

HOOVER PLANS SIX SPEECHES FOR CAMPAIGN

Other Addresses of G. O. P.
Nominee Will Be Over the Radio From His Washington Home.

Stanford University, Calif., Aug. 6.—Herbert Hoover's personal campaign for the presidency, if he has his own way, will consist of six major speeches in as many sections of the country with occasional use of the radio to broadcast prepared addresses from Washington, it was learned here today.

The Republican nominee definitely rejected all proposals for barnstorming trips on which he would be expected to make a series of speeches. The nominee told his friends that such a campaign would lower the dignity of a presidential candidate and that he would not agree to it. This decision followed a similar one that he would participate no longer in "ballyhoo stunts," such as his friends sought to make out of his recent fishing trip to northern California.

Party leaders, however, will try to persuade Hoover to make a dozen speeches. They believe his personal appearance in that number of cities will be of greater service to the campaign than speeches broadcast from Washington.

Only Six Speeches
Hoover announced he would make but six speeches if he had his way. Two of them already have been fixed. In the first, he will accept the Republican nomination at ceremonies next Saturday. In the second he will discuss the farm problem before a crowd of farmers August 21 at his birthplace, West Branch, Iowa.

Then, he expects to return to Washington before accepting any further speaking engagements. Under present plans, he probably will speak in Boston, Chicago and either Detroit or a city in the border states. He will make his most important speech in New York City at the peak of the campaign. This will conclude his personal plan for campaigning, except for speaking over the radio from Washington, including a windup speech on the last night of the campaign.

His Statement
"I do not intend to make more than three or four speeches after getting back to Washington," he

REPUBLICANS OPEN CAMPAIGN IN EAST

Tammany to Be Soft Pedaled—To Follow Hoover's Constructive Ideas.

New York, Aug. 6.—The Republican campaign in the vital Atlantic seaboard states, including New York, will carry the battle to the enemy from the outset, it was determined by regional managers today as the huge new eastern headquarters were formally opened here.

Instead of waging a fight on the issue of Tammany, as in previous gubernatorial contests in which Gov. Alfred E. Smith figured as the Democratic standard bearer, the Republicans of this year will center their efforts upon "prosperity policies" of Coolidge-Hughes administration, the tariff, and Herbert Hoover's record in statesmanship and administration.

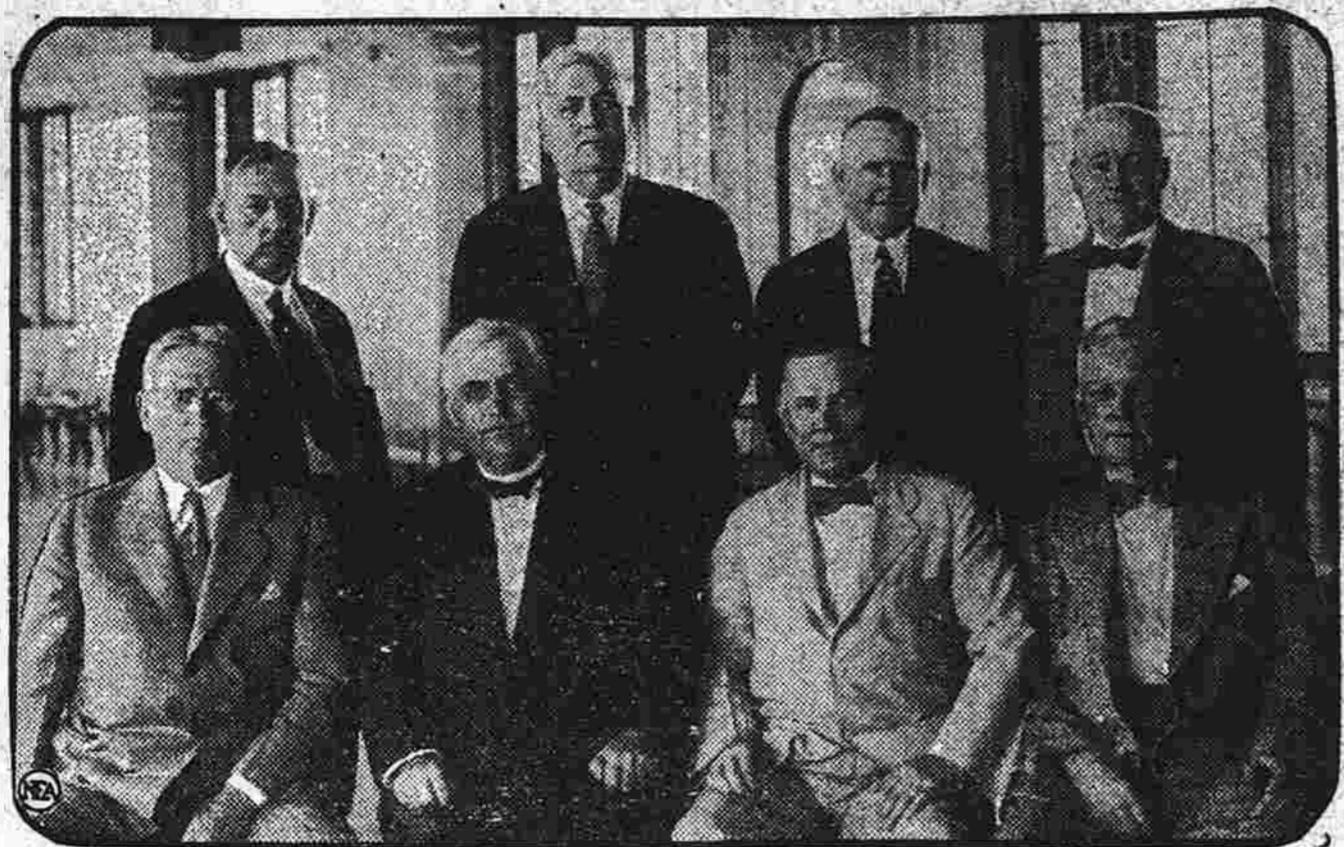

"The Smith forces must take the defensive in the east," said William A. Hill, New York manager for Hoover. "Our campaign will closely follow Hoover's own wish for a constructive appeal to reason rather than a thunder-and-lightning play for an emotional decision at the polls."

The national committee's eastern headquarters in the New York Tower is by far the largest and most elaborately equipped the G. O. P. ever has established for a regional operating base. Occupying the entire 29th floor, the various committee rooms cover an area of 7,500 square feet. Besides Hill's office, the headquarters will also house Rep. John Q. Tilson's Eastern Speakers' Bureau; the National Women's Headquarters, under Mrs. Charles S. Sabin, New York committee woman; Vice-Chairman Daniel E. Fomeroy of the national committee; and New York State headquarters, under National Committeeman Charles D. Hillis and State Chairman George K. Morris.

NINE PERSONS ARE KILLED IN ILLINOIS TRAIN CRASH

Big Iron Pipe Throws One Train Off Tracks Into Another Standing Near Scores Are Injured.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Eight bodies have been recovered from the wreck of two Illinois Central trains near Mounds, Ill., today, according to official advices received at the railway's offices here shortly before noon.

One more passenger is believed to have been killed.

The dead: L. A. Drennan, Mattoon, expressman. Mrs. "Bud" Snider, passenger, West Orange, N. J. Joseph Zdenek, passenger, West Orange, N. J. Two unidentified women passengers. Three unidentified men passengers.

Cause of Crash
Railway officials said a cast iron water pipe, 20 feet long and two feet thick, rolled from a loaded flat car and caused the wreck, striking the southward track, which went out of line just as the New Orleans Limited was passing. The New Orleans train engine and ten cars were derailed, officials said.

The derailed cars of the New Orleans Limited crashed into the side of the cars of the Chickasaw Limited, which was standing on the tracks at the spur. Seven of the Chickasaw's cars were knocked off the track.

Nine passengers were reported killed in the New Orleans Limited cars, while more than a score of passengers in the two trains were injured.

Railway officials said the accident happened at 3:10 a. m. Right trains with coctors and nurses

FEW PICKETS ON DUTY IN NEW BEDFORD NOW

Only One Mill Guarded as Strike Enters Its Seventeenth Week.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 6.—With only a small line of pickets at the Whitman mill and none at the other 55 mill units, the strike of 27,000 textile workers in protest to a ten per cent wage cut, entered the seventeenth week quietly today.

Secretary W. E. G. Batty of the Textile Council, said that the strike committee of the council would attend the opening of the investigation into the continuance of the strike, scheduled to start Wednesday, under the auspices of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

With the release on bail from jail of leaders of the textile mills committee, the so-called Radical wing of the strike, police feared another outbreak of wholesale picketing and were prepared to mobilize 300 regular and special officers but there was no sign of them.

Authorities have ruled that only single pickets can patrol each of the mill gates and the American Civil Liberties Union, taking up the cause of the strike pickets and their sympathizers, have announced that picketing is not a crime in Massachusetts and that civil and criminal cases will be brought against police interfering with peaceful picketing.

BOY IS KILLED BY THIRD RAIL

Falls from Steps of Train But Holds on to Other Boy's Legs.

New York, Aug. 6.—Lying in a hospital with a fractured leg, John Walker, 17, gave thanks today for the strength in his arms which saved him from being dragged from a Long Island railroad train to death on the third rail with a companion last night.

Sweltering from the heat inside, Walker and Bernard Mele, 15, perched on the steps between cars. Mele slipped off and screaming, grabbed Walker's leg. Before falling on the third rail, Mele was dragged fifty feet along the top of a picket fence, knocking the tops off eighteen pickets and breaking every bone in his body. By a superhuman effort, Walker managed to hold on to the door of the car despite the desperate tugging of the agonized victim.

Seven members of the narcotic squad divided into two groups, made quick cleanups in the two places and accomplished their work by silencing the lookouts.

Nine lamps for "cooking" a large assortment of pipes, many pill rollers, other paraphernalia and large quantities of opium were found in the two places.

According to Captain George W. Patterson, head of the narcotic division of police headquarters, the opium "lay-out" was the largest he had seen in 40 years.

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 6.—Leo P. Kelly, 29, employed in a local meat market, was under arrest today in connection with the fiendish slaying of Mrs. Myrtle L. Mellus, prominent Los Angeles society and city woman.

The victim's nude body was found in her palatial South Rimpau Boulevard home late yesterday by her husband, Frank Mellus, wealthy business man, upon his return home from a fishing trip.

Less than an hour after Mrs. Mellus' body was found, Kelly, the suspected killer, was captured in a clothes closet in the Mellus home. He is being held at Wilshire police station under heavy guard as a precaution against mob violence.

Information filtering into the headquarters, both confidential and otherwise, have served to lend an optimistic tint to all discussions concerning the trend of the 4,822-$56 voters who supported La Follette.

The commanding position assumed by Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who was designated the unofficial dean of the "Western Bloc" in the Senate last winter, in the councils of the Republican party is declared to be one potent factor in the situation.

Another hopeful factor is that a majority of the Senators of the "Progressive Bloc" are ardent drys and the western states which they represent have consistently approved the aridity of the 18th Amendment.

To Aid Hoover
Senators Frazier and Nye of North Dakota, according to information reaching headquarters, have both declared that they will support Herbert Hoover and the Republican ticket. What they have declared that he was not their first choice and fought him before the convention they are said to feel called upon to support him now.

Frazier is a candidate for re-election and went on the Republican ticket in the primary by a narrow margin. Regular Republicans in his state now are urging support for him as well as a mixed ticket of Frazier's faction and opponents.

Senator Howell of Nebraska, another of the Progressive group, has conferred with officials at Republican headquarters and it is understood that when he returns to Ne-

SMITH IS BACK TO WORK AFTER HIS VACATION

Reviews State Guard Camp and Drives Through Heavy Storm to Albany; Works on Speech.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Governor Al Smith returned to the executive mansion shortly before 1 o'clock this morning after an absence of nine days. After disposing of some state business the governor plans to settle down to work on the final draft of the speech he will deliver on the steps of the State Capitol on August 22, when he formally accepts the presidential nomination.

During the latter part of the week the governor expects George N. Peek, of Moline, Ill., spokesman for a million farmers of the middle west, who last week announced he would support the Democratic ticket because of Smith's stand on farm relief, is expected at the Capitol within the next ten days. It is understood the governor desires to have another talk with Peek before he finishes that part of his acceptance speech in which he will deal with the farm problem.

In Heavy Rain
In a heavy rain and electrical storm, the governor motored during the night from the State Guard camp at Peekskill to the executive mansion. While crossing the Bear Mountain bridge the governor's car scraped fenders with a machine operated by a woman.

Several times during the trip up the west side of the Hudson the governor's car was forced to come to a stop because other machines had skidded into the ditch. This prompted the governor to caution his chauffeur to take it easy.

The governor and Mrs. Smith and members of their family left New York yesterday morning on the yacht owned by W. H. Todd. They arrived at Camp Smith near Peekskill shortly after 3 o'clock.

After reviewing the old 69th and the 14th Regiments, the governor and his party had dinner with Gen. William N. Haskell.

Friends Worried
Soon after the governor left the camp at 8 o'clock a severe electrical storm swept the Hudson valley. The governor had expected to arrive here before midnight and when he failed to appear attaches at the mansion became worried and made several telephone calls to towns along the west side of the Hudson.

Tired from his long trip, the governor finally reached the mansion shortly before 1 o'clock.

"I'll have to rest up now from my brief vacation," the governor said as he alighted from his car at the mansion.

Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, who has charge of the publicity for the Democratic national committee and has long been a close adviser of the governor, returned to Albany with the Smith party. It is understood she will assist the governor in the work of whipping his acceptance speech into final form.

As convincing as Borg's victory was, Miss Norellus made hers even more so. She led from the very outset, thrashing a trail so keen that no other Miss in the field had the temerity to follow it, except at a respectful distance.

Miss Kim remained in second place nearly all the way, closely followed by Miss Braun, Holland. The Hollander's sprint was too much for the tiring girl from Homestead, who fell back into third place and was four feet behind Miss Braun at the end.

POLISH FLYERS SAVED BY GERMAN STEAMSHIP

No Big Campaign Fund For Anti-Saloon Men

Washington, Aug. 6.—The national campaign fund which the Anti-Saloon League will spend in an effort to defeat Al Smith has been greatly exaggerated, according to E. B. Dunford, general counsel for the league.

"Reports have been circulated that our campaign fund will reach $2,000,000. These reports have no foundation in fact and the fund will not approach that figure," he said.

The fund will be obtained by soliciting contributions from "people interested in protecting the Eighteenth Amendment," Dunford declared.

The league's national campaign will be directed by a campaign committee, which will be appointed by the executive council. Each state organization is expected to take care of its own fight but the central organization will be active in "doubtful" states.

The executive council is expected to meet about the middle of August probably in a mid-western city, to appoint the committee.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., sponsor of the defeatist Democratic movement in the south and of the anti-Smith meeting at Asheville, N. C., probably will be a committee member, as he has been in former campaigns. Ernest H. Cherrington, director of publicity for the league, and Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of Detroit, are also expected to be appointed.

AMERICAN GIRL WINS IN SWIMMING RACE

But American Men Lose to Sweden in Big Pool—Girl Beats Gertrude Ederle's Record.

Olympic Swimming Stadium, Amsterdam, Aug. 6.—America's swimmers won and lost in two final races staged in connection with the Olympic games today, Miss Martha Norellus, New York, romping off with the 400-metre final for women with Miss Josephine McKim, Homestead, Pa., in third place, while Arne Borg, Sweden, took the men's 1500-metre race in a new Olympic record of 19:51.45.

Miss Norellus went the Swedish better by setting a new world's record of 5:42.45 for the 400-metre distance, beating the mark she established in the heats by three seconds and the record, credited to Gertrude Ederle, by 10.25 seconds.

The best of the Americans, Clarence Crabbe, Monoklu, and Ray Ruddy, New York, could do against Borg's performance as third and fourth respectively. The old record holder, "Boy" Charlton, Australia, was second, about ten metres behind the winner. Crabbe was a full length of the tank, or fifty metres, back of Borg and, in turn, beat off his countryman, Ruddy, by a length of the pool. Zorilla, Argentina, and Ault, Canada, were distant fifth and sixth respectively. Charlton's old record was 20:06.2-5, but, in spite of Borg's dazzling effort, his didn't even threaten his own world's record of 19:07.1-5.

Girls' Victory
As convincing as Borg's victory was, Miss Norellus made hers even more so. She led from the very outset, thrashing a trail so keen that no other Miss in the field had the temerity to follow it, except at a respectful distance.

Forced to Turn Back After Passing Azores by Mechanical Trouble—Taken to Spain Where They Plan to Return to Paris; Capt Courtney to Arrive in New York Today.

Three more trans-Atlantic flights attempted have ended in failure although the misadventures did not cost any loss in life.

Captain Frank T. Courtney and three companions who hoped of at Horta, Azores, in an effort to fly to Newfoundland, were due at New York between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon on board the steamship Minnewaska, which picked them up at sea.

The Polish aviators, Major Loui Idzikowski and Casimir Kubala, who were forced down in mid-Atlantic after hopping off at Le Bourget field on Saturday morning were picked up by the German steamship Samos and landed in Portugal. Their machine developed mechanical trouble when off Cape Finisterre and they dropped a note on the deck of the German ship asking it to stand by to pick them up.

The third proposed trans-Atlantic flight which ended in failure was that of Commander Ramon Franco and three companions who had hopped off at Cadiz, Spain, but who were forced down at Huelva, Spain.

Oporto, Portugal, Aug. 6.—The Polish fliers, Major Louis Idzikowski and Casimir Kubala, rested today preparatory to returning to Paris whence they started out a 12:49 a. m. (New York Daylight Time) on Friday with high hopes of spanning the Atlantic only to be forced to land on the ocean 21 hours later 80 miles south of Cape Finisterre, Spain.

Within less than an hour's flying of land, the fliers were forced down by a high bank of misting their plane the "Marraloi" (Ishukaki), was badly damaged, its wings breaking, but it remained afloat. Idzikowski and Kubala leaped into the sea and swam about until picked up by the German Steamer Samos, which sighted the plane almost immediately.

While boarding the Samos, Kubala slipped and fell, breaking his spectacles and injuring his right forearm. He was treated by a hospital here after the Samos had brought both fliers to a little port town near here. The Samos also towed in the remains of the plane.

To Return to Paris.
Tomorrow the aviators will return to Paris. Except for Kubala's slight injuries, they are near the worst for their near escape from death.

The fliers were sighted by ship three times on Friday during their flight. The first time they were sighted at 4:10 a. m. (New York Daylight) off France, lying dead in an unprojected course which was to have taken them over the Azores.

Then the Artec, a Norwegian ship, sighted them at 10:40 p. m. (New York Daylight Time) Friday, several hundred miles northwest of the Azores. This was the belief that they had abandoned their plan to follow the Azores route.

About two and a half hours later, the British steamship Amakura sighted their plane, still further northeast, with signs indicating that they were heading back for the European mainland. From then on until their forced landing at 12:45 p. m. (New York Daylight Time) Saturday, the plane was sighted.

Continued absence of reports of their whereabouts had resulted in fears for the safety of the fliers. It is not known whether they intentionally headed back for Europe because of mechanical trouble or lost their direction and decided to return after finding themselves off their course.

It is believed the Polish aviators covered sufficient distance to bring them about the entire way across the Atlantic if they had followed a true course.

Theirs was the second flight in a week to come to grief because of a broken fuel pipe. Like Captain Frank T. Courtney and his three companions, they were saved from a grim fate by the timely appearance of a steamship.

committee, will maintain separate headquarters in the Hotel Waldorf, but will work in close co-operation with the Salmon-Tower base.

Assurances from former Gov. Frank O. Lowden's summer estate at Alexandria Bay, N. Y., that he would not follow the lead of his close friend George N. Peek in supporting Gov. Smith, convinced Republican managers here today, they said, that Peek's endorsement of the Democratic candidate would have little effect in the agricultural sections.

They pointed to Lowden's refusal to follow Peek as evidence that Gov. Smith has not, in fact, promised unequivocal support of the equalization fee if elected. They also declared that Peek's refusal to declare his willingness to go into the heart of the corn belt and stump for Smith's election, signaled uncertainty as to what specific plan of farm relief might eventually be formulated by the Democratic candidate.

Peek, meanwhile, has declared that he will take no active part in the campaign.
NINE PERSONS KILLED IN ILLINOIS WRECK

were immediately dispatched to the scene of the wreck.

As soon as wrecking crews reached the disaster, a search of the wreckage was made for additional bodies. A check of the passenger lists revealed more than nine were missing. Eight of these were accounted for in bodies taken from the debris.

Sleepers and coaches of both trains were thrown on their sides. The New Orleans Limited was the most damaged, the cars located in the middle of the train received full impact of the crash against the Chickasaw.

DESCRIBES ACCIDENT
CAIRO, Ill., Aug. 6.—"There were two bumps and then pandemonium."

This was the way Sam Millstein, dealer in ladies' ready-to-wear at Jackson, Miss., described the wreck of two Illinois Central trains near Mounds, Ill., today. Millstein was en route from Chicago to his home in Jackson.

"There was a terrific jolt," Millstein told International News Service. "The jolt woke me up, then there came another bump that almost knocked me out of the car."

"We all realized immediately that something terrible had happened. We rushed out of the car. Two cars immediately ahead of the one I was on had turned over.

"I started digging into the cars to take out the injured and dead. The screams of men and women injured could be heard on all sides, and we worked frantically.

"Before the wrecker came, we had taken a few of the dead out of the wreckage. There were a number of injured that we had pulled out of the wreckage, waiting to be taken to hospitals. These injured were put on the relief train that came from Cairo and brought here.

"Those of us who were not injured, but merely badly shaken up, were brought here to be transferred to other trains.

"I believe there are several more who were put on the relief train that was impossible to tell until the wreckers can lift them off the ground."

GEORGE COLLETT'S DEATH RECALLS CRASH HERE

Famous Cycle Racer Once Badly Hurt in Spill on Manchester Track.

The death in Providence on Saturday of George Collett, champion bicycle rider of the world twenty years ago, recalls a race in Manchester, at which Collett was badly injured and at the time thought by a large audience to have been killed. He was the father of Glenn Collett, famous woman golfer.

Collett, Housmann and Rutz were all New Haven riders, twenty-five to thirty years ago. All were amateurs, and Collett was the best sprint man pushing a bicycle in the United States in those days. He was entered in a race at Woodland Park, the old trotting track on Woodland street, and riders from all other parts of the state were in the race. The preliminary heats had been run off and the finals were on.

The riders had made the first lap and as they turned the north turn coming down the home stretch, Collett jumped into the lead, with Housmann clinging to his rear wheel. With head down he started the jump. Just as they pulled into the straightaway Collett's front wheel struck a small stone. He lost his balance for only an instant but that was long enough, as Housmann, right upon him, could not stop. Collett flew into the air and landed on his shoulder and rolled over. Housmann was catapulted from his bicycle and he, too, landed on the track. Rutz made a quick turn, pulled around the wreck and finished first. Other riders, unable to turn in time ran into the two wrecked bicycles.

Collett was unconscious. There was a bad cut on his head and blood covered his face. He was hurried to Depot Square in a carriage and attended by a doctor. His shoulder was broken and for several weeks afterward he was out of the racing game.

The race was one of the last at Woodland Park and the meeting was one of the last to be held in Manchester.

SPRINGS A BIG BILL, CALLS COP FOR CHANGE
A young man who gave his name as Carl Rylander and his address as 36 Strat street, this town, gave a Hartford restaurant waiter the surprise of his life last night. Rylander asked the restaurant man to bring a bill for him and the waiter agreed to do so. He handed Rylander ten single dollar bills.

Rylander insisted that he had given the counter-man a $100 bill. The restaurant man laughed at the idea and told Rylander to run along. This the young fellow did, but he soon ran back with a policeman in tow. The cash register was examined and sure enough, there was Rylander's $100 bill.

The restaurant man admitted that he had examined the bill very closely when he accepted it. Rylander does not live here, but has just recently completed a three year term in the U. S. Navy and gave the address of an aunt here because he has no other home.

DR. LYELL RADER'S SON KILLED BY LIGHTNING
Paul Rader, son of Dr. Lyell Rader, celebrated Salvation Army evangelist and leading chemist, who has frequently visited Manchester, was killed by lightning at Lake Massapoag, Sharon, Mass., yesterday.

Paul Rader was a captain in the Salvation Army and attached to a fresh air camp operated by the Army at Sharon. He was engaged in bringing ashore a number of children who had been bathing in the lake when one of the widespread New England thunder storms of yesterday broke. He had gathered a lot of the little folks on a bathing raft and was loading them into a boat when the bolt fell. Captain Rader was the only person killed, though a camp helper, Fred Gamish, was affected by the lightning stroke. He is expected to recover.

Captain Rader leaves a wife and one young son.

AMERICAN GIRL WINS OLYMPIC SWIMMING RACE
Miss Norell finished the race and pulled herself breathily out of the tank, apparently unwearied by her record effort. The American fans set up a great clamor over the performance and, raising the radiant girl on their shoulders, paraded with her to the competitors' exit. Like the triumphant athletes of old, she was presented with three bouquets of flowers as they carried her out.

The remaining three places in the race went to Miss Stewart, England, and Miss Vandergoes, South Africa, and Miss Tanner, England, finishing in that order.

A blazing sun beat down on the uncovered stands and made matters very uncomfortable for the capacity crowd. The latter, in the main, were of a demonstrative order. Miss Norell's claim coming largely from the American sections.

Borg, like the petite New York girl, never left his supremacy in the slightest doubt. He jumped into the lead at the start and never relinquished the pace, churning up a terrific foam with his thrashing arms and feet. He was "caught" by unofficial timers at 400 metres in 4:53, some 2-5 seconds better than his record.

Johnny Weissmuller's Olympic record for the distance, however, unofficial watches will be unofficial watches.

TELLS REAL REASON FOR TEXTILE STRIKE
Salem, Mass., Aug. 6.—"Vicarious persecution" was the term applied to the New Bedford textile strike by Francis J. Gorman representing President F. McMahon, of the United Textile Workers' Union, in an address given at the opening of the annual convention of the state branch, American Federation of Labor.

The speaker told the 250 delegates the real reason for the New Bedford strike was not the ten per cent wage reduction but the defeat in the Legislature of the bill which would have allowed women to work in the mills until ten o'clock at night.

"The ten per cent wage cut issue," he said, "was a pure fake inasmuch as in the past ten years 27 corporations controlling 58 New Bedford mills paid in dividends a sum totaling the car" "action of all the mill property and have in reserve that amount again."

The speaker described the textile industry as being in a "terrible condition" through the alleged action of the manufacturers in "taking blood and leaving only water" from the mills.

CONTRAST At one especial point is there a particularly marked contrast between the positions of the Republican and Democratic parties in the present campaign.

While the appeal of the Democratic party is nominally to so-called liberalism and anti-prohibition sentiment all over the country its actual dependence in this contest is on Tammany Hall.

Against this bleak shadow is the startling contrast of soundly Republican newspapers in the mid-West, devoted to the support of Herbert Hoover, boldly repudiating corresponding influences that have attached themselves in the past to the party organization.

In Ohio, in Indiana, in Illinois, and doubtless in other states, says the Chicago Tribune, sturdy Hoover advocate, "there are forces which represent not Republicanism as Hoover would make it effective, but the opportunity for personal power and profit in Ohio, the Ohio gang; in Indiana the discredited combination of bigotry and hypocrisy which has misgoverned that state; in Illinois, Small-Thompsonism."

INTERFERING On an August Saturday night there would appear to be good reason why the highway patrol maintained by the State Police should be as effective as possible. It is submitted that the dangers of the road always resulting from the week-end admixture of alcohol and gasoline are better met by watchfulness for reckless drivers through the entire state than by attempting to cut off the supply of alcohol in one town in a rather remote corner of the commonwealth.

JUDGES AND JUDGES Connecticut is no simple village maiden with her finger in her mouth, in the sisterhood of states. She is not without a reasonable degree of sophistication and worldly wisdom. Her people know other words besides prunes and prism, and are not much more shocked than other populations by the current varieties of modernism.

CHICAGO WILL STOP OVERLOADING TRUCKS TO PREVENT ILLNESS Chicago. — Noisy trucks, that batter along over the pavements with a racket and din that grates on the ears and nerves of the public may be the direct cause of many nervous breakdowns and much sickness.

Chicago is not overwhelmingly shocked at the spectacle of one of her judges being accused as a sordid and habitual criminal.

Chicago is not overwhelmingly shocked at the spectacle of one of her judges being accused as a sordid and habitual criminal. The whole state of Connecticut would throw a perfectly desperate fit if any such situation should develop here.

Our courts are clean and our judges are honorable men. So long as such a condition continues we are firmly buttressed against any such descent into the mire of infamy as has been made by Chicago.

Fred Stone is one of those rather rare persons whose lives seem to be worth more in the esteem of the aggregate of humanity than of their possessors themselves.

It has been the privilege of this remarkable stage performer to delight untold thousands of theatre-goers of two generations.

And of his life and health Fred Stone has taken that reasonable care, safe in this one matter. His habits have been exemplary.

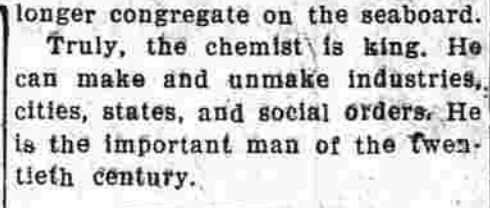

Apparatus that a few years ago was utilized for measuring the noise of elevated trains will be used to measure the clatter of overloaded trucks, the commissioner said.

Another Milestone! The process of seeing requires an almost unbelievable amount of energy. It is estimated that about one-fifth of our nervous energy is spent in this manner.

There are, if you care for glimpses of humanity, the interesting contrasts in the vast throngs of women to be found in the 49 seats.

Here, if you keep your eyes open, you can see Mrs. Vincent Astor or Dottie Twinkletons, of the chorus, or Lya de Putti, the movie star.

There is the Flamingo, with two cronies, and there is Hubert Goldberg, the cartoonist, in a suit of fawnish gray.

There is the ghost of his father, and there is Mrs. Roosevelt who, for some reason or other, doesn't look as though she would feel very comfortable at a prize fight.

There is Ina Claire, the petite actress, and there are three stout women who look like Mae West's interpretation of Diamond Lil.

There is in the background, a semi-circular amphitheater, which would seem a black, unoccupied mass of space, but for the barely escaping disaster at a dozen intermittent play of lights and the intermittent shouts from the gallery.

Just outside the fence "the rackets" work overtime. All the pitchmen in the world seem to suddenly have gone into convulsion.

Just outside the gates the elevated station stairways branch into a vast moving "Y" of human bodies.

Just outside the gate, and spilling over into cross streets for half a mile, 5000 taxicabs and private cars wait, while more arrive each moment, adding to the confusion.

HEALTH AND DIET ADVICE

Dr. Frank McCoy's "The Fast Way to Health" questions in regard to health & diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

AVOID EYE TROUBLE

The process of seeing requires an almost unbelievable amount of energy. It is estimated that about one-fifth of our nervous energy is spent in this manner. You can readily understand that where there is a definite defect in the vision, this strain may be greatly increased.

Answer: A good fast for a week or ten days will stop the acidosis which is causing the destruction of the coloring matter in your skin. Then, living on a good diet will keep you from having any more of these white spots form. Sometimes, if the spots are not too large, they can be successfully treated with radiations from the ultra-violet light, and the skin pigment will at least partially return.

WASHINGTON LETTER

PUBLISHERS DO THEIR BIT TO HELP US GET CAMPAIGN BACKGROUNDS

Washington, Aug. 6.—Every presidential year brings forth a number of books dealing with political phases and personages. The current political season offers an unusually worthy crop of reading matter for the campaign months.

No one has yet written a comprehensive history of American politics. The essentials are crammed into Dr. Edward Stanwood's "History of the Presidency," the standard work on nominations and elections up to 1918. While Stanwood's book is a gold mine of information and a book of immense value to students and other writers, some larger work yet to come will include volumes of additional detail.

The best accounts of the earliest days of our political parties to appear in recent years are "Jefferson and Hamilton" and "Party Battles of the Jackson Period," written by Claude Bowers, the Democratic keynoter at Houston. For the best attempt to connect the evolution and fortunes of our political parties with the physical, economic and cultural progress of the nation your correspondent suggests "The Rise of American Civilization," by Dr. Charles A. Beard.

Outstanding among political histories published in the last year are "The Republican Party," by Prof. William Starr Myers of Princeton and "The Democratic Party," by Frank H. Kent, political editor of the Baltimore Sun. One suspects that they are proving the most popular of the 1928 political books. Each is written from an obvious, though not offensive, partisan slant. Neither is a whitewash, except in spots. Both are easy and interesting reading and ought to appeal to the voter who wants to know more of the background of his party and the other party.

The Myers book is the more scholarly, representing much more research and presenting much more interesting detail. Kent's is sketchy but informative. His history of the Democrats, a party 60 or 70 years older than the G. O. P. is told in a simple, direct, and fact will appeal to many readers. And when Kent and Myers get into the clinches—as in their pro and con arguments over the Hayes-Tilden scandal and the Wilson administration—these journalistic appearances have it over the professor. Myers sometimes becomes a little naive, though he does not attempt to gloss the scandals of the Grant and other administrations. Kent's best chapters cover the Wilson period and the last eight years.

"Presidential Years, 1789-1860," by Meade Minnerode, is also interesting reading. There were those who shouted publicly that Washington and Hamilton were crooks and that Lincoln was a vile traitor, and they all have their innings in Minnerode's narrative, which is crammed with vivid and often illuminating quotations from contemporaries. It doesn't give an impartial picture, but is in tune with these iconoclastic days when we no longer believe that our earlier presidents were guided by divine hand. Minnerode does especially well in his sections covering the Clay-Adams election scandal in 1824, the Sing Sing prison of 1840, the first dark horse—Polk—and the Democratic spirit of 1860.

All good Republicans and bolting southern Democrats will enjoy "Tammany Hall," by M. R. Werner. Pro-Smith Democrats will not. They will have to console themselves with the thought that Werner brought his history only to the death of Charles F. Murphy in 1924 and that the book costs five dollars, which restricts its sale. "Tammany Hall" represents a vast amount of research and documentation. It doesn't leave much of Governor Smith's argument that Tammany must be good because it's so old; it attributes a ruthless historical indictment. It is so merciless, in fact, that Werner has been charged with more or less purposely writing a Republican campaign document and with piling on Tammany not only its own innumerable sins but those of its enemies in New York politics.

BRITAIN CLAIMS RICHEST WOMEN IN WHOLE WORLD

London.—Although America is supposed to be prodigiously rich and great Britain "new poor" as a result of the war, the tight little island challenges the U. S. A. in one point—that of the richest women in the world.

This has been brought strongly into the foreground over here by the recent death of Sir David Yule, who made his money in shipping, banking and merchandising in India. It was known Sir David was wealthy, but few knew his fortune attained the magnificent proportions of $100,000,000.

The demise of Sir David Yule ultimately will make of his only child, Miss Gladys Yule, the richest woman in Great Britain. She will worry along with about $90,000,000. Like her father, she has been little mentioned in the newspapers. Living quietly in the country, she has been an out-of-doors girl, much given to hunting and riding.

Real Business Genius
The most prominent rich woman in Great Britain is the Viscountess Rhoonda. She inherited her fortune from her father, the first Viscount Rhoonda, and since has added to it. She has never gone in for society. All her life she has been a business woman. When her father was alive, realizing she would be his heir, he trained her in all the intricate machinery of his vast steel and coal interests. She was his inseparable companion. Today she is director of the Anglo-Argentine Coal Company, the Cambrian Collieries, the Globe Printing and Publishing Company, the Salutaris Water Company and over a dozen more. And she is no figurehead director. She maintains a big, perfectly equipped office and she keeps regular hours like any man of big business.

Lady Rhoonda's only other important interests are politics, especially as it applies to women's affairs. She has led the fight to secure for women in their own right seats in the House of Lords, which up to now have been denied them. Through her paper, "Time and Tide," to which she frequently contributes, she has fought for all laws that will protect and help women and children.

Another interesting daughter of the aristocracy, who also is very rich in her own right, is the Baroness Scarsdale, who is half American. Her father was the late Lord Curzon, famous Viceroy of India and Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. Her mother was Marie Victoria Leiter, daughter of L. Z. Leiter, the wealthy grain operator of Chicago. The pretty Baroness inherited a large portion of the fortune her mother got from the Leiter estate. She is an active speaker on the stump and a fighter for equality between men and women, politically and every other way.

Lady Louise Mountbatten, wife of Lord Louis Mountbatten, a kinsman of the royal family, is one of England's greatest heiresses. Her grandfather, Sir Ernest Cassel, left her about twenty million dollars and a magnificent palace in Park Lane. She does not trouble her pretty head about business, but is one of the leaders in the younger sets of society. America knows her for her democracy, some of her favorites being Hollywood film stars, male and female. Her husband, a young officer in the British navy, shares his wife's tendencies to mix with people who are interesting. Her grandfather was the intimate friend and financial adviser of the late King Edward VII.

Another great heiress is Lady Robert Houston, whose husband a ship owner, left her a fortune of $30,000,000. They lived in the late of Jersey. Under laws dating back for centuries, inhabitants of this place are immune from British income taxes. The British treasury was prepared to contest this in the case of Lady Houston. She voluntarily paid the treasury $1,500,000 death duties.

The Baroness Ludlow also is on the list of wealthy women. From her first husband, Sir James Werner, a South African diamond millionaire, she inherited ten million dollars, a beautiful house in Piccadilly and an almost priceless collection of jewels.

KEITH'S VACATION COMES AUG. 13-25

Local Store to Follow Annual Plan of Closing for Two Full Vacation Weeks

For the sixth consecutive year the G. E. Keith Furniture Company will shut down for its annual employees' vacation. The store will be closed from Monday, August 13 until Saturday, August 25. There will be no sales, deliveries, or collections, during that time.

Six years ago, this month, the G. E. Keith Furniture Company made a startling announcement that their entire store would close for two weeks in order that all employees might enjoy a real vacation. They felt that everyone should have a rest and did not like the idea of doing business short-handed in the summer sale season because they believed it impaired efficiency and the good service they desired to give.

Nowhere had this plan been tried in an establishment as large as Keith's, and the outcome was watched with considerable interest by the public and business houses as it constituted a bold attempt to meet a very common problem in a radical and novel manner. It did work out satisfactorily. Everyone had a great time, and was back on the job again with renewed energy and efficiency. It did mean, however, a considerable expense to the company, and a considerable amount of business and collections were lost. But taking everything into consideration Mr. Keith regarded it as successful and felt that it had the approval and co-operation of his customers.

Now when the closing date business will be lively and the Mid-Summer Clearance Sale will be continued with exceptional values in every department. Above all, remember the dates (13 to 25) when the entire store will be closed—no sales, no deliveries, no money will be taken in—when all the employees will have their annual vacation.

POLICE GET AUTO THIEF BEFORE ALARM IS SENT

Patrolman Wirtalla Catches Youthful Stealer of Hartford Machine Before Warning

Manchester police again displayed speedy action when Motorcycle Officer Rudolf Wirtalla picked up a man wanted in Hartford and had him at the Manchester police station before the Hartford police finished broadcasting a call that he was wanted.

At 9 o'clock Saturday night Officer Wirtalla was doing duty on Center street and his attention was attracted to the fast rate of speed that a Buick car was traveling. He gave chase and as he neared the corner of Linden and Center streets he drew alongside of the automobile and told the driver to stop.

The driver took one look at the officer, pulled his foot from the accelerator, opened the door and jumped. The car kept on going, took a turn to the left and crossed the street, going over the curbing between the Connecticut Company's office and the town property and came to a stop on the lawn of the Municipal building.

Officer Wirtalla did not stop to see what the car was doing, but realized that the driver of the car had a reason for jumping from the car. The driver of the car started to run. Officer Wirtalla went after him and after a chase that took him as far as Newman street he caught him.

The captured driver returned to the police station with the officer and was being questioned when the police typewriter began to click. The words "Hartford to All" made their appearance and the message that followed told of a Buick car being stolen from Washington street, Hartford. The registration number was given and it was seen that it was the same number on the car that the driver had jumped from. Hartford was notified that their man and the car were both in Manchester. The driver, who proved to be William Pratt, 17 years of age, of Brockton, had been visiting in Hartford. He was looking for work and had been living with a sister. Not being able to get work he stole the car and was on his way to Brockton when stopped by Officer Wirtalla. He denied that he had stolen the car and was much put out when accused of it, but he was held by the local police until yesterday morning. Hartford sent a man for him and he was taken back to the city for trial this morning.

"DEAD" MAN TELLS A SCORCHING TALE
Monaca, Pa.—A supposed dead man cut loose with some scorching language here recently when he found himself being carried to an undertaking establishment in a hearse. The "body" was found on the Colona highway by state troopers, who called the undertaker. Suddenly a most eloquent line of profanity came from the interior of the car. Investigation revealed the corpse to be very much alive. He told the troopers that a trip had run him down.

On advice of the troopers Chief of Police Gilroy of Alliquipp arrested a suspect on a charge of driving while intoxicated and failing to stop and give assistance.

One-Minute Interviews

EARLY DIAGNOSIS WILL DECREASE CANCER TOLL

"Careful, yearly examinations of women over 35 years of age would save thousands from death from cancer," declared Mrs. Robert G. Mead, honorary president of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

"In early diagnosis lies the hope of cure, cancer experts tell us," Mrs. Mead said.

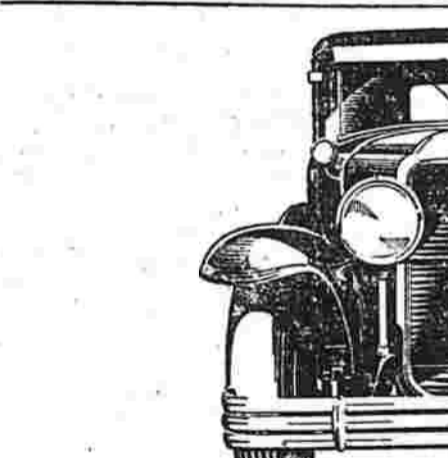

"The early stages of the disease is local and therefore curable. If caught in the very beginning, a cancer is apt to be nothing more than a local boil which, if adequately treated, could be stopped from developing into the cancer that brings death."

"Educational work is needed, just because cancer can be avoided if caught. In its late stages it is incurable, so far."

"Our organization does not want to scare women. It merely wants to educate them to realize the useless waste there is from cancer that could be avoided. Cancer is rare in children. Its ravages come among women over 35. One of every seven deaths after 35 among women is from cancer. If every woman would make a resolution on her 35th birthday to have a thorough yearly examination and proper treatment, when it is needed, the terrible toll of cancer would be lessened perceptibly and thousands of lives would be saved."

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BERTIE LOU WARD marries ROD BRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. The latter amused herself by telling their friends that she was Rod's first love, and continues to make life miserable for the bride until she meets a rich MR. LOREE and marries him. Then she asks Bertie Lou to forget the past.

Trying to keep up socially with wealthy friends plunges the Bryers in debt and Rod becomes depressed. Lila seizes her chance to persuade him to accept a higher salary from Loree.

Shortly after, she asks Rod to put some jewels in the safe during her husband's absence. The jewels disappear, and Rod wants to notify the police but Lila insists that they keep the matter secret, notating out that suspicion against him might spoil his career. Bertie Lou finds out that he has been seeing Lila secretly and is heartbroken.

She is called home to her sick mother, and has to catch a train without seeing Rod. The separation added to Lila's plotting, causes a coldness to spring up between them.

Bertie Lou returns on the eve of her first anniversary and finds Rod apparently indifferent. Each expects the other to make advances.

Rod goes to the Lorees without her, and Bertie Lou goes out with MARCO PALMER to retaliate. Coming home, Marco kisses her unexpectedly at the door and she sees it. He offers Bertie Lou a divorce, and she counters with the same offer to him.

They finally agree to make a go of it, but Rod cuts down on extravagance and Bertie Lou thinks he is spending the money on Lila, so she goes out more and more with Marco.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXII

Bertie Lou had left her room door open. On the bed was the half-filled suitcase into which she was throwing silken garments and toilet articles indiscriminately.

Rod was struck by her hasty carelessness. Bertie Lou had always been fastidiously neat. Now he saw with surprise that her room was disordered and untidy.

He could not understand it. The rest of the apartment was as clean and orderly as ever. Bertie Lou could have told him of aching weariness and tired flesh that rebelled under the lash of a painful spirit; of mopping up floors at odd hours, while her head ached pitifully and her fingers trembled over the soap suds.

She could have told him of a complete lack of strength to carry her industry into her own room. The first time she failed to move the bed and sweep under it she felt guilty. Next it was the dresser that was left undisturbed. Presently only the places that showed were swept and polished. And finally, any hour of the day or night would have found the foot of the bed and the two chairs decorated with a garment or two.

Bertie Lou used her room almost exclusively for changing her clothes. Now and then she snatched a few fitful hours of sleep—just barely enough to keep her going. Her splendid young constitution carried her through, though anyone who loved her would have been pained to see the hollow cheeks and the feverish restlessness of her eyes. They seemed fairly to glitter.

She looked up and saw Rod's gaze bent questioning upon her. "Hello," she said, and negligently tossed a pair of painted slippers into a suitcase. "You're home early."

Rod indicated her packing with a gesture. "Planning another trip home?" he asked, and he spoke casually. Bertie Lou rolled up her negligee and threw it on top of the slippers before answering.

"Nope; just a little squall out at the Palmer place," she said jauntily. "Got something interesting on for your own weekend," she added conversationally.

"The Lorees have asked me up to the Birches," Rod replied stiffly.

Bertie Lou glanced over her shoulder. "Going?" she asked indifferently.

"I haven't decided," Rod answered. "You don't happen to know if the tailor returned my dress suit, do you?"

"I hung it in your closet," Bertie Lou said pleasantly. "Would you like a gardenia? I've some beauties. They're in the refrigerator keeping fresh."

"Thanks," Rod returned, and went about his dressing.

When Bertie Lou left she placed a lovely white bloom on the stand in the tiny entrance hall. Rod was putting on his collar and tie in the bathroom—the only dressing room he had. On the lower Bertie Lou had laid a kiss as lightly as a butterfly might rest on the waxy petals, but far more lingeringly.

Rod overlooked the flower. His own departure was made in haste. Of all the infernal places to lose a collar button, under a bathrobe, eggs was the worst! He'd very nearly called to Bertie Lou to help him dig it out. But she was dressed to go. Down he went on his hands and knees and got dirt on his cuff reaching under the tub. That necessitated a change.

And Lila, he knew, would not be pleased if he were late. She was giving a dinner to an important man, a foreign banker whom Cyrus was desirous of honoring.

Rod barely arrived ahead of the rest of honor. Lila was inclined to be peevish because he hadn't come early, but she had little chance to scold. And Rod's frank admiration appeared her.

Lila had done her best. Her hair was bound with a jeweled fillet band in such a way as to make her bob look like a stately coiffeur. And her complexion was perfectly dazzling. She had used a lavender powder which turned her skin to a marvelous tone under the artificial light. Her full, round lips bunched like scarlet flowers beneath the stars in her eyes. Stars that were lighted for Rod.

Cyrus had presented her with some new jewels. But Rod noticed that she was wearing the copies of those that had been stolen, as well. A superb sapphire and diamond ornament hung on a slender chain around her neck and reposed on the blue-veined whiteness of her breast.

Having decided that a man of the world such as Cyrus described Monsieur Clavier to be would appreciate an original French gown, Lila had bought the lowest cut one she could find. Unfortunately, while Monsieur recognized it as French, he smiled inwardly at the naïvete of the American woman of good society who buys dresses designed for the French demi-monde.

But he allowed no hint of his amusement to show in his manner. Lila accepted with delight his kiss upon her hand, glancing at Rod over Monsieur's bowed head to call his attention to the Frenchman's courtly manner. She hoped Rod would see that she liked it. He did, and he smiled.

However, Lila made him happy very shortly. She must go in to dinner with Monsieur Clavier but she put Rod on her other side. And she graciously gave him as much attention as her guest of honor received.

It was not kindness that prompted her to do this. She really did not know that if another man had sat in the seat she gave him he'd have turned a jealous, and that it was his exquisite torture to him to be near her.

She wanted him close to please herself. Though at times she fairly hated him because he wouldn't see, or admit that he saw—she did not know which way it was that she was inviting him to make love to her.

He was offering more resistance than she had expected. At times she told herself that he could not be won. But she would not give up. Being Rod to her feet had become an obsession. She had developed a rancorous hatred of Bertie Lou—a hatred that drove her on.

To let Rod go without his having declared his passion would be to have the victor's crown to a girl who despised her. That Bertie Lou did despise her she knew by the way Rod was permitted to go his own way without interference. It was as though Bertie Lou had said to her: "If he wants you I don't want him; but let's see you get him."

It would have saved her pride considerably if Rod had told her how hard he tried to keep away from her; how many times he swore never to see her again, but how he was always lured back, to feast his eyes on her dazzling beauty, staking his honor on his power to resist his desire for her, to keep himself in hand and bear his longing in silence.

But tonight he realized, with sudden understanding of his own limitations, it was going to be harder than ever to keep from showing his true feelings. Lila was a bright light, a warm light, and Rod felt himself succumbing to a mothlike weakness. Outside of her radiance life was a void.

Lila detected a change in him when she turned quickly from an animated conversation with Monsieur Clavier and caught Rod's gaze unmasked. She lifted a glass of wine and smiled at him over it. Rod politely lifted his own glass but his hand trembled so that a few drops of champagne were spilled on the tablecloth. Lila, because he had such complete understanding of his emotions in her expression.

Looks are often more revealing than words. Rod read submission in the look Lila gave him over her glass. He knew that everything he had not said had been telegraphed to her in an instant. And her answer, returned to him in a flash, had set his blood on fire.

But before he drained his glass and put it down he had extinguished the flame of passion in the cold water of enunciation.

Her husband's voice—jolly old Cy—telling a Scotch joke—carried down to him. Rod looked at him, and the remainder of the evening wine and mentally gave Lila up even before she turned back to Monsieur Clavier, who was saying something that Rod did not quite grasp at first.

Neither did Lila, so concentrated were her thoughts upon the triumph she believed was hers. Monsieur repeated it. "I was wondering what a connoisseur had noticed those pearls so perfectly to your complexion, madam," he said.

Rod expected Lila to smile. Instead, a look of uneasiness spread over her countenance. "These are nothing, Monsieur," she said after a pause. She was thinking, furiously, that she wished he'd mind his own business. She could not declare before Cyrus that the pearls were imitations.

"On the contrary, if you will permit me to admire them, I would say they are very beautiful," Lila murmured nervously.

"That's gratitude," came laughingly from Cyrus, who had overheard the conversation. "But you ought to be pleased, my dear. Monsieur Clavier is one of the greatest judges of gems in France. At least that's what I've heard," he added, addressing Monsieur Clavier.

The guest of honor shrugged with deprecating modesty. "You exaggerate, monsieur," he said. "But pearls, they are my avocation,

I love them. And I have been admiring Madam's string with the almost unparadonable desire to handle them."

Lila shrunk away from him and a hand quickly to her throat. Her fingers touched the platinum chain of the sapphire pendant.

Rod, watching her with agonized sympathy, saw a desperate expression in her eyes. His heart stood still with apprehension. If Cyrus learned now that the pearls were imitations! Good Lord, why had he let her do this thing for him!

The next instant he breathed a sigh of relief. Lila had found a way out! And tomorrow he would tell Cyrus the truth and take the consequences.

Lila's fingers, sliding down the platinum chain, had curled convulsively round the pendant. In a flash she lifted it on an outspread palm. "If you really admire a flawless stone this sapphire ought to interest you," she said, and quickly lifted the chain from her neck.

Monsieur Clavier reached out to take the jewel. Cyrus protested. "I'd really like you to examine the pearls, Monsieur, if you will," he said. "I'd like your opinion on what waters they came from."

DOUBLE AND REDOUBLE.
 The only occasions in which the partner of the doubler may remain adamant and refuse to bid is when holding a hand that is so strong that the doubler must be set, as when holding over a suit bid of diamonds the following hand:

Spades X
 Hearts X X
 Diamonds K J 10 X X X X
 Clubs X X X

Or over a no trump bid when holding a strong hand as:

Spades Q J 10
 Hearts A J X
 Diamonds K J 10
 Clubs K 10 X X

A business double is made for the purpose of setting opponents. Its object is to collect penalties. It is generally inadvisable to make a business double unless you are reasonably certain of setting by two tricks. In determining the possible number of tricks you can make take the following facts into consideration:

1—If you hold a freak hand, your opponents may hold a freak distribution.

2—If you are blank in a suit, your opponents may have a preemptive bid you may not possibly make a defensive trick out of partner's hand.

3—If partner has made a jump assist, count the hand for a little defensive value.

4—If partner's hand is a danger signal for a couple.

5—If opponents may shift to another suit do not double unless you can double the new suit.

6—If partner has made a secondary bid, do not expect to find any defensive values in partner's hand.

7—If your opponents have a frame and your score is clear, it is more advisable to set by 200 points than to make the frame. If the score is frame-frame, bid for rubber unless you can set by 400 points.

Re-doubles may be either business or informative. A business re-double should seldom be made and then only if you are absolutely certain of your ground—certainly you are in the position to safety double any rescue bid that may be made by opponents. Re-doubling is to be discouraged as a rule.

The informative re-double is made on two occasions, illustrations thereof being as follows:

1—First hand bids no trump, second hand doubles. You as third hand, if holding a no-trumper, may re-double to inform partner of your strength.

2—First hand bids no trump, second and third hands pass. Fourth hand doubles. First hand re-doubles. This is an S. O. S. to declarer's partner of the great necessity of making a declaration.

GOAT GETS "ARMY'S" NANNY—FOR A WEEK.

New York.—It all began when Billy Goat was loaned to Company F 16th Infantry to supply atmosphere in the re-enactment of the Battle of Fleville on Governors Island. Billy was used to complete a scene in a French village.

Then Billy took French leave and the entire post was assigned to capture him. But Billy beat the army for a week before Corporal Quinn assembled his squad and announced "that goat has got my nanny and we're going to get him."

They finally cornered their goat under the island dock. Billy cried "Kamerad," and for punishment was tied to a captured German sarge gun until the return trip to his Staten Island owner.

OYSTER AND CLAM TAKE PLACE AMONG VITAMINS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The word with which dietitians and food experts conjure in these modern days is the vitamin. Already mothers are familiar at least with the importance of vitamin C, the scurvy-preventing vitamin that occurs in orange juice, tomato juice, and other fruit juices. Hardly a baby today but what has the great advantage of this vitamin in aiding its proper growth.

Another vitamin, more familiar to mothers, is vitamin-D, the rickets-preventing vitamin that is found in cod liver oil.

Then there is vitamin A, associated with some eye diseases and with general nutrition, found in butter, milk and cod liver oil, and vitamin B associated with some nervous disorders and with proper resistance to disease and with proper growth, found in whole wheat, yeast and in other substances.

Both physicians and dietitians are constantly searching for foods containing vitamins, since these substances are so important for life—and since the average human being lacks a varied dietary.

A particular delicacy since the beginning of time has been the shell-fish. Oysters and clams contain not only protein and sugar, but have now been found to be comparatively rich in their vitamin content. They vary, however, in this regard.

The oysters are rich in vitamin B, but neither the hard nor soft clams contain it in appreciable quantities. Vitamin A is also found in oysters in larger concentration than in clams. The clams, on the other hand, contain more vitamin D than do the oysters, but the oysters contain more vitamin C.

It is obvious from this discussion that both the oyster and the clam are valuable as parts of a well-balanced diet. Their vitamin content furnishes plenty of justification for eating shell-fish, even were it not for the fact that they, by most people, they are considered a rare delicacy.

YOUR CHILDREN
 by Olive Roberts Barton
 ©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Money training for children is more necessary now than it ever has been.

We have departed for good and all from the trade and barter system where money was necessary for some but not for all things.

Now we have left behind the good old days when butter and eggs were exchanged for coffee and sugar, and a day's work was rewarded by a cast-off suit or a pair of shoes.

We cannot go to the woods for our fuel or the spring for our water. Indeed we no longer get a free drink even out of the spigot.

What, then, can be more important than to teach growing boys and girls the value of money? Teach them the fundamentals of a savings bank on the mantel is a fine thing. It should have its regular diet of pennies and dimes slipped into its miserly mouth out of the week's allowance. But the teaching child's age and strength to earn the weekly allowance. Extra industry may be rewarded by extra earnings.

Have him take his pleasure and indulgences out of his weekly allowances, and be sure to make him keep within bounds. He even may be expected to pay his small obligations such as feed for his pet, or his little school supplies.

He will soon learn that money won't go very far; he will learn that if he wishes one treat he will have to do without another. A valuable lesson! He will learn how to do without many small things so that he may buy a big one. Another good lesson.

Their Own Money.

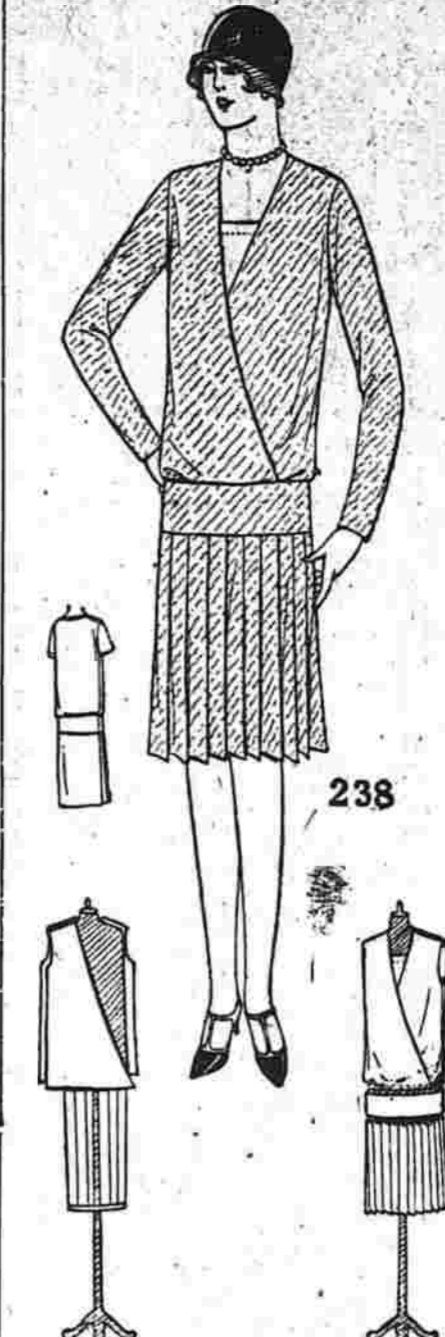

As to that savings bank: I should try to give it a pretty good character. Don't allow a boy or girl to feel that the nickels dropped into it are gone for good and the dinky torrent rolls on. I should have a little talk. Perhaps there are fifteen dollars when it is counted. I should draw on his imagination and picture a great future if he has a little money in the bank. For the contents of the little bank can be deposited in the big bank. Some day perhaps there will be enough to send him away to college or to start him in business.

As a result, the next year he may drop his nickels in more eagerly. An incentive to save is invaluable.

But in the meantime he should be learning how to handle money for himself.

Friendship is the wine of life.

The WOMAN'S DAY

A lady in violet chiffon created quite a ripple in a smart London restaurant the other day. Though London was scorching hot as never before, the lady in violet entered the restaurant with a muff of violet chiffon banded in soft gray fur. What's more, the lady had her hands in the muff.

The ripple was no less, though of a different sort, when the lady gave the "muff" to a waiter to refill with ice, there being a diminutive ice box within the chiffon and fur.

Folks will laugh at the different as much as at the nonsensical. They laughed themselves sick at the first umbrella, the first car, the first needle, the first auto and airplane and sewing machine, and when I was a child, our town laughed at some "queer people who ate these new-fangled things called grapefruit."

Some day, though, the ice "muff" for hot days may be as essential a bit of the wardrobe as coats in winter.

POOR BERTIE!
 "Ticked as you are with his chagrin and surprise, it's no wonder that Bert Campbell, the Australian aviator who advertised for a rich and beautiful American woman to sail across the Atlantic with him in his dirigible, is a bit confused by the lack of response. So are we. For rich and beautiful American women have indicated so little reluctance hitherto to utilize their wealth for thrills and notoriety and adventure that it's no wonder if Bert can't understand it. Maybe it's because Bert has never piloted a dirigible before.

BEATRICE AGAIN!
 Beatrice Albert, 19, of Signe, Wis., who offered her lily hand in marriage in return for $10,000 because of what she described as her "impoverished family," has enrolled $6,000 along with a 50-year-old Spanish war veteran.

But now Beatrice's family including her father and mother say; to wit, if Beatrice does this, they won't take a cent of her money; they'll never speak to her again; she'll lose all their respect.

Proving again that almost invariably these schemes of beautiful damsels are not for "impoverished families" entirely.

CONCERNING VIVES.
 A certain dealer in kitchenware who has sold such to brides for at least a half century says that 30 per cent. of wives are "ideal"; which means a man has three chances out of 10 of getting an ideal wife. He calls the ideal type, "the home-maker"; 20 per cent. "the can opener type"; he continues, 15 per cent. naggers, 20 per cent. drudges, and the remaining 15 per cent., the baby doll type.

The kitchenware dealer seems to forget that all husbands are no more alike than all wives are alike; that one man's meat is another man's poison, and that one man's "ideal wife" might be the most irritating object on earth to another; that any of the other "types" more appealing to some men than what he terms "the ideal type."

GARDEN DIRECTORS PANNING RICKARD Stockholders Worried Over Chain of Failures in Last Few Months.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Aug. 6.—Tex Rickard, the man who established the incident race in connection with his Tunney-Honey fight for giving until it hurt five miles away in Wall street, is sitting none too firmly in the saddle at Madison Square Garden, according to stentorian whippers on the backstairs to day.

McMahon May Go

Several members of his organization, including Jess McMahon, the matchmaker, and Col. John Hammond, in charge of hockey, also are declared to have incurred the wrath of some members of the directorate. In McMahon's case, there were rumors today that he might be supplanted by Leo P. Flynn. The latter once was matchmaker in everything but name of the old Garden further down town.

Child, Gentry

Rickard contrived last fall to plant these innocent men of the street who somehow couldn't be made to understand a deal whereby one of the principals got almost a million, another about a half million and a third principal, themselves, put up all the money, did all the work and received only about $400,000. That is, they childed him gently and told him not to let it happen again.

Meantime, they arranged to have John Chapman, a cold, practical business man, sit in on all further proceedings as vice president of the corporation. Of course, Rickard didn't actually name Chapman and he proved it by making the Tunney-Honey match.

As previously counseled, he didn't "let it happen again." No indeed. Instead of bringing home a comparatively minor profit, he produced a comparatively large loss; in fact, the largest in the history of boxing promotion.

The word now is that Rickard will continue to conceive his matches—with reservations. He will continue to do business with the boxers—with reservations—and he will talk for publication about actual reservations at all, as he is particularly apt to do when particularly asked about them. Chapman will be there to see that he doesn't talk any more directors out of any more money. If the steady hand of a conservator can help it.

STENGEL SINGING THE BLUES

Toledo, O., Aug. 6.—Casey Stengel, who manages the Toledo American Association club and who ranks as one of the most colorful players baseball has ever known, sees little to laugh about these days.

KIWANIS COUNSELLOR CAPTURES SENIOR EVENTS AT AQUATIC MEET

Those who defied the intense heat to watch the Water carnival from the banks of Globe Hollow Saturday afternoon were treated to some first class diving in addition to the scheduled program of racing events. The crowd was much smaller than the one which witnessed the last aquatic meet at Globe because of the weather. Nevertheless, there were several hundred spectators from the shore and many more in bathing.

Senior Events

Fifty yard free style: John Carik, Pittsburg, first; Red Sheridan, Manchester, second; Eddie Markley, Manchester, third.

Girls' Events

Fifty yard back stroke: Stella Arsen, first; Jean Bycholsky, second; and Mary Arsen, third.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Women don't seem to realize that a back fence isn't worth arguing over.

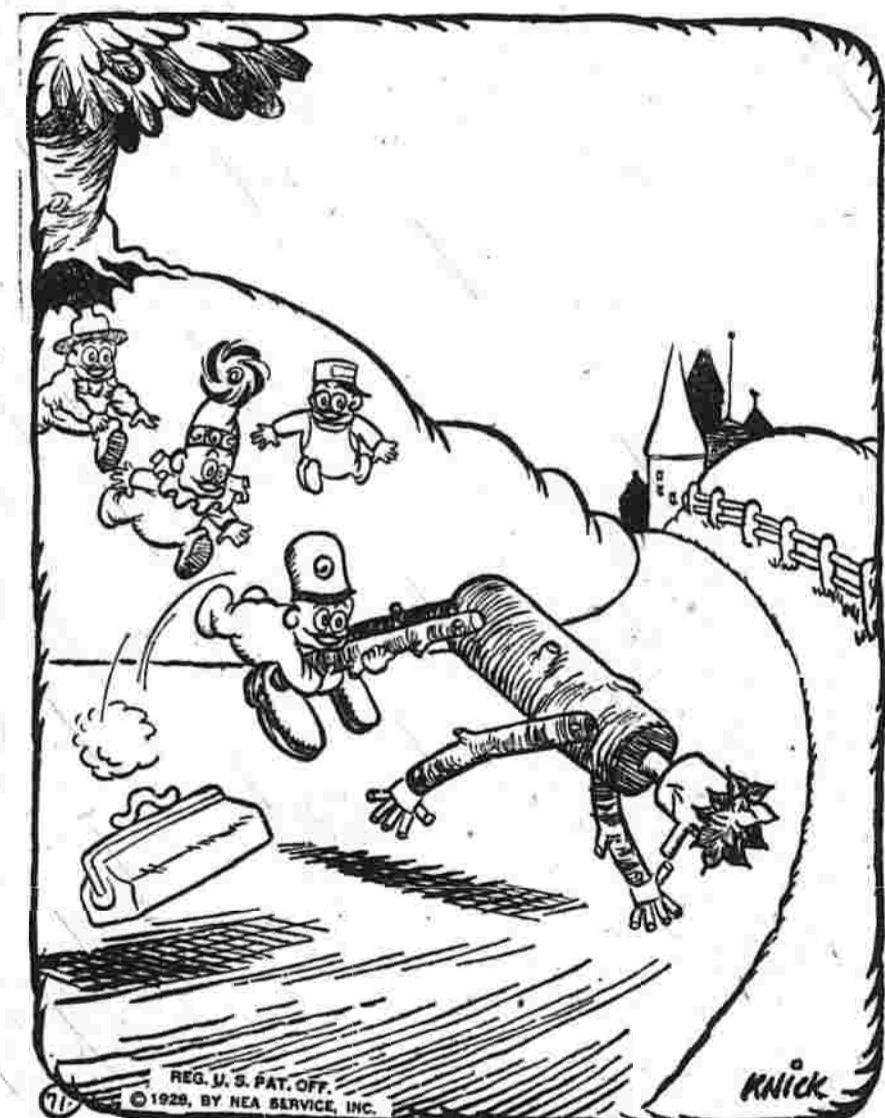

CALL THE COPS! Help! Help, police! Here we have a CROOK right on his way to a crime! In fact, he's just eight steps away. But don't get excited, it's just in letter golf. Perhaps you can beat the par solution on another page.

Letter golf grid with words CROOK and CRIME.

THE RULES 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

Evangelists rush in and get the seats where pastor's salaries lag behind. Aren't you glad you didn't answer all the knocks of "opportunity"?

THE THYMITES STORY BY MAL COCHRAN - PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The Thymites all ran real fast. "I wonder how long this will last," yelled Carpy, as they trailed behind the funny wooden man. "I'm tired enough to almost weep. This hill we're on is mighty steep. But, come on, let's keep running. We will catch him if we can." And so the bunch ran right along, all hoping that they would be strong enough to stay right stopped. There came a small turn in the hill, and Clowzy took a sudden spill. The other Thymites looked back and laughed loudly as he stopped. "Don't wait for me," poor Clowzy cried. "I'll soon be right up by your side." And then he scrambled to his feet and tried to pick up speed. He found this was a worthy hunch, 'cause he was shortly with the bunch. But then he felt real tired, and walked, "A rest is what I need."

SENSE and NONSENSE

A DOUBLED-EDGED POEM Dear Colym: The other day two members of the Bachelors Brotherhood were arguing on the meaning of the words "for better or worse," regarding it and the married life. They were both of the track, so for the benefit of the brotherhood I beg your kindness to print my view on the meaning of "for better or worse."

FOR BETTER When you are feeling awful blue Who is the one that comforts you? Your wife! When you are sad and feeling so bad Who is the one that makes you glad? Your wife! When you are hungry as a bear Who looks after your bill-of-fare? Your wife! When your work is dreary and long Who cheers you up with a gay little song? Your wife!

FOR WORSE When you are feeling awful blue Who is the one who bothers you? Your wife! When you are hungry as a bear Who'll surely spoil your bill-of-fare? Your wife! When you are sleepy and all in Who hits you with a rolling pin? Your wife! When things go wrong instead of right Who makes you feel gay and bright? Your wife! When you track mud on the floor Who is the one who starts to roar? Your wife! When you have cash in your pocket at night Who removes it before the morning light? Your wife! When baby cries and you walk the floor Who is the one who doth sleep and snore? Your wife!

It used to be that when a fellow went out for a good time he indulged in wine, women and song now it's alcohol, nurses and funeral march. A preacher may not be able to say all he wants to in thirty minutes but he's sure to say all the congregation wants to hear. An old woman looked out of a carriage window as the train drew into the station, and hailing a little boy said: "Little boy, are you good?" "Yes, ma'am," replied the boy. "Parents living?" "Yes, ma'am." "Go to Sunday School?" "Yes, ma'am." "Then I think I can trust you. Run with this penny and get me a bun, and remember, the angels see you."

John F. Barry of 203 Oak street was fined $100 and costs on a drunk driving charge when he appeared in the Manchester police court this morning as the result of an automobile accident early yesterday morning at Love Lane.

Barry was driving an automobile toward Manchester at 1:30 in the morning and collided with another operated by Abraham Burpee of Moosup, who was going in the opposite direction, accompanied by his son. Barry's car ran ninety feet after the crash and then broke through a fence, coming to a halt in a swamp. Both men escaped injury but Mrs. Burpee received a gash on her forehead that was treated at Memorial hospital.

Sergeant John Crockett investigated the accident and made the arrest. Barry pleaded guilty before Judge Raymond A. Johnson and the case was quickly disposed of, Sergeant Crockett being the only witness called. Barry had nothing to say in his own defense.

RAIN FAILS TO SPOIL JOINT ITALIAN OUTING

The joint outing of Giuseppe Mazzini Lodge, Sons of Italy, and Eleanor Duse Lodge, Daughters of Italy, was held at Liedertafel Grove, Rockville, yesterday and despite the showers in the afternoon, which broke up the scheduled sports, was declared by those attending a greater success than ever before.

Those attending made the trip to the Grove in private cars. Dinner was served at 1:15 o'clock and the last course was not completed till 3:30 o'clock. Speeches followed the dinner, with A. Pagani acting as toastmaster. The following made brief addresses: George Waddell, William S. Hyde, Captain S. J. Tobin, Dr. Mortimer Moriarty and Grand Venerable A. Russo of the Sons of Italy Grand Lodge of New Haven.

The sports scheduled to be run off after the dinner were somewhat broken up by the heavy showers. However, committeeman Joseph Barto arranged for target shooting, dancing and bocchi contests. Thirty-nine contestants entered the target shooting contest and on the first round Paul Correnti of Birch street and A. Bibbono of 303 Hillside avenue, Hartford, tied for first place with 18 points each. In the elimination match Bibbono scored 18 points to Correnti's 17, winning first place. The prize was five dollars in gold, Correnti won second prize, two dollars and a half in gold.

The dancing contests proved exceedingly popular to the younger element at the outing. Remo Della Ferra of Cottage street won the clog dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Pola won the Italian mazurka. Joseph Wilson of Spruce street and partner won the waltzing contest. The first prize in each of the dancing was two dollars and a half in gold.

The bocchi contest was won by Paul Correnti and P. Pagani. The prize was two dollars and a half in gold each.

The dance music was furnished by Kabrik's orchestra of Rockville. The committees of both lodges will meet at the home of Paul Correnti, Birch street tomorrow night.

LAWYER'S VACATION PUT OFF RADEVILLE'S CASE

Because Deputy Coroner Judge Michael D. O'Connell of Stafford Springs did not have time enough to review the evidence presented at the inquest held Friday into the death of the three boys burned to death a week ago last Friday in the accident on the Rockville-Talcottville road, the case against Joseph Radville, the driver of the truck, did not come up this morning in the Rockville City Court as scheduled.

Prosecuting Attorney Dennis J. McCarthy is to leave tomorrow on his vacation and as he will be absent for two weeks the case goes over until his return on August 20.

NO FISHING LICENSE BLANKS HERE TO SPARE

There has been an unusual demand for fishing licenses throughout the state this year, greater than ever before. The blanks which are furnished on which the town clerks issue their licenses have been exhausted and in a circular letter to the "own" clerks of the state a request is made that all surplus unused blanks be returned so that they can be sent to places where there is a shortage.

In the case of Manchester there are no blanks to return as Town Clerk Turbington is one of those who has applied for an additional number: Nine hundred blanks were furnished for the local office and with the exception of fewer than fifteen all have been used.

THE JEFFERS CASE Editor of The Herald: I note that in the article regarding the charge brought against my son, the fact was not mentioned that prior to the complaint lodged against him he personally complained to the police department. I think this fact should be brought out to show that he at least tried to avoid the difficulty. JOHN T. JEFFERS.

A Torrent of Soapy Water Kept Hot by The Cast-Aluminum Tub THE Maytag was the original gyrofoam washer, which makes water do the washing. But the Maytag does more than that—it keeps the water hot to expand the meshes of the clothes, loosen the dirt and aid the cleaning action of the soap and it keeps the soap thoroughly mixed with the water where it will do the most good.

The Cast-Aluminum Tub

These are some of the reasons why the Maytag washes faster—an entire washing in an hour or so; washes cleaner—collars, cuffs and grimy overalls without hand-rubbing; washes delicate garments hand carefully.

Wringing the clothes is easy with the marvelous New Maytag Soft-Roller Water Remover—another exclusive Maytag advantage. It is practically automatic in every operation.

Prove it—Phone for a Free Trial Washing There is no cost, no obligation. Test a Maytag, compare it in every way you can think of. If it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.
