

FIRE DESTROYS HOUSE; FAMILY NOW HOMELESS

North End Bungalow Burns While Family Was Away; 1,200 Feet of Hose Used On Blaze.

Their home having been destroyed by fire shortly before noon today, a family of five north end residents including father, mother and three young children, will tonight be forced to seek shelter under roofs of friendly neighbors.

They are Joseph Katkowski, his wife, Frances, and three children, Frank 10, Adolph 8 and Adelle 4. All were away from home when their seven-room bungalow house at 594 Tolland Turnpike was wrecked by flames which started from an over-heated stove in the kitchen of the little home. The mother and daughter had just gone over to the home of a nearby neighbor to pay a visit. The father was in Wapping buying some chickens. The two boys did not learn of the fire until they returned home from school for their dinner—a meal they had to go without.

House Destroyed

However, although this was quickly accomplished by the volunteer firemen, the alarm had been turned in so long after the fire started, that the firemen did not get to save a great many other small buildings about the premises. Neighbors succeeded in saving an old organ, a table and a few other small pieces of furniture before the heat became too intense. They were at the point of saving a sewing machine in one room, but for less than $50 in bills when forced to quit.

House Destroyed

The little house was situated on a seventeen acre farm formerly owned by Louis Glayer and later by his son Henry Glayer from whom Katkowski bought the farm four years ago for $5,000. The house and furniture were insured for less than half-value. A Manchester insurance man said that it would probably cost three or four thousand dollars to rebuild the house. Whether or not Mr. and Mrs. Katkowski can afford to do this is not known. They may have to sell their property and go elsewhere to live.

Mr. Katkowski is employed on the night shift at the Orford Soap Company on Hilliard street. He works part of the time each day in his garden where quite a supply of vegetables are growing and part tending to his chickens. The Katkowski family used to live on Union street before they moved to their late home.

R. V. TREAT SLATED FOR POLICE BOARD

Former Selectman Will Take Position If Present Board Appoints Him.

Former Selectman Robert V. Treat is slated to be named a police commissioner here to succeed the commission chairman, Albert T. Dewey. It was learned today, Mr. Dewey has given notice that he will not accept reappointment when his three year term expires this fall.

Will Accept

All of the present Selectmen, who will without a doubt be re-elected this year, favor Mr. Treat for the office. The difficulty was in inducing the former chairman of the Selectmen to accept the appointment if it were offered. Today, however, Mr. Treat consented to act as a police commissioner if he succeeded Mr. Dewey.

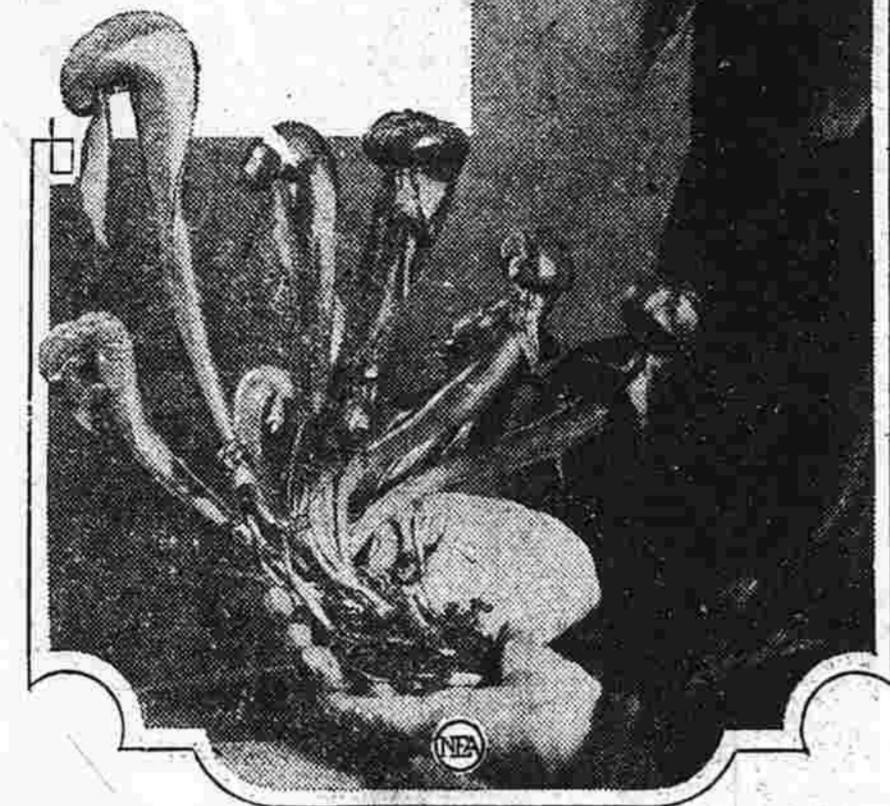

Mr. Dewey has been a police commissioner for several years and has been chairman of that board for the past three years. He believes he has done his duty satisfactorily to the rest of public affairs. He has made a particularly good commissioner because of his military training. The members of the police department have held him in high regard because of his fairness in all questions relating to police work.

Fine Reputation

Mr. Treat retired last year after

One of the strangest plants known to man—a growth that exists altogether on a diet of flesh—was exhibited recently by Mrs. Daisy B. Hyde of Cleveland, O. It is called the Darlingtonia, it resembles in appearance the hooded cobra of the Indian jungles and it eats insects and small animals.

Treaty To Outlaw War Wins Its First Victory

Geneva, Sept. 7.—The Kellogg-Briand treaty for renunciation of war has won its first victory. Premier Valdemaras, of Lithuania, in an address to the League of Nations council declared that, while a technical state of war existed between Lithuania and Poland as a result of their boundary dispute, Lithuania would never take up arms to enforce her claims. This decision, he said, was due to the fact that Lithuania had accepted the Kellogg-Briand treaty and intended to abide by it.

There is every indication that China will be elected to a seat upon the council, thus giving formal recognition by the League to the new Nationalist government in China.

The assembly adopted the procedure for election of council seats employed in 1926. This assures Spain of a semi-permanent seat, and neutralizes the claims of Norway, Holland, Persia and Sweden.

NATION'S ALCOHOL CAME FROM PHILLY

One Distillery Alone Supplied Runners With 350,000 Gallons in Year.

Philadelphia, Sept. 7.—Philadelphia has supplied the nation's racketeers with vast amounts of alcohol.

The contraband, removed from warehouses under government permit allowing its use for manufacture of perfume and medicine was diverted and distributed to all parts of the country.

One distillery here distributed 350,000 gallons of alcohol during the past year.

HENRY FORD PICKS HOOVER AS WINNER

Says Nominee is Man of Destiny—Tells Why He Favors Him.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 7.—Herbert Hoover is a man of destiny, Henry Ford declared today in an interview advocating the Republican nominee's candidacy.

"Parties may pick the candidates but destiny picks the presidents," the automobile manufacturer said.

"As far back as four or five years ago I saw Hoover was headed for the presidency," Ford added. "Declaring the world is entering a new age, 'the industrial and more comfortable age,' Ford said the country needs a president equipped to handle the problems of the new day."

Growing Power

"The country has become more than a group of governmental officers," Ford said. "It is a great and growing social and productive power and it needs a man who knows how to make the material world serve the social world. It is not enough for him to desire this, but to know how to go about it. Hoover knows."

Ford praised Hoover's stand on prohibition, calling his attitude "absolutely right."

"Prohibition is here to stay, no matter who is elected president," he declared.

"People do not consider prohibition the issue in this campaign—they settle that issue long ago—what they are thinking about is a president best fitted to deal with the problems that will confront the chief executive in this new age—what I call the industrial and more comfortable age."

Ford pictured Hoover as an adviser and referee for the cross sections of modern life, the financiers, the builders, the workers, the producers and the consumers.

This age of labor saving machines means more employment and greater happiness for everyone, Ford emphasized.

People have to build the machines which eliminate the drudgery. The result is general prosperity," he said.

Headed For Presidency

"Herbert Hoover has been heading toward the presidency for a good many years—but he didn't know it," Ford said. "Parties may pick the candidates but destiny picks the presidents. It is nothing against a man if he is not the choice of destiny, but if he is, then he has his job cut out for him. The presidency is not an honor, but a job. A mere political president is like a mere oratorical president."

AIR DERBY DELAYED.

Richards Airport, Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 7.—Show of the National Air Derby Class A planes, scheduled for 8 a. m. was postponed for an hour today because of stormy weather conditions prevailing in the southwest.

A rainstorm here at 5 a. m. left the field in a slightly muddy condition and the sky overcast.

TARIFF ISSUES IMPORTANT, SAY LEADERS

Republicans to Stress it All Through the Campaign; Expect Support of All Business Men.

Washington, Sept. 7.—Determined to make the tariff a vital issue in the presidential campaign, the Republican national committee today launched a new effort to convince American business that Herbert Hoover stands behind the traditional Republican protective tariff policy.

The purpose of the drive will be to win to Hoover the customary business support in the east that has followed Republican presidential nominees since the beginning of the century. The Republican leaders hoped to stop the drift of business men to Governor Alfred E. Smith, which started with the naming of John J. Raskob as his campaign manager. They also plan to eliminate the last suspicion about Hoover's conservatism on the tariff.

The Republican national committee, in recent announcement, has stressed the importance of the tariff to American business, labor and industry. Senator Charles Curtis the Republican vice-presidential nominee, made the tariff his keynote in opening the Maine campaign. Other speakers will be sent into every Atlantic seaboard state to boost of Republican prosperity under the Republican tariff rule and to warn against the danger of economic depression if the Democrats win in the November and initiate tariff reforms.

For the first time too, the tariff will be placed in the midwest as a farm relief measure. The farmers will be told, as they were in Iowa during Hoover's visit to his home state last month, that the tariff can go far toward solving their problems. This has been a Republican doctrine in Congressional circles but no concerted effort has been made previously to preach it universally to the agricultural belt.

Republican Text Book

The 1928 Republican text book to be widely distributed declares: "No one policy has contributed so much to America's continued supremacy in the world of trade as the protective tariff." It adds that the tariff is not a "Chinese wall," as it is being called by the Democrats, but that it has increased 63 per cent since the present law was enacted. "I well recollect that at the time the tariff law was passed," the book quotes Hoover as saying, "it was predicted it would destroy our foreign trade, yet under it our foreign commerce—both imports and exports—have steadily increased until they have both reached the highest volume known in all the peaceful history of our country."

"It was predicted that this tariff would make the rich richer and the poor poorer, but there never was in the whole history of the country a little poverty and so wide a diffusion of comfort as there is today."

TREASURER STOLE ALL THE ASSETS

Baptist Official Wiped Out All the Funds of Mission Board.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 7.—C. S. Carnes, missing Atlanta treasurer of the Baptist Home Mission Board, "has stolen virtually all the assets, invested funds and trust funds" of the board, declared Dr. C. E. Madry, general secretary of the Baptist state convention and member of the board, in a statement issued here today.

Dr. Madry said the shortage of Carnes, who disappeared from Atlanta several weeks ago telling friends he was coming to Raleigh, was known to be $358,000. He said he expected the amount to exceed a million dollars when the auditors had finished their check of Carnes' books.

"I do not suppose any religious body in all history of Christianity has suffered such a staggering calamity," said Dr. Madry. "But having said that, I wish to assure you that there is the bright side to the whole thing."

Many Members.

"The Baptists of the south number more than three million members gathered into 28,000 churches. Through our long history this is the first loss that has ever come to the home board. The Baptists of the south have never defaulted in one single cent and while we are staggering beyond words to express at this calamity we are not going to default now."

To Serve Out Her 30 Days Sentence in the Jail Infirmary.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Florence E. Knapp, former secretary of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has come to an end, it was learned today.

Papers in a divorce action were filed in Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, on behalf of Gatti-Cazazza in which the famous director seeks his marital freedom on grounds of estrangement and incompatibility of temperament.

So far as it is known Mrs. Knapp will continue her role with the Metropolitan under the direction of her husband.

The petition was learned, was filed for the impresario by Mark Henry Schneider and former Judge A. D. M. Randolph, specialists in Mexican divorces, New York City.

A decree of divorce is expected to be handed down within sixty days. It is understood that both parties are agreeable to a legal separation and have taken this means of effecting it. They have been married about 15 years.

WALCOTT DEFEATS BLODGETT IN G. O. P. RACE FOR SENATE

Dry Agents Warned: 'Let Politics Alone'

Washington, Sept. 7.—Prohibition executives and agents were warned today by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman to keep out of politics during the presidential campaign.

Lowman dispatched telegraphic instructions to all administrators calling their attention to the fact that the dry bureau is under civil service regulations, which prohibits political activity.

The 1928 campaign marks the first prohibition fight in which federal prohibition officials and agents have not taken an active part in politics. In former campaigns the dry agents owed their appointment to politics and in many cases enforcement operations virtually were suspended during the election battles.

Lowman's warning was supplemented by the Civil Service Commission which also notified prohibition employees that they must devote their entire attention to enforcement and that while they may vote, their political activities must be confined to just that.

Similar instructions were sent to the Coast Guard and Customs Service by the Treasury.

Any violation of these instructions will result in dismissal or disciplinary action, Lowman said.

Specific treasury regulations provide that "an officer shall not use his official authority to influence or coerce the political act of any person or body."

STATE DEMOCRATS HOLD CONVENTION

Platform Calls for Study of Farm Problems, Highways and Frank Stand on Prohibition.

New Haven, Sept. 7.—A sweeping study of farm conditions in Connecticut; a plea for the state's full rights in settling the prohibition question to its own satisfaction; fully to the principles laid down by Governor Smith; improved highways in the country districts, and opposition to "improving highways for political reasons" are some of the planks that are proposed for the Democratic platform to be adopted by the party's state convention tomorrow morning.

Ideas concerning the platform were revealed here today as delegates assembled for the purpose of naming candidates to contest the gubernatorial election. The platform committee held its final session, a gathering that is expected to last until the convention is called to order at 8 o'clock.

Governor Smith, the keynote of his party.

Stand On Prohibition

While there may be many changes at this afternoon's meeting of the platform committee, it is learned authoritatively that frank statements of the party's position on prohibition, farm relief for the state, and highway matters will be submitted for adoption by the convention as a campaign platform.

The farm study proposed by the platform builders would include a scientific investigation of abandoned farms with suggestions for their utilization wherever possible.

As much land as possible be used for state parks and forests.

Every possible aid to the farmer through improvement of country roads will be the aim of the "highway plank."

"No roads for political purposes" is interpreted to mean that the party would be opposed to granting new trunk line sites or contracts for the sole reason that the particular trunk persons are favored by influential persons with regard to the rights of the states on prohibition questions, particularly when a beverage is alcoholic, will

SMITH TO OPEN HIS CAMPAIGN IN OMAHA, NEB.

Surprise Move by Democrats—To Work in Very Heart of Republican Claimed Territory.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Governor Al Smith's decision to open his campaign with a speech in Omaha on September 18, and to follow it up with a two weeks' intensive tour of the region west of the Mississippi river is the result of several weeks careful political study on the part of the Democratic "best minds" that are directing his candidacy.

West of the Mississippi Republican leaders have asserted that Governor Smith will not carry a single state. The decision to have the governor fire his opening gun in Omaha, the veritable heart of the grain belt and to follow it up with speeches at Oklahoma City and Denver and three or four other places yet to be selected, represents the Democratic challenge of this Republican claim.

The states of Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado, wherein major speeches will be made during the first week, have been hit upon as among the most vulnerable Republican spots west of the Mississippi.

The Republicans, of course, claim them publicly, but privately many Republican leaders admit that there are conditions in the states that are causing them considerable worry.

TRUMBULL RENOMINATED ROGERS FOR LT. GOV.

Dr. William L. Higgins, of Coventry Named for Secretary of State; Samuel R. Spencer, Treasurer and Frederick M. Salmon for Comptroller—State Convention Moves Smoothly With But Two Contests and Discussion Over Change of Rules—Brainard Withdraws Just as Voting Begins.

New Haven, Sept. 7.—Connecticut Republicans today put forth their slate of candidates for United States Senate and the state offices without departing from the slate that had been rumored in advance. The convention moved smoothly to its completion, the one thing approaching a fight being an effort on the part of New Haven city delegates to have party rules changed so that towns would be represented on the basis of the votes cast in an election. The small-towns group opposed this, and won.

The Ticket

The ticket nominated today follows:

United States Senator—Frederic C. Walcott, of Norfolk.
Governor—John H. Trumbull, of Plainville.
Lieutenant-Governor—Ernest E. Rogers, of New London.
Secretary of State—Dr. William L. Higgins, of Coventry.
Treasurer—Samuel R. Spencer, of Suffield.
Comptroller—Frederick M. Salmon, of Westport.

At the outset, the convention took a test vote as to the candidates for Governor, Frederick C. Walcott, and William H. Blodgett, were the contestants, and Mr. Walcott won handsily, showing great strength in every portion of the state.

The totals of the test vote showed that the convention favored Mr. Walcott by 472 votes to 114 for Mr. Blodgett. Mr. Walcott had received nearly 200 votes more than enough to win the nomination.

And it was Mr. Blodgett who moved to make the nomination unanimous. The outstanding feature, for those who had not been in the secret, was the withdrawal of Lieutenant-Governor J. Edward Brainard from the contest for nomination to that office again. The lieutenant governor gracefully eliminated himself by seconding the nomination of Ernest E. Rogers, of New London. Thus came the expected battle of ballots between Mr. Rogers' adherents and those of Francis A. Falloti, of Hartford, the present secretary of state.

State Platform

The Republican platform read by Samuel Eddy, of Canaan, endorsed the national and state tickets and consisted of "humane work in state institutions and agencies," increased efficiency in the highway, motor vehicle and other state departments, and pledged a continuation of the "pay-as-you-go" policy.

The convention adjourned about 1:30 p. m. after the usual formal vote had been passed instructing the state central committee to fill any vacancies that might occur between now and election day.

New Haven, Sept. 7.—Faced by committee problems that required much time to be ironed out, delegates to the Republican state convention were forced to delay the opening of their final session today, with the result that the gathering did not get under way until after 10:30 a. m. Schuyler Merritt, of Stamford, Congressman from the Fourth District, presided as permanent chairman.

The meeting of the rules committee, this morning, opened the convention on schedule. A controversy over the proposition to increase the number of delegates of large towns needed ironing out.

Colonel Isaac M. Ullman, of New Haven, wanted the rules amended so that the final vote by roll call, would be on a number of delegates above their present quota. Colonel Ullman was defeated by the small towns group on the committee who had Ernest E. Rogers, of Branford, for leader, assisted by Eliwyn T. Clark, of Dan. The final vote by roll call, showed somewhat over a five to one victory for the small towns.

Ullman's Proposal

Colonel Ullman's proposal would increase the number of delegates to the state convention in proportion to the number of voters. There would be one delegate for the first 2,500 votes cast and others for each additional fraction thereof. A town would get its delegate when it cast 3,751 votes. About sixteen towns in the state would be affected by such a change in rules. New Haven, Hartford, and Bridgeport would each get seven new delegates and there would be increases for Waterbury, New Britain and other cities, based on the Republican vote for governor.

Holcomb Arrives

With the convention at the point of opening for business former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb was escorted to the platform by Senator Hiram Bingham. An ovation followed. The delegates rose and cheered their veteran leader of war days while the former governor bowed repeatedly, obviously touched by his reception.

On the platform also were J. Henry Roraback, state chairman and national committee man; Miss Catherine Byrne, of Putnam; Robbins B. Stoeckel, motor vehicle commissioner; Benjamin W. Alling, attorney-general; William H. Putnam, of Hartford, the party treasurer; and various other dignitaries.

The temporary roll of the convention was made permanent according to custom, and the convention settled down to business. A rule was adopted at the outset which permitted caucuses for nominating justices of the peace at the same time as the Senatorial caucuses are held. There was no objection to such a plan.

Once the delegates were in action, Colonel Ullman made a vigorous attempt to have the convention throw over the committee report on his plan to increase the delegation from the cities, and replace it by his own. But the convention voted to stand by its committee's report.

Pleas for Cities

Colonel Ullman pleaded for the cities, asserting that the present system of representation in convention is unfair. Mr. Averill took up the cudgels for the committee. He pointed out that the proposal was a radical change that would work no particular benefit for the party but would be adopting a Democratic test in opposition to long established Republican procedure. Mr. Averill's speech appeared to be the turning point and the convention voted its agreement with his ideas.

Frank E. Healy, former attorney-general, moved then that the convention take up the nomination for United States Senator. His motion was adopted, and the clerk was instructed to call the roll.

William H. Blodgett, state tax commissioner, was a candidate for the nomination to the Senate, asked whether there was not a rule which would allow Litchfield county to have first place on the roll call. Just a moment previously the chair had declared a motion to that effect out of order. John Brooking of Torrington favored the proposal. Both candidates for the Senate, he pointed out, are from Litchfield county.

Mr. Healy rose to announce that Litchfield county would not yield to Hartford county. Hartford would not yield an honor it had held since Connecticut has been a commonwealth, he said.

BELL OPPOSED

J. Mortimer Bell, of Salisbury, was opposed to a change in procedure. Mr. Blodgett again rose to the floor to say that the motion had come from without Litchfield county and was designed to give a fair idea of how the county, the home of the two candidates, felt toward the men. Someone put an amendment to the effect that the roll call proceed in the regular manner. Apparently Litchfield county was the only one to vote against the amendment. The original motion then was lost and the roll call on the Senatorial proceeded.

At the very outset a heavy vote for Frederic C. Walcott started as names of delegates from Hartford county were called.

Vote Files Up

The Walcott vote continued to pile up. Hartford county had but four votes for Mr. Blodgett while it gave Mr. Walcott 106. Mr. Blodgett was somewhat more successful in New Haven county which gave him 15 votes and Mr. Walcott 87. New London had its entire list of 54 votes for Mr. Walcott, and this assured him of the nomination. Fairfield county went for Mr. Walcott also, showing an almost unanimous vote in his favor.

The Fairfield county delegation had but one person who voted for Blodgett. That one was Lawrence K. Paul, of Norwalk. The Fairfield county total was 51 to 1, Winham

HUNDREDS SEE FLOWER SHOW

Weather Keeps Some Away But Crowds Are Big; Awards Made.

It was to be regretted that weather conditions were unfavorable yesterday, the opening day of the Garden club's autumn flower show at Center church chapel. Hundreds were in attendance, however, and it is expected many more will view the exhibit today and tonight.

Numerous requests were received to continue the show Saturday, but it was the opinion of the general committee that the flowers would require additional care and it would entail more work on all concerned.

Floral experts from other towns who were present yesterday commented favorably on the high class of the show and the individual exhibits, the decorative scheme and the hall itself with its perfect lighting arrangements.

Miss Mary O. Chapman, president of the club received first class certificates from the State Horticultural society for her bowl of mixed flowers, which was adjudged to be the outstanding single exhibit at the show.

C. W. Blankenburg of Talcottville, chairman of decorations, was awarded a prize of $2.50 for the best spike of gladioli at the show. The variety was a rich red named "War."

Miss M. E. Lettney was awarded second prize for the best basket of varied flowers. Mrs. Clifford D. Cheney won the blue ribbon for the best vase which contained pink roses, geranium and other blue flowers; Mrs. W. A. Strickland second on a similar arrangement and Giles Vickerman an honorable mention ribbon.

The exhibit of the Murphey Gladioli farm, not in competition, occupies the entire platform and is receiving much attention from visitors at the show. Mr. Murphey also has a complimentary exhibit on a table near the stage, of Wrexham delphiniums, lillium auratum and phlox, which is noteworthy. The blossoms on the delphiniums are unusually large and range from the deep purplish blues to pale pinks and whites with black stems. This exhibit is one of the most meritorious in the show.

LOCAL GIRL ON STAFF OF HONOLULU HOSPITAL

Miss Marjorie A. Keith

Miss Marjorie A. Keith, daughter of Selectman and Mrs. George E. Keith, of 13 Lewis street, was given a farewell by a party of friends and relatives last evening. Miss Keith leaves here Sunday en route to Honolulu, Hawaii, where she will act as social science secretary in Queens hospital there.

In Florida Miss Keith, who is a trained worker in social science, has won herself a fine reputation in her profession through her work at the University of Pennsylvania hospital in Philadelphia. Previous to her work in the Philadelphia hospital Miss Keith had done rehabilitation service in the Florida hurricane area with the Red Cross.

Her Experience: Miss Keith is a graduate of the Manchester High school, and of Mount Holyoke College. She took her masters degree in social science at Simmons College, Boston. Following her college studies, Miss Keith was associated with the Board of Charities in Connecticut, and with the Charity organizations of Hartford. Her good work with the second and Hartford organizations attracted the attention of Red Cross officials and when the disaster presented a need for training women in social science, Miss Keith was immediately appointed.

Nature of Work: The University of Pennsylvania hospital authorities recognized the need for the kind of work Miss Keith was doing and offered her an excellent appointment. She accepted and has been serving in Philadelphia since the completion of her work in Florida. A social science secretary investigates illnesses beyond the mere scope of a hospital physician. She enters the home, learns the environment of the patient, and classifies the case in accordance with her findings. The work requires extreme patience and a winning personality. The science is a comparatively new one and medical authorities throughout the world are becoming rapidly convinced that it is an invaluable asset to hospital work.

Begins October 1: Miss Keith leaves here Sunday for the West via the Grand Canyon. She will spend one day at the Canyon and will then proceed to San Francisco. She sails from San Francisco for Honolulu immediately reaching the Hawaiian Islands in time to begin her new duties on October 1.

Flowering plants: First, Misses H. G. and M. O. Chapman, for Star of Bethlehem; second, Mrs. A. Hemingway; third, Mrs. Alexander M. Shearer of 123 Hilliard street.

High School Hall is Jammed at Opening: Biggest Number of Pupils on Record Crowd First Assembly of Year.

The largest enrollment in the history of Manchester High School taxed the capacity of the assembly hall yesterday afternoon when the students met for the first time this school year as a body.

It was necessary to bring in twenty additional sections of chairs to make room for the school's enrollment which, stands at between 300 and 350. It was fifteen minutes before the assemblage could be seated.

Even then, teachers had to stand at the rear of the hall. The principal increase is in the Freshmen class, which has 250 students as compared to 250 last year. The other classes have also been swelled by the influx of students formerly attending other state high schools.

Principal Quimby welcomed the new students and freshmen to the school and gave first instructions as to general conduct in the buildings. He also read briefly several passages from the laws governing the Central Connecticut Inter-scholastic League relative to eligibility in athletics. He urged the freshmen to become well acquainted with their instructors in order to promote the spirit of individual cooperation between teacher and pupil.

Nothing in Box: New York, Sept. 7.—The safety deposit box of the late William H. O'Dell, president of the Sanitation Corporation of Manhattan, whose body was found at Mount Hope cemetery, Maspeth, Queens, early last Sunday, contained only eight empty blank envelopes, a blank piece of paper and 11 rubber bands.

WRIGHT BOY NOW HAS GOOD CHANCE

Hope for Recovery of Survivor of Crossing Accident Grows Brighter.

Walter E. Wright, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wright, only survivor among the three Wright children who were occupants of an automobile struck by a west bound express at Apell's crossing Tuesday evening, has better than a fighting chance to live. This information was given by the east bound train approaching. There are no broken ribs, internal injuries at first suspected did not develop and the patient's temperature is again normal.

The broken collar bone, leg and other injuries that the boy suffered in the accident are causing much pain, but there is a decided improvement in his general condition which leads to hopes of recovery. The fractures have not yet been reduced and cannot be until the swellings have subsided.

According to the police, an investigation conducted by them shows that the Wright car was the only one on the north side of the crossing. The other car at the crossing, it was supposed, was supposed to have preceded the former in crossing the track, was driven by John Yurkshot of 303 Woodbridge street, and was about to cross from the south to the north side as the east bound train approached. He brought his car to a stop and noticed that there was a car on the north side of the crossing, which had also stopped. As the east bound train went over the crossing, he reports, he saw the car that had been waiting on the north side start up, but did not start himself. There was a crash, he reports, but aside from that could give little more information, other than stating that the firemen on the locomotive asked him his name and address as a witness.

VOTING DEMONSTRATION FOR PRIMARIES GIVEN

Machine Set Up at Municipal Building for Voters Education.

A voting machine, with the lineup of candidates that will be voted on at the primary on Tuesday was set up in the lobby of the Municipal Building this afternoon and will be on demonstration from 10 o'clock tomorrow morning until 8 o'clock tomorrow night, daylight saving time. The demonstration will be in charge of Dennis Murphy.

The registration shows that 200 new names of voters were added to the caucus lists since the last primary and this will be the first opportunity those folks have had to familiarize themselves with a voting machine.

In the primary voting no lever is used and after pulling closed the certain the small pointers will each have to be pulled down over the name of the candidate that the voter wishes to vote for. In town and state elections the throwing over of the lever drops the pointers without the necessity of each one being given particular attention, as is the case in primary elections.

TACK VANDALS IMPERIL TIRES IN NORTH END

Somebody in Manchester is fixing himself for prosecution under the law against placing on the highways any article likely to cause the puncturing of automobile tires. Mortimer Moriarty, foreman of maintenance and ways for the Connecticut company for this section, saw something bright in the road opposite Hackett Brothers' tobacco plantation in Oakland and picked it up. It was an aluminum tack of a variety commonly only used in automobile construction and repair work. Then Mr. Moriarty noticed another similar tack, and another and another. He picked up tacks, which seemed to have been very carefully distributed over the road, till he had collected sixty.

A few days earlier a similarly distributed lot of tacks and nails was found by a citizen on North Main street.

In neither case did it appear that the tacks or nails could possibly have come there through accident, so carefully spaced were they.

How many tires may have been punctured nobody, of course, could guess. But it is quite certain that anybody caught in the commission of this sort of purposeless vandalism will get a lesson, whether boy or man.

NEW LAW GIVES CITIZEN RIGHTS TO FRENCH WIFE

Paris.—The town halls of the various Paris wards, or arrondissements, have been crowded during the past few weeks with French wives of citizens of different nationalities claiming their right to remain French.

By older statutes they had lost this right through marriage and had taken on the nationality of their lawful husbands. A bill voted last year by the French Parliament gave them the power to get back their original nationality. Many of them applied months ago, others waited until the last few minutes. About twenty thousand in all made it known that they prefer to be French than anything else.

This bill is a part of the general assimilation policy adopted by the government since the war, and while it has its good points, it is very likely to raise some difficult problems and cause a few family squabbles.

In the future, a Frenchwoman who has married an Englishman will have two nationalities, for she will continue to be British by British law and French by the French law. She will thus have two passports and not need a card of identity. She will be in clover, but her children won't. The French authorities will claim her sons for their army and the British will do the same and then the trouble will be in.

French wives of American citizens will find it a very much more difficult matter to re-enter their adopted country.

On the other hand many poor wives will see better days, such as a certain Frenchwoman deserted by her Spanish husband and unable to resume her freedom inasmuch as divorce is forbidden in Spain.

With French women entering nearly every profession formerly reserved for men, one is not surprised to hear of a clever Parisienne now making stained glass windows for churches.

She is Mademoiselle Hure who got the inspiration for this kind of work when attending mass regularly in the celebrated cathedral at Chartres which probably has as beautiful stained-glass windows as any house of worship in the world. She first steeped herself in the art and methods of her chosen line and then came the even more difficult task of breaking-down the prejudice against the first of her sex to enter such a field. She is still the only woman making stained-glass windows in France.

In her studio, Mademoiselle Hure wears khaki overalls and smokes—even a pipe at times! She says that the quiet puffing and meditation put her in just the right spirit to produce charming old saints and other religious images. One who thinks she smokes of irreverence, has seen her work could never see her recently re-created the great stained-glass windows of the concrete church at Le Raincy, a suburb of Paris, after the designs of Maurice Denis. She has also recently produced all the stained-glass work in the church of Elizabethville, another suburb. Both of these new pieces show her remarkable imagination and sense of lovely colors.

Incidentally she has won the respect of French masters by reducing from nine to six the different operations for the creation of stained-glass.

Proposed Rocket Airplane Outrival: Wildest Dreams Of Jules Verne

Here are three drawings of the proposed rocket airplane of Max Valler, who appears at the upper left. On the right is a graphic sketch of a single rocket plane as it would appear in flight. On the left, a double plane. The sketch below shows the construction of a large rocket plane with parachutes under the nose, steering room and cabin—and rocket tubes in the tail.

Like a fiery comet sailing through the sky, the rocket airplane proposed by Max Valler, Austrian aeronautical inventor, would link Berlin to New York within the remarkable time of one hour. The strange machine outrivals the wildest dreams of Jules Verne.

Valler's proposal is an outgrowth of recent tests conducted outside Berlin with the rocket-motored automobile built by Fritz von Opel. This machine attained a speed of 230 miles an hour, but on a subsequent test it was destroyed by an explosion. Such a car may go even faster if a body can be designed to keep to the ground.

Since Valler's rocket airplane, however, would have the entire upper regions to itself, he has designed it so that it will attain a speed up to 4500 miles an hour at an altitude of more than 35 miles. High up in this rarefied atmosphere, there would be practically no wind resistance to retard the rocketing plane.

Valler's proposed airplane looks like a huge fireworks rocket from the back of which would belch the explosions of powerful gases that would propel the ship through the air. Charges of explosive would be continuously shot into two or four magazines shooting the ship into the high air and over the ocean at a speed reaching 4500 miles an hour.

Within, in what is practically an air-tight cabin, would be the passengers, feeling no ill effect from the speed or the almost instantaneous propulsion into the extremely rare atmosphere 35 miles above the earth. An oxygen-supplied ventilating system would accommodate their normal breathing for the hour or so the plane would be in the air.

The height the rocket airplane is supposed to attain would be more than four times that ever reached by man. Man's altitude record so far is that of the late Captain Hawthorne C. Gray, who died on his descent in a balloon after he had reached the height of 42,470 feet—more than eight miles.

PRISON PAROLE IS OPPOSED BY CONVICT-PASTOR

Kansas City, Mo.—A man, once a convict and for the past eighteen years an evangelist who has specialized in "saving the souls" of criminals now in prison, openly declares himself as opposed to the parole of hardened criminals from penitentiaries to which they have been sentenced.

This opponent of leniency to the hardened criminals is Rev. E. C. Murphy, who is speaking nightly in the "Chick in Overalls" here. Regardless of the city where he may find himself in the United States, Rev. Murphy directs the work of administering the gospel to convicts in fifty prisons throughout the country as superintendent of the Aurora Bible Society at Aurora, Ill.

Shows Difference

"There is a difference between the man who steals and the man who is a thief," he contends. "The man who steals may be hungry and he may repent it afterward. He deserves consideration. But the man who is a thief has chosen that means of making his living. He is a menace to society and should be held in the penitentiary."

"There is no doubt that the man who is convicted again and again, of his felonies is mentally unbalanced," he declares. "But that is the reason they should not be allowed to go free."

The minister has had exceptional success in his work of reforming prison inmates. At present, forty-seven of his converts are taking courses in the Moody Bible Institute in preparation for the ministry.

The traveling person, visitor at all of the state prisons he chances to pass in his journeys, was a prominent character in a "story behind the story" which newspapers throughout the country carried in their columns a year ago.

Converted Criminals

His work led to the conversion of Ralph E. Teter, arrested because of his connection with several Chicago robberies. He was one of the prominent characters in this "story behind the story."

After his conversion, Teter turned state's witness in the Dearborn street mail robbery in Chicago. It was his testimony which ended the romantic career, hinting of lawlessness, of Big Tim Murphy, Chicago gangster who led the robbery planning.

Concluding his interview, Rev. Murphy re-emphasized his stand as opposed to the parole of hardened criminals.

The attendants were Frank Kalas brother of the bride and Miss Winona Young. The bride wore a gown of white georgette, with emerald brodered veil and cap, carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The maid of honor wore pink flowered silk celanese and carried a bouquet of white roses and larkspur. A reception was held at the bride's home attended by fifty relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Young are on an automobile trip to Niagara Falls and on their return will reside in Tolland where they are soon to occupy a new house which is now nearly completed.

RUSSIANS' LOVE OF TALKING MAY RUIN SOVIETISM

Carmel, Cal.—The average Russian peasant likes to talk too well. That's the reason, according to M. Maissaloff, eminent classic Russia author, that the Communist party is gradually exhausting itself and will soon fade before a new regime, probably fashioned along radically different lines.

Maissaloff has arrived here with his wife from Moscow. He is touring the United States and will return in a few months to his vast estate at Soutchi on the Black Sea where he composed his two most famous books "Legends of Oceania" and "Legends of the Island of Mangareva."

The suggestion that there might be a return of the empire in Russia is fantastic, Maissaloff said, although he asserted that the strength of the Communist party is spent.

Grain Shortage
"The Soviet system of government is not, as many people believe, an invention of the Communists," he said. "It is a system of government adopted after the revolution of 1905 which the Bolsheviks found agreeable when they seized the power in 1917."

"There is a grain and hence a bread shortage in Russia, still, even now when the greater part of the peasantry has owned its lands for the past ten years. As bread is the main food of the peasants, the situation is vital."

"The Communists have been forced to report to the so called capitalist system of banking and credits and, in desperation, have called in outside experts in every branch of educational and agricultural knowledge."

"It will be many years before the Russian peasant learns to work for his own food, particularly without a taskmaster. The population of Russia increases faster than its production and only under the estate system was the food situation met successfully."

"Russians are very fond of talking and have yet to learn that deeds, not words, are needed in agriculture. Famines will continue, but with lessening severity as the peasants develop in knowledge. But I am confident that when they reach an efficient educational basis they will not be satisfied with Communism."

Admires America
Maissaloff is a great admirer of America, its progress and its ideals.

Camilla Daniels, who has translated into English a number of his books, lives in Carmel, as does his old friend, Albert Rhys. William Maissaloff believes that Williams understands the Russian peasant as no other westerner does. Their friendship ripened during Williams' five year visit to Russia, during which he visited frequently at the Maissaloff estate.

A graduate of the Polytechnic Institute of Petrograd, Maissaloff has a brilliant war record. After recovering from serious wounds in battle, he returned to the front as a war correspondent.

MEN EAT CANDY, GIRLS SMOKING SINCE BIG WAR

London—Experts who used to declare men were using more cosmetics in barber shops than women used in their boudoirs must now take a back seat to a new type expert who has declared men were eating more candies and sweets than women and smoking less than members of the fair sex.

This latter thesis on "women and the weed," and "men and sweets," was made by the head of the world famous confectionery firm at the opening of the Chocolate and Confectionery Exhibition at Olympia. The Exhibition was organized by the Manufacturing Confectioners Alliance. Olympia is the great exhibition hall in London, similar to the old Madison Square Garden in New York City.

A War Habit
In an interview, the Confectionery expert declared: "Men got the habit of eating sweets during the war. In the trenches when they could not smoke they could always eat some of the millions of pounds of sweets that were sent over. Men like something 'pull-y,' something that lasts, with a caramel flavor."

"You can see, then, chewing chocolate caramels nowadays at horse and greyhound races. When they want strength of mind for a difficult nibble shot—the again chew chocolate caramels."

"As for the office—there is many a man today who keeps a bag beside him on his desk in the financial sections of all the great cities of the world. Sweet-eating has taken the place of tobacco chewing."

Women Are Problem
Referring to women, the Confectionery expert declared they represented the great problem of the trade at the present time. He remarked that not even all the added enticements of new varieties of sweets, prettier exteriors, fancy aluminum ers had persuaded women to increase their consumption of sweets.

He explained: "Our greatest difficulty now is how to increase the consumption of sweets among women. Girls have, to some extent, gone off sweets, and most young married women are devoting the most of their husbands' incomes towards the attractions of smoking, illness and shingling."

The world soon may become hatless, as a Doctor of Styles predicts, but we'll still have to have hats for the men to throw into the ring and caps for the ladies to set for somebody.

2,000 MARCH IN NEW BOER TREK TOWARDS SOUTH

Washington.—The Boers are preparing to trek again. With "another trek on in Africa" nearly 2,000 men, women and children of the Boer colony are getting underway in a great wagon train with oxen and domestic animals, for a 1,500 mile journey to the south. This great movement to colonize a tract taken over from Germany by the Union of South Africa as a mandate, is described in a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society.

"Usually the Boers have moved north and west, from Cape Town north to Transvaal, from Transvaal to Rhodesia and Angola," said the bulletin. "But now their covered wagons will creep behind the slow-moving oxen plodding south from Angola."

In the new colony 1,600 acre plantations have been set aside for each Boer family that will trek from the Portuguese colony.

Government Generous
"The real generosity of the government's gift of land is tempered by the geography of South West Africa," the bulletin explained. "Where it takes a good many acres to keep one cow in grass, as it does in arid southwest Africa, 1,600 acres is not such a large farm. The acreage offered to the Boers, who are a colony that fled into Angola after the Boer War, is in the vicinity of the villages of Grootfontein, Gibeon and Gobabis, which lie in the uplands. Their coming will be by no means crowded the prospect in which live only 24,000 white people, scattered over an area one third the size of United States east of the Mississippi."

South West Africa has a coastal plain between ocean shore and highlands. The African plain is a sandy desert, wind-blown, dune furrowed, 800 miles long. There is, however, sufficient rainfall in the uplands to permit grazing. There is not a forest in the whole 300,000 square miles.

About 250,000 natives live in this territory, according to the Geographic Society. Of this number the Hottentots only have a reputation that goes far beyond the borders. White men listened to them talk. Their click language rattled along like conversation in any zoo monkey cage and the first explorers said it sounded something like hooten-tot. That the Hottentots they became.

May Hunt Diamonds
"Diamonds are South West Africa's staple product, although the uplands support 600,000 cattle and some sheep," the bulletin explained. "There are a few copper mines. But diamonds, in the gravel deposits on the desert plain, provide the chief income for citizens and the government. A long search has been kept up for the mother lode containing the gems. A recent discovery may have disclosed the source of gems on the diamond coast."

"South West Africa is the site of the solar radiation station maintained by the National Geographic Society, in cooperation with Smithsonian Institution. Because South Africa's weather is nearly all one kind and that sunny and clear, Mt. Brukkaror, a long pinnacle rising out of the Fin River valley, was selected as a solar observation post. Records of minute variation in heat radiated by the sun are carried to Washington. Combined with observations from Chile and California, the figures, obtained may supply the secret of long-range weather forecasts. Scientists are testing the theory over a period of years."

COMEDY HIT, INDIAN STORY AT THE STATE

Laura La Plante Star in First and Fred Thomson in the Second. Other Reels.

One of those gay, lulling comedies, as refreshing as the popular song it is named after, is "Thanks for the Buggy Ride," the new arrival to the screen at the State theater Saturday.

The picture is effervescent and moves rapidly from start to finish, leaving the audience with the wish that there had been a couple more reels to the show. Yet it is the regular length.

"Thanks for the Buggy Ride," combines splendid human comedy with a heart-moving love story of struggling youth on the Great White Way.

Miss La Plante has scored another personal triumph, in an excellent successor to "The Cat and the Canary" and "Silk Stockings," and is given another good opportunity for the pantomime in which she excels.

In the romantic sequences she is more beautiful than she has ever before appeared on the screen which is a superlative accomplishment for the cameraman because we didn't think it possible.

Glenn Tryon who is a comedy star in his own right, shows that quality of youth and spontaneity which will, in a short time, make a matinee idol of him.

The story, itself, is well done, admirably suited for the cast and thoroughly entertaining from start to finish. Miss La Plante's husband, William A. Selter, who helped bring Reginald Denny to the fore through his admirable direction has turned out one of his best pictures.

The supporting cast is splendid, including Richard Tucker, Lee Moran, Jack Raymond, David Rollins, Kate Price and Trilxie Fitzgerald.

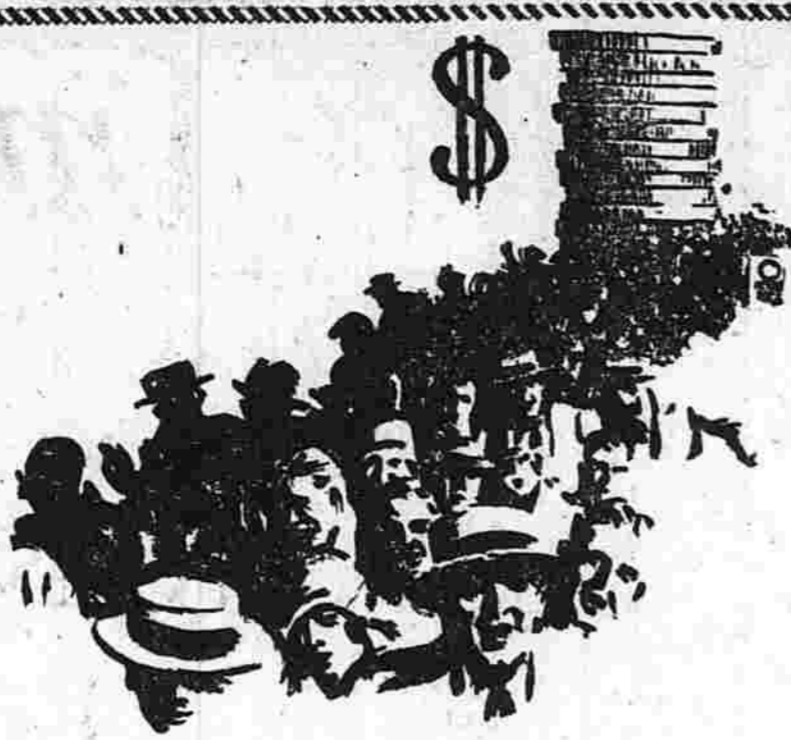

On the same program will be Fred Thomson's new feature "Kit Carson," a life story of the great Indian scout. Other reels will complete the program.

THE SILENT TOWN
London.—Caldesote, in Huntingdonshire, is believed to be the quietest and saddest place in England. Since the death by drowning of its only child citizen, the merry laughter of youth has not been heard, in its one straggling street. The town now has a population of 30 adults.

FAMOUS WRITER
URGES GERMANS
CHANGE RELIGION

Berlin.—A new "German religion" consisting of the old, pre-Christian Germanic ideas about life and death combined with the doctrines of Christ, under strict exclusion of all Jewish elements of the Old Testament, is proposed by Count Ernest zu Reventlow, famous during the war as Germany's most quoted military writer.

Count zu Reventlow explains his ideas in a book just published and entitled "For Christians, Non-Christians, Anti-Christians, of The God Question of the Germans."

Because of the disillusion of war and defeat, also, as Count zu Reventlow himself points out, because all warring nations prayed to the same God for victory during the war, there is both a lot of religious disaffection in Germany as well as religious ferment.

Fights Materialism.
The latter finds expression in movements which range from the adoration of the stigmatisation miracle of Therese von Konnerersreuth to the semi-pagan naturalism of the German youth movement.

Count zu Reventlow's book is an attempt to reach a synthesis of these various movements.

His fight is directed particularly against modern materialism, against the predominance of rationalism, and against Judaism. The churches he says, have failed and are losing themselves in mere formalism. As a result, he claims, the Germans have twice lost their religion, first their own original religion when Christianity was forced upon the Germanic tribes by the sword, and now the Christian religion through the collapse of the churches.

Every nation or race, he believes, must have its own religion that must be born of its own innate religious aspirations and convictions. But he rejects the theory of a "chosen people" whether these people be Jews or Germans, and ridicule the pretensions of some Germans that "am deutschen Wesen soll die Welt gesunden," meaning that the world must be regenerated by the adoption of German ways.

The foundation of the new religion, Count zu Reventlow says, must be the "old Aryan, Germanic, German idea of the unreality of the world of appearances, and of the guilt, the responsibility and the freedom of the individual."

Christ, he says, preached the same fundamental ideas and therefore he should become the center of the new religion.

Urges Study.
Count zu Reventlow does not propound finished doctrines and set formulas. He merely urges the Germans to search their own souls, to reject what is foreign and above all "to know themselves."

As foreign he rejects both "the Jewish God Jahve" and the doctrine of redemption. The first, he says, is merely a tribal God and the latter is an adaption or oriental ideas to load one's own guilt on the shoulders of another and make him suffer for it. The old German tribes, he says, also suffered under the consciousness of guilt which was part of the evil of this world, but they accepted personal responsibility for their guilt and fought the evil to their death, after which they became eligible to fight side by side with the half-gods in the final struggle between good and evil.

Christ's doctrines, Reventlow maintains, are entirely contrary to the Jewish doctrines; therefore, he says, though he will not claim that Christ was an Aryan he certainly was not a Jew.

Count zu Reventlow also explains that Wotan and the other Germanic gods were merely half gods and that the real god of the Germanic tribes was something far above them, the "eternally unnamed."

LONGSHOREMAN IS HELD AS MURDER SUSPECT

New York, Sept. 7.—Luigi Panorella, 20, a longshoreman is under arrest on a charge of homicide and four others were being held as material witnesses today in connection with the death of six-year-old Salvatore Panomarcio whose body was found in a burlap sack under a pile of stones in the rear of a Coney Island home late yesterday evening.

Police were led to the scene after Panorella following considerable questioning suddenly said: "The boy is dead. I'll show you where the body is."

Following Panorella's directions police found the body of the boy, strangled by Manila rope wound tightly about his neck and thrust into the burlap bag.

Young Panomarcio was reported missing by his father Wednesday night.

JOHN IS 22 TODAY

Northampton, Mass., Sept. 7.—John Cooldge, son of the President, is twenty-two years old today and friends here are expected to entertain the president's son at a party in honor of the occasion.

He continued today to refuse to discuss anything concerning his plans in the future. According to reports he is said to be considering a position in the electrical supply plant of Governor Trumbull of Connecticut.

He was entertained last night at a dinner at the home of Mrs. R. B. Hill, a neighbor and friend of the Cooldges. Later he visited the home of Dr. E. W. Brown to spend an evening with Dr. Brown's son Stephen, John's roommate during his college days at Amherst.

CLOSE THAT CROSSING!

Ever since the triple killing on the Oakland street crossing of the New Haven railroad, last May, the selectmen of the town of Manchester, with commendable regard for the security of the town's position before the law and with relation to costs, have been trying to do business with the Public Utilities Commission, with the elimination of the grade crossing in view, or at least with a view to obtaining adequate protection there.

The Herald appreciates the position of the selectmen. If it had the same problem to solve it probably would have taken the same way of trying to solve it. But it is now completely obvious that to expect relief at the hands of the Utilities Commission, beyond some such futile makeshift as the provision of a warning bell—which might possibly prove to be worse than no protection at all—is to anticipate the unattainable. So far as is concerned its being a dependence for the protection of the public against dangers created by public service corporations, the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission is, and has been from the day of its inception, a broken reed. It has never functioned in that way, was never intended to function in that way, and it never will function in that way—at least never until it is reborn in spirit and in personnel. Everybody knows that, and there is no use, in such a crucial situation, to mince words over it.

We shall get, then, nothing from the Public Utilities Commission. We might as well make up our minds to that. And it is to be remembered that there is nothing which we need ask of that commission as to the actual closing of the crossing; where that body would come in, if at all, would be with relation to the provision of a substitute crossing, not at grade, or to the establishment of gates or full time flag protection. So that after all we are fooling away precious time and continuing the peril, quite needlessly, by messing about with the commission.

The town of Manchester is sovereign of its own streets. The continuation of Oakland street, which constitutes this death trap crossing under discussion, is a town street. Its continuance or discontinuance is a matter for decision by this town and nobody else. To fence off the crossing would involve no hazard to, affect no interest of the New Haven railroad. It is a strained interpretation of the law indeed which would make an action the concern of either the road or the Utilities Commission. And if there were ten times legal red tape to stand in the way of the crossing's elimination it should still be eliminated—and damn the torpedoes!

The selectmen of Manchester are, technically, held down by certain prescriptions of authority. But they are our chosen leaders and in times of urgency and stress it is their right and their duty to assume authority possibly a little greater than that specified by legal form. There is extraordinary urgency in the matter of this deadly crossing. Public feeling is becoming wrought up—it ought to be wrought up and this newspaper is not in the least ashamed of helping to give expression to it. And there is universal demand that the selectmen close the Oakland street crossing forthwith.

What matters it, in the face of what has happened and what is liable at any hour to happen again, whether the town weakens its legal position with relation to a bridge at North Elm street—or with relation to anything else? Would the people of Manchester take a million dollars, or ten million, for the lives of the Wright children, if we could go back four days?

What they demand is the prevention of any more killings on the Oakland street crossing, regardless of minor consequences. They want it closed. It is their land, their crossing. They have a right to expect that their demand will be complied with—now. Let no more lives be sacrificed to legalism, cost considerations or cautious pussy-footing.

HANDING THEM POWER

This newspaper is supporting Herbert Hoover for the Presidency for the same reason that it advocated his nomination, in the face of the opposition of Republican leaders in this state, and that reason is that it believes him to be the person, of all the people of the United States, best qualified for the position. It welcomed the nomination of Governor Smith, by the Democrats, feeling that no matter how the election went we should not have a bad or even a mediocre President, but nevertheless hoping for the choice of Hoover as the bigger, more widely experienced statesman of the two, besides belonging to the party in whose policies the Herald believes.

We have never subscribed for a moment to the theory that Smith's religious affiliation was any disqualification. That is a theory which is in direct conflict with the constitution of the United States. It is a theory that cannot be entertained by anyone who is honestly favorable to religious liberty. We had not believed that it would be permitted to enter seriously into the campaign. We do not believe that, save in certain isolated and backward sections, it does enter into the campaign.

But the pretense of it enters. Right now the Democrats are making their most effective appeal by talking a "whispering campaign." And they are preparing to beat the bogey of religious peril to pieces, with much thumping of tubs and plenty of dust.

Smith is about to disprove that he has favored Catholics in his appointments as governor of New York. He is about to display triumphantly the record of those appointments, showing that in the major positions within his gift he has placed not only many more Protestants than Catholics but many Republicans as well.

In other words he is going to prove, with a lot of dramatic effect, what no one with any sense ever questioned—that his religion is not a political matter. And every particle of the dramatic effect has been made possible by the handful of religiously prejudiced who have provided the slender excuse on which the Smith forces hang their complaint against a "whispering campaign."

The whole business is unimportant, relatively. But whatever advantage the Democrats gain from showing that Smith hasn't run the state of New York as an auxiliary of the Catholic church can be charged up to the tiny group of Republicans who have been foolish enough to mix religious prejudice with politics.

TWO-WAY RASKOB

It is the Midwest newspapers that are keeping the best line on the Democratic leaders' performances with relation to farm relief. They are in a better position to do this than are the Eastern newspapers or the Western newspapers, for they hear everything that is said, both to the East of them and to the Westward.

And they are pointing out that Mr. Raskob is muddling matters by telling the East that he doesn't know what the McNary-Haugen bill is all about and by telling the West that he favors this, that and the other procedure which, added together, make up the very vitals and trimmings of the McNary-Haugen bill. And by getting caught at it.

If Mr. Raskob could only say in the West what he wanted to say there about farm relief without the East hearing it, and if he could only say in the East what he wanted to say there without the West hearing about it, he would be in a much happier position. But the in-between newspapers keep giving him away. And if he keeps talking until election day he will have his candidate committed irrevocably to the job of facing both ways at once right in the spotlight.

AUTO DEATHS

The Hartford Courant is conducting a campaign calculated to impress the minds of its readers with the gravity of the automobile accident situation. It is a worth while proceeding and is being carried on with diligence and effectiveness.

Yet so far we have failed to observe that the Courant has done more than to accentuate a fact which is already pretty well stamped on the consciousness of the people of Connecticut—namely, that there is an impressive, even frightful number of deaths and injuries in this state as the result of careless handling of motor vehicles. We question whether any demonstration of the situation, unaccompanied by recommendations of a method of improvement, is of more than passing value.

The Herald is one of the few newspapers which takes a definite position concerning the increase of automobile accidents. It has repeatedly stated its conviction that the roads will never be made any safer, until the blunder committed by the last Legislature, in removing the specific speed limits, is undone.

Give the police something more than a shadow of law under which to operate. Establish maximum speed limits, the exceeding of which shall be punished substantially, for the open road and for settled communities, reform the reprehensible practice of restoring forfeited licenses to persons with influence political or otherwise, and we shall have provided something in the way of machinery of correction.

Connecticut is paltering shamefully with a life and death problem. It is one that can never in the world be solved by trying to "educate" the people into caution by mere words.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Sept. 7.—Now that the boss is back at the headquarters of the Republican campaign, things are pretty sure to be different.

With Herbert Hoover "himself" reassuming the reins, the good people of Washington will be considerably surprised if any of his managers make any more such heady plays as distinguished them in his absence.

Hoover may not be a great orator, but the story that he isn't a good politician can now be classed as a fairy tale. It began to look rather sick, in fact, about the time the boys were getting set to nominate him at Kansas City. Combining good political sense with genius as an executive and an organizer, Hoover is running his own campaign.

He must have squirmed often during his western trip as the newspapers and private telephone calls told him how his lieutenants were putting their feet into it back east.

Hardly had he left the capital before two of the principal ones, National Chairman Hubert Work and Senator George Higgins Moses, were engaged in a bitter row which soon became public property. It was Moses who, leaving Work's office, was quoted as saying: "At last they have found a man who can stop Hoover."

Then the Hon. Hubert publicly announced that the real campaign issue was the tariff. Some folks thought that was funny, but Hoover didn't think so at all. He told the Hon. Hubert to pipe down and leave the outlining of the issues to the candidate.

Reports from the Coast indicated that when Mr. Work went out to see his boss he found that Mr. Hoover appeared to be convinced of the superior sagacity of George Higgins and had rather a lonesome time. But George Higgins himself managed to queer himself with some Republican leaders before he went west to join his chief. Unmuzzled, in contrast to Work, he spent a couple of weeks in New York as the principal loudspeaker for the party.

During that time he gave the nation such bright and snappy slogans as "Hoover, or havoc" and "Hoover the doer." Finally, George Higgins demonstrated his political acumen irrefutably by announcing that there was no hope of cracking the solid south—and then reversing himself a little later.

One result of the senator's volubility appeared at what was perhaps an embarrassing moment, during the Moses visit with Hoover. It was a telegram from the altogether regular Republican candidate for governor in Massachusetts, a veteran politician named Charlie Burrill, who demanded that Hoover muzzle George Higgins at once.

With Hoover back in the driver's seat, it is extremely probable that whoever put William Allen White up to assailing Smith's old assembly record will not be putting anyone else up to such performances. The effect and result of Mr. White's onslaught has made it one thing, judging from expressions of Republican leaders and newspapers, that all concerned would be happy to forget. The best thing it did was to permit Smith to take a fall out of the nationwide whispering campaign against him.

Herbert Hoover is known to realize that small mistakes sometimes have very serious consequences for political candidates. Hughes in 1916 and Blaine in 1884 both lost the presidency through the bone-headedness of others.

No such serious incidents have occurred to date, and Hoover, already warned by what has happened after he went away, is fairly certain to see that they don't.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

MAN'S CONQUEST OF NATURE

Some 30,000 years ago the human race first began to experiment with the art of agriculture, and some 20,000 years ago the men and women of nomadic tribes first began the domestication of animals. With these accomplishments at his disposal, man began to assume a new place in nature. He was no longer buffeted about by its whims, but actually became in some degree its master.

We can trace all of the wonderful complexities of our modern civilization to the simple tiller of the soil and the wandering herder of cattle. Before the development of agriculture, it is apparent that our ancestors lived very much as the apes do today, subsisting mainly on foods of a vegetable nature, such as fruits, nuts, herbs, vegetables and roots. Man was not naturally equipped as a hunting animal, and the animal foods which he obtained must have been in the form of birds' and reptiles' eggs, shellfish, snakes, snails, grubs, worms, insects and caterpillars. Occasionally he may have been able to capture birds, fish, and some of the larger animals.

The fruits and vegetables of these early times had not yet reached their present stage of lucidness. They were woefully lacking in nutritive qualities. The North American Indians, at the time of the discovery of the new world, ate many edible wild roots, such as some plants of the lily family, wild parsnips, grass roots, clover, water plants, cannas, bulbs of various sorts and cool grass roots. Before the discovery of fire these had to be eaten raw, although they may have been prepared in various ways by pounding and drying. Although many edible roots, such as the turnip, Jerusalem artichoke and field potato were used, there is no evidence that the Indians practiced the cultivation of these.

The pictures that the poets have painted of the golden age in the past, flowing with milk and honey and grape juice, requiring little or no effort to gather, has been drawn from their imagination because it is likely that the food of primitive man would be considered scarcely worth gathering, since the roots were tough and most of the fruit acid and tasteless.

Man fortunately belongs to the type of animal known as the omnivorous which enables him to eat and digest a very large variety of foods. This fact has enabled him to survive through many adverse circumstances where other animals could subsist on only one class of food would have starved.

We hear much of man's "natural" diet, but this term is wrong, since the digestive organs may have come adapted to new foods during the course of generations and, after this change, the new food would become the most suitable. Races have developed this tendency, and the Scotchman, who swears by his oatmeal, might have difficulty in subsisting on the oil and blubber of the Eskimo; or the Japanese, who subsist largely on rice, might have difficulty in handling the large amount of beef and mutton that the Australian uses. Diets change, and usually are made except when they are prepared for some type of fasting.

In spite of the fact that these races may have become accustomed to their lopsided diet, they would substitute a well balanced menu, not swinging too quickly from one extreme to the other.

Questions and Answers

Question: Mrs. K. asks: "Are there any oils or liniments that will penetrate an unbroken skin? If so, will you please name one or two? I have a friend who claims there is an oil that will cure a growth in the neck."

Answer: Oil and liquids will penetrate the skin to some extent, as tests have shown that certain medicines rubbed on the skin can be afterwards found in the urine. I do not know of any oil which will have any effect on curing a growth in the neck.

Question: Eddy J. writes: "I wish to participate in a coming athletic exhibition, and I wish you would inform me of a suitable diet on which to train."

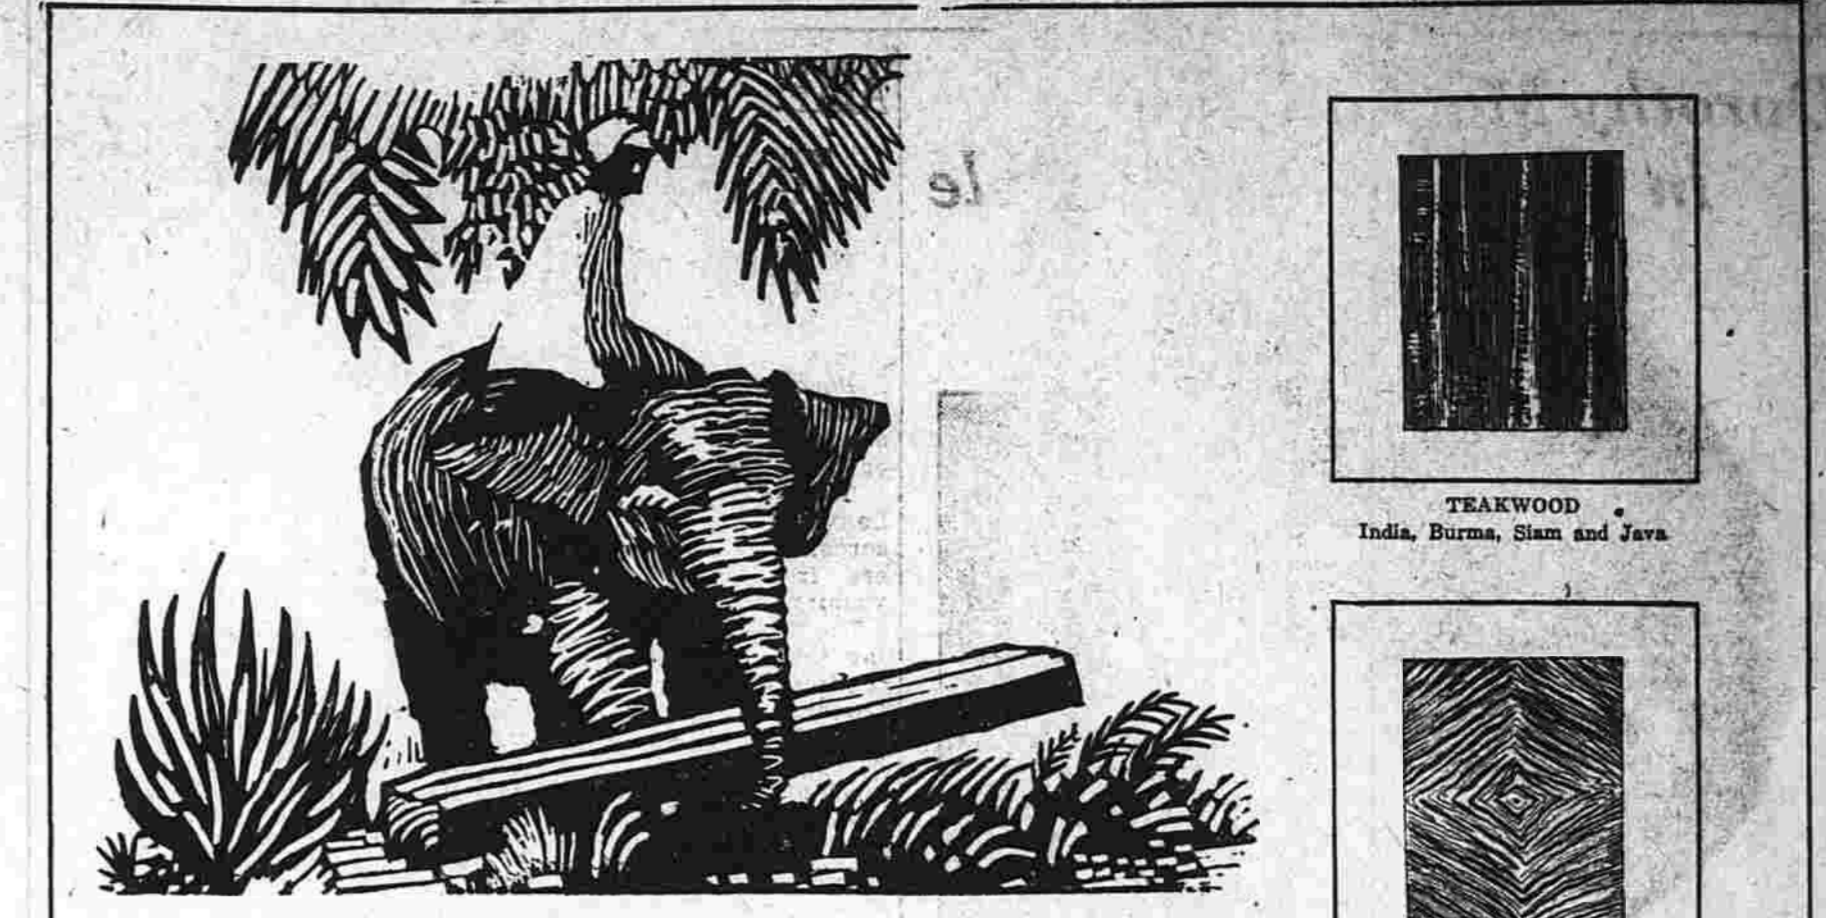

Answer: The weekly menu which I prescribe in this column would constitute a good training diet. On the day of your contest stop all regular meals and use only orange or grape juice. If your stomach is rested in this way you will have more energy for your muscles to use in your athletic endeavors.

Question: Interested asks: "Will you please tell me what 'acataphasis' means?"

The disorder you ask about is caused by an injury to the central nervous system, and part of the brain is affected by either disease or the breaking of a blood vessel. Loss of speech results for varying lengths of time, depending upon the seriousness of the injury to the brain membranes.

THE ANSWER. Here is the answer to the Letter to the Editor on the comic page: BOOB, BOOR, BOAR, BRAS, BIAS, BIDS, AIDS, ANDS, ENDS.

THAT'S PLENTY WIFEY: What did you ever do that benefitted any fellow man? HUBBY: I married you, didn't I.—Judge.

New York Sept. 7.—In years gone by, the door to grand opera opened to the obscure, unknown singer with just about as much readiness as the door of the sub-treasury would open to a yeggman armed only with Chinese firecrackers. But in grand opera, as in many other things, liberalization has become evident.

Thus it by no means is uncommon now for an "inlander" of our limited local fame to see his or her name suddenly posted on the boards of the Metropolitan, and the widely known San Carlo company, fathered by Fortune Gallo, brings newcomers to the operatic stage literally by scores.

Latest of the New York entrepreneurs in the business of lowering the opera hurdles is Armand Bagarozzy, general director of the Cosmopolitan company. Bagarozzy listened to 78 would-be opera singers in a single day at the Manhattan opera house recently. They came from wherever trains run, and they sang nearly every aria in opera's catalog. Of the 78, perhaps 20 went away from the Manhattan with the cheering word that Bagarozzy would like to consult with them further.

Of some of the others, he wrote in his notebook: "Colorless — choked upper tones." "Poor sense of time." "Good voice but needs much study." "Apparently misinformed by her teacher." "And so forth."

The young man who started out to warble the chorus of a popular ballad was cut off after his first six words. Ballading and opera it seems, aren't vocally the same.

It was a most interesting event, but I doubt that Maestro Paz quale Rubino, associate of Bagarozzy, would like to have it repeated every day.

Dorothy Mackaill Star In A New Rough Role

Dorothy Mackaill . . . gets hard-boiled

By DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif.—A new Dorothy Mackaill has been discovered—a tough street walking and carnival type. And she's marvelous.

This new girl, who has never been revealed in all the years Dorothy has been coveting in front of movie cameras, was unearthed by George Fitzmaurice while he was directing Miss Mackaill and Milton Sills in "The Barker."

"I was so struck by Miss Mackaill's portrayal in "The Barker" that I immediately asked for her for my next film, "Changelings," the director declares. "She was marvelous in that part—a different Dorothy Mackaill than I have ever known."

"In 'Changelings,' Dorothy will be even more hard-boiled in the early reels than she was in 'The Barker.' She will be cast as a common street walker. She kills a lover and escapes to the South Seas. A police officer is sent to bring her back to this country, but the ship on which they are returning is wrecked and they are cast upon a desert island.

"They live on the island for 10 years before they are picked up. During that time Dorothy and the cop fall in love with each other and she becomes an entirely different girl. Finally, when a ship is sighted, the officer doesn't want to take her back for trial on the murder charge. But she insists that she go and take her punishment."

Policeman's Story

"The only defense that is offered for her during the trial is the policeman's story of her evolution during the ten years they were castaways. The jury brings in a verdict of 'guilty' and the judge sentences her to life—upon the desert island in the custody of the officer who captured her."

After seeing a preview of "The Barker," I am convinced that Fitzmaurice made an excellent selection when he chose Dorothy for this new role. Few actresses in movieland could portray a hard-boiled street walker and a beautiful, righteous girl in the same picture and make both characterizations convincing.

Texas To Pay $100,000 In Bounties On Wolves And Lions This Year

Austin, Texas.—Extermination of wolves and mountain lions in Texas this year will be a $10,000 industry according to a statement made public by G. H. Landon, Texas director of the Co-operative State-Federal Wolf and Mountain Lion Extermination Association.

The state of Texas this year has appropriated $25,000 for the work. Almost as much has been contributed by the federal government, while wolf clubs now being organized among the ranchmen have contributed two-thirds of the cost of the work. The old bounty system has become obsolete, it is claimed, and wolf extermination work is now being done by trained government hunters and trappers, Landon said.

Some idea of the losses suffered by ranchmen from the depredations of wolves and mountain lions may be got from Landon's statement that a wolf has been known to kill at least $500 worth of lambs and ewes in one night.

A dozen professional trappers and hunters, representing, not the nomadic irresponsibility of the old-time trapper, but the firm purpose and authority of the federal government, are now working on the ranges.

When the state legislature meets next January, the stockmen of the state will ask for the largest appropriation in history for the purpose of destroying the predatory animals now raising havoc with their stock, ranchmen have stated. They expect to bring with them to the legislative halls ample proof of the big returns for every dollar invested in this work.

BALTIMORE MAY GET NEW OPERA THROUGH JAZZ

Baltimore.—Jazz and its accompanying terpsichorean capers, both arch enemies of opera, may soon be lauded by local lovers of "music with a soul" and the opera stars themselves.

Figuratively the "tin-pan" strains and the "necking" dances may provide Baltimore with a new and modern opera house.

Present indications are that the Lyric Opera House, on Mt. Royal avenue opposite the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad's uptown station, will be abandoned. For as long as the present generation can remember the Lyric has been the musical center. It shelters the opera season. There is where John McCormick holds his recitals; where Ignace Paderewski forgets his audience and plays the piano from his heart and where most any artist of any note has his way when in town.

Fund Subscribed Jazz dancing, allied with bowling, pool and other indoor sports, is threatening to accomplish more for musical Baltimore than the musical inclined themselves. Recently they subscribed $55,000 for enlarging and improving the theater. Now the "vulgar" music may create an entirely new structure.

It all happened when an application was filed for permission to establish a dance hall and sports center in a building adjoining the Lyric.

rector of the theater, leads the opposition to the dance hall. His music and chatter of pool balls and duckpins will emanate through the walls and disturb concerts, he told the zoning board.

May Sell Lyric If the dance hall gets the permit the Lyric will be sold, the officials said. Huber added that, "there is a current feeling among some of the directors to sell and move out."

The suggestion is splendid in some ways to a few of the directors. The $55,000 fund can be added to the price obtained for the building and placed on a new theater.

"But should we sell we may have to move before a new building is erected and then Baltimore would be minus a musical center," Huber explained. Now he has decided to inject a clause in case jazz wins out providing the directors retain possession of the Lyric until a new Lyric is built.

AIRPLANE MOTOR TO RUN ON AIR SOON MARKETED

Ponca City, Okla.—A new airplane engine to be run on air, steam or both, will be manufactured here within a short time.

The engine is designed by George Lauer, and will be built by an air corporation composed of stockholders from various cities of this vicinity.

The inventor has visions of building the engine which will revolutionize the entire airplane industry. Castings for the engine have arrived from Wichita and work will be begun on the model as soon as machinery is installed in the temporary factory here. It will take four months to build the model, Lauer estimates.

Like Steam Engine The engine will be constructed with all of the technical points pertaining to a steam engine. However, the first tryout will be with air, since to build a ship which will run successfully on compressed air is Lauer's ambition.

In addition to the specially designed engine these will be two separate units which combine to make up the whole of the driving powers. They are a fin wheel and the air compressor.

The engine, of a circular type, embodies leverage to great advantage and may be built any circumference desired. The castings for the engine will be 36 inches in diameter. It is to be of slow speed construction with the propeller shaft geared three to one, or three times the speed of the engine.

By using an air compressor of the compound principle in connection with the power of leverage from the fin wheel, located in direct line with the air steam or propeller blast, Lauer is confident he will succeed in the experiment.

Nine Pistons The engine, carrying nine pistons of small dimensions will revolve as does a turbine, in its one great circular cylinder. Such an engine carrying 100 pounds of air or steam pressure, which is exerted on the outer circumference of the engine rim, would equal 700 pounds on the engine shaft. It will be a powerful motor equal to a Q. X., which is 90 horsepower.

UNLIKE OTHER MOTORS IN USE IN AVIATION TODAY, THE LAUER ENGINE WILL HAVE THE SUAL WORKING PARTS, SUCH AS PISTON PINS AND CONNECTING RODS, WHICH WILL WEAR AND RATTLE. IT HAS NO GASOLINE LINES TO BREAK AND HAS ALL STRAIGHT SHAFTINGS WHICH RUN ON BALL-BEARINGS THROUGHOUT.

To operate it by air, Lauer proposes to harness the propeller blast by means of fin wheels.

FAILS TO TAKE TURN, CAR GOES OVER BANK

Archie Barrabee in Hospital With Broken Arm, But Two Companions Escape.

Archie Barrabee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barrabee of Maple street in St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, where he was taken last night with a broken arm following an automobile accident in Mansfield. He had taken his father's touring car and had gone to Storrs for the evening and on the return, not being familiar with the roads, was unable to make a sharp turn. The car went over an embankment and overturned.

In the car with Barrabee were two young women, whose names are not known to the parents of the driver. They escaped without serious injuries, but Barrabee was less fortunate. He was taken to the hospital in Willimantic.

The accident was investigated by State Policeman Strakel of the Stafford Barracks and it is not known today whether or not Barrabee will be charged with violating the motor vehicle law.

BETLESS RACING FOR CALIFORNIA COFFROTH PLAN

San Francisco.—Returning to the scene of his triumph as promoter of boxing bouts, James "Sunny Jim" Coffroth will attempt to re-establish horse racing as a major California sport.

Coffroth, who turned away from boxing when twenty round bouts were outlawed in California, to horse racing at Tijuana, Mexico, just across the Mexican border, and made millions in his new line, will attempt to put across a racing meet where California millionaire horse enthusiasts failed.

His initial try will be a twenty day meet at Tauroran race track near San Bruno, twenty miles south of San Francisco. There a few years ago several rich Californians who follow the sport of the kings, built a beautiful oval, a grandstand, stables and a club house and held two meets. They were unsuccessful. Sports followers wagged their heads and said that "betless racing" could not be made to pay.

Twenty Day Meet But "Sunny Jim" Coffroth proposes to do that very thing. In announcing that he would open the track October 13 for a twenty day meet, he emphasized that it would be a "betless" meeting and would be conducted "within the law."

The most recent attempt to open the track witnessed an attempt to establish the certificate system of betting as legal in California. The courts ruled against the promoters in a test and they decided not to risk their money on a meet.

But Coffroth will not attempt to establish this or any other form of betting. He believes that high class racing will attract a following of around 20,000 persons in the bay cities and that the sport can be re-established through the medium of high class attractions. He hopes to include the ten best horses in the country in the meet to be held there this fall.

It will precede the opening of his Tijuana season and enable horse owners all over the country to enjoy a longer season on the west coast and thus induce them to send their best westward.

Virtually the entire Tijuana track management will come here to conduct the meet for Coffroth who will personally direct it. Plans have been made to put the Tauroran plant in the finest shape for the opening of the season.

Coffroth's plan to re-establish "amateur" racing here has been greeted sympathetically by San Francisco sport writers who recall the success of the fistie classics he promoted here and they indicate a belief that he can put it over.

Efforts to legalize pari-mutuel betting in California were defeated by the electorate within the past year, hence it is believed that Coffroth is basing his attempt to restore racing to the state on the expectation that "betless racing" can be made to pay.

SMITH TO OPEN HIS CAMPAIGN IN OMAHA, NEB.

of agrarian discontent. Nebraska farmers provided the bulk of those who tried to storm the Republican national convention in Kansas City, and Governor Adam McMullen has been a conspicuous leader of the revolt against the Coolidge administration. The two Republican Senators from Nebraska, Norris and Howell, voted more often against the administration at Washington than with it. Senator Norris has been silent concerning the Hoover candidacy, but there have been frequent reports reaching the east that he might give his endorsement to Governor Smith.

Smith is for no other reason than that Smith came out strongly in his acceptance speech against the so-called "power trust," which Norris has so bitterly fought at Washington.

All things considered the Democrats consider their chances for capturing the eight electoral votes of Nebraska to be more than fair, and it is for this reason that the decision was reached to fire the opening gun in Nebraska.

Governor Smith's speech at Omaha will be devoted mainly to an elaboration of his ideas on farm relief. He also will deal with water power development, although the principal blows on this subject probably will be reserved for Denver, where the issue is somewhat keener.

In Colorado, too, the Democrats believe their chances to be more than passing fair. Republican interference in Colorado has reached such a point that many Republican leaders are sincerely perturbed. Only a few weeks ago, Dr. Herbert Work, the Republican national chairman, considered the situation in his native state so serious that he made a trip there to reprimand the quarrelling factions and warn them that if they did not cease their bickering the six electoral votes of the state would be lost to the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

Oklahoma is conceded by leaders of both parties to be extremely debatable ground. The state had always been Democratic until Harding carried it in 1920. Yet four years later, in 1924, Coolidge failed to carry it by a substantial majority. It was the only state outside of the Solid South that Davis carried.

The program for Governor Smith's second week in the west is being similarly arranged to carry him into spots that are considered vulnerable for the Republicans and correspondingly favorable for Democratic endeavor.

Although no final decision has yet been made as to whether the Governor's trip will be extended to the Pacific coast, the belief prevails here that California will not see the Democratic candidate, at least on this trip. Gov. Smith's departure upon returning from the west by Sunday, September 30.

EAST AND WEST COASTS JOINED BY BUS SYSTEM

Kansas City, Mo.—New York to Los Angeles via the "covered gas wagon."

Those ponderous motor busses, the closest modern relative of the old fashioned prairie schooner which once formed the sole connecting link between East and West, will join the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard by road under a new transcontinental bus system formed here recently by the presidents of four large independent bus line companies.

The bus heads, spurred on by the recent developments in air transportation, and by air-rail mergers, are also planning a bus-airplane relay to the coast.

Walter A. Neun, Detroit, president of the Ni-sun Bus and Air Lines; F. J. Malone, Pittsburgh, president of the Purple Swan Stage Line; Frank Severer, Denver, president of the Paradox Lines; and L. W. Kubetschek, Tulsa, head of the Rapid Transit Lines, were the bus barons who met at the Westgate hotel and agreed to a readjustment of schedules and mutual ticket recognition.

The new system will serve approximately 8,000 miles of territory.

It is also expected that out of the present plan will come a gigantic financial merger of the four companies.

Under the agreement a passenger will be able to purchase a ticket in New York for Los Angeles and make the trip without interruption over the successive lines. Stop-over privileges will also be permitted at designated points.

The four lines travel approximately 22,000 miles daily over 4,000 miles of roads. By means of existing agreements with connecting lines the network will offer transportation East to Boston, San Francisco, Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas; and West to the Coast, Washington, Philadelphia, Detroit and Baltimore will be served by connecting lines.

The air service to supplement the bus transportation will start within the next few weeks when the Ni-sun company puts four six-passenger planes into operation between Kansas City and St. Louis. Eventually the air service will be extended.

The territories served by the four bus lines which entered the agreement follow:

Purple Swan—New York to Chicago.

Ni-sun lines—Detroit to Kansas City.

Paradox Lines—Kansas City to Los Angeles.

Rapid Transit Lines—Kansas City to Tulsa.

Approximately $2,000,000 is invested in the four companies.

WALCOTT IS NOMINATED AT REPUBLICAN PARLEY

county went 47 to 5 for Walcott, Litchfield county showed Blodgett strength. That county gave the state tax commissioner 52 votes, while it gave Mr. Walcott 27. Middlesex county stood 46 to 2 for Walcott, and Tolland stood 28 to 18 in Walcott's favor.

The official total as announced by the clerks of the convention was Walcott 472, Blodgett 114. The necessary number for nomination was 276.

Immediately following the announcement the motion was made that Mr. Walcott's nomination be made formally. This was done by the speaker, himself made the motion which was greeted with applause.

Alone In Field

Mrs. Russell Lee Jones, of Hartford, nominated Governor Trumbull, the governor was named by acclamation.

To the lot of Daniel M. Cronin, of New London, fell the honor of naming Ernest E. Rogers, of that city, as lieutenant-governor. It was the first long nominating speech of the gathering. Mr. Cronin started the oratory. Edward N. Allen, of Hartford, kept the oratory going when he nominated Francis A. Pallotti of Hartford, for the same office. Mr. Allen's speech assured the convention that a contest was on hand, and that a roll-call vote would be needed again.

Then came the surprise of the convention. J. Edward Brainard, of Branford, the present lieutenant-governor, rose and seconded the Rogers' nomination. He had previously declared he would be a candidate in the last minute. Mr. Brainard had removed himself from the race.

On motion of Mr. Cronin, a roll call vote was ordered with Messrs. Pallotti and Rogers the contestants.

Before the roll call could be started Mr. Walcott appeared in the convention hall. He was received with great acclaim and hailed as "our next Senator."

Walcott's Speech.

"It is with humility that I hasten to accept this nomination," declared Mr. Walcott. He gave his thanks to those friends who made his nomination possible. Then he referred to the long and able career of Senator George B. McLean and declared he knew of the love the state has for the Senator.

"We may have our individual opinions as to various sections of the Constitution," Mr. Walcott then said, as he referred to "the necessity of upholding the Constitution," "but let us seek a remedy as provided in that constitution."

Then he paid tribute to Herbert Hoover, "my personal friend, the greatest living American."

A long period of inaction followed while the roll call was being taken and the results tabulated. Rogers showed his strength by responding. Rogers finally was nominated by a vote of 452 to 127. The county totals follow:

Hartford	72	31
New Haven	77	21
New London	63	0
Fairfield	77	6
Windham	48	8
Litchfield	53	37
Middlesex	33	11
Tolland	28	17
Totals	452	127

The secretary of state had received the largest votes in Hartford, Litchfield, and New Haven counties. New London, as in the Senatorial fight, was unanimous. Her own son received her whole vote.

As soon as the announcement of the ballot was made Governor Trumbull appeared on the platform and immediately made a speech accepting his nomination. It was nearly one o'clock then and the convention had a long way to go.

Mrs. Annie E. Vinton, of Mansfield, nominated Dr. William L. Higgins, of Coventry, for secretary of state. No opponent appeared and the doctor went in by acclamation. His nomination had been seconded by John H. Hill of Shelton, and Sheriff Charles A. Gates, of Willimantic.

Howard Alcorn of Sumfield, named Samuel R. Spencer, of the same town for treasurer, and he too was given the place without opposition. Elwyn T. Clark, of Haddam, seconded the nomination of Mr. Spencer. Judge James A. Walsh, of Greenwich, put forward the name of Frederick M. Salmon of re-nomination to the office of state comptroller. Behind Judge Walsh stood Frank E. Healy, of Windsor Locks, to second Mr. Salmon's name and Mr. Salmon, too, went in by acclamation.

Governor's Speech

"We shall come through with flying colors" Governor Trumbull told the convention in the course of his acceptance speech. He promised to continue doing his shares to keep the state's finances in shape if he is re-elected once again.

The matter of choosing presidential electors occupied the closing moments of the convention. Just ahead of the platform. New Haven county received two of these honors. George H. Wilcox, of Meriden, and Edward O. Goss, of Waterbury; Hartford had two, Dewitt Page of Bristol, and Benedict M. Holden, of Hartford.

Litchfield county had Helen Hartley Jenkins, of Norfolk; Middlesex; Frank Arrigoni, of Durham and Tolland, Francis T. Maxwell of Rockville.

STOVE EXPLODES; MAN IS INJURED

Pine Street Resident Escapes Death Narrowly in Odd Accident.

One man was injured, escaping death by inches, and several others were either shaken up or unnerved when a kitchen range in the home of George H. Walker at 109 Pine street exploded last night from an unexplained cause. The injured man is James Olcott, aged over 60 years, who lived with Mr. and Mrs. Walker.

Olcott was sitting in a chair beside one of the two kitchen windows when the explosion occurred. He was painfully cut about the arms and legs necessitating the attention of a physician. A large piece of the stove was hurled through the window missing Olcott's head by inches. It landed half way across the yard toward the next house.

Windows Blown Out

No one else was in the kitchen at the time. Mr. and Mrs. Walker and a small child were in the house at the time but in another room. The force of the explosion blew out all of the window panes in the kitchen and cracked those in an adjoining room. The room was covered with ashes and soot, the walls and ceiling being jet black.

Just what caused the explosion is not known. It was reported to be a defective water jacket or something that was burning in or on top of the stove at the time. When asked if it was the latter, Mrs. Walker replied: "What difference does it make?"

Northfield, Mass., Sept. 7.—Two young girl students at the Northfield Seminary here have been missing since Tuesday night, it became known today.

The girls are Mary Shapleigh, 237 North street, Buffalo, N. Y., and Marion Mollie, 417 State street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Principal Frank Duley was at a loss to explain the disappearance. He said the girls, roommates last year, may have been disappointed because they were placed in separate dormitories this year because of the difference in their ages. The Mullen girl became fifteen this summer, while Miss Shapleigh is fourteen.

STATE DEMOCRATS

HOLD CONVENTION

be followed closely. The platform may point out, according to available advance information, that Connecticut has never ratified the Eighteenth Amendment and that its people should be given an opportunity to say how they feel toward the amendment.

Early Rumors

Early arrivals among the delegates to the convention were agitated by the statement issued yesterday by Thomas J. Spellacy, national committeeman, concerning the injection of the religious issue into the campaign, and the candidates of Augustine Lonergan and P. E. O'Sullivan for the United States Senate nomination.

When the convention gets to its nomination phase, Mr. Lonergan will be the favorite for the Senate nomination. He has more instructed delegates than any other candidate. In his bag are delegates from Manchester, Wethersfield, New Britain and many scattered Connecticut points. At the same time Mr. O'Sullivan of Orange, has some delegates ready to stick by him. The other candidates will start from scratch in the race which may be a gruelling one.

Some Candidates

Potential candidates for the federal Senate include E. Kent Hubbard, of Middletown; Alfred N. Phillips, Jr., of Stamford; Fred Atwater, of Bridgeport; Walter Lasher, of Bridgeport; Robert M. Hutchins, of New Haven, and Arthur Twining Hadley, of New Haven.

A fairly even contest for the nomination for governor is expected between William E. Thoms, of Waterbury, and Charles G. Morris, of Newtown and New Haven. Mr. Morris has a double strength in his Fairfield county and New Haven county constituencies.

For lieutenant-governor Frank P. Fenton, of Willimantic, appears to be alone in the field. Other candidates may come into the running but they had not appeared this morning.

Two or three candidates appear in the field for each of the other nominations.

The program for the convention starts that gathering into action in the Arena, State and Grove streets, at eight o'clock. James J. Walsh, of Meriden, will wield the gavel and introduce Kenneth Wynne, who is considered his party's most eloquent leader. Mr. Wynne himself may come to be the dark horse if some intolerable situation should arise.

Nominations Tomorrow.

COLOGNE U. HONORS

STERLING'S MANAGER

Unusual Distinction Conferred Upon General Manager of Sterling Products, Inc.

The University of Cologne, Germany, has just paid to William E. Weiss, of Wheeling, W. Va., one of the founders and general manager of Sterling Products, Inc. (Incorporated), an unusual distinction by bestowing unanimously upon him the title of Doctor Philosophiae Honoris Causa. Mr. Weiss is the first and only American to be so honored by this world famous German institution. This mark of preference came to Mr. Weiss in recognition of his efforts to further the industrial relations that have extended over more than a decade between the Directors and Scientific and Chemical staffs of German and American Pharmaceutical firms that are prominent in international industrial affairs.

SUMATRA NATIVES

VICTIMS OF FAKERS IN SPIRIT SEANCES

Chicago.—Primitive tribesmen of island of Sumatra believe that the spirit of a dead person returns for a last celebration with relatives and friends. This belief, according to Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology at Field Museum of Natural History, is fostered by a form of faked spiritualistic seance devised by native magicians. The figures of the spirits are hinged and connected with strings underneath the clothing placed on it. At the place of assembly for the ceremony, the figure is placed before the people in semi-darkness, in such a position that the mechanics of the scheme cannot be seen. The tribesmen begin their ceremonial singing and dancing. A magician solemnly summons the dead to join them, and to indicate that he is amongst them by letting his spirit enter and animate the figure of his body. The magician then manipulates the strings and the figure moves its head and jerks its arms and legs as if it were joined in the dancing. This, the natives believe, is the last communication of the spirit with his relatives.

HOOVER AS WINNER

he is not necessary any longer. He is out of date.

To fulfill his part in the national plan, a man has to begin pretty far back. Hoover began 35 years ago when he became an engineer. The country has become more than a group of governmental offices. It is a great and growing social and productive power, and it needs a man who knows how to make the material world serve the social world. It is not enough for him to desire this, but to know how to go about it. He knows what people mean when they talk about these things.

The Main Job What would you think of a business leader who should say that his great mission was to reorganize the offices of his concern? The main consideration is always increase and betterment of the productive energy and methods. Well, it is just the same when politicians stress organization of government offices. The real business of the country is not at Washington.

Considerable pressure has been brought to bear and not until today would Mr. Treat assent to return to office. His reputation for good judgment, common sense and fair-play will stand him in good stead as a police commissioner.

Police commissioners are appointed by the Selectmen for three year terms and there is no salary connected with the office. Edward J. Murphy, and Willard B. Rogers are the other members of the present police commission.

WHY BEEF IS SO HIGH

Cattle Raisers Getting 28 Per Cent More for Animals Than a Year Ago.

T. J. Keefe, Manchester branch manager for Morris & Co., beef wholesalers, made the following statement today concerning the high price of that commodity:

"Farmers are selling their cattle for the best prices in years. During the month of July native beef steers sold on the Chicago market at an average price of $15 per hundred pounds, the highest monthly average since September, 1920. This is an increase of 28 per cent over the average price for the same kind of steers during July last year. Other grades of cattle are selling about in proportion and cattlemen generally are recovering the money lost during the several years in the immediate past when beef sold below the cost of production."

"Secretary of Agriculture, William M. Jardine credits the increase in cattle prices to the smaller supply, which is the result of drastic reduction in herds, and the foreign out of business of many producers during the last six years.

"Naturally, the beef cuts which have reflected in greatest degree the advance in cattle prices are the choice portions, such as loins and ribs, from whence come steaks and roasts. The forequarter cuts, equally nutritious and capable of being made, by good cooks, into equally appetizing and satisfying dishes, have not increased in price as much as is warranted by the increase in cattle prices.

"While the supply of beef is smaller than it was a year ago and smaller than it has been for some years, there is still plenty of beef to go around among those who really want it.

"Pork products are cheaper than they were a year ago, according to the United States Department of Labor. The Department reports that the retail price of ham and bacon is noticeably lower than a year ago and that pork chops are almost exactly the same as they were a year ago.

"There is plenty of meat, and considering the growing realization of its important place in the diet,

MAID OF MRS. IRWIN

IN STABBING AFFAIR

Punctured Lung of Another Servant With An Ice Pick, Police Say.

Selma, Mass., Sept. 7.—A maid employed by Mrs. Inez Hayes Irwin, novelist and wife of Will Irwin, widely known author, is in a dangerous condition today in Selma hospital and a second maid is under arrest on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Mrs. Irwin said today she would appear at the hearing tomorrow to plead for Mary Garden, a kitchen maid, charged with stabbing Margaret Upshaw, a serving maid. At the hospital it was said that Miss Upshaw is suffering from a puncture of the lung, inflicted with an ice pick, but that she has a fair chance of recovery if complications do not set in.

Police learned that the girls quarreled in the kitchen yesterday while breakfast was being served to Mrs. Irwin and a guest.

The Roy Chapman Andrews expedition brought back tools used in the Gobi desert 150,000 years ago and remains of a highly developed stone age culture. No mention was made in the dispatch, however, about any home brew recipes.

It was learned today. The Rajah was ill some time ago and was treated by an herb doctor, but her health failed to improve. She is described as pale and listless.

Do you suppose Tom Mix's noble steed, Tony, enjoyed a quiet horse laugh over the recent Mix-Morrissey mixup?

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Yesterday afternoon a brief meeting was held for candidates for the football team. About forty responded and the group was addressed by Coach Kelly and Mr. Bailey, faculty athletic manager. The first workout will be held next Monday at 4 o'clock at the West Side Recreation grounds. The schedule this year calls for five league games and four games outside of the league. Naugatuck and Bridgeport, which were not on last year's schedule, are included, while New Haven Hillhouse has been dropped. If negotiations with Yale University are completed twenty members of the local squad will have an opportunity to usher at three or four of the Yale football games. New uniforms have been purchased for last year's letter men and these were given out today, while the rest of the squad will receive theirs Monday.

Next Monday the school will go back to the practice of using the last period of the day in the manner devised last year. Instead of spending it in his home room, on Monday, the student will go to the teacher with whom he has the first period in the morning, on Tuesday and on Wednesday the teacher whom he has the second and third periods respectively and the following Monday the teacher whom he has the fourth period.

There has been no change in the number of courses offered to students this year. The courses, numbering eight, are as follows: college preparatory and college scientific, for students wishing to take a course that contains the subjects necessary for admission to college; normal school preparatory, for girls wishing training for admission to normal schools, or a course containing training for a future home maker; the academic course for students not preparing for a specified business or professional calling; commercial curriculum I, for girls who wish to train for positions in business offices; commercial curriculum II for boys designed to prepare for such positions as clerks and bookkeepers. In addition there are the usual co-operative trade school courses which offer pupils the opportunity of spending half their time in high school and half at some shop in the Trade school.

Next Monday and Tuesday the Boys and Girls Glee Clubs will be formed under the supervision of Miss E. Marian Dorward, musical director. Several veteran songsters were graduated last June from both clubs, but it is expected that the clubs will be helped considerably by members of last year's Freshman Glee clubs.

September 23 has been set aside as the day for the annual hare and hound chase. A complete list of the girls who have been selected as hares is not yet available, but it will be published as soon as completed.

MISSING FINGER CLUE

London.—A lost digit caused the arrest at Leeds of a woman charged with robbing handbags at St. Anne's Cathedral. Fingerprints on the ransacked bags indicated a missing finger on the thief's hand. Careful watch of persons entering the structure soon disclosed the guilty one.

A STRANGE HOTEL

London.—Authorities have refused to renew the license of Britain's queerest hotel. It is in a village near Bury St. Edmunds. Although fully licensed no one has been able to secure accommodations there. The owner is a rabid testeller who adopted this method of asserting his principles.

HEBRON

Sunday visitors at the home of Representative and Mrs. Ames W. Sisson were Jerry Healy of South Windham, Raymond Healy of Scotland, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jacques of Hartford, also Charles Jacques, his mother and nephew of Bridgeport. Other week-end guests at the Sisson home were Otis Stone and Miss Kitty King, of Ashland, Mass. During their visit the two last named accompanied Representative and Mrs. Sisson to Manchester where they were callers at the home of Charles Johnson. They also spent a day at Ocean Beach with Mr. and Mrs. Sisson.

Horace Ensworth and A. H. Wigham spent Sunday at the Standby Club house.

Mrs. Helen Gilbert and daughter of Boston, Mrs. Hart E. Buell of Gilead, Henry Stoehr and daughter, Miss Edith Stoehr were recent guests at the home of Mrs. Helen White.

Miss Daisy White spent a day recently at the home of Miss Amy Markham in East Hampton.

Allen W. H. Sterry is back again as teacher at the Hebron Green School. Mr. and Mrs. Sterry expect to move back to their former home here the 15th of the month. Until then they will remain at their Willimantic place. Mr. Sterry motoring back and forth to his work.

Miss Mildred Hough, who graduated from the Willimantic Normal School last spring is teaching at the Jones Hollow School in Marlborough. Mrs. Roger W. Porter is back at her former place as teacher of the primary grades at the Center School.

Harry Tomchin has gone to New York where he will be the guests of his brothers and sisters for a time. He expects later to go to Maine to see his father.

Miss Virginia Ward of Norwich was a recent guest for a few days of Miss Thelma Cummings. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie F. Ward and their children, Janice and Fletcher spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. Ward's parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Porter and children, Mr. Porter's father, H. Clinton Porter, and Harold and Thelma Cummings spent Sunday at Ocean Beach.

Recent guests entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Post were Miss Mildred Hannaway, and Mrs. J. N. Hannaway and children of Pawtucket, R. I. Those whose names were placed on the list of prospective voters Sept. 4 should appear before the officers appointed to make voters, at the town clerk's office, Sept. 15th. This applies to the town elections in particular. Those who fall of being made voters at this date can have another chance at a later date in time for the presidential election.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Griffin were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stratton of Guilford, and Bert Norton of Westbrook, Mr. Griffin's half-brother.

Mrs. Anna Peck of Danbury was the guest of relatives, Mrs. L. M. Lord, and Mrs. Della Porter for a few days this week.

Miss Clarissa Lord was a recent guest for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Day at their New Jersey estate, "Pleasant Days."

It has been decided to close the Lord School, at least temporarily. Myron Hills is furnishing transportation for the pupils there to the Center District. This school just closed has been the smallest in attendance of any in the town for a number of years and removals from the district have still further lowered the registration.

An Easter lily presented to Miss C. E. Kellogg in full bloom in April was planted by her in her garden and has again burst into full bloom. It is regarded as being very unusual for a plant of this kind to flower twice within a period of five months.

WAPPING

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Batley and grandson Jack, of New Britain, were guests of their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Batley last Wednesday.

Funeral services for Mrs. Erwin L. Furrey were largely attended from her late home on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Truman H. Woodward officiated. The many and beautiful floral pieces showed the high esteem in which Mrs. Furrey was held among her neighbors and friends.

The Republican caucus will be held at the town hall in South Windsor next Saturday evening at seven o'clock, standard time, for the purpose of nominating the candidates for all the town offices for the ensuing year, and to do any other business proper to come before said meeting.

Frank Barbour, who is head of the state junior achievement work, will be the speaker at the first meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association on next Monday afternoon at three o'clock at the Center school hall. He will bring with him his exhibit of articles of leather, brass and wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snow and family and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Snow, of Glastonbury, were invited guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cobb of Columbia last Sunday.

Mrs. Alice Smith lost a valuable dog this week. The animal was recovered by an automobile on last Sunday.

Rev. T. H. Woodward's father, Rev. William D. Woodward will preach at East Blackstone, Mass., which was his first appointment from the Southern New England conference, forty-two years ago. He will also preach in the evening at Millville, Mass. Last Sunday he preached at the Methodist Church at Warehouse Point.

The curious dress of the "Beet-eaters" at the Tower of London is said to be due to the desire of Henry III. that they should look as stout as he did.

Man "Dead" Seven Years Is Found Under New Name In Denver Hotel

Denver.—After mystifying police and private detectives for seven years, James H. Lawrence, who was thought to have been killed in Kansas City seven years ago, proved himself very much alive here recently.

"I made a mistake, we all make mistakes," was his explanation.

Lawrence, once a wealthy farmer of Edinburgh, Texas, disappeared when he left his wife and four children, to make a business trip to Kansas City. Insurance companies and police departments sent out their best detectives to solve the mystery but all they could find was his hat and coat on the banks of the Missouri River.

Seven years passed and Lawrence was pronounced legally dead. Proceedings were instituted to set his estate.

But, a few days ago, Harry Burnham, upon entering a local hotel, thought he recognized the clerk, known as J. H. Lee. He consulted his wife and they both decided that Lee was Lawrence, the man they had known in Rockwell City.

Admits Identity
Detectives and reporters rushed to interview the man, whereupon he admitted his identity and told a story always before a secret.

"I had been in financial difficulties in Texas and had made a deal with Kansas City business men which I hoped would adjust things," he said.

"I had hoped that no one ever would know," he continued with tears in his eyes. The Kansas City men tricked me. The last thing I remember is walking out of the lobby of a Kansas City hotel. I know that I was very angry.

"My mind then became blank and the next thing I recall is that the landlady of a cheap rooming house in Wichita, Kan., was knocking on my door.

"This is your call, Mr. Lee, you asked me to call you," she said.

"I got up and went to the hotel register. I was registered as J. H. Lee.

"I knew that was not my name but that the initials were mine. Lawrence it seemed, had been shortened to 'Lee'.

"I found it was the first week in March. Realizing I had been away from my family for nearly a month without their having heard from me I was faced with a terrible decision.

"I found that I was supposed to have been killed and thrown into the river.

To Remain "Dead"
"If I went back to my family, I knew I could explain to them, but I knew everyone would believe I had been out on a lark and spent all my money. I didn't want to injure my family with this additional publicity. I decided that Lawrence would remain dead and that I would be J. H. Lee.

"I obtained work in a filling station in Wichita, and in the next five years I held a responsible position with the oil company.

"About two years ago I came to Denver. That's all there is to my story except that I made a mistake and am sorry.

"I believed I was going right but I know it was wrong," he concluded. "I harmed no one but my family. Many, many times I wanted to see them, but I feared that would injure them more than if I remained away."

Lawrence was recently taken to a hospital here where physicians said he was in a critical condition, suffering from a complication of diseases.

CHICAGOAN RICH ON FLOP HOUSES 'MAKES' SOCIETY

Chicago.—Millionaires of Chicago have come to wealth through wheat and corn, pork and beef, boats and steam engines, sewing machines and cotton cloth. And now Chicago is welcoming a new type of millionaire.

He is said to have made his wealth in the operation of "flop" houses, catering to homeless men. In Chicago nightly there are more than 10,000 men with no regular sleeping places.

A "flop" house, also known as a "scratch palace" is the cheapest of the cheap sleeping or lodging houses. The newest of Chicago's men of great wealth is said to operate five or six of these hotels for men, charging from 15 to 50 cents per night for lodgers.

Immense Profit.
Enormous profits, considering the small amount of money invested have been reaped.

The "flop" houses are all located in old buildings; there is no maid or janitor service to be paid for by the owner and the general upkeep amounts to little.

A feature of the string of houses operated by the new millionaire is the stringing of chicken wire over each of the small compartments in the hotels which are called rooms. The walls consist generally of sheet iron making them easy to wash with a hose. The chicken wire prevents robbing of guests during the night. In other houses it has been the custom to attach pins and wires to strings, held over a sleeper by a stick, and "fish". So expert are many of the patrons of the "flop" houses that most carefully hidden possessions have been removed by the fish-pole method.

Sanitary Places.
In the houses operated by the millionaire conditions are sanitary and they have enjoyed an immense business. "Pay-in-advance-every night" is the business slogan of the houses and for that reason the usual losses to hotels through "deadbeats" is unknown.

The "made-rich-by-the-flop-houses" millionaire is said to be seen often in notable Chicago gatherings. He is a patron of the opera and a frequenter of the Chicago Art Institute. He is also reported to have been invited to several leading Chicago social affairs. The "flop" house magnate is well educated and distinguished in appearance and has not been accepted in society as a freak but on his merits, it is said.

BASEBALL TONIGHT TOMORROW SUNDAY FOR MANCHESTER FANS

Heights-Gibson's at Hickey's Grove Tonight; Hartford Red Sox at Green Saturday; Green-Community Sunday.

There will be three baseball games in town over the remainder of the week-end.

Tonight at Hickey's Grove, Gibson's Garage and the Heights are slated to play a twilight league contest.

Tomorrow afternoon at Woodbridge Field, the Hartford Red Sox will oppose the Manchester Green team at 3 o'clock.

Sunday afternoon at the same time, weather permitting of course, the Community Club and the Green will hook up in the second game of their best out of five series at Hickey's Grove.

That, ladies and gentlemen, is the baseball program for the week-end, no more, no less.

All of these contests are liable to prove worth watching.

The Green finished one run behind the Community in the first game of their series last Saturday and hopes to square accounts Sunday.

Local Sport Chatter

The boxing bouts at the Hartford Velodrome last night were postponed until tonight because of wet grounds.

With Jerry Fay through as director of the Community Club over north, it is very apparent that the "God's Country" section of the town will not be represented by a basketball team this winter that will be able to compete with the south end.

The Globe Hollow pond will not close for the summer season as previously announced until after Sunday.

It is understood that the Cloverleaves are going to attempt to raise money the same as the Cubs by canvassing the business men of the town after being approved by the Chamber of Commerce.

If Jerry Fay leaves town in the course of professional football, what will become of the Cloverleaves?

It is understood that there is a difference of opinion among the fans as to where the Cubs should play their home games of football this season.

The Cubs are ordered to report at the State Armory tonight for their first practice of the season.

FOX PHANN It's consoling to know that the fighters who give boxing a black eye generally get most of them.

WANTS ANOTHER CHANCE

Ernie Wingard, lefthander who formerly pitched for the St. Louis Browns, has enjoyed a nice season this year in the American Association and hopes he will get another big league fling.

Judging by some of the building jobs we have seen lately, the bricklayers spend their off days watching chess matches.

BIG FIGHT PURSE A THING OF PAST

Billy Gibson Tells Just What Brought the Million Dollar Gate.

New York, Sept. 7.—Boxing, greatest of all bonanzas during the rapidly expiring golden age of sport, is entering its inevitable era of re-adjustment in which fighters no matter who they are, will be paid strictly according to their value and fights, no matter what they are, will be well to retail their choicest seats at better than $15.

Billy Gibson, soider of fortune for twenty-five years in a game in which sniping never knows a closed season, thus served warning on the Loughrans, Sharkeys, Hansens, Risks, Henneys and others who seek the vacated heavyweight championship and the pot of gold supposedly at rainbow's end.

The last fortune has been made by the Rickards, the Kearnses and other overnight opportunists, Gibson avers. The last big purse has been achieved. There may be another million dollar house but Gibson doesn't expect to see it.

That phenomenon of American madness died with Dempsey, in the opinion of this boxing man who made and re-made successive fortunes in his "racket" and finally produced champions in two major classes in such a manner as to make them appear greater than they really were.

"I think the million dollar gate is only a memory now because it isn't reasonable to look for a return of the circumstances that made it possible," Gibson declared.

"Sullivan was the last great champion of the Dempsey type. But he wasn't fortunate enough to live in such an era. Jeffries was popular but he wasn't a showman. Perhaps, if we could get another Sullivan, another Dempsey or even another Jeffries in the next year or so, we might have another Hurry in high finance. For that sort of thing doesn't die abruptly. It passes out gradually but, once having passed, it is gone for good."

The writer suggested, in view of these assertions, that Dempsey, therefore, stood as the redeemer of progress, civilization, mankind in general and the million dollar gate. Dempsey Done

"Not a chance," quoth Mr. Gibson without hesitation. "You forget that Dempsey no longer has the combination I'm talking about. He still has the showmanship, the appeal. He might even catch some of the ebb tide of dollars that still are floating around without a home, if he had the third part of the combination. But he hasn't. He is all washed up as a fighter and most of the fans know it."

"I think one of the main reasons he has retired is that he knows he can't get the money any more."

Just what the other main reasons might be, the writer didn't trouble to inquire, knowing full well that there are only three reasons for a fighter doing anything. They are, namely, reading, rapidly from left from left to right—money, money and money.

British writers say that British golf is handicapped because all the young golfers who do something while in college are never heard of after they leave college.

LEARNED AT HOLY CROSS. "Rosy" Ryan, former Giant pitcher who was purchased recently by the Yankees, got his start in baseball at Holy Cross College.

Ed Barrow had a stroke of jinxes when someone called the Yankees office and put in a world's series reservation. The Yanks aren't talking world's series. Neither are the A's. They remember back in 1921 when Barney Dreyfus ordered the lumber for field seats. And the Pirates blew a seven-game lead and pennant. . . . Tilden has been offered $1,500 a week for some vaudeville. . . . But he wants to act something heavy. . . . They say that while the millionaires were getting the retired to blow a congratulatory banquet his brother, Detective Tom Tunney, was raising a crap game. . . . And that a discharged butler spilled the news about the engagement. . . . Bill McKehe said the Cards started to blow when they lost Wally Roettger. . . . Ping Bodie is hitting .372 in the Coast League. . . . And a pitcher loaded the bases the other day to get the Ping up in the pinch and the Ping busted up the ball game. The serious illness of Mrs. Jack Kearns may bring Dempsey back into the old firm.

Wallace Easily Defeats Defensive Joey Kaufman

By TOM STOWE New Haven Arena, N. H., Sept. 7.—The somewhat disappointing showing of Billy Wallace, sensational Cleveland lightweight, in failing to put Joe Kaufman of New York on the canvas for keeps in with ten round bout here last night, served to once more bring up for interesting question of whether or not Louis Kid Kaplan, former world's featherweight champion, could defeat Wallace should they meet again.

Wallace was the young man who stepped into the pugilistic hall of fame some months ago when he kayoed Kaplan in the fifth round of their bout at Cleveland. This contest marked the beginning of Kaplan's attempt to annex the light weight title after vacating his former crowd. To a great extent, it has been the end: In other words Kaplan has never been quite himself since that fight as he none-too-impressive record attests.

And last night speculation was at its peak among the crowd present as to Wallace's ability to repeat his victory over Kaplan. Many think Kaplan would even count, should Wallace accept the standing challenge he so long has ignored. Wallace although he won handily from Kaufman last night, failed to come anywhere near kayoing his rugged opponent. Nevertheless, he won every one of the ten rounds with comparative ease.

Failure to put Kaufman to sleep, as we saw it, was largely due to the fact that the New Yorker fought purely a defensive battle with the possible exception of the last two rounds. He was ever alert against Wallace's lightly touted right hand which seldom landed as it was intended as regards the jaw. Had Kaufman taken any chances, or

TUNNEY'S SECOND WITH KAUFMAN AT NEW HAVEN

Jimmy Bronson, second for Gene Tunney in the latter's two fights with Jack Dempsey for the world's title, was in Joey Kaufman's corner last night in the fight with Billy Wallace at New Haven. He was introduced to the crowd and got a big hand as did several other notables.

In other words, tried to land any punches himself, we have a faint suspicion he would have heard the birdies sing before the tenth.

Wallace floored Kaufman for a count of five in the fourth round and staggered him once or twice more in later rounds, but on the whole Kaufman, with his defensive tactics, weathered the storm in a most upright manner. The crowd pleaded with Wallace for a knock out, but it was not forthcoming against this style of fighting. And so while Wallace did not show anything unusual or sensational in his work, to a great extent, Kaufman was to blame.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At New York—Billy Stirling, Georgian heavyweight, was awarded the decision over Johnny Squires, of South Africa (2). Jake Warren, Chicago heavyweight, won on foul from Paul Swiderski of Syracuse (4). Gene Baker, Johnston, Pa., knocked out Johnny Kreiger, Jersey City heavyweight (1). George Hoffman, New York heavyweight, knocked out Jack Bessimes of Canada (4).

RAIN WASHES OUT MOST OF MATCHES

In National League Only One Game Was Played Yesterday.

New York, Sept. 7.—Jupiter Pluvius played the major role in the pennant chases, throttling the Yankees and Athletics who were fighting for the lead in the American League. The Yanks still hold a two game lead over the Mackmen. Today the Yanks face the Senators in a single game, and the Athletics play two with Boston, which gives them an opportunity to reduce the New Yorkers' lead.

In the National League the St. Louis Cardinals and the Pirates were the only teams playing, and the Cards preserved their margin over the Pittsburghers, winning in the tenth inning when Harper contributed a home run with one man made on base. Mitchell, was credited with the St. Louis victory.

The game sent the Cardinals further into the lead by a four and a half game margin ahead of the Giants.

MIGHT MAKE AN OUTFIELDER.

Billy Rayne, with Cleveland, is one of the hardest hitting pitchers in baseball. He has been around the 400 mark all season.

SEWELL MAY PLAY THIRD.

Joe Sewell, midget shortstop of the Cleveland Indians, may play third base for that club next season.

"CAP" BISSELL TAKES VAN NISS INTO CAMP IN TWO SETS, 6-3, 6-2

Jack McVey and Jock Malone were tossed out of a Chicago ring for waiting. The Illinois Boxing Commission did nothing about it, however, probably on the theory that a wait isn't so very different from a polka after all.

THE COMMISSION HELD THAT THEIR STYLES WERE TOO MUCH THE SAME TO ALLOW FOR A GOOD FIGHT BETWEEN THE TWO. NEITHER GENT KNOWS HOW TO FOX TROT OR QUADRILLE AND THE CUSTOMERS DO GET TIRED OF WATCHING THE WALTZ. PRETTY THOUGH IT IS.

Strange things can happen to a boxer. Tunney ascribes to his sudden desire to sit in that round seven in Chicago to astigmatism. It would take a Tunney to think of that one.

Tough blow for the Giants. They have to play a string at the Polo Grounds, greatly hampering Muggsy's style. Probably it'll cost them the pennant.

McGraw wins most of the games on the road because of incendiaryism. H. makes the home crowd so mad that all the players catch what Mr. Tunney might call astigmatism.

Defending Champion Advances to Semi-Finals by Eliminating Country Club Ace in West Side Match.

Sherwood "Cap" Bissell, defending twin champion and Trinity College net star, had little trouble eliminating Fred VanNess of the Manchester Country Club in his quarter finals match in The Herald's elimination title tournament last night at the West Side playground.

Bissell won in straight sets. The scores were 6 to 3 and 6 to 2. Although VanNess at times played some fine tennis, there was no question as to which was the better player. The players were handicapped by the somewhat soggy condition of the surface caused by the steady rain and drizzle throughout the day.

No other matches were reported as being played yesterday and so far as is known, none is on the board for this evening. Mrs. Fro VanNess and Miss Carolyn Cheney were booked to play early this afternoon in the women's tournament. The Earle Bissell-Ty Holland match was postponed.

McGraw must fight to win, it seems. If he could only get the fans at the Polo Grounds completely sore at him and his ball club he might take that bunting yet.

When Mrs. Harry Pressler of Los Angeles won the woman's western open golf championship at Chicago recently, the experience wasn't a novelty. She has won the title before and probably will win it again before she stows away her golf sticks for good. But she had to play great golf before she was able to get the pretty trophy which she is holding here, presented after she had beaten Virginia Wilson of Chicago in the finals this year.

THIS HAS HAPPENED SYBIL THORNE, who knows a good deal about men, meets RICHARD EUSTIS, an astonishing person, who proceeds to make immediate and passionate love. They are on their way to Cuba, where Sybil has planned to meditate quietly concerning her matrimonial marriage with CRAIG NEWHALL.

Craig is very much in love with her and possesses all the qualifications of an ideal husband, but Sybil has been haunted for years by the specter of her first young romance. JOHN LAWRENCE, whom she loved when she was 16, went to France with the A. E. F. and never returned. Since then Sybil has sought to forget her heartbreak through various light affairs and countless indiscretions.

Following the death of her father and the marriage and brotherhood to VALERINE WEST, a frivolous creature, Sybil sails for Havana with MAHEL BLAKE, a good-natured young woman, who is determined to get married. It was Mahel who saw Richard Eustis first and looked upon him longingly, but Eustis has never seen anyone but Sybil.

The first night they are together he tells her that he is crazy about her and proposes to make her love him. He kisses her and she promises to meet him every night on deck. Fearfully excited and a little frightened, she awaits developments.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIII

Next morning Richard Eustis breakfasted in the saloon, and that day he began his conquest of Sybil. "Morning, noon and night!" complained Mahel, two days later. "And he won't give me a second!" Mahel became a social creature. She chatted with Father Finn and the minister. She studied Spanish with the Courales and knit a baby jacket for Mrs. Perkins. She sympathized with the Joneses in all their troubles, and listened patiently to the lady from Wellesley.

"Anything," she explained, "to get away from Arvid. I wouldn't marry him, Sib, if he was the last man on earth and happened to ask me. Now you know how I hate him."

"I suppose," hazarded Sybil, "if he hadn't grabbed you off that first evening Rich would never have fallen to my lot."

"You never can tell. Anyhow, I'll never forgive him for it."

Eustis was making frantic love to Sybil, and everyone aboard was watching the progress of the affair with the avid interest of people who have nothing else to do.

"Don't think," besought Mahel, "that it's just a case of some girl—but, honestly, Sib, I think you'd be an awful chump if you threw Craig over."

"Who said I was going to? Anyhow, you thought Rich was pretty special yourself."

"I know I did, dear. And I do think he's absolutely fascinating. But he hasn't Craig's stability. Sybil, he's a sort of duffer. Oh, please don't misunderstand me, honey. I think as a lover he's a perfect knockout. But as a husband—well, you know yourself, Sybil, how perfectly wonderful Craig would be. Do you think Richard would be as dependable?"

"If you think Craig's so wonderful why don't you try and get him yourself?"

Mahel flushed darkly and instantly Sybil was condescending.

"Oh, Mah, I didn't mean that. Please forgive me. You're not angry, Mah?"

"Yes, I am. I'm darn good and sore. But you needn't worry. I'll mind my own business after this."

Mahel picked up a book and stalked from their stateroom in outraged dignity.

"There's one thing certain," she reflected grimly, "I'm in for a devil of a trip. Serves me right, running around with flappers. A lovesick kid on my hands—God help me!"

Eustis knocked on Sybil's door. "Come in," she called. "And when he opened the door—'Well, if it isn't God's little gift to women!'"

"Sybil, be serious. Where's Mah?"

"Out on the deck, with a book and a grouch."

"May I come in? I want to talk to you, away from all the good ladies and holy men."

She raised her lashes lazily.

"Go read your little book on etiquette. Don't you know gentlemen never invade a lady's boudoir? Besides, I haven't my mouth on yet."

He kissed her on the lips.

"There—that's better for them than a lip stick. How much longer are you going to kid me along, Sybil?"

"How inelegantly the gentleman talks!"

She nestled against his shoulder.

"If Mah comes in, she'll have a fit. If the steward shows up, you'll have to tip him. This is outrageous."

"You like it, don't you?" He held her very close.

"Love it... Oh, my dear, you'll choke me!"

Always from love and kisses, their conversation turned to marriage. Richard in laughing, moderate fashion, condemned it soundly.

"But, my darling," he told her now, releasing her lips lingeringly, "I'd almost marry you—I swear I would."

"I suppose," she hazarded lightly, "if it was the only way you could have me, you might be inclined to consider it."

"Exactly," he agreed. "A man will do anything if he wants a woman badly enough."

"And you want me that bad?"

"Come in," she called. And when he opened the door—"Well, if it isn't God's little gift to women!"

"I want you," he told her solemnly, "so much that it's an ache in my bones. A hungry gnaw eats me night and day."

He took her in his arms, and when she clung to him trembling, he whispered softly:

"It's holding you, dear—like this—it's enough to make me or any man drunk. Don't you know that?"

She drew herself away, and pouring water from the decanter, drank it slowly. When she put the glass down he: voice was steady.

"No man ever made love like this to me before who didn't want to marry me," she remarked slowly. "You make me feel sort of deflated. I don't like it."

Deliberately she powdered her nose and touched her lips. When she had inspected herself critically in the mirror, she pulled on a small felt hat.

"Come up on deck," she invited.

"Bedrooms, all heavy with powder and scent, nauseate me. It's almost eleven. They'll be serving broth in a few minutes."

They found their chairs, and when he had slipped a pillow beneath her head, he stretched indolently beside her.

"You mustn't think," she began acidly, continuing their conversation where they had left it off, "that I'm trying to warn a proposal out of you. Because I wouldn't marry you for the world."

He reached for her fingers.

"You know," he told her, "that you possess me entirely."

"Fiddlesticks," she retorted, and snatched her hand away.

"I never did ask a girl to marry me," he remarked ruminatively. "I've always thought of marriage as a sort of a trap. And of course it's desire that springs the thing."

She said nothing.

"I'd make such a rotten husband," he continued speculatively. "I'm much too brilliant."

And when she flashed him a look of withering scorn, he rallied his defenses humorously. "Morons makes the best husbands, you know, Sybil. I've always said so. Look at the awful things marriage does to clever people. Now I've seen lots of fine, promising fellows—"

"Oh, shut up, Richard!"

"But I have," he insisted. "And just as soon as they get married, what happens? Same old 'tread mill.' Same old run—"

"I hold no brief for marriage," she interrupted him primly. "And your views don't interest me a bit."

"But they ought to!" he protested. "Everyone's interested in marriage. To marry happily one needs a single track mind—now I know what I'm talking about, Sybil. You'd better listen."

"I won't!" she snapped, and put her fingers in her ears.

"Oh, well!" Richard shrugged indifferently. And when she had taken her hand away, remarked casually, "You'd make a rotten wife yourself you know, darling."

"Why?" she demanded.

"You're not stupid enough," he told her cheerfully. "Gentle, fruitful women make the best wives."

"I'm gentle," she told him. "And I must be dreadfully stupid, or I wouldn't put up with you."

"Oh, no," he contradicted gently. "You're not stupid, Sybil. You are a very highly strung, sensitized, bit of organism, utterly unsuited for anything so tranquil as matrimony. You ought to be clever enough to see that, my dear. If you must get married, cultivate placidity."

"Oh, please!" she besought. "I don't want to get married. Let's talk about something else."

Lazy days and tropical nights. Cocktails and kisses. Love on a painted ocean. Moon and stars. And darkness all about.

They stood on the boat deck, deserted at midnight; and leaning over the rail, watched the phosphorescent water gleam like molten silver.

"It's magical!" Sybil cried. "It's the loveliest thing I ever saw. Every blessed wave has turned to silver! What made them, Richard?"

"The water," he informed her, he opened the door—"Well, if it isn't God's little gift to women!"

"emits light without sensible heat. The chemical properties—"

"I told you!" she interrupted angrily. "Of course it's magic. There's no such thing as light without heat. It's only make-believe. It's water sprites waving tapestries for Neptune. Or maybe it's the ocean turned upside down, and that's its silver carpet."

"Anyhow it's enchanted. It's the loveliest sight in the world. Oh, Rich, I feel bewitched! It's full of sorcery. Lovely, lovely night!"

"My dear," he answered, "you make me think of a beautiful poem. It must have been written for a girl like you on a night like this."

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

CHILD'S MENTAL POWER CAN BE EASILY TESTED

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

All sorts of tests have been developed to show whether or not a child is developing normally from the mental point of view. If the child is to be feeble-minded, it is important to know this as soon as possible so that the greatest advantage can be taken of the early years in proper training.

Many tests have been worked out to indicate whether or not the mentality is up to what it should be for a child of that age.

In the Binet-Simon tests, which are a standard, the child of three years is asked to show its mouth, nose and eyes; it is asked to repeat two numbers which are not consecutive, and it is given three opportunities to repeat numbers in this way. It succeeds once out of three times it is considered as not below normal intelligence.

Easy Test

A simple test is to show the child a picture in which there are four or five objects of importance and to ask it to name the important objects. A child of three years, if normal mentally, is usually able to do this. A common picture will show a boy, a dog, a tree, a car or some similar subject.

By the time the child is four years old it should know whether it is a boy or girl, it should be able to name successively three familiar objects shown to it, such as a spoon, a blade and a pencil, and to repeat three nonconsecutive numbers.

The six-year-old child should be able to tell whether or not any particular time of the day is noon or evening; it should be able to define the use of a fork, a chair, a knife or a table.

The eight-year-old child should be able to count from 20 to zero backwards in 20 seconds, and to give the date of the month or some similar information.

A nine-year-old child should be able to distinguish pieces of money and to enumerate the months.

Test Foundation

The tests that have been developed will seem to the adult relatively simple, but a child of that age is often unable to do them. The child's certain amount of definite brain activity.

These tests represent the results of careful observations of thousands of children.

Certainly conspicuous failure in their performance should demand special attention by the parents to the question of the child's education.

For Blooms in the Spring We Must Plant in the Fall

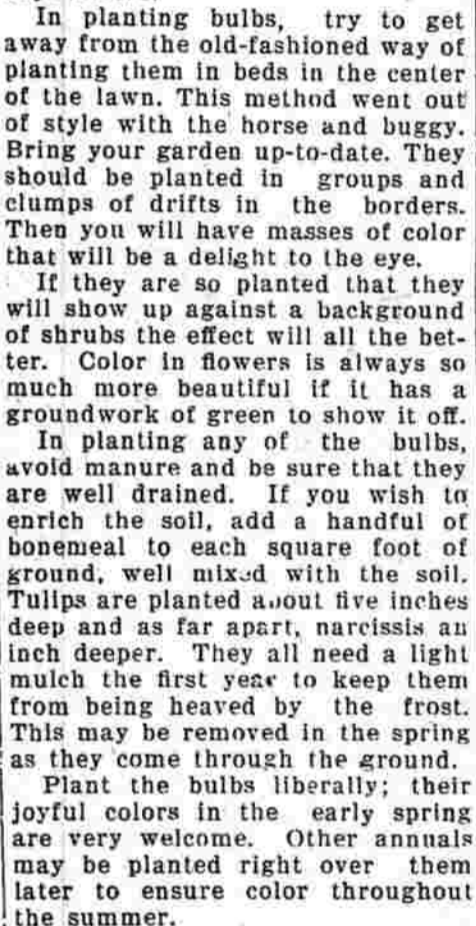

By ROMAINE B. WARE

Your garden can have those glorious masses of color next spring that only the bulbs can give if you will plant and plant now. All of the spring flowering bulbs must be planted in the beds in the center of the lawn. This method went out of style with the horse and buggy. Bring your garden up-to-date. They should be planted in groups and clumps of drifts in the borders. Then you will have masses of color that will be a delight to the eye.

If they are so planted that they will show up against a background of shrubs the effect will all the better. Color in flowers is always so much more beautiful if it has a groundwork of green to show it off.

In planting any of the bulbs, avoid manure and be sure that they are well drained. If you wish to enrich the soil, add a handful of bonemeal to each square foot of ground, well mixed with the soil. Tulips are planted about five inches deep and as far apart, narcissus a much deeper. They all need a light mulch the first year, to keep them from being heaved by the frost. This may be removed in the spring as they come through the ground.

Plant the bulbs liberally; their joyful colors in the early spring are very welcome. Other annuals may be planted right over them later to ensure color throughout the summer.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain, Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pains of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton ©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

When mother and child part company for the first time on the opening day of school, that is the beginning for him of life's great tragedy.

For the first time he has to assume the responsibility of his own thinking and acting. No longer can he run to his mother with his troubles. No longer does he have that all-protecting arm and that ever-encouraging smile to help him over the rough places.

Henceforth he has been king of all he surveyed. There was a high court, his mother, but he knew full well that that court of last appeal was in sympathy with the administration. Whatever went wrong he was pretty sure to come out on top.

His mother and he understood one another perfectly. He went to sleep at night knowing that all would be well in the morning.

But now! On all sides of him are strange faces. They are indifferent if not exactly hostile. No one cares in the least about him or what he does. The busy teacher is concerned with other things. It is as plain as the nose on your face that he might just as well be Jimmy Green or Tommy Brown or any body on earth for all the difference it makes to her, or the school in general.

There is a queer sinking feeling in his stomach, such as a sailor probably has when he finds himself helpless on a raft in the middle of the ocean.

He is learning a lesson far more important than 2 plus 2 makes 4. He is having his first lesson in manhood. He is discovering that he is a person in the great order of things—that he has to live his own life and work out things for himself.

He is learning that if the boy next to him makes faces, or the boy across the aisle trips him, or that he cannot get a drink every time he is thirsty, or the pencil won't go the way he wants it—he has to make the best of it. No one is going to take his part, or feel sorry for him.

A mother isn't helping her son by sitting in the schoolroom for the five days of the first week.

She can help him more by talking over his little troubles when he comes home and encouraging

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SWAN INER

The man next door has given up street. When nobody else could see anything in the oldest house on the street which was for sale, the Joneses bought it, painted it, braced out all the beauty of its hundred-year-old architecture of Doric-columned porch, smoothed the vast lawn into a green carpet, made a fetching sun dial, little flagstone walks, and even built a rough stone outdoor fireplace under a big elm tree where outdoor suppers are prepared.

The Joneses always have a gang around—Helen Jones' college friends or a bunch of girls from the newspaper office where she worked before her marriage. Bill Jones is always bringing out 4 kang in that back yard morning, noon and night.

Helen Jones never makes a fuss about anything. If she doesn't have time to get a parcel before her garden party, she just doesn't. If supper isn't ready when the guests arrive they help tote out huge yellow bowls of potato salad and platters of cold ham to the garden table.

To be sure, Helen Jones doesn't do much porch-sitting. She says there are too many interesting people to see and talk with for that. She's afraid of being passed by by life if she just stays alone in her pretty garden. Not that there's any chance—she's too interesting a person. People would seek her out in her garden.

No, the real reason why the man's wife can't understand at all is because she herself long ago stopped "living up to capacity."

She just wouldn't "kill herself" Mrs. Jones for anything in the world. Any woman with four children who didn't even have a maid who would try to gad around and entertain people and do things like she does is just plain idiotic.

Now Mrs. Jones is one of these delightful people who more than live up to fullest capacity. The Joneses haven't a tenth the income of their neighbors, but they have more fun than anybody on the

Joe Porter, Noted Plainsman, Fights Woman's Suit For Half Of Fortune

Howard, Kansas.—Joe H. Porter, cattiman, capitalist and pioneer plainsman who was once the captive of the turbulent Indian Chief, Sitting Bull, is not worried over the prospect of losing half of his several millions to a woman claiming to be his common law wife.

So casual about the whole situation, he is, that he has not even filed an answer to the petition of Lena Mae Byers who claimed half of his fortune should be hers with the dissolution of the bonds of their common law marriage.

Porter acted pleasantly and unbothered when served with papers of the suit, now pending in the Elk County District Court, by Sheriff W. P. Brown. The papers were served on him at his ranch near Beaumont.

Legal Battle Waits.

But the legal battle has not yet begun. Perhaps that is the reason for the unassuming attitude taken by Porter. It is believed that the opening of the suit will be in the September term of court.

Neither has a statement from the Byers woman been obtainable regarding the suit.

In her petition she claims to have been the common law wife of Porter from September 1915 to November, 1918, a suicide.

Porter is a colorful character in the two counties. Elk and Butler, where he has built up a reputation as a shrewd cattle buyer. He was rated as comfortably rich even before the Carter Oil Company developed a pool on one of his farms and made him tremendously wealthy.

He became a financier after the discovery of the oil and was vice president of a finance and trust company in Wichita. In Wichita he purchased a home and extended his dealing in capital to Texas real estate and land development.

Life of Plainsman.

Porter has lived the rough rigorous life of the plainsman. Perhaps it is this which accounts for his rough dress, his frugal ways of living, and his rough speech. Many are the colloquial tales which surround this man's history, and the history of the porter ranch near Beaumont, which is called "shanty."

He has always shunned newspaper men. But one enterprising reporter was able to draw on his heartstrings to obtain a story of his life.

In that story he is quoted as saying that he is the son of a freighter on the Mississippi river and that he was born aboard his father's boat not far from New Orleans.

As soon as he was able at the age of six he ran away from home and bummed his way to Chicago, where he was employed in a restaurant for a time. Since his departure from home he has not seen or heard from any of his relatives.

In that restaurant he formed the acquaintance of a prominent cattleman, a Mr. Scot, who took him west into Colorado, Wyoming, Texas and Kansas.

Three years later at the age of 10 he was taken prisoner by the Sioux Indians in Nebraska. The Indians did not harm him. After a long sojourn over the Kansas and Nebraska plains he became the personal attendant of Sitting Bull.

Sent to Omaha.

When the old chief became sick, Porter attended him and won a unique place in the camp, so unique that when the chieftain believed he was dying he sent young Porter to Omaha, for fear that the boy would be killed when he, Sitting Bull, was dead.

His career began when he was yet in his teens as a range rider. He picked up a small stake and a string of cattle and began a prosperous career even in those hard times of the cattle business.

His activities were centered in Kansas. He purchased the Porter Ranch near Beaumont, always his favorite residence, and to this added other farms. Among the other farms, two yielded him immense profits from the productive pools of oil. At one time he was reported as owning 9,000 acres of land in Kansas alone.

His short residence in Wichita was climaxed by the death of his wife who gave a potion of alcohol and carbolic acid to their two grandchildren, killing them. She then committed suicide in the same manner because she said she "was tired of living."

VERMONT GOVERNOR IS HEAD OF COMMISSION TO AID RURAL LIFE

Montpelier, Vermont.—A thorough survey of environmental factors existing on the rural sections of the state will be conducted during the next three years under the direction of Henry C. Taylor, professor of agricultural economics of Northwestern University, Chicago.

The Vermont commission on Country Life, organized in Burlington in May with Governor John E. Weeks as chairman, and including several state departmental heads and 160 prominent Vermonters from all parts of the state, will have general supervision of the work.

The objects of the survey are, first, to acquire accurate information concerning rural conditions, and second, to discover remedies for disadvantageous conditions if any are found.

VIENNA ESTABLISHES PSYCHOLOGY SCHOOL AS FREUD MEMORIAL

Vienna.—A new Psychoanalytical Institute, a world center of this new science, has been established in Vienna. Through a municipal donation, the Vienna Psychoanalytical Association is able to build a magnificent home dedicated to modern Psychology and to its greatest master Professor Sigmund Freud, founder of the science of psychoanalysis.

The new institute will be built in the ninth district, near the famous Ringstrasse, and it will comprise four important departments. The first will be an educational establishment, where physicians, teachers and social workers will receive special instruction. Closely connected with the first one, a large clinic will be erected for the treatment of the sick as well as for the purposes of education and research.

A separate department has been assigned to the reception and treatment of poor patients, who will receive gratis treatment. The costs will be covered from the income of the "paying department" of the clinic.

The fourth will be devoted to children. This will be divided again into a clinical and advisory section, the latter being open to all parents who need counsel regarding neurotic or abnormal children.

The presidency of the new Institute was offered to Professor Freud, who however, refused, owing to old age and a severe malady. Therefore three of his most prominent followers Professor Petzl, Professor Schilde and Dr. Hiltzman will, probably share in the direction of the Institute.

The children's department will be placed in charge of the daughter of Professor Freud, Anna Freud who is a well-known expert in this field.

The establishment of the Institute has brought some joy and satisfaction into the life of the "grand old man" of psychology.

FASCIST HOLDS 'EM

A BIRD LINDY

Paris.—An Arctic tern has made a 4,000-mile flight across the Atlantic. The bird was banded when five days old at the Red Islands, Labrador. Three months later it was picked up near La Rochelle, France. The record was recently announced by the Biological Survey.

PUBLIC LAND IN U. S. VALUED AT 26 BILLIONS

Washington-The potential value of public lands remaining under the care of the General Land Office of the Interior Department is $26,000,000,000.

In the 116 years of the existence of the Land Office public lands to the extent of 1,820,000,000 acres have come under its care. The total land area of continental United States is about 3,920,000,000 acres. The Land Office, roughly has had charge of and has sold all the land north of the Ohio and West of the Mississippi river with the exception of Texas. In addition, it has disposed of much of the land of Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

500,000,000 Acres

There are still 500,000,000 acres of land, belonging to the public that have not so much as been surveyed. This land is equal in area to Texas, California, Montana, New Mexico and Arizona, the five largest states in the Union.

In the continental United States there are still 200,000,000 acres of land that have been surveyed but have not passed into private ownership. This constitutes an area greater than the State of Texas. There is an additional area of some 300,000 square miles, equal to that of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, that is in the national forest and therefore still belongs to the people.

Officials pointed out that the General Land Office is not merely the sales agent of the government where its lands are concerned, but is also its rental agent. In 1924 it was given authority by Congress to lease oil, gas, coal and other lands, and has done a thriving business ever since. It took in $67,000,000 in the first eight years of the operation of this law.

Lands Are Valuable

The popular view of much of the unappropriated lands of the West is that they are without value, but this is not the view of the Land Office. It points to the fact that, in early days, the prairie lands of Ohio were considered worthless since they grew no trees and that, instead of making homes on them settlers laboriously hewed out farms from the forest lands along the streams. But the prairie lands proved of value.

When Lieut. Pike for whom Pike's Peak was named, first began riding the plains he wrote in his diary that this region to the West was of no value to white men, but the possession was fortunate as it would provide a place to which the Indians could retreat. Here again was a mistake made in estimating the future value of seemingly worthless land.

The viewpoint of the General Land Office is that these areas still in public ownership may have many elements of potential value not at present appreciated.

A British newspaper is conducting a debate on the question of whether or not a man has a right to open his wife's letters. Seems to us more a question of courage.

BURGLARS TAKE FRENCH PRISON SAFE AND CASH

Paris-Prisoners in the State Penitentiary at Melun are appealing to the police to protect them from second story men. They claim that their belongings are no longer safe from the doing of these workers. The burglarizing of the prison office is cited as proof.

The office staff came to work one fine morning only to find that the 500 lb. safe was gone. Looking about, they were also quick to notice that the window iron bars had been filed away. From the window to the ground it is about 20 feet. They found a ladder still in place.

The local Sherlock Holmes were quick to diagnose the case. Somebody had stolen the prison safe with what is contained, some $37,000, mostly the savings of the prisoners.

The theory was correct. The safe was found later in the day about five miles from here. All the cash was gone. But the safe movers had left a little note behind: "Greetings to all Americans. Here's a good laugh." The public is having it, but not so the pals nor the authorities.

A full forty per cent. of the season's crop of sightseers were provincial French, according to the Prefecture of Police.

While Middle West accents and collegiate neckties seemed to predominate on the boulevards the official figures affirmed that the United States and Canada together furnished only 15 per cent. of the tourists. Spain was next, with a contributed twenty per cent.; Germany and England sent 10 per cent. each of their nationals, and the remaining five per cent came from Central Europe.

This survey was made from the certificates of domicile which are issued for every visitor who remains in Paris a night or a month.

There will be silence at the crossroads and very little speed. This is ordered by M. Jean Chippie, Prefect of Police, to accommodate drowsy citizens who complain they are unable to sleep because of the noise of automobile horns at street intersections in Paris.

Between 1 a. m. and 5 a. m. automobiles are now obliged to crawl at intersections, but the minimum speed motorists can keep their horns silent.

If any chauffeur begins honking during the specified hours he will be arrested for speeding.

CITY PAYS TRIBUTE TO MISS MARLOWE'S FATHER

Funeral of Northampton Fire Chief, Impressive, Causes Close of Business.

Miss Anna Marlowe, teacher in the Washington school on Cedar street, did not report for the opening of the session on Wednesday. Her absence was due to the death of her father, Fire Chief John Marlowe of Northampton, Mass. He was buried yesterday in that city and business was generally suspended during the funeral, at which the city, fire and police departments and many fraternal organizations were represented.

The funeral cortege was one of the largest ever held in Northampton. The automobile that had so often taken the fire chief to work was draped with black and was driven by the dead chief's regular driver. In the chiefs seat lay his white fire helmet. The church where the funeral mass was celebrated, was crowded and many knelt outside on the lawn during the celebration of the mass.

Miss Marlowe will take up her duties as a teacher next week and with her sister, also a school teacher, will move to Manchester and make it their home.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE (385) Our Presidents

Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Braucher

Here's a new one for students of language-"Cosmology."

All that is necessary is to learn sixty rules of grammar and a vocabulary of 600 words. Once the student has mastered these complexities he can converse with the only other person who speaks "Cosmology," Mr. Samuel Horwicz, student, who invented it.

Horwicz asserts his language is flexible and colorful enough for all purposes. He says he has already translated the Genesis, some works of Schiller and modern commercial letters, but he is the only person who can prove that.

POLICE CAPTAIN'S HOME BOMBED BY GANGSTERS

No One Injured But Home Wrecked-Had Been Cleaning Up Vice in District.

Chicago Sept. 7.-Peaceful Chicago was shaken early today by a bomb which wrecked the home of Police Captain Luke Garrick. The captain and members of his family escaped injury.

The vengeful hand of west side gamblers and vice lords was seen in the blast, which rocked the entire Rogers Park district, and caused thousands of dollars damage to the Garrick home.

Capt. Garrick recently was transferred from a north side to a west side station by Acting Commissioner William Russell.

In his new post he has been waging an active warfare against gambling and vice.

West should cover for the same reason as that given in preceding illustration.

John Quincy Adams

Andrew Jackson

At the end of Adams' term the Constitution had been in operation for forty years. During that time Virginians had been presidents for thirty-two years and Massachusetts men eight. Thus at the election of 1826, Adams, a candidate for re-election, was badly defeated by Andrew Jackson, hero of New Orleans. Jackson, native of North Carolina, had made his home in Tennessee.

(To Be Continued)

Adams had great faith in the growth of the country and he wanted to annex Texas, Cuba and Canada and extend the United States to the Pacific.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Today the circus moves again. The Tinymites are busy when it's time to pack the circus cars, 'cause there is so much to do. At last they finished for the day, and Scouty cried, 'We're on our way Tomorrow when we wake up we'll be in a town that's new.' So, as the train chug-chugged along, the little band broke into song. 'We love this circus life,' they sang. 'It's thrilling as can be. Each day we please a circus crowd. Of course that makes us rather proud, 'cause we're the ones who do the things that they all like to see.' 'Hey, go to bed,' somebody cried. And then to sleep the Tinies tried. But they were all so restless that they lay there half the night just talking low, and giggling, too. And then the next thing that they knew, they all dropped off in slumberland, and woke at broad daylight. 'Twas hard to work beneath the sun, and Scouty shouted, 'Hey, don't run while we are helping fix things up. Just take it easy now. 'Tis best to do just as we please.' And so they worked away at ease. The circus tents, in spite of this, were soon put up somehow. The trainer then heard Carpy cry, 'There is one trick I'd like to try.' 'What is it?' said the trainer. 'You can do it, if you like.' 'Just through a hoop,' wee Carpy said. 'And I won't land on my head, 'cause I'm a clever tyke.' So when the big tent show began, into a ring brave Carpy ran. He hopped upon a monstrous dog, while someone held a hoop. The dog raced madly round the track, while Carpy stood upon his back. And then he jumped right through the hoop, and did a loop-the-loop.

ABOUT TOWN

The first regular meeting of John Mather chapter, Order of DeMolay has been called for Monday evening. The boys are asked to meet at seven o'clock sharply as there is considerable business to be transacted. Rehearsals for the second degree will be held and all the officers are urged to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Trouton of Oakland street are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Karl Keller in North Adams, Mass.

Lewis H. Sipe, treasurer of The Home Bank and Trust accompanied by Mrs. Sipe left early yesterday on a two weeks' automobile trip to Williamsport, Pa.

The Manchester City club held its regular monthly meeting last night. A committee was named to prepare a float for the Armistice Day parade, and another group was named to arrange a dinner and entertainment in the club rooms within a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Simpson, Jack Chartier and his son Clifford, attended the Wallace-Kaufman scrap in New Haven last night.

Representatives of three large insurance companies visited the Oakland street railroad crossing yesterday and spent considerable time watching traffic there. They waited to see how two different express trains approached the crossing.

NEW BURGLAR ALARM

Outside Siren and Police Headquarters System Now Being Installed.

A burglar alarm system with a connection at the Manchester police station, is being installed, and nearing completion at the Home Bank and Trust Company. Outside of the building has been placed a siren that will sound in case of trouble and there has been installed at the police station a signal box with a gong connected that will also sound in case the alarm is sprung. The siren is of sufficient volume to be heard above traffic noises, day or night. When the street is quiet it could be heard for half a mile.

Connections are being made at various points in the bank, from any one of which the alarm would be sounded. When this system is connected up both Manchester banking houses will have connections with the Manchester police station. The Manchester Trust Company and the Savings Bank of Manchester made such connections when the police signal was installed and tests are made often to see that they are in working order.

TOMORROW Is Your Last Chance To JOIN THE 1928 FUR COAT CLUB

MR. PAUL HERRMANN,
Our New York Fur Expert, is here until Tomorrow Night.

Does Price Interest You?

Of course, it does. It interests everybody. There is no legitimate concern in the country, quality considered, that can sell you a fur coat, whether it is one hundred or one thousand dollars, at any better price than we can. We are associated with one of the best buying organizations in New York City. Stores doing a business of over two hundred million dollars a year. If anybody buys their furs at the right prices, we do. You may rest assured that our prices are the lowest that dependable merchandise can be legitimately sold at.

Does Confidence Interest You

Mr. Hale started business here in 1873. For over thirty years The J. W. Hale Company has been on the corner of Oak street. We have developed the largest retail business in town. More than anything we cherish the confidence of our customers. We have built our business up on that confidence. Isn't it worth while buying your fur coat from a concern that has been here for over a quarter of a century and whose reliability has never been questioned?

What Is The Fur Coat Club?

It is an opportunity to purchase a fur coat at ten per cent better than our regular cash prices and pay as little as ten dollars down and the balance in ten equal payments. This is the usual August inducement to purchase early and the club was extended until tomorrow night, September 8th, at which time it positively closes.
