

ELECT HEEBNER GEN'L MANAGER OF ELECTRIC CO.

Local Man Continues as Head of Business Here Under New Ownership; New Officers Named.

A change in the officers and directors of the Manchester Electric Company was effected yesterday whereby the absorption of the local concern by the Hartford Electric Light Company was perfected. Samuel Ferguson, president of the Hartford Electric Light Company and the Connecticut Power Company was elected president of the Manchester Electric Company; A. D.

Colvin, general manager of the Hartford Electric Light Company, was elected vice-president of the local concern; John E. Lynch, secretary-treasurer of the Hartford Electric Light Company and Connecticut Power Company was named secretary-treasurer of the Manchester Electric Company and Lewis N. Heebner, who has been general manager of the Manchester Electric Company under the previous owners, was elected general manager under the new regime.

The directors of the Manchester Electric Company, elected yesterday, are Samuel Ferguson, V. E. Bird, who is vice-president and general manager of the Connecticut Power Company, and Frank Cheney, Jr., who is president of the board of directors of Cheney Brothers.

Manchester is, perhaps, more vitally interested in the re-appointment of Lewis N. Heebner as general manager than in any other action taken at yesterday's meeting. The change in ownership will scarcely be noticeable to the Manchester customers of the new concern. Mr. Heebner intends to continue to give the same good service which has characterized his administration under the old Manchester Electric Company. The billing department, located in Cheney Brothers main office, is being moved to quarters on the second floor of the present Dewey-Richman block.

Maintenance Crew

Previously the Cheney Brothers maintenance crew did all of the service work for the Manchester Electric Company. This maintenance work now must be taken care of by the concern itself, and comes under Mr. Heebner as general manager. The Hartford Electric Light Company has signified that it will continue to employ the present force engaged in service work in the Manchester division.

Lewis N. Heebner began working for Cheney Brothers 33 years ago this coming December. He supervised the transformation of all mill equipment from steam to electric power, and continued as superintendent of the electrical department of Cheney Brothers until last November when he was transferred to the Manchester Electric Company as general manager.

Fire Alarm Expert

Mr. Heebner, formerly called Captain Heebner because of his long service as Captain of Hose and Ladder Company No. 1 of the South Manchester Fire department, has also been superintendent of the fire alarm system of the South Manchester department. This system, an extensive one and perfectly constructed, was installed in Manchester through Mr. Heebner's ingenuity and ability when only the larger cities could afford to have one. So far-sighted was Mr. Heebner that he left a space on the alarm call board for an extension into the north end if the demand warranted it. The north end did not take advantage of it, however, and this space has now been utilized for further expansion in the south end.

When Mr. Heebner came to Manchester there was no electricity in any of the houses here. A little motor and generator in the Old Mill engine room was the only source of electric power in the town. Mather electric motors constructed in the plant now occupied by the Orford

HOOVER WORKS ON HIS NEXT MAJOR SPEECH

Trip of Zeppelin Causes Him to Speak Today on the Future of Aviation in United States.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Herbert Hoover looks upon the trans-Atlantic flight of the huge German dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, as a fresh advance in aerial invention which will have a profound effect on the business and social life of the world, it was learned today.

The Republican nominee believes aviation, by shortening time and distance, promotes commerce while the development of trans-Atlantic aeronautics will bring the peoples of the world closer together and increase world trade. He further believes the development of aviation has brought new problems to the governments of the world and that the feat of the German Zeppelin provides a new reason for the necessity of the American government lending its aid to the development of commercial aviation in the United States.

Speaking of American aviation, he recently said: "It brings out the courage of men, stimulates them with the spirit of adventure and it annihilates time and distance. It brings a lot of new problems to government and the necessity for assistance from the government, that it may be developed, and promoted to its real great use."

New York Address

The Republican nominee meanwhile continued to work upon his New York address, to be delivered next Monday night at Madison Square Garden. He will experience a strenuous day on his visit to New York City as Republican leaders of the Empire State have arranged a heavy program of conferences for him.

The nominee will arrive there at 8 a. m., going immediately to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, which will be his headquarters during his stay. After a press conference at ten

EPISCOPALS URGE UNION OF CHURCHES

Bishop Brent Hopes to Unite With Methodists and Pres- byterians in the Future.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Delegates to the triennial Episcopal convention today were discussing the possibility of an organic union of the Episcopal, Methodist and Presbyterian church of America.

The discussion centered around a resolution introduced into the House of Bishops by Bishop Charles H. Brent of New York, and adopted by an overwhelming majority.

The resolution would provide for a committee of three bishops, three Presbyterians and three laymen of the Episcopal church. The commission would invite the two other churches to form a similar commission, the three to meet and discuss matters of "Christian morality."

Considerable bickering attended the writing of the latter phrase into the resolution. In Bishop Brent's original resolution "moral theology" was used. This was characterized both as "vague" and "not covering enough ground." Next "Christian righteousness" was suggested but this also drew objections.

No Arguments.

Brent made it clear that the commissions were not to discuss controversial subjects at first. "We will not be looking for differences, but unities," he announced.

In comparing the churches during his plea for closer relations, Brent declared that they were much alike except in the communion and in ordination of clergymen.

Must Crawl First.

When it was strongly suggested that the church confer on controversial subjects as well as abstractions of fundamental theology, Brent replied:

"We must crawl before we learn to fly."
The resolution specified that the Episcopal commission be drawn from "among our younger theologians." This point drew comment from several bishops, all of them elderly men. Brent defended it on the ground that the younger men needed training in the handling of church matters, but was about to withdraw it in order to smooth the way for his resolution when two other bishops endorsed it. There was only one dissenting vote heard. It was apparent in Bishop Brent's speech that a real union of the three churches was his hope.

Sensation Is Sprung In The Watkins Case

Alcorn Says All Those Profit- ing From Sale of Stocks Must Return Profits for Benefit of the Losers.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 17.—Those who profited by purchases of stock from Roger W. Watkins, now sentenced to state prison for operating in fraudulent stocks, will very soon receive the suggestion that they return their profits for the benefit of losing investors in the National Associated Investors, Inc., and other companies which Watkins created and smashed. Plans to regain some of the lost funds were made known here today by counsel for numerous persons who suffered because of Watkins' misdeeds.

Testimony given during the trial of Watkins, his wife and his brothers-in-law showed that among those profiting were Gov. John H. Trumbull, F. A. Pallotti, secretary of state; Robert T. Hurley, commissioner of state police; J. Edwin Brainard, lieutenant-governor; William E. Egan, who later defended Watkins in court; many of Watkins' salesmen, and quite a number of other citizens of Connecticut. A list of all those who made any manner of profit through Watkins rests in the hands of men who are still checking over the doings of the erstwhile broker.

Causes Sensation

The fact that the Watkins case took this new turn even while the man and his immediate family were starting upon prison or jail terms imposed by Judge Allyn L. Brown late yesterday afternoon caused a new sensation here today. Similar circumstances cannot be recalled by veterans of the courts. The peculiarities of the convicted broker are still to be felt, this time by persons who hardly expected such an outcome.

Gets 15 Years.

Watkins today stands ordered to serve fifteen years in Wethersfield in reply to the man's plea of guilty on two counts, the state ordered him to serve from nine years and

MOVING PICTURES BEST IN TEACHING CHILDREN

Tests Show That Pupils Learn 33 Per Cent Quicker Than With Books.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Comprehensive tests have proved that school children learn better when taught with the aid of motion pictures, according to a report submitted today by Professors Ben D. Wood of Columbia University and Frank N. Freeman of the University of Chicago.

The experiments were undertaken by the Eastman Kodak Company here in conjunction with a committee of the National Education Association. Examinations were held in a dozen cities in various parts of the country and 107,870 test papers collected. On the basis of results shown in and deduction made from the papers the examining professors submitted a 50,000-word report to be used in further development of motion pictures for classroom use.

The professors found that 5,500 children taught geography and science for ten weeks with the aid of motion pictures had marks 33 per cent better than the same number of children instructed in similar subjects without movies.

SMITH FACES EAST AGAIN ON HIS TOUR

Pleased With Results of Trip to Border States—Head- ed for Chicago Where He Speaks Friday Night.

Sealdia, Mo., Oct. 17.—Governor Al Smith closed his border states tour today firm in the belief that they have all—Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri and Oklahoma—won to his banner. He faced eastward again happy and confident. When he left rural Missouri today for Illinois he was fortified with assurances from state leaders that if there ever had been any doubt about Missouri's eighteen electoral votes there was none now.

Al Smith is a political realist. He was reared in the school of practical politics. Consequently he does not take every report turned in by exuberant and enthusiastic local chairmen at face value. But he sincerely believes he has won the border country. He has been told so by the leaders in every state he has been in on the present tour and, rightly or wrongly, he believes those reports.

Illinois Next

Ahead of the New York governor as he faced eastward today is Illinois and his own Atlantic seaboard where he feels at home. The west, with its unfamiliar territory, and the border country, with its baffling cross currents or religious and prohibition complexes, is behind him. From now on it is eastward he is concerned.

Gov. Smith is going to make a real bid for Illinois and its 29 electoral votes, which only once have ever been cast for a Democratic candidate for the presidency. That was in 1912 when Woodrow Wilson realized upon the Republican suicide of that year.

HICKMAN GIVES OUT FAREWELL MESSAGE

To Die on Friday, the "Fox" Issues Note "to the World" From His Cell.

San Quentin Prison, Calif., Oct. 17.—Doomed to die on the gallows here Friday, unless something unforeseen happens, William Edward Hickman today issued the following "Farewell Message to the World":

"I believe that if the people simply followed the Golden Rule, the world would be free of evil. I don't want any young man to study my crime, for all can see where it has led to."

"My mind was so warped by over-riding death that I became a fiend incarnate, living without consideration of mercy toward mankind. I decided to kill a human being as a supreme experiment, to test my limitations. I've planned to lead the career of a super-criminal, masking my activities under the guise of a Christian minister."

"If I had not been caught when I was, I would have undoubtedly committed even greater atrocities than the murder of Marion Parker."

Has Repented.

The next part of his remarkable statement told of his repentance and of how he was studying the Bible and of other books he was reading. The statement proceeds revealing his attitude toward his impending death:

"I have no fear of death. I feel that through confessing my sins I shall have everlasting life. I wish to deny that I intend giving my body to science. I have no personal aversion to it, but my mother objects."

The statement then went on to discuss the discord in his home. Hickman declared that this might have had something to do with his downfall, but he added, "It was largely my fault."

The statement concluded thus: "A young man who tries to be a character without truth is like the house built on sand. I am paying the penalty now of my ignorance and egotism."

OUR MOON MAY COLLIDE WITH EARTH, LODGE SAYS

British Scientist Declares That This Very Thing Is Taking Place on Mars; His Theory.

London, Oct. 17.—Visualizing the time when the moon may collide with the earth and destroy all life on the planet, Sir Oliver Lodge, the distinguished British scientist-inventor, declared in a lecture before a group of English colleagues that forces are at work upon the moon to make it return to its parent body—the earth.

Similarly, he stated, that in a few thousand years the moon of the planet Mars may crash upon the surface of its parent body—Mars.

But the people of this planet need have no fears, Sir Oliver believed that it will be several billion years before there is danger of a collision with the lunar body.

MANCHESTER MAN GETS GRAF ZEPPELIN LETTER

Another Round of Entertain- ments Planned for Today; To Leave for Philadelphia Tonight and Meet Presi- dent Coolidge on Friday; May Return to Germany Within Next Ten Days.

New York, Oct. 17.—Another round of receptions and entertainments was in store today for the crew and passengers of the Graf Zeppelin, which completed its epochal flight from Germany on Monday.

The noise of the boisterous welcome given the flyers yesterday by New York's citizens had hardly subsided when arrangements were made to hold three receptions for them today. At noon a luncheon is being given in their honor at the Advertising Club, then a reception at the German Club. Here the flyers will meet their own and be congratulated with true German fervor.

In the evening a banquet will be tendered them at the Hotel Astor by the German-American Board of Trade. The speakers will include Mayor Jimmy Walker, Senator Royal S. Copeland and Herman von Loewenski, Germany's consul-general.

Return Trip

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin hopes to start the return trip to Germany in the dirigible within ten days. Most of the passengers who came over on the glassless liner reserved accommodations for the return trip, according to Ernest Brandenburg, under-secretary for aviation in the ministry of transportation in Germany, who crossed on the dirigible.

Repairs to the dirigible's damaged wings are expected to be completed at Lakehurst, N. J., within two or three days. The ship then will be taken west on a trial flight, perhaps as far as Chicago.

"I hope that we can fly to Pittsburgh, Akron, Detroit, perhaps Chicago and other midwest cities," Dr. Eckener said.

Meanwhile the flyers will visit Philadelphia, Lakehurst and Washington. They leave for Philadelphia tonight for a reception by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce tomorrow. On Friday they will have breakfast with President Coolidge at the White House.

New York's welcome to the visitors lasted until the wee small hours this morning. They attended a musical comedy at the Algonquin theater, where the audience greeted them enthusiastically. Then they went to another theater where they saw the films of the Zeppelin's arrival here.

THE RETURN TRIP

New York, Oct. 17.—The Graf Zeppelin may go immediately back to Germany when repairs on her are completed and make a second trip to America later in the year, it became known today.

In this eventually the first trans-Atlantic passenger dirigible will not make any trips inland over America at present, said Hugh Eckener, representative of Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the airship.

Decision as to plans for the next flight of the Zeppelin will be reached within 24 hours, Allen said.

It is believed that the Germans are anxious to get back home to exhibit the Graf Zeppelin to admiring countrymen. Literally thousands of messages of congratulatory have carried added importunities for a speedy return to Germany.

If, however, it is decided to make an inland trip now before the return to Friedrichshafen, Allen said the big dirigible will visit Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Louis, and as many other cities en route as is feasible in keeping with weather and other conditions.

If a flight is made westward over the United States, two courses lie open to the Zeppelin. The most practical would be to follow the air mail route across Pennsylvania.

Officials of the Zeppelin company and Dr. Eckener himself are anxious to exhibit the successful trans-Atlantic lighter-than-air passenger ship to as many persons as possible in the advancement of the cause of the Zeppelin as the ideal mode of travel.

Thus if weather permits Eckener would like to map his course across New York State. He would fly up the Hudson, Allen said, to Albany and then along the route of the Erie canal and over Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo. The big dirigible would then be headed up Lake Erie to Cleveland and Detroit, whence it would continue westward.

Plenty Cops, Plenty Lead; Even So, Skunk Not Dead

If anyone thinks a cat and its nine lives, are something wonderful he should have been around Educational Square at the south end this morning to see Warren L. Keith's new skunk dog with his boots on, much to the disgust of the Manchester Police Department and the satisfaction of many school children.

It took exactly eleven revolver bullets to render Mr. Skunk hors de combat and it was not until Peter Happenny swung an accurate haymaker with an iron rake that the unwelcome visitor passed out for keeps.

The animal was discovered by school children in a deep pit beside Keith's Furniture Store. A crowd of boys collected and pelted the skunk with stones, pieces of wood and whatever.

By and by Skunk battery went into action in reply and several of the assailing forces are running yet.

Then replacement forces in the person of Patrolman Harold V. Heffron, who is "subbing" for Officer Jack McGinn, were drafted. Taking up a wisely strategic position where he could reach over the iron railing at Main and School streets to fire into the pit, Heffron emptied all of the six shells in his revolver.

Some of them, it is reported struck the animal, which, however, continued to hold the fort.

Heffron went back to police headquarters after more ammunition, but Chief Gordon suggested that he not waste any more lead. Meantime Motorcycle Policeman Albert Roberts took two pops at the skunk. These, too failed to put an end to the life of the unwelcome visitor.

Then Roberts gave up the job and Lester McIntosh, a former cop, tried his luck and two more shots went to waste.

Meanwhile a large crowd had gathered, attracted both by smoke and sundry of battle. Warren Keith was at the point of having Company G and the Howitzer Company called out, when along came Probation Officer Edward E. Elliott, Jr., who, incidentally, has quite a reputation as a hunter. Ed looked over into the pit. The skunk, although badly wounded, was moving about altogether to freely. Ed took careful aim and a bullet passed through the animal's ear and put him out of commission.

Brought to the surface by a rake, the audience was startled by the fact that the skunk was still quite alive. It was then that Happenny finished the difficult task with his bludgeon blow.

FIRE WARDEN WARNS AGAINST FARM FIRES

Also Urges Hunters Not to Discard Cigarette Stubs as Woods Are Dry.

Fire Warden Charles Griffith states that the farmers and residents of Manchester living outside the fire district have apparently overlooked the fact that when they build fires to burn up rubbish, fallen leaves or brush on their property, without having first secured a permit from the fire warden, they are breaking the law and under the statutes are liable to arrest and a rather heavy fine.

The fire warden is always willing to grant these permits where proper precautions are taken to prevent the possibility of the fire spreading or getting out of control.

The woods are beginning to dry out and the bedding of leaves is ideal tinder for woods or brush fire. If hunters will bear this fact in mind and not carelessly throw cigarettes about while out in the woods they can eliminate to a large degree the seasonal loss through this type of fires in the vicinity of Manchester, the fire warden says.

Upon discovery of a fire in any section of Manchester outside of the fire district notify the fire warden, is his advice.

SCHOOL DOCTOR EXPENSE IS CUT

Board Votes $1,000 Salary After Bill This Year Runs Up to $1,600.

The town school board yesterday afternoon devoted much of its time to the cost of maintaining a school physician. Dr. LeVerne Holmes had presented a bill of $1,600 for the services that he gave to the seven outlying districts during the past year. This was considered too high by some of the members of the board.

Superintendent of Schools A. F. Howes explained that the doctor visited the schools each day and it there was any case that the school nurse considered needy of attention the doctor would make an examination. If the case was one that warranted the child being sent home he would so order. He also told of the doctor making trips to all the first eight districts once a week and inspecting the sanitary conditions of the schools, as well as making examinations of the pupils that the nurse or the teacher might call to his attention.

Mrs. Jane B. Wilcox was of the opinion that the amount of money that was spent might be too high and while the doctor is appointed by the board of health to do the work the payment is made by the school board. It was the desire of the school board to keep down expenses as far as possible and the recommendation of a salary for school physician that was made at the June meeting was voted by the board, this being $1,000. Mrs. Wilcox questioned the need of so much attention and said that school absenteeism had increased since these examinations were being made.

Edward J. Murphy, chairman of the Board, defended the work done by Dr. Holmes. He said that if Dr. Holmes were to be paid at a rate per hour for the work done the bill would have been much higher.

Many good results were obtained in the sanitary conditions of the schools because of Dr. Holmes' interest in inspections that did not show in the reports. Mr. Murphy mentioned one occasion wherein a teacher at 7:55 had called him at his home and reported that one of the soap containers at the school was broken and there would not be a sufficient supply of soap to take care of the number of children unless the container was replaced. The teacher added that she wished to have it replaced before 9 o'clock "as Dr. Holmes comes" to the school today and unless we have the proper amount of soap for the use of the pupils our school will not get the 100 per cent mark that we want."

The visits that Dr. Holmes made also resulted in better service by the janitors and Mr. Murphy related where a janitor had gone around the school with Dr. Holmes on one of his trips and as the doctor had made no remarks the janitor had said, "It looks pretty good" and had received the reply from the doctor, "It doesn't look good to me" and then started to point out defects which had been overlooked. The janitor, Mr. Murphy said, had taken the hint and the school was kept in a better condition than before, as a result of this remark.

At yesterday's meeting a cut of $150 was made in the amount that was estimated for the cost of schools at the June meeting. The nurses and special teachers in the first seven districts now own their own cars and are paid in part in their wages for the use of these cars. It was decided to leave but $50 in this appropriation to meet emergency cases.

HOLD COLLEGE YOUTH FOR SERIES OF CRASHES

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 17.—George Henry McGown, 19, of Rutherford, N. J., member of the freshman class of Yale college, will appear in City Court this afternoon to explain his hurry in passing through Stamford today. McGown, driving a car hired in New Haven, plunged into two cars on the Post Road at Lockwood avenue where a red traffic light had held them up and started a serious fire. They abandoned his own machine and departed in another, to be chased and caught by police.

Waiting for the traffic light to change to green were cars driven by Edwin Saunders, of Bridgeport, and James Zaketas, of Milford. The Saunders car, hit first, had its gasoline tank stove in and a fire ensued. Saunders scrambled out in the nick of time. Zaketas' car was shot out of danger. McGown's car rebounded and stopped. Someone turned in a fire alarm.

McGown abandoned his car and climbed into a machine bound west. A policeman saw the machine and chased the machine, overtaking it and arrested McGown. No other arrests were made. McGown told police he had received word from New York that his mother was seriously ill and that he wanted to get there in a hurry. Saunders told the police he was bound for Bridgeport where his mother was suffering from a fractured skull received when she slipped in her bath room.

Talking Movies Here To Stay Say Leading Film Executives

This is the third of a series of articles on the new talking movies. Today's story presents the views of film magnates.

By DAN THOMAS
NEA SERVICE WRITER

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 17.—The silent drama will soon be as out of date as an old-style Ford, if Hollywood's leading film executives are to be believed.

Despite the belief of many people that talking movies are merely a novelty and will go into discard within a year or so, practically every leading executive in the celluloid industry has assured me that sound films are here to stay. Some of the "big bosses" disagree as to the success that awaits dialogue and sound in films but all agree that noise of some sort is a permanent fixture as far as the movie industry is concerned.

First Ones Are "Hits"
Perhaps the opinions of these men are based on what they actually think can be accomplished with the addition of spoken words and sound effects to motion pictures. And again these opinions may have been formed merely because of the sensational "hits" made by practically every spoken picture released to date.

I agree with the producers. If the mediocre and even poor talkies which have been made so far are successful, the public should respond readily when the studios start making good sound films.

"Of course talking pictures are here to stay," declares Jack Warner, who has been largely responsible for the present advancement of Vitaphone pictures. "And quite naturally they will be improved. Spoken words and sound effects have opened new fields which we never dreamed of before. Talkies are a novelty now

Just as the radio has helped Herbert Hoover in his presidential campaign because of his excellent "radio voice," the talking movies have added Al Smith because they permit the Democratic candidate to display his remarkable personality to millions, via the news reels. These two samples of talking movie film . . .

but by the time the public has tired of them as a novelty we will have improved them to such an extent that people will go to the theaters because of their entertainment value."

Schenck Opposes, But—

Joseph Schenck, on the other hand, is all against the speaking films. He claims that talking pictures are nothing but a novelty and will last only a short time. Sound effects enhance the pictures, he says, but dialogue is a detriment. However, despite Schenck's personal opinion the United Artists studio, of which he is the head, is making plans to produce films with dialogue.

"I believe that there will be a great future for films with sound effects." That's what Jesse L. Lasky has to say. "Naturally the sound pictures will be crude at first. We have rushed into the production of them too fast to expect any other result. But I look within the next six months. I am not so sure that dialogue will be a success but am strongly in favor of sound effects."

Words Best Music
"I am making my pictures with sound for one reason," Samuel Goldwyn told me. "The average small town theater has only a piano or organ accompaniment to its film. With synchronized sound I can present my pictures with the accompaniment of a 125-piece orchestra. There can be only one result. The film is bound to be more popular."

Irving Thalberg, the youthful producer at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, favors pictures synchronized with sound. But he's not going to rush into the thing blindly. It's up to the public, in his opinion. If the people want sound and dialogue in their pictures, the studios will make them that way. However, Thalberg believes in going easy with the dialogue until he has absolute proof that the public wants it.

Tomorrow: The views of directors regarding talking

... show how the vibrations caused by the speaker's voice are photographed directly on the film, to be translated into sound later by light rays. Photographing the voice on the film is one process; in the other process the voice is recorded on a wax disc, like a phonograph record, and automatically synchronized during projection.

ing films and the problems which confront them in their production.

HOLLYWOOD SEPARATION

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 17.—Rumors were prevalent in the film colony today of the separation of Hoot Gibson, film cowboy, and Mrs. Gibson, former vaudeville actress. Gibson declined to make a statement, although friends of the couple are said to have declared that both of them had admitted that they are separated.

CHINESE TONG WAR SPREADS TO BOSTON

Boston, Oct. 17.—An outbreak of the Chinese Tong war here, which claimed Lee Wey Kin, a laundryman, as its first victim, resulted in the arrest of two Chinese today.

With the spread to this section of the Tong hostilities, which started in Philadelphia and which swept from coast to coast, three Chinese reported they had been marked for death.

In Lynn, Gye Yoe, laundryman, appealed to police for protection. The Chinese arrested today for last night's Chinatown killing were Ung Yen and Harry Sen. SOUNDS TOO GOOD

According to the Literary Digest's poll, fifth tabulation, with more than 2,500,000 votes returned and counted, Herbert Hoover is leading Governor Smith by so wide a margin and in so very many of the states that the election, on the face of these returns, would seem to be all over but the shouting.

The only trouble with the returns from this poll, and from other polls which show corresponding Hoover strength, is that they are too good altogether from the Republican point of view. It seems incredible that, in states which the most skilled political observers in the country tell us are certain to be close, there can actually be any such preponderance of Hoover sentiment as the poll in many cases indicates.

A Hoover lead in 42 out of 48 states begins to sound like a bit of a joke. Take Missouri, for instance. The best analyses of the situation there fail to indicate any likelihood of a landslide in either direction. It is admittedly a state where anything may happen but where nothing is in the least likely to happen in the form of a runaway.

Yet the Digest poll gives Hoover over 48,000 against Smith 27,000 plus. Take the actual Solid South, for another example. If the ratio of the poll were to hold true on election day Hoover would carry six of the ten states of that section, Virginia, Texas, North Carolina, Florida, Alabama and Robinson's own Arkansas; for Smith leads the poll only in Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina.

The Florida Hoover vote is two to one over the Smith vote there, while in Virginia the figures are as 22 is to 14. It is inconceivable that such figures actually represent the intentions of the mass of voters in those states, where the most sanguine Republican leaders do not really anticipate anything better than to cut down the normally overwhelming Democratic majorities.

It is probable that the Digest poll, so far, represents about one-fifteenth of the number of voters who will take part in the November elections. Perhaps that proportion is too small to provide an index to the will of the whole mass. Yet it is difficult to account, on any supposition other than that it does represent the mass trend, for the almost universal preponderance of the Hoover vote in all parts of the country.

On the other hand there is that curious mystery of the vanished Democratic vote, with which we are confronted on every examination of one of these Digest tabulations. Consider the case of Connecticut:

In this state, in 1924, the Coolidge vote was 246,322 against 110,184 for Davis, or just short of two and a fifth to one. This week's digest poll gives Hoover 23,640 against 10,372 for Smith, or in round numbers two and one-eighth to one—substantially the same proportion as that between Coolidge and Davis four years ago. Yet in the Smith vote more Coolidge than Davis voters are represented, the number of the former being 4,464, that of the latter being 4,070.

While of the Hoover vote only about one in 12 of the ballots is cast by a person who voted for Davis. What, then, has become of all the Democrats who voted for Davis? We confess to continued puzzlement by the big straw vote. But we are stubborn enough to decline to believe that six states of the Solid South are going to be carried by Hoover, some of them by two to one pluralities.

It is not good to get any such absolute conviction of victory so far in advance of the day of battle. Over-confidence never did an army or a political party any good yet.

THE WATKINS CASE

The circumstances surrounding the trial, plea of guilty and sen-teering of Roger W. Watkins, financier-crook, with sensational revelations in some cases seriously and in others incidentally touching state officials, lead quite naturally to the action of State Attorney Alcorn of Hartford county in calling the grand jury to sift the case for all possible illegal proceedings in connection with it.

Mr. Alcorn, in view of the peculiar course which the case has taken—the halting of important disclosures by Watkins' plea of guilty—could hardly do less, and still do full justice to his responsibilities, than to make it a grand jury affair.

So far as the transactions of the governor and secretary of state are concerned, they are not likely to be seriously considered as grand jury matter, for it is ridiculous to suppose that the insignificant items with which their names have been connected constituted anything more than the commonest of everyday incidents, which any man of large affairs might encounter at any time. There are other aspects of the affair, however, which on their face are sorely lacking in evidence of innocence.

Mr. Alcorn's determination to disclose the whole history of the Watkins scandal, is highly commendable. If there has been deliberately illegal action on the part of officials of the state of Connecticut or of officers of its courts in connection with the Watkins swindles it ought to come out. It would be the greatest disservice to either the state or the state administration to smother such an inquiry—for in that case there would be a whispering campaign indeed, and it would not down for years.

CITIZEN HEEBNER

Citizen Lewis N. Heebner—we give him this title today in preference to the more familiar "Captain" because it strikes us as today particularly more fitting—has been made general manager of the Hartford Division of the Hartford Electric Light Co. Which, if we may make bold to say so, indicates that the Hartford Electric Light Co. is no fool. Not only is it assured for itself the services of an executive and a technician of unusual ability, but it has established contact with the people of this community—its clients—through one whose citizenship in Manchester is of such outstanding loyalty that he enjoys the complete confidence and good will of every man and woman and most of the children of the whole town.

That is pretty good business for the corporation. And it is certainly gratifying to the folk of Manchester. Likewise it is wise recognition of ability, integrity and high character. The lighting company might perhaps have sent in an executive from the outside who would have conducted the affairs of the division ably and courteously. We'll be hanged if it could have sent us another Citizen Heebner!

LUCKY MRS. STETSON

There is much to be said for Christian Science—some of it is even said by the hard-boiled medical profession, individual members of which sometimes do not hesitate to call in Science healers to treat neurosthenic patients whom medical treatment cannot touch. Whatever else may be said for or against the theories of the cult, and however unattractive a figure its founder, Mary Baker Eddy, may have been to many persons, firm faith in its teachings makes for a serenity of soul which is in itself pretty well worth attaining.

It is impossible not to be impressed by the abiding conviction of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, who died in Rochester last Friday at the ripe age of 87, that she had arrived at that state of "perfect love" which rendered her physically immortal. Long a sufferer from heart disease, her state held for her none of the apprehension under which most invalids in similar case wear out the last of their years. Until the very end she could and did go on planning happily for a future on earth which was to have no end.

Undoubtedly such a frame of mind contributed not only to her mental ease but to the number of her days.

Any belief or religion, or call it what you will, that wholly eliminates the Grim Reaper's part in the thoughts and fears and hopes of man, woman or child, has its points of excellence. All you have to do, under Christian Science, in order to be perfectly happy, is to emulate the faith of Mrs. Stetson.

In passing, however, it is worth noting that the followers of Mrs. Stetson do not deny the stern fact of her death. When Mary Baker Eddy died the Christian Science Monitor, which made it a rule never to recognize the fact of death, got around the necessity of announcing the passing of the C. S. leader in a novel way. It prepared a complete story of the death of Mrs. Eddy, with a long history of her career, and took it over to its neighbor, the Boston Herald. The Herald naturally was glad enough to get so well written and authentic a story as a handout and agreed to print it in its issue next morning. Whereupon the Monitor, which comes out in the afternoon, printed at the very beginning of the same identical story, the statement: "The Boston Herald tomorrow will say:"

Which let the Monitor out of all responsibility for its own story and didn't hurt the news value of it a mite.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Oct. 17.—The presidential candidate who works the hardest and at the same time has the most fun is Norman Thomas, the Socialist.

The beauty of the Thomas candidacy is that, as compared with Smith and Hoover, he has very little to worry about. He sleeps soundly, every night because his defeat is a dead certainty and victory this year is not one of his objects. Thomas is good material for a newspaper story, first, because no one else ever bothers to write about him and, second, because no one will complain. Whenever your poor abused correspondent does a piece about Hoover there are always persons to write and demand why he doesn't write something about Smith and when it's about Smith there's a complaint that Hoover is being neglected.

On the basis of a Washington speech, Thomas would be the most interesting of the candidates if he had a chance of election. Although your correspondent was disappointed at hearing nothing dangerously radical, Thomas has no inhibitions. He can say whatever he likes without any danger of alienating the support of voters of some class or section. There are no doubtful states for him and no reasons to pussyfoot.

Because his speeches never are widely printed or broadcast he could use the same speech over and over again, but as a matter of fact he keeps up with campaign developments and hands both Hoover and Smith up-to-date roasts. Thomas is a better all-around speaker than either Hoover or Smith. He can thrill his audience more than Hoover can and makes it laugh oftener than Smith. With the background of a minister and social welfare worker, he is more highly cultured than either the engineer or the veteran politician and cites authorities and uses words which neither perhaps ever heard of.

On top of that he claims to be the only candidate who discusses all the issues with complete frankness. He even claims to be more honest than Smith on prohibition, insisting that the first practical step in the problem's solution is a national referendum.

He attacks the Republicans for exploiting religious bigotry and the Democrats for exploiting racial bigotry. As between Smith and Hoover, he is quite impartial—he just wants one major party buried so the Socialists can form a nucleus for a new opposition party. Meanwhile, he says, "we just love to elect a president who won't tell us beforehand where he stands on anything or what he will do about anything."

Here are some of his cracks: "We want to catch a bandit, so we go to Nicaragua. We've given up hope of catching one in Chicago." "We've got to have an honest election somewhere, so it might as well be in Nicaragua. Down there we're going to rubber-stamp the voters. What a great stunt that would be for New York, Philadelphia or Chicago!" "None of us cares anything about the Eskimos now, but if oil is ever found up there we'll have a great wave of sentiment for civilizing the Eskimo."

As a humorous candidate, Will Rogers is his only rival. Smith is the "happy warrior," but Thomas says that as a believer in the principles of the Declaration of Independence he will be a "happy mourner" at the funeral of either party.

The Thomas subject here was world peace, which he said apparently wasn't deemed worth a complete speech by the other candidates. He couldn't see why the large nations all had to double the size of their navies to protect the Kellogg anti-war treaty. He preached disarmament.

He complained that whereas he was the only candidate who discussed the more important issues, including peace and civil liberties, in detail, the newspapers generally confined their accounts to the statement that he had attacked Hoover and Smith.

Well, here you are, Mr. Thomas!

HOT OR COLD APPLICATIONS

One of the most valuable uses of water is to use it in the form of hot or cold applications to relieve pain or banish congestion. If you will remember that there are just two principal effects of heat or cold applied to the body, you will find it very easy to select the right treatment. Heat applied to the tissues always relaxes muscular fibres. On the other hand, cold will have the opposite effect of contracting the muscles and producing temporary anemia. It is easy to see that inasmuch as stiffness and pain are usually accompanied by a contraction of muscular tissues, in most cases relief can generally be accomplished by the application of heat to the congested tissues.

A persistent pain in the abdominal region may be caused by any number of specific irritations which have stimulated the muscles so that section to contract in an effort of the body to avoid further pain by increased tension. The sensitive nerves are really quite cowardly and this contraction is seldom productive of the best results in removing the real irritator which has stimulated the forceful contraction. The blood collects in the tense tissues and the most sensible thing for you to do is to scatter this collection by the application of hot cloths or hot running water, and thus free the blood circulation which can then readjust metabolism and bring about a quicker cure.

If a small part, such as a finger or toe is struck by a blow, it is often wise to apply cold in the form of an ice pack for a few minutes. This will stop bleeding of the capillary circulation, but this should always be followed by the administration of warm water which is gradually brought up to as high a temperature as the body can stand without burning.

After stopping the flow of blood in the capillaries, it is the best plan to increase the circulation and carry away as much as possible of the dead congested blood which will otherwise stagnate and decompose. If the injury has been of a nature to break in the skin, and the blood is flowing from the wound, it is the best plan to only apply heat. For instance, when a nail is run into the foot, place the foot once in a pan or tub of hot water and continue this treatment for at least a half hour or longer. This will remove the possibility of blood poisoning developing, and I have seen even well developed cases of septicemia from wounds disappear.

IN AN HOUR'S TREATMENT OF THIS KIND

Remember that it is usually best to relax the muscles and encourage freer circulation of the blood if you wish to get the safest good results in all painful conditions caused by sudden injury. If you wish to come well and remain so, you will find that the various uses of water furnish one of the most effective—most easily available, and at the same time, one of the cheapest treatments that you can employ.

Questions and Answers and rapidity. What stood on a given corner last year will not be found there a few years hence.

For some time there has been an unwritten law that 20 years was the average life span of a building or residence. At the present moment, a building at 39th street and Seventh avenue—built to withstand a century of wear and tear—is in the hands of the wreckers. Yet it is but eight years old. And it cost $2,000,000 to put up. It's coming down because it's inefficient.

In the eight years which it stood the nature of the district has changed. The garment center of America has moved in all directions—and it stands but a mere 12 stories high. It is decreed that it must have five or six more stories in order to acquire itself as a business success of tomorrow.

I am told that it takes just 90 days to transform a healthy-looking twelve stories worth of steel and concrete into another hole in the ground that yawns for a new structure. This time takes care of the removal of the piles of debris that collect.

I am also told that the dissection of one of the up-to-date edifices is a tremendous jig-saw puzzle. The first to take place under the eyes of the modern magicians is the Pictorial Review buildings.

The scene presented bids comparison with a hospital clinic. Experts in the construction business from many parts of the land sit upon the sidewalks and watch the mechanical saw-bones perform their operations. Time was when older structures would crumble away with little effort on the part of the wreckers. But new mechanical devices have had to be brought up to deal with the problems provided by intricate masses of steel.

Fantastic as a futuristic drawing seems some of the equipment as it is drawn up to dizzy heights—the torches, drills and electric hoists, which must tear down and melt away, as well as build.

In spite of the seeming hazard of such work, extraordinarily few serious accidents mark the rearing and tearing down of Manhattan's giants.

GILBERT SWAN.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 17.—Whether it be a chain store or an office building, Manhattan regulates the most of its business dealings on the theory of the "quick turn-over."

An orange drink concern will set up business on a dozen expensive corners and take its profits in pennies. But it gets the "turn-over." One of the most elaborate chain restaurant concerns figures on a six-person turn-over per table at lunch hour.

Even the life of a steel-framed architectural giant is limited. Buildings which cost millions may stand on their own steel legs no more than half a dozen years. Then with a "turn-over" satisfactory to the builders, they tear it down and put up an even vaster edifice because a potential new "turn-over" demands it.

New York changes its physical complexion with amazing rapidity. What stood on a given corner last year will not be found there a few years hence.

For some time there has been an unwritten law that 20 years was the average life span of a building or residence. MIAMI TO NEW YORK

IN 12 HOURS SEEN IN AIR PASSENGER LINE

Miami, Fla.—The possibility of a Miami-New York passenger air line loomed here when officials of the National Air Transportation, Inc., started an investigation of facilities here and points between New York. The national company operates the New York-Chicago and the Chicago Dallas lines now.

Howard E. Coffin, president of the air line, personally made the request that aviation data be supplied by Walter Kohlhepp of the Carl G. Fisher Development Company.

Should the plan materialize Miami would be removed only 12 hours from New York. One stop would be made at a landing field and passenger station near Brunswick, Ga. Mr. Coffin, it is reported is interested in the development of an island near there on which the airport and passenger station would be built.

Although white rats usually have pink eyes, specimens of a new variety, with black eyes, have been found in central France.

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physical and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought

J. C. Caldwell, M.D. AT AGE 83

by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or use this free coupon:

"TENTH AVENUE" HAS BRILLIANT CAST

Phyllis Haver, Victor Varconi and Joseph Schildkraut in Picture at State Tomorrow.

One of the greatest casts ever assembled together for one picture is one of the many interesting highlights to "Tenth Avenue," Pathe's new special production which heads a double feature program at the State for tomorrow and Friday.

Phyllis Haver, beautiful blonde star, who made such a prominent name for herself in "Chicago," has the stellar role, and she is ably supported by such famous screen personalities as Victor Varconi, Joseph Schildkraut, Louis Nathaux, Robert Edson and Ethel Wales.

The story of "Tenth Avenue" deals with the fortunes of Lyla Mason, a department store girl in New York whose dissipated mother keeps a rooming house in Hell's Kitchen. Among the roomers are Bob Peters, a reformed card sharp, and Joe Ross, an erstwhile gangster constantly under the eyes of the police. Both love Lyla and when her mother is threatened with eviction for non-payment of rent, there arises between the two a series of exciting events that are dramatic as well as thrilling.

Phyllis Haver as Lyla is more beautiful and convincing than ever before. Victor Varconi is seen as Bob Peters, the card sharp, and Joseph Schildkraut is responsible for the part of Joe Ross. All contribute splendid performances.

The associate feature for tomorrow and Friday brings Laura La Plante, another blonde star, in "Finders Keepers," her latest Universal starring vehicle. Plenty of laughs and thrills are prominent in this story of a little French girl who suddenly found herself engaged to a whole regiment of soldiers. When it comes to comedy beautiful Laura just seems to sparkle like water in a moonlight night. In this picture she is seen to the best of her ability, crying one minute and laughing the next.

The current issue of MGM News will be shown in conjunction with the two features.

For the last times tonight, at 8:00 and 9:00, the State is presenting "Esther Ralston in 'The Saw-Just Paradise'" and "Beau Broadway."

DIRIGIBLE SAFE

Scott Field, Ill., Oct. 17.—The RS-1, largest semi-rigid dirigible in the world, was back in its hangar today after a battle with strong winds yesterday and last night.

The craft, in command of Captain William Kepner, with a crew of sixteen men, left here a week ago for the Legion convention in San Antonio. The RS-1 was in the air approximately 35 hours on the return trip and had been reported in trouble over Memphis yesterday.

MISS MADISON DAHL

Know Her?

You ought to know this lovely New York City girl because her blonde beauty has been displayed on so many magazine covers. She's Marion Dahl, 35 Clark St., Brooklyn. Artists say she's a "typical." They fairly rave over her delicate flesh tints and the golden glory of her hair!

Miss Dahl says: "Everyone I know, tells me how wonderful my hair looks, nowadays. I don't feel like it's a personal compliment, however; I take it more as a compliment to the method I'm using to care for it. It's the rage among girls here in New York. All you do is put a little Danderine on your brush each time you use it. My hair was wiry and hard to keep in place, but Danderine makes it soft and easy to dress and holds it like I arrange it, for hours! My scalp fairly tingles with vigor after I use it, and it keeps my head so clean I don't need to shampoo half so often. It brings out the color of my hair marvelously, making it fairly glisten!"

Every application of Danderine tones and refreshes your scalp. It removes the oily film from each strand and makes dull, stringy hair gleamy, soft and easily manageable. It dissolves dandruff and keeps it out of your hair. It isn't sticky or oily, it doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles.—Adv.

VENDRILLO SAYS CUBS VOTED TWICE TO PLAY ONLY 1 GAME

Champs Opposed to Playing More Than One Game Although Both Coaches Are Said to Favor Such a Move.

Manager Peter Vendrillo called The Herald sports department this morning to announce that the town football championship will be settled by one game and not by a series when the Cubs and Cloverleaves meet. He said that he had taken two votes on the matter and the Cubs had each time overwhelmingly favored one game, unless, of course, that ends in a tie.

"We have three open for the game, November 25, Thanksgiving Day and the Sunday following and the Cloverleaves can take their pick," said the Cubs' pilot. The game will undoubtedly be played at Mt. Nebo, the new home of the Cubs since they vacated the Links and West Side. The Cubs dedicate their latest gridiron Sunday with the Bristol Maple Ends.

Coach Jerry Fay of the Cloverleaves and Coach Tom Kelley of the Cubs have had an unofficial meeting and discussed details for the championship. Fay said last night that Kelley also favored more than one game. If the coaches have their way, little trouble is expected in arranging the details. They have had too much experience in sports to become involved in any arguments. In view of the fact that neither is the sole boss of his team, it remains to be seen just what will happen when the officials of the two clubs get together to make arrangements.

The huddle has been doomed on the gridiron, says a sports writer. Perhaps, but they'll still use it in the stands.

Wilbert Robinson says Babe Ruth is greater than any of the old Orioles. O'Goody says he'd have to see the Babe stand up to the bar with some of those kids before he'd agree to that.

A FEW OF TEX RICKARD'S 600 MILLIONAIRES ARE PROMOTING DOG RACING "TO IMPROVE THE BREED." BREED IS A STRANGE NEW WORD MEANING "BANK BALANCE."

Maybe some day the dogs will learn that it is only a mechanical rabbit they're chasing and will be down and eye the bunny drowsily as it races around the track. That would be improving the breed too much.

Smart greyhounds will refuse to pursue the mechanical bunny unless given a winning ticket on the cottontail.

But whether rabbits, dogs, horses, turtles or caterpillars, it won't take long for what we spotively call "samblers" to learn how to slow 'em up at the proper time.

O'Goody gave Benny a training idea for his boys the other day. The members of the team will get into condition by standing on the tracks and taking nudges from the Twentieth Century.

ABILITY TO THINK FOOTBALL ASSET SAYS SUTHERLAND

Enables One to Solve Opposing Team Plays Before They Do Intended Damage.

By "JOCK" SUTHERLAND
University of Pittsburgh Football Coach

Defensive play is the most valuable phase of football, as far as the individual is concerned. He must be on his toes mentally, analyzing the opposing team's movements and anticipating the movements of the other team. He must be in his position every minute of the time or the opposing quarterback will send a play through the particular "sector" he is supposed to guard, and gain yardage.

The defensive team must be taught individually and collectively to THINK. I always allow my players enough scope to act according to their best judgment when under fire.

As has been repeatedly said that "a good offense is the best defense" but I do not agree with the statement. I have seen too many exceptionally good offensive teams "stopped cold" by good defensive strategy.

The majority of coaches give their teams sixty per cent of the plays to be used during the season by the time of the first game. From then on, time is spent in polishing up the plays, adding an occasional new one, and in drilling individual players on the points of defensive play.

There never has been a play devised that could not be stopped if players are taught to analyze offensive tactics and to think for themselves.

In the old days, a coach could use the same defense throughout the season, but now it would be fatal to use the same defense in any two of the so-called "big games."

A clever scout can see every flaw in another team and can plan a defense that will take advantage of those weaknesses.

A friend of mine who scouts for a large Eastern school told me that he had seen a team that had one of the fastest halfbacks in the country. The problem of stopping this man puzzled the opposing coach and my friend was instructed to take notice of every motion he made on the field.

The scout saw that the star halfback pointed his feet in the direction which he intended to carry the ball. He invariably assumed a starting position with his feet pointed at a slight angle in the direction he would go when he received the ball from the center.

The St. Louis Cardinals took too much for granted in the 1928 world series. That is perhaps the best single explanation that can be offered for the rout of the National League champions.

"Take nothing for granted in baseball." During the regime of Harry Pullman as president of the National League, that slogan hung over his desk. It was the wisest of wisecracks as far as the baseball is concerned.

The St. Louis Cardinals, a mighty good ball club, took too much for granted when it met the New York Yankees in the 1928 world series. The Cards believed what they read in the papers and immediately suffered a great handicap thereby.

The National League champions took seriously the opinion of a majority of the baseball experts, that the winning of the world series by the Cardinals was little more than a mere formality. They believed too strongly that the Yankees were a bunt team, that they were unable to fight back, that the Yankee pitching staff had nothing to deceive them. They rather scoffed at the greatness of the Yankee pitching staff, had nothing to deceive them. They scoffed at the greatness of the Yankees because they had so often read that the New York Americans would be lucky to finish in the first division in the National League.

The interference of the experts beamed that New York wasn't so strong as the American League was weak. Take it from me, St. Louis has a much better ball club than it showed in the recent world series. Unquestionably, the club has a punch at the bat, otherwise it would not have been able to weather the storm of the most hectic struggles ever waged for a National League pennant. All clubs have their batting slumps. The Cards were in one during the series. Possibly a superior brand of pitching, a fine pitcher, that they had anticipated helped bring about such a slump.

Without a doubt, over-confidence hurt the Cardinals. Two years previous the Cards had triumphed over the Yankees in a seven game affair. The National League champion, Pennock won two games and kept New York in the running. Prior to the start of the 1928 series, it was an established fact that Pennock would not be able to pitch, thereby removing the ace of the Yankees from the field. Pennock was just that in the eyes of the Cardinals.

The knowledge that Pennock would not pitch, that Lazzeri with a bad arm was unable to make double plays, that the great Combs would not be in the center field, that Ruth really needed a pair of crutches, all served to make for over-confidence on the part of the National League champions.

I have no doubt but that most of the Cardinals believed the Yankees were in a superior condition because they were soft pinking. The club went into the series with the wrong mental attitude. When things began to break just the opposite from what the yhad figured, the morale of the club was badly hurt.

Army And Navy May Again Play Against Each Other

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, Oct. 17.—An army and navy football game, either in New York or Philadelphia, by 1930. This prediction was being freely aired by men in both branches of the service today, even in the face of the fact that official schedules for next year have been announced and that the Army's major opponent for 1929 had been spoken for, at and with. Disappointment with the existing state of armed neutrality on the two fronts has reached a point, they say, where even the die-hardly explanation that can be offered a break that will start something that really can be finished.

Commander Jonas Ingram, athletic officer at Annapolis, will go on sea duty in the line of official formality next year. This is generally conceded to be the break in question. An irreconcilable in the Army-Navy vendetta from the event, Ingram's departure will remove an influence that steadfastly has refused to condone the discrepancy in eligibility standards at the two schools. His successor, it is expected, will be more open to suggestion on this subject.

In brief, both sides are conceding that an unnatural state of affairs exists. The admission carries with it the logical surmise that anything unnatural must be regarded as temporary. And with everyone wishing heartily that the period of the thumb and forefinger, neither can one juggle all will games that have been arranged for 1930. But there always is open that first Saturday in December, the original date of the Army-Navy game, and, besides a few college opponents would stand in the way of a rematch. If they could avoid doing so, it means too much to the country at large and to the health of football in general.

Contracts that have been made for 1929, of course, cannot be abrogated or altered with a snap of the thumb and forefinger. Neither can one juggle all will games that have been arranged for 1930. But there always is open that first Saturday in December, the original date of the Army-Navy game, and, besides a few college opponents would stand in the way of a rematch. If they could avoid doing so, it means too much to the country at large and to the health of football in general.

DON'TS FOR HUNTERS

In view of the fact that the hunting season is already on in some sections of the country and about to get under way in other sections, this column feels that a few tips to hunters are quite in order. For that reason, we quote some "don'ts" compiled recently by Dr. C. L. Tompkins, president of the Seattle Game Warden's Association.

1. DON'T build your campfire where it can't be controlled.
2. DON'T leave your camp without putting out the fire.
3. DON'T enter the mountains without caulk in your shoes.
4. DON'T go into the mountains without a good map.
5. DON'T go into the mountains without having a general landmark, such as direction of streams. If lost, follow the streams down. Never cross ridges when lost.
6. DON'T get excited when lost.
7. DON'T call to wear a red hat or shirt, or both.
8. DON'T shoot at moving objects without seeing or knowing what it is, and never shoot at moving brush.
9. DON'T enter automobiles with loaded guns.
10. DON'T let the muzzle of your gun point toward yourself or anybody else, loaded or unloaded.
11. DON'T use your gun as a walking stick, as the butt might slip.
12. DON'T draw a gun toward you or shove it from you with the muzzle pointed at your body.
13. DON'T try to carry too large a pack, trim it down to essentials.
14. DON'T forget a watertight match holder, a piece of candle and a few rainfins.

Don't Be Too Sure

One of the reactions of the Wisconsin victory over Notre Dame and the Ohio Wesleyan victory over Michigan was the thought of downtown coaches that, both Rockne and Yost would see their respective teams defeated many times this season.

Well, that is interesting in view of the fact that those two gifted coaches have been in similar tight holes and managed to come out. It doesn't pay to judge a football team by its action in early October. Many a fast starter gets clogged up in its own tracks before November rolls around and many a hopeless looking team resembles a world-beater in October. And there is this to remember—neither Rockne nor Yost are losing coaches. That is to say, losing is not compatible with their records.

So be careful how you lay your dough against these two eleveners.

Yup, Lucky For Yanks

Just lucky, was Lou Gehrig's reply to those who congratulated him on his tremendous home-run clouting during the recent world series.

"I outgessed the Card pitchers and that's why I was lucky enough to get some good blows," he said after the last game. "My home runs were scored on pitches that were to my liking and which I had figured out would be thrown. I merely guessed what was coming and got ready to hit. The rest was easy."

DUNDEE PICKED TO BEAT NEGRO

They Don't Always Repeat Farrell's Reason for Saying Thompson Will Lose.

By HENRY L. FARRELL.

In the minds of more than a few thinkers it is going to be just too bad for Joe Dundee when the welterweight champion goes into the arena in New York in November to expose that lantern jaw and chin of his to the shots of Young Jack Thompson, the California negro.

It not only would be too bad for Dundee but it would be terrible for him if one past performance was true enough to show that he works on. In their one previous meeting Thompson flattened the champion and was deprived of the title only by the precaution of Dundee's manager, who had made the negro come in over weight.

Past performances are good indications. Men who try to beat the races depend almost entirely upon the conclusions they arrive at by a study of what a horse has done previously under similar conditions. But they try to strike a return punch by making allowances for peculiar conditions and circumstances. And in striking that average you frequently hear them say—"You can throw that race out."

And the smart boxing men who want to do a little wagering on the return match between Dundee and Thompson will be wiser if they first bet between the pair in Chicago and reach their conclusions on what is shown in the previous performances of the champion and his challenger.

Dundee's Record Better.

Dundee's record shows that he has been a better fighter than Thompson in spite of all the paning tossed at him for his zeal in protecting the title. In the fashion of a good business man he has done his best to avoid the toughest of his rivals until he could get real important money for fighting them. He was not original in the exercise of this caution. He only copied the other champions.

There is also in his record something that makes him look pretty good as he approaches what looks like an awful tough spot. He was flattened once before and he came back and gave a fine smacking around to the boy who had flattened him.

Dundee thought he was taking a sucker when he agreed to fight Thompson in Chicago and that he was working up for a title shot back in 1926 he fell for a sucker match against Eddie Roberts, an amateur California, who was just about as unknown at that time as Thompson was a while back.

Roberts knocked Dundee out in the first round and Dundee hardly had come around when he said he wanted that guy again and quick. He insisted upon a return match and in a short time he got Roberts back in with him for a return fight and gave him a good beating.

Young Corbett, who died last year, was the only prominent boxer who scored a sensational victory over a high ranking fighter and made good the same way in a return bout. He was a New York country, when he knocked out the great Terry McGovern and he knocked Terry out the second time when McGovern tried to prove that his first victory was a fluke.

Billy Papke scored a sensational knockout victory over Stanley Ketchel and ten weeks later Ketchel knocked Papke out in a return bout.

Sammy Baker, the former army sergeant, who is right up there wanting a title fight with the winner of the Dundee-Thompson fight, also figured in one of the same kind of cases.

Baker caused a big surprise early in 1927 when he knocked out Ace Hudkins, the highly-touted western fighter. He cut up Hudkins so badly that the referee stopped the fight but there was no question that he would have finished the job if the fight had continued.

TOO MUCH WRESTLING SPOILS STAR BOUT IN THE ELM CITY

Day-Hussey Semi-Final Much More Impressive; Crowd Boos Main Go; Kaplan All Done in Big Show.

By TOM STOWE

New Haven Arena, October 17.—Standing at the crossroad of his comeback career last night, Louis "Kid" Kaplan, former world featherweight champion, took the route leading to oblivion. The big trouble with the "Toothless-Meriden-Buzz-Saw" comes in the fact that he is all done and doesn't know it. He was in the ring for a decision over Bruce Flowers, the colored boy from New Rochelle, was far from impressive and was final proof that Kaplan's hopes of ever lifting Sammy Mandell's lightweight crown will create little alarm.

The Kaplan-Flowers set was a flat disappointment and the crowd wasn't the least hesitant about saying so. The first five rounds would have been much more interesting had they put Joe Stecher and Gus Sonnerberg inside the ropes. Any result would have been about the same, but the wrestling of a better caliber.

Kaplan kept his head down and charged into clinches for his specialty, in-fighting. It was seldom that he stood up and swapped blows. Flowers plainly preferred the latter but he got little opportunity to do so. The crowd of about 5,000 which packed the mammoth arena shouted "Throw 'em Out," but Referee Young MacAllister was too busy breaking the clinches to hear them. However, after the first five disgusting rounds, Kaplan opened up a bit, but even then he was a bit of a blotch, as the boys say. It was Kaplan's mistake in the seventh and eighth rounds combined with his superior aggressiveness which gave him the honors for the evening. Here is how this writer ruled the rounds:

1. Wrestling.
2. Wrestling.
3. Wrestling.
4. More so.
5. Kaplan.
6. Kaplan.
7. Kaplan.
8. Flowers.
9. Flowers.
10. Even.

Yes, unless, I'm stone-blind, Kaplan is all done in the big show. You can't prove any different either by Harold Germaine, former Herald man, who sat at the ringside with me.

Another thing which made the Kaplan-Flowers bout look even worse was the slashing semi-final between George Day of New Haven and Willie Hussey of Bridgeport in which the Elm City battlers met out after one of the best bouts we've seen in a long while. Hussey, who had beaten Day previously, got away to a good lead, but Day's superior strength wore him down and gradually Day took the lead. Many thought the decision was wrong, but such is always the case on a close fight. It looked alright to us.

The card was a corker, with the exception of the final. Eddie Shuster of New York opened the show by dropping Tommy Hamby of Holyoke for the count in the first round with two hard rights to the button. Joe Barlow, promising New York light-heavyweight, followed with a technical knockout over Dick Patterson, colored boy from New Jersey. Barlow has a kick like a mule but his defense is poor. Joe Masselli won a special grade bout from Frank Marino in six rounds. Both are from New Haven, and each had a big delegation in the "bleachers."

o'clock Hoover will meet delegations of various racial groups. The Republican organization leaders will call on him at 12:30 o'clock and then he will attend a luncheon given by Charles D. Hillis, the Republican national committeeman. Then, he will rest until 4 o'clock, when he meets delegations of the Republican Service League organizations of the state. He will attend a private dinner and speak at 9 o'clock in the Garden.

As announced last week by International News Service, Hoover will discuss the relationship of government to business and other mutual problems. He has touched on this subject frequently since the campaign opened but his New York address will be his major bid for the support of organized industry. Vice President Charles G. Dawes will take the stump for the first time during Hoover's visit to New York. Dawes will speak at the Hoover store at 10 East 45th street at 5 o'clock, and then appear upon the speaker's platform with Hoover at the great Republican rally that night. Dawes will then go on an eastern tour for Hoover.

six months to ten years on a count of conspiracy to defraud, and another five years for actual fraud. Margaret Watkins, the wife, shrinking, petite, became the beneficiary of executive clemency when her husband had been sentenced. She will be in Hartford Jail for a year. She goes there with promise of the judge that she shall have liberty at such times as her mother or her children may need her.

The Tresslar brothers, admitted tools of Watkins, go to prison with him. Guy, who acted as "messenger boy" for his brother-in-law, and admittedly made illegal transactions in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, California, Tennessee, and Connecticut, must serve four years behind the wall.

Maynard T. Tresslar, called "the least guilty of the four," was given a prison term of "not less than one nor more than two years." Courtroom Crowded. When Judge Brown called his session of the Superior Court into being yesterday afternoon the Watkins group had slid from the crest of a wave and were buried deep in its hollow. All the drama of a stage play seemed injected into the courtroom. The veteran state's attorney, Hugh M. Alcorn, rose in the midst of the largest audience he has had in court since he started his career. There was not even standing room in front of Judge Brown when the four walked in for sentence.

The state manual and the social register might have furnished the list of spectators. Mr. Alcorn was from the start outspoken. He recited Watkins' picturesque record. He was telling how the chief defendant had swindled an inmate of an Old People's Home when Mrs. Watkins slumped and slithered to the floor a seeming bundle of cloth. The strain of the occasion had caused her to faint. A gasp ran through the crowded room. After the woman had been revived and returned to the room, Mr. Alcorn went on still without emotion. He was reciting a tale. He went on for more than an hour.

Mr. Alcorn returned again and again to stock purchases and profits of various state officials. Particularly he dwelt on the dealings with Governor Trumbull and Commissioner Hurley. The governor, he announced, had made his purchases from the Watkins outfit after the state bank commissioner had started an investigation.

The Hurley Account. Mr. Alcorn quickly turned to the Hurley account. "Significant and mystifying is it," he said, "that the check issued to Mr. Hurley did not go through the bank of Mr. Hurley. It was cashed. What became of the money I do not know. But it seems to me that the check was cashed in order that the transaction might be without trace." The state's attorney passed to the Egan transactions. "Money traced to Mr. Egan," he said, "approximated $90,000."

When the state's attorney had finished he went into conference with Mr. Egan. Later Mr. Alcorn announced he had summoned the Grand Jury to meet at two o'clock this afternoon to continue the investigation into the Watkins affair. That announcement was the starting place of the afternoon. It had been supposed that the Grand Jury would be dismissed. Healy Makes Plea. Frank E. Healy, former attorney general for Connecticut, rose to make a plea for the Watkins group. He asked leniency. He wondered how it was that a delay occurred in the investigation of the whole affair. He wondered who was responsible for such a condition—if anyone was. His remarks carried the state's attorney to reply and to insist that some of Mr. Healy's remarks were not true. The court room was revived, almost electrified by this turn of events. Judge Brown took the case in hand. He declared he must compliment the state on having so able a prosecutor as Mr. Alcorn and a county on having so able a public servant as Edward H. Hickey, the county detective. Then followed the sentences. Immediately a group of deputy sheriffs rounded up the four prisoners and took them back to the county jail. Three of the four were taken down the river today, registered, and absorbed into the routine of prison life.

ed at the place about two months ago to rent the three room apartment, under the name of "Mr. and Mrs. Gordon." By that time, however, Leo Gordon had already been extradited from here by Kansas authorities to answer for his part in the $19,000 robbery of the Home Trust Company bank, June 14, 1928. One policeman was killed and two other policemen and a woman wounded in the gun duel following the hold-up.

Changed Her Name. Some time after the holding of the apartment, "Mrs. Gordon" became known as "Mrs. Wolch." Nothing could be learned of the man who first appeared there in the role of her husband.

The murder today was discovered by coincidence which would be regarded as strange in even the most fantastic story of fiction. Detective Morrissey, of the Manhattan Safe and Lock Squad who captured Gordon last June in the hotel Harlow, has been working on the local end of the Kansas bank robbery and murder ever since.

Other members of the hold-up gang are still at large, and it was believed some were hiding hereabouts. In the hope of finding valuable information from the girl or her visitors, Morrissey went to the Sunnyside apartment today at 9 o'clock this morning. Receiving no response to his ring, or to his knocks on the door, the detective broke in and beheld the ghostly spectacle.

According to one theory, Mrs. Gordon was slain by some one who feared the name "squal" under pressure by police. Airplane landing fields may soon make use of a brilliant red arc light formed from the rare atmospheric gas neon, which can shine through thick fog.

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency of constipation. And here is how you can PROVE IT. The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one of the druggists can assure you is made with CASCARET. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness. What happens when you cascade the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—restores the normal function of their own CASCARETS. They Work While You Sleep!

MERCHANTS TO JOIN IN MONTGOMERY WARD DAY

Division of Chamber of Commerce Urges Making Opening "Red Letter" Event.

The publicity committee of the Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce, realizing the drawing power of Montgomery Ward & Co., and the additional value of that concern's advertising as a factor in bringing into Manchester thousands of suburban traders for their opening on Saturday, October 27, believe that all the merchants should join in and make this a red letter day for out of town traders so that they will come here again and again. They feel that merchants of Manchester should make a bid to interest and hold the trade that will come into town on the day of this opening of the Montgomery Ward & Co. store and with this end in view the following letter is being sent out to the merchants of Manchester.

"Opportunity is knocking at your door. On Saturday, October 27, Montgomery Ward & Co. will open in Manchester their first New England store. Their direct mail publicity has been extensive; the drawing power of their name and reputation alone will pull in thousands of suburban traders. Manchester should entertain more strangers on this day than at any time since the centennial.

"Our publicity committee suggests that every store should reflect a spirit of welcome and that every effort should be made to have all the stores and windows clean, attractive, and up-to-date with all the new merchandise well displayed. The committee also suggests that all advertisements running the night before the opening should carry small lines of greeting and good will to the new store. "It remains with each merchant to make the most of this opportunity. It has been suggested however, that an effective display of seasonal merchandise and a special effort in the line of sales service will bring greater and more lasting results than bargain sales. "The public will unquestionably be out and ready to do business on that day. Let us make them feel welcome and also make them feel that they want to come again."

AMERICAN MURDERED

Washington, Oct. 17.—Charles Smith, presumed to be an American citizen, whose murder by Mexican rebels was reported to the State Department on October 10, by Consul Edward D. Lowry, at Guadaluajara, was killed by a Mexican bandit named Ibarra after Smith had wounded Ibarra, according to a report received today by the State Department.

Lowry's report stated Ibarra with 25 others appeared at Smith's home in Talpa, Jalisco, demanding money and arms. Smith refused and then Ibarra attempted to drag him from home. Smith seized a rifle and fired, wounding Ibarra. Smith was killed and the "Rebels" fled. Federal Mexican troops started in pursuit of the rebels but no report has been received from them.

Friday. On Friday night he will speak at the 131st Regiment armory in what promises to be a memorable political meeting. Democratic candidates for the presidency do not usually spend three days in Illinois. Gov. Smith is. He is doing so because he believes they will be profitably spent. En route to Chicago today, the New York governor will make a number of stops in Illinois, notably at Springfield and Bloomington. They are down-state cities. His candidacy must catch on down-state if it is to be successful in Illinois. He visited southern Illinois, en route to Sedalia on Monday.

Gov. Smith closed his campaign west of the Mississippi here in Sedalia last night with a slashing attack on the Republican fiscal record of the past eight years. He paid his respects particularly to "Coolidge economy" and in the process he accused his Republican opponent, Herbert Hoover, of being a party to the "deliberate misrepresentation" of the Republican record.

As he has done on other aspects of the Harding-Coolidge administration, Gov. Smith ripped into the record aggressively. The Republicans, he said, have deliberately tried to give the country "a false picture" of the nation's financial history for the last eight years. Republican economy, he said, was a myth, and to substantiate his charges he cited budget figures showing that the cost of government has increased steadily every year under the Harding-Coolidge administration, if allowance is made for the natural reduction of war time features. "False statements, misrepresentation, concealment of the truth, all of these things have meant nothing," he said, "so long as the mythical picture could be sustained in all its falsity in the mind and the vision of the American people."

Money Saving Plans. He ridiculed some of the money saving devices put in under the budget direction of Gen. Herbert M. Lord, such as "using paper on both sides," and "searching waste baskets for discarded paper clips and pen nibs." "I am not decrying these economies and efficient government, but what I am finding fault with is the urging of this as a basis for the false claim that because of this kind of economy the people of the country, through the instrumentality of the Republican party, have been saved billions of dollars. That is not true." Gov. Smith quoted Mr. Hoover as saying that "by rigorous economy federal expenses have been reduced by two billions of dollars per annum."

Not True. "No more misleading statement could be made than that," he said, "and for a man who uses figures the way Mr. Hoover does I am surprised he would make that kind of a statement to the American people. He knows just as well as I do that the difference between the 1921 expenditures of the government and the 1927 expenditures are the difference between operating the government in time of war and time of peace. Not by any stretch of human imagination can that be credited to Republican economy. That statement is not so. And I challenge the Republican candidate to make it good."

Gov. Smith cited the budget figures for the executive department itself to support his point that the Coolidge administration increased governmental expenses rather than decreased them. He cited the White House appropriation of $210,000 in 1921 and the $686,000 appropriation in 1927, six years later.

But that the year we put a new roof on the White House," he said, "so we will make allowance for that. So lets take the 1928 figures, when there was no new roof, in 1928 it cost $528,000 an increase between 1921 and 1928 of over 100 per cent."

Starts a Laugh. The governor drew a laugh from his audience by saying he didn't object to spending money to make the White House safe for if there is a man in the United States who wants the White House safe to live in I am that man. The final address west of the Mississippi was delivered to an enormous audience that jammed every nook and cranny of the livestock pavilion of the state fair grounds. The estimates of those seated in the huge enclosure ran from 15,000 to 20,000 and despite a drizzling rain, there were thousands outside. It was a field day for the Democrats of central and rural Missouri. They drove into Sedalia by thousands. During the afternoon they listened to state candidates and at night to "Al."

Everywhere Gov. Smith went about rural Missouri he was sponsored by Charles M. Hay, the Democratic Senatorial candidate for "Jim" Reed's seat. Hay is a militant dry, but he isn't letting that fact interfere with his advocacy of Smith's selection.

Hay preceded Gov. Smith on the program at the fair grounds last night. And while the thousands of drys, Protestant rural Missourians listened attentively, he said: "I care not whether he is wet or dry, whether he be Catholic or Protestant, Jew or Gentile, there is not a man in America who can read the record of Gov. Smith without respecting it. He is not only a hard man but a man incapable of sitting in the midst of dishonesty and criminality."

"And if there is one thing we need in America today it is the voice of militant honesty." Gov. Smith was introduced to his rural audience by Senator Harry B. Hawes of St. Louis.

"Gov. Smith is what we call in this country a square shooter," said Hawes. "He speaks squarely about the issues of this campaign. We know where he stands on everything. When replies come from the other side they come from the political captains of a candidate who is afraid to speak for himself—a creature of political appointment, and not political preference. Our candidate speaks frankly. His opponent reads an essay."

CHENEYS SELL LAND HELD FOR WATER PROTECTION

Dispose of Safeguard Holdings No Longer Needed to Keep Globe Hollow Pure.

Cheney Brothers, in sales made this week, have disposed of all of the land and buildings of what was known to many Manchester people as the Miner Farm, at South Main and Fern streets.

This property was purchased by Cheney Brothers as a safeguard for the three ponds that make up the Globe Hollow water system. All the houses that had stood on the west side of the road, from the ice pond south to the Glastonbury Line, with the exception of the Tracy or Richmond farm, were purchased by Cheney Brothers when the new bonds were constructed at Globe Hollow, and also all the houses, with the exception of one, the Miner place, on the east side of the road from the pond to the Captain Keeney place, which has for its south boundary Line street, which divides Manchester from Glastonbury. The object in buying these farms and tearing down the buildings was to protect the water shed so that the Globe Hollow pond waters could be turned into the water mains and used for drinking water if it became necessary, although the primary object of the ponds was to supply water to the mills and save the reservoir water for domestic purposes only.

Since the large domestic reservoir was built in Buckingham a supply is provided that will take care of the town's needs for the next twenty years, it is estimated, and even should Manchester grow to the size of Hartford it would not be difficult, by building another reservoir further to the west, to make the supply adequate. It is no longer necessary, therefore, to protect the water shed of Globe Hollow. Sales this week to Fred Hills and Oswald Fisher dispose of the Miner farm.

There may be no significance in the fact that at a recent fair in Toronto, a married woman won the rolling pin throwing contest and her husband copped the 100-yard dash.

WAPPING

Marcus L. Floyd of East Windsor Hill, the first man to raise shade-grown tobacco in Connecticut, died last Saturday afternoon at the Hartford hospital. He was 68 years old. He was born in Quincy, Florida. Mr. Floyd for many years studied tobacco culture there, paying particular attention to the tent-grown variety. He received a government appointment as a tobacco expert in 1923 and the following year prepared and assembled the United States tobacco exhibit for the Paris Exposition. To cope with the shortage of unskilled labor in these parts 12 years ago, Mr. Floyd was the main mover in bringing negro workers from the south to Connecticut fields. The funeral was held from his late home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the burial was in Granby. Arthur Sweeney who has been spending the summer months in the harvest fields in Canada, returned to the home of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan West of Felt road, last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frink motored to Springfield, Mass., on last Sunday and spent the day with Mrs. Frink's aunt, Mrs. Hannum, of 43 Whitman street. The senior Y. M. C. A. will meet in the parish house on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, with a committee of local men to discuss plans for the coming basketball season. Miller Brothers at the north end of the town have just completed a warehouse to hold 25,000 bushels of potatoes. Paul Brandt of Manchester did the work. It has concrete walls, a wooden roof and is 42x100 feet. This farm produced 25,000 bushels of potatoes on 75 acres of land and the Millers are considered the largest growers of potatoes in town. They report that the yield was 450 bushels to the acre with an average of only 3 per cent of seconds. The plot was sprayed ten times which kept the vines in fine condition and produced a fine crop. They have sold some 2,000 bushels and are storing the rest until the market prices are higher. Harry Farnham and Paul Bancroft, two dairymen of East Windsor Hill, went to Canada for a few days looking for new milch cows. Anthony Matulis and Miss Vera Matulis have returned from the St. Francis hospital much improved. Mr. and Mrs. George Ladd, Mrs. Charlotte E. Ladd, Miss Marjorie Ladd and Miss Mildred Slater, all of Preston City, Norwich, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Frink, last Sunday. The assessors for the town of South Windsor will meet at the Wapping Center school house on Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 22 and 23 from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. and at the Town Hall, Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. for receiving lists. Those failing to make a list will be charged a penalty of 10 per cent additional, according to law. Blanks can be obtained at the post office and at the office of the town clerk or they will be sent by mail upon application. Town officials have been busy all the week taking down the grade case bill and making the road ten feet wider at that point.

WISDOM

Hoover Is a Wise Administrator. "With the uncanny instinct of the practical engineer for the uses in human material, he selects good men, grants them responsibility and authority, inspires them with loyalty—and lets them alone." Thus a noted writer explains the fact that Hoover is able to turn his brilliant visions into practical results. The power to choose the right man for the right place and to delegate authority wisely is especially needed in the Presidency. The selection of the best man for the important job constitutes no small proportion of the President's work. Hoover is a genius at picking the right men. (To Be Continued.)

QUAKE IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 17.—A check-up today showed no damage had been done by earth tremors felt in several sections of New Hampshire. A number of villages in the southern part of the state were disturbed by the tremors. The tremors were accompanied by what was described as a slight ground tremor, was felt, and at Amherst a rumbling noise was heard.

DIAMOND PLANS

BIG SHOE STORE

Self Service Business to Be Put in Basement—Large Quarters Needed.

Morris L. Diamond, who opened his first shoe store in Manchester five years ago has now under way changes in his shoe store in the building purchased by him last January at the corner of Main and Maple streets that will make the largest store devoted entirely to the sale of shoes, slippers and rubbers in the town of Manchester.

With the changes that are being made, and which will be completed within the next week, there will also be a change in the name under which the store has been known. Instead of being known as the Self Service Shoe Store, it will in the future be designated as the Diamond Shoe Store and there will be a change in the quality and amount of stock that will be carried. The Self Service Shoe Store will be carried on in the basement for it was in this line of goods that the first of the chain of Diamond Shoe Stores started.

The first of this chain was opened in Putnam in September 1920 and on January 1921 the first of the branches was opened in Norwich, locating in the Thayer building on Franklin Square in that city. This store soon showed the need to be in larger quarters and the lease, which had been taken for five years, proved only too short as with the growth of business there was a demand for a larger store and customers had increased. Today it is the largest shoe store in Eastern Connecticut.

In May 1923 the first store, a small one, was taken in South Manchester, but the needed room to take care of the business resulted in the store being located in the new building at that time erected by William Knudow and in 1925 the business of the company had grown to such an extent that it was decided to own their own home in Manchester and in January of this year the building was purchased.

Attention was not being given to the Manchester, Putnam and Norwich stores alone, for in November 1924 the first store was opened in Hartford followed by another in October 1925 that was opened on Park street. In October 1926 the first of these stores was opened in New Britain and then came the decision to make Hartford a central point and the location of the company's warehouse.

When this was secured larger stocks could be bought and when an opportunity came the purchases were made in larger numbers, mostly from shoe manufacturers without the middleman being concerned. The two stores in Hartford did not seem to meet the trade demand and this spring the store in the center of the Hartford shopping district was opened. This store is located at 987 Main street, which today is Mr. Diamond's main office and from which store the directing of the others is now carried on.

The Manchester store that is now undergoing changes will be so arranged that the partitions will be removed between the two which will throw them into one store. There will be two entrances on Main street. The front will consist of two fifteen foot windows, with a space left between the two.

This space is left so that at any time that business warrants it there will be room for an entrance to the upper floor. This will make possible the laying out of the windows that will extend fifteen feet back into the store, with plenty of display room on either side of the two doors for the stock that is being offered, all plainly marked as to price. It will be built in the style of the present Fifth Avenue display windows and will add to the attractiveness of the store.

Under One Director

Morris L. Diamond, will be the directing head of all of these stores and was in Boston yesterday purchasing a new stock for the store that will be opened there. In addition to giving more room for the display of stock, it will also give to the customer more room in which to be served as for several months past the store which he has occupied, including the basement has been overcrowded on many occasions. The addition of the other store will also give more

BEER BIBBING BABIES

NEW SOCIAL PROBLEM FOR DENVER WORKERS

Denver—Beer bibbing babies of Colorado welfare workers a unique social problem, according to Dr. Arthur C. Cross of the extension division of the University of Colorado.

Dr. Cross, in a lecture before the Colorado conference for Social Workers, declared that many babies of foreign born parents living in Colorado were being fed on beer, wine and chill con carne almost from birth.

The foreign-born element of Colorado, according to Dr. Cross, lives in crowded sections where unsanitary conditions prevail. He gave warning that these sections were hotbeds for diphtheria and that the failure of most parents to vaccinate their children gave rise to a perpetual danger of an epidemic.

Much publicity, Dr. Cross pointed out, was given to Pennsylvania's smoking baby. Colorado, he said, can claim an equally unwholesome social problem in their beer drinking infants.

ITALIANS TO SPEND $800 ON A FLOAT

Local Societies Plan to Make a Hit in Armistice Day Parade.

The Italian Societies of Manchester, which united for the big Armistice Day parade, through subscription among their members and from the proceeds of the bazaar held at the Sub-Alpine club, have raised more than $800 to be used in the building of a float to represent the Italian-American residents of Manchester.

The Italian societies have extended invitations, which have been accepted, to the Sub-Alpine club of Hartford and the Bersaglieri society of Hartford. The Alpine band which is one of the finest in this section, has also sent word that it will be here on Armistice Day to help make the representation in the parade an imposing one.

Members of the Manchester societies are now submitting ideas for the float. Several excellent drawings have been already received and some one of these will probably provide the theme on which their float will be built.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (418) Our Presidents

Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Braucher

After completing his law course at the University of Virginia, carrying on until graduation despite a physical breakdown, Woodrow Wilson opened a law office in Atlanta, but found that he was more interested in the study of government than the practice of law. So in 1883 he entered Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore from which he was to receive the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

In 1885 Wilson married Miss Ellen Axson and began to teach at Bryn Mawr. He also taught at Connecticut Wesleyan and in 1890 was called to Princeton.

At Princeton Wilson taught government, wrote books and magazine articles, lectured and had a wide influence in university affairs.

He advocated many reforms and serious differences arose between Wilson and the faculty and trustees. While he was carrying on his controversy with the faculty he was nominated for governor of New Jersey in 1910 and triumphantly elected. He was mentioned as candidate for president, but many party leaders feared his independence.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

When four men play golf, it's a foursome; when two men and their wives play, it's bore some.

NETER GOLF

KNOW ANY WISE CRACKS? Here's a SMART CRACK to ponder for a while. Par is six and one solution is on another page.

SMART CRACK grid with letters S, M, A, R, T and C, R, A, C, K.

THE RULES 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

Teacher (to class): "Work this sum. Two eggs at five cents each, a pint of milk at six cents a pint, and half a pound of sugar at 10 cents a pound. What do they make together?"

SENSE and NONSENSE

"I hear you've got a new baby, Mandy. What have you named him?" "Oh, we call him Veto, Miss Smith."

A minister, conducting a protracted meeting, announced, "All who want to join the Army of the Lord stand up!"

When the colored couple were married and the clergyman read the words, "Love, honor and obey," the bridegroom interrupted:

Dinah, crying bitterly, was coming down the street with her feet bandaged.

"Rastus, you-all am most narrow-minded pesson Ah know."

A very slender girl entered a street car and managed to seat herself in a very narrow space between two men.

The old negro woman smiled broadly, "Thank you, missy," she said; "but which gentleman's lap was you a'sittin' on?"

Joan—So you think Jack is in love with me?

Choice of Ways Say what you will of worldly wealth

My idea of a snappy young man is one who is always rubbering at the girls.

PHONES Pinehurst
"GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

AS WE REMARKED

Pardon us if we seem to rave—about the delivery system at this shop of "Good Things to Eat"—but we can't get over the idea that the delivery system of a food store is just as important to the store and to its customers as a transportation system is to a nation. The scheme of existence doesn't click without it. That is, it doesn't click with the right sound or the right action.

We caught three new early morning delivery patrons this morning—two of them Pinehurst customers, one somebody's else. We'd like about six more new ones tomorrow morning. Because that's the way a business is built up—now and then a new customer, and treat the old ones so they will be sure and stay.

Phone from 6:30 a. m. on, for the 8 o'clock delivery—the one that puts all the day's bugaboo of marketing into the "done" list as soon as the carefully selected order gets to your house by 9 o'clock. Then of course there are later morning deliveries and one big delivery as well as supplementary ones in the afternoon.

It gives Pinehurst a sort of an ache for a delivery truck to be standing still one minute a day, save when it's taking on or delivering orders. Our idea is to keep the engines running and the wheels spinning just all the time that the cars are out of the garage. That's what we've got them for. They are for the customer's convenience—because the more fully we consult that convenience the surer we are to retain all the old trade and pick up some more.

Phone 2000.

Fresh shipment just in of Winchell Smith Corn Meal, Graham Flour, Entire Wheat Flour and Scotch Oatmeal. Box wood for kindling.

Mianatomah tribe of Red Men will hold a dance at "The Four Corners" in Buckingham on Saturday night for the purpose of raising funds to help defray the expenses of building a float for the Armistice Day celebration. Those caring to attend may make arrangements directly with members for transportation or they may meet at the south terminus where the private cars of the members will stop to pick up those seeking transportation.

The alterations which have been going on in the store occupied by Alfred Greal on Main street, at Purnell place, are about completed. The windows have been so arranged as to give a better display.

The temporary board walk laid on Park street when the new building was started at the corner of Main and Park street is still in use. It is narrow and dangerous. West Side residents are complaining about it.

William Keith has purchased an interest in the Waranoke Press, which is to have enlarged quarters on Pearl street. Among the new machinery to be installed in the new plant will be a rotary press.

St. Mary's Girls Friendly is planning a costume masquerade for Monday evening, October 22 at the parish hall at 7:30. Halloween games will be played and refreshments will be served. The party will be open to all young people who care to attend. A small admission will be received.

The Manchester Country club have its annual harvest supper this evening and not an annual meeting or election, which comes early in the year. The food will all be home-cooked, served cafeteria style between the hours of 6 a. m. to 8 o'clock. The committee in charge of the harvest supper and dance which will follow is composed of members living in the Greenhill section of the town. Lucie Rumble, a Hartford orchestra, will provide music for dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robinson are spending a few days visiting relatives in Boston. Mrs. Robinson is a nurse at the Rockville City hospital and has been granted a ten day leave of absence.

Chapman Court, Order of Amaranth, has set the date of Tuesday, November 30, for a sale, bridge and dance, tickets for which are already being distributed by the members.
