

HOOVER LEAVES WEST; ON TRIP TO WASHINGTON

Satisfied Grain Belt Will Go Republican—To Direct Campaign in Eastern States.

Enroute to Washington, With Hoover, Aug. 24.—Parting with the midwest, satisfied that the grain belt will go Republican in November, Herbert Hoover was speeding toward Washington today to take personal command of his campaign on the wet Atlantic seaboard.

The Republican nominee will take up this task, convinced his hardest fight must be fought in the "water" states from Massachusetts to Maryland. He has agreed with his advisors that the candidacy of Gov. Smith, his Democratic rival, will have its greatest appeal in these states, due to the prohibition.

Determined to Win.

Hoover however has determined to make a fight for each state. He was said to believe that the Republicans could win the Atlantic seaboard, despite its apparent opposition to prohibition. If these states were properly organized, his plans will be to force the Republican issues of prosperity, efficient administration and governmental economy to the fore, rather than to attack Smith's prohibition stand. By this strategy, the Republican standard-bearer believes the east can be kept in the Republican column.

Hoover came east with one fly in the midwest ointment. It was the prospect of a strike on all railroads west of the Mississippi. Such a strike, it was feared, might be made a political football and used to destroy all the Republican gains scored by Hoover in his three-day stay in Iowa.

Hoover's advisers believed he had definitely halted the farm revolt that started during the Kansas City convention and had placated even the most disgruntled Republican farm leaders during his conferences in Cedar Rapids. The Hoover farm relief program, it was felt, would win back to the party the thousands of farmers who threatened to bolt because of the defeat of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Strike Threatened.

The threat of a railroad strike, consequently, created a good deal of alarm. The strike vote is now

PRAISE SMITH FOR POSITION ON "DRY" LAWS

Thousands of Telegrams Still Pouring In—Democratic Candidates May Take Opposite Stand.

New York, Aug. 24.—Governor Al Smith has planned his hope of being elected president on his demand for liberalization of the prohibition amendment and modification of the Volstead law but he made it plain today that he has no intention of asking Democratic candidates for the U. S. Senate or any other public office to take the same stand.

So far as Smith is concerned they are at liberty to wage their own campaign by promising vigorous opposition to any change in the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

Because he promised in his acceptance speech to enforce prohibition so long as it is a part of the law of the land, the governor does not feel that it would be inconsistent for any Dry Democratic candidate, or, for that matter, any advocate of prohibition, to support him at the polls in November.

Personal Liberty.

Smith takes the position that he, as well as every other Democratic candidate, has the right to express his personal views on prohibition or any other issue, regardless of the platform. He made it plain, however, that he does not feel that he, nor any other Democratic candidate, can change the party's platform by expressing his personal views on any particular issue.

In declaring his belief that every Dry could support him without suffering a guilty conscience, Gov. Smith said:

"Every man is nominated on the platform of the supreme body of his party; to wit, the national convention. Nobody can amend the platform."

Not only does Smith feel that he has the right to express his views on the Dry Democrats but he does not see how any "sensible" person could take exception to what is said about prohibition in his acceptance speech.

"I don't see how any sensible person could take exception to what I said about prohibition," the governor declared.

Pleased Over Telegrams.

The governor was elated over

They Mixed With Tom Mix

This picture of Mr. and Mrs. Will Morrissey was taken shortly after the stage and cabaret comedian and his wife had an encounter with Tom Mix, screen star, following a party at the home of George Beban in Hollywood. Mrs. Morrissey, who is Miss Miller, actress, tried to help her husband when he and Mix came to blows over an alleged "wise crack" of Morrissey's. Mix declares he didn't hit Morrissey until the latter had jumped on him, and that Mrs. Morrissey probably was struck by one of her husband's wild swings.

ALL 7 SELECTMEN FILE FOR RETURN

Nomination Papers of Entire Board Go In—Contest for Constable Is Certain.

All seven of the Republican selectmen now constituting the board are to be candidates for re-nomination at the primaries next month, their petitions having been filed this morning. The petitions were left with Town Clerk Samuel Turkington by William S. Hyde, chairman of the Republican Town Committee, who obtained the necessary endorsements without finding it necessary to leave the municipal building. Each candidate is proposed by Mr. Hyde.

Those who have had their applications for selectmen filed are: Albert Jackson, William W. Robertson, George E. Keich, Wells A. Strickland, Thomas J. Rogers, John H. Hyde and Robert J. Smith.

The last day for the filing of petitions to go on the Republican primary list is Monday, the time expiring at midnight. There still remain several places for which no candidates have filed papers.

Isaac Cole has filed a petition as a candidate for auditor in the Republican primary and the petition of Judge William S. Hyde of the Probate Court, to succeed himself, was also left with the town clerk this morning.

There is sure to be a real contest for the constable. Charles A. Sweet was the first new candidate in the field, having filed his petition early in the month. Constable James W. Foley is a candidate again this year, his petition having been filed. In addition to these two names there is another new comer in George M. Bidwell, a north end resident, who makes his bow in the political field, and is seeking the office. Other Republican constables will be candidates again, so that there will be six candidates for four places.

To date little interest has been shown by Democrats and the only one who has been filed is that of Constable James Duffy, who is a candidate for re-nomination. Last year the names of candidates in the Democratic primary were not filed until 11:30 o'clock on the last day. Then all the petitions were filed at once by the chairman of the Democratic Town Committee.

BOSSY IS EDITOR OF HIS OWN PAPER

Will Issue It Tomorrow and Sell It Himself—"To Tell All."

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 24.—All Newburyport, his supporters and "the enemy" alike, today awaited publication of the first edition of the "newspaper" in which Mayor Andrew "Bossy" Gillis promises "to tell all."

"Those boobs will get an earful and don't think they won't," "Bossy" said today as he continued to pump gasoline at his filling station without a permit in defiance of the local ordinance which forbids him to pump gas in his garage. He was found guilty and sentenced to serve 330 days in jail and pay a fine of $1,140.

"It will be a regular sheet and will tell both sides of this racket, especially 'Bossy's' side. There will be no free copies; I'm going to sell this paper and they'll buy it all right!"

Not Worried.

The "bad boy" mayor is exactly himself despite his load of woes. He appears entirely unworried through it all. His chief concern today were preparation of the pamphlet newspaper and for the celebration of his 32nd birthday anniversary on Sunday. "He has had a huge sign painted to hang over his gas station. It reads: 'Bossy's Birthday August 26—32 Years in the City—Bad Boy—Good Mayor.'"

In addition to the prison sentence from which he has appealed "Bossy" faces an injunction restraining him from conducting business. An order was made returnable next Wednesday by Judge Quinn in Boston term of Superior Court at Boston yesterday directing Gillis to show cause why he should not be enjoined from operating the gas station on the grounds that it is a public nuisance. Neighbors seek the restraining writ, charging "Bossy" utters "loud shouts and cries until late at night" and fills the air with "raucous talk and language" disturbing their sleep.

"Bossy" continues to crank out gasoline.

HOUSE BURNS DOWN

Father and Another Man Also Wounded—Bootleg War Reopened.

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 24.—James T. Pitcher's new house was burned today while Pitcher looked on, wondering why the firemen didn't show up. Pitcher's home is on Triangle street and his new house is near it. His excitement he forgot to tell where the fire was and by the time it was located the fire had completed its work.

SOON POSSIBLE TO COOK YOUR MEALS WITH RADIO

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 24.—The day is coming when the lord of the manor, or the head of the household with a less unostentatious title, can cease worrying about the amount of fuel not in the basement.

And there is also some happiness in store for the cook who utilizes something more than a can opener to prepare meals.

Radio, it is predicted, will take care of both of these items.

Turn on the machine and broadcast yourself a load of coal, or, if you desire, just sufficient heat to cook a meal.

That's the probability that looms in the near future as the result of experiments being conducted by the General Electric Company, to test the heat effects of the short-wave radio, it was learned from Dr. Charles Sheard, famous Rochester,

KELLOGG NOW IN PARIS FOR PACT PARLEY

Secretary of State Gets Warm Welcome as He Steps Off Boat—To Sign the Treaty on Monday.

Paris, Aug. 24.—Frank B. Kellogg, American secretary of state, who came to France to sign the treaty outlawing war, arrived here today from Havre at Ten o'clock. The American diplomat was met at the station by representatives of the French government.

Myron T. Herrick, the United States ambassador, accompanied the French officials to the railway station to meet Secretary Kellogg. The secretary had luncheon with the ambassador after which he paid an informal call upon the French foreign secretary, Aristide Briand, later in the afternoon the foreign minister returned to the city from Havre Secretary Kellogg received representatives of the press when he spoke of his plans for visiting Ireland.

HANSON IS DEAD; DRY AGENT VICTIM

Mistaken for Rum Runner Near Niagara Falls; Long In Hospital.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Jacob D. Hanson, 44, secretary of the Niagara Falls Lodge of Elks, died at a hospital here today, the victim of Coast Guardsmen's bullets. Hanson was shot in the head on May 6, last.

Hanson was shot on Lewiston hill near here when he failed to stop his automobile at the command of Coast Guardsmen Glenn Jennings and Chris Dew, who were patrolling the vicinity for rum-runners.

Hennings and his immediate superior Frank Beck, commander of Coast Guard at Fort Niagara, are under indictment in connection with the shooting on a charge of second degree assault. Dew was exonerated by the Grand Jury as the shot which struck Hanson was alleged to have been fired by Jennings.

Fight For Life.

Since the shooting Hanson has been confined to a hospital in a serious condition most of the time. Until a few days ago, however, he was maintaining a strong fight for life and gave every indication of surviving indefinitely, notwithstanding the fact that he has been blind and mentally defective as a result of the wound.

The incident aroused considerable bitterness at the time and many prominent persons, including public officials agitated the punishment of the responsible guardsmen. Coast Guard officials refused to turn Dew and Jennings over to the state but writs of habeas corpus were later obtained in Buffalo from Federal Judge John R. Hazel. The men were then arraigned before a justice of peace and released on bail.

CHINESE WHO KILLED 10 CALMLY ADMITS CRIME

Fairfield, Calif., Aug. 24.—Loy Young, who killed ten of his countrymen on a ranch near here Wednesday, today was in custody of officers. He was captured yesterday after fleeing in the automobile of one of his victims.

The Chinese killer readily admitted to the wholesale slaying but only shrugged his shoulders when asked for a motive. After being captured, Loy Young begged for narcotics.

Officers said they learned that Young had been discharged at the ranch where he was employed several months ago for attacking Nolie Wong, 16-year-old daughter of the proprietor.

TWO CHILDREN ARE HIT BY GANGSTERS' BULLETS

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Sprayed by machine gun bullets as they were driving near their home today, two small children, their father and another man suffered probable fatal wounds.

The shooting was said by police to mark reopening of a bootleg war that already this month has resulted in bombing of two Jamestown homes.

The victims of the machine gun were Joseph and John Pellegrino, 5 and 7 respectively, their father Carlo Pellegrino and Frank Racitana.

Both children were reported to be dying of their wounds. The father suffered a wound in his left temple. Racitana has seven bullet wounds in his arm.

The Pellegrino car was approaching their home when the machine of the gangsters drew abreast. A machine gun was thrust over the side of the machine and a burst of bullets was fired. The machine gunners' car, carrying four men, then sped away.

AMATEURS REPORT SOS FROM MISSING FLYERS

Lady Golfers, Menace To Players In London

London, Aug. 24.—A new sex war has broken out in Britain. On this occasion the golf course is the scene of the conflict.

A move to restrict women golfers from playing on one day a week is under consideration in several prominent clubs in the London district. Resolutions to this effect are to come before the club committees at forthcoming meetings.

The cause is stated to be the "un-sportsmanlike" conduct of women players.

These proposals have caused a sensation among women members of the clubs concerned, and heated scenes are expected when the resolutions are tabled.

The trouble has arisen through a series of incidents which have occurred on several occasions when women have been playing. They concern the etiquette which lays down that no player may drive from the tee until the player in front has played his second shot. In many cases, it is stated, women have violated this rule with the result that other golfers have been subjected to considerable annoyance and inconvenience.

At one of the clubs a man player had to receive medical attention as the result of a woman driving into him before he had played his second shot. Another was struck on the cheek and badly bruised.

VOLSTEAD REPLIES TO SMITH'S SPEECH

Says New York Governor is to Blame for Liquor Passing Through State.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 24.—Andrew Volstead, father of the "Prohibition Enforcement Act," today sharply criticized Gov. A. Smith's speech of acceptance in a statement given to the press. Volstead charged the Democratic presidential candidate with avoiding his party's issues in dealing with the liquor situation. He also charged Gov. Smith "purposely seeks to become the candidate of the liquor interests."

The New York governor's plan whereby the 18th Amendment would be amended so that each state could determine its own standard of alcoholic content was termed a "joke" by Volstead.

"In his dealings with the liquor question, Gov. Smith goes outside the issues as made by his party. He plainly does this for the purpose of appealing to the wets so as to obtain their support. He purposely seeks to become the candidate of the liquor interests. Every organization against prohibition will support him."

Mr. Volstead's statement follows:

"In his dealings with the liquor question, Gov. Smith goes outside the issues as made by his party. He plainly does this for the purpose of appealing to the wets so as to obtain their support. He purposely seeks to become the candidate of the liquor interests. Every organization against prohibition will support him."

HOOVER EXPECTED AT HOME TONIGHT

Leaders Await His Coming for Decisions on Present Campaign Problems.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Having shifted the Republican machine west of the Mississippi into high gear, Herbert Hoover will return to Washington tonight to find many important questions of campaign policy awaiting his decision.

Although the business of building an organization is declared to be progressing rapidly in the east and south, it is to the Republican nominee himself that the party strategists look for final decisions on the program for the next two months.

The word has gone out that Hoover himself will be the generalissimo of his campaign, with National Chairman Hubert Work executing the decisions of the commander-in-chief. Hoover, it is declared, will employ the aggressive talents which won him his reputation in many fields.

To Decide Questions.

Among the questions he is expected to decide are:

Whether he shall make a personal campaign in the east to counter-attack the strong Democratic bid for the wet states.

A clear definition of the policies of the campaign, with particular reference to the handling of the wet and dry question of the north Atlantic seaboard.

The exact nature of the campaign in the south, some advisers having proposed that the south be left to handle its own "revolt" and others urging that the nominee take a personal hand in the fight.

The Republican nominee will lose no time in swinging into action despite his arduous trip to the Pacific coast, it was learned. With a house near his own residence already engaged for his executive offices, Hoover is expected to be found at his desk early next week.

120 NUNS REGISTER

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 24.—More than a hundred nuns, sisters of the Holyoke registered here and in Holyoke today to vote in the coming state primaries and national election. The nuns were registered under their secular names. They came from the Providence hospital day nursery in two groups, the first of forty and the second of eighty nuns.

It is most unusual for the sisters to register although the priests regularly do.

Inquiry disclosed that registration of nuns was general today in this section.

RADIO OPERATORS IN THREE CITIES RECEIVE MESSAGES SAYING CRAMER AND HASS-ELL ARE DOWN NEAR NEWFOUNDLAND; EXPERTS DOUBT THAT REPORTS CAME FROM AVIATORS—GREENLAND VILLAGERS SIGHTED PLANE SUNDAY MORNING BELIEVED TO BE GREATER ROCKFORD.

New Hope for the eventual rescue of Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, who took off from Cochrane, Ontario six days ago for Mount Evans, Greenland, on the second leg of their proposed flight from Rockford, Ill., to Stockholm, Sweden, was felt today with the receipt by three amateur radio operators of a message ostensibly sent by the missing fliers.

The message was not regarded as authentic, however, as friends of the aviators stated that neither Cramer nor Hassell was a radio operator. Cramer merely has learned a few letters which he could indicate his position through a code system.

The message stated that Cramer and Hassell had been forced down on a small island north of Greenland, and were running short of food. It was picked up in New York, Chicago and Toledo. It indicated that the two aviators were safe and uninjured, but that they needed immediate assistance.

However, the authenticity of the call for help was further doubted in several quarters, in view of reports from the Copenhagen that a plane answering the description of the "Greater Rockford" had been seen flying over Fiskonasneset, Greenland, late Sunday morning.

The Greenland report was more likely to be correct, it was pointed out, inasmuch as it would place the fliers in a position more or less on their course, whereas the Newfoundland report would put them far off their intended line of flight.

The Danish government, according to the Copenhagen dispatches, was inclined to regard the report from Greenland as correct, as the plane was seen by natives of two villages, and there was believed to be no other plane within hundreds of miles of Fiskonasneset.

GETS S. O. S. MESSAGE

TOLEDO, O., AUG. 24.—Joseph E. Williams, amateur radio operator, today said he had received an S O S message from the Greater Rockford.

THE GREATER ROCKFORD DISAPPEARED WHILE A FLIGHT WAS BEING ATTEMPTED FROM ROCKFORD, ILL., TO STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN. THE PILOTS WERE BERT HASS-ELL AND PARKER CRAMER.

Williams, 40, Toledo, 26 years old and who lives at 1935 Freeman avenue, has operated an amateur sending station for 13 years. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan and is now budget engineer for the Surface Combustion Co., manufacturers of industrial furnaces.

Williams' brother-in-law, J. D. Reed, a cotton broker of New York City, plans to go to the South Pole with Commander Richard Byrd. Because of these plans, Williams recently has been keeping close watch for all radio signals from airplanes attempting long distance or over water flights.

"I WAS WORKING MY SET ABOUT 11:30 P. M. WHEN I FIRST GOT THE S O S SIGNAL," WILLIAMS SAID TODAY. "I WAS PRETTY MUCH THRILLED OVER IT, BECAUSE IT WAS THE FIRST S O S SIGNAL I HAD RECEIVED IN THE 13 YEARS I HAD BEEN INTERESTED IN RADIO."

"THE S O S SIGNALS WERE FOLLOWED BY THE CALL LETTERS KHAH, THE LETTERS OF THE GREATER ROCKFORD'S SET. THE S O S SIGNALS WERE RECEIVED FOR ABOUT 20 MINUTES, WHILE I ATTEMPTED TO GET SIGNALS THROUGH TO THEM THAT I WAS LISTENING IN."

"FINALLY THEY HEARD ME AND THE FIRST MESSAGE WAS: 'CAN YOU GET IN COMMUNICATION WITH THE PRES?' I TOLD THEM I COULD, AND THEIR NEXT MESSAGE WAS: 'WE ARE STRANDED ON SMALL ISLAND 100 MILES NORTH OF NEWFOUNDLAND. WE ARE ROCKFORD TO SWEDEN FLIERS.'"

"I BROKE IN TO ASK IF I WAS THE FIRST ONE TO COMMUNICATE WITH THEM, AND THEIR ANSWER WAS: 'YOU ARE THE FIRST STATION WE HAVE WORKED FROM HERE. O. M.' THE INITIALS ARE THE INITIALS FOR 'OLD MAN' WHICH EVERY RADIO OPERATOR USES."

"THEN I ASKED IF THERE WAS ANYTHING I COULD DO FOR THEM, AND THEY ASKED ME TO DO ALL IN MY POWER."

Water Tank For Ellington
The Hatheway Miller Legion Post of Ellington and the select men are working together on a proposition to build a tank which will hold 50,000 gallons of water. This tank would give better fire protection to Ellington center. It is estimated that the water would last 17 minutes being pumped out of the new fire apparatus. The Hatheway Miller Post would give their way free of charge, the only expense would be for the material.

FRANK CERVINI FILES NOMINATION PAPERS

Is Candidate for Republican Registrar—Veitch Will Seek Renomination.

The outstanding contest in the Republican Primary next month will be for the position of registrar of voters as this noon Frank Cervini, employed as a clerk in Cheney Brothers mills filed his petition for the office of registrar to be voted upon at the primaries next month. Robert Veitch, the present Republican registrar of voters has already announced that he is to be a candidate and while his petition was not filed up to press time this afternoon it is known that it will be presented in time to be placed on the machines.

Mr. Veitch is employed in Hartford and has held the office of registrar since the withdrawal of Thomas Ferguson from that office. He did not secure the nomination and election without a contest when he was first elected and is ready to enter into another campaign for the office again.

ONLY 18 OF THE 300 PHEASANTS RETURNED

Young Hens Unable to Fly Far Come Back to August Senkbell's Coops.

Eighteen of the 300 pheasants that flew away from the pheasant farm of August Senkbell have returned to their coops, but the remaining 282 are among the missing and having been absent for the better part of two weeks their return is not expected by Mr. Senkbell.

The eighteen that came back, he says, are young pheasants that evidently were unable to fly far when frightened from their coops and after remaining in the vicinity they found their way back to food and shelter. True to their breed only the hen pheasants returned. Even the hen pheasant is a roamer, one that makes no particular place its home for any length of time and it is only due to the young age, Mr. Senkbell says, that they came back at all. The cock pheasant is a bird that makes no particular place its home and goes from place to place and even in the number of young birds that have returned not one is of the male species.

SINGERS MAKE HIT AT MOVIE SHOW

One of the highlights of the presentation at the State theater of "The White Sister" is the singing of Miss Arlyne Moriarty and Jack Sanson. Jack's ability as a singer is recognized and the audience at the theater last evening applauded heavily at the conclusion of his numbers. Miss Moriarty without doubt, is one of the most promising vocalists in Manchester and those who have had the pleasure of listening to selections she has presented at the State at intervals during the past year cannot help but notice the remarkable improvement in tone, volume and quality. Manchester is quick to recognize ability and any effort to please. As a result the incidental music with the feature picture was a decided hit with the audience.

TALL CEDARS HOLD REGULAR MEETING

Nutmeg Forest, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, held a regular meeting in the Masonic Temple last night. Grand Tall Cedar James O. McCaw named two additional officers, Edward Montie as sentinel and Thomas Maxwell as chaplain.

Several candidates are awaiting initiation into the local Forest and it is planned to have them take their obligations at a ceremonial to be held in New London next month. The exact date has not been set for the New London affair.

HOLD MORE SUSPECTS IN OREGON DEATH

Mexico City, Aug. 24.—Twelve persons implicated in the plot which resulted in the assassination of President-elect Obregon were brought before the District Court at San Angel today for preliminary examination. Among those arraigned were Carlos Castro Balda, who has confessed to the bombing of the Chamber of Deputies and Obregon's headquarters last May.

Police are now working on the theory that Mother Superior Concepcion Acevedo, who is alleged to have inspired Leon Toral to kill Obregon, was under the control of a "master mind" determined to eliminate Obregon from the Mexican political scene.

LOCAL GUNNERS GET READY FOR SHOOT

A shoot will be held by the members of the Manchester Rod and Gun Club at their traps in Bolton tonight and again on Saturday. The shooting is being done to secure practice for the team that the club will enter in the state gathering of Fish and Game Clubs of Connecticut to be held at Lake Compounce, Bristol, a week from tomorrow.

CHIEF BATTLEGROUND

Washington, Aug. 24.—Missouri, Wisconsin, Montana and Nevada will be the chief battlegrounds in the west of this year's presidential campaign.

Thus said Senator Fess (R) of Ohio today, as he departed for home to conduct an active Hoover campaign there.

These are the only western states in which he conceded the Democrats a chance.

He predicted the so-called solid south would remain Democratic.

"But that doesn't include the border states of Tennessee, Kentucky, and Oklahoma, which I think we will carry," he declared.

WIFE SLAYER COLLAPSES

New York, Aug. 24.—Unable to sleep and eating practically nothing, Mrs. Frances Kirkwood was in a state of collapse today in the home of her mother in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Kirkwood was released from the Queens county jail under $10,000 bail on Wednesday following her indictment by the Grand Jury on a charge of homicide in the killing of her husband, Glen H. Kirkwood, young veterinarian, at Shakespeare cliff near here at 3:32 p. m. today, having swum the English channel from Cape Griz Nez, France. She entered the water on the French coast at 12:30 a. m.

COOLIDGE STARTS ON ANOTHER TRIP

President Invited for a Day's Fishing at Wealthy Wisconsin Man's Estate.

Superior, Wis., Aug. 24.—Another of his ever more constantly recurring excursions away from the Summer White House on the Brule was scheduled to take President Coolidge to Lewis, Wis., today, as the overnight guest of Charles Lewis, Minneapolis broker.

Immediately after the fulfillment of a few minor engagements at the temporary executive offices here this morning, Mr. Coolidge planned to entrain for Lewis, his special train on a schedule that will get him there in time for some fishing this afternoon.

Although Lewis is only about 75 miles by road from the Brule, there is such an absolute dearth of accommodations at the little jumping-off place it was found to be necessary to use the presidential special train over a roundabout route and leave it there for the night on a siding to afford the Secret Service Men, newspaper men and photographers a place to sleep.

Old Operator
The executive's host for the afternoon thirty years ago was a telegraph operator. Successful speculations on the stock market skyrocketed him into the extremely moneyed class and today he holds forth almost like a feudal baron on the sumptuous estate upon which he will entertain Mr. Coolidge, located about two miles from the little town he founded and which bears his name.

Lewis has set up an estate and game preserve equal to almost any in the country. It is said to be even more inaccessible than Cedar Island Lodge, for Lewis has thrown around it a network of barbed wire and employed a corps of guards to keep out poachers and other trespassers. Specially stocked streams run throughout the estate and promise the President ample and easy fishing.

The President and his party will leave Lewis tomorrow morning, reaching here in the afternoon.

and it was plainly his duty to recommend to the Legislature that some suitable law be passed to enforce it. One of the chief reasons in enforcing prohibition has been the lack of enforcement in the state of New York, as large quantities of illegal liquor have come from that state into other states.

"His complaint against lawlessness cannot with good grace come from a person who is so largely responsible for the condition of which he complains. Had he vetoed the bill repealing the liquor laws of New York and done his duty in enforcing them, there would have been much less occasion for complaint."

SWIMS CHANNEL

Dover, England, Aug. 24.—Miss Hilda Sharp, a 17-year-old London nurse maid, came ashore at Shakespeare cliff near here at 3:32 p. m. today, having swum the English channel from Cape Griz Nez, France. She entered the water on the French coast at 12:30 a. m.

PRaise SMITH FOR POSITION ON "DRY" LAWS

The thousands of congratulatory messages which poured into the capitol and executive mansion, following his speech of acceptance...

"Did you get any of the other kind?" he was asked. "Well," he answered smiling, "if any of that kind came I didn't see them."

The governor laughed at reports that he was keenly disappointed because some of the outstanding dry leaders of the south, including Senator Carter Glass of Virginia...

"Why they were all up to Albany last week and I had a long talk with them about my acceptance speech," the governor said.

Dry leaders who conferred with the governor prior to the notification, including Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, are understood to have told him that they would support his personal views on prohibition...

"I have been under pretty much of a strain for the last two weeks and I want to relax and get some rest before the campaign," the governor said.

The governor expects to return to New York on Monday, remaining here for a couple of days and then going to Syracuse where he will speak at the New York State Fair on Thursday.

Although he insists that his plans after his appearance at the state fair are indefinite it was reported that the governor was seriously considering a week's vacation somewhere in the northwest, possibly Wisconsin, just prior to formally launching his active campaign.

While Smith's campaign itinerary has not yet been mapped out it is known that he has bluntly told party managers that he does not intend to do any outdoor speaking. He is perfectly willing to do all kinds of handshaking from the rear of his campaign train, but he is afraid of developing throat trouble if he attempts to deliver any addresses in the open.

CONN. WOMAN WANTS HER WAR RELICS BACK

G. A. R. Post Wants to Return Them to Southern City Whence They Came.

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 24.—Mayor Phillips' "goodwill" expedition into Virginia was pushed still further into the future today when he and nine others who had intended to make the trip were served with papers in an injunction suit to restrain them from carrying certain Grand Army relics from Stamford to Richmond.

Mrs. Anna Marie Du Bois, widow of Benjamin Franklin Du Bois, members of Company I, Twentieth New York Volunteers, started the injunction suit. Mrs. Du Bois says that on May 4, 1920, she left W. G. Minor Post, G. A. R., take certain relics belonging to her husband's estate, with the distinct understanding she was to have them back if the Post ever went out of existence.

The writ describes the relics as a piece of the flag that flew over a piece of a chair which Jefferson Davis used when he was President of the Confederate States. "By the fortunes of war" the relics fell into possession of Company I, Twentieth New York Volunteers, and were divided among its members, Mr. Du Bois thus sharing them.

MEXICO'S DEBTS Mexico City, Aug. 24.—Another effort will be made by the international bankers' committee representing Mexican bondholders in foreign countries to obtain an early resumption of interest payments, it was learned today.

H. E. Sterrett, representing the Morgan banking interests on the committee, will shortly initiate proceedings with Finance Minister Montes De Oca to discuss the interest payments. It is expected that intensive governmental economies will be recommended to permit partial payment of the 1928 interest.

The Amazon basin in South America, which covers more than two million square miles, has a population of less than one person per square mile.

Stephen Vincent Benet, resting in a pleasant French village from his two years of labor, writes the laurel wreaths awaiting his brow if and when he chooses to come home.

This young man of 30, who left American shores with a small portion of the Guggenheim fund jingling in his pockets, has written an assured economic peace and prosperity (Doubleday-Doran).

Seventy thousand copies have been printed as a first edition. This epic runs to nearly 400 pages and 80,000 words of poetry. Such figures and facts should occasion a slight readjustment of values. It behooves a poet that we have in our land young men capable of latter day Homeric efforts. For here is a recital in blank verse, ballad, and exquisite poesy of the events from the time of John Brown's raid to the end of the struggle between North and South. It is presented in many verse forms, with a versatility of presentation that is quite modern and with a wealth of detail that is nothing short of exciting.

It is perhaps the most interesting and stimulating verse epic of our particular enthusiasm at the moment, we hesitate to prognosticate its reaction upon the future. One thing is certain, there will be no more comprehensive or sympathetic account of the national struggle in or out of verse for many a day.

Benet has gone beyond history. He has taken his characters from Jeff Davis to Lincoln, and characterized them in his lines; he has followed his peoples and his events in careful and truthful order. He has taken the babbling congressman to the scenes of the struggles, and has shown, with modernistic realism, the reaction of men to their situation.

He lapses from blank verse for his somber themes, by using other verse forms, choruses, ballads for romantic moods and unrhymed staccato for vivid effect. He has run a pretty general gamut.

What is particularly magnificent about this work is its breadth of scope and thoughtful presentation. On each occasion, a glimpse of Southern aristocracy which barely recognized the true motives of the struggle; or suffering, defeat and victory; of battlefields and individuals caught both in romance and tragedy. It is, in a sense, one of the best things that have come out of the pen of a poet since the dawn of a new day; a prophetic note.

Guided by this work, other youngsters may rise to sing of our great epic—the settlement of the west, the tides of immigration and discovery, our very foundation. These, some may say, have been done before. So has the Civil War. But Benet has done it differently. Little sentimentality here. There is no sing-song and mediocre doggerel. There is feeling and study and hard work in the research laboratories. Here was a young man who meant it, felt it, spent endless months in the libraries getting his statistics and other months bringing them into vivid life.

It's work that is going to create a great deal of attention. The week also ushers in a new publishing house. It is the new house of Coward-McCann, and its first hit has both the length and breadth of most of the major old-time concerns. There is nothing modest or timid about its beginnings. It comes boldly out with a white parade of writers, more of whom are unknown to American readers. A number of them are youngsters who made their first public bow in "The American Caravan," a collection of efforts that were having difficulty getting into print elsewhere.

The first book from this new firm is "Diversity," by Melvin Kantar, a Chicago newspaper reporter. That, in itself, should be a sufficient tip concerning the content of the book. It's about gangs, gangsters and Chicago underworld politicians. The name is taken from a telephone exchange which, in Chicago, is more or less synonymous with neighborhoods where gangs have been most active. Being what it is, it is perhaps the best chronicle to date on this interesting phase of life in the mid-west metropolises.

ROSA PONSELLE HIT BY BALL ON LINKS

Opera Star Knocked Unconscious While on Vacation; Able to Sing Tonight.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Rosa Ponselle, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, insisted today that she would sing tonight at a benefit for the Society for the Control of Tuberculosis, despite the fact that she was knocked unconscious yesterday by a golf ball.

While on the links with several friends yesterday Miss Ponselle was hit in the right eye by a ball driven by some unidentified player. She dropped to the ground and was unconscious for ten minutes. Her physician announced later that she was knocked unconscious by a golf ball.

Vera Reynolds—Actually She's Popular

By DAN THOMAS

Vera Reynolds . . . petite, blue eyes, brunet.

Hollywood, Calif.—Petite, bubbling over with personality, always looking for fun and possessing that certain lure found only in blue-eyed brunets.

That, in a meager sense, is Vera Reynolds. One must know Vera to know that—"It," Elton Glyn would say.

Vera is one of the biggest little girls in the cinema hamlet. She is so small that she seems far more like a little girl rather than a real grown-up movie star. And yet the name Vera Reynolds has headed the cast sheets of a lot of films.

Of late Vera has been without a country. Still under contract to Cecil B. DeMille, she has been carried to various studios so rapidly that she scarcely knows where her dressing room will be from day to day.

"I liked jumping around from one studio to another at first," Vera declared. "But I am beginning to tire of it now. I would rather settle down because I believe I could do better work. I never begin to feel that I belong any place until a film is half finished. I have practically nothing to say about what I am to go. I am told to go here and go there, and I do it."

Miss Reynolds' popularity is as great right here in Hollywood as it is among screen fans all over the country. And that's something which can't be said of the majority of moviana's folk. Out here nearly everything, including the praises sung to one another, is making believe, and a girl who actually is popular must possess something unusual.

To send help to them. Then the operator asked to give out the information that they were safe and well.

"For quite a while there was a lot of interference and the message was garbled. I lost the first part of one sentence, but finally managed to hear—because we haven't had any deer meat since yesterday."

Their last message was the assurance that I did not have to stand for the name of the plane, Greater Rockford, instead of using their call letters. I tried for several hours to get in touch with them again, but couldn't do it.

HOPE FEVISED Copenhagen, Aug. 24.—Hope for the safety of Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, American aviators, who became lost while attempting a flight from the United States to Stockholm in the plane Greater Rockford, rose today with investigation into a report that the men's plane had been sighted over Fiskonaeset and Lichtenfels between 10 and 11 o'clock on Sunday morning.

Searching parties are proceeding with all possible speed to the isolated section of Greenland where the men are presumed to have come down. Owing to the lack of transportation facilities it was expected that it would be from 24 to 48 hours before any definite news was received.

Residents of the two villages said they plainly saw the machine which was flying low and evidently searching for a landing place. As no other airplane was known to be in the region, it was assumed that the machine was the Greater Rockford.

To Run Down Report Daugaard Jensen, general director in the Danish government for Greenland, said that every effort would be made to run down and verify the report that the Greater Rockford had been sighted.

Fiskonaeset has a population of only about 200 persons and there is only one white family in the community, said Jensen. "The village has no wireless communication, which would naturally delay news from reaching the outside world."

"It is significant that the villagers should have sent out word of sighting a plane at the very time when the Greater Rockford was missing. As soon as the news spread that a machine had been sighted, a boat was sent to Gøthope where there is a radio station. From that point the word was spread."

Gøthope is only 60 miles from Fiskonaeset but the trip requires two days by boat, which is the only means of transportation to that isolated region.

Director Jensen believes that a long search will be necessary before it can be definitely proved that an airplane actually was sighted on Sunday morning. This is due to the fact that there are so many inlets and boats on the Greenland coast that would have to be investigated.

New York, Aug. 24.—E. Edmund Macphail today was elected chairman of the Republican state committee to succeed the late George K. Morris.

Another candidate for the place was offered to the meeting and Macphail was elected by acclamation.

In accepting the position Macphail announced he had severed his connection with the Northeastern Power Co., of which he was president.

Ocean Fliers Not Dare Devils But Torches of Progress, Says Junkers

Washington.—Trans-oceanic aviators, whether they fly into space to return no more or sail into renown, are brilliant torches in the march of progress, not simply dare-devils, in the opinion of Professor Hugo Junkers, world famous German aeroplane manufacturer.

Professor Junkers, who made his name during a recent visit to America, declared in a talk to the American aviators that he calls these men suicide aspirants or useless searchers for fame was unjust and incorrect.

"History has too often made dare-devils into martyrs of an idea and of great discovery," he said. "Columbus and Magellan were the scatter-brains and useless dreamers of their day. They did not wait for the development of the twin screw steamship. They used the best ships at hand."

Built Huesfeldt Plane. It was the big Junkers organization which built the plane in which Baron Huesfeldt and his two companions flew from Germany to this country. The Junkers machines are known for their stability and general air worthiness. Their maker, disclaimed all financial or organizational connection with any ocean flights, but declared heartily in favor of those who attempted trips over water.

He condemned the argument that present day aviators should wait until a more suitable machine is developed for ocean flying.

"Persuasive as this argument appears," he pointed out, "it is incorrect. It lies in the nature of every development of communications that the intermediate stage of pure venture cannot be skipped."

Junkers declared American air traffic would soon outstrip European. He said he welcomed the recent transfer of the endurance flying machine maker, asserted. Problems resulted from the which could be got in no other way, and which resulted in progress, he declared.

"It is always the great problem that produces the exceptional accomplishments," he added. "The development of aviation would not have been possible without the type of man who takes risks. The further development will also not be able to do without the cultivation of courage and resolution. A stake for an ideal object has never being taken and the ballots will be counted next Tuesday. It will involve 57 railroads and approximately 72,000 conductors and trainmen, who demanded a wage increase of 7-1-2 per cent. to meet a similar increase recently given employees of eastern and southern railroads.

The demand was rejected by the Western Railroad Association, even though a number of the largest western carriers have signified their willingness to pay the increase.

There was some hope that, even though the workers vote to strike, there will be no walkout.

The Hoover advisers though were fearful lest the strike be called, resulting in a tieup of railroad service west of the Mississippi with resultant disorders. Any such economic upheaval, it was thought, would react against the Republican Party because it happens to be in national power.

The nominee will reach Washington about 9 o'clock tonight. He will go direct to his home in the fashionable northwest residential section, where he intends to remain indefinitely. He will open business offices in the home of a neighbor and conduct his campaign from behind an office desk. He probably will spend the next two weeks, perfecting his eastern organization, before attempting further campaigning.

His plans, when he left California a week ago, included only a limited number of campaign appearances over the radio and he will take another trans-continental trip, on the eve of the election, when he returns to his Stanford University home in California to vote.

PICKING KELLEY JURY

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 24.—Selection of the jury to try Leo P. Kelley, accused of slaying Mrs. Myrtle Mellus, prominent society woman, was expected to be completed today.

The defendant had admitted that he had been an admirer of Mrs. Mellus for the past five years, that he was at her home the day of the murder but denied any knowledge of the murder.

Regular Trans-Atlantic Television Service To Be Opened In Few Weeks

London.—"Regular trans-Atlantic television service is a matter of a few weeks."

"And before the end of 1929, television-broadcasting will be history."

These two statements were made to International News Service today by Captain O. M. Hutchinson, manager of the Baird Television Development Company, which is engaged upon negotiations for the establishment of a chain of television broadcasting stations throughout the United States and England.

Nearing Perfection. "Television," Captain Hutchinson declared, "has very nearly reached perfection. There are a few adjustments still to be made in the matter of clarity in long-range broadcasting human faces, as the shading of the eyes contrasted with the brilliancy of the teeth will still have a tendency to throw the image slightly out of focus."

But those are mere details, and they will be straightened out in a few weeks' time. We have absolute confidence that television will have become fully as standardized as the radio—and no greater a luxury—is less than a year."

The American rights to television, Captain Hutchinson said, have been bought by a wealthy syndicate headed by Herbert P. Koster, a promoter who has been associated with many successful ventures. The price paid for the rights Captain Hutchinson declined to reveal.

"The American syndicate," Captain Hutchinson continued, "will probably be known as the Baird Television Company of America, although the name has not yet been decided upon. They are erecting a plant in Jamaica, Long Island, which will be used both for broadcasting and reception."

"At present, we are awaiting the completion of that plant before starting actual operations. As soon as it is ready, we plan to inaugurate a two-way system of television across the ocean, which will be used first for experimental purposes, and later dedicated to commercial usage."

Standardized Service. "In a comparatively short time," Captain Hutchinson declared, "we expect to have trans-Atlantic television as standardized as the trans-oceanic cable. For a nominal price, persons in London will be able to transmit their moving image across the ocean to friends and relatives in New York. And vice versa."

"Until home television has been installed, the recipients of this new form of communication will be at liberty to watch the images in our offices in New York, whence they will be transmitted from the Jamaica plant by land lines."

But it will not be long before there will be a television in every home that at present boasts a radio."

REQUESTS TO DESTROY PLANT WORTH $500,000

Distillery Seized With 318,000 Gallons of Pure Grain Alcohol in Waterloo, N. Y.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Andrew McCampbell, prohibition administrator, announced today he would make a request to federal authorities that the property of the Waterloo Distilling Corporation of Waterloo, N. Y., seized by the prohibition department yesterday, be libeled and destroyed. The plant and equipment is valued at more than $500,000. In addition, 318,000 gallons of pure grain alcohol were confiscated.

The action followed the conviction of the Waterloo Company, four other corporations and five individuals in a conspiracy to violate the prohibition law as the result of a raid staged in June, 1927. The five men were sentenced to 18 months each in Atlanta and the

Cheney Salesmen Get Slant On Advertising

Model Cravat Display Set Up in Cheney Hall.

At a meeting of the Cheney Brothers' cravat salesmen for the territorial sales districts of the country held at Cheney hall this morning various factors that have entered into a tremendous increase in the sales of Cheney cravats were discussed. A change in the general type of cravat manufactured and a complete new assortment of colors and patterns have been important elements, but the outstanding feature, it was emphasized, is a new system of advertising taken up by Cheney Brothers.

One of the first steps in the campaign for fall business and one of far reaching results was the opening, on August 2, of one of the first men's fashion shows ever staged in New York. It was held at Cheney Brothers' New York showroom. The unusualness of the feat attracted the attention of the metropolitan newspapers and resulted in columns of publicity. The New York World, Sun, Telegram and Evening Post carried articles commenting favorably on the displays and value of the ideas suggested by them.

Deals With Ensembles
The secret of the new advertising campaign lies in the fact that it does not stress the sale of cravats exclusively, but dwells more upon the proper harmonizing of a man's complete wardrobe. Incidentally is introduced the idea that Cheney cravats come in such a large assortment of colors and types that even the most fastidious person would be bound to find something to suit his taste.

In so stressing the harmony of the entire wardrobe Cheney Brothers have obtained the co-operation of other manufacturers. As a result the style show found such manufacturers as Hickey Freeman, Cluett Peabody, John B. Stetson, The Walker Shoe Company, The Meyer's Glove Company and the Intertwoven Hosiery Company with their products represented in this style show of Cheney. Thus Cheney Brothers' cravats were shown actually styled with the suits, shirts, hats, shoes, hosiery and gloves produced by the leading makers of these goods.

Though the main point stressed at the show was the proper relation of each article of a man's clothing to the other articles, two other phases developed were color harmony in displays and the sale to the customer of accessories which harmonize with each other and with his outer garments.

Mr. White's Address
At the meeting at Cheney hall this morning one of the principal speakers was Schuyler White, former editor of Vanity Fair and now fashion counselor of the Fashion Co-ordination Bureau. He stated that fashion co-ordination means selling ready-to-wear clothes and accessories in such harmony that each item helps to sell every other item. It means, incidentally, the selling of more merchandise—the part that is of vital interest to Cheney Brothers.

Experience has shown, Mr. White pointed out, that once a man becomes interested in the harmony of his various articles of clothing, it becomes a fascinating game and in almost all such cases a man buys many more articles of clothing than he did before—and he buys more neckties than anything else because neckties are less expensive than most accessories and are more colorful, and permit of more variety in his outfit.

To further this campaign, to make the American men "style conscious," Cheney Brothers are enclosing in shipments to their customers a fashion chart outlining the colors harmonizing with each suit. Each salesman will have a set of photographs of the harmonized displays at the New York style show.

It is the belief of Cheney Brothers that with the co-operation of their salesmen this big co-ordination sales and advertising campaign will prove itself one of the most successful ever inaugurated in men's wear history.

An exhibit following the lines of the New York show on a smaller scale was on view at Cheney hall for the benefit of the attending salesmen.

The accessories used in the display at Cheney hall were furnished by Glenney's haberdashery. Discussion of credits, mill problems and other matters occupied attention of salesmen and executives later today, and the convention is to come to an end late this afternoon. By tomorrow all the salesmen will be on their way back to their territories.

TWO STATE JUDGES

MUST BE APPOINTED

Judge Wolfe and Justice Wheeler Will Reach Age Limit This Year.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 24.—The next governor of Connecticut will have two Superior Court judges to appoint. Judge Isaac Wolfe, of the Superior Court, becomes seventy years of age on September 2, 1929, while Chief Justice George W. Wheeler reaches the age limit set by law on December 1, 1930. Some Superior Court judge will be elevated to the Supreme Court bench to succeed the justice who is made chief justice, and a successor on the Supreme Court bench must then be named.

Justice William M. Malbone of Hartford, is the oldest of the superior court justices by virtue of years of service thereon, and will be chief justice according to precedent.

Justice Wheeler went to the Supreme Court in 1923, by appointment from Luzon B. Morris, governor. Gov. Frank B. Weeks made him a Supreme Court justice in 1910, and Gov. Marcus H. Holcomb named him chief justice in 1919 when Samuel O. Prentice died.

Judge Wolfe went to the Superior Court after long service in New Haven county's Common Pleas Court. He was named in 1919 when Howard J. Curtis, of Stratford, reached the age limit.

KIDNAPS YOUNG GIRL FROM DETROIT HOME

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24.—Declaring she had been kidnapped from her home in Detroit, by a strange man, carried across the country in an automobile and subjected to repeated mistreatment, Elizabeth Duthie, 13, was taken in custody here today.

As the result of the girl's story, every available police detective was ordered out to search for the girl's assailant, who she said abandoned her last night. She is hysterical. The girl said her home was in Detroit, where she lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Duthie.

POET ARRESTED

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 24.—Daniel A. Murphy, Yale law school 1894, and amateur poet and musician, spent the night in police headquarters here after he had been arrested for turning in a false alarm of fire.

Judge Samuel A. Davis notified the charge against Murphy in court today when Murphy told of being assailed by hoodlums who stole and destroyed a violin he said was a Stradivarius. Police were ordered to round up the gang.

DENVER MEN TO LEAVE ON TRIP TO SOUTH ASIA

Denver. — One of the most hazardous expeditions ever undertaken into the recesses of southwestern Asia will start within a few weeks when a group of Denver citizens will leave here for an exploration trip that is expected to consume more than a year.

The expedition, for research and educational purposes, is sponsored and will be led by Dr. Joseph C. Irvine of this city, a lifelong enthusiast and promoter of education and all its sciences. Associated with Dr. Irvine will be Dr. David C. Bayless, D. D., field secretary of the Humphreys Foundation, nationally known religious leader, and a prominent figure in the Boy Scouts and De Molay organizations.

To Take Movies

George La Dura, author, actor, world traveler and a cinema expert, will accompany the expedition and all pictures, motion and still, will be produced under his direction and supervision.

Another member of the party will be Joseph H. Alessi, of Switzerland, who will act as historian and interpreter for the party.

The expedition will travel into the hinterlands of Mesopotamia, Transjordan, Assyria, Babylonia, the Holy Land, Egypt, Indian, Afghanistan, the Cradle City of the Gobi Desert, and into the hitherto inaccessible parts of the mystery country of Tibet.

Equipment for the thrilling tour is being assembled in Denver, including automobile trucks of a special Pullman design; ice-making apparatus, cameras and laboratory paraphernalia.

Expect Discoveries

Special devices of all kinds that will enable the party to travel in some degree of comfort in "Dark-est Asia" are being gathered from all parts of the globe.

Dr. Irvine will sail from New York for London, where he will complete arrangements for the expedition. The remainder of the party will join him there later.

Dr. Irvine told International News Service he expects to make many discoveries during the exploration that will be of great benefit to science and education.

BOSTON CLAIMS MORE SUNLIGHT THAN FLORIDA

Boston.—"Miami or Boston," will muse the realtor after reading the report of a recent survey of New England weather conditions made here several days ago.

Metropolitan Boston enjoys more clear days in a year than sunny Miami, according to the report of the survey.

On the score of climate as well as other natural and man-made advantages Greater Boston was shown by the survey, to be one of the country's "best bets."

In mean average fair days per day, from 1871 to 1928 inclusive, Boston was found to surpass all the important cities with which comparison was made, excepting only Savannah, Ga. Boston averaged 265 fair days. Miami's average in the same period was 247.

The hub led Chicago by six good days and Gotham by twelve. The report also showed that Boston temperatures as a matter of year by year average have increased, and are increasing. Though this average mean temperature since 1870 has been 49.6 degrees, a charting of the records showed a decided increase with the average since 1910 a full degree higher.

At the same time, the survey showed that average precipitation of snow and rain in Boston, is declining at a rate even faster than its temperature is rising. The 57 year average annual precipitation was 41.25 inches or about that of the past year.

The average of the whole period of 1910 to 1927 inclusive was 37, or more than 3 inches less than the other average.

Reasonable Winter

The report showed that Boston had the reasonable winter allowance of 18 fair days a month with a gradual increase until the high level of 22, maintained throughout August, was reached.

Among other items found to justify Boston's expectation of growth and increasing prosperity were: "Schools, clubs, theaters, churches and civic organizations—furnishing a substantial background for any legitimate enterprise that can meet a demand of the community;" retail merchandising "carried on in a high class manner and on a large scale in a shopping district equal to any in other large cities;" "very sound financial institutions;" with "healthy developments and fine conditions in deposits, indicative of community thrift and ambition;" and excellent transportation facilities throughout the metropolitan area, and to all parts of the United States.

Fancy Price For Noted U. S. Army Bugle Is Refused By Sergeant

Kansas City, Mo.—Fifteen hundred dollars for a bugle! Of hand this would seem a bit high for a maker of military music even though it does gleam with gold plate and is smartly initialed.

It does appear too, as though the price tag might have been marked up, when you consider that the same twisted horn was purchased from Uncle Sam for $2.50 less than ten years ago.

But fifteen hundred dollars is what Staff Sergeant Frank Witchey, of the third cavalry was offered for his shrill voiced sleep breaker, less than a year ago. Since that time Sergeant Witchey has been told to name his price. But Sergeant Frank, the gleam of pride in his clear eyes outshining the luster of his prized golden horn, always has been significantly dumb on these occasions.

The reason for the boom in Sergeant Frank's own private bugle market is simple. Pressed to the tight puckered lips of the stiffly erect Sergeant the golden voiced horn has sent the mournful sobbing notes of taps out upon the hushed air on many notable occasions. Sergeant Frank blew taps at the grave of the unknown soldier at Arlington Cemetery. He sounded the military dirge at the funeral of Woodrow Wilson, in Washington, and at the graves of Lieutenant-Generals Nelson A. Miles, and S. B. Young, and the late William Jennings Bryan and Major-General Leonard Wood. After services for the unknown soldier Sergeant Frank bought the bugle from the Government for the stock price of $2.50.

Born in Kansas City in 1889, Witchey enlisted in the third cavalry in 1908 at Fort Clark, Texas. He has served continuously in this regiment, "the brave lilies" of the Mexican War fame. He was made a corporal in 1911 and has been a non-commissioned officer ever since. He served overseas twenty-three months with the regiment in the World War.

Record collectors continue to bid for Sergeant Frank's historic music maker, the most famous bugle in the American army is not for sale!

CHURCH EXECUTIVE AT CAMP GROUNDS

Rev. Charles L. Goodell Begins Series of Services at Willimantic Camp.

Willimantic Campground, Aug. 14.—Thursday opened with more comfortable temperature after heavy showers during the night. Rev. J. G. Waggoner, who has been serving the double pastorate of South Coventry and Gurleyville, was the leader of the morning watch. His Scripture lesson was the 103th Psalm.

The speaker said we have come here to develop the inner man. The psalmist was communing with God, associating with the divine. Man has an endowment enabling him to come in tune with God. The pagans felt after some kind of a God, but Jesus revealed the true God of love, full of mercy, daily loading us with benefits.

At 9:30, Rev. Charles L. Goodell, well known pastor of some of the largest Methodist churches in several conferences, and who is now the executive secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, began his services which are to continue through the remaining days of the meeting. He spoke of travelling some half a million miles during the last ten years. Dr. Goodell spoke of the fact that denominations are getting together. How can we have a warless world if we have warring churches? We are in the nineteenth hundredth year of Christ's ministry on the earth. In 1928 there is to be a great Pentecostal celebration by the Protestantism of the United States.

A little girl said an optimist looked after your eyes, and a pessimist looked after your feet. For centuries people have been saying in world is going to the dogs. I am an optimist, so I sympathize with the dogs, they have had to wait so long. Use your eyes to note the progress Christianity has made not your feet to kick it. We cannot give what we do not have. We need the deep religious experience of coming from the sense of condemnation to the experience of the love of Christ shed abroad in the heart. I am concerned about what is called vocational evangelism. We do not want a promoter to sell religion. What is needed is men like Johnathan Edwards, or Whitefield, or Wesley, who made it a point to look after their own soul's salvation first, and then, aflame with love, went out to save others. In a little room at Yale is the spot where Horace Bushnell found his soul "strangely warmed." Like him, they then went out to help others find God after finding him themselves!

We don't realize how our lives broadcast influences to others. The radio is most wonderful. Dr. Goodell told of speaking over a radio one time and receiving word from a saloon keeper, who had been trying to listen in. He wrote that a jazz band in Chicago interfered somewhat, till finally Dr. Goodell's voice got the better of it. A critic who was told of this, remarked "That was one time, doctor, you preached to beat the band."

At 11 o'clock Dr. Frick gave his fourth talk on "Finding God." His theme was "Finding God in Human History." Speaking of having seen years ago the whirlpool of Niagara and later of experiences in a storm on Pike's Peak, Dr. Frick said that oftentimes as we look on human history it looks as chaotic as whirlpool or tempest. Bestiality, lust, animality, hatred are always seen across its pages. But we see other forces are at work to do away with these. Yes, the hand of God is in history. If God reveals himself in rocks and flowers, will He not surely reveal himself in the history of men? We have a right to ask him to do so. There moves a strong current of divine power through the millstream of history, removing the debris out into the ocean of His purposes. As far as we know the earth is the only spot in the universe where a being with a body could live. Everything here, air, food, forces of chemistry and electricity—all conspire to keep man alive. Has not God chosen us to work out the value of a spiritual life here? Man's mastery over nature is wonderful. The forces of nature seem sometimes against him, yet how man has conquered the beasts, the lightning and disease. Now we have noticed that all through history there have been men especially sent of God to make the world better. Moses, the law-giver; Paul, the early missionary of Christianity; Lincoln, the emancipator; have not these and countless others been God's providential men for their times? Have there not been providential nations? Why have some gone down, and others remained? Evidently God is in it all. America is great because it is to be a great help to the world. Nations have fallen because they went back to animality and barbarism. Liberty, justice and tolerance are from God. Evidently God was in the Magna Charta, the Pilgrim's compact, and the Declaration of Independence. We see in history success in righteousness, and punishment for evil. Paul says, "Godliness is profitable." The psalmist says, "Sin is a reproach." Things come to crises. Slavery has gone. The drink traffic is going. Nations built on iniquity go down. God is behind all ethical codes, not only the ten commandments but all others. Nowadays evil is opposed more than ever before. Righteousness works. Evil does not pay. Did the coming of Christ mean anything to the world? His beauty and holiness and righteousness have gone everywhere. God's zeal, potent in his people, is cleansing the world of wrong and evil. Our God is marching on.

The Church God Wants
A large audience assembled in the tabernacle at 2 p. m. to hear the first of Dr. C. L. Goodell's afternoon inspirational talks. He is to be the chief speaker for the remainder of the meeting, speaking at the 9:30, the 2, and the 7:30 services Friday and Saturday, and is to preach on Campmeeting Sunday at 2 and 7:30.

There was a beautiful solo rendered by Mrs. Florence Manuel prior to the address, entitled, "O To Be More Like Jesus." Dr. Goodell's subject was "The Church God Wants." What do you suppose became of the seven churches to which messages were sent as recorded in Revelation? Where are the 1000 Christian churches that 1000 years ago were along the Mediterranean shores of Africa?

God said to all those seven churches: "I know thy works." He that has ears to hear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. The first message was to the church at Ephesus. I've been in such a church with Dionysius who wanted his name in the paper, and Atrophea the gutter, and Alexander the copper-smith with his small coins. The Bible says, "The wicked fee when no man pursueth," but I have noticed they make better time if you go for them. The Ephesian Church was orthodox and full of good works. Yet one thing God had against them, "Thou hast left thy first love." If your love is gone, what is left in the home? Riches, titles, honors and all necessities amount to nothing, if love is lacking. That is what God wants. The only question asked Simon Peter by Christ when he ordained him to the ministry was, "Lovest thou me?" If you have lost the hinges of the closet of prayer have gotten rusty, that's why. Hence you have lost your spiritual appetite. Unless you get it back and "do the first works," you will die of spiritual heart failure.

Laymen And The Church
This was the topic which Dr. Goodell discussed in last evening's service at the tabernacle. A large audience gathered. An inspiring praise service preceded the address under the direction of Mrs. Florence Manuel, Howard Pierce at the piano. The choir leader has gathered a company of thirty or more young people as a wide-awake chorus to lead the congregation.

Rev. M. S. Stocking, of Manchester, read Scripture and offered prayer. Mrs. Manuel and Delwyn, of Jewett City, rendered in excellent manner a duet entitled, "Trusting in the Saviour."

Dr. Goodell spoke of his subject, "Laymen and the Church," as very practical. The patriarchs, the prophets and the disciples were all laymen. In Methodism lay preachers have always been large factors in the propagation of the Gospel. John Wesley when he found laymen attempting to preach, being of high church ideas, thought of stopping them. But his wise mother urged upon him not to, and he minded his mother.

All laymen are as much under obligation to give themselves and their all to Christ as ministers. Neither the steel trust nor any other is the severest employer in this country, but the Christian Church. Her ministers are the most underpaid of all employees. Yet the ministers have never been on a strike. If you want to make a good preacher out of a poor one, pray for him, don't criticize him.

If anybody tells you that prohibition has been a failure, tell such folks they are arrant prevaricators. I have travelled 50,000 miles the past year all over this country and saw but three men intoxicated. I have never seen in Pullmans or elsewhere a flask drawn nor lifted to lips. Prohibition is the greatest miracle of the age. Dr. Goodell was heartily applauded at these words. Win some one of your size to Christ, laymen.

Notes and Personals.

While the large audience was at the tabernacle Wednesday evening witnessing the splendid picture, "Lest We Forget," which depicted the sadness of the so-called regulated drink traffic of other days, quite a number were listening to the camp radios to an entirely different message advocating the return of similar days.

The Misses Marjorie Stephens and Roberta Bltgood have been playing fine piano duets at several meetings. Miss Bltgood is also an accomplished violinist, who has played over the radio at WTIC.

She played at one service, Back's composition for the G string, showing fine expression and technique. Rev. J. G. Waggoner, besides caring for South Coventry and Gurleyville, has charge of the religious work at Storrs' Congregational church during the absence of the pastor Alling in Europe.

Rev. F. W. Gray, of Burnside, at yesterday afternoon's recreation hour, took a lot of youngsters on a mystery hike.

Rev. W. E. Darby, William Grover and daughter from Tolland, were camp visitors Thursday.

Rev. Albert Abbott and wife, of Danielson, came to campmeeting yesterday for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Hill of East Hampton, spent several days here this week.

Rev. J. M. Von Deck, of Moodus, arrived at his cottage, Yelpep Friendship" yesterday for the balance of the meeting. Mrs. Von Deck and children Allie and Charlton have been at camp for a couple of weeks.

Rev. W. E. Keith and wife, of South Manchester, took in the services through day and evening yesterday.

Carlos E. Chaffee, of West Stafford, known to many in Manchester, and who took the part of the farmer in the play, "A Double Exposure" at the North Methodist Episcopal church last winter, was a visitor to the grounds. He was accompanied by his son Edward of Worcester.

As the campmeeting draws to a close, it is noted that an increasing number of people are coming into the grounds. Clarence E. Taylor, who with his wife is spending the week on the grounds, returned for the day to Manchester yesterday on business.

ASLEEP AT THE SWITCH

So far, most of the Eastern newspapers seem to have missed the outstanding feature of Governor Smith's speech of acceptance, apparently for no better reason than that it is embraced in two or three lines of type, out of a page. Democratic newspapers which are supporting Smith have the further reason for ignoring that part of the speech which deals with immigration, that it is certain to act as a boomerang unless, miraculously, it shall remain unnoticed. But Republican newspapers which declare that Smith's speech shows him to be a man of one issue, and that issue the question of prohibition amendment, must have been asleep at the switch.

No doubt Governor Smith and his supporters would be very glad indeed to have the general run of voters believe that the only highly important point on which the Republican and Democratic candidates seriously differ is the liquor question, the while they were employing Smith's open-gateway declaration as a vote-getter among the alien populations. Smith risked tremendously in introducing that subject, even as unobtrusively and slyly as it was done; it is not to be supposed that he faced that hazard except with the expectation of gaining from sympathizers with wholesale immigration more votes than he would lose from its opponents.

It is up to the Republican party to make the true inwardness of this attack on the quality of our citizenship known to the people of America—otherwise its only effect will be to win thousands of ballots from unassimilated it naturalized aliens whose idea of America is to make it a dumping ground for untold millions more of their kind. It is exasperating to find sound Republican organs like the New York Herald-Tribune referring to Smith's astonishing immigration utterance as merely "confusing and disturbing" and mildly saying that "Smith supports the principle of restriction but in a bid for racial votes criticizes the basis of the present law."

It is the business of Republican writers and speakers to make it clear that there is nothing confusing at all about the Smith attitude; that anyone who professes to favor restriction of immigration and yet favors the re-establishment of quotas on the basis of censuses padded by a deluge of foreign arrivals is giving the merest lip service to any useful restriction.

It is as an active enemy of the only immigration law we ever had which approaches adequacy that Governor Smith must be exposed. He is going to make many votes among the unassimilables by this maneuver. If the Republicans keep on telling the public that he has no issue but prohibition they will be letting him keep many votes of real Americans that he would lose instantly if the real situation were understood.

FAINT HOPE

The report that the plane of Hassell and Cramer was seen over South Greenland last Sunday, if true, is ground for a ray of hope for the safety of the aviators, but it is only a ray. There is no more inhospitable land in the world, accredited with being the home of civilized man.

Greenland is an enormous island, almost a continent. It is four times as big as France. It is longer from north to south than the distance between Manchester and the Mississippi river at Dubuque. Its coast line is serrated until it is thousands of miles in total length. Nineteen-twentieths of the country has never been explored. Save for a strip a comparatively few miles wide the whole vast island is covered with glacial ice cap which sends trends of slowly moving ice to the sea. It is the manufactory of the bergs which are such a never-ending peril to north atlantic commerce.

In all this territory fewer than twenty thousand human beings exist. The numerous names which on the map give the coast the appearance of being fairly well settled are mainly attached to tiny hamlets occupied by handfuls of Danish traders and seal hunters and a few native Eskimos. There is no town of any size as towns in Europe and America are known.

If their luck holds Hassell and Cramer may be found by some rescue party, but a search for them will be like hunting a needle in a haystack. They might land safely close to the coast and yet never be heard of again. If the landing should be anywhere on the interior fiasco their case would indeed be hopeless. Not even the Eskimos can sustain life there.

"BUT"

The New York World's special Hoover reporter sends word to his paper that the sentiment of the farmers of Iowa is, "We're for Hoover, but—"

But what? For the purposes of the matter in hand, which is to make sure of the election of Mr. Hoover, what about the Iowa counts for anything but the way he is going to vote. If the farmers of the Hawkeye state are for Hoover, then Hoover will get electoral vote of that state, and that's all there is to it. Whether every farmer in Iowa got a chance to express his individual opinion on farm relief to the Republican candidate or not, or whether or not the farmers in the aggregate wish that Mr. Hoover's idea on farm relief were more like those of some of the radical visionaries of the corn belt, makes no difference in the main issue so long as they intend to vote for him.

A little while ago the Democratic papers in the East were predicting that Iowa would go Democratic. Now the best that an enthusiast like the World can find is that Iowa will go for Hoover, "But—"

Which is entirely satisfactory to all Republicans. The "but" factor can quite well be attended to after election.

IRONY

Tomorrow the young Albanian chieftain Ahmed Zogu, who has been a sort of titular president of a sort of titular republic which has never really functioned as a republic at all, is to become a king. He is under the domination of Premier Mussolini of Italy. Albania comes into full flower as an actual if not an acknowledged province of the realm of the Duce.

For months this contingency has been anticipated and dreaded by the peace hoppers of Europe. Already Albania's distracted neighbor Yugoslavia is in a state of unrest bordering on hysteria, half a dozen component populations being in a condition of half-frenzy against the dominating Serbs for having forced the ratification of the Nettuno conventions with Italy, and this latest development brings a new strain into a situation that is loaded with dynamite.

On Monday Italy will be one of the nations to sign, at Paris, the multilateral treaty declaring war to be outlawed "as an instrument of national policy."

But neither Rumania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Albania nor Greece will be numbered among the signatories. All the elements of a great war will be in the making at the very moment when the treaties are signed.

HAVE BEEN OTHERS

Gene Tunney had to tell the British newspaper folks that he had always understood that England was a country where a private citizen's privacy was respected, before they would let him alone. He found himself pursued by photographers and interviewers almost but not quite as persistently as in this country. And they seemed vastly astonished to find that he was really a very extraordinary being—actually a gentleman, don't you know?

As a matter of fact there have been quite a number of boxers not so completely different from Gene Tunney in their department and general intelligence. Jim Corbett has always been able to hold his own in any crowd and is a courteous, likable person who can meet anyone. While among the smaller men of the squared circle numbers of quite well bred, self-respecting citizens have appeared from time to time.

It is probable that in England the newspapermen might find other likable pugilists who have drifted into paganism for its rewards. We never have been able to see Tunney as a unique phenomenon.

SYMBOLIC?

Perhaps there is no significance in it; perhaps there is. Anyhow, one of the slim crowd that stayed out in the rain in front of the Albany capitol to hear Governor

Smith's speech of acceptance via the radio loud speakers while a selected party of some 1,200 occupied the chamber where the address was delivered, was Franklin D. Roosevelt, who made the speech at Houston nominating Smith and who, perhaps more than any other Democrat, made it possible for the nomination to be carried through.

Mr. Roosevelt is a cripple from infantile paralysis. He sat on the steps with Mrs. Roosevelt throughout the entire speech. Is this by any chance symbolic of the way the Roosevelt kind of Democrats would be treated by a Smith administration? We wonder. You see, Mr. Roosevelt couldn't fight and crowd.

BOSSY'S TOWN

Newburyport, Mass., was settled in 1635, so it is almost three hundred years old. It was the birthplace of William Lloyd Garrison. It had the first girls' high school in America. The finest clipper ships that sailed the seas in the days of canvas power were built there. It has a long, interesting and creditable history, and its privateersman helped greatly in winning the war of American Independence. Now its mayor is Bossy Gillis and Bossy has just been sentenced to 330 days in jail for breaking all sorts of ordinances having to do with gasoline stations. The judge said he ought to be run out of town.

From William Lloyd Garrison to Bossy Gillis! How come this descent?

New York, Aug. 24.—In all Manhattan there's nothing ritzier than the ritzy doormen of the high priced and ritzy Fifth Avenue shops.

Unless your auto happens to bear a ritzy family crest and the front seat is adorned by a ritzy chauffeur, these gold-braided uniformed gents, who sometimes makes as much as $50 a week—including tips—will quickly add to the general discomfort of life.

A friend, who lives just outside of New York, drove into town the other day and started parking her car in front of such an establishment.

One of the gold-braid gents informed her that she had best drive on.

"We allow no car to stop here, unless it has a chauffeur," the doorman informed her.

It so happens that the young lady in question could have several chauffeurs if she so desired, but likes to drive a car. So she asked him how he got that way.

"You really don't care to shop here, madam," the ritzy one went on. "This is a very exclusive shop."

This was just about enough to send the young lady's southern blood up ten points. So she informed the doorman that there was no sign forbidding her to park there if she cared to and that, if he didn't like it, he could call a policeman. But he didn't.

The presumption of these shops is, of course, that if one can't afford a chauffeur one can't afford to trade at the store.

As a matter of fact, most of the monograms on New York Blitzen-Rolls are phony. I know two artists who design these monograms as a side line. They are "job-lotted" to an auto agency for redistribution and, sooner or later, appear as the family crest of Mr. John Smyth-Smyth, who was John Smith of Ash Corners until he made his first million and married a damsel who wanted to get into society.

The first theatrical novelty of the season, and the most spectacular in many a year, is staged between acts of the dramatic version of "Elmer Gantry."

As the curtain falls, a band of actors disguised as evangelists appears in the lobby and starts holding a revival meeting. The meeting soon progresses to the sidewalk and into the street. The street crowd is, of course, immediately attracted and before the rise of the second curtain a regular ballyhoo has been staged.

A most amusing and incredible incident marked the opening performance of this play, by the way. In one scene thereof, an evangelist leans over the footlights and calls upon the audience to "take the sawdust trail." A few "plants" scattered about the house, rise and go to the stage.

But it so happened that, upon the afternoon of the opening, a press agent had had an argument with the producer and word went around that he was to be fired. So, when the call for "sawdust trailers" went out, he rose in the solemnity of his evening clothes, rushed to the stage and pleaded, in the best evangelical tones: "Oh God, deliver me from Al Woods!" Then he fled through the backstage exit, leaving the audience somewhere between unbelief and hysteria.

GILBERT SWAN.

We don't know whether Dr. Ward's new fifty-volume book aimed at the mistakes of our times mentions it or not, but the book certainly has made an error of omission if the age isn't described as that period in which a young lady may be allowed out into the August heat without stockings but never without furs.

The AUGUST RANGE CLUB offers small down payments, easy terms, cash prices

Sketched to the left is the latest addition to the Watkins line of popular ranges. It is the Magee Kitchenette—a range that combines a coal-kitchen heater with a 4 burner gas range. It comes in pearl gray porcelain with oven heat control, installed on the club plan, $134.

$5 DOWN $5 WEEKLY

Cook with the gas turned off! You can do it—and save half your gas bill—with a Chambers fireless gas range. For these famous ranges have insulated ovens and thermometers for the open burners. In pearl gray porcelain, as shown, $187.50. $5 Down, $5 Weekly.

MANY homes in Manchester—new and old—will have new ranges this Fall. A little time given to the selecting of a range now, will save those homes many dollars, for now t he August Range Club is in progress.

This Semi-Annual club offers many advantages:

1. SMALL DOWN PAYMENTS. Any range in our stock can be purchased on the club plan and no first payment—on the finest, largest Victory Crawford or Chambers Gas Range in colors—is over $5. Many ranges will be delivered for a first payment of $3.

2. EASY WEEKLY PAYMENTS. After you have your stove delivered and are enjoying all its benefits, you pay the balance due in small weekly sums, not exceeding $5 weekly, with many ranges costing only $2 or $3 weekly.

3. CASH PRICES. Instead of paying the installment price on the range you buy, you secure the LOW CASH PRICE if payments are made weekly as agreed. The prices noted here are the CASH PRICES—the club prices.

4. QUALITY RANGES. Our stock includes such famous names as Crawford, Chambers (Gas Ranges), Magee and Lenox. The range you select at Watkins will be the best obtainable at the price you pay.

The Union Crawford, sketched above, is the latest addition to the Crawford line. It is a low price range, costing only $69.75 on the club plan, yet offers all the exclusive Crawford features for good cooking and baking.

$5 DOWN $3 WEEKLY

The Stat Crawford—a strikingly modern range in its simple lines and smooth, uncluttered surfaces—is a range suitable for the average family. Notice the smooth, white porcelain finished mantel. $114.30.

$5 DOWN $5 WEEKLY

The Century Crawford is a medium size range. Coming in either plain black or pearl gray porcelain finishes, it offers all the fine Crawford features and high baking efficiency. In black finish, $99.75.

$5 DOWN $3 WEEKLY

Probably the most popular range of the day is the Victory Crawford, sketched above, a range that correctly combines a coal and gas range. It has a coal heated oven, a gas heated oven and a separate gas broiler. The Victory Crawford is only 36 inches wide and comes in pearl gray porcelain, green porcelain or plain black. In black, $149.50.

$5 DOWN

$5 WEEKLY

This Crawford Cabinet Gas Range is finished in apple green and snowy white porcelain. It has 4 burners, a pilot light and simmer. Note the handy warming drawer beneath the open burners. On the club plan—$124.

$5 DOWN $5 WEEKLY

Sketched above is a popular priced Crawford Cabinet gas range that is finished in black japan and white porcelain. It has 4 open burners, and a pilot light. Below the roomy oven is a separate broiler. On the club plan—$45.

$3 DOWN $2 WEEKLY

Think of a genuine Crawford Cabinet gas range for only $40. But that is just what the one sketched above sells for on the Club Plan. It is finished in black Japan and white porcelain and comes with right or left oven.

$3 DOWN $2 WEEKLY

A Crawford gas range for the small home, has all the Crawford cooking and baking advantages, yet take little room in the kitchen, 3 open burners, mantel and oven with broiler, $42.20, $3 Down, $2 Weekly.

This is a Lenox Cabinet gas range finished in pearl gray and snowy white porcelain. Four burners, pilot light, oven and separate broiler. On the club plan it costs only $57.15—$5 Down, $3 Weekly.

Another Lenox Cabinet Gas Range, sketched above, comes in plain black and white, porcelain finish with pilot light, simmer, 4 burners, oven and separate broiler. On the club plan—$47.25—$3 Down, $3 Weekly.

This little 3 burner Lenox gas range is finished in pearl gray and white porcelain and comes without mantel, as shown. On the Club Plan—$26.55—$3 Down and $2 Weekly.

THIS HAS HAPPENED.

When SYBIL THORNE was younger people said she was the prettiest girl in Boston. Every day or two her picture appeared in the social columns, and society editors heaped praise and compliments upon her. But Sybil was only 18 when she first got herself talked about—it was after the war, and she was trying so hard to be "jolly."

JOHN LAWRENCE, her sweetheart, was missing in action—"presumably dead" the telegram had said. Her adored brother—Tad—was home, with the Croix de Guerre and two wound stripes. And all the world had gone quite crazy. "But dear," Sybil's indiscretions, CRAIG NEWELL, was an attentive suitor—and Craig was the most eligible bachelor in Boston. Tad asks Sybil why she doesn't marry him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Maybe there's no fidelity in me, Tad. I don't know. Only John's got my soul, and I don't believe lips count very much."

CHAPTER TWO.

Tad and Sybil were on the beach at Craigville, lying side by side under an orange umbrella that looked like a sunflower blooming on the ocean's brink.

Sybil sifted sand through the funnels of her bathing cap, and little mounds like ant hills on the sand let jersey of her swimming suit, and meditated languidly on the events of the summer.

From the beginning Craig Newhall had been in love with her. At first he had been a bit hard to handle—particularly after she had let him kiss her.

"Tell me you love me, Sybil!"

"She remembered how fiercely he had whispered it—a hoarse command against the softness of her hair.

"But I don't!" she had protested, breathless and a little frightened. "Not really. I only love to be loved."

Now she turned toward Tad with a sudden burst of confidence.

"You see, Tad," she announced, "I don't ever mean to be married. Craig understands. Ages ago I told him so. I said I'd play around all he wanted, if he'd always remember it was only play-romance as far as the wind."

She shrugged her shoulders and fluttered her fingers.

"Just like that," she murmured. In her secret heart Sybil had made a vow. She would never, she swore, tell another man she loved him. Because that, she believed, would be betraying John. After his death she had tried to feel like a widow, but her mind pulled one way and her emotions another. Until, in the end, she had given herself up to Craig's caresses.

"It's as plain as A, B, C," she told her brother. "Emotions and love are as far apart as the poles. Because I like to get with Craig is no sign that I love him."

"Once a girl wouldn't let a man kiss her until he'd sworn undying devotion and all that sort of thing. If she was a spy she'd expect her to stand for a little thing."

"Only, of course, they didn't call it getting in the stomach, she got a hollow feeling in the stomach, she'd think she was in love. Then they'd get married."

"I've been absolutely honest with him," Sybil defended herself stiffly.

"And I've noticed," she observed, "that when a man's getting what he wants, he's not particularly interested in its why or wherefore."

But she remembered a night on the shore of Waban, all silvery and bewitching in the moonlight. The night Craig kissed her for the first time. They had driven to the water's edge, and left the car, and gone and sat on the trunk of a fallen birch that lay like a lanky tree-ghost, all white and slender on the grass. That was when she said, "Don't ever get me wrong, Craig. It's only playing."

And she put back her head for his kiss on her lips. She remembered how she had drawn away—and how she had clasped her arms about his neck and whispered, "Isn't half a loaf better than no bread?" Then he had crushed her to him and a smothered sort of groan, and his kisses were hot and merciless.

She stirred restlessly. And then, rolling over on her side, looked Tad coolly in the eyes.

"Honestly," she repeated, "I don't want to get married. I may be an egg and all that, but I'm still in love with the first boy I ever kissed. And it seems to me I'd be a sort of a rotten thing to love a dead man and marry a living one."

"Hell's bells!" Tad sent half a dozen stones skipping—one after the other, beyond the distant white caps. "You'd be a darn sight better off, Sib. You girls seem to think you can get away with anything. But you can't dance unless you pay the piper. And you can't go running around all your life, Sis. Of course you want to marry. Every woman does."

Sybil drew herself up, and locking her arms about her brown legs, rested her chin on her knees.

"Being in love," she pronounced solemnly, "changes everything. Because I loved John I can't love Craig—or anyone else. I think that must be the price of a woman three years? You wouldn't yourself—not if you were sober, I mean."

"Hey!" Clumsily he clapped his hand over her mouth. "What are you talking about, idiot? How do you get that way?"

"Oh, well!" Sybil shrugged her slim shoulders eloquently. "Nothing matters very much now. It's a crazy old world. Tad. Remember how we used to talk about ideals and glory after the war? Wasn't it bunkum? Everything seemed so sort of exalted then. Now nothing counts but just money and good looks. There were some lines in that poem you gave me:

"They crowded all their youth into an hour,
For one fleeting dream of right
They died." . . . I used to think that was glorious. It thrilled me that John had died for a dream. It was so splendid. So romantic. But pretty soon people stopped caring. It didn't make any difference—all the boys that laughed and joked, and only remembered on holidays when they waved flags, and made speeches and got drunk. Bright spots burned on Sybil's cheeks.

"It makes me so damn mad!" she cried, and clenched her small brown hands.

"But, Sis"—Tad took her rebellious little fists—"if human nature wasn't like that the world would have gone mad ages ago. Men couldn't keep their sanity if they couldn't forget."

"I know," Sybil sighed wearily. "I'm not bitter about it any more. It's better, perhaps—the way it is. I'm not rebellious now. Nor angry. Nor even broken hearted. But I see things as they are. War propaganda and everything. Grand words and beautiful phrases. But they didn't mean anything. Poppycock! It was all so useless—John getting killed."

"Someone wrote a poem—'It was the visions that they fell.' Well, I've lost the visions, and that makes the sacrifice all worthless. I hope the dead don't know how I feel—it was—dying for nothing. I thought at first I was going to die myself, Tad, but I guess it's only in books that people die of broken hearts. I wanted grief to kill me—I really did. That was childish, wasn't it? And, instead, it only sort of smothered all the good that was in me."

"There wasn't much religion for our generation, you know. I said all my prayers during the war; and when it was over and they hadn't killed any more prayers left."

"I think the war killed faith—and faith was the loveliest thing on earth. When it perished we substituted reason. And reason is so unsatisfactory. It gets you awfully muddled. . . . Now I think there isn't any absolute wrong. No real signs. Only over so many wild, foolish things—'gestures' the psychoanalysts call them."

With a sudden change of spirit she giggled.

"I'm not sinning, Tad. I'm only gesticulating."

But Tad was very sober and spoke like a patriarch.

"You're only making excuses, Sybil, for what you know is wrong."

"Yes, I know," she admitted. "But what difference does it all make?"

More like a lover than a brother, he put his arm about her, and held her for a second in a grip that made her wince.

"You're talking in circles," he told her savagely. "Poor, crazy little Sib."

"That's the way I think," she retorted. "It's hard, getting things straight. I've tried harder than you know."

"Poor old kid." He patted her hand. "Upon my word I feel like a rotter—the news I've got for you."

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Aug. 24.—With General Sandino bottled up in a remote and unpopulated section, it appears that the "free and fair" election which we have guaranteed in Nicaragua will at least be orderly.

Both the State Department and the Navy now regard conditions as auspicious for the poll in October, which will be contested between the Conservatives and the Liberals.

Aside from the diminishing possibility that Sandino might cause trouble, their principal worry about the election concerned the split in the Conservative party which was attributed to the ambitions of Emiliano Chamorro, the dominating Conservative leader. This situation directly hindered our mission of pacification and prevented the American officials supervising the election from using the two party organizations to spread the propaganda for good order.

American Minister Charles C. Eberhardt and General Frank R. McCoy, the election boss, brought pressure to bear and mended the split, so that the Conservatives are now campaigning for one presidential candidate instead of two candidates or for no candidate at all.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamp, addressed, large envelope for reply.

YOUR DAILY WEIGHT.

The State Sealer of Weights and Measures in California has just given out some figures which should be interesting to my readers who are trying to figure how to keep better figures. He finds that the people of California are so interested in watching their weight that they actually spend on an average of a dollar a year apiece on weighing themselves on the penny scales. The average doubtless holds good all over North America, and if this is so, we are spending over $130,000,000 every year just to watch our weights go up or down. Doubtless at least as many people are also weighing themselves on the free machines found in drugstores, and grocery store scales.

These weighing machine statistics indicate very clearly how much the average person is interested in weight, and shows the general belief that a normal weight and health cannot be accurately measured on the scales, our interest in watching our weights is nevertheless of some value.

The thin man is often underweight because of weak digestive power or because his energy is wasted through mental overwork, or because of worry or some of the other destructive and enervating emotions. These causes must be recognized, and stuffing with food will only do a series of disordered things which may be difficult to cure. The use of codliver oil, or large quantities of milk, cream, fats, starches and sugar will seldom produce any permanent effects in the gaining of healthy weight.

The thin man who is underweight because of glandular arrangements, enervation, or insufficient digestive power, should be warned that overfeeding may only make him worse in every way. The problem of "girth" control is much easier and is almost entirely a question of diet and exercise. Although the fat man may have an abnormal tendency to avoid exercise because of improper functioning of his glandular system, his reduction through vigorous exercise and the selection of the right kinds of food and the use of these foods in whatever limited quantities are necessary to accomplish the desired result.

The Liberal candidate is General Jose Moncada, who led the Liberal forces of President Sacasa against the Conservative forces under President Diaz until President Diaz was overthrown.

President Diaz, holding office by the grace of the United States, had the power, as nominal head of his party, to call the Conservative nominating convention. Chamorro had the party secretary call the convention and nominated his puppet, Rappaciolo. The Diaz, or government wing, then met and nominated a man named Cuadra Passos.

The National Board of Elections was called upon the choice between Rappaciolo and Cuadra Passos as to which was the Conservative candidate—and refused. Thanks to Eberhardt and McCoy, both have since withdrawn and the united Conservatives have named Adolfo Bonari.

Bonari is a wealthy planter without political background. It is supposed that his nomination was partly due to his known ability to contribute heavily to the party campaign chest.

For Nicaragua, apparently, a large sum is to be spent on the election. Vote buying in Nicaragua is much cheaper than in the United States and there aren't anywhere near so many votes to buy. With marines at every polling place to prevent any rough stuff, the practice becomes one of expediency.

Senator Borah has said that 80 per cent of Nicaraguan voters would favor the Liberal ticket if they weren't intimidated, but there is little information available here to indicate the result. The last tip this writer had from Nicaraguan sources was that the odds favored Monocada.

There is some reason to believe that the marines could have captured Sandino before this if they had cared to push a more ruthless campaign. Their operations were somewhat tempered by realizing that unrestrained measures against natives who might have been helping Sandino would have intensified Latin American sentiment against our intervention.

At one time charges were made that American airmen had butchered non-combatants and women and children, but the resentment in other republics to the south has become less and less noisy, at least.

It has been realized that the killing of Sandino or his capture and delivery to Diaz for execution would have stirred up outside feeling all over again and reheroized Sandino.

Minor matters now concerning the Americans who will handle the election include certain unrest caused by the conduct of many unfit and dishonest Nicaraguan officials, the growth of small bands of thieves and bandits often encouraged for political purposes by some faction and increasing evidence that liquor and money are to be freely used in the campaign.

We're still hoping that Al Smith or one of the vice presidential candidates will tell us which party is responsible for the wonderful green grass that grows all around.

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT

Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(168) Thirty-Two Electric Companies

Thirty-two utilities constitute the electric class of public utilities in Connecticut. These companies are engaged solely in the production and distribution of electric current. Of this number five are operated by municipalities and two are not now operating. Sixteen years ago there were 27 electric companies.

The assets of the Connecticut electric companies amount to $60,000,000, as against $11,313,000 for such companies in operation in 1912. Total reserves amounted to $7,800,000 a year ago as compared with $1,358,203 for 1912.

Operating revenues and operating expenses have advanced proportionally since 1912, both a year ago being several times the amounts of 1912. Total operating revenues for 1912 amounted to $2,326,211, whereas the operating revenues of a year ago totaled $1,293,336. Operating expenses for the corresponding periods were $1,440,082 and $8,402,810. Metered sales to general consumers brought in $12,105,864 during 1926, and $1,900,000 during 1912. Production expenses for the two periods were: $4,158,682 and $523,000, respectively.

The electric companies are mostly owned by Connecticut people. Of the 8,050 stockholders reported in the last statement of the companies, 7,306 lived in Connecticut. They held 659,397 shares. The total amount of stock outstanding was $33,643,750. Dividends for the year totaled $3,051,913. Sixteen years ago the total amount of capital stock outstanding was $7,791,650. Of the 1,955 stockholders, 1,664 holding 72,793 shares were in Connecticut.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question: G. "Will you please prescribe a remedy for my mother's feet? The soles are covered with solid callouses, and her feet never perspire. They ache and pain so that sleep is almost impossible. Even the weight of her body hurts them."

Answer: Your mother can remove these callouses by treating her feet through soaking them in hot Epsom salts water. The treatment should continue for about thirty minutes, keeping the water reasonably warm all this time. A handful of salt to the ordinary basin of water is sufficient. This soaking will soften the callouses, and when the skin all over the feet becomes normal in texture it is then advisable to vary the treatment by putting the feet alternately in hot and cold water, finishing with cold water to induce a good circulation and strengthen the muscles of the feet and also the muscles which control the pores of the skin. Her feet will then perspire normally.

Question: T. C. asks: "In following your menus, when should one and two-year-olds have their milk?"

Answer: In my opinion, children who are under three years of age should not be using much of anything else except milk. Certainly no solid food should be used until at least two years of age, and then only the non starchy cooked vegetables. If you will give your child plenty of orange juice or other fruits with the milk he will be well nourished and require no other food until he is about three years old.

Question: Mrs. C. G. asks: "Does low blood pressure in adults ever prove serious?"

Answer: Low blood pressure means weakness, and although many people live many years before a serious disease develops, it is nevertheless true that any general weakness which produces low blood pressure is a forerunner of very serious disorders.

Los Angeles.—Lost three years in the mysterious Mato Grosso jungle of interior Brazil, P. H. Fawcett, famous British engineer, is today the victim of a search for a lost civilization.

Belief that Fawcett is dead and that a rescue expedition headed by Commander George M. Fyott, will prove fruitless was expressed by Prof. George M. McBride, associate professor of geography, University of California at Los Angeles, and close follower of Fawcett's expedition.

The dramatic attempt to reach an ancient city somewhere in the tangled fastnesses of the great jungle was sketched by McBride today.

"Fawcett, who was last heard from May 20, 1925, heard rumors among the natives during a previous trip to the interior of Brazil that a large and populous city existed somewhere in the jungle in a location never before visited by white men," McBride said.

"After the war, with a party of three, Fawcett set out to find this place.

"The explorer went almost unarmed, depending on flashlights to awe the natives. He was resourceful and experienced, besides being a good fighter."

DARKNESS KAYOES TWILIGHT BASEBALL

WRECKS BOTH CONTESTS PLAYED LAST EVENING

Garage Beats Green 1-0 Bon Ami-Heights 3 To 3

Gibson's Nine Quits In Seventh With Two Green Runners On Base and No Outs Because of Darkness; Heated Verbal Riot Ensues; Garage Given Game; Boyce Allows One Scratch Hit; Same Trouble at Heights.

BY TOM STOWE

With runners on second and third and a possible victory in the offing for Manchester Green in the first half of the seventh inning last night, Gibson's Garage team walked off the field refusing to play because of darkness. Umpire Ralph Russell at first insisted that the game be finished but after a verbal riot that lasted close to ten minutes and involved spectators as well as players, the game was called on account of darkness, the score reverting back to the sixth inning giving the auto repairers a 1 to 0 victory.

In all probability, the game will mark the end of 1928 twilight baseball in Manchester. The majority of the contests played during the past few weeks have been shortened because of darkness. The Bon Ami-Heights battle last night also ended in a wrangle. Both teams were tied to start the fifth at three runs each. The Bon Ami got its leads in the first half of the fifth, but the game was called off at the Heights were about to take their turn at bat. This, too, resulted in a red hot argument. The only solution seems to be Saturday and Sunday baseball.

Light Was Poor

A determined effort was made to get the games started early last night and even though this was accomplished to a certain extent, it was impossible to finish either. Last night was unusually dark and murky. The sky was clouded and it looked as though rain might fall any minute. Some fans thought there would be no games, but the diamonds were in fairly good condition.

There is no question but what it was too dark to play an ordinary seven inning ball game last night, but both the Green and Gibson's Garage agreed to do "their utmost" to avoid an abbreviated contest. That is why Umpire Russell was reluctant to halt proceedings earlier than he did. It was dark all the way through and he would have been justified in stopping the game any inning after the fourth.

Tough On Umpire

However, by trying to please the fans by allowing the game to go to the limit, Russell got in "dutch". The garage scored the only run of the game in the fourth inning aided by an error. They wanted the game called at the end of the fifth, but the umpire refused. Came the end of the sixth and once more the garage protested to Russell: that it was too dark to play. Reluctantly, Gibson's team took the field to start the seventh inning.

"Lefty" St. John threw the Green fans into an uproar when he lined a single to center. Frankie Walllett essayed to bunt, but hoisted a little pop fly. "Big Jack" Burkhardt, however, had expected the play and raced in to field the bunt, the fly most going over his head. He reached up his glove just in time, but made a bad error. The garage protested after each of the two plays that it was too dark, but the umpire refused to heed their request. After wasting two or three minutes arguing, play was again started. Tommy Sipples relieved Burkhardt, the idea being that his speed would baffle the Green batters in the darkness. He threw but one ball. It was a "scaler" and bounced off "Punk" Lamprecht's glove and rolled to the backstop. Both runners advanced a base. There were no outs, runners on second and third with Bobby Boyce, Ben Cheney and Freddie Burkhardt as the next three hitters.

Throws Down Glove

At this point, Lamprecht threw down his glove and refused to play any more. "Brack" Wilson and others followed suit. They claimed it was impossible to see the ball and that players were liable to get hurt. Considerable time was lost during the free-for-all word arguments which followed. Scores of fans surged onto the field and collected in groups. Everybody was trying to talk at once. Lamprecht declared that he "darned if I'll risk my life out there for nothing."

Meanwhile Umpire Russell still maintained that the game must be finished. He told the garage officials that they had wasted enough time to finish the game. However, after ten or fifteen minutes had elapsed, the garage was about to re-take the field with a makeshift lineup, Hanna going to catch and Brennan to third, but the umpire then ruled that so much time had been wasted that it was out of the question to finish the inning which had only started. He announced that the score would revert back to the end of the sixth inning.

The game, while it lasted, was a splendid pitcher's battle between Burkhardt and Eddie Boyce. The latter allowed the slugging Garage suds only one scratch hit. That was a line drive to short that Jack Linnell almost snared with a leaping one-hand grasp. The ball bounced off his glove. It was the only inking of a hit that they got off his delivery, save for a long smash to deep center that St. John took after a long run. It was the fielding gem of the game. Sammy Kotsch also made a pretty one.

Burkhardt was also stingy with his hits. He allowed four. St. John got two, a single and a double, the latter not counting in the official box score because of the game being called in the seventh. Bobby Boyce got a double and Elmo Mantelli made a single. Boyce fanned seven and Burkhardt, five. Both were hit-proot in the pinches.

The garage scored its run in the fourth. Gill Wright led off with a base on balls and took second on Lamprecht's neat sacrifice down the first base line. He moved to third when Wilson grounded out Boyce to Cheney. With two men out, Sipples hit a fast, high-bouncing grounder down to short. It took a bad hop just in front of Linnell and although he got both hands on the ball, the Green shortstop allowed it to get away from him. It was a costly error and proved the turning point of the game.

AFTERTHOUGHTS

The game marked the second between the two clubs that has ended with an unpleasant feeling. Recently, the garage team beat the Green 3 to 1, but lost the game through protest when it was revealed that they had used several players who were not eligible.

Eddie Boyce surely pitched a wonder game last night allowing a team of sluggers like the garage only one scratch hit. Incidentally, Eddie got away with taking two steps all during the game without the garage topkicks noticing the fact. He also failed to keep his foot in contact with the rubber while pitching.

The game was started promptly at 6:30 but it was quite dark at the time and it was freely predicted that the contest would never be finished. Those who thought the teams might possibly go the distance expected to see the contest won in the last inning. This has happened quite regularly of late.

The largest crowd of the season was on hand to watch the game. Automobiles were parked on both sides of Vernon street, from the top of Lynch's Hill to the Boyle residence.

Umpire Ralph Russell now knows how Joe Wright, president of the league, felt when he had to decide the brace of protests a few weeks ago. Both were tough spots for anyone to be in. The side your decision favors, doesn't give you any credit maintaining that it deserved it, while the other showers you with abuse.

The doubles St. John and Boyce got were lousy clouts. The first cleared Cervini's head in right and the latter went over La Francis's head in left. Mantelli's single was a bullet grounder that Wilson couldn't quite get his paws on firmly.

Manager Prentice didn't get any sleep last night to speak of. He was up late arguing over the ball game and when he got home he found that his wife was quite ill. He sat up all night to care for her.

Jack Hayden, who recently quit the Green team, could not go back on his old love entirely. He sat with the Green players and pulled for them to come through.

The Green and Gibson's Garage are scheduled to play one more game in this round of the twilight league. If the garage wins this half of the league schedule, a play-off series between the two teams will be arranged for Saturday and Sunday dates.

It is reported that Russ Fisher has been signed up by Gibson's Garage. Charlie Varrack of the disbanded Aces is also in their lineup.

What We Think In Sports

By THOMAS W. STOWE

THAT GREEN RUMPUSS

Rivalry is a great thing when it can be controlled properly. With this realization, it is too bad that both games between Manchester Green and Gibson's Garage had to end in such an unsatisfactory manner. First, it was a case of intelligible players. Last night, it was darkness that interfered. The future result is very evident. Twilight baseball will have to be abandoned for the season. Repeated efforts to get games started on time have proved fruitless and a majority of the contests have been abbreviated. There is no question but what it was too dark to play baseball last night.

We cannot help but sympathize for Umpire Russell for the predicament he brought upon himself trying to make the battle go seven innings at the pre-game request of both teams. In justice to Russell, it can be said that although it was too dark to play ball after the fourth inning, if not all night, the shade of difference between the darkness of the sixth and seventh inning wasn't sufficient grounds for calling the game at that specific point.

In my opinion the game should have been called at the end of the fifth inning, but that's neither here nor there. When Umpire Russell ordered the teams to play the seventh inning and the garage started stalling and finally quit the game with Green runners on second and third and no one out, he should have refused to change his decision. At first, Russell threatened to forfeit the game if the garage didn't continue but weakened before the verbal attack and fifteen minutes later, decided it was too dark to play. This was just what the garage had sought for two innings and it staved off possible defeat.

These two teams are apparently very evenly matched. The only solution, as I see it, is to stage a three game series playable on Saturdays and Sundays. It would be interesting to see just what would happen in nine innings of real honest-to-god baseball under ideal light conditions. The garage would probably be the winner, but they would have to hit harder than last night when Eddie Boyce allowed but one hit.

WEIGHT FOR A HEAVYWEIGHT.

Dan Morgan, who manages Jack Britton and other fighters, says a heavyweight should weigh 190 pounds. That's the best weight possible, he says.

LAMBERT MAY GO BACK.

There exists a possibility that Eric Lambert, who recently said he wouldn't return to Columbia, will change his mind in order to play center in football and be on the crew again this coming college year.

It has been estimated that when a man shaves, his razor travels across his face at nearly 30 miles an hour and he may cut through 25,000 hairs.

Community-Green Series Arranged

Shortly after the rumpus at the Green last night, arrangements were completed between Manchester Green and the Community Club for a three game series to start day after tomorrow at Hickey's Grove with the second game at Woodbridge Field a week from Saturday.

Whether or not this series will prove as appealing to fandom as the one between the twilight league rivals who clawed each other in a red hot verbal session last night, remains to be seen. If it does, then the series should prove especially beneficial to the Community Club which is understood to have lost quite a piece of change this season.

SMITH SURPRISES DEFEATING YULES

Wins In Three Sets; Judatz and Captain Dexter Also Victorious.

Three matches were played in The Herald's town championship men's tennis tournament last night and more are scheduled for tonight.

Bob Smith, Jr., 15-year-old son of Senator and Mrs. Robert J. Smith, provided the first upset of the tourney by eliminating Herman Yules in three sets, 1-6, 6-0 and 6-1. Both were on the High school team last season. Yules rating No. 1 man and Smith No. 2. Smith was beaten by Yules in the High school tourney in a three set match but squared accounts last night on a much more important occasion. A big majority of the games went to deuce, Smith said.

Captain Allan L. Dexter of hole-in-one golf fame, beat Harry "Seal" Russell in straight sets, 6-2, 6-0, and Earl Judatz eliminated Frank Cervini 4-1, 6-3. Both were interesting matches.

"Tex", McGraw, Robinson May Get Walking Tickets

By HENRY L. FARRELL

With the exercise of a genius that made him more of a miracle man than any other character in sport, the universally respected and exceedingly popular Uncle Wilbert Robinson put Brooklyn on the baseball map and made millionaires of the club owners.

His reward is an announcement from Steve McKeever, half-owner of the club, that he will be fired when his contract expires in 1929 and that he will be given the air sooner if some way can be found to give it to him.

Tex Rickard took an unexpected sport out of the back rooms and the livery stable arenas and manufactured enough decency to make it the respected resident of the finest palace of its kind in the world.

Rickard's reward is a threat of removal from the management of the corporation, a threat that has been by no means disguised. Rickard made a million for himself and must have made plenty for his associates.

John McGraw made the New York Giants the greatest institution in baseball. He made millionaires of the men who invested their money in the club and he, too, enabled them to cash in on the publicity that his club attracted to the other business ventures of the stockholders.

McGraw likewise has been successful to the point where the "board" feels that his business and his machine can carry on without him. Earlier in the season McGraw was actually in danger of his job.

The New York Giants, the Madison Square Garden and the Brooklyn Robins are million-dollar concerns. In almost any line of commerce or industry the brains of a million dollar concern would command very large money.

Rickard gets $30,000 a year from his board. McGraw and Robinson $25,000 from theirs. Rickard and McGraw are stockholders in their corporations, but Robinson is just a hired man.

The Brooklyn club was almost bankrupt when Robby took charge of it. With two of the worst teams that ever played in a world series he won two championships and he has consistently kidded terrible ball clubs up into the money.

Rickard's board got sore on him because he turned over only $400,000 in profits after the second Dempsey-Tunney fight. The board was enraged when the Mandell-McLarin fight broke even and when the Tunney-Heeney fight lost $155,000.

In spite of the fact that Rickard can assure his corporation of profits on the year of $800,000 the board is after him. They threaten a general reorganization at the next annual meeting and Rickard's yacht is at the foot of Forty-Second Street under steam.

What the Stoneham interests have against McGraw is not public property, but there is enough evidence to indicate that the controlling interests would prefer to have him elsewhere.

offers a convincing reason why he has a great chance to develop into one of the game's best second sackers with a few years of experience. Lind and Kress in making the grade in their first year have proved the exception to the rule.

Lind and Kress have profited much by the play of these two recruits. Both are young and should star for 10 years, which is a nice thought for the fans of the two cities, not forgetting the club owners.

When you come to think of it the Yankees haven't been doing so much worse than they did last year. They ran away with the pennant in 1927 and they are having no holiday this year, but the figures show an interesting fact.

The percentage points the Yankees are only a few points behind their mark at a corresponding time last year. But the Athletics are 100 points better than they were in 1927. Therefore, it would seem that the Yankees are about as good as they were last year, but the Athletics are very much better.

The Athletics also have lost more ball games than the Yankees have and smart baseball men know that the more the lost column are more important than they appear in type.

In the National League race the Giants have a better chance to beat the Cardinals than the Athletics have to overhaul the Cardinals because the Giants and Cardinals have lost about the same number of games and the New Yorkers have more games to play than the St. Louis club.

TRIAL OF TILDEN SET FOR TONIGHT

Predicted That Big Bill Has Played His Last Game as An Amateur.

By GEORGE BARRY New York, Aug. 23.—Unless there is a sudden and complete reversal of opinion on the part of the powers that be in the United States Lawn Tennis Association, William T. Tilden, 2nd, has played his last game of lawn tennis as a good and law-abiding amateur.

What is hurting Tilden most in the preliminary discussion of his case before the association is that he is running away from a fight by refusing to attend the hearing and make his reply to the charges in person. Such action is not in keeping with "Big Bill's" usual method of doing things.

Tilden's friends who think he has been suspended under an unfair interpretation of an unfair rule, hope to have the rule amended at the next annual meeting of the association in February. It is also reported that instead of being barred absolutely from the amateur courts he will draw a suspension of six months which will prevent his playing in the national singles beginning on Sept. 10, and that between now and the date for the annual meeting the association will itself seek to modify the rules to permit Tilden to play next summer.

GREEN WON'T PROTEST DESPITE "RAW DEAL"

"I positively will enter no protest over the game last night," said Manager Sam Prentice this morning. "I am of course, I feel that we got a 'raw deal,' but that's another matter. When the garage team walked off the field and refused to play immediately after we got men on second and third in the seventh inning following a period of intentional stalling, I think any fair-minded fan will agree that the umpire should have tossed the game to us. Especially in view of the fact that he had ordered the inning played irrespective of the semi-darkness."

The Nut Cracker

Looking around, O'Goofy is unable to report finding any experts these days who picked the Cubs or the Reds to snatch a banner this year.

THE CUBS, IT WOULD SEEM, HAVE FALLEN BY THE WAY FOR GOOD. JUST A LITTLE WHILE AGO THEY LOST FOUR STRAIGHT GAMES TO THE PHILLIES, AND TO LOSE FOUR GAMES TO THE PHILLIES IS REGARDED AS NOTHING LESS THAN A MIRACLE.

It may not mean a thing, but most of the extra games the Giants have to play this fall are against a quaint, old-fashioned coterie named the Boston Braves. A serious thought for some St. Louis people.

The Braves have demonstrated clearly that baseball diamonds can be given exclusively to ornamental purposes.

LIND AND KRESS 2 BEST RECRUITS

So Says Billy Evans In Predicting Successful Future for Ball Players.

By BILLY EVANS Two of the outstanding recruits in the majors this year are Second Baseman Carl Lind of the Cleveland Indians and Shortstop Ralph Kress of the St. Louis Browns.

It is the exception of major league infielders to make the grade in their first year in the big show, but that is just what Lind and Kress have done at the all-important positions of second and short.

Last year these two players were the stellar performers at shortstop in the Western League, Lind with Denver and Kress with Tulsa. Following Joe Sewell, Cleveland, out of the lineup hardly seemed possible, so Manager Peckinpah of the Indians experimented with Lind at second as an understudy to Louie Fonseca. Also, it hardly seemed in the books that Kress could displace the veteran Walter Gerber at short for the Browns, but that is just what he did. Gerber being sold to the Boston Red Sox shortly after the season opened.

Now for the peculiar part of the first year careers of these two clever rookies. From almost the very start of the training season, Kress had the upper hand at short for the Browns, but Lind was simply a filler-in for Cleveland being used at both short and second. As a matter of fact, a injury that caused Joe Sewell to miss the last three weeks of spring training, enabled Lind to get plenty of work at shortstop.

However, when the season opened Joe Sewell was back at short for Cleveland, but Kress had supplanted Gerber at St. Louis. In the first game of the season, a collision put Morgan and Fonseca out of the Cleveland lineup and Lind got his big chance in the second game of the season as substitute for Fonseca at second. He has played regularly ever since and is now a fixture as an Indian regular.

Last season, in the Western League, Lind batted .331, while Kress hit for a mark of .329. There was little to choose between the two at the bat and if there was an edge most of the experts were willing to give it to Lind.

Hooks and Slides YANKS AREN'T SO TERRIBLE

When you come to think of it the Yankees haven't been doing so much worse than they did last year. They ran away with the pennant in 1927 and they are having no holiday this year, but the figures show an interesting fact.

In the National League race the Giants have a better chance to beat the Cardinals than the Athletics have to overhaul the Cardinals because the Giants and Cardinals have lost about the same number of games and the New Yorkers have more games to play than the St. Louis club.

Here's one case showing that it sometimes profits a fighter to share a 50-50 split with a smart manager. Benny Bass and Harry Blitman are rival Philadelphia featherweights and very good ones. Bass is recognized as the champion and Blitman is conceded to be the outstanding contender in the class.

Philadelphia promoters have been trying for a long time to make the match, as it would be a great natural in Philadelphia. But the managers of the two fighters were on the outs and they wouldn't meet with the promoters.

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

CHAPTER XLVIII

Rod stepped into the tiny hall and then halted abruptly. For a few seconds he fancied he had entered the wrong house. That was absurd. This was Baker's place, all right. But what was going on? Who could be here?

"Why, Baker, of course," he told himself, though still puzzled. He'd never thought about the possibility of the man having a wife. This looked like a woman's work. But it was funny they hadn't waited until he was out of the house. Perhaps they wanted him to leave at once.

He was still in the hall when suddenly he was rooted to the spot by a greeting called out to him from the kitchen. Was this an hallucination?

"Rod, is that you?" the voice sounded, a bit shaky. "Come out and help me with the steak, will you?"

Rod moved on into the living room, feeling just as he should have felt—completely bewildered. This couldn't be! Now he knew he was the victim of his own mind. His brooding over the past had brought him to the verge of insanity.

That table. He stood staring at it, without answering the voice from the kitchen. Oh, he was still too sane for that! Of course there were no plates laid for two, no gorgeous red roses, and a lace cloth.

Then he sniffed. "Oh, Lord," he groaned. "do I only imagine that heavenly smell?"

"Well, aren't you coming?" The voice from the kitchen was growing impatient—just like a wife's. For answer he moved over and touched the roses. Their feel was unmistakable. Did people imagine they felt things, too—things that weren't there? Rod had a touch of panic.

He drove out to the kitchen like a veritable madman. He would find out if he could see the owner of that voice! If he could... then there was no doubt about it... he was ready for the straight-jacket.

He saw her, standing before the kitchen table, fussing with a thick steak, and not trusting herself to look up at him. He lifted his arm and drew his coat sleeve across his eyes. Bertie Lou waited for him to say something. She heard only a half-suppressed sound of helpless misery that brought her head up with a jerk.

"Why, what's the matter with you?" she cried and rushed to him as though she could save him. Her touch on his arm had a strange effect. What happened then was far from Bertie Lou's plans.

Rod simply took her and held her. He held her as a drowning man would hold to life. Bertie Lou could scarcely breathe. And she couldn't think at all. A humorous phrase came to her mind—"this is so sudden." It made her laugh. And of the laugh he was aware, but as a sudden for lack of strength behind it, was a sound of pure happiness. No, she was not thinking.

But she had to breathe, and when she finally struggled out of Rod's embrace she remembered in a rush all that she had forgotten in this last moment.

And Rod remembered too. Bertie Lou belonged to Marco Palmer. Rod's eyes instantly became points of anguish of the soul so intense that Bertie Lou was compelled to look away from him.

"Why did you do that?" she said brokenly.

"Because I love you, Bertie Lou," Rod answered, his voice vibrant with emotion.

"Oh, but you don't!" she cried. "If you did you never could have believed what you told Lila!"

"Lila?" Rod repeated dully.

"Yes," Bertie Lou faced him with her head high and her cheeks aflame. "Lila told me what you saw at Marco Palmer's house. I went to her when I learned that she had been out here. Oh, Rod, she hurried on in a rush, 'how could you believe such a thing?'"

Rod stared at her a moment in dumb questioning. Then, "My God, what a blind fool I've been," he exclaimed bitterly. "Bertie Lou, you will never forgive me, will you?"

Bertie Lou sank into a chair and buried her face on her arms. Rod came over and knelt beside her. "Listen to me, please," he begged. Bertie Lou did not raise her head. Neither did she draw away from the hand he put tentatively on her arm.

"I must have been mad," she went on, "but I have some excuse, Bertie Lou. I had been disillusioned, and I was sure you didn't love me. You went away in such an unaccountable fashion; you hardly wrote—just short, cool notes. I knew about you and Lila. Bertie Lou interrupted in muffled tones. "I found out before I went away."

"There wasn't anything to find out then," Rod said with painful honesty.

Now Bertie Lou raised her head. "You told me a lie," she charged him reproachfully. "I asked you why you were late and you said you had worked at the office, or something. And you had been to Lila's apartment."

"Yes," Rod admitted. "I had, but I couldn't tell you why, Bertie Lou. I didn't want to worry you."

"And you were there when I called your office just after I got that telegram from home," Bertie Lou added. "I knew then that you were in love with Lila."

"No, don't say that!" Rod pleaded. "I won't lie to you again, ever, even for your own sake. Please believe me. I didn't care much for Lila then—except that I believed her a wonderful friend. Later I thought I did. But it has been you, Bertie Lou, first, last and always since I first loved you. And there was nothing with Lila. That I can't tell you about."

Bertie Lou allowed him to take her hands. "Will you let me tell you why I lied to you?" he asked to break the silence in which she struggled for faith in him. She nodded.

Then Rod told her about the necklace and the bracelets. "She did that to cause trouble between us!" Bertie Lou cried at one point in the story. "Oh, Rod, if only you had told me why you had to save your money!"

"I couldn't when you came back from Wayville," he answered. "You had changed so. I mean I thought you had. I'm ashamed of it. Bertie Lou, but I didn't believe you would buy Lila the insurance money."

"I know. She had made you think I was a selfish little beast," Bertie Lou said.

And you had a date the first night you were home," he reminded her.

"I surprised Marco more than I did you," Bertie Lou answered, smiling. "I never would have gone out with him if you hadn't told me you were having dinner with the Lorees."

And so they went on, bringing up their grievances, laying them, clearing away their misunderstandings and coming nearer to each other than they ever had been before.

Suddenly Rod remembered that Bertie Lou's presence in the Baker cottage was unexplained. "Tell me how you happen to be here," he urged her.

"It's where I should be," she boasted proudly. "Right in our own home!"

"She enjoyed Rod's evident perplexity, but she did not keep him long in suspense. "I had this house built with the money you spent me," she told him. "Lila did use one good turn, even if she didn't mean to. She forced us to save some money."

"But $2,000 wouldn't build this house," Rod protested.

"Bertie Lou put her hands on his shoulders and looked into his eyes. "Don't say it that way," she cautioned him. "It sounds as if you didn't believe me. And we must never doubt each other again. Or else, on little lies led to all the trouble we had."

"But it began before that—the night of our wedding. I asked myself if you loved me. I should have believed that you wouldn't have married me if you didn't. And I should have kept on believing it."

Rod took her hands off his shoulders and pressed them to his lips. "A man never had a sweeter bride," he told her, "but a man's a man, Bertie Lou. And that means that sometimes he's a fool. Only a wise woman can help him then. You were too proud and too good."

Bertie Lou smiled at him. "Well, try it again," she warned him. "I'll fight for you like a fishwife."

"I think I'll stick to the hearthside," Rod replied. "But I still would like to know how you financed this house. And that doesn't mean that I think you stole the money or anything like that, but just as a matter of curiosity."

"I bought it on terms, of course, silly. And it's half yours. You were the first person to answer my bid."

"With chicken feed in my pocket! But I've got a position. I take possession of a cage on Monday. It's special work and there will be a lot of overtime, but it's with a big organization and now that I've something to work for besides bread and butter."

"Thank goodness I've found a paying tenant for this house at last," Bertie Lou applauded. "You don't know how I've worried about the future payments."

Rod laughed. "You can sell the flowers and vegetables I've grown. A lot of your five dollars a week went for seed."

"Then you must have been living on crackers and cheese," Bertie Lou declared, jumping up. "And I've the loveliest dinner for you! But you will have to help me with the steak."

"I can cook it to the queen's taste," Rod assured her. Suddenly Bertie Lou paused over lifting the steak to the broiler.

"You said that the first time we cooked a meal in our own home," she reminded him.

"This is a new start, too," Rod replied solemnly. "And the time we will make a go of it, won't we, Bertie Lou?"

"Let's go right out after dinner and send telegrams to our parents," Bertie Lou suggested; "and I've got to telephone poor little Bessie Rogers. She will sit up for me I'm afraid. She never trusted you very much and I think she guessed that I was head over heels in love with my caretaker. And she may discover that I've brought a week-end bag. I expected you to leave tonight," she added naively.

"Tell her that you've given me the job for life," Rod said. "I'm never going to stop taking care of you again."

"For five dollars a week?"

"For love of the only girl in the world!"

COMPLEXION IS MIRROR OF BODILY CONDITION

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Hope springs eternal in the breast of the average woman so far as concerns the development of a beautiful skin.

She is constantly being told by the conductors of beauty columns and by the advertisements in magazines that all that is necessary to have a beautiful skin is to smear on a certain amount of this or that at a certain time.

Little does she realize that the complexion for the most part is a mirror which reflects the internal state of her body. A pale skin, flabby and wrinkled tissues, pimples, blackheads, and discolorations are signs of a lack of general health and inability on the part of the blood to rid the body of infection.

Diet and Exercise

In many instances these defects of the skin can be overcome by modifying the diet, controlling the elimination, getting a certain amount of fresh air, sunlight and outdoor exercise, and an adequate amount of rest.

Of course, the muscles that lie beneath the skin of the face are concerned with the elasticity of the skin and the appearance of wrinkles. It is possible that muscular development and tone of the skin may be aided by proper exercise, massage or even mechanical vibration, but unless the tissues are healthful primarily, such manipulations will be of little service.

Soap and Water

In the general care of the skin, washing three or four times a day with cool or warm water, with any good soap, is sufficient unless the skin is extraordinarily dry.

A pale skin cannot be helped by anything except improvement in the quality of the blood. Powder serves as a protection.

It is, of course, possible for the woman with artistic inclinations to reproduce upon her skin the mask that simulates a beautiful appearance. A general survey of women on the streets of any large city would seem to indicate that but few have artistic inclinations.

IRISH INVASION OF SCOTLAND BRINGS PRAYER FOR QUOTA

THE ANSWER

Here is the answer to the Letter Golf puzzle on the covers page: CARRY, HARRY, HARRY, H A R P S, HARRIS, HATES, HATER, WATER.

The color movies seem to be having quite as much a vogue as the off-color ones enjoyed.

London.—Is Scotland and the great Scottish race in danger? It would appear that a turning point in the affairs of Scotland has been reached by the fact that a representative Scottish deputation to the British Government has protested that the influx of Irish immigrants into Scotland is "changing the whole character of the Scottish people."

The deputation, which represented the Church of Scotland, the Free Church of Scotland, and the United Free Church of Scotland, waited on Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Home Secretary, and Sir John Gilmour, Scottish Secretary, in order to suggest the application of the quota system as the only effective means of limiting the number of Irish settlers to the country's capacity to employ them.

The Irish invasion of Scotland is a problem which has long exercised the minds of Scottish religious and social workers. It has been a grave menace to the racial qualities of the Scottish people.

It was pointed out by the deputation that between 1901 and 1921 the Irish population of Scotland increased by 30 per cent, and the native Scottish population by only six per cent; also that the Irish represented 25 per cent of the population of Glasgow, and it was computed that they received 70 per cent of all relief funds that are distributed.

The religious leaders involved also pointed out that Scotland is in danger of being both religiously and racially overrun by Irish people who are not the best type.

Other arguments put forward by the deputation were:

- (1) The birthrate of the Irish in Scotland is much greater than that of the natives.
- (2) The Irish work for low wages and have a lower standard of living.
- (3) Their political sympathies, generally speaking, are Communistic.

HAMBURG REPORT SHOWS INCREASE IN SHIPPING THROUGH GERMAN PORTS

Hamburg.—Incoming tonnage at the port of Hamburg in June exceeded the figures for June, 1913, by 50 per cent, and outgoing tonnage was 54 per cent greater than fifteen years ago.

This percentage of tonnage under the German flag remained at about 45 per cent roundly the same figure as in the preceding month.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it, if there are children in your family there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful, there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product, a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every drugstore has it.

THE SINGLETON LEAD

Assume that east has bid diamonds and the declarer has finally won the contract with a bid of three hearts. Examine the following illustration:

West holds: spades, A K; hearts, A X X X; diamonds, X; clubs, J. East holds: spades, X X X; hearts, X; diamonds, A K Q X X; clubs, X X X.

West, of course, has the opening lead.

Although east has bid diamonds, west should not open the singleton diamond. He should lead the spade Ace first and then the spade X which will be won by the declarer. Declarer will undoubtedly lead a trump and west will win the trick with his heart Ace. Then west should lead the singleton diamond which east will overtake.

East will probably win the next trick at diamonds and then lead a spade which west will trump. Game is prevented by this procedure.

This refers to the singleton lead at trump play. At no trump, the singleton lead is seldom justifiable. The disadvantage of the singleton lead when you hold strength or length in trumps is exemplified in the illustrations which follow. In each instance south's declaration is hearts and west who must lead, holds:

1—Spades, A Q 10 XXX; hearts, K XXX; diamonds, X; clubs, XX.

West should not lead the singleton when he holds four small trumps with a strong side suit. He should lead the strong suit and endeavor to weaken the declarer's lead in the spade King.

2—Spades, A K Q XXX; hearts, XXXX; diamonds, X; clubs, XX.

West should not lead the singleton when he holds four small trumps with a strong side suit. He should lead the strong suit and endeavor to weaken the declarer's lead in the spade King.

3—Spades, XXXX; hearts, XX XX; diamonds, X; clubs, XXXX.

West should lead the singleton. With four small trumps or less and a "Tarborough," the gamble may be successful.

INTERNATIONALISM IN SOCIAL WORK IS AN AID TO PEACE

Social welfare has reached an international phase that may, in the long run, be another step toward permanent world peace, in the opinion of Mrs. Marion Lousbury Foster, Red Cross official, just returned from the First International Conference of Social Work in Paris.

"One of the main subjects discussed at the conference was international co-operation on case work," Mrs. Foster explained. "Delegates from Japan, Russia, Germany and all the other leading countries of the world realized that the time has come when social workers in all countries must co-operate."

"The 2,000 delegates were in accord in believing that by improving social conditions and by bringing about understanding between countries, the cause of peace would be advanced."

"Another vital fact realized forcibly at the conference was the importance of the family unit in our civilization. Though new ways are constantly being considered of dealing with social welfare problems—especially in Russia—the consensus of opinion was that first of all the family unit must be helped."

AIR MAIL PLANES MAY SOON HAVE CLERKS TO "WORK" MAIL ENROUTE

Cleveland.—Mail clerks may soon travel in air-mail planes to "work" the mail enroute, according to F. E. Doua, Assistant Postmaster here.

Such service, sorting mail on transcontinental planes, similar to railway service will be inaugurated soon, Doua said.

Plans have been submitted by a company operating air mail service, to Postmaster General Harry S. New, covering construction of planes which are to provide space for a distributing clerk, Doua declared.

Sixty students at Tulane University pay their way by driving taxicabs at night. And besides, look at the practice they get in adding.

THOSE WHO COULD BEST AFFORD TO BE CARELESS SELDOM ARE

If carelessness about lubrication were merely a matter of wasted money there are plenty of well-to-do people who would never give the matter a second thought.

But to have a car's performance on the road spoiled! That's another story, and a sad one. Swift, comfortable, silent transportation; that is what you expect from your car today, and that is precisely the condition that Texaco Motor Oil facilitates to the maximum.

But the big point, after all, that one gains at the sign of the Texaco Red Star and Green T is — absolute certitude of clean, clear, golden motor oil of the right grade, Texaco.

The Texas Company's refinery engineers for years sought to find methods which would remove everything from motor oil that was not lubricant.

When this super-refining was perfected the resulting oil was of a pure golden color. To have made a motor oil of real body so pure was a real triumph. The results you see and experience today every time you are supplied with golden Texaco Motor Oil.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

BEATING MEAT PRICES

Pinehurst's customers will receive our heartiest co-operation in economizing in the use of meats, and especially high-priced cuts, while the present trend of excessive prices lasts. If demand exceeds supply the thing to do, since we folks cannot increase the supply, is to decrease the demand. That's logical, isn't it?

In line with this we are suggesting two or three pounds of Hamburg—you know what Pinehurst hamburger is; clean and sweetly kept and prepared—made into a meat loaf for a Sunday dinner, which, by the way, can be gotten all ready on Saturday. It's thirty cents a pound.

The cooler weather leads itself, too, to the use of soup and stewing pieces. Bare bones for soup are three cents a pound.

Just now we have some especially meaty shank ends of ham—some of them are really halves of small hams. They afford excellent values at 19 to 33 cents.

Another excellent buy at this period is one of these shoulders of lamb, cut any size from three and a half to six and a half pounds, at 29 to 35 cents a pound, according to size.

Ribs of corned beef—the famous Pinehurst kind—are only 16 cents, which at the market is an offer.

Table Talk and Armour shoulder hams; well cured and well trimmed lean shoulders. Another attractive suggestion should be this one—medium fowl for fricassee, $1.75 each. Figure that out as compared to sirloin or rib roast.

We have that excellent bacon, sliced with the rind off, at 39 cents; another ray of light in the darkness. Dried beef, good, 20 cents the quarter pound, 39 cents the half. Yellow corn is lower and we have a fresh picking practically every few hours—always at the lowest market price. Also the Lima beans to go with it for the great American succotash. Tomatoes are down—four pounds for a quarter. So are Sweet Potatoes, 3 lbs. 25 cents. Whites 31 cents a peck, delivered.

Don't forget that tonight's the night of the Friday evening late phone service. Order your week-end list any time up to 9 o'clock and have it delivered tomorrow, at whatever hour you say after 9 o'clock. Or, if it's breakfast emergency, even earlier than that. Phone two thousand.

HE SLEEPS CALMLY AS GARAGE BURNS

Civil War Veteran Unaware of Blaze Until It Was All Over.

Lucius Pinney of Prospect street, commandant of Drake Post No. 4, G. A. R., slept blissfully through one of the most exciting evenings that the village of East Hampton has experienced in some time when his car and garage burned to the ground despite the efforts of the East Hampton fire department and the summer cottagers and villagers.

thing so went back to sleep. Tank blows up. The sound of the explosion was caused by the blowing up of the gas tank on his Hup sedan. A cotlager, returning home after dark saw the flames creeping out of the Pinney garage which is located some distance from the house but near the highway. A call was sent in for the East Hampton fire department. Meanwhile the cottagers did what they could to check the flames. Their efforts, however, were without avail and by the time the fire department arrived, the flames had gained so much headway that it was impossible for the firemen to save garage or car.

The doors, sides and roof of the garage was constructed of sheet iron. The frame work was made up of two by fours. When these supports burned the sheet iron heated to a bright red, collapsed and fell on the car which by this time had been completely destroyed.

Mr. Pinney was first told of the fire by his son George who discovered the ruins when he reached the cottage about midnight. Mr. Pinney is at a loss to explain how the fire could have started.

Population Of Agricultural Mexico Studied By Chicago University Men

Chicago.—Fifteen trained field workers from the Department of Geography at the University of Chicago, headed by Professor Robert S. Platt, have left for six weeks of extensive field work in the heart of agricultural Mexico.

Little scientific work has been done in the human geography of the region around Mexico City. The University of Chicago workers will analyze typical communities in the Valley, particularly in the Tepic district, and make a broad survey of the highland agricultural territory.

The general method will be to assign each worker to a particular portion of the locality being studied to make maps and charts of population distribution, social and economic organization, transportation facilities, exchange of products, and related problems.

From Mexico City the party will proceed to the coffee haciendas and power plant at Orizaba, to the banana and sugar haciendas around Vera Cruz, to San Luis Potosi, status," says Professor Platt. "A large proportion of the peon class are Indians, whose pre-Columbian culture was equal to that of the better-known Mayas in the lowland districts. Their ancient culture, represented in the monuments and pyramids of the central plateau, and their present status as a conquered race have an important bearing on the central problem."

The members of the expedition, with the exception of Professor Platt, are graduate students of geography who have had experience in American field work. Eight of them are women. Miss Alice

OLD GOLD TOWN LONG DESERTED SEES NEW BLOOM

Bodie, Calif.—"Some day you'll see things boom'n' again, once they begin to mine the rich ore hereabouts."

Jim Cain, leading citizen of the one-time rip-roaring town of Bodie, is seeing his dream come true. The "ghost city" more or less dead since 1921 when mining production dropped from $23,000,000 in gold and $4,000,000 in silver in 1921 to $37,754 in gold and $15,150 in silver is coming once again into its own.

Population Dwindled Where he reigned as "king" the town now has a population of 75, consisting mostly of engineers and miners.

One of these is E. J. Clinton of San Francisco. Successful business man and owner of the Clinton Cafeteria, he has disposed of his restaurant business and moved to Bodie.

With B. W. West, a mining engineer, he leased the dump and surface of the old Standard mine, bought new machinery and today is preparing to grind out the yellow dust.

The Standard has been a "dead one" many years but many a mansion has been built in the state and many a fancy trotter bought with gold produced by his mine.

Other Prospects Still another group of San Francisco capitalists are preparing to begin similar operations at an adjoining mine, while a Los Angeles capitalist has optimistically begun to pump water from a third.

Only the Standard and the Bodie Consolidated continue to grind out gold at a profitable rate in the early days when 50 companies were formed, dissolved and went broke. It is on the latter mine that the Los Angeles men are betting their stake today.

Maybe they'll have to move the body of W. S. Bodie, who located the Bodie camp in 1864. If they do, Jim Cain will tell you, the town will be booming for years.

A colony of spiders that spin silk for use in scientific instruments is kept by a woman at Tatesfield, near Westerham.

The most interesting thing about a child, a business or a town is its growth.

The growth of our business is explained by our earnest desire to please and the fact that we are operating a pure food grocery in an appreciative community.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (374) A Dog Kennel
Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Braucher

The size of the dog kennel, of course, will depend upon the size of the dog. The kennel must be made so it stands a little way off the ground. Ventilation also must be provided. The artist has pictured here the frame work of the kennel, showing how the joints are put together and the supporting strips put on.
Floor boards should be at least three-fourths of an inch thick for comfort. Lay them across from side to side on top of the lower frame pieces.
Sides are made of wood running from front to back, and in front and rear from side to side, as shown, with allowance made for the entrance.

The roof, as the drawing above shows, is plainly made. Where the boards meet, strips can be nailed lengthwise to make the roof shed rain. Five or six holes should be bored through the side walls just under the roof to provide ventilation. Dark green is a good color to use, since it is a serviceable shade.

GAS BUGGIES

HEM WASN'T WORRIED BY MR. SNOOP'S INVESTIGATION OF UNTIL AMY AIDED HER SUSPICIONS SO PERSISTENTLY THAT WHEN HE WENT OUT FOR A RIDE HE UNEXPECTEDLY TURNED TO A CERTAIN DESTINATION.

Comic strip by Frank Beck. Characters: Amy, Snoop, Nuluster. Dialogue includes: "AMY! GOOFY WANTING ME TO ASK SNOOP WHY HE'S INVESTIGATING ALEC... I'D NO MORE ASK SNOOP WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT THAN FLY, PLENTY OF PERFECTLY GOOD PEOPLE ARE LOOKED UP FOR ONE REASON OR ANOTHER, ME ASK SNOOP! NEVER!!" and "LEAVING! QUICK... FIND OUT IF HE'S GONE... GOT TO SEE HIM RIGHT AWAY!!"

LETTER GOLF

ONE FOR BOTH SHOULDERS

It's not so easy to CARRY WATER in letter golf, on one shoulder or two. But perhaps you can beat the par seven solution on another page.

Letter golf grid with words CARRY and WATER.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

"Look at the foolah Mr. Baker!" said one man to another. "Out on a rainy day like this without an umbrella! Is he crazy?"

SENSE and NONSENSE

"Yes," said Mrs. Lackpenny, dramatically, "dear Claude is going to set up in business next week. He has burnt his bridges."

Eva: "Why don't you and Hank get married?" Lois: "Because we can't get a house or flat."

A pretty girl lost her glove. The finder was an old bachelor named Page and he returned it to her with this note:

A column, much like a wife or husband, one sometimes likes not so much for its erudition as for its companionate qualities.

Hunter (purchasing new outfit) —Do you guarantee this gun? Suppose it bursts and blows off my head?

"Do you believe in companionate marriages?" "No," answered Miss Cayenne. "Belief is impossible. Companionate marriages seem to be an arrangement by which nobody is expected to put much faith in anybody."

We can't all be great, but we might keep from being tiresome if we'd try, which is greater.

People who think the Jews have no land of their own haven't kept an eye on Florida.

Josephine—Do you think my hands show any signs of toll?" Agnes—"The one with the engagement ring on shows that you have been working."

Sleeping Wisely "Do you talk in your sleep?" "No; my wife says I'm perfectly exasperating—I only smile!"

Ask me another: What should a lady wear at an evening party? Answer: Clothes.

She: How kind you are to your wife, sending her away for a rest. He: Yes, God knows I need one.

"Huh!" grunted old dad at the stairway, "three generations to make a gentleman and three hours to wake him."

Lodger (shaking the door)—How long are you going to be in that bathroom? Man inside—Oh, about five feet nine.

FIND NECK BROKEN
IN CYCLE'S CRASH

August Campbell, injured August 14, Has 2 Broken Vertebrae, X-Ray Shows.

August Campbell, 39, Wapping tobacco worker, who was injured in a collision between a motorcycle which he was riding and an automobile, on the Wapping road Tuesday afternoon, August 14, has a broken neck, it has just been discovered.

Campbell, who had purchased a motorcycle the night before the accident, was riding it south on the Wapping road, headed for his job. An automobile truck, owned by a Hartford provision dealer, came out of a driveway and before the cycle rider could swerve around him they came together. Campbell was thrown and rendered unconscious.

He was brought to the hospital, where it was at first thought that he had a fractured skull as he remained unconscious during the afternoon and night. He regained consciousness later, however. He has complained of persistent pains in his head and the back of his neck and X-ray pictures were taken this week. That show that two vertebrae in the neck have been severed.

Campbell will live, it is said at the hospital, but it will be necessary for him to wear a support for his head. He is a resident of Massachusetts.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Admissions reported today at Memorial hospital included Edward Herskell, 68-year-old Rockville blind man who was injured in an automobile accident; Bror Johnson of 223 Center street; Mrs. Teresa Fisher of 79 1/2th street, Rockville. Patients discharged were Thomas Pazzani, 11 Homestead street, and Robert Finley, 64 School street. Today's census was 44.

BLIND MAN'S STICK
ACCIDENT'S CAUSE

Thrusts It Into Spokes of Passing Auto and Is Pitched Into Bushes.

Edward Herskell, of Bolton, blind, will be confined to his home for several days as a result of a peculiar accident on the road leading from Bolton to Vernon, near the Bolton Reservoirs, yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Herskell, who goes about unaccompanied, uses a long stick with which he feels his way along the road, tapping the ground from side to side and ahead of him as he walks. He travels at a rather fast walk.

Yesterday afternoon he was walking along the road in his usual confident manner when an automobile approached. The driver noticed the manner of Herskell's progress and guessed his blindness.

Driver Careful
As the road is narrow and sandy he brought his car down to a slow speed as Herskell approached. As man and car were directly opposite and close together, however, Herskell poked his stick to one side and it caught in the wheel of the automobile. Instantly the staff was snapped and Mr. Herskell was thrown off the road and pitched headfirst into the bushes and against a rock.

The motorist stopped his car within a few feet and Joseph Moore of Manchester was driving by just in time to see Herskell stagger and fall. Mr. Moore hurried to the Fanhall Inn and telephoned to Manchester for a physician, who found that Herskell had a scalp wound and was bruised about the body from the fall, but that his injuries are not serious.

9TH DISTRICT KEEPS
SAME ORGANIZATION

No Material Change in Committees Named for the New School Year.

The Ninth School District Committee met last evening at the high school building and re-organized for the 1928-29 school year. There were no material changes according to Superintendent Fred A. Verplanck.

Howell Cheney was named chairman and Charles R. Hathaway, clerk. The committee to act as part of the joint school board consists of Howell Cheney, R. LaMotte Russell and Rev. P. J. O. Cornell. John Hyde and Miss Mary Cheney compose the recreation committee.

Clarence R. Weatherell, of 123 Wells street was again chosen as school enumerator for the district and Probation officer Edward C. Elliott, Jr., was renamed as attendance officer.

The purchasing committee consists of Miss Mary Cheney, R. LaMotte Russell and John Hyde and the evening school committee includes Howell Cheney, Rev. P. J. O. Cornell and R. LaMotte Russell. Miss Mary Cheney is the sole member of the library committee. Dr. A. A. Burr is the school physician for the district.

TOBACCO CROP GIVES
FINEST OF PROMISE

Best Broadleaf Crop in Years Expected—Shade Picking Is Far Advanced.
Broadleaf tobacco growers are looking forward to one of the finest and largest crops in several years. Shade picking is well under way, with the first priming all off. A fair sized portion of the valuable second priming is already in the sheds, curling down in splendid shape. With the exception of late set fields, the bulk of the shade plants are housed. If pole-sweat weather doesn't materialize, it is expected that there will be a smaller percentage of low grades than usual. Present methods of firing the sheds before pole-sweat develops, is proving advantageous. The crop this year is said to be free from wild fire and other diseases.

SEVENTH'S GRAND LIST
HAS $1,553,664 TOTAL

Mrs. Andrew Healey has completed the grand list figures of the Seventh School District. They show a total of $1,553,664. The rate of taxation this year is 2 1/2 mills, which will raise $3,894.26. The rate book will be turned over to Walter Keeney, collector of the district, who will begin collecting the tax on September 1. Discontinuance of the packing of tobacco at the Buckland Warehouse by the tobacco growers in the Wapping district resulted in a loss in that list, but there were increases in other lists which prevented any large falling off in the total list for the year.
