

TUNNEY IN HIDING ON MAINE ISLAND

His Engagement Formally Announced by Miss Lauder's Mother.

South Bristol, Me., Aug. 9.—With guards patrolling the shores of St. John's Island and cut off from the mainland by water, Gene Tunney and "Polly" Lauder today were discussing their wedding plans in what was described as "a perfect love idyll."

The engagement of Tunney and Miss Mary Josephine Lauder having been formally announced by the girl's mother, Mrs. George Lauder, interest turned to the date of the wedding, a ceremony which will unite the former New York shipping clerk, who fought his way to the world's heavyweight championship and then relinquished the title, and the $50,000,000 heiress, member of a socially prominent and wealthy family. The wedding will take place "in New York in the late autumn or winter" was the only announcement.

Reporters Barred Guards barred from the island newspaper reporters seeking further information and photographers seeking photographs. Swimming, boating, golfing and playing hide-and-seek with the press have been the pastimes of Tunney and his fiancée. Tunney out-witted the newspapermen by going ashore at Wiscasset for a game of golf and Miss Lauder did the same thing when she suddenly arrived here in a launch guarded by Captain Edward Harrington, slipping up to the postoffice, getting her mail and was back aboard the motorboat while the reporters and photographers raced down the town's little streets to find her.

AUTOIST KILLS YOUTH NEAR CRYSTAL LAKE

Edward Grantz Dies After He Is Hit by William Kuhnly's Machine Near Aborn Farm.

Edward Grantz, 10 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Grantz who live in the Crystal Lake section of Ellington, was fatally injured about six o'clock last evening when struck by an automobile owned and driven by William Kuhnly, manager of the Horton Manufacturing Company, of Rockville. The youth lived until near midnight dying in the Rockville City hospital suffering from a fractured skull and two fractured legs. Kuhnly is being held by the police following an investigation by state policemen from the Stafford barracks. The driver was rounding the curve near the North cemetery in front of the Grantz home which is located near the Aborn farm when he suddenly came upon the Stafford bus, in order to avoid hitting the bus Kuhnly left the road. His machine climbed the embankment at that point and struck the youngster who was walking along the top.

Mail Service Better With the discontinuance of the trains on the Rockville Branch Railroad, as announced previously, it was thought that the mail service would suffer. Such is not the case, however, and Rockville is to have better service than before. Chief Railway Mail Clerk Richardson, of Boston, Mass., was here in consultation with Postmaster George E. Dickinson. The situation was carefully gone over and arrangements completed for the service, which should prove satisfactory to patrons of the Rockville post office. Under the new plan the mail will get in about half an hour earlier in the morning. The mail will be brought up from Manchester reaching Rockville at 6:45 daylight saving time. A new outgoing mail will be established, leaving Rockville at 8:35 a. m., daylight saving time. The noon mail will continue to leave at 12:30. The evening mail, which close at 6 o'clock, the same as formerly. It will be taken to Manchester by auto truck instead of train.

Free Airplane Rides Given There was much excitement in the center of the city at noon Wednesday when Ken Sullivan and James Mahoney accompanied Roy Ahearn, youngest licensed airplane pilot, on an air trip over the city. Free airplane rides and ten free passes to local theaters were thrown to earth. As near as could be learned today, Ethel Kington, Herbert Holmes, Henry Bush and Francis Grumbach found the tickets for the rides. A group of young boys in the vicinity of the American mill, seeing three papers in which the tickets were enclosed fell into the pond nearby, became quite excited and a human race jumped in and captured three free passes to the theatre.

Picnic at County Home The annual picnic, given the children at the County Home by the Every Mother's club, was held at the home grounds on Wednesday afternoon, with a large number of the members and their children leaving the Baptist church by bus at 1:30. The sign "Welcome" was in its usual place in the yard, and the children with Mrs. Weedin, the superintendent, greeted the members most cordially.

Then followed a good program of sports, in which all the children present participated. The program consisted of running races for different ages, peanut hunt, three-legged race and many others. The children at the home also entertained with vocal numbers and recitations. Prizes were awarded the winners of the sports. The committee in charge of refreshments planned for plenty of good things to eat and served sandwiches, cookies, cake, ice cream and lemonade. Each child was also given a bag of peanuts and a box of cracker-jack.

It was early evening when all left for home, voting it the best picnic ever held and the children gave three cheers for the mothers, who made the day a most enjoyable one. Mrs. George Herzog was in charge of the sports and the following committee was in charge of refreshments: Mrs. Emma Apel, chairman; Mrs. Edith Busher, Mrs. Frank Long, Mrs. Florence Thompson and Mrs. Carrie Kane. Fahey—Marty Nuptials Soon—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martley of 36 Mountain street announce the coming marriage of their daughter, Catherine Elizabeth, to James Raymond Fahey, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fahey, of Grove street. The wedding will take place early in September.

Quartermaster Of Milne Camp At special meeting of James Milne Camp, No. 14, United Spanish War Veterans, the office of quartermaster was declared vacant. Francis Murray, a prominent member of the camp, who has held various important offices, was unanimously chosen to fill the vacancy. Band Concert Last Night There were many out to the band concert which was held in Talcott Park last evening. This was the third in the series and was given by the "Rockville Boys' Band," with Henry Schonrock, director. Popular selections including all the latest hits were played by the band, who have been holding special rehearsals.

Chamber Of Commerce Picnic Business was generally suspended all day today, when Merchants' Day was observed. A large number left this morning for Rocky Point, where the annual outing was held. A shore dinner was served and a program of sports took place.

Many of the ladies also took in the trip this year.

Notes Kiowa Council, Degree of Pochontas, will hold a very important meeting in Red Men's hall on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Plans for a picnic will be discussed. All members should be present.

American Mermaids Win at Olympics Olympic Swimming Stadium, Amsterdam, Aug. 9.—America's four-girl relay team of Adelaide Lambert, New York; Albina Osipowitch, Worcester, Mass.; Eleanor Garratti, San Rafael, Calif., and the brilliant Martha Norellus, New York, concluded a season of record-breaking in Olympic swimming today by winning the 400-metre relay championship in 4:47 3-5, a new Olympic record. The American team previously had set up a new standard of 4:55 3-5 in winning its heat.

The former record was 4:58 4-5, made by American girls in the 1924 games at Paris. The record, great as it was, merely supplemented a greater record made by an American during the day. This honor fell to George Kojac, New York, who won the 100-metre backstroke championship in the world's record time of 1:08 1-5, the Americans making a clean sweep of the major prizes when Walter Lauter, Chicago, and Paul Wyatt, Uniontown, Pa., finished second and third. Lauter also nipped the record by doing 1:10 and Wyatt just missed two by finishing in 1:12. Lauter formerly held the record, 1:11 2-5.

The American 800-metre relay team of Samson, Younger, Weismuller and Clapp also bettered an American record by winning this year in 9:38 4-5, against the record of 9:53 4-5, made by the Argentine, Zorilla, added further to the devastation by winning the 400-metre free style championship, a great honor in the world. Olympic time of 5:01 3-5, beating Johnny Weismuller's mark by almost three seconds. "Boy" Charlton, the Australian, likewise got inside this mark with 5:03 3-5.

This race was supposed, with Weismuller on the sidelines, to be the property of Arne Borg but the Swede blew his chances by setting a pace beyond his endurance. He was ten years in front at 200 metres but faded badly into third place on the last lap.

SMITH AWAITING STRATON'S REPLY

(Continued from Page 1) to protect the saloon and the liquor traffic. The governor has devoted a greater part of the present week to an exhaustive study of the 20 year old legislative records, refreshing his memory regarding bills for which he voted when a young Assemblyman. He was about to issue a formal reply to White when he discovered that Dr. Stratton had fired a broadside at him containing even more bitter charges than those of the Kansas editor. After a conference with several of his close advisers the governor decided to issue his challenge to Dr. Stratton, figuring it would be a good move for him to open his campaign for the presidency by answering the attacks made upon his political career.

In his letter to Dr. Stratton the governor suggested that they meet in debate any time during the week of September 2. It was learned today, however, that Smith is so anxious to answer the charge that he is a foe to moral progress that he will accept any date suggested by the New York clergyman, provided it is after August 22, the date of his official notification. If the meeting is arranged in Dr. Stratton's church there is only one other request the governor will make—that the debate be broadcast through a network of radio stations. The governor desires the radio hookup so he can tell the voters of the country just where he stands on all the moral issues of the day. In the meantime the governor is working hard to complete his acceptance speech by the middle of next week. He expects to confer here shortly with Democratic leaders from several states.

She had three sons in the service.

DR. WORK TO CONFER WITH EASTERN LEADERS

Chairman Hubert Work of the Republican national committee will hold a series of conferences with party workers in New England and Atlantic seaboard states soon after his return from the Pacific Coast. The chairman departed from Chicago Monday for Philadelphia, where he will attend the Hoover notification ceremonies Saturday and confer with Mr. Hoover before returning to Washington. Dr. Work completed tentative plans for the eastern states' meetings before he left Washington. Plans for the meetings will be worked out in each case with the Republican national committee man and national committeewoman in the state. In the case of some of the smaller states, there is a possibility that several states will be asked to join in combined meetings at some central point.

Earle S. Kinsley, Republican national committeeman from Vermont, who is Chairman Work's assistant National headquarters, was asked by the chairman to complete necessary arrangements for these gatherings. It is hoped to have in attendance besides the representatives of the national committee in each state, the state leaders as well as men and women party leaders from counties or other sub-divisions.

LID IS DOWN TIGHT AT SARATOGA SPRINGS

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Governor Al Smith advised today that he had received a report from state troops who have been policing the famous racing center at Saratoga for the last forty-eight hours, that the lid has been tightly clamped down on gambling and vice. Just before he left Saratoga, the governor told newspapermen who interviewed him at the executive mansion. Asked if he intended to have the state police continue their investigation at Saratoga, the governor replied: "I don't think it would be prudent to answer that question at this time." The governor ordered the state police in to Saratoga after he had received a report from the state police that gambling and vice were flourishing there. He also called three Saratoga officials to the capitol yesterday and warned them that conditions must be improved. The officials promised the governor they would use the force at their command to stamp out gambling and vice at the racing center.

WICHITA BOASTS RECORD FOR BEING ABLE TO READ; HAS FEW ILLITERATES

Wichita, Kansas—Wichita, a city of 102,512, population has but 64 illiterates. Educators here are exultant over the showing of their city and claim that not another city in the world can boast of a record—six-tenths of one per cent illiteracy. And the number may be decreased this fall.

The census taker who compiled the data for the amazing report took the names of every one who could not read or write. A special committee will call on each of the deficient persons this summer to persuade them to attend the Opportunity School where special classes will be held.

While there are two Smith and one Jones listed, Superintendent of Schools L. W. Mayberry says more than 50 of the 64 are Mexicans.

Most of these labelled illiterate are fifty years of age or over.

Senator Tom Walsh, fishing in a Montana stream, got two fish on the same line the other day. When he put them in his net, it is said, both of them claimed the transaction was just a loan from one old prospector to another.

The following information has been furnished by Herbert F. Robertson, President of the Corporation. HISTORY AND BUSINESS The J. T. Robertson Company, Inc. (a Delaware Corporation), has recently been organized to acquire and consolidate the assets and business of The J. T. Robertson Company, Inc. of Syracuse, N. Y., and the Bonded Products Company, Inc. of Brooklyn, N. Y., which companies have been respectively engaged in the manufacture and sale of staple and fancy soaps and soap products and to acquire other companies engaged in similar lines.

The business of The J. T. Robertson Company, Inc., was first founded in 1885 in Manchester, Connecticut, by the late Mr. John T. Robertson, inventor of Bon Ami, the well known cleanser, and moved to Syracuse in 1916. In 1922 Mr. John T. Robertson died, and the business has since been owned by his two sons, Mr. W. W. Robertson and Mr. H. F. Robertson. The plant has steadily grown by the re-investment of earnings until today it is with its machinery and equipment recently acquired.

The Company manufactures a variety of well known brands of staple and fancy soaps, and bulk soap, and enjoys an excellent reputation in the trade.

In addition to its established business, The J. T. Robertson Company, Inc., has recently entered into a contract with Jones Brothers Tea Company (now succeeded by The Grand Union Company) for the manufacture, on a cost plus basis, of large tonnages of laundry and toilet soaps, and soap products, representing the entire requirements of The Grand Union Company, for distribution through its extensive chain of retail stores—an estimated volume of over $1,000,000 per year.

Bonded Products Company, whose business has also been acquired by The J. T. Robertson Company, Inc., from Jones Brothers Tea Company (now the Grand Union Company), was organized by the latter as a wholly owned subsidiary for the purpose of distributing to the general trade certain special brands of powdered and flake soap and hand soaps under the trade name of "Bonded Products."

The business of Bonded Products Company has also grown from a small beginning to a point where its sales have reached a volume of more than $300,000 per annum.

FINANCIAL POSITION, EARNINGS AND PROSPECTS. The financial position of this Company is unusually strong and it is estimated that with the large volume of business now under contract the future net profits of the Company, after all charges, should not fall below $100,000 per year, which after allowing for Preferred stock dividend requirements, should leave net earnings applicable to the common stock at the rate of $1.82 per share.

The future of the Company, with the development of its close affiliations with The Grand Union Company would seem very promising, as the arrangement between the two companies brings together the knowledge and experience of the key men of both organizations.

MANAGEMENT The Board of Directors has been strengthened by the addition of the President and the Secretary of The Grand Union Company, and by representatives of the Bankers undertaking this financing, while Mr. G. F. Fulton is being placed in charge of plant operations. Mr. Fulton, who was formerly works manager of Messrs. Lever Brothers, Ltd., soap plant at Cambridge, Mass., retires from the presidency of the Kendall Soap Manufacturing Company at Providence, R. I., to take the position of General Manager with the J. T. Robertson Company, Inc. He has had long and successful experience in the manufacture of soap.

All legal matters pertaining to the above are to be approved by Messrs. Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft, for the Bankers, and Messrs. McKeecher & Link, for the Company.

GATE CRASHERS WORRY LONDON'S SOCIAL LEADERS

London.—With the London season in full swing, the problem of the society gate-crasher, or "uninvited guest" as he is discreetly termed here, has again become acute, and hostesses are busy devising ways and means of repelling him. This season the crasher has adopted different tactics. In previous years the interlopers came singly, and when invitation cards were not collected on entrance their assurances carried them through. Now, however, they are presenting a different puzzle to harassed hostesses by attempting to break in in large parties.

Complaints are made that the crashers spoil antique furniture and valuable rugs by dropping cigars ends upon them, gorge themselves with food and wine, monopolize the dance floor, and generally make themselves a nuisance at the expense of a hostess and her invited guests.

American Victims American women giving parties here have been the chief sufferers, the crasher relying on their unfamiliarity with London society to gain an entrance. In many instances American women giving large parties at private houses hired for the occasion have found that with the unexpected addition to their guests the refreshments have run out long before the evening is over.

More and more hostesses are adopting the precaution of issuing unforgeable invitation cards, which are collected by footmen at the door. Invitations issued by prominent hostesses like the Hon. Mrs. James Larkin, wife of the High Commissioner for Canada, are accompanied by printed slips bearing the words "It is requested that if the invitation is accepted the enclosed card may be presented at the door."

Royalty Not Immune Even parties given by royalty have not been immune from this society pest. Recently when Princess Matton, daughter of King George, gave an "At Home" at Chesterfield House, her palatial London mansion, it was found necessary to post footmen at the door to scrutinize the invitation card of every guest.

A garden party given by Mrs. Baldwin, wife of Premier Baldwin, was the scene of much confusion owing to the crashers' efforts to gain an entry. Previously Mrs. Baldwin has never issued invitation cards, but it is probable that in the future cards will go out when she holds her parties.

The crasher always relies on the knowledge that if her or she gains entrance—which is remarkably easy when no check is made—the chances are that subsequent discovery will not involve a public rebuff.

HOOVER BARS MUDSLINGING IN CAMPAIGN

Denver.—Prince Mamed H. Farchi, son of a Persia, councilman and grandson of the Persia Ambassador to Paris, has been discovered working in the General Iron Works plant near here. Prince Farchi feels that the pomp and aristocracy of his country and the whole of the Old World, are barriers to American education. During the winter he spends his time as a student of agronomy at the Colorado Agricultural College at Fort Collins. When summer comes he chooses to take up some form of manual labor.

As a diversion from his studies? No, he wants a practical working knowledge and the experience in modern industrial methods. Wins Diplomas He has been in this country less than three years. In this length of time he has been given diplomas of graduation from the Park College, Parkville, Mo., the Ford Trade School and the Dodge Brothers service school, Detroit, Mich., and is now taking his course in Agronomy in the Colorado Agricultural College.

His father, A. Mirza-Aaga Farchi, is a farmer and very much interested in banking. He has been elected to Congress in Persia six times and left a revolt in 1906 which resulted in the overthrow of the government.

Instead of living in the finest hotel in the city while he is working the Prince chooses to stay in a private residence, a small room at that. The Prince is 23 years old. When asked why he lived in this room he said, "I live in this room just to get the workingman's views on life."

The Prince revealed that the soil conditions in Persia and Colorado are very similar in content, both having traces of alkali and other substances. Congressman Farchi, the father, owns a large farm near Tabriz, which Prince Farchi hopes to take charge of when he returns home, which will probably be in two years.

Like America When the decision was made by his family that it was time for the Prince to go away from home to attend school, his parents thought only of sending him to Paris where his grandfather is serving as an ambassador. The Prince, however, looked at the situation in an entirely different way. He said: "I was tired of being the pampered son of a wealthy politician and merchant and wanted to come to America. It took me two years to talk my father into the idea."

When he spoke of being the "pampered son of a wealthy politician and merchant" his eyes sparkled. Popular short subjects will round out the bill.

CHICAGO MUSEUM TO HAVE WORLD'S BIGGEST CANVAS

Chicago.—The first seven paintings of a series which is to be the world's largest, most complete and most systematic representation ever attempted on canvas, of the life on the earth in prehistoric ages, has been placed on exhibition here with the reopening of Ernest R. Graham Hall of Historical Geology at Field Museum of Natural History.

In addition to the new paintings, there will be specimens of skulls, skeletons and miscellaneous bones of prehistoric animals, obtained by the recent Captain Marshall Field Paleontological Expeditions to Argentina and Bolivia, displayed for the first time. Specimens of other creatures of past geological ages which were previously on view will also be found with various improvements in their installation. The hall has been closed for a year to permit of the execution and hanging of mural paintings, the installation of additional specimens, and the reinstallation of the others. A new system of indirect lighting has been instituted which displays the exhibits to better advantage than ever before.

Paintings Are Gift
The paintings are a gift to the museum from Ernest R. Graham, a member of the institution's board of trustees. Charles R. Knight of New York City, generally recognized as the world's leading artist in the restoration of prehistoric scenes, is the painter. In depicting the prehistoric world Mr. Knight has had for data the results of the researches of members of Field Museum's scientific staff, particularly Dr. O. C. Farrington, curator of geology, and Prof. Elmer S. Riggs, associate curator of paleontology. Other scientists throughout the country have also been consulted to aid the artist in making his canvases accurate according to the best obtainable knowledge.

The first of the paintings represents a scene on the earth during the cooling period and the planet had been thrown off as a fiery ball from the sun, and before any sort of life existed upon it. The second painting shows the beginnings of life, with the growth in fresh-water pools of blue-green algae or moss-like plants, the first form of life of which science has any definite knowledge, and of which any fossils have been found.

An Early Seashore
Another of the paintings now on view shows an early seashore, on which are seen the dominant forms of life thought to have existed in the Ordovician Period, which science estimates to have been about five hundred million years ago. In this painting are represented great straight-shelled mollusks, some of which were fifteen feet long. These were remote ancestors of the modern oolite and nautilus. In the same painting are also shown trilobites, which were distant relatives to the crab family of today, and are believed to have been ancestors also of the insects of the present time.

Another painting shows the stegosaurus, a giant armored lizard of grotesque and terrifying appearance, which lived about 100,000 years ago. Despite his fearsome dragon-like appearance, scientists believe this small-brained creature was quite harmless. He lacked any offensive weapons, and needed his armor badly to protect him from the more aggressive animals equipped by nature with sharp teeth and huge claws with which to attack. A group of egg-laying dinosaurs (Protoceratops), which lived somewhat earlier than the stegosaurus, is shown in another painting.

Other Paintings
The other two paintings now placed on exhibition show the huge moas (Dinornis) of New Zealand, prehistoric birds which looked much like gigantic ostriches, and a group of immense kangaroos, which were as large as the modern rhinoceros, and are easily recognizable as the direct ancestor of the smaller kangaroo of today. These creatures became extinct in comparatively recent times, as the geologist figures time—that is, they lived more or less contemporaneously with the earliest men.

In each painting the environment is represented as it is believed to have appeared during the period in which the type of life depicted was in existence. The entire series of paintings, of which those now shown are the first to be completed, will consist of 25 canvases, fourteen of which will be 25x35 feet, and fourteen 11x9 feet in size. They will extend around the walls of the entire hall, and will be arranged in chronological order according to their subjects. Several years will be required for the completion of this entire program.

BRITISH AIRSHIP SOON READY TO TRY OCEAN HOP

London.—The world's largest airship, the Burney Rolls-Royce R-100, which has been designed for a commercial trans-Atlantic service, is rapidly nearing completion. Laborers are busily engaged in applying the remaining sections of the outer envelope, the metal structure having been completed some time ago and the giant airship is expected to take the air in less than three months' time.

The first public inspection of the ship was made when a large party of Members of Parliament, Dominion High Commissioners and air experts visited the hangar and saw the wonders of Britain's latest air giant.

Over 700 Feet Long
The airship is more than 700 feet from bow to stern and weighs 156 tons. It is driven by six Rolls-Royce engines, developing 4,200 horsepower, and is believed to be capable of flying across the Atlantic in less than three days.

The six engines are housed in three power cabins slung from the after portion of the airship, so far from the passenger quarters that their roar will be reduced by distance to a subdued murmur. Accommodation for 100 passengers and a crew of fifty is provided in a huge structure consisting of four decks. The lower deck, which projects below the airship, contains the control cabin and above this are bunks for the crew. The two upper decks are reserved for passengers, and are on a scale never before attempted on any flying machine.

There is a dining room for fifty people, served from an all-electric kitchen, two and four berth staterooms, and balconies large enough for the 100 passengers to sit at tea and watch the changing landscapes below.

To Fly Atlantic
As soon as official trials are completed, the R-100 will make a trans-Atlantic flight as a preliminary development of still greater airships, according to present plans. "We have already evolved means of handling the airship mechanically without the use of the usual 300 men," said Commander C. D. Burney, managing director of the company which is building the ship.

"In addition, new inventions will double the load capacity and after successful trials we expect to be able to proceed with the building of a 9,000,000 cubic foot ship which will have a speed of 100 miles an hour and capable of carrying 300 passengers across the Atlantic in 36 hours."

TO CONTINUE SEARCH
Oslo, Norway, Aug. 9.—The search for Captain Roald Amundsen and his three companions who left Tromsø, Norway, on June 18 to search for survivors of the Italia tragedy and then disappeared, will be continued until the end of August.

This was decided upon following extensive conferences between French and Norwegian officials here. The sealer Heimland will concentrate on the area between South Cape and King Charles Land. The steamer Hobby will scour the vicinity of Franz Joseph Land.

THOSE "KEY" STATES

It may be a bit early to start figuring on combinations of states with relation to the November electoral vote determinations, but they are already at it and we are especially interested in a much touted theory that the outcome of the election may depend on the results in New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey.

Let's see about that. Governor Smith carries all the ten states of the Solid South, these ten being Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia. That would give him 114 electoral votes.

Suppose that on top of this he carried Maryland, Missouri, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York and Rhode Island. That would give him 106 more, or a total of 220 so far.

But there are 531 electoral votes altogether and it takes 266 to constitute a majority, so that even with New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey, the suppositions key states, accredited to Smith, he would still be lacking no less than 46 votes of election.

Suppose, for the sake of the discussion that Tennessee—citadel of fundamentalism—be put in the Smith column with its 12 votes. And Delaware with its three, and Arizona with three. And New Mexico with another three. That would give him 211 more, or a total of 241. The "happy warrior" would still need 25 more electoral votes to make his happiness perfect.

Where is he going to get them? As a matter of fact Smith is extremely unlikely to carry Missouri, where the dry Democrats have just administered a primary beating to the wets. There is next to no chance that he will carry Tennessee. There is a very fair chance that he will not get the twelve votes of North Carolina, Delaware and Arizona are Republican states.

As a matter of fact Governor Smith needs many more states than New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island—and the states he must get are soundly Republican states where he will not have an election day, in all human probability, a look-in.

If Governor Smith can perform the miracle of winning the votes of several big states which for many years have been Republican by two to one and if he can also carry every really doubtful state, he can be elected, provided the South does not repudiate him. But on the face of the actualities his chances at this stage of the proceedings look extremely remote. At all events it is ridiculous to manufacture the impression that turnovers in New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey would bring about a Democratic victory. He might win these all three, carry the Solid South intact, and yet come out of the fight with only 191 electoral votes against 240 for Hoover.

SMITH'S N. Y. WEAKNESS

It weakens the argument against the Presidential candidacy of Governor Smith of New York to misrepresent him as a poor or mediocre chief executive of the state of New York. He has been a good governor, and it is only persons blinded by partisanship who will deny it. That he has been far and away the best governor New York ever had is altogether another statement and not to be accepted without more inquiry into the subject than it is worth while to spend; for New York state has had many able men at the headship of its affairs.

But the question at issue doesn't happen to be the governorship of New York. It is the Presidency of the United States. And New York people are as vitally interested as those of any other state in seeing to it that the next President of this country is qualified for that job. The job of President calls for the possession in very high degree of qualifications that have no more to do with qualifications for the governorship of New York than those demanded of a concert violinist have to do with ability to toot a fish horn up an alley. It may be submitted that a man gifted in the matter of the tin horn might be able to sell half a dozen times as many fish as the violin virtuoso, but he would not do to substitute for the latter at a high class concert.

Where the Republicans, in the matter of candidates, have all the better of the present situation, is in the fact that Herbert Hoover is one of the dozen men in the world most completely familiar with international politics and the relationship of American prosperity to those transcendently important matters. In those vital relationships on which the well being of this nation belongs Herbert Hoover is an expert. Of the same relationship Governor Smith knows no more than a little child.

New Yorkers know their governor well; and they like him. But, because they know him, they are not going to be blind to his shortcomings so far as the Presidency is concerned. New York state is debatable ground in this campaign. It is very far indeed from being in the pocket of its governor.

CONNECTICUT DEMS

The New York Times devotes an editorial half column or more to the "Connecticut Democracy." It takes some of its subject matter from a paper on that subject written by Prof. Lancaster of Wesleyan for the National Municipal Review, and interpolates some observations of its own. Such as: "If ever there was a moated political citadel it is that over which Squire Rorhack presides."

"The whole force of tradition and momentum is behind the Republicans," says the Times. "In forty years the Democrats have controlled the executive department for only six. The last Democratic senator from Connecticut retired in 1879." It quotes Prof. Lancaster as saying: "The Republican party in Connecticut is the party of 'respectability.' The feudal magnates who have ruled Connecticut society in church and state since the days of the Wolcotts, the Dwights, the Ellsworths and the Trumbulls are today Republicans almost to a man."

Aside from the fact that the Connecticut element referred to is not feudal at all, there is a lot of truth in this. Very few of the old time socially prominent Democratic families of fifty or sixty years ago continue to be Democratic in politics now. The leadership of that party refused to do anything but lead themselves, regardless of their capacity for leadership.

Economically, of course, the interests of Connecticut's business men and manufacturers would eventually have led most of them to affiliation with the Republican party. Sentiment and family tradition would doubtless, however, have caused this affiliation to be slower and less complete if the old time native stock had not been shouldered out of the party by turbulent and aggressive reinforcements.

The Times tries hard to find in the Connecticut situation a single ray of hope of Democratic success in this state this year, but it doesn't make out at all. It sees no hope of victory under the present kind of leadership, nor any probability of a change.

A REVELATION

Relatively to better developed countries China is a land without railroads. But only relatively. And how important to her prosperity is even her meagre steam transportation system has been demonstrated in a very disturbing way.

When the late Marshal Chang-Tso-lin evacuated Peking and withdrew into Manchuria, just before he was assassinated, he stole three hundred locomotives and six thousand freight and passenger cars, constituting more than half the motive power and rolling stock of the four railroads of northern China.

His son, Chang Hsueh-liang, who has succeeded to his authority, professes to be willing to make peace with the Nationalists, but he is holding the stolen railroad equipment as something to bargain with.

The effect of the loss of the use of this railroad stock on the economic situation in northern China is disastrous. Harvest time is at hand and warehouses throughout a region as big as the United States east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river are already filled with perishable freights that are spoiling. The railroad would seem to most outsiders to be a vital element in Chinese prosperity but the people of the north are finding out its importance, to their sorrow.

MIXED

The erudite New York Times, which is supposed to specialize in close editing, does not often permit such breaks in its columns as one made by Richard V. Oulahan, political reporter of by-line calibre, in yesterday's issue. Says Mr. Oulahan: "It is a strange reversal of politics that the Republican party should now regard the Atlantic seaboard and its immediate hinterland as the enemy's country, where it will be obliged to give strenuous battle to prevent an invasion of the Democratic foe."

Possibly the Clever Mr. Oulahan could explain how, if the indicated territory is "enemy country" to the Republicans—in other words Democratic country—it is liable to invasion by the forces already occupying it. But on second thought, perhaps the Times' political expert is more subtle than appears on the surface. Perhaps he means that any stronghold of the Democrats this year is liable to attack from Democrats—those of the Southern Regulars by Dry Democrats and Ku Klux Democrats, for instance; or that of Tammany by the revengeful Wilson Democrats. After all, the validity or the invalidity of Mr. Oulahan's figure of speech may depend on what is understood by the word Democratic.

In New York

New York, Aug. 9.—In no place upon the globe do people have to work so hard for their play as in Manhattan.

The mere business of reaching a so-called pleasure resort is, in itself, almost equivalent to a day's toil. The seemingly inexhaustible patience of the dyed-in-the-wool New Yorker is something to marvel at. In fact, at times I have questioned whether it be patience or a form of imbecility.

If, for instance, you wish to plunge in one of the many lagoon pools, to be found variously in hotels or parks, you must be prepared to face a line of sturdy waiters, ready to stand for hours, if need be, for the privilege of spending their money.

Or, to take a subway to Coney on a Sunday, is to crash a mob, the proportions of which are difficult to realize unless you've been pulled, mauled and pushed about a subway in which the humanity threatens at any moment to break through the thermometer. One glance at the Pennsylvania or Grand Central station of a Sunday must prove discouraging to anyone caring to go to a beach. The Long Beach, Rockaway or Manhattan Beach train entrances present scenes of chaos destined to take away what little joy may be left after the effort required to get to the railroad station. And when any one of the popular beach resorts has been reached, there follows a struggle for a bathroom locker and then for a place on the beach. It's just as well to take an anesthetic along to make the operation as painless as possible.

On a week day it's different. But only the idle have time to go upon a week day. Perhaps, with a gesture of despair, you determine to forego the joys of such bits of seashore as you can call your own, and take a Hudson River boat.

And, for sheer natural beauty I know of nothing lovelier than the Hudson shores in mid-July or August, when the greenest of hills and the gentlest of hills curve gracefully down to the water's edge. Even as a loyal ex-Californian, and one who once contributed to the journals of the Californians, Inc., I am forced to tone down my ex-californian adjectives in the presence of the Hudson.

Yet, upon a Sunday, things happen which, you feel, have no right to happen in the presence of the quiet serenity of the hillsides and the gorgeous green-gold of the water.

Every form of ear torture known to civilized or uncivilized man must be suffered in order to look upon the luxurious beauty of a Hudson shoreline. One must be prepared for a savage mixture of ukeles, banjoguitars, harmonicas, nose-o-phones, accordions, none-to-close harmony hummers, shrieking babies, raucous grriles, frantic manas pursuing their young and such other discordant tones as are supplied by quarreling sweeties, begrinned collegiates and imitators of the Ten Alpine Yodelers.

By the time Bear Mountain is reached, one looks wistfully at a ticket which gives your destination as Poughkeepsie or Albany and ponders whether to jump overboard, go ashore or become a student of mob psychology. If and when you come to New York and wish to look upon a most New Yorkese assemblage in one of its playful moods, by all means take the Sunday boat up the Hudson. Otherwise, choose a Monday, Tuesday, or any other week day. For we have no lovelier sight to offer you in all the great Empire State.

MISSION FROM CEYLON TO ESTABLISH BUDDHIST MONASTERY IN LONDON

London.—Seeking converts to the Buddhist faith, three Buddhist monks have arrived here from Ceylon to found the first monastery of this religion in London. Less than 100 men and women attended their first conversion meeting when the Sermon of the Great Blessings, delivered by Buddha more than 2,500 years ago, was recited by one of the monks.

It was stated that the Buddhists have not come here to convert people forcibly, but to "lay before them the beautiful words and truth of Buddhism."

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamp, addressed, large envelope for reply.

STAMMERING AND STUTTERING

Many correspondents have written to me asking the cause and cure of stammering and stuttering. Many write and say that the harder they try and the more they study about it, the worse it seems to make them. This should not be true if they study under a competent instructor and follow a few simple rules.

In the first place it must be understood that stammering is due to a lack of control of the organs of speech, causing hesitancy and difficulty of utterance. There is a variety of opinion about the cause. Stammerers themselves often attribute the varying degrees of their impediment to states of the wind, changes of the moon, nervousness, depression of spirits, indignation and other physical debilities.

A nervous manner of speaking is usually associated with stammering. This is the result rather than the cause of the impediment. If nervousness were productive of stammering, the number of sufferers would be vastly greater, and it would include a larger proportion of girls than of boys, but this difference is not noticeable. Of course, any physical defect will render a person nervous when the peculiarity is made a subject of observation, and it is in this way only that nervousness is associated with speech in cases of stammering.

All stammerers must remember that breath is the very foundation of speech. Some stammer because they shut the breath off, and others because they waste it. One closes the glottis, or little trap door in the throat, and the air is tightly bottled while trying to speak; the other lets the air out first and then tries to speak without sufficient breath.

Stammerers try to speak in jerky, chopped way, and must learn to speak smoothly and distinctly, allowing no word to almost run into the other.

In most all cases of stammering the head oscillates too loosely upon the neck. The head should be neither thrown upwards, downwards, or the chin should not be dropped.

Most stammerers can sing, because in singing the breath is steadily expelled, and the sound of one word is vibrated into the next. The stammerer should read or repeat sentences in a low tone of voice, and with almost a humming sound as one word leads to the other.

I have seen many bad cases of years' standing cured within two or three weeks of proper training. It is most helpful to have a competent instructor handle each individual case, although Professor Ennis, who is a national authority on this subject, assures me that a high percentage of results can be received in class work.

Anyone of sufficient will power can cure himself of stammering under proper instructions. My advice to all stammerers is to find a good instructor and remove the needless stuttering handicap.

Questions and Answers

Question: W. H. J. asks: "What causes the head to shake violently from side to side when one gets nervous? What is the cure for this condition?"

Answer: The head shaking is due to a form of palsy and comes from a degeneracy of the nerves. The cure is to improve your health by hygienic measures, and to remove every mental or physical cause which may produce nervousness.

Question: M. G. writes: "My mother has diabetes, and I want to know your opinion of saccharin as a substitute for sugar in this disease; also in regard to fruits."

Answer: Saccharin is often recommended to be used as a substitute for sugar, although it has no food value. It is one of the cold tar products and its continued use is unquestionably injurious. Practically all fruits may be used by the diabetic, as the fruit sugar content is not sufficient to produce trouble as long as other sugar is not used.

Question: Mrs. O. J. asks: "Will you please tell me what causes waterbrash? It bothers me through the night, and is some kind of indigestion, and what do you think would stop it?"

Answer: Waterbrash usually comes from overeating or using fluids with your meals. Try cutting down on the amount of food you are using at dinner, and do not use any liquids at all after three p. m.

Question: Reader writes: "I am a young woman but my skin is so dry I am ageing terribly. I use a great deal of cold cream, but I know it must be some inward trouble. When I wash my skin it hurts, and burns and smart all the time. I know you have helped others, so please tell me what course to take."

Answer: Use plenty olive oil with your meals, and increase the amount of butter and cream you are using. A temporary treatment which will help is to rub the entire body each day with cocoa-butter, using only a small amount, but rubbing it well into the pores.

WASHINGTON LETTER

This is the first of three stories by Rodney Dutcher, Washington correspondent for The Herald and N.E.A. Service, clarifying several little-understood angles of Mexico's political situation. The second will appear tomorrow.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Aug. 9.—Two picturesque personalities in Mexico leaped into the news soon after the assassination of President-elect Obregon.

They are Soto y Gama and Aurelia Manrique, leaders of the Agrarian party. Manrique has made continuous attacks on the Laborites, whom they charged with the real responsibility for Obregon's death through creation of an atmosphere of hostility to him which stirred up a fanatic to murder.

Their sudden emergence may seem rather startling to most of us, but neither is a new figure in Mexico's political and social life. Strangely enough, we know much less about the internal affairs of that country which borders on our own for nearly 1,600 miles than we do about the affairs of nations across the Atlantic.

power behind. The disappearance from power—either by death, as in the case of Obregon, or by passing from office, as in the case of President Calles—of one who has favored to bestow brings about new political alignments at once.

Seek Personal Gain

If the disappearance comes by violence, under circumstances such as the Obregon murder, the politician naturally seeks personal advantage or gain for his cause by trying to guide the current of aroused public opinion in channels favorable to his interests. That sort of thing took place in our own country after the deaths of Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley at the hands of fanatics.

The two Agrarian leaders, Manrique and Soto y Gama, happen to be men of impeccable personal character, but they are intensely devoted to their cause.

Manrique was a former governor of San Luis Potosi, one of the leading Mexican states, in the early days of the Calles administration. Soto y Gama has led the Agrarian group in the Mexican Congress. During the great revolution Soto y Gama was a leader of the Agrarian forces of Morelos and chief adviser of the famous Zapata brothers, who dominated the Agrarians of that state. These Agrarians were the real "irreconcilables" of the revolution and refused to give fealty to any of the chiefs whom the revolution brought into power. "The land for the people" was their battle cry. Even after the death of the Zapatas the peasants of Morelos refused to yield until a division of the lands was begun. Up to that time 32 great land-owning families had owned nearly every acre of the soil.

An Ardent Reformer

Soto y Gama was a lawyer, deeply interested in public affairs. He is said to have lived during the revolution period continuously in the saddle, with a Bible in one pocket of his blouse and a book on economics in the other. Although of a distinct religious bent he has nevertheless been as active an opponent of clerical domination as of the great land owners.

Aurelia Manrique is the younger of the two. His passion for social justice was aroused during the Madero movement. The story of his governorship of San Luis Potosi is remarkable. Almost an ascetic in his personal habits, he determined to create the ideal state of which he had dreamed for years. It didn't work.

Pulque is the curse of peasants in the Mexican highlands. Manrique determined to stamp out the habit of centuries overnight. He instituted prohibition in San Luis Potosi. At the same time he began a campaign against political corruption—which is as bad in Mexico as in our country, if not worse—and attempted to put in a system almost Draconian. He found the state treasury bankrupt. His first move was to reduce his own salary from 50 pesos a day to 15. Then he asked the members of the state legislature to do the same with their salaries. Fought the Legislature. Battle began between Governor Manrique and the legislature and also between Manrique and the state military commander, who had been an important factor in putting Manrique into office. Manrique insisted that the civil power must be supreme over the military power, in practice as well as theory.

Like most dreamers, Manrique was a poor administrator and his excess of zeal for justice and decency in public affairs was his undoing. The state of San Luis Potosi almost ceased to function administratively and Manrique was forced to retire while the legislature elected another governor to serve the balance of his term.

For a few years Manrique lived in retirement in Mexico City, filled with bitterness at this treatment which met his attempt to build up a model state. He only emerged again into prominence during the Obregon election campaign, in which he became one of the chief orators accompanying the presidential candidate.

Born Blind, Girl Tells How It Feels To See

Marcella Calkins sits on a bench in the grounds of a Milwaukee hospital and examines an entirely new thing—a newspaper. Inset is a closeup of the girl.

Milwaukee.—Faces and colors are the two most interesting things in the world to 20-year-old Marcella Calkins.

Marcella was born blind. A few weeks ago a series of delicate surgical operations gave her her sight, and for the first time in her life she could use her eyes. And now she is the happiest girl in the world.

On the first evening that the doctors took the bandages off her eyes and let her look about her, Marcella stood on the lawn of the hospital and watched the red sun go down beyond the horizon.

"It was marvelous," she said. "The colors—I never dreamed such colors existed. And to think that they come every night!"

Then, a little later, she went on to say that she could never get tired of looking at faces.

"I was just as surprised by the appearance of my own face as I was by the faces of my friends," she said. "When, by accident, I first saw myself in a mirror I didn't know who it was. And I had to get acquainted with my friends all over again. Everyone was strange to me until they spoke—then I recognized them. Now, of course, I am coming to know them by sight."

They're All Handsome

Incidentally, Marcella has no standards by which to judge whether any particular face is homely or beautiful. All are equally absorbing to her; Bull Montana and John Gilbert, undoubtedly, would interest her exactly the same.

Living in a world of light is a different matter from living in a world of darkness. When her eyes were first opened Marcella had to learn to walk all over again. When she went to climb up or down stairs she had to shut her eyes to keep from falling. Doors bothered her greatly, and the sight of her own feet moving about seemed inexplicably funny to her. But faces, and bright colors, were the things that interested her most.

She has been spending her days since the operation in simply going about and looking at things. The commonest trip down the street is a great adventure. A visit to the shore of Lake Michigan enchanted her. She looked out over the blue ly home in Chetek, Wis., but Marcella will see her very soon. Meanwhile she is undecided what she will do in the future, after she has regained her strength.

Is Good Stenographer

She was educated in a school for the blind, and became an accomplished stenographer, being able to take dictation at the rate of 130 words a minute. She believes she will capitalize on this ability and get a job as secretary—although first she must learn how to read print. Heretofore, of course, she could only read the Braille letters.

Marcella is the daughter of a carpenter and was blind from her birth. After she graduated from the school for the blind, at Janesville, a few months ago, friends induced her to enter a hospital here and see if doctors could restore her sight. Six very delicate operations were performed; but now, with the aid of heavy-lensed glasses, she has almost normal vision.

HAS GOOD THROWING ARM

WAS NINTH IN ROW

The victory scored by the United States in the Olympic games this year was the ninth successive one.

MARLBOROUGH

The funeral of Miss Cora A. Buell, daughter of George W. and Carrie (Lord) Buell, was held at the home of her parents Monday afternoon. Miss Buell was a graduate of the Willimantic Normal school and had taught in the East Hartford public schools several years. She leaves, beside her parents, two sisters, Miss Rebecca Buell and Miss Doris Buell, of this place. Rev. A. W. Canney, of Westchester, officiated and burial was in Hillside cemetery. The floral tributes were many. The bearers were Robert T. Buell, Howard B. Lord, John A. Fuller and Milton J. Lord.

Miss Marie Joyner, of Worcester, Mass., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. C. S. Bolles.

Miss Emma Weil, of Middle Haddam, was at her home here the first of the week.

Mrs. Hyman Dorman and children, Louise and Morris, and Mrs. Siegel and son, Barris, of Cromwell, visited friends here last week.

Quite a number from here attended the annual Old Home Day celebration in East Hampton, Saturday. The boys' band took part in the circus parade.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Smith of Hartford were at their summer place here the first of the week.

Mrs. E. B. Lord is in Philadelphia, Pa., as the guest of her son, Erving B. Lord.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Sellow and family, of East Hampton, were recent callers here.

Miss Mae Hannon, of Hartford, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Myers.

Miss Mary L. Hall, who is taking a course at Yale Summer school, spent the week-end at her home here.

FIRESTONE DEALERS

START BIG TIRE SALE

With August here, the month of sales, the announcement by Robinson's Auto Supply of attractive prices on Oldfield, Courier and Airway tires, will be of more than ordinary interest. It is seldom that tires of this quality, backed by a dealer, well known for his exceptional service and standard of merchandise, are procurable at such extraordinary low prices as will prevail in this sale.

The large business of this dealer, which is fostered by local pride in the "Buy At Home" movement, and is the result of the firm's prestige among car owners, makes it possible for them to purchase their tires in very large quantities, taking advantage of every discount.

As the sale is conducted under the "Cash and Carry" plan, and as the company has always had an enviable reputation for exceptional business management, which means low overhead, such price reductions on standard tires of this quality are made possible.

Does the report that Tunney will never fight again mean that he is not going to get married?

The Home Without a Heating Worry!

These folks start their days in a temperature kept uniformly and automatically at 72 degrees, while others less fortunate continue to rise in icy rooms every morning. For with automatic oil heat, Dad doesn't have to rise a moment earlier than Mother and the youngsters. There are no "before-sunrise" gymnastics trying to coax a sluggish, temperamental furnace from its all-night stupor. No backaches from shoveling ton after ton of dirty coal into a hungry furnace. No tussling with clinkers or dragging out ashes.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Thursday, August 9.

Kiriloff's balalaika orchestra, playing an unusual program of Russian classics and folk songs will be heard through WJZ at 9 o'clock Thursday night. The opening selection will be a medley of old Russian village tunes, very interesting in their arrangement for balalaikas, as is "Khorovod," characterized as a song-dance. The composers represented in this program are Zama, Borodine and Andreyev. A sion arrangement of a number of Cuban folk dances, collected by Nathaniel Shilkret while visiting there, will be presented under his direction during the Maxwell hour through WJZ and associated stations at 8:30. The majestic "Prize Song" from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" will close the concert. After celebrating in turn the musical nations of Europe by playing the works of their composers, American and American musicians are to be featured in the concert by the Goldman band to go over the air from WJZ and other N. E. C. stations at 9. The trumpet solo by Del Stagers this week is Clark's "Twilight Dreams." WJZ will entertain with music by the United States Navy band at 7 and one hour later the Habaca musical show may be tuned from WJZ. A far away feature well worth staying awake to listen to is the schedule of Negro spirituals by the Golden quartet broadcast by WSM at midnight.

PREPARING PLANE FOR BYRD'S FLIGHT

When Byrd's expedition leaves New York to explore the ice plateau of the Antarctic it will be equipped as thoroughly as a modern army taking the field for a strenuous campaign. "For" expeditions like this, says the conqueror of the North Pole and the Atlantic "are won by preparation." Picture above shows Byrd's plane being filled with gasoline and oil. No ordinary schooner, like the windmilers of the earlier explorers will carry the Byrd party to the Antarctic wastes. A specially built ice-proof steam ship has been provided. Not just one plane will be depended on for there will be three tuned and tested ones, chosen from thousands. A crew of 55 will though they expect to be gone at the most only two. So the industrial world looks with keen interest on the Commander's choice of supplies and equipment. To "make" the Byrd expedition is equivalent to a medal of honor for distinguished merit. It is little wonder that the Tide Water Oil Company counts this as its greatest tribute—that Veedol should be chosen to bear this tremendous responsibility. For not once in many generations does such an opportunity for arduous and distinguished service of American products arise.

The show was staged under the direction of Miss Dorothy Hardy and James Dowd and the supervision of Director Lewis Lloyd. BURGLARS STRANGLE WOMAN Cleveland, Aug. 9.—Strangled to death, presumably by burglars, the body of an aged and reputedly wealthy widow, Mrs. Agnes Klossowksi, 65, was found in bed at her home here early today. The body had been bound with heavy cord and a shopping bag was stuffed in the mouth, police said. Mrs. Stella Volk, a roomer, discovered the murder, she told police, when she returned to her house shortly before three o'clock this morning. The house had been ransacked, bureau drawers scattered about, and their contents thrown on the floors.

How She Hits?

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

One error modern motorists fall into is that of depending on a "doped" gasoline to clean out the carbon of their engines. No anti-knock fuel is intended for that purpose. It's merely a chemical that assures perfect and complete combustion of the fuel mixture. By its use there is greater fuel economy, no detonation, no crankcase dilution and more power.

But to expect such anti-knock chemicals to clean out carbonized cylinders is to expect too much.

With carbon in the cylinder heads and atop the pistons, anti-knock fuel will merely prevent detonation. The carbon will remain until it is cleaned out. If there isn't too much of it, it may even be helpful toward perfect combustion and high power, for the carbon remains hot even after the charge in the chamber is fired and serves to heat up the next charge.

Anti-knock chemicals, usually consist of fine particles that ignite almost immediately upon firing of the spark plug, scatter quickly through the entire fuel mixture and serve to ignite the entire charge of fuel and air almost instantaneously. The result is that there is no waste of fuel, and especially that none is left behind to heat up and ignite the next incoming charge before the spark has been fired. This is how detonation results from incompletely exploded fuel charges, and this is why there is no detonation with the use of anti-knock gasoline.

Carbon in the cylinders, however should be removed before resorting to anti-knock fuels. It should be scraped out preferably to being burned or removed with chemicals.

A little carbon rather helps the engine than injures it. It increases compression, and if it weren't for the detonation resulting from too much carbon, carbon would be a help to the engine. But as soon as detonation results, it is time to clean out the carbon.

This may be discovered especially when pulling up hill or getting started on high.

When there is too much carbon in the engine, also, the exhaust valves will stick, since the carbon will form on the stems. When this becomes serious and compression becomes irregular, there will be further proof that the valves aren't seating properly, are burned and warped.

Now it is high time to clean out the carbon, and in addition have the valves ground and the engine tuned up. Continuing to run despite sticking and warped valves is to endanger the engine to such a point as to render it incapable of further performance.

If the engine is neglected, altogether as to carbon, small particles of the carbon will lodge down alongside the pistons and score the cylinder walls. The result of this is lack of power and diluted crankcase oil.

As soon as power is lost on climbing a hill with the spark up, and detonation results, the motorist is warned that the engine has become carbonized. This may be stopped for a while by the use of anti-knock fuel, but eventually the carbon should be scraped out, or full efficiency of the motor will not be obtained.

Many engineers recommend that the engine be cleaned of carbon at every 10,000 miles, although it is best to do this when the engine begins to show signs of uneven compression, burning or sticky valves and serious detonation.

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BERTIE LOU WARD marries ROD BRYER, who had previously been engaged to MARY LILA. Lila makes life miserable for the bride until she meets rich MR. LOREE and marries him. Then she asks Bertie Lou to forgive the past.

Trying to keep up socially with wealthy friends plunges the Bryers in debt and Rod becomes depressed. Lila seizes her chance to persuade him to accept a higher salary from Loree. Shortly after she asks Rod to put some jewels in the safe during her husband's absence. They disappear and Rod wants to notify the police, but Lila insists that they keep the matter secret, pointing out that suspicion against him might spoil his career. Bertie Lou finds out that he has been seeing Lila secretly and is heartbroken.

She is called home to her sick mother and catches a train without seeing Rod. The separation, added to Lila's plotting, causes a coldness between them. Each expects the other to make advances or explanations. Rod goes to the Lorees without her and Bertie Lou goes out with MARCO PALMER to retaliate. One evening Rod finds her packing a suitcase for a week-end at the Palmer estate, and admits to himself that he has been unfaithful to her. He is stunned to learn that Lila deceived him about the stolen jewels when a connoisseur admires her pearls at a dinner party.

Confronted, she admits that she gave him an empty case in order to make him dependent on her generosity and to win his love. He repudiates her treachery and disloyalty to her husband and she sneeringly reminds him that Bertie Lou is at a house party with young Palmer. He leaves her and drives madly out to the Palmer estate.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

For half a minute Rod failed to grasp the significance of what he heard, or rather the import of hearing Bertie Lou's voice at that time and in that room. He stood where he was, hesitating about breaking in upon her while the maid was present.

And then, before he had come to any decision about what he should do, it came to him with a shattering impact that Lila was right! Bertie Lou had not kept their agreement. She had broken her word, her vows, and destroyed his last remaining faith in her.

Rod stood there, helpless, for a black period that never could be measured, while the degrading conviction of Bertie Lou's guilt rooted itself deep in his soul. It was like soiled fingers being wiped at all that was clean and decent in his life. A bitter nausea swept over him and he leaned weakly against a wall for support.

The maid came out of Bertie Lou's room and turned in the other direction without seeing Rod. It is likely that even if she had seen him she'd have mistaken him for one of the party. He looked precisely like a drunken man at the moment, his head hung on one side with his shirt upon his dress shirt front and he appeared ready to collapse.

After a bit he attempted to pull himself together. It was in his mind to face Bertie Lou and he even took a few steps toward her door. But he did not reach it before he turned and walked dazedly, staggeringly, away.

What was there to say? He could not hear to see her, perhaps to fall down and beg her to deny what his eyes had seen. Rod dared no longer to trust even himself. No one was decent, no one was right. He might make a worm of himself. And Bertie Lou might let him do it, might even accept his beginning living a hell of married life that was without respect, without faith, utterly unhalloved.

Fear drove Rod out of the house. Fear of the depths of degradation to which he might sink to save himself from accepting the horrible truth of Bertie Lou's unfaithfulness. The temptation to plead for a lie from her, a lie that would admit him to what he would always suspect was a fool's paradise was too great to be resisted.

Why he suffered so terribly over what he had discovered Rod did not ask himself. Perhaps he thought, vaguely, that it was the pain one feels upon learning of the faithlessness of the world. Two women. One whom he had respected as a person who would keep a fair bargain had proved herself a cheat; and one he had loved and believed a really noble character had shown herself to be even worse.

Rod climbed into his taxicab and was driven back to the city in a mood as hopeless as any human mind can encounter. Everything was gone. His position, his friendship with Cyrus Loree—though he hardly realized this at the time, it was the devastating destruction of his faith in the two women who had meant all of love and honor to him that reduced him to a feeling of unspeakable disgust and loathing for them.

Strangely, it was Bertie Lou who grew his blackest thoughts. He could have killed her, if he'd had his hands on her throat then, he told himself. Her smooth white throat, her damnably kissable throat. The memory of it was torture to him.

to and fro to beat the devil. "I'll tell 'em, I'll be glad to drop him— and 'bow," he told himself. Rod did not speak him during the drive back to town. Time seemed to mean nothing to him now. The driver asked him, when they reached the Queensboro Bridge, where he should take him and Rod gave him the address of his apartment.

When they got there he stumbled out of the cab and handed the driver a bill which the latter stuffed into his pocket with a surprised grin after one glance at it. Rod did not ask for his change.

He climbed the stairs to his floor like an old man. Bitter, disillusioned, sick. An epithet had attached itself to Bertie Lou in his mind and he repeated it over and over with maddening monotony. "Money-hungry cheat."

Money, money, money. Lila wanted it. Bertie Lou wanted it. Lila wanted love, too. Rod wondered, with a stab of pain through his dulling misery, if Bertie Lou wanted it too—if she loved this Marco Palmer.

"But she didn't have to do it that way," Rod muttered aloud. "She could have had her freedom to marry young Palmer. . . . Oh, God, Bertie Lou."

The cruelest thing that ever happened to Rod happened then. He knew that he loved Bertie Lou. He knew why Lila and her treachery and that he had tricked and her profane offer of love had slipped out of his mind. Bertie Lou was all that mattered to him. She had been all that mattered to him, ever. He forgot the epithet in thinking of her as Marco's wife.

How clear the glass in retrospect. What is easier than looking backward? It is like solving other people's troubles; to see where you made yesterday's mistakes.

Rod knew what had happened to him—knew that Lila had fascinated him. The old appeal, that had lured him to her before he had never, perhaps, burned himself completely out. He had hated her, as she had hated him, because she was selfish and scheming.

He faced it frankly, even admitting to himself that Lila's determined pursuit of him might have flattered him. No, that was not so; he honestly had not known that she was deliberately working for a renewal of their love for each other. He had been warmed by their friendship and understanding.

If he had come to believe himself in love with her again it was because she had reversed his opinion of her and compelled him to admire and respect her as a truly noble creature.

His desire for her, that now ran deep in his memory like a poisonous weed, had not been noble. But at least, it could be said for him that he had held it in check, never so much as caressing her slim fingers. Rod did not feel ashamed; only humiliated that he had wanted to take her in his arms and kiss her.

He took upon himself the full blame for having killed Bertie Lou's love. He saw it now—she must have suffered over Lila. Who could tell to what lengths Lila had gone to break Bertie Lou's love in him? He'd never sought to find out why she had gone back to Wayville without a word to him.

He found it easy now to understand why he had wanted an explanation upon her return. He did not spare himself the painful remorse it cost him to admit that it was because of Lila that he hadn't wanted to take up their life when she had broken it off when she left. Lila, Lila again, with her subtle insinuations against Bertie Lou, her play on his natural resentment.

Rod sank upon the davenport and rested his face in his hands as he had in the taxi and the prayer that comes at least once to almost every human being's lips burst from his in an agony of repentance. "Oh God, if I only had it to do over again!"

How he would have dearly, he would cherish Bertie Lou. For a moment he forgot that she had been false beyond the breaking of her vows—that she had broken their pact, her promise to give him warning when she had broken it. Unless Marco had ordered it removed when he discovered that she'd left. It was likely. He'd gone on to his own quarters to dress on their way back from the swimming pool. They'd gone for an early dip when the party finally broke up at dawn. Everyone else had gone to bed.

The water was cold but fresh. Marco had ordered the pool filled that night, though it had been emptied for what his parents believed would be the last time for the season just before they went abroad. Bertie Lou had enjoyed the few minutes they spent in it after a dive from the springboard. Marco had spoiled the appetite it gave her for breakfast, though, when he suddenly took her in his arms and tried to kiss her. Bertie Lou was angry. She'd told him she didn't like that sort of thing. But Marco had only laughed at her. This was in her room, after they'd got out of their bathing suits in the shower rooms downstairs and come up in dressing gowns. Marco had asked for a cigaret and Bertie Lou had let him come in for one.

When he was gone, promising to dress and return to breakfast with her, Bertie Lou hastily packed her suitcase and hurried down to the garage and bribed the chauffeur, who had been kept up for all night duty in case a guest decided to leave, to take her to the railroad station.

She was not far behind Rod, but far enough to make a great difference in their lives. (To Be Continued)

The Woman's Day

All the to-do about the nickelocracy or the groceryette makes one wonder why so obvious a need of modern life wasn't filled long ago. For the last ten years, it seems, business women living alone in their little inador living-room kitchen and bath apartments, have moaned about the high cost of cooking for one.

"A can of anything makes at least two and generally three meals," they will tell you, "and who wants the same thing each day? A loaf of bread and a quart of pound of butter, tea, and coffee, which are the smallest amounts one can buy, lose their goodness long before the one who lives alone can finish them. It may be funny to say that two can live as cheaply as one, but when you try cooking for one you almost believe it."

Real estate men often have explained that the very reason for the shortage of one-room apartments is their two-frequent change of tenants. And their theory of the reason goes like this:

Lots of old maids and bachelors figure that even if apartment rent is higher than what they're paying for a room somewhere they'll make this up by saving on food and laundry and shampooing and all the things they can do in an apartment but can't do in a rooming or boarding house. But they soon learn that it doesn't work out that way.

In the first place, they get tired of cooking and housework when the novelty's worn off, and then they discover that it doesn't pay, anyway. Oh, if they got their dinners every night, it might. But they stock up on bread and butter and milk and fresh vegetables and fruits one night and by the next night they don't feel like cooking or they get an invitation to dinner, and by the time they're ready to cook their own dinner again, they must start marketing all over.

All of which seems to prove that the nickelocracy or groceryette with its five-and-ten-cent can sizes of meats and vegetables and fish and meats is not a consummation devoutly to be wished.

The nickelocracy will sell the proper assortment of cans and tins and thasets for a complete dinner for two for about 75 cents. Every day'll be consumed; no worry about what to do with the left-overs, and if one chooses to dine out the next night it can be done with a clear conscience and no sense of guilt at perfectly good food languishing in the ice-box.

All in all, the nickelocracy or groceryette is bound to thrive! It's the old story of a real need so obvious that one can't wonder it was not developed before this!

UNBLOCKING
Sometimes it is the simple, obvious procedure which the player overlooks as a result of leading incorrectly blocks his strong suit, sacrificing tricks which he could surely win by unblocking.

An illustration of a common situation in which unblocking wins two extra tricks follows:
Dummy holds—Diamond K 9 5 3 2
Declarer holds—Diamond A Q 10

The declaration is no trump and the lead is from the dummy. A player might inadvertently take the first trick with the diamond king. He would then take the next two tricks with the diamond ace and diamond queen. The three rounds would exhaust the diamonds in the declarer's hand and he would have no means of returning to the dummy to make the remaining cards in that suit good.

Five tricks may be made in diamonds by leading a small card from the dummy and taking the first trick with the diamond ace. The second trick should be taken with the diamond queen. On the lead the diamond, the declarer should win the diamond 10 and overtake with the diamond king in the dummy. Unless either east or west holds all of the missing diamonds, and this is not the probably distribution, the two remaining cards in the dummy will be winning tricks.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

TAKE NO CHANCES ON DOG'S BITE
Suitable control does not involve any harm to dogs, but indeed is distinctly to their benefit. It involves kind treatment, proper feeding, and a supply of drinking water, restraint of the dog to the owner's premises and control of the dog when out-of-doors, including muzzling of dogs that are allowed to run freely. Any dog that is sick should be restrained and studied and not permitted to run freely on the streets.

MODERN THEATER FAILS TO PROVIDE CULTURAL CHANCES

Women as mothers and teachers hold in their hands the destiny of the next generation," said Eva Le Gallienne, founder, director and president of the Civic Repertory Theatre in New York City.

"The use to which our boys and girls put their leisure time depends chiefly on the advice and suggestions which the mother makes in the home and the teacher in the school.

But the mother in the home and the teacher in the school are dependent on outside agencies for providing occupations for children's leisure time. They can only pick and choose among existing opportunities.

"The American theatre stands almost alone among the arts in its failure to provide a wealth of stimulating and interesting cultural opportunities. Our public libraries afford a vast range of choice in literature; our museums and galleries, in art; our concert halls and symphony societies, in music. And all within easy range of every pocketbook.

"The outstanding ambition of the Civic Repertory Theatre is the provision of entertaining and cultural opportunities in the realm of the theatre comparable to those already existing in the other arts, among which the American woman as mother and teacher can find suggestions for the pastime of the coming generation.

"I hope the success of the Civic Repertory Theatre through its first two seasons will stimulate other groups to provide like opportunities in every American community."

This And That In Feminine Lore

Wise women rely on facial massage to overcome the damage wrought by sun and exposure in summer. The matron as well as the deb, will appreciate one of the restful facials they give at the Lily Beauty Parlor, upstairs in the House and Hale block, phone 1671.

Chocolate Sponge. (6 servings.)
1 level tablespoonful gelatine.
¼ cup cold water.
¼ cup boiling water.
1 tablespoonful vanilla.
1-3 cup sugar.
3 eggs.
Few grains of salt.
2 squares of chocolate or 6 tablespoonfuls cocoa.

Soak gelatine in cold water five minutes, then dissolve in boiling water. Add cocoa or melted chocolate. Beat egg whites stiff and add well beaten egg yolks to the whites. Add sugar, then the dissolved gelatine, which has been beaten well. Beat and add flavoring. Pour into wet mold, chill and serve with whipped cream or whipped evaporated milk.

Chopped nuts or macaroons may be added and, for a more elaborate dessert, line mold with lady fingers or sponge cake.

Hang a slate and slate pencil or a paper pad and lead pencil in the kitchen so that you can jot down your grocery requirements as you think of them. This eliminates unnecessary trips and sometimes going without something necessary when the meal is ready for the table.

The queen of hearty desserts for early summer meals is undoubtedly strawberry shortcake. Following raspberries mixed with one third very ripe currants is very satisfactory. Now one can have ripe peach shortcake, a worthy rival of the strawberry, and on cool days when the thermometer isn't soaring above the ninety mark it is a most appetizing dessert.

The old-fashioned type of shortcake made by sifting together two cups of flour and four level teaspoons baking powder, adding half a teaspoon of salt and about four level tablespoons shortening, is the best liked, whether the shortcakes are used for dessert or in the role of a server of vegetables. When for the latter object they should be cut into biscuit size, split and well buttered when baked and filled with a combination of creamed or buttered peas and young carrots in a white sauce, and a little of the filling poured around the cake. These novel little shortcakes will be as welcome in the main course of the meal as the strawberry or peach confection is at its close.

An expert grower of gladiolus stresses the importance of cultivation and says this cannot be overdone. This summer when we are having so much rain and heat the gladiolus, phlox and a number of other flowers seem to be unusually tall. When cutting the blooms be sure to leave at least four leaves on the plant, more if you can as the leaves are essential to insure the new bulb's growth. They should be dug in the fall before the freezing weather, any time after the middle of September, according to the time planted. Cut the tops off close to the bulbs as soon as they are taken from the ground. Allow to dry off in the air and keep in an airy place for the winter. Do not leave them exposed to hot sun after drying as they will burn like a potato. Glad fans choose their new bulbs when they are in bloom in the gardens, or on exhibition at the shows. One cannot get a true description of them or any other flower from a catalogue. The best time to visit!

Keep cool by trying not to worry, and by doing all your work in the early morning.

Keep cool by pulling down all the shades in the heat of the day, closing outer doors and windows almost all the way, leaving windows open just enough at the top for ventilation.

Keep cool by bathing, using dusting powder, wearing fresh clothes, and by eating green foods and fresh fruits.

Keep cool by going out in the shady places, sitting quietly reading, resting and relaxing.

RABALM QUICKLY TOOK STING OUT OF INSECT BITE

"Riding through the swamps of Louisiana last summer, I felt a painful sting on my arm, followed by an immediate swelling that had all the earmarks of becoming serious. As soon as possible I applied a little Rabalm on the sting, which had become badly inflamed. Imagine my delight to find that within fifteen minutes the pain had gone. The swelling had begun to disappear, and within an hour, no trace of the bite was apparent." H. D. Arthur, New Orleans, La.

Rabalm is the result of a scientific effort to find an effective remedy for inflammation, wherever it occurs in skin or tissue. Smoothed lightly on the affected part without painful rubbing, Rabalm quickly penetrates to the seat of the inflammation. The first thing you notice is, how quickly it stops the itching and stinging when applied to any kind of insect bite. That, a little more slowly the redness and inflammation disappear. Two sizes, 50-cents and $1.00 containing 3 times as much. RABALM is for sale by all druggists.

Heenev Trained On Beer Which Caused His Defeat

New Alibi Brought Forward by Challenger's Manager; He Was Overweight on Day of Fight.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Aug. 9.—Everybody has accused Gene Tunney of having been just about 101 per cent fight on the night of the late unpleasantness in connection with the heavyweight championship match.

The answer, according to John Mortimer, who has made no secret of his beliefs, and others of the Heenev manager, was—beer. They don't mean root beer, either, or the kind some one called near and meant far.

Observers at the official weighing in were astonished when Heenev moved the bar all the way up to 203 1/2 pounds, particularly in view of the fact that he weighed 201 the week before and had dried out for more than 24 hours before he went on the scales.

Beer is the Answer

The answer? Beer, says the Heenev manager. It seems the original mistake came in the selection of a training camp that received the benefit of neither mountain nor sea breezes, thus causing the challenger to train hard in the midst of one of the hottest spells of the summer.

But the supplementary mistake, it now is admitted, is found in the fact that Heenev was permitted to take too much latitude with his liquid diet, beer again. The second mistake resulted from the first, as a matter of fact.

The way they explain it, Heenev lost so much weight in the days before working in the heat that he concluded beer and ale formed the only nourishment that could reconstitute the lost poundage with sufficient rapidity to prevent him from going stale. He, therefore, not only began to drink these liquids as a means of "toning his system," as he puts it, but also with the idea of rebuilding lost tissue.

The Big Day

Then came the day of the big megaphone play, Sunday, four days before the fight. Rickard took everybody, including John Bananas and his Aunt Martha, down in his private yacht.

The challenger, they say, immediately jumped to the conclusion that he had gone stale. Further training of an intensive sort, if such a condition proved to be true, would only figure in aggravate matters. Beer drinking, on the other hand, is sometimes prescribed by trainers as a possible means of checking staleness.

So perforce Heenev decreased the amount of his training but not the amount of his beer—at least not until several days before the fight. The result was Heenev's rapid gain in weight, the kind of weight he didn't want and couldn't use.

The chances were, however, that not even Mortimer will deny that a fighter who aimed at 198 pounds and hit 203 1/2 didn't quite achieve the same of perfection for his big moment.

BRUCE FLOWERS IMPRESSIVE IN HIS FIRST WORKOUT HERE

Hartford Fight Principals

Bruce Flowers, the flashy colored lightweight, who meets Louis (Kid) Kaplan in the star bout at the Hartford Eastern League park tomorrow night, arrived in Hartford yesterday.

The colored boy put a great left hook on display in his sparring yesterday; that is Flowers' chief weapon and he throws many left hooks in all his fights.

The colored boy is known in ring circles for his satisfactory fights until it has come to be expected that any bout in which he is a principal will replete with action.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Show This One to the Wife and Then Run

"A passenger in an automobile should sit still and say nothing because any other course is fraught with danger," is the view of Supreme Court Judge Curtis of Connecticut in a recent written opinion handed down in a case.

"Interference by laying hold of an operating lever or by exclaiming, or even by direction or inquiry is generally to be deprecated as in the long run the greater safety lies in letting the driver alone." However, it is not expected that the opinion of the Connecticut state supreme court judge is liable to change the habits of the rear seat drivers, especially the feminine ones.

If only the automobile salesman like the driver, would hit you and run.

A city motorist, passing along a country road, stopped to talk to a farm lad, who was hoeing corn. A quarter mile away on a hillside he sighted what he thought was a scarecrow, leaning slightly forward, apparently on an implement handle, but it was so startlingly lifelike that he remarked to the lad about its efficiency in keeping away the birds. The boy laughed and said: "That's not a scarecrow; that's a man working by the day."

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW HOW, HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

THE TINYMITES

The Tinymites all stopped in awe. My, they were shocked by what they saw. The wooden man, still in the blaze was burning at the waist. "Hey, hurry up and rescue me," he shouted. "Can't you Tinymites see that I will shortly burn to pieces if you don't make haste?" "Oh, my! Oh, me! Oh, me! Oh, my!" The Tinymites heard Scouty cry. "Our wooden man has fallen in our fire. He's burning fast. Where is some water? Get a pail!" But this plan was to no avail. They couldn't find a pail nearby. My, how long would this last? Then Clowny had a happy thought. Said he, "Come on! I think we ought to do out best to rescue him. Imagine all that heat! Let's drag him out across the ground where we know he'll be safe and sound. If we all help, we'll do it by just pulling on his feet." And so the Tinies, brave and bold, rushed wildly up and grab-

ONLY 17 HORSES LEFT IN EIGHTH DISTRICT

Tax Abstract Shows Almost Total Disappearance of Hay Burning Motors.

The abstract of the Eighth School and Utilities District, completed by Assessor Samuel Nelson, shows some interesting figures. There is the amount of tax to be paid on horses owned in the district, which now number but seventeen, with a value of $1,700 or $100 each. The time is not so far removed but what many residents of the North End easily recall that there were two livery stables in the vicinity of Depot Square in either of which more than that number of horses could be found. A fire in the Allen Livery Stable on North Main street resulted in the death of about half of that number. The horses that were used by Frank Goetz when he conducted a bakery business on Main street also numbered more than can be found in the whole district today, not to mention those used by such coal dealers as John F. Sheridan and Griswold and even the Atkins lumber Company had a large number of horses.

While horses have almost disappeared from the Eighth District the figures show that there are now 62 automobiles in the bounds of the district. They are valued at $254,305.

ALUMINUM SHOWER

Miss Margaret Larson of Stark-weather street was honored with an aluminum shower at her home last evening. It was given by the officers and teachers of the North Methodist Sunday school. Members of the class formerly taught by Miss Larson attended. They arrived during her absence and when she returned she was much surprised to find her house decorated with flowers and pink and white streamers, and so many of her friends and associates gathered there. The time passed quickly with the usual pastimes, including light refreshments. Miss Larson is to be married in the near future to Ralph Pierson of Brockton, Mass.

GORDON MADE AUDITOR OF STATE POLICE BODY

Chief Is First Officer Here to Occupy Office in the Association.

Chief of Police Samuel G. Gordon was elected an auditor of the Connecticut Police Benefit Association at the annual meeting of the association held in New Britain yesterday. This is the first time that a member of the Manchester department has been honored by a place among the officers of the association.

The work of an auditor of the association will be increased this year because of a change that was voted at the meeting yesterday. In the past members of the association, which includes only members of organized police departments of the state, are paid at the rate of $2 a day in case of illness and a death benefit is also paid. It is the plan of the executive committee of the association to increase the death benefits, the exact amount to be paid to be decided later, by a change in assessment.

This is to be done by having each member of the association pay an additional 50 cent assessment each month for each death of a member. This additional income, it is figured, would raise a considerable capital and make possible the increase in the death benefit. The state every two years makes an appropriation for the association and each member pays dues of $2 a year. The salaries paid to the officers of the association amounts to less than $500 a year, the body being run as a purely mutual benefit organization.

ICE SUPPLY HERE IS ABOUT USED UP

Largest Dealer to Begin Importing the Commodity After Today.

Manchester's ice supply has run short. Even with the increased number of ice making machines and the installation in homes of automatic cooling machines the supply of ice is again short this year and starting tomorrow L. T. Wood, who handles the largest part of the ice trade in Manchester will begin bringing in ice by freight.

The ice will come from Springfield in freight cars which will be unloaded in the freight yards and delivered direct to the customers. Prices will not be advanced, although the handling of ice in this way will be done at a loss, Mr. Wood states. Six years ago the ice supply here ran short and such ice as was used after early August had to be brought in by freight. There was a big loss by shrinkage in addition to the freight rate. The price was not advanced at that time and it is Mr. Wood's plan to follow his previous course.

Pond Freakish
Manchester's largest ice house is located at Globe Hollow's east pond, but this pond, for some reason, has not been freezing over like other ponds in town. Last year the ice stored there, 2500 tons, was carted from Highland Park. Six thousand three hundred tons of ice were harvested by Mr. Wood last winter and

What is left at the Globe Hollow pond is being kept for such an emergency as the failure of the freighted ice to arrive. To completely empty the ice house might result in an ice famine in case of a sudden hot spell. Last year it was also necessary to freight in ice, but the shortage then was caused by the burning of the ice house at Buck's pond at Highland Park on July 4.

The "wreck" means the institution of a new branch to be known as Voiture No. 1007 and is to have its headquarters in Rockville with a membership area extending to Danielson on the east, taking in the greater part of Tolland and Windham counties.

All Manchester men who are to take part in the "wreck" and those who are to witness the exercises are to meet at the Memorial building in Rockville, Saturday evening at 7:30.
