

HOOVER TAKES A BROAD VIEW ON ALLIANCES

G. O. P. Nominee Outlines His Foreign Policy; Looks at Problems With American Eyes, Friends Say.

Palo Alto, Calif., July 26.—Herbert Hoover will announce a foreign policy during the coming campaign so definitely pro-American as to stamp him a Rooseveltian American, with only the interests of his country a heart, it was learned today on excellent authority.

Accused of being an internationalist, an Anglophile and an American who knew his country only from car windows, Hoover will declare himself forcibly for a foreign policy, supporting and protecting American sovereignty in international affairs. The Republican nominee, it was said, will risk himself conclusively of the Wilsonian "tag" attached to him because of his association with the war time president as food administrator.

Hoover will announce a broad foreign policy in his speech of acceptance here August 11. During the campaign, he will take occasion to amplify his statements, so that his position will be clear to all the voters by election time.

Foreign Policy

Whether the nominee speaks specifically on each point or not, in his acceptance speech, his views on international affairs are reported reliably to be as follows:

National Defense

Hoover stands for a strong national defense, powerful enough to defend her against any and all enemies. In time of actual war, he believes in the drafting of all resources, as well as manhood and the regulation of prices of essential commodities to prevent profiteering.

Foreign Debts

Hoover stands opposed to the cancellation of America's foreign debts. He believes the terms laid down by America were fair to the debtor nations and that the debts should be paid as a matter of national honor. He feels the American government has no power now to cancel the debts, thus transferring to the American people the debts of a foreign land.

World Court

Hoover believes the world court is a useful international tribunal and he feels there is no danger to American sovereignty in the terms of American adherence laid down by the United States Senate which the member nations have never accepted. He does not see the court as an issue in his campaign and does not feel that the United States should take any further initiative toward joining the court.

Morone Doctrine

Hoover is a firm believer in the Morone Doctrine and feels the United States should enforce it at all times to preserve its own safety. He believes in the protection of American lives and property abroad but even more so in the maintenance of friendly relations with weaker nations in the western hemisphere.

League of Nations

Hoover looks on the League of Nations as an important international institution.

BIG FOUR CHOSEN BY REPUBLICANS

Curtis, Dawes, Hughes and Borah to Speak All Over the Nation.

Washington, July 26.—Senator Charles Curtis, the Republican vice-presidential candidate, Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, ex-Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes and Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, will constitute the "Big Four" of the Republican stump speaking campaign, it was learned here today.

While Herbert Hoover, bearer of the presidential standard, is making contacts with 30,000,000 voters by radio and keeping his finger on the complex Republican campaign organization, the "Big Four" will be carrying the fight into every section of the country.

Special Tasks
Because of the widely varied appeal which must be made to reach voters in the various sections, special tasks are to be assigned to each quartet when they take the stump about September 1.

Both Curtis and Dawes will range far and wide in the east and west. Hughes to be assigned the task of sounding the Republican doctrine in the hotly contested eastern states and Borah will invade the arid country in the west, coupling

Nobile's Supply Ship Docks With Survivors

London, July 26.—With its flag at half mast, the supply ship Citta di Milano with Gen. Umberto Nobile and the survivors of the Italian disaster on board, arrived at Narvik, Norway, today, said a Central News dispatch from that city. The arrival, added the dispatch, was watched with sullen interest by the harbor workers who refused to handle the ropes thrown from the ship to the docks.

As soon as the steamer had been moored an Italian soldier with rifle and fixed bayonet was stationed on the middle gangway.

It was announced that Gen. Nobile and his companions would not go ashore until darkness when they will go direct to the special train provided for them.

A representative from the Italian legation at Stockholm went to Narvik to greet the Nobile survivors and help them hasten their homeward journey. They are expected to begin their train journey tonight or early tomorrow morning.

DEMOCRATS TO CAMPAIGN IN LARGER CITIES

Managers Feel That Smith Will Get Most of the Votes in Big Towns—To Cover Them All.

New York, July 26.—Convinced that the cities alone can elect Gov. Alfred E. Smith to the presidency, the Democratic national campaign managers have agreed upon a plan to center their heavy fire upon the urban population from coast to coast.

The cities are "wet," they contain more than half the total population of the nation, in many states they dominate the final result in the electoral college—these were the determining factors in the decision of the executive committee, a member of the committee revealed today.

In addition, it was explained, Gov. Smith as product, exponent and champion of the greatest city of them all, can carry a more powerful and effective appeal to the urban citizen than to the rural voter.

Country, Too
The country precincts are not to be ignored, as is evidenced by Smith's promise to call a national conference on agricultural policy prior to the election, but the fight for the cities is certain to be more intensive than the contest for the countryside.

Still another factor in the decision was the consideration that the bulk of the Democratic vote and virtually all of the Democratic organization in the contested states of the east, middle-west and west are centered in the larger cities.

Pursuant to the plan for a "big city campaign," Chairman Raskob

WOMAN IS KILLED IN MILFORD CRASH

Another Woman Hurt When Auto is Driven Into Rear End of Truck.

Milford, Conn., July 26.—County officials today took over the investigation of a motor crash on the Milford turnpike, east of Milford Center that killed Mrs. Carrie Day, 79, of 16 Stuart Avenue, Norwalk, and injured Mrs. Gaston Armour, 69, of Forest Park, Norwalk, late last night.

The collision was the result of a crash in which a car driven by Gaston Armour went into the rear of a truck owned by Kling brothers, of Hamden, and driven by Harry Landino, 24, of 118 Lilac street, New Haven. Both Armour and Landino have furnished bonds of $1,000 pending the outcome of an inquest by Deputy Coroner James J. Corrigan, of New Haven.

Police Probe
An investigation by police immediately following the accident failed to reveal the cause of the disaster. Landino, who had Edward White, of Hamden, as helper, was pulling into the parking space of a roadside lunch room at Home Acres at 11:40 p. m. His car was moving at five miles an hour. Police determined that the rear of the truck was lit by two lights on either side, and a light under the body.

Armour was going east at 28 miles an hour. With him were Mrs. Armour, Mrs. Day, Mrs. Alice and Miss Marion Thies, and Charles Armour, grand-son of the driver. Mrs. Day was sitting on the rear seat, her arm resting against the side of an open window.

Auto Crumpled
The impact of the Armour's car against the truck crumpled the light machine. Mrs. Day's right arm was severed off and her body badly mangled. Mrs. Armour received severe lacerations and bruises, and at Milford hospital today it was said she would be under treatment for some time. None of

NOMINEE TO STRESS DRY ISSUE IN TALK

Gov. Smith to Talk Prohibition in All of His Speeches, He Declares.

Albany, N. Y., July 26.—Against the advice of some of his closest friends, Gov. Al Smith is under protest to have decided to discuss prohibition in every one of his campaign speeches in the presidential campaign.

Some of the national Democratic leaders are reported to have told the governor that it would be good politics for him to soft pedal prohibition when he invades the middle west and far west but he is said to have bluntly told them that he always has spoken his mind in political battles and he does not intend to change his tactics.

In a futile effort to persuade the governor not to make prohibition the major issue of the campaign some of the leaders have pointed out to him that if he has his say on this subject in his notification speech there should be no necessity for stressing the subject in each campaign speech. He is said to have replied that he wants the country to have a clear understanding of where he stands on prohibition and that he feels the only way it can be accomplished is by stressing it in his campaign speeches.

Important Conference
The conference which the governor will have in New York tomorrow night with Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland is regarded as highly significant in view of the fact that the latter is one of the outstanding foes of prohibition. The governor has denied, however,

BELIEVE THAT MORONES IS IN UNITED STATES

Missing Mexican Minister of Labor Cannot Be Located in Mexico.

Mexico City, July 26.—While the most friendly relations exist between President Calles and the Agrarian faction of the Obregonista Party, Deputy Antonio Diaz Soto Y Gama, spokesman for the Agrarians, declared today that his colleagues are unalterably opposed to President Calles remaining in office after his term expires on December 1.

In the meantime the Agrarians are continuing their relentless war to force all members of the Labor element from public office, especially from the National Congress and Senate.

Luis Morones, chief leader of the Labor group, who was forced to resign as minister of labor by pressure from the Obregonists, is still missing. One report was current that he had succeeded in reaching the United States.

FIGHT BROADCAST TONIGHT

Don't forget that the results of the Tunney-Heeneey fight tonight will be broadcast from the branch office of The Herald in the State Theater building on Bessell street. Graham McNamee and Phil Carlin will give a description of the happenings from the ringside starting at 9 o'clock with some of the preliminary bouts. Manchester radio fans can get the returns easily due to the proximity of Station WTIC at Hartford. A six-tube receiving set has been installed at The Herald office by Watkins Brothers and there is ample room for a large crowd to hear the returns both from the street and the vacant lot across the street. Don't forget to read Davis J. Walsh's expert version of the fight in tomorrow's Herald.

U. S.-SWEDEN PLANE CRASHES AT START

Machine Wrecked Five Miles From Starting Place; Fly- ers Uninjured.

Rockford, Ill., July 26.—A scant few minutes after taking the air today the huge Stinson-Detroiter monoplane "Greater Rockford" crashed to the ground, a mass of wreckage, in a cornfield five miles west of the Rockford airport.

"Dead air" and insufficient lifting power to sustain the heavily loaded plane was the cause of the forced landing. Bert Hassell, pilot, and his navigator and radio man, Parker Cramer, escaped from the wreck only slightly bruised, but when Hassell sighted his mother Mrs. Elizabeth Hassell, among the spectators his emotional reserve was swept away. Tears of disappointment streamed from his eyes.

The Take Off
At dawn today Hassell and Cramer gracefully took off on the first leg of their 4,000 mile flight to Stockholm, Sweden. Upon gaining altitude after the take-off the flyers zoomed over the airport and dipped three times in honor of their backers and headed north.

Commenting on the ill-fated ship Hassell said:
"We'll have the plane rebuilt and ready for another flight within two weeks."
Cramer, describing the take off and the forced landing, declared: "We were grazing the tree tops, the motor was functioning perfectly but the plane refused to rise. There wasn't a breeze stirring."

Big Russian Ice Breaker Answers S. O. S. Call Near Spitzbergen.

London, July 26.—The Russian ice breaker Krassin, famous for its Arctic rescues, which went to the aid of the German motorship Monte Cervantes off Bell Sound, has reached the disabled vessel and is standing by, said a Central News dispatch from King's Bay this afternoon.

The Monte Cervantes, which was carrying 1,500 passengers, has a hole stove in one side of her hull but is in no immediate danger, the dispatch added.

The Krassin picked up the S O S from the German ship while preparing to repair damage sustained amid the ice floes of the Arctic while rescuing members of the Noble expedition.

Bell Sound is on the Spitzbergen coast.

with his pleas for the dry law an explanation of the McNary-Haugen bill which is calculated to keep many Republicans farmers in the party, it was explained by a campaign strategist here.

No Stamp Speaking
It is now apparently definitely settled that Hoover will attempt to do little or no speaking from train platforms and will follow the precedent of the Harding front-porch campaign. This decision is said to result not only from a belief that the nominee is not effective on the stump but an earnest conviction that a national campaign should be conducted along lines befitting the dignity of the office.

Borah left it known before he pledged himself to the more pleasant summer climate of Idaho that he was willing to accept a challenge on prohibition. With the issue being forced upon the Republicans, Hoover reported to be ready to take a definite stand for the continuation of the "experiment," the Idaho senator is to be given the opportunity to go before the voters.

An invitation already has been tendered to Hughes, who is in Europe, according to information from Rep. John Q. Tilson, head of the Republican eastern speakers' bureau. Confidence is expressed at Republican headquarters that Hughes will accept the assignment and devote much time to the campaign in New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts.

tion which the American government should encourage and with which, it should cooperate, but without sacrificing American sovereignty in the least. He feels the American people already have spoken against American adherence and that the league is not an issue in the coming campaign.

Immigration—Hoover regards the American immigration law as an international policy, requiring careful handling. He stands for restricted immigration to protect American standards of living but feels the law should be modified to permit the union of families and to make its application humane.

Peace Treaties—Hoover believes the way to world peace is through the development of peaceful international commerce. He favors the pending anti-war treaties and believes such agreements can be strengthened through peaceful trade channels. He stands for the negotiation of anti-war treaties with all the nations of the world.

America's Views
These are the Hoover views, it was said. In the course of the campaign he will make it clear to the American people that he views world affairs through American eyes. In his acceptance speech, he will deal only with those topics, which he feels are issues in the campaign. Later on, he will discuss the prominent issues in a detailed manner. The nominee was resting in his home this morning, preparing to visit San Francisco tomorrow as a guest of that city. He will leave here Saturday on his fishing trip to the Klamath river valley in northern California probably to be gone four or five days.

His list of callers for the day included Charles L. Neumiller, of Stockton, Calif., chairman of the California Republican state central committee; H. S. Fritchitt, of Santa Barbara, head of the Carnegie Foundation, and former Senator Frank S. Flint, of California. Neumiller, a Johnson follower, will pledge his loyalty to Hoover, making it unanimous in the Republican Party in the Golden state.

Hoover heard another prediction, that he will carry New York, from Wm. J. Donovan, assistant attorney general. Donovan, a visitor to the Hoover home, said the nominee would carry New York by a narrow strength in New York City and roll up such an upstate majority as to carry the Empire State.

"What will be the big issue in New York state," he was asked. "The issues will be the question of what Smith has said on prohibition," said Donovan.

CROWN REVENUE AIDS PURSE OF GREAT BRITAIN

London.—If King George had clung to income from what are known as "Crown Lands" when he came to the throne, instead of surrendering them for a fixed yearly sum of 470,000 pounds, he would be nearly three times better off today.

Few estates have been more profitably developed than the hereditary lands of the Crown of England. From them the nation derived, during the financial year ending March 31 last, according to the latest official figures, the record sum of $5,500,000 or exactly double the yield of 1915.

The King's lands comprise 276,000 acres, of which 108,000 are agricultural and bring in about five dollars per acre, several thousands comprise swashes or are waste, and the rest are devoted to houses and shops—the latter constituting the gold mine.

Revenues Grow
It is the timely falling-in of leases in London that has so swelled the revenue from the King's lands. The income from the famous London shopping center, Regent street, since re-building began seven years ago, has already swelled from $220,000 to $1,565,000.

For instance, the Criterion theater group now pays a rental of $41,000 yearly instead of $8,500; the Plaza theater block has increased from $20,000 to $32,000 and other properties show an equal advance of 500 per cent, while the limit has not yet been reached.

When commissioners were appointed to take charge of the King's lands in the time of George the Third, the revenue was $55,000 yearly.

Income Surrendered
Since his time it has been the practice of the monarchs on their accession to the throne to surrender the income from these lands in return for a fixed allowance from the State, although any new monarch—say the Prince of Wales—would have a perfect constitutional right to resume the possession of his lands if he preferred to a fixed allowance. In the ancient times, it paid the King to take what was offered him by the State.

Today, King George, owing to recent re-building developments would be about three and a half million dollars better off every year if he had refused the State grant eighteen years ago when he came to the throne.

At his accession, the Crown revenues were a pre-millennial 430,000 pounds, and his allowance was therefore fixed at 470,000 pounds.

BAD GUESS AT SPEED NO HELP IN COURT

Costs Hartford Motorist Real Money to Mistake 52 Miles for 35.

Prosecuting Attorney Charles R. Hathaway is still determined to make Center street safe for travel and not an automobile speedway. During the summer many arrests have been made of automobile drivers who persist in traveling through the outskirts of the town at an undue rate of speed.

The majority of the violators are out of town motorists and most of them are caught speeding in a westerly direction.

This morning, another violator faced Judge Raymond A. Johnson in the Manchester police court. He was Daniel G. Rember of East Hartford, who was arrested yesterday by Motorcycle Policeman Albert Roberts on Center street. The policeman testified that Rember drove as fast as 52 miles an hour and passed seven other cars while doing so. Rember's only statement in his own behalf was that he thought he was only going about 35 miles an hour. The court said it was ridiculous to suppose that a driver could be driving over 50 miles an hour and yet think he was going only 35 miles.

The usual fine of $10 and costs was imposed. With costs of court, this amounted to $18.52. Rember paid.

Patrick Lewen, 56, of Hilliard street was before the court on an intoxication charge. Sergeant John Crockett made the arrest last night at the north end and said he found Lewen helplessly drunk beside the road. Lewen said he got into a police car at the "r-o-g point" and sat down to wait for the car. Judge Johnson imposed a fine of $10 and costs amount to $19.67. Lewen said he had only five dollars. Unless he can get someone to advance the money for him, he will go to Seyma street jail in Hartford to work out the fine and costs.

Enters Own Business
Being discharged from the service in December 1918, Mr. Quish again returned to this place and renewed his connections with the George E. Keith Company remaining with that firm until he opened his own funeral parlors at 306 Main street about eight years ago.

Since that time he has been eminently successful and the opening of his pretentious funeral home this week attests to the recognition given him by Manchester people for efficient work and unflinching courtesy. A deluxe ambulance service was added in 1925. Mr. Quish now owns a Studebaker Delux ambulance.

Rockville Interests
A year ago last February Mr. Quish opened a funeral home in Rockville, located on Park street and his reputation in that city has attracted to him a successful business and gained for him much favorable comment and recognition in that city. He intends to continue this connection in the future along with his Manchester business.

ARREST MAX BODENHEIM

New York, July 26 — Maxwell Bodenheim, poet and novelist who had been leading reporters a merry chase since his disappearance following the recent suicide of Miss Virginia Drew, his protégée, was released after being found by detectives in a Harlem dance hall early today. Although no charge has been made against him, he was taken to a police station on general principles and questioned.

The detectives had read so much in the newspapers about Miss Drew's suicide and the visit of Dr. Martin J. Loeb of this city to Bodenheim's cottage in an art colony at Provincetown, Mass., to bring home his 18-year-old daughter, Gladys, that they hustled the novelist to a police station on sight. Bodenheim was surrounded by a laughing group police station on sight. Bodenheim went home.

has set up in his private office at national headquarters a huge wall map embellished by a confusion of multi-colored tacks. Every little tack has a meaning of its own, indicating the percentage of total vote contained in the larger cities of the state, the normal efficiency of the Democratic city organization, and the past record of the city in straight-out wet and dry contests.

From these tacks, the day-to-day strategy of the campaign will to a large measure be formulated.

Direct Appeal
Never before in history has a direct appeal to the cities been made a major aspect of presidential campaign strategy. The move is consonant, according to the members of the executive committee with the bold and aggressive spirit of the new party leadership. The ascendancy to the cities in wealth, political power and general social importance has been one of the most striking phenomena of American development during the last quarter-century, but never before has a great political party ventured a major appeal to the strap-hanger as against the man with the hoe.

The Democratic national budget will be fixed at a maximum of $3,500,000. Chairman Raskob announced following his second meeting with the executive committee on the general subject of financial organization of the campaign.

State finance directors have been appointed in more than two thirds of the country, and the machinery for collecting the Smith-Robinson war chest will be under way in every state a few days after August 1.

Announcement of the state directors is expected early next week, a few posts remaining to be filled.

In keeping with the pledge made in the Houston platform, Raskob announced that detailed statements of campaign contributions would be published every thirty days.

Col. H. H. Lehman, national director of finance, announced he had received voluntary contributions from "every state in the union," to date.

Have $3,000,000
"Our budget total has not yet been definitely fixed," Raskob said, "but we have arrived at the general figure of approximately $3,000,000. It may be as low as $2,500,000 or as high as $3,500,000. But that will be the absolute limit."

A strong appeal for three Smith speeches in Illinois—one in Chicago, one to Peoria and the third at some other downstate city yet to be selected—was presented to Chairman Raskob today by Assemblyman Michael L. Igoe, of Chicago, Democratic leader of the Illinois House, and a lieutenant of George Brennan, the Democratic boss of Illinois.

"Smith is going to carry Cook county (Chicago) by 150,000," Igoe said. "If he will go down into the state on just one trip we can carry the state by 250,000 in November."

A similar plea is before Raskob from Pennsylvania. "We can take Al Smith into Philadelphia once and to Pittsburgh once and win Pennsylvania from the Republican column," said Joseph F. Guffy, former national committeeman and recognized Democratic chieftain in the Keystone State.

In Ohio, also, the plea is for emphasis upon the cities. T. T. Ainsbury, of Defiance, former congressman from Ohio and leader in the Smith fight in the Buckeye State, told Chairman Gerry of the national advisory committee that his surveys of Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Youngstown, Akron, Canton and Zanesville convinced him Smith chances in the state were "better than we have ever had in a presidential contest."

OWEN'S SWITCH
Albany, N. Y., July 26.—Governor Al Smith today challenged the sincerity of former U. S. Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, in holding the Democratic ticket to support Herbert Hoover, the Republican presidential candidate.

Indirectly the governor charged Owen with a "sour grapes" frame of mind.

Senator Owen announced in New York yesterday that he could not support Gov. Smith because of his Tammany affiliations and because of his wetness.

tion of president. His hostility to Tammany Hall must have grown up in his heart in the last four years. In 1924 he was not only willing to accept its support but quite anxious to get it.

When newspapermen interviewed the governor in the executive chamber today, the first question asked was:

"Did you see what Sen. Owen said in making the party?" "Yes," the governor replied. "I read about it. I have prepared a little statement about Sen. Owen which may be of some interest."

As he finished reading the statement aloud, a broad smile spread over his face.

For many years Owen was a member of the Democratic national committee from Oklahoma, and he long has been an outstanding figure in the councils of the Democratic party.

The governor planned to motor to Schenectady this afternoon, play a round of golf at the Mohawk Club and tonight, with members of his family, attend the wedding of Mabel G. Lunn, eldest daughter of former Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. George R. Lunn.

that he intends to incorporate in his notification speech any information he may receive from Ritchie.

The governor will spend the week end and possibly a couple of days next week at Good Ground, L. I. Only because of the insistence of members of his family that he get a brief rest, if he followed his own inclination he would return to the executive mansion directly after his conference with Gov. Ritchie and buckle down to the task of completing the address he will deliver on August 22, when he is formally notified of the presidential nomination.

Although the governor's health has never been better than at present, he has been advised by his family and his friends to get all the rest he can between now and the launching of his active campaign.

George B. Graves, secretary and assistant to Gov. Smith has been named chairman of the committee which will work out the details of the notification ceremony. The event will be staged on the steps of the capitol and members of the national committee, state chairman, and prominent Democratic leaders will occupy seats on the platform with the governor. The ceremony will be broadcast over a chain of ninety radio stations.

SOLO FLIGHT BY LADY HEATH TO AFRICA WAS FUN

Paris—Way up 5,000 feet above Deceit Africa you can sit back and enjoy a book with the same comfort and security as in an easy chair at home—and pilot your airplane at the same time, said Lady Heath (Mrs. Elliott Lynn) to the International News Service when she returned at Le Bourget airport the longest solo flight ever made by a woman.

Lady Heath took a leisurely jaunt over the African continent in an 80 h. p. Moth biplane and covered 10,000 miles in three months.

"My longest hop was nine hours and a half from Wadi Hafit to Cairo and not a bit monotonous," she said. "With calm weather and a bright sky I would push up to about 5,000 feet, set the controls and read a book."

"I spent a large part of my flying hours with books as visibility was unusually good and I always had ample time to avoid storms. Coastlines and rivers were easy to follow, so there was little danger of becoming lost."

"All credit goes to the motor which functioned faultlessly. I frequently tinkered with the motor and made repairs on it"—she exhibited long, slender and very grimy fingers—"a bit rough on the hands but worth it."

"With two of three exceptions the trip was less eventful than a motor car journey probably would have been. Foolishly disregarding ad- holding the motor beneath a broiling sun and suffered a slight stroke near Bulwayo. I do not remember landing, but the plane came down rather abruptly and was slightly damaged."

"I must have operated the controls through some sub-conscious effort. "Then, after a pleasant morning flight, over the desert I landed at Tripoli and found a bullet hole in the right wing. Arabs apparently mistook my Moth for an Italian military plane and blazed away. If they had hit the petrol tank—"Otherwise I had the unusual experiences of a tourist. In Kenya Colony I stopped over for a buffalo hunt and shot four, all my permit allowed. I carried evening dresses and frequently attended dances. That may explain how bringing it is to tour Africa by air."

Lady Heath was in the right wing, whiplash and patent leather thigh boots throughout the voyage, adding a fur coat when she returned to France. Her personal effects were carried in a duffle bag stowed away in the spare seat. "My most important baggage was the tool kit," she said. Francis Planté, age 90 years, one of the greatest French pianists, recently thrilled a great audience at Mont-de-Marsan in a brilliant concert given for the benefit of a Maternity Home. "The grand old musician" had told some of his friends before the event, that he expected it to be his "swan-song", but those who came from a great distance to hear him said he had never played better in all the eighty-two years of his career. The program consisted of sixteen heavy works by Weber, Chopin, list, Faure, Debussy and Beethoven, ending with the "Polonaise" which he declared he had never played so well before. Every piece called for several encores. The crowds cheered until they were hoarse and followed him home in the streets after the performance.

Plante was the intimate friend of Rossini, Liszt, and many other great musicians. He appeared for the first time in public at the age of seven and has been playing uninterruptedly ever since. If he chose to make a tour of the musical world today, it is certain he would bring a bigger thrill than many much-talked-of virtuosos.

PRICES REDUCED

on all Firestone Built Tires

Because of the complete Firestone victory over rubber restriction, Firestone has been able to reduce prices to us. We immediately pass them on to you.

Our startling reductions apply on every size of the four world-famous Firestone-built tires, shown here.

The Firestone Gum-Dipped Tire is The Tire Supreme—holding all records for speed, safety and endurance.

The world's first practical low-pressure tire was the Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloon. No manufacturer has been able to duplicate this tire in comfort or in the amazing mileage records it established.

The well-known Oldfield Tire is priced lower than any other standard tire. For over four years it was sold by the Oldfield Tire Company at prices higher than were asked for other standard brands. Firestone economy of production and distribution enables us to sell this tire at most attractive prices.

In the medium-priced field, the Courier Tire and Tube are unequalled—oversize, rugged—with rut-protected sidewalls—at prices far below many unknown, untried brands.

The Airway is offered to the owners of light cars at a price that cannot be duplicated anywhere.

How's She Hitting?

By ISRAEL KLEIN
 The spark plugs tell the condition of your engine. Vice versa, the action of the motor will tell whether the spark plugs are giving full service. It is therefore essential that these little ignition units be kept in the best of condition. Tests have been made by ignition engineers into the working of this part of the motor, with the result that we have quite exact information concerning it.

a good electrical conductor causes missing of the engine because the spark current travels through the coating instead of jumping the gap. Since the coating can't be cleaned or rapidly, the best remedy is to change plugs.

- Worn out spark plugs cause missing of the engine, which in turn produces the following six major troubles:
1. Oil pumping, causing formation of carbon and sticky valves.
 2. Poor starting and excessive drain on the battery.
 3. Poor running.
 4. Higher gasoline consumption.
 5. Larger engine repair expenses.
 6. Poor driving satisfaction.

The condition of the motor can be revealed by examination of the spark plugs.
 If the base of the plug is covered with a dry, hard lump carbon formation, the engine has good compression but is consuming too much oil.

If the base of the plug is covered with an oily carbon, the engine is losing compression and is pumping oil.
 If the plug base is covered with a fine, soft, dry carbon-like lamp-black, the engine has good compression but the carburetor is set too rich or the choke is not opening all the way.
 If the plug base is covered with a fine, soft carbon wet with gasoline, the engine has either poor compression, the carburetor mixture is too rich, or the choke isn't

BEAUTIFUL ROAD
 France is planning the construction of a beautiful scenic automobile road, extending along its coast from Nice to Cannes. The estimated cost is around 50,000,000 francs.

CYCLE SALES HURT
 The low price of the modern automobiles is cutting the sale of motorcycles and bicycles. Last year's production of motorcycles decreased 10 per cent in number and 9 per cent in value as compared with 1922's production.

TREAT FOR MOTORISTS
 Summer tourists have at their disposal this year more than 50,000 miles of clean concrete road. Seven states have more than 2500 miles of such road within their borders. Illinois leads with 6064 miles.

By making proper adjustments in spark plugs and the rest of the ignition system you may save gasoline and oil, reduce the wear on the engine to a minimum and realize quiet and powerful operation.
 It is recommended by spark plug engineers that these units be renewed about once a year.

More Comfort for the Car

There's always room for one more—as the A. E. F. soldiers used to say when packed into the small freight cars in France. And there's still room for more improvement in the already highly improved automobile, as these innovations in the new Studebaker models show. There's the adjustable steering wheel, shown here, raised or lowered to fit the driver. And there are the ball bearing spring shackles, in inset, making spring action easier and smoother.

STATES TAKING UP TESTS OF EYESIGHT

New York, July 26 — States and cities are co-operating to keep off the highways all drivers whose vision is regarded as unsafe, reports the Eyesight Conservation Council of America. The council's aim is to require "safe vision" of every driver in the country.

"Previous surveys made by the council have revealed the prevalence of defective vision among all classes of the population," says the council's general director, Guy A. Henry. "It is a regrettable fact that the legislatures or officials of the majority of the states have not designated standards of visual acuity for motor drivers. A few states have adopted eyesight requirements with significant results."

New York and Connecticut, for example, are weeding out the unfit in this way. Henry points out. So is Washington, D. C., which is considered relatively the safest of the larger American cities. Based on experience in New York, Charles A. Harnett, commissioner of motor vehicles, urges all other states to adopt eyesight tests. New York now requires 50 per cent of normal vision of every driver. Previously it was 40 per cent. Nearly half a million applicants were examined in New York last year, and thousands had to have their sight corrected.

In Connecticut, out of 42,500 applicants taking the eye test, 2200 had to have their vision corrected before they could have their licenses. Licenses were refused to 70 because their eyes were so defective as to handicap them seriously as auto operators.

NOT MUCH TIME

The state of Utah allows visiting motorists only 10 days to register, after which time they must get a temporary license for one dollar, covering six months.

WATCH YOUR SPEED

Speed limits in the United States range all the way from 20 miles an hour in Massachusetts to 65 in Alabama, Florida, Nevada and Montana have no set maximum on open roads.

MYSTERY ELEMENT BEGINS TODAY IN "LOVE FOR TWO"

When Rod was given the position in Cyrus Loree's firm which Lila had persuaded her wealthy husband to give him, he was grateful to her because she had been his fiancée before he married Bertie Lou and it was proof, he thought, of her kindly feeling toward him and his wife. But Bertie Lou was inclined to be skeptical. She secretly feared that Lila still loved Rod. Her fears were groundless, it seemed, until one day when Cyrus Loree was out of the city, Lila asked Rod to call for her jewel case and deposit it for safe keeping in the company vault. The next day she asked him to return it and... the box was empty! A fascinating mystery begins on Thursday, July 26 in "Love for Two," Ruth Dewey Groves' new serial of youthful marriage. Read the complete synopsis at the start of today's installment and begin the story.

New York, July 26. — The girl-about-town is a distinct development of the much-vaunted feminine emancipation.

Seldom does she appear with an escort. In fact, she would consider it just a bit old-fashioned to make her entrance in the company of a man. She tries terribly hard to show that she can "go places" and "meet people," quite on her own. And she strains just a bit too hard in proving that she is completely independent. Few of the hardest he-men would lay claim to a similar sense of freedom where women are concerned. It has become quite the thing for this type of young woman to show up when and where she pleases. She even hangs at the doorways of the carefully guarded cocktail resorts and demands to put her foot upon the bar rail. But the most gangsterish, speakeasy proprietor remains conventional on this point. Perhaps he remembers he "had a mother once himself." At any rate the rule is strict and stern that "a lady must be accompanied by an escort."

The girl-about-town stresses her respect for the rule of "50-50." She accepts lunch engagements only on the theory that she "pays her own." What is more she has her own hang-outs and drifts into afternoon teas, hotel dansants, clubrooms—after the fashion of her fast disappearing predecessor, "the man-about-town." One of the ultra-expensive, swanky hotels caters to "professional women" alone. Men darken its doors only by invitation. And again—she goes in for the new snappy styles, "goes everywhere" and invariably is a participant in the latest vogue, whatever it may be.

It is literally true that in Manhattan one constantly encounters at least one member of her clan—whatever the time of night and wherever the scene.

Believe it or not—but the grand old art of "rolling your own" has slipped so far behind the times that it now attracts public attention. I am told that a fellow member of my sex and generation has cut quite a swath in a snappy young circle by demonstrating how to roll a cigarette. Just the other day I read in a New York paper a brief tale revealing that a crowd gathered in a ritzy hotel lobby while an actor wielded "the makings."

It was an art at which I, too, was once dexterous, though I am much out of practice. Perhaps by ceasing my harmonica and banjo-guitar lessons and applying myself for a half hour each day to "making" practice I can once again "roll 'em" with one hand. With such an achievement at hand, mayhap success and social eminence finally will crown my efforts. Or, maybe I should import a cowboy I once knew in Dubois, Wyo., who was the greatest one-handed cigarette-roller I ever have met. Properly managed, he could get engagements in all the best hotel tea rooms.

Speaking of cowboys—it has always seemed to me that there is no more incongruous sight to be witnessed in the Broadway belt than that of a cowboy with spurs and "chaps" hailing a taxicab. Yet, with a rodeo in town, it is a common sight and one to make you ponder on the crashing of romantic ideas.

One of the hardest blows I have taken since leaving "the great open spaces" was occasioned by witnessing Tom Mix turn his famous pony over to an Astor Hotel flunkie, while a liveried chauffeur picked him up in a monogrammed Blitzen-Rolls, done in a shade of melting ice cream and violets.

BERMANS BUILD FLYING SHIP TO SPAN ATLANTIC

Stockholm, Sweden. — German aeronautical engineers have constructed a plane which they hope will solve trans-oceanic flight problems. It is more a "flying ship" than an airplane and called the Dornier-Wal flying ship.

It is a cabin boat with ten-foot beam and has two cabins which can carry twenty persons. The ship can ride a fairly rough sea and even if the wings did break, German engineers are confident of the ship riding the waves. They are confident this is the plane of future ocean travel. The plane can travel from 90 to 110 miles per hour. Even today the engineers of Germany are planning upon constructing a Dornier-Wal capable of carrying one hundred persons with perhaps five to eight motors.

How It Works Herr Herman Schroeder, general manager of the Deutsche Luft Hansa, the German Aviation Company, explained the working of this new ship shortly before I left Berlin and Tegel airport flying field. The plane that was to take us to Copenhagen and to Malmö, in southern Sweden, was an Albatross, a two-motored biplane and from its construction and the peculiar hum of its motors, I suspected it was a converted German bombing plane. We taxied across the field to get into position to take off against the wind and soon the 600-horsepower engines opened up and the Albatross soared from the field.

We ran into rain storms, snow squalls and heavy winds but the ship behaved in good fashion. The country gradually changed and resembled the fields of Belgium with its narrow work fields and the whole landscape dotted with the red roofed cottages.

Over the Baltic The sky ceiling was low and we glided downward to the 1,000 foot level as I could observe by the altimeters.

We sailed over the crystal clear water of an arm of the Baltic Sea. Ahead the tall spires of the Cathedral at Lubeck rose up to meet us. In another moment the pilot throttled down the engine and I knew we had arrived at Travemünde, the last stop in Germany before hopping off to Copenhagen in Denmark. We dropped over the trees and clouds of this fishing village and landed. It was here the Dornier-Wal was first pointed out to me.

We changed planes and were off again, skimming the blue-green water, heading again towards the north and colder weather. In some places the water was so shallow we could see the wrinkled bottom.

Over Denmark, with its many ponds and villages. It looked like a Swiss cheese. We dropped to the flying field at Copenhagen to allow a storm to pass and then zoomed into the air again to Sweden and the aerial tour of Europe was over.

Another way to help the poor would be to sell license tags at a dollar down and a dollar a month.

There are suites and suites... but seldom will you find a Suite of such dependable construction and covered in this grade of mohair at $165. A suite of this character commands $250.

$165

Hand tied springs on reinforced webbing. Selected filling, hand padding. Cushions are reversible in lovely brocatelle. Comprises a davenport, club chair and wing chair.

Magnificent four-piece Bedroom Suite, beautiful style... fine construction... superbly finished in Antique Walnut

There is probably nothing extraordinary about $195 as a price for a suite of furniture. You could always buy plenty of suites at that figure... or under it. But it is seldom that a suite of such fine quality is offered at this price... an excellent value at $275. That's the difference... and it's a big one. It's the difference between buying a suite built up to a standard of quality and a suite of no particular quality. Here is a suite that conceals its price, but displays its quality. It is made of genuine American walnut in combination with selected cabinet woods. It is of durable construction. Dust-proof throughout. Finished in finely grained antique walnut, enhanced by dignified decoration. Comprises a spacious dresser, chest of drawers, full size vanity and bow-end bed. Nowhere will you find such a fine suite at this price.

Box Springs, Silk Floss Mattress and Pillows to Match

$39.50

Here is comfort de luxe. The combination includes everything mentioned above—a well made box spring, a genuine Kapok (silk floss) mattress and pair of feather pillows—all of excellent quality. Here is the best rest assurance you can buy. A value.

A New Shipment of These High-Back Occasional Chairs

$17.50

Aside from the fact that this chair will do much to brighten as well as add comfort to the living room... it is a marvelous value. A chair of this quality commands at least $27.50 elsewhere. It is of substantial construction and covered with fine figured tapestry.

Budget terms arranged to suit your convenience.

THURSDAY, JULY 26, 1925. CHANCE TO BLUNDER. The Springfield Union is only one of several Eastern newspapers of importance which are urgently striving to impress upon the Republican campaign managers the belief that the real battle ground in the Presidential campaign is to be the Eastern states.

There is a good deal of truth to this, in all probability, though it is entirely possible that the Democracy may find it necessary to divert an altogether unexpected amount of its strength to the protection of its southern flank.

It is true that Smith's strength in the East is sufficient to necessitate the Republican leaders giving special attention to the party's position in these Eastern states the reason for that strength calls for analysis.

Despite the fact that many accept the circumstance of the governor's religious affiliation as the foundation of his political drawing power, this idea will not stand close examination. For there is not a state in the East where the Catholic population equals or anywhere near equals the non-Catholic population.

It is true that in some states, like Connecticut and Massachusetts, there are more Catholic church members than there are Protestant church members. But almost all Catholics are members of their church, while of non-Catholics only a relatively small number are included in actual church membership.

A comparison of the number of Catholics with the total population in any state in the Union will disclose that the people of that faith are in a decided minority. So that if religion were to be the determining factor in political affiliations—which we do not for an instant believe it will be or should be—Governor Smith would stand no chance in any of these states any more than in the West or South.

Nor can Smith's Eastern strength, if it exists, be attributed to any particular qualifications as a statesman. He has been an excellent New York state executive—and that lets him out. In the real fields of statesmanship he is incomparably the inferior of Herbert Hoover.

Whence, then, this so-called strength in the East? In our inner consciences we all know. It lies in that statement in which Smith at once impelled his cause in the South and brought himself up to the limit of his possibilities as a contender in the East—his declaration for a change in the prohibition laws.

We have heretofore expressed the belief that the level-headed voter will not be swept away from his consideration of many grave and serious problems confronting the country by the aroma of a glass of beer or the kick of a drink of legal whiskey. But there are a good many voters who are not remarkable for their level-headedness—and a lot of these are wet. It is the liquor question that gives Smith what slender chance he has of carrying any of the Eastern states.

And it is blundering like that of the Kansas editor White which ought to be compensated by Republican speakers and newspapers in the East. It is the White position that Smith would pack the Supreme Court and bring about the voiding of the Eighteenth amendment. Once let that idea gain foothold in the East and you bring the Smith election day vote up to the limit of its possibility.

Meet it, however, with the fact that any change whatever in the Supreme Court, displacing so much as a single member of the old personnel that declared the amendment valid, will almost certainly result in upsetting the amendment.

and every scrap of advantage to Smith, as a wet proponent, disappears. But meet it with the mistaken assumption that Hoover appointees of the court would be certain to repeat the blunder of 1920, and countless thousands of votes will be lost.

GOOD-BY OKLAHOMA. It was no Heflin, no Bishop Cannon, no victim of fanaticism or narrow prejudice, who departed from out of the ranks of the Democratic party when Robert Latham Owen, United States senator from Oklahoma from 1907 to 1925, yesterday declared that he intended to support Herbert Hoover for President of the United States.

In many ways the defection of Senator Owen is the most important act of individual assertion that has transpired in this campaign. During his long period of service in the Senate Owen was one of the most distinguished leaders of his party. It was he who put over the single outstanding achievement of his party since the Civil war—the Federal Reserve act. He far outclassed in statesmanship most of his party conferees.

But Owen can't stand Tammany Hall and the prospect of the extension of New York politics throughout the nation. And on top of that he says: "Herbert Hoover is in my opinion the best qualified man ever presented by any political party in America for the office of Presidency during my life. He is an American of Americans, a great humanitarian, a diplomat and an executive. The American people will honor themselves in degree as they honor this great American."

Senator Owen is too big a man to speak out of mean prejudice or sectional or sectarian passion. His position is deliberately taken. Such is his influence in his state that the Democrats might as well kiss the electoral vote of Oklahoma good-bye.

Next! THE FIGHT. Millions of people who care not a rap about prize fighting were tickled when Tunney knocked the heavyweight crown of the head of the much disliked Dempsey. They disliked Dempsey because he had a swelled head surmounting a rough neck, because he was a tramp a-horseback, so to speak. Now there are a lot of people, some of them the same ones, who would as lief see another rough-neck send the crown a-spinning off Tunney's head with an accidental haymaker. They now dislike Tunney because he is, or affects to be, the direct antithesis of Dempsey. They can't just see a prize fighter who advertises his literary leanings, talks scornfully about money and then consents to take part in a battle which the entire sporting world with one accord votes a set-up and accept a huge fortune for his part in it.

There seems to be very little chance indeed that the championship will change hands in tonight's hippodrome at New York. But old timers have never forgotten that one of the cleverest champions ever in the ring, the original Jack Dempsey, "the Nonpariel," was kayoed by a clumsy fourth-rater who at the moment didn't know whether he was fighting Dempsey, an elephant or a mosquito. You never can tell.

EASY MARKS. If the Wanamaker concern could possibly see its way clear to standing a loss of $400,000 it might almost have been expected to do so rather than permit to become public the fact that it had handed over to an entirely unauthorized person some such an incredible amount, charging them to the account of a customer absent from the country.

Credit is certainly growing easy when property representing hundreds of thousands of dollars is handed out on memorandum as casually as though it were worth hundreds of cents. The really serious aspect of such cases, however, lies in the fact that when such an example of commercial slovenliness is made public it is sure to be followed by a perfect flood of attempts to get away with similar adventures on the part of unscrupulous persons who only need encouragement to become crooks.

IN FOR IT. That it is not exclusively "wet" newspapers, laboring for less rum and less lawlessness and for more temperance and good order through repeal of prohibition, who dare oppose their consciences to the methods of the dry organizations is indicated by the case of Rev. A. J. Gearhard, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Charleston, West Virginia. Rev. Mr. Gearhard refused to permit the Women's Christian Temperance Union to meet in his church on the ground that it is a political body and that he regarded it as unfitting to allow the edifice to be used for political purposes.

It is to be hoped that Pastor Gearhard's skin is thick and his temperament sturdy, for he will now be consigned to a seat on the red hot rocks of damnation, alongside the non-prohibition editors already billeted on that uncomfortable locality by the ultras.

TRANSPARENT. The Tilden lawn tennis episode was ridiculous enough already. It is rendered doubly so by the re-statement of the disqualified player. If Tilden had rendered himself so undoubtedly ineligible as to warrant his barring from the French tournament at the most crucial possible moment he must have been ineligible indeed. In reversing its ruling at this stage of the proceedings the United States Lawn Tennis Association has performed a clown somersault.

Principles do not change absolutely overnight. The performance lends itself that there is far less of principle than of expediency and lawn tennis politics involved.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

THE SKIN (Continued). The second layer of the skin, which we learned was the dermis, is composed of connective tissues richly supplied with blood vessels, capillaries, lymphatic vessels and nerves. The surface of the true skin just underneath the epidermis presents a curious appearance like little mountain peaks, caused by the papillae, which contain blood vessels for nourishing the dermis and the live cells of the outer skin.

Some of these little peaks or papillae contain the touch corpuscles. In some parts of our skin these touch papillae are thicker than in other parts. They are most thickly grouped on the end of our tongue and next at the finger tips. We can distinguish two objects as being separate, even though they are very close together, by touching them with these areas of our body. In some spots of our skin these touch corpuscles are so far apart that two objects even from one to two inches apart cannot be distinguished from a single object.

If you wish to prove this, take two of your fingers about an inch and a half apart and touch your back. In all probability you will be unable to distinguish more than one point of pressure.

In the lower part of the dermis and in the layers immediately under the true skin, large quantities of fat are stored. This gives the skin a plump and smooth appearance.

If you examine your skin with a magnifying glass, you will see large numbers of small pores or openings in the skin. These are the mouths of the sweat glands which are little tubes composed of the same kind of cells as the epidermis but adapted for their special function.

A sweat gland tube goes through the dermis and ends in a little coil in the dermis or in the sub-dermal layer. The functions of these glands are to cool off the body by producing perspiration and to discharge waste products. In some parts of the skin these sweat glands are very close together. There are as many as 2,500 to the square inch. While some perspiration is being continually discharged through these sweat glands, the amount is usually so small that it passes out in vapor without being noticed, but on a hot day the amount discharged may be so abundant as to produce heavy beads of sweat. It may be interesting to you to know that all of the skin structures are produced by evolving skin cells which have been brown and developed into special functions. This includes the hair, sweat glands, oil glands, and finger-nails.

Brittle finger-nails and rough scaly skin are caused by a lack of certain mineral elements in our food materials, and it is interesting to observe the improvement of the complexion of the individuals who eat the right kind of foods. In fact, it would be a good plan for all beauty specialists to become dietitians.

One of the best ways for keeping the skin healthy is to use cold shower or sponge baths. This stimulates the little muscles in the skin to contract, and really provides these muscles with exercise. In almost every case, when a hot bath is taken, it should be followed by a cold one to temporarily close the pores of the skin and counteract the relaxation caused by the heat. Rubbing vigorously with a dry towel will also increase the circulation to the skin and can be used to advantage following the cold bath.

If you will keep your skin healthy at all times, you will encourage elimination, and your body will function better in every way.

Questions and Answers. Question: Mrs. K. J. asks: "What would cause a baby's legs to cramp and draw back the knees?" Answer: Any time a baby's legs cramp or begin to draw back it is liable to be a symptom of some dangerous spinal irritation, such as infantile paralysis or cerebrospinal meningitis. Some symptoms in a baby should be immediately reported to your doctor who can best tell you what to do.

Question: Mrs. J. asks: "Are there any fruits which do not contain acid? If all contain acid, does cooking destroy it? I would like to eat fruits but cannot if they contain acid, so I am very desirous of knowing which fruits do not contain acid, either cooked or uncooked."

The "military pace" is reckoned at two feet six inches.

Answer: Fruit acids are changed somewhat by cooking? Also, dried fruits have less acid than when fresh. Many people are afraid of using fruits because of the acid, but could do so if they understood how to use the fruits properly. It is better to use only the stewed fruits with meals, and take fresh fruits by themselves, making an entire meal of one kind of fruit. Practically all fruits contain some acid, but because of their effect upon increasing the flow of bile, their final reaction in the body is alkaline. If you have over-acidity of the stomach, you will find that a fruit fast of a few days will greatly benefit you.

WASHINGTON LETTER. Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of three articles on the functions and methods of the electoral college. By RODNEY DUTCHER. Washington, July 26.—Under the electoral college system, a presidential candidate can run hundreds of thousands of votes behind his opponent and still win. Sometimes it has been done, though not in these recent years of Republican landfalls.

beat Seymour by but 300,000 votes out of 5,700,000 cast, but he beat him 214 to 80 in the electoral college. Taft, Roosevelt and McKinley were all majority presidents. Cleveland never was. Although he ran nearly 400,000 ahead of President Benjamin Harrison in 1892, James B. Weaver, the Populist, had a million votes.

In 1888 Cleveland had polled 100,000 more votes than Harrison and yet lost the presidency by 233 electoral votes for Harrison and 148 for himself. The reason was that he had large majorities in southern states while running Harrison a close but losing race in most states of the north. The Cleveland-Blaine result of 1884 gave Cleveland a 23,000 plurality over Blaine, while his electoral victory was 219 to 182. He won New York by 1,100 votes only, but that made the all-important difference of 45 votes in the electoral college, where an electing majority is only 266. Minority parties prevented him from obtaining a majority of the total vote.

In 1836 Garfield beat Hancock by 10,000 ordinary votes and 49 electoral votes. Owing to Weaver's 300,000 vote he was also a minority president. Tilden had at least 250,000 more popular votes than Hayes in 1876, even by the Republican count. He lost because what appeared to be his electoral votes were stolen and the final electoral vote majority as awarded to Hayes was just one lone vote. All of which shows that the choice of a majority of the people doesn't necessarily win an election. In case that's an objection to the system, it may be explained that the Fathers had something of the sort in mind when they drew up the constitution. One group was dead set against allowing the large or states to dominate. It is true that no candidate ever won an election without the vote of either New York or Pennsylvania except Wilson in 1912 and that victories without both states have been rare. Nevertheless, a half dozen densely populated states cannot dominate elections simply by returning huge majorities for a given candidate. They can cast their electoral votes and no more. On the other hand, the more sparsely populated states are able to cast an electoral vote for out of proportion to their voting strength because they are allowed an elector for each senator as well as for each congressman. Whereas Nevada has one electoral vote for each 35,000 inhabitants, New York has one for each 230,000 inhabitants. Furthermore, the electoral college is not correctly distributed. It is conceivable that if the electoral college were to be allocated among the states today in accordance with the constitution it might make a change in the election result. But not much more than conceivable.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Thursday, July 26

When Gene Tunney carries his heavyweight championship crown to the Yankee Stadium ring in New York for his second defense of the title against Tom Heeney on Thursday night the progress of the 15-round battle will be again described through the medium of WEA and associated stations. The bout, which will begin approximately at 8 o'clock, will attract the usual throng of ring-side notables of stage and screen stars, financial figures and other luminaries of public life and their reactions will be described in addition to the millions of radio devotees. Another feature for 9 for listeners who are not interested in the ring classic will be a concert by Shannon's band through WNYC. Half an hour later the WJZ chain will broadcast the Maxwell hour, in which will be presented a diversified program, and at 10 English ballad singers will be introduced before the microphone of WBY. The graceful "Shadow Dance" from Meyerbeer's opera "Donizetti" will be played by the United States Navy band in the program to be radiated by WJZ, WJZ, WJZ and WJZ. The band is under the direction of Charles Bentler. A half-hour of cool selections will be this week's offering by the River Chorists, a male octet, through WEA and allied stations at 8. Songs of the far north and selections which contain an exhilarating reminder of green bays and winding streams constitute their program.

Wave lengths in letters on left of station title, kilocycles on the right. Times are Eastern Daylight Saving and Eastern Standard. Black type indicates best features.

150 FOR SUMMER RELIGION SCHOOL

Increase Over Last Year Is Seen—Opens in Two Weeks at Connecticut Agricultural College.

Hartford, July 26.—With the opening day two weeks away, the enrollment for the Connecticut Summer School of Religious Education, which is to be held at Storrs from August 14 to 25, is already 44 per cent larger than last year. Indications are that the total enrollment will be about 150, which would be double the enrollment at the last school.

Wallace L. Woodin, general secretary of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education, under whose auspices the school is conducted, attributes this increased enrollment to a growing interest among young people of the Protestant churches in religious education and to their desire to secure thorough training for leadership. The school is conducted for present and prospective teachers of religion. Some study to make religious teaching their life work and others as their avocation. The school prepares them not only for the teaching of religion but for leadership in young people's work, mission classes and the social and recreational life of the church.

U. S. ARMY CHOOSES ELECTRIC STOKERS

The Electric Furnace-Man has the Army and Uncle Sam can now be added to the rapidly growing list of prominent purchasers.

The Electric Furnace-Man was chosen after thorough investigation and with the same discriminating care that Uncle Sam uses in selecting the most effective and modern equipment for his Army. When you choose to heat your home automatically with the Electric Furnace-Man, you obtain maximum heating comfort and efficiency at minimum expense without any fire hazard or annoyance from smoke or soot.

More Electric Furnace-Men than ever are being sold, says Carl W. Anderson, local dealer, and his advice is to get yours ordered now so that you will not be held up when the real rush comes.

Big Steam Travelers Built in Germany for Newfoundland Fishers. Hamburg.—The two biggest steam-trawlers in the world are now being built at the Stuelcken shipyards here for Newfoundland Banks fishers. They will be 213 feet long and 32.8 feet broad, and will have a displacement of 2,000 tons each. Triple-expansion motors of 850 horsepower will give them a speed of about 10 1/2 knots. The catch will be cleaned and boned on board by machinery, and the refuse, together with the non-edible catch, will be converted into fishmeal. The machinery for this operation has a capacity of some 2,000 quarters daily. The livers of the fishes will also be converted into oil on board.

LITTLE LEGAL BUSINESS IN SUMMER PAUSE

The vacation period is reflected in the scarcity of legal business as indicated by the small number of papers filed for record in the town clerk's office. The falling off has been noticeable for the past two or three weeks. Largely this is due to the vacation period of the courts and the absence from their office of many lawyers. The filing of tax liens was largely completed before July 15, and since that time there has been little new business entered at the office of the town clerk. The number of property transactions is also at a low ebb and few deeds are being filed. The lull is giving an opportunity to get the papers that have been filed entered onto the books.

SCHALLER TO OFFER ALL-NIGHT SERVICE

Henry Schaller of the Schaller Motor Sales, Inc., has found it necessary to establish an all-night repair station, due to the fact that his business has been on the increase for some time. Mr. Schaller, who has been in the repair business in Manchester for about five years, has come to the conclusion that an all-night service station is very much needed here, and claims it will enable business men who cannot do without their cars in the daytime, to have any repair work done at night. Mr. Schaller expects his plans to be well under way by August 15, he will be able to handle any amount of work brought to his place.

WESLEYAN PRODIGY GETS DEGREE AT AGE OF 19; RECORD FOR 85 YEARS

Middletown, Conn.—Russell William Ehlers, the prodigy of the class of 1928 at Wesleyan University here, Ehlers received his degree this June at the age of nineteen years and in so doing became the youngest degree holder Wesleyan has had in eighty-five years. Back in the period from 1833 to 1841 Wesleyan graduated boys at 16 and 17 years of age but the requirements were not so stiff. The average age of graduates today is twenty-two years. Ehlers plans to do graduate work at Wesleyan next fall and will teach meanwhile in the University. Ehlers was born here. His uncle is the mayor, Frederick J. Blewfield.

a word about SHOES

TRAMP—Tramp—Tramp goes the never ending shoe parade, black ones, tan ones,—high ones, low ones—some too tight, and some too loose—endlessly the parade keeps marching on. All of those shoes must eventually be replaced with new ones—where will these new shoes be purchased? The answer to this question will depend to a very large extent upon how closely these shoe buyers watch the parade of shoe advertisements in THE HERALD. Those who are consistent readers of these ads will select THEIR new shoes from the complete stocks of one of the many reputable dealers who use this medium of acquainting their customers with their merchandise.

BANKRUPTS IN STATE PAID 10 CTS. ON $1

New Haven, Conn., July 26.—Assets of bankrupt concerns and individuals in Connecticut during the last year yielded only about two cents on the dollar, according to the annual bankruptcy report filed today in the office of the United States District Court here. Out of 948 cases ended in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, with a total liabilities of $12,097,638, the sum of $1,203,865 was realized and distributed in various ways. General creditors received the total of $505,052, while the expenses of administering the bankrupt estates amounted to a total of $294,748. Preferred and secured claims took $404,065. The United States District Court for Connecticut had 1,568 cases pending on July 1, 1927, and 1,446 cases pending one year later. The court concluded 848 cases in the year, dismissed two, and settled 27 others by compositions. New cases were filed in the year numbering 726. Of the 848 cases scheduled in the year 482 were of merchants, 129 of wage-earners, 31 of farmers, 27 of manufacturers, and two of professional men.

AMID beautiful surroundings on Main street the new William P. Quish Funeral Home stands—an institution built for the people of this community. The home is of brick and stucco construction with exposed timbers, the typical English-Tudor architecture, and a worthy building for its intended uses.

In making this Home available to the public of Manchester it has been Mr. Quish's sincere endeavor to have all things in keeping with its purpose. A visit during the formal opening will prove the success of his efforts better than words.

ONE enters the Home through massive oak doors into an entry fitted with leaded chapel windows. To the right is a large cloak room. Throughout, the plan has been to have convenience and comfort at every turn.

FROM the entry one passes into the Main Parlor where peace and quiet prevail. This room is hung with blue velvet drapes by Cheney Brothers. The furnishings are luxurious and one feels as if he were in a home.

Off the Main Parlor is a smaller one, the Family Room, which gives an added bit of privacy for those who wish it.

NEXT to the Main Parlor and running parallel to it, is the Reposing Room, hung with cardinal red velvet drapes by Cheney Brothers. The furnishings have been selected to harmonize with the preceding room. Here one finds a piano for use when desired.

Immediately to the left is the beautifully appointed Ladies' Room fitted with vanity-dresser and chairs in American Walnut.

THE Show Room opens off the Reposing Room and is filled with a complete display of caskets.

Then the Morgue, one of the finest equipped work rooms in the State. The floor is tiled, the windows are of frosted glass so that work may be done without interference from without. The very latest equipment has been purchased so that nothing will be left undone to make this all-important work the finest possible.

AT the back of the Home is a three-car heated garage. This is part of the building and permits driving in under cover and gives desirable privacy. All in all, Mr. Quish has tried to remember everything.

A Word About Service

The Home is for the people of Manchester and Vicinity. It is non-sectarian. Anyone may use it without charge. A service may be held here at no more expense than in your own home. In fact, the cost is less, as there is no charge for chairs no matter how many are used.

We wish to stress the fact that a service held here will eliminate unnecessary fatigue and inconvenience than if held at your home; and the entire expense will be what you make it—just the same as when you purchase an automobile or a suit of clothes.

Caskets may be purchased for as low as $50.

We never make selections, but gladly advise when requested to do so.

Every detail of the service will be carefully arranged and competently executed. Our many years of experience enable us to perform this duty as you would desire it done.

A day and night ambulance service is maintained.

Tex Rickard Facing Loss On Day Of Big Battle

Dempsey As A Second May Arouse Interest

New York Shows Little Interest as Compared to Other Years—Forecast Calls for Good Weather for Contest—Low Price Seats Reduced in Price; 40,000 Still Unsold This Morning.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, July 26.—Just as they did the first and the last time, some struggling soul committed this monumental bromide: "All roads will lead tonight to the Yankee Stadium where Gene Tunney and Tom Heeneey are to engage in earnest combat of fifteen rounds for the heavyweight championship of the world." The roads will lead, indeed, but the pedestrian, the equestrian and the cyclist have indicated that they will suit themselves about following. New York was calm, the champion, meant to take his life in his hands by flying to the scene from his training camp failed to arouse the populace to the point where it stormed the citadels for tickets of admission. There probably were 40,000 unsold this morning and indications were that if the crowd reached 50,000 and the gate more than a million, Tex Rickard would be doing as well as any man could expect.

Good Weather However, fair and cooler was the weather forecast for the evening and this was no more favorable to the success of the occasion than was the possibility that the irascible Dempsey might yet be induced to enter the challenger's corner as a second. These alone remained as last-minute stimulants of a sale that only in recent days has savored of championship volume and Rickard was prepared to make the most of them.

Faces a Loss A millionaire now in white flannels and a yachting cap, he once dealt faro bank along the Yukon and so he wore the gambler's mask of inscrutability this morning as he sat alone and faced the prospect of a financial impasse for the first time since, 20 years ago at Reno, he launched into the business of heavyweight championship promotion. All of his previous extravaganzas made thousands upon thousands in profits for his backers; this time, he will make little or nothing.

They have dubbed Heeneey, the New Zealand challenger, the "Man from Down Under," but they selected the wrong party. He man from down under today is Tex Rickard as he contemplates his cash on hand and compares it with the fact that he has contracted to pay Tunney $250,000, Heeneey $100,000 and the government some thirty per cent of his receipts, in addition to underwriting the rental of the field and the usual expenses contiguous with the staging of an event of this kind.

One of his last, despairing gestures will be to throw 7,000 general admissions on the market at 4 o'clock this afternoon at three dollars each, a cut-rate scheme, which would have scored in those fulsome days at Philadelphia and Chicago when he was raking in his millions from the avid throngs who gathered for the Dempsey-Tunney meetings. It was Dempsey's hold on the public that made these gates possible and so it must be conceded that it is Dempsey's absence from the present equation that leaves Rickard struggling for an even break at the pay off.

Little Interest With this impending figure as a spectator or, at the most, a corner handler, there was nothing about this fight with which to intrigue the popular fancy. There has been a studied attempt to picture Tunney as a man in whom the "killer" has been born overnight but, to the sane students of form, the lack of a single knockdown over the entire 15 rounds would come as no great surprise.

Tunney has given some indication in training that he is disposed to sacrifice some speed in a desire to punch it out with the challenger. This undoubtedly would produce a better fight than any believe they are due to see. But it isn't likely to lead to a knockout. Both men are tough; neither can punch in the accepted sense of the term. A knockout, with that combination, is hardly probable.

Champ the Favorite Tunney remained the favorite in the rather sporadic betting today and well he might. If there is any form on this fight, Tunney agrees to have it with his superior speed, his cleaner punching, ring sense, greater experience and the knowledge that a defeat would make him appear almost ludicrous. They are said to have made him a favorite at odds as high as 2 1/2 to 1, which, in the light of subsequent develop-

What We Think In Sports

By THOMAS W. STOWA

Invariably at the last minute, somebody wants to obtain certain facts about the participants of a world's championship boxing bout. For that reason, a brief resume of the life and ring careers of both Gene Tunney and Tom Heeneey are given below. James Joseph Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, was born in Old Greenwich Village in New York City on May 25, 1898. He is the son of a longshoreman from County Mayo, Ireland. As a boy, Tunney attended a parochial school, and like other members of his family, was and is today intensely religious. And like Heeneey, his challenger, he kept school at the age of 14 and went to work with his father on the docks. Gene attracted some attention as a boxer while attending parochial school and continued boxing when he started to work. He was employed as a shipping clerk for a steamship company when he fought his first bout for which he received $50.

Tunney enlisted as soon as possible at the outbreak of the World War. He was in the marine corps. He served in the S. O. S. in France and attracted attention of the boxing world when he won the light heavyweight championship of the American Expeditionary Forces. Returning to America, Tunney took up fighting as a profession and knocked out Bob Pierce in the second round of their bout. This, according to many critics, made Tunney. During that year, he fought four other bouts winning all except one which was a no-decision affair. In 1921, Tunney was more active but suffered from weak hands. A trip to the Main Woods fixed that. He won eight fights by knockouts that year and also took part in three no-decision fights.

In 1922, Tunney knocked out five opponents, and won decisions over Martin Burke and two other opponents. It was in 1922 that he suffered his first and only defeat. Harry Greb earned a 15-round decision, but Gene gained six more knockouts, won three decisions fights, and fought three no-decision fights that year. Came 1924 and Tunney was getting more active in the ring. He gained a technical knockout over Carpenter, knocked out Spalla, Lohman and other opponents, and fought no-decision fights with Greb, Jeff Smith, Jimmy Delaney and Ernie Rickard himself is some at Tunney. He says that if the bout is a financial failure as it is apparently doomed to be, Tunney will be largely to blame for refusing to collaborate in the ballyhoo. Then, the school and literary pugilist, there isn't so much "internationalism" to this bout. First of all, Heeneey, though born under the Union Jack, is not a native Englishman. In fact, he wasn't English, but Irish; and although of Irish extraction, he isn't really Irish, having been born on the other side of the world. He is simply a New Zealander and one can count the number of that population in the United States easily without the use of an adding machine.

Consequently, the general all-around lack of interest in tonight's scrap. Had the selection of Heeneey met with favor among the members of the Fourth Estate, the situation would have been much different. Ballyhooing would have been started weeks and months ago and today every fight in the world would have been on edge. Yes, the power of the press has never been better demonstrated. Publicity either makes or breaks a thing and the Tunney-Heeneey fight can be put down in the books as having been broken, unmade or what you will.

The outcome of the bout will be either read or heard by millions but the number of persons in the Yankee Stadium will be very small in comparison to the radio audience and to other fights in the past. It was Rickard's first financial flop since getting on top of the boxing ladder and next time he will probably "feel" out the opinion of the writers before pairing his men.

As much of a surprise and upset as Tunney's victory over Heeneey at Philadelphia, a win for Heeneey tonight would be by far the greatest upset the sport world has known in years, if ever. To be sure, Heeneey has a chance, but it apparently is a mighty slim one. A few sporting writers have gone on record as predicting that Heeneey will win, but most of them are doing it because everyone else is picking Tunney and because they still can't get over the Dempsey flop. They are simply taking a big chance for the fame it might give them if they guessed right.

For my part, give me Tunney. He is much the better boxer and should retain the title. Being one of the kind, however, who relishes an "killer" type, I like Dempsey and others whose careers have come a close, I am no lover of a man of Tunney's style. Boxing is alright for those who like it, but give me a man who can hit and hit hard enough to drop 'em with one punch once in a while. Tunney has never struck me particularly as being a "killer," yet he should have no trouble standing Heeneey off. I would be surprised if Tunney won by a knockout. It looks like the full fifteen rounds to me, a slow and somewhat uninteresting bout. However, one can't always tell. There have been upsets before. One opinion is as good as another, but there is one sure thing and that is, I won't lose any sleep whoever wins. The bout is too unimportant.

Tunney-Heeneey Ring Careers Told In Brief

Heeneey's Only Chance Tunney Being "Off"

By HENRY L. FARRELL

New York, July 26.—Tunney to win after a hard fight, but not a soon one. That's our guess on the outcome of the approaching contest between Tunney and Tom Heeneey for the world's heavyweight championship. It is not an original thought nor a radical guess to hazard the opinion that the heavyweight champion will come out of the fight with his crown somewhere on his dome. Everyone is picking Tunney to win and circumstances offer the temptation to leave the mob and crawl out to a solitary place on the limb with an unqualified prediction that Heeneey will win by a knockout.

But nothing could inspire that prediction today than a desire to be different and arrive at a well spot to shout "I told you so" if the figures should all be wrong. Heeneey's only right to win the fight would be based on nothing that he can do but the things that Tunney couldn't do because of the lack of physical condition or a 75 per cent loss of form.

Tunney, unless the eyes are all wrong, does not lack physical condition and there are no symptoms to indicate that he has gone back enough to bring Heeneey up to his size. We do not believe that Heeneey will be a cinch and that the champion will parade to victory with his weapons in the holster and his locks unsmuggled. We believe that Heeneey will give him a fight and one real fight that it might be a close decision if it goes 15 rounds. If a knockout is desired, Heeneey must be on the catching end.

Tunney has to be figured as smarter, faster, a sharper biter and a better boxer. Heeneey has nothing to his credit but stamina and strength. Dempsey went down because his legs failed him and his arms wearied of the task of shooting gloves at a target that couldn't be found. Dempsey had his punch to the last minute and he has it yet. He has legs, arms and carry within punching distance of that elusive target.

Tunney is one of the greatest defensive fighters that ever lived. Jack Britton says he is the only fighter he ever saw who could carry on the offensive in retreat. He can fight going away. More than in the case of other fighters, Tunney's mechanism is based upon footwork and fast "waving" and the rest is a disguise to indicate that his legs or arms have gone back on him even one little fraction of an inch.

He hasn't fought fifteen rounds in four years, it is true. And Heeneey is a puncher in the history of the game. But it is of record that Heeneey had had in this country tried badly after the fifth round. And it will be recalled that in Philadelphia and in Chicago Tunney was fresh at the end of the tenth round and his man was almost in the state of collapse.

Heeneey is a sucker for a left hand and a mark for any kind of a straight punch. And that is exactly Tunney's game. Heeneey can do nothing but come in with his head down and fall to the body. That style is exactly made for Tunney. It is quite obvious from the way in which he has disregarded wise counsel that Heeneey thinks the fight is entirely a matter of endurance and that his fight is to get in close and beat Tunney around the body.

There was never a better body puncher in the history of the game than Jack Dempsey was. Tunney was too fast for him and was too smart to be led into exchanges. Dempsey was dead on his feet, yet; but Heeneey, alive on his feet, is no faster than the limb-dead Dempsey was.

Heeneey is muscle bound. He can't snap a punch and a much less sharp biter than Tunney can beat him any punch he elects. Heeneey's theory that condition and endurance are the vital factors is correct, but we think that Heeneey and his handlers are under-estimating the condition of Tunney. They

During that year, Heeneey lived up to the nice things said about him by winning four 15-round fights and getting a draw with Collins Bell in 15 rounds. Then he shifted his activities to Australia, staying there one year before returning to New Zealand. He fought nine fights in Australia, winning three by knockouts, three by decisions, losing two by decisions and drawing once. During 1923, when he fought in New Zealand, he won seven fights and lost one. Five of his wins were by sleep-producing punches. One came through disqualification of his opponent.

Heeneey's first fight in London led critics to believe that he had been ballyhooed wrongly, as he lost to Phil Scott in 20 rounds, and his subsequent fights there that year were not so impressive, although he won all except two. Then John Mortimer took him to South Africa where he won four fights and lost one, the latter on a foul.

His American fights resulted as follows: Won from Charlie Anderson by knockout, from Jack De Mave by decision, from Bud Gorman on a foul, from Jim Maloney by a one-round knockout, from Johnny Risko by a decision, from Delaney by a decision.

He lost to Paulino Uzcudun in his second American fight but gained a draw against Paulino later. He also fought a draw with Jack Sharkey.

TWILIGHT GAMES SET FOR TONIGHT

Aces vs. Bon Ami at West Side; Highland Park at Manchester Green.

There will be two games in the Community Club twilight league tonight. There were supposed to be three but the one between the Heights and Gibson's Garage for Hickey's Grove has been advanced to Friday night. Highland Park is scheduled to play at Manchester Green and the other game finds the Bon Ami opposing the Aces at the West Side. The latter looks like the best attraction. Stung twice by defeat in the league, the Aces are on the warpath and hope to conquer the soap makers.

FORDS WIN 7-6 IN 8TH INNING

The Fords defeated the Nashs in an "overtime" game last Wednesday night at the West Side playgrounds by the score of 7 to 6. Ernie Dowd hitting featured for the Nashs. Gus Moriarty made a wonderful throw to the plate in the 7th inning, cutting off a run. Both pitchers were very wild, Kerr walking 11 and Dowd 1, but Kerr fanned 10 men.

Friday night the Hudsons and Fords play.

American Tennis Association Severely Criticized for Its About Face in Famous Net Star's Case.

Paris, July 26.—S. Wallis Merrihew, a member of the constitution and rules committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association today criticized Samuel E. Collom, president of the association, for waiting a full week before reinstating "Big Bill" Tilden, captain of the American Davis Cup team. "Mr. Collom made a big mistake when he didn't take yesterday's action last week," Merrihew told International News Service. "He should have refused to put into effect the United States Lawn Tennis Association's ruling which banned Tilden in the first place, before waiting a full week to about face. This little controversy will be costly to our chances. You cannot crucify a man for a week, then slowly pull the nails out of him and expect him to play at the top of his form. Tilden has been in a deplorable mental state for the last eight days. How can he be expected to come back against the French stars now? Bill Hennessy appears to have lost his brilliant form, also. Yesterday 'Junior' Coen beat him badly in two sets. "Collom has acted courageously in this matter although he might have saved a great deal of trouble by standing up against the association's ban in the first place. America will put up a stiff battle against the Frenchmen but it will be nothing compared to the battle which will be enacted when the team returns to American soil." Vincent Richards, famous American tennis star, now an avowed professional, told International News Service today that he thought the only solution to the amateur muddle in tennis was to handle it as is done in golf with open tournaments between acknowledged professionals and "Simon Pures."

Adolphe Menjou picks OLD GOLD

as camera records the Blindfold test

The test was conducted by responsible witnesses who asked Mr. Menjou to smoke each of the four leading brands, clearing his taste with coffee between smokes. While the camera recorded the test, only one question was asked: "Which one do you like best?"

"I've discovered a new way of mixing business and pleasure. The parts I play call for the constant smoking of a cigarette . . . I probably average one cigarette to every hundred feet of film. In the blindfold test I discovered one so smooth, so considerate of my tongue and throat that even the business of wholesale smoking while we're shooting scenes will be a pleasure. The cigarette I voted for proved to be Old Gold."

Adolphe Menjou . . . debonair, sophisticated Paramount star . . . one of the greatest living actors . . . appeared recently in "His Tiger Lady," "Night of Mystery," and "Serenade."

Why you can pick them

Three types of leaves grow on the tobacco plant . . . coarse top-leaves, irritating to the throat . . . withered ground-leaves, without taste or aroma . . . and the heart-leaves, rich in cool and fragrant smoking qualities. Only the heart-leaves are used in Old Gold.

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

Her words broke off abruptly. The case was empty!

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BERTIE LOU WARD marries ROD BRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. The only shadow on the bride's happiness is Lila's persistence in broadcasting to their friends that she was Rod's first love.

A portion in New York is offered Rod by TOM FRASER and he accepts. Anxious to make a good impression, they live in an expensive hotel while looking for an apartment and Bertie Lou finds it hard to resist when MOLLY FRASER urges her to buy more than she can afford. Lila visits Molly and meets a rich MR. LOREE.

Lila surprises them by marrying Loree, and she asks Bertie Lou to forgive the past and be friends. She showers favors upon them with such sincerity that Bertie Lou is deceived. But seeing up appearances with their crowd is a severe strain on Rod's finances. Lila finds him depressed and persuades him to accept a high-salaried position with Loree and induces Bertie Lou to indulge in an orgy of spending and move to more luxurious quarters. She gives Rod her jewel case to put in the office vault while Loree was away and a few days later asks him to bring it back to her.

CHAPTER XXIII

Rod climbed the winding stairs of the Lorees' duplex apartment in a small embarrassment. The butler had told him Mrs. Loree would receive him upstairs in her boudoir.

Boudoir! In Rod's mind the word was closely associated with bedroom. But rather than send word to Lila that he'd prefer her to come downstairs, and possibly have her read his mind and laugh at him, he went up to her.

The door was open and Lila called to him in greeting as he reached the landing. "Good of you to bother to bring them yourself," she thanked him when he handed her the jewel case.

He felt a little less uncomfortable after his first glimpse of a room which was in reality a private sitting room. It was dressed for the evening and not in negligence as he had half feared. Even if he had wanted to Rod could not have found anything here that suggested an attempt to break the conventions.

If someone had told him at this moment that Lila was a dangerous enchantress he would have swept the assertion aside. To him she was a benefactress, and a devoted wife to her wealthy husband. His uneasiness dispelled, Rod made no objection when she said they would go down and have a cocktail.

"Wait until I put on my necklace," she added and started to open the case.

"Let me," Rod offered and Lila handed him a small key. The key stuck a bit in the lock. Rod asked if the lock was out of order. Lila said no and held out her hand. Rod returned the key to her.

"I don't want the bracelets tonight," she said, fussing with the lock, "but since you didn't have a key to the case..."

Her words broke off abruptly. The case was empty!

For one devastating moment Rod was without a thought. Then the full import of the empty case burst upon him. He looked, without realizing how idiotic it was, beside the case and on the floor.

"They're gone!" It was the merest whisper in which Lila uttered the words.

Rod turned to her with the dawning of a solution in his mind. "Maybe you didn't put them in the case," he said hopefully.

Lila nodded emphatically. "Yes, I did. There's no question about that."

"Please look around," Rod urged, his anxiety revealed in the rapidly rising excitement of his voice.

Lila moved over to a safe in the silk-paneled wall. They'd be here, but I know they're not," she said incessantly. "I put them in the case myself, just before I gave it to you to take to the office."

Lila's words and the gesture she made when she turned back from the open safe empty-handed, roused Rod to a true appreciation of his terrible predicament. His face paled under the stress of it.

"Then they've been stolen," he said slowly, reluctantly.

"But how could they?" Lila cried, apparently recovering from the numbing shock of the discovery. "You didn't let anyone else have them, did you, Rod?"

"No, of course not," he answered. "You know, Lila, don't you see what it looks for me?"

"What do you mean?" she asked, in a small, strained voice that echoed his own emotion. Rod could see that she harbored a frightening thought.

"You know," he said more quietly. "I am responsible for them. The safe wasn't robbed. There were other articles of value in it. A thief would not have left them."

"Isn't there anyone down there who could have taken it? Perhaps you left it unguarded a little while on your desk or some place before you put it away?" Lila suggested with an air of seeking to refresh his memory.

Rod's face shadowed with deepening trouble. "No one touched them," he asserted firmly. "Could someone have taken them out of the safe?" Lila pressed, a little breathlessly.

"No one has the combination excepts Cy and myself," Rod explained.

Lila was silent for a few seconds. "How did you come up here?" she asked then.

"By taxi. I didn't want to risk being robbed in a crush," Rod smiled ruefully. "A fine precaution that was."

"Haven't you any idea when... when they were lost?" Lila asked, ignoring the fibe at himself.

"You mean when they were stolen," Rod corrected her. "They haven't been out of my possession except when they were in the safe," he went on. "We'd better inform the police at once."

"Wait," Lila interrupted him. "Wait a moment," she urged. "You don't know what you're doing." "Well, I've got to do something. And you ought to notify the insurance company without delay," Rod advised her, reaching for the telephone again.

"Rod, wait," Lila insisted as she put a hand on his arm. "A few minutes won't make any difference," she added quickly. "And I think you're too disturbed to see how this thing is going, to end if you call in the police," to end if you call in the police."

Rod hesitated. Lila shoved the instrument aside. "Sit down," she said and pressed him into the chair at the desk. She touched a button.

"Don't misunderstand me," she began, when a maid had come and gone. "But if everything you say is true, Rod, I mean if you really didn't give anyone a chance to rob you while the case was out of the safe, then we can't take this mess to the police."

Rod stared at her. "Wait until you've had a chance to inspect the safe," she went on. "Perhaps it was tampered with."

Rod started to speak. "I know," Lila interrupted him, "you said nothing else was going. That means we've got to face means, Rod. It means that some people at least are going to suspect you."

"I know that," Rod admitted.

Rod moved nervously and glanced at the telephone. Lila pushed it farther away.

"Rod, listen," she burst out suddenly. "Cy mustn't know about this. I asked him to help you for Bertie Lou's sake. I was sincere and he can't help but know it. He knows about... about us. That was all right, too. But don't you see? If you can't prove your innocence you'll be under suspicion. And you know human nature. I'm not saying he will, but Cy might turn against you."

"Think of what you would lose through no fault of your own," she paused and Rod asked her why she didn't believe he had stolen the jewels.

"Oh, rot," she returned impatiently. "I'm not a complete fool. And I got you into this. I know that. But if you don't notify the police and the insurance people at once you'll lose your jewels," Rod pointed out to her.

She smiled. "I know that," she admitted. "But they aren't worth so much to me that I'd sacrifice you to get them back."

"Lila, you're a thoroughbred, but I'd be a fine kind of cur to let you protect me."

"Now wait a minute," Lila hurried on. "I'm thinking of myself, too. I boosted you with Cy. If you get in trouble it gives me a black eye."

"Why go through all that? Let's get a private detective. I know one. Investigate before you go rushing into a cloud of suspicion. If we can find out who took the jewels before Cy learns about the theft you will be saved a lot of sorrow. It's worth a try."

Rod grimaced. "I'd rather take a chance on Cy giving me a break."

Lila shrugged. "I know Cy better than you do. In some ways he's bigger than any man I know but in others he's... well, he's got a queer streak, Rod. He's unreasonable about some things. If he entered his head that you had robbed him he would send you to the penitentiary if he could, no matter how warm your friendship had been."

Rod winced. "But he's got to know," he said dully.

"No, he hasn't. No one has to know. I've got a string of pearls just like the genuine and copies of the bracelets. They're very good, too. No one will know the difference."

"If we lose time trying to catch the thief ourselves you may never get back your real pearls and the bracelets," Rod cautioned her.

"What if I didn't?" Lila exclaimed impulsively. "They aren't worth more than a few thousand dollars. That's nothing to be compared to your future. If this should become one of those unsolved mysteries you'd be ruined forever, Rod."

Watching closely, she saw the expression in his face that she had hoped for.

Molded Egg Salad
Four eggs, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon each pepper, salt and mustard, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar, 2 large tomatoes, mayonnaise and lettuce. Put eggs into 4 cups cold water and bring to the boiling point. Reduce heat and cook for thirty minutes just below the boiling point. Plunge at once into cold water and when slightly cool remove shells. Force whites and yolks through a potato ricer. Season with salt, pepper, and mustard thoroughly mixed and sifted, melted butter and lemon juice. Pack firmly into a straight tumbler or jelly glass. Chill for several hours. When ready to serve run a thin blade of the glass and remove the egg mixture whole. Cut in four slices. Peel and chill tomatoes and cut in halves. Place each half on a nest of lettuce, cover with a slice of egg and drop a spoonful of mayonnaise on top.

HERE ARE USEFUL TIPS FOR SUMMER CAMPERS

Life in the open is pleasant in the summer; it is, however, surrounded with hazards of which few people know and which are disastrous unless carefully considered.

In considering preparations for safe camping, Dr. Walter M. Dickie of the California State Board of Health points out two of the most useful tools that a camper can carry are a spade and an ax, and the spade is the more useful of the two.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SCAM (NEW)

Some times one wonders if all the stories about 'the June grads who besiege offices and newspapers and stores and factories for jobs, and modestly admit that they'd just as soon start as vice president or editor, are true. But opera directors surely must be awfully accustomed to young singers asking for prima donna roles, for Gatti-Casazza signed up a Miss Pearl Beuner, 22, for next season in the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company because, he admits himself, he was as much impressed by her willingness to 'start as a page' as by her voice.

UP IN SMOKE
Two huge buildings were deliberately burned by the U. S. Bureau of Standards in Washington the other day, and dozens of safes filled with records were burned, too. It was all done while officials stood by, making no attempt to stop the fire, for the buildings were burned in a scientific attempt to discover habits of fire and the best resiliency of various safes.

This was typically a male act. Woman is 'never' destructive. She would have insisted on saving the buildings some way, even though they were not earthly use, just in case she might need them some time, and she would have spent more time and energy and money than it would take to replace the buildings in finding some other way to get the required information, whatever we think of our superiorities, most of us are much more "penny wise and pound foolish" than males.

JAZZ 'N' GIRLS
Jazz and girls are ruining fraternity life, according to Trustee John L. Porter of Carnegie Institute of Technology.

"Fraternity, years 'ago," he says, "meant a linking of ideas, ambitions, dreams, pride in achievement and comradeship." How can we look for marks above 70 from a student who spends half his time out of schedule in truntnut-a-lump and the balance necking in some secluded corner?

Question: Do men spend any more time and interest on girls these days than they ever have?

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton ©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

A child should be taught truth from his earliest years. Truth of word, truth of action, truth of everything.

In the new era when all the world seems topsy-turvy, there seems to me to be only one hope, if civilization is to survive. That is to teach children the facts of truth as we know them.

If a child has a basic idea of truth in what better hands can we leave this old earth and her problems?

A Part of Courage
The idea of truth cannot be over-emphasized. It stands head and shoulders above all other things. It goes hand in hand with courage and honesty. That is why it is important to free a child's mind of complexes. As long as he has a fear or other such complexes there cannot be perfect truth.

Teaching truth is not easy. To begin with, it is perilous to destroy the imaginative period in a child. Up to four or a little over, his little dream stories may cause a parent to worry.

Parents, however, usually can tell the difference between a little play make-up story and a delierate lie. A lie may be a denial of misbehavior, or a fabrication calculated to work harm to somebody else, or blame put on a playmate to clear himself. The first is more common.

It is at this age that parents should begin to emphasize truth emphatically, and ever after, Truth and honesty should be taught together, and they should be taught well.

The chief cause of lying, we have discovered, is self-defense. A child does something wrong, or that he knows you think is wrong. His first impulse is to lie out of it. If civilization is to survive, that is to teach children the facts of truth as we know them.

So there are two important points for a parent to remember. Never make your discipline so strict that a child feels he is justified in breaking over. That very justification makes a lie easy. And never make punishment for misbehavior so inevitable and so severe that his fear of you makes it well nigh impossible for him to tell the truth.

Fear is absolutely ruinous in all of its forms. Moral fear is the curse of the human race. Our entire conduct is shaped around the word. Almost everything we do is influenced by fear of one thing or another.

And lying by a child is based on fear of his parents chiefly. What about it?

EAST SIDE LOCALE IN KIDDIES' REVUE

Long Awaited Production Opens at State Today for Three Day Run.

New York's famous old East Side, with its tenements and its boweries, serves as an exquisite and charming background for Manchester's Third Annual Kiddies' Revue...

The production, which is given every year under the expert direction of Manager Jack Sanson, possesses all the elements that go towards making it an event that every man, woman and child in Manchester should see.

The story tells in a vivid manner about the adventures of a poor little East Side girl who has the ambitions of becoming an actress.

At this point, the story furnishes a bit of dramatic acting that hardly seems possible for juveniles to perform. Yet it is done, in a manner that only professionals themselves can duplicate.

Doris Roy, Billy Shea, Rosanna Lindy and Buddy O'Leary have the stellar roles in this year's Kiddies' Revue.

PLAN BIG DOG SHOW AT THE STATE FAIR

Dr. F. I. Maxon, Chairman of Committee, Names Those Who Will Assist Him.

Dr. F. I. Maxon, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the Connecticut State Fair Dog Show to be given on Wednesday and Thursday of Labor week announced his assisting committee today.

According to Dr. Maxon this will be the largest Dog Show ever held before in Connecticut. So far the estimate is placed around 600 exhibition dogs, and included are national as well as international champions.

Two famous bloodhounds will be exhibited. One of these dogs has 250 captures to his credit, trailed down in southern swamps. Of unusual interest will be the exhibit of Salukis, the oldest known breed of domesticated dogs.

JEWISH FARMERS' FIELD DAY TO BE HELD AUG. 12

Rockville Fair Grounds to Be Scene of Big Outing—Governor to Attend.

Governor John H. Trumbull is to be the chief speaker at the third annual field day of the Jewish Farmers of Connecticut which will be held on August 12 in the towns of Ellington and Bloomfield.

Such nationally prominent men as Henry Morthanthal, Jr., the publisher of the American Agriculturist, Gabriel Davidson, the general manager of the Jewish Agricultural Society, S. McLean Buckingham, Commissioner of Agriculture for Connecticut; Sidney A. Edwards, the director of the Bureau of Markets in Connecticut and Benjamin C. Stone, the Editor of the Jewish Farmer, will address the meeting at the Field Day.

The program for the Field Day is being arranged jointly by Samuel Kostolefsky, of Rockville, the Extension Agent of the Jewish Agricultural Society and the Jewish Farmers of Ellington and those of the Reinhold Poultry Farms in Bloomfield. In the morning, beginning at 9 a. m., E. S. T., the four or five representative Jewish farmers in Ellington and vicinity; at noon the party will gather at the Rockville Fair Grounds for a basket luncheon and at 1 o'clock, Standard Time, the Governor will arrive with Col. C. H. Allen. The speaking will last for about an hour and a half during which time there will be some community stinging, conducted by Nathan Promieser of Hartford, and also some numbers given by the children of some of the Jewish Farmers of the state.

After the speaking program, the party will leave the Fair Grounds and travel to Bloomfield to inspect the Reinhold Poultry Farms, only recently established, visiting one other poultry farm in Vernon en route to Bloomfield.

It is expected that a crowd of over 2,000 people will attend the Field Day and that many will come from all over New England and New York State.

The Governor's reception committee will consist of Messrs. Max Lavitt, Aaron Dobkin, Samuel Rosenberg, Joseph Berman, Harry M. Gabriel and Samuel Kostolefsky. Mr. Gabriel, Director of the Jewish Agricultural Society, will be the chairman of the afternoon program at the Fair Grounds.

For those who did not have the opportunity to bring lunches there will be a possibility of getting sandwiches and other refreshments on the grounds.

All information concerning the best route to take to get to the Field Day which will start from Ellington Town hall, can be obtained from Samuel Kostolefsky, 11 West street, Rockville, Conn.

WAPPING Mrs. Luella B. Nevers and Mrs. Emma M. Shipman of Oakland returned to their homes last Sunday from a two weeks' visit with friends and relatives in Dedham, Mass.

Miss Mabel Dewey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi T. Dewey, celebrated her ninth birthday by having a number of her little friends at her home for a birthday party. Games were played and refreshments were served.

Little Gordon Alling, who lives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lane of Pleasant Valley, was taken to the Hartford Hospital Tuesday afternoon, where he had his tonsils removed on Wednesday morning.

The thirteenth regular meeting of Wapping Grange, No. 30, was held at the Wapping School hall on Tuesday evening with about thirty present. The following committee was appointed to draw up the resolutions on the death of Past Worthy Master, Brother J. Edward Collins: Walter N. Foster, Mrs. Lillian E. Grant, Mrs. Hattie Lane and Mrs. Gertrude A. Foster. The following program was presented: A roll-call when every one present was either to sing or whistle a song, a vocal solo by Mrs. Hattie Chandler, and Miss Dorothy Frink accompanied her at the piano; she also responded to an encore; a tableaux by Walter N. Foster, a solo by Oscar Strohm who also responded to an encore by selections on the harmonica; next came an instrumental solo by Miss Harriet Sharp with a "goose dance," illustrated, by Miss Helen Lane and Miss Esther Welles, and then a reading by Mrs. Hattie Lane.

The Misses Marion Baelis and Marcella Shetinsky of East Windsor Hill and Marie Rittlinger of Broad Brook have been to Grove Beach for a few days recently.

This date in AMERICAN HISTORY July 26 1775—Congress established the post-office department with Benjamin Franklin in charge. 1788—New York ratified the constitution. 1863—Sam Houston, president of Texas, ex-senator and governor, died.

NO MEDICINE IN ALL THE WORLD LIKE "ERBJUS" SAY AMAZED MANCHESTER PEOPLE

"ERBJUS" GETS RESULTS WHEN OTHER REMEDIES FAIL. DON'T LET HOT WEATHER GET THE BEST OF YOU. ERBJUS WILL TONE YOU UP. IT WILL NOT FAIL YOU.

CITY EMPLOYEE SAYS "I WOULD NOT BE ABLE TO WORK NOW BUT FOR ERBJUS"

Mr. Frank J. Wright, of 44 Adams St., Manchester, (Buckland) Tells How ERBJUS Restored His Health and Helped Him Keep on the Payroll.

Many a man has been kept on the payroll with ERBJUS. It is common for the ERBJUS Company to receive grateful letters from thankful men and women telling how glad and happy they are because ERBJUS made them physically fit. If the reader of this article is ailing and work is a drudgery and they come home from their labors tired out and weary, just try ERBJUS for awhile and see how spry and good you will feel. Many times the system needs cleaning out and a few doses will do it. Other times it may be rheumatic and a bottle at least will show you the way to get well.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE AND CONSTIPATION RELIEVED BY ERBJUS

Mrs. Isabelle Best, of 63 Church St., South Manchester, Conn., a Resident for Forty-five Years Indorses ERBJUS.

Constipation can cause more sickness and disease than any single disorder that the human flesh is heir to. If the bowels are stagnant it means that undigested food remains in them and is absorbed into the blood stream thereby polluting the entire system. You get headaches, backaches, dizzy spells and one gets tired out and draggy. In fact, you are poisoned. There is no use in getting rid of this trouble by oils or harsh remedies for if you do, you will have to stay with it and increase the dose as time goes by. Oils will grease the lining of the stomach and bowels and food will not absorb and in the end there is a semi-starvation. ERBJUS tones up the muscles of the bowels and promotes the flow of intestinal fluid and bile, and in a short time you will be able to cut down the dose of ERBJUS and then leave it off entirely.

"ERBJUS" IS FOR SALE AT PACKARD'S DRUG STORE, I. O. O. F. Building, So. Manchester

"RELIEF FROM HEADACHE CAME FROM ERBJUS" SHE SAYS

Mrs. R. Quimby, of 174 Cooper St., Manchester, Indorses "ERBJUS" Highly Because It Gave Her Quick Relief.

Headaches cause much trouble in our lives besides the pain and anguish. How many of us have had engagements to go to a party, a picnic or a theatre and then to have a headache and spoil everything. Many a business engagement has been broken and many a deal has fallen through because of them. Many people foolishly doctor the pain with headache powders which slow up the heart and cause other troubles. You should get to the bottom and clean up the cause. "ERBJUS" will get results in headaches caused from the stomach and liver and also from the nerves. If you are subject to this trouble start in taking "ERBJUS" and the results will more than surprise you.

DIZZY SPELLS AND NERVOUS INDIGESTION YIELDED VERY QUICKLY

Mrs. Anna Balinsky, of 104 Bridge St., Manchester, Is Still Another Resident Who Praises ERBJUS.

Dizzy spells are not only uncomfortable, but they are highly dangerous. Many a person has fallen and done themselves serious injury. Dizzy spells come from generally three causes. The kidneys, the digestion or high blood pressure. ERBJUS has many testimonials wherein people have been relieved from this affliction. Here in Manchester we have quite a few and are selecting the one given below. Now do not put off if you have dizzy spells as ERBJUS will overcome the cause and the symptom will quickly disappear.

STOMACH WAS SO BAD I COULD NOT EVEN DRINK A SMALL CUP OF COFFEE

Mrs. Thomas Kerr, No. 9 N. Fairfield St., Manchester, Is Another of the Many Manchester People Who Are Indorsing the Herbal Tonic, ERBJUS.

Acid stomach causes many serious troubles. The constant irritation and burning in time often leads to grave results. ERBJUS will get rid of a sour acid stomach in a jiffy and a few bottles and oft times a few doses will stop it altogether. Sour stomach is caused by defective digestion and the food lays in the stomach and ferments instead of digesting. This sour fermented mess is taken up by the blood with results that you can clearly see. Do not suffer long with stomach trouble when you can get ERBJUS. A bottle of this remedy will surprise you.

SPENT $1,500 TRYING TO GET WELL; FINALLY GOT WELL FOR $3.60

Mrs. Samuel Brown, of 57 Cooper Hill St., Manchester, Tells Public How Her Husband Regained His Health With ERBJUS.

"ERBJUS" has made good in every town that it has been introduced in and there is a reason—"ERBJUS" is a scientific remedy. The results of years of study and it goes after the cause of disease and does not just stop the symptoms. All through Connecticut we have hundreds of testimonials from people in all walks of life who have given up hope and thought that they would never get well. These people today are healthy and happy and are singing ERBJUS' Praise. If the reader of this article is discouraged and feels hopeless, let her or she give ERBJUS a good trial. You can taste the herbs and smell them and the results you will get will be nature's boon to mankind.

BACKACHE AND STOMACH TROUBLE IS NOW A THING OF THE PAST

Mrs. Max Wagner, of 673 Hartford Road, Manchester, Tells the Public and Her Friends and Neighbors of the Wonderful Results That She Received from ERBJUS.

Anyone who has suffered from backache can appreciate how happy and glad that Mrs. Wagner was to give this testimonial. Backaches can cause many an hour of misery. You do not feel like going to bed but drag yourself around wishing for night to come and many times you cannot sleep. ERBJUS will give excellent results in most forms of backaches. We have many testimonials to this effect. This distressing trouble can be caused by constipation, rheumatism, kidney trouble and liver trouble. ERBJUS gets after the liver, kidneys and bowels and tones them up. Rheumatic backaches quickly disappear by the use of this herbal remedy.

"ERBJUS" SALES MANAGER TELLS WHAT HE LEARNED WHEN HE VISITED MANCHESTER

Mr. D. MacIntire, Who Has Charge of the Sales Department for Northern Connecticut Gives an Interesting Interview.

In talking with Mr. MacIntire, he said:—"I have visited eight or nine towns within the past three weeks and I have noticed the many testimonials that have been given us where "ERBJUS" seemed to make the hot weather easier to bear. This fact has been noticed all through the country and the reason is that "ERBJUS" contains no alcohol or anything that will heat up the system. Herbs are cooling to the blood. "ERBJUS" also keeps the bowels normal and the kidneys active, hence it is an ideal summer tonic. In fact, "ERBJUS" is an all the year around tonic."

LETTER GOLF

FOR PORT SIDE GOLFERS

It's easy to play LEFT HAND letter golf regardless of whether you're right or left-handed. Par is four but perhaps you can beat the solution on the come page.

Letter golf puzzle grid with the words 'LEFT' and 'HAND' written in the grid.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2-You can change only one letter at a time.
3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

HIGHWAY SONG

Oily to bed / And oily to rise / Such is the life / of the garage guys.

Motorcycle cop: "Here, you pull over!" / Autofist: "Whattamatter?" / M. C.: "You were doing fifty." / Autofist: "Will you write that down and sign it so I can show it to my friends?"

SENSE and NONSENSE

AN AUTOMOBILE STORY

FRANKLIN STANLEY MACK was a GARDNER at the old SAXON Castle of WILLS ST. CLAIR on the HUDSON. He wanted some FLINT to light a fire for the STEARNS KNIGHT who was very GREY and cold due to the absence of the SUN-BEAMS, the MOON and the STARS. To get it he had to go to OLD MOBILE Bay. He decided to travel OVERLAND by the way of OAK-LAND forest, then FORD the JORDAN river along which LASALLE created many a PAIGE in history, and continue thru ESSEX county. The cold air on his ERSKINE made his teeth NASH so he stopped in the AMERICAN hotel for some food. He found that it was WILLYS KNIGHT as STUART and that DIANA EIGHT all of the buns made by the STUDEBAKER and that some JEWETT the ROLLS ROYCE made. He then thought of this WHITE horse CHEVRO. He decided to go where CHEVRO-LET was, mount it and WHIPPET till he reached a PEEBLESS speed. The riding was difficult. The mud would PACKARD to his horse's nose. Several times he had to DODGE PINE-ICE ARROWS from the bow of chief PONTIAC who had not signed the INTERNATIONAL peace treaty. He stopped at the LINCOLN highway to RE-organize his outfit. Here he organized the slogan AJURN the MAXWELL coffee till it lets LARRA-BEE.

Home: A place where people take a little nap after midnight while the motor cools.

Why don't they make hinged windshields for drivers to go through without breaking the glass?

When the driver in front holds out his hand, he at least affords you opportunity to exercise your ability as a mind reader.

Ford would be all right for President. The country needs a shaking up, besides he has the making of another Lincoln.

If it is true, as dentists claim, that so much time spent in drilling is causing people to get their teeth, dentists might do their business by hanging a sign which read, "FILLING STAYS OPEN."

Only a few autos have rumble seats, but most everyone has a grumble seat.

Henry Ford may indulge in one of the old-fashioned dances, but his cars do the Charleston with ease.

The race is getting healthier, authorities say—but not the race to the railroad crossing.

"You say financial troubles brought you here?" asked the hospital visitor. "Why, that's hardly possible."

"It's a fact, though," retorted the patient. "I was crossing to the other side of the street to avoid one of my creditors and saw another creditor on the other side. While I was trying to escape, a car hit me."

The Catch!

What's the Answer?

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The cork that sat inside the tree was rather large, and they could see that it was going to be a task to move the thing outside. "Its cork is pushed in tight, I'll bet, and we must find a way to get it out," said Scouty. "Come on, bunch, the task must now be tried." "Oh, first of all, it seems to me we ought to tag it from the tree. And then we'll push the cork out," added Copsy, with a grin. "We cannot lift the cork, that's true, but I know just what we can do. We'll push the cork out on the ground. Who's ready to begin?" The whole bunch got behind the cork and pushed until they made it "rock." "It's moving," shouted Clowdy. "Hey, push harder, everyone." They pushed and pushed, and bit by bit, they found that they were moving it. This made the Tinies all tired out. It wasn't any fun. "Let's rest awhile," poor Clowdy said, "I'm rather dizzy in the head. When we have caught our second breath, we'll all work our way back to the cork and get it out. It's funny how so little work will tire you now and then." Then, after they had had a rest, one Tiny jumped and said, "We'd best turn loose and move that cork some more. I feel much better now." And so the cork was pushed along. The Tinymites seemed rather strong. "Ah, there," said Copsy, "I just knew we'd get it out somehow." The next thing that they had to do was to get the great big cork out, too, so they could look inside the cork. The bunch heard Clowdy shout, "Say, here's a string. We'll tie it right upon the cork. 'Twill work all right, 'cause we can all pull hard, until the cork comes flying out."

(The cork pops out of the cork in the next story.)

ABOUT TOWN

Harry Juul, Jr., of Belmont street and Stuart Wolcott of Hollister street left yesterday for Camp Pioneer, Winsted, where they will spend two weeks.

Gibbons Assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, will hold a special meeting tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at K. of C. hall. Very important business will be transacted.

Mrs. Walter Flavell of 91 Spruce street who was operated on Tuesday at the Memorial hospital, is doing as well as can be expected.

Assistant Treasurer Louis Martz of the Manchester Trust Company is taking his vacation. Other clerks who are away are Miss Martha Stoughton who is at Black Point; Miss Vera Gorman in California with her family; Miss Edna Silver at a camp in Maine, and Stephen Williams and Teller James W. McKay.

Gordon Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Reid of Main street and James Horton, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Horton of Belmont street are absent on a motor tour through Canada.

State Policeman Lowe had another large class to be examined for drivers licenses today. The applicants were at the police station waiting for him when he arrived this morning, but because of the police court session they were held up longer than usual. Among the twenty or so present to take the examinations there was a majority of about three to one women, which has been about the proportion since the closing of schools.

Miss Lillian Murdoch of Walker street and Miss Eleanor Carlson of New Britain, are spending the week at Sound View.

A son, Robert William, was born Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips of Summit street at Miss Hollister's Maternity Home on Marble street.

William and Clifford, sons of Mr. and Mrs. William McKinney of 14 Arch street, are in Manchester Memorial hospital for tonsil operations.

Fifteen of the members of St. Mary's choir enjoyed the outing yesterday to Rocky Point and one of the substantial shore dinners for which the resort is famed. Mrs. John Albiston and Mrs. John Cockerman, wife of the organist, and her daughter accompanied the party. Swimming was the chief sport indulged in. On the way home a longer trip was taken. Providence was visited and in Williamette many of the choristers stopped off for refreshments, arriving home between 10 and 11.

Mrs. William A. Perrett of Russell street will spend the remainder of the summer at Old Orchard, Me.

Mrs. N. B. Richards and Mrs. Scott Simon, who are spending the summer at Groton Long Point, entertained a party of local ladies at a luncheon bridge recently.

The Luther League of the Swedish Lutheran church will have a lawn party Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Noren, of Washington street. The members will meet at the church at 8 o'clock and transportation will be provided to the Noren home.

RAISE LOCAL CHIEFS IN MEETING TONIGHT

Deputy Great Sachem Goodridge of Hartford Coming Here for Tonight's Session.

Deputy Great Sachem Harry R. Goodridge and his staff of Hartford will visit Mfantonah Tribe, No. 55, Independent Order of Red Men, tonight and will raise a group to the Chief's degree. The meeting will be called at 8 o'clock in Tinker hall.

Considerable business of importance is scheduled for tonight's gathering. The outing committee will report on its decision with regard to an outing of the tribe.

CIGARETTE MAKES MOST WORK FOR 'CHIEF BROOM'

One of the "chief brooms" of the town's street cleaning department is of the opinion that Manchester, as a cigarette smoking community, is developing. This opinion derives from his morning experiences in sweeping up along Main street. The litter now swept up results largely from cigarettes. In the little piles of litter swept along the curbing awaiting the arrival of the trucks there are always many crumpled cigarette packages and butts of cigarettes, but seldom is a cigar butt there.

Second in importance as a litter maker is the package that contained chewing gum.

We would like very much to reduce our stock this coming month but we cannot make as big a bluff as some can do; but I am sure we can give you just as good values and not spend so much to say it. Benson Furniture Co., Home of good bedding. We lead in low prices.—Adv.

FRESH CHLORINATION FOR POOL AT HOLLOW

Ninth District Committee Takes Added Step to Insure Purity of Water.

The Ninth District Committee in accordance with its policy of making the swimming pool at Globe Hollow as hygienic as modern sanitation is capable of is having Cheney Brothers' outside force install piping from the chlorinating house to a point in front of the bathing beach. This will bring freshly chlorinated water to the part of the pool used by the greatest number of bathers, and will go a long way toward making the pool, which has always stood high in tests, one of the cleanest public bathing pools in the state. The work of installation has been about completed by the Cheney men and within a few days the pipe will be in working order and will be in use for the remainder of the bathing season.

Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

AUTOMATIC SMILES Now and then there is to be found a business concern where they smile all the while—at the customers. It's a good bet that in such a place the boss darned seldom smiles at the clerks—unless there's a customer looking.

Pinehurst doesn't go in for that sort of thing. We don't want our folks to hate the customers or the customers to hate the clerks—and if there's anything well calculated to breed mutual detestation it is the compulsory, automatic smile. It's insincere and phony and everybody knows it, on both sides of the counter.

But Pinehurst isn't grouchy, either. We seem to develop, somehow, quite a bit of fellowship of sorts, with our customers—properly limited, of course, to the business in hand. Folks seem to like to come to this store—anyhow they don't come in reluctantly.

We suspect it's because Pinehurst has always taken a genuinely lively interest, not merely in getting the customer's cash into the till but in getting exactly what the customer wants into the customer's kitchen. We genuinely, sincerely, are pleased when the customer is pleased. Why wouldn't we be? A pleased customer comes again and again—sticks to Pinehurst because Pinehurst sticks to the customer and the customer's interest. It's a lot better way than sticking the customer.

And when the customer is pleased and we're pleased at pleasing the customer, there's no need at all of jabbing pins into clerks and whispering, "Smile, darn you!" You can keep up a pretty congenial atmosphere without faking it.

Right now we'll hazard the guess that every customer that comes into Pinehurst tonight or tomorrow and looks over the fish stock will feel sort of friendly—it's mighty good to look at; and will be better to eat.

It will pay you to cut the Napolin Coupon out of tonight's Hartford Times. Turn it in to Pinehurst, buy 2 rolls of Napolin for 25c and get 2 free.

EXPECT RECORD YEAR IN MAKING VOTERS

According to the registrars of voters, Robert Veitch and Louis Breen, there is an unusual interest being shown by young voters, or future voters, this year. Instead of the necessity of making a search of the town records to see who has reached their twenty-first birthday and getting in touch with them to be made voters, there are many who are calling up the registrars asking that their names be placed on the list to be made.

TELLS OF ACCIDENTS AND WARNS OTHERS

In hopes that other children would take it as a lesson and parents a warning, a Bigelow street woman telephoned the Herald today of an accident which she said occurred on Main street near Strant street at 7 o'clock last night.

It appears that Tracey Brown, a ten years old boy who lives at 41 Strant street, jumped off a moving Manchester Green trolley car before the motorman had time to stop the car. The boy fell flat on his face, bruising his arms and face.

The informant said the boy was apparently stunned for the moment. The accident happened so suddenly that approaching motorists almost struck him. The woman, who was on the sidewalk at the time, said she ran out into the street and barely stopped two automobiles in time to avoid a further accident. She declined to give her name.

These sizes are from five to eight dollars a ton cheaper than the usual furnace sizes.

The Electric Furnace-Man can be seen at our store where full particulars can be obtained. It can be bought on a convenient payment plan. Investigate now before you order your next season's supply of fuel.

East W. Anderson The Plumber Protects the Health of the Nation

In other cases they have made personal visits to the registrars and filed with one of them an application. There is always a number of names on the list, "to be made," who do not seem to be able to get around when the session is being held and go over for another year. This year the town of Manchester does not make voters in time for the October election but sessions are held in October when voters are slightly damaged in the lagging made. The registrars are both of the opinion that the number that will be made this year will surpass all other years.
