

AL CONFIDENT MONTANA VOTE IS FOR PARTY

To Start Now After the La Follette Independents; Senator Walsh and Wheel- er Assisting Smith.

Helena, Mont., Sept. 25.—Governor Smith turned eastward today in high hopes that the great goal of his western venture—the winning of the old La Follette independent vote of 1924 in the north-west—has been achieved.

The governor himself made no claims, but he appeared confident. His confidence was based primarily upon assurances of old La Follette lieutenants, including Senator Burton K. Wheeler, who ran with "Fighting Bob," that his speeches on farm relief, the power trust, and his slashing attacks on religious intolerance and the Republican record of the past seven years, have solidified the Progressive vote of the northwest behind his candidacy.

However other states in the northwest go in November, Democratic leaders are supremely confident of Montana. Their confidence appears justified, for the Democratic organization there in this normally independent state is functioning smoothly and efficiently. Both Senators Walsh and Wheeler are sponsoring Gov. Smith in his public appearances in the state. Senator Wheeler introduced Gov. Smith to his Helena audience here last night, and Senator Walsh led five thousand people in applause at the conclusion of the speech. Both will travel with the Smith Special, as far as St. Paul according to present plans.

Walsh For Smith
Senator Walsh gave further evidence of his whole-hearted support of his pre-convention rival in a statement broadcast throughout Montana simultaneously with Gov. Smith's arrival in the state.

It was entitled "Ten Reasons Why I am Supporting Gov. Smith." There were several indirect allu-

SEN. EDWARDS RAPS MRS. WILLEBRANDT

Says She Should Be Driven From Office for Breaking Oath of Office.

New York, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt "should be asked to resign her position as assistant attorney-general by both President Coolidge and his attorney-general, Mr. Sargent," United States Senator Edward I. Edwards, of New Jersey, a Democrat, declared in a scorching statement made public today.

"She should be driven from office," said Senator Edwards who accuses the woman dry prosecutor of fostering bigotry and breaking her oath of office.

Mrs. Willebrandt is now in Ohio engaged in making a series of anti-Smith political speeches.

Senator Edwards said that Mrs. Willebrandt's speech last Sunday night before the northeast Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was a disgrace to the department of which she is a part.

"If the Department of Justice is not a mockery of the very thing for which it was instituted—fairness and justice to all men—Mrs. Willebrandt should be driven from office so that she might spread her poisonous anti-Smith propaganda unsupported by the present Republican administration."

His Accusation
Edwards accused Mrs. Willebrandt, the Anti-Saloon League "and the intolerant elements to which she is appealing for aid and succor of the Hoover ticket" of starting the "whispering campaign" which Gov. Al Smith recently denounced in a speech at Oklahoma City. He said the country was flooded months ago with "venomous and untrue pamphlets attacking Gov. Smith's character" and that they were prepared "by bigots and intolerant of the lowest stripe."

Charging that Mrs. Willebrandt has violated her oath of office, Edwards said:

"Because of her activities since the Kansas City convention, Mrs. Willebrandt has consistently violated the spirit and letter of the bill of rights—the very instrument which she promised to honor and uphold when she took the oath of office of assistant attorney-general and has dragged religion and the Churches into politics. Her actions and her words attacking the honesty and integrity of Gov. Smith will receive the condemnation of every decent element in America."

RADIO NOW BEING USED TO LIGHT STREET LAMPS

Boston, Sept. 25.—A radio broadcasting and reception scheme was introduced here today in turning on and off street lights.

The Boston Edison Company began the new method on seventy lights along the southern artery.

Radio waves are sent over wires from the Dorchester sub-station to the lamps. In the base of each lamp post is a "receiving set" tuned to pick up the waves. The operator in the sub-station simply presses a button to turn on or off the seventy street lights.

ASSESSORS SEEK SALARY OF $1,000

Will Ask Town Meeting to Approve Increase; Select- ment in Special Session.

S. Emil Johnson, chairman of the board of assessors, and Samuel Nelson, clerk, appeared before the Selectmen at a special meeting last night and asked the Board to insert a clause in the annual town meeting call calling for an increase in the salary of the assessors. Mr. Johnson was the spokesman for the assessors and he made it clear that none of the members of the present board cared to do the work required at the present salary. The Selectmen inserted a clause in the town call which is published today which puts the matter of a salary increase squarely before the voters.

Want $1,000
The assessors are at present being paid $500 a year. They have no permanent clerk, but each year since the Linder system of assessments was installed Samuel Nelson, one of the best-touted and clearest-headed assessors, has been hired as a clerk to get the books ready for fall assessments. Now the assessors are asking for $1,000 a year, and they also want to have the town put on a permanent clerk to take care of the books.

The Selectmen did not vote last night to make any recommendations to the town meeting in regard to the assessors' request. There is some difference of opinion within the Board of Selectmen about the amount that the assessors should receive but the Selectmen as a board prefers to leave the question for the voters to decide.

Hearings
A dozen property owners on Homestead street in the Homestead Park section appeared before the Selectmen last night for a sidewalk hearing. All favored sidewalks and curbing. The decision was tabled by the board until a complete investigation of grades in that section can be made. Building and veranda lines on Kerry street were established to allow for improvement of the street.

Street Repairs
Assessments for the construction of walks and curbing on Fairview street were laid without opposition last night as were those for Bridge street. David McCollum and a group of property owners on the upper end of Florence street asked that the highway be repaired. There was a difference of opinion between the property owners and Town Engineer Bowen whether that portion of Florence street had been accepted by the town, but the Selectmen referred the matter to the highway committee.

Clarence Jeffers appeared before the board asking for additional pumps at the Love Lane Filling station. The map Mr. Jeffers presented was taken for correction by the town engineer and the application will then be forwarded to the state motor vehicle department. W. Harry England of Manchester Green presented a map of his property for a building site on the former Hewitt Coburn estate in Manchester Green. The layout was accepted.

Head Of Turkish Republic Is Modern In Every Way

London, Sept. 25.—"He freed women from the harem and put a cease into the trousers of Turkey." This might be the epitaph of Mustafa Kemal Pasha, as he is described by Miss Grace Ellison, the traveler, in her book, "Turkey Today."

Mustapha Kemal has shattered all the terrors that clung around the life of the old Ottoman empire. He has:

OVER-SPECULATION HITS SECURITIES, BANKER SAYS

Prices Are Too High at Present, Sisson Warns; Public Buying of Stocks Has Gone Too Far.

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor.
New York, Sept. 25.—The American public is over-speculating in the security markets; stock prices are too high, measured by the rigid yard-stick of current corporation earnings and income yields; bankers and conservative business men have been sounding a warning against the present tendencies in the stock markets, which are running strongly to the speculative, rather than common sense investment type, according to Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, one of the best-touted and clearest-thinking banker-economists in the United States.

In making these statements he pointed out that while business last year ran ahead of the stock market, the situation in 1928 has been sharply reversed, and the stock market has so far outstripped business as to cause considerable concern to those who have the best interests of the country at heart.

"There is no question that public buying of stocks has gone too far," said Sisson, in discussing this important subject today. "Prices of many stocks have been boosted beyond the level where they can be sustained by present earnings or income returns to investors. This is not an investors' market we have today; but a speculators' market, liquidation of stocks will doubtless bring about the restoration of values as well as release millions of dollars of bank and corporation money now tied up in the so-called brokers' loans."

Finances Sound.
Sisson hastened to point out, however, that seldom in the nation's history were fundamental financial and industrial economic conditions any sounder than they are today. Neither is there any question as to the ability of most lines of business, at the proper time, to pay their obligations. He pointed out that the public buying of stocks has gone too far, and that the market is now in a speculative phase.

WHOLE NATION MOURNS OVER MADRID'S TRAGEDY

Over 100 Burned to Death and 350 Injured in Fire and Panic in Theater.

Madrid, Sept. 25.—Funeral services were conducted today for most of the victims of Novedades theater horror. The ruins are still being searched for additional bodies and it is not definitely known how great the toll will be. Many of the injured are in critical condition and may die. It is certain that the death list will be more than 100. There are more than 350 injured in hospitals.

Members of the government attended the funeral service. Flags are still at half mast throughout the city.

The whole kingdom is in mourning. Numerous stories of heroism are being told. A girl stood in suffocating smoke holding her electric torch in her hand to guide panic-stricken men and women to an exit. She finally collapsed and was burned to death.

REQUESTS POURING IN FOR HOOVER SPEECHES

G. O. P. Standard Bearer to Make Four on His Way to Pacific Coast During Clos- ing Days of Campaign.

Washington, Sept. 25.—Responding to a deluge of requests from party leaders all over the country, Herbert Hoover will deliver a number of prepared speeches during the last ten days of the campaign, while on his way home to vote, it was learned today.

The Republican nominee will leave Washington about October 26, enroute to Stanford University, Cal., to set an example for the rest of America by voting in his own campaign. His advisers have just begun consideration of his itinerary and it probably will not be announced until just prior to his departure. A score of cities in a dozen states have invited the nominee to pay them a visit.

Plans Four Speeches
Hoover probably will make four speeches on the trip home. At this time, his advisers favor Indianapolis, Chicago or St. Paul, Minneapolis or St. Paul and Denver as the best points for their delivery.

The nominee in addition will close his campaign with another speech in San Francisco, either on the Saturday or the Monday preceding the election. This speech will be broadcast into every state of the Union.

Some of the Hoover managers have urged him to invade the border states on his way home with a stop either in Louisville, Ky., or in St. Louis. If he should visit Louisville, he undoubtedly will make one of his set speeches in Chicago in preference to a stop in St. Louis. If he does not visit St. Louis, there is a possibility he will then visit St. Louis.

To Tour East
The Republican nominee likewise is considering an extension of his campaign in the east. He has received dozens of invitations but at the outset of the campaign, he announced he would make but four speeches in the east. He delivered one at Newark, the second is scheduled for Elizabeth, Tenn., on October 6 while he will visit New York City on October 17 and Boston the following week.

The Hoover strategists have decided on the interim between October 6 and 17. They have told him that a silence over eleven days in the heat of the campaign is poor politics and may hurt his chances for election. As a result, he probably will speak somewhere in the north during the week of October 7 to 12. Baltimore may get this assignment, although Detroit and Cleveland have been suggested.

The nominee meanwhile worked upon his Elizabeth, Tenn., speech. He will leave here late the night of Friday, October 5, stop at Bristol, Tenn., the next morning and arrive in Elizabeth on time for lunch. He will be the guest of honor at a historical pageant there at 2 p. m. and will deliver his speech at 3 p. m. After his speech, he will motor to Johnson City, visit the old soldiers' home there and board his train for the return trip to Washington.

HANSON CASE BEFORE JURY.
Lockport, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The case involving two Coast Guardsmen in the fatal shooting of Jacob D. Hanson was on the calendar for presentation to the Grand Jury here today. District Attorney Knowles said he expected indictments to be returned charging Frank Beck and Glenn Jennings with manslaughter or murder.

The Coast Guardsmen are now under indictment for second degree assault brought before Hanson succumbed to his wounds. The chief question for the Grand Jury to decide, Knowles said today, is the degree of the indictment.

The case attracted nationwide attention last summer when Hanson was shot down by the patrol officers who were engaged in an anti-liquor smuggling campaign. Hanson died in the hospital here several weeks after the shooting.

Noted Explorer Picks Up Miss Bennett on Radio as He Sails for Anarctic.

New York, Sept. 25.—The singing voice of his fiancée, Suzanne Bennett, is following George H. Wilkins to the South Pole.

On his ship, "Southern Cross," the noted explorer was able to pick up the two songs sung to him Sunday night by Miss Bennett over Station WHN, he said in a radio received by her today. The songs were "For a Boy Like You" and "Twilight."

Wilkins is on his way to the Antarctic to fly over the South Pole. The "Southern Cross" carries a powerful radio over which he is able to hear the songs which his fiancée will continue to sing to him over Station WHN.

Miss Bennett and the explorer announced their engagement shortly before the latter sailed.

MAIL COURTSHIP ENDS IN TRAGEDY

Boston Woman Slain With Hatchet in Washington State, Sought Husband.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 25.—A transcontinental journey to the end of a rainbow, in the spectrum of which she thought she saw a $100,000 husband and a honeymoon in Europe, ended in death by a hatchet in a deserted prune orchard near Spokane, Wash., for Mrs. Catherine Clark, 33-year-old Greater Boston divorcee.

Left behind in her mad chase for wealth, Burton E. Hall, her Boston sweetheart, a local watchmaker, today mourned her passing. Her divorced husband is in a hospital and does not know of her ill-starred trip.

Friends in Boston today told of the across-the-continent matrimonial adventure of the former Laura McGrath, sister of Mrs. Verónica Fitzgerald, of Norwalk, Conn., and friend of Mrs. Ruth Levine, 2353 Indiana avenue, Chicago.

Mail Courtship
Through the Mrs. Warn Matrimonial Agency of Los Angeles, Mrs. Clark began a "mail courtship" with James R. Murphy, 2217 East Hartshorn avenue, Spokane. Murphy, according to Hall and others, claimed to have in trust a $100,000 fortune. There was a clause in the will of the relative who left the trust fund that he must marry at a certain age and have the equivalent of $11,000 before he could claim the fortune. Murphy had $9,000 and Mrs. Clark was to bring the balance.

She was to have a wedding gift of $10,000 and a honeymoon in Europe.

DOES NOT WANT TO BE TAKEN BACK TO FACE MURDER CHARGE.

Vancover, B. C., Sept. 25.—Gordon Stewart Northcott, Los Angeles "Ape Man" and alleged slayer of children, being held here as the Riverside "murder farm" suspect, was today released by provincial police at Oakalla prison only to be re-arrested by the Dominion of Canada on a provincial warrant issued on demand of the United States charging murder.

At the same time, it was reported, similar action was being taken against Mrs. Louise Northcott, mother of the accused slayer.

The move signified that the Canadian governor general had honored President Coolidge's request transmitted through Secretary of State Kellogg, that the Northcotts, mother and son, be formally held for extradition to California, the scene of Northcott's alleged inhuman butcheries.

Issues Statement
From his prison cell here the youthful owner of the reputed "murder farm" is directing a desperate battle to prevent his extradition. Through his attorney, Frank Lyons, Northcott issued the following statement:

"If the California authorities are still determined to prosecute me on such ridiculous grounds, yet terrible charges, I am determined to do everything under heaven to Springfield Reporters Tell How Raymond and Lalone Looked in Police Court.

Willimantic, Conn., Sept. 25.—The state today objected to remarks made by Judge E. M. Yeomans, presiding over the Superior Court session that is trying Albert J. Raymond and Roland G. Lalone, of Worcester, for the murder of State Trooper Irving H. Nelson, of New Haven, at Pomfret last April.

Yeoman's declaration that the state's procedure in one instance today had been unethical. Then Mr. Harvey filed an exception to Judge Yeoman's decision on the point.

The case was heard during the states presentation of rebuttal witnesses, with Jacob Nabich, a Springfield grocer, on the stand. Nabich declared he recognized Lalone as having been in his store on March 24, past. He saw Lalone in the Springfield police station later.

"Lalone had a gun," Nabich said, in answer to a question by the state. The defense objected strenuously. Judge Yeoman then lectured the state and declared the question was "unethical."

A group of Springfield residents who are connected with the city court here were witnesses for the state today. They included George W. Bicknell and Patrick J. Fenton, lieutenants of detectives; Bernard J. Smith, chief probation officer; Richard S. Bellows, prosecuting attorney; James F. McPhee, for twenty years police reporter for the Springfield Union; and Frank H. Kelly, police reporter for the Springfield News.

The entire group declared that they did not see any signs of violence on the persons of either Lalone or Raymond when the pair were arraigned in police court on April 11, last.

The two reporters declared that Attorney Moynihan, of the defense, had called their attention to a statement to the effect that "the boys had been abused" and could use it in their newspapers if they desired. Both reporters said they replied they could see no signs of the boys having been ill-treated, that there were no marks on them.

Captain William T. Fineraz, of the Worcester police, was the first of the rebuttal witnesses today. He described Henry Clouthier, whose name had previously been brought into the case as resembling Raymond. Clouthier, the Worcester policeman, said, was about five feet seven inches tall, weighed 174 pounds, had light hair and light blue eyes.

Attorney Moynihan called attention to the fact that this description had been printed in newspapers in Worcester. The captain declared, in answer to a question, that he did not give out the description.

With the discussion about Nabich's testimony the court took a recess at noon.

rope. Drawing her money from local banks and a bank in Stamford, Conn., Mrs. Clark started west on her "great adventure" September 17th. She stopped with Mrs. Levine, Chicago enroute to Spokane, and that was the last heard from her.

Murphy had asked Mrs. Clark to bring with her the ten letters he wrote her and his photograph. She was understood to have left them in a local safe deposit box but they have disappeared.

Mrs. Clark, who carried $1,670 with her, had telegraphed her husband-to-be her seat and berth numbers on the Chicago-Spokane train. She wore jewelry, which included a wrist watch, string of pearls, two stone pearl ring, an amethyst ring set in chip diamonds and a green stone ring. Robbery was believed to have been the motive for the murder.

Hall, who read the Murphy letters, said today that the writer claimed to be a native of Ontario and a college graduate. Murphy promised to introduce Mrs. Clark to his "best friend" Archie F. Moch, and Murphy's sister in Couer D'Alene, Idaho. Moch according to word from Spokane has been arrested in Connecticut with the slaying in mind.

Following her divorce from Ralph A. Clark in 1924, Mrs. Clark and a local man but discovered that he was married, after she had loaned him a sum of money.

Among those who attended the Springfield Fair Thursday were Mr. and Mrs. George Merritt, Sherman Bishop, Mrs. Allen Helmer and two daughters, Miss Helen Jewett and Miss Ila Hamilton.

The local Chapter of the Red Cross today sent twenty-four bags which are to be distributed to American sailors and soldiers in the United States service in foreign waters and in foreign lands, the bags to be distributed as Christmas presents.

Each chapter of the Red Cross throughout the country was requested to prepare and ship such bags and the allotment for Manchester was twenty-four. Each bag contains twelve different articles, a pocketknife, nail clipper, harmonica, two handkerchiefs, a tube of shaving soap, a tooth brush, a tube of tooth paste, an ever-sharp pencil, a writing tablet, envelopes and a pack of playing cards.

H. I. Rosenblum and Clarence Ketcham attended the Democratic Congressional convention in Norwich Saturday as delegates. Mrs. Katie Mitten and Miss Sara Rosenblum also attended the convention.

Rev. Russell O'Brien preached a very interesting sermon Sunday morning taking for his text: "The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath." In the evening at the Christian Endeavor meeting for special music Mr. O'Brien played two selections on a Hawaiian guitar. Next Sunday services will begin at 10:45 a. m. standard time and 7 o'clock in the evening standard time.

There was a family reunion held at the home of Mrs. Dennis Keefe, Sunday. There were forty-two relatives present from Middletown, Hampton, Chester, Willimantic, Hebron and Gilead.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamilton had for their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Waldron and children Paul and Shirley, Miss Helen Hamilton and Arvine Fyda all of Hartford.

"Because there ought to be a general housecleaning in Washington—not to be expected from one who, closely associated with Fall, Douglas, 'Lutes, Miller and DeLoz, was never moved to utter a word concerning their villainy—either before or after they were exposed."

Another of the reasons was: "Because I prefer one who has been repeatedly honored by the State so far as Manchester is concerned."

SMITH FLINGS DIRT

This campaign has nearly six weeks to go and the Democratic party is bankrupt already. Not in money by any means—there never was a time when there was such lavish supplies of that commodity in that quarter—but in argument.

Governor Smith's great crusade into the west has produced three stellar efforts. The first, at Omaha, consisted of a flagrant bid for support on religious grounds.

The second, at Denver, consisted of a plea for government ownership of great waterpowers—a proper enough subject for political campaign discussion but rendered worthless by his attributing to Candidate Hoover intentions, with regard to that question, having not a grain of justification outside the imagination of the speaker.

The third, at Helena, was a rehearsal of a dead and gone scandal six years old, of which his party did not know enough to take advantage in 1924 and which has been washed clean by a Republican administration long since; combined with a childish attempt to link the personality of Mr. Hoover with the oil swindlers.

Instead of repudiating the absurd charge brought by Senator Caraway that Hoover was associated with Albert Fall and Sinclair in the Teapot Dome deal, as he would instantly have done had he any true sense of political effects, Smith has descended into the same dog-wallow with Caraway and has resorted to the shallowest of slanders.

Because Herbert Hoover was a member of the cabinet when Fall conducted his secret sale of Teapot Dome, Smith attempts to pin guilt of that transaction upon him, though the oil leases notoriously never became a cabinet question and Hoover's department had no more to do with them than the man in the moon.

Smith ought to know better, just as a politician, to say nothing of the dishonor of the proceeding, than to try this sort of dirt slinging. The complete failure of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's attempt to besmirch Smith himself, by charging him with responsibility for the Albany baseball pool, should have shown how difficult it is to weaken an opponent by such attacks.

Yet in a very real sense the governor of the state of New York is responsible for the maintenance of law and order in that commonwealth, while in no sense whatever is the secretary of commerce responsible for the proceedings of the department of the interior, or even aware of what goes on in that department.

"Do you expect me to be a policeman?" was Smith's reply to the baseball pool charges.

And this is the man who attempts to smear the record of Herbert Hoover with a stain of oil because he did not know that thieves were at work far away from his job and his responsibilities.

Smith's eleven car special train, with its traveling propaganda bureau, its general staff and its army of publicists, is producing amazingly tawdry results.

bulletins every few minutes. The Times had been pretty darned sure that Hancock was going to be elected, because in the last election before, in 1876, the Democrats had polled a quarter of a million more votes than the Republicans throughout the country, and Connecticut had gone for Tilden, the Democrat, even if Hayes did squeeze in by one electoral vote after the row over the returns of Florida, Louisiana and South Carolina.

"Well, it wasn't long before the had news began to come into the Times office. One vital state after another was reported conceded to Garfield. And along in the shank of the evening the Times put up this bulletin—it's a long time ago but I remember it as clear as if it was yesterday:

"The campaign of 1880 has resulted disastrously for the Democratic party. Garfield is elected and the jig is up." Then the lights in the Times office windows went out and the editors and other folks went home and to bed."

Well they might, for that election was a long way from being close in electoral votes. Garfield got 314 and Hancock 155. Yet as a matter of fact Garfield's plurality over the splendid old soldier who had been dragged into politics was hardly more than seven thousand in the popular vote of the country.

In which fact there is something of a lesson for those optimistic souls who imagine that a big vote for the Democratic candidate in two or three eastern states is going to carry him into the White House. It would take 256 electoral votes to make Governor Smith President, and there is no way of figuring out any such number to his credit.

Perhaps the Times' has that old bulletin in its archives. If so it might point out the name of Garfield, write in the name of Hoover and have it all ready to announce that "the jig is up" on the night of November 6.

A CONTRAST

Harry M. Glen of Newburyport, Mass., whom we do not know but for whom we propose three rousing cheers, writes a letter with a "sock" in it to the New York Herald Tribune. The sock lands on Jimmy Walker, but Jimmy, under the impact, bounds against Governor Smith with a thud. Says Mr. Glen:

Mayor Walker's speech in Newark, N. J., with the "wisecrack" that "Alfred E. Smith was elected Governor of New York state the year Herbert Hoover cast his first vote," brought forth "great applause." There could not have been many members of the American Legion in that crowd.

It might be well to remind Mayor Walker that while Alfred E. Smith was holding down a soft political job as Sheriff of New York with fees and salary of $42,000 a year, Herbert Hoover was enlisted in war work without salary and paying his own expenses in sending 400,000 stranded Americans home from Europe and saving millions of innocent women and children and noncombatants all over Europe from starving to death. No single individual in the Allied cause accomplished more for humanity than Herbert Hoover.

We shall make no futile attempt to improve on what the Herald Tribune says in connection with this letter. It is as follows:

Our correspondent is essentially correct in his statements. Mr. Hoover threw up his career as an engineer in August, 1914, and gave his services to aiding the return of Americans stranded abroad. From that task he went directly into the vast undertaking of feeding the Belgian nation. Mr. Smith was elected Sheriff in the fall of 1915 and served two years in that lucrative job, the prize plum which Tammany could offer a faithful son of Fourteenth Street. The salary was $12,000, the fees—since abolished—were about $30,000. Throughout those two years Mr. Hoover was carrying food into Belgium, against the opposition of governments, despite the perils of a mine-infested Channel.

Mr. Smith had a right to get his own activity during the war, but his friends have no right to slur Mr. Hoover in praising that choice. As a matter of fact, there are few chapters of the war in which Americans take more pride than Mr. Hoover's freely given services to the stricken peoples of Europe.

LIQUOR FOR FLORIDA

We have been waiting to observe the reaction, upon some of the darest of our dry friends, of the news that Mrs. Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney-general in charge of prohibition, responded favorably to the urgent request of the Red Cross officials that the government provide a supply of liquor for use among the ill and injured in the stricken areas in Florida. She telegraphed to United States marshals at Jacksonville and Miami instructions to turn over all seized liquors in their possession and subject to disposal by United States authorities.

Of course this action on the part of Mrs. Willebrandt was the only conceivable right one in the circumstances. If she had refused to comply with the appeal she would have been inhuman.

Nevertheless it would be interesting to know whether or not there is any warrant under the law governing the disposal of alcoholic liquors—which is the Volstead act—for the course pursued. The Volstead act is a long and tussy document and it is not at the moment within reach of this desk. But if it contains any provision for mass distribution of liquor, even in such a crisis as the Florida catastrophe, it escapes our memory. We feel, in fact, almost sure that Mrs. Willebrandt was compelled to break the law when she released that seized liquor to help save the lives of the stricken food refugees.

If she did break the law, all credit to her. But how about the law which would, under strict interpretation and enforcement, penalize such an act of the commonest humanity? If she found it necessary to break it in this instance of great public extremity is it not to be argued that there is something radically wrong with the law itself?

POLES FOR HOOVER

While the Herald is not impressed by the validity or importance of the organization of racial or nationalistic political groups in America, as it has frequently stated, there is nevertheless some measure of significance in the determination of the Polish-American political clubs of New England to support Herbert Hoover for the Presidency. This determination was reached after apparently serious consideration of the political situation by a regular convention held at Springfield, and following nearly three hours of debate.

Connecticut Polish-American clubs had already reached the determination to support Hoover and lent the strength of their support to the Hoover movement in the convention, where certain of the delegations from other New England points were inclined to favor Smith.

Connecticut Poles do not find it easy to forget that Herbert Hoover, as head of the American Relief Administration, was responsible for the defeat of famine and the conquering of the great typhus epidemic in Poland in 1919; that due to his genius and his marvelous capacity for organization millions of Polish children, orphaned, lost and wretched, were rescued.

The contact of the Polish people of New England with their native country is too recent for them to have forgotten how much of gratitude their homeland owes to the great man who is now the Republican candidate for the Presidency. The action of the Springfield convention is evidently something more than such endorsements usually amount to.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 24. — At the entrance to Central Park there sits each day, when the sun is out and the crowds are out for a stroll, an interesting old chap in knickerbockers with a cap over his eyes to shut out the sun. A sketch pad is in his hand and, as young couples pass, he offers to make a sketch of the pretty miss. For a little money he will begin to draw, and a very good drawing he will make, too. He is about 30 years of age and was looked upon as one of the city's most promising artists. Some of the great critics of the time wrote of his work. The age-worned clippings are always with him.

One is always stumbling over some sidewalk on life, such as that of odd bits, here and there. There's the mysterious old rounder who appears almost every Sunday on Fifth Avenue, togged out in the gay raiment of yesterday. His vests are yellow, with checkers adding to the notes; his pants are a faded purple—they once were black with neat stripes; he has a swallowtail coat and a venerable derby; he affects spats and buttons, patent leather shoes. Of course he has a monochle. No one seems to know who he is, though there are tales that he's a bit of an old fellow from the gay nineties; a dandy come upon evil days.

There are the two Wendell sisters, with the world's most valuable back yard, at the corner of Fifth Avenue, just south from the public library. A high fence protects it from view and barbed spikes top it. The fence jets into a fashionable shop. Millions have been offered for this yard, which is rare business property. Yet the sisters, who belong to an old and famous line, will not part with it. The grand old mansion at the corner gives the appearance during most of the year of being abandoned. The high shutters are generally closed. Some say that, now and then, a nice old lady has been seen through a window, sitting at her knitting, with an old-fashioned bonnet upon her white head.

But there, scores of myths have grown up about this place. And there's the nice old lady who takes her canary bird to Sheridan Square each day, places the cage upon a bench and gives it the sun. Dozens gather about, just to hear a bird sing.

There's the bootblack who attracts trade by standing on his head while he shines your shoes. Of course he charges a bit extra for this feat.

There's the seven-foot doorman of an exclusive Fifth Avenue shop who wears a costume of violent purple, decorated in the best millinery fashion.

There's that classic couple of

VIOLET RAY IS NOT ULTRA VIOLET

One of the rays of light given out by the sun is a cold ray which has been found to be very important to the maintenance of all animal life. It is supposed that the larger animals of the Mesozoic age, such as the brontosaurus and dinosaurs were destroyed because this ray was prevented from reaching the earth by heavy clouds of vapor and volcanic ashes. The latest researches of science suggest that these animals probably died from starvation because a disease similar to rickets so weakened them that they were unable to walk in search of food.

This ray has been termed the actinic ray, as well as the ultra-violet ray. It is not the product of the so-called violet ray machines that may be purchased for a few dollars. The apparatus for providing the real ultra violet light costs several hundred dollars. This type of light applied to the skin increases the body's ability to absorb calcium and to metabolize fats, hence its value in bone diseases and wasting disorders, such as anemia and tuberculosis.

Used in a very concentrated form this ray will destroy tissues, and for this reason it is frequently used to remove skin blemishes and infections of the throat. Although this ray is present in sunlight, curiously enough it will not penetrate through glass. It may produce blindness if allowed to shine too intensely directly into the eyes, and for this reason both doctor and patient use special glasses for treating with this ray. It has been manufactured artificially in some types of carbon arc lamps and in mercury quartz lenses.

The actinic ray does not penetrate deeply into the body, its action being principally on the blood passing through the surface capillaries of the skin. Through the use of machines generating this type of ray, doctors are able to administer the exact quantities that they desire the patient to have. By the use of sun bathing this ray will act beneficially upon the body, but one must be careful not to become over-heated or burnt. There is a danger of sunburn from this ray, even though the skin does not become warm, and one should carefully regulate the time of exposure. The ultra violet light has been found an aid in diagnosing measles, since after its use the rash can be discovered from two to three days before the usual time.

Vitamin D, which is now recognized as being of the utmost importance for producing growth in animals, is found only in foods that have been grown in or exposed to sunlight. This vitamin has been produced in larger quantities than normal in the following foods: by exposing them to the action of the ultra violet ray: Cream, olive oil, linseed oil, cotton seed oil, corn oil, wholewheat flour, milk and dried milk, orange juice, yeast, lettuce, spinach and cod liver oil.

Treatment of the skin with this ultra violet light, which may be very destructive if improperly given, should only be under the supervision of your physician.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: G. F. writes: "During the night I am awakened by my left arm aching dreadfully and this ache remains until morning. Could it be caused by poor circulation or lack of exercise, or is it all in my imagination?"

ANSWER: Yes, the aching in your left arm may come from poor circulation, lack of exercise or from over-eating. When such aches come only in the left arm, one must be suspicious of anginal pectoris, which is a serious functional disorder affecting the heart and its arteries.

QUESTION: R. M. writes: "I have received so much help from your health articles and radio talks. You are doing a wonderful job and giving the people a ray of humanity at large. Please tell me, do you advise an operation for enlarged toe joints? I have seen advertisements of a medicine that would dissolve the joint and give an enlargement on the left foot, the big toe. Tell me how to get rid of it."

ANSWER: The operation for an enlarged toe joint is quite a serious one and should not be undertaken if there is any other way you can reduce the inflammation which is causing the swelling. Local treatment and diet should be the same as for chronic rheumatism. Special articles appear from time to time about the cause and cure of this disorder; or I will be glad to send you instructions if you will write me again, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

MERCHANTS' NIGHT

AT STATE TOMORROW

Gifts Now on Display in Store Window—"The Sporting Age," Is Film Feature.

Another of the popular Merchants and State Theater Gift Nights will hold sway at the State Theater tomorrow evening. The gifts, all of them coming from Manchester's live wire business establishments, are now on display in the store window next to the theater.

One of the many presents to be given away is the five-piece breakfast set, consisting of a table and four chairs. This gift comes from Watkins Brothers, Inc.

The film feature for tomorrow only is "The Sporting Age," a thrilling drama of love and intrigue starring Belle Bennett.

There is a great influence of character delineations in this delightful production, every one of which rings true to life. Belle Bennett gives a striking portrayal of the wife, who engages in a clandestine love affair with a clean-cut youth who is swept off his feet by her magnetic personality.

What promises to be a tragedy is averted by the cleverness of the husband, who handles the situation with the spirit of a true sportsman.

The cast of this Columbia picture includes: Holmes Herbert, Carroll Nye, Josephine Borio and Edward Davis. Many thrills and sporting events are introduced into the action.

A pleasing variety of State Short Subjects will be shown in conjunction with the feature attraction. Thursday and Friday brings to the State, William Boyd in his latest starring vehicle, "Sky-Scraper," and Billie Dove in "The Night Watch."

"DANCING DAUGHTERS"

AT STATE TONIGHT

Drama of Modern Youth Drawing Large Crowds to Local Playhouse.

"Our Dancing Daughters," the ultra-modern drama of today's younger generation, will have its concluding performance at the State Theater tonight. Joan Crawford is starred in the production, supported by Anita Page, Johnny Mack Brown and Dorothy Sebastian.

Since its initial performance in Manchester, this picture has attracted much comment, with the results that large crowds have been attracted to the theater.

Besides being a photoplay that is filled with exquisite beauty and charm, "Our Dancing Daughters" is a picture that will leave a lasting impression on all who see it. The subject of the story itself, is one that deals with nationally-known problems. Every fact is made clear throughout the plot in a poignant and thrilling manner.

Harry Beaumont, one of the world's greatest directorial geniuses, was responsible for the direction and has turned out an excellent piece of work. The story was written especially for the screen, by Joseph Lovett.

The State Short Subjects include the current issue of latest News Events and a Paramount-Christie comedy.

"Lilac Time," the picture sensation of the season, comes to the State next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

IRISH CONFETTI OK'D

London.—Irish confetti takes first place at St. Mary's Cathedral, Middlebrough. The paper variety was condemned in a recent issue of the church paper, thus: "If anyone should feel bound to throw something at weddings, we are quite willing to keep a supply of bricks, but for goodness' sake let's have an end to confetti throwing."

NEW VOTERS CAN'T BE MADE JUST YET

Oct. 13 Is First Day for That Job Here—No September Session.

Statements that voters were being made in the smaller towns throughout the state during September seem to have caused considerable confusion among the many who are to be made voters for the first time this year, and even to some who have come to Manchester from smaller towns where voters are made each year in time for the town election, which is not possible in a town the size of Manchester.

The applications of those who wish to be made voters must be in the hands of the registrars by October 9, as that is the last date in which they can be received to go on the "to-be-made" list.

The next step is the printing of this list and its posting in conspicuous places throughout the town, together with an announcement of the dates when the registrars, town clerk and the registrars have arranged to hold extra sessions and will meet not only on October 13 and 20 but on October 15 and October 16.

The application must set forth the manner of birth, date of birth, length of time that the applicant has been a resident of the state and of the town and whether a voter before or not.

On October 13 the board will be in session at the Municipal building from 9 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock in the evening.

On October 15 the sessions will be from 7 o'clock in the evening until 9:30 in the evening.

On October 16 the same hours as those observed on October 15 will be followed.

On October 20, the last day, the hours will be from 9 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock in the evening.

Such persons as will not be twenty-one years of age on October 20 but have the other qualifications to be made a voter and who will reach the age of twenty-one on or before November 6, the day of this election, will be made voters on that day in time to vote.

NOTICE OF THE TAX COLLECTOR

All persons liable by law to pay taxes in the First School District in Manchester, are hereby notified that on October 1, 1928, I shall have a rate bill for the collection of five (5) mills on the dollar, laid on the Manchester list of 1927, due the Collector on October 1, 1928.

Taxes may be paid at my residence, 75 Denning St., Manchester, during the month of October, 1928, unless otherwise specified in the future.

The law provides that all taxes unpaid after November 1, 1928, will be charged at the rate of nine (9) per cent. from October 1, 1928 to April 1, 1929, at ten (10) per cent. for the balance of the year, and twelve (12) per cent. on all liens filed.

S. G. BOWERS, Collector. Manchester, Conn., Sept. 24, 1928.

An announcement has been made by the Republican national committee that a person who has not reached the age of twenty-one, but who will be twenty-one on November 7, the day after election, may be made voters on the day of election, but this statement has been denied by the attorney-general of the state of Connecticut.

As far as the town records of Manchester's births are concerned this will not have any effect on Manchester-born applicants as the records show that no child was born in Manchester on November 7, 1907. There are, however, about ten who will have reached the age of twenty-one between October 9 and November 6. These can present their names and be made in time to vote at the election.

SALVATION ARMY HAS HARVEST HOME WEEK

The Ladies Home League of the Salvation Army will give a peach social at the Citadel on Thursday evening. The Army this week is observing the Harvest Home celebration. Canvassers from the Army will approach the farmers of the vicinity looking for donations of produce. This produce is used by the Army for the relief of the needy families.

Adjutant Hanson, who some years ago enlisted in the Army here in Manchester, is in town visiting his brother and while here will be a guest at the army services. Adjutant Hanson addressed the evening meeting, which was in the form of a memorial service for the late Mr. Nicklin of California, former Manchester resident.

ABOUT TOWN

The Studio Players have been organized for two years and have about thirty members. Mr. Bellamy had been a member of the Town Players here since the founding of that organization three years ago. He took important parts in "Dulcy," "Seven Chances," "Minick" and "The Haunted House," among others.

SPRUCE STREET MERCHANTS

Diversified Businesses - - - Quality Merchandise

SPRUCE STREET IS SECOND MAIN ST.

Busy Thoroughfare Has Developed on East Side; Leading Merchants.

It was when the street started to build up and a number of small stores were being erected that the selection, seeing Spruce as a future business street, took action to have it widened. Their judgment at that time has already proven that they were truly looking ahead, for Spruce street today is Manchester's second or third business street.

Woodhouse's, one of the landmarks on Spruce street, about a year ago was purchased by S. J. Kearns. Sam had just returned to Manchester from Florida and looking about for a place to open a little business, decided Spruce street offered just the opportunity that he wanted. Thus Woodhouse's became S. J. Kearns'. Sam carries a complete line of school supplies, groceries, cigars, cigarettes, magazines, ice cream, soda and patent medicines. The popularity of the store under the new regime has increased tremendously. This is due largely to Sam's desire to please and his constant spirit of good fellowship. Sam's is the favorite store for the Nathan Hale school children—and where children flock you are sure to find courtesy and service.

Down the Line Starting at East Center street and proceeding down Spruce, the first large place of business is Porterfield's Tire Works owned by George and Clarence Porterfield. They opened the business on Spruce street on August 23, 1923, after their little shop on New St. had been burned out. The new location afforded them space for additional equipment. Little by little they have added unit after unit of modern machinery until today they have one of the very best tire equipments in Manchester. The latest addition is a tire vulcanizer that does not muck up the tread. For quick, efficient tire, crankcase or any type of auto service, go to Porterfield's. The next shop on the line is the Boston Shoe repair shop, owned by L. Goodstine. For four generations the Goodstines have been shoemakers and a customer at that shop gets the best in materials and workmanship. Another feature is prompt service and if a thing is promised on a certain day rest assured it will be ready.

Next door to Goodstine is the shop of Louis Rezel, glazier, who has been engaged at this trade for over 30 years and who for a time worked at it for Walkin Brothers. Rezel makes a specialty of his glass work and is always ready to go out and remove a sash himself and fit it with a new pane without additional charge. Such service has been a factor in building up a host of new customers. Rezel also makes a business of constructing store fixtures, soda fountain booths, screens and doors. If in the market for anything of this type a visit to Rezel's might save you money.

Then comes Fred Woodhouse's Corner Soda Shop. The store that strives in every way to fulfill the needs of the section in which his place of business is located. Fred realizing that the people of the neighborhood at times might need medicinal supplies in a hurry so his has about as complete a line of this type of goods as many of the drug stores in Manchester. In fact all he lacks is a prescription department. The Corner Soda Shop also carries films, soda, ice cream, candy, cigars, cigarettes, stationery and magazines.

H. O. Dimock at 123 Spruce street is one of the best of the shops along the line, carrying a complete line of groceries, meats and delicatessen. The store is only a little over a year old, but the customers find that they can buy heavy beef from Dimock as reasonable, as down town. Therein lies the keynote of Dimock's thriving little trade. A try would convince you. Zimmerman's is the barber shop on Spruce street that slashes the unruly piece of hair cuts and shaves and still gives expert workmanship. A glance at its advertisement tells the secret of the popularity of this shop.

Bill's Tire and Repair Shop has been entertaining a host of carpenters during the past week, who have made the trip to see the Foley Automatic Saw Filer in operation. This machine retouches or sharpens a saw entirely by machinery. Bill also carries a complete line of tire and auto accessories, and makes a specialty of bicycle repairing. If it is courtesy and service you want, see Bill and don't forget to ask to see the saw filer.

The Spruce street second-hand store has a selection of wood and coal heating and cooking stoves that will find a ready market if the weather continues as chilly as it is today. The prices on all the merchandise in this shop are so low that the owner is assured of a quick turnover and the customer of a real bargain.

WHIRLWIND

ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SYBIL THORNE, bride of two weeks, returns from a honeymoon in Hawaii with the dreadful secret of her marriage locked tight in her heart. Only MABEL BLAKE, her dear friend, and Mabel's fiancé, JACK MOORE, know of that wretched romance with RICHARD EUSTIS. Sybil met him on shipboard and married him after a wild courtship. Almost immediately he began to drink and then—after learning of his unbelievable infidelity—Sybil left him and returned to her mother in Boston.

Before meeting Eustis she was engaged, in an informal sort of way, to CRAIG NEWHALL. Now Newhall, sensing something wrong, decides that Sybil has never really loved him, and faces himself accordingly. Desperately lonely and unhappy, Sybil tries to tell him of her marriage, but she gets no further with her confidences.

Months drag on. Sybil, alone with her ailing mother, grows morose. There has never been any word from Richard Eustis, and Sybil begins to feel secure of her secret. Then she learns that she is going to have a child. She tells no one but Mabel Blake.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

It was the week before Christmas. Sybil, at the Settlement House, was helping Mabel tie up Christmas packages for the children. They had strung popcorn and cranberries for the tree, and Sybil had fashioned for the top branch an angel with a cotton batting robe and tinsel wings.

Craig had promised to be Santa Claus, and now Mabel was putting the finishing touches on his delectable beard.

Over a lap of wool she glanced surreptitiously at Sybil.

"Honey, dear, I think you ought to tell the longer you wait the harder it will be."

"Not until after Christmas, Mabel. It's going to be hard enough to get through the day as it is—our first Christmas without daddy. Poor mother—I don't want to make things any worse for her."

They sewed for awhile in silence. The little bells that Mabel stitched tinkled merrily. Sybil put her angel down, and hemmed a pink silk skirt for a flaxen-haired doll.

"Damn Christmas anyhow!" Mabel bit a thread with her teeth, and smoothed the scarlet coat across her knees.

"I hate to hear you talk that way, Sybil. It's like blasphemy. Christmas is such a happy season—really. And the sadder you are, the more it warms your soul."

"Take Wester House here. Half our children are Jewish. That means we cannot talk to them, as we might to little Christians, about their hearts with the spirit of giving. We tell them that Christmas is a time when everybody tries as hard as they can, to make everybody else happy. And you should see their faces glow, and their eyes sparkle!"

"You're selfish. Sib, and you've got to snap out of it. I dragged you down here today to give you something pleasant to think about—and here you go damning Christmas. If you think you're abused, you ought to see some of the poor souls who come in here."

"One woman today—she's got a b.—and Lord knows what we're going to do with her. Five children and another coming. Husband dead. Poor as poverty. Babies all malnourished. She's an unmercifully unmerciful woman, too. Above the ordinary run of clinic cases. Thirty years old—and life's all over for her."

"Dr. Kline gave her the diagnosis, and when he'd finished, she wiped her eyes with her decent little handkerchief and said, 'God have mercy on the children!' You think you're to be pitied. Lord, you make me sick!"

Savagely Mabel bit another thread.

"Oh, it's all very well to be philosophical, Mabel, but I wonder how YOU'D like to be in my shoes. How'd you like to be going to have a baby, with a husband God knows where? And a perfectly wonderful man whose heart you had to break for your foolishness. Well—that's done. Pretty, isn't it?"

"I've some flamingo feathers at home that I'll never wear again. I think I'll clip the end—and make a doll's hat. Wouldn't the kid love it? And, Mabel, I'm just going down town and get some junk for those children you just told me about. How old are they?"

"Bless your heart, dear! I'll get the record—just a minute. It's down in the record room."

Mabel tumbled the wool and the cambric from her lap. "You wait here."

Presently she was back again.

"Here, I've written their names and ages on a card."

She gave Sybil an envelope.

"Will you come back this afternoon, and go over the lists to see if we've stockings and gloves enough to go round? I have to write some reports, and I won't have a minute."

She walked with Sybil to the coat room. "You're not supposed an egg afted all," she said, and slapped her back affectionately.

Sybil put her wraps on, and backed away from the mirror dubiously, for a full length view.

She took the card from the envelope, to read what Mabel had written. "Betty White, 9; Jack, 7; Nona, 6; Tommy, 4; and Joan, 2."

"... he who gives a child a seat."

Makes joybells ring in Heaven's street—

And he who gives a child a home,

Builds palaces in Kingdom Come—

And she who gives a baby birth, Brings Savior Christ again on earth."

Tears came to Sybil's eyes, and she dabbed them savagely with her handkerchief. It was so easy to cry. Then, resolutely, she powdered her nose, and ran upstairs to Mabel's office. Slicking her head in the open door, she whispered with strident gaiety:

"Hey, Mab, you old sentimentalist. How do you get that way? Save up your verses, darling, for the little Moores."

Out of doors it was crisply cold and white. All the world, it seemed, was Christmas shopping. People pushed and shoved, and appeared extraordinarily good-natured about it. The toy department to which Sybil directed her steps was the most populous place in all the city.

Santa Claus was there, shaking hands with children, and asking in a big voice what they would like in their stockings. One small girl wanted a little sewing machine.

"The very thing," said Sybil to herself, "for Betty, to make clothes for Nona's doll and Joan's."

So she bought two dolls, a brush with long narrow curls, and a baby blond with painted yellow locks. And for the boys she bought fire engines and a fleet of cars and freights that ran on an electric track.

"Now," she concluded with considerable satisfaction, "I simply CAN'T afford anything for Val."

Then straight to the infants' department of the smartest babyshop on Winter Street she fought her way. It was less crowded there, anyway.

"I want something for a brand-new baby," she told a pleasant woman behind a shining glass case.

"A little dress, perhaps?"

"No-o-o, I don't think so."

"One of these exquisite bonnets from Normandy? They're very new indeed."

"I—I want something awfully little."

"Booties? These were knit in Belgium, these blue silk ones with the season's chic roses."

"They're darling—but I want something more—more personal—if you can call babies' things personal. What do they wear next their skins?"

"Little bands." The woman opened a drawer. "Here are silk and wool ones—they're nicest. A baby's flesh is so tender, you know."

"Oh, aren't they small!"

The exclamation came on a throaty little whimper, swelling like a lump in Sybil's throat. When the girl had gone for her change, she pressed her cheek to the tiny shirt. That night she slipped it beneath her pillow.

And in the morning she told herself fiercely, "I don't hate it. DON'T!" and her heart sang psalms of gladness.

Christmas came and went—a gloomy day for the Thornes. But Mrs. White, in a dainty tennisee in the South End, went down on her poor knees, to thank God for Sybil. And all he little Whites remembered her that night in their prayers—"Dear God, please bless the good lady."

While the "good lady," in her pleasant warm house discarded the tune in favor of a Russian ballad, and fell very wicked indeed—and manic-stricken, when even the blouses proved a little skimpy.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

In public schools where great masses of children have to be handled daily, a system has had to be worked out whereby teachers can manage rooms of from 40 to 60 pupils and teach them the required work of a grade in a given time.

In order to do this, certain blank rules had to be made. To teach that many pupils is no small task.

If a teacher has to stop every minute because Charles wants to sharpen his pencil, or Mabel wants a drink, or Milton gets a book, or the thousand other little things that can happen in a room of children, there would be only confusion.

And no we have the rules that may seem hard to some parents but that are absolutely necessary for the success of the school. Silence is one of these rules.

Many parents are likely to think that such a rule is made from a mere sense of perversity in the powers that be. But concentration upon lessons cannot be obtained in a room where whispering and confusion reign.

The rule for having regular recess periods for going to the lavatories is another custom, sometimes questioned by parents.

This custom is only intended for the good of everybody concerned. It saves a great deal of time. If there is need for a child to go out at other times a teacher will certainly let him go. But a mother might suggest to a child that he be careful not to abuse this permission and not ask to be excused from class unless it is necessary. If a child is not very well or needs a little special concession, I should go and talk it over with the teacher before an emergency arises. Ask her co-operation and see how quickly she will respond.

MAKE THE BOB YOUR VERY OWN

Individuality Counts in Hair Styles Now, Says Beauty Expert.

By JULIA BLANSHARD

New York, Sept. 25.—Femininity in styles has gone to Milady's head this autumn.

The winter's smart bob, like the season's chic gown, will follow the longer-in-the-back silhouette, according to experts. And soft, little chignons, curls and loose snoods are apt to appear on the best necks, especially after the lights are lit.

The long, flowing lines and the rich fabrics in vogue now demand a very feminine coiffure," explained Charles Bock, the hair expert whom Mary Pickford chose to bob her famous curls.

"A few curls or a little knot at the nape of the neck add the grace and dignity called for in new modes. A back bob is apt to be too abrupt looking with a sumptuous velvet evening gown, for instance."

Bob Still Popular

But the winter's change in hair styles is not so radical as first glances seem to indicate.

"Only very young girls will really let their hair grow," Bock gave his opinion. "Other women will keep the bob but make it their own. They will either let the back hair grow long enough to turn the ends under, or else they will add one of the little artificial chignons that clip onto even the shortest bob, for evening."

Becomingness and individuality—and not just smartness—were given by Bock as the criteria in bobs right now.

"Women should arrange their hair to suit their own features, not to follow any set style," he said. "If a woman has beautiful ears, she should show them. If her features are sharp or hard, a few wisps of curls over the temples will do much to soften her expression."

Bock rarely cuts any two bobs the same way. But while each case demands individual attention, certain rules apply generally and should be helpful to all women.

"A woman should study her features and the shape of her head very well indeed before she directs a bob," he averred. "Cowlings, natural waves, blemishes, short necks, small heads and other individualities must be considered. Sometimes an oddity can be turned into an asset."

"No woman—except the perfect Madonna face—should try a straight, center part. This calls for a long, slender face and delicate, perfect features."

"Side parts are universally enhancing," he encouraged. "But the part should be on the perfect side of the face. Every woman has one side more perfect than the other. A parting on this side emphasizes the beauty. And, fully as important, more hair on the other side gives a heavier frame and reduces the proportions of the features."

"Ninety-five per cent. of women do not have a straight nose, but one that points very slightly to the right or the left. A part, whichever side it is on, should run from the back of the head to the front in line with the angle to which the nose leans. For the exactly-straight, from back to front, part is a hard line."

Swirls Look Youthful

"If one has a high forehead, she should bring the wave down onto it. Tall women, with thin necks, should let their hair grow one or two inches longer on the sides. A one-sided hair arrangement with the hair swirled softly gives a youthful look."

Whether or not to show the ears, if they are not especially beautiful, seems to be a question of proportions, to Bock.

"Cut your hair short, just to the tops of the ears, if your face is nice from the chin to the ears. If you have a heavy jaw, let the hair come to the bottom of your ears as a softening frame."

This is to be a season of soft, little curls. Some of Bock's coiffures, for instance, leave the back hair long and curl it in ringlets from the crown of the head to the nape of the neck. Others have the front parted on one side, with irregular curls on the short side. One features a little curl where straight little sideburns used to be.

Season of Curls

But for all of this vogue for curls, Bock had this to say about when to curl and when not to curl:

"Blonde hair is almost always softer and more beautiful for a curl. But the dark-haired Italian or Spanish type looks ridiculous that way. This woman should wear it well-groomed, but straight. And the fascinating woman with irregular features often is much more interesting-looking with irregular uncurled bangs. It should depend on the individual."

EXPERT versus NOVICE

As a general guide to winning play, the following plan is offered:

1—Let game be your object if you are the declarer.

2—Let the prevention of game be your object if you are on the defensive.

3—Determine your losing cards and plan to convert them into winners.

4—Draw trumps unless there is some good reason for delaying.

In these chapters various principles governing the manipulation of the cards have been explained and numerous winning plays have been illustrated. It is not enough, however, to know merely what these tactics are—you must be quick to recognize opportunities to use them in actual play. They are all based on sound logic—your ability to select the strategic moments to apply them will make an average winner of you. Of course, there are other subtle plays, used by experts, but these are the fundamentals.

During the game, the novice feels a certain amount of tension. It is the same feeling which the experienced actor encounters. At bridge it may be overcome by hesitating before beginning to play. The time for a careful analysis of the situation is when the bidding has been terminated.

Again, the importance of planning your campaign before playing a card must be stressed. The declarer should try to find a way to convert losing tricks into winning tricks before he touches any card in the dummy.

The player who approaches the game with the spirit that there is a problem to be solved, does not consider the loss of a game or two vital, does not complain about poor cards or hard luck and does not vacillate during the progress of the game, will not only find ever-increasing fascination and relaxation in the game as he progresses, but will gain the enviable title of being a most acceptable partner wherever bridge is played.

Won't Pay Her "Bed and Board"

Husbands are refusing on a larger scale than ever to be responsible for their wives' debts, according to various retail merchants' credit bureaus in our largest cities. They explain that while a husband's notice that on and after such a date he will no longer be responsible for his wife's debts is not exactly legal, few merchants care to get involved in such probable poor payment. A notice sent to any store whatsoever means that every store in town is "tipped off."

Just what does this writing on the wall mean? That women are growing so extravagant that these husbandly withdrawals are the only solution, or that husbands are accepting woman's insistence that she is economically independent?

RAW CARROTS

Chopped raw carrots, mixed with chopped peanuts and mayonnaise make delicious sandwiches and healthy ones, for the children.

RADIO OVERHAULING

Radios should be overhauled carefully in the autumn to get best results. Battery connections, tubes and ground connections should all be examined and put in shape.

STUFFED TOMATOES

Fresh tomatoes should be used lavishly now. An inexpensive luncheon dish is made of tomatoes stuffed with cottage cheese and chopped green peppers and cucumbers. Serve with parsley, French dressing.

SOFA PILLOWS

New sofa pillows should be as inevitably a fall occurrence as bonfires. There should be at least two modernistic covers this autumn, in the new metal-patterned silks or satins.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia" Better than Soda

Here after, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles I. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1872.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

CHILD MUST LEARN TO USE FRESH AIR AS COMFORT

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

One of the most important factors associated with school health is proper ventilation. The best temperature for work is from 65 to 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

The temperature should not be allowed to go above 68 degrees when the temperature outdoors is below that point.

The air in the room should not be permitted to become stagnant. Air movement should be brought about by proper use of the windows and doors for ventilation.

Regulating Moisture

According to the most recent conception of ventilation, the best method is the use of the window so that the rooms may be provided directly with outdoor air. When the air is either too dry or too moist, the human being becomes restless and irritable.

If the air is too dry the secretions of the mucous membranes pass away and they become easily susceptible to infection. If the air is too moist, the human being feels depressed and becomes fatigued easily.

It is taken for granted that the air in the school room will be free from any offensive odor due to bad plumbing, and free also from obnoxious gases generated by furnaces or other lighting or heating systems.

The Oxygen Lesson

The school child nowadays learns early in his career that all of the processes of life depend on a sufficient amount of oxygen. This oxygen is carried by the hemoglobin or red coloring matter of the blood to all parts of the body.

Oxygen is involved in most of the chemical reactions that go on within the body. Keeping the cells alive and permitting them to resist or degenerate and waste material.

The child must learn to breathe properly and to use fresh air as a conditioner. The best measurement of lung capacity nowadays is the determination of the amount of air that can be taken into the lungs.

This is called the vital capacity. It is determined by the use of a device called the spirometer. In the period of physical examination of the child it is well to measure the vital capacity year after year so as to have some record of lung development and activity.

THE WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SCAVER

Young Doug Fairbanks, "the chip off the old block," is to wed Dorothy Crawford of the silver sheet, and pictures of the in-laws in all the love-dovey engravings so well known to youth now abound in the papers.

It makes one reflect that nothing means so much to a celebrity in the way of publicity than the facts of love, romance, marriage, birth and death, or the running of the gamut of all the emotions concerned in the human relationship.

Pola Negri, for instance, knew its value when she permitted herself to be photographed in weeds over the bier of her supposed fiancé, Rudolph Valentino.

The skeptical old world next door thinks that "these stage people get married and divorced and everything just to sell tickets." Maybe so, and yet let's charitably grant that young Doug and his Joan are as much in love as their picture poses seem to indicate.

Will Women Do It?

There are two and a quarter more women voters in Germany than men. The war is the answer, I suppose. Perhaps the world's future hope is in this fact, for while the ratio of other countries might be much less impressive, the fact remains that women hold the voting power in England as well and even have a slight edge on the men in our own country.

The big question is, with women holding the suffrage power of majority and not only holding it but exercising it, can there be another war? Will the human relationship intensities of wifehood and motherhood be enough stronger than those of husbandhood and fatherhood to prevent it?

"Champion Child Whipper" The title of "Champion Child Whipper" was relished by an old schoolmaster of 1836 who, according to a resurrected account of his

MISSOURI VALLEY RACE TO BE HOT

Four New Teams In Conference; Round-Robin Schedule Arranged.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a series of articles on nationally known football coaches in which (Gwin) Henry, coach of the 1927 Missouri Valley champions, does not fall in his section. Henry's eleven at other schools have been one of the leaders in that section for years.

By GWIN HENRY
Coach, University of Missouri

Football in the territory of the old Missouri Valley Conference is to share in the forward step for all college sports in this area with the reorganization of the Valley Conference. It will have 10 instead of six members, all state schools with enrollment and other resources of approximate equality.

The reorganization makes possible the playing of a round-robin schedule among conference members for the first time, and assures a clean-out championship, a factor which should add materially to interest in football in this district.

The new conference members are Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska. The addition of the agricultural colleges of Iowa and Kansas, Grinnell, Washington, Oklahoma Aggies and Drake were dropped.

The reorganization should bring to the conference the hottest football race in its history, with inter-sectional games, particularly those of Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma, adding to the difficulties of the teams and coaches and to the interest of the fans. Veteran material is plentiful, and the relatively late starting of the season—there is only one conference game prior to Oct. 20—should enable coaches to bring their teams to the best condition for the season's play.

At Missouri we return a group of 15 letter men. There are veterans for every position.

Our weight in the backfield is gone with the graduation of Plank and Tuttle, but we can count again on the speed of Mehrle, Dismund, and Rosenheim, while several big sophomores look promising. We lost heavily in the line, but are still able to put forward a forward wall of veterans that will average well over 180 pounds.

Faces Tough Schedule
Nebraska, runnerup to Missouri in the conference race last year, has material which appears on a par with that of Missouri as 14 letter men are scheduled to return. The great Pressnell is gone, but Coach Bear has Blue Howell, a brilliant back, and plenty of lesser lights.

The Cornhuskers have a brilliant inter-sectional schedule, meeting the Army, Syracuse, Pittsburgh and Montana State. Missouri meets New York University, and have inter-sectional contests of superior importance with Drake and Centre, while Oklahoma plays the only Big Ten opponent of the season in Indiana.

Oklahoma probably suffered heavily in losses by graduation, but there is promise for Al Lindsey's men, particularly in the backfield, where Bus Huskins, who starred in Oklahoma's victory over Chicago last season, and Drake and Crider, two other star ball carriers, will return. Sophomore prospects are regarded as particularly strong at Norman. It is Lindsey's second year at Oklahoma, and his men will not face the task of learning a new style of football as they did last season.

Twelve letter men form the nucleus of the squad at Iowa State, where Noel Workman is counting heavily on 25 normal men to fill the gaps left by the graduation of varsity men. Among the returning veterans are two star ball carriers, Johnnie Miller and Harry Lindbloom. Workman faces the necessity of preparing his squad early, since the Cyclones meet Nebraska October 6 in the only early conference game on the schedule.

Coaches Kansas State
Both Kansas members of the conference have new coaches this year. Bill Harris, former Emporia Teachers' mentor, directing football at the University of Kansas, and Bo McMillin, famous Centre College player, guiding Kansas State. At Kansas backfield material is plentiful, with gaps in the line to be filled by sophomores, while at Kansas State 16 letter men should provide for all positions.

Of the four schools orphaned by the withdrawal of the six big state institutions from the old Missouri Valley, Drake probably has fared better than any of the others in the matter of schedules, and with a dozen lettermen around which to build, Ossie Soles faces good prospects despite a tough schedule. Missouri, Notre Dame, Iowa State and Marquette are the high spots of the Bulldogs' card.

Washington has suffered heavily through losses of veterans, both by graduation and by failure of several stars to return to school. Football there is under a new regime

None of Them Good Hitters and All Play Poorly at Times Says Farrell.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles by Henry L. Farrell, comparing the players of the teams who have a chance to appear in the world series early next month. The shortstops of the six contending clubs are discussed in this article.

By HENRY L. FARRELL.
The prospects of brilliant performances at shortstop during the world series, regardless of the team that do the playing, are not as promising as that which may be expected from the second basemen or the third basemen.

The regular shortstops of the six teams that have a chance to play for the big prize are good fielders. They have to be to hold down their jobs. But most of them are too well acquainted with the experience of seeing a pinch hitter leave the dugout in the seventh inning to take a cut for them.

Where the six are rather closely grouped in fielding strength, batting ability becomes the big factor and considering what they have been doing on the offense during the season, the following rating might be arrived at:

- Jackson, Giants 1
- Koenig, Yanks 2
- Wright, Pirates 3
- English, Cubs 4
- Boley, Athletics 5
- Marshall, Cardinals 6

Considering that the stick work of one man may not be so vitally important to the Yankees, the Athletics or the Cardinals, the above ratings, made purely on offensive value, may not be sound.

Personally, we would rather have the Rabbit holding down the job on our ball club in a world series than any of the other five players mentioned. The Rabbit can still go and get them the best and experienced through every kind of a test. He's a fighter. And, above all, he's steady. Perhaps he might have to be extracted in the seventh inning for a better man with the bat but he wouldn't be letting any four or five runs through him while he was in there.

Koenig is highly erratic and temperamental. His good days are few and far between. He is a little better than the average shortstop when he is right but he, too, is addicted to flights. Wright once was the best shortstop in the league but he has been having personal trouble with the Pittsburgh management and he can't snap out of a season-long mood in a few minutes.

Joe Boley is perhaps the most brilliant fielder of the lot and if he had been taken out in the seventh inning to let some one hit for him, young Joe Hassler would not run the day in his place.

English is a good worker but a quiet one and not much has been heard from him. In fact, not one of the Chicago club has made much of a personal noise.

With Lazzari next to him, Koenig has the mechanics to deserve the position as the best shortstop of the group but he is easily influenced by moods. The tool Miller Huggins a year to persuade him that he was a really good player and even after he had become established as a real good player he gave indications at times of having his doubts about it.

He had a terrible time when Lazzari was out of the game this season and there are reasons to doubt his confidence has not been badly bent, if not actually shattered.

He frets under a nervous strain and if it so happened that he should commit a terrible blunder in the first game he might go to pieces during the entire series. It is well remembered what happened to Roger Peckinpaugh when he carried a strain into his last world series.

If the odds get into the series the Rabbit can carry our dough against Koenig or Boley and if the Giants do the National League part Jackson would be worth a bet to hold his own against either one of the American League players.

In the next article the third basemen of the six clubs will be discussed.

FLYNN GETS STAGE JOB

FEW HITS, MOSTLY HOMERS
Dazy Vance, Brooklyn pitcher, hurled a four-hit game against Chicago in 1924 and three of the hits allowed were home runs.

Bissells, Dexters Winners at Tennis

The Dexter Brothers and the Bissell Brothers were the winners of the tennis doubles matches in The Herald's elimination tournament last night.

The Dexters, Franklin and Allan, turned back Everett Strange and Phil Mahoney in three sets at 8-6, 5-7 and 6-3 at the East Side playgrounds while the Bissells, Sherman and Earle, won from Herman Helm and Sidney Harrison at 6-1 and 6-0.

Two more victories would give the Dexter team the town title. The Bissells meet the clergy team, Rev. Watson Woodruff and Rev. Truman Woodward at the West Side at 5:30 Friday night. Other matches have not been announced. The finals are a week from next Saturday.

EXPECT A BREAK IN GAMES TODAY

Something Liable to Happen In Home Stretch of National Race.

New York, Sept. 25.—It is barely possible that the big break in the National League stretch run between the Cardinals and Giants will come before tonight today. The Giants, one game off the pace with only six to play, figure to have nothing to lose in the byer's sample of Cincinnati pitching still to be exposed to public gaze. The Cardinals, having used Haines and Alexander to win two games from the Dodgers, are down to a choice between Fred Fitzsimons and a couple of veteran left handers who would feel particularly irritated if McKechnie discovered at this juncture that he simply didn't know them from a couple of other fellows.

The Dodgers, meanwhile, have decided for Vance as today's pitcher, meaning that Vance has decided to declare for Vance. Dazy has a manager over there but the understanding is that he doesn't use him very much. He couldn't very well look this way from the bench, however, after pitching the Cubs out of the money last Friday. So the word is that the young man will so far forget himself as to go into the game and pitch the ball game and the Cardinals say they are glad of it. He can't get them out most of the time.

However, this lad can pitch a quantity of baseball when the fancy moves him and this may be one of his days.

As for the Philadelphia Athletics, if they blow the American League title—and no one can claim that they aren't giving the matter a good game try—they may be able to find the answer either in their accommodating spirit or in the fact that they played only 153 games in a 154-game season or in both. The Yanks lost yesterday; so did the Athletics. It has been thus for a month or more. Somehow, I can't throw a ball at a pitcher who persists in going nowhere with all this haste. I feel that I am violating no confidence in saying that it looks like New York in the American League.

The other half of the proposed subway series may or may not be closer to its goal line by tonight but no one can say that their chances are only nominal. They probably will take the leg chain by Fred Fitzsimons this afternoon and while Frederick was no riot with the Cardinals on Saturday, he is a twenty-game winner and ought to have something on the Reds, who have almost no pitchers and used both of them Sunday and yesterday.

Giants' Chances
All in all, the Giants may find themselves with the whole world in front of them today. McKechnie had been undecided as to whether he would pitch Schell, Sherdel or Frankhouse. But finally he is understood to have voted for Sherdel. Mitchell pitched less than five innings on Saturday but his elderliness and the fact that he is a regular or something probably needed more rest. Sherdel pitched a game and a half in forty-eight batters at the Polo Grounds and shouldn't be right today. But it was a choice between experience and youth and the former always gets the nod in a spot like this.

In Frankhouse's favor is the fact that he pitched sound performances against the Dodgers the last couple of times out. Also that two right handers have combined to Dodgers to three runs in two days. However, there are right handers and right handers. It is a gamble, any way you view it.

Vance, of course, could miff this one, as he is prone to do against the Cards, and save them from a possible tie with the Giants at the end of the day. If this happens and the Giants fold, it might be good night. Tost, it may never get a better break than they face this afternoon.

EXPLAINS PURPOSE OF TEXTILE STUDY

Co-operative Course in Trade School Proves to Be of Great Value.

The aims and objective of the Co-operative Textile Training as conducted by the Trade School, High School and Cheney Brothers are generally misunderstood by parents of Grammar and High School students. Parents have learned during the last seven years that this Co-operative Textile curriculum provides for five half days of instruction on academic subjects at the High School, five half days at the Trade School on shop work and theoretical subjects related to textile manufacturing and one half day each week at Cheney Brothers mills working under actual manufacturing conditions, and it is quite generally accepted by parents at large that the completion of work and study outlined in this curriculum qualifies a boy for an eventually leads him to employment at Cheney Brothers as a machine operator, such as weaver and loom fixer. Beyond this they have no definite or correct information.

In all branches of industry there is a constant demand for young men whose training combines technical knowledge and practical skill in manufacturing operations. It is from this group that supervisors, foremen, and technicians are selected for special executive training.

The Co-operative Textile curriculum is a well balanced arrangement of High School academic courses and the highly essential courses in shop and related technical work given at the Trade School and at the mill.

After graduation an extension training period of three years is offered during which time they are periodically shifted from one department to another. During this time they acquire knowledge and skill in many textile manufacturing operations, in addition to the training they receive in laboratories and business offices of the plant.

Space does not permit a complete treatment of the performance by graduates of the Co-operative Textile curriculum, but the following extracts from letters received from graduates are indicative of their progress after entering the employ of Cheney Brothers. They indicate, as do many others on file in the Trade School office, that a graduate of this curriculum has immense possibilities at the local silk mill in positions demanding technical knowledge and practical experience that their opportunities are not confined to machine operating.

7. Timekeeping.
 8. Production and Compensation Research Work.

It is an obvious fact that the results obtained from all the work in general reflect directly back to the previous training in the Co-operative Textile Course. It is my belief that all who take a personal interest in the textile work will, in the future, be prepared for something of greater responsibility.

Extra from letter of Stanley Mason who graduated in June, 1926, is as follows:
 Dear Mr. Warren:

Since I graduated from the State Trade School in 1926 I have been employed by Cheney Brothers. The first year of work included various jobs in the different mills of their plant. For the first two months I was employed in the Quilting Department of the Broad Goods Weaving Mill. As soon as I succeeded in making bonus I was transferred for a few weeks in the W2B Weaving mill. After this I was transferred to the Training Section where I remained for the next four months. From here I was sent to the Warp Room for three months because of the knowledge I had gained while at the Trade School. I was soon making bonus. My next three months were spent in the Spinning Mill, and all the processes of spinning were covered. After this I was transferred to the Velvet Time Study Department, and after being there a month was assigned to the Main Office in the Broad Goods Weaving Scheduling Department where I am at the present time.

Extract from letter received from Helmer Werdelin who graduated in 1926:

Dear Mr. Warren:

Since graduating from the Co-operative Textile Course my experiences have been many and varied, starting with velvet weaving and loom fixing and going through dressing and spinning operations, broad goods weaving and fixing, plus six months practice in the Machine Shop, after which I returned to the Velvet Mill on weaving and fixing. The benefits of actual experience attained from the Textile Co-operative Course through

The period during which President Johnson held the chief executive office was one of the stormiest in the country's history. Republican members of Congress fought him and tried to take away his power. The quarrel grew so bitter that Johnson was impeached in 1868. He was brought before the Senate on charges of abusing his power.

NEARLY 600 STUDENTS ENROLL AT WESLEYAN

Middletown, Conn., Sept. 25.—Removal of Berkeley Divinity School from Middletown to New Haven, this fall, has taken ten graduate students from Wesleyan University, and so held down the total enrollment of Wesleyan, according to announcement here today. The total registration this year is 590 students, twenty being in the graduate schools.

Wesleyan's class of 1929 will be the largest in the history of the university, even ahead of the 105 who were graduated in June. The sophomore class is 25 ahead of the last year class, and the freshman class is five smaller than last year's freshman group.

HOW SMART IS YOURS?

Today's lettergolf puzzle depends on SMART MINDS. Par for smartness is eight, but perhaps you can beat the solution on another page.

SMART MINDS crossword puzzle grid.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus changes, COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

Girl: So you kissed that painted creature? Boy: Yes, I saluted the colors. Work doesn't hurt one; it's worry over the failure to get out of it.

SENSE and NONSENSE

After listening to the wallings and ramblings of the radio one is glad to get hold of a daily paper and find out what all the noise and cheering is about.

A radio artist told an interviewer that she began singing over the radio to keep the wolf from the door. It would probably have worked out as well had she merely sung over the transom.

A Useful Newspaper. Reuben—"Do you think the radio will take the place of the country newspaper?" Village Storekeeper—"I doubt it. You can't swat a fly with a radio set."

Can This Be Love? Can this be love that leaves me still and pale? That I had thought would be a lovelier thing—More wonderful than the songs of the nightingale; More fragrant than the fragile flowers of spring.

Can this be love that leaves me weary eyed? That I was told would be an ineffable dream—A river where gossamer love barques glide, And stars like silver lovelights gleam.

Can this be love that leaves me faint and white? All this . . . this more than most exquisite pain? And no . . . It comes to me the stronger as I write. My sweet! I've got that damned hayfever once again.

Rheumatism: A rotten excuse for pulling sound teeth.

A happy home is where your wife asks you how to pronounce a difficult French word, and then accepts your interpretation of it without question.

Ate Bawl: "Look at that fool shooting pool." Ate Bawl: "Yeah. And he's a pool-shooting fool."

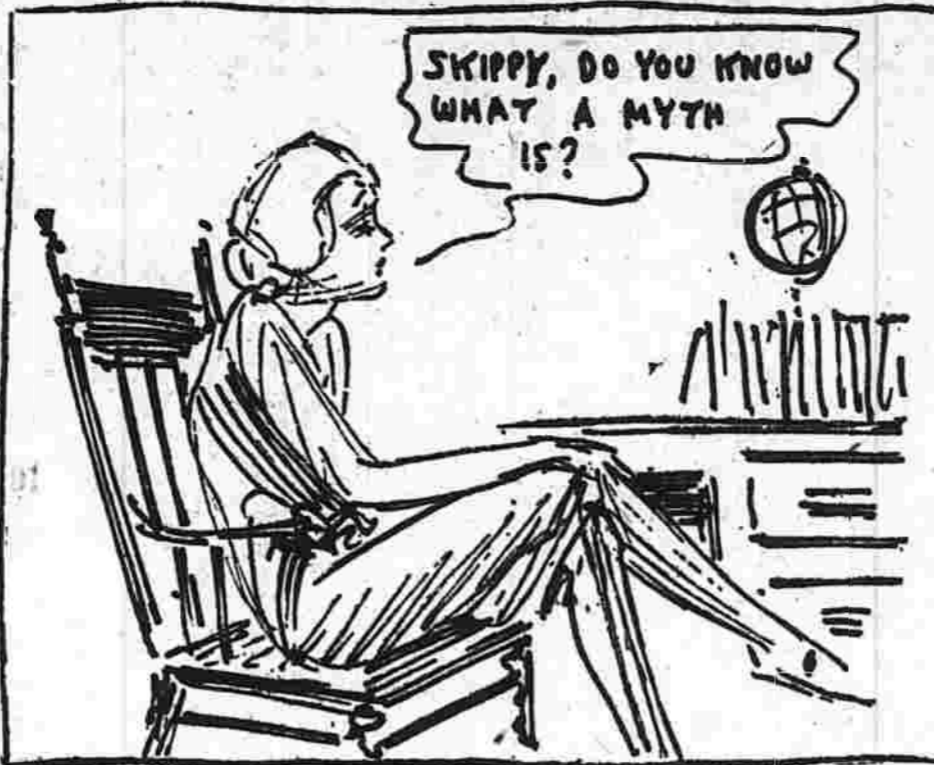

The salesman announced that he was marrying a widow. "I could never be a widow's second husband," his friend said bluntly. The newly engaged man smiled. "Well," he murmured, "I'd much rather be her second than her first."

When a girl quit her job in an office and got married, the office boy danced with delight. "Thank heaven she got a man at last!" he said. "Now somebody else will get a chance to use the office telephone."

Bill—Her remark was very suggestive. Jim—Huh! What was the remark? Bill—Gee! I'm hungry!

A girl is just as strong as her weakest moment.

Again the pig squealed, very loud, which pleased the little Tyny crowd. "Hey, what's the matter?" Copy cried. "Is squealing how you sing?" "Well, I should say not," snapped the pig. "If you were me, you'd dance a jig. This barber's razor's very dull. It pulls like everything." The barber dog then said, "Ah, me! Your skin's as tender as can be, but if you'll wait a minute I will soap your face some more. I'll sharpen up my razor, too. Most anything to quiet you. And then you must hold still or else your face will be all sore." The Tynies watched the barber soap the pig's face. Clowny said, "I hope I never have to go through that. Suppose you'd get a taste." The barber then said, "Whoops! Here's goes!" He dobbled poor Clowny on the nose, and laughingly said, "Pardon, e!" "I had some soap to waste." The others chuckled loud, and long. "I was out during the storm and made my rounds by clutching lamp posts and trees, such as were left standing, and the men certainly stood by and did wonderful work in helping the people caught in the storm. I stood it all, but after it was all over and I decided to go to the house and look it over the shutter on the house blew off and knocked me cold. I came to in a short time, found myself lying in a mud puddle and it was so funny that I just laid there and laughed.
