored criminals.

The Negro is not, potentially, a political malcontent. He normally gets too much fun out of life to permit his existence to be soured by social or political grievances. He has not, as a race, any particular grudge against the white man and the latter's inevitable assumption of superiority. He has no time for it. He is not, if left alone, the sort of material out of which to organize anti-social outbreaks. And that, obviously, is what that Harlem riot was. It was a flash of antagonism to the elements of law and order, without personal animus. The unescapable deduction is that somebody has been stirring up those Harlem colored folks against constituted authority. And it's our guess that when the persons responsible for this sporadic outbreak are ferreted out they will prove to rate among the Caucasian peoples—it is too much of a compliment to call them white men.

SAILING

In these hectic sporting days of million dollar prize fights, transoceanic airplane races, international golf and tennis hot-spotted by frantic fights over "amateurism," lunion derbies and dancing marathons, to say nothing of a national game as highly commercialized as the circus business, such an old-fashioned and back-to-nature affair as a transatlantic yacht race is refreshing—though only a handful of the American people, apparently, have refreshed themselves to the extent of reading about it.

The victory of the little Nina, in the New York-to-Santander ocean regatta, by completing the course in twenty-five days, and that of the bigger Elena, which crossed in seventeen days, are notable evidences that with all the softening distraction of the day American amateur sailors have not deteriorated into putty.

The crews of the yachts in the regatta have done something worth while in helping to preserve the traditions of the sea in this country—of the "tail ship and a star to steer her by." And who knows but what the time may come when ability to hand and reef and steer may again be a national asset?

So far this old world has done a lot of its moving in cycles. Nobody knows whether there will always be coal and fuel oil to energize the teakettle ships. There will always be ship timbers and something wherefrom to weave broad sails, as long as there is a world at all. The professional sailor is fast disappearing from the face of the seas. To the amateur, likely enough, will be left the task of preserving the art of sail navigation.

It is a laudable avocation—a sport that is something more than a sport, for it is the maintenance of a link between the future and a past filled with the greatest glories of human achievement.

New York, July 25.—In the morning mail there came a little placard, accompanied by a brief note which read: "Will you help us in getting before the boys and girls of America a word of warning? It has to do with the financial preparations they should make before they contemplate going to New York. You know, of course, that most of them arrive with great hopes and small purses. It's one of the biggest problems of the city's social agencies. It is absolutely essential that they should be in a position to live decently until they get work. And, as you should know, they don't always get work immediately."

And so the letter goes on. And so, also, I pass on to the boys and girls of America the slogan that appears in black type upon the enclosed card:

"If you can't afford to spend $25 a week for a number of weeks on the bare necessities of life—stay away from New York."

To this, I will add a few statistics which I feel to be optimistically arrived at: $9 a week for a room; $10.50 for food; $2 for laundry; $1.75 for carfare, and $1.75 for incidentals. And the $25 is spent.

Now, as a matter of fact, a room that rents for $9 is not likely to be much of a room for a girl accustomed to some home comforts. And the amount of food to be had for $10.50 is not likely to be great. An average dinner at $1 is a "cheap" meal. Of course, one can eat at a canteen, at lunch counters and such—but can this be kept up? And with $1.75 left for movies and such, which cost almost that amount for a good orchestra seat, the amusement possibilities are not great.

Yet one can live on it. Most frequently two or more girls, strangers in the city, pool their dimes and rent an apartment. They cook their own meals—at least most of the time—do their own washing, and so can manage to live rather well on the $25. They need better clothes. They need new clothes. They'd like to go to some of the play places they see all about them. They'd like to eat one meal in one of the better places. And there are so many men willing to provide these things—even more, if they're attractive—IF . . . !

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclosure stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

THE SKIN

There are many shades of color to the human skin, and our place in society and the effect of our appearance upon other human beings is largely dependent upon our skin. A Hottentot or an Eskimo might be as intelligent and well educated as a white man, but he would never be accorded as high a position in white society.

There is much truth in the saying that beauty is only skin deep. But the skin serves other purposes than camouflaging our muscles and bones. It is a protective covering of the body, keeping out many dangerous germs, insects and poisons, and retaining the fluids and minerals that are essential to life.

The skin is also an organ of feeling, since most of our nerves of touch end in or immediately under the skin. It regulates the temperature of the body so that when we are too warm moisture is thrown off and, by the process of evaporation, keeps the body cool. The skin also conserves the heat of the body by driving the blood away from the surface into the inner organs that must be kept warm to preserve life. The skin assists the lungs and kidneys to excrete water containing various toxic waste products, which are so poisonous, that if they were retained, would produce death within a very short time.

There are two main divisions to the skin, an outer tough coating called the epidermis, and the inner soft layer, rich in blood vessels and nerves, which is known as the derma or true skin. The epidermis or outer layer consists mostly of dead cells which are continually forced out from the inside. Since the only growing cells of the outer layer of the skin are located internally, near the dermis, these divide and force the older cells outward where they in time scale off.

Whenever an unusual pressure comes on the skin such as occurs on the soles of the feet or in the hands, the epidermal cells multiply with a great rapidity and produce an abnormal thickening. If the pressure occurs on a limited area as sometimes happens when a tight shoe is worn, a little mound of epidermal cells is built up which we call a corn or callous. This may be removed by various methods, but will always recur unless the pressure that caused the growth is removed.

A wart is a place where some irritating acid from the blood has gathered which causes the epidermal cells to grow and multiply much more rapidly than is natural. Cancer seems to be caused in much the same manner, and may occur either in the epidermal cells or in the connective tissues which bind the body together.

The difference in color of the various races, and even of individuals, is caused by the pigment in the lower cells of the epidermis. There is no difference in the color of the blood of different races. The outer layers of the epidermis are translucent and partly transparent, which allows us to look through and see the coloring of the lower cells. Any exposure to the sun causes the coloring matter to become more abundant in the skin, and we term this tan. When a spot of the epidermis becomes unusually prominent we term the spot a freckle. This skin pigment is for the purpose of protecting the nerves and other delicate structure beneath the epidermis from certain destructive rays in the sunlight.

(Continued in my next article) Questions and Answers Question: M. L. writes: "I am troubled most of the time by a drowsy, heavy feeling. It does not necessarily follow eating. I sometimes have it immediately upon arising. Will you please tell me the cause and remedy?" Answer: You are probably suffering from some kind of toxic condition. Try eating less and exercising more. Take a good walk twice daily, finishing with a cold shower each time.

Question: Mrs. G. H. asks: "Will you please tell me what foods, if any, contain iodine?" Answer: The following foods contain the largest amount of iodine: Asparagus, pineapple, cabbage, kidney beans, mushrooms, carrots, strawberries, shrimp and other shell fish.

Question: M. K. H. writes: "My husband has been ill with heart trouble for nearly a year—leaky valve. The heart specialist ordered complete rest, but he has insisted on taking two treatments a week from an osteopath, and his improvement has been very slow. Would not such treatment be harmful to the blood through the heart as rapidly as any other form of exercise?" Answer: Your husband will never be cured of heart trouble as long as he uses the "complete rest" treatment. Osteopathic treatments will surely be helpful to him, but he must get up and walk around several times daily in order to properly exercise the heart muscles. His diet should be very limited, and care must be used to exclude any possibility of fatulence. Exercise should be in the form of lying in bed, and the walking increased each day in order to develop the strength which is needed to overcome any heart derangement.

If the land surface of the earth were divided between the inhabitants each person would receive about 20 acres.

EXCLUSIVE REPRESENTATIVES FOR CRAWFORD AND CHAMBERS RANGES

WASHINGTON LETTER

This is the first of a series of three articles on the functions and processes of the Electoral College.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, July 25.—The Electoral College, which has no college yell, no faculty, no endowment and no campus, never was much of a college.

Now it has degenerated into a correspondence school.

The Electoral College is the term applied to the 531 presidential electors who will be elected on November 6. Under the constitution, we will then vote for presidential electors rather than presidential candidates. They are just so much machinery, however, as they are pledged to vote for a candidate in advance.

Each state is permitted to elect an elector for each of its senators and each of its representatives. Thus there are two electors-at-large and one elector from each congressional district, all elected by statewide vote. Persons in the service of the United States are not eligible as electors.

Each candidate will have his own set of electors on the ballot. Those receiving the highest vote automatically enter the college. In each state the electors are chosen on Monday in January to vote, which, of course, is just so much formality. They transmit their certificates to the governor. Having gone this far, the colleges cannot reconvene.

A law passed by the last session of Congress gave the college its new correspondence school status. Heretofore it has been the practice to send an elector from each state to carry the vote to the vice president in Washington.

The new law eliminates that expensive procedure and the electoral vote may now be sent by mail, so that there isn't any longer even a trip to Washington to be had out of the college.

Under this law, the secretary of state, with whom certificates of the state votes are filed, is no longer required to publish them. They will now be sent by mail to the vice president, secretary of state and federal judge in the circuit where the state. Thus there is no danger of loss.

The nation knows the election result the next morning, but the electoral college and the rest of the government act as if no one had the slightest idea what had happened.

The two houses of Congress meet in joint session in the House chamber to count the electoral vote. The vice president presides. The votes are brought from his office at the Senate. Four tellers are appointed, usually two senators and two representatives equally divided as to political affiliation.

They read the certificates from the states in alphabetical order, rotating from one teller to another. Someone soon arises and obtains unanimous consent to dispense with further certificate reading, whereafter only the results are announced.

Then they tabulate the result and pass it along to the presiding officer, who announces that So and So, the fellow who had received the most electoral votes has been elected president of the United States, with somebody else as vice president. Then they proclaim as much in the Congressional Record.

The electors are state officers. The electoral system was devised as a sort of compromise between direct popular election and congressional election of the executive. Principal arguments against direct popular election: the constitutional convention were the great advantage that would be given to the large states, ignorance of the people as to the merits of candidates and the alleged incompetence of the people to pick the right man.

The original plan was to have the electors intelligent, free-acting and independent, but it never worked so early as 1795 Samuel Miles of Pennsylvania, a Federalist elector, was denounced for voting for Jefferson instead of Adams. Pennsylvania had chosen two Federalist electors; the rest were Jeffersonian Republicans. The vote was so close that the highest vote any of the 30 candidates for elector had was 12,306 and the lowest 12,071.

No elector since Miles has betrayed his trust, although efforts were made to buy electors in the Hayes-Tilden scandal of 1876.

There are no so arduous recent instances, however, where the electoral vote of a state has been split. In 1916 West Virginia cast seven electoral votes for Hughes and one for Wilson. The margin of Hughes victory in the state was less than 3,000. In 1912 California gave Roosevelt 11 and Wilson two; Roosevelt carried the state by less than 200 votes. Maryland showed a similar electoral vote in 1904 and 1908.

When the Populists joined with the Democrats to elect Bryan in 1896 the Democrats divided electoral votes with them in 26 states, where 197 of the Bryan electors were Democrats and 79 Populists. In that year some of the Populists were for Bryan and Sewall and some for Bryan and Watson. Watson was a Populist candidate for vice president and had 27 electoral votes against Sewall's 149.

Horace Greeley died after his defeat by Grant in 1872 before the electoral votes were cast. It made little difference, but most of his electors split up among other candidates. Congress rejected three votes which were still cast for Greeley.

The practice of voting for electors by districts was abandoned nearly 100 years ago, although revived for a year by Michigan in 1892. Any legislature may switch back to it at any time, but they just don't. Obviously, that method tends to split the vote to the advantage of one party and disadvantage of the other.

For awhile some legislatures picked the electors, but gradually they surrendered this right to the people until only Delaware and South Carolina was the last state to give the privilege to the people, in 1868.

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(155) 262,000 Attend Public Elementary Schools.

The public elementary schools in Connecticut have a yearly registration of between 260,000 and 270,000 pupils and an average daily attendance of more than 220,000. During the school year ending in 1927 there were 262,272 pupils enrolled in the 1,255 elementary public schools, while the average daily attendance was 223,748.

Boys outnumbered girls in the elementary schools, there being 134,235 of the former and 128,038 of the latter enrolled during 1926-27. There were approximately 7,000 classrooms occupied daily by elementary school pupils. There were 7,677 men and women engaged in teaching elementary pupils during the year.

The current expenditures for the elementary schools during the year came to about $19,000,000. Current expenses 20 years ago amounted to about $2,600,000. The value of elementary school buildings was placed at $69,415,430 a year ago. The total value of both elementary and high school buildings twenty years ago was $16,582,824. The average expenditure per pupil in average daily attendance in elementary schools a couple of years ago was $80.06.

Twenty years ago there were 137,319 different scholars registered, with an average attendance of 123,931. Teachers numbered about 4,000. There were 584 schools having from two to six departments, while there were 961 one-room schools.

Friday—Kindergarten Pupils Total 21,000.

NOTICE
Proposed order establishing building and veranda lines on north side and the south side of Locust Street from Main Street on the east to Church Street on the west, with time and place of public hearing on said proposed order.

The Selectmen of Manchester, Conn., at a meeting held July 9, acting under and pursuant to Section 9 (4) Special Laws Conn., 1913, approved April 9, 1913, and Sections 1-5 (452) Spec. Laws Conn. 1917, approved Oct. 1st, 1917 having deemed it for the public good that building and veranda lines should be established on Locust Street, a highway in the Town of Manchester, Conn., from Main Street on the east to Church Street on the west, passed the following proposed order viz:

NORTH SIDE
The building line on the north side of Locust Street is to be twenty-five (25) feet north of and parallel to the north line of said Locust Street from Main Street on the east to Church Street on the west.

The veranda line on the north side of Locust Street is to be fifteen (15) feet north of and parallel to the north line of said Locust Street from Main Street on the east to Church Street on the west.

SOUTH SIDE
The building line on the south side of Locust Street is to be twenty-five (25) feet south of and parallel to the south line of said Locust Street from Main Street on the east to Church Street on the west.

And it is hereby ordered: That said proposed order of the Selectmen of Manchester, Conn., be heard and determined at the Municipal Bldg. in said Town of Manchester, on Monday, July 23, 1928, at seven o'clock, P. M. In the afternoon, and that the Secretary of this Board cause a copy of the proposed order designating and establishing the building and veranda lines upon said proposal of Selectmen, together with a notice of the time and place of hearing thereon, to be filed in the Town Clerk's office in said Town of Manchester, and published at least twice in a newspaper printed in said Town at least five days before the day of hearing and a copy of said proposed order and notice to be deposited in a Post Office in said Manchester, postage paid, directed to each person or persons interested at his or their last known address at least five days before the day of said hearing and return make to this Board.

Dated at said Manchester, July 23, 1928.

For and by order of the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Manchester, Connecticut. THOMAS J. ROGERS, Secretary. A true and attested copy of original order. THOMAS J. ROGERS, Secretary of the Board of Selectmen. Manchester, Conn., July 23, 1928.

STATE 'KIDDIES REVUE' OPENS HERE TOMORROW

ability, for it is then that the much-heralded Kiddies' Revue is to take place. This year's show, according to many authorities who have witnessed several of the rehearsals, surpasses any of the previous events.

Under the careful and guiding hand of Manager Jack Sanson, the Kiddies are ready to offer an entertainment that fairly sparkles with mirth, melody and song. Clever dance routines and poignant moments of drama have been woven deftly into the production, and, together with an exquisite background of special scenery and pretty costumes, the show is sure to win the approval of everyone. "The Girl From Home" is the title of the production. It tells the story of a poor girl, reared in the tenement district of New York's famous East Side, who becomes an actress and is cordially accepted by society. Events soon shape themselves, however, into a rather complicated state of affairs when the girl is denounced and made an outcast.

the evening shows are scheduled for 7:00 and 8:35. On Saturday the performance will run continuously from 2:15 until 10:30 and the revue will be presented three times. The film feature for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be Esther Ralston in her newest starring vehicle, "Half a Bride." In this picture Miss Ralston has a role which fits her perfectly. The story itself, is an intriguing study of modern fast living and its anti-these. It moves from the glitzy ballrooms of the wealthy to the sordid underworld pleasure dives, to the clean deck of an ocean-going yacht and to the exquisite setting of a deserted island. Thrills and laughter prevail throughout, while the climax presents a series of smashing events well seasoned with tense drama. Gary Cooper, remembered for his remarkable work in "The Legion of the Condemned," plays opposite Miss Ralston in this picture, as the handsome young sea captain who spurs the fast living of his companions. Others in the cast are Guy Oliver, Freeman Wood and Ray Gallagher. For the final times this evening, at 7:00 and 9:00, the State is presenting Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes in "Three Ring Marriage," a thrilling comedy-drama of circus life.

LOVE FOR TWO

By RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 by NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BERTIE LOU WARD marries ROD BRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. The only shadow on the bride's happiness is Lila's persistence in broadcasting to their friends that she was Rod's first love.

A position in New York is offered Rod by TOM FRASER and he accepts. Anxious to make a good impression, they go to an expensive hotel until they can find an apartment. MOLLY FRASER embarrasses Bertie Lou by urging her to buy more than she can afford.

Rod wins some money from Tom at poker and, feeling under obligation to them, recklessly invites the crowd to a night club. Lila arrives to visit Molly and goes to the party where she meets a rich MR. LOREE.

Lila surprises them by marrying Mr. Loree, and she asks Bertie Lou to forgive the past and become friends. She showers favors upon them with such sincerity that Bertie Lou is deceived. But keeping up appearances with their crowd is a severe strain on Rod's finances. He becomes disgraced and Lila grasps her chance to force sympathy upon him. She persuades him to accept work for Loree at a much higher salary than he was getting with Fraser. She also induces Bertie Lou to sublet their small apartment to live in more luxurious quarters.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII

A month, with Lila, was time for anything. The constant drip of her cleverly phrased words had worn away Bertie Lou's memory of the recent struggle which she and Rod had experienced in order to keep their heads above the waters that threatened to engulf them.

The future looked alluringly bright as Lila painted it. No need to stint.

"Cy will stick to Rod," Lila told Bertie Lou. "He thinks the world of him. Cy's a good-looking fellow. I like to see everyone well off. He'd think Rod lacked confidence in him if you weren't making the most of his friendship. Cy doesn't expect you to save for a rainy day, Bertie Lou, because he doesn't rain on people he likes."

And Molly always kept reminding Bertie Lou of Rod's good luck in having a man like Cyrus Loree interested in him.

"I heard that Rod's slated to keep on moving upstairs in his company," she remarked, not troubling to add that Lila had given her the information.

Bertie Lou could see no reason, after a while, why they should not have a place where they could entertain in a way that would do credit to Cyrus' generosity.

"I think he expects it of us," she argued with Rod when he vetoed the idea of moving. "And he'll be saving in the way he goes on."

"Think what we are spending now on theater parties and suppers. If we had a larger place and a maid we could come home for a 'snack' after the show. Why, we wouldn't need to take a cab to a theater at all. We could throw a decent party at home."

"Anyway, it looks cheap for us to live in a walkup apartment and not keep a maid. Everybody knows you are getting a good salary now."

Rod signed the lease on the dotted line for the new place, though he said he wished they were moving into their own home instead.

Bertie Lou seemed to have forgotten all their earlier plans for a home. Her life was filled with satisfaction over the present. Care had taken his black shadow off their portal. They had money for a good time and good clothes; health and a lot of jolly friends. Bertie Lou was too happy in the new apartment with the glass-enclosed shower and sunken tub, the many-mirrored dressing rooms, and the wood-burning fireplace to dream of anything more helping her furnish the place. "You can use my credit at the shops," she proposed; "you'll have to hunt around to get just the right things."

She accompanied Bertie Lou on several shopping expeditions to exclusive decorators and furniture dealers. "Oh, this is what you want," here and "that's just the very thing for your guest room," there, until Bertie Lou had almost unconsciously run up a number of rather large bills at several expensive houses.

But it was well worth while, she thought. The apartment was beautiful. And had she not heard Cyrus and Rod discussing the value of credit?

Even wealthy people, Cyrus had said, bought motor cars on the deferred payment plan. But what Bertie Lou failed to realize was that these people in taking advantage of this policy were inspired by motives other than merely acquiring a car. . . . it meant something to conserve their cash for use in their own enterprises. . . . the returns would be far greater than the interest they paid to the automobile finance companies.

Bertie Lou really believed it to be a sound policy to create an impression of affluence, even if it were necessary to debit Rod into debt. And debt now was entirely different from being in debt during the days of their penury.

There was now plenty of money on hand for a order and the small luxuries it had been necessary for them to deny themselves in the past. Bertie Lou went blithely ahead, aided and abetted by Lila and the example other women of wealth set for her.

In this materialism of extravagance Rod found himself unable to save. They were merely living on a higher scale, he complained. Bertie Lou said yes, but once the bills were paid their account at the bank would grow like a dandelion.

"Just my pearl necklace and two diamond bracelets," she said, giving the case to him.

The first real party Bertie Lou gave in their new apartment was "hurled," as she said, in Cyrus' honor. For two reasons: First, he had made it possible, and secondly, to speed him on a business trip he was taking. The affair went off beautifully and smoothly. Even Rod was a little puffed up over his domain and his attractive and exclusively-grown wife.

Lila, dancing with him to radio music, laughed up her sleeve. There was a thought in her head about a lamb. It was about time, she decided, to start him toward the place whence little fatted lambs never return.

The next day she called Rod on the telephone and asked him to come and take her rope of pearls and bracelets down to the office. "Please don't send anyone else," she requested. "I'll feel easier if I know you are looking after them."

Rod went to her apartment during the luncheon hour. Lila was just sitting down to a chop and a slice of pineapple. . . . there was her figure to consider.

Rod was invited to stay. He would have declined on a genuine plea of pressure of business at the office but Lila gave him no opportunity. She quickly turned to the waitress and ordered a plate for him. She sent her own plate back to wait for a fresh chop with Rod.

While they partook of a fruit cup which she asked to have served to "dangle" over, Lila talked about the party.

"Quite a change from Wayville," she remarked after a compliment to Bertie Lou's ability in entertaining. "Fate hasn't dealt so badly with you, Rod, has it?"

Rod swallowed a maraschino cherry. "I've surely got a lot to be thankful for," he agreed.

Lila smiled, and into her eyes came a slightly mocking light.

"And once, if you remember," she said very softly, "you told me every thing had come to an end for you."

Rod grinned sheepishly. "If we all quit the first time we thought the show was over we'd miss a lot of good acts," he replied.

"I really wasn't bad luck, or poison ivy, or anything like that, after all, was I?" Lila pursued.

She was leaning forward, elbows on the table, chin cupped in rosette palms.

"You thought I'd spoiled your life didn't you?" Her voice was jokingly infected, but her eyes were now serious and inquiring.

Rod put down his spoon. "Yes, I thought so once, Lila, and I had a pretty tough time for a while. But I guess I'm so deep in your debt now that I couldn't think about that even if I wanted to."

"Oh, you don't owe me anything. If you still hate me a little go right ahead and enjoy it. Maybe I'd be flattered."

"I'm sorry, but I don't hate you at all. How could I? Seriously, Lila, I owe you more than I ever can repay you for getting me a chance with Cy."

"I'm glad you don't regret taking it."

"To be frank, I didn't like the idea at first because . . . well, you know . . . but when a thing is dead and buried there's no use rattling its skeleton, is there?"

"Thank goodness, you've got more sense than you used to have," Lila observed. Then to the girl who brought the chops: "Is there any pie? Serve it for Mr. Bryer and bring a bunch of grapes for me."

The "pie" was a tart, filled with fresh, hot-house strawberries and Creme Chantilly. Very delicious, Rod said. They had coffee and then he told Lila he really must rush back to the office. She made no attempt to detain him.

"I'll get the things," she said, and started to her boudoir. "Cy was going to take them down this morning on his way to the station but we both forgot about it. I'm afraid to keep them in the apartment when he's away." She moved out of the room and Rod went into the hall to get his things on.

Lila came to him there in a few minutes, a leather-covered case in her hands. "Just my pearl necklace and the two diamond bracelets," she said, giving the case to him. Rod took it under his arm.

"Thank you so much for bothering to come for them," Lila said. "I know they'll be safe with you."

Rod thanked her for the luncheon and hurried away. At the office he placed the case in an inner compartment of the safe and turned the lock. As far as he knew only himself and Cyrus held the combination to that lock.

Lila telephoned again a few days later to ask him if it would be too much trouble to bring the gems back to her. She wanted to wear them as yet acquired the habit of hailing taxicabs. But the thought of the milling crowds in the subway at this hour caused him to take a cab. Better not take any chances with his precious case. . . . it might be snatched out of his hands.

And yet, in spite of his caution, when he arrived at the Lorees' apartment, he did not have the jewelry.

DEFENSIVE BIRDS

When the no-trumper is at your right, you should not bid a suit unless eight tricks can be made with your own holding and your hand is strong enough to prevent game against any other declaration by opponents. Bidding on less than an eight-trick hand is not indulged in by strong players. A bid in this position is not a defensive bid. It is an offensive bid and should not be made unless you can bid three if opponents overcall. Unless you hold a two-suiter or a hand worth eight tricks the best strategy is to pass.

When the no-trumper is at your left, you may bid if your hand is almost as good as an original bid or a defensive bid of two, for the purpose of indicating to your partner the best suit to lead. The greatest losses are incurred by a bid of two or a defiance of no trump when you do not hold five probable tricks. The fourth hand should bid only when the hand contains a real lead indicator or probability of game.

This article now may be summarized as follows:

1—Do not make a defensive bid unless total hand contains approximately 1-2 quick tricks.

2—If you do not hold Q or Q J in five-card suit, you must hold two quick tricks in balance of hand.

3—As a rule do not bid a no-trump over a suit, unless hand contains two stops in opponents' suit.

4—As a rule, do not bid a suit over a no-trump when no-trumper is at your right unless you hold an eight-trick hand.

5—To make less than game usually is a waste of time. On a clear score, if with your hand you are reasonably satisfied that opponents cannot make game and that to make game you will require more than normal assistance from your partner, pass.

Something like 5,000,000 trees are cut annually for telegraph and telephone wires; we use 500,000,000 fence posts every year.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL
by World Famed Authority

HERE ARE TIPS ON HOW TO EXTERMINATE FLEAS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Fleas are more disturbing in the summer than in the winter. Nothing is so annoying as a flea that gets on the skin and moves about, biting as it goes. Of course, the immediate result of the flea bite is itching, with a small spot of inflammation.

The Bureau of Entomology, that part of the government which deals exclusively with insect pests, has just issued a report on how to eliminate fleas from the premises.

They breed in greatest numbers on soil or in dust containing vegetable and animal matter. Moisture must be present, but breeding place is usually one protected from the rain, weather and sun.

The usual breeding places are under buildings and porches. For this reason, it is suggested by F. C. Bishopp that chickens and animals be kept, if possible, from going into such places by appropriate fencing and screening.

The area in which fleas breed can be protected and the fleas destroyed by spraying with creosote oil. The ground in which the immature fleas develop is to be covered with salt and thoroughly wet down.

When fleas get into the house, they are probably brought there by pet animals, hence the fleas must be removed from the pet animals and the animals themselves barred from the premises.

The application of gasoline to the floors after the rugs have been removed, and thorough scrubbing with soap and water will get rid of the fleas.

The fleas can be removed from the animals by washing with a creosote solution or with a coal oil emulsion. The bureau points out that the skin of cats is more tender than that of dogs and that solutions for cats must be weaker than that for dogs.

The chief disease carried by fleas is the plague. Fortunately plague has been eliminated from the United States so that flea bites are not dangerous, but nevertheless extremely uncomfortable.

There are hundreds of varieties of fleas bothering men and animals—the human flea, dog flea, cat flea, rat flea, chicken flea, and stick-tight flea. To relieve the bites, physicians usually prescribe weak solutions of menthol or camphor mixed with some appropriate lotion.

Bishopp points out that the greatest distance a flea can jump horizontally is about 13 inches and about half this distance vertically. Hence it is possible to prevent them from gaining access to a bed by placing sticky fly paper 13 inches wide on the floor around the bed.

It is better, however, to avoid the necessity for this measure by getting rid of the fleas in their breeding places.

A Swimming Daily Dozen

By THE ZITENFELD TWINS

Certain setting-up exercises based on the rhythm of swimming give one a theory of swimming that helps tremendously in getting the knack of it.

Try to think of the strokes as a kind of circular movement in which the entire body participates.

Stand with feet together. Raise the arms even with the shoulders. Hold the fingers relaxed and the arms curved so they form a circle on a level with your chin.

Now, if you turn on the radio or some other music which has a slow waltz, you can dance with your arms and get the rhythm of swimming.

Make the body move with the arms, keeping the feet still. A thing to have in mind. Throw the left arm out, turning the head to one side and breathing as you do it. Then as it goes down and back revolve the other arm in the same way.

Keep them alternating until your whole body feels the swing of the music. This is an excellent exercise for circulation, for lithe-ness. But more than that, it is invaluable for giving you the easy motion that is the essence of good swimming.

For swimming has behind it the same theory as the dance. It should be an outlet for the music in one. And unless it is rhythmic it cannot be perfect swimming.

FAN GOSETS

The fluttering and feminine beauty of mid-summer is caught in the fan gosets, of slender, long beauty, in a lilac chiffon frock, with wide sleeves that end in frills and a pleated, circular cape back.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SCAMNER

A beauty expert prophesies that there will be no homely women in 50 years. The beauty of women will be as taken for granted, she says, as the green of the grass or the pink of the rose. Which means, automatically, that there will be no such thing in our barren lives as the thrill that comes from seeing a truly beautiful woman. For beauty is in proportion to its rarity. A world of all-beautiful women would mean that the ugly woman would be the beauty. For what would it profit a woman to have eyes like purple or brown pupils, hair like spun gold, cheeks like the damask rose, and teeth like pearls, if these attributes were only the taken-for-granted things of woman?

But then, no such disaster will ever come. A world of all beautiful women is as remote as a world with no poverty or sin.

SILLY STUNT!

The offer of $50 for every baby born to one of his employees by Henry Field, head of a seed company in Iowa, makes one murmur only "just like a man!" Seriously, in the light of facts which cannot be dodged, facts which prove that the world's population is increasing out of all proportion to its mortality and its production of food, a real humanitarian would offer $50 each year to every employe who refrained from having a baby!

H. C. OF ILLNESS

Illness cost every family in the United States $134.68 and each person $31.08 each year, according to Dr. Homer Folks of New York speaking in Paris before the International Conference of Social Work. This makes the country's yearly sickness bill $15,000,000,000. The country spends, he says, about $76,000,000 a year for the prevention of illness.

Just another way of saying that the problem of illness is the problem for the average man or woman today.

NICE OLD LADY
Mrs. Christine Heim of Sandus-

YOUR CHILDREN
by Olive Roberts Barton
© 1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Don't have children lying around the house saying discontentedly, "I have nothing to do."

If there is nothing for a child to do, something is wrong. There always should be something to occupy his time.

During the years of solitary play—that is, up to four—a child will keep himself fairly well occupied with his little games of pretend. If he is with other children so much the better—he will be sufficiently entertained by watching or imitating them.

But after four a child is likely to develop great unpopularity if his play is without definite direction. At this stage small duties assume the attractiveness of play. He will perform them, as happily as he would take part in a game.

Incidentally such an opportunity may be seized by a mother to develop work habits without in the least stretching her conscience to do it. It need not cause any guilty feelings on her part if she makes Bobby put away toys, wash his own face, brush his own teeth, take out a basket of rubbish (not too heavy), or other tiny chores. She need never say, "It's a shame to make that baby work."

Of course his responsibilities must not be burdensome, but up to a certain degree he will enjoy them. As the years pass, his duties may change character, or be added to, but every boy and girl should have a few duties to take up at that time in which he doesn't know what to do.

But children need play. They need to play, and play, and play. Play is as necessary as food and air to a child. It is recognized as one of the chief factors of character development.

Children do not need expensive toys to play with, but they must have things to take up their interest and activity if it is only a little doll and a few patches to dress it or some mud or clay to fashion into shapes. Toys need never be elaborate.

The game of pretend after four becomes concrete. Children must and will try out their imaginations. That is why a child will seize upon some simple and often unattractive toy upon which to bestow his affections, while a whole roomful of expensive ones lie neglected.

Supervise Play

Parents should realize that after four, play needs a bit of supervision. A very small suggestion will often up a whole day or week.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product, a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fidgety, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

TROLLEYS SEE HOPE IN AUTO JAMMING

Conn. Co. Plans to Speed Up Service to Get Its Old Commuters Back.

The Connecticut Company has under consideration a plan which it expects will again bring to the electric lines patronage it has been losing, especially that of commuters who now travel in their own cars.

The plan is the double tracking of the Hartford-Manchester line between Love Lane and Woodland, providing a faster service by saving time now lost on switches.

Autos a Problem

Commuters who use automobiles are no longer as well satisfied with motor transportation as they were a few years ago because of the lack of parking space and the frequent necessity of walking long distances in Hartford. The expense of parking in fee-charging spaces is another consideration that a survey made by the company has disclosed.

The company has come to the conclusion that if it can shorten the running time into and out of Hartford there will be a general return to the trolley.

It has found that it would be possible to do this as far as the main line is concerned, but difficulties would have to be overcome, however, in the connections with the cross-town and the Manchester Green lines. Hartford cars leaving the South End could not be held at the Center for connections at all times.

The fact that the railroad train between Rockville and Hartford is to be discontinued soon is expected to bring more people back to the trolley cars. Doing away with delays between Woodland and Love Lane there would make possible a better schedule on the Rockville line.

If the proposed change is made cars would be run on a ten minute instead of a fifteen minute schedule as at present. Passengers coming from Manchester Green or the cross town line would have only a few minutes to wait at the Center if they did not make a close connection.

SOME WEEKS MORE BEFORE 6TH WINDS UP

The adjourned meeting of the Sixth School District will not be held this month and it is not likely to be held for at least two more weeks. The meeting in June adjourned without electing officers, the old officers holding over until such time as it should again convene, when it was expected that a detailed report of all outstanding taxes would be given.

At the June meeting it was reported that there were uncollected taxes over a four year period, of about $800. In order to try and get these taxes cleared up the meeting was adjourned and the matter was left with a committee. Tax Collector P. J. Moriarty has since been able to collect about one-fourth of this amount and expects to be able to clear up considerable more within the next two weeks.

There was a misunderstanding among some of the taxpayers in the district. They not only had to pay a tax to the Sixth District, but also one to the Ninth and when they received the bill from the Ninth District they did not realize that there was still another to pay.

As soon as the collectable back taxes are collected liens will be placed for the balance and the business of the district wound up. Under the act which made possible the annexing of the Sixth by the Ninth, the Sixth has until November 1 to clear up its business, but the officers are anxious to get it done next month.

CASE ORCHESTRA TO PLAY AT OUTDOOR SUNDAY SERVICES

At the outdoor service to be held at the South Methodist Church, next Sunday evening the musical features will be in charge of Case's Orchestra, the well known family combination of musicians from Buckland. Rev. Robert A. Colpitts, the pastor, will be the speaker, and is bringing to his audience a message which he believes will be of exceptional interest.

Following this service Mr. Colpitts leaves on Monday morning with his family for his vacation, and it is his intention to make an automobile tour of various points of interest in Canada.

The union services will be continued throughout August at the South Methodist church, and particular attention is being given to the evening services, with a view to stimulating interest.

CAR BARN'S RAZING BIG IMPROVEMENT

Already Aspect of Center Is Greatly Helped by Shed's Removal.

A big improvement is already noticeable at the Center with the removal of the last walls of the old car barns. It gives to passers-by a view to the north and north-east that adds greatly to the general appearance of the municipal building.

The condition of the timbers seems to indicate that officials of the Connecticut Company were in error when they entertained fears that the barns would not withstand the winter storms. The roof was trussed and held together with bolts that seemed capable of sustaining any conceivable weight of snow. The timbers were found to be still in fine condition, not at all being found. They are being sold without trouble.

The contract calls for the removal of the wood work and also the grading of the grounds must be done by the town. The quantities of lumber that have been sold right on the grounds have made it possible for the New York and Hartford House Wrecking Company to keep the yard well cleared up from lumber each day.

MEDICAL REPORT SHOWS PROGRESS BEING MADE IN PREVENTING DISEASE

Chicago.—Not one death from diphtheria in 1927 was the record which established Cambridge, Mass., as the leading city in the United States, in prevention of the disease, according to the fifth annual summary released by the American Medical Association.

Only once in the history of the association's investigation has the record been equalled, according to the report. No diphtheria deaths were recorded during 1925 in Duluth, Minn.

Seattle, Wash., placed second in prevention of the disease, according to the report. The death rate, per 10,000 population, was 0.8 in 1927.

The other ten cities which led, in order of their rating, were: Canton, O., 0.9; Spokane, Wash., 0.9; Syracuse, N. Y., 1.5; Trenton, N. J., 1.5; New Haven, Conn., 1.6;

Norfolk, Va., 1.7; El Paso, Tex., 1.8; Grand Rapids, Mich., 1.9.

Tennis Champ Moves Leaving Field Open

Kathryn Giblin Goes to New Haven to Live Paving Way For New Title Holder Here.

By TOM STOWE

There will be a new women's tennis singles champion of Manchester when the second annual tournament conducted by the sports department of The Manchester Evening Herald is staged next month.

Leaves Field Open

While officials of the tournament receive Miss Giblin's departure with regret inasmuch as she is one of the most promising tennis players ever developed among the fairer sex in Manchester in many years, her change in address means a free-for-all scramble for the local tennis honors.

Outstanding Player

Had Miss Giblin remained in Manchester and competed in this year's town championship competition, the number of entries might have been smaller than last year when sixteen took part. The reason, an obvious one, is because Miss Giblin was far and away the best player in town.

Brings Added Interest

But with her departure, added interest will automatically be taken in the tourney which will be started here next month. Offhand, it is impossible to pick any one player whose chance of dominating the tennis field seems worth advance publicity. In other words, it will be an "open year."

Among the most promising players expected to compete in the tournament next month, it is hoped, will be Mrs. Frederick J. VanNess, formerly Miss Lillian C. Cheney, Miss Aileen McHale, Miss Ruth Behrend and others.

Incidentally, Mrs. VanNess is said to be a real star at tennis, having often defeated her husband, who, by the way, was good enough to reach the third round of the town tennis singles championship tournament here last year.

Miss Simon Away

Miss Janet Simon, another promising player, may not be able to compete, due to the fact that she will be her parent's summer cottage at Grotton Long Point at that time. Miss Simon was the winner of a tennis tournament conducted at this residential shore resort last summer and is expected to compete again for that honor this season.

The date for starting both the men's and women's tennis tournaments here has not yet been determined. In all probability, it will be earlier than last year. Before making a decision, to this effect, the writer will confer with several of the leading players. Due to the fact that many persons are away on their vacations during the months of August and September, no "last dates" will be made for playing of the matches. The pairings will be made and the players allowed to arrange their own date to a reasonable extent. This policy was followed out last year and proved very satisfactory.

If Heeneey upsets the reams and beams of advance dope by beating Tunney, watch the so-called experts come forth with their alibis the next day. It is almost to pick winners, providing one is man enough to admit when wrong afterwards.

Women of Lapland are among the smallest in the world, averaging only four feet nine inches in height.

Local Sport Chatter

In his talk at the Kiwanis Club luncheon Monday noon, Arthur B. McGinley, sports editor of The Hartford Times, rated Jim Thorpe, former Hartford baseball player, as the greatest all-around athlete the world has ever known.

Incidentally, we have grown to respect Mac's opinion on sporting matters during the past ten years, especially since starting similar vocational connection with this newspaper some five years ago.

This was again true last night when Brother McGinley, through the columns of The Times, corroborated our version of the Bradley-Ledoux decision.

It is incomprehensible that the majority of a crowd of three thousand spectators at a boxing show can become so rolled up over a bad decision as to greet an innocent announcer with boos when he tries to tell the participants of the next bout.

The Herald will again broadcast the returns of the Tunney-Heeneey fight at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night by radio.

Garage Team Should Win League Pennant

With all due credit to Manchester Green, it cannot be denied that it would not be at all surprising if the team from the residential section of the town does not capture the second round championship of the Community Club senior twilight baseball league.

The 'Prentice-Hadden combination went through the first round suffering a single defeat and disposed of all opposition except the Bon Ami with comparative ease.

However, this alone is not the foundation for the declaration that the team in the present round, it is the roster of Gibson's Garage that draws the comment.

In brief, Gibson's Garage takes on the appearance of the former Manchester Club. They are the "ghosts" of days when baseball was in its prime here and their work will be watched with much interest by fandom.

Bill Brennan is coach of the team, Clary Hanna captain and Bert Gibson manager. In all probability this trio will have its greatest difficulty in getting all of its regular players around for each game.

A glance over the rosters of the six teams which now compose the league, makes one feel sorry for Highland Park. That is to say, Jimmy Nichols team looks the weakest of any in the league and this doesn't mean he has poor players.

Three Games Scheduled For Fans Thursday Night

There will be three games in the Community Club Twilight League tomorrow night. The pairings are as follows:

- Highland Park at Manchester Green.
Bon Ami vs. Aces at West Side.
Heights vs. Gibson's over north.
Offhand it would seem that the Green, Bon Ami and Gibson's Garage should be the winners but surprises may crop up in any of the contests.

LETTER GOLF

THE SEAT OF TROUBLE

It might be a good idea to save today's puzzle until you start out driving with the BACK SEAT driver in your family—it might keep "her" occupied during part of the trip, at least. Par is four and one solution is on another page:

B	A	C	K

THE RULES

- 1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
- 2—You can change only one letter at a time.
- 3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
- 4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

The book canvasser tackled a negro elevator man. After listening imperturbably while the canvasser enlarged his vast stores of knowledge to be derived from the work he was offering on the installment plan, the negro remarked quietly: "Taint me use to me, boss; I knows heaps more now than I gets paid for."

SENSE and NONSENSE

Sambo was asked what kind of chicken he preferred. "Well, sah," he replied after a few moments' consideration, "all kinds has dere merits. De white one is de easiest to find in de dark but de black one is de easiest to hide aftah you gets 'em."

SUSPECTED A "RAKE-OFF"
A colored man went to his pastor and handed him a letter to the Lord which ran: "Please send dis pore darky $50.00 right away." The pastor, a kind hearted man, called together several of his church friends and said: "This poor fellow has so much faith in the Lord that he expects Him to send the $50 right away. We shouldn't let him be disappointed. Let's make a collection for him." This was done and $42 was contributed, which sum was sent to the ingenuous petitioner.

Next day the colored man handed the parson another letter. This one ran: "Dere Lord: De nex time YOU send dis darky money, don't send it through no parson—send it to me direct."

"Mirandy, whassat light shinin' in yo' eyes?"
"Tha's ma stop light, Rastus."

Umbra: Dat nigsah is a cullaful football playah.
Umbrella: Nus be one ob does backguards I's heard about.

Sambo—Chief, ah needs protection! Ah done got a unanimous letter this morning which says, "Nigger, let mah chickens alone."
Chief of Police—Why protection? Just leave the chickens alone.

Sambo—Dat's all right, boss, but how does I know whose chickens I's to leave alone?

Kind Old Squire—"Bless my soul, Mirandy, where did you get that awful bruise on your cheek?"
Mirandy—"We'll had a pahty las' ev'nin', and Ah was kicked in de face by a gentleman friend."

Two little Negro boys were fighting in an alley with two white boys, when a man in the next backyard, tiring of the din, stepped from his gate and called out: "Here, you niggers, scat outa here, quick!"
"Yah, you," instantly came back the insulted darkies, "you get back in there where you pays rent."

A negro maid came into a bank with a check from the lady for whom she worked. As she could not write, she always endorsed the checks with a big X. But on this occasion she made a circle.

"What's the matter, Linda?" the man in the cage asked. "Why don't you make a cross, as usual?"
"Why," Linda explained, "Ah done got married yesterday and changed my name."

A colored agent was summoned before the Insurance Commissioner. "Don't you know," said the Commissioner, "that you can't sell life insurance without a State license?"
"Boss," said the darky, "You suah said a mouthful. I knowed I couldn't sell it, but ah didn't know the reason."

Story by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The Tynmites then thanked the fish, and Clowny said, "I only wish that we could take you with us. If you'll say so, we will try." The fish then snapped, "Oh, mercy no! I'm sorry, but I cannot go. If I am taken from this stream I know that I will die."
And then the fish swam out of sight, and Copy said, "Say, he's all right! I hope that what he told us 'bout the Tynmites scattered, and he said it wasn't far from here and that it held a crock. Oh, dear, I wonder if we'll find the tree. I'll tell you what let's do."
"Let's all begin to look around, and if it's near it will be found." And then the Tynmites scattered, and they all looked high and low. In half an hour they all thought, "Gee, we simply cannot find that tree." Then Scouty cried, "Ah, there's a hill. Up to the top we'll go."
They all ran up the little hill and then there came the day's first thrill. "Oh, look!" cried Carpy,

"straight ahead and quite a monstrous tree. It's just the one we're looking for. Come on." And off the whole bunch tore, as Clowny said, "If Carpy's right, how happy we will be."
They thought it wouldn't take them long to reach the tree, but they were wrong. Of course you know that distance is deceiving to the eye. The whole bunch then heard Scouty say, "Why, that tree is a mile away, but let us keep on running. We will reach it bye and bye."
They soon arrived upon the spot, and Clowny said, "Oh, gee, I'm hot. But I am glad we ran so fast. Can you see what I see?" The rest all looked, and sure enough, they found the fish had pulled no bluff. A funny looking crock was sitting there inside the tree.
(The Tynmites have a hard time getting the crock cork out in the next story.)

DRIVER LEAPS FROM HIS BLAZING CAB

Tracy Brock Has Narrow Escape in Strange Fire of Cheney Truck.

Tracy Brock of Glastonbury, a truck driver for Cheney Brothers, had his hands burned and his hair singed and had a close call for serious injury at 4:45 yesterday afternoon when a Reo speed wagon in which he was sitting burst into flames as the result of a leak in a gas tank.

The truck was in the company garage on Pleasant street and the motor was not running. Brock was sitting in the cab and says he was on the point of starting the motor when the flames shot up all around him.

SOUTH METHODISTS MUST GET TICKETS THURSDAY

Last Opportunity to Assure Reservations at Annual Outing of Church and School.

Tomorrow evening the last opportunity will be afforded for South Methodists to secure tickets for the annual Sunday school outing. It is expected that over 300 will attend the outing which will be held at Lake Pocotopaug, East Hampton, Saturday afternoon.

Boats, bathing, games and refreshments will be available at the lake for those holding tickets only. Bathing is expected to be a most popular diversion and all necessary safeguards will be taken to prevent accidents.

Transportation cannot be guaranteed Saturday morning for those who have not secured their tickets by Thursday evening at the latest. Tickets can be purchased tomorrow evening between 7 and 9 p. m. at the church.

It's fine weather now but winter is in the background. Now is a good time to have those coal bins filled and the matter off your mind.

Pinehurst GOOD THINGS TO EAT

VACATIONS

A lot of Pinehurst's patrons go vacationing in the summer—some for a long time, some for a week or two. And, because somehow Pinehurst's customers are usually Pinehurst's friends, we miss them.

Then, after a greater or less time, the folks come home again. And it gives us a kind of good feeling inside to have them say when they show up again at Pinehurst or call us on the phone, "Gracious! We did miss Pinehurst, honestly. Hardest kind of work to get any really good food, where we were."

Not that it makes us feel good because our patrons had a rather hard time of it, buying decent supplies while away, but because it's sort of satisfactory to get a little appreciation, don't you know. Of course, a good deal of the inconvenience could be avoided—and a good many times is avoided—by the vacationers loading up all the chinks and corners of the old car with Pinehurst commodities and taking them along.

And a visit to Pinehurst will remind you of a lot of things you'd never think of at your desk.

31st ANNIVERSARY SALE

Of course, everybody has a birthday; most people once a year. This is our policy. Stores, unlike people, take a certain pride with increased age. If we were an individual thirty-one years would mean just starting out with the serious business of conquering life's troubles.

to be pardoned if we take a real pride in celebrating this annual event. A celebration in the store is nothing more or less than an attempt by the store and all its buyers to be able to offer seasonable merchandise at extremely low prices even eliminating any profit for the time.
