AMERICA NOW FIRST IN MAKING OF GUNS

Tests Made of Weapons of All Calibres Proved This,
Army Officials Make Known Today.

Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., Oct. 5.—The American Army could be supplied with guns, ammunition and material second to none in the event of a national emergency.

Major General C. C. Williams, chief of ordnance, United States Army, made this statement to International News Service today in commenting upon the spectacular and extraordinarily vivid demonstration given at the army proving grounds here yesterday and last night of the powerful guns that the United States could unleash on the enemy in the event of a war.

Big Audience
Every important weapon and artillery piece developed by the army since the World War was fired amid deafening detonations while more than 5,000 persons viewed the impressive spectacle from vantage places, steep hills, buildings and barracks. Sixteen-inch guns constructed for sea coast defense roared as projectiles weighing over 2,000 pounds were hurled miles into the air. Anti-aircraft 105-millimetre guns that attained a vertical range of 12,000 yards poured forth heavy projectiles at the rate of fifteen shots per minute. Demolition bombs weighing 600 pounds were dropped from Martin bombers. Tanks of all sizes and descriptions executed maneuvers up hill and down dale. Troops went into action and fired gas and smoke shells a distance of 2,500 yards at machine gun nests. Cavalry men dashed into battle while a fleet of bombardment planes simulated actual warfare from the air. All in all, it was an inspiring and impressive show.

Terrific Roars
The roar of the powerful guns shook the countryside for miles around. Men and women placed their fingers to their ears as the guns belched forth fire and steel. Off in the distance, mites away, great balls of fire and smoke arose, attesting to the great length and accuracy of the shots.

After the spectacle was over, Major General Williams, in outlining the status of American ordnance advancement since the World War said he considered the principal development to be: (1) anti-

REDS' RESCUE SHIP RETURNS TO PORT

Crew of Krassin Get Warm
Welcome—Big Ovation
at Leningrad.

Leningrad, Oct. 5.—The famous Soviet ice-breaker Krassin triumphantly returned here today after fourteen weeks spent in the Arctic, during which it rescued seven marooned members of the crew of the ill-fated dirigible Italia.

Not since the first days of the Russian revolution, when the Czarist battle-cruiser Aurora, manned by a crew which had murdered its officers and hoisted the red flag, steamed up the river Neva eleven years ago and bombarded the winter palace of the Czar, has any vessel been accorded such a welcome as was given the Krassin today.

Big Salute
Twelve guns boomed out in salute as the ship passed the Kronstadt fortress. Then an official welcoming party boarded the ice-breaker. After they had congratulated Captain Samoylovitch, Aviator Chuchnovsky who sighted the Italian Captains Zappi and Mariano, and others of the crew, the Krassin proceeded here escorted by six cruisers.

Police had great difficulty in preventing the huge welcoming throng from breaking the barriers to welcome its heroes.

TARIFF IS ONLY REAL CAMPAIGN ISSUE LOCALLY

Horace B. Cheney, Silk
Firm's Economics Expert,
Tells Why Manchester
Should Favor Republicans

Horace B. Cheney, director of Cheney Brothers, local silk firm, today furnished The Herald with a statement which firmly advocates Manchester people voting the Republican ticket in the fall Presidential campaign. Mr. Cheney offers a table of wage comparisons showing why manufacturers in this country cannot compete successfully with foreign manufacturers of silk. Mr. Cheney is an expert in economics and always represents the Silk Association of America in presenting that body's arguments before the Tariff commission.

His Letter
Mr. Cheney's statement follows:
THE INTERESTS OF MANCHESTER IN THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN

"The whole of New England depends for its prosperity upon the Protective Tariff, but the Town of Manchester is particularly and peculiarly situated in this respect. It owes its existence and its continuance not only to a Tariff, but in the most extreme manner to a Protective Tariff. The entire silk business would die a sudden and violent death if the tax on importations of silk goods from foreign countries was even materially reduced.

"Both the Cleveland Tariff and the last Underwood Tariff very seriously affected the silk business. On the other hand, the Tariff Commission in 1913, in its report, stated that the silk business in this country has been very successful and that the people of Manchester should forget water power, prohibition and anything else that is really a possibility of the tariff on silk being lowered. Some of these other things might affect the happiness or liberty of individual citizens, but the tariff affects the very existence of the Town of Manchester.

"Unlike every other industry, it is not Europe with whom we have to compete most intimately, but China and Japan, the countries of the East."

BOSSY GILLIS STARTS TWO MONTHS SENTENCE

Bad Boy Mayor Refuses to Eat During First Day in Jail.

Salem, Mass., Oct. 5.—"His Honor" waved away the jail attendant who came with breakfast today.

Mayor Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis, so-called "bad boy" chief executive of sedate and historic Newburyport, was continuing what some thought was a "hunger strike." He had refused supper last night.

Jail officials however, thought "his honor" was just tired and exhausted from the ordeal of a trial of hearing himself described as a "wifely boy who never grew up" and of "taking another on the chin" when Judge Nelson P. Brown in Essex county Superior Criminal Court sentenced him to serve two months' hard labor and pay fines aggregating $545.

FIRST HOME RUN OF SERIES

Here's the finish of the first home run of the 1928 World Series. Outfielder Meusel of the Yanks hit it, and he's seen crossing the plate. Babe Ruth, who scored ahead of him after doubling, is seen over Catcher Wilson's shoulders.

SMITH PREPARING FOR HIS NEXT TRIP

Committee Keeps Various
Dates Secret But All Starts
Next Week.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Governor Smith's plans to invade the southern border states, which have been occupying most of his attention since his return from the west, have provided some knotty problems in the matter of arrangements, and announcement of the definite itinerary may be delayed a few days.

The governor, however, plans to leave Albany early next week. As heretofore indicated his itinerary will probably embrace Raleigh, N. C., Chattanooga, Tenn., Louisville, Ky., Sedalia, Mo., and Chicago. Another engagement in Indiana or Ohio is still uncertain, with the possibility that he will not speak in either state. The tentative program is still subject to change.

For strategical reasons, the Democratic schedule makers are keeping their plans strictly to themselves until every date is final and definite. They say, has been necessitated by past experiences wherein considerable difficulty has been met in the renting of halls and making radio arrangements, once it became known that Gov. Smith was considering a certain location on a certain date. They do not publicly charge the Republicans with obstructionist tactics, but they do so privately.

Neither is the governor ready yet to announce what subjects he will deal with in his border line tour. He may deal with tariff and labor problems on this tour, and he may hit the "whispering campaign" again. Gov. Smith is not yet through with that issue, for certain phases of it are almost daily cropping up in new forms, most of which reach him in one way or another.

His Official Duties
Gov. Smith has not been able to get in any golf since his return from the west. His sixteen days' absence from the capitol filled his desk with numerous state matters to dispose of. Wednesday he put on his golf clothes in expectation of getting in a round, but he could not make it, and yesterday he spent all of the day at his desk in the capitol tied up on gubernatorial work.

The Democratic nominee will embark upon his second tour in a more satisfied frame of mind than he had been when he faced the west. The Democratic situation in New York state was on his mind then. That now has been disposed of with the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the governorship and a strong supporting slate. Consequently, the governor will start next week without one of the chief worries he carried with him on his western trip.

LINDY OVER RADIO
New York, Oct. 5.—Which is the bigger attraction, the World's Series or Col. Charles A. Lindbergh? Radio station WOR decided this interesting question in favor of the trans-Atlantic flier today. The station is broadcasting the second game of the series, but at 2:30, no matter whether the listeners have just heard the crack of Babe Ruth's bat, the Yankee Stadium will be cut out, so that Lindbergh's speech before the National Safety Council may be put on the air.

BRITAIN IS GOING DRY WITHOUT LAW

Figures Show Big Drop in Consumption of Liquor in British Isles.

London, Oct. 5.—Great Britain appears to be voluntarily going "dry" without the assistance of prohibition, according to published official figures. In 1900 the consumption of spirits in England was 82,239,522 gallons. In 1913 it had declined to 22,004,432 gallons. Today it has fallen to 10,412,321 gallons, and is growing less daily.

The figures for Scotland, "the home of whiskey," are still more significant. Consumption of spirits in Scotland was 8,632,082 gallons in 1900 against 6,709,243 in 1913 and 2,456,200 last year.

"The decline in beer drinking has been equally striking. The leading brewers are contemplating a joint advertising campaign in order to implant the idea that "beer is the healthiest drink."

New inventions, new habits, new paces in the speed of life are declared to be responsible for this wave of sobriety by students of social conditions. The attraction of the radio and the movies have emptied the public houses. Social drinking between meals has also become practically unknown.

QUEEN MARIE DENIES HER SON HAS ELOPED

But Berlin Reports Name of Woman Who Flew With Prince Nicholas.

Paris, Oct. 5.—Mystery today surrounded the reported elopement of Prince Nicholas, youngest son of Queen Marie, of Rumania, to this city.

A dispatch from Bucharest said that an official communique, had been issued by the Chamberlain of the court denying there had been any elopement. According to the official statement, "Prince Nicholas came to Paris for medical treatment accompanied only by a military aide."

HOOVER WILL START TONIGHT FOR SOUTH

First Time Since Civil War
That G. O. P. Candidate
Speaks There.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Facing his big bid for electoral votes from states below the Mason-Dixon line, Herbert Hoover today was prepared for an invasion of the happy valley of Tennessee for a speech to the Solid South.

The Republican nominee will leave late tonight on a special train to keep his speaking engagement at Elizabethton, Tenn., tomorrow afternoon. Enroute he will stop at Bristol, Va., and Childers, Tenn., and after his address, he will visit the Old Soldiers Home at Johnson City, Tenn.

The trip, first of the campaign into any southern state, will mark the Republican Party's greatest effort to stir up southern enthusiasm for Hoover. Party leaders from Florida to Texas have been urged to attend the Elizabethton gathering and the Republican ticket in Johnson City tomorrow night.

His Speech.
The nominee's speech will be devoted to a wide range of topics but its chief note undoubtedly will be political prejudices and vote the Republican ticket this year. His trip was arranged, in fact, only after southern Republicans declared a personal appearance would enable him to break into the electoral vote of the Solid South. If he should succeed in this, it would be the first time since before the Civil War that a Republican presidential nominee has carried a state of the Old Confederacy.

Follows Historic Trail.
Hoover, in visiting the happy valley of Tennessee, will follow a trail blazed by some of the heroic figures of American history. It lies within a territory once claimed by De Soto for Spain and at another time, by La Salle for France. The valley was a famous trade channel between Indian tribes of the north and their redskin brothers of the south.

Daniel Boone visited the section with his scouts. Andrew Jackson practiced law in the town of Elizabethton. Davy Crockett, the "Hero of the Alamo," was born nearby.

In 1772, four years before the declaration of independence, the settlers along "the Boone trail" organized the first free government in America. They agreed to the first constitution ever adopted by American citizens and they were first to rule themselves upon the western continent.

TREASURY BALANCE
Washington, Oct. 5.—Treasury balance Oct. 3: $187,982,400.51.

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 5.—Another bumper crop of baseball rogues rioted into the Stadium today, like so much cattle being chivvied through the chutes at the Chicago stockyards, and with the muted roar so typical of the occasion, they greeted the embattled Yankees and Cardinals as the two champions stepped themselves out onto the diamond for the second game of the World Series. For the Yankees, it was an occasion that called for them to protect the advantage they gained in the opening game yesterday. For the Cardinals, the demand was far more imperative. They couldn't afford another defeat and so they went out there this afternoon ready to do or die a figurative death in the contest.

They had Grover Cleveland Alexander, their one-game climax pitcher and the hero of the 1926 series with the Yankees, ready to make a supreme bid in this emergency. The Yanks were to counter with George Pipgras, a winner in the 1927 series, or Tom Zachary, a near-relic of the profession but still a very capable citizen. Pipgras was considered the more plausible choice in view of the fact that they day was a bit overcast, with a latent hint of rain, this lending a neutral background to his fast ball delivery.

Many in Line
In any case, New York this morning was greatly enamored of its Yankees and their winning performance of yesterday in the face of injuries to Peacock, Combs, Ruth and Lazzeri. And so the more zealous of the zealous again took stations at the gates and quitted the long, tedious watches of the night, while downtown the lads who "lay in on the line" were making the Yanks an even money bet for the rest of the series.

The odds, however, slightly favored the Cardinals for today's game, this tendency being based not only on the law of averages, but also on the fact that Alexander was due to cast them from the so-called eminence. Alex undoubtedly was a bit older than he was yesterday but the boys were willing to give him at least one more preview before they started betting into him.

Snowds Slow to Arrive
Early indications were that yesterday's attendance figures of more than 61,000, in human beings and a single game record of some $234,000 in money, wouldn't be disturbed this afternoon. New York approved of its Yankees, but apparently not to the extent of standing on its feet while this approval was being registered. There were gaping spaces in the bleachers at 12:30, and the unreserved forms of the covered stands were filling all too slowly.

The die-hards, however, were out in force and that was exactly what they used when the gates were opened at ten o'clock. The usual plenty of force was to get possession of the prized seats in right field and that was one thing with which the boys were well endowed. The entire right field stand was filled almost to the ultimate inch.

The all-night vigilantes, those hardy souls who annually take it on the bunions that the great enterprise of post-season baseball might continue to live in the style to which it has become accustomed, at least got the double benefit of pleasant weather.

CARNES BACK HOME

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 5.—Five thousand persons jammed Union station today as Clinton S. Carnes, absconding treasurer of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, was returned here from Winnipeg. He disappeared August 15. A cry of "Carnes has escaped!" went up when the prisoner and his guards failed to appear. The officers had managed to elude the crowd by leaving the train through the baggage car. Carnes was taken to Fulton county tower where another crowd of about 1,000 had gathered. Once inside the jail Carnes collapsed.

COL. ALLEN TO DIRECT HOOVER-CURTIS LEGION

Rockville Man Chairman of Committee to Aid Republican Ticket.

Hartford, October 5.—Colonel Charles H. Allen of Rockville was appointed today by J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, to direct the work of the Hoover-Curtis Legion in Connecticut. The Hoover-Curtis Legion is being organized throughout the country for the purpose of aiding the campaign of the Republican National ticket. A contribution of One Dollar will be requested from each person joining the Legion. The money will be used in assisting the conduct of the National Campaign. The organization of state units of this work was based upon Herbert Hoover's recent statement: "Every Presidential campaign is an important educational period in National issues. It is the duty of political parties to present their views and the issues to the public. This involves a legitimate expenditure of money, all of which is publicly accounted for. Therefore, all those who are interested in the issues and the Republican party should assist the committee in this work."

Local committees will be organized in each community in the state as soon as contact is made with the various members of the State Committee and Chairmen of the Town Committees. Colonel Allen's office will be located in Room 49, Allyn House, Hartford, Connecticut.

STATE'S NORMAL SCHOOLS HAVE THOUSAND PUPILS

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 5.—Enrollment in the state's normal schools, this fall, totals just about one thousand persons and falls a little below last year's total, according to Dr. Albert B. Meredith, state commissioner of education, who today pointed out that the state is "maintaining a nice balance between supply and demand" in the matter of public school teachers.

Dr. Meredith pointed to a new state policy of refusing to accept as normal school pupils those who seeking a higher education alone, and of devoting the energies of the normal schools to training persons who are willing to enter public service after they finished normal school courses. Dr. Meredith tonight starts a speaking tour in 27 towns of Connecticut to discuss the report of the state board of education's committee on the revision of school laws. His first speech will be in New Haven, at the normal school. The trip is to learn how the citizens of the state feel in regard to changing school laws.

SMITH'S TOUR OF WEST CALLED UNSUCCESSFUL

Spell of Grandeur in Luxurious Campaign Special Train "Didn't Take," They Say.

Governor Smith's tour of the West, his first venture into politics of more than local importance, has been a distinct gain for the Republican ticket.

Even from Democratic sources come admissions that the Governor hurt his cause during his visit to the farm states. He simply didn't "take." The spell of grandeur which was cast about him while he remained in New York disappeared as the tour progressed. The most luxurious campaign special ever put on wheels failed to hide the fact that the Governor does not understand the West and the West does not understand him.

The outstanding problem of the farm relief is still fomenting. The West has been intensely interested in knowing what he would have to say about it, especially since he had admitted two years ago that "I really can't think of any way of helping the farmers." His remarks improved his position a great deal since then. In his speech at Omaha he made a few covert gestures at embracing the principle of the McNary-Haugen bill, but he ended with an unimpassioned statement "that after his election he would call a conference." As Senator Borah remarked, the farmer has to wait for that event to happen it will be a tremendously long time before the farm problem is solved.

In contrast to this vague and obscure position, Mr. Hoover has proclaimed a definite and concrete program for the future. It has won the approval of those who are most interested in the problem and who are most competent to judge it. It has brought Mr. Hoover messages of congratulation from the men who have led the farm fight for years. It has covered the record of the Republican administration in behalf of the farmer is something that cannot be lightly put aside.

The farmers, like a great many other people in all parts of the nation, are fully convinced that the Government is wholly unprepared for the vital tariff issue. His acceptance speech to the Underwood tariff as his ideal is something that a lot of Democrats would like to forget, and would like to have the farmers forget. The Underwood tariff included most of the products of our agriculture on the free list, and the farmers and workers too were all but ruined by its operation. Had it not been for that that ruin would have been complete and final. The progress which agriculture has made since the tariff was due in a large measure to the protection which has been granted to farm products by the Fordney-McCumber tariff, a Republican measure.

The Underwood tariff was no less disastrous in its effect on the workers. Since the duration of the Democratic administration there was a reduction of $100,000,000 a week in the country's payroll. The damage did not stop there. The loss of this vast sum contributed still further to the demoralization of the farmers' domestic market and restricted to a marked degree the activity of our manufacturers.

The personalities of the candidates is important, but the party principles which affect the well-being of the nation are more important by far. If the United States wants to continue to be well-fed, well housed and well clothed, it must vote for the men who believe in the principles which make that prosperity possible. In other words, it must elect Herbert Hoover and Senator Curtis.

The lowest wages in the industrial world.

Asiatic Competition.
"For a generation, the laboring element in the United States has suffered the competition of Asiatic labor, and their immigration has practically been prohibited. In California and the Pacific Coast States they have repeatedly been fighting Chinese riots simply because Chinese who have come in are willing to work for wages on which a citizen of the United States would starve, let alone providing food, shelter, radios and automobiles."

"American labor does not compete alone with Asiatic labor coming into the United States; the Chinese and Japanese take your job as effectively when they send their products of their labor in here on the basis of a tariff for revenue only."

Under the last Democratic tariff the importations of goods reached their peak in the boom year of 1919 at which time they had increased approximately 500 per cent. Mr. Smith has expressed approval of this tariff.

Best Comparison.
"The writer of this article has for a great many years represented the Silk industry in Washington in relation to the tariff and has been intimately connected with its working, and believes that the most effective statement of the case is a comparison of the wages paid in the Town of Manchester with those paid in foreign countries competing with their product. The greatest weight should be paid to the lowest wages, those from China and Japan, particularly Japan, because of her great industrial organization and enterprise, and ability to quickly change and copy the work of others."

It is with Japan that the Broad Silk industry has its chief competition; the Velvet industry with France and Germany and the Spun Silk industry with France, Italy and Switzerland. (The Italian product being the cheapest, and the Swiss the highest grade). The Upholstery business meets its greatest competition with Italy and France. These various items are the principal products of the Town of Manchester.

Wage Difference.
Below is given a comparison of the weekly earnings in Manchester, and the wages paid in foreign countries:

Slight Changes Being Made to Protect Crew From Cold Weather While Over Atlantic.

Berlin, Oct. 5.—All Germany is waiting with eager anticipation for the departure of the giant dirigible Count Zeppelin for the United States, probably on Tuesday. National interest centers at Friedrichshafen, the seat of the Zeppelin works where the finishing touches are being put upon this magnificent giant of the skies.

A few slight changes are being made inside the airship to give the crew better protection from the cold that prevails over the North Atlantic at this time of year.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the Zeppelin works, who will be in charge of the flight, hopes to get away on Tuesday.

Four more Americans have engaged passage on the ship and will pay $3,000 each for the fare. Another American who had taken passage—William B. Leeds—was forced to cancel his plans owing to business affairs which will keep him in Europe.

Four Americans Two of the four additional Americans who succeeded in getting passage upon the luxurious air liner are Frederick Gillfellen and Robert Reiner, the latter being a resident of Westchester, N. J. The identity of the other two was not revealed.

The decision of Dr. Eckener to provide warmer quarters for the crew followed the latest trial flight of 34 hours when a number of the members of the crew developed colds.

Capt. Rosendahl, Commander of the United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles, who came to Germany to make the flight over the Atlantic on the Count Zeppelin, also contracted a cold. He spent yesterday in bed but said he expected to be out today and to be fully recovered before Sunday.

While the tentative date of departure has been set for Tuesday it will depend upon the weather. Dr. Eckener is confident that the great ship could ride through severe storms, but he does not want to take any chances while carrying passengers.

ABOUT TOWN

Two hundred and fifty-six lists were mailed yesterday by the assessors to non-resident taxpayers.

John E. Dwyer, who has been employed by the Connecticut Company, has entered the employ of the Benson Furniture Company as a salesman.

Cheney Brothers have sold another house on Eldridge street, this time the buyer being Mr. and Mrs. Abraham McCann who have occupied the house they now purchase for about forty years. This makes four houses the company has sold on the street, all single houses. The company owns eight houses on one side of this street and twelve on the other, all of which are to be sold. James Hearn, who is another old resident of the street, occupying one of the houses owned by Cheney Brothers, is planning to purchase the house in which he lives and will probably do so today or tomorrow.

Herbert L. Fortune and family, who sold their home on Mather street and bought a farm near Plainfield, have returned to town and are now living on Starkweather street.

Frang Prete, son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Prete of 117 Birch street, has this week entered Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs as a sophomore. His sister Carolyn is a freshman at the same institution.

Mrs. Arthur Bronkie is chairman of the fall rummage sale which the ladies of the South Methodist church are to hold on the 25th and 26th of this month. On the committee with her are Mrs. Abram McCann and Mrs. Robert Martin. They plan to have the sale in a vacant store in the Hotel Sheridan building. The women of the church are asked to have the sale in mind and donations will be called for by notifying any of the committee.

Rev. Watson Woodruff will preach at the services to be conducted by the local lodge of Masons at the Masonic Home in Wallingford on Sunday afternoon.

The West Side Recreation whists that have been held on Thursday evenings are to be held on Friday evenings, starting tonight.

Pastor and Mrs. E. Greene accompanied by Mrs. C. E. Johansson left Wednesday afternoon by automobile, to attend a birthday party in honor of the former pastor of the Swedish Congregational church, Rev. A. E. Anderson at his home in Worcester, Mass. It was his eightieth birthday.

The Sunshine Club of the Swedish Congregational church held a meeting at the home of the Misses Gertrude and Myrtle Rosendahl of 27 Hackmack street last evening. The meeting was called to order by the chairman, C. E. Johansson and the monthly business of the club was transacted. Following the business meeting a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Evening Courses Offered at STATE TRADE SCHOOL

EVENING ELECTRICAL COURSE

The Evening Electrical Course offered at the State Trade School is a combination of practical shop work and classroom study. It is planned this year, to emphasize the practical side of the course, and to discontinue the classroom work after the fundamental ground work has been covered. At the start the student is instructed in the nature of electricity, conductors and insulators, units of measurements, series and parallel circuits and Ohm's Law. The shop work begins with a series of experiments including various methods of measuring high and low resistances. In performing these experiments or tests, the student receives actual practice in properly connecting the different types of electrical measuring instruments. Being arranged in progressive form, these experiments gradually carry the student from one stage to another, through the operation and study of the various commercial types of direct current motors and generators, including shunt, series and compound wound machines. From here the student advances into the field of alternating current motors and generators. That features the process of connecting induction motors for various voltages and speeds. Actual tests of alternating current generators, both isolated and in parallel operation under all conditions of load, give the student actual contact with the performance of these machines. A brief but comprehensive study of the more common single and polyphase transformer connections are included.

The work up to this point is of particular interest and value to the electrical installation and maintenance man who desires instruction in connecting various types of starting and control devices used in industrial establishments. Here he acquires a knowledge of the particular service for which varying types of electrical machines are designed, and he becomes familiar with their performance under the varying conditions of load.

In this department of evening school instruction, inexperienced young men may receive elementary instruction in the construction of electrical power machinery, and before the evening school is closed, he should complete several experiments on simply direct, and alternating grind power generating machinery. During the latter part of the course, the student will be given instruction in interior wiring, including the actual construction of circuits demonstrating the so-called knock and tube, armored cable, and rigid conduit forms of wiring. The "National Electrical Code" rules applying to these jobs will be emphasized to the student, and methods of testing the circuits, locating grounds and short circuits will also be thoroughly covered. These wiring jobs are also planned to acquaint the student with the different methods of control of electrical circuits by the use of various standard types of switches.

This course is intended to be of value to young men who are desirous of preparing themselves to enter the electrical trade, as well as to those who are already employed at electrical work, but who may wish to extend their experiences along the lines set forth.

The Electrical Department will be open on Tuesday and Friday nights from 7 to 9 p. m. Instructors in charge are Mr. Rice and Mr. Fisher.

FIND ADDISON MAN DEAD IN HIS BED

William Little, aged 62, was found dead yesterday afternoon in bed at his home just north of the Addison postoffice. Mr. Little had lived alone for a great number of years. He had a fainting spell Wednesday night while in the Addison store and it is believed that heart disease caused his death. Mr. Little was discovered by his next door neighbor, Fred Tucker, who went to the Little home to listen to the World Series game over the radio. Mr. Little leaves one sister, Mrs. Arthur Strout of Addison. Funeral arrangements are not complete.

ROSE DUBROWSKI DIES IN BRASS CITY

Woman Who Figured in Tragedy and Police Court Operation Victim.

Mrs. Rose Valumski of Waterbury, but better remembered as Mrs. Rose Dubrowski, who first came into print when her husband, carrying an infant in his arms, was struck by an automobile near the Wayside Gardens in Rockville and killed, is dead.

According to information received by the police this morning her death occurred on October 3 in Waterbury, where she went after her marriage last August. Mrs. Dubrowski was married to Valumski after a charge of neglecting her children had been laid against her in police court here and four of the children, found in a dirty home on North School street, committed to the county temporary home in Windsor Locks. The fifth, a baby, born after the death of her first husband, she took with her to Waterbury after her marriage.

Sister Brings News This morning a sister of Mrs. Valumski came to the Manchester police station seeking information as to the whereabouts of the children. She had a telegram which was sent to her under date of Oct. 3 from Waterbury to Pennsylvania, telling of the death.

From the information given by the sister to the police it appears that there are conditions surrounding the death which have not been cleared up. The sister told the police, it was said, that death followed an illegal operation performed in Waterbury.

The sister's reason for coming to Manchester was to locate the children now in County Temporary Home.

SPECIAL POLICE Hartford, Conn., Oct. 5.—Governor Trumbull today named a group of special police at the request of the New Haven railroad. They include James E. McCarthy, of New Haven; Fred Roselle, of Hyde Park, N. Y., and Elmer O. Wigg, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

FIRE HOSE WAS FIRST GOODRICH PRODUCT

The first commodity that Dr. B. E. Goodrich manufactured when he started the little plant at Akron that has grown into the present gigantic institution, was fire hose. The second commodity was garden hose. These two products show that in the very foundation of the rubber industry the combination of rubber and cotton fabric formed the basic for many of its most important products. Rubber and cotton have stuck together so that an inseparable and now are the paramount materials in automobile tires the greatest volume product in the rubber industry.

According to Mr. Brunner, local dealer in Goodrich Silvertown tires, one of the most important problems in the manufacture of the combined rubber and cotton cord carcass for tires, is the application of live high grade rubber to the cords so that the greatest strength will result. The cords must be entirely free of moisture so that the rubber may be thoroughly ingrained into their millions of tiny fibers.

"Cords that are made of the best long staple cotton with greatest tensile strength, are thoroughly dried by an exclusive Goodrich process," Mr. Brunner said. "Before they are bound together with rubber into sheet fabric form for working into tire carcasses, they are thoroughly inspected for the smallest imperfection. This is one of the most important of all the many inspections given Goodrich materials. The cords in a tire bear about the same relation to each other in a tire carcass as links in a chain."

Mr. Brunner said that, except for the steel wire that makes the bead of a tire—that hard rim that holds the tire on the wheel—rubber and cotton are the main materials in tires.

AMERICA NOW FIRST IN MAKING OF GUNS

The showing of the army ordnance equipment was on a large scale than ever before attempted in peace time. The spectators were given a succession of thrills from early morning to night.

Soldiers donned gas masks, threw down a smoke screen, and then went into action as if in a real battle. Tanks of all descriptions were forced to undergo the severest tests, as for example climbing up and down four large hills in succession. Some of the tanks made it, others got stalled. The night firing of anti-aircraft guns was spectacular to an extreme and repeatedly drew applause from the spectators.

SEEKS MANCHESTER'S CHARTER OAK TREE

State Library Wants to Check Up Fate of Senator Joe Hawley's Saplings.

A circular letter has been sent out by the Connecticut State Library to tree wardens in all towns of the state asking for information as to the fate of the Charter Oak saplings distributed to delegates to the constitutional convention of twenty-five years ago by United States Senator Joseph R. Hawley.

The embryo trees were cuttings from the original Charter Oak and Senator Hawley asked each delegate to the convention to see that his cutting was planted in his own town. Now the State Library is trying to find how the various saplings have thrived, after 25 years.

YALE GETS ENDOWMENT FOR GOVERNMENT STUDY

Alfred Cowles Foundation Established With Gift of $350,000 It Is Announced. New Haven, Conn., Oct. 5.—Yale University has received a gift of $350,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Philip B. Stewart, of Santa Barbara, Calif. Alfred Cowles, of Chicago, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cowles, of Spokane, Washington, to establish the Alfred Cowles Foundation for the Study of Government. Alfred Cowles, in whose memory the Foundation is established, was the father of Mrs. Stewart, William H. Cowles, '87, and Alfred Cowles, '86. He was one of the owners of the "Chicago Tribune," of which he was also business manager for many years. He died in 1889. "This generous and timely gift will enable Yale to proceed at once with plans for the promotion of the study of those phases of American government which are of chief practical importance to the citizen." President James Rowland Angell said today in commenting upon the gift. "At present largely through the aid of the Eugene Meyer, Jr., Public Service Fund, the college offers a considerable group of courses in the field of government dealing with theoretical and descriptive branches of the subject. Though the work now offered is substantially equivalent in scope to that of other liberal arts colleges, need has long been felt for further development of study along lines which offer the student the largest opportunities for usefulness in the political life of his community. The Cowles Foundation now makes this possible. A part of the income will be used to equip the University with a comprehensive collection of materials relating especially to the practical problems of state and municipal governments, and the activities of political parties and the electorate. Another part of the Fund will make possible a series of courses to provide a historical background of government, and to utilize these materials under the direction of a distinguished teacher soon to be added to the faculty. Graduate work will be promoted by offering generous fellowships to selected students of Yale and other universities; and efforts will be made to stimulate intensive study of political problems by undergraduates through honor courses open to students of high rank. "Though designed primarily as cultured studies, the new courses will provide valuable training of a practical nature for men who plan to enter the public services after graduation; and it is hoped that they will interest an increasing number of students in these lines of life work."

"HAS ANYBODY HERE SEEN KELLY?" COMING

Famous Song Now a Film Production—At State Tomorrow.

As thoroughly delightful and amusing as the old song from which the title is taken, "Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" has at last been adapted to the screen and will be shown at the State theater tomorrow. Tom Moore and Bessie Love have the principal roles.

There is nothing deep or too dramatic about the story. Yet it is touched by an arresting quality of sincerity that is particularly compelling in a light comedy of this sort. It is a human theme and handled with a sense of humor and a deft touch that fits it perfectly. Universal has succeeded in making a type of novel and pleasing picture rarely given to film audiences.

Besides Tom Moore and Bessie Love, the cast includes Kate Price, Alfred Allen, Tom O'Brien and many other screen notables.

The companion feature for tomorrow present Tim McCoy, popular cowboy star, in "Beyond the Serrilas," his latest MGM Western Special.

Thrills, action and mystery are packed into this rapidly-moving drama of love and intrigue in the days when the wealthy Spanish Dons ruled on both sides of the Rio Grande. McCoy as a mysteriously young adventurer will have you holding onto your seat, gasping for breath.

Another thrilling chapter of "The Police Reporter," and an Imperial comedy will be shown in addition to the two features.

Sunday and Monday brings Richard Dix in "Warning Up," his latest and greatest picture.

EIGHTH DISTRICT
It is reported that residents of the Eighth School and Utilities District, who have been summoned to a meeting of protest against the proposal to consolidate the schools of the town, are laboring under the misapprehension that the proposed charter contemplates the merging of the fire and utilities districts as well.

This is a notion that they should put out of their heads at once and finally. There is no suggestion of anything of the kind. No recommendation to any such effect has been made to the Charter Revision Committee by any of its sub-committees, and there is no body of opinion on the Revision Committee for any act of consolidation of any of the district functions except the schools.

It is of course highly probable that in the fullness of time, if the growth of Manchester continues, there will arrive a day when it will be inevitable that all such functions shall operate as parts of one city administration. But that time is not yet and there is no intention of attempting to force it prematurely.

School consolidation is the only consolidation problem with which the voters of the Eighth District have to deal. Any representations to the contrary grow out of either baseless panic or—and we sincerely trust this is not the case—of an intent to mislead.

FAIR ENOUGH

Conviction of the truck driver whose reckless driving resulted in the death of three boys on the Manchester-Rockville road last spring and his sentence of one to five years in the state prison is as fair a sequel to that unhappy tragedy as could have been expected.

There will be, of course, more or less sympathy with the driver on the ground that nothing was further from his mind than deliberate desire to injure any of the truckload of boys in his care. But precisely the same plea could be made for nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every thousand persons whose foolish recklessness cause the death of human beings in automobile accidents. None of them ever intends to kill anybody. All of them are inexpressibly shocked when the disasters they have courted occur.

Still the tragedies themselves do not seem to impress their fellow wild drivers. And it is necessary that something shall impress them. For some peculiarly abstruse psychological reason a state prison sentence for the killer seems to be more impressive than the mere fact of the killing. This being the case it is obvious that prison sentences in these cases are necessary. It is our belief that they ought to be mandatory and that they should not be as short as one year, either.

There is nothing about the issue on this case to encourage other truck driver custodians of many youthful lives to take chances with those lives. It is to be anticipated that the realization that one of their guild is doing time in Wethersfield for doing so will help to maintain some standard of caution among the drivers of tobacco plantation trucks if among no other class of automobilists.

DRAGGING IT OUT

It appears highly probable that Governor Smith's one big issue in this campaign, the secret one through which it has been hoped to win for him thousands of votes without arousing the just suspicions of the nation as a whole, will be dragged out into the light before this campaign is over.

Abraham Kaplan, civil service commissioner of the state of New York, was the first Democrat to present this issue as it really is—a determination on the part of the alienizationists to destroy the policy of immigration restriction.

Quite evidently he forgot that his words would be heard outside the Rochester convention hall.

Now John F. Voigt, former president of the German club of Ohio and assistant U. S. attorney and attorney for the Immigration Bureau at Chicago in the Taft administration, challenges the declaration of Governor Smith in his St. Paul speech that "there is no issue between the parties or the candidates on the question of the immigration laws."

Mr. Voigt, indignant over any proposal to shut out German immigrants whose kinsmen have had an active and extremely important part in the upbuilding of America ever since colonial days, for the sake of letting in increased numbers of nationalists which took no part in making America but come here to reap where others have sown, protests that the assertion of "no issue" is untrue.

"Governor Smith in his acceptance speech," said Mr. Voigt, "declared that he is opposed to the immigration quota basis 38 years old, referring to the quota basis of 1890, which is now the law by Presidential decree on the advice of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover," Mr. Voigt said.

"Under the present law each quota country is allowed to send to the United States every year two per cent of the number of foreign born of that nation that were here in the United States in 1890.

"Taking the year 1890 as the basis allows the largest number of immigrants from Germany, Sweden, Norway, Ireland and the countries of Central and Northern Europe—the same kind of people who did so much in co-operation with the people of the British Isles to build up America. Now, when Governor Smith stated he was opposed to an immigration quota basis thirty-eight years old—that is that he was opposed to the quota basis of 1890 and by inference that he is in favor of a later quota basis—it means that such a later quota basis would reduce the number of immigrants that could come into the United States from Germany, Sweden, Norway, Great Britain, Ireland and the countries of Central and Northern Europe."

This is absolutely and unescapably so. Smith's acceptance speech declaration in favor of quotas based on a census later than that of 1890—and the alienizationists are seeking to make it the census of 1920 or at least of 1910—is a declaration in favor of barring German, English, Irish and Scandinavian immigrants and substituting the admission of people of the races who flocked here from southern Europe, the Balkan and western Asia in appalling numbers after 1890.

Nothing else can possibly be made of it.

On the opposite hand Mr. Voigt speaks merely historic truth when he says that "Herbert Hoover, more than any man in America, is entitled to credit for continuing the quotas of 1890."

The issue is whether what immigrants we admit to America hereafter shall belong to the races which helped to make the country or to those who come here to grab the fruit of their predecessors' labor. Smith is for the latter, Hoover for the former.

SEIZ A LOT

Statistics are wonderful things. The other day we read a very learned article on agricultural problems in which the author declared that the farm population of the country was now less than 25 per cent of the whole number of persons in the country. Incidentally he said that this was too many, that what the country was suffering from was a chronic surplus of agricultural products, including, of course, meat. Which is a good thing to tell to the marines, who don't have to pay for their beef steak. And which, by the same token, is aside from the point.

What impresses us is to run across, in another statistical statement, the assertion that of the food products sold in the United States 19 per cent is purchased by the rural population.

Now if 25 per cent of farmers buy 19 per cent of the food in the country isn't that just nineteen-twenty-fifths as much purchased food for each person on the farm as for each person in a city? What is the answer—don't the farmers raise their own food at all? Or don't they raise more than a fifth of it? Or do they eat up all their own food and then buy, each, four-fifths as much food on the side as the city dweller, who doesn't raise any at all, consumes altogether?

"Statistics sez" used to be the clincher in every cracker-box argument. "Statistics sez a lot," sez we.

MUD BALL MATERIAL

We recommend to Democratic leaders and candidates in Connecticut to give up trying to pose as tariff protectionists and watch the trial of Roger W. Watkins which begins in the Hartford County Superior Court next week. From present indications they may pick up there some of the material in the handling of which they are more expert than they are in tariff matters.

Mr. Alcorn is said to stand ready to show that certain Connecticut State officials, both elective and appointive, were carried as non-paying speculators on the books of Watkins' concern and credited with profits on investments which they never called on to make.

This, on the face of it, looks like shady business—as though these officials were being paid for something.

Being state officials the chances are that these folks, whose identities must become known in the trial, are Republicans. And if the Democrats can only find out for sure that same Republican officeholder or another was under complicity to Roger Watkins—glory be! what grounds that will provide for a nice muddy state campaign.

Of course the circumstance that the facts are to be brought out by a Republican state attorney can easily be overlooked—any Democrat will know how to do that; though he may be a bit dazed at the failure of a Republican administration to stave off the Watkins trial till after election, which is what any Tammany-trained politician would know enough to do.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 5.—West street provides the last scene in the endless scenario of the soil.

West street tells you as you walk through its crate-laden lanes, the story of struggle and labor that has gone on through many seasons in many geographically scattered points to make the soil produce its finest product.

West street, on a chill autumn morning, reminds a lad who once lived in Michigan, for instance, that somewhere the frost is on the pumpkin. It makes one just a bit lonely for the old farm.

For here the earth and the trees, the arbors and stalks display their proud works. West street is the heart of a vast market place where in the fruit of the trees and the vegetables of the field are displayed through fragrant miles of stalls and boxes and stands.

West street, which faces upon the docks and backs into the skyscrapers of lower Broadway, seems strangely out of place in a city where a tree is so hard to find.

It often seems even unfair that one city should get the choicest that the earth affords. Yet, such is the legend, New York does get first choice and best choice. No half-way products find their way here. The apples have the riest of cheeks; the grapes are fatter and sweeter; the oranges are a study in symmetry—color abounds, tradesmen gather in groups and bargain in the tiny pathways between crates; horses stamp on the cobblestones; there is the atmosphere of a super-city fair.

And since there are more horses in this belt than one will find anywhere else in Manhattan, this is one of the last stamping grounds of "the village blacksmith." Few expect to find the "smithy," "under the spreading chestnut tree" of the village. Far more likely is one to find a garage. But here, under the towering skylight, a little row of smithies carry on. The clang of hammer on anvils is all but lost in the roar of traffic, but the pungent odor of hot irons on coals cannot be drowned.

Gotham glimpses—George Abbott is Broadway's most magic name. Abbott, it is, who is called upon as a "play doctor" whenever a drama is in doubt. It is Abbott who puts on the box office finish, re-jiggers the lines and all that. A play bearing his name is as good as sold and his O. K. is all that a young dramatist needs to get a production. He is constantly in demand and generally manages to keep three plays behind himself.

Margaret Livingston, who came from Bloomington, Ill., by the way, is one popular stage idol who insists on remaining in retirement. Although offered any number of emotional roles, she is determined to be a "housewife." She has had excellent opportunity to learn how completely a stage career can intrude on the home. And she will have none of it. Now and then she can be seen at Broadway performance with her husband.

Owen Johnson, the novelist, has succeeded in enlisting a dozen of the prominent writers, who dwell in Manhattan, as political workers—not an easy task. These include Gertrude Atherton, H. L. Mencken, George Jean Nathan, J. P. McAvoy, Charles Norris, Jim Tully, Dorothy Parker and Edgar Lee Masters.

This is, perhaps, the largest list of literary "celebs" ever gathered on one bandwagon.

GILBERT SWAN.

A THOUGHT

Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there?—Jeremiah 8:22.

Giving comfort under affliction requires that penetration into the human mind, joined to that experience which knows how to soothe, how to reason and how to ridicule; taking the utmost care never to apply these arts improperly.—Flaxing.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamp, addressed, large envelope for reply.

NETTLE RASH

Many people are troubled with the appearance of a rash on the skin accompanied by an intense stinging, burning sensation. This rash is in the form of wheals, and they may become maximum size, varying from that of a pinhead to that of a half dollar, within a few minutes, and they sometimes disappear as rapidly as they form.

These lesions may appear on any part of the skin, and they sometimes occur inside the throat on the epiglottis, giving a choking sensation or feeling of suffocation. When they appear on the tongue, they may cause it to become greatly enlarged.

The itching is so intense that it is almost impossible for the patient to resist scratching, which only increases the size of the wheals.

Attacks of hives can only occur in people who are suffering from a form of chronic urticaria, and each attack is preceded by a period of lassitude, digestive disorders, coated tongue and possibly headaches. A fingernail drawn over the surface of the skin of these patients usually leaves a red line, and it is possible to write words on the surface of their bodies in this manner.

Poorly fed and undernourished children are most frequent sufferers from this disorder. The eruptions are usually small and appear about the hair follicles, accompanied by the usual intense itching.

In some forms of this disease, technically known as urticaria, there are also large swellings under the skin like small eggs, occurring most frequently on the face. The disease has a variety of forms. In some cases it occurs at regular intervals. Sometimes the irritations leave brownish discolorations or stains. These people usually become badly swollen as the result of mosquito or insect bites.

One susceptible to this disorder may suffer an attack from a number of causes, but there is almost always some irritation of the digestive tract. The foods that are most frequently blamed for bringing on these eruptions are shellfish, cheese, sausage, pork, strawberries, cucumbers and an almost endless variety of foods and drugs.

This disease may occur as a complication in the course of many chronic diseases and in susceptible people the irritation of various substances applied to the skin will bring on an attack. Some of the substances which bring on this rash most frequently when in contact with the skin are rotenone, camphor, turpentine, and the extract of certain plants such as the primrose, various types of essential oils and gases. Worry and nervous irritation are also likely to bring on the eruption.

Such eruptions are readily cured, since all that is required is to thoroughly alkalinize the blood. This is accomplished through the use of the acid fruit diet, such as apples, grapes, oranges or grapefruit for a period varying from five to ten days and followed by a well-balanced diet as outlined in my weekly articles in the newspapers.

One should be particularly careful to avoid fermentation in the intestines, and I am convinced that wrong food combinations are more responsible for skin troubles than most of the foods that are blamed by the sufferers. One with a tendency to such a disorder must be particularly careful in this respect. I will gladly send without charge my article on food combinations to those who are interested, upon request, they will send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Questions and Answers
Question: Mrs. H. writes: "I have been told by a friend that a rolling pin is good for reducing fat. Another friend contradicted the statement, saying that it was very injurious. Is it or is it not? I am five feet, five inches tall, thirty-two years old, and weigh 126 pounds. Am I underweight or overweight?"
Answer: The only correct way to reduce is through diet and exercise. Massage with a rolling pin is not very effective, and only tends to break down the cellular structure. Your weight for your age and height seems to me to be about normal.

Question: I. L. writes: "I am very interested in your articles, and would like very much to see a write-up on 'Alcoholic Drinks.'"
Answer: cannot elaborate on this subject in a short answer in this question and answer department. Alcoholic drinks should be used carefully if at all. They are stimulating and helpful in certain cases and under certain conditions. Where too much is used, stimulation stops, and depression or intoxication begins.

Question: G. H. asks: "What would you advise for gall bladder trouble? I have had a very bad attack, and vomit often."
Answer: I have written a great deal on this subject, and will be glad to send you complete information about the cause and cure of various forms of gall bladder trouble. I will send a request to me, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. In the meantime, cut down on the amount of food you are using, and to begin with, try a short fast on fruit for a few days.

EXCLUSIVE REPRESENTATIVES FOR CRAWFORD AND CHAMBERS RANGES

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Oct. 5.—There seems to be a serious lack of good sense in hastening to repudiate talk about Candidate Hoover's drinking. Hoover has been one of the few high officials in Washington whose name is not mentioned in discussions of drinking in high places. He has seldom if ever been seen at drinking parties here and it is common report that he has not served a drink in his house since he entered the cabinet. One hears that the Republican candidate can remember how many drinks he has had in his entire life, which, if true, means not very many.

Chairman Raskob showed good sense in hastening to repudiate talk about Candidate Hoover's drinking. Hoover has been one of the few high officials in Washington whose name is not mentioned in discussions of drinking in high places. He has seldom if ever been seen at drinking parties here and it is common report that he has not served a drink in his house since he entered the cabinet. One hears that the Republican candidate can remember how many drinks he has had in his entire life, which, if true, means not very many.

Senators Curtis and Robinson, the two vice-presidential candidates, have both been heckled and both have fired back some hot shots. Curtis even lapsing into mild profanity.

Heckling is a nuisance to any candidate. There's always likely to be some shrewd old duck in the crowd who may have been plotting his trap weeks in advance. Even the best platform speakers sometimes lose in an exchange of repartee with hecklers. The recent Robinson and Curtis episodes have reminded some older members of this generation of Roosevelt's cropper during a Wisconsin speech in 1912.

A voice in the rear of the hall several times repeated loudly: "I'm a Democrat!" "Well, why?" Roosevelt finally demanded after several interruptions.

"My father was a Democrat, my grandfather was a Democrat, my wife's father was a Democrat, my wife's grandfather was a Democrat, and I'm a Democrat."

"Suppose," shot back Roosevelt, "your father, your grandfather, your wife's father and grandfather had each been a damn fool—what would you do during the election?" "I would have thought that was going to end it but before the crowd could laugh the heckler shot back: "A Bull Moose!"

RIGHT.

Standing up for the Right is not a theory with Hoover. In all of the questions that have arisen during his career he was not only always found on the side of Right, but he made it his business to fight for it. Some of his heaviest tasks for which he received only gratitude as a reward, were those he assumed solely from his devotion to the Right. Facing all of the diplomats and generals of Europe after the armistice he declared: "There is no right in the law of God or man why we should continue to starve neutrals now that the war is over." Standing firmly upon this declaration he won the right to feed them and untold thousands in Europe owe their lives to his firm stand for Right. We need a President with a conscience like that. There were 310 to partake of the bountiful supper which was served in the large dining hall in the basement. During the evening there was an entertainment and dance in the main part of the building. At intermission various articles were awarded as follows: 1 pound box of chocolates, Kenneth Webster; bed quilt to Mrs. Henry Morrill of Talcottville and one to Henry Gunter of Vernon Center; a winter's supply of vegetables to Carl Herman of Vernon Center; floor lamp to Mr. Price of Davis avenue, Rockville, and a ticket to the chicken pie supper in November to Mrs. Mittie Walker of Manchester.

WINS LONG SHOT BET ON MEUSEL'S HOMER

A lot of baseball bets were made in Manchester yesterday, but one man made and won one that breaks all local records.

In the fourth inning of the game after Babe Ruth had made his second two base hit and Gehrig had grounded out, pitcher to first, a local fan in one of radio groups, a professional man, suddenly made the remark: "I'll bet $5 that Meusel makes a home run." There was a rush of takers for the bet was about a hundred to one shot—some fans insisted a million-to-one.

Long Bob took his place at the bat. "Ball one," came over the air. "Strike one," was next. Then "Ball two," followed by "Strike two," it looked bad for the man who had made the bet. Then came one of those silences which indicate that something has happened. It had. Bob had made a home run.

The long, long shot had come through.

Manchester High To Play Middletown Here On Saturday

Down River Team Ready To Stop Local Gridders

Coach Kelly Smooths Out Rough Spots; Student Body Vision School Title.

Middletown High school's football squad will be entertained at the West Side oval tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when it faces the husky Manchester High aggregation. Although the visitors lost the first game against West Hartford the whole squad is reported to be greatly improved since that time.

The local line, weighing on an average of 175 pounds, is showing a better co-ordination with the backfield than in the first encounter. The first squad buckled down to real work the first part of the present week and Coach Tom Kelly is well pleased with the progress made to date. When this heavy line functions properly the long sought and much coveted interscholastic title will undoubtedly rest in the trophy room of the local institution.

Kelly Is Silent

Coach Tom Kelly is silent regarding his team's chances to win the title this year. He has his system working properly now and during the past three years has grounded the team into his style of play from the freshmen up. There is every indication that the team will iron out the rough spots as the season progresses and fulfill the great ambition of the student body with the title.

Middletown comes here tomorrow afternoon with a team that has great possibilities and whether or not the coach has this aggregation working at mid-season form is hard to say. They met in West Hartford a week ago and lost, 12 to 0 but this is hardly a reason as many a good team has started slowly and came through later in the season. Always the down river outfit has been a dangerous foe to local sport teams and tomorrow's fracas is just as uncertain.

Lessner and Squarito, stars from last week's tilt with East Hartford, will probably get into the game. Both these chaps gave a splendid exhibition against the team from over "east" and will be called upon again to show their stuff.

A Good Move

By moving the game ahead one day, from Friday to Saturday, is a good move on the part of the school authorities. It will give the squad a chance to play before a much larger crowd and at the same time allow the entire student body a chance to see the game.

It is expected that the sidelines will be roped off tomorrow afternoon now that the town baseball series is over. The spectators will have a chance to watch the game without crowding the field as the lines will be laid out like an inverted V which will allow everyone a chance to see the playing without a bit of crowding.

Tommy O'Loughlin of Hartford will referee with Von Holm as umpire and McKiff at the lines. The game will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

STAR GAZING STARS HALT N. Y. TRAFFIC

Mayor of Green Overcome Staring at Skyscrapers.

Clang! Clang! Clang! The harsh notes of an ambulance stopped the noisy chatter of a great city when bluecoated police officers sprang into the street and herded traffic to the curb as the whitecoated driver picked his way down the crowded thoroughfare.

With a grinding of brakes, two snappy young doctors swung from the rear end of the ambulance and hurried to the sidewalk where, stretched in various poses, twelve young men obviously from the country judging from their dress, were stretched out evidently in a coma or unconscious from cause or other.

The doctors opened their cases and started an examination of those nearest them. The first two groaned and rubbed the backs of their necks. After a few moments they were able to stagger to their feet and walk away.

The next two were in much worse shape and failed to respond to first aid treatment and were ordered into the ambulance. Meanwhile the crowd grew to great proportions making it necessary to call out police reserves to handle the crowd. While the second two were on their way to the hospital more ambulances arrived and seven more were quickly whisked away.

There still remained one more patient and while waiting for another ambulance the doctors gave their undivided attention to the long, lean, lanky light-haired individual who groaned and tossed upon the hard pavement.

"His case is very bad," said one of the M. D.'s, "and I don't think he has much of a chance."

"He looks a whole lot like Bossy Gilles," replied the other. "You remember him, he was or perhaps is, the mayor of Newburyport, Mass."

At the mention of Bossy Gilles' name the suffering man on the sidewalk stirred and mumbled

DWYER WILL COACH NORTH END ELEVEN

Maker of Champs Engaged to Coach Lively North Ends; Old Head Will Benefit Youth and Speed.

By ROBERT E. CARNEY.

John E. Dwyer, who has successfully coached the leading football teams in Manchester, taking the championship to the North End when he coached that team and then to the South End when he coached the Cubs, the present holder of the title, is to again take up similar duties, this time as coach for the North End, a team composed of youngsters in that section of the town that have been playing together for the past two years and who have been giving a good account of themselves in games already played.

The members of the team learning that it might be possible to secure his services appointed a delegation to wait upon Mr. Dwyer and making known their desire to secure his service. They were given to understand that in taking over the position as their coach that they must be prompt in getting around to practice in the evenings and when this was agreed to, Mr. Dwyer accepted their offer.

The team, which has been practicing at Hickey's Grove when that field was not in use, but have been playing most of their games on the road, are likely to have a home field. They are now arranging to secure the services of Sam Prentice, who put baseball back on the map in Manchester, and have him manage their team with the possibilities that the team may play their home games at Manchester Green.

The players on the North End team are of such an age as to be willing to follow instructions and do not feel that they know all there is to be known and are willing to be taught. The team will average 150 pounds a man with youth and speed behind them and a willingness to follow instructions from an older head before and during their plays they should have no trouble in keeping well to the front in football.

Mr. Dwyer assumes his new duties this week and will start in with "skull" drills, blackboard talks and then correct such errors in the playing of the present players as he detects from time to time. They already have a squad of twenty-four players and from time to time new names are being placed on the list of applicants for a position on the team.

With the speed that they have been showing and the guidance of an older head the future of football at the North End looks more promising.

something under his breath. A stiff jolt of whiskey enabled the doctor to hear:

"I'm not Bossy Gilles, not by lotsofousness," said the man. "I am," he continued, drawing himself up to a sitting position, "the mayor of Manchester Green."

The mayor and his companions were suffering from an acute attack of Stiff Neckitis from gazing at the tall buildings in New York City while attending the baseball games,

204 BALLS THROWN IN FIRST BIG GAME

There is a whole lot that can be gotten out of baseball even though a person can not witness a world series contest. To a person who has attended world series and knows the picture the radio tells more than just the acts and the newspaper accounts that are on the street within an hour after the game is over, gives to the person who likes baseball, a lot of information that the person attending the game can not, or will not, get.

With a score book before the fan who is a stay-at-home and a radio near, it is possible to tell a whole lot, that a person who is not scoring a game, even inside of the lot where the contest is being waged, can not carry.

There is the time between the approach of the batter to the plate and the report from the radio announcer that can be taken up in speculation of what is going to happen. With a score book, showing just what the batter did on his last appearance at the plate, where he hit it to, what balls he had called and what strikes were called and how many foul balls that resulted in strikes, is advance information that helps out in the guess.

Here are a few things that a radio listener could get yesterday that the fan at the game would probably overlook.

In the first inning Hoyt pitched twelve balls before the Cardinals were retired, yet only three men faced him. There was one ball and two strikes on Douthit when he grounded out. High had one strike when he hit the second ball pitched for a fly to center field, but Frisch showed that he knew baseball by making the count three and two before he grounded out, short to first.

In the first inning Sherdel pitched seventeen balls. His first ball was a strike, his second was a ball, the third was a strike and the fourth ball Paschal hit to left field. The count was two and two when Koenig hit a fly to left field and there were two balls and one strike on Babe Ruth when he slammed his first two-base hit. Gehrig had a ball and a strike on him when Sherdel pitched, the third ball to him and Buster lined it out for two bases. Meusel, in the first inning, hit the first ball pitched and was out on a fly to Frisch. During the entire game Hoyt pitched 111 balls, an average of 12 1/2 an inning. In the seven innings that Sherdel worked he pitched eighty-two balls; an average of 11 5/7 an inning. Johnson, who pitched the eighth, for the Cards pitched eleven balls.

Hoyt's bad innings was the eighth and ninth, when he pitched seventeen balls in each inning. The change to pinch hitters had its effect. Wilson, the catcher, had two strikes and a ball on him when he hit the fourth one to left field for an out. Orsatti, the first pinch hitter had a strike and then Hoyt pitched him four straight balls for a walk. Holm, the second pinch hitter drew two balls, or six balls that Hoyt had pitched in a row, before he got over a strike. Another ball and a strike was called before Holm flew out to left field. Douthit struck out, but he made Hoyt work to do it, for the first was a ball and the next three strikes.

The following shows how many balls were pitched by the three pitchers in the innings that they were worked.

Inning	Hoyt	Sherdel	Johnson
1	2	3	4
2	3	4	5
3	4	5	6
4	5	6	7
5	6	7	8
6	7	8	9
7	8	9	10
8	9	10	11
9	10	11	12

Hoyt: 12 14 11 12 9 11 8 17 17—111
Sherdel: 17 9 8 12 11 10 15 0 0—82
Johnson: 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 11 0—11
Averages:
Hoyt: 111 in 9 innings, average 12 1/2 an inning.
Sherdel: 82 in 7 innings, average 11 5/7 an inning.
Johnson: 11 in 1 inning, an average 11 an inning.

Many Changes In Football Rules During Twenty Years Helps Game

Sixteen years ago last Sunday intercollegiate football was first introduced to the fans of Manchester at the north end on Hickey's lot just off Oakland street. The Carlisses met the Tigers of Hartford in a grueling contest in which the Capitol City aggregation won 3 to 0. Since that time the football banner has been carried onward until the peak was reached last year between the Cloverleaves and the Cubs in their hectic battle for the own supremacy.

Football, under the rules prior to 1908 was just called a brutal game in which the fittest survived. It was not a pastime for the weakling or the faint hearted nor is it today for that matter. But the game was vastly different then, so much so that with the change in all modes of life, football underwent its first drastic change in twenty-five years when the late Walter Camp had the courage of his convictions and introduced the forward pass.

A STORM OF PROTESTS

When the changes were announced by the rules committee at the close of the 1907 season a storm of protests swept from all sections of the country. Coaches denounced the changes in no uncertain terms. Taking the ball away from the old style hammer and tong game and putting it in the same class as checkers was unthinkable. It could not be done. Years had been spent in perfecting the flying wedge, end round end and the cross buck and now a weak-minded committee had upset all those plans.

The rules committee immediately countered by saying that the spectators were entitled to some consideration inasmuch as the new rules would put the ball in play more often and allow the fans to watch it, which could not be done under the old regime. Thousands of fans all over the country were clamoring for a much faster and at the same time a cleaner game than was possible under the old rules. They, at least, should be needed.

COACHES WERE CAREFUL

From the start few coaches were loath to take a chance with the new rules. The forward pass and the protected punt would eliminate many of the main features which had made the wool-fans were wont to see each year. Pop Warner, then coach of the famous Carlisse Indians, took the first step with the forward pass and succeeded. A gag went up from the spectators when his end, Young Live Oak, a full-blooded Indian snared a pass and raced nearly 72 yards for a score. And from that play, engineered by Pop Warner, until the present day football has undergone many radical changes and all for the benefit of the millions who annually enjoy this great pastime.

More Tomorrow

It's a question which will win out this year—the whispering campaign or that conducted by loud speakers.

Odds Disappear After Cards Lose The Opener

St. Louis to Use Old Pete Alexander Who Dazzled the Yanks in 1926; Pippas for Yanks.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Oct. 5.—Having thrown consternation into and at the milkweed upon the St. Louis Cardinals by winning the first game of the World Series, the New York Yankees today were ready to resume their presentation of the dramatic success. "Victories by Victorias or Who Else Wants a Fallen Arch." In other words, the second episode of what the writer in his unique way terms the drama of the diamond will be enacted at the stadium this afternoon with only a slight change in the cast having been effected overnight.

"Old Pete" Alexander, the lad who dazzled the Yanks in the 1926 series, will be called forth to replace the disillusioned Sherdel in the principal role for the Cardinals. Opposing Peter will be George Pippas, the man who holds the doubtful distinction of being the second best pitcher on the Yankee roster. In his case, second place hardly can be distinguished from seventh or last. The Yankee staff pitched a great game of ball yesterday and will not be available again until the second game in St. Louis. Peter himself, as to that, probably isn't the man he was two years ago, so there was at least a possibility that one might see a few runs scored during the general excitement.

Same Teams

Otherwise, barring an exception or two that are entirely too important to mention, the situation will be largely unchanged. Same ball clubs, same locale, and, for all anyone knows, maybe the same result. The halt and lame were certainly pitiful to behold as they limped out to the plate from the Yankee dugout yesterday so weak and infirm that they could barely hit one out of the ball park. It wouldn't make anybody particularly distract if the weather was the same although the forecast said cloudy. Some of the things that will not be the same are the odds that favored the Cardinals at 7 to 5 yesterday, the crowd of 80,000 that turned up so frantically absent and the helpful jockey who was willing to disengage himself from a $18,000 bet on the small sum of $50, just because he knows you. The reason he won't be around is that he has just about disengaged himself exhausted.

Odds Disappear

The odds disappeared entirely on the head of the Yankees' first victory and, with Hoyt ready to come back twice more if the series last that long, they were laying dollar-for-dollar in the downtown hotels. However, the Cards got the play at 6 to 5 on today's game, largely because the boys have remembered with almost no difficulty what Alexander did to the Yankees two years ago. They also seem to recollect that, outside of his shutout of the Athletics in mid-September, Pippas has had quite a time of it retiring three men to the average inning.

All in all it would stand out none if the Cards had a stand-off in the series by night fall.

Old Pete is what they call a non-game pitcher, meaning a great game to have in there for a single concentrated effort. He no longer is able to throw the ball up your sleeve at twenty paces but the club doesn't live that can guarantee to go out there and trifle with him openly and unshamed. But if it so happens that trifling declares an open season today, this serious "serious" will be almost no more. In brief this is "do or die" game for the Cardinals and Alexander is their official "do or don't" pitcher. As for Pippas, he has been a most remarkable "don't" pitcher these many weeks. However, one simply can't put the finger on George. Pippas him to win and, instead of fooling the hitters, he has been a most afternoon fooling you. Peg him as a loser and he'll show his vast versatility by reversing the field. That is to say, he will fool you again. The only thing to do with a guy like that is to bet him two ways and be downright glad that there isn't a third. If George is right, the Cards will have a lot of rudimentary fun trying to beat him at that.

Pitcher Helped Yanks

Every club, of course, looks like the water lilies behind good pitching, so the crippled Yanks comforted themselves with some distinction yesterday. It was difficult to see how they could miss, in fact, since Hoyt's pitching wasn't merely good, it was great. At that, one doesn't seem to recall that Sherdel's performance was exactly pitiful and, if the Cards looked good behind him, one doesn't seem to remember this, either. They played their outfield along the right field bleachers for Ruth and that young man completely ruined the sequence by hitting to center field, the result being that Douthitt and Hefey gallantly held a couple of his fly balls to two bases.

However, today was another day and Pippas happened to be distinctly another pitcher. The Cards had more than an even chance of pulling this one out and the populace avid for a New York victory now that the crippled condition of the Yanks has reached its maudlin limit, prepared to conduct itself accordingly. Those thin lines, a constant source of amazement to anyone who values his bunions before forming directly after yesterday's game and this morning the throng at the gates ranged well into the thousands.

With the 40,000 reserved seats sold, another great crowd will sit in for this second game. However, it won't be as great as the crowd that didn't come yesterday. They said they had room for 80,000 and may be they did—under the stands. The official paid attendance on the contrary was slightly more than 61,000 and, if there were as many as 2,000 empty seats on the lot, all I can say is that some one must have been sitting in quite a few of them.

HERE'S SIDELIGHTS OF OPENING GAME

Little Sketches About the Various Plays and Players of Yesterday.

By LES CONKLIN

New York, Oct. 5.—The New York fans had heart failure every time Paschal got hold of a fly. Benjarino squats like Sitting Bull and his method is a cross between one of Maranville's basket catches and a sea lion catching a fish.

Maranville caught Hoyt's foul fly back-handed within two inches of the left field wall while on the run and then pivoted away from the barrier with all the grace of a toe dancer just as Bill McKeech-nie was about to summon an ambulance from the Huggins hospital.

Meusel finds being a hero quite boring. In acknowledging the thunderous applause that greeted his home run, he tipped his cap as if he were brushing a fly off it.

"Sinus" Hefey didn't get a hit. But if you think he'll go hitless through the entire series, then you should be playing quarterback for Mattewan this fall.

Ruth didn't wudge when Bottomley's circuit walk sailed over his head. George smokes the same brand himself.

Hoyt's pitching and Ruth's hitting were the most welcome tidings since the boys brought the good news from Ghent to Aix. Ruth has hit four doubles in inter-league championships, and he got half of them yesterday. Was he trying to meet the ball on account of his injured knee? Yes, he was. Just like a fly-swatter meeting a fly.

Another addition to the casualty list was made when the New York club's cash register collapsed under the strain and was fractured.

As a result of New York's victory, the betting odds on St. Louis are dropping faster than a wildcat oil stock in a bear market.

John McGraw is doing some fast and furious writing in the press box. After trying for six months to figure out ways for the Cardinals to lose, he is now attempting to figure out how they can win.

Benny Bengough made a bet of $50 that the Cards wouldn't steal a base on him during the series. It's still safe. Wilson, the only Red Bird who attempted to "carry the mail" yesterday, was thrown out by a city block.

When Ruth ran out his doubles he was bumping along like a truck with a flat tire. He had to stop halfway between first and second base and wait for his bum leg to catch up with him.

When the Babe clouted his third hit of the day, a disgruntled St. Louis fan shouted "take off those bandages, Ruth—we know you!"

Tennis and other violent games are dangerous to a man past 40, says a health writer. He fails to mention bridge, however.

SHERDEL ALLOWED YANKS LIBERTIES

Farrell Again Names Card Hurler as Series Goat.

(BY HENRY L. FARRELL)

(Special to the Herald) New York, Oct. 5.—It happened just as Bill McKeech-nie and his St. Louis Cards had been warned that it might happen. The Yanks got to hitting in the inimitable Yankee fashion and they whistled off with the first game of the World's Series by a score of 4 to 1.

It wasn't a devastating assault by the murderers. The ball park wasn't damaged and no lives were lost but it was enough. Timely hitting by Ruth, Gehrig and Meusel broke down Wee Willie Sherdel and made of him, for the third time, a series pitching goat.

The victory meant more to the Yankees than just a ball game on the right side and running start into a battle that had been looked upon as their certain doom.

There is a legend, backed by good solid figures, that the team winning the first game usually cops the series. Fifteen times out of the twenty-four series played the team winning the first game won the series and the Yankees are not immune to superstitions and hunches. It was a drowsy ball game and the huge pack of customers were aroused from a beautiful afternoon nap only by the occasional whang of a bat when the Yankee artillery was cracking and by the one smack that Jim Bottomley took when he rode the ball far over the Babe's head for a homer and the only homer that the National League champions could score.

Young Mr. Hoyt was in command through the whole game. He was heartless until the seventh inning when a period came upon him that might be described as a wobble. But if his wobble was getting serious it was overcome by some very snappy fielding on the part of his mates. One particular piece of defense was executed by Mark Koenig. Poise in a pinch has been bought at times in the past and there was nothing radically wrong with the baseball that the badly crippled Tony Lazzeri exhibited.

The smack of the Babe in the first inning was very obviously the stroke that inspired the whole Yankee team and they stayed inspired very definitely. They perked up like they had been given a couple of shots and when the languid Robert Meusel slammed a homer that scored the Babe ahead of him in the fourth inning he became so full of pep and spirit that he actually took five steps around in his pasture. His previous record was four steps.

The Yanks scored their runs by the best progress known to baseball. Their Babe got on twice and they knocked him in. Their Marcus Koenig got on once in the eighth and they knocked him in. But the Cards couldn't do that. Hoyt sent them back to the gloom of their dugout as fast as they stepped up and Hoyt didn't seem to mind it a bit.

Robert Meusel took hold of a fast ball. He knew where it was going and so did the Babe. The two stood firm in their tracks and never raised their heads as the ball fell up among the customers in Ruth's galleries.

Wee Willie Sherdel lost the ball game because he didn't pitch as well as Hoyt did. His slow ball wouldn't behave for him. It wandered so far around the general vicinity of the plate that he had to use his fast ball in the pinch and the Yanks took a great liking to the speedy fellows.

Rogers Hornsby, who managed the Cardinals the last time in a World's Series, peered at the ball game through the mesh in front of him. It was his unofficial opinion that Sherdel made two pitching mistakes.

"I'm not managing a club in this series," he said. "But anyone could see that the Babe was all set for the fourth inning and Sherdel gave it to him. Anyone could see that Meusel was set for a fast ball and when it came up fast he murdered it."

Losing the first game, the Cards are now in the hole. It was reported from the St. Louis dugout that when Bottomley was sent into save the second game. The experts couldn't agree with McKeech-nie on this. They figured that it was the proper spot for old Pete Alexander. If old Pete is held off until Sunday he might be able to make only one appearance and, apparently, the Cards need several of his appearances because the Yanks are off now. They have confidences in themselves. Miller Huggins can play around a little with his pitchers. And, it is well known, the Yanks are a helluva team to beat in a tight place.

TUNNEYS IN FLORENCE

Florence, Italy, Oct. 5.—Two of the happiest people in Italy arrived here today. They were Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, and his bride of two days, who are spending their honeymoon amid the beautiful scenery of northern Italy, romantic with many historic loves. The couple arrived by motor car and immediately went to the Hotel Excelsior, unaccompanied by reporters or photographers much to the delight of the ex-pugilist. They left Perugia last night carrying a great hamper of lunch in their automobile with them.

Local Sport Chatter

Evidently the Cloverleaves are in for a real tussle this week-end when they meet the Mohicans of Meriden at Hickey's Grove. Reports from down state indicate that the Silver City aggregation has a fast heavy line and a real backfield. Coach Oefinger in a telephone conversation with the acting sports editor of the Herald last evening said that his team was capable of giving either of the two local teams a real struggle every minute and resented the fact that reports circulated in this town to the contrary.

Early in the week there was a report over at the north end that the Mohicans were only kids and evidently this had reached the ears of the Meriden club's officials. They pointed out that this team had always been able to give any and all teams a real go and never failed to please the crowd.

The Cubs step off against the state champions at the West Side lot entertaining the Springwoods of South Norwalk. This team is said to have won every game for the past three years against the best in their class. If this is true, and there is every reason to believe it is, the Cubs are due for a torrid afternoon.

The North Ends will practice this evening at the Community playgrounds and every member is urged to attend. Jack Dwyer will assume his duties as coach aided by Chip Chatterlier who has handled the squad for the past three years. The club managed to get equipped with new jerseys and stockings this season and present a neat appearance on the field.

Every store along Main street in the south end had a radio announcing the reports of the game at the Yankee stadium yesterday afternoon.

TODAY'S CONTEST MOST IMPORTANT

On It Will Depend the Series, Baseball Expert Declares.

By BILL CORUM.

New York, Oct. 5.—It's up to Alexander now. If the old man can't check the Babe and his hand the Mississippi in a bad way though not necessarily beaten in the series.

Nothing definite about the final outcome will be known until the Yanks try their hands against Jesse Joseph Haines today. Haines is the best pitcher on the Cards' staff. Since he perfected that knuckle ball the leather-faced Ohioan is hard to beat.

This afternoon the situation is this: The Yanks have done what was expected of them—won behind Hoyt. They had to. But Hoyt was not the question mark of Huggins' pitching staff. The question in this series has been from the beginning: Can any Yankee pitcher save Hoyt shoot the Red Wings down?

We'll get the answer to that today. Pippas can if he's right, but you can have old Tom Zachary.

There is also a grave question in my mind about Alexander's ability to muffle the Rupert rifles. The Braves hit Pete hard in his last public outing and anybody who has seen as true to form as ball games ever do.

"That's a real game," says Jones, "and one that brings out everything you need in football. It develops speed and endurance, mental and physical. That pace-changing swerving and running is a great aid to backs. You have the use of your arms and bodies to check opponents that helps both linemen and backs."

"That nice part about it is that football and lacrosse do not conflict in time as they come at opposite ends of the year."

West Point, N. Y.—Nothing comparing to lacrosse as a means of training and conditioning men for football, says "Biff" Jones, coach of the Army eleven whose schedule this fall is the hardest in the country.

PURDUE STAR MAY HOLD DOWN BENCH

Backfield Flash Bothered With Bum Leg This Year.

BY BOB MATHERNE

It was a bum leg that gave Ralph "Pest" Welch, Purdue sophomore, a chance to achieve national football fame in 1927 and, strange to say, it is another bum leg although quite a different one that may prevent the same young man from adding further fame this fall.

Just a few days before the Purdue-Harvard game last fall, "Cotton" Wilcox, Purdue captain and star halfback, chipped a bone in his ankle. The Boiler-makers had had hopes of trimming the Crimson to the time of Wilcox's injury, but those hopes sank. Welch, an unknown, was taken to Wilcox's place and that didn't mean much.

But Welch rose to the occasion and it took only his first thrust for a gain of 15 yards through the Harvard defense to convince Purdue supporters that he could take care of the job satisfactorily. And, to make a long story short, he did. He proved the big noise in that 19-0 victory, scoring two touchdowns himself and heaving a pass for 40 yards for the third marker, and overnight became nationally known.

New York, Oct. 5.—Knute Rockne, famous Notre Dame coach, warned the Army several weeks ago that Southern Methodist University from Dallas, Tex., might prove a surprise to them. And Rockne's warning will be in the air when the two teams meet Saturday at West Point.

Both the Army and the Texans came through their opening game this past Saturday in excellent shape, the West Pointers defeating Boston University by a score of 35-0 and the Mustangs defeating Howard Payne by a 21-0 score.

The game with S. M. U. is the first real tough game of a number of unusually hard games to be played by the Army eleven this fall. The Texans are coached by Ray Morrison, one of the greatest quarterbacks ever to play in the south—he attended Vanderbilt—and whose forte is forward passing. Morrison has two great backs in Redman Hume and Sammy Reed, both seniors, for this work this fall.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SYBIL THORNE, Boston society girl, surprises her sister-in-law at a roadside—drinking cocktails and making love with Sybil's own husband! In all fairness to VALERIE (the sister-in-law) it should be explained that she had no idea the man with whom she was actually planning to elope was her sister-in-law's husband.

Valerie did not, as a matter of fact, even know he was married. He had made love ardently, and promised to get her in the movies. Marriage with TAD THORNE had failed, and Valerie, a selfish and frivolous girl, was ready to escape boredom through any avenue.

Sybil, learning that Valerie was preparing to desert Tad, determined to stop it if she could. She had no idea when she married to the roadside where Valerie was spending the evening that she was going to encounter her husband.

Sybil's marriage with RICHARD EUSTIS had been a secret affair. It lasted only two weeks, and only two of Sybil's friends had met her husband. She had never used his name, nor spoken of him to Valerie. At first it was difficult to convince Valerie that her lover was actually her own brother-in-law—Sybil's husband! But his own craving attitude revealed him in his worst light. Sybil takes Valerie back to Tad.

Sybil regards Val with a sort of pitying contempt, and because pity is akin to affection, she grows to like her a little. Finally Valerie begs Sybil to divorce Eustis in order that she may gain undisputed custody of her child. Eustis has never heard of the birth of Sybil's baby, and Valerie is afraid that when he learns of it he will seek to assert his paternity. She predicts legal difficulties, and persuades Sybil to see a lawyer, to whom Sybil tells the strange story of her marriage.

CHAPTER XXXVII

Mr. Peterson beat a gentle tattoo with his spectacles on the bridge of his nose.

"M-m-m," he said. "A most unusual case. And the defendant, living in New Haven, is ignorant of the birth of a child? You have no mutual friends—no acquaintances? The situation is almost incomprehensible.

"You realize, of course, that it will be necessary to apprise your husband of the existence of a child? You wish complete custody. Separate support, perhaps?"

"No—no," Sybil interrupted eagerly. "I don't want any money at all. Only Teddy. I don't even care about my freedom, except for Teddy's sake. I don't want the right to my own name, and the right for my child to be known as Edward Thorne."

"He is called," she told the crusty old lawyer simply, "for my father. I should like to perpetuate his memory through my son. These are Thorne's traditions—Thorne pride. It would be idiotic for my son to carry on for the Eustises. He means nothing to them, nor they to him."

Mr. Peterson smiled.

"Jurisdiction," he informed her, "recognizes no sentimentality. The child's father has a legal right to dispute your fitness as guardian of his minor son. He can, if he chooses, bring various unpleasant allegations. He can contest your suit for divorce, and defend himself publicly against your charges.

"However, judging from the circumstances of this—er—romance, I think we need anticipate no trouble from the young man. You are quite sure, madam, that you have omitted no important detail of your marital life? You have not seen your husband in the last 21 months? Not since you left him in Havana?"

Sybil hesitated.

"Yes, I have—once. I didn't think it necessary to tell you. It was for only a few minutes; I—I surprised him. It was in a public place. In New Haven—at a roadside. He was with another woman."

"You talked with him?"

"Yes."

"And what was the nature of that conversation?"

"I—I upbraided him. He was with a girl I knew. They were planning to elope."

"How did you know they were planning to elope?"

"Oh, I KNOW they were."

"And you know the woman? We might subpoena her. Had you witnesses to the affair? And what are this woman's feelings toward you at this time?"

Sybil threw out her hands.

"Oh, Mr. Peterson—you don't understand. I shouldn't have mentioned it. I couldn't possibly drag anyone into this—particularly this—this lady."

"Who is she, madam? And what have been her relations with your husband? Has there been an open liaison?"

Hideous questions! Horrible man! Sybil shuddered.

"Really, Mr. Peterson, I must decline to answer. It seems hardly necessary."

The old man smiled patiently. "My dear young woman, it is MOST necessary," he explained indulgently. "Surely you do not think I am vulgarly curious. I am a man old enough to be your father. You have come to me, presumably, because you trust me, and wish me to help you. You must be absolutely frank with me. If you wish to withhold certain facts, I must decline to accept the case."

Mr. Peterson peered through tortoise-shell glasses at his finger nails, and, for the space of 60 seconds, while he appraised them thoroughly, you could have heard a pin drop. Then Sybil broke the throbbing silence.

"I beg your pardon," she said. "Let me begin at the beginning, and tell you everything. Then you will understand how absolutely impossible it is to bring the charge you have in mind."

Gravely he heard her out. And when she had finished, she concluded hopefully—"And now you see why I want so fearfully to get the divorce on some respectable ground—incompatibility, or something like that."

Mr. Peterson inclined his head. "That would be nice," he conceded with grim humor, "only in Massachusetts we don't do things that way. There are seven grounds for divorce in this state. Most of them ugly. Incompatibility is not one of them. Non-support is what you might call the most respectable. In your case we might fall back on gross and confirmed habits of intoxication, or cruel and abusive treatment."

"On the other hand, your husband might bring a counter charge, alleging desertion. He might even allege cruel and abusive treatment. You left him, you see, sick and alone in Havana."

"But," Mr. Peterson, he was DRUNK."

"He might produce evidence to the contrary. Tropical malaria, he might call it. Affidavits from Cuban doctors, hotel clerks—it could be arranged."

"But I have witnesses—the Moores."

"M-m—yes. Well, we'll see. I shall prepare the papers for service immediately. The case will be listed with others on the divorce docket. We must wait until it is called. The law moves slowly. I doubt if we can get heard before the September session."

Sybil clasped her hands nervously, remembering Tad's dire predictions.

"There won't be any publicity, Mr. Peterson?" she inquired.

"That," he told her gravely, "is something we never can tell. If we can arrange for an uncontested action, probably not. If Mr. Eustis contests, I should say there would be a good deal of it. Headlines you know, and pictures. And all sorts of innuendoes and interferences."

"The American public loves scandal. Divorce produce vicarious joy. However, let us not be apprehensive. I should say there would be a good deal of it. Headlines you know, and pictures. And all sorts of innuendoes and interferences."

get a warrant for assault and battery."

He leered at her evilly. "And what a story that will be for your well-to-do 'Geth' dragged to police court like a common rowdy. I guess that will make 'em laugh—the high and mighty Miss Sybil Thorne up on an assault and battery charge!"

Muttering darkly, he took his derby and departed, like a "villain" on the stage. Then Sybil, apprehensive of the trouble her temper might cause, hurried in town to relate the afternoon's developments to her lawyer.

Mr. Peterson listened gravely, but she saw the twinkle in his wise old eyes.

"Good girl!" he approved judicially when she finished. "It takes an angry woman to handle a musical comedy detective properly. You needn't worry about any warrant. He wouldn't let anybody know you struck him, for all his cheap talk. He will keep that right under his hat—and he'll lie his head off about the mark on his face. But after this, refer all rats to me. I don't want you talking with them at all."

"However, judging from the circumstances of this—er—romance, I think we need anticipate no trouble from the young man. You are quite sure, madam, that you have omitted no important detail of your marital life? You have not seen your husband in the last 21 months? Not since you left him in Havana?"

Sybil hesitated.

"Yes, I have—once. I didn't think it necessary to tell you. It was for only a few minutes; I—I surprised him. It was in a public place. In New Haven—at a roadside. He was with another woman."

"You talked with him?"

"Yes."

"And what was the nature of that conversation?"

"I—I upbraided him. He was with a girl I knew. They were planning to elope."

"How did you know they were planning to elope?"

"Oh, I KNOW they were."

"And you know the woman? We might subpoena her. Had you witnesses to the affair? And what are this woman's feelings toward you at this time?"

Sybil threw out her hands.

"Oh, Mr. Peterson—you don't understand. I shouldn't have mentioned it. I couldn't possibly drag anyone into this—particularly this—this lady."

"Who is she, madam? And what have been her relations with your husband? Has there been an open liaison?"

Hideous questions! Horrible man! Sybil shuddered.

"Really, Mr. Peterson, I must decline to answer. It seems hardly necessary."

The old man smiled patiently. "My dear young woman, it is MOST necessary," he explained indulgently. "Surely you do not think I am vulgarly curious. I am a man old enough to be your father. You have come to me, presumably, because you trust me, and wish me to help you. You must be absolutely frank with me. If you wish to withhold certain facts, I must decline to accept the case."

Mr. Peterson peered through tortoise-shell glasses at his finger nails, and, for the space of 60 seconds, while he appraised them thoroughly, you could have heard

Typical American Girl Combines All Styles of Beauty

Marion Benda... Circe, Salome, Psyche, Carmencita.

By Alfred Cheney Johnston
 The mystery of the East; the romance of the South; the frankness of the North and the modernism of the West! These traits are so closely interwoven in this type that she must always remain a beautiful enigma. She is Circe, Salome, Psyche and Carmencita, all rolled into one. While her dark eyes are melting in their softness, they can become keen, soul-searching and very wise when she chooses to have them so. Perhaps she is the most typically American of all.

Our own American Whistler has painted ladies that have puzzled us as does the type Marion Benda represents. Miss Benda has graced many of the Ziegfeld revues and even among the high standard of pulchritude has stood out as a rarely beautiful young woman. She is a trifle above the average height, with a superb figure. Her face is heart-shaped, with eyes set far apart—large, dark and luminous. Her nose and mouth are perfectly etched. There is strength and character in this face, yet all of the features are so softly feminine. Her hair is lustrous and very dark and her skin a warm ivory.

Girls who inherit this provocative type of beauty must nurture

CARE OF CANARIES

Canaries should be given a little window garden of green. A bit of bird or mustard seed, scattered in a pot or can will sprout in a few days and grow into little plants. Daily, if possible, remove the bottom of the cage and set it over the pot of green. Other things birds love are nasturtium blossoms, cut the bone and cayenne pepper pods.

Going up in any kind of a balloon is another thing we are not going to take any part in.

HOOPER RETTES

By Anna Steese Richardson

Among the papers filed in the court house at Tipton, Cedar County, Iowa, are those which deal with the appointment of Laurie Tatum as guardian of Herbert Hoover when the latter's parents died.

Tatum came of good old Quaker stock, and the meticulous care with which he executed his trust shines through these papers. One notation made in his cramped but legible hand sets forth that the sum of sixty dollars had been drawn from the estate to pay for a business course in an Oregon school. Tatum added to the financial record:

"I think Herbert deserves this because he is industrious and conscientious boy."

The wisdom of this step was shown when Herbert Hoover secured his first position with a firm of engineers. By that time he had graduated from Stamford Univer-

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL
 by World Famed Authority

CALCIUM IS IMPORTANT ITEM IN THE DIET

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
 Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

One of the substances most needed in the human dietary is calcium, the substance responsible for the building of bones and teeth, as well as for many other functions. It is concerned in the general heading of mineral elements, in the actions of the muscles and of the heart, in the use of iron, and in the stability of the nervous system.

Unless the body has sufficient calcium bones do not develop properly and there may be contractions of the large bones and stunted growth.

Daily Requirement
 The average adult person requires about 0.45 grams of calcium per day, which is only about 1.50 of an ounce. Women who are having children require more calcium since the child draws on the mother's supply for the growth of its skeleton.

In the same way nursing mothers require additional calcium so that the child may secure a sufficient amount in the milk. The child of from three to 13 years requires about twice as much calcium as the average adult; namely about 1.30 of an ounce each day.

Calcium is to be had in the diet in many forms, but is supplied particularly by milk. It occurs, of course, in vegetable foods, but the milk calcium appears to be in what is called an easily utilizable form; namely it is more easily handled by the digestive processes of the body.

It has been found, of course, that milk products also contain considerable quantities of calcium. This substance being retained when the milk is changed into cheese, with the additional factor that cheese is a more concentrated form of food.

Cheese Has It
 One and six-tenths cubic inches of American cheese contains 20 times as much calcium as four ounces of lean beef and 12 times as much calcium as one egg yolk. There are two types of cheese, sour milk cheeses, such as cottage cheese and the rennet cheeses, which include most of the others. Swiss cheese has 14 times as much calcium as has cottage cheese, and weight for weight, therefore, all cheese must not be considered as equally valuable in supplying calcium.

Cheese is a concentrated food and is best used when combined with bread, crackers and other substances which promote thorough chewing before swallowing.

Place over fire and bring to boiling point. Keep tightly covered, and just below boiling point, for one hour. When ready to serve add a little boiling water if liquid has diminished from original quart, and a half pint to a pint of hot cream. Do not thicken with flour or cornstarch. Add a little salt at the table if desired.
 Stuffed Celery—Mix with peanut butter the desired quantities of minced ripe olives, chopped parsley, and enough of the pulp drained from canned tomatoes to make a smooth paste. Work ingredients together with fork and fill the grooves of crisp, well bleached celery stalks of uniform length. Place on ice for a little while before serving.
 Note: Genuine wholewheat bread or muffins may be used in a limited quantity with protids, starches, or stewed fruits by those in good health. This is an exception to the general rules regarding the combination of these foods.

WRONG BABY
 The wrong baby was given out in a Detroit hospital to a father who came to take his child home, and a sensational case known as "the Gratrex baby case" is now on in that city.

Mr. Gratrex is the father who found his child gone when he called for it a few days after his own baby had been given to another father a few days preceding. The hospital story is a case of mistaken identity in fathers, not in babies. In other words they admit that the Gratrex baby was given out to a man who cannot be found and who is believed to be in Europe.

Whether that man, even when found, will give up the child or not is the real point. He has had time to become attached to it. Even a legal proof will make it difficult to surrender a known child for an unknown one.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Mary Pickford has decided to grow up, we are told, because there is no picture of the type of little girl she has always been. Little girls with long golden curls, wistful, naughty little girls, whose idea of being bad is to steal jam out of the pantry cupboard, are such relics of the past that they have no appeal either for today's little bobbed-haired girls or their parents.

That sounds interesting and plausible, too, all except the lack of appeal to parents. Today's mothers were reared in an age when Mary's little girl type was the accepted girl child, and they must be interested in a revival of their own age, even if it is an age with no meaning to their own girl children.

THAT TUNNEY
 You'd just know that Gene Tunney would continue his Cinderella story with a wedding on the blue Mediterranean in a time-dimmed little chapel, wouldn't you—a well known novelist for best man and with a bride whose trousseau is valued at $40,000? That boy should begin going for a la Elsie Lincoln Benedict or some other practical psychology shark and rope 'em in with his lecture on "How I Done It!"

NEW ENGLAND AD MEN TO MEET IN HARTFORD

Will Hear Joe Mitchell Chapple at Hotel Bond.

The Advertising Clubs of the New England District will hold their Annual Convention at the Hotel Bond, Hartford, Conn., on Sunday and Monday, October 7 and 8. This will be a brief business-like conference built around a practical program of pertinent subjects.

The Sunday sessions will be inaugurated at 3:00 o'clock, with a reception and tea to the delegates and their wives. The New England dinner is scheduled for 7:00 o'clock. This will be held in the Ball Room of the Hotel Bond and a large attendance is anticipated, for the two principal speakers are both prominent in business circles. Joe Mitchell Chapple, editor of the National Monthly, will deliver an inspirational address. Mr. Chapple is a nationally known figure, being an author, editor, lecturer and traveler of renown. He gave one of the principal speeches at the Denver convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs in 1927 and is in constant demand for speaking engagements before various organizations. Mr. Chapple will be introduced by Maurice S. Sherman, editor of the Hartford Courant. Mr. Sherman knows Mr. Chapple personally and he has graciously consented to present him to his Hartford audience.

President Charles C. Younggreen of the International Advertising Association will be the other speaker of the evening. He brings a message of vital importance to every advertising club member. Of dynamic personality, Mr. Younggreen is actively engaged in many business and municipal enterprises in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He was unanimously elected president of the International Advertising Association at the convention in Detroit last July and brings many splendid qualifications to this specialized work.

Other officials of the International Advertising Association who will be present at this convention and speak at the New England dinner are Earle W. Pearson, general manager and John H. Cline, chairman of the First District.

Any questions about registration, hotel rates, etc., may be addressed to Frank H. Anderson, chairman of the Registration Committee, Advertising Convention, Hotel Bond, Hartford, Conn.

NO OPPOSITION SHOWN TO WASHINGTON TRIP

H. S. Seniors Vote for Journey Next Spring With Likelihood of Extra Day.

Opposition to the annual Washington trips of the Senior classes of the Manchester High school, reported as possible after the trip a year ago, did not develop when the Senior class met yesterday afternoon and voted to follow the annual custom next spring, the date for the start of the trip being set for the last Saturday in April, during the spring vacation time.

Not only will there be the usual Washington trip, which in the past has included side-trips to Alexandria, the National Cemetery at Arlington and the home of George Washington at Mount Vernon, but there is also the possibility that it will be further added to and the caverns of Virginia visited.

During the trip it is planned to make headquarters in Washington at the Congress Hall Hotel, with stop-overs in New York, either going or coming, and one at Philadelphia, where Independence Hall will be visited.

The meeting yesterday afternoon took the place of the regular High school assembly, as is usual on the first Thursday of the school year. It was addressed by Principal Quimby, who explained that class will be divided into four divisions with eight grade leaders on the trip and said it was likely that one day would be added to the trip if the class would be away from home.

The annual trip to Washington with the side trips, has the approval of the High school faculty.

FALL OPENING SATURDAY AT FRADIN'S STORE HERE

The display windows have been very carefully dressed showing a splendid variety of fashions latest in coats, dresses, millinery and accessories. The announcement of fashion displays, both in the fall and spring of the year is an event of importance and much interest to women of Manchester and vicinity who depend on this store as a style center.

Mr. Fradin has spent considerable time this fall in New York consulting with manufacturers and

ROMA COMES BACK
Roosevelt Field, L. I., Oct. 5.—The Bellanca seagull-plane Roma, with its co-pilots, Cesare Sabelli and Roger Q. Williams and a passenger, Frank Stashak, of the Pratt & Whitney Corp., Hartford, Conn., has returned to Roosevelt Field from Old Orchard Beach, Me., where the airmen had gone to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight to Rome.

The plane was returned here, Sabelli said, to undergo repairs.

GUNNERS DIVIDED ON PARTRIDGE IMMUNITY

Most of Them Won't Shoot Grouse, However; Should Be Many Pheasants.

No action is likely to be taken by Manchester gunners' associations and clubs in connection with the plea of the State Board of Fisheries and Game for a voluntary closed season this year on ruffed grouse, commonly called partridge. The State Board, having legal power to declare a closed season to refrain from killing these birds so that the partridge may have a chance to recover from their decimation by disease.

Manchester gunners are of two opinions concerning this proposal. Most of them agree that the grouse should somehow be protected until the effects of the epidemic have disappeared, but while a considerable number declares their intention of letting the bird alone this fall there are others who cannot bring themselves to withhold a shot at a grouse only, as they put it, to have some other fellow kill the same bird an hour later.

As a result of this divided sentiment, it is probable that the game clubs will not undertake to bind their members not to shoot grouse this season, though the majority of the members, it is said, will pass up partridge shooting altogether for this year.

Meantime there promise to be many pheasants in the woods in this vicinity, the cocks being fair target for anybody's gun. Not only have the usual number been liberated by intent, but there are presumably 450 pheasants of both sexes somewhere hereabouts which escaped from breeder's pens. In addition to the 300 young birds which flew over the wire at the coops of August Senkbell on South Main street, some time ago, it has just developed that the Manchester Rod and Gun club has lost 150 pheasants that took French leave from their pens at the club's place in Hop River.

These, in addition to the now "native" birds should make up quite a pheasant population.

General Chang, defeated in battle, returned to find only eight of his 28 wives at home. But, at that, he probably found it hard enough to explain where he'd been.

NO INJURIES FOLLOW TWO AUTO CRASHES

An automobile owned by Herman Behrend of 42 High street was badly damaged this morning when it skidded on the wet pavement on Middle Turnpike near the Hookanum river bridge, the rear end skidding around and striking a tree. Nobody was injured but the car was so badly damaged that it had to be towed in.

Last night at 5:15 two automobiles came together at the junction of Main and Oak streets. A Ford touring car was being driven north on Main street when another car came south on Main street. A trolley car was coming from the east waiting and passing to the right of the intersection of the street. The car from the north cut in back of the trolley car and struck the rear fender and wheel of the Ford. The cars were not traveling fast and the damage was slight. The owners of the cars talked it over and then drove along without calling the police.

RICHARD DIX AT STATE SUNDAY, MONDAY

Is Starred in "Warming Up," A Story of the Big Leagues.

If you are, in any sense, a baseball fan, don't miss Richard Dix in "Warming Up," his latest Paramount starring effort, which opens at the State Theater on Sunday evening for a special two day showing.

And if you like entertainment in the form of romance, the same tip still holds good. Dix comes to the State theater in a screen story which, from all appearances, will be ranked along-side of "The Quarterback" one of the best. In "Warming Up" he is the same athletic, lovable Dix but this time his toe is in the pitcher's box.

The story concerns a young rookie whose troubles are not confined to the diamond and particularly to a girl which seems to have settled on his trail for good. There is also a delicate and charming little love theme which runs through the production.

Jean Arthur, playing opposite Mr. Dix for the first time, has a chance to prove why the star cannot be blamed for loving her. She is quite pretty and capable. Many colorful figures of the diamond are seen in support of Richard Dix including Mike Dohlin, famous Giant of other days, Mike Ready, the oldest living professional ball player, Chet Thomas, Wally Hood and many others. Frey Newmeyer directed the picture.

Latest up-to-the minute news happenings will be furnished through the current issue of MGM

News Events, and a dandy comedy will also be shown. Organist Fred Werner has arranged a splendid musical setting to fit the program.

Built in the shape of a ball, about 80 feet in diameter, and standing on a base 16 feet square, a house constructed for this year's Dresden fair is a German architect's suggested solution for the transport problem. He claims that his design leaves much more room in the streets around it.

SENSE and NONSENSE

OCTOBER. October is a lady With a painted face; She's fond of gaudy ruffles And vari-colored lace...

Health Notes. (Our own Doc answers all questions here.) Mrs. Milley Trilby writes: "I lack the energy I used to have. I weigh 227 pounds, I like to eat candy, fried potatoes, bread puddings, ice cream and boiled bacon..."

The Young Lady Across the Street. O sing of the sunset, and sing of the dawn. Or sing of a wild bird's flight; Yes, sing your new love or ring of love gone. But sing with your window closed tight.

Drat you! You wouldn't remove your hat in an elevator, either, if you were nude on top.

To be sure, the Bible adjures one to love one's neighbors, but it doesn't suggest that a man should pick out the prettiest ones.

Cluck: "So Smith's wife made him fire his redheaded stenographer?" Clack: "Yes, and he sent his letters out now with 'Dictated, but not Red' at the bottom of the."

Candidates should read the second verse of the 27th chapter of Proverbs.

"What's all the racket about in the barn?" queried the neighbor. "Ma's trying to set a hen," replied the small boy hanging on the gate "you know pa's county agent, he's trying to tell her how."

"There, Harry, I have made you some of the oyster patties your mother said you were fond of." "Thanks, dear, but she never cooked them in their shells." "That's not the shells, silly; that's the crust."

LETTER GOLF

WATCH YOUR STROKES!

Be careful that your strokes don't cause any damage on today's hole, for the idea is to SHAVE A BEARD. Par is six and one solution is on another page:

Grid for letter golf puzzle with letters S, H, A, V, E and B, E, A, R, D.

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW TO HEN, in three strokes, CQW, HOW HEW, HEN. 2-You can change only one letter at a time. 3-You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count. 4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

"Not at all. I just said he followed the medical profession."

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"Come here, you crow," yelled Coppy loud. "Grab hold of him," snatched all the crowd. The crow landed right on Coppy's head. The loaf of bread held tight. Then Cloway dashed. "Oh, me, oh, my, I hope Coppy doesn't start to fly. How easily he'd fool us if he'd fly right out of sight."

enough of it. I'm sorry that I stole the bread. I knew that it was wrong. Oh, please don't hurt me. I'll be good, and always do just as I should." By this time Coppy grabbed him, as the others came along. "What shall we do with Mister Crow?" said one, "that's what I'd like to know. Let's build a little jail for him of branches, twigs and such. That punishment will not appeal, but it will teach him not to steal. 'Twill serve him right, but not be cruel, 'cause it won't hurt him much." The rest were for this little plan, so off for twigs and such they ran. The jail was shortly made and Mister Crow was put inside. Then Scouty lectured Mister Crow. Said he, "Now, after this you'll know that you should never, never, steal." The crow broke down and cried.
