

FOLEY DEFEAT AS CONSTABLE A BIG SURPRISE

Sweet Loses in Race But Trims Arch-Rival by Four Votes; Veitch Overwhelms Cervini, 6 to 1.

The outstanding surprise in the Republican primary here yesterday was the defeat for constable of James W. Foley, who not only lost out for the nomination, but was four votes behind Charles A. Sweet, who at the outset was not considered a strong contender. The nomination was lost to Foley by fourteen votes and he was four votes behind Charles A. Sweet. Foley polled 363 votes and Sweet 367. William Shields who was the next lowest, but was nominated, polled 375 votes. Fred Krahe, also a candidate for constable polled 212 votes.

George M. Bidwell, who was not registered in the Republican primary until the last enrollment, was the high man with 267. He is a son of Homer Bidwell of Union street and is well known in athletic circles as a wrestler. His application for a place on the Manchester police force, made some time ago, was turned down by the police commission, but with the election on October 1 he will become both a criminal and civil officer, or an officer with more power than is given to a member of the Manchester police department. The other successful candidates for the office were Gerald Risley, Frank Edmunds and, as has been stated, William Shields.

Veitch Wins
Robert N. Veitch by a vote of 702 won over Frank Cervini, for Republican registrar. Cervini polled 123. Veitch won almost 6 to 1. The vote that was cast was light, only 330 Republican and 37 Democratic votes being cast.

The voting during the day was exceptionally light and it was not until after 5 o'clock that there was anything like a heavy vote, but this was of short duration and the last hour found but a small number voting.

Vote On Representatives

Because of the position in which the candidates for representatives, were placed on the voting machine the number that voted on these offices and the office of auditor was exceptionally small, but larger than it was expected would be the case. There are only thirty positions that can be used in voting for candidates on the machine and all of

150 DAYS, BROKEN ARM FOR LEWIE

Four Counts Net Long Term for Drunken Spree; Bone Breaks in Roughhouse.

If there is any doubt in the mind of William Lewie as to just how Judge Raymond A. Johnson feels concerning his actions and the kind of a place he has made his home, it is because of lack of understanding of plain English language. Never before has such an address been delivered to a person in the town court as Judge Johnson this morning made for the benefit of Lewie, who was charged with intoxication, breach of the peace, assault and injury to public property, found guilty and sentenced to jail for 150 days, together with court costs.

Lewie, who has been before the court on many occasions, each time brought in as a result of trouble with his wife, generally after beating her, was arrested again yesterday after his wife had gone to the police station and showed a battered face, the result, she said, of a beating administered by Lewie.

She appeared against him this morning and Officers Wirtalla and Roberts, who assisted in the arrest, and Chief of Police Samuel G. Gordon, who told about Lewie's actions and condition at the police station, also were witnesses against him, each testifying that he was drunk. Chief Gordon told of his wrecking the cell room.

The trouble started, it appeared, when Lewie went home at noon yesterday, drunk, so his wife testified. Knowing that he was likely to cause trouble when he was in that condition she tried to pacify him by telephoning the assistant prosecuting attorney, with whom Lewie thought he had business. The answer was to his satisfaction and Lewie became quiet. Mrs. Lewie went down the street, she said, intending to telephone for the police and Lewie followed her. He overtook her near the sand pit, which is located west of his store, and threw something at her.

Origin Of Life Known, Says English Savant

Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 12.—That science is upon the eve of discovering the origin of life and that it may soon be possible to create life synthetically in the laboratory, was the sensational statement made before the British Association for the Advancement of Science by Prof. F. G. Donnan, of London.

These statements, made at last night's session, aroused widespread discussion today among the scientists gathered here.

Prof. Donnan said that the great physician, chemist and biologist, A. V. Hill, has been conducting experiments along this line and will soon have a most amazing revelation to make.

It is not claimed that scientists can create human life, but it is believed that the day is near at hand when the lower forms of life may be brought about by Synthetic means in the scientist's laboratory.

Dr. Hill already has found that oxygen is not only necessary as fuel for the lungs and body but also as the means of preventing the cellular cells from disintegrating. Oxygen is to the human body what gasoline is to the motor car, it was explained.

GOVERNMENT IS PLANNING SURVEY OF DISTRIBUTION

Billions Being Wasted Yearly by Manufacturers and Business Men, It Is Re- ported.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Backed by national business interests the Commerce Department today was preparing to ask the Bureau of the Budget for a sufficient appropriation to carry on a national distribution census in connection with the general enumeration of population and manufacturers in 1930.

Probably one of the most essential requirements of business, an accurate knowledge of the volume of distribution of America's vast industrial and business plant, would contribute another step in the government's campaign to drive depressions and panics into the economic scrap heap.

Waste Eliminated.

Most of the big wastes have been eliminated from the production machine with manufacturers applying scientific principles to their preparations, but there are still vast potential savings in the excessively extravagant distributing system.

Distributors have not as a rule taken advantage of the modern scientific technique which has permitted manufacturers materially to reduce the cost of production. As a result while there are decreases in production overhead, the entire advantage has not reached the consumer because of wasteful distribution.

Choice of Convention To- day—Establishes Record

Manchester Man Unanimous

State Senator Robert J. Smith was unanimously nominated as the Republican candidate for Senator from the Fourth district at a convention held in the Hotel Bond, Hartford, today. Senator Smith was unopposed for the nomination today. This establishes a record, it being the first time in the state that a Senator has been named for the General Assembly three terms in succession without opposition.

Nominated today by the Republican Senator Smith is virtually assured of election since the Fourth district is overwhelmingly Republican. Senator Smith is virtually sides Manchester, South Windsor, Glastonbury, Marlborough, East Hartford, Wethersfield, Newington and Rocky Hill. Granted he is

NO INFORMATION

Since there is no accurate information on the value of commodities distributed annually, Commerce Department officials said that an estimate of losses in retail and whole sale trade is impossible. However, this waste is believed to run into many millions and possibly to exceed a billion dollars each year.

The distribution census, if undertaken, would reveal wastes, the first step necessary to their elimination. Congress must make the appropriation when acting on the 1931 budget, which will be presented in December.

Preliminary steps in the study of distribution have been started by the department. John Hager, an expert wrote the southern trade survey, has launched a series of conferences with national distributors in New York. Operations of distributors in other big centers will be investigated in order to lay the ground work for a national relief campaign.

MORE VALUABLE STOCK STOLEN IN WALL STREET

Messenger Hands Stranger Bonds Worth $15,500; $179,900 Stolen Yesterday.

New York, Sept. 12.—Detectives were confronted today by the second disappearance of valuable stocks from the hands of Wall Street messengers since the week began.

Shortly after the New York Stock Exchange reported the theft or displacement of $179,000 worth of Montgomery Ward shares, the firm of Clark Dodge and Company, informed police that 100 shares of Anaconda mining stock, worth $15,500 had vanished.

The missing shares were in care of a messenger, Lee Hawkins, 21, who was to deliver them to Campbell, Starring and Company. He had other deliveries to make to Clark Dodge and Company in the same building.

Ascending in the elevator to the Hutton floor, Hawkins said, he was accosted by a young man who glanced at his leather cases and inquired: "Get any deliveries for Campbell Starring?"

Assuming the stranger to be an employee of the firm, Hawkins replied that he had.

"I'll take them in for you," the man said, and Hawkins handed them over continuing on his other mission to Huttons.

re-elected Senator Smith will enter his sixth term as a member of the Connecticut General Assembly.

Most Valuable Service.

Senator Smith's re-nomination and re-election are of great value to Manchester this year in particular because of the fact that Manchester will be asking the General Assembly for a new charter during the coming session. Senator Smith has served on the cities and boroughs committee for five terms and for the past two terms has been Senate chairman of that committee. This is the committee which will handle the Manchester charter, so Senator Smith's influence will be invaluable.

His Record.

"Bob" Smith's record in politics is an enviable one. This is his fourteenth year as an office holder. In 1919 he was elected as a representative and he served on that board for nine years. For seven years he was on the Ninth district school board. This is his fifth year as Manchester's Board of Selectmen.

HOOVER TALKS WITH COOLIDGE ON CAMPAIGN

President to Make Several Speeches to Help Nomi- nee—Candidate Working On His Speech on Labor.

Washington, Sept. 12.—A conference with President Coolidge was to feature Herbert Hoover's program today, although the Republican nominee hoped to put the final touches on his labor speech to be delivered at Newark next Monday night.

The nominee planned to greet the President and to discuss campaign matters with him at the White House during the forenoon. It may be they will reach a decision on the part the President will play in helping to elect Hoover to the presidency. The President was said to have offered to make a speech or two in behalf of the nominee but no definite decision was reached.

To Give Up Fishing.

It appeared likely that Hoover will have to forego a contemplated fishing trip down Chesapeake bay, owing to pressure of campaign duties. He twice has postponed the trip and unless he can get away for a few days at the end of this week, he probably will get no fishing until after the election.

Hoover has given some attention to aviation and veteran legislation in the last few days, in addition to working on the Newark speech. He told newspapermen that congratulatory letters were in order for the winners of the Air Derby in the west and he pointed to the race as indicating the "safety and reliability" of air travel under present conditions.

The astonishing progress of aviation in the last three years fully justifies the policy by which we undertook to stimulate the private development of aviation in the United States in-

GERMANY SPENDS MUCH ON BEER AND SMOKES

Berlin, Sept. 12.—Germany spends $1,500,000,000 a year for beer and tobacco, according to statistics revealed today.

That is two and one-half times as much as the annual Dawes Plan repayment bill.

And the drink bill is going up every year.

Statistics show that in 1927, Germany spent $800,000,000 for beer alone. This was $50,000,000 more than in the previous year.

The German tobacco bill in 1927 amounted to nearly $700,000,000, an increase of 4.3 per cent over the previous year.

To this must be added several hundred million dollars spent for wines, champagne and liquor.

MILK MAN FOILS HOLD UP ATTEMPT

Seriously Wounds One of Pair of Colored Men Who Try to Rob Him.

New London, Sept. 12.—Police of three states were today asked to look for two colored men, one probably wounded, who attempted to hold up George Goodrich, driver of a milk wagon, north of the city early this morning, and who were driven off by a well-directed revolver fire by Goodrich. One of the hold-up men is believed to be badly wounded.

Goodrich dashed into police station soon after 5 a. m. and told his story. Two colored men with blue handkerchiefs across their mouths stopped Goodrich. One, holding a revolver, jumped on the running board of the milk truck and shouted "put them up."

Goodrich suspecting such action, was ready. He knocked up the colored man's gun and fired point blank at his feet. The man fell in to the road with a cry. The second colored man sprang forward as Goodrich sped down the road in his machine, and fired one shot. Goodrich leaned out and answered with a shot of his own.

Police Search.

The exchange of shots failed to reach a mark on either side.

Police clambered aboard Goodrich's machine and sped back to the scene of the hold-up. A large pool of blood was at the site, and there was a handkerchief of the sort the men had worn. No traces were found of the men themselves.

Further investigation indicated the men had used a touring car and that the wounded man had been helped into it by his companion who drove off.

Within a few minutes word of the attempt had been sent into Rhode Island, and Massachusetts, and throughout Connecticut. The wounded man is expected to be located in a short time because of the serious nature of his wounds.

The Manchester police were notified by the Willimantic police this morning to be on the lookout for a man who might seek medical attention as a result of wounds received in an attempted holdup near New London this morning.

Knowing the medical assistance would be asked for the injured man, the Manchester police were asked, with other police of the state, to make a check on the doctors and the hospital. They did, but they were unable to find any doctor that had had such a case here.

TELEVISION'S FIRST DRAMA

The first broadcasting of television drama is pictured here. The drama was "The Queen's Messenger," by J. Hartley Manners, and it went through the air from WGY. In the top photo are two members of the cast before the three "cameras" which were used. Below is Iselta Jewel, the leading woman. The "cameras" picked up the action as microphones transmitted the sound.

First Sound, Sight Radio Is Shown In Schenectady

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The newest scientific development in the world of science, the first performance of a radio television drama was successfully accomplished by station WGY. The faces and some of the movements of the actors were transmitted by television on one wave length while the words were broadcast on another wave length.

The small television images and the spoken lines were reproduced on two receiving sets at a point three miles from the sending station.

Thus was created an acoustical-visual picture of the one-act drama, "The Queen's Messenger."

Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, consulting engineer of the General Electric Company, was given credit for the development of the simplified and portable television transmitter that made possible the combination of sight and sound in the radio drama.

Those who viewed the picture were agreed that the demonstration was impressive although the pictures jumped and flickered. It may, however, they believed, be the forerunner of the "radio movie."

BOARD TO DISCUSS FATAL CROSSING

Selectmen Will Face Problem of Abolishing Oakland St. Menace Tonight.

Manchester's Board of Selectmen at its regular meeting at eight tonight, will face the question of abolishing the menace of the Oakland street grade railroad crossing.

The public safety committee, of which Thomas J. Rogers is chairman, and William W. Robertson is the other member, will put the matter before the board. It is understood that a group of north side citizens will formally ask the Selectmen to consider taking definite action toward preventing any further fatalities at the spot.

All of the Selectmen are of the opinion that the question warrants immediate action, but there is some doubt as to the authority of the local board. The matter has been placed before officials of the New Haven road, and it is understood that the railway will offer to place gates at the crossing.

The Selectmen have carefully weighed suggestions of townspeople especially one that the crossing be closed by a fence and then put before the next town meeting. Since Oakland street is a public highway the Selectmen say they have no authority to close it without action by a town meeting.

CHENEYS PLANNING OVERTIME SCHEDULE

Boom in Cravats is Having An Effect on Other Mill Departments.

The sales boom on Cheney cravats that necessitated the installation of the conveyor system in the cravat mill has also resulted, in Cheney Brother's planning overtime work in the following departments: cravats, pricing, and broad goods weaving. The cravat department will enlarge the number of employees engaged in the manufacturing. The sales boom that has boosted the cravat department has apparently taken effect on the other departments as well, for the Cheney Brother salesmen from October to April will take orders for 2 million 800 thousand yards of print goods, and the velvet department will continue on its present day and night shifts for several months to come. A year ago Cheney Brothers quit the ribbon business and during the past week the ribbon looms that had been held in storage were taken out and smashed.

SMITH LOOKS TOWARD WEST, CHEERFULLY

Reports From Western Politicians Hearten Eastern Leaders—How They Figure Out the Situation.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The claim so persistently advanced by Republican spokesmen at Washington that Governor Smith will not carry a single western agricultural state in November is receiving scant and scornful attention from the Democratic nominee and his advisers here.

For one thing, they don't believe it. For another they are now up to their eyes in plans for a spectacular assault on this same citadel of claimed Republican strength. And, whether it is real, assumed, or merely hopeful there is an atmosphere of considerable confidence discernable about Albany headquarters.

Western Visitors

Some of this confidence undoubtedly has been engendered by prominent western Democrats like ex-Senator Gilbert Hitchcock dropping into Albany for personal conferences with the governor. With-

LOWMAN IS NAMED IN SMITH ATTACK

Appears as Reference for Rev. O. R. Miller Who Raps Candidate's Record.

New York, Sept. 12.—Declaring they had definitely connected a member of the Republican administration with the wide-spread attack upon Governor Alfred E. Smith's legislative record on moral questions, Democratic national campaign managers today brought Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, in the acrimonious verbal warfare begun early in the campaign by William Allen White.

Lowman's name appeared among a list of twenty references mentioned by the Rev. O. R. Miller of Albany, in his latest pamphlet relative to Smith's votes in the New York Assembly between 1904 and 1914. The bulletin itself, dealing almost entirely with Smith's votes on bills affecting the saloon, was described by Miller as his answer to Smith's attack upon him in his reply to the William Allen White broadcast. White's first statement was in part based upon Miller's bulletins, circulated by the New York Civic League.

His References

The enclosed card of references for Miller declared that "anyone wishing to make inquiry concerning the Rev. Mr. Miller's character and standing" should correspond "with any one of the following persons, all of whom know Mr. Miller personally, some for many years."

Among the list of names which followed, in which Lowman's name was the third, were those of Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the W. C. T. U.; Dr. Clarence True Wilson, superintendent of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals; Federal Judge Frank Cooper, of Albany and Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Governor Smith stated emphatically in his reply to White, whose charges he characterized as "cowardly," that he would not take cognizance of further attacks of this nature. In view of the recent denunciation, however, by Chairman Work of the Republican national committee, of the campaign of personal vilification against Governor Smith, the Democratic managers inquire if Lowman is willing to permit the use of his name on the publications of the New York Civic League.

Charles W. Clark, New York financier and son of the late Senator William A. Clark of Montana, today declared for Governor Smith on the prohibition issue. Himself a holder of extensive mining properties, and a Republican for thirty years, Clark declared that only through the election of Smith can the nation rid itself of "the rioty and seditious and crime" incident to prohibition.

MAINE'S REPUBLICANS WIN ALL ALONG LINE

Complete Returns Show That State Senate is Completely Republican.

Portland, Me., Sept. 12.—Complete returns today from the state election showed the overwhelming Republican victory unbroken all along the line.

William Tudor Gardiner, Republican candidate for governor, received 151,466 votes, the largest ever recorded for a gubernatorial candidate. His opponent, E. C. Moran, Jr., Democrat, received 66,553 votes.

In the United States Senatorial contest, Senator Frederick Hale, Republican, received 144,266 votes and Robert E. Holmes, Democrat, received 84,222 votes.

All four Republican national representative candidates were victorious. The State Senate is completely Republican and the Republicans won a majority in the lower branch of the State Legislature.

ICE BOX BANDITS JURY FILLING UP May Be Completed Late Today—Eleven Jurors Picked at Recess.

Willimantic, Sept. 12.—How Irving Nelson, the young state policeman, went down to death under a rain of revolver shots at Pomfret last April as he was trying to halt a stolen automobile as it careened through the village, was to be described to jurors today as the trial of two Worcester youths for murder swung under way in the City Hall here. When Judge E. M. Yeomans, of the Superior Court, called the court into session this morning nine jurors had been secured and attorneys on both sides believed that the jury would be completed without much trouble before night.

Everett Kimball, a Scotland farmer, was the first juror chosen yesterday, and so became the prospective foreman of the jury. Other jurors chosen yesterday are: George N. Perry, farmer, Scotland; Nelson A. Bennett, retired contractor, Sterling; John C. Huntington, farmer, Sterling; L. Dexter Crawford, silk mill agent, Willimantic; Richard Burchnell, farmer, Hampton; Ellsworth C. Babson, mill overseer, Brooklyn; Alexander M. Bassett, farmer, Ashford; Silas W. Wheelock, manufacturer, Putnam.

Tenth Juror
Twenty-five more talesmen appeared in the court room today to be sworn in. When Judge Yeomans ordered a recess at noon one more juror, No. 10 had been chosen. He is John Pringle, machinist and farmer of Killingly. At noon the defense had exhausted 28 challenges, the state 14. Of the first hundred talesmen six were excused before reporting. By the time 9 jurors had been selected only two of the original panel were left. The next group of twenty-five will be gone through this afternoon, and a new group may be selected during the evening.

Howard F. Goodwin, of Ashford, a laborer, was chosen as juror No. 11 just before court recessed at 1 this afternoon. At that time Judge Yeomans had fifteen talesmen left on his list. The state had 17 challenges gone while the defense exhausted 37. When Juror Goodwin was put into the box 102 talesmen had been examined of 125 summoned. The state had excused forty.

Mrs. Nellie Hayes of 11 Vine street was the guest of honor at a surprise party given last night at the home of her neighbor, Mrs. Walter Lewis. Mrs. Hayes was called to Mrs. Lewis's under the pretext of a telephone call. When she arrived there she was much surprised to find a number of the members of the Ladies Guild of St. James's church as well as other friends.

Mrs. Hayes in a fall last winter fractured her shoulder and she has been unable to resume her work at the Cheney mills since her injury. She is about to leave Manchester where she has resided for many years to make her home with cousins in Brooklyn. Her friends here who planned the friendly party contributed to a purse of $50 in gold as a parting gift, together with their good wishes.

ABOUT TOWN

The Boy Scouts of Troop 5 of the Swedish Lutheran church will meet tonight at 7 p. m. for the first time this fall. All members are expected to be present.

The cornice is being placed on the two story brick building being erected by Richards and Anderson and work is also being done on the roof of both buildings, which is bringing the exterior of the building to a finish.

The bad condition which has existed on Hemlock street since the installing of new gutters is being improved by work that is being done on that street this week by the town's outside force.

Raymond R. Bowers, of North Elm street, arrived home this afternoon on an extended European trip. Mr. Bowers passed his state bar examinations before making the trip and intends to practice law here in the office of his father, the late Judge Herbert O. Bowers.

OBITUARY DEATHS

Henry Nicklen
Word has been received here of the death of Henry Nicklen, formerly of Manchester. In Pasadena, Cal., Monday afternoon. He was 72 years old and when in Manchester was a prominent member of the Salvation Army Corps. Besides his wife, he leaves one daughter, Mrs. Harry Barber of Pasadena and one son, Leonard, of 69 Oak street this town.

missile missed its mark and she continued to a house and was telephoning when he entered, learned that she was calling the police station and struck her on the mouth. She showed a badly puffed pair of lips as proof.

150 Days in Jail.
It was when he tried to convince the court that he was justified in his acts that Judge Johnson told him that the story was too well known and that the people of Manchester had become sick and tired of the conditions that had been existing at his place on Charter Oak street. The fact that he and his wife might be living together was something that they might have a right to do, but there was an opportunity within his power to separate them for a time, at least, and he was going to do so. There was nothing that Lewie could say, although he tried to talk to the court and reason that he should be given a chance but he was found guilty on all charges. A sentence of thirty days was imposed for intoxication, a like sentence for breach of peace; for assault a thirty days sentence was also imposed and on the charge of destruction of public property a sentence of thirty days was given. The total 150 days and together with this there are the costs of the court to be added.

Lewie asked to be given an opportunity to straighten out business matters before going to jail, but this was denied him. In addition to the sentence imposed on Lewie Judge Johnson also ordered Probation Officer Elliott to take action at once towards removing the children from the home.

No time was lost in following this order and at 10:30 the two children were taken from the house on Charter Oak street and were committed to the Hartford County Temporary Home at Warehouse Point.

BUSINESS SUSPENDED
The Manchester Tool Company, with a place of business on Adams street, occupying part of the remaining buildings of the Peter Adams Paper Company, has been closed by an attachment placed by the Manchester Trust Company to secure a claim. The tools and machinery were sold on July 8, by the Manchester Tool Company to Frank Brassier by Conrad H. Beupre, president and treasurer of the company. The bill of sale set up a detailed statement of the articles sold, sixty-two different items being mentioned. The past week the place was attached for $1,500 and since then the plant has been closed. It was run by electric power and the power has been discontinued by the Manchester Electric Company.

Vote in Maine
The magnitude of the Republican victory in Maine on Monday, greater even than the Republicans had dreamed of, did not make the slightest dent in the confidence around Smith headquarters.

"I never was optimistic enough to think of Maine going other than Republican," said the governor, "Grover Cleveland never did it, did he? No nor any other Democratic candidate for president, save Wilson in 1912, and that was because of the Bull Moose split."

Before leaving for the west on Sunday, Governor Smith said in a conference with most of the Democratic leaders of the state concerning the state ticket to be nominated at the Rochester convention on October 1. This is the only engagement of any consequence that was on his calendar for the visit of the state leaders.

MANY GIFTS PRESENTED TO PORTER ST. SCHOOL

Interested friends and organizations have been making gifts to the Third District's new school on Porter street since the opening of the term. Already they have received a cyclopaedia, pictures and a flag for the assembly hall. This last gift was presented to the school yesterday by Mary C. Keeney Tent, Daughters of Union War Veterans. Mrs. Muriel Davis, patriotic instructor, in behalf of the tent, gave the flag, a large one of Cheney silk mounted on a staff to the principal, Miss Frances S. Spillane. No formal ceremony accompanied the presentation.

out exception, these visitors have assured Governor Smith that the farm revolt against the Republican administration is not abating, that it is real, and that if he takes a "real progressive message" into the great belt every state becomes a battle ground irrespective of normal Republican tinges.

Interesting Figures
This analysis reveals some interesting figures on the eight states which Governor Smith will visit during the next two weeks—Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

It shows that of the eight states, President Coolidge was defeated in two, despite the Republican landslide. Davis carried Oklahoma by 30,000 and LaFollette carried Wisconsin by 23 electoral votes. In three others, Nebraska, Montana, and North Dakota, President Coolidge was a minority winner; that is the combined Davis-LaFollette total which the Smith administration anti-Republican and anti-administration, exceeded that of Coolidge, although the President carried the electoral vote. In Nebraska, the anti-Coolidge margin was 25,000; in North Dakota, 8,000; in Montana, 22,000. This trio of states has 17 electoral votes.

The Argument
Thus, of the eight states upon which Governor Smith will travel, his guns next week, only two, Minnesota and Kansas, gave an actual ticket in 1924. In Minnesota, the margin was only 25,000 out of a total vote of $15,000. In Kansas alone was the Coolidge victory impressive. There it was 173,000 in a total vote of $60,000.

LOCAL BOYS MISS DEATH IN STORM Caught on Sound With Wrecked Sloop—Rescue Boat Overtaken.

Tossed about at the mercy of the angry waters when their 30-foot sailing sloop "Sunshine" was put out of commission by a severe thunderstorm in the middle of Long Island Sound, Clifford Gustafson of Sackmattack street and Oliver Goldberg of School street, well known local athletes, had a narrow escape from drowning on their way to Sayville, L. I., last week, it became known today.

Sloop Helpless
Starting out from White Sands beach under favorable weather conditions, the youths made steady progress toward the Long Island shore. When about half way across, they suddenly encountered a severe thunder storm. The sail was partly lowered, but a gust of wind snapped off the top of the mast. Then, to make matters worse, a large wave washed over the board putting the unprotected outboard motor out of commission.

Cling to Boat.
The attempted rescue was being watched from aboard the freighter, and when the rowboat capsized, another attempt was made to get into position to pick up the drifting men who were clinging to the overturned boat which was attached to the sloop. The water was so rough that it was nearly an hour before the party was finally rescued. Meanwhile the crew had all overboard a suitcase of clothes which Gustafson had aboard the sloop.

these were used up and there were three other spaces required. It was necessary to use the space that is left in case a "yes" or "no" vote is being recorded and in this way two spaces have to be given up to one name. Many overlooked the names and less than one-third of the total number voting took occasion to vote for these offices in the Republican primary and only one-sixth in the Democratic primary.

It demonstrated that the top positions on the voting machines are poor places to have names placed and in a close election it would have been anything but satisfactory to the candidates. It so happened that in the list of officers to be voted upon, there were no contests and one vote would have nominated any of them, but the vote as recorded was anything but a representative vote in consideration of the importance of the offices voted upon.

TRIAL OF WATKINS STARTS ON TUESDAY Weiss Murder Case Also Comes Up at Fall Term of Superior Court.

Hartford, Sept. 12.—The limelight will flood the Superior Court when its criminal side starts the annual fall term next Tuesday, for the once elusive Rogers Watkins is to be tried then with other members of his family and the public will hear all over again the spectacular doings of the one-time broker and his weird flight just one step ahead of the law that lasted many weeks.

Beside the Watkins case the Eerie Weiss affair sent up from New Britain is docketed for the coming term. Sam Weiss, a factory worker, is in jail charged with having caused the deaths of three fellow townsmen by the medium of cyanide of potassium put in the mid malt brew that Teutonic people find stimulating. The state holds Sam used poison to get his brother John out of the way so Sam could have John's wife. The death of two other men, one John's brother-in-law, were merely incidental to the plot. John's wife, Catherine, locked up in jail here, is expected to be a chief state witness.

GOV. SMITH ANSWERS
C. A. BARNES' LETTER
Albany, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Gov. Smith wrote a succinct letter today to Clarence A. New York, Sept. 12.—Julian Yalkowick, 53 years old, a tailor, of 37 Reelid street, New Haven, Conn., who has spent more than half of the past twenty-seven years in prison for various swindles, was in the line-up in police headquarters this morning.

He was arrested yesterday at the gates of Wethersfield prison, Connecticut, when he was released after serving a six year term and brought to this city to face an indictment for grand larceny in connection with a money machine swindle he perpetrated eight years ago.

Yalkowick, or Klicak as he calls himself, was indicted May 21, 1920 for swindling Martin Koleski out of $900 through the "money machine" game. He jumped his $3,000 bail after he had been indicted and fled to Connecticut where a short time later he was convicted of obtaining $2,000 in a similar swindle and was sent to Wethersfield prison for six years.

BETHOVEN CLUB READY FOR SEASON Organizes With Forty Mem- bers of Musical Organization Present—Their Plans.

With forty members present at the first rehearsal, the Beethoven Glee Club of the Swedish Lutheran church met Monday evening to resume its work for the coming season. Several new members were tried out and accepted on a three months trial.

The Beethoven Glee Club will journey on a week-end tour from October 19 to the 21st and will be heard in cities and towns neighboring Boston and Providence.

The club is becoming more widely known throughout the eastern states from its former tours and radio concerts and the manager, Evald Matson finds it an easy matter to book the club for new or return engagements on the coming tour.

REPORT MACKAYS ARE RECONCILED

Death of Millionaire's Mother Caused Him to Make Up With Daughter.

New York, Sept. 12.—Reports that Clarence H. Mackay, the Post-Office Telegraph millionaire, and his daughter, Ellin Mackay Berlin, had become reconciled were in circulation today but no confirmation could be obtained.

A rumor that a dramatic reconciliation took place beside the bier of Mackay's dead mother, Mrs. Louise Hungate Mackay, was spiked as an unconfirmed story. The report had it that the proud, austere Mackay had impressed a kiss of forgiveness upon his estranged daughter's lips at the bier of his mother.

Funeral Tomorrow Tomorrow, however, Mrs. Mackay will be buried in Roslyn, L. I., and both father and daughter will attend the funeral and it is then when the public may be able to determine whether the angel of death has been able to bridge the gulf that has yawned between father and daughter.

Close friends of the Mackays could not answer the question of whether Berlin would accompany his wife to the funeral. Mackay has been in no way in communication with his son-in-law since he married his daughter.

English Trains

Washington-The small, bulbous looking French and English railway trains which seem so awkward in pictures, actually make better time and provide passengers more luxuries than American trains.

In France there are 55 trains operating on schedules of 56 miles an hour or better, and a larger number in England, according to Commerce department statistics.

The United States has no trains averaging more than 50 miles an hour on long runs, and only one on a short run which covers ground faster than this rate.

Most of the fast trains of this country, the "specials" and "limiteds" average between 40 and 50 miles an hour, with a few running on a 45 to 50 mile an hour schedule.

Officials of the Bureau of Railway Economics declared. These are our "crack" trains—the one we see in the picture ads, with smoke streaming back of a giant locomotive's smokestack over fifteen or twenty coaches.

Aboard the trains are small, and the cars round and husky. Americans visualize them bustling about their miniature business fustily, getting nowhere very fast.

As a matter of fact, the top affairs in France and England pop up and down the countryside at the businesslike pace of 100 kilometers an hour. That's two miles an hour faster than a mile a minute, and ten to fifteen miles an hour faster than our best trains.

About this luxury matter. In America the traveler, if he be fastidious, and wealthy, may eat, sleep and shave aboard train. But in the afternoon; tea? My word no!

For real travelling comfort a mile every ten seconds.

This is the goal of Flight Lieutenant D'Arcy Greig, a Scottish pilot, who is preparing for an attempt to shatter the world's speed record for seaplanes, at present held by Italy.

Flight Lieutenant Greig is in training for his contemplated attempt, which will be made during the next few weeks. His plan is a supermarine S-5, which has been especially constructed for the record breaking attempt.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 12.—Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly across the Atlantic, prepared to take off from El Paso Municipal Airport today, determined to reach Los Angeles before the air races ended.

She started her hop from Pecos, Texas, where she has spent five days waiting for the engine of the Avro-Avrian plane to be repaired. She landed here late yesterday.

When evaporated, a ton of water from the Red Sea yields 187 pounds of salt, the same volume of water from the Atlantic Ocean gives only 81 pounds.

English Trains in Faster Times Than Americans

Washington-The small, bulbous looking French and English railway trains which seem so awkward in pictures, actually make better time and provide passengers more luxuries than American trains.

In France there are 55 trains operating on schedules of 56 miles an hour or better, and a larger number in England, according to Commerce department statistics.

The United States has no trains averaging more than 50 miles an hour on long runs, and only one on a short run which covers ground faster than this rate.

Most of the fast trains of this country, the "specials" and "limiteds" average between 40 and 50 miles an hour, with a few running on a 45 to 50 mile an hour schedule.

Officials of the Bureau of Railway Economics declared. These are our "crack" trains—the one we see in the picture ads, with smoke streaming back of a giant locomotive's smokestack over fifteen or twenty coaches.

Coventry

Thursday evening at 8 p. m. daylight saving time, members of the Nazarene church of Manchester, will hold a cottage prayer meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Larson. Everybody is cordially invited.

There was a very good attendance at the Choral Society last evening. It was voted to allow the children of the grammar schools to attend charging them a small fee. These meetings are conducted under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Wells.

The State theater management, following the policy of several of the larger theaters of Hartford, will present as an overture before the feature in the first show each evening some of the best selections from the operas of past and present masters.

Fred Werner, theater organist, has been looking over a list of musical masterpieces and has selected the best of these and will present one each evening as part of the theater's program.

The organ at the State is particularly adapted for this type of work, so it is expected that the overture idea will prove to be a popular addition to the theater's program.

MAN AND BOY BROWND

Perth Amboy, N. J., Sept. 12.—Joseph Smith, aged seven, of Newark, N. J., and William Torsen, 50, of Perth Amboy, captain of a coal barge, were drowned in Staten Island Sound early today when a dory in which they were descending from the deck of the barge broke in half.

The boy's brother, Phillip, three, his parents and another man, all of whom were in the dory, were rescued and taken to a hospital suffering from submersion and exposure.

Hess Celebrating Ninth Anniversary

Edward Hess is holding his Ninth Anniversary Sale. He has made an effort to make this a big merchandising event in the interests of his patrons and the public.

Mr. Hess opened his first store in one of the stores in the block next to Pinehurst at Middle Turnpike. From there he moved to the Roll Block at the Center due to expansion of business and in a few years more to his present spacious store in the heart of the business district in the Park building.

Today Mr. Hess specializes for one thing in electrical fixtures and appliances. He is also agent for the famous Barstow line of coal and gas ranges.

MASSACHUSETTS COAL MEN RUSH EARLY DELIVERIES, STATE COMMISSION SHOWS

Boston.—A busy season during the Fall and Winter months supplying Massachusetts families with coal, was indicated by the report of the Special Commission on Necessaries of Life, which stated that during the first four months of the coal year, April 1 to August 1, deliveries of domestic-sized anthracite in Massachusetts were about 183,000 tons less in 1928 than in the same period last year. Total deliveries in the four month period of 1927 were 1,499,225 while in 1928 they were 1,316,155 net tons. According to the report of the commission, 108,286 tons of foreign anthracite was received in Massachusetts.

PRESIDENT ARRIVES AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Met at Station by Cabinet Members—To Remain a Week in the Capital.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Tanned and invigorated by a summer in the Wisconsin woods, President and Mrs. Coolidge returned to Washington at 8:25 o'clock today. They were met at the station by Secretary S. Kellogg, Dwight Davis, Atty. Gen. Sargent and Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee, government officials and a fêted crowd. The President smiled and greeted his friends affably before entering his automobile for the drive to the White House. James J. Davis, secretary of labor, was a member of the presidential party, having boarded the special train in Pennsylvania. The Coolidges found the White House somewhat changed since they left in June. A new tin roof was put on the executive offices, the drive to the office was widened, a new tile floor was laid in the kitchen, and all the rooms in the mansion were cleaned and brightened. President and Mrs. Coolidge will remain here but a week or ten days before leaving again for a visit to the old home in Plymouth, Mass.

IN BANKRUPTCY

New Haven, Sept. 12.—William S. and Annie P. Wells, who have been in the real estate business in West Hartford, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in United States District Court here today. They owe $31,612 and have estimated assets of $36,247. Both seek bankruptcy as individuals as well as partners. WILLIAM G. TUTTLE, a Woodbury contractor, also filed a petition showing debts of $8769 and assets of $15,075.

BRUCE LIKES FLOUR

Lindsay, Cal.—Three local sportsmen were forced to give up cooking with flour while camping at Sequoia National Park. A bear got away with all but one package of their supply, and they had hopes for at least one round of flapjacks. To protect it they fastened the package to the limb of a tree overlooking a stream. But Bruce, a true sportsman, climbed a hole in the bag, big enough to let the flour pour down into his gaping jaws.

WHO WILL MARRY PRINCESS IRENE ROYAL PROBLEM

Paris.—Who is going to win the hand of the prettiest princess among all the European royalty? This is what a large number of Europeans are beginning to wonder, now that Princess Irene of Greece has passed her twenty-third birthday.

Daughter of ex-Queen Sophie of Greece, former Prussian princess and sister of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, Princess Irene might be taken for a veritable fairy-tale personage if her lovely golden hair were not cut in a very modern "bob." She is extremely fair and her eyes are deep blue with long, thick eyelashes. Built like a slender Venus, she is of statuesque beauty and her features are of classical lines.

Being a young exile obliged to live away from her own native land this young princess has learned the languages of Switzerland, France, Rumania and Italy. She probably knows more foreign tongues than any young member of royalty, English among them, and she knows them all very well.

Not the least of her charms lies in her contralto voice, very musical and soft. In spite of her youth, she is very dignified and reserved, never forgetting her high rank and observing all royal etiquette. For her every one is "charming" and "gentle." Never does she utter a word of criticism.

Now and then Princess Irene visit her sister, Princess Helene of Rumania former wife of Crown Prince Carol. Before the death of her grandmother, the late Queen Olga, she spent a large share of her time in Rome and was an intimate friend of the two royal princesses, Mafalda and Yolanda. The Crown Prince of Italy, it is rumored, was much attracted by her beauty. She might easily one day become the Queen of the Italian kingdom. For the present Princess Irene is residing with her family in a modest little palazzo on the river Arno in Florence.

At Albertville, France, a man slid 2,500 feet down a mountain peak, landed on a glacier, where he spent all night, and lived to tell the tale. It was Nicholas Jypomsky, a Russian resident of London, who had all the luck.

While climbing the Gouter peak in the Savoy Alps, Jypomsky slipped. He rolled down half a mile in half a minute. When he came to, he found himself lying on the Bionnassay glacier with no help in sight. He lay there all night before rescued. Doctors say he will recover.

WAPPING

Mrs. A. B. Wilson of Hartford and Mrs. F. J. Pearce of East Hartford, gave a dinner and shower at Mrs. Wilson's summer home at Andover Lake last Saturday in honor of Miss Margaret Colbert of South Windsor, who will become the bride of their nephew, Edward Sharp of this place in the near future. In the center of the living-room, was a large white umbrella from which numbered paper hearts were suspended. Each guest was provided with a short poem telling where a gift was to be found. These were also numbered. As the bride-to-be read the numbers from the heart on the umbrella, the poem corresponding to that number was read. The search for gifts led the young lady over the place, as they were hidden both in-doors and outside. The table was beautifully decorated with wedding bells and flowers. The place-cards were boutonniers with a miniature bride's bouquet for Miss Colbert. The center of the table was occupied by a large bride's cake. There were twenty-five guests present from Hartford, East Hartford, Manchester and Wapping.

Dr. and Mrs. Austin D. Thompson of Torrington, were callers on friends in town on Monday afternoon.

Beatrice Roselle, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Johnson, fell from the second story window to the ground, recently. Fortunately the child was not hurt.

Frank Stoughton spent the week-end with his family at his home here. Mrs. Charles Hevenor of this village, certainly won the first honors at the Connecticut State Fair last week. Presenting a gorgeous blaze of color which ranged from white and cream to copper and violet in over 10,000 spikes of bloom, the splendid display at the State Fair was one of its most notable features. And towards Monday gave the sweepstakes to Mrs. C. L. Hevenor with a total of twenty-one points won, the highest in the show.

The first fall meeting of the Federated Workers will be held Friday afternoon, Sept. 14, at the home of Mrs. Homer Lane in Pleasant Valley. Mrs. Frank Stoughton will assist Mrs. Lane as hostess.

Sidney F. Stoughton of this place left Monday morning for a visit with friends in Philadelphia. Word was received on Monday afternoon saying that Mrs. Fred H. Adams who is with her father in Goshen, was taken severely ill with acute indigestion Monday afternoon. Mr. Adams and daughter, Miss Almira Adams of Hartford left immediately for Goshen.

Miss Emma Sheldick of Congress street, Hartford, is spending her two weeks vacation at the home of her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sheldick, Pleasant Valley.

Mrs. Helen Tripp of Pleasant Valley is in the Hartford hospital for an operation for appendicitis. Merritt Dunn and Miriam Dunn of East Windsor Hill have entered business college.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Halle, Germany, Sept. 12.—This city today got a taste of what it might expect in future wartime when aviators attack cities with gas. A cloud of sulphurous gas was blown over the city from nearby lignite lines poisoning hundreds of residents, including many children. Many were made so ill they had to be treated by doctors. The whole population was thrown into panic. It was necessary to close the schools.

CLOSE THAT CROSSING

It is understood that the selectmen of the town of Manchester contemplate taking action tonight on the elimination of the death trap grade crossing at Oakland street, which within a few months has taken five lives and which persists, a grisly menace, in an ever present threat to increase the toll.

It is improbable that there is a single individual in Manchester whose indignation is not stirred by contemplation of conditions at the Oakland street crossing. The brake action, however, is an undercurrent of feeling that the responsibility for the crossing menace lies with the New Haven railroad—that the road should be compelled to guard that crossing with gates and maintain a twenty-four hour watch both there and at Main street.

This may be sound abstract theory. But it is not a theory that confronts us—it is a question of human lives; precious human lives like those of the Wright children. We have to face the cold fact that the railroad company will not place gates at Oakland street and will not maintain a twenty-four hour watch, unless it is compelled to do so. And we know, moreover, that it will not be compelled to do either the one or the other, short of a political revolution.

It is not cheap cynicism to say that the Public Utilities Commission of Connecticut never has taken the view of such matters that is now taken by the people of Manchester—it is mere recognition of fact. And it is there is any way of compelling the railroad to provide adequate protection for the death trap crossing, outside of legal fiction, we do not know what it is. In any event, proceedings looking to such an end would spell long delay—and almost certainly more deaths.

There would seem to be, then, only one course of action open to the town—the closing of the crossing forthwith. At least until such time, if it ever comes, as it can be reopened, or a substitute crossing provided, with a reasonable degree of safety.

The erection of a bridge across the tracks at North Elm street is a proposition whose merits or demerits constitute a separate, even if related, question. There should be no confusion of the two problems. The present situation to be solved is the stopping of killings at Oakland street. There obviously is no practicable way of doing that without closing the crossing.

Let that be done, by order of the selectmen, and nine-tenths of the people of Manchester will stand solidly behind the action. Of that we are firmly convinced.

Afterward, the problem of providing adequate means for crossing the right of way of the New Haven road, throughout the North end, may properly be made the subject of due deliberation. What we have to do tonight is to meet a desperate emergency.

END OF BUNGLING

Any person taking a dispassionate survey of the career of Herbert Hoover must be, sooner or later, suddenly impressed by one striking fact—he has never in his life bungled anything. Not only is his record of achievement amazing, he has a still more amazing record of absence of mistakes.

Such a condition does not exist without reason. And the reason is that, no matter how short of time exists in which to plan his action, that action is always definitely planned before it is begun. Even in the desperately sudden emergencies of the marooned Americans in Europe, when war flamed overnight, and the sweep of the Mississippi floods, when Hoover went into action almost at a moment's notice, his methodical, engineering mind charted his course to complete success. He never made a false move, never had to go back and start over.

Upon this blue-printing quality of the Hoover mind millions of persons, now utterly disgusted with the workings of prohibition, confidently rely for a wise and prompt solution of the mess into which the country has fallen. There is not the slightest chance, for instance, that with Mr. Hoover in the Presidency, there could occur such a situation as that created by Mabel Walker Willebrandt in the padlocking of New York night clubs. One of the chief law officers of the nation, Mrs. Willebrandt ordered a course taken, with relation to these clubs, which a competent court now declares to have been utterly illegal and outrageous, without support of law and without shadow of justice.

It is inconceivable that Herbert Hoover, who never bungles, will permit the bungling and messing which have so far characterized the enforcement of the prohibitory laws—and have done so much to bring the whole idea of prohibition into disrepute. If anything is assured by the prospect of a Hoover victory, it is the bringing of order out of chaos in the matter of liquor laws and liquor law administration.

TEXAS

The wild riot at the Democratic state convention in Dallas, yesterday, when anti-Smith delegates, among scenes of turbulence and violence, staged a bolt and organized a rump convention, goes a considerable way in support of reports that have trickled through to the East from that far off region concerning the bitterness of the Texas Democratic dissensions.

Traveling men and others who have been in Texas recently declare that there is a very real revolt in that party, with thousands of lifelong Democrats proclaiming their refusal to support their national ticket. And the desperate character of the row in the Dallas convention gives plenty of backing to these stories.

Nevertheless the chances that Texas will give its electoral vote to Hoover are slender. It is not to be forgotten that in 1924, in the midst of a Republican tidal wave, 454,605 Texans voted for John W. Davis for President against 130,023 votes for Coolidge. Even including the 42,000 LaFollette ballots, and accepting that these were all cast by Republicans, the state of Texas is shown to be more than three to one Democratic on a normal vote. A tremendous amount of noise could be made by a group of disgruntled Lone Star Democrats far too small to offset such an overwhelming majority.

Also it is to be borne in mind that Governor Dan Moody, the most influential individual in the party in that state, is remaining "regular," though a militant dry, and that the bolters seem to have been led by former Governor Colquitt, who for a number of years has been a discredited outsider looking in.

On the whole the Texas melee seems to us to be more diverting than politically serious. No doubt a great many sulking Democrats will remain away from the polls—until late afternoon at all events. But while the Democratic plurality will likely enough be heavily reduced it is improbable enough that enough Texans will be able to bring themselves to vote the Republican ticket to any more than cut the normal Democratic majority by a few scores of thousands.

WALCOTT IN NEW YORK

If the Republican National Committee's speakers bureau is well advised it will draft Frederic C. Walcott, Connecticut's candidate for the United States Senate, for service in New York state. Mr. Walcott's Connecticut candidacy is safe in the hands of the voters of this commonwealth. There is not the slightest chance of his meeting defeat. It will not be necessary for him to expend much effort in talking to the people here in order to insure his election. Nor is there even a remote chance that this state will not be in the Hoover column in November.

But the big state of New York, the star prize of the sisterhood on election day and without whose 45 votes not even the most enthusiastic Democrat could figure out a Smith victory, is a real battle ground. In that state Smith is not going to get all the Republican votes that have so often placed him in the governor's chair—not by a long way. There are too many reports coming from upstate counties, of former Smith voters who figure that Smith for governor is one proposition and Smith for President quite another, for any possibility that there is not a lot of that sentiment. There is obviously so much of it that if it were not for accessions of alien-born voters, bribed to Smith by his immigration policy, New York could already be called a Republican state in November.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Sept. 12.—Midway between four and five years ago, Edwin Denby passed out of the spotlight.

He had been one of the most picturesque figures in the Harding cabinet. Son of an American minister to China, he had lived and worked for several years in that country. In 1918 he left his law practice in Detroit to serve as a gunner's mate in the Spanish-American War.

In 1917, having acquired wealth, prestige and political honors in his city and state, he sneaked away from Detroit and modestly enlisted as a mere private in the marines for World War service.

When the war ended he held the rank of major. President Harding made him secretary of the navy. In March, 1924, Denby gave his resignation. President Coolidge, Popular and political indignation had demanded it because of his connection with the Fall-Doheny oil scandals.

Since then, for national purposes, Denby has been obscure. Now and then he came into the limelight again, briefly, as he traveled here and there to testify in various naval oil reserve cases, but few men have appeared to drop so quickly and completely out of public life.

It's a natural question: What ever became of Denby? Those who know Denby say that as a citizen of Detroit he is far from obscure, that he has a host of friends there, that he was met on his return from Washington with a brass band, a parade and a banquet in testimony of their faith, that he immediately became chairman of a Y. M. C. A. drive which raised $6,000,000 that he has since been an important figure in other civic enterprises and that he is still in demand as an orator at public gatherings.

Not so long after he resigned from the cabinet—his friends indignantly deny that Coolidge suggested it—there was a report that he would run for the Senate in Michigan to obtain public vindication. But Denby decided to keep out of active politics until the oil trials were over. They are over now and his friends hint that he may again run for public office. He is 58 years old.

Denby is not a millionaire, but he has extensive investments, principally in real estate. He made his first big money in the oil business of the Hupmobile company. He is still head of the law firm of Denby, Kennedy & Kennedy, corporation lawyers, but acts more in an advisory capacity than as a practicing lawyer.

He lives with his wife in Detroit and summers on his large but unpretentious estate at Lake Oakland, near Pontiac. He is described as a "family man" who prefers the simpler pleasures.

Edwin Denby, Jr., is now a student at the Severn School at Annapolis and his father expects him to enter the U. S. Naval Academy. Edwin Jr., is about 16 years old. The other child is Marian, aged 13.

The elder Denby is in excellent health and physical condition. Fishing and walking are his favorite recreations and he does a great deal of both, often walking to Pontiac, 10 miles away.

One man who has known Denby intimately for 20 years describes him as very sensitive and intensely patriotic. That being so, he felt deeply the unfavorable light in which he was placed before the public by his important part in the delivery of Teapot Dome to Fall and Sinclair. But he learned to take his position philosophically.

His friends say he believed he was doing the patriotic and correct thing, that he was wiser and better than outside interests were draining away the navy's oil, that no one in the Navy Department knew anything about the production of oil and that Denby relied implicitly for advice on the Interior Department. He never suspected that Fall was less honest or patriotic than himself. For that he has been accused of being a little less than bright, but those friends argue that he received a terrifically raw deal at the hands of public opinion.

Denby still believes that some day the navy will wake up to find its oil all gone—drained from its reserves by nearby private wells.

La Flamme—shades of Robert Service, what a name! Pierre raises wolverines up in the country where the Hudson Bay trading begins. I first ran across him a year ago, or so, when he brought a wolf team into Manhattan and put it in a "dog" race on the Madison Square Garden ice rink. The Manhattan natives insisted on trying to "pat" the wolves, and all gave Pierre nervous prostration. He would keep shouting to them to take their fingers away.

Well, it seemed there was a cute little wolverine and frills, fluffs, and all the rest. The war brought great tragedy upon her family. A couple of brothers and a sister lost their lives. She fled the gale of Paris and started to run away from it all. She got as far as Montreal.

There, by accident, she met Pierre, with his great beard, his iron body, his woodsman's walk, his suggestion of the out-of-door life. He was a regular man's work and, because he's simple, they always take advantage of him. Give him four bits and shove him out. I began to wonder about Red. I wonder now just how bitter he is about mankind. I wonder what he reads. And I wonder, just a bit, about those very people, who talk of New York as the "hard-hearted, wicked city." Oh, very well! "Nor have the actioneers of the 'north woods' began to use the 'tripe' material that waits there for them. here is, for instance, one Pierre

FACTS ABOUT CONNECTICUT
Compiled by the CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

174) 300,000 Telephone Subscribers

Fifty years ago the first switchboard to furnish public telephone service was put in operation at New Haven, only a few months after the first private switchboard in the world was installed at Boston. Connecticut today is well covered with telephone lines and there are close to 300,000 telephone subscribers in the state.

There are nine telephone companies operating in the state, six of which being under Connecticut charters. These six represent an investment in fixed capital of close to $50,000,000. Gross operating revenues for these companies for 1922 totaled $12,405,878, while operating expenses amounted to $8,750,293, leaving a net operating revenue of $3,655,584. Dividends paid during the year amounted to $2,003,770 and the surplus at the beginning of last year totaled $2,033,400. Of the 5,165 stockholders in the six companies, 5,580 live in Connecticut.

There are nearly 90 central telephone offices in Connecticut. The average number of local exchange messages originating per month is close to 31,000,000 and average number of toll messages is nearly 2,000,000. There are approximately 9,000 miles of pole lines and 420,000 miles of wire in the state.

There are four telegraph companies doing business in Connecticut. None of these, however, is a strictly Connecticut company.

Sixteen years ago there were twelve telephone and telegraph companies doing business in this state. The companies classed as Connecticut telephone companies had total assets of $13,014,189; liabilities of $12,596,300 and a surplus of $417,888. The total gross operating income was $3,214,808 and the total operating expenses, $2,483,340.

BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

The Southern New England Telephone Company has leased from the Manchester Lumber Company the garage building on the north side of Center street and east of the South Manchester Railroad tracks. The telephone company will use it for a stock room and for the storage of its automobile and repair equipment.

The store in the Rialto Theater building, which was opened by Edward Copeland and later sub-leased to the Hamilton Fruit Company, has been turned back to Mr. Copeland, who yesterday moved the stock and fixtures from the store. It was closed a week ago Saturday.

The fixtures of the Smith jewelry store, sold two weeks ago to a Hartford man, together with the stock, have been sold to a Park street, Hartford, druggist, who moved most of the fixtures to Hartford yesterday and will use them in his drug store.

The camel was one of the first animals to be domesticated.

FILES FOR RECORD DEED
NOW 34 YEARS OLD

Harlan White of Joplin, Mo., yesterday afternoon left with Town Clerk Samuel Turkington a deed given by Daniel Wadsworth, town clerk of the town of Manchester, acting for the town for a piece of land transferred from the town of Manchester to Elizabeth H. White and located on what is now part of Manchester Green road and to the south side of the road near Oakland street. The deed was dated September 25, 1889, thirty-four years ago this month.

The deed was drawn by Mr. Wadsworth, is in script and was witnessed by Charles E. House and Edwin N. Snow. Mr. House was at that time town treasurer and Mr. Snow was the road foreman. Mr. Wadsworth is now dead. The deed was never recorded. In going over some of his papers, Mr. White came across it and being in Manchester on a visit left it at the town clerk's office for record. The consideration was not given.

Bissell, M'donald, Holland, Jesanis, Reach Semi-Finals

Macdonald Easily Beats Gatti 6-2, 6-3; Plays Holland Tomorrow; Bissell-Jesanis Tonight.

Mac Macdonald, last year's losing finalist, had little difficulty in eliminating Aldo Gatti in their quarter-final match played last night at the East Side playgrounds. Macdonald won in straight sets, the scores being 6 to 2 and 6 to 3. He will play Ty Holland in the semi-finals tomorrow night, the place to be announced in tomorrow night's Herald.

This evening will bring two of the best players in the tournament together in the first of the semi-final matches. It will feature Sherwood "Cap" Bissell, defending champion on one side of the court and Paul Jesanis, 1928 tournament champion, on the other. Much has been said and con regarding the outcome of this match. Bissell's ability is well known. Jesanis is also said to be exceptionally good. Some go so far as to predict he will bump off Bissell tonight despite the fact that the latter is far more experienced. Jesanis' play is said to be more attractive than Bissell's. The match is down for the West Side playgrounds at 8:30 sharp.

Gatti seemed either nervous or stagetruck in his match with Macdonald last night, although he won two out of the three first games. The rest of the first set, he was at loss to compete with Macdonald's attack and made many costly errors.

After losing the first three games of the second set, Gatti flung caution to the wind and sailed in for all he was worth. The result was that Macdonald was forced to 8 to 6. They played the next two, both being 7 to 5 in points. Then Gatti took two more games, only to have Macdonald brace in the next and take the match.

Take our advice, don't miss either the Bissell-Jesanis match or the Macdonald-Holland set. Both are going to be corkers so far as one can foretell. And, oh, boy! what a final there'll be Saturday afternoon. It would be impossible to select four more suited or talented players for the semi-finals, than the quartet which now have that honor.

GREEN PLAYS POORLY ELMWOOD WINNING 7-2

FIRST ROUND ON AND NO FAVORITE

Anything May Happen Today at West Newton Golf Tourney.

West Newton, Mass., Sept. 12.—They say anything can happen in an eighteen hole match, so just to make sure that a lot of things will, the golf association prepared to provide two distinct series of these competitive "dog fights" for the first and second round of the national amateur golf championship. Thus will begin, and as suddenly end, the unusual machine gunning of the championship proper.

As an occasion, it is at once the dread of the aristocracy and the delight of this particular sport, for, if there is anything that figures to give the proverbial sucker an even break, it is either an empty pocket or an 18-hole golf match or both. Aristocracy, indeed. The crown prince and even the king himself are not immune to the indiscriminate sniping of these first two rounds of the amateur championship. Only when the affair is closed by a wide range target practice of 36 holes, starting tomorrow, will they feel at their royal ease.

Well Placed.
 Still Prince George and King Robert seem to be well placed for the first round at least. Von Eim, having been down against Arthur Yates of Rochester, and Jones against J. Walcott Brown, of New Jersey. The royal pair, in fact, will have to be somewhat off their chump, as we say at Windsor Castle, for Arthur and Walcott to have a wide range chance.

The remaining first round matches follow:
 Upper Half.
 Thomas P. Perkins, England, vs. Don Moe, Portland, Oregon.
 Chick Evans, Chicago vs. John Dawson, Chicago.
 Fred Wright, Boston, vs. George Taylor.
 Lower Half.
 Francis Outmet, Boston, vs. Phillips Finlay, New York.
 John D. Ames, Chicago, vs. Maurice McCarthy, Brooklyn.
 Harrison Johnston, Minneapolis, vs. T. Suffera Taylor, Jr., Newport, R. I.
 George Dunlap, Jr., Maplewood, N. H., vs. George Dawson, Chicago.
 Frank Dolp, Portland, Oregon, vs. C. Ross, Somerville, Canada.
 John Beck, England, vs. Rudy Knapper, Chicago.
 R. R. Gorton, Boston, vs. Karl Nettleblatt, Worcester, Mass.

Von Elm was seeded at the top of the upper half and Jones at the bottom of the lower half in a commendable endeavor to arrange a final round between the almost perennial champion and the only man who has been able to beat him out of the amateur title since 1923. However, the best laid plans of mice and golf associations often go astray. If Von Elm doesn't miff the Yankees match he can comfort himself with the thought that all he will have to do in the second round this afternoon is beat the winner of the Perkins-Moe meeting.

Not Easy Job.
 This isn't being done seven days in every week. Perkins being the present champion of Great Britain and Moe reigning sensation of the younger set.

Jones, on the other digit, has only a reasonably interesting proposition with Brown, the Jersey state champion, in the first round and, if successful, and even more formal meeting for the second with the survivor of the Gorton-Nettleblatt affair. The young man, in fact, suffered no misfortune in being cast for the lower half of the bracket with only Outmet, Finlay, McCarthy, Dawson, Dolp, Somerville and Nepper as recognized champions of the first class. And several of those named must be eliminated at the outset.

Von Elm's companions of the draw, who look like bad news to some one, are Perkins, Moe, Evans, John Dawson, Wright, Gunn, Willing, Storey, Marston, Sweeter and Voigt. Quite a few of these must go down in the first round too, but there is no doubt that George Drew himself the short side of the wish bonnet.

Meanwhile the more immediate demands of the situation will fall upon the participants in the so-called feature matches. They fought for two days to qualify, now they must fight to survive.

Buckland Silences Local Left-Hand Batters; Boyce Is Kayoed In First.

Just as was predicted in these columns last night, the Elmwood New Departures triumphed over Manchester Green at the West Side playgrounds 7 to 2 last evening. The game was halted because of darkness while the New Departures were batting in the first of the sixth. The score at the time the game was called was 7 to 2.

The Green played poorly in the field. The box score shows but one error, but three more were committed by the Green in the sixth, two by Robb and one by Linnell. Joe Prentice was on the hill for the Green at the time, but all the happenings in this frame do not go down in the official box score because the inning was not completed.

Elmwood batted Eddie Boyce from the box in less time than it takes to tell what happened. Bartolo walked, Giraitis doubled, Sipples singled, Alexander doubled and then in came Elmo Mantell from right field to finish the route. Elmo had worked only two days previous and his arm was sore. Although he breezed safely through a couple of innings, Elmwood nipped him for four runs before Prentice replaced him.

Meanwhile the Green was finding Lefty Buckland a mystery touching him up for only three hits. All were made by right hand hitters.

The Green's left hand hitters were completely subdued. Not one of them got anything that resembled a hit. Linnell grounded out short to first and hit first. St. John struck out and grounded out second to first; Wallett flew to left and was out catch to first; Brennan whiffed; Robb grounded to first and struck out. All of which was predicted, more or less, in the Herald last night.

Tommy Sipples and Jimmy Alexander led the New Departures with the stick, getting two safe blows apiece. In all, Elmwood poked out nine singles, five of which went for extra bases. Following is the official box score:

HOUSE OF DAVID

HERE ON FRIDAY Bewhiskered Ball Tossers From Religious Colony Meet Community Club.

The House of David baseball team from Benton Harbor, Michigan, which plays the Community at the West Side Friday evening, is unique, odd, novel, strange in everything. Besides, they can play baseball.

Those shaveseless bewhiskered athletes from the strange House of David religious colony are smashing attendance records nearly everywhere they exhibit. Manchester should be no exception. Although perhaps not as good ball players as the Brooklyn Royal Giants who showed their wares here last week, they furnish a novelty side show and good baseball.

Expectations are that close to a thousand persons will turn out to witness the game granting favorable weather. Jerry Fay plans to get the game going as soon after 5:30 as possible. If the day is not cloudy, it may be possible to act in more than seven innings, but that will depend to a great extent upon the speed of the game itself.

One peculiarity of the athletes, representing the House of David is that they wear bulky beards and are popularly known as the "Whiskeraces." The flapper age has made no impression on them and they stick to the obsolete customs and ideas which are part of the religion of the cult. While progress among them, this condition does not apply to the national pastime as the team has an enviable reputation for ability on the diamond. For a number of years the House of David Baseball Club has toured the country and has won rather consistent success from the opposition.

It has become a novel baseball attraction wherever it appears, and keen interest is being manifested in the game here.

Every player on the North End football team must be at practice tonight so the measurements for football uniforms may be obtained. There will also be a short signal practice. Every man must be present or he will be minus a suit. The practice will be at the north end playground.

Rec Runners Will Compete September 29

Manchester runners competing under the colors of the Recreation Centers will engage the Dewell A. C. of Norwich in a return road race in that city September 29, it was stated today by Director Lewis Lloyd.

While the race here, in which Norwich was an easy winner taking the first six places, was a cross-country affair, at Norwich the five mile jaunt will be over the Norwich Fair grounds' race circuit.

The race will be one of the principal athletic features of the closing day of the New London County Fair which is held in Norwich.

Director Lloyd requests local runners wishing to take part to report at the School Street Rec immediately to start training which will be held at the West Side. About a dozen Manchester runners will compete in the dual meet.

Kick Has Disappeared From Athletic Series

Yankees Two and Half Games in Front After Yesterday's Game—Their Lead Safe—"The Bunt That Failed" Gave New Yorkers the Game.

New York, Sept. 12.—The Yankees are two and a half games in front in the American League race this morning.

And the kick has gone out of the Athletic series like wind from a punctured balloon.

There is still another game to be played—but regardless of what may happen this afternoon, the lead of the Ruppert team is safe.

The last hope of the Athletics went glimmering yesterday afternoon when Lefty Groves bled to defeat on the wings of a Kuthlan homer into the right field stands.

Even if the boys lost this afternoon they will start west with a game and a half lead over the Athletics and only fifteen more games to play.

New York, Sept. 12.—"The bunt that failed" gave the Yankees the third game, 5 to 3, snapper. Groves' fifteen game winning streak, and ruined the attempt of Moses to lead the A's out of the wilderness in which they have wallowed for fourteen years.

The score was tied and Gehrig was on second base. Manager Huggins ordered Ruth to attempt a sacrifice on the first pitch, and then to swing if the bunt failed. The bunt was foul by inches. Groves expected another one and pitched accordingly. Instead the ball sailed into the bleachers for the Bam's 49th homer.

The Cards trimmed the Reds, 6 to 3, but the Giants annexed their second consecutive double-header from the Braves and went into second place ahead of the Cubs.

In two-timing Boston, 11 to 6 and 7 to 6, the Giants collected thirty hits, of which Lindstrom made eight.

Malone of the Cubs subdued the Pirates, 9 to 3, and drove in four runs to boot.

After beating the Phillies, 7 to 2, Brooklyn suffered a 4 to 3 setback

WINSTED'S 22-0 WIN RECALLED

South Manchester Took Worst Whaling May 19, 1894, Writes Carney.

This is the fourth of a series of articles on baseball as played by the South Manchester baseball team in 1894.

By BOB CARNEY

On May 19, 1894, the South Manchester baseball team was given a drubbing at Winsted. Winsted then represented in baseball by players gathered from all sections who were backed by the manufacturers and businessmen of Winsted as Manchester did in 1903 and 1904.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists as the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

the visitors were allowed to bring along one, too. These men took turns calling balls and strikes for one inning and the taking care of the plays on the bases in the other inning. Wheeler was the Winsted umpire and Walter B. Cheney went along and umpired for Manchester.

The batting order was changed. Someone conceived the idea that it was a pretty good idea to put as lead-off man the man who had the reputation of getting on bases, even though it was done without getting a hit, and Herman Cheney was sent up first.

The South Manchester team was not hitting that day and in the first, third, fourth, fifth, sixth and ninth innings, only three Manchester men went to bat. Four hits were secured by the local team and three men were left on bases. Not a South Manchester player stole a base and not one of the four hits were for extra bases.

The Winsted team made fourteen hits, all singles but one and that was a two base hit by Hanlon who played center field. Every Winsted player made a hit and their continued peppering of Spillane's offerings, together with the thirteen errors by the South Manchester players, netted twenty-two runs. The Winsted team played without an error and Simmons, who pitched for Winsted had eight strikeouts. Spillane struck out five of the Winsted players.

The defeat was one that did not set well with the Manchester players and later in the season it was wiped out by a victory over Winsted, but that is another story.

When the team returned from Winsted that night there was the usual crowd of men and boys and some girls at the South Manchester railroad station to meet them. The players did not stand around and do much strutting that night and it seemed almost impossible to believe the story of the score and it was not until the box score was printed, almost a week later, that it was shown how it was done. The box score follows:

LITCHFIELD'S FIRE OF LOCAL INTEREST

The fire in Litchfield yesterday which destroyed the plant of the "Litchfield Inquirer" and the business block in which was located the drug store known as Crutch & Marley and owned by William Marley, is of more than ordinary interest to people in Manchester.

William Marley, owner of the drug store that was burned out is a Manchester man who has been in Litchfield for the past thirty-two years. He recently purchased the house on Eldridge street in which his mother has lived for forty-three years, from Cheney Brothers as a gift to his mother and sisters.

George Woodruff, owner of the paper, and his brother James, are well known throughout the state. George is an active member of the Connecticut Editorial Association, was a close friend of the late Edward S. Ela founder of the Manchester Evening Herald, who was long secretary of the association.

By BILLY EVANS

At one of those pre-game fanning bees, the talk drifted to famous years in the major leagues. "Billy, what do you consider the greatest season in the big circuits?" was the question one of the group flung at me. My unhesitating reply was, "The 1908 campaign." And though that's now 20 years ago, quite a span in any branch of endeavor, that 1908 season still stacks up to me as the stand-out season of all.

The fact that I was just a rookie at the time (it was but my third season as a big league umpire) may have tended to impress me more than it would have a veteran a bit more accustomed to thrills of the game. And yet I think not. For after 22 seasons in the main show, "old 1908" still remains out in front.

The season of 1908, for one thing, brought two of the closest pennant races in the game's annals. Never before or since have such thrilling flag fights been staged in both circuits the same year. Moreover, I doubt if we'll see another for years to come, if at all.

In the American League that year the four western clubs, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis, were in the pennant tussle around the middle of September. Then the Browns faltered and were outdistanced.

The other three, however, battled on right to the final day. I remember the Tigers needed only one more victory as Jennings brought his team to Chicago for the last series of the campaign—a three-game stint. Obviously, the Tigers looked like a fairly good bet. But the White Sox rather upset the dope by copping the first two games, leaving the issue resting on the concluding game of the chase.

In the final fray, however, Bill Donovan, one of the most popular players of all time, stood the Sox on their collective heads, Detroit winning, 7 to 0. "Wild Bill" gave Chicago just two little hits in that tilt—one of the most crucial in the history of the junior organization. With the victory, of course, went the pennant—the Tigers' second in as many years.

It was during the last few days of that thrilling race that one of the greatest games in big-time competition was played. I refer to that memorable nine-inning battle between the White Sox and Cleveland, which the latter won, 1 to 0.

It was in that game that Addie Joss and Ed Walsh hooked up in their famous pitching duel. Joss turned in a perfect game, on strikes and still had to take the short end of the decision. Joss' performance was the second of its kind during modern times, Cy Young having chalked up the first, four years before while hurling for the Boston Red Sox against the Athletics.

A perfect pitching record for one twirler, 15 whifflings for the other and the score, 1 to 0. What more could the most thrill-seeking fan ask? Add to it, too, the fact both teams were in wire just a few tilts away. What a setting for a Frank Merkle yarn!

In the National League that year the Cubs and Giants were tied for the flag at the end of the season. In the play-off game, the Cubs won despite the fact McGraw had sent the great Christy Mathewson to the mound in a desperate effort to bag the contest and the gonfalon.

While the Chicagoans copped the honors, the Giants would have clinched the pennant in the regular campaign had it not been for Fred Merkle's now famous bonedhead play. Merkle, as many of you fans doubtless recall, failed to touch second base in a game between the Giants and Cubs late that season. Had Fred simply put his foot on the bag, McGraw's team would have finished first, making a play-off unnecessary.

But Merkle neglected to touch second. The alert Johnny (Copyright, 1928, NEA Magazine)

Southpaw Rucker... tells his daughter how he hurled one of the five no-hit affairs in the extraordinary season of 1908.

The latter record still stands as the high mark in the American. It was in 1908 that the National League produced no less than three 17-inning contests. Chicago and Boston played to a 1 to 1 tie; Pittsburgh defeated Brooklyn, 1 to 0, and Philadelphia beat the Dodgers, 3 to 2. There were three games totaling 51 innings in which but a combined total of eight runs was scored. If that isn't a record, it's close to one.

It was in 1908 that Ed Walsh and Christy Mathewson set the top-notch performance in their respective leagues for innings pitched in a single season. The White Sox star worked 464 frames, while Matty was in 416. Compare those figures with the 308 for Lyons and Thomas of the White Sox and the best marks for 1927, and you have an idea of the amount of work Walsh and Mathewson turned in.

Walsh also established the record for the American League by taking part in 66 battles that year. He won 40 tilts, one less than the record for the circuit made by Jack Chesbro in 1904. Mathewson, on the other side, set the modern National League mark with 37 victories.

It was in 1908 that Rube Waddell set his famous strike-out record, whiffling 16 of his former team-mates on Connie Mack's Athletics while hurling for the St. Louis Browns. If the eccentric Rube ever gained any satisfaction by striking out batters, he got it on that occasion. For it was only shortly before that Mack had cast Waddell adrift, figuring the great southpaw was through.

It was in 1908, too, that Edward Reulbach, famous Cub pitcher of those days, chalked up an unprecedented feat by pitching and winning a shut-out double-header, with Brooklyn as the victim. Reulbach added to this achievement by picking four scoreless games in a row, a mark later tied by Grover Alexander. Reulbach also set the National League record of 44 consecutive runless innings that season.

The 1908 campaign also stands out in regard to shut-out games. There were 164 such frags in the National League that year, the present high figure in the majors, and there were 41 1-to-0 games in the American, a mark which still exists in the younger circuit.

It was in 1908 that Ty Cobb and Hans Wagner virtually walked away with the offensive laurels of their respective leagues. Cobb led the batters, compiled the most hits, got the most doubles, and the most triples. Wagner topped the hitters, crashed out the most hits, made the most doubles, the most triples, the most stolen bases and missed tying for the run-scoring honors by a single tally. I doubt if two players ever so dominated their circuits on the offensive as Ty and Hans did that campaign.

The 1908 season also stands out above the others to me because of the influx of so many players who were later to become stars of unusual prominence.

To cite only a few, there were Southpaw Rube Marquard; "Smokey Joe" Wood, right-hander of Red Sox fame; Eddie Cicotte, White Sox hurler; and Jean Dubuc, one-time able moundman for Detroit. Walter Johnson, by the way, did his first pitching as a regular in 1908 and Tris Speaker first pitched the big-time outfield that year. What a galaxy of diamond stars to think upon!

Dick Hoblitzel, first baseman, made his major debut with the Reds in 1908; as did Buck Herzog, second baseman of the Giants. Jack Graney, one of baseball's greatest lead-off men, was drafted by Cleveland from Wilkes-Barre of the New York State League in 1908; and the Red Sox got the brilliant Larry Gardner, third baseman, the same year.

Dick Egan, Cincinnati second sacker, was another of the 1908 crop, as was Birdie Cree, New York American outfielder. Gavy Cravath, who was at one time the Babe Ruth of the old league, got his big-time start with the Red Sox in 1908. Bill Carrigan, present manager of the Sox, played his first regular season with Boston in '08.

Considering those two sensational major league races, the many noteworthy individual achievements that still stand as record performances and the unusual quota of ultimate stars that came up two decades ago, one need not wonder why the 1908 season remains so vividly in my memory as baseball's biggest year.

landers. Young performed his feat, the third in his career, on June 30.

On September 5, Nap Rucker, Brooklyn southpaw, held Boston hitless and 13 days later Dusty Rhoades of Cleveland set down the Red Sox without a safety, Boston, however, scoring one run on an error. On September 20, Frank Smith, referred to as "Frank the piano-mover," because of his mighty physique, blanked the Athletics without a hit. Then came Joss' sensational perfect game on October 2.

Of those five no-hit tilts that year, two were pitched by Clevelanders when that club was in the midst of its battle for the flag. It isn't very often one team can show a pair of no-hit triumphs over a space of two weeks, especially when there is so much at stake. But Rhoades and Joss did it for Cleveland.

It also was in 1908 that the Chicago White Sox won 13 games in a row, the second best mark up to that time in the American League. Oddly enough, Chicago also had hung up the top performance for the junior wheel, 19 wins in 1906.

Rich, shattering the ecstasy of the sensuous night, bent to whisper in her hair. . . . She drew away as though he had hurt her.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SYBIL THORNE, Boston society girl, is preparing on shipboard for a mad marriage with RICHARD EUSTIS, whom she has known exactly five days. To make matters worse, Sybil is really engaged (in a rather indefinite fashion) to CRAIG NEWBALL, a wealthy young bachelor who loves her devotedly.

It was to reach a same decision regarding marriage with Craig that Sybil accompanied by MABEL BLAKE, a social worker, had left Boston for a "peaceful" trip to Havana. On the boat she meets Eustis, who begins immediately to make love to her and finally—though he detests marriage—has begged her to marry him.

Swept off her feet by his impassioned ardor, Sybil seems to forget Craig and consents—on the spur of an insane moment—to be married by the ship's captain. Mabel is to be maid of honor. The first mate will be best man. And all the passengers are to witness the ceremony.

In tears Mabel dresses for the mad event and helps Sybil into her gray georgette—her improvised little wedding gown.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XVII
There never was a wedding like it.

"You know the old jingle, Miss Thorne," cried Mrs. Parkins. "Something old, something new, something borrowed, and something blue. I hope you remembered. It would be dreadful unlucky if you didn't."

"Goodness, everything I have on is old. Oh, my ear-rings—they're new. Rich gave them to me at a wedding present. Has anybody anything blue?"

The professor from Wellesley looked embarrassed.
"My garters are blue," she admitted.

"Great! May I borrow them?"
"Why, surely, Miss Thorne. Just a moment." And the modest lady repaired to the privacy of her stateroom.

She was back in a moment. "And here's a little handkerchief. I wish I had a nicer present."
"Bless your heart! It's sweet." Unconcerned Sybil slipped on the garters. "There—that's blue and borrowed all at once. Where's my bridegroom?"

"We tossed up to see who'd be best man—John or the first mate. Mr. Hawkins is it."
Hawkins smiled and shook hands with Sybil.

"I've been congratulating this lucky devil," he said, indicating Rich with a nod. "He's a most fortunate man."
Sybil was breathless.

"You all say such nice things!" she exclaimed.

health. Till death do us part." Oh, the solemnity of it! The inevitability—till death do us part! Even Rich was pale.

"She looks like a little frightened angel," whispered Mrs. Parkins to Mrs. Jones, and wiped a tear away.

"The poor sap's scared to death," chuckled one peeping sailor to another. "And, brother, that girl's a humdinger."

"I pronounce you man and wife." It was over. Rich was kissing her. Rich, and everybody else. The captain and the best man, and John Arnold and the minister. Even Father Finn, and all the ladies.

Such excitement! Breakfast in the saloon. And cocktails in the captain's cabin. And Rich with his arm around her every minute.

"We'll cable your folks, darling," he had suggested.

"Oh, not yet," she protested. "There's lots of time. Suppose we don't tell anyone until we get home. I think it would be lots more fun. One ought to tell people things like marriages and deaths sort of gently, you know. Lots of tact. Nothing sudden."

Privately Sybil was thinking of Craig. By and by, she could think of some way of letting him know. Some way that would not hurt him too much. Not now, anyhow. She couldn't have a happy minute if Craig was being miserable.

"All right," conceded Rich. "You're the doctor, Mrs. Eustis. There there were goodbys."

"So glad to have known you." "Hasn't it been wonderful!" "Perfectly wonderful!" "Who'd have dreamed of such a thing!"

"Goodby . . . Goodby . . . You'll look us up, won't you?" "Goodby . . . Goodbye . . . You lucky fellow, Eustis! Goodbye, Mrs. Eustis."

"Mabel's in our stateroom, Rich. I'll have to run down for a minute. You be getting your bags ready, dear. The captain said he'd have a cab for us."

In the stateroom Sybil found poor Mabel cramming things in bags and shedding futile tears.

"Don't know what I'm blubbering for," she announced, defiantly. "Weddings always get my goat. Awful sentimental for an old gal."

She dried her eyes.
"Well, Missus, when do we meet again?" Sybil embraced her wildly.

"Mabel, I want to ask you a favor. Please don't write home a single word about Rich and me. I don't want a soul to know, till I tell them myself."

"Aren't you going to tell your mother, Sib?" "No—not yet."

"Isn't Rich going to tell his people?" "Not for a while."

"Yes I can! I didn't grab any little boy friend to pay MY bills. Run along, Sib. Don't you worry about me."

Nights in Havana are soft and warm, and of a swooning sweetness full of glorious, fascinating odors.

Strolling along the Prado, Sybil clung to Richard's arm, and lifting her face, felt the heavy exhilaration of stars and moon and tropical fragrances.

Until Rich, shattering the ecstasy of the sensuous night, bent to whisper in her hair. Then she drew away as though he had hurt her.

(To Be Continued)

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

One of the meanest habits of the human race is our proneness to beg for sympathy from our fellow men.

The lower animal, do not have it—then why, oh why, does man who considers himself superior so easily form the habit of liking other people to feel sorry for him?

Why does he begin at an early age to howl loud and long for the things he wants; then, if he can't have them, howl louder and longer for the sympathy of anyone and everyone who will give it.

Usually it is his mother, and howling begins at the age of one day.

I assert here and now that I do not like to see children disappointed. I like to see them happy and have them get the things they want, but my better judgment tells me that that is precisely the unkindest thing that can happen to them. It simply spells ruination.

Damages Character.
The child who learns to cry for things and incidentally cry for sympathy if he doesn't get them, is breaking down the very foundation of character.

Of course children are only little human beings, with hearts full of emotions that must eternally be a handicap to good intentions. That is where the lower animals have it all over us; but just the way this is not going to make him stronger and it is not going to make things easier. He must learn that.

Such children grow into leannings—always expecting the world to do something nice for them, without undue effort themselves. The cry-baby develops into a petulant child, the petulant child into a selfish and usually lethargic youth, and later into a dissatisfied, complaining and seldom successful adult who likes to tell his troubles to everyone. He is inclined to take the attitude that the world owes him a living rather than hustle after it himself. Quite often, if he has no other audience, he will hunt up a doctor and turn invalid.

Mind and Health
The mind has a peculiar effect upon health.

Children who have been cry-baby dependents and selfish adolescents, left suddenly without the prop of parental solicitude often have astonished their friends by stoically accepting the responsibility of their own existence and developing character traits far superior to anything that could have been hoped for had the emergency not occurred.

Try to train children away from crying for things. Try to teach them just a little of what the Spartan women exacted from their sons. And try to break the habit of being sorry for themselves. It is fatal to character.

EARLY PLANNING ASSURES SEASON OF RICH COLORS

By ROMAIN B. WARE

This is the season of the year to plant new perennial borders and to make over the old ones. Borders have taken the place of the old-fashioned flower beds and it is not considered good taste to plant things out in the center of the lawn area. The lawn should be left open as a foil for the borders that surround it. Many of our yards are small. If they are cluttered up with flower beds—no matter how beautiful the flowers may be—they are spoiled.

Nearly all of the hardy flowers may be planted in the fall and then they are all ready to start growth early in the spring. Sections where the winters are very severe are an exception and there planting is best deferred till spring.

The general rule is to plant the outer edges of the property and leave the center open. At the extreme edge of property line there should be a fence; inside of that should be planted a screen of shrubbery as a background and in front of this, where they will show off to the best advantage, plant the flowers.

The perennial border is not made up strictly of perennial flowers, but should contain a great variety of things so that it will have masses of color at all times during the growing season. Bulbs are needed for early spring, a variety of perennials for later bloom, and in midsummer the annuals are indispensable to make gay masses of color.

The true measure of the successful border is that it shall have good masses of color throughout all of the season. This is not an easy thing to do and it is well worth your careful study. There are two books, found in many of the public libraries that will help you: "Studies in Gardening," by Arthur Clutton-Brock and "Color Schemes for the Flower Garden," by Gertrude Jekyll.

DUMMY'S POTENTIAL TRICKS
How to make the most from the dummy hand is the subject of the following illustrations. Notice how often a chance for a finesse occurs and how, by planning on the next two or three plays, you often can acquire an extra trick.

Assume in each case that west leads any small card less than a 10. Holding each of the following hands, you, the declarer, should play from the dummy as explained after each illustration:

Dummy holds clubs K 5; declarer holds clubs J 4 3.
Play low and you will be sure to win a trick in the club suit. Distribute the remaining clubs in any manner you choose and if you follow this procedure you are sure to win a trick no matter where the Ace and Queen of clubs are located.

Dummy holds clubs J 7; declarer holds A 4.
Play the Jack of spades. This is the only possible way to make three tricks. If east holds the Queen of spades and covers with it on the first round you can only win two tricks. If west holds the Queen of spades, you are sure of winning three tricks.

Dummy holds hearts K 8; declarer holds hearts Q 4 3.
At no trump play the King of hearts and in a suit declaration, east will probably play the Ace of hearts on the first round if he holds it and you will then be sure to make the King and Queen of hearts good.

Dummy holds diamonds K J 6; declarer holds diamonds 8 4 3.
Play the King of diamonds. It gives you the best opportunity to make two tricks. If west holds the Ace, you will be sure to make both the King and Queen of diamonds good.

Dummy holds clubs J 5; declarer holds clubs K 10 6.
Play the 5 of clubs. East will probably cover with the Queen or Ace of clubs and you will be sure to make two tricks.

Dummy holds spades Q 8 6; declarer holds spades A 4.
Play the 6 of spades. East will probably cover with the King or Jack of spades. Two or three tricks may be made by you.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUE INER

Twila has rented the town's one every day. But Twila had ambitions. She ought to be in a bigger city, she explained—make a name for herself—meet the "right people, live a fuller life.

That was ten years ago. In the years between Twila's parents have died, the old house has been sold, and here she is back again, living alone in the town's one "garden apartment," which is nothing but some rooms made in the upstairs of an old barn set in the midst of a huge orchard.

The orchard is next door to Twila's old home. She wanted it, she said, because the old home had been sold; she couldn't live there, and she had been hungry for years for the pear and walnut tree that she used to see from her window at night.

Nothing seems to have any value for Twila now which does not relate to the "old days." She will not admit that remorse enters into her mood. But she says she made a wrong choice—that the sweet security and contentment and continuity of family life with its understandings and really vital interest in one another's welfare is worth infinitely more than all the things for which she passed it up.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL
by World Famed Authority

FRESH AIR HAS HELPFUL EFFECT ON WHOLE BODY
This is the concluding article of a series of three on tuberculosis.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In an exceedingly valuable and up-to-date manual for the tuberculous called "Rules for Recovery from Tuberculosis," Dr. Lawrason Brown considers the various questions related to climate and fresh air.

The fresh air treatment for tuberculosis was developed in the last half of the nineteenth century. It is now being realized that the fresh air is taken not primarily for the lung, but for its general effect on the whole body.

Keeping Outdoors
Doctor Brown is not convinced that sleeping outdoors materially hastens recovery, provided eight to 10 hours a day, preferably during the daylight, are spent in the open air and the night passed in a well ventilated room.

On the other hand, when a person works all day indoors, sleeping outdoors at night may be considered as a necessity. A man outdoors gets 100 times more fresh air than he could get in the best ventilated room in any given period of time.

During the summer windows are kept open, fresh air is everywhere and patients with all sorts of diseases do well. With the first breath of autumn, houses are closed, except for brief daily airings.

The patients do fairly well until about Christmas, when confinement indoors begins to tell. By the following spring, patients with tuberculosis, particularly begin to break down.

Many Devices
All sorts of window tents, sleeping porches, verandas, sleeping chairs and similar apparatus have been devised to enable the person who requires much fresh air to get it easily.

Because of the associated climatic conditions, the fresh air treatment, like any other, is best taken under the advice of some one who has given special study to the matter.

SCORCH STAINS
If you scorch an article rub soap on the scorched place and put out in the sun. Next cover with a thin mixture of starch and water and put in the sun. Alternate several times if the spot is stubborn. It will come out easily.

FLUFFY POTATOES
No dish is lovelier than really fluffy mashed potatoes. Drain boiled potatoes thoroughly, heat a little, then mash thoroughly. Beat milk hot and mix in, little at a time. Finally beat with a fork while over the flame. Add butter last.

PICTURE FRAMES
Modish right now are the very narrow picture frames that are painted the same color as the woodwork or furniture. There may be a pair of green frames and a pair of orange ones in a single room.

The Food For All Ages—MILK

A ample reward for years of healthful living, when grandfather and grandmother can tell the youngsters that plenty of exercise, sleep, and right foods have done to keep them well and happy. Milk and its products revive tired bodies and help to keep cheeks rosy and eyes sparkling.

You, too, can know the animation, the vigor and vitality that comes from regular use of milk in your diet. Order milk and cream for breakfast and for dinner. Use more milk in cooking supper. Let children who need food oftener than at meal time have milk for mid-morning or afternoon. A quart a day for every child, and at least a pint for every adult, is recommended by all leading dietary authorities.

LETTER GOLF

PUZZLING STORY BOOKS
You don't have to be an author to write STORY BOOKS. Just write a few words in the magic language of letter golf and you're all finished. Par today is seven, but perhaps you can beat the solution on another page.

Table with columns for letters and rows for puzzle solutions. Includes 'STORY' and 'BOOKS' sections.

THE RULES
1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change, COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

LIGHTS CIGARETTE, HITS MAN ON ROAD

Boy Driver's Carelessness Sends Manchester Printer to Hospital.

Negligent automobile driving on the part of a sixteen-year-old Hartford boy was the cause of Walter J. Dunn, 24, of 23 Hamlin street, Manchester, being badly injured and taken to St. Francis' hospital in Hartford.

Mr. Dunn, who is a night linotype operator in the Springfield Republican newspaper office, was on his way to visit friends on Vine street in Hartford and stopped beside the road to change a tire which had been punctured.

The Manchester man, who was alone at the time, was in the act of making the change when he was struck by an automobile operated by Benjamin Sind of 140 Enfield street and dragged several yards.

Dunn was unconscious when picked up and taken to the hospital by the driver who had struck him.

The accident was caused by the fact that the youthful driver was lighting a cigarette and did not have his eyes on the road at the time.

TAKE LICENSES OF DRIVERS TO FARMS

Glenny and Massey Set Afoot by Auto Bureau While Test Case Pends.

The state motor vehicle commissioner has suspended the drivers' licenses of Clayton Massey and Christopher Glenny, who have been driving trucks used in transporting boys and girls to and from tobacco farms in Vernon and Ellington.

pected that any action would be taken toward suspension of the drivers' licenses.

The campaign was started as a result of the accident on the Rockville-Falcutville road late in July when an automobile truck driven by Joseph Radville of Hartford, carrying it, is claimed, over fifty passengers, overturned and caught fire, resulting in the death of a Manchester boy and two from Hartford.

He has elected to be tried by judges rather than by a jury and Judge Edward M. Yeomans has set the date of trial for this month.

The action of the motor vehicle commission in suspending the licenses of the two local men, at least, prevents them from following their regular vocations.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

MM! SNIFF 'EM! A scientist the other day told a meeting of chemists that presently synthetic perfumes would wholly displace those made from flowers—that the great perfume flower growing industry was doomed.

Get in the car early some morning and drop over to Pinehurst just when we are opening up. Come in as the door is unlocked and get that perfectly wonderful blend of perfumes from melons, peaches, pears, apples, bananas!

And speaking of apples, the Gravensteins are in. Wonderful for eating "as is" and for sauce. Also the celebrated Worthy apples for cooking.

Let us remind you, in this fruit relation, to phone your order for those Elberta peaches, sure to be in in a few days.

Most folks are watching their meat bills pretty closely these days—and why not? Yours will be lower if you take advantage of some of the economy items we are offering, such as dried beef at 20 cents the quarter, 39 cents the half pound; Pinehurst Hamberg at 30 cents; Pinehurst round ground, 49 cents; ribs of corned beef; beef liver and bacon—we have an excellent sliced bacon at 39 cents.

You will want the expensive cuts sometimes, of course—and Pinehurst steaks and oven roasts and chops are, as you know, the finest. But on cool days especially it is good sense as well as good living to use something a bit lower in price.

Let us rise to remark, too, that tomorrow (Thursday) Pinehurst will be fully supplied with a big-line of fresh fish right off the New England fishing fleet smacks. Can't tell all the items tonight, but you can be sure there won't be one that isn't sound and firm and sweet—and mighty good.
