

POLICE LINK UP GAMBLER WITH DRUGS

Federal Officials Connect Rothstein's Name With Dope Ring—Probe Is Spreading.

New York, Nov. 16.—While the police, smarting under a rebuke from Mayor James J. Walker, put fresh impetus today into their search for the murdered of Arnold Rothstein, master gambler and white light millionaire, the general inquiry swung closer to the drug ring with which some of Rothstein's associates are alleged to have been identified.

There were two developments which indicated that some of Rothstein's tenderloin "business associates" or friends had been connected with the illicit importation and sale of narcotics.

1.—United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle has begun a probe of the whole "Rothstein case" because of his discovery that Sidney Stajer, one of the beneficiaries in the slain gambler's will, had been arrested last July as an international peddler of opium.

2.—Sarah Graham Mulhall, former narcotic investigator, revealed to International News Service, that Col. L. G. Nutt, of the U. S. Narcotic Bureau told her that Rothstein's name had been brought into the inquiry through the arrest or detention of several men who are said to have been business friends of the murdered gambler.

Stajer, who is 34 years old, is said by the authorities to have used the name "Samuel Stein" when he was arrested in an up-town hotel last summer. With the exception of Rothstein's valet and the executors, he was the only man mentioned in the Rothstein will. The gambler bequeathed him the income from a trust fund of $75,000 for ten years.

Seek Connection
Federal and municipal investigators want to learn if there was any connection between Rothstein's activities and the workings of the opium and heroin drug ring whose ramifications are said to extend to many large cities in the United States.

Officials expressed belief that when Rothstein's safe deposit box is opened papers will be found to reveal or disprove his alleged connection with the international syndicate of dealers in contraband drugs.

In the face of scathing newspaper comment upon the inability of the police to run down the killer of Rothstein, Mayor Walker has given the detective bureau four days in which to find the assassin. If he is not in jail by Monday night, the mayor said, he would "decide upon it."

Rothstein was shot in a room in the Park Central hotel, on Nov. 4 and died a few days later in the hospital without revealing the name of his assailant. His death was first attributed to his refusal to pay a $300,000 gambling debt. Now the rumor is creeping through the Tenderloin that drug ring activities may have played a part in the background of this latest tenderloin mystery.

SMITH PLAYS GOLF ON SOUTHERN TRIP

Stops Over at Savannah, Ga., on His Way to Biloxi, Mississippi.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 16.—Speeding toward the balmy gulf coast, where he will spend an extended vacation, Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, and his party traveled by rail today the trail blazed by Ponce de Leon centuries ago.

After playing golf here most of yesterday, and receiving several ovations from the populace, the defeated Democratic candidate for the presidency, left early today aboard the private car of William F. Kenney, a close friend.

Gov. Smith's previous vacation this summer was spent at Asheville, N. C. The governor let it be clearly understood he was taking a "real" vacation, and that formalities and public appearances were taboo.

Gets Invitations
His present jaunt is not expected to be any different. Senator Harrison H. Williams, and other members of his party are being kept busy replying to countless telegrams beseeching Smith to stop over at towns and cities enroute to Biloxi, Miss.

The governor is scheduled to arrive in Biloxi, at 4:10 this afternoon.

Vestris Survivors Saved by French Tanker

Survivors of the Vestris tragedy still were being brought to port when this photo was taken off Hoboken, N. J. You see part of the 57 who were taken from the sea by the French tanker Myriam, most of those negro members of the crew against whom so much praise and condemnation has been levelled. Coffee is being served them here, just before they were transferred to a tug to be brought into New York.

DRUG EVIL IS SPREADING RAPIDLY IN THE NATION

Children Taught Habit; Col- lege Boys and Girls and Society Maids Are Now Among Addicts.

New York, Nov. 16.—Dope addiction, spreading like a black weed, is an infinitely greater peril to American civilization than the use of alcohol and demands at least an equality in suppression measures with the prohibition law, Sara Graham-Mulhall, world famous leader in the war on drugs, declared today in an interview with International News Service.

"I believe the Army and Navy should be called out to patrol our 27,000 miles of coastline and stop the smuggling of misery and degradation into our country," said Miss Mulhall.

But 300 Agents
"There are approximately 5,000 prohibition agents compared with 300 narcotic agents. The government has appropriated $20,000,000 for prohibition enforcement against $1,000,000 for halting the drug traffic."

"Meanwhile American children are being lured into addiction. The scandal of narcotic indulgence among young college boys is being suppressed because of the shame that publicity would inflict on reputable colleges, and young women are being exploited in a new form of white slavery, which begins and ends with the power of opium."

"The white slaves of a previous generation were ignorant girls," Miss Mulhall continued. The white slaves of opium are American born, daughters of good families.

Opium Vampires
"After these young women of intelligence and breeding are trapped by the drug, the traffickers force them into the degraded adventures of opium vampirism. To capture rich men, or the sons of wealthy parents, begins their share in the work of opium rings. These decoys are also used to entangle other attractive girls in all walks of life in the black habit which leads to death."

The record of 500 suicides in one year among American youth was cited by Miss Mulhall. She said that 214 were boys averaging only 16 years of age and 293 girls averaging 15 years of age. She said that the proportion of drug addicts among the grim procession could not be accurately discovered.

"But suicide is the delirium that seizes the drug addicts of whatever age if they cannot get the drug they need," she said.

Miss Mulhall told of how school children were slyly taught the use of heroin by drug peddlers. Poppy seeds are put in candy, she said, and the children are also urged to try "some headache powders" to help them in examination time.

Drug addiction is also on the increase among "society," said Miss Mulhall. Addicts among the upper classes receive their doses from private physicians.

LAUGHS OVER REPORT
New York, Nov. 16.—Lady Heath laughed outright today when informed over the telephone by International News Service that her husband had served notice he would not be responsible for her debts.

"There is some mistake," that is too ridiculous," she said. "I simply don't believe it."

Lady Heath is at the Savoy Plaza hotel. She came to the United States to arouse interest among women in aviation. It is said she plans to fly about the country in a small amphibian plane.

BLOOM CALLS FOR PROBE OF VESTRIS CASE

New York Congressman Wants Steamboat Inspectors Questioned Why They Permitted Boat to Leave.

Washington, Nov. 16.—The steamboat inspection service of the Department of Commerce was called on the Congressional carpet today and accused of "woeful neglect" in the Vestris disaster.

Rep. Sol Bloom (D) of New York declared that reports indicate that the Vestris never should have been permitted to depart on her fateful voyage.

He asserted that he has in the past protected against lax inspection which has existed for 25 years. The head of the inspection service, D. N. Hoover, has directed inspectors to take testimony of the survivors on the Vestris. He is not related to President-elect Hoover, the former secretary of commerce.

Demands Probe
Bloom indicated that he may demand a Congressional investigation of the service, but pointed out that two years ago he waged a penman campaign to improve inspection.

"We should hold responsible the inspector who allowed that ship to go out," said Bloom, "any person who takes a voyage knows that the ship and its equipment have been inspected and that there is complete confidence in the inspector. Reports indicate that the Vestris would not have passed inspection."

"I do not charge the steamboat inspection service with inefficiency, it seems to me neglect because absence of disaster juries all to false sense of security."

His First Protest
Bloom said that he first protested alleged lax inspection two years ago when a New Yorker on the anniversary of the General Slocum disaster asked him what steps had been taken to prevent a repetition of the sinking of the excursion boat.

"I called for a report of cases of overloading, defective boilers and defective lifeboats in the last 25 years," said Bloom. "One captain was disciplined in that period in the port of New York. This in itself indicates that the inspection service is not what it should be."

Has Money Enough
"Congress has given the authority or it has been obtained by reciprocal agreements with other nations and the Department of Commerce has been able to get all of the money it needs from Congress. Responsibility must lie with that service."

CHEVROLET "SIX" IS NOW ON MARKET

To Be Same Price as the "Fours"—Its New Fea- tures Explained.

New York, Nov. 16.—Introduction of the new Chevrolet "six" that will market for practically the same range of prices as the Chevrolet four, was announced today by W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

Production of the new car was started several days ago with the company's 15 factories over the country prepared to start delivery to dealers by December 15 and to the public by January 1.

The new six motor is described by Knudsen as developing 32 per cent more power than its predecessor, retaining the valve-in-head principle. The motor is of the high compression type with a non-detonting head and greater acceleration and speed, he said.

Twenty miles to the gallon is proclaimed for the new model as a result of tests under all road and weather conditions.

"The motor develops 48 horse power at low engine speed and as a result of the automatic lubrication of the valve mechanism the motor is exceptionally quiet throughout the entire speed range," Knudsen said.

Seven models of passenger car and three commercial types comprise the new line, including five closed and two open passenger models. The commercial car embraces a larger ton and a half capacity truck, a new light delivery chassis and a "sedan delivery." The passenger car range is from $525 to $725, F. O. B. Flint as follows: roadster, $525, phaeton $525, coach $595, coupe $595, sedan $675, sport cabriolet $695 and convertible landau $725.

Wives See Husbands Die In Their Arms

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 16.—There have been many heart-rending tales floating up from the wreckage of the Vestris, but it remained for the last survivors of that fearful tragedy to bring into port the most harrowing tale of suffering and grief.

Over in the naval hospital at Portsmouth today were five women, tossing on hospital cots, and bordering on collapse. Three of them were widowed by the tragedy, and two of the trio went through the agony of seeing their husbands die in their arms.

The five women were brought to this port aboard the battleship Wyoming, Mrs. Teruko Inouye, wife of the Japanese consul at Buenos Aires; Mrs. Mary Ulrich of New York; Mrs. Elvira Rua of New Bedford, Mass.; Mrs. Dolores Dorfl of Brooklyn and Mrs. Norman K. Batten.

With them were three West Indian negro members of the crew, Joseph Boxil, Gerald Burton and John Morris, to whom the women owe their lives. These negro stokers performed in accordance with the best traditions of the sea, whatever charges may be brought against the conduct of the other members of the Vestris crew.

Saw Husbands Die
It was Mrs. Inouye and Mrs. Batten who went through the horror of seeing their husbands die by their sides, as all struggled in the

NEW DRY HEAD FOR THE STATE TO DO THINGS

Says Illicit Traffic In Liquor Has Been Greatly Re- duced in State of Connec- ticut.

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 16.—Quoting the words of the president-elect, Robert L. Sengle, of West Hartford, who is to be deputy prohibition administrator in the Connecticut district, today declared he believed that "prohibition is a great social and economic experiment," but feels that it is "beyond the experimental stage" in Connecticut. "The work of the police has reduced illicit traffic in liquor from a large industry to trade among small scattered groups."

Not Yet Appointed
Mr. Sengle has not yet received official notice of his appointment and has made no arrangements to take over the work now under the direction of Frank T. Putney, of Guilford.

Mr. Sengle has been legal advisor of the State Police Department since 1921, and Commissioner Robert T. Hurley, of that department, today declared "we shall be sorry to lose the services of Mr. Sengle, but citizens of the state need have no doubt that he will conduct his new department on a very high plane."

It is believed Mr. Sengle will continue with the State Police department also.

NEW ENGLAND COUNCIL TO FAVOR SALES PLAN
Speaker Tells Delegates That
"Covered Wagon" Is Now Headed East.

Portland, Me., Nov. 16.—With acceptance of the $300,000 a year "New England Sales Plan" a foregone conclusion, with John S. Lawrence, retiring president of the New England Council, slated to become treasurer and have a great deal to do with the development of the plan and with Redfield Proctor, former governor of Vermont, scheduled for the presidency of the council, the 1,000 business and industrial leaders of the six New England states attending the fourth "New England" conference today listened to discussions of agricultural and manufacturing matters.

Favors Seaway
The New England Council, guiding body of the conference, was told by Henry L. Harriman, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, that development of the St. Lawrence seaway should be urged as it would open new markets for New England as well as aid in the development of the middle west.

"The covered wagon has turned east," declared Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, Massachusetts commissioner of agriculture, declaring that farmers of the west were being attracted to Massachusetts with 33,000 farms employing 133,000 persons, "farm factories" being larger now than the woolen industry in the Bay State. The New England farmer, said Dr. Gilbert, though he faces a hopeful future, does so for the most part with an antiquated and depleted "ant" aged quality farm products.

United States Attorney Tuttle to Go to the Bottom of Stories Told by Crew That Steamer Was In No Fit Condition to Leave Her Dock.

New York, Nov. 16.—United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle who is conducting the federal investigation into the responsibility of the sinking of the Lampport & Holt steamer Vestris announced today that he would "go to the bottom" of stories told by members of the crew that the ship was in such a condition at sailing time that there was some discussion as to whether to sail or not.

He said, too, that he would obtain all radio messages that were exchanged between the captain of the ship and officials of the line.

"I am after all the facts," Tuttle declared. "I am confident we can fix the blame. I have called on the entire criminal division of my staff for assistance."

Shown Dispatches
Shows an International News Service dispatch from Norfolk, Va., quoting Commander G. W. Simpson, executive officer of the U. S. S. Wyoming, one of the rescue ships, to the effect that stokers aboard the Vestris blamed a cracked sea valve in the fire room as causing the list of the ill-fated liner. Tuttle immediately took steps to obtain sworn information bearing upon that point.

"I will communicate at once with the U. S. attorney at Norfolk and have him take in affidavit from the stokers as saying: 'The sea valve was cracked when we left New York. As a matter of fact there was some discussion as to whether to sail or not.'"

"I intended to go into that phase," remarked Tuttle as he pocketed the copy of the dispatch.

To Question Crew
He planned to question members of the crew on that matter when they take the witness stand at the resumption of the inquiry before Commissioner Frances O'Neill this afternoon. Late yesterday six witnesses took the stand and gave a vivid picture of the disaster. They were passengers. One by one they charged negligence, incompetence, mismanagement and failure on the part of those entrusted with the fate of the 338 men, women and children who sailed on the Vestris last Sunday.

Tuttle has subpoenaed, among others, Frank Thompson, first mate, the officer next in rank to Captain William Carey who went down with his ship. The U. S. attorney expects to draw from Thompson the reason why Carey waited so long to send out an S. O. S. Passengers had testified that they knew hours before the S. O. S. went out that the Vestris was in grave danger.

Radio Advice
"I intend to obtain the radio advice that were exchanged between the captain and officials of the line," Tuttle said. "I expect to get them from the Radio Corporation of America and from the officials of the Lampport & Holt line."

At this afternoon's session of the federal inquiry the officers and men of the Vestris will be given an opportunity to explain, and defend if there is a defense, many of the things that transpired when the ship was in peril. So far no testimony for the defense has been given.

In spite of the stories of passengers that the equipment was faulty, the two inspectors who examined the equipment insisted in statements made public today that the apparatus was O. K. when the ship left port.

The hulls and life saving apparatus, were inspected by Edward Keane, assistant inspector of hulls, and has been in the service 17 years, and F. N. Bruning, who has been in the service only a month. The vessel's boilers were inspected by F. L. Dennis, assistant inspector of boilers.

PROBE RESUMED
New York, Nov. 15.—Testimony of the officers of the Vestris, of representatives of Lampport & Holt, owners of the ill-fated liner, and of government steamboat inspectors who passed the ship a week before she left this port on her fatal voyage last Saturday, was to be given here this afternoon at the resump-

Navy Chief At Disaster

Vice Admiral M. M. Taylor, who directed the Navy Department's rescue forces at the scene of the Vestris sinking, is expected to make the Navy Department's report thereon. Admiral Taylor was aboard the Battleship Wyoming, which picked up several survivors, and was in complete charge of a number of naval vessels at the scene.

SEA VALVE CAUSED SINKING OF LINER

Was Cracked When Vestris Left New York, Sailors Tell Navy Officials.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 16.—The mystery of what caused the list of the Lampport & Holt liner Vestris soon after she sailed from New York on her tragic voyage was partially cleared up today by stories told naval officers aboard the battleship Wyoming.

It was a cracked sea valve in the fire room, according to stokers aboard the Vestris. This valve was cracked when the Vestris sailed from New York, according to the vessel cleared, allowing the sea to flood the hold. This caused the list, and with the list, which consequently became greater, the cargo began to shift and this great sliding weight merely hastened the inevitable.

"The ship started to list badly early Sunday morning, according to what the stokers told me," said Commander Simpson, executive officer of the Wyoming. "They said the valve was cracked when they left New York, and that as a mat-gress may make into the Vestris disaster probably will have to be directed at the federal inspection service, it appeared today. Although Senator Duncan U. Fletcher (D) of Florida, has said he would sponsor a resolution to investigate the whole tragedy, inquiry among Senate leaders developed the fact today that most of them feel Congress has no authority to conduct a probe specifically into the handling of a British ship. They feel that the investigation which U. S. District Attorney Tuttle is now conducting in New York is sufficient to take care of American interests. The U. S. Steamboat inspection service, however, is another matter. This service is wholly an agency of the American government and as such is properly a subject for Congressional concern. The service has been under fire before, and while many members of Congress are loath to directly tackle the conduct of the Vestris herself, they feel that the situation may warrant Congress looking into it through the indirect route of the inspection service. No definite steps can be taken until Congress meets on Dec. 3. By that time District Attorney Tuttle's investigation in New York may disclose the need or the lack of need for Congress to act.

NORTH END COLLECTOR GETTING IN THE TAXES

Chartier, Eighth District Official Cleaning Up Arrears of Last Two Years.

Joseph Chartier of 97 Main street has a fine reputation as a blacksmith, and as a tax collector he is getting another just as good. The fact that he collects Eighth District taxes as a side issue, one which keeps him up late many nights, makes this all the more notable. Very often tax collectors' efforts to clean up small back tax bills are postponed until the last minute, but, according to Edward J. Murphy, of the Board of Directors of the Eighth School and Utilities District, Mr. Chartier has reversed this plan and already has collected $908.13 in small tax bills for 1925 and 1926. In addition, he has already collected $32,207.78 of the approximate $35,000 for 1927, due and collectible on October 1. "If Mr. Chartier keeps up his present pace," he will equal the excellent record made by Thomas Ferguson when he was tax collector," Mr. Murphy said. "His good work has been due to prompt mailing of bills and long hours of office work at his home after business hours. The report which he submitted to the Board of Directors of the district at a meeting held a few days ago was the first of its kind ever offered the board and showed a most businesslike system."

tion of the government investigation of the shipwreck. Some of the passengers who survived the disaster, which cost a toll more than 90 lives, already have told their stories. They testified that the ship listed badly for hours before it sunk on Monday, that women and children were jammed into two lifeboats which were left dangling over the side of the vessel. The ship was utterly broken. The officers failed to take charge of the situation in the crisis.

Capt. Carey Deed Capt. William J. Carey is not here to answer the charge that he should have sent out an SOS on Monday when the Vestris showed an alarming list. He is dead, with the sunken Vestris his coffin. But the officers who survived will tell their side of the story today, if they can be served with subpoenas in time.

United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, who is conducting the inquiry before U. S. Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill, said that subpoenas had been issued for Frank Johnson, chief officer, and his mates. But some of the officers did not appear in the courtroom not at the hotel where they had been stopping, and it was not learned whether subpoenas had been served upon all of them.

VALUE OF CARGO New York, Nov. 16.—Brokers estimates here today placed the loss in the sinking of the Vestris at between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000; exclusive of the costs of any claims due to injury or death of passengers.

It was learned also that the Vestris had the most favorable rating given by Lloyd's register of London. Most of her cargo comprised agricultural machinery and automobiles. E. Bishop, claim agent of the line, estimated the value of this item at $1,000,000. Other cargo would bring it to $2,000,000 he said, and the ship itself was insured for $1,000,000.

BAY STATE VICTIM

New York, Nov. 16.—One of the bodies of the Vestris dead at the Seaview morgue, Staten Island, had been identified as that of Miss Eleanor Parker, 32, of Holmesville, Mass. Identification was made by a cousin, George M. Parker of Holmesville.

ter of fact there was some discussion as to whether to sail or not."

Undoubtedly, the Wyoming's officers said, if Captain Wm. F. Carey had sent out his call for help early Sunday morning when the list became pronounced it would have resulted in the saving of many more, perhaps all, the lives aboard the Vestris.

The broken valve, through which the sea poured steadily, caused the starboard coal hatch to give way, another of the stokers told the naval officers, and this also hastened the end of the liner.

As early as Sunday morning, it was reported, one of the passengers became alarmed and went to Captain Carey, but could get no satisfaction.

One of the women told me her husband begged the ship's officers to do something," said Commander Simpson, "but nothing was done."

THAW ANNOYS STAR

New York, Nov. 16.—William Gustafson, Metropolitan opera basso who is being sued by the lessee of his apartment here for failure to pay $400 rent, says he had to move out of the building because Harry K. Thaw and other neighbors made too much noise. "The singer said he broke the lease because his tranquility was being disturbed by wild parties and police raids in the apartments of his neighbors. The case was adjourned until December 11.

The body has been brought to Manchester by Undertaker Mark Holmes and the funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at the home of her son, 216 Woodbridge street at 2 o'clock. Rev. H. O. Weber of the German Lutheran Concordia church will officiate and the burial will be in the Buckland cemetery.

water around a faulty lifeboat that repeatedly capsized. Mrs. Rusa was torn from her husband's side in the confusion of the disaster, and although he went down she escaped the horror of seeing it. All the women were in a pitiful state when brought into Norfolk. Mrs. Inouye was carried from the Wyoming on a stretcher. She was utterly broken. The others were able to walk but only with assistance.

Lifeboat No. 8 It was Lifeboat No. 8 that was the center of one of the real tragedies of the disaster. Major Inouye and his wife, and Norman K. Batten and his wife all made their boat, along with Mrs. Ulrich and Mrs. Rusa. The men had to ball constantly to keep the craft afloat. Finally even their balling would not suffice, and over it went in the heavy sea. Then it became a question of clinging to the overturned craft.

Half a dozen times, the survivors said, they succeeded in righting the boat, only to have another wave capsize it again. This went on hour after hour.

All Exhausted Finally all were exhausted, and at the end of 15 hours, most of the time spent struggling in the water, the Japanese officer's head rolled to one side and he died while his wife struggled to keep his head clear of the water. Officers said he probably died of exposure and exhaustion. It was necessary for the Wyoming rescuers to tear her from the body when they arrived.

The death of Batten, the race driver, was in most respects similar. Naval officers said the women survived because they had not struggled so fiercely against the heavy odds and worn themselves out.

CRISIS OVER CONTROL OF SALVATION ARMY

High Council of Army Ordered to Meet Early in the New Year.

London, Nov. 16.—Anxiety over the condition of General William Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, today contributes to the belief that a crisis over control of the Army is at hand. The High Council of the Army, which has been in existence for 24 years, but which has never met, has been summoned to convene early in January. It is assured that this indicates that the historic right of the Army's head to choose his own successor may be called into question.

The High Council consists of commissioners and commanders in all parts of the world. It is reported that throughout the organization there is not only much opposition to the elevation of a woman to the command of the Army but a strong movement for the investment of the property in a body of trustees instead of in the titular head of the Army.

VESUVIUS ACTIVE

Rome, Nov. 16.—As though jealous of the destruction wrought by Mt. Etna, the sister volcano, Mt. Vesuvius, has broken loose and a stream of lava is flowing into the "valley of hell," said advices from Naples today. A fissure has opened in the main crater of Vesuvius and is emitting volumes of smoke and steam as the lava rolls out.

A new crater has opened in the side of Mt. Etna, but Prof. Ponte, of the Mt. Etna Observatory believes that the eruption is about over, according to Ripetto dispatches.

Lava is still flowing down Etna's side, but the stream is virtually stationary at its outer edges. The total damage from the Mt. Etna eruption to date is put at nearly $10,000,000.

Organized, June, 1927 with 12 voices the club has become popular among the singers of Manchester and has grown to a membership of 41 women's voices under the leadership of Helge Pearson, organist and choirmaster of the Swedish Lutheran church. Rehearsing every week since their organization, the club has developed a cultivated understanding of the finest work of ladies' voices, and will present an interesting and artistic program on their initial appearance on the concert stage of the High School Auditorium. The club will be Miss Gertrude Berggren, contralto, of New York formerly of Manchester, and the Miller Trio of Hartford, composed of violin, cello and piano. Miss Berggren is well known to the music lovers of Manchester, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Berggren of Linden street. She has been heard recently as have the Miller Trio through their broadcast programs. The program will be one of interest as it will be composed of sacred and secular numbers. The Miller Trio will be heard in several ensemble numbers with the G. Clef Club as well as in solo numbers. Tickets for the concert are on sale from the members and are also to be found at Kemp's Music Store.

SHELburne FALLS FIRE THREATENS WHOLE TOWN

Town Hall Destroyed and Other Buildings—Loss Amounts to $50,000.

Shelburne Falls, Mass., Nov. 16.—Fanned by a high wind, fire early today completely destroyed the Town Hall, damaged adjacent buildings and for a time threatened the entire section of this place. Aid was summoned from Greenfield to battle the blaze.

The fire disrupted the telephone service to outside points and for three hours the town was isolated. All electric service was cut off by the flames. Damage amounting to more than $50,000 was done, according to early estimates.

While the fire was raging, police were searching the Deerfield river in the vicinity of Scott's bridge, in the belief that more than one person was killed when an automobile hurtled through a railing of the bridge and plunged into 32 feet of water.

The body of Wm. L. Kaeter was recovered. Three raincoats found in the recovered automobile gave rise to the belief that another companion was with Kaeter, police said.

Mrs. Nelly McCann, of 25 Rowe Place, Fall River, Mass., Tells How Six Years Sickness Was Gotten Rid of, Very Quickly by the Tonic ERBJUS.

Mrs. McCann says: "I had severe pains in my back and headaches caused me a lot of trouble, my head would ache for many hours each and every day.

"I got so I would reject any kind of food and was losing weight fast—because of nervousness the slamming of a door would cause me to jump.

"I could not sleep well at night and my kidneys were in bad condition. I tried many ways to get relief, but all the medicines I took seemed to aggravate me.

"I heard of ERBJUS and learned it was the pure juices of Nature's herbs diluted with glycerine and I decided to try it.

BYRD'S SHIP SAILS INTO HEAVY STORM

Eleanor Bolling Listed 30 Degrees and Shipped Water, Radio Message Says.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Nov. 16.—The Eleanor Bolling, one of Commander Byrd's ships enroute to the South Pole, is encountering heavy weather in the south Pacific, according to radio messages picked up here last night by Bert Pucket, amateur operator.

Within 310 miles of the New Zealand coast, the ship encountered such heavy gales that she listed 30 degrees and shipped water, the operator said. She expects to land at Yunverin, N. Z., Sunday. The crew asked for the latest news concerning the Vestris disaster, Pucket said.

Nebraska is larger than all the New England states combined.

Cedar Chests do not protect cloths against moths unless they are made of 70% cedar.

Reprint from U. S. Daily

Cedar chests as a protection against moths must contain at least 70 per cent of three-quarter inch red-cedar lumber to be effective, according to the Department of Agriculture. The statement follows in full text:

Experiments have demonstrated the value of chests made of red cedar, Juniperus virginiana. However, to be effective these chests must contain in the body proper at least 70 per cent. of three-quarter inch red-cedar lumber.

The attention of the public is called to the fact that chests made of neutral woods lined with a red-cedar veneer are not genuine red-cedar chests and cannot be depended upon to kill clothes moths. Experiments have proved that clothes moths can develop from the egg, through the worm or larval stage, to the adult moth in chests lined with red-cedar veneer. They cannot do this in genuine red-cedar chests that are in good condition. —United States Daily, Nov. 14, 1927.

Lane Chests Are Certified

Contain More Than 70% Cedar

Realizing that the American public is influenced in buying chests through their desire for moth protection and that it is an American tradition that cedar chests will give moth protection, we began five years ago to perfect a chest to meet the growing demand for hardwood exterior chests to match the popular finishes in bedroom, dining room and living room furniture, at the same time giving the full protection against the destructive moth-larvae that the natural finished all-cedar chests do.

This we have accomplished by perfecting a construction that the U. S. Government recommends for moth-killing chests in that the entire case, exclusive of the top, is of full three-quarter inch aromatic red cedar, scientifically kiln-dried so as to retain the oil that nature has provided to do this work, with the popular hardwood veneers on the exterior.

WEIGHT OF BIG CHUNK OF COAL GETS GUESSERS

Willis's Has Received More Than 2,000 Guesses at Pounding in Big Lump.

Although the north end of the town talks little about football these days, much interest is also being taken in the coal weight guessing contest sponsored by The G. E. Willis & Son Coal Company of this town. More than 2,000 guesses have already been made as to the weight of the large chunk of Old Company Lehigh coal standing outside the office.

The person guessing the closest to the exact weight will receive a ton of coal free for his effort. One person has come within one pound and another within five pounds of the correct figure, but most of the guessers are either way above or below the real weight. The guessing contest opened on Saturday, October 13, and will close a week from tomorrow.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 16.—Manhattan provides an endless parade of "minor immortals."

They're those people whose names one cannot remember, yet who, in 1898 won the world's pie eating contest; or the dance marathon of 1928; or the loud-speaking contest of 1864; or the fellow who baked the world's largest cake.

These are the boys and girls who once brought about a percentage of the arguments that went on around the old stove in the country stores and who, for all I know, may be the basis of discussion around the drug store counters at this moment. Someone, you will recall, was always ready to "bet a quarter" that so-and-so did such-and-such on some date or other. When upon there was a hasty searching of the World Almanac and other volumes given over to statistical records.

Such heroes, of course, are made of overnight ingredients. Their fame flashes for a few hours and is gone in the morning. Yet somewhere, somehow their achievement is recorded and rises to haunt some future challenger.

During those moments when the achievement is at hand, the movie cameras grind and the still cameras click; the reporters are out en masse and the committees sit impatiently by.

The competitive spirit in such contests is greater, of course, in the smaller communities than in Manhattan, though the number of contests in New York if placed end to end would provide these Roubidoux holidays, speaking with a hundred years of steady entertainment.

At the country fairs, unless times have changed, the pie eaters still go to it tooth and jowl; the hog callers send their shrieks out upon the still air and the gent who grew the largest pumpkin is a minor celebrity.

Gathering a few notes on such matters over a period of a few weeks, I have discovered that a young man in Minnesota was able to stow away 65 cups of coffee at a sitting, and live through it; that a famous "human fly" was able to perch on a flagpole for something like eight hours; that a patriotic gentleman in New Bedford, Mass., sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" for more than 17 days without stopping, which must place him in the unique position of any American who actually knows the words of the national anthem. Some 45 hotcakes went into the gut of a future dyspeptic. A couple of young men stayed under water in a Chicago tank until the police interfered and they spared the undertaker a job. Any number of flyers have stayed in mid-air until records were achieved or the law of gravity interfered to cause tragedy. Dance marathon records are as fragile as potato chips. A gent in upper New York thumped the piano keys for 52 hours and was not shot by his neighbors. A couple of stilt walkers walked from Boston to Providence without getting down.

But why go on? They all live to tell the tale and re-tell it. Just what good it will do them I don't pretend to know. They're all at liberty insofar as I know, and no keepers from the "bug house" have, to my knowledge, come to get them.

I assume that, behind such performances, lies some deep psychological motivation, and I'm not up to the latest wrinkles in psychology.

The last contests I remember hearing about in New York included a snare drum competition, a marathon golf shot of some 250 holes per day, a prize for the best name selected for a chicken lately arrived from Norway, a croquet tournament "down the island" and a theatre attendance record.

Babies don't gain when souring waste in a clogged digestive tract is forming gas, making them colicky, constipated and miserable. SUNSHINE CLUB PLANS WINTER'S ACTIVITIES

The monthly meeting of the Sunshine Club of the Swedish-Congregational church was held last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bronkie of Brookfield street. The meeting was called to order by the chairman, C. E. Johansson and questions were brought up regarding activities for the coming month.

On December 1, 1928, the club is going to hold a Waffle and Coffee sale starting at 7 o'clock and all are invited to attend. On December 15th the club holds its annual meeting in the church parlors. A dinner is to be served followed by a social time. Every member of the club is expected to be present. This coming Tuesday, November 20th, there is to be an "Out of the Attic" party held in the attic at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. S. E. Green. All are requested to come dressed in old clothes taken from their attics. The meeting adjourned and refreshments and social time was enjoyed by all.

"Stop, look and listen" makes a good sign. Add: "Brake or break."

NORTH END BAZAAR ATTRACTING CROWDS

The North Methodist Bazaar attracted a large crowd again last night, and the Parrot tea room where a substantial supper is served each evening, did a good business not only with the regular meal but in serving ice cream and other light refreshments. A different menu will be provided tonight, the last evening of the bazaar, and being Friday, clam chowder and salmon loaf will be featured with side dishes of creamed carrots and peas, rolls and butter, gingerbread with whipped cream, tea or coffee, or other specials a la carte.

There is still a wide choice of desirable Christmas gifts, aprons, leather goods and electrical appliances to be found at the booths. At the country store many well known staples in the grocery line, and some brand new products of the food manufacturers are offered for sale, as well as fruits and vegetables or fresh eggs. The clerks at the store, report more of a demand than a supply of the latter.

The entertainments provided each evening have been short but of a lively and mirth-provoking nature. Mrs. Clarence Johnson of Weymouth, formerly organist of the church, and Mrs. Walter Smith presented a black-face sketch the first evening. Last night two girls and two boys from the High School Dramatic club gave an interesting playlet, and tonight Baulah and Elizabeth Filing and Thomas Maxwell's Mandolin club will be the entertainers.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

One of the stellar attractions of next month will be the presentation of "The Whole Town's Talking" by Washington Group, Number One. The presentation of this play involves considerable work on the part of both the actors and the coach, but the rehearsals have shown that the performance will be one of the highest order. The date of the presentation has not been definitely decided upon but it is probable that it will take place in the third week in December. The play is being coached by Miss Estes.

HOW LONG?

A citizen writing to a New York newspaper may be taken as representative of many millions of serious, sincere people who regard the recent Presidential election as a settlement of the prohibition question.

This person points out that, counting the wet Republicans who voted for Hoover as an offset to the dry Democrats who voted for Smith, there has been exhibited a clear majority of something like six million people in favor of a continuance of prohibition.

"I raise the question," he says, "whether it would not be the proper thing for those who have taken the other side of the question to accept the verdict given by this nation-wide referendum and give the policy which won by this decisive majority a fair chance to succeed."

Fair enough, as a sporting proposition. And yet that writer is quite wrong, because this is not a sporting proposition and also because there is nothing to accept. Opponents of the existing situation cannot accept prohibition because there is no prohibition. There is no prohibition either in practice or in law. It is not prohibition to forbid the brewing of beer and permit the unlimited manufacture of beer which will presently become far more potent than any beer. It is not prohibition to forbid the manufacture of liquor in a distillery and permit it in a kitchen. It is not prohibition to deny one class of citizens its favorite intoxicant and legalize the favorite intoxicant to another class. It is not prohibition to permit a family to manufacture delinquent alcoholic drinks in a home and consume them to the extent of debauchery and madness.

Yet the Volstead law does all these things. The prohibition at present theoretically in force in the United States not only does not stop drunkenness, it does not even prohibit it. It frankly sanctions and authorizes alcohol production on the farms. It goes but a little way toward making it illegal in the towns. It falls infinitely short of even demanding the condition that the dregs be kept in a safe. They hoped that by law men and women and boys and girls could be prevented from getting alcoholic drinks. Yet if the Volstead law were enforced 100 per cent, it would not come anywhere near approaching that objective.

Where then, can the anti-prohibitionist "accept the verdict" if by any chance he is one of those people whose hearts and souls are enlisted in an effort to do away with drunkenness and its consequences?

How long, Oh Lord, how long are the regimented followers of the Anti-Saloon league to rest under the delusion that they and they alone are eager that this nation shall be sober and clean and fine?

THE SHOUTING DIES

One of the happiest things about the advent of a new administration next spring is the complete certainty that it will mark the disappearance of Curtis Dwight Wilbur from the responsible—and in his case extremely risky—position of secretary of the navy.

Mr. Wilbur is one of those exuberant persons who make wonderful cheer leaders in this generation and forty years ago made perfectly corking promoters for old-fashioned dancing. His ideas run to bigness and to noise. He used to take a deal of pride in being superintendent of the biggest Sunday school on the Pacific Coast. Whether the children in it were the best children we never heard, and to that small matter Mr. Wilbur probably never gave one of his gusty thoughts. The school had the biggest rooms and the biggest celebrations and won the most growth banners, so it was a perfect Sunday school from the Wilbur point of view.

Now Mr. Wilbur is the cheer leader for the Big Navy men. He wants to have it said of him that he led the gang in making the American navy the biggest in the world. The cost thereof and the consequences thereof are things just a bit beyond the Wilbur scope. It is that word "biggest" that enthralled him.

Well, Mr. Wilbur's term will be up presently. And we would like to be as sure of a million dollars as we are that Herbert Hoover will appoint to the navy portfolio neither Curtis Dwight Wilbur nor anybody even remotely like him.

One rah-rah type secretary of the navy, obsessed with the idea of bigness for bigness sake, is about all the United States can use in one generation.

BLACK LION

The soul of a man is without relation to the color of his skin. This is a proposition laid down thousands of times in the past, disputed about, fought over. It is not the proposition maintained by the abolitionists in America before the Civil war, for, going to extremes, they saw the black skin as necessarily the envelop of a soul lily-white. That was nonsense. But that black man, white man, yellow man and red man share alike in being sometimes good and sometimes bad, sometimes coward and sometimes hero, has had millions of demonstrations. Never more forcible demonstration than in the tragedy of the Vestris, where many members of the crew were Negroes.

Some of these Negroes, according to the testimony of reliable witnesses, behaved like cowardly animals, seeking their own safety at craven cost of lives they might easily have saved. Some of them, on the other hand, gave display of sheer, glorious valor equal to the most splendid performances in the bravest sagas of the sea.

One name that will live long, if the stories they tell of its owner are fully verified, as they no doubt will be, is that oddity of an appellation, Lionel Licorish, whose owner was quartermaster of the Vestris. From his picture a full blooded mid-African Negro, possessing a surname which obviously originated in humor but a given name which he deserves better than thousands of white men who have born it, this splendid black man is accredited with the saving of no less than twenty lives and with deeds of gallantry never surpassed.

One Lionel Licorish does more to establish the status of the Negro on a high footing among the races than the machinations of ten thousand surly, race-conscious agitators.

HACKNEYED PATTERN

The New England Council has just presented to the fourth New England Conference a comprehensive report on a well studied and intelligent plan for placing the advantages and opportunities of New England, its desirability as a place of residence and resort, its aptness for further industrial development, luddily and convincingly before the region and the nation. The report is captioned, "The New England Sales Plan," and it contains frequent repetitions of the "selling" idea, such as "Selling New England to Herself."

In our very humble opinion the clever gentlemen who have evolved this report would have done far better to have avoided instead of featuring a bit of trade patter which, for emptiness of meaning, for all-around cheapness and inferiority of effect has never, it seems to us, been quite equalled in the changing modes of business parlance.

The term was a bad one to start with, since it was employed in an entirely arbitrary sense, never justified by the meaning of the word "sell." As a matter of fact we haven't the remotest idea of selling the idea of New England—we are trying to get the world to take it as a gift and a blessing. We seek to impart true information, gratis. We want to educate the country concerning these six states. There is no money and no price involved—and there must be, in any matter of selling.

Again, the "selling" patter is more hackneyed than the mother-in-law joke. There are thousands of people who are utterly repelled by its senseless quackery, repeated world without end by every hally-hoo baby from Curtis Wilbur to the sideshow barker.

State, fat and unprofitable are the word "sale" and the word "sell" in the intransitive or the figurative. Many New Englanders will regret that the valuable report of the New England Council did not studiously avoid them instead of featuring them—away behind the times.

NEEDED

Boston's new North Station, which President Coolidge officially opened a couple of days ago by pressing a button at Washington, is gleefully reported by the Boston papers as having a bigger waiting room than the Grand Central Terminal in New York. Well, they'll probably need it. The difference between the kind of folks who use the Grand Central and those who use Boston's North Station is that the former are the sort who reach the portal barriers on a run two seconds before they are closed, whereas the latter are liable to get to the station in the forenoon to catch a train that leaves at three p. m.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Herald. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

METHODS OF COOKING.

Fish can be prepared by the same processes which I have described in preparing meat. The salt should not be added until after the cooking has been complete. As a rule, fish can be cooked in less time than meat. Fried fish is the hardest to digest; fish cooked in the skin is most easily digested.

Steaming is one of the most valuable methods of cooking that can be employed in cooking vegetables, for it maintains their full flavor. Vegetables with large amounts of cellulose and starch are more digestible after being cooked. This is particularly true of roots and tubers.

As a general rule, all vegetables that are boiled or stewed should be cooked rapidly with very little water. Any juices which are left around the vegetables after the cooking has been completed should be either boiled into the vegetables or used as the basis of soup and not thrown away, because these juices contain valuable mineral elements which have been absorbed from the vegetables.

Most housewives are familiar with the fact that spinach and similar green can be cooked in any ordinary covered pot without the addition of water, but many do not know that all foods except grains may be cooked without water over a slow fire in a pot with a close fitting lid. The heavy aluminum cooking vessels are the most satisfactory for this purpose, because they distribute the heat evenly, and tend to prevent scorching. This method cooks foods at a comparatively low temperature and preserves all of the flavor and juices as well as the vitamins and mineral elements which would be partly destroyed by prolonged intensive heat. The bottom of these aluminum cooking vessels may be as much as one fourth of an inch thick, and in this way convey the heat more evenly than when thin-bottomed vessels are used.

The dishes of the highly paid chefs imported from France and Italy, where cooking has been recognized as more than an art for centuries, although appetizing, cannot be considered scientifically correct, either as to the mode of preparation or the combination of food ingredients.

French chefs usually cook their meats much longer than American and English cooks. In this way they are enabled to alter the original taste of the meat, or to almost annihilate it so that it may become a vehicle for artificial flavorings. The French chef gives a daintiness and variety to his dishes which would be admirable if dietetically correct. He throws away nothing, using the trimmings of meat stock, and like a skilled artisan, he can produce intricate results with small means.

Cooks can be among the greatest helpers of mankind, if they will really learn dietetic principles as well as the science and art of cookery.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Temperature at Night.

Question: Mrs. J. H. writes: "Kindly tell me the cause of a boy seven years old running a temperature every night? He is underweight and of a very nervous temperament."

Answer: You should have your boy examined by a competent diagnostician. He may be suffering from tuberculosis in some part of the body, or from pyelitis or some other disease where there is a febrile generation of tissues going on.

Starch in Melba Toast?

Question: M. H. writes: "I have heard that you claim that Melba toast contains no starch—that toasting white bread removes the starch."

Answer: My claim was that starch becomes dextrinized by the heat so that it is not liable to cause fermentation in the intestines.

Reducing Medicines.

Question: M. M. asks: "Will you, if possible, tell me what you think of this new product called 'Laxative' that has recently been put on the market? Do you consider it harmless and does it really reduce? Do you consider it a good deal to lose four pounds in a few minutes? I do not understand its action."

Answer: I never recommend remedies for reducing. It is only necessary for you to diet and exercise properly and you can surely bring your weight to the normal. The principal of all reducing remedies is wrong. Stop the cause—TOO MUCH FOOD AND INSUFFICIENT EXERCISE—and you have the only sensible cure for obesity.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Hoover is now being compelled to listen to the assurances of apparently innumerable persons and organizations that he owes his election to them. Fortunately, he is not compelled to believe any of this guff, presumably he realizes that no one is in a position to step out and say, "I did it!"

If Hoover's margin had been small that wouldn't be true. Then nearly everyone would have been able to show, with considerable plausibility, that if their group had been working against him he doubtless would have been trimmed. In 1916 the Democratic bosses of various states were able to boast that if it hadn't been for their work Wilson would have lost to Hughes.

If Hoover had won by a similar vote, the claimants would have included not only many politicians but also the organized drags, organized bigots, big business and federations of churches. As it is, Hoover can prove that he could have done very well without any single one of these vote-swaying groups or even without a combination of them.

Now that the votes are all counted, it is possible to apply to many states the same reasoning which would be applicable had the vote been very close. It is more than reasonable to suggest for instance, that if Smith had not been a Catholic, Hoover would not have broken into the heretofore solid south. And that even if Smith had been a dry Catholic, the south would have remained unanimously Democratic. It is also safe to say that if Smith had been neither wet nor Catholic he wouldn't have carried Massachusetts or Rhode Island.

Of course the trouble with most of the really big states was that they had too blamed many Republicans—New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, California, Iowa and so on. In such states as those, which always swing elections, it is impossible to say that the religious issue played any decisive part.

In these decisive states, where the issue was in any way close—as in New York—the best suggestion that can be made is that Hoover knew where lay his strength when he admitted before election that he was depending on the vote of the women.

But the Democrats probably will continue to find too many Republicans in most of them until masses of people over wide areas have something to be really sore about. For the first time in several decades, a majority has voted to extend a period of conservative Republican administration beyond eight years. The cry of Prosperity may be the bunk in a political campaign, but it would appear that the installment houses will have to take back quite a few automobiles and radio sets before most of the voters will believe it.

At the moment it looks as if only a panic or some pretty awful breaks on Hoover's part could keep him from running his four years at the White House into eight.

ACCIDENTS BESET ONE WEST SIDE LOCALITY

Smith Family Has Two, Several Others in Neighborhood Afflicted.

A series of accidents has resulted in several residents of Ridge street and immediate vicinity being confined to their homes, the family of Peter J. Smith being hit twice. On Monday evening Mr. Smith was clearing up his cellar. He had carried out some ashes and in returning fell down the outdoor stairs to the cellar bottom, striking on his shoulder. He has a badly wrenched shoulder and bruises that have confined him to his bed since. On the following night Mrs.

Smith suffered a fall in the yard and sprained an ankle. She is also confined to her bed. Living next door, in the same house, is Mrs. Thomas Curran, who has been confined to her home for several months and only recently returned from a Hartford hospital. Mrs. John Fogarty, also of Ridge street, is confined to her home with a sprained ankle, suffered when she slipped in stepping out of an automobile early this week. Jeffrey Moriarty of Divislen street, taken to St. Francis' hospital, Hartford, after being struck by an automobile, on November 3, is still a patient at the hospital and although he is showing some improvement it will be several weeks before he is able to return home. Miss Mary Miner of Laurel street, employed in the State Motor Vehicle Department at Hartford, is also confined to her home, having turned her ankle on New street, while on her way to catch her car for Hartford.

42 East Center street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jessie D., to Robert Wil-

Cloverleaves Determined To Beat Cubs Sunday

NORTH END CONFIDENT TITLE WILL COME BACK TO NORTH END

However, Dope Points to Win for Cubs on Record Comparison; Under-dog Psychological Advantage.

The football series between the Cubs and the Cloverleaves for the 1928 town football championship ought to be one of the closest gridiron scraps Manchester has ever known, and that's saying something for the Silk City has witnessed some mighty hectic set-tos in years gone by.

It appears that the Cubs, 1927 town champions, will enter the series favored to retain their title, but this may, or may not, be an advantage. Many consider that this will prove beneficial to the Cloverleaves, claiming that to be considered the "under-dog" in a competitive even contest is a psychological advantage. To a certain extent, this is true. So-called sports psychologists claim this season sort of bear out this assertion.

Champs Usually Favorite

Perhaps the main reason why the Cubs are regarded as the favorites, is because they won the title last season from the Cloverleaves. The first game ended scoreless and the Cubs took the second encounter by a touchdown margin. The Cubs also have the better record so far this season, but in view of the fact that neither team met opposition on the other's schedule, it is hard to offer this as proof the Cubs are stronger. Each team has played six games. The Cubs have won five and tied the other. Their goal line is unscathed. On the other hand, the Cloverleaves have won all of their six games. However, they have been scored upon twice. Once it was a safety which resulted from a fluky kick-off fumble and the other time it was a touchdown, the result of a cleverly executed forward pass by the New Britain Blues came the nearest to scoring on the Cubs, getting as close as the five yard line where they lost the ball on downs.

Regardless of the fact that the Cubs always been scored upon this season, there are some who argue that their opposition hasn't been as good as the Cubs, with a couple of exceptions. They say that the Cubs line is not the Rock of Gibraltar it was when Mike Greenberg and Johnny Hapenny were the top last season, but that remains to be seen. Hapenny has rejoined the team, but just how valuable he will be after a long lay-off, remains to be seen. He appears to be in perfect condition.

Cloverleaves Improved

Collectively speaking, there seems no doubt but what both the Cubs and the Cloverleaves are improved over last year. This is only to be expected with each under the tutelage of a college trained coach. The Cubs line in their histories, seems to have no question as to the quality of their improvement. That is, they are as bright, but just how bright the Cubs have improved remains to be seen. There is no getting around the fact that when the Cubs met Ding Farr, Elmo Mandrell and Mike Greenberg and Tommy Conran, they were struck a serious blow regardless of the additional good men as Tommy Conran, Billy Skonecki and Jack Mandrell and Hapenny were in uniform for the series. A player who is not with a team practices cannot be as valuable as he would otherwise be. Such teams are favored by having practically all of their men in the best of physical condition for the annual test day after tomorrow.

Not Choice

There are two, however, that I won't call because I can't. There is no choice between a couple like Lafayette and Penn State, while in the case of Detroit and Fordham, there isn't the slightest basis of comparison. All that you can say is that, if Detroit is as good as it is fancied to be, it will win. And I can only seem to get on with marked success in considering Georgia against Louisiana State and Texas against Texas Christian. If the captain of the firing squad should question me closely about it at daybreak, I probably would say Georgia and Texas and pray for divine guidance.

Another tough one is Oregon against Oregon Aggies. I like the former, probably for reasons best known to a couple of other fellows. However, Stanford and California figure to win from Washington and Nevada respectively and U. S. C. should take Washington State. The latter may be lying back with a skull-cracker, at that. Illinois looks the part of a three to one bet against Chicago, Kansas ought to have something on Oklahoma and Syracuse seems to be a jump ahead of Colgate. I like Missouri over New York University. Although the old basis-of-comparison thing again is absent, Pennsylvania must be two touchdowns better than Columbia; at least, it was last week. I think Dartmouth will beat Cornell, largely because I find I am beginning to lose confidence in a team that scores exactly two points in its last three games.

KEENEST RIVALRY TO FEATURE GRID GAMES SATURDAY

Contests In the South Especially to Be Closely Contested—On the Other Fronts.

By DAVIS J. WALEH

New York, Nov. 16.—The Hatfields and the Tollivers of Intercollegiate football, feudants these many years by circumstances, by environment and choice, will have it all tomorrow in a game which, to the principals, won't mean any more than an ordinary windpipe. Locked in the death throes of these eternal vendettas will be die-hard fans of Princeton, Vanderbilt, Alabama and Tennessee; Georgia Tech and Alabama; Illinois and Chicago; Syracuse and Colgate; Baylor and Southern Methodist; Kansas and Oklahoma; Texas Christian and Kansas; Oregon and Oregon Aggies and Tulane and Sewanee.

These outfits regard history with amused tolerance. In 1812, John Paul Jones publicly admitted that he had begun to fight. The battles since have been fought, but the fighting even today is about all that is left to some of them now but, at that, all that is left should prove to be a great plenty. It will make for a lot of legalized brawns tomorrow.

Meantime, national significance will be served on other though slightly less personal fronts. Iowa and Wisconsin will go to but for the western conference championship. Pittsburgh will see what it can do, if anything, about the Nebraska stampee. Notre Dame, at the top of its stride following the Army victory will attempt to beat another contender, Carnegie Tech, out of its title claims. These, with the Yale-Princeton Tech-Alabama and Vanderbilt-Tennessee meetings, constitute the large moments of a rather large afternoon. The results of the last two named will do something toward training the southern title down to championship week.

Or P. C. Wrong Club

Meantime, the 98 per cent wrong club, which could do no better than an average of 25 per cent wrong last week, has met in executive session and has arranged the following results:

Notre Dame to give Carnegie Tech its first defeat, a tough one to call, either way. Princeton to win from Yale, purely by comparative performance. Iowa to win the Big Ten title, beating Wisconsin. The latter is good but too good to be too difficult to see an Iowa team losing that can tip over one big time rival by a point and, after being tied by another, fight back to secure the winning touchdown. It is hard to beat a team like that and I don't think Wisconsin will. Nebraska to win an ultra-close one from Pitt. Georgia Tech to do likewise with Alabama. The latter seems to be coming back, but there is one great virtue in southern football. The team that looks the best usually proves it on the field. Tech is the stand out. Vanderbilt to present Tennessee with its initial defeat after a great fight. This is another one that shouldn't be called. But where I came from, I'm known as fearless Fred.

No Choice

There are two, however, that I won't call because I can't. There is no choice between a couple like Lafayette and Penn State, while in the case of Detroit and Fordham, there isn't the slightest basis of comparison. All that you can say is that, if Detroit is as good as it is fancied to be, it will win. and West Sides three straight games. The victory over the Beethoven was won Tuesday night, being a postponed game from the opening night. The Manchester Construction Company's team gave the best bowling exhibition of the evening when they shattered three records. Billy Wiganowski, their able leader, took two of them himself. He rolled a high single of 160 and a three string of 390 to beat the marks of 154 and 385 set by Domenico Beletti last week. A couple of double strikes, one coming on a spare-did most of the damage. Not being satisfied with that, Billy's team rolled a team single of 645 and a team total of 1,720 to beat the marks set by the Sons of Italy the opening night. The contractors tied the first game at 529 and then lost the first. They also dropped the third game. Curtis, Frank Anderson and Robinson kept the Charter Oaks in the thick of the battle. Saidella and Georgetti were the principal pin-getters as the Sons of Italy took three points from the Beethoven. The latter team won the first game handsily but dropped the last two by wide margins. Manchester Green took second place by scoring four points against the Center Church. Nevertheless, the latter team rolled over 500 each game. The Bon Ami captured three points from the Highland Park team, the latter winning the first game 551 to 550. Conran and Brozowski led the "assault" for the soap makers while Murphy and Judatz did best for the losers.

Battalino Easily Beats Cohen In Ten Rounds

Bat Battalino clearly proved last night that he is superior to Milton Cohen, New York featherweight, in their ten round star bout which took place at the Foot Guard Hall in Hartford. While the former national amateur heavyweight champion from Hartford was unable to score a knockout or even a knockdown, there was no question as to which was the better man.

With the exception of the fifth round and possibly the second, Battalino took every round. He was the aggressor and much more willing mixer. There were times when Cohen's alleged superior boxing ability showed up to an advantage, but the most good it did was to tie up Bat when the latter sought to exchange blows. During the last four or five rounds, Cohen repeatedly clinched and made little real effort to fight. Battalino landed much cleaner and harder punches, but although he connected solidly both to the jaw and to the stomach on several occasions, he was unable to drop Cohen once. In fact Milton's knees didn't sag once under the fusillade of blows he received. Cohen appar-

Any tickets bought for the Cubs' scheduled game with All-New Haven last week will not be honored at the title series games. Also, tonight will be the final time to redeem the tickets at the School Street Rec.

Admission to the Cubs-Cloverleaves series games will be fifty cents per person, regardless of man, woman or child, it has been decided by the team officials. The North Ends will practice tonight at the North End playgrounds at 7 o'clock sharp. Ten cops, which constitute most of the Manchester Police Department's regular force, have been ordered for the Cubs-Cloverleaves game Sunday at Mt. Nebo. The officials say that they intend to keep the field clear of spectators at all times. Tommy Conran has organized a bowling league which will roll every Friday night at his alleys over north, starting tonight. The North Ends, Cloverleaves, Talcottville and All-Stars make up the membership. There will be $100 in prize money, fifty to first winner, thirty to second and twenty to third. The winner intends to challenge the winner of The Herald league. Through an error it was announced yesterday that the High School is playing Windham High in Williamantic this afternoon, but the game is not until tomorrow afternoon. Only one other game remains, that being with the undefeated Naugatuck High here a week from today. Souvenir footballs the same as are sold at college games have been bought by two Manchester men who are reporting selling them like hotcakes for our football title series games. The souvenirs are marked according to your wish, Cubs or Cloverleaves.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

NEVER ENDING QUEST.

The never ending question as the week-end rolls around—What for dinner on Sunday? Well, we've a couple of suggestions to make.

One is on chicken—or fowl. We have some fine fowl on fricassee and a lot of exceptionally nice roasting or frying chickens. You can't go wrong on any of them.

The other is—Pork. Pork cut from young, tender, sweetly fed stock—delicious Pork. Suggest a shoulder (boned to stuff if you say so); or ribs or loin ends to roast. Likewise the ambrosial Fresh Ham.

Or, if these don't just hit the fancy, there are the always dependable and (at Pinehurst) always delicious Legs of Lamb, Shoulders of Lamb, or Lamb Chops.

Whichever you select we promise you perfect meat for the Sunday dinner.

Another word about the cheese department. Pinehurst feels pretty nifty over that department. It contains pretty much everything that's worth while in the way of Plain or Fancy Cheeses, including a definitely snappy and a definitely mild American cheese—cheeses of real character and perfect flavor. The demand on the strong, snappy cheese more than doubled last week, after we began to shout about it.

While we think of it, it's by no means too early to order your Thanksgiving turkey—now.

Don't forget that this is late phone order night. Three phones working till 9 o'clock, though the store is closed. The orders delivered any time tomorrow, from 8 o'clock on, at your convenience. And, tomorrow if there should be something you forgot to order tonight, call us again. Pinehurst doesn't in the least object to getting more than one order a day from the same house over the phones.

The number is two thousand.

ABOUT TOWN

Mrs. Henry Haefs of 165 High street is a patient in the Reconstruction hospital in New York City.

A bridge and whist party will be given at the White House on North Main street by the Manchester Community club this evening, with the usual number of prizes for the winners, refreshments and a social time. Mrs. Harold Norton heads the committee of arrangements.

Tonight at the Manchester Green school the Community club will hold its regular business meeting.

Acquaintances in town have received news of the death of Mrs. Mathew Schuetler, who with her husband left Manchester for their old home in Germany in 1913. Mr. and Mrs. Schuetler formerly owned the house at the corner of Main and Hudson streets. Mrs. Schuetler had contemplated returning to this country. This fall she suffered an attack of pneumonia, and while she apparently recovered from the disease, it left her heart in such a condition that death later resulted. She was 64 years old.

Mrs. John Parkinson of Stamford is visiting her sister, Mrs. David Korngiebel of Henry street.

GREAT GRANDSON'S BIRTH SPOILS BIRTHDAY PARTY

George M. Buck Reached 102nd Year Yesterday But Arrival of Babe Stops Celebration.

The welcome addition of another great grandson to the fifty members of George M. Buck's progeny yesterday was one reason why there was no 102nd birthday celebration for the centenarian at his home in Avon where the birth occurred. Another reason was the fact that a big celebration was held when Mr. Buck was 100 years old and another last year.

The new addition to the large family tree is Elton Hollister Buell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Buell. Mrs. Buell was formerly Miss Florence Hollister of this town. Mr. Buck makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Buell who lives in the same house with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Buell.

The centenarian has five children, 23 grandchildren, 16 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren now living. Mrs. B. F. Ball of Adams street, Buckland is one of his daughters and George S. Buck of Highland Park, one of his sons. Other sons are Clinton Buck of Buckingham and Warren Buck of Gilead. Twelve grand children and eight great-grand children live here.

Despite his advanced age, Mr. Buck is in fairly good health and is able to be up and around, considerable. He attributes his longevity to temperance, careful eating and little use of tobacco. Mr. Buck is optimistic regarding his chance of living several more years.

COMMITTEE EXAMINES BILLS FOR BIG DAY

Finds Expense Has Totaled $6,200 and Considers Means of Raising Deficit.

The general committee for Manchester's Tenth Anniversary celebration met at the State Armory last night to consider the financial condition which exists now that the celebration is over. All bills which have been presented to date were examined as well as the possibility of raising further funds. The total expense of the big day, as far as can be ascertained at this time, is $6,200. The deficit as figured at the meeting is a little over $500, but there are still some other bills to come in so that it is expected it will be necessary to raise a little over $1,000 to pay all debts.

"I remember her when she was beautiful"

"IT WASN'T so long ago either. Her complexion was the envy of every girl and woman. Her radiant manner was felt the instant she entered the room. . . . But now you'd hardly know she was the same person. Her animation is gone—her clear skin is sallow. She's always tired—often irritable. . . . Here's what has been said about countless women all over the country. Yet, all this could have been prevented. The cause, often constipation, is so easily removed by Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Happily, thousands of women have made this discovery. By regular eating of ALL-BRAN they have regained all that they lost in beauty and health."

is 100% bran—and brings 100% results. Hop different from dangerous pills. How much better than habit-forming drugs and laxatives! Which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased—and sometimes injure the system. How much pleasanter than sickening medicines! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a delicious cereal. Serve it with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey if desired. Use it in cooking too. Mix it with other cereals—for health! Just eat two table-spoonfuls in some form daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Keep ALL-BRAN always on hand as a package of health. But be sure it's genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. At best, they can be but partially effective. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at all hotels and restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

20 odd teams of missionaries which comprised hundreds of Congregational churches in this and other states in the interest of world mission service. The denominational board has sent these men, many of whom are on furloughs from their regular pastorates or missions to tell of their work in the field and thereby promote a more generous support of Congregationalists.

Rev. F. C. Allen, pastor of Second Congregational church presiding, and called on Rev. Truman H. Woodward, pastor of the Federated church of Wapping to introduce the speakers and explain their mission. The ministers who have been working in this section of the country are Rev. O. A. Nogales, Arizona birth, Dr. Miller, manager of the High and middle schools of Pasumalai, India. Rev. Smith who was the first speaker gave an account of his work on the frontier, prefacing his remarks by a description of the town which is divided by a city street from the Mexican Nogales. The twin towns are really considered as one city, with a combined population of 19,000, representing people of many races and color. Mr. Smith carries on a home and a foreign mission work under the same roof, and with the help of a secretary does it most efficiently. He told a number of stories of his children, illustrating the great need of welfare work among them. Many of them speak the Spanish language and some of them are able at an early age to converse intelligently in at least three tongues. He assured the audience that every dollar spent there brought returns a hundred fold. There is urgent need of more workers and more funds.

The Rev. Mr. Miller's address proved equally inspirational. Scotch by birth, Dr. Miller received his college training in California. His long residence in India has given him a wide knowledge of conditions there, especially in the vicinity of Madura. He described the scope of the schools in Pasumalai which come under his jurisdiction with a student body of 1,000 and a teaching force of about 50 men and women. In the trade school a number of the trades are taught, such as printing, binding, carpentry, masonry and blacksmithing. The first of the group of schools was founded nearly 60 years ago and they have been a great influence for religious, vocational and secular instruction. The cost to educate a boy or girl there is infinitesimal compared with what it costs in this country, so that many sent to the Indian missions goes further than anywhere else on the globe. Mr. Miller paid a glowing tribute to the intelligence and brightness of the native boys and girls, many of whom have finished their education in this country or at Oxford and Cambridge in England.

The supper which preceded the addresses was enjoyed by more than 250. It was provided by Second Congregational attendants living on North Main, North School, Edward, McCabe, Deming, Union, Mill, Oakland, Buckland and some scattered sections. Mrs. Frank V. Williams was the general chairman. Pink candles and pa-

Friday

Lunch—Raw apples or oranges as desired.
Dinner—Baked halibut, spinach, cooked cauliflower, salad of sliced tomatoes, (no dressing), no dessert.

Saturday
Breakfast—Genuine whole wheat bread slightly toasted. Peanut butter, stewed prunes.
Lunch—Spaghetti (whole wheat product) boiled and buttered, salad of cold cooked asparagus (canned) on lettuce.
Dinner—Vegetable soup, Sallsbury steak, steamed carrots, booked lettuce, salad of crisp raw spin-ach leaves, raw celery, pineapple sponge.

*Waffles: 1/4 cup of flour, (sifted with baking powder and salt), 1/2 cup of cream, 2 eggs, 1 level teaspoonful of baking powder, pinch of salt.
Separate the yolks from the whites of the eggs. Beat the yolks and add the cream, mixing thoroughly. Next, add the flour, into which has been mixed the baking powder and salt, and beat until smooth. Fold in the whites of the eggs which have been beaten into a moderately stiff froth, but not too dry, or they will be inclined to separate and rise to the top of the batter.
The quantity is sufficient for five or six waffles, which should be baked in aluminum waffle irons to which no grease has been added.
Bake very thin, allowing waffle to become a light golden brown all the way through. This will de-trin-ize the starch in the white flour, as in Melba toast. Serve with butter, and a small amount of maple syrup if desired.

ESKI BAZAAR HITS NEW SLANT OF FUN

Center Church Affair Provides Lots of Joy for Big Attendance.

If Eskimoland had been twice as big as the whole of the Center Congregational church structure instead of being squeezed into the chapel and a couple of other rooms, last night, it wouldn't have been that gathered in the church, snow draped region for the church bazaar. It was a snappy and profitable affair. Also it contributed something new to the art of dramatics, something weird and terrible and excruciating, which was on the program as the "Eskimo Follies."

The bazaar opened at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and from then until closing time late last night the booths did a thriving business. The booths had been tastefully arranged to represent banks of snow upon which were displayed home cooked foods, candy, aprons, sample packages of groceries, balloons, popcorn, and jars of preserves. The Eskimo pie grab bag, originally intended as an attraction for the children, proved to be an irresistible lure for grownups' coin. The Eskimo pie stand was busy all day. The men—the cowards—seemed to shun the fortune teller's booth but the women braved their fate in flocks, lined up in front of the bath, large corner lot. Price right. Terms. Call Arthur A. Knoth, Telephone 732-2, 375 Main street.

Blubber and Penman

The Eskimo Inn in the junior room had been decorated like a pine grove, with tables and chairs arranged in the center. Here maid from the far, far north supplied the ravenous with blubber and pemmican and melted snow—figure breaking melodrama that wrung tears of anguish from the audience. Until seeing this presentation of cold facts depicting the dastardly deeds that go on north of the Arctic circle one cannot fully appreciate the value of law and order in our own communities. It is Miss Helen Estes that the credit for so instructive a brain child must be given. Rev. Watson Woodruff, as prolocutor, translated what was going on from Esk! into English.

The play opened with the hero (C. P. Quimby) and the heroine (Robert Hawley) cuddled on a cake of ice. The villain (Ray H. Pillsbury) with many a snort and snuffle sneaks up on this couple unaware and with much gasping of his cupid's swears that he will steal the girl. He invites the unsuspecting lovers to his Eskimo flat. There he has his vamps (Nate Richards and Robert Treat) try to divert the lover's affections with their girlish charms and dancing. The hero is made of sterner stuff and does not weaken. The vampire (Frank Clark) then struts her

THREE LOCAL PERSONS MARRIED OUT-OF-TOWN

Retirés from different towns and cities in the state made to Town Clerk Samuel J. Turkington show the following marriages in which Manchester people were parties:

John Von Deck of South Manchester and Miss Irene Brown of East Hartford were married on October 6 by Rev. John Von Deck, father of the bridegroom, in East Haddam.

Frank Locke of Guilford, but living now at 272 Porter street, Manchester, and Miss Viola Wickham of East Hartford, were married in East Hartford on October 27 by Rev. Herbert Dixon.

A marriage in which the bride, Miss Margaret C. Morrissey was not of age, and probable court consent was given, took place in Enfield when William Pope of Enfield and Miss Margaret Morrissey were married by Charles J. Fowler, justice of the peace.

Coventry Justice Suspends Happy Charge But Makes Him Pay Costs of Court.

Peter Happenay was before Justice Gilman of Coventry yesterday afternoon charged with abandoning an automobile. On the night of October 25 Happenay was in William Francis and had a call to go to St. Francis' hospital, Hartford, to give a blood transfusion. His motor caused him trouble and fearing that he would not make the hospital in time he pushed his own car off the road, leaving the rear left wheel protruding into the street about two feet. He was given a ride to Hartford in another car. The case was reported to the state police and as the street lights in Coventry go out at midnight, Happenay's auto was considered an obstruction.

In court yesterday afternoon the story of why the car was left there

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: "Famous First Ladies"
Sketches by Bessey; Synopsis by Braucher

The women of the White House always have faced the demands of the social and curious public to be entertained. Mrs. Hayes had given more of her time to the public than any of her predecessors, but Mrs. Garfield, who succeeded her, drew the line and devoted herself mostly to her family. She carefully supervised the education of her children.

THE TINMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Away the whale went, like a streak. The captain stared. He couldn't speak. To see his ship go dashing through the waves was surely queer. The boat had never traveled fast, but now the waves went zipping past. At last the captain shouted, "Say, this brings real cause for fear!"

"No one knows what to expect. Just think, my vessel might be wrecked. The whale you Tinies caught is swimming through the sea like mad. Supposin' he'd dart out of sight. The thought of it fills me with fright, 'cause what would happen to my boat would certainly be sad."

"Oh, don't you worry," Scouty said. "The whale is swimming straight ahead. He'll likely take us some place where we'll all be safe and sound. You see, we've been real kind to him. That's why he's very glad to swim, and not do crazy diving tricks, or even turn around."

Thus, on they sailed across the sea, and all the bunch sang merrily: "We're sailors on the briny deep. Ho! See how fast we sail. It's not the wind that makes us go. Ho! Ho! See how fast we sail. Ho! It's 'cause the ship is being pulled along by Mister Whale."

The captain stood up at the bow. Said he, "I really feel, somehow, that something's sure to happen, so a real close watch I'll keep. I'll keep my hands upon the rope, to stave off any harm. I hope." It wasn't long, however, till the captain fell asleep.

Just then the whale swung to the side, and land, nearby, the Tinies spied. "Hey cut the rope," yelled Scouty, "so he won't pull us ashore." Of course this was the thing to do, and as the rope was cut in two, it snapped back at the captain and he tumbled to the floor.
