

LAMBERT STILL IN JAIL; ALIBI IS NOT BROKEN

Story of Waitress and Cashier to Be Further Questioned—Local Man Seeks Advise of Attorney.

Paul G. Lambert, formerly of Manchester, held in Stamford as a suspect in the violent death of Miss Olga Bays, 20 year old stenographer a week ago Thursday, was still in police custody this morning. It was intimated that he might be released before the day ended, however.

There were no developments in the case, the Stamford police said this morning, but they admitted there is no denying a big gathering of circumstantial evidence that has not as yet been discounted. The alibi given by Lambert and substantiated by the Lockwood family with whom he said he dined the night of the attack, has not been broken. This despite the fact that two restaurant waitresses claimed they saw him shortly after the assault is supposed to have occurred. Keith in Stamford.

Warren I. Keith, of this town, a personal friend of Lambert's, yesterday went to Stamford to learn what he could of the case for Lambert's two aunts who live at 16 Chestnut street here. Keith sought the advise of a prominent Stamford attorney but he was not engaged to defend Lambert. Keith simply investigated the case for his own and for Lambert's aunts' satisfaction. He talked with no one other than the attorney and members of the police department.

After returning here Keith said that he believed Lambert would be released some time today. He said that even police officials admitted that the case against Lambert was not strong. The death of Miss Bays aroused so much feeling in and around Stamford that the authorities do not care to release his suspect until they are positive he is innocent.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL MURDERED IN HOME

Body Found Under Bed by Mother—To Quiz Her Boy Friends.

New York, Nev. 3.—Schoolboy friends of pretty 15-year-old Alice Josst, a dark-haired sophomore of Richmond high school, Staten Island, who was found beaten and strangled in the bedroom of her home, were questioned today by the police who were attempting to solve one of the most baffling murder mysteries in years.

Alice's body, fully clothed, was found partly under the bed, pillows and a comforter were piled on the floor in an effort to conceal the body. On the right side of her head was the mark of a blunt instrument. Around her neck, wound about twice, was a piece of insulated wire from an electric iron.

None of the doors or windows in the Josst home had been forced. The girl was alone when she was slain.

Waves of Murders

The strangling of Alice was one of a wave of unprecedented murders that have swept the nation in the last thirty-six hours. They included:

1. The Ruth Davis slaying in Laporte, Ind. Ruth, who was 21, was shot and killed when she rejected a proposal of marriage from Clarence Davis. He then committed suicide.
2. Aurin Bugbee, 28, shot and killed his estranged wife and wounded her woman companion in Atlanta.
3. In Louisville, Pat Thompson of Cincinnati, shot his sweetheart, Mrs. Katherine Forsting, to death and killed himself.
4. An unidentified ax murderer killed a family of three in Santa Rosa, Calif.
5. In Ithaca, N. Y., Michael Meeker, a farmer was arrested, accused of the murder of his 14-year-old son in St. Louis.
6. In Chicago the nude body of a woman was found on the beach of Lake Michigan, this morning and police were endeavoring to determine whether death was accidental, premeditated or whether she had been slain.

The Fire Mystery

Lake Forest, Ill., authorities, meanwhile, are confronted with a baffling mystery in the "furnace death" of Miss Elfrida Knaak, college graduate and student of psychology, and at Atlanta preparations are under way for the trial of two former Oglethorpe University students accused of two hold-up murders "for a thrill."

DOCTOR LIVED TO 100 BY KEEPING BODY IN LONGITUDINAL POSITION

Vienna, Oct. 3.—A certain Doctor Julius Tichweh who recently died here at the age of one hundred and nine, often declared that the secret of his longevity consisted in taking a horizontal position as often as possible during the day, and naturally, every night.

Whenever it was possible throughout the day, he would place his head in the direction of the North Pole and the remainder of his body parallel to the meridian line. The doctor stated that this position corresponded to the direction of the magnetic current running through the surface of the earth and thus permitted a kind of magnetism of the iron mass contained in the body.

HERALD WILL GIVE ELECTION RETURNS

Extensive Plans Made for Announcing Results of Tuesday's Poll.

The Herald has made plans to give complete service on election returns Tuesday night, November 6, from its plant on Blaisell street. As soon as returns begin to come in they will be announced, flashed on to a screen, and otherwise broadcast to the crowds who gather to hear the results of the election. Reports will reach the Herald through special arrangements with the International News Service and through special arrangements with the Republican State committee headquarters in Hartford. Radio returns will also be received and broadcast at the Blaisell street plant.

The Herald in previous elections has been able to give its readers the very best of service on the returns from the polls. This is made possible by the cooperation of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, William H. Hildreth, manager of the Southern New England Telephone Company, and Clarence G. Willard, secretary of the Republican State Central Committee.

Elaborate Preparations

International News Service will furnish the Herald the most comprehensive election report in its history. Elaborate preparations have been made to cover the election in all its phases—accurately, quickly and impartially. Results from every state in the Union will be flashed and bulletined as rapidly as official counts are available.

Hundreds of extra correspondents have been added to the great I. N. S. news-gathering organization. They will work in cooperation with the regional bureaus strategically located throughout the country for prompt distribution of news. The results, down to the minutest detail, will be instantly relayed to the main trunk circuits extending from Portland, Maine, to San Diego, Calif., with connecting loops to other territories. In addition, hundreds of miles of special wires leading to the principal bureaus will be utilized to deliver 100 per cent service.

There will be no interruption of service. It will be "around the clock."

Next Day's Paper

In Wednesday's Herald, star writers will interpret, analyze and clarify the statistical details. At New York, where the report will be supervised by Barry Paris, general news manager, the general stories will be written by George R. Holmes, chief of the Washington bureau. William K. Hutchinson will write informative articles showing the make-up of the new Senate as revealed by the returns. William S. Neal will handle the make-up of the new House of Representatives. Raymond I. Borst will write the headlines and James L. Kilgallen will write feature and color stories.

Larry Sullivan will be assigned to Hoover headquarters at Palo Alto, Calif.

For or expense will be spared to make the election night report of the highest newspaper value. Every man and woman of prominence, whose reaction to the result of the election is of public interest, will be covered. Every significant development in the returns will be flashed.

NOTRE DAME'S GAME.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 3.—Knute Rockne and his nomads invaded the Franklin Field gridiron of the University of Pennsylvania today for a battle with the Penn State Lions.

Nude Body of a Woman Found on Chicago Beach

Chicago, Nov. 3.—The nude body of a woman, about 30 years old, was found on a sandy strip of beach on the north side of Chicago today. Two plain gold wedding rings, one bearing the initials W. G. E. to K. B. W., were the only marks of identification on the body.

A piece of checkered gingham was clutched tightly in the woman's right hand, and a portion of a black silk stocking was found around her left ankle.

A cursory examination failed to reveal the cause of death. There were no marks of violence on the body.

A Monument to English Heroes of the Somme

More than 7000 Englishmen gave their lives here during one tragic month of 1916. This monument, erected by the Guards division at Les Boeufs, France, near Albert on the Somme, now commemorates their sacrifice. Major General Sir George Geoffrey Fielding officiated at the unveiling the other day, and here you see a general view of the ceremonies.

College Boys "Steal" Whole Subway Train

New York, Nov. 3.—Three hundred over-enthusiastic Columbia students, flushed with the excitement of a "pep meeting" held at the university last night on the eve of the football game with Cornell, "captured" a subway train early today and then paraded through the Times Square district to work off their enthusiasm.

Yelling, waving torches and clanking cowbells, the collegians boarded a subway train without paying any fares, turned out the lights and stopped the train every few minutes by pulling the emergency cord. The other passengers got out immediately and scurried for safety.

In the theatrical district the army of students amused themselves by pushing automobiles in the opposite direction to which they had been headed. One "notorious" "ordered" two policemen to arrest the 300 rioters. The two bluecoats, somewhat dubious at the prospect, complied with the students' demands. Then the others commandeered another subway train and finished the celebration by serenading the girls at Barnard college.

CAMP MEMORIAL DEDICATED TODAY

Gateway at Yale Commemorated to the "Father of American Football."

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 3.—The name of Walter Camp that stood enshrined in the hearts of a million American boys, today was commemorated to gridiron posterity with the dedication here of the Walter Camp Memorial Gateway, the national memorial to the "Father of American Football."

The memorial stands at the entrance to Walter Camp Field, at Yale University where Camp won his nationwide fame as football player and coach. The cost of the memorial gateway was shared by Yale Alumni and universities and 27 preparatory and high schools through the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Many Notables Present

Attended by educational notables, committees representing the university and the national association and Mrs. Walter Camp, the dedicatory exercises were held at the field this morning. E. K. Hall of New York city, chairman of association committee, in presenting the memorial said:

"This is an occasion unique in the annals of college history. A great American university has named her playgrounds in honor of one of her distinguished sons. A noble memorial in the form of a massive gateway has been erected at the entrance to these grounds, carrying this man's name carved in great blocks of stone.

"No man has done more for American sport than Walter Camp. He dedicated his life to the American boy and the boys of America today join in dedicating this monument to his memory. He put romance, chivalry and idealism into their sports."

Other speakers who lauded Camp's contribution to American boyhood and sportsmanship included Prof. George H. Nettleton of Yale, S. Brinckerhoff Thorne, of New York, chairman of the Yale committee and President James Rowland Angell of Yale.

SMITH'S FINAL SPEECH TO BE MADE TONIGHT

Last Address at Madison Square Garden—Republicans Pleased With Coolidge Endorsement.

New York, Nov. 3.—The final salvo of campaign oratory will be fired tonight throughout the nation, signaling the end of the most turbulent and remarkable presidential contest in the history of American politics.

The tumult and the shouting is just about over. Ahead lies decision.

Gov. Smith will close his active campaigning tonight in his own New York with a speech in Madison Square Garden which will be a summation of his whole fight for the presidency. It will be a smashing, aggressive speech and an historic occasion, with the entire nation in the audience.

While Gov. Smith is delivering his final thrust, his opponent, Herbert Hoover, will be travelling westward on the longest journey that any presidential candidate ever undertook in order to cast his vote.

Hoover's last speech Secretary Hoover delivered his last major speech of the campaign in St. Louis last night before an enthusiastic audience that hailed him as the next president, and heard from him an outline of what he expects to accomplish after the Fourth of March next.

No sooner was the Republican candidate off the air than Gov. Smith was on it. His next to last major speech concerned itself with the state campaign in New York where Gov. Smith's personally drafted candidate for governor is making a whirlwind fight on the Smith platform. It is unusual for a presidential candidate on the eve of election to participate in a state campaign. But Gov. Smith is an unusual candidate. And New York is vital to his cause next Tuesday.

President Coolidge, whose Sphinx-like silence through the campaign has puzzled and disappointed the Hoover leaders, got into the fight at last with a statement endorsing the Hoover candidacy in warm terms and predicting its success.

President's Words

"You have shown your fitness to be President," Mr. Coolidge said in a telegram to Mr. Hoover at the conclusion of his St. Louis speech. "Your success in the campaign seems assured, and I shall turn over the great office of President to your keeping sure that it will be in competent hands in which the welfare of the people will be secure."

The Coolidge message both surprised and elated the Republican managers, for the silence of Mr. Coolidge concerning the Hoover candidacy has been a continual source of embarrassment to them, with almost one voice they united in declaring today that if anything had been needed to clinch matters the Coolidge telegram did it.

The Democratic reply to this was that Mr. Coolidge's hearty endorsement of Mr. Hoover would not have any particular effect at any time, and besides it came too late.

This country has always assumed that Mr. Coolidge was for Mr. Hoover, "certainly no one thought he was for Gov. Smith. It means nothing."

However much it may or may not mean the Hoover managers were mighty glad to have the Coolidge telegram today. They believe it means a lot.

ALL SHAKERS TO VOTE FOR HERBERT HOOVER.

Pittsfield, Mass., Nov. 3.—Every Shaker in the town of Hancock in the Mt. Lebanon community eligible to vote has registered this year and it was reported today that they were 100 per cent. strong for Herbert Hoover for president. It was the first time in 52 years that the Shakers have registered, the last time being when they were out for their fellow townsman Samuel J. Tilden in his fight against Rutherford B. Hayes.

HINT OF MURDER IN BURNING CASE

Autopsy Shows Miss Knaak Had Received a Heavy Blow on Head.

Lake Forest, Ill., Nov. 3.—Following a report of Coroner John L. Taylor that Elfrida Knaak had suffered a blow over the head which caused concussion of the brain before the burns which proved fatal were inflicted, the investigation into the circumstances surrounding her death was intensified today on the theory that she had been murdered.

The findings of a light colored hairpin (Elfrida was a blond) in the stairway leading to the attic of the Lake Bluff police station late yesterday, only added to the baffling mystery.

Police Theory

For authorities had come to the conclusion that the girl had been attacked and burned before she was brought to the police station. They base their deduction on tests of a girl who found it impossible to stand unaided on the floor of the basement, provided her leg hit the furnace as Elfrida claimed she had done.

The girl conducting the experiments also closed the basement doors and screamed at the top of her voice, but her cries were not heard outside, probably because the basement was practically sound proof.

Other elements which cast further doubt upon the victim's story that she had voluntarily placed herself upon a fiery altar for the purpose of "purification" in the police station furnace, were the failure to discover any traces of her hat, coat or other clothing in the ashes of the furnace. She was nude when discovered last Monday morning and asserted she had burned her clothing in the furnace where she had committed self-immolation. And there had been no odor of burning flesh at the time of her discovery.

In an interview with Charles W. Hitchcock, the man for whose love the girl had declared she had sought "purification by fire," Elfrida practically repudiated her previous statements that the torture by flame had been self-inflicted.

Hitchcock visited her a few hours before her death yesterday morning, and when he asked: "Did you burn to death?" she answered with the single word: "No."

This negative answer to a question upon which the entire mystery hinges has caused authorities to give credence to the murder theory.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER IN SWAP OF HUSBANDS

"Most Sordid Case Ever Laid Before Me" Says New Jersey Judge.

Atlantic City, Nov. 3.—"This is the most disgusting case ever laid before me. The absolute lack of morality shown is appalling," said Vice-Chancellor Robert H. Ingersoll here today in dismissing the petition of Claude E. Vanaman of Millville, N. J., for annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Clay Pole Vanaman of Leesburg, N. J.

The case involved an agreement between two men whereby one left his wife and married her mother, while the other married the wife, whose custody Vanaman sought, although he denied being their father. He asserted he married Mrs. Vanaman twenty-five years ago, but that at that time she was already married to Edward M. Ford, who employed her mother as housekeeper.

TWO BADLY INJURED WHEN PLANE CRASHES

Pilot Loses His Way in Fog; Five Other Passengers Are Hurt.

Chico, California, Nov. 3.—Two persons were seriously injured and five others were badly shaken up when the pilot of a west coast air transport plane lost his way in a heavy fog during the night after leaving the airport at Corning and crashed into a mountain 25 miles east of Chico.

One woman passenger on the plane escaped serious injury. The injured were rushed to the General Hospital in Chico for treatment.

HOOVER MAKES PLEDGE TO AID THE FARMERS

Birthplace of Hoover Is Certain He'll Win

West Branch, Iowa, Nov. 3.—With the serenity of its Quaker tradition, West Branch, Iowa, today awaited the "big moment" which may make it immortal as the birthplace of a President of the United States.

So sure is this Iowa village of 800 persons that it will go down in history as the cradle of Herbert Hoover, President, that it has quietly made arrangements for a monster celebration next Thursday, two days after the election, intended to shatter the usual calm.

Mayor N. F. Olsen announced today that daylight fireworks have been purchased. Gov. John Hammill invited to speak, and the countryside for miles around notified that West Branch is ready to "stand or treat."

Signs of the celebration were in evidence today. Flags and hunting bedecked the streets, stores and residences when "Herbie" came home last August to retrace boyish trails, were being hauled out of storage today.

"We won't take it down until Friday, either," the mayor said with a calm assurance.

The little house where the Republican nominee was born was getting an extra polishing for next week.

Mrs. Jennie Sellers, who lives in the Old Hoover home, and who served Mr. Hoover with a real country breakfast, including peaches, preserves, hot biscuit and fried potatoes, on homecoming day, is seeing to that.

PLEA OF INSANITY FOR THRILL KILLERS

Coming Trial of Atlanta Youths Promises to Be Battle of Alienists.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 3.—The impending life trial of George Harsh, self-styled "thrill" bandit-slayer, today promised to settle into a battle between scientists.

As defense psychiatrists resumed an examination of the youthful scion in gloomy Fulton Tower, it was learned the state intends to retain two alienists in the case.

While it was strongly indicated counsel for Harsh would enter an insanity plea, the defense plans of his alleged accomplice, Richard Gallo, whom he implicated in a confession to police, were kept secret.

All the latter has steadfastly denied any connection with the murders of Willard Smith and E. H. Meeks, two store clerks killed in hold-ups here, it was expected he would simply plead "not guilty."

Father As Lawyer

Close friends of the Gallo family today said Col. James A. Gallo, U. S. S., retired, Miami attorney, probably would assist in the defense of his 18-year-old son.

It was reported today Harsh's counsel was preparing a motion asking for the removal of the prisoner to the prison hospital for "two weeks observation."

However, the motion has not been presented to a court judge yet, and Dr. Frank Eskridge, the defense alienist, planned privately to question Harsh at the jail today.

In the midst of the examination of Harsh, reports came from Milwaukee, his former home that his father, the late George Harsh, Sr., millionaire shoe manufacturer, died seven years ago, the victim of a brain tumor.

The trial of the youths has been tentatively set to start Nov. 13, but it was believed in Court House circles either the defense or prosecution would seek a delay in order to complete their cases.

In Last Major Speech of Campaign Nominee Promises to Solve the Problems "Before the Next Harvest" If Elected; Mon- ster Crowd Cheers Him In St. Louis.

Aboard Hoover Special, Enroute to Pueblo, Nov. 3.—Herbert Hoover is pledged today to deal definitely with the bugaboo of farm relief "before the next harvest." This was the last word of the Republican presidential nominee to the great American grain belt, delivered last night at St. Louis.

As he sped eastward through Kansas and Colorado today en route to his home in Palo Alto he awaited with confidence, according to his intimates aboard their "Victory Special," the reaction of the agricultural battle ground to his promise. "I would call a special session in order that we might speedily arrive at a determination of the question before the next harvest."

St. Louis Speech

"I am hopeful that in the December session of Congress it will be possible to reach that solution," he declared to a audience of 17,000 in St. Louis coliseum to which he had outlined his specific relief plan of four distinct projects or methods.

"However, as I have already said, if this is not possible, I would call a special session in order that we might speedily arrive at a determination of the question before the next harvest."

Hoover's program calls for these projects:

1. To secure stability of prices as regards the existing violent seasonal fluctuations.
2. To reorganize the entire marketing system for all agricultural products to eliminate the present widespread differences between producer and consumer.
3. To increase farmer protection tariff.
4. To improve transportation to reduce carrying marketing cost.

Closely related to this program, Hoover declared, was the corollary of preserving the current high purchasing power of consumers through maintenance of prosperity. This, he declared, can be achieved only through adherence to the principle of the protective tariff.

"If you want the protective principle preserved, and if you want it strengthened on farm products, it should be entrusted to the party that has fought for and defended it for 7 years."

Save for half hour speaking stop tonight at Pueblo, Colo., the home of Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee, and a final election eve radio appeal, Hoover's campaign for the presidency ended with his St. Louis speech. "In that spirit I end it."

Reads His Message

Immediately before he had read with an unwonted oratorical effect, a portion from the message he had telegraphed to the Republican national convention last June the day after his nomination.

Cheered and applauded by the greatest throng which has awaited him in any campaign appearance, and this not excluding the tumultuous reception accorded him at Madison Square Garden ten days ago, Hoover left St. Louis in high spirits. From his arrival from the Missouri side of the Mississippi river bridge at a foot of Washington avenue, at 7:40, until his special pulled out from an outlying Missouri Pacific station at 10:40, he was constantly in the midst of wildly applauding throngs. Time and again his exposition of his views on farm relief, inland waterways, food control, prosperity and his philosophy of government, was punctuated by prolonged applause. Street crowds along the six mile automobile route added their voices to the enthusiastic greeting as he sped from train to Coliseum and onward to the train again.

Hoover's brief talk at Pueblo tonight will be devoted to problems of regional interest in the Rocky mountain states.

ONE KILLED IN CRASH

Chicago, Nov. 3.—One man was killed and another was probably fatally injured in a wreck on the Baltimore & Ohio right of way on the south side of Chicago.

Andrew Hattenbiller, 50, of Chicago, a switchman, was the man killed. Gregory Fay, 41, also of Chicago, is not expected to live.

The wreck occurred when a B. & O. freight was rammed by a Rock Island switch train running on the B. & O. right of way. Fay and Hattenbiller were riding in the caboose of the freight train.

MANUFACTURERS TO ELECT HERE

E. Kent Hubbard Renominated for President—Meet Here on Wednesday.

At their annual Meeting to be held at the plant of Chene Brothers here on November 7, the manufacturers of this state will elect officers for the coming year and directors to fill the vacancies created by those whose terms have expired.

E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut for the past twelve years, has been nominated for reelection to the presidency. John H. Goss, Vice-President of the Scovill Manufacturing Company of Waterbury has been nominated for Vice-President of the Association, and Robert C. Buell of Hartford, has been nominated for the position of Secretary and Treasurer.

Officers are elected for one year and directors for four years. Senator R. Leland Keeney, Treasurer of the Somerville Manufacturing Company, who was elected by the Board of Directors to fill the unexpired term of R. T. Jones upon his retirement, has been nominated for reelection to the Board of Directors.

E. S. Davis, Secretary and Treasurer of Rogers & Hubbard Manufacturing Company, Middletown, has been nominated to represent Middlesex County on the Board of Directors, and E. G. Buckland, Vice-President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, and Frank H. Lee, President of the Frank H. Lee Company, Danbury, have been nominated for election as Directors-at-large for the next four years. The Board of Directors of the Association is made up of sixteen manufacturers, eight representing each of the counties in the state, and eight Directors-at-large. The election of officers and directors will constitute one of the most important features of the business session of the annual meeting of the Association as it is felt that upon the wise selection of officers and directors largely depends the continued success of the manufacturing industry in Connecticut, through continued able leadership and the following of the sound policies that have made the industry what it is today in Connecticut.

The above nominations were made by a committee consisting of Col. I. M. Ullman of the Strouse Adler Company, New Haven; Frank R. Appel, of the Warrenton Woolen Company, Torrington; W. R. Webster of the Bridgeport Brass Company, Bridgeport; F. C. Luce of the Cyril Johnson Woolen Company, Stafford Springs; and T. M. Russell of the Russell Manufacturing Company of Middletown.

FIND 325 NEW VOTERS TRANSFERRED HERE

Town Clerk Turkington and the registrars of voters last night met and cleared up the voting lists. They found it necessary to send out notices to various towns and cities concerning 325 men and women who had been made voters in other places. Twenty-seven Manchester voters have been removed to other towns in the state. Manchester thus gains 298 votes through changes of residence.

ONLY FOUR TO BE MADE

There are only four persons to be made voters at the special meeting of the board of selectmen, registrars and town clerk on Monday, at the day preceding election. Of this number only one applied through the Republican registrar, the three being presented to Louis Breen, Democratic registrar.

UNIQUE CHURCH SERVICE SUNDAY

Joash Day Brings Fred Patton, Famed Baritone, to South Methodist Church.

Unusual interest centers in the appearance here tomorrow of Fred Patton, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Mr. Patton will sing both morning and evening at the South Methodist Episcopal church. The occasion is "Joash Day" when a unique scriptural ceremonial will be held in which over 100 will have some part.

Tomorrow's service will be somewhat of a subscription day, because during the service it is hoped to raise enough through pledges to wipe out the $15,000 debt which now stands on the edifice. The burning of the notes will be occasion for an inspiring service in itself.

25 YEARS IN EMPLOY, FIRM REWARDS HIM

Andrew Jespersen, of North School street, for 25 continuous years an employee of the Carlyle Johnson Machine Company, was yesterday presented with a sizeable check in commemoration of the record, by Scott H. Simon, president of the company. The check was presented at closing time yesterday in the factory with all the employees gathered around to honor Mr. Jespersen.

Mr. Simon made a short address in presenting the award to Mr. Jespersen and the recipient was surprised to find that the occasion had been remembered by his employer, and his services were so well appreciated.

Shortly after the company organized Mr. Jespersen came to work for it on November 2, 1903, when the company was located at 356 Aylwin street, Hartford, Conn., on the third and fourth floors above the old Calhoun Show Print Co., now the building next to the Bond Hotel on the west. When Scott H. Simon, the present president of the Carlyle Johnson Mach. Co., came to Hartford, Conn., from Youngstown, Ohio, in February, 1904, he found Mr. Jespersen busily engaged looking after the shop, assisting the pattern-maker, and taking care of things in general.

When the company moved to Manchester, Conn., on April 1, 1909, there were busy times for Mr. Jespersen, and he came to Manchester with the company, and settled here. Since that time he has handled very efficiently the supervising of the packing, cartoning and shipping of the products of the Carlyle Johnson Machine Co. As a shipping clerk and overseer of this department his work has been of the highest caliber.

WAPPING

Miss Nellie Palozie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Palozie, of Seaside road and Frank Idett of this town were married at St. Catherine's church, Broad Brook last week. The Rev. Father Cooney performed the ceremony. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed. They will reside with Miss Annie Barry.

The play which the Federated Workers are to give held their rehearsal at the parsonage last Wednesday evening.

The Sunday school board held their regular meeting at the church last Thursday evening with a good attendance. They made plans for the next Sunday school social which will be held at the parish house on December 14.

Ward Stiles was appointed as chairman of the games committee and he is to choose his own assistants. The refreshments committee is Mrs. Henry S. Nevers and her Sunday school class. After the business was completed Miss Edith Welker from the Connecticut Council of Religious Education was present and helped form a teaching-training class. The subject will be "Story Telling."

S. A. BAND'S CONCERT TO BE MUSIC TREAT

A copy of the program which will be rendered by the Men's Cadet Band from the Salvation Army Training College in New York city in the Citadel on Saturday evening, Nov. 10, shows that the concert will be a musical treat. It includes, besides numerous selections by the band as a unit, several instrumental solo selections and vocal solos by the bandmaster.

A male chorus composed of members of the band will sing two numbers. One of the features of the program will be a trombone quintette. Cadet Edgar Heard, son of Adjutant Joseph Heard, commander of the Manchester Corps, is a member of this quintette. Two of its features will be a euphonium solo by Sergeant J. Rohrig and an accordion solo by Lt. Edwin Stanton. The concert will be in charge of Lt. Col. William Barrett, Mrs. William Barrett, Adjutant Nichols and Commandant and Mrs. Spohn, who were formerly stationed with Manchester Corps. The officers of the band are: Ensign Maltby, Bandmaster Captain Nelson and Lt. Stanton.

TALCOTTVILLE

The Communion of the Lords Supper will be observed at the Sunday morning service, Nov. 4th. Rev. and Mrs. F. P. Bacheiler have returned from South Hadley Falls, where they attended the installation service of their son, the Rev. Theodore Bacheiler, pastor of the First Congregational church of that place.

Miss Ruth Ellsworth was a recent guest of Miss Dorothy Wood. Miss Ruth Hayden of Hartford has been the guest of Miss Frances Bacheiler.

About 110 attended the Hallowe'en social at Talcott Hall on Wednesday evening. The judges Mrs. Hiram Lovell, Miss Frances H. Bacheiler and Miss Ruth Hayden made the following awards: Prettiest costume, Far East maid, Miss Gertrude Gibbs, funniest, Mr. and Mrs. Katzenjammer, Mrs. Henry Trautman and Mrs. Fred Pettis, most original, Miss Emily Rice who wore "most ingenious" "mixed" costume, one half of which portrayed a woman's costume complete in every detail, and the other side represented a member of the "steamer sex". Special awards for excellence in disguise were made to Miss Elizabeth Douglas, who portrayed a lady of fashion in by-gone days with beplumed hat and small parasol, and to William Reinken-dorf of Hartford who impersonated "His Satanic Majesty". Miss Dorothy Wood who played for the march dressed in Colonial costume received special mention in the class of pretty costumes. Children's prizes were given to Miss Harriet Rice, prettiest and Miss Faith Blinn, most original. There were many others who deserved special recognition. The Golden Rule club cooperation in this affair.

The regular meeting of the Home Branch of the Missionary Society will be held on Tuesday afternoon. Miss Alice Dexter will address the meeting on the subject of her recent trip to Europe.

HUNDREDS TAKE LOOK AT VOTING MACHINES

Uninitiated Voters Get Practice Experience With Device At Town Hall.

Though no close count was kept of the number of persons taking advantage of the voting machine demonstration in the Municipal Building yesterday it was estimated that more than 500 persons went through the form of experimental voting during the day.

This morning the inexperienced and the unsure went to the demonstration in larger numbers than during the night hours yesterday and by 11 o'clock more than 200 had learned the ropes. Two machines are in use. They are in charge of George Murdock and Michael O'Connell, who explain the process of machine voting to the uninitiated.

An effort to set the machines in the most convenient possible place in the lobby resulted in learning that there are places and places for voting machines, as it was discovered that the machines were overlooked from points overhead, thus rendering ineffective the provision for secrecy. They were moved so that the privacy of the voter is secured, though the light in the second station is not as good as in the first one.

The demonstration will continue until 7 o'clock this evening.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL MURDERED IN HOME

The slaying of Alice Josst has left the police without a single clue. The girl's body was found by her mother, Mrs. Lucie Josst, a widow, upon her return from her work in Manhattan last night. The mother rushed screaming from the house. "When I left home yesterday morning Alice expected to take a music lesson nearby our home, practice on the piano for a time and then pay a visit to our friends, the Browns," the mother said. Neighbors reported they had heard the piano playing but had not seen Alice leave her home. They had seen no one entering or leaving the house. Alice, however, had many friends, including high school boys. She bore a most excellent reputation. The police said they had the names of several schoolboys who were thought to be friendly with Alice and questioned them at their homes. It was possible, the police hinted, that one of them might be locked up as a suspect in the murder. Alice's absence from school yesterday remained unexplained. She remained away Thursday, after having received her mother's consent. When the body was found none of her jewelry, which, however, was not valuable, had been touched. Detectives were unable this morning to find a high school boy who showed her unusual attention but they were continuing their investigation.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION TO MEET NOVEMBER 9

The Young People's Union of Manchester and vicinity will hold a meeting of the combined societies at the Center Congregational church Friday evening, November 9. The speaker of the evening will be Rev. George S. Brookes, pastor of the Union Congregational church in Rockville. Rev. Brookes' subject will be "How to Meet Life's Challenge."

Music for the affair will be furnished by the Swedish Lutheran church. A social time with refreshments will follow the session. The following churches of the union are asked to notify the secretary, Miss Frances Howe, of Hamilton street, by Tuesday just how many each church will send to the meeting: Center Congregational, St. Mary's Episcopal, South Methodist Episcopal, Swedish Lutheran, Second Congregational, North Methodist Episcopal, Federated, Wapping, and Congregational, Talcottville.

IN STEP WITH WHOLE WORLD TOWARD MANKIND'S BETTER DAY

The International Sunday School Lesson for November 4 is "World's Temperance Sunday."—Romans 13:1-4.

Without relation to any nation's political campaign, the International Sunday School Lesson Committee every year recognizes World's Temperance Sunday, which has been fathered from the first by all the churches, Protestant and Roman Catholic, is studied from the Christian and Spiritual standpoint. Father Matthew ranks with Frances Willard as a pioneer leader in this crusade. Before ever the present new mood of internationalism had come over mankind, this battle for the betterment of society was being fought on a world-wide front.

Hand in hand with the movement of missions has gone the struggle for a sober society. There is a temperance or Prohibition movement in every land on earth today.

The case against strong drink has been proved up to the hilt. Wherever it prevails it has hurt humanity. Because of concern for little children and for mothers and for mankind and for homes, the followers of Jesus have been led into this war against alcohol. Concededly, the one valid argument in favor of liquor has been that of self-indulgence. Persons who refuse to yield allegiance to the Christian law of self-denial for the sake of others are the opponents assertions of primal human rights. Politicians and office holders sometimes forget that the welfare of the people is a more important business of government than the maintenance of any regime or party or system.

The New-Old World War
Without relation to any nation's political campaign, the International Sunday School Lesson Committee every year recognizes World's Temperance Sunday, which has been fathered from the first by all the churches, Protestant and Roman Catholic, is studied from the Christian and Spiritual standpoint. Father Matthew ranks with Frances Willard as a pioneer leader in this crusade. Concededly, the one valid argument in favor of liquor has been that of self-indulgence. Persons who refuse to yield allegiance to the Christian law of self-denial for the sake of others are the opponents of the temperance movement. On both sides of the struggle there has been bitterness and intolerance and lack of charity and a strange mixture of motives, yet reduced to its elements, the contending forces are brotherly love versus self-indulgence. "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

Fire-Extinguishers Filled With Oil
Philadelphians' shame has been broadcast to the whole world by the recent revelations of the relation of police graft to the liquor traffic, a partnership that developed long ago in the days of the legalized saloon. So sensational have been the exposures of widespread police corruption, high and low, that even calloused and indifferent citizens have been aroused. When law-enforcement goes into partnership with law-breaking, it is exactly as if a building's fire-extinguishers were filled with kerosene. Supposed protection becomes only an increased peril.
What is there about this business of booze that causes it to seek alliance with politics and with the police? The trail of the traffic has been traced, in many countries, up into cabinets of governments and courts of law. There is abundant reason, in both America and Europe, why the social problem of temperance should have become the political issue of Prohibition. No nation may serenely contemplate the possibility of its re-ex-

BY GEORGE HENRY DOLE
International Sunday-School Lesson Text, Nov. 4.
Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.—Rom. 13:10.

The intent of the Constitution of the United States is that all citizens shall be equal before the law. Sometimes doubts are expressed as to equality behind the law. On the one hand there is fear of an errant majority; and on the other hand there is dread of an autocracy of wealth. Most laws passed are to prevent abuses. Laws may restrain injustice, but they do not reform. Government cannot be much superior to the average morality. Love is the only real reformatory power. Love worketh no ill.
No one ever did or ever will break a natural or a spiritual law. One may break himself against the laws of nature and of God, but the laws remain unchanged. Just in the degree that one casts himself against a stone wall, the wall bruises him. One may break his body by casting himself from a tower, but the law of gravity remains without a fracture. Creation's laws are immutable. Our solace is not that God will change His laws in accommodation to our notions, but that His laws are the fulfillment of infinite mercy and love. God's laws seem hard only because we have gone against them, knowingly or unknowingly, and the violation of them reacts against us. Think of them not as prison bars, but as love itself. God in fulfilling His laws, always provides through them a greater measure of His love. Love worketh no ill.
If one cast against the laws of nature or spirit, he is in some way hurt, whether or not he knows it. If he knows the hurt, it is called punishment, and some ascribe it to the Lord. The Lord never punishes anyone. Evil punishes itself. God is love, and love ever works to lessen the punishment that one brings upon himself. If one overworks or overcasts, or abuses his body, the laws of health try to restore the body to vigor and health. Likewise God continually operates to bring the soul into heavenly order and to bless with His peace.
Think not of the commandments as cold, arbitrary mandates. They are the laws according to which God's power, light, love and joy flow. They are the laws of God's love. Love worketh no ill. It is the fulfilling of the law.

AS TO INTOLERANCE

No possible exception is to be taken to the argument that a candidate for the Presidency should be entitled to consideration for that office on the basis of character, experiences, ability and statesmanship, without the slightest reference to his religious affiliations or lack of any religious belief whatever. The Constitution of the United States provides distinctly for just that thing. It forbids any religious test as a qualification for public office.

It is the unshakable belief of this newspaper that any person voting against Governor Smith for the reason that he is a communicant of the Catholic church is not a good American within the test of Constitutional adherence. So much for that.

Every argument is valid which declares that any voter has every right to cast his ballot against Governor Smith, notwithstanding that he is a Catholic. The Constitution does not work just one way in this matter—it works impartially in two directions. It not only precludes the denial of office to a candidate on account of his religion; it precludes electing him to office for the same reason.

It sweeps religion out of the picture altogether, as much in its positive as in its negative capacity. This being the case, it goes without saying that the candidate has no more right to subject the voter to a religious test than the voter has to subject the candidate to a religious test. Nor have the supporters of a candidate any more right than the candidate himself to subject other voters to the test of religion.

Every supporter of Herbert Hoover in this election has every right to protest against the assertion, made so often by adherents of Governor Smith, that if the latter is defeated it will be because of religious intolerance. Because, in order to escape such a charge of religious intolerance, it would be necessary for the Hoover voter to throw away all his political beliefs and principles and vote contrary to them. And here we would have the religious test applied not to one individual but to millions.

Governor Smith will receive, on Tuesday next, beyond shadow of doubt, the votes of millions of non-Catholics. He will probably receive as many non-Catholic votes, very likely more, than were received in 1924 by John W. Davis or in 1920 by Governor Cox. We do not believe that he will be elected. But neither was Mr. Davis nor Governor Cox elected. We believe that Governor Smith will fall of election simply because there are not enough Democrats in the country to elect him.

If he were a Methodist, a Baptist, a Unitarian or any other kind of a Protestant, we should expect to see him defeated for precisely the same reason we now expect to see him defeated.

When a Smith adherent defends his champion's right to be President of the United States without respect to his religious faith he is utterly within his rights. When he asserts that a vote against Smith is a vote animated by intolerance and bigotry he is as wrong as wrong can be.

In this contest and in every other one for public office in America religion is out—both ways.

CLOWN TALK

Many queer things and some very silly ones are done and said in political campaigns. One of the queerest and it seems to us one of the silliest, in the present contest, was the persistent asseveration by the promoters of the marching demonstration for Governor Smith in New York yesterday, when the Democratic candidate paraded from the Battery to Fifty-ninth street, that there was "no politics" in the affair.

delivered an entire speech on the Lincolnism. "You can fool some of the people all the time and all the people some of the time but you can't fool all the people all the time." Which suggests that such nonsense as the pretense that a political parade hasn't any politics in it can't fool any of the people any of the time.

Not that there was anything especially evil or injurious to anybody in the foolish bit of make-believe—many things said and done in the campaign have been far more reprehensible. But it is interesting as demonstrating the perfectly infantile minds of some of the people who get into political management and into positions of sufficient consciousness to get themselves quoted in the newspapers.

Before Tuesday probably some of these individuals will be asserting that there is no politics in Governor Smith's candidacy. Well, even that wouldn't be so silly as the parade buncomb, for in a sense it might have a meaning.

GOOD OLD JIMMY

Well if here isn't Jimmy! Good gracious Peter, Jimmy! Where you been? Friends, meet Jimmy—Jimmy Cox, Jimmy—sure, you remember Jimmy—ran for President, eight years ago. Yes, yes, yes—of course—Democratic ticket. Can't remember? Well that isn't very polite—might say you do, anyhow!

To be sure Jimmy hasn't been making much noise in this campaign, but just to show he's alive he pops up along in the evening of the rules and pipes one speech on "standpattism" down at Lexington, Kentucky. Sounds just exactly like one of those good old 1920 outbursts—maybe it is one of them, warmed over. Plenty of Woodrow Wilson in it and no Smith at all. That would be Jimmy—he would, Jimmy was the Al Smith of Ohio. He owned Dayton. He owned Cleveland. He owned Cincinnati. He was the Big Boy of the Big Boys—a Democrat, and three times elected governor in a Republican state. Jimmy Cox was the very biggest Big Boy that his state ever produced. Nobody could stop him any more than anybody has been able to stop Al and the brown derby in New York.

Then they got him the nomination for President. Oh, dear, oh dear! Jimmy carried the Solid South, Kentucky and Arkansas. And that's all. He lost his own Ohio by 400,000. Jimmy was a wonderful candidate for governor—and a darned good governor. But as a candidate for President? "Washout" doesn't half fit it.

And now, when he makes a speech, and it gets into a corner of the back pages, folks have to use fire poker to stir their memories before they can just place Jimmy.

It doesn't seem possible that he is saying "Al Smith? Let's see—where did I hear that name before?" But you never can tell.

NOT YET

It is a bit odd to read editorials in American newspapers accepting the practicability of the Zeppelin type of airship as a means of commercial transatlantic transportation, based on the performance of the German ship, and then to read in the later news pages of the same papers the declaration that the Graf Zeppelin is no good for the purpose for which she was built, that it will take faster and stronger airships to make ocean flights commercially practicable and that "we have not conquered the ocean"—with no less a personage making these declarations than Dr. Hugo Eckener himself.

In this whole business of aviation there has been for years a disposition to run before we learn to creep. It has not only cost many hundreds of lives but it is highly probable that it has set back instead of advancing the science of flight. A vast impatience marks the attitude of the optimists. They simply will not wait. They must have the version of established air voyaging realized now, at once.

A few more Lindberghs and Eckeners—experts who are not afraid to say that the day is not yet—are needed.

NEW POLITICAL ERA?

Foreseeing of course the likelihood that a candidate of the Democratic party will prevail over the candidate of the Republican party when that Republican candidate happens to be the ablest one and the most magnetic one presented to the people since Roosevelt, the New York World, sturdy advocate of Democracy and of Governor Smith, is preparing the cushion for the anticipated fall next Wednesday.

Whatever the result, says the World, "the whole complexion of American politics has been altered as irrevocably as it was by the rise of the Jeffersonian Democracy in 1800, of the Jacksonian Democracy in 1832 and of the Republican party between 1856 and 1860."

The World sees, in the Smith candidacy, the entrance of the more recent arrivals in America into the politics of the nation—as a group. They want, according to this view, "enfranchisement"—full and equal participation in the conduct of the nation's affairs.

Fair enough—up to a certain point. Up to the point where a heated minority of the newest Americans seek to push the older Americanism of the map and out of the picture. At that point all fairness ends.

This country has been in the making for three hundred years. It was pretty fairly well made—built out of the strivings and sacrifices and bitter toil of pioneer stock, by the time that some millions of these newer Americans arrived. Some of the newer ones have followed the laborious paths of their predecessors. Some of them, and they are the noisiest and the most assertive, come not to help build, but to occupy the building—to reap in the fields sown by those who came before.

By any chance does the World conceive the likelihood of the older Americans withdrawing from participation in the public affairs of this nation and yielding it to an Americanism so new that it is scarcely, as yet, redeemed from savagery?

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 3.—It pays very well to be the hind legs of a horse—or a mule for that matter.

In a world where over-supply in almost all professions is the order of the day, it's really surprising how few good "hind legs" are in the market. Broadway generally has a standing demand for such talent and yet has on its books but a very few names.

It takes more than passing talent to be the "hind legs of a very few names." It takes more than passing talent to be the "hind legs of a horse." Some of the biggest laughs of many a show have been provided by a man whose face has never been seen by thousands and thousands of audiences. But his legs and feet are extremely familiar.

George All is, perhaps, Broadway's outstanding "hind legs." But All can also be a musical comedy dog, it called upon.

Last season a woman appeared in the "hind legs" role, but no one knew it until the theatrical season had ended. It was in "Peggy Ann." Seymour Felix, the dance director, who cast her for the role, says she was a middle-aged woman whose name did not so much appear on the program and who remains anonymous to this day. For all I know she may be hidden under the eccentric covering of a musical comedy horse at this minute in some Broadway play.

"Yet," reports Seymour, "she was one of the most conscientious members of the cast. Always in makeup, though she didn't need it, and always ahead of time. Perhaps it was her one stage chance."

When Arch Selwyn went to London to look over his forthcoming show, "This Year of Grace," he found that one of the big laughs of the performance was provided by such a trick horse. It was one of the best numbers of its kind he had ever seen.

HEALTH AND DIET ADVICE

By Dr. Frank McCoy Author of "The Fast Way to Health" QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH & DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY DR. MCCOY WHO CAN BE ADDRESSED IN CARE OF THIS PAPER ENCLOSE STAMPED ADDRESSED ENVELOPE FOR REPLY © 1928 DR. MCCOY HEALTH SERVICE LOS ANGELES, CAL.

DISEASES OF THE SPLEEN The exact purposes of the spleen within the body are unknown, but it is the largest of the ductless glands and is supposed to be concerned with the manufacture of the white blood cells and the re-organization of the worn out red corpuscles. The spleen is not absolutely essential to life, and in many cases this organ has been removed and yet the patient lived for many years; but, since it is of lymphatic origin, its removal causes an extensive enlargement of all of the other lymphatic glands of the body.

Sometimes it is possible to find more than one spleen in an individual, there being frequently four or five smaller ones in addition to the larger spleen. This organ lies behind the stomach, its size varies from time to time, being smallest immediately after a meal. It averages about five and a half inches long and three inches wide, and weighs about half a pound.

In diseased conditions the spleen may become enormously enlarged. Since it is very rich in blood vessels, its size depends largely on the amount of blood which it contains. The spleen is frequently attacked by tuberculosis, cancer and syphilis.

Movable Spleen A wandering spleen is frequently found with people who have prolapsed stomachs—most frequently women. There is often no symptom other than an unpleasant dragging sensation in the back and left side. Many cases of supposed tumors of the left side of the abdomen are only prolapsed and enlarged spleens. Should the spleen move about so much as to cause a twisting of the blood vessels coming from the spleen, a serious enlargement, any form of aneurysm may result, which is associated with a high fever and even splenic gangrene or rupture.

Rupture of the Spleen A bursting of this highly vascular organ is usually fatal and sometimes occurs in enlargements of the spleen from typhoid, malaria, abscesses, or the result of accident.

Splenic Anemia A chronic enlargement of the spleen produces a severe anemia. Sometimes this occurs apparently without the association of any other disease. This is usually brought on by the use of excessive amounts of carbohydrates and fats. Enlargement may sometimes be caused by cirrhosis or syphilis of the liver. Sometimes the spleen becomes so enormously enlarged that it causes a distension of the abdomen. The first indication of splenic enlargement is that the patient notices a pallor of the skin and shortness of breath, and perhaps a swelling of the feet. There may be hemorrhages from dilated veins of the esophagus, which may lead to a false diagnosis of stomach ulcers. Sometimes an enlargement of the spleen seems to be an inherited characteristic and not a diseased condition.

Tumors and Cysts Although enlargements of the spleen are frequently found in cases of infections, tumors and cysts are rare. And while an operation to remove the spleen may sometimes be necessary, most cases of splenic enlargement and splenic anemia can be benefited by following a fasting and dieting regime.

Questions and Answers Dark Circles Under Eyes Question: I. H. writes: "I have large black circles under my eyes. As far as I know I am healthy. What do you suppose causes them?" Answer: Rings under the eyes are usually caused by some type of enervation, such as being overtired, hungry, or from a condition of auto-intoxication from food fermenting in the intestines. If you are troubled in this way you should send for my article on auto-intoxication.

Baseball Pitchers' Complaint Question: S. J. writes: "I have a very bad pain in my right arm when I tense the muscles. When I straighten out my arm it has a popping sound. Could baseball pitching have anything to do with this?" Answer: You may have dislocated one of the ligaments in your arm while pitching ball. Professional baseball players often receive osteopathic manipulations in order to keep their arm ligaments in proper position.

Yawning Question: Mrs. H. asks: "Will you kindly advise me what causes yawning? I yawn continually all day, you will supply your lungs with enough oxygen with which you can satisfy the bodily needs." Answer: Yawning is caused from oxygen starvation. If you will take breathing exercises each morning and, at first, occasionally throughout the day, you will supply your lungs with enough oxygen with which you can satisfy the bodily needs.

Year-old son, said: "Look here, you can't use that sort of language in front of the boy." This season the American Symphony Ensemble has turned out the first symphony orchestra to play without a conductor. It has been tried successfully, I am told, in some European cities. The idea is, so I am informed, to let the individual musicians figure out their own interpretations of a composition. When the program is arranged the musicians name a committee to decide on the interpretation. Intense rehearsal is made necessary since there is no baton to guide them.

Music fans from all over the country are coming here to watch the experiment, I am told, GILBERT SWAN.

The Super Automatic Oil Heater Has Been Tested By The United States Government and Its Principles Endorsed "For the first time a really practical solution of the smoke nuisance problem has made its appearance. Old King Coal is discovering that he must now share his throne with another great power, The Oil Burner, and in response to a general demand for information on oil heating, the United States Government, Department of Agriculture, has tested a wide range of oil heating equipment and has prepared a booklet of information, Circular 405, to assist the home owner in deciding what type of apparatus to install. Heating with oil fuel appeals to home-owners," says this report, "because of the relief from furnace attendance, dirt, the uncertainties of coal supply, and the ease of heat regulation." It further states that a standard type of oil heating equipment will prove satisfactory from the viewpoint of cleanliness and convenience. Such a device is free from smoke; it carries no offensive odors; and its operation is so automatic that the whole problem of home heating is reduced to a matter of pressing a button. Even the furnace-room becomes a home-like addition to the architectural features of the house, and many homes now use their cellar furnace-room as a lounge or den, a radio or music room, or for billiards and other entertainment. "The general adoption of oil burners for domestic use would add much comfort and convenience to the life of the individual, just as it is helping to solve an important community problem in the conquest of the smoke evil." Interesting Interviews With Local Folks

Talks with Manchester Business and Professional Men and Women—Intimate Word Pictures of Persons You See Day After Day.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the thirteenth of a series of New local feature stories. They are planned to acquaint the public a bit better with Manchester's business and professional men and women.

THERE has been much praise given to Manchester by strangers here on a visit, but it remained for one to top all records. Within a half hour of his arrival he decided to buy a business here and within three months he was investing in local real estate.

of the service but it was not to be. The officers found that he had no money and that the result that he remained there for the duration of the war despite his desire to become an aviator.

THE VARIOUS STYLES IN JEWELRY NOW

AFTER the war Mr. Jaffe found that his business had depreciated so he had to work hard to build it up again. Later he decided to change to another city and it was then that he inquired of the Jewelers Board of Trade if there were any stores on the market. That was six years ago.

With this brief sketch of his life in the background the local jeweler was asked about modern tendencies in styles as relating to his business. "Diamond engagement rings are now the style with all classes," he said, "whereas in former years only the wealthy could afford them. Other jewelry in mode are the novelties. There has never been such a craze for colors in jewels of all kinds. Conservative manufacturers who for years refused to put out fancy articles are being forced by competition to make watches even in colors. Girls nowadays in their efforts to be attractive go in strong for jewelry.

"The wrist watch is here to stay. The pocket watch will always be bought, however. Even though the wrist watches outsell the other kind, the pocket watch shows a steady gain year by year.

"In wedding rings there has come a great change in styles. First they were heavy and flat. Then they became narrower and rounded in shape. The latest wedding ring is flat instead of rounded and diamonds are set in it.

"As to engagement rings, the young folks want a diamond. Years ago they would buy a four or five dollar ring as an engagement ring but that time is passed.

"When an engagement ring is bought nowadays do the boy and girl come in to buy it as in former years."

"No, the boy comes alone. He understands the styles as well as the girl. He wants to surprise her and if they came together it would not be any surprise.

"Do cosmetics affect your business?" "Not one bit, one way or another. The girls buy cheap powder and in cheap containers they can throw away. Of course we sell many silver vanity cases."

That phase of the conversation exhausted, Mr. Jaffe was asked if he was a member of any fraternal organizations. He said he was a member of the Elks and the Masons. As to his Masonic affiliations he said that in addition to being a member of the Masonic lodge in Port Chester, he was also a member of the Consistory in New York.

His hobbies are all outdoor sports, especially hunting and fishing. In winter he is a devotee of bowling.

"Outdoor sports appeal to me," he said, "because this business keeps one so much indoors."

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Regardless of betting odds and straw votes, there can be no certainty of the election result on Nov. 6.

The Republican habits of the country give Hoover the edge, but the cross-currents developed in this campaign are so numerous and so powerful that prediction becomes impossible. Smith may win, though not by any large majority. If there is a landslide, this year Herbert Hoover will be found riding on top of it. Most of the signs favor Hoover. But the trustworthiness of the traditionally accepted signs has never before been so doubtful.

Thus Republican confidence of victory is found to be a nervous sort of expectancy. The Democrats, who started with little more than a whispering hope, are now confident of victory but are convinced that by election day they will have an even chance.

The result will be counted in electoral votes, of which there are 531. Between 175 and 200 of these are now allocated by most impartial estimators to Hoover. It is generally thought that Smith is sure of the 114 votes of the solid south. The election will be decided by those states which may be broadly classed as doubtful.

Obviously, Smith's task has been far more difficult than Hoover's. Hoover needs only half as many votes among the states of which neither candidate is sure as Smith must have to win. Many forecasters have figured that the indications, if any, appeared to give Smith no better than an even break in a group of states which appeared to be "leaning" one way or the other.

Smith's opportunity may perhaps best be described as an excellent fighting chance. Except for Wilson, he has the best chance of election of any Democrat since Grover Cleveland. In the opinion of the keenest political thinkers, most of the others, of course, now appear to have had no chance at all. And it is important to point out that they were regarded as beaten before they started not only in many of the states now considered doubtful, but in others which Smith is expected to carry. Bright or dim, the existence of Smith's opportunity is best demonstrated by the fact that so many states this year are "doubtful."

It seems safe to give Hoover, for purpose of this story, California, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Washington and Wyoming. He probably will also carry Colorado, Illinois, Utah, New Hampshire and West Virginia. That would give him 298 electoral votes, 58 short of election. If he loses any appreciable number of those 208 votes it will be evidence of a decisive trend toward Smith which cannot now be discerned.

The other states, outside the "solid south" are Connecticut, Kentucky, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, New York, Tennessee, Rhode Island, New Mexico, Maryland, Arizona, Delaware, Massachusetts, Missouri, Montana and Nevada. A large field from which Hoover has to get his 58. He could get them from Massachusetts, Missouri, New Jersey and Nebraska if he carried those states among the 19 named.

There are other combinations of states which might be suggested, showing that in these so-called doubtful states Smith must make a real clean-up in order to win. But it isn't impossible. If he could be sure of carrying New York, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Tennessee, Rhode Island, Minnesota, Kentucky and Maryland, he would

THE "IT" GIRL GOES IN FOR GOBS

Clara Bow in "The Fleet's In," Is Salty Comedy—At State Sunday and Monday.

"The Fleet's In!" starring Clara Bow, will open at the State Theater for a two day engagement beginning Sunday evening. As may be guessed from the title, the picture is a "sea-going" one. However, the action of the story for the most part is laid in a seacoast town which is visited by the United States battle fleet just returned from a training cruise.

According to advance reports where the picture has had its showing, Miss Bow has one of the best parts of her career. She is cast as a dance hall hostess whose duty it is to encourage the sailors on shore leave to spend as much of their month's pay for dance tickets as possible. It is during a visit of the fleet to the port that she becomes the center of a rivalry between two "gobs" from the U. S. S. California.

"STOCKS AND BLONDES" NOW AT THE CIRCLE

Jacqueline Logan and Gertrude Astor Co-Starring.

Behind the scenes in New York's "Roaring Forties," behind the jazz and the tinsel and the frothy gaiety of the night club life where tired business men rest, there's a technique of how it's done. There is comedy, love and pathos among the entertainers who so gaily take money away from the easy spenders.

Few see it and few know it, but an observing young motion picture director, who knows the metropolis as he knows his home town, has dug it out and put it into picture form. He is Dudley Murphy. He wrote the story, adapted it and directed it under the catchy title "Stocks and Blondes." It is an FBO special, and is admitted in film circles to be one of the outstanding pictures of the season.

This humorous, yet highly dramatic vehicle is being shown at the Circle theater today and Sunday. It boasts of an exceptionally fine cast of players. The two principal feminine roles are enacted by Jacqueline Logan and Gertrude Astor. Richard ("Skeets") Gallagher, Albert Conti and Vivian Brooksdale also have prominent roles.

"Tom's Gang," is the title of the associate film feature, and it stars Tom Tyler, the famous cowboy actor.

Lovers of the so-called "outdoor type" of drama, are bound to be more than satisfied with this rollicking story of the great open spaces of the west, where a man is judged by his quickness with a gun.

The third chapter of "The Haunted Island" and a comedy will round out the program.

and Now OAKLAND presents A NEW All-American Six

An entirely new conception of the modern motor car. So original in design... you'll hardly believe your eyes. Magnificent successor to a justly famous name... a New All-American Six.

Daring in style... exemplifying Fisher genius in the creation of new designs. Brilliant in beauty... revealing new harmonies of colors and lines. Triumphantly new. Appealingly different. Finer in every way. From its chrome-plated front bumper back to its chrome-plated tail-light... as new as this morning's dawn.

Resulting from its great new 228-cubic inch engine with exclusive patented rubber-cushioned mountings... 31-lb. crankshaft... harmonic balancer... larger, more highly perfected carburetor... the G-M-R cylinder head. Such marvelous control. Steering ease from a new improved mechanism. Braking ease from its new internal expanding four-wheel brakes... individually adjusted... requiring minimum pressure for a sure, silent, velvet-smooth stop.

Only the highlights have been mentioned. Only a hint regarding its pulse-stirring performance and style. To get the whole picture... to appreciate what its price will buy... come in. Have your highest expectations realized!

Prices $1145 to $1375 at factory. Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers and spring covers included in list prices. Bumpers and rear fender guards extra. Check Oakland delivered prices—they include lowest handling charges. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

LILLI DILLENZ PLANNING

NEW ATLANTIC HOP WITH GERMAN WOMEN FLYER

Berlin—Lilli Dillenz, beautiful Viennese actress, and Thea Rasche, noted German aviatrix, are secretly preparing a transoceanic flight from Berlin to New York next spring. Thea Rasche will pilot.

Frau Dillenz has twice attempted to make a transatlantic flight. Her first attempt failed when bad weather stopped her flight at the Azores. This spring she organized a second attempt and was just about ready to purchase the Junker's plane "Europa", sister ship of the Bremen in which Koehl and Huenefeld crossed the Atlantic when her German backers withdrew after a dispute.

Thea Rasche, too, was balked in her attempt to fly from America to Europe by differences with her backers.

RADIO INSTRUCTION IN RURAL SCHOOLS IS CALLED SUCCESS

Hartford, Conn. — Experiments with radio instruction in the rural schools of Connecticut have been a success. "As long as the programs are designed to supplement the curriculum and are presented in accordance with the principles of pedagogy they are interesting and instructive as well as entertaining and can be used by teachers to great advantage." Such is the conclusion of the state's division of rural education after questioning teachers who tried the radio in class rooms. A music appreciation course began the experiment in this state, and a course of talks on geography, nature studies and books followed. Station WTIC in Hartford broadcast the programs, various citizens in rural communities supplying the receiving sets in the schools. The most serious drawback to radio in schools, the teachers report, is finding time for programs in prescribed courses that do not permit elasticity.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

"Lady Audley's Secret," a melodrama of the last century, will be revived in a production to be broadcast through WJZ at 10:15 Saturday night. The plot concerns an adventuresome woman who allows her first husband to believe that she is dead in order to marry the old and wealthy Sir Michael Audley. In order to silence her first spouse she is forced to commit a distasteful deed. After this one she acquires an appetite for crime and enters into a love affair before she is exposed. The Muzakmakers male quartet will be introduced to listeners of WJZ at 8:30. Nearly all of the big features of the evening go on the air at 8. Then the orchestra of the Philadelphia Music Academy will play before the microphone of WTIC. The program will be a mixed quartet and instrumental trio may be tuned in from WJZ. Also at 8:30 WJZ and associated stations will present "The Red Mill," a musical comedy in two acts by Victor Herbert. Jessica Dragopole and Colin O'More will be the leading characters. The action takes place in the present at Katwyk-aan-Zee, Holland. Among the important features to be broadcast Saturday afternoon at 1:45 are: Yale vs. Dartmouth through the WEAF main studio, State vs. Princeton through the WJZ stations. Black face type indicates best features. All programs Eastern Standard Time.

Sopha Braslau, American concert contralto and former Metropolitan Opera star, is the artist to be featured in the broadcast hour through WEAF and allied stations at 9:15 Sunday night. Miss Braslau's operatic selections will include "O Mio Fernando," from "La Favorita" and "Habenera" from "Carmen." Other popular numbers will be "The Last Chord," "Ever With Thee," "Water Boy," "Little Loin Cabin of Dreams" and "Ma Lili Bateau." William Brown, famous trainer and proprietor of a health farm, will be one of the speakers of Collier's Radio hour through the WJZ chain at 8:15. One hour later the same group of trustees will present "Looking in at White Oak Sanctified Church" by the Utica Jubilee Singers. Leo H. Hensinger, "Gimme That Old Time Religion," "Deep River" and other appropriate musical selections will accompany the prayer and sermon. Songs of Stephen Foster will be sung by Reinold Werrenath, accompanied by a male quartet, during the Old program through the WJZ chain at 11 o'clock. "Old Black Joe," "The Old Folks at Home" and "My Old Kentucky Home" will be among the compositions to be heard. The acousticon hour through the N. B. C. system at 8:30 is built around the election of 1904 when Theodore Roosevelt ran against Alton B. Parker. The guest artist on this date will be Frank Moulan famous as a comic opera comedian 25 years ago. He will sing "The Irish Jubilee" and "Go Back." Columbia nightlights may be tuned in at 8:30, 9:30 and 10:30.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lungfishers being filled with deadly inflammable. Whenever one nation solves a great social problem, it assists its neighbor to the same solution. America's drastic prohibition law has had an immense influence in Great Britain and upon the Continent and in Asia. Today humanity is so bound together in the bundle of life that we must all ultimately stand or fall together. And this sense of interdependence, when animated by Christian good will, is the surest hope of a peaceful, prosperous, sober world.

other nation. We help, and are helped. Whenever one nation solves a great social problem, it assists its neighbor to the same solution. America's drastic prohibition law has had an immense influence in Great Britain and upon the Continent and in Asia. Today humanity is so bound together in the bundle of life that we must all ultimately stand or fall together. And this sense of interdependence, when animated by Christian good will, is the surest hope of a peaceful, prosperous, sober world.

Ultimate victory for these warriors of welfare, is as sure as the promises of God. Nobody who knows what is really going on in contemporary life can deny that these forward-looking servants of righteousness and of the world are the greatest present forces in universal human society. In Asia, as well as in Europe and America, their influence steadily increases. They won the ancient war against slavery. They are winning the struggle for the lifting of an immortal yoke from the necks of women and children. They have won great battles for the abolition of the curses of drink and drugs. Already they have fulfilled many of the visions of the seers and seers, the prophets and the poets. Their message is that of Paul in this Lesson (I quote the Moffat Translation):—
"And then you know what this Crisis means, you know it is high time to waken up; for Salvation is nearer to us now than when we first believed. It is far on in the night, the day is almost here; so let us drop the deeds of darkness and put on the armour of the light; let us live decently as in the open light of day—no revelry or bouts of drink, no debauchery or sensuality, no quarrelling or jealousy. No, put on the character of the Lord Jesus Christ, and never think how to gratify the cravings of the flesh."
A Chinese Prophecy
Many years ago, in the midst of a Chinese famine, I was accosted by one of the starving refugees, an old, old man, a Buddhist, with deep eyes and the air of a philosopher; who said to me, with great solemnity, "Help my people! If you Americans help my people now, in some future incarnation my people will help you."
That aged Chinese set forth the new world principle of inter-relationship, that was best expressed in the Scripture's "None of us liveth to himself." Nowadays every nation must share its best with every

Right Think

1928 By NEA Service Inc. RUTH DEWEY GROVES AUTHOR OF "WHEN A GIRL LOVES" "LOVE FOR TWO"

I'm going to get you out of this," he said.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

JERRY RAY thinks that love is a delusion and decides to marry for money. Her plans for a vacation at Atlantic City are spoiled by the loss of the money she had denied herself to save. Nothing remains but to go camping with her roommate MYRTLE on the north shore of Long Island.

Their camp is wrecked when an airplane owned by ALISTER CARSTAIRS crashes into it. The others escape injury, but Jerry is picked up unconscious by DAN HARVEY, the pilot. Alister drives her to the doctor who finds that her injury is not serious. He introduces her to LEONLINE LEBAUDY, who invites them to a big party.

Alister shows Jerry a gay time during her two weeks' vacation and tells her that he loves her madly but does not ask her to marry him. Myrtle warns her against him, but a letter from her mother revealing poverty and illness causes her to continue her efforts to win Alister.

Unable to borrow enough from Myrtle to buy a new gown for the party, Jerry gives way to the temptation to take a lace tunic from the store where she works—intending to slip it back in stock the next morning. Alister gave her orchids to wear, so that her appearance satisfied her but Leonline and her friends taunted her into drinking. Jerry drained a second glass to show them she was not a "dud" but became dizzy at once and a jeering voice told her dance partner to bring her in the pool.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

Jerry opened her mouth to call for help but someone smothered the cry by placing a hand over her lips. She heard the laughter of several persons. A small crowd had followed her abductors.

When they reached the edge of the pool, laughing, shouting, Jerry felt herself lifted high and given an upward toss. Then the sickening descent.

Slash!

When she struck the water she was stunned but not before she had heard a cry of dismay and several grunts of pain issue from her tormentors.

The cold water revived Jerry in a few seconds. She began to choke and flounder helplessly around in the shallow pool. An arm suddenly reached forth and pulled her out.

Someone slapped her heartily on the back, she coughed harder, and found relief. Then it seemed to her that a pair of hands seized her by the shoulders and shook her. She could have sworn that she heard this person mutter:

"You little fool," in a hoarse whisper.

The sound of splashing attracted her attention to the pool. She saw the young satyr, with his foolish cap, crawling out upon the grass. The hands on her shoulders were removed and the man on the ground scrambled quickly away on his hands and knees with a ludicrous expression of fear on his backward turned countenance.

Jerry lifted her face to her rescuer.

It was Dan!

She had known it even without the necessity of verifying it. He was removing his coat. Jerry made no protest when he wrapped it around her shoulders. She could guess that his opinion of her was not flattering, but she was too grateful for his protection to show that she suspected it.

"I'm going to take you out of this," he said.

Jerry shivered and swayed toward him.

"Jerry," his voice came thick with emotion. "Jerry, I love you."

Again Jerry was robbed of her breath. She couldn't move. And Dan's kisses ran like a warm, delicious stream from her lips to her heart, almost bursting it with a strange exultation she never had known before.

But there was no answering pressure to satisfy him. Jerry's eyes were closed, her lips were still. She was held in the grip of a great awakening—an awakening that brought dismay, complete and devastating, to replace the peace of joy that Dan had set to ringing in her heart.

She knew what was happening to her . . . she had been afraid of this since love first became a word of meaning to her. But no, no, she wouldn't—she mustn't. It meant ruin. It was a mirage that cost you dearly if you yielded to its temptation.

Dan drew his face away from her.

"Wait here for me," he said quickly. "I'll get your wrap and drive you back to New York. You can't go in there with that crowd again!"

Jerry was rather unceremoniously seated on a bench and left there while Dan hurried toward the inn. She raised a shaking hand to her lips and pressed hard against them, to still their trembling. She was cold and frightened . . . her beautiful evening had become a nightmare—a nightmare with a ray of pure sunshine piercing through the hideous remorse and terror that enveloped her.

Why had she let them tease her into drinking? They must be laughing even now at the undignified manner in which she had been helped to overcome the effects of it—all that is, except those who had encountered Dan's wrath. She turned hot and cold again as she thought of the prospect of the episode reaching Alister's ears, as surely it must. Would he think she had been . . . had been . . . Jerry balked at the horror of the word in relation to herself . . . that she didn't know what they were doing to her?

Her hands dropped to her lap. The contact with her wet clothing brought a new consternation.

The tunic! It was ruined!

Jerry slumped down on the bench and began to cry, her nerves completely unstrung. First, shock, then rapture, and now, disaster! She was sobbing heartbreakingly when Alister found her.

He had caught a word or two about the event at the pool before Dan came rushing in on his way to the dressing room.

"What's happened?" Alister asked, catching hold of a young man with dripping clothes who was slinking by.

"Some blankety blank fool had to spoil a little fun we were having with your girl . . ."

"Where?"

The other tore himself away without answering. He'd had enough of chaos with no sense of humor. Someone laughed. "Perky got a bath himself."

"Yes, and a sweet kiss on the chin besides."

Alister ran out to the garden. He needed to know no more to guess what that "little fun" had been.

Jerry—it was a bedraggled and tearful Jerry—told him what had happened. When she explained that Dan was inside looking for her coat Alister interrupted grimly.

"I'll take you home," he said. "Harvey didn't bring you here. He needs to be so officious. Where did you leave your wrap?"

"Upstairs, in Miss Lebaudy's room," Jerry answered diffidently. She was too upset, too confused, to know what to do.

"Come with me, then," Alister replied, "around to the side entrance. I'll get your wrap."

They were gone when Dan returned to the garden to report to Jerry that he had been unable to get her coat from the attendant in the dressing room, and to ask if she had a check. He found his own coat on the bench and thought Jerry might have walked off down the path and collapsed.

The sound of a motor—a motor that he instantly recognized—purring among the parked cars not far away drew his eyes in that direction. There was a light there. He could see Alister's black roadster pull out and start for the highway.

And in the seat beside the driver he could see a huddled figure that he knew must be Jerry.

"I'd better take you some place and get you a drink," Alister said to Jerry before they had gone far.

Jerry shuddered.

"No, no. I never want another drink as long as I live! Please take me straight home."

"Oh, come now, Jerry. Don't be a bum sport. As long as you aren't about, there's nothing to get sore about. Things like that happen at the best regulated parties. I'm sorry I left you but I . . . er . . . Leonline had a few people upstairs and I didn't think you would care to join us . . ."

His voice trailed off in his sheer inability to drag the lie out any further. But Jerry was too distraught to weigh his words. She did not suspect that he had been alone with Leonline.

Alister was making excuses now only because he thought her refusal to accompany him to another roadhouse was prompted by pique over being abandoned to the mercy of his hilarious friends.

"I'm cold in these wet clothes," Jerry said, her teeth beginning to chatter. "Take me home."

She spoke pleadingly because she hadn't either the strength or the will power to be assertive.

"I know a cure for that," Alister answered. "We'll stop at Carmoor and I'll get a dress for you from my sister's room."

"But I want to go home," Jerry wailed. "I've had enough . . . fun."

Alister drove on in silence. Jerry didn't know what he was going to do, and her helplessness to combat him started her to sobbing again. He glanced down at her, frowning.

"All right," he gave in; "it isn't necessary to cry."

But Jerry's sobs continued, low and painful, while the black roadster tore along at a furious pace on the country roads. She was glad Alister didn't want to talk to her. His silence, if indicative of anger, failed to add anything to her troubles. She felt crushed as it was. Falling in love with a man she would not marry—and faced with a situation that might land her in prison.

Alister's sullenness passed unnoticed. At her door, he said good night to her very stiffly. Poor Jerry was aware of his coldness, but she had no heart to make an effort to placate him. The shadow of her impending ordeal at Fane's obscured everything else.

His own guilty conscience had not a little to do with Alister's ill humor. The fact that through his neglect of Jerry, Dan Harvey had been given an opportunity to appear as a hero didn't help his temper either.

Dan! That fellow! Why couldn't he keep out of it?

"Good night," Jerry returned, and put out a hand. Alister appeared not to see it. She turned quickly, without another word, and in through the dimly lighted hall to the darker stairs.

It rather dashed Alister, being left so.

Jerry flung open the door of her room with a suddenness that brought Myrtle out of a deep sleep. She sat up in alarm.

"Who is it?" she cried loudly.

The answer came in a broken voice.

"It's what's left of me."

Myrtle jumped out of bed and snapped on the light. Jerry stood in the middle of the room, removing her coat.

"What's happened to you?" Myrtle asked fearfully. Then: "Oh, my God, Jerry, where did you get that dress? Don't you know there's a special detective watching the lares this week?"

THE COAT DRESS

A clever treatment, especially adapted to the woman of mature figure, is wide box-plate at center-front of two-piece skirt, with ornamental pockets at each side. The surplus closing bodice is under-angled and rolled in revers with straight collar attached. Printed wool jersey is medium chosen for this swagger street dress. The collar, rever facing and vestee are of plain jersey. Edge of collar and pocket trim are of binding in deepest tone of print to match suede belt. Sheer tweed, homespun and printed sheer velvet are popular ideas with the woman who "knows." Crepe satin, flat silk crepe, plain velvet, velveteen and crepe, also chic. Style No. 305 is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 26, 28, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. The 36-inch size takes 3 3/4 yards of 40-inch material with 1/2 yard of 36-inch contrasting and 1 yard of binding. Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred).

We suggest that when you send for this pattern, you enclose 10 cents additional for a copy of our Winter Fashion Magazine, showing all the most attractive Paris styles. Also embroidery and interesting ideas for Xmas gifts you can make.

New evening fans are fashioned of potted petals of chiffon that, layer upon layer, give the impression of ostrich from a distance. They come in all the evening shades.

MAMMY!

A real bandana handkerchief gave Natacha Rambova, wife of the late Randolph Valentino, the idea and the pattern of this mammy costume which she designed for Elsa Lehman, singer of songs of the South. The blue net-kerchief has a bandana design worked out in sequins and paillettes of gold and red. The long, full-skirted dress is of American beauty colored taffeta, with black and gold buttons down the front.

She Makes Her Living in Clothes Closets

Two of Mrs. Herzog's closets. An accessory closet (left) is gorgeously colored peach and soft blue, with taffeta curtains and shelf covings. Under the shoe shelves is a compartment for hosiery. The drawers have compartments for lingerie and handkerchiefs. Right is a lovely orchid and green closet for evening things. Gowns and wraps hang on padded hangers, behind orchid taffeta curtains.

BY JULIA BLANSHARD

New York, Nov. 2.—Clothes closets are character builders. "Give children closets with hooks just the right height and a place for everything and the chances are that habits of neatness and a desire for order will follow that will affect their whole lives.

"Give older folks attractive, convenient closets and they know the pleasure of peace in their lives. Their tempers and all their relations with those about them will be affected."

This philosophy of closets, as you might call it, comes from a woman who spent two decades glorifying the dark American closets in which the naughty little Johnnies used to be put for punishment. The woman is Mrs. George Herzog.

Started As a Favor

Fifteen years ago, to be exact, Mrs. Herzog had a friend ask her to "do" her bedroom closet over to go with her newly decorated room. Being practical and yet gifted with imagination and an artistic sense, Mrs. Herzog made such a lovely and convenient thing of that closet that other friends pressed her into service. Her profession of building artistic closets was just wished onto her.

Mrs. Herzog has "done" closets for some of the most famous folk in the world. She went to Japan one year, just to see that one wealthy client's closets were put in right. She has designed and personally supervised closets from New York to the Pacific and even in Honolulu. She has gone to Germany, France, London on her work.

She has built closets for infants taking their first steps, for old ladies who spend their lives in wheel chairs. She has done them for brides, bachelors, servants of millionaires and millionaires themselves. She has done them for parlors, bedrooms and baths—not to mention kitchens and other kinds of closets that a well-regulated home can use.

She is the woman, who built a now famous all-crystal closet for a Park avenue woman. The shelves, drawers, sliding doors, walls and floors were all gleaming, lovely crystal.

"All closets should be convenient and beautiful," Mrs. Herzog tersely summed up her program. "They usually follow the color scheme of the rooms they complete. I have made them every color I can think of. And I have used just about everything from fine satins and lace to chintzes for curtains, clothes hangers and other closet accessories."

Herzog's closets really speak more eloquently than she does. Their completeness makes you realize how inconvenient most closets are.

Take one of her bachelor's closets. The walls are a warm cream yellow, with touches of old blue on the woodwork and old blue chintz in a fine pattern, for curtains, and shelf-coverings.

Compartments for Everything

The closet lights as you enter. Before you are compartments with clothes racks, chintz covered to protect them from all just. To the right are cane hooks, with the racks above and a built in chiffonier for shirt, with set-back drawers with trays each just the right length and width for shirts. Compartments are built for all kinds of collars, handkerchiefs, scarfs, belts and cuff links, and other accessories. And, of course, racks for shoes, with shoe trees attached.

Women's closets feature hat compartments with hat racks in each, lingerie trays, glove drawers, shoe racks and pigeon-hole drawers for hosiery, each compartment holding a single pair. All is done daintily, with little hand decorations on the woodwork the shelves lined with beautiful scalloped silks, satins, gingham or chintzes, depending on the kind of closet and the color scheme. They are so pretty, in fact, that it would be hard to shut the door if you had one.

HUNGARIAN BELLE MARRIES MURDERER OF FATHER IN SPITE

Barlin—Irma Ujj, 19, belle of the Hungarian village of Borsos, proposed to and married the murderer of her father in order to spite her mother whose lover the murderer had been. The murderer had just been released after a prison term of fifteen years and the mother's release was due soon.

When Josef Mosdos, the village Don Juan, loved her mother and killed her father, Irma was only four years old. Her mother, then 22 years old, was the moving spirit in the murder. She and a midwife, whom village superstition considered a witch, urged Mosdos so much that he grabbed a gun and shot Ujj from ambush.

That was in 1913. Since then, the village legend had practically exonerated Mosdos, representing him as the poor, deluded victim of a Circé. Irma had grown up with this legend, hating her mother.

When Josef returned from prison, therefore, having saved a few years for good behavior, he again became just "Johska" to his old cronies and took part in the village games and the dances of the young folk in the village cemetery, which also served as the village playground.

There Irma met him and the plan to marry him ripened. "Johska" was started at first and refused, but Irma's persistence won him over.

HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

POISON GAS HAZARD OF POOR HEAT APPLIANCE

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

With the coming of cold weather householders use more gas for heating purposes and decrease ventilation by closing doors and windows. As a result there begin to develop increasing numbers of cases of poisoning from carbon monoxide, which is the same poisonous gas that occurs in automobile exhaust gas.

So many cases are reported each year that the Department of Commerce has issued a bulletin warning people against breathing the fumes produced by improperly adjusted or poorly constructed heating appliances.

It must be remembered that in many kitchenette apartments, the room is not provided with direct outlets to the open air and that the hazard may be considerable.

On the side of safety it is well before the winter season arrives to see that the burners are properly adjusted, dirt and lint accumulated in the burners during the year is removed, and everything done that can possibly be done to secure complete combustion of the gas.

Symptoms

It is not uncommon for people to blame their symptoms, such as languor, headache and nausea, on automobile gases coming into the street, not realizing that the gas range operating in the kitchen of small apartments, particularly of kitchenette apartments, may provide a sufficient amount of carbon monoxide gas to cause dangerous symptoms.

In one case investigated at the Pittsburgh Experiment Station of the Bureau of Mines, it was found that the "stale air" coming into the apartment contained less than five parts carbon monoxide for each million parts of air, an amount insufficient to produce any symptoms.

On the other hand, when the gas range of the four-room apartment has been used for cooking, the amount of carbon monoxide in the air eighteen inches above the range was over 700 parts for each million parts of air.

That amount of carbon monoxide will cause headache in an hour with more severe symptoms after longer exposure. The opening of a window and proper adjustment of the burners is usually sufficient to prevent danger from this source.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton ©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

I often think that mothers would, as few complex under that roof nor get so tired nor father so harsh as in any house I can think of. The mother is the daughter of a judge. In his family contracted there was the same lighthearted good fellowship that now characterizes the home of his daughter.

The judge used to say that he wouldn't have so many cases to try if there was more laughter in the homes. Everyone has trouble. Every home has trouble. But all woe and no joy makes Jack a dull boy.

Have we all noticed that the homes that seem to run the most smoothly and in which work is accomplished the most quickly, are the homes where there is laughter and happiness, and life is not taken in too deadly earnest?

I have in mind one family that in spite of a goodly share of trouble managed to laugh about half of it away. It was not a frivolous family—quite the opposite. But the mother, a woman of unusual character, discovered early in her married life the magic of laughter and its wonderful healing qualities. No doubt there were many days when she did not feel equal to the gay little pretenses but her children and husband seldom guessed when these days were.

Cheerful Games

She would say suddenly at the table, "Let's play, 'My Ship Comes In.'" Then she would start off with "My ship comes in laden with—"

"Laden with what?" the children would cry eagerly.

"Mother would think, 'Laden with G-G.' What could that be? Instantly the questions would begin to fly.

"What color is it? Is it good to eat? Can you wear it? How does it smell?"

G-G turned out to be goose grease. Father finally guessed it. Then it was his turn.

There was a great fund of happy little games for the table. Sometimes it was riddles. If anyone heard a new one it was saved for meal time.

Laughed at Hard Luck

The children learned to look on their troubles as jokes much of the time. If one of them was called a name, or missed the same word in spelling for the third time in a week, the first thought that popped into his head was, "That will be a good one to tell Mother."

The whole family helps with the work. They make a game of that too. Altogether, there are about

Last Important Grid Games Before Series Sunday

Princeton Has Hard Nut To Crack In Ohio State

Pre-Game Dope Favors the Mid-Western Team; Both the Principals Unbeaten Thus Far.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 3.—Princeton and Ohio State, gridiron bell-weather of the east and middle west respectively, will whip that cauldron of emotion, known as inter-sectional rivalry, into a seething froth this afternoon in what promises to be the show-down game of the year between two major sections. Both of the principals unbeaten and only one of them so much as tied in preceding games, the meeting fairly reeks with a significance that yet may take on the aspect of national consequence and a turn-away crowd of 72,000 will spread itself over the concrete stretches of the stadium here like so many ants on a crust of pie.

It will be, for the most part, a highly partisan assemblage, for the community, having fired a volley of Bronx salutes at its football team during the exigencies of an indifference season in 1927, now has decided that there is nothing fundamentally wrong with a team "beat" by the community is generally willing to forgive and forget the past in the glow of the present and Princeton will find seventy per cent. of the crowd rapidly pro State. However, the Tiger ever is one to reveal when the going is tough and today a Princeton football team that has yet to realize on its full potentialities is believed to have reached the point where it is prepared to do or die a figurative death in the attempt. The Tiger is slightly shaded by State in the pre-game debate.

Little Team Work. For one thing, it hasn't been able to assemble its full man power at any time this season and, while most of the good ones are ready today, the punch that comes with co-ordinated effort has been lacking. But show me the team that can "beat" better than Princeton for its big moments of a season and I'll show you a football team that will require and, indeed, demand a lot of beating. It is figured that this is the kind of team that will take the field for Princeton this afternoon, for Ohio State is the Harvard of its schedule right now and, if that type of opponent isn't big, I'll take you over to Gibraltar some day and show you a foot hill.

Princeton, as a matter of fact, knows that it is meeting one of the real good ones of the year. It has no illusions of the field. The defensive unit in its early games, the Ohio State line finally found its attacking stride against Indiana and now the claim is general that the Buckeye is stronger today than at any time since the immortal Harley dominated his field. The claim also is freely made that the forward line is the best State has had in ten years and this, if true, quite justifies resident faith in the probability of a victory.

Even the weather seemed favorably disposed toward the Buckeye cause, for it has rained there several days, off and on, and a continuance this afternoon would mean an advantage to the team of superior power. However, the field has been kept dry by tarpaulins and will be ready for a football game, if the skies are in sympathy with the idea.

Women outnumber the men by fourteen to one on the island of Tagawa in the Pacific. Good place to lecture on sex equality.

Green You Say? Sure, It's Okay

Every year when the Cubs and the Cloverleaves get together to make plans for their championship argument on the gridiron, there is an argument of some sort. This year was peaceful compared to others, but even so, there was plenty of fuss.

Now comes the news that for the first time in the history of the two teams, they've really agreed about something without a single word of argument or murmur of protest. Assistant Manager Pete Hapenny of the Cubs and President Dr. A. B. Moran of the Cloverleaves met yesterday afternoon to discuss the business affairs of the coming series.

Pete suggested that the color of the tickets for the first game of the series be green and Dr. Moran consented with a wave of his hand.

ORIOLES MAY SELL NOW Baseball men are curious to learn what effect the death of Jack Dunn will have upon the business policies of the Baltimore International League club.

There are a number of ball players on the Baltimore club that major league managers are interested in, but they wouldn't meet the price that Dunn asked for them.

Dick Porter, star outfielder and one of the leading batters in the league, is one of the players highly recommended by the major league scouts.

Tragedy Hurried End The fact that there is no one in the family to take his place recalls a great tragedy in Dunn's life that broke his heart and undoubtedly contributed to his untimely death.

Years ago the writer was covering a meeting of the minor leagues in Buffalo. The big news of the meeting was that the San Francisco club had sold Jimmy O'Connell to the New York Giants for $75,000. That was a very large price in those days.

Dunn at that time had not only one player, but a squad of players that were ready for the major leagues, and some of them were more highly regarded than O'Connell.

"Why don't you sell some of those players? You could get a lot of money for them, and you would be helping them advance in their business?" Dunn was asked.

"One reason," he answered, "is that those players are satisfied. Ask them. I am paying them as much as they could get in the major leagues and I am making money and making a league out of our league."

Building For Son "The second and most important reason is that I am building for the future. I want to establish a league team in the country to turn over to the greatest boy a father ever was blessed with—my boy Jack."

Young Jack Dunn was one of the finest boys you ever could want to meet. A handsome fellow, a fighter like his father, but of more gentle disposition, and a young fellow who had learned a lot about the baseball business from one of the smartest tutors in the game.

"In a few years I'll be able to quit," the father said. "I'm getting tired of the game. I never will be able to get away from it entirely, but it will not be long until I can sit back and just help young Jack when he needs help. But that won't be often."

It wasn't long after that when young Jack went down with pneumonia and died. And from the day of his death his father was a changed man. He always seemed as if he were looking for someone.

LIVES UP TO HIS NAME Mid-western critics are calling Mayes McLain, the big Indian full-back at Iowa, "Five-yards" McLain. He's good for that distance any time he carries the ball, they say.

ANOTHER ALL-AMERICAN Southern California football has furnished two All-America quarterbacks in recent years in Drury and Kaer and may furnish another this year in Don Williams.

HE MADE NICE SHOWING Phil Page, rookie hurler, started and finished two games for the Detroit club late in the season and won both.

OHIO STATE

Ohio State linemen, who will attempt to stop the charge of a powerful squad of Princeton backs when these two teams meet in an inter-sectional clash at Columbus, O., today, carry ample poundage. Fred Barratt, the sophomore center, who is being touted for All-America honors, weighs 236 pounds, and Leo Raskowski, who made the All-America team as tackle last year, weighs 208 pounds. Bill Young and Joe Uihelyi, the two Buckeye guards, each tip the scales at 190. The lightest man on the line is Bill Fesler, who weighs 173 pounds, and he is one of the most aggressive. They hope to stop Princeton and avenge the defeat suffered last year when they journeyed to Princeton. Incidentally, several eastern experts will be on hand and the mid-westerners hope to impress them.

Speaking of Football

Speed is Essential Factor in a Team's Ability to Sweep Ends for Long Gains.

By "JOCK" SUTHERLAND University of Pittsburgh Football Coach

One of the real thrills of a football game is the end run. Like the forward pass, the end run may result in a long gain. It has speed and action and is one of the most spectacular plays of the game.

No team can have a good offense without a good end run, or someone to take its place, such as an effective "crisis-cross" double, triple or lateral pass.

There is more concentrated effort required to execute an end run today than ever before. In fact, nearly every team attempts to gain ground by running the ends.

When end runs are not used, or are ineffective when used, it is almost impossible to gain ground because ends, tackles, guards and the center play so close together that off-tackle plays and line bucks are smothered.

Speed is the essential thing in end runs. Every team should have at least one exceptionally fast back who can run the ends.

On sweeping end runs it is usually impossible after getting past the line of scrimmage to evade certain of the defensive backs. This can be done by sending linemen through to prevent the backs from crossing over to tackle the ball-carrier. This is not altogether true of off-tackle plays and line bucks where the ball-carrier must go straight for the secondary defense that closes in on him.

End runs are nothing but a waste of downs, and nearly always result in loss of ground unless the arrangement of the offensive backfield is such that any good play may be used from the formation.

Many end runs are designed with the idea of using all offensive power to get a brilliant open field runner. It is up to him to use his own judgment. Other coaches believe in getting one or two men to interfere for the runner after he has passed the line of scrimmage. I prefer the latter plan.

The man who is coached to break loose at the first opening he sees will frequently do so at the wrong time and lose ground. He sometimes does not take advantage of the

YALE THE FAVORITE AGAINST DARTMOUTH

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 3.—Dartmouth has never beaten Yale in eleven clashes on the gridiron, and betting odds of 2 to 1 say that the Green will not turn the trick in the Yale bowl today.

The life-ups of both teams will be composed mainly of second-stringers. Not a single regular of the crippled Dartmouth squad is scheduled to start in the backfield, and of Yale's first-line quartet of ball carriers only Eddie Decker is available. Coach Hawley of Dartmouth said however that he might use his big star, Al Masterson, in the backfield for part of the game, and Johnny Garvey is expected to break into the Ell line-up before the final whistle blows.

The line-up: Dartmouth Walker . . . . . McInnis Marting . . . . . Cole Greens . . . . . Lyle Charlesworth . . . . . Andrus Stewart . . . . . Armstrong Eddy . . . . . Sherman McEwen . . . . . Stokes Ellis . . . . . Harris Swift . . . . . Reece Dunn . . . . . George Decker . . . . . Sutton

Carries Scoring Power for Georgetown Eleven

One of the strong teams of the east this fall is the Georgetown eleven which Lou Little is coaching and one of the strongest contributors to the success attained already this season is Ralph Duplin, quarterback. Duplin has featured Georgetown victories by his brilliant running and passing. He covered 92 yards in running back the opening kick-off for a touch-down in one of the October games.

Billy Evans Says

MICKEY COCHRANE

Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane, peppy little catcher of the Athletics, gained a double distinction by virtue of his selection recently as the American League's most valuable player in 1928.

Not only was Cochrane the first Mackinn pastimer to be so honored, but he also was the first catcher in the junior organization to win the award.

Since the selections were inaugurated in 1922, the Yankees have placed two of its representatives on the list, Babe Ruth in 1923 and Lou Gehrig in 1927; the Nats also have produced a pair, Walter Johnson in 1924 and Roger Peckinpaugh in 1925.

Other winners were George Sisler of the Browns in 1922 and George Burns of the Indians in 1926. The Tigers, Red Sox and White Sox are the only clubs not yet represented in the group.

Gehrig Was King

Three first basemen have been picked and one pitcher, outfielder, shortstop and catcher. Three of those honored, Sisler, Peckinpaugh and Johnson, later became big league managers. Gehrig has been the youngest to gain the award, being 24 at the time he was selected and in only his third season as a regular.

Cochrane is but a step behind Gehrig, being 25 and in his fourth campaign in big time. Both are college graduates, having matriculated at Columbia and Gordon at Boston University. Sisler also starred at Michigan, ranking as one of the greatest college pitchers of his day.

Cochrane is one of those rare fellows who made good in the majors after a brilliant collegiate football career. College football-baseball stars as a rule fall down when they take a whirl at major league diamond play. Frankie Frisch, one-time Fordham flash, is one of the outstanding exceptions I recall of hand.

Deserved Selection

Cochrane's selection this year was a most deserved one. Unlike the old days, Mickey is more than just a backstop. He's a splendid all-round performer, fast, and a good hitter, he's a valuable asset to any ball club. The mere fact that Connie Mack uses him in third place in the batting line-up shows his worth on the attack.

Cochrane is a consistent 330 clubber, more than that—and this generally has been overlooked—Mickey is one of the greatest run-scoring catchers the majors have produced. In 1925, his first year up, he crossed the plate 69 times. The next season he compiled 50 runs, following with 33 in 1927. During the campaign recently closed he passed the 90-run figure.

The nearest approach to Cochrane's efforts was that of Wallis Schang, who while with the Yankees in 1921 counted 77 times. Wallie never came close to duplicating that mark, however.

The best Ray Schalk ever did was 64 runs in 151 games in 1920, and Schalk took part in more games per season over a continued stretch than any catcher in the pastime.

Yes, Mickey Cochrane's more than a backstop. He's a great all-round performer.

TELLS IT OVER RADIO

Radio fans in California often hear Maurice McLaughlin, wizard of the courts 15 years ago, at the "mike" broadcasting important tennis meets of that section.

GETS HIS CHANCE

An athlete from New York was arrested in Arkansas the other day. He had to go a long way to be successful.

HE GETS ANOTHER CHANCE

Detroit exercised its option on Nolan Richardson, Fort Worth (Texas League) third baseman, and will give him another chance in 1929.

Young Yale Mentor Explains Intricate Plays to Rival Side.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 2.—Mal Stevens, Yale's young football coach, is a sportsman of the highest type, with a few original ideas about that characteristic.

Having a rather intricate triple pass play which he planned to use against an important rival, Stevens and rival coaches went in a huddle before the game and discussed that particular play and others.

"You don't have to tell the other side your secrets," remarked one of the Yale officials.

"Why not?" he asked. "They won't know how the play is made, and I am sure the coaches will keep it to themselves, just as I would under similar conditions."

It might be added that the play was tried, but failed, not because the opposition stopped it, but because a Yale player went out of bounds.

Cubs Meet Wallingford Eagles; Cloverleaves Oppose Pawtucket; Plans for Next Week Uncertain

Last Real Chance to Size Up Contenders for Town zTitle; Both Visiting Teams Rate High.

Here's Peter Pund, brilliant center and captain of the Georgia Tech team, southern champions last year and at present leading contender for the championship again this year. Pund's eleven defeated Notre Dame recently, the first time that feat has been accomplished in seven games and, as a result, is ranked among the outstanding teams of the country.

North Ends Play Here on Sunday

The North Ends will play the Hilltopps of Meriden at Hicker's Grove tomorrow afternoon in a preliminary game to the Cloverleaves. This aggregation is considered one of the best of the younger teams in Meriden and has compiled quite a record during the present season losing but one game, that to the West Ends of Wallingford.

Two of the North End's regular lineup will be absent tomorrow when Kutkavek and Jack are forced to sit on the sidelines. There will however, be a first string team ready to oppose the Silver City crew when the teams take the field at 1:30 o'clock sharp.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAYS BRIDGEPORT TODAY

Manchester High is playing in Bridgeport today against Warren Harding High. The latter team is considered one of the best in the state and its chances to defeat Manchester are rated as far from slim. Nevertheless, the undefeated local gridsters are confident of winning.

MURDERS GOLF BALL

Sammy Byrd, rookie outfielder, to be with the New York Yankees next summer, shoots a nice game of golf.

It is said that 17 diseases are possible from undue construction of the feet.

4 CONSTABLES-ELECT CANNOT TAKE JOBS
Having Failed to Qualify by Nov. 1, They Are "Out" for Good.
William Schields and Frank Edmunds, elected as constables on the Republican list and Frank J. Quish and William R. Campbell, elected as constables on the Democratic list at the October election, they will not be able to qualify for their recent election.
The first thing required, after a constable is elected, is to present a suitable bond in the amount of $1,000 and take their oath of office, all of which must be done before November 1. None of these four qualified.
It now develops that they cannot legally qualify at all, the time having expired. The name of Constable Bidwell in yesterday's Herald should have been George instead of Frederick.

HOOK-ON-BEHIND IS CAT'S ACHIEVEMENT
There is a brown cat that likes to ride in automobiles and is not afraid of the kind of car. It probably belongs on the West Side. Had it stayed there there would have been no story.
Last night when the whistle announced the end of a day's work in the silk mills, Marcell Dodge, of Oxford street hurried to his parked automobile, turned on the switch, threw the car into gear and started up Forest street, driving through Chestnut street to Park and down Park to Main street.
Soon after starting he heard the cry of a cat, but could not figure it as having anything to do with him. He heard it again, however, on Main street, so pulled up to the curb and stopped.
A search showed no cat in the car, but Marcell heard news from somewhere outside and found the cat sitting upon the rear spring, just under the body of the car.
Marcell started a rescue, expecting to find the cat all stove up, but the creature no sooner reached the ground than it gave a bound onto the running board of another parked car, this time a Ford Coupe, then another car, then another window and curled upon the seat. There he was at last accounts.

CONCORDIA LUTHERAN BAZAAR NEXT WEEK
Concordia Lutheran church folks will hold their annual bazaar on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week, November 7, 8, 9. The various societies of the church are all taking an active part in the project and are anxious to make the bazaar the most successful ever held. A short program of entertainment will be given each evening. Committees from the different church organizations are all working together under the leadership of the general committee, the personnel of which is Jacob Winzier, president; Alfred Lange, vice-president; Ludw. Hansen, secretary and John Adams, treasurer.
The Ladies Aid society will be in charge of the "Spring" booth; the teachers' society will preside over the Thanksgiving booth; the Willing Workers will manage the Christmas booth, the Young People's society the "Rainbow" booth and the Sewing Circle the "National" booth.
POLICE COURT
The adjourned case of Tony Barrie of Bissell street, charged with non-support, came before Judge Raymond A. Johnson this morning. A plea of not guilty had been entered. Judge Johnson imposed a fifteen day jail sentence, which he suspended on condition that Barrie furnish a bond of $200 to pay his wife $5 a week.
From this decision Attorney William S. Hyde, his attorney, took an appeal.

GAS BUGGIES-Who's This On The Scene?

Mrs. Adams was beautiful and highly educated. However, about the time Congress selected her husband to take the high office, her health began to fail, and the administration socially was a rather quiet one. Next came the Jackson administrations, socially stormy because of the intrusion into society of Mrs. Eaton, an inn-keeper's daughter.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

No woman hates birthdays so much that she wants to stop having them.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Grace Explains "O. D." Miss Grace Green, a guileless woman, had an active bank account. With a balance which had varied much of late.

This report showed many figures and was closed with the remark: "O. D. Twenty-seven dollars and one cent."

She was halted before the court upon a charge of False Pretense. "Over Drawn" as "O. D." left her weak and numb.

LETTER GOLF

Any SHIP will sail right straight for the SEAS—if a good letter golf skipper is guiding her. Par is five and one solution is on another page:

Letter golf grid with letters S, H, I, P and S, E, A, S.

1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes.

2—You can change only one letter at a time.

3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

Popularity is a sort of moral peroxide—it turns a co-ed's head.

THE TINYMITES

"Well, well," the burly captain cried. "Now that the whale's dropped o'er the side, and all you little lads are safe, please tell me who you are."

Fred Gross to Be Speaker at White House on Monday Evening—Week Ahead.

ed that if any of the members have questions on this point, they make note of them and Mr. Gross will answer them. The meeting is usually held on the second Monday evening of the month, but on account of the Armistice day celebration will be advanced a week. The treasurer will receive the yearly dues at the coming meeting.
'FEARLESS THREESOME'
START ON DEER HUNT
Earl Rogers, clerk in the South Manchester Post Office, his brother, James of Chestnut street and A. Judson Gallup of Trumbull street, will leave today for a week's hunting in the Adirondack Mountains.

Self-named the "Fearless Threesome," the men will leave today for night in Earl Rogers' Chrysler roadster, for Lawrence, N. Y., where they will join a party of eight others from Buffalo, Rochester and Lawville. The group will stay at a camp on a farm formerly owned by Mr. Gallup's father.
Last year, there were eight in the party and five deer were taken. The group expect to get more this time.

ABOUT TOWN
Assistant Principal Ralph Proctor of the High School will be the speaker Monday evening at the regular meeting of the Lakeview Parent-Teacher association at the South Main street school. His topic will be "Education."

The Missionary societies of the South Methodist church will hold a sale at the J. W. Hale company's store this afternoon beginning at 2 o'clock.

Group 1 of the Memorial Hospital Linen Auxiliary, Mrs. James M. Shearer, leader, will meet for sewing Monday afternoon at the School street Recreation Center.

Charles Cheney, president of Cheney Brothers, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Men's League at Center church tomorrow morning at 9:30. His subject will be "Are Our Anti-Trust Laws Obsolete?" All men of the community will be welcome to attend this meeting.

Friday morning at 9 o'clock a son was born to Constable and Mrs. George M. Bidwell of 156 Union street, at their home.

A daughter, Priscilla Ann, was born to Mr. and Mrs. William M. Keating of 107 Hamlin street last night.

Harry Bellamy of Rosemary Place has enlisted for three years service with the Howitzer Company, 169th Infantry, C. N. G.

The annual "turkey, goose and pig" dance run by Hosc and Ladder Company No. 1 of the South Manchester Fire Department will be held at Cheney Hall two nights before Thanksgiving this year instead of the night before. The reason is because of the many requests. It was pointed out that the food won the night before Thanksgiving Day cannot be put to advantageous use the next day, because of previous arrangements having been made almost invariably.

Manchester Lodge of Moose, No. 1477, will meet in its new quarters for the first time, Monday evening. The new home of the lodge is on Brainard place. It is desired that every member be present Monday evening. Several important business matters will be acted upon and the amusement committee will put on a refreshment and social period.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Johnson of Fairfield street, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Coleman of Walnut street, are spending the week-end with Mr. Johnson's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Von Hone of Astoria, L. I.

Al Behrend's orchestra will provide music for dancing at the Manchester Green school this evening and Dan Miller will call off the old-fashioned dances. The boys of the entertainment committee of the Community club who are managing these dances are gratified at the growing attendance. They have decided therefore to give a door prize of a $2.50 gold piece each to the young woman and man who draw the lucky number this evening.

Major Edward L. White of New Haven, national vice commander of the American Legion, will be the guest of the Manchester Kiwanis club at its noonday meeting Monday at the Hotel Sheridan. La Motte Russell will furnish the attendance prize.

Mrs. John Pentland, the former Miss Lillian Grabowski, who was an October bride, was pleasantly surprised when with her husband she returned home last evening to find a party from Manchester Camp Royal Neighbors, of which she is a member there to greet her. Mrs. Rachel Munsie, who was instrumental in arranging the surprise, in behalf of the Neighbors, presented to Mrs. Pentland a handsome silk bedspread as a token. The evening was spent happily with music, vocal and instrumental, and the usual social pastimes. Later a lunch was served which was also provided by the guests.

Rent
a Johnson Electric Floor Polisher
NOTHING could be easier. The Polisher runs itself. You don't need to push or press down on it. Just walk along and steer it. With it you can wax-polish every floor in your home in just a few hours—without stooping, kneeling or even soiling your hands.
At this store you can rent a Johnson Electric Floor Polisher for any day you wish. The cost is trifling.

PHONES Pinehurst
"GOOD THINGS TO EAT"
JUST A BIT OF SERVICE.
Pinehurst customers who have availed themselves of the novel floor waxing service are delighted with it. An electric floor waxing machine isn't the kind of thing that everybody wants to invest in—use once or twice a year and then find house-room for, all the rest of the time; to say nothing of the investment.
And this particular machine really does the work with a tiny fraction of the labor involved when the waxing is done by hand. It's actually no effort at all—just fun.
Pinehurst isn't planning to embark on a whole lot of enterprises like this; because it is a Food Store, first, last and all the time, and we never let our minds be distracted from the Big Idea—not a little bit.
It did strike us, however, that a lot of our customers would be greatly inconvenienced if we installed this service—and they have been. Then, of course, we sell quite a lot of floor wax.
The cost of the electric polisher for a day is nominal. Call us up and we'll send one round. You'll only need to use it a few hours, even if your house is large.
Phone, for GOOD THINGS TO EAT, two thousand.
