

HOOVER RALLY IN N. Y. TO BE GREATEST EVER

When Nominee Invades Smith's Home Bailiwick He Will Address Most Prominent Persons.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Herbert Hoover will head one of the greatest Republican rallies ever held when he speaks at Madison Square Garden in New York City on October thirteenth, it was learned today.

The Republican nominee will make a straight political speech, intended to stir up enthusiasm among party workers in the Empire State. He will divert, of course, to reassure both business and organized labor by brief discussion of Republican issues affecting their welfare. In the end, he will seek "harmony" in the party and his principal efforts will be to create political "whoopie" so the party boys will go and carry the state for the Republican ticket in November.

Thousands Surround Station and Pack Streets on His Arrival.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 29.—Governor Smith brought his presidential candidacy into Wisconsin today and Milwaukee gave him a reception such as it never accorded anyone, save possibly the late Bob La Follette.

Ten thousand in the City Auditorium, Gov. Smith will bring to a close his western trip. He will speak on prohibition. He deliberately chose Milwaukee, the former brewing capital of America, as the spot in which to explain his ideas of prohibition reform.

"I will speak about the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act," said the governor.

Milwaukeeans said that no candidate for the presidency has ever received the reception which Milwaukee gave to Gov. Smith last night. Thousands surrounded the station when he arrived and other thousands packed the streets for two miles to see him. Red fire burned along the curbs, and as though they did not give light enough, the Democratic nominee stood in an open car most of the way with a searchlight playing upon him throughout the line of march.

HOOVER IS ANGRY OVER BIGOT NOTE

Repudiates Sentiment Con- tained in Letter Sent to Republican Women.

Washington, Sept. 29.—A letter written on stationery of the Republican national committee, which urged Republican women to organize to "save the United States from being Romanized," was repudiated today by Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee.

Mrs. Clara Lyon of Virginia Highlands, Va., received the letter under the stamped signature of Mrs. W. W. Caldwell, of Roanoke, national committeewoman from Virginia.

Attaches of the Hoover headquarters here said Mrs. Caldwell had sent a "few of these form letters" to Republican women in the state.

Hoover Angry
When the letter was called to his attention, Hoover declared: "Whether this letter is authentic or a forgery, it does violence to every instinct that I possess. I resent and repudiate it."

"Such an attitude is entirely opposed to every principle of the Republican Party. I made my position clear in my acceptance speech when I said:

"In this land, dedicated to tolerance, we still find outbreaks of intolerance. I come of Quaker stock. My ancestors were prosecuted for their beliefs. Here they sought and found religious freedom. By blood and conviction I stand for religious tolerance both in act and in spirit. The glory of our American ideals is the right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience."

"I meant that then and I mean it now."

VAUDEVILLE STAGE IN KOVNO SEES SUICIDE AS FAKIR PERFORMS

Berlin, Sept. 29.—While a fakir was sticking pins through his cheeks and nose on a vaudeville stage in Kovno, Lithuania, without losing a drop of blood, a man stepped on the stage and addressed the audience as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I have the honor to show you something which far surpasses the show of this fakir, excellent as it is."

With these words he bared his chest, pulled out a long kitchen knife and plunged it through his heart.

The audience applauded wildly and waited for him to arise and make his bow. But he didn't rise. The police have been unable to identify the suicide.

MILWAUKEE GIVES SMITH "BIG HAND"

Thousands Surround Station and Pack Streets on His Arrival.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 29.—Governor Smith brought his presidential candidacy into Wisconsin today and Milwaukee gave him a reception such as it never accorded anyone, save possibly the late Bob La Follette.

Ten thousand in the City Auditorium, Gov. Smith will bring to a close his western trip. He will speak on prohibition. He deliberately chose Milwaukee, the former brewing capital of America, as the spot in which to explain his ideas of prohibition reform.

"I will speak about the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act," said the governor.

Milwaukeeans said that no candidate for the presidency has ever received the reception which Milwaukee gave to Gov. Smith last night. Thousands surrounded the station when he arrived and other thousands packed the streets for two miles to see him. Red fire burned along the curbs, and as though they did not give light enough, the Democratic nominee stood in an open car most of the way with a searchlight playing upon him throughout the line of march.

Reports are that Gov. Smith's ability to carry the state in November vary according to the informant. The betting today was even money, with not much money being wagered either way.

Senator "Young Bob" La Follette has thus maintained silence concerning the presidential race. But most of his friends are working tooth and nail for Smith. Senator John J. Blaine, who is La Follette's colleague at Washington and a former governor, has just come out for Smith, and announced he would neither vote for nor support Hoover.

Herman E. Kern, now chairman of the state committee, and an old La Follette lieutenant, is distinctly pro-Hoover, and has announced while neither he nor La Follette have endorsed Gov. Smith, it is well known that their governor's friends are supporting Smith.

Smith Hopeful
It is into such a situation that Gov. Smith stepped today. He is hopeful of carrying the state in November. His speech tonight is calculated to help him along the road. Milwaukee is wet and so is Wisconsin.

Gov. Smith will spend two nights in Milwaukee, the longest he has tarried anywhere since setting forth on his western journey two weeks ago. He will not leave Milwaukee until 12:30 p. m., Sunday afternoon for Rochester, and the Democratic state convention.

SEWER PIPES GRATER PUT UP $75,000 FOR WALKER.

The late John M. Phillips made secret, unreported expenditures of $75,000 on behalf of Mayor Walker and former Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens in the 1925 campaign, according to testimony introduced at the trial of Connolly and former Sewer Engineer Frederick Seely, charged with conspiring with Phillips to defraud the city by means of excessive prices for sewer pipe.

Connecticut Men Rank High As Yale Students

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 29.—Six Connecticut students are listed among the twenty-six Yale men who were today reported as entering the senior year as scholars of the first rank. The six are T. H. Braeken, of Branford, I. H. Cohen, of Lebanon; Walter Howe, of Litchfield; H. L. Jackson, of Danbury; H. A. Klagsbrun, of New Haven; and R. S. Makepeace, of Waterbury.

There are twelve scholars of first rank starting their junior year at Yale, two being Connecticut students: Alfred Hayes, Jr., of Greenwich; and D. D. Wright, of New Haven.

Crew of Roma Awaits New Chance for Flight Attempt

Able to gain only 200 feet of altitude with a back-firing motor that threatened momentary disaster, these men, the crew of the Roma, turned back to Old Orchard, Me., after hopping off on their projected flight to Rome. Here they're shown on the beach runway where they are awaiting the chance for another start. Left to right: Pilot Roger Q. Williams; Commander Cesare Sabelli, Piero Bonelli, radio-operator and navigator; Dr. Leon M. Pisculli, backer and passenger.

PRESIDENT SENDS MESSAGE TO G. O. P.

Asks Bay State Voters to Elect Hoover and the Rest of the Ticket.

Symphony Hall, Boston, Sept. 29.—President Coolidge in a message to the Republican state convention of his "home state" today made what was regarded by party leaders as a personal appeal for the election of Herbert Hoover and the Massachusetts Republican ticket.

"There had been keen speculation concerning what the President would say as heretofore the party leaders said he has contented himself with a reaffirmation of his faith in Republican principles and practices.

The President's message to the convention follows:

"Although it seems a long time since I have attended a Republican state convention in Massachusetts my interest in the purposes for which they assemble has not diminished but rather increased, and was never greater than in the present campaign. It is membership represents an organization with a long history of achievements in the field of sound government which has carried innumerable benefits to every home.

Our Country's Needs.
"Our country needs the continuation of the administration of public affairs in accordance with the principles which has secured this result.

"This need should be fulfilled by beginning the next political year under the tried and experienced leadership of Frank G. Allen (Republican candidate for governor) and J. Loring Young (Republican candidate for United States Senator) in our commonwealth and of Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis in our nation.

"To the convention assembled for the accomplishment of these ends, I send my cordial greetings."

Harmony marked the opening of the convention and words from the platform builders said that all was harmonious there too, with a plank endorsing prohibition and Republican principles.

BABY'S YELL BRINGS SUIT.

Atlantic City, Sept. 29.—How much noise can a baby make at night and keep within the law? That is a question a jury in the District Court will be asked to decide Oct. 10 when the action brought by Walter J. Satterthwaite, owner of the Barclay Court Apartments, to dispossess Harry Antebie, a Boardwalk merchant, on the ground that his baby makes too much noise, is to be heard.

WILLIMANTIC ENGINEER DIES FOLLOWING SHOCK

Robert E. Mitchell, Was City Official for 25 Years—Was 53 Years Old.

Willimantic, Conn., Sept. 29.—Robert E. Mitchell, for 25 years city engineer here, died at his home today following a shock sustained Thursday morning. He was 53 years old. ## TURN BACK YOUR CLOCKS AS D. S. TIME DEPARTS

Don't forget to turn back your clocks an hour before going to bed tonight. For tomorrow brings the end of Daylight Saving and the return of Standard Time once more.

For some unexplained reason, only three Manchester churches will observe standard time tomorrow, the others all waiting until the following Sunday. Those changing are the Swedish Congregational, German Lutheran and St. James.

The change in the clocks means that darkness will come "an hour earlier" each evening.

MAYOR TO SHIFT ALL HIS POLICE

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 29.—Every one of the city's 4,500 policemen from captain to patrolman, has been put on his honor by Mayor Harry A. Mackey in a final determined effort to put a stop to the huge graft collections revealed by a Grand Jury probe. Every blue-coat in the city will be transferred to new posts. The order becomes effective immediately and no one will know his next post until he receives orders to report there.

Drastic Order.
The order to Director of Public Safety Davis is the most drastic and sweeping ever issued in the history of the Philadelphia police force. Every district commander before transfer must turn in a report of conditions in his district now. When the transfer is completed every new commander will be given a week to become acquainted with conditions in his new district then he must file a complete report. The old and new reports will then be checked to find out if any vice had been covered up by the old commanders. Thus every policeman and captain will be spying out and checking up on each other. Every commander will stand or fall on the records, the mayor said.

To Find Honest Men.
"I am going to find out who are the competent and trustworthy men," Mackey said.

"I have made the transfer complete for what is the use of leaving patrolmen in a district and shifting the captains if there are any grafting bluecoats left undisturbed?"

"My order stands as it reads. The whole force will be switched around in the next few days. I want to see where the blame lies."

SEN. REED UNABLE TO AID CAMPAIGN

New York, Sept. 29.—Democratic prospects in Missouri suffered a severe setback today with the announcement of Senator James A. Reed, militant patriarch of his party that he would be unable to take but a "limited" part in the campaign.

The requirements of an important piece of litigation in which he has been engaged for years compelled withdrawal of his previous offer to serve the national committee constantly until election day. Reed said in a letter to Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, chairman of the Speakers' Bureau.

Characterizing Herbert Hoover as "a noble experiment" who had in 1920 "changed to a Republican in order to get into office" in the Cabinet of President Harding, Reed again called on his party as from the platform of the Houston convention, to stand unitedly behind Gov. Smith.

WILLIMANTIC ENGINEER DIES FOLLOWING SHOCK

Robert E. Mitchell, Was City Official for 25 Years—Was 53 Years Old.

Willimantic, Conn., Sept. 29.—Robert E. Mitchell, for 25 years city engineer here, died at his home today following a shock sustained Thursday morning. He was 53 years old. Mr. Mitchell, a native of Willimantic, learned his profession by studying under a former city engineer after leaving a school here. He leaves his wife, one daughter, four sisters and a brother.

FRANCO-BRITISH PACT IS REJECTED BY U. S.

Providence Is Rocked By Thirty Explosions

Providence, R. I., Sept. 29.—Thirty explosions of oil drums, marked a $100,000 three alarm fire today in the four story brick plant of the United States Oil Co., South Water and James street, on the waterfront today. The building and several thousands gallons of lubricating oil was destroyed.

The adjoining mattress factory of George F. Mulholland was damaged by water.

All trolley and automobile traffic to Fall River and other points south was halted for three hours, causing a big tie up.

Almost every piece of fire apparatus in the city and the fireboat fought the flames for three hours.

RADIUM MACHINE INCREASES LIFE

New Invention Adds 15 Years to Span, Its Inven- tor Claims.

New York, Sept. 29.—Declaring that "radium will add fifteen years to anybody's life," Captain H. R. Zimmer, Los Angeles inventor who has been experimenting with radium for 29 years, today described in an interview a device he has perfected that makes ordinary drinking water "radio active" with amazing results.

"Radio-active water makes old men feel young—peeps 'em up," said Zimmer.

"It's not a cure-all but it does remarkable things. It tones up the system, reduces high blood pressure, softens hardening arteries and is safe for the heart.

Induces Sleep
"It enables the drinker to enjoy sound and refreshing sleep, banishes melancholy and improves digestion. The improved circulation makes the skin softer, the complexion clearer, and in a number of instances wrinkles and blemishes have disappeared and the hair was restored to its original color."

Zimmer, who is 64 years old, said he doesn't feel a day over 40. He has the appearance and vigor of a man of middle-age. He is in New York in connection with tests he is making for the United States government of a high explosive he has invented and which is known as "aluminumomite," said to be more powerful than T. N. T. He has 61 inventions to his credit.

The Invention
The device for making drinking water "radio active" is a circular disk arrangement that can be placed in any glass or jar, making the water therein radio-active. It tastes like that from the finest springs, according to Zimmer. The machine unit strength of the radio-active water is 2,000 compared with active water from Hot Springs water, 32 for Saratoga Springs water, 38 for the Carlsbad water and 185 for the St. Joachimstal Spring in Czecho-Slovakia, the inventor declared.

CARNES IS CAUGHT IN CANADIAN CITY

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 29.—The capture and arrest here late yesterday of Clinton S. Carnes, wanted in Atlanta, Ga., on charges of having embezzled a million dollars from the funds of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, was due to the work of an amateur detective, it was learned today.

The embryo sleuth, whose name was withheld, had read a description of Carnes on one of the many circulars which were sent to all parts of North America after the former treasurer of the mission board disappeared from Atlanta on August 15th last. Spurred on by the $5,000 reward offered for the capture of the missing man, the amateur detective kept his eyes open and noticed a stranger in a private rooming house here who resembled Carnes' photograph.

Notifies Police
The sleuth immediately notified police here of his discovery and two detectives were sent to the rooming house. The stranger, cornered, admitted he was Carnes. The detectives said he answered the description of the hunted man in every particular.

A large sum of money was found in Carnes' room, the detectives announced. The exact amount was not revealed.

Admits Identity
When first questioned, Carnes said he was F. L. Lewis and that he came here from Milwaukee three weeks ago. After a severe grilling by detectives, he admitted his identity. He had been reported seen in several American cities during the far-fung search made for him.

The prisoner was to be formally charged as a fugitive from justice when arraigned in City Court here today. Photographs and fingerprints of Carnes are being sent here from Atlanta to confirm the prisoner's identity. Atlanta police advised that they will not begin extradition proceedings until they are certain that the man here is Carnes.

TWO HURT IN WRECK

Oil City, Pa., Sept. 29.—Two members of the crew were injured and several passengers were badly shaken up when the engine and three cars of the Buffalo-Pittsburgh night express enroute to Pittsburgh were derailed near Red Bank, Pa., about 40 miles south of here early today, according to reports received here.

The report said that Fred Dotterer, engineer, of Pittsburgh, was badly scalded and C. O. Sallade, of Oil City, fireman, was less seriously hurt.

BRITAIN LIKELY TO GO TO A PROTECTIVE TARIFF

London, Sept. 29.—That the return of a Conservative Government in the next general election will be followed by an extension of the policy of the "safeguarding of industries" to a point where it will practically constitute a protective tariff system seems fairly evident as a result of official intimations today.

Mother, Two Daughters Found Dead From Gas

Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 29.—A young mother and her two children were discovered dead today in the gas-filled living room of their home.

The dead:
Mrs. Grace Stuer, 31; her daughter, Beatrice, 11, and her son Francis, 10.

Discovery of the bodies was made by the woman's husband, Frank Stuer, who found all the doors of the living room closed and gas escaping from a petcock near the floor.

Police refused to make a statement as to whether it was a case of accidental death or suicide pending the report of Medical Examiner Victor Reed.

President Coolidge in Em- phatic Note Cites Discrim- ination Against Us on Types of Warships; Door Is Left Open for Further Discussions.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Franco-British accord on naval limitation as a basis of discussion of limitation, was rejected outright by the United States in identic notes delivered to the Foreign Offices in London and Paris today.

Language of unusual force in diplomacy was used to describe the American view of the proposal which was construed as seeking to restrict larger cruisers and submarines of the type held necessary for the United States while leaving the field clear for smaller vessels of those classes, so much desired by Great Britain and France.

"Even more objectionable" and "more unacceptable" than the proposals advanced by Great Britain at the abortive Geneva tripartite conference last year, and something that would place the United States "in a position of manifest disadvantage" were some of the terms used to convey the American view of the accord.

At the same time it was made clear that while the American position had not changed since the tripartite conference the door was still open, so far as the United States was concerned, for further armament negotiations before duly constituted conferences. The hope was conveyed that something might yet be achieved along that line.

8 GOLDEN WEDDING COUPLES ON TOUR

Portland, Me., Sept. 29.—Eight golden wedding couples from Millo, Me., en route to Boston on a "golden honeymoon" trip today sang: Put on your old gray bonnet, With the blue ribbons on it, While I hitch Old Dobbin to the shay. And through the fields of clover We will drive to Dover on our golden wedding day.

The only difference was that "Dobbin" was home in the barn and the "home folks" of Millo were traveling by motor car.

"If a body kiss a body coming through the rye, why should all the happers cry?" and "Grandpa" John Dillon, 84, planted a sweetheart's kiss on "Ma" Dillon as he replied: "Because the young folks today don't even know how to kiss so I will keep a husband happy for 62 years."

That bit of pleasantry was for the benefit of Governor Ralph Brewster at the Blaine mansion in Augusta.

Old Courtship Days
"In our courtship days there was no petting and loving to cheapen love," said "Ma" Dillon, who is 82. "We married because we really loved each other enough to overlook each other's faults. We took each other for life and worked side by side to cultivate the contentment which keeps love alive."

"And I stay home nights," interrupted "Grandpa."

The golden wedding couples were up early for the long motor trip to Boston today and bid their comrades, the Rev. Sylvanus E. Frothingham, pastor of the United Baptist church of Millo, and Mrs. Manley G. Brackett, wife of the town's retired grocer, goodspeed on their airplane ride to the hub.

Not Jealous
"No use for me to be jealous of my wife riding on such an adventurous trip with the minister," laughed Brackett. "We have lived happily together for 54 years. My recipe for married happiness is to keep the woodbox full, turn the wringer, stay at home nights, and move into twin beds when you reach the snoring age."

Brackett is 71 and his wife 72. She thinks the only way to keep a man happy through the ups and downs of half a century of wedded life is to let him think that he is

REACTION FAVORABLE

Washington, Sept. 29.—Reaction to the American note to France and Great Britain declining to accept as a basis for further naval disarmament the Franco-British compromise agreement on light cruisers and submarine construction, was decidedly favorable in naval and other official circles here today.

It was thought Secretary Kellogg had stated the American position in such a way as to make it impossible for a charge of hampering naval limitation to stick against the United States.

The note points the way for discussions to be resumed in the preliminary commission on disarmament of the League of Nations through an informal proposal made by France in March 1927 at a meeting of this commission, which never became part of the record.

The government of the United States, Kellogg said, "remains willing to use its best efforts to obtain a basis for further naval limitation satisfactory to all the large powers, including those not represented at the three-power conference in Geneva, and is willing to take into consideration in any conference the specific needs of France, Italy or any other naval power for the particular class of vessels deemed by them most suitable for their defense."

Kellogg then points out that this could be accomplished by permitting any of the powers to vary the percentage of tonnage in classes within the total tonnage; a certain percentage to be agreed upon."

LONDON'S NEXT MOVE

London, Sept. 29.—Foreign office and admiralty here today had under study the United States note answering the Anglo-French naval proposals and stating America's own naval position. They were particularly interested in the paragraph which said that the United States would do the utmost to bring about a basis for future negotiations.

The next move of the British Cabinet will not be decided until the Cabinet meets.

Official comment of the British government was summed up as follows:

"We made an honest effort to bring about an agreement leading to naval limitation, but failed. Nevertheless the door is not definitely closed."

Publication of the official text of the Anglo-French agreement is still delayed, although the foreign office failed to explain why.

BYRD SAYS GOODBYE

Boston, Mass., Sept. 29.—Before embarking on the long journey which he expects will take him to the South Pole, Commander Richard E. Byrd was at his Brimmer Street home today having a farewell romp with his kiddies.

Byrd expects to be gone four years.

NO MORE PARACHUTE JUMPING FOR THRILLS

Commissioner Knox Takes Action After Death of Middletown Man.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 29.—There will be no more stunt jumping in the state of Connecticut, Clarence M. Knox, state commissioner of aviation, today issued a formal order placing "delayed jumping" from planes under the ban.

While the commissioner's order followed the death at Chester, late yesterday, of W. H. Johnson, 23, of Middletown, who was making his 18th parachute jump, the fact became known today that the commissioner proposed parachute race that had been projected for Brainard Field.

In commenting on his latest order, Commissioner Knox today declared he would not permit jumps for thrills any more than he would permit airplane stunts for a thrill.

Delayed jumps, one of which was attempted by Johnson yesterday, consist of the jumper dropping 500 feet, before opening his parachute. The idea is to thrill spectators. He had lengthened the time between leaving the plane and opening his parachute during several successive drops. In the last drop the parachute did not open.

VETERANS URGE CONSOLIDATING U. S. AGENCIES

Washington.—Consolidation of various federal agencies dealing with former service men will be one of the major problems facing the next session of Congress, according to an announcement today by the Disabled American Veterans.

Upon several occasions in the past there has been agitation for the absorption of the Pension Office, which handles the relief of American wars previous to 1917, and the Veterans Bureau which deals with the World War men. In addition there has been a strong movement to have the Veterans' Bureau which deals with the World War men, in addition there has been a strong movement to have the Veterans' Bureau take over the system of the National Homes for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, which has nine homes throughout the country and which is now under the jurisdiction of the War Department.

Discuss Amalgamation. Two years ago the national commanders of the recognized organizations of the various wars met in Washington and discussed the question of bringing the Pension office and the Veterans Bureau together.

Since then Gen. Frank T. Hines director of the Bureau, has advocated a consolidation of the two agencies in his speeches before the national convention of the Disabled American Veterans at Denver, the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Indianapolis, and it is expected he will repeat this advice at the coming convention of the American Legion at San Antonio.

Rep. Ralph Updike (R), Ind., has announced that one of the first bills, that he will introduce at the coming session will be the merger of the Pension Office and the Veterans Bureau, while each of the three world war veterans' organizations plan to ask Congress to grant executive authority for the transfer of individual branches of the national homes to the control of the Veterans Bureau when it is felt better administration will result.

Annual Saving. Supporting his plan Updike declared his proposed consolidation plan will result in an annual saving of $20,000,000.

Immediately after the world war a disabled veteran went to the United States Public Health Service for his physical examinations and treatments, to the Federal Board of Vocational Training for his vocational rehabilitation and in the Bureau of War Risk Insurance for his insurance and compensation. This arrangement was considered so highly unsatisfactory, both to the men and the government, that this work was finally gathered under the Veterans Bureau, although the relief of veterans of other wars continued in the hands of the Commissioner of Pensions.

Air Traffic Cops Made 219 Arrests In Year; Big Fines For The Flyers

By ALFRED T. NEWBERRY.

Washington.—The air traffic cop has arrived. Unlike his blue-coated brethren on terra firma, he does not sound his intention of arresting the offender by blowing a whistle. Instead he pursues his man to the latter's destination and effects the arrest.

The heavens provides "great open spaces" to the casual observer. None would believe an aviator in subject to such a charge as unauthorized parking. This, however, is one of the regulations of the Department of Commerce and quite a few flyers have paid penalties.

Reports of the department indicate the aerial policemen were on the job during the fiscal year ending July 1. There were no complaints of "sleeping on their posts" or "loitering around peanut stands." The aerial vendor has not yet appeared. But not so many years ago cronies defied anyone who suggested the time would come when air traffic would be regulated.

During the year 219 violations were detected by the air officers and in sixty-five cases fines from $500 to $3,000, were imposed. Of the 193 cases heard reprimands were given in 118.

The parking charge does not enter the other is jammed in certain sections with stationary airplanes as streets in the business district of cities are cluttered with automobiles. The charge means landing in unauthorized sections.

Traffic rules of the air also include low flying over congested areas, stunt flying with passengers aboard and carrying explosives. Commerce officials declared each regulation was violated during the fiscal year.

DIDN'T LIKE HIS SHOES

Pittsburgh, Sept. 29.—"When the meals didn't suit him, he went to bed frequently with his shoes on," testified Mrs. Nancy Elliott in divorce proceedings today against Harold J. Elliott. They were married in 1914 and separated in 1921, she told Judge Moore. Decision was reserved.

DEMOCRATS NERVOUS AS TO RURAL MISSOURI

St. Louis, Sept. 29.—Considerable significance applying to the Missouri political situation is attached to the decision to have Governor Smith deliver his Missouri address at Sedalia instead of St. Louis. That decision was due to very pronounced Democratic defection in the interior of the state.

BUILD TO COMBINE CLERICAL FORCES

New Cheney Structure Is Planned in Interest of Co-ordination.

The Aberthaw Construction Company has commenced work on the addition to the Broad Goods Warehouse of Cheney Brothers, which is situated just west of the Main Office building on the Hartford Road.

Reasoner to an inquiry as to the reason for this extension, the company stated that this addition makes it possible to concentrate in one building that portion of the clerical force which has to do with the control of stocks and the routing and scheduling of orders. Heretofore it has been scattered all through the plant and the supervision and direction of its work has been most difficult.

Merely Co-ordination. This change in location will not, however, mean a material increase over the number of those to be employed. The bringing of this force together in one room will make it possible to supervise the work from a common center, and also to establish a contact with the main office and the stocks and schedules of all departments.

About twenty men are employed on the job and though a start was made a week ago they are now starting to lay brick. The peculiarity of the plan is that the present roof, which has a three-fourths inch pitch, will be raised to a horizontal level for a new third floor, but will not be disturbed until the new side walls and roofs are entirely completed. This will protect the very valuable stock housed in this building from any possible damage.

The construction will be pushed as fast as possible and it is hoped that the new room will be ready for occupancy by January first. The work of the contractor will be finished by December first.

WHAT LIFE IS

BY GEORGE HENRY DOLE

International Sunday School Lesson Text, Sept. 26. Christ liveth in me.—Gal. 2:20.

No created thing lives from itself. It seems that plants live from the sun, for with the return of its welcome heat, vegetation springs forth. Yet no life can be derived from the sun, because it is pure fire, and fire is death itself. The sun's function is to make nature plastic so that inflowing life can operate. The dust of the earth has no power to rise up of itself into plant and animal forms. Life from the Creator forms them, and causes them to grow when nature provides the conditions under which life's forces can act.

Man seems to live from himself, yet apart from life inflowing from the Creator, he has no more life than has the food he eats. Man is a receptacle of the highest kind of life, human life, life like that in the Divine Human of God.

Science defines life as a form of activity, or that whereby forms are preserved from disintegration. This is not life. It is only an effect of life. God is life itself. He is the only one that lives from Himself. He is the only perpetual motion.

All other things live from God, and receive their life according to their forms.

It makes no difference whether it is said that God is life, or that God is love, for life is love. And man's love is the life of him. There are infinite powers in God's love. When it inflows into one, it produces activity of the bodily functions and of the mind. The activity of love from God in the mind produces thought, the light of the mind, which is the "light of life," or love shining. His love is turned by the organism of the mind into man's love. Man's true love is the taste of God's love.

The life of the evil is derived from God, but defiled by their own wills, just as crystal waters of a spring become a fetid bog.

Christ lives in us by our receiving His truth and love and using them in the outward life. Christ dies in us when we indulge false thoughts or evil desires, because in so doing the sacred blessings of His love are destroyed. Then one becomes dead in sin.

Christ in us lifts us above self and the world into His light and love, wherein are all blessings. His sweet unselfish love banishes self, and gives one to breathe out tenderness, compassion, and Christ-like love.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 29, 1928

DEMOCRATIC "PROTECTION"

Augustine Lonergan, Democratic candidate for United States senator from Connecticut, and Herman H. Koppelman, Democratic candidate for representative in Congress from the first Connecticut district, base their hopes of success on the acceptance, by the workers of this state and district, of their pretense that so far as the tariff is concerned Democrats and Republicans are now as much alike as two peas in a pod.

That is the idea that the Democratic platform intended to convey to the voters in industrial states which had definitely turned their backs on the Democracy on the tariff issue.

We challenge Candidate Lonergan and Candidate Koppelman to go before the voters of Connecticut or the First district, with their own Democratic campaign book in their hands, and support that position by reading therefrom all or part of the context dealing with the tariff.

Says the Democratic campaign book:

"The difference between the position of the Democratic and Republican parties on the tariff issue can be briefly summarized by saying that the Democratic party views the tariff as an instrument of national policy, to be framed in accordance with the needs of industry, agriculture, workers or consumers. Specifically the Democratic party does not advocate tariffs higher than would equalize the difference between the cost of production abroad and at home. The Republican policy has a single aim; to protect industrial profits, and to protect them if necessary at the expense of all other interests."

That is Paragraph One.

There are 24 pages of tariff discussion in the book—and they follow intimately the trend of the introduction in that they constitute a vigorous attack on the Republican tariff policy.

It would be entirely beside the question to discuss the Democratic theory of the tariff on its merits or demerits. The point is that when a political party devotes twenty-four pages of fine type to an assault on the tariff position of the opposing party, and when its Congressional candidates then go before the people under the pretense that there is no such thing as a tariff issue, they are, if the unvarnished truth must be told, soliciting votes under false pretences.

So far as the merits of any controversy on the tariff between Democrats and Republicans are concerned, the workers of Connecticut long ago reached a decision. They are overwhelmingly for the Republican theory of protection. And in view of the reiteration of all the old Democratic tariff-reduction arguments in the Democratic campaign book of 1928 we doubt if Mr. Lonergan or Mr. Koppelman will be able to convince a single voter that either of them is a member of a protectionist party, despite the tawdry camouflage of the Houston platform.

IMMIGRATION WEASLING

Said Governor Alfred E. Smith at St. Paul, Thursday: "In the course of the last two weeks I have discovered another whispering campaign about my attitude toward immigration."

Then he proceeded to quote the Republican and Democratic platforms and his own and Herbert Hoover's utterances (trickily) to show that there is no conflict whatever between his and his opponent's positions on the question of an alien influx.

Smith went to considerable length to convince his hearers that he and Mr. Hoover are as one in their position on immigration. But his words were weasle words. He avoided with the greatest care that section of his speech of acceptance in which he said:

of restriction based upon the figures of immigrant population contained in a census thirty-eight years old." That score of words constitute the price that Smith paid for the support of the elements that have been battering at the doors of Congress for years in an attempt to have the census of 1920 substituted for the census of 1890 as the basis of the quotas. They commit the Democratic candidate irrevocably to a shift in the quota basis that would deeply cut the quotas of England, Ireland, Germany and the Scandinavian countries and increase those of Albania, Greece, Armenia, Turkey, the Balkan states, Asia Minor, Syria. It would change the whole character of the restricted immigration. It is absolutely in contradiction to the policy of Hoover, whose plan is to leave the quotas as they are.

If attacks on Smith's immigration policy such as have been made in this newspaper constitute whispering, then may Divine Providence give us the power to shout!

THE DIGEST'S POLL

The Literary Digest's poll, showing in its second installment a considerably larger number of former Republicans voting for Smith than of former Democrats voting for Hoover, is disconcerting only to those Hoover Republicans who do not stop to consider the situation four years ago.

In the first place there were a good many more than twice as many Republican votes cast, counting the Progressives, in 1924, as there were Democratic votes, and if the tendency to shift about were exactly equal in both parties the number of Republicans who would change their votes this year would naturally be twice as great as the number of Democrats.

In the second place, the Digest's poll cards do not inquire what the habitual affiliation of the voter has been, merely how he voted in 1924. And there has never been the slightest doubt that hundreds of thousands of habitual Democrats, who never cast a Republican ballot before in all their lives, voted for the Coolidge electors four years ago, in sheer revenge for the refusal of the New York convention to nominate Smith. In a poll like the one taken by the Digest one may be sure that these voters will be prompt to register themselves as "former Republicans" who intend to vote for Smith.

It is significant that this flop-Smith vote constitutes more than half of the total Smith vote indicated in the poll, the number of what we might call Davis Democrats who report their intention of voting for Smith being, so far, surprisingly small. Allowing for the former Democrats who now declare for Hoover, it is obvious that Davis Democrats, as a whole, are not responding to the poll with any great alacrity, indicating that there is a lack of enthusiasm and perhaps a lack of certainty as to how they will vote.

LOW GRADE POLITICS

We have always thought the attempt of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt to link up the name of Governor Smith with the Albany baseball pool scandal was a rather clogging piece of business. We think so still, but since Smith's Montana speech, in which he in turn attempted to attack the stigma of the oil scandals to the record of Herbert Hoover, we can contemplate the pursuit of Col. Roosevelt's rather petty ambition with considerable more complacency.

It is cheap politics, of course, to stage the grand jury probe into the baseball pools in the midst of the Presidential campaign, but this has degenerated into a pretty cheap sort of a campaign, as conducted on the Democratic side, and there is at least the compensation of realizing that if mud is scraped out of the baseball pool to be thrown at Smith it is no dirtier mud than he stuck his own hands into at Helena.

MONDAY'S PARADE

While there isn't voting strength enough on the side of our friends the Democrats to make a town election in Manchester very exciting, there is a very good reason why Republicans should go to the polls on Monday and pile up an impressive total of ballots. In a way the town elections, even where there are no real contests, constitute a demonstration in force as part of the strategy of the vitally important struggle at the polls in November. Manchester Republicans should vote on Monday, not only because it is a civic duty anyhow, but for the purposes of the record.

tainable basis of truth, there is an impression in some parts of the country that Connecticut is going to be a close state this year. As good a way as any to correct that misapprehension is for Republicans in the towns to enable the returns of the local elections to indicate the magnitude of their strength. A four-to-one Republican vote in Manchester day after tomorrow would not be without its value in contributing to the smashing of the delusion that Connecticut is a close state this year.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 29.—If the signs in Fifth Avenue shop windows carry any sartorial significance, then the well-dressed man of America will be garbed this winter in shades of autumn brown, shot now and then with autumn reds. No., perhaps, that this will make a great deal of difference to the world. But they tell me there are men who pay attention to such things, though I never have met them myself.

And, again, if the signs of Fifth Avenue mean anything, two doors down from the point where men are told what to wear, a woman's hostelry emporium of considerable class reveals that suburban has been so prevalent this past summer, and tan will be so common this coming winter, that a new shade of stocking is being created.

And, turning to one's left and steering due west, it is possible to encounter also a new style in cocktail. It's a product of the 19,993rd speakeasy, and is known as "the whoopee." It's base, I am told is applejack—a vintage native to New Jersey and Normandy.

So much for the new styles! New Yorkers would doubtless be surprised to learn that one of their largest stores had its start, not in the turgid metropolis but in a neat little Indiana city. It is already well known across this land that most of the important people of Manhattan drifted here from the small towns of America. But Gotham itself is but dimly aware that Gimbel's vast emporium grew out of a country store in Vincennes, Ind. There old Adam Gimbel dealt in such things as visiting farmers might require—harnesses, grain, dairy products and all the rest.

And Adam Gimbel had seven sons. Each of the sons was weaned into the business, and soon began to "go forth for themselves." Unless I am misinformed they now have six stores scattered about the country, and the business amounts to more than a hundred million a year.

Which reminds me that when someone checked over the list of skyscrapers recently built, or now rising, it was found that designers and builders alike in a considerable percentage of instances had been imported from small centers of the nation. A large number of them had come from Ohio.

Broadway stage mechanics frequently make considerable more money than the stars and actresses. And they always collect whether a show fails or succeeds. While their actual wage ranges about $85, they make their money in overtime during the weeks that precede an opening. At such times they are asked to be on the job from noon to midnight. There are many instances where they have worked day and night, with only slight rest on those days preceding the opening of new production. With time-and-

The disappearance of the emporious rub-down, followed by hot and cold showers. Our greatest physical and mental enjoyment can only come when we realize the old Roman ideal—"A HEALTHY MIND IN A HEALTHY BODY."

We should at all times have an abundance of strength at our command and the ability of sustained effort; we should have a grace that comes from a perfect control of our muscles and nervous system; a symmetry of figure that gives us a good presence and appearance before others; and above all, mental alertness and good nature that can only come from clean living and regular, wholesome recreation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS QUESTION: Mrs. A. M. asks: "Will you please tell me if dizziness at times, and a tired feeling ALL the time, are signs of high blood pressure? I am forty-three years old, and a poor sleeper."

ANSWER: The only way to tell whether or not you have high blood pressure is to have an examination made by the use of the sphygmomanometer, which is an instrument for measuring blood pressure. The dizziness in your insomnia may come from high blood pressure, but one with this disorder is seldom bothered by being unusually tired. He generally has plenty of energy, but becomes dizzy upon extreme exertion.

QUESTION: Mrs. W. L. asks: "What do you advise one to do when at a party like bridge in a private home of friends, when refreshment time comes, and rich or highly seasoned cakes, or other delicacies or drinks are served? Folks laugh when you say you are on a diet, and it is so common an excuse among the fleshy-inclined ladies. This is really a problem, and your advice will be appreciated by a host of us."

ANSWER: If you are sick and actually trying to overcome a disease, you should stick to your diet under all circumstances, but if you are in a good state of health you may occasionally indulge in some dessert. It is better not to use the more complicated kind, but stick to ice cream or some fruit, or fruit drink.

QUESTION: J. D. asks: "Will you please tell me if hot baths are harmful to varicose veins? Also, is it advisable to wear an elastic bandage, and how should it be worn, evenly or criss-crossed?"

ANSWER: Hot applications will relieve the pain from varicose veins, but it is much better to always use cold applications, with wet, cold cloths or with ice. This will shrink the veins more to their normal size. If plenty of ice treatment is used it will not be necessary to wear an elastic stocking or bandage. However, if the bandage is used it should be put on criss-crossed.

a-half tabbed to their favor and with bonuses for their efforts, their salaries soar to $300 and more a week in the busy season. Stage doormen, for some reason or other, seldom quit their jobs until old age has made them incapacitated for further work. Most of Broadway's stage doormen are old-timers. Some have been on the job for 20 years or more. The theaters seek to keep veterans in their employe, since they are accustomed to the ways and manners of the stage folk—and of the hundreds who try to crash the gate. Most doormen are encyclopedias of information concerning performers from the tyros of the chorus to the stars. The tales they could reveal—and seldom do—would constitute a rich biography.

GILBERT SWAN.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Sept. 29.—Everyone who can read or, failing that, knows what the words from the loudspeaker mean, must realize by now that this is a political campaign and that the candidates don't mean maybe.

Unless Al Smith loses his voice, it probably will figure as the hottest campaign since 1896. It is certainly eclipsing those of 1900, 1904 and 1908. The 1912 result was a foregone conclusion in which Taft and Roosevelt pasted each other while Wilson walked into the White House.

No one could have hoped for a hot campaign in 1916 with two austere intellectuals such as parties and the brave efforts of Cox in his hopeless defense of Wilsonism in 1920 brought no real fire from the Republicans.

In 1924 there was an attack at all insofar as the major parties were concerned and one candidate appeared about as colorless and conservative as the other.

On the surface, the present campaign seemed rather a disappointment from the standpoint of sensations up to the time Smith reached Omaha. It looked as if the candidates might act like Davis and Coolidge in 1924, performing like a couple of wedding cakes and inspiring nobody, while a lot of dirty work went on under the surface as usual. But suddenly things began to happen.

Within 24 hours, Smith had blown off the roof of all hopes that it would be a nice, sweet, respectable, impersonal campaign, the G. O. P. headquarters here was having convulsion fits. Candidate Charlie Curtis had been heckled in Iowa—all places—and had gone up in the air only to descend on Tamman; with both feet and Big Bill Borah was rampaging into the lists to bombard Smith with the same kind of benediction he had hurled at Hoover.

It was, to be sure, a swell start and the hearts of Washington correspondents thrilled for about the first time this year. Hoover headquarters here was not frightened, but was distinctly disturbed. Apparently the folks there had mistaken Smith for Little Lord Fannleroy. They had supposed Smith knew that he had no business chasing the farmers, that it wasn't cricket to throw tin cans, rocks, eggs, bricks, vegetables and other such material in a presidential contest and that the Emily Posts of politics unanimously agreed as to the barbaric enormity of ever mentioning one's opponent by name.

Yet Smith had done all these things and the next day was one of the heavy conferences, personal and telephonic, at Hoover headquarters. Obviously, this new method of campaigning introduced by the irreverent Mr. Smith had to be met.

No candidate can remain long erect on a pedestal when the other fellow starts pelting him as Smith pests. Hoover probably received more advice in one day than he had ever had in one month of his life. Eastern conservatives demanded that he jump all over Smith for his radical promises to the farmers, while western agrarians urged that he go Smith one better.

The upshot was that the Republican board of strategy decided the best possible answer to Smith's Omaha speech was a counter-attack. Senator Borah, billed for a speech at Detroit, was given the cue and presumably supplied with brickbats. It was an instance of fast, straight thinking, for no man on the Republican firing line was better fitted to lead off his offensive defense than Borah. And he did his stuff. His prepared speech as released to newspapers was merely a eulogy to Hoover; his real speech lambasted Al.

Of course Borah and the other brigadiers can't do it all. Commander-in-chief Hoover, in the opinion of most political observers, cannot ignore Smith and his tactics. There is danger that Smith will make the campaign his kind of a fight, which means that it is becoming a grand show and may soon become a straight-out battle of personalities in which Smith's experience will count.

Hoover is undoubtedly pretty sore. He preferred a more conventional campaign in which the candidates could be on a high plane. But now, judging from his known character, he would like nothing better than to blow Smith out of the water. His managers and advisers probably won't let him try. They will make him concentrate belligerently on the tariff and prosperity.

Smith, of course, is playing the old game that so often won him the governorship of New York. The situation was so patently made to order for him and his position was so obviously that of the brackler that no one should have been surprised.

He hopes to get the voters to laughing at Hoover and his friends, as he made them laugh at his opponents in New York. His hopes that Hoover, in the counter-attack, will provide him with some opening for a telling thrust.

Hoover is a far bigger man, however, than Smith ever defeated, for governor in New York, and the G. O. P. organization in New York is far less powerful than the national party. Meanwhile, whether it works in the 47 states or not, Smith's methods certainly have pepped up the campaign.

The Day of Miracles Has Not Yet Passed

Interesting Interviews With Local Folks

Talks with Manchester Business and Professional Men and Women—Intimate Word Pictures of Persons You See Day After Day.

Perusing dusty volumes in museums, now stands the modern blacksmith JAMES KILPATRICK who has turned to decorating modern homes instead of shoeing frisky horses

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the eighth of a series of new local Saturday feature stories, a different one appearing each week. As this week's article shows, it is not only business and professional men along Main street who will be interviewed but persons in all parts of the town.

THE disappearance of the horse and with it horse drawn vehicles did not by any means spell the doom of the blacksmith. It merely meant that the worker in iron and steel, keeping abreast of the times, found that he could do business at the old stand just the same. So, good folks, meet the modern smithy—James Kilpatrick. Hark to what he says of his ancient craft.

In olden times the blacksmith was considered a very important man in every community. He had to be for without him how could the other mechanics work? He made their tools. Coming down to our early American history the center of every community had its blacksmith shop. It was the most important part of the town. Coming down still further we find that the oldest industries here were wagon works, the old Lyman shop, the Cone woodworking shop and then they tell me of one Daniel Wadsworth, town clerk, justice of the peace and distinguished early settler, who was also a blacksmith.

The Old And The New The old times will tell you that the blacksmiths of older days were better than they are now but they are wrong. Inventions and better tools makes the modern blacksmith a better mechanic. In the olden days the trade had many branches. One man would cut the feet of the horses and do nothing else except nail on the horses' shoes. Then there was the man at the forge who was called the fireman and those who did wood work were wheelwrights. Then there were forgers who made iron work for wagons and then there were men who set rubber tires on wagon wheels. Now comes the modern blacksmith, the man who makes ornamental iron work called "Colonial Hardware".

Colonial Hardware And that is what Mr. Kilpatrick is doing in his shop on Charter Oak street and a visit to it will be a surprise to a majority of Manchesterites who never dreamed we have such an artisan here. From the outside the shop looks just like the old blacksmith shops found years ago in every village in America but inside there is a difference. One would imagine that it was a museum for here are displayed Colonial articles of all descriptions, spinning wheels, old lanterns, latches and hinges and door knockers and dozens of other articles, all of the Colonial period.

A THUMBNAILED SKETCH OF KILPATRICK'S LIFE

JAMES Kilpatrick was born in Manchester 39 years ago. He came from a race of blacksmiths. He says that for at least four generations there was always a blacksmith in the family. His great grandfather was a blacksmith on the Isle of Man. His grandfather was one in Ireland and his father was one. His father came to this country fifty years ago.

Ornamental ironwork is the big thing now" said Mr. Kilpatrick. Home builders are looking to the new art more and more. Just look about you at the style of buildings going up. You will notice that they are mostly leaning toward the old Colonial style. To keep up with this style it is important that the hardware matches and here is where the modern blacksmith comes into the picture.

Years ago it would sound rather odd to tell you that a blacksmith had to go to museums and read old books to keep up with his trade but nowadays the modern blacksmith must do just that.

Old Pieces The interviewer was then shown an old lantern. It was copied from a museum piece and was to be used in a new home. The original lantern hangs at the Newgate prison. A candle supplied the light and holes punched into the sides allow the light to filter through. Hinges and door-knockers in many novel shapes are made by the local blacksmith. Then for the open fireplace there are andirons and Mr. Kilpatrick has some real antiques in this line which he copies when ordered to do so. Then there are stands for gypsy pots that go into fireplaces and railings that are used in front of houses which are just now the rage among architects. In town there are two splendid examples of these railings, one at the model home and one at the Quish funeral parlor. Continuing his talk on decorative iron work, Mr. Kilpatrick said: "People are going to great lengths now for effects. They are using iron more and more. See these door latches. There are modern locks hidden within but the Colonial effect is there. It is the same with lamps or various styles where electricity is used to light imitation candles. It's the effect that counts. "My work now is ever so much more interesting. In former years it was mostly the same thing. Now every day brings a different problem. I am always learning something new and that keeps a man from going stale."

The Danbury Fair is the Mecca for the man who would be up to date in the conduct of his farm, factory, store, mill, garden or home. Whatever is newest and best or calculated to show improvement on what has gone before is certain to be shown at the Hat Town's exposition from Oct. 1 to 6. Displayed in action the prospective buyer or spectator gets a true idea of just what can be done by the clever contrivances that save time, labor and money for their owners. Each year this section of the Fair shows its popularity. Many sales are made and the purchasers return each year eager to "get next" to the latest things on the market along these lines. Seller and buyer appreciate the value of the Fair as a meeting place and a business promoter.

Hoover Saved Them Millions

The high standard of living in America is the result of the steadily increasing per capita productivity. These standards can be advanced only by the elimination of waste in industry. The less waste, the lower the price of a commodity; the lower the price the more people can afford to buy it. Hence the larger the market, the greater the number of workers that can be employed. Working upon these principles, Herbert Hoover, while Secretary of the Department of Commerce, set about to save waste in industry and, at the beginning of Hoover's work, it is estimated that he saved $600,000,000 to American manufacturers in a single year. Numerous laws upon standardization of products had failed. "Do not coerce, encourage," said Mr. Hoover, and calling the representatives of eighty-six industries together, he let them talk themselves into a solution of the problems that had cost them millions for many years. Elimination of waste and standardization of products was but the beginning of Hoover's work. As head of the United States government it will be increased many fold.

"LILAC TIME" AT THE STATE SUNDAY

Film Sensation of the Year Here for Three Day Engagement.

Another fine film production has been added to those fans should not miss in First National's big special, "Lilac Time," which comes to the State Theater on Sunday evening for a special three-day engagement. A dramatic portrayal, that overshadows anything we have seen on the screen in many months is given by Colleen Moore in the stellar role.

Miss Moore, heretofore known chiefly as a comedienne, can now rank with the finest dramatic artists on the screen. She surprised and delighted her most ardent admirers in the role of Jeanne, the little French girl behind the lines in France, and her rendition of the part created by Jane Cowl in the stage version of this same story was a revelation. Gary Cooper, leading man, shares acting honors with the petite star.

"Lilac Time" is ably produced by John McCormick and splendidly directed by George Fitzmaurice. It is a simple, realistic and charming romance with the World War as a background.

We see Miss Moore as the pathetic little figure in the midst of war's alarms. She hides her tears behind a smile as her sweetheart flies away to almost certain death over the lines of the enemy. We are enthralled at the romance, gripped at by the suspense, and thrilled by the dramatic scenes of this great love story as it unfolds before us.

But always the artistry of the star dominates. Not even the marvelous scenes of aerial fighting, the best ever made for the screen, overshadow the subtle, heart-throbbing characterization of Jeanne at the hands of Miss Moore.

Gary Cooper, remembered for his fine work in "Deau Sabreur" and "The Legion of the Condemned," does even better work in "Lilac Time" as Jeanne's sweetheart, and the others in the cast contribute their share towards the success of the picture.

"Lilac Time" is a picturization of the famous play by Jane Cowl and Jane Murrin, which was adapted by Willis Goldbeck.

The supporting cast includes such fine players as Burr McIntosh, George Cooper, Kathryn McGuire, Cleve Moore, Eugenie Besserer and Edward Dillon.

Organist, Fred Werner has arranged a special musical program to accompany the feature, which includes Miss Arlyne Moriarty, soprano soloist.

The latest issue of M. G. M. News Events and a Paramount-Christie comedy will complete the bill.

AIRMINDEDNESS GROWING DAILY IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston, Mass.—Interest in aviation is increasing daily in New England, new factories for the manufacture of airplane engines and parts are being built, air fields are being planned, and dedicated and new air lines formed. In other words an aviation boom has struck New England.

Everywhere is evidenced an air-mindedness that continues to increase, and cities have awakened to the possibilities of aviation both from a commercial and civic standpoint.

Perhaps the greatest recent development is the number of airports over New England that are nearly ready for dedication ceremonies and the increased number of factories planning to manufacture airplane parts on a huge scale.

New Factories A new $500,000 airplane engine concern is in operation at Naugatuck, Conn., and at the end of the present month the output of light airplane engines is expected to be 25 motors a day. The plant started operations with but a force of 90 men, but expectations are that inside of six months it will have been increased to 300.

Aviation, too, is playing a part this season in the recreational business in New England. Planes are carrying vacationists into northern Maine, to Dixville Notch, and to other points in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, to Cape Cod and Nantucket, Mass., and to Manchester, Vt.

A number of hotels in the northern part of the section have established adjoining airfields and which are frequently used by their guests, some of whom fly back and forth every week-end.

Through its Chamber of Commerce, Pittsfield, Mass., has raised $40,000 for the establishment of an airport, and preliminary work will be begun at once with a view to having the field ready for use in 1929. The field is about four miles from the business district and is in direct airline with Boston and Albany.

The airport at Keene, N. H., will be officially opened some time during the first week in September and preparations are being made to hold a large air meet. The town of Plymouth in the same state has been air-marked and a special committee has been appointed to consider the possibility of establishing an air port there.

In Vermont the Board of Aldermen at Burlington have voted to provide an additional runway for the present airport. An air meet is planned there for the latter part of September or the early part of October. Citizens of Rutland, too have empowered a committee to take immediate steps to secure an airport fully equipped with hangars and other apparatus.

Activity in Maine In Maine the town of Caribou, which was the first in Maine to establish a municipal airport, is seeking to have its landing field designated by the Federal Government as the northeastern port of entry for airplanes entering the United States.

A new agreement has recently been reached between the City of Boston and the State of Massachusetts whereby Boston leased the present East Boston Airport from the state. New plans for great improvements have been completed and soon the Hub will have one of the finest landing fields in the country.

A new firm has announced its intention of establishing an airport on the Berkshire Trail in Dalton. Steps toward securing of a landing field, to serve jointly Attleboro and North Attleboro, Mass., have been taken by the business men of those cities. At Lynn, Mass., the Lynn Airport, Inc., has been organized to provide that city with a modern airport, and the Lynn Chamber of Commerce intends to seek aviation concerns.

The town of Northfield, Mass., has had a sign 60 feet in length painted on the flat roof of a building in the center of the town in letters eight feet high.

Lyle Womack, who is suing Ruth Elder for divorce, tried to join the Byrd expedition to the south pole. The pole, undoubtedly, would be as nothing after that cold reception he got at the New York pier a few months ago.

HERALD AND ELIZABETH PARK

Model Home Rapidly Nearing Completion

The Herald-Elizabeth Park Model Home in Robert J. Smith's new development Elizabeth Park is in the home stretch so to speak. Saturday noon will see everything completed with the exception of setting the radiators, hanging up electric fixtures and painting and papering.

Setting the radiators and hanging the fixtures is a job that does not require much time once that the finish is done.

John Clough, painting contractor will start a large force of men on the interior finish at once. The exterior is done. The color scheme is certainly harmonious from cellar to roof. The side walls are finished in ivory and the trim is brown. The multi-colored shingle roof blends in fine.

General Contractor George Forbes has finished the entire interior trim, doors, stairs etc in an even two weeks which is certainly a very creditable record. All hardware used is Corbin made, furnished by The F. T. Bliss Hardware Co. That used in the kitchen, pan-

REAL CONVENIENCE IN HOME KITCHENS NOW BEING REALIZED

Step-Saving Cabinet Reduces Weariness That Assails Even Efficient Worker.

The true meaning of kitchen convenience has become known only within the last decade.

But perhaps as important an improvement as the woman in the home has seen is the kitchen cabinet, with its advantages of step-saving and compactness of arrangement for kitchen utensils. The needless walking saved by the kitchen cabinet greatly reduces that weariness which assails even the most expert housekeeper at the end of the day.

One particular make of kitchen cabinet offers, among other improvements, a choice of color finishes which add greatly to the attractiveness of this unit of equipment. Such colors as dove gray, green, tan and ivory add to the kitchen that note of color which has proved so attractive in other rooms of the house. Longer hours are spent in the kitchen by the home maker than in any other part of the house, and the more attractive the room the faster those working hours fly.

The combined kitchen cabinet contains ice box, pot and pan space, bread board, flour bin and sifter, shelves which come out to meet the user upon opening the cupboard door, and other conveniences. These are all built in

DECORATIVE VALUE OF LIGHT FIXTURES IS VERY IMPORTANT

Inventive Skill and Study of Art Objects Producing Improved Units.

The evening guest who ventured into the dim vestibule of a brownstone front in answer to a dinner invitation during those palmy '90's, which have been named the Mauve Decade, hoped he was welcome. Only a memory of the cordiality which had prompted the invitation upheld him. No welcoming gleam came to him through the shuttered windows. Within the hallway only a flickering, dim gas-light upheld by an ornamental bronze lady lighted his way.

But today a different scene indeed greets the evening visitor. The home which does not throw its welcome down the path from an outside lantern is unusual.

Electricity has, of course, been the great force which has permitted so radical a change as this. Supplemented by artistic lighting fixtures, a constant improvement is going on. For when electricity was first wired into homes the decorative value of lighting fixtures was seldom considered.

From the lantern which beckons at the front doorway to simple kitchen units, both decorative qualities and practicality receive full attention.

One of the newest developments in decorative lighting is the ceiling shield which fits up close to the center ceiling light, hiding the electric globes. Ample light is thrown through the apertures of such a shield; yet the trying and none too flattering brightness of the unprotected bulb is done away with. At such times as the entire room needs light in every corner the beauty of such a shield is best appreciated.

TILE USED FOR FLOORS ROOFS AND PARTITIONS

Light-weight and incombustible tile for use as fireproof partitions, roof-decks and floors is manufactured from gypsum and wood fiber, with about 97 per cent. of the whole being gypsum and the balance wood fiber. When used for partitions such tiles are laid up very much as brick is laid up, only the mortar used is a gypsum mortar.

For roof-decks they are manufactured to special sizes, laid across the steel roof members, fastened and then are ready for any standard kind of roof covering. When used for floors, they are covered with cement topping over which the finish flooring is applied.

RADIATORS FEATURE EFFICIENCY

Push nipples, forming what is claimed to be an entirely permanent iron-to-iron joint, feature a line of radiators especially made for the home. Correctly proportioned tubes and ratio of air space to heating surface are said to result in extremely high efficiency.

Differences Between Rag-Felt And Asbestos Shingles Stated

Despite the national advertising done by asbestos shingle manufacturers and the campaigns carried on in local newspapers by contractors who use plates furnished by the manufacturers, there come reports of a widespread confusion between rag-felt and asbestos shingles. In many cases customers have entrusted their homes to a covering of rag-felt, thinking they had the asbestos shingles they ordered.

There is a great difference between the two, a difference which is apparent at a glance, and there are other differences which inspection will bring to light.

The most apparent difference is that the asbestos shingle is rigid, while the rag-felt shingle is flexible. The asbestos shingle is made of asbestos fibers and Portland cement united under terrific hydraulic pressure, while the rag-felt shingle is made of felts impregnated with asphalt and coated with slate particles.

Thus the first apparent difference is magnified into the larger consideration of fireproofness. The rigid asbestos shingles are absolutely fireproof throughout, while the slate coating on the rag-felt shingle is the only barrier to flame.

In the campaign of the model home this newspaper is sponsoring, rigid asbestos shingles are recommended. While many other roofing materials are widely used and worth the price asked, it is felt a fireproof, permanent roofing is most to be desired.

To ascertain a further difference between the rigid and flexible shingles, examination discloses that the rigid asbestos shingle is made only in the individual form, never in strips or combinations, as used in the flexible shingles to facilitate speedy manufacture and laying.

While slate is sometimes imbedded in the surface of an asbestos shingle, its purpose is merely to add color, and its presence does not affect the fireproof qualities of the shingle.

These are the earmarks by which the novice can distinguish between the fireproof asbestos shingle and the shingle whose surfacing is its only fireproof part.

Of course there are other fireproof rigid shingles, namely slate and tile, but a close comparison will reveal the identifying white fibers in the asbestos shingle, against the single material in each of the others.

In the matter of a roof, the conscientious home-builder or owner cannot afford to be disinterested. He should demand a sample of the shingle the contractor proposes to apply and look for the identifying characteristics explained above. To protect owners against substitution one firm even models its initials on

CASEMENTS OF STEEL OFFER COMBINATIONS IN STANDARD STYLES

Architectural Harmony Achieved With All Popular Modern Exteriors.

Good taste and individuality express themselves in windows, more perhaps, than in any other detail of home appointment, and in turn the windows play an important part in adding beauty to the interior and bringing the breath of out-of-doors within the four walls.

Steel casements for all windows of the home have within recent years become increasingly popular. Their trim outlines and cheery atmosphere bring to the modern building all the charm and homeliness of period construction. Casements are the true aristocrats of architecture; they conform perfectly to modern styles and present day requirements.

Practical and economical, too, are these sturdy windows which, with all their grace and slenderness of line, never stick or warp. They not only admit air and sunlight—they control ventilation and lighting of all rooms. Drafts and glare are eliminated; draperies and decorations are protected from dust and from the undesirable elements.

Architectural harmony with all popular modern American style

REINFORCED DOORS LAST A LONG TIME

Interior doors that will not warp or crack are undeniably desirable features in the home. The type which assures this is the reinforced door: that is, "a door built within a door." This process combines strength with good looks, as the outer part of this door is finished in a good quality close-grained wood, adaptable to all forms of painting or finishing.

Interior decorators are now giving close attention to doors to see that they are painted in colors that will harmonize with the rest of the decorations in the different rooms of the house. The reinforced type of door, although a little more expensive to buy, is really cheaper in the long run. Once put in place, it may be forgotten.

It is never necessary to shove them down to take care of warping or swelling, as is often found necessary with a cheaper door.

The "door within a door" type is made in a one-panel door which has the graceful proportions demanded in modern interior decorating practice.

WHITE PINE AND MAPLE COMBINED IN NEW DOOR VENEERS Have Beauty of Figure and Texture

The manufacturer of an established line of doors has introduced a new line with white pine stiles and rails and white maple panels. A new development of hard maple panels and a new low cost standard combine to offer high quality doors at reasonable cost.

White maple veneers that are figured, and also those that are unique in natural design, are chosen for use in these doors. The veneers selected are noted for their beauty of figure and perfection of texture.

PLENTY OF TIME.

Pinehurst customers have been asking us, "What are you going to use for your display in the Model Home?" Just as if we had to plan and stew and fuss for weeks in advance over a thing like that!

Why, there are two weeks yet before the Model Home is all done and finished and ready to move into. And we haven't really given the matter a close thought.

Along about the day before, probably, we'll squeeze out a half hour or so and put the job through, in the typical Pinehurst rapid-motion way. And when the Model pantry and the Model General Electric Refrigerator are stocked with Pinehurst foods, they'll be STOCKED, and the Model Little Bride and the Model Little Hubby could start and give a right nice party without having to send out for anything. Of that you can be sure. And there won't be a thing in that house that won't be in Class A.

Moreover, it will all come straight out of Pinehurst's regular stock, every smitch of it.

Toridheet

Supremely Simple and Mechanically Super-Safe

Clean Comfort With Toridheet Without Effort.

ONCE installed, Toridheet gives you exactly what you seek—clean comfort without effort. The ease of control of the Toridheet appeals strongly to every housewife. There are no dampers to raise or lower, no valves to turn, no coal to shovel, no uncertain fire to tend, no grates to shake, no ashes to accumulate or remove. No unburned gases or irritating smoke to contend with—Toridheet is absolutely odorless. Toridheet is instantly responsive to the wanted temperature of the home as recorded by the thermostat.

Toridheet is controlled from any convenient room. An electrically operated device expands the small gas pilot into a larger flame. This instantly ignites the atomized oil thrown into it by the burner. This expanded gas flame burns for less than two minutes. Then, automatically, it is "cut-off" and the oil burner continues its operation, until the rooms are heated to the desired temperature. Then the thermostat shuts off the oil burner until more heat is desired. Isn't this exactly the kind of home heating unit you've always wanted?

MODEL HOME IS NEARLY READY

FINE FURNITURE NEEDED IN HOME

Culture and Refinement Are Reflected by Choice Pieces Ornamental and Useful.

"What sort of a home has he?" How often you hear that question and how much depends on the response!

A stranger can tell from the moment the front door closes behind him whether or not he is in the home of people of culture and refinement. A cheap, garish console in the hall fixes itself forever on his mind and condemns the whole household under the heading of "bad form." A gracious arm chair unconsciously awakens sympathy and interest.

If the visitor is a business connection of importance, the first impression is often vital, so potent is this psychology of furniture. Doubtless, when the discriminating glance is that of a woman! What a misfortune to have her ridicule. "The house is a fright. Did you notice that dreadful divan?" What an inestimable advantage to have her recognize at once the atmosphere of a tasteful and "moderne" hostess.

Real Test
But the real test of a home is vacation and holiday time, when the younger generation comes flocking in with the critical eyes of youth. Then it is of the utmost importance that their home shall be one to which they are proud to welcome their new school and college friends, a home to which all young people are eager and flattered to be asked.

It does not demand elaboration beyond one's dreams or ostentatious display, but taste—taste in every cushioned seat, in every well-turned leg, graceful arrangement, light falling on polished wood, grace of line, shapes which satisfy the eye, and that sense of repose which only beauty gives. Restful retreat for limbs and eyes tired from roaring streets and speed-mad offices—a colorful background redolent of good times past and good times to come—in short a real home.

Psychology Of Color
You are deciding over your house and have decided to be your own decorator. The furniture selected, you consider your work over. In reality it has hardly begun. One of the most complex problems of interior decorations is the creation of a harmonious background and soon you must be battling with the bogies of paint and paper, curtains, rugs, upholstery.

But like most monsters they are not so alarming as they appear. Our knowledge of the use of color has progressed tremendously, and guided by a few simple rules you will be able to go triumphantly on your way.

In the first reaction from the use of wallpaper, our houses were cheerless as hospitals in monotonous white paint. Today we venture a thousand delicate shades. Even in the small home where light colors must be used to give an effect of spaciousness there is a possible variety. In the hall mahogany banisters give character to ivory woodwork. Soft, smoky green reigns in the living room; the dining room is stylish in scenic paper of palest gray, and the bedroom is done in a dainty apricot.

Nowadays the smartest decorators make a large room intimate by tinting the ceiling and thus obtaining a novel and delightful effect.

When the great question of paint and paper is at last resolved, you are free to turn your attention to the rugs and draperies. It is sometimes a help to study the relations of colors in a picture or a piece of patterned fabric and apply them to your room. Even simplicity may be overdone and a room with light plain walls has something of the austerity of an institution unless Devoted to the interests of home builders of medium priced houses with all conveniences.

There are pattern and color in the furnishings. Such a room is immediately more interesting if the curtains and some of the chairs are in vivid designs, balanced by a dark solid shade in the rugs and in the upholstery of a large piece of furniture. Everything gains by contrast, and in your decorating you vary pattern and plan with a sunning hand. In the living room the pillows on the needlework sofa are plain; those across the room on the dark lounge flame in the brightest of designs, and against the chintz hangings of the guest room the single tone of the chaise longue and the nearest lamp shade are sharply accentuated.

Yellow Cheerful
The psychological effect of color on the emotions should be taken into consideration. Yellow is always very cheerful. Large quantities of bright red prove over-stimulating, while green, on the contrary, has a very distinct, soothing, harmonious and quieting effect.

The question of color for a particular room is decided chiefly by the exposure. Rooms facing the cold piercing light of the north must imitate sunshine with the warm shades of yellow, rose or peach. In south rooms the decorator can let his fancy wander toward cool blues and greens and grays which would seem frigid across the hall. Sombre bedrooms in the city come to life with walls of deep cream, while the country house with light streaming in at every window can afford a darker interior.

INTERIOR TRIM FORMS BACKGROUND OF INTERIORS

Interior trim constitutes the finishing members that are used around the openings of the rooms and the moldings around its base, walls, and ceiling.
Because of the fact that the trim, with the interior doors, forms the background for the interior decorations of the home, it is of architectural importance, and consequently, it should not be obstructive in its design. Interior trim that has lines or delicate character and the members are, in the main, small, is in good taste.

House Plans That May Interest You NO. 16 'THE WASHINGTON'

The WASHINGTON has a stately dignity in its Colonial beauty that would inevitably give its owner standing in the community.

It is the kind of home that people of good taste, background and stability would choose.

There is solid comfort inside the Washington, comparable to the decidedly satisfactory beauty of its external architecture.

A hospitable center hall is the key-note to the spacious restfulness of the whole house. You are not surprised, after entering this hall, to find a very long living room, 24 feet, and beyond it, a cheery sun parlor inviting one's further roaming.

A dining room, of large enough proportions to accommodate kind of formal parties this home would house, opens off the reception hall by French doors. These are directly opposite similar French doors into the living room and when both are open, one is allowed a long sweep of space across the house similar to the one through the living room and sun parlor.

Two baths accommodate the family and guests. There are three spacious bedrooms, two of them with two closets each, a blessed boon when two occupy the same room.

The price of the Washington is from $8,000 to $10,000.

PLASTER SHOULD BE UNDERSTOOD BY ALL HOME OWNERS

Lime, Long Used, Makes Plastic Finish Avoided by Vermin; Resists Fire.

In construction work lime offers certain definite advantages for preparing interior plaster. Plaster that hides framework and forms the base for decorations is a material owners should thoroughly understand, as it covers more area in the home than any other material.

To any one who studies the subject of plaster and mortar from the advent of plastering to the present time the continual and predominant use of lime is evident.

From the time early man first heated lime rocks by building his fire around them, thereby obtaining a plastic substance to supersede the mud he formerly used—from that time, tracing the progress of plastering through Egyptian, Grecian, Roman and English history to the present, we find the universal plastering material to be lime.

Lime of ancient days was a quick lime, or "lump lime," as now commonly designated. Some lump lime is still used. Because of the lack of facilities on the job for slacking lump lime, the time and expense involved and the probability of poor results, hydrated lime is preferred.

In the manufacture of hydrated limes the desired grade of limestone is selected and quarried, then calcined to expel carbon dioxide and crushed to such fineness that it passes through a quarter-inch mesh screen.

This crushed material is then proportioned with water by weight, only as much water being added as will combine chemically with the lime oxide, converting it into a hydroxide and reducing it, through an air separation process, to a fine powder.

The favor in which lime is held for interior plaster work results from several features. Lime plaster is plastic; the more plastic a lime mortar is, the smoother will be the walls and the more perfect the angles.

Lime is generally acknowledged as a cleaner. Vermin avoid lime. This health value of lime has been appreciated through the ages.

Lime plaster is the only plaster with good acoustic properties. The millions of minute air cells in this material constitute an effective barrier to the penetration of sound. Lime plaster is fire-resistant, especially when metal lath is used as plaster base. It provides a surface that is strong and durable, sufficiently hard for all purposes.

WHIRLWIND

COPYRIGHT 1928 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.
BY ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SYBIL THORNE, Boston society girl, has had a baby. And the whole town's talking. There are plenty of people who do not credit the story of Sybil's marriage. It was an unfortunate affair and at the time secrecy seemed advisable. Sybil was married in Havana harbor to RICHARD EUSTIS, whom she met on a steamer. She wooed her ardently for five days. The marriage lasted two weeks, when Sybil left her husband for justifiable cause and returned to Boston with MABEL BLAKE, a social worker, with whom she was vacationing at the time.

Weeks later she learned that she was going to have a baby. Then it became necessary to tell her family, and also CRAIG NEWHALL, who had been her sweetheart. Her marriage was formally announced, and Sybil's child was born. She had fully expected to be indifferent to the baby because of the hatred she bore her father. But, to her own amazement, she worshipped her son with all her heart. She baptizes him EDWARD THORNE, in memory of her own father, and renounces for him HIS father.

Sybil's brother, TAD, is married to a quarrelsome little girl named VALERIE. Valerie quarrels with the whole family, and leaves, in one of her tantrums, to visit friends in New Haven.

"Don't be an old woman, Tad," he admonished. "And don't let your personal viewpoint influence Sybil's happiness."

"Not a chance," Tad assured him stiffly. "Sybil's got a mind of her own, and she's pretty much fed up on marriage, if you're asking me."

"But, Sybil's young," insisted Craig, "and she's not going to let a philanderer and an adventurer like Eustis wreck her whole life. She's had a pretty tough time you know, Tad. You're not going to withhold all her hope for the future?"

Tad scowled unhappily. "She has her child," he maintained stubbornly. "What more does she want?"

Craig laughed shortly. "Don't be a fool, Tad," he counseled brusquely.

Sybil was very busy that summer, and Craig had scant opportunity to talk with her alone. Sometimes he thought she deliberately avoided him. But once as they sat alone on the veranda, she tucked her hand in his, and drew him to the rail to look at the moon rising over the sea. "It's beautiful!" she cried with a touch of wildness. "It—it makes me fearfully lonely. I can't explain. It drives me simply crazy—a night like this. There's no peace in it for me. It's so hurtfully glorious it—"

She put her hand on her heart. And a heavy silence fell on them. The sort of stillness that falls when two people are in love and alone. Then, suddenly, the baby's voice broke the spell.

"Teddy!" she cried. And, slipping her hand from Craig's, ran into the house.

After that whenever he saw her, she talked of the child or of Mabel, and her approaching wedding. It was as if she regretted the madness he might speak of that night when she had talked so wildly of beauty and loneliness.

Mabel was to be married in the Fall.

"I think myself," admitted Mabel, "it's a perfect joke for old maids to get married in satin, and wear orange blossoms in their bouquets. But you know how it is with a sentimental gal like me. Lots of fireworks. Mendelssohn's wedding march, and a veil, a carload of flowers, and trinkets in the cake. You only get married once, when you get to be an old maid."

Heart and soul, Sybil threw herself into the orgy of preparation. Dressmakers and caterers, florists and soloists.

"Mab's getting more kick out of it than a debutante," she told Tad. "That night she remarked to Jane's mother, 'You have taught Jane everything to make other people happy, but left her out. It's high time you were giving her a lesson in spunk!'"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXII
Tad broke a sigh of relief, and reflected pleasantly, at weekly intervals thereafter, that he was Valerie's own word on the futility of going for her.

He went instead to Wianno, having sent his wife a check to ease his conscience. And there he found Craig playing on the sands with young Edward. Sybil had gone to Hyannis for a pink sport hat, and taken her mother with her.

"They left me," announced Craig "to mind the baby. Do you know," he enquired plaintively, "why they eat sand? infantile roughage, I suppose."

He ran his finger expertly around the baby's toothless cavity.

"Look at that! They say it's good for hens. Lay or bust. Makes shells, or something. This kid will be laying, if Sib doesn't look out. Just eats it up—loves it. Regular goat—the little gourmand!"

Tad poked the child affectionately in the ribs, and spoke unhesitatingly.

"Well, old man! How's the boy?"

He preferred a thumb, and exclaimed proudly, "Look at that for a grip. Craig. Gosh, the little fella's strong. Great kid!"

Presently a nursemaid, very correct in crisp black and crinkling batiste, came to take the baby to the house, so that the men were left alone for the first time in many months.

"Wonderful day," commented Craig.

"Scorcher up town," contributed Tad.

"Been a pretty good summer?"

"Not so tough."

"How's Val?"

"Fine. Visiting a girl she used to go to school with."

"Ever see anything of the old crowd?"

"Not a thing. The old crowd ain't what it used to be. All gone cuckoo, in a boozing bound."

"They sat in silence. Old wise youths. With the cup of life turned sour at their lips. Craig stretched his long legs, and lit a cigar. Men find it easier to talk when they breathe their heads in smoke."

"Tad," he asked, "where's that egg Sib married?"

"Florida, last I heard of him. Real Estate in Saint Petersburg. I had detectives on his trail for a while, but Sybil was set on letting things rest, and there wasn't any sense in throwing away money if she wouldn't use the goods, once she got them."

"In fact she never knew I had detectives after him. Moore thought he jumped out to South America, and that's the story Sib has. It would probably be easy enough to get grounds for divorce, but it's a devil of a story to bring to court."

"Couldn't she allege desertion?"

"Well, you see it was Sib who walked out on him."

"Bring him to court on a charge like that, and all he has to do is prove his willingness to provide—and the case goes right out the window."

"You see, Sib's thinking of the kid. She's been through an awful lot, and it seems to me that divorce would be the last straw."

"The game's not worth the candle. What would she get out of it? A lot of cheap talk, and a bunch of headlines. Did she ever tell you about the reporters storming the place when someone tipped them off that there had been a secret marriage. And that story about 'expecting the stork!'"

Tad groaned aloud.

"Of all the sickening innuendoes! The stork! And they dressed up while, like a saccharine bedtime story."

He lapsed into mournful silence. Craig heard thoughtful rings.

"If the thing could be done half decently," he said, "I think Sybil would marry me."

Tad appraised his friend belligerently.

"And do you know what people would say?" he demanded.

Craig shrugged. "No—what would they say?"

"Val's mother had the nerve to tell me the other day that the kid looks like you. Dolly Weston says so, too. Cute little joke of Dolly's. And it's an open joke in the Grayson crowd. For God's sake, Craig."

Newhall was on his feet, flicking ashes off his knickers. His face, as he stooped to his shoe strings, was flushed, but his mouth quirked humorously.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

There is nothing truer than that the world takes us at our own value. The child, not always steps back and allows the others to elbow him out of place will react to his own behavior and keep sliding down in the scale of his self-esteem, and eventually the esteem of others.

He will feel in time, certainly and surely, that he was born to take a back seat in the world. He will obsessively low-kow to children who are his inferiors in mental and character make-up.

I have seen many well-bred children who were brought up to consider the feelings of others before themselves step aside to allow some ruthless companion to shove himself into their place. I have come to the conclusion that one of the first things children should be taught is the gentle art of standing up for themselves.

The credo that I speak of need not interfere one whit with gentleness. It deals more with a fine sense of justice and in showing a child that he has as much right to his own consideration as others.

A certain boy got up a little summer club for hiking, swimming and things that boys love to do. Instantly his close friend conceived the idea of organization and made himself president. The first boy did most of the work. The second boy got all the honors and "bossed" the things. The first boy, loyal to a fault, allowed it to pass "because," as he explained to his parents, "Bob's smart and he can do things I can't do."

But her parents knew better.

Jane's aunt took five little girls on a picnic in her car. The glory rather reflected on Jane, who was instrumental in getting it up. Her mother put up the lunch, provided robes and swimming suits and what-not for the children's comfort.

When it came time to get into the waiting sedan, Jane expected the seat of honor beside her aunt. But there was Betty, already ensconced. Jane stayed in back with the others. Betty pointed out the places she had been to, all alone. She talked of the things she knew and the other thing. It was Betty's party. Well-bred Jane never said a word.

But her aunt was not stupid. That night she remarked to Jane's mother, "You have taught Jane everything to make other people happy, but left her out. It's high time you were giving her a lesson in spunk!"

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

A $25,000 fund for the employment needs of women over 40 recently was announced by Mrs. Oliver Harriman, chairman of the Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries. The fund was left by a Mrs. Julia Almira Kimball, sponsor of the Exposition. The money is to support a foundation which will study and give aid to the problem of employment for women over 40. Practical laboratory experience will include the employment needs of a selected group of 15 women for the first year.

Plans include practical courses of training for the woman who has had no real training for any one business or profession. After the woman is trained, a special committee will attempt to get her a job and break down employers' resistance against the idea of hiring a woman over 40.

Mrs. Harriman cites the fact that 30,000 young girls are graduated each year from the business school of New York City alone and are absorbed in the business world which demands young blood, meaning that there are few or no births left for the older woman.

Various women on this new foundation board have these comments to make:

"Hundreds and thousands of women over 40 want jobs but have no training for any special job. We ask an applicant, 'What can you do?' She answers, 'I can do nothing.' That is a woman I never employ, as she's one who talks herself out of a job. If a woman says, 'I can make beds, or 'I can clean, or 'I make beautiful salads,' that's different."

Another member of the board says:

"Forty is a dangerous age for women. If the woman is not married, she feels that she has nothing to look forward to, and if she is a woman who has brought up a family the children are at an age where they do not need so much attention, or they have left her and she has to support herself, if she is a widow. It is the age where a woman feels that her life is at an end."

"The woman of 40, on the other hand, is at the height of her physical strength, and women who have done outstanding things in the world are all around that age."

"The woman of 40 should be an asset to the business world," another board member comments. "She is better poised and her experiences through life have made her more capable of making a fairer decision and giving her a more judgment of the relative importance of things. She is apt to be steadier and more dependable. She does not have the intolerance of youth."

"Maternity—not age, but maturity—in many occupations would seem to be a positive essential. In many callings, industrial, commercial, professional, an open-minded employer must see that a woman, whose understanding and manner have not become mellowed by hard contacts with people, would be a positive disadvantage."

This And That In Feminine Lore

Hemstitching, pleating, buttoning of self material—those touches that take the home-made dress out of the commonplace—all beautifully done at Mrs. Manning's, upstairs in the House & Hale building.

If you have put off canning peaches until now, I would advise you to secure a supply without delay. The orchards hereabouts in anticipation of the severe frost that threatened the last few days, have most of the fruit picked. It will be higher if anything in price after the next week. A trip to the nearby fruit stands or the orchards will pay well.

Raisins are good in Waldorf salad or any combination that calls for apples. Soak them over night in cold water to plump them.

For a change from the ordinary pie have a peach roll. Roll out your pastry to pie thickness, spread it with canned or fresh peaches, or any other fruit, sprinkle with sugar and roll up. Pinch the ends together and bake in a long dish. Serve with cream, whipped cream, hard sauce or one made with the fruit juice thickened with a little flour and water. Another roll is made of cookie dough spread with soft peanut butter, sliced and grape juice and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add dissolved gelatin and place dish in a pan of ice water and stir frequently until mixture begins to thicken. Gradually add whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry, beating mixture constantly. Beat until very light and stiff. Turn into mold to chill and become firm and serve with soft custard made with yolks of eggs.

Tomato relish is good with cold meats and this one uses green and ripe tomatoes so is very timely: One-half cup green tomatoes, 1 cup peck green tomatoes, 1 sweet red pepper, 4 green peppers, 2 medium sized onions, 2 head celery, 1 cup salt, 2 cups vinegar, 6 cups brown sugar, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon cloves, 2 tablespoons mustard seed, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon allspice.

Scald and peel ripe tomatoes. Peel onions. Remove seeds and pith from peppers. Put all the vegetables, including green tomatoes, through food chopper. Sprinkle with salt, mix well and let drain overnight in the morning drain. Mix remaining ingredients and bring to boiling point in preserving kettle. Add prepared vegetables and cook 30 minutes. Seal in sterilized jars.

Parsnips which we are inclined to despise sometimes are first cousins to the highly acceptable celery. They can be prepared in a variety of ways, but must first be parboiled. Tender fall parsnips will often cook in ten minutes after the parboiling. Reject a portion of the hard center and the rest will cook more evenly. They are good with just melted butter, fried brown, creamed or scalloped in white sauce and cracker crumbs, or made in old fashioned parsnip chowder for a change.

Alleene Sumner discusses the problem of the woman of 40 who must seek a living outside her home, and the fund of $25,000 started by Governor Al Smith's daughter Katherine, the last one to be married and her bridal gown used no less than seven yards of rose point lace. Her busiest seasons, naturally are June and October and the weeks previous. Since starting in business, not so long ago either, she has had calls from brides from Maine to Japan, including a beauty from Guatemala. Some simply want advice, while others commission her to budget their entire trousseau. Miss Brennig is a social register herself and is a well educated, here and abroad. She trained to be an interior decorator, not being content to live a round of social life. She found herself much more interested in clothes than in inanimate rooms. She isn't interested in the expensive weddings exclusively but had a lovely time she says being a little western girl who had saved $75 plan for her wedding outfit; next came a $11,000 trousseau. She completely planned the brilliant wedding of her own sister. There are no set rules to be laid down, she says. A wedding is the most personal and individual thing in the world and each one should be different. While velvet is having a vogue for wedding gowns and the long-sleeved dress is smartest now. Duchess satin, is always correct but they are using lovely, here and now, lace, chiffon or silk. The bride's opinion should be designed on the head of the bride-elect.

A lovely photograph of Billie Burke, the actress, reached my desk yesterday. She is wearing a gray Hoover apron of some soft material, cut after the identical lines of those worn ever since Hoover was food administrator during the World War, a style that is just as popular today as it was then. There is hardly a woman or nurse the country over who is wearing this convenient, becoming, easily-adjusted dress for many use them for that purpose as well as to protect a more dressy outfit. Billie in the picture is wearing a cap and deep cuffs, fastened with shield pins.

EXPERT VERSUS NOVICE—5.

In the playing of your hand the distribution of the cards is most important factor and you must always take care to guard to ascertain it. An illustration of the "Five Dummies"—hearts, K 9 6 5 3 2. East—none. Dealer—A 10 4. West—Q J 8 7—leads 7. Applying the rule of eleven, dealer immediately notes that east is blind of hearts. He must immediately determine what card to play from dummy. Playing small from dummy, he covers with the heart Ace in his own hand. On the next round dealer plays the heart 10 and by ducking permits west to win the trick. When the deuce of hearts is on the table the declarer is again on the lead. He plays the heart 4 and finesse the 9 if necessary. By bringing into play three "working tools"—the rule of eleven, duck and finesse—he wins five tricks in hearts.

The number of illustrations of various plays could be multiplied until they became voluminous. By applying at every turn the "working tools" that have been analyzed in these chapters you will be guided by sound principles rather than rote. Playing frequently will enable you to appreciate their inherent value at the psychological moment.

THIS POET IMPARTIAL; BOOSTS HERB AND AL

Thomas Hickey's Verse Shows No Favorities in the Presidential Campaign.

Thomas Hickey of Oakland street who has been writing verse for the past half century and has issued pamphlets containing many original songs, largely about his native Irish soil, has written two campaign songs. To show his impartiality, he has composed a song for Hoover as well as one for Smith. He has had them printed and is offering them for sale, by the single copy, dozen or hundred. Below we print the chorus for each of Mr. Hickey's campaign songs:

"Shout hurrah for Hoover! He's well known the world over, From Maine to California, Australia and Japan. He's well liked and much respected, He's the man that we've selected, We're going to vote for Hoover, Hoover! He's our man!"

We're out to root for Al, For he's a good old pal, His duty he was never known to shrink.

Al Smith is always right, Shout it out with all your might, If you doubt it, ask the people of New York."

DECORATIVE SCREEN

Screens made from the bright chintz or cretone of the curtains make a decorative bedroom addition. One is especially useful to put behind a favorite rocking chair to keep all draughts off when chilly winter arrives.

TINY CUSHIONS

An era of comfort is upon us and, therefore, such little aids as tiny cushions which exactly fit into the small of the back are chic. Every room should have a couple of these little shaped pillows, preferably made of quilted bits of silk, or of modernistic new fabric, in gleaming pattern.

BAKED MACARONI

A nourishing luncheon dish for the children is macaroni, baked with alternating layers of chopped peanuts. A thin white sauce should be poured over and the top dotted with butter.

be," Sybil told her mother, "I'd think it was sin to love anything as much as I love my baby."

Valerie adored the child.

"I'd have one myself," she declared, "if it wasn't such a trouble. Uh! I do love babies—but it's so unesthetic, getting them."

She crinkled her nose in a way that Tad had found entrancing some two years before.

"Unesthetic your grandmother!" he told her brutally. "You're scared. That's all that's the trouble with you."

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL
by World Famed Authority

EGG SHOULD BE REGULAR PART OF YOUTH'S DIET

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The child who gets a quart of milk a day and whose body weight is under 60 pounds will be getting sufficient total protein for his body needs.

After this weight is attained, however, additional protein is required, and egg is one of the first substances to be thought of as an adequate supplement in any diet.

The egg yolk contains vitamins A, B, and D, about as much B as one-fourth of a cup of fresh milk and about as much A as three cups of milk. It contains enough vitamin D to prevent rickets, if one egg yolk is taken daily during the late winter months; but it is safer to depend regularly on cod liver oil for the vitamin D.

Eggs are rich in everything necessary to growth, except calcium and vitamin C. For this reason many specialists in infant feeding begin to add egg yolk to the diet of artificially fed babies very soon after they are put on artificial feeding. By the time the child is three or four years old, egg should be a regular part of his diet.

The iron in egg yolk is most valuable because of its easy assimilation. It is about half as much as occurs in one-third of a cup of steamed spinach and equal to the amount to be found in a whole shredded wheat biscuit, or one-half cup of fresh peas. An egg yolk will contain twice as much iron as an ounce of lean beef or a half cup of string beans.

The egg yolk also provides phosphorus, which is needed in small amounts in the body, and protein substances capable of supporting the body's growth and supplementing cereal and milk proteins.

Another advantage of the yolk is the fact that it may be used soft and taken by a child who diet must be fluid. As the child grows older, the form of cooking may be modified so that the egg may be an extremely attractive supplement to any form of feeding.

Improving Health
Recent experiments conducted in New York City indicate that the addition of an egg a day to a diet results in improvement in general health and in the content of red coloring matter in the blood, the substance responsible for carrying oxygen.

Children believed to be doing exceedingly well on their ordinary diet were found to make distinct improvement on the addition of one egg each day.

SCOUT NEWS
BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Troop 5 met Wednesday evening with the attendance of 26 boys and five officers. After the customary color ceremony, during which a review was held of the history of the American flag, the troop inspection was conducted. Patrol one was considered the best looking as almost the entire patrol was equipped with uniforms.

Instruction followed in the form of a first aid game in which the triangle bandage was used. Here Patrol Three was the quickest and most perfect of the patrols in adjusting the bandage.

The following period was devoted to games. Patrol Four won the "Candle Relay" and again Patrol One was victorious in winning two straight relays of the "Pat-out."

The remainder of the evening was devoted to instruction in test work and in Merit Badge study. Announcement was made that next Wednesday there would be a re-organization of patrol when several new boys will step in and take the places of those who have dropped out during the summer.

Saturday afternoon there will be a hike to the troop cabin in Glastonbury. Opportunity will be given to new boys to join the troop. The hike will be under the leadership of Scoutmaster Pearson.

The regular meeting of the Scoutmaster's association will be held at the East Side Recreation building next Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m. Plans will be made for the fall including inter-troop contests, in-troop hikes etc. All Scoutmasters, Assistant Scoutmasters and Senior Patrol Leaders are requested to be present.

Bugle Contest
Recreat, Incorp., manufacturers of the official bugle for Boy Scouts is again offering silver-plated bugle to the winner of bugle contests to be held in the Capitol of each State in the Union. This company also offers second and third prizes consisting of a plush lined bugle case and a water-proof bugle bag with zip fastener. This has become an Annual event and was last year won locally by Plummer Wiley. The final contest will be held on Friday, Nov. 9th and the winner will be asked to play "Roll Call" by Krebs on Armistice Day, Nov. 11th, followed by the playing of Taps. Contestants must use an official bugle in the contest. All good buglers should start at once to practice for this event. The contest will be held in front of the Old State House at 7:30 p. m. on Nov. 9th. Name of contestants should be filed at local headquarters.

Star, 1928 Eastern Scout Applications
Changes in the National requirements for these badges make it necessary for a Scout or Leader to file a special application which may be secured at local Scout Headquarters. Scoutmasters will please call the attention of their Scouts to this new requirement, as it is no longer sufficient for a Scout to understand the words, "STAR," "LIFE" or "EAGLE" in his regular merit badge application. Applicants for any of these awards should also be informed that it is necessary for these applications to be filed at local Scout Headquarters before being presented to the Court of Honor.

travelers. Refreshments were served.

The Blue Triangle Y. W. C. A. Girls enjoyed a fine time at their last meeting, when Miss Louise Wentworth, Mrs. Ella Burnham, and Mrs. Helen Parks were initiated into the club. They also enjoyed a dog roast out in the lot near the home of Miss Miriam Welles of Avery street.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Congdon arrived home from their automobile trip on Wednesday.

Speaking of Storms, Just Look at This One!

This seems to be the season for freak storms all over the world. Even more awe-inspiring in appearance than the Florida hurricane was this sandstorm in Africa. A great wave of wind, made visible because of the tons of sand that it carried, is shown sweeping over Khartoum, capital of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. The "haboob," or sandstorm, was the worst in fifteen years.

LETTER GOLF

Today's letter golf puzzle is right in style, it concerns the latest PARIS MODES. Par is only five and one solution is on another page:

Letter golf grid with words PARIS and MODES.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

One evening just before dinner a wife, who had been playing bridge all the afternoon came in to find her husband and a strange man (afterwards ascertained to be a lawyer) engaged in some mysterious business over the library table, upon which were spread several sheets of paper.

Why should a man always wear a watch when he travels in a waterless desert? Ans.—Because every watch has a spring in it.

Building Association of Manchester, owned by the Knights of Columbus, a separate corporation from Campbell Council, Knights of Columbus, by a unanimous vote last night approved the action of the directors in selling the property to the Manchester Evening Herald.

WTIC WILL BROADCAST WORLD SERIES GAMES

Near-by Station in Big Hook-up of Baseball Classics, Wherever Played.

The World Series baseball games which are scheduled to start next Thursday will be broadcast by Station WTIC, Hartford, in conjunction with a nationwide chain of stations. Official permission to broadcast the games was given by Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball.

Plans were not completed for the games at the time of announcing the broadcast because of the close race in the National League. The schedule, as decided by the presidents of both American and National leagues, calls for the first game Thursday. Irrespective, however, of where the games may be played, the complete series will be sent over the air by WTIC. Graham McNamee and Phillips Martin, widely-known announcers, will be at the microphone. It is probable that the detailed description of the games will be broadcast by short wave length to listeners in foreign countries.

ALICE RHINELANDER HERE FOR FUNERAL

Celebrated Litigant Comes to Town for Last Rites of Mrs. Martha Schaub.

Alice Jones Rhinelander, wife of "Kip" Rhinelander, came to Manchester last night and this morning attended the funeral of her old friend, Mrs. Martha Schaub, which was held this morning at her home in Hillstown and at St. James's church.

Before coming to Manchester from New York to live Mrs. Schaub was a neighbor of the Jones family and had often cared for Alice. Later in life when Alice married Kip Rhinelander and the sensational contested suit was started in New York, Rhinelander trying to set aside the marriage on the grounds that Alice had hidden the fact that she was of negro blood, she came to Hillstown and remained with Mrs. Schaub while the New York newspapers were trying to find her.

Later, after the failure of the suit and she was again much in the limelight, she again came to Hillstown and stayed with Mrs. Schaub. On a third occasion when Alice started her own suit for divorce against Rhinelander and was about to sail for Paris she came to Hillstown for a visit.

On learning of the death of Mrs. Schaub she came to Manchester late last night, called at the Schaub home and spent the night with a neighbor in Hillstown, attending the funeral this morning.

APPEAL FOR AID FOR CHURCHES OF FLORIDA

The American Missionary Association through the Congregational Church Extension Board, has issued an appeal to Congregational churches to help in repairing the demolished houses of worship in Florida. Nine churches were leveled to the ground at West Palm Beach. Many had roofs blown off and the interiors were water-soaked. Pianos are practically ruined and parsonages have been rendered uninhabitable. The residents are without funds to pay salaries to ministers.

In response to this appeal, a collection will be taken at the Second Congregational church here on Sunday morning.
