

KLAN GIVEN DEATH BLOW BY DECISION

U. S. Supreme Court Says Order Must Name Mem- bers, Reveal Oath and Report Finances.

Washington, Nov. 20.—The knights of the Ku Klux Klan today faced the prospect of waging some bitter political battles for its life as the result of two U. S. Supreme Court decisions defining its legal status.

The court in two cases, one from Kansas and one from New York, has decided that state governments have a power over the organization that is bounded only by the limits of the exercise of police power.

The double-barreled blow at the organization in effect provides that it must not only bare the secret of its oath and name its members but also, if a state Legislature deems, make a complete financial statement for public inspection.

It was generally agreed that the court's decision yesterday in holding constitutional the Walker law of New York, which requires the Klan to file with the secretary of state its oath, by-laws and membership, coupled with the Kansas case, has dealt the Klan a staggering blow.

No Comment

In the absence from the city of Dr. Hiram Evans, imperial wizard, the Klan G. O. Q. here declined to comment on the court's action.

The Kansas case, decided two years, had almost been forgotten

STOCKS CONTINUE TO SOAR WILDLY

New Fortunes Made Daily; Old Traders Amazed at Fluctuations.

New York, Nov. 20.—The market values of the common stocks of eighteen American industrial companies increased $95,807,231 in the first two weeks of the "Hoover Bull Market." This is shown in a check made today by International News Service.

Sky-rocketing stock prices are no novelty to Wall street and the speculative leaders who have for the past two years engineered the most gigantic bull movement in the history of the stock markets. But the breadth and velocity of the November markets, combined with the almost total disregard for the laws of gravitation, have astounded the hardened plodders in Wall street, created a brand new crop of money-makers in the stock market—and sent terror to the hearts of the professional bears, who have never been able to see very far beyond the rims of their own spectacles.

Radio's Big Jump

Radio's amazing jump of 108 points has been the sensation of the market; the stock having advanced 250 points from the low of the year. Radio, with only about 1-100,000 shares of stock outstanding, most of it in the strong hands of the big corporations and professional stock traders, is practically cornered and never before has still skirting around with a short interest in the stock.

New fortunes have been made in Wall street this year, but the road has been anything but an easy one for thousands of the old line traders who have made a living in Wall street for twenty years or more. Never before in the history of the markets have such profits been made by following blind destiny instead of economic facts. Never before have the most elementary and fundamental rules of finance and investment principles been ignored so completely and never before have strong and powerful bull leaders held so tenaciously to their position.

For a seat on the Stock Exchange $495,000 was paid this week and for a Curb Exchange membership $160,000. Membership is of no value unless it is made so by the man who holds it and the natural conclusion is that those who buy the seats expect to make them profitable.

The market will continue to soar until it receives a jolt in the form of some unexpected unfavorable event. It may be an earthquake; it may be a sudden "coming to their senses" of those who are deliriously frenzied over their expected winnings in the biggest Stock Market on record.

BRITAIN MAY REDUCE DEBT FOR GERMANS

May Do So to Strengthen Their Ties With America; Conference Early Next Month.

Paris, Nov. 20.—Underneath an apparently calm surface a keen diplomatic struggle is in progress today over the extent of ground to be covered when the international reparation commission meets next month to settle definitely the amount Germany must pay the Allies.

German Foreign Secretary Stresemann's Reichstag speech brought into the open some of the issues that have been dealt with so far only in diplomatic exchanges.

It has been understood for the past week that France had virtually agreed not to try to link up war debts with reparations, but the official announcement in Berlin that Germany would oppose any attempt to consider the two problems together indicated that Germany is not yet sure of a French position.

Rhineland Occupation

There is also a divergence of opinion over Rhineland occupation. France has shown a willingness to bargain with Germany, offering to hasten evacuation of German soil in return for compensation. Germany does not want the Rhineland occupation issue considered in connection with reparations, but to have reparation settled upon the basis of the German financial and economic conditions.

England's Stand

Despite the growing fraternalism between France and England, there is a disposition in some French quarters to believe that the English, in order to strengthen their ties with America, may consent to drop all reference to war debts and agree to reduced annual payments by Germany.

It has been expected that the international commission might be able to meet either in Brussels or Berlin in the first week of December. As a result of the new maneuvers the meeting may be delayed.

Germany wants American representation on the commission and may obtain the support of England in an effort to bring this about.

GAMBLER INVOLVED IN SMUGGLING PLOT

Rothstein's Name Mentioned—Over 50 Millions in Gems Carried Across.

New York, Nov. 20.—The possibility that the murdered Arnold Rothstein, mysterious figure in the underworld, may have been connected with the $50,000,000 international diamond smuggling ring, was being investigated today by federal agents.

Government agents already have been investigating Rothstein's possible connection with a drug smuggling trust. They claim that documents found in Rothstein's safety deposit box have furnished important leads.

"We have two important leads," said Assistant U. S. Attorney Blake. "That is all I can say at the present time."

"Fences" for smuggled and stolen jewels were associates of the slain gambler, police said. Gems found in the Rothstein banking box were being traced by officials today.

Further Arrests

With four arrests made in connection with the diamond smuggling plot, federal authorities expected to take into custody today another jewel thief.

Those already charged with implication in the most gigantic jewel-runnng conspiracy in a decade are:

William Ballyn, "singing steward" of the Berengaria.

Frances Landau, attractive 20-year-old daughter of a well-known Maiden Lane jeweler.

Mottis Landau, gem importer, father of Frances.

Traffic Policeman John T. McInroy ("Handsome Jack") guardian of the Cunard line piers and favorite of society tourists.

Detective Story.

The methods used to uncover the smuggling syndicate make a detective story fit for any magazine. It was a case of the U. S. Secret Service—that civilian "Northwest mounted police" unit of the American Government—at its best almost two years ago, the service learned

PLANE CRASHES IN 6 MOS. KILLED 53 AND HURT 276

In Regulated Flying Only Seven Were Killed, First Official Report Discloses Today.

Washington, Nov. 20.—America's first official aeronautical casualty list, made public by the Commerce Department today, showed that for the half year from January 1 to July 1, 53 persons were killed and 276 injured in 390 airplane accidents.

In scheduled flying on the airways recognized by the government, however, only seven persons—four pilots and three passengers—were killed, and seven injured.

Officials declared that this record demonstrates the practicability of aircraft as a passenger carrier and that under proper regulation air transportation is safe.

Nearly 400 Escaped

In all accidents investigated by the commerce department 399 persons escaped without injury.

Miscellaneous flying, including stunt operations, sight-seeing excursions, and other virtually unregulated and intra-state stunts, caused 69 per cent of all the fatalities. A total of 178 persons—40 pilots and 138 passengers—died in this type of flying, while 215 were injured.

Student instruction, virtually all of which is the intra-state character and therefore unregulated by the federal government, was responsible for nearly 17 per cent of the casualties. Seventeen pilots and fourteen passengers died during student instruction and 47 were hurt.

Experimental Flying

In experimental flying four pilots and five passengers died, and seven were injured.

In analyzing the causes of accidents it was found that 48.74 per cent were due to personnel; 16.59 per cent to power failures; 5.35 per cent to structural failures; 10 per cent to weather and the rest for

COOK OF THE VESTRIS CHARGED WITH THEFT

Gets 60 Days Sentence in His Home City on His Return.

Waterbury, Me., Nov. 20.—Walter Fellows, who said he was assistant cook of the ill-fated Vestris and was rescued at sea, probably will be detailed to kitchen duty today in the local jail, after he had been given a 60-day sentence when he pleaded nolo contendere to a larceny charge.

A native of this city, Fellows returned home Saturday. He refused to discuss the sinking of the liner, stating that the board of investigation had bound him to secrecy.

Fellows explained the fact that his name was not on the list of survivors, by saying that he had shipped under the name of Walter Ireland.

He was arrested on the larceny charge after a cousin, with whom Fellows spent the night, charged that $73 of his money was missing.

LIVING WAGE IN N. Y. SMALL

$8 a Week Not Enough for Food and Clothing for a Girl.

New York, Nov. 20.—The Henry story in testimony given today to the association to promote proper housing conditions for working girls.

It related to the high cost of boy friends, omitted luncheons, second grade silk stockings and bleak bedroom quarters.

Jennie Marock, a file clerk, volunteered information as to the difficulty of making both ends meet on $15 a week in New York.

FLOODS HIT WEST; SEVENTEEN KILLED

Snow Also Adds to Trouble In Wyoming and Idaho; Temperature Drops.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Temperatures ranging from the freezing mark downward today added to the hardships and discomfort of flood and storm victims throughout the middlewest. Snow had ceased falling in Chicago, but the mercury was down to freezing. Several middle and far-western states are covered by a heavy blanket of snow, ranging in depth from a few inches to several feet. Most of it fell yesterday and Sunday night during the first severe blizzard of the winter.

Automobiles were stranded on snow-banked highways and in some cases the occupants were forced to spend the night in their stalled machines. Two deaths from exposure were reported from Wyoming and another from Idaho.

Flood Also

Further east five states in the Mississippi valley were fighting the annual flood problem. The Mississippi itself was far out of its banks and with many of its tributaries and smaller streams in the states of Missouri, Kansas, Illinois, and Kentucky.

The death toll attributed directly or indirectly to the flood today stood at 17. Property loss was estimated at not less than $2,000,000. Thousand of acres of rich farm lands in Kansas and Missouri are under water.

The Ohio and Cumberland rivers are reported rising to dangerous stages. In Kentucky, the Cumberland is already out of its banks, having flooded Middlesboro and several smaller villages. Three men were drowned at Tojay.

Railroad traffic is badly crippled, in some places completely paralyzed, throughout the affected areas.

U. S. INSPECTOR SAYS SHIP WAS SEA WORTHY

"Not Guilty" Verdict For Stewart Expected

Washington, Nov. 20.—The perjury trial of Col. Robert W. Stewart, Standard Oil magnate, probably will come to an end today, and that end probably will be a verdict of "not guilty."

Charged with having sworn falsely to the Senate public lands committee about his possession of $759,590 of the profits of the Continental Trading Co., a fly-by-night concern that figured in the oil scandals, Stewart won a tremendous victory in the closing minutes of his defense when Justice Jennings Bailey, presiding, indicated he would instruct the jury it was up to them to determine whether majority of the total membership of the committee was physically present when the alleged perjury occurred.

Although the minutes of the hearings re ord eight of the fifteen Senators present on each of the occasions, the government admits that several of them were "present by assent" only. Bailey ruled that to make the committee a competent tribunal a physical majority must be in attendance.

Plenty of Time

Keane, government inspector of steamship hulls, who was the first witness today in the new investigation into the Vestris disaster, conducted by D. N. Hoover, supervising inspector general of the steamship inspector service, testified that 63 of the 691 life belts on the ill-fated liner were rotten, and were thrown out before the ship left on her last voyage.

Keane, who spoke with a broad Irish brogue, testified he had been an inspector of hulls for 17 years. When he told of his long experience with shipping before entering the U. S. government service Hoover asked him:

"Were you ever the captain of a ship?"

"Yes," replied the witness, "for seven years I was the captain of a British ship."

"Did you inspect the life boats and life preservers on board the Vestris?" asked Hoover.

"Yes," answered the witness. "I did so."

Hoover asked: "Were you compelled to do the job hastily?"

The witness replied: "No, I had four days in which to do it while the liner was in port here. That was ample time."

Keane said he spent the first of the four days going over the life preservers and testing each thoroughly.

"Altogether I examined 691 life preservers," he said.

"Were any of them found to be in unsatisfactory condition?" asked Hoover.

"Sixty-eight of them were found to be rotten and were thrown away," replied Keane.

Keane arose from his seat from time to time and gave an illustration with his hands as to how he had gone over the life belts and had tested the life boats, looking for flaws. He was an emphatic witness.

Examined Lifeboats

Keane said he had examined the twelve lifeboats hanging from davits on board the Vestris and the two extra life boats that were under the davits.

"There were two pounds of bread and a quart of water in each of the boats," explained the witness. He added:

"I examined the fares and found them all in good condition."

The inspector then showed how he had gone over the boats with hammer and chisel, like a mechanic testing a railroad car. He rose from his seat and went through the motions as he told of hammering the sides of the craft to make sure the timbers were sound.

"The life boats of the Vestris stood a good deal," continued the witness. "They could not have stood more if they had been made out of India rubber."

Keane went into the details of his tests, saying he had put 65 persons in each of the 12 life boats to make sure of their capacity and then raised and lowered them from the davits to make sure the mechanism was in working order. He did not, however, raise the extra two life boats.

"The two were in good condition," continued the inspector.

Examiner Hoover interrupted with the question:

"Was there a hole in any of the life boats? It has been testified at another hearing that one of the boats had a hole in it."

Keane raised his voice to give emphasis to his answer as he replied:

"No sir, there was not a hole in any one of the life boats."

Keane insisted he gave the lifeboats a "severe test" by saying he put more than the normal quota in each boat while overhauling them.

"How about the plug in the lifeboats?" asked Examiner Hoover.

"The plugs were in good condition," responded the witness. "There were plugs in all the boats."

Examiner Hoover then alluded to printed reports that there had been trouble in getting the boat's over the ship's side when the work of launching them was undertaken.

Falls in Good Shape

Keane answered:

"The falls—that is the ropes running through the davit pulleys—were in good shape. They were in the best of condition."

The witness said he knew nothing of any life rafts being on the Vestris. He did not see any and the only things he examined were the lifeboats and the life preservers. Then he told of testing the hull of

STATE ELECTORS PREPARE REPORT

No Messenger to Be Sent to Washington Under the New Act.

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 21.—Connecticut is taking steps to clean up the November election. A call was issued from the Capitol here today for a meeting of the State Board of Canvassers to be held on November 28th to make an official canvass of the vote. The Board of Canvassers consists of Ernest E. Rogers, of New London, state treasurer; Frederick M. Salmon, of Westport, state controller, and Francis A. Pallotti, of Hartford, Secretary of state.

Presidential electors who were successful in the November election will meet here on January 2, next, to certify the vote in Connecticut for president and vice-president.

They are to act this time under a new Act of Congress, a copy of which was just received here by Governor Trumbull and by him transmitted to Benjamin W. Alling, of New Britain, attorney general.

The new Act

Previously the electors have selected a messenger to carry the state certificate to Washington. The new act specifies the certificate must be sent by registered mail. The certificate must be sent in six copies, one going to the secretary of state at Washington, two to the president of the Senate, two to the president of the Senate, and one to the presiding judge of the federal district.

Gov. Trumbull also is instructed to send a copy of the certificate to Washington, presumably one of the two copies that are received by his secretary of state.

Judge to Decide

The question of the federal judge probably will be decided by submitting the copy of Judge Edwin S. Thomas, of Norwich, who is ranking judge, the Connecticut district now having two judges: Judge Thomas and Judge Warren B. Burrows, of Groton.

In previous years the electors have selected some citizen to act as messenger to carry the copies of the certificates to Washington. That honor probably has been done away with under the Congressional act which names registered mail as the medium of transportation.

Whether the electors may use their own judgment in this matter is likely to be decided for them by the attorney-general, who is studying the act.

WOMAN HOLDS KEY TO N. Y. SLAYING

Was in Hotel Room When Arnold Rothstein Was Murdered.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—A young Chicago clothing model-blond, beautiful and married—believed to hold the key to the Arnold Rothstein slaying mystery, was speeding to New York today as the "guest" of two detectives.

She is Mrs. Ruth Keyes, 24, wife of a Chicago railroad worker.

It is learned Mrs. Keyes not only was in New York the night of the murder, but that she was in the same hotel—the Park Central—and in the same room in which Rothstein was killed.

She said she was admitted to the room—No. 349 AA by a man she knew as "Jack" and with whom she did some drinking. She declared "Jack" called it "his room" and that she did not know Rothstein had been murdered there until she read it next day in the newspapers.

Joseph Daley and Edward Fitzgerald, the New York detectives, left with Mrs. Keyes on the Michigan Central at 9 o'clock last night. They are due in New York at 6:30 tonight.

Flord Keyes, the girl's husband, admitted the detectives had called

Accidents in Dominion Have Increased Greatly in Past Few Years.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 20.—"Hooch" is being sold by bootleggers, alcohol made from rubbing alcohol is being sold by bootleggers, the younger generation of Canada is drinking more liquor than ever before, were statements made by Miss Rosamond Duff, secretary of the Ontario, Canada, delegation to the national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

"Under the governmental control of liquor in Canada, the increase in the facilities for the sale of liquor means the increase in liquor, increase in drunkenness, increase in accidents and increase in crime," Miss Duff said.

"The increase in bad motor accidents on account of drunken drivers is appalling in Canada; and I have it on good authority that the accidents have increased 7,000 per cent since the establishment of the government control."

THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT HE IS RIGHT

Boston, Nov. 20.—Professor Harlow Shapley, of Harvard, who deals in figures that have half a dozen commas in them has just discovered that the center of the universe is just about 255,297,112,000,000,000 miles from the earth. This means, he said, that the earth is off center but only 47,000 light years off. Prof. Shapley states that the center of the universe is situated in the constellation Sagittarius.

LABOR WILL FIGHT AGAINST MACHINES

A. F. of L. in Convention, Demands Higher Standards of Living.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 20.—Delegates attending the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor today went into the second day's session after receiving notice from President William Green that the organization will fight militantly against the displacement of workers by machines.

"The American Federation of Labor," Green said, "will never permit a human scrap heap to be created in America. Our great philosophy and objective throughout the world is human betterment and I want to say that it is our aim always to protect humans before machinery."

Wants High Standard

"We want a higher standard of living for the workman, shorter working hours with more time for recreation, and to devote to his family. Under present day conditions we must carry our fight along many lines."

"We must watch convict labor, child labor, mass production, the displacement of men by machinery and the attempts to destroy the labor movement by use of injunction."

Paul McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, was the principal speaker on today's program. Tomorrow Secretary of Labor James J. Davis will address the delegates.

HAGUE IS DEFIANT

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 21.—Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City refused to comment today on the order of the State Legislature that he appear in Trenton on Monday to answer a charge of contempt; growing out of his refusal to appear in answer to a subpoena of a legislative investigating committee shortly before election.

"My friends need not worry about me. It's all politics," he said. "For the present there is nothing to be said about it."

Mayor Hague would not discuss the possibility of his being removed by former State Attorney General Robert H. McCarter. He said he might make a formal statement later, and left to preside over a session of the city commission with no outward show of annoyance or alarm at the legislature's action last night.

20 HURT IN CRASH

Pittsburgh, Nov. 20.—Twenty persons were injured, some seriously during the early rush hour today, when a Homestead street car ran wild down four blocks of a hill, crashing into an East Liberty trolley, and cutting it almost in half.

Both of the cars were filled. Unconscious passengers and those who were seriously injured were placed in passing automobiles and rushed to the hospital. Within fifteen minutes after the crash twenty had been admitted.

ALL GAS COMPANIES HAVE CUT PRICES

The cut in gasoline prices started last week by the Atlantic Oil Company has resulted in all of the leading gasoline companies cutting their prices to the prevailing 20 cents a gallon figure. The Colonial cut their prices at 7 o'clock this morning 20 cents a gallon and the Pan Am Company also changed their signs showing a two cent cut in gas.

The last company to make the cut was the Standard, their cut of two cents a gallon being made at noon today. In addition to the cuts that have been made in the gasoline the different distributors have received notice that there is to be a large nation wide advertising campaign and there will also be changes made in the style and colors of some of the pumps that are now in use.

W. B. A. RALLY HERE IS OPENED TODAY

Sessions of District Being Held in Odd Fellows Hall; Ceremonial Tonight.
Mrs. Grace Best, president of Mystic Review No. 2, Woman's Benefit Association, opened the afternoon session of the district rally in Odd Fellows hall this afternoon soon after 2 o'clock. Distinguished visitors present were the deputy supreme musical director, Mrs. Fieda C. Jackson of Evanston, Ill., and Miss Rose Millier of Pawtucket, head of the order in New England. Large delegations were present from many reviews in this district.

The welcome was given by Past President Mary Taylor. Mrs. Ida Gilman, during the memorial service sang "Face to Face" and Mrs. Thora Stehr accompanied her on the piano. Other portions of the ritualistic work were exemplified and other ceremonials will be put on this evening at the 7:30 meeting.

Members who were unable to be present this afternoon should make it a point to attend this evening and greet the visitors.

MAKES HIS PLANS

Aboard U. S. S. Maryland. (Via Radio to San Diego, Cal.) Nov. 20.—Cruising leisurely in balmy weather and smooth seas 100 miles off the coast of lower California, President Hoover today made his first plans for deep sea fishing in a region he himself described as "the finest angling in the world."

The Maryland will halt tomorrow while the president-elect takes off a few hours. He had long hoped for a chance in these waters where 700 pounders, landed in the past, have lifted the lucky anglers into the aristocracy of fishermen.

Up Early.
The president-elect was up early for a brisk deck stroll beneath the warm tropical sun before a conference with Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Italy, and an authority upon Latin-American matters. It is expected that the final itinerary will be announced tomorrow.

There are six days of open sea travel ahead before the Hoover party reaches Corinto.

The President-Elect and Mrs. Hoover are making the most of the voyage to recuperate from the strain of the political campaign. The head of the campaign, the president-elect, is accompanied by his son, Allan, they take long walks along the deck, enjoying the sea breeze and the warm sunshine.

All are keenly interested in the operation of the great ship and have scores of questions to ask the officers.

A moving picture entertainment was given on the quarter deck last night for the Hoover party and officers of the ship.

Mr. Hoover spends considerable time on the deck where there is an exhaustive library on Latin American subjects and a good stock of detective stories. That is the kind of fiction the President-Elect likes to read for relaxation.

Radio messages from North and South America have poured in upon the Maryland lauding the tour plans of the president-elect.

Since the departure of the party from San Pedro the weather has been so exceptionally fine as to arouse comment from the veteran navigators of this mighty ship. They think it is a good omen.

UNUSUAL MASONIC SERVICE SATURDAY

Past Masters to Occupy Chairs—Banquet to Precede Meeting.

An unusual Masonic ceremonial will be held in the Temple here Saturday night when Past Masters of the local lodge will occupy the chairs and confer the degree of Master Mason. Supper will precede the ceremonies and will be served in the banquet hall at six o'clock.

Judge William S. Hyde, a Past Master of the lodge, will be toasted at the banquet and the principal speaker will be Rev. Robert A. Colpitts, a member of the fraternity. A small charge will be made for the banquet.

The chairs will be occupied Saturday night by the following Past Masters:

Fred C. Tilden, Worshipful Master; Charles R. Hatheway, senior warden; R. LaMotte Russell, junior warden; Benjamin A. Cadman, treasurer; James Richmond, secretary; Harry R. ### U. S. INSPECTOR SAYS SHIP WAS SEAWORTHY

the liner with hammers and chisels.

He said the bottom of the ship was in fine condition from one end to the other. He hammered the hull with heavy chisels but found no weak spots. We found everything ship shape. The rudder pins were examined and they likewise were found in good shape.

Examines Coal Ports
Keane said that the Vestris had seven coal ports on each side. He examined eight of them—four on each side—but could not get at the other six because they had coal jammed against them. In this connection he pointed out that coal ports on American ships open from the inside while those on British ships open from the outside.

He said the gaskets on the Vestris were the "best kind," being made of lead and cotton.

"What did you think of the coal ports?" asked Hoover.

"They looked real good to me," responded Keane. "They were not dented at all. They had not been knocked out of shape in any way."

Keane was followed on the stand by Fredrick Sorenson, British sea captain, who had already proved a disappointing witness in the Tuttle inquiry. As in the other investigation, Sorenson repudiated an interview printed by a New York newspaper in which he was quoted as saying the life boats were "bad shape."

Only A Passenger
Sorenson, although a seaman for years and holder of a master's certificate, was only a passenger on the Vestris. He said the highest position he ever actually filled on shipboard was first officer.

After describing how the Vestris had run into bad weather Saturday night, Nov. 10, the list of the ship increased from 10 degrees on Sunday to 20 on Monday. On Monday morning, he said, he saw members of the crew throwing some of the cargo overboard.

"I was only a passenger," said Sorenson. "I did not inspect the life saving equipment, but it looked all right to me. I got into Life Boat No. 8. I noticed the boat had a hole stove in it, but it looked to me as though it was newly made. The list of the ship made the launching of the life boats difficult and the seamen had a hard job getting No. 8 over the rail. The hole might have been caused, I think, by the boat coming into violent contact with the jutting edge of a piece of metal."

"There was water in the boat and we had to keep bailing it. I sat on the rudder until it was washed overboard."

"No. 8 was overcrowded to begin with. We rowed near other life boats but could not get any of them to take some of our people off."

"I must have been about three o'clock in the afternoon when I was washed into the ocean. I was picked up by Lifeboat No. 14."

SAILORS BURIED

New York, Nov. 20.—The bodies of seven members of the crew of the Vestris were to be taken to Hoboken cemetery for burial this afternoon, following services in Trinity Episcopal church, Hoboken.

The dead are: J. G. Owens, bed-room steward; Harry Hawkins, butcher; John Jones, fifth engineer; Frank Rigg, chief bedroom steward; Andrew Seales, trimmer; J. Harley, brigdeman; and Thomas Jones, bartender.

The caskets will be sealed and placed in seven hearses for the short trip to the church. Five coaches and three large buses will carry mourners. Other members of the Vestris crew are to act as pallbearers at the church and cemetery. The bodies of Carl Francke and his daughter, Ingeborg, will be cremated tomorrow and the ashes forwarded to Hanover, Germany.

STATE SUMS UP IN LEOPOLD CASE

Demands Conviction for Murder in First Degree for Waterbury Man.

Waterbury, Conn., Nov. 20.—A demand for the conviction of Louis Leopold, former prosperous merchant, for murder in the first degree rang through the Superior Court room here today as Judge Carl Foster and a jury listened to closing arguments in the Leopold trial which has been under way for more than a month.

Miles F. McNiff, assisting State's Attorney L. L. Lewis in the trial, started the summing up of the state's case today, and immediately afterward William T. Keaveney, assistant to John H. Cassidy in the defense, made a plea for Leopold.

McNiff told the court that Leopold was a remarkable man, that he had made much money by speculating in real estate, and then had collapsed financially. He declared that Leopold sustained a bad break in 1922 and that by early this year he was at the peak of his failure. He declared that Leopold saw his fortune waning away with the banks foreclosing on him and grew desperate. Then he hired men to set fire to his property so he could collect insurance.

Had Declared Heiress
McNiff declared Leopold had hired one Sam Weiss, afterward killed in the fire, and Morris Shelnitz. Weiss had miscalculated the strength of gasoline he was using to start the fire, and had been killed.

"Discount any sympathy you have for Leopold as the father of six children. Remember that Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moynihan had six children also, and that two were killed in this fire."

Keaveney asked only justice for his client. This man Leopold is entirely innocent, he said. Then he declared that Weiss and Shelnitz had gone to Leopold's Baldwin street property on an errand that combined bootlegging and burglary. Moynihan was known to sell liquor; he said, and was known to have $19,000 in cash in the place as well as a number of liquor certificates in a safe. The cash and the certificates, Keaveney said, were what Shelnitz and Weiss sought and started the fire in an effort to secure them.

Attorney Cassidy was assigned the afternoon court period to sum up for the defense, and L. L. Lewis, state's attorney, had two hours allotted him from tomorrow's session. The charge of Judge Foster was to be given early tomorrow afternoon and the case may go to the jury in mid-afternoon.

KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Montreal, Que., Nov. 20.—Two little girls of Burry, Que., played round their home almost an entire day ignorant of the fact that in a room upstairs their mother was lying strangled and their father, Chancey Allison, done himself to death with a razor, it became known today.

When the older girls came home from school, they were told that "papa and mama had been upstairs all day." Unable to get entry to the bedroom they got neighbors who forced their way into the room where the tragedy had taken place. The women had died several hours before the man, the doctors said. In a letter to his brother, Allison asked him to take care of the four children the eldest of whom is 13, as he "was tired of life."

a diamond market was developing. The "chief" called in his best operatives.

They became regular passengers on trans-Atlantic liners. Some secured jobs as stewards. Others lived abroad, flirting with the European underworld, until they were in the know.

Meanwhile the "leak" of unexplained gains into this country increased. A fortune of uncut diamonds was still coming in each month.

Gordon H. Pike, chief treasury department agent, together with Agents Roberts and Van Wis crossed and recrossed the ocean many times.

The Break Comes.
Then came the "break."

One of the government "contact men" in Holland furnished the tip. And when the Berengans came up on the last trip, three score customs men leaped aboard at Quarantine and swooped down on the cabin of Ballyn, the chief steward, whose friends include Queen Marie and Mayor Jimmy Walker.

In Ballyn's bunk, uncut diamonds valued at $50,000 were found cleverly hidden, according to authorities.

"You've got me and I'll spill," said Ballyn, according to U. S. Attorney Sylvester.

The "singing steward" said he received $100 from Policemen McIntyre for every packet of diamonds he delivered and that McIntyre got $200, said Sylvester. The system had been working since January 1, 1927.

SMALL TOWNS GATHERING THEIR PERSONAL TAXES

Unlike Manchester the smaller towns are now collecting the personal tax, which becomes due on November 15. The personal tax collector of Bolton has 215 names on his list to collect and has already started to gather in the tax of $2 each. The first week resulted in about one-quarter of the taxes being paid. While there are 215 names on the list as being residents of Bolton many are not working in Bolton and to these bills have been sent.

In small towns the enumeration is taken in October, the personal tax book completed and returned to the personal tax collector so he can start work on November 15. In Manchester the tax enumeration is started in October, completed as soon as possible and is collectible until June of next year.

KLAN GIVEN DEATH BLOW BY DECISION

In legal circles when the New York case decision was handed down, the Kansas case was dismissed in October, 1926, for lack of jurisdiction. This had the effect of sustaining a state Supreme Court ruling that the Klan must qualify as a foreign corporation in Kansas before it can operate there.

The Kansas law, which was before the court, a foreign corporation must gain consent from the state charter board to function in the state, must make a full financial statement of its assets and liabilities and fully describe its business.

The court has now held that the freedom of speech and other personal guarantee clauses of the federal constitution do not protect membership in the Klan or the organization from state police power. In the Kansas case the attorneys claimed the right to function in every state in the Union without hindrance.

Case Important
The importance of the New York case, from the standpoint of anti-Klanism, is that it turns "titleless publicity" on the organization. While the Klan was ordered to unmask last year, membership is still a guarded secret in some sections of the country.

An immediate result of the decisions is expected to be a series of legislative fights this winter to enact laws similar to the New York and Kansas statutes. Because of the sweeping character of the court's decision, more drastic legislation may be proposed.

While Justice Vandevanter, who delivered the decision in the New York case, quoted liberally from New York court decisions attacking the Klan, the court's direct comment was limited. Referring to New York legislative hearings on the Klan, Justice Vandevanter said that if the legislature had the report of the hearings, it was advised:

"That it (the Klan) was conducting a crusade against Catholics, Jews and negroes and stimulating hurtful religious and race prejudices; that it was striving for political power and assuming the power of guardianship over the administration of local, state and national affairs; and that at times it was taking into its own hands the punishment of what some of its members conceived to be crimes."

miscellaneous and undetermined reasons. Investigators said that the chief cause of accidents was the poor technique of pilots. This was responsible for 22.95 of the crashes. But six per cent were attributed to carelessness or negligence, with 8 per cent error of judgment and nearly five per cent disobedience of orders.

Failure of fuel systems on planes caused over five per cent of the accidents and was the most serious defect found under plant and material failures. There were failures of the ignition system in four per cent of the accidents.

In scheduled flying there were 34 accidents; miscellaneous flying 270 accidents; student instruction, 69 and experimental, 17. Licensed pilots in accidents numbered 195 and unlicensed 124. Only one lighter-than-air craft figured in an accident during the six months.

for his wife and that she had accompanied them to New York. "She is not under arrest," he quickly explained. "She is just going along voluntarily to do what she can to clear up this mystery. She is a good honorable girl and just happened to be at that hotel when Rothstein was slain."

New York police, according to Keyes, have been in almost constant communication with his wife. They knew her address here and did not solicit the aid of local authorities in locating her. It was stated also that the girl had been questioned in New York after the murder and when it was learned she could throw no definite light on the case she was told to "go away and keep her mouth shut."

It was hinted in police circles here that the sudden swoop of the New York detectives was due to the demand of Mayor Walker that some action be taken in solving the murder of the gambler. It was not thought that the girl would be able to tell much. But taking her to New York will indicate "action."

BOARD BACKS TEACHER

New York, Nov. 20.—The Board of Education today went on record in support of Miss Mildred Rice, gymnasium instructor, charged with whipping two children with lengths of rubber hose because they were "annoying." Parents had complained that she had been "cruel" in punishing Dorothy Springham, 13, and Philip Smith, 11, pupils of Franklin Square, Long Island, grade school.

The trouble with most men who turn over a new leaf is that they use the loose leaf system.

In First Annual Concert Nov. 27

Among the outstanding musical events of the season in Manchester will be the first annual concert of the G. C. Glee Club to be held at the High School Auditorium Tuesday evening, November 27.

During the club's one and a half years of existence it has established a unique position in the musical organizations in that it is made up entirely of women's voices and has grown to a membership of forty-one active members.

Helge E. Pearson, organizer and director of the club is well known in Manchester as the director and organist of the Swedish Lutheran church. The results of his untiring efforts have been apparent in the success of the Beethoven Glee Club, which has become a favorite among

DRAKE POST GIVES UP HISTORIC HOME

Famous G. A. R. Room at Cheney Hall Vacated; Schools Get Relics.

The G. A. R. room in Cheney hall, headquarters of Drake Post No. 4 almost ever since its organization shortly after the Civil war, is a G. A. R. room no more. After having been in practical disuse by the tiny remnant of the post for a number of months, the surviving veterans have finally abandoned its historic meeting place for good and have presented to the Ninth School District all the war relics, pictures and G. A. R. equipment housed there.

There was no ceremony. The eight veterans, only four of whom live here, just voted to give up the place, to turn over the impediments to the school district and to turn in the keys. That's all there was to it, but it ends an epoch in the history of Cheney hall.

Antietam Relics
The relics consist of a large part of a pyramid of war equipment picked up on the field after the battle of Antietam Sept. 17, 1862. Arranged in this pyramid are pieces of shell, bullets, cannon balls, cartridge cases, buckles, buttons, its steel engravings that adorned the walls in the G. A. R. room, made and copyrighted in 1876 by E. Forbes, were along with the Antietam souvenirs, presented to the post by Col. Frank Cheney. The engravings depict the following scenes: "Newspapers in Camp," "Cooking Coolers," "Fare in Soup," "A Wagoner's Shanty," "A Deserted Picket Hut," "In Camp," "A Forage," "A Race for Camp With the News," "A Thirsty Crowd," "Home Sweet Home," "Halt for Twenty Minutes," "An Army Forge," "The Supply Train," "A Night March" and a group picture of the generals and admirals of the Civil war with President Lincoln.

The Ninth district has also received the guns, bayonets, cartridge equipment and flags that were once carried by the post when it marched in Memorial Day parades.

Drake Post No. 4, D. A. R., which originally had a membership of 234, has now remaining only four members who live in town and a total membership of eight.

There are so few surviving members who can attend meetings regularly that the post decided to give up the rooms at Cheney hall and to dispose of equipment and furnishings where they would receive the care and honor that is their due. The post is now meeting at the home of Commander Lucius Pinney, which is much more convenient for the members to reach.

Formerly, on Memorial Days, the members of Drake Post took great pride in showing their children and then their grandchildren the relics, engravings and equipment in the post rooms and told personal reminiscences of war days. There was always the Memorial Day service which was brought to a dramatic close when the numerous veterans of the post shouldered their guns and with fixed bayonets paraded out of the hall to line up in company formation for the march to the Center.

Other equipment well as the relics, engravings and bayonets, and the pyramid of Antietam relics has been given a fitting position in the library in the basement of the Barnard school.

the musical patrons of Manchester. Inasmuch as the rules of the G. C. Glee Club are severe, and that a member missing three consecutive rehearsals is automatically dropped from the active list, an average attendance of ninety-five per cent of the membership has been present at all rehearsals during the season. This has helped to maintain the high standards and to ensure an artistic rendition of the club's program.

The G. C. Glee Club's program will be memorized which is no small feat since the program is made up of twelve numbers all demanding exactness in musical interpretation. Many of the numbers will also be unaccompanied.

17 TABLES OF PLAYERS AT BUCKLAND PARTY

Seventeen tables were filled with players at the whist given in the Buckland school last evening by the Ways and Means committee, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith. This was a good crowd for a stormy evening. The door prize was won by T. E. Brogan. The winners of first prizes were Mrs. George E. Potterton and Irving Wickham; second, Mrs. Gertrude Simpson and Irving Keeney; consolation, Miss Agatha Wright and David Armstrong. At the close of the card playing the committee served home-made margaritas, sugared crullers and coffee.

It is planned to have another whist two weeks from last night, the third of December. This is the night of the regular monthly business meeting which may be changed to some other evening, announcement to be made later.

USE NATIONAL STANDARD IN ASSESSING MOTOR CARS

Local Board Cannot Possibly View and Assess Every Automobile in Manchester.

There has been considerable speculation in the past as to the method reached by the Board of Assessors in placing values on automobiles that are owned in Manchester. The assessors can not visit each automobile that is owned in town and place a particular value on the cars as there are now about 5,000 owned in Manchester. They have a rule whereby the value as placed against the car is arrived at by following the year, make and model of the car that is owned, and using the value made standard by the National Automobile Dealers Association as the supposed fair market value of each car of the same model, date and make throughout the country.

In most cases this gives a fair valuation, but in some cases where the car may have been run more the valuation is more than is probably correct for the particular car, while in other cases where the car has been well taken care of the trade-in or selling value may be more than is shown in the book. By following the set rule the assessors feel that they are reaching a fair valuation better than in mere guesswork.

The list of automobiles that are supposed to be taxed in Manchester is furnished to the assessors by the state motor vehicle department and gives the name, the make of car, the model and the date of purchase and Assessor S. Emil Johnson is now at work on this list.

Rev. Harold Clemens Is Speaker at South Methodist Church Last Night.

Rev. Harold Clemens of Hartford was the speaker at the meeting of the Home Builders held in the church parlor of the South Methodist church last evening.

The Home Builders were organized about a month ago for the young couples of the church interested in the maintaining or securing of a home. The meeting last night was exceptionally well attended about 50 being present. The business meeting that preceded the address was in charge of the new organization's president, Thomas Prentice. Rev. Clemens took as his topic "The Meaning of Home," a subject of interest to the members and one that was capably handled by the speaker. A social hour, games and refreshments brought the evening's program to a close.

THE FIRST LEG

San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 20.—Carrying President-Elect Herbert Hoover, the U. S. S. Maryland was steaming down the lower California coast early today, on the first leg of the good-will tour of South and Central America.

With him are Mrs. Hoover, their son Allan, representatives of the State Department, aides and newspapermen.

Mr. Hoover is expected to visit at least ten republics before he again touches upon United States soil, in mid-January. The first Central American port of call is either Guatemala City or Corinto, Nicaragua. It will be a six-day journey to reach these cities.

Other countries to be visited are Panama, Peru, Chile, Bolivia, the Argentine, Brazil, Chile, Bolivia, the Still other countries may be added to the itinerary, at the discretion of Mr. Hoover.

Henry P. Fletcher, ambassador to Italy, who will act as aide to Mr. Hoover during the good-will journey, joined the future president here upon the latter's arrival from Palo Alto on a special train yesterday.

Naval Escort
At 11 o'clock the Maryland headed down stream. A half hour later six destroyers, whippet-like, escorted the Maryland into the open sea. The destroyers left the Maryland at San Diego.

During the voyage the Maryland will be under the command of Captain Victor A. Kimberly.

Special cooks from the battle fleet have been assigned to the Hoover party and meals will be served from a special pantry. Arthur Prettyman, negro, will serve as a personal waiter to the Hoovers. Eleven other of the servants in the retinue are Filipinos.

As far as appearances go, as pertaining to the deck, the Maryland will resemble an ocean liner rather than a battleship. Deck games were taken aboard and deck chairs, rugs and other comforts have been provided for the party.

Motion pictures will be shown on the deck every night that weather will permit. Radio sets have also been installed in the Hoover suite.

News bulletins will be sent from Washington to the Maryland twice a day. Four of the Navy's best radio operators have been assigned to the battleship to take care of this work.

STATE INCOME TAX?

There will be much interest among the people of this state as to just exactly what Tax Commissioner Blodgett was driving at when he told the Connecticut delegation to the New England conference that there must be a wider diffusion of taxation in Connecticut and proposed the creation of an expert tax commission.

For some reason best known to himself Mr. Blodgett permitted a certain amount of ambiguity to surround what was supposed to be a very important statement. Is it that he was gently preparing the way for the springing of a state income tax proposition upon the people of this state? Is that the means of diffusing the state tax which he expects would be evolved by the expert commission which he proposes? If so we are of the opinion that Mr. Blodgett and those who are with him in the scheme are destined to meet with a large amount of very lively opposition.

There is just one reason why Connecticut will want very little indeed to do with a state income tax. It is not that such a tax cannot be made a just and equitable one, for it can. It would be generally opposed because it presents a single alternative—either a tax hitting the individual harder than he ought to be hit or else, if the amount to be paid by citizens with incomes in the lower brackets are equally small, the cost of administration of the tax would be out of all proportion to the amount netted to the state.

We are not at all inclined to agree with the intimation in Mr. Blodgett's address that taxation is a matter far beyond the ken of the General Assembly. A sort of esoteric problem that must be dealt with only by specially trained minds. We are inclined to adhere to the fundamental Connecticut theory that the Legislature of this state is the really responsible law-making body and must continue to be; that it is more to be depended on to express the will of the people than any commission of experts, so-called; and that whenever the Assembly throws up its hands over any legislative problem and calls in such a pilot as this proposed commission would be, to steer the ship for it, the people of this state will have surrendered their government into the hands of self-endorsed specialists—and that is just about the last thing Connecticut will ever do if she remains true to her traditions.

To be sure, the problem of taxation is one about which the Connecticut Legislature does not know everything. But with all due respect to Commissioner Blodgett and his acquaintances we very much doubt if he could pick a commission that did. There is nobody in the world who knows everything about taxation. Most people will be quite as willing to take a chance with the Legislature's capacity or incapacity as with the disinterestedness or interestedness of a commission.

WELL, WHAT OF IT?

A leper from the North Carolina mountains, named John Early, has been discharged as cured from the National Leper Home at Carville, La., and his case is being referred to as "another triumph in modern science." Perhaps the triumph lies in having gotten the obstreperous Mr. Early to submit to the none-too-pleasant treatment nowadays used in leprosy cases, for John long ago became a public character by running away from Carville, appearing at a hotel in Washington and on another occasion by getting his gun and defying all hands to take him in charge.

The cure itself certainly isn't phenomenal. They have been curing leprosy for a dozen years, ever since they found ways of introducing the ancient remedy chaulmoogra oil into the system other than by the mouth. The world had known for many generations that chaulmoogra oil would cure leprosy if the patient could only keep on swallowing it, but no patient could do that. In 1916 the medical profession discovered a method of effectively injecting a formula of the oil into the muscles and into the veins. Since then thousands of lepers have been cured. It is, of course, impossible to repair the ravages already made by the disease but the disease itself is stopped.

In fact so far has medical science advanced in this direction that it is confidently expected that within a few decades leprosy will have disappeared from the world.

Wherefore it is difficult to see why all the excitement over John Early.

THE RIGHT WAY

Without making any particular fuss about it the police of Manchester have recently brought about a reform that had been needed for some time. For some reason which nobody but themselves could understand the drivers of express trucks making deliveries to stores along Main street, south end, have long been in the habit of regarding themselves as immune to the traffic regulations regarding left-hand driving and parking against traffic. By good luck they traveled on the left side of the street and halted their cars in the roadway while making deliveries, without becoming involved in accidents, but their practices were the cause of frequent close calls and a great deal of indignation.

For a week or more, however, it has been observable that the express trucks were obeying traffic rules, like anybody else. It is understood that this is the result of a clearly understandable police admonition. "Do it again and get pinched," was in effect the message.

For which, commendations. There is only one way to make traffic regulations effective and that is to enforce them without fear, favor or discrimination. The recent ticketing of the cars of all sorts and conditions of persons for illegal parking has had a salutary influence. There has been a very marked improvement in the situation in the last couple of weeks.

SHUTTING THEIR EYES

The London newspapers, or some of them at least, are taking a perfectly incomprehensible attitude toward the Vestris disaster and the efforts of the United States government to get at the underlying truth. There seems to be a disposition to take it completely for granted that the testimony of scores of survivors concerning conditions on the Vestris for twenty-four hours previous to the sending of the S O S is of no account at all, and that nobody is competent to have either opinion or knowledge of facts except certain officers of the ship and the owners' agents.

One of the most completely false stories ever put on the cables was sent to one London newspaper by its New York correspondent, who declared that he had learned from indisputable evidence (that of three very subordinate officers of the Vestris) that the ship was in no danger at all until the fireroom force mutinied.

Feeding such stuff as that to their readers and abusing the United States authorities who are conducting the investigation would seem to provide ground for belief that the English editors simply do not want to know the facts about the Vestris disaster—all they are interested in is a whitewashing for the Lampart & Holt line.

CRASH-PROOF CARS

Perhaps the solution of the automobile fatality problem lies not in the reduction of speed or the prevention of accidents, but in the building of automobiles which will stand the gas.

This idea is suggested by the wreck of a Boston and Albany express train at Beckett, Mass., on Sunday. Eight cars of the express left the rails when the train, traveling at 54 miles an hour, hit a freight car that buckled out of a train going in the opposite direction. Only one passenger was injured and he but slightly.

Thirty years ago, when the cars would have been built of wood, probably two or three scores of lives would have been lost in such an accident. But the railroads began to build cars that are practically collision proof, and since then the risk to passengers in railroad accidents has been tremendously diminished.

The first collision-proof automobile ought to make the everlasting fortune of its manufacturer.

PROPORTION

Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader of India, stands in immediate danger of losing his millions of followers because he had a cow killed. The cow was sick and suffering. It could not be cured, it was part of the farm stock at his retreat and its fate lay in his hands—he was the boss. To end the animal's agony he had a physician give it a quick poison. In two minutes it was all over.

But the Hindus regard a cow as a sacred thing, never under any circumstances to be slain—it is a "mother" to all the Hindu children, and must never suffer violence. That is a fixed tenet. Gandhi's radical action was just a bit too modern, to western. It is a serious question whether his influence isn't at an end.

Before we ridicule the Hindus for their willingness to subordinate all the genius of their one great leader, all that he is himself and all that he might be for India, to an insignificant dogma, perhaps we might examine our own national record and see if we have ever done anything like that.

EVALUATION

Three Negro members of the Vestris' crew who happen to be gifted with some fluency of speech, have been engaged by a vaudeville circuit to show themselves and say something about their experiences for a couple of weeks at $85 a week each. If they had only had the presence of mind to be acquitted of a perfect crime, instead of helping to save the imperiled passengers of a sinking ship, the vaudeville manager who would have dared to offer them less than a thousand a week would have been forever condemned as a shortsighted tightwad by his fraternity.

RESILIENT

Our idea of an optimist is Governor Al Smith signing a Thanksgiving Day proclamation—which he did on Sunday, beating to it a lot of governors with more reason for joy.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 19.—Perhaps this could happen in some place other than Manhattan. But I doubt it!

A few days after the murder of Arnold Rothstein, king of the New York gamblers, a newspaper printed a large photograph showing a deck of marked playing cards. It was with such cards, so the paper claimed, that Rothstein was "gypped" in a big poker game. Believing he had been party to a "fixed" game, it was said that the gambler had hesitated about parking up.

At any rate, while walking down Broadway the day after this photograph appeared I noticed a number of copies of the newspaper page pasted on the window of a "magic and trick" store in the early fifties.

And just above them was a huge sign, reading: "Cards just like these can be bought here for $1.75." The nerve of thus candidly boasting over the trade in crooked and shady devices is a constant challenge to the credulosity of the average visitor.

Yet I watched thousands of pedestrians as they looked at the sign, smiled cynically, shrugged shoulders and moved on.

I am told that the world's costliest rehearsal for an individual have been taking place of late in Mecca Auditorium. Hope Hampton, she of the roseate hair and ivory complexion, has been making something like $100,000 worth of preparations for a grand opera debut in Philadelphia, so they tell me.

Miss Hampton, in case it is not generally known, is in private life the wife of Jules Brulater, who, thanks to an invention, gets a few dimes every time a moving picture film unwinds for a few inches. With hundreds of thousands of feet unreeling everywhere, his income is enormous.

At any rate, Miss Hampton has been rehearsing before a group of experts and operatic notables. "These have been 'standing by' to give advice on voice technique and acting. A 'personal' orchestra of 25 musicians has been on hand to give her the atmosphere and exact musical accompaniment which will eventually be found in the theater wherein she makes her appearance.

Speaking of music—there are four or five white-haired women who regularly attend the symphony concerts and who have been nicknamed "the sobbies." They sit patiently back until the orchestra strikes upon some moving or emotionally tense strains, whereupon they all break into tears and have the nicest cry. An old-timer tells me they have been on hand for the last several seasons and to date no one has discovered the secret of their sadness, nor just why they continue this funeral rite.

The same "old-timer" pointed out to me the other night, a ticket scalper who has operated in front of Carnegie Hall for 16 years. He buys up subscription tickets and sells them for double their box office value.

Also there is a blind man who has not missed a Friday afternoon performance at the Metropolitan Opera House in four seasons. He reserves the same seat for each performance. Until recently, it was not known that he was blind, since he wears a special type of eye-glasses. So familiar has he become with his seat location that he goes to it without any effort, though generally he is accompanied by a woman companion.

Health and Diet Advice

FRACTURES AND BROKEN BONES.

It is better not to try to remove the clothing from the injured part before the arrival of a doctor unless the patient is bleeding profusely. Bleeding should be stopped by pressure: if from an artery, the pressure should be close to the wound between it and the heart; if from a vein, the pressure should be close to the wound with the wound between the point of pressure and the heart. Arterial blood comes out in jets from the direction of the heart, and venous blood in a steady stream from the direction of the extremities.

A broken back is very serious and may cause death unless handled by an expert. No attempt should ever be made to turn the patient on his face. The best position is directly on the back until a doctor can make a careful inspection.

Compound fractures should be splinted as are simple fractures and in addition, great care must be exercised to keep the wound clean. Plain boiled water may be used to wash away dirt. One must be careful to keep the jagged edges of the broken bone from doing more damage.

In most fractures it is advisable to apply cold compresses to assist in reducing the swelling until the doctor is able to make his examination.

Never attempt to transport a person with a broken long bone without the support of a splint.

If you should be injured, yourself, where no help is to be had, you should use the same methods of splinting that you should on another person before attempting to travel.

The after treatment of fractures must be handled by a doctor or hospital. The condition is too serious for amateurs to attempt treatment. However, should you be out in the wilderness where no doctor is obtainable, you should put padded splints about the injury and stretch the injured limb in as normal a position as possible.

The site of the injury may be treated with cool wet compresses. The diet should consist for the first week almost exclusively of raw fruits and non-starchy vegetables.

In practically every fracture of a long bone it is necessary for the surgeon to use a stretching process termed "extension" to prevent a shortening of the limb or overlapping of the bones.

Some people have abnormally brittle bones. This is because of wrong feeding. When we learn to live properly, our bones will not be over-brittle and should a break occur, the knitting together will take place rapidly.

After the break has healed there may be a kind of neuralgic pain for a long time. This can best be treated with alternate hot and cold applications or deep therapy lamp and massage. Should the bone be allowed to heal in a wrong position, it cannot be straightened unless it is surgically broken again and properly reset.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question: Reader writes: "My dentist has told me my teeth are softening. What is the cause and cure for this?" Answer: The softening of teeth is caused through lack of organic minerals in your diet or because of a systemic acidosis which is destroying these mineral elements as rapidly as you are putting them into your body through food. I believe the tendency toward soft teeth is usually developed in early childhood or even before the child is born. The remedy which should be used in life it may be possible to bring about structural changes in the teeth, but the best that can be done is to prevent the trouble from becoming worse.

Erythema Nodosum. Question: Mrs. N. R. M. writes: "I am a woman of 34 and had erythema nodosum about eight weeks ago and am weak from it yet. Can you tell me the cause of this disease and how long it lasts?" Answer: This is an inflammatory skin disease marked by tender red nodules due to exudation of blood and serum, and accompanied by intense itching and burning. The lesions appear in successive patches, and the disease lasts for several weeks. It is considered highly infectious but can be quickly cured by the application of certain remedies which your doctor or druggist can furnish you.

Normal Weight. Question: L. J. writes: "Please state the normal weight of a person from child hood to manhood." Answer: The weight would vary with the height and measurement at the different ages; also in relation to glandular activity and temperament. No set standard can be used, but each case must be judged separately.

Another thing the ultimate consumer pays without realizing it is the salary of the bill collector.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc. 54 YEARS at SOUTH MANCHESTER

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Nov. 20.—In peace or war, the spies of the world have always offered fascinating feasts for the imagination which frequently have been garnished and served up by writers of fiction.

As a matter of fact, the fictional spy appears to have little or nothing on his actual, living prototype. There are more of the latter than is ordinarily imagined, and they are correspondingly busy. All large nations maintain espionage systems to keep them informed concerning what are supposed to be the secrets of other nations; it is only in time of war that the newspaper reader begins to get an idea how extensive these peace-time skeleton organizations really have been.

Military and naval attaches with diplomatic missions are the spearheads of the espionage systems and are so commonly recognized. Some of them in Washington admit it, for instance, and those representing smaller nations with whom we are certain never to have serious trouble often joke about their jobs as boss spies.

Richard Wilmer Rowan, an American who studied the spy network in Europe over a period of many years, has written a book about it which gives as complete a picture as a subject with so much secrecy attached to it could provide.

This work, "Spy and Counter-Spy" is virtually a textbook on spies. As indicating the extent of their peacetime activities, Rowan points out that 17 persons were convicted of espionage in five European countries during the four months ending with last February.

Most spies are so cheap to employ, Rowan says, that they are always numerous. Even bankrupt governments are not too poor to engage a few. In peace time, with less danger, more persons are willing to work at espionage.

"It is a curious note that espionage does not subsist simply because hostilities are past," Rowan writes. "Nations of only potential antagonism, who are happily far off from a state of war, and who may even have been devoted allies in a recently concluded struggle, will spy upon each other with all the vigor of inveterate foes. The regiments of the secret service are sometimes reduced, but never demobilized. No treaty of peace has ever sent them home rejoicing."

"The treaty of Versailles had yet to be drafted and the Teutonic hail-bomb fixed upon all the triumphant allies set straightway to work, spying upon one another as if that were the only known way to safeguard a victor's share of the spoils."

"Espionage is not only a pastime of consuls, attaches and minor diplomatists; it is also in its subtly organized performance an unlawful act of invasion. Yet governments devoted to maintaining peace and order indulge in almost incessant adventures with spies."

the sinister front but only a hidden continuity in international espionage it means that most of us live and work, endeavoring to prosper and keep up certain standards of private integrity, while unofficially but at public expense there is being fought underground a constant skirmish of resource and intrigue, a duel of spy and counter-spy, generally recognized as both natural and illegal."

Rowan tells of the offer of a naval power recently for 1,000,000 pounds, which was met by a statesman's cynical assurance that it would be better to let another government buy it, whereafter his own agents could soon steal it.

The theory is, of course, that it is the job of State Department, Army and Navy to know all about the other country's foreign jmes, Army and Navy Germany, before the war; had encyclopedic knowledge of every other country on earth.

"Chiefly under direction of the naval and military attaches," Rowan says, "there were gathered all the acts, the very substance of a conqueror's dream, about harbors and principal cities, and the hills from which artillery could command them; about bridges and railroad lines, roads and valleys, and ditches and canals; all facilities, all obstructions, and, to be sure, reports on fortifications, naval bases, drydocks and arsenals."

In addition to telling all about how spies work and the kind of people they really are, Rowan reviews their World War activities and gives case histories of some of the most famous. He estimates that about 45,000 spies were in the field during the war, all liable to the death penalty. But he says that not more than a thousand were killed, either before a firing squad or less formally, and he compares the death rate among war spies, 2.22 per cent, with that of 13.88 among the 45,000 troops on all fronts available for combat.

PORTER STREET PUPILS IN SCHUBERT PROGRAM

Fifty Parents and Friends Hear Fine Rendition of Famous Composer's Works.

Francis Schubert, the German composer, the one hundredth anniversary of whose death occurred yesterday, furnished the subject of an excellent program given in the auditorium of the Porter street school yesterday afternoon. The anniversary celebration was not only enjoyed by the pupils of the school but upwards of 50 parents and friends were present. Mrs. Willo Suprenant directed the program and rendered a piano number, March Militaire and the song, "Hark, Hark, the Lark!" Miss Adelaide Sporer, the drawing teacher, played "By the Sea." The principal, Miss Frances Spillane and Mrs. Suprenant sang a duet, and the teachers in chorus sang "Who is Sylvia."

A drill was executed by the children of grades 1 and 2, a number of Schubert melodies were sung by grades 3 and 4. OPEN FORUM

Editor, The Herald: I was somewhat surprised to find the Editor's note at the bottom of my letter in the Open Forum last evening.

I did not care to say too much about the assessors' office as I knew that the reporter on your reportorial staff could not obtain all his false statements in that office.

I will say at this time that the map in the assessors' office with the names of owners on it did not mean a thing until corrections were made by Mr. Nelson and myself.

I mentioned in Paragraph six of my yesterday's letter about the assessors needing a clerk. The above was what I referred to.

If the Herald's reportorial account is substantially correct will you kindly advise the public what one item was correct and what deeds recorded in the Town Clerk's office proves his statements.

Just forget the assessors' office for these Real Estate transactions, they might not be correct. The Town Clerk's office is the place to find the owners names by the deeds recorded.

In other words when you are whipped, acknowledge it. Do not pour oil on the fire as it may blaze out in another place.

Thanking you for space to print, I am, Sincerely yours, ROBERT M. REID, Manchester, Conn., Nov. 20, 1928.

HOPPE TRIES AGAIN TO GET OUT OF JAIL

Boston, Mass., Nov. 20.—Stephen J. Hoppe, notorious New England jail breaker and lifer, and two of his desperate prison companions were in solitary confinement in the Cherry Hill section of state prison at Charlestown today, after a highly-organized wholesale jail delivery had been nipped in the bud.

Information received at the district attorney's office indicated that machine guns, revolvers, and bombs were to be used in the dash for freedom. Fast automobiles supplied by gangs on the outside were to be made available to bear the convicts away.

William H. Troy and Phillip H. Cronin, said to be leaders of the Troy gang that terrorized Worcester county, were Hoppe's accomplices according to police, and were also confined in solitary cells.

According to police, Charles Trippi, 21-year-old gunman who killed Turnkey Frederick Pluger in an attempted jail break a week ago, was too anxious to escape and started shooting before Hoppe, the alleged "brains" of the gang, gave the signal. Investigation of the Trippi case gave police the tip that the wholesale break would be attempted.

HIGH FLIGHT

1928 By NEA Service Inc. RUTH DEWEY GROVES "WHEN A GIRL LOVES LOVE FOR TWO"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Fate introduces JERRY RAY to ALESTER CARSTAIRS when he crashes his airplane into the camp she is sharing with her roommate MYRTLE. She likes his pilot, DAN HARVEY, but Alester is struck with her beauty and shows her attention.

Unable to buy a gown for a party he has to make do with the rags he finds in the store for the evening. When they came her with a "dry dud" at the party, Jerry drinks too much. A rowdy dancing partner throws her into the pool to revive her. Dan appears to help her, but Alester takes her home.

She is discharged from the store when she confesses about the dress. Jerry seeks another job, and is surprised one evening when Dan calls her to the party. She tells him she does not believe in love but hopes to marry for money. He leaves after warning her.

Alester takes Jerry for a drive and goes to the deserted camp where he makes Jerry drink which she repulses. Dan happens along and, under cover of his presence, Jerry forces Alester to take her home. He is contrite and when she says she lost her job on his account, promises to help her in a chorus.

They interview the producer who is under obligation to Alester, and he takes Jerry on. Her first rehearsals are hard, but she is befriended by EVELYN STARR. Her absorption in the work makes Alester wonder if he has made a mistake. Evelyn invites her to a party and she decides to ask Dan when Alester cannot take her.

CHAPTER XXVIII

Jerry had dressed herself in her printed clothes. She had no evening clothes and did not wish to buy any until she had saved enough money to get a winter coat for her mother. But Evelyn had said her party was to be informal and that it would break up early.

Jerry was as excited as happy as though she had on the latest Paris creation. Perhaps it added to her satisfaction to know that she owned a good looking new street dress to wear the next day, and that Alester had promised to drive her down to Atlantic City.

Life was certainly taking on new color all the time. If Dan would call her, come and tell her that he was glad she was getting on . . . At seven o'clock sharp the telephone rang. Jerry flew down the stairs from her room to answer it. Halfway she paused.

"He might think I've been sitting there dying to hear from him," she said to herself.

BEFORE TAKING JOB, GET PHYSICAL EXAMINATION

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Human beings are living organisms which react to their environment.

When the feet are flat, the ligaments that sustain the arches weak, or when there are inflamed or swollen joints in the feet, the person should not select an occupation such as that of policeman, motorman, floor-walker, salesman, or positions in which they are required to stand for long.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

I have been asked what I consider the greatest cause of colds. There is no "greatest cause." It's like war. Almost anything and everything can cause a cold, if the patient is ready to have one.

Then we did some investigating. We lit candles and tried out the air currents in the room. Close against the wall behind the beds the draft was strong enough almost to extinguish the flame. Three inches away there was no draft at all but near it the cold air spread all over the wall like a veil. There were three windows in the room. Certain ways we fixed the ventilator there was no draft. But again there was. The only place in the room that caught the draft was the wall at the head of the beds.

Dowd May Not Play Against Naugatuck Because Of Injury

Doctor Advises Few Days Lay-off Because of Stomach Strain; Loss Hurts Locals' Chances.

Manchester High's chances of beating Naugatuck here Friday afternoon were dimmed considerably today by the report that Ernie Dowd, quarterback and star broken field runner of the team, might not be able to play. He is suffering from muscle injuries of the stomach which, although not serious, are enough so that the attending physician has advised him to lay off for a few days at least.

TIGERS FAVORED IN NAVY CONTEST Princeton's Victory Over Yale Gives Them the Edge In Saturday's Game.

BY TOM THORP

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 20.—Princeton has a tough proposition on its hands to vanquish the Navy at Philadelphia on Saturday. Bill Ingram's midshipmen have made wonderful progress during the past few weeks. Since their unexpected win over Lou Young's fighting quakers, the Annapolis stars have come along like a real championship contender.

The Navy Academy was unfortunate at the very start of preliminary training to suffer a casualty. No one can possibly expect a squad of youngsters to forget the death of a teammate. The memory of their lost mate cast a pall of gloom over the entire squad, and they were defeated by Davis Elkins and Boston College.

It was not until the second half of the Notre Dame game out at Chicago that the Navy finally awakened. In the closing minutes of that memorable contest, Bill Ingram's midshipmen played sensational football. They showed an offense which brought the first smile of weeks to "Navy Bill's" countenance.

Hard To Beat
From that moment they were a hard squad to beat. This gridiron world learned when they grinded a 6-0 victory over a truly great Penn eleven. Since then Navy beat West Virginia Wesleyan, Michigan and Loyola by top heavy scores.

The future admirals fought a 6-6 tie with Michigan a week after the latter threw Bob Zuppke's outfit out of the leadership of the "Big Ten."

Bander And Armistead Called South's Greatest

By BOB MATHERNE.
Five fellows, all of them close students of southern football, were sitting in a south-bound Pullman after the recent Alabama-Wisconsin football game and they were talking southern football. Mostly, one should say, players.

Every important southern team had been seen by at least one of this group this season. And most of the fellows whom you've been hearing about this fall were seen here just a few times.

One fellow said this: "There are so many good backs at Georgia Tech and Tech has such a powerful line that one back more or less doesn't matter. They have too many good backs. Thomason hasn't been carrying the ball much this season, but his presence in the backfield worries a team to death. On defense, he can't be beaten. Mizell does everything, but this Banker and Armistead."

Ping Bodie, of Colorful Baseball Fame, Is Released by Pacific Coast League Team

Chicago, Nov. 20.—The latest bulletin by J. H. Farrell, secretary of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, conveys the information that Ping Bodie has been released by the Missions club of the Pacific Coast League.

CUBS MUST SHOW IMPROVEMENT IF THEY EXPECT TO WIN AGAIN

Carnegie Tech Misses No Bet To Arouse Football Players
Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 20.—Athletic officials at Carnegie Tech believe in keeping the blackboards in the athletic rooms of that institution lined up with notes on future opponents and slogans for success.

HOOPS AND SLIDES Henry L. Farrell

CUBS LOOK SWEET NOW
The Cubs didn't announce the amount of cash that was required to get Rogers Hornsby away from Boston but it must have been plenty. The players that the Braves got along with the money certainly were not of the type that would arouse any pennant aspirations in Boston and the Cubs survived the operation without weakening their team in the slightest degree.

Just a No Good Nuisance
There hasn't been much growling about overemphasis during the current football season and if any complaints are made later about too much attention being devoted to the grand old game they certainly will not find any substantiation in Case, one of the schools in the Ohio Conference.

Wiganowski Tops Bowling Averages

Billy Wiganowski leads the individual bowling league with an average of 122.3. Here are the first ten:

Wiganowski	122.3
F. Anderson	115.5
Beletti	115.4
Curtis	115.0
Sargent	113.8
Giorgetti	112.7
H. Murphy	110.3
P. Saldella	109.1

BRUNDAGE IS SLATED TO HEAD THE A. A. U. Committee to Change the Rules for the Registration of College Athletes.

New York, Nov. 20.—The Amateur Athletic Union was to elect officers for the coming year at its convention here today, with Avery Brundage, of Chicago, slated to succeed Murray Hulbert as president of the organization.

Seek Yale Victory Coach Horween and Captain French Discuss Means of Upsetting Ancient Rivals.

There remains one important game on the Harvard schedule—the Yale game next Saturday—and that is the game that Harvard would rather win than any played during a season. Success in that game means everything, and there are good grounds to believe that the Bulldogs will be able to battle the Crimson to a finish this year. Here are Arnold Horween and Art French, Harvard coach and captain, who hope to take the Yale eleven for a ride when they meet.

Local Sport Chatter

According to some members of the Cubs, Tommy Meikle was bitten in the calf of the leg a couple of times in the game Sunday. When Dr. A. B. Moran, president of the Cloverleaves, heard this report, he laughed and said, "Well, that's one thing they can't blame me for."

Three Cubs didn't get into the game Sunday, Dietz, Donnelly and Chapelaine. The Cloverleaves didn't use Warfield, Fiddler, Benny McLaughlin, Hampton and Dillworth.

Dr. Moran says that some of the south end fans who paid their way into the game Sunday left the field, tore their tickets in half and gave a section to a friend, both then walking back in with one end of the ticket proudly displayed from his pocket making believe it was a whole one.

The athletes who took first, second and third prize at the Hartford County Y meet Saturday, will receive their prizes tonight at the Center Church, 7 o'clock when the H-Y Club meets.

The Rec Five will practice from 7 until 8:30 tonight at the School street building. Manager Clune expects all his players to report. The new uniforms have arrived.

The Cloverleaves will practice at the State Armory at 7 o'clock tonight. The Cubs will work out at the Rec at 8:30.

Owing to a misprint on posters, the report has spread that the Manchester-Naugatuck High school game has been advanced to Saturday. However, it will be Friday as first announced.

Football Briefs

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Army begins intensive practice for the Nebraska game today. Yesterday's workout was light due to the rainsoaked condition of the field. The varsity will take things fairly easy this week, with the reserves doing most of the work.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 20.—Reports that Arnold Horween may resign as Harvard's football coach at the end of the present season have roused the Crimson players to a fighting pitch. They are determined to vindicate their coach by handing Yale a thorough beating on Saturday.

New Haven, Nov. 20.—The Yale squad will hold no scrimmages this week. The coaches being unwilling to risk further injuries to the Ell players. Dummy scrimmaging, with emphasis on defense against the forward pass, will feature the week's work.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 20.—Knowing the penchant of Princeton players for picking up loose balls and converting them into touchdowns, the Navy coaches are drilling the squad this week to guard against fumbles. It is probable that no scrimmage will be held.

Broadcasting would be improved if certain songsters were known of could be given the air.

HE'S LAST OF FAMILY

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

FOR THE LITTLE FAMILY.

One of the housekeeping problems for the little family, in which only two or three are gathered together at table, has been, for many years, the size of the tins in which preserved vegetables or fruits are packed. Enough string beans, peas, or whatever, for four or five people in every can—and perhaps only Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed to eat them.

Some time ago somebody evolved the idea of the little tin—something to sell for a dime and containing two or three portions of the food article. That was fine; only—and this was important—they used the idea on cheap stuff, not the high grade products. That wasn't so good.

Now, however, two or three of the big standard canneries are beginning to put real quality stuff into the little dime cans. And Pinehurst has them. Not yet in a really complete line, but several items. We are offering, for example, Peas, Corn, Brown Bread and Spiced Peaches in the ten cent tins—and all of a very high grade indeed. Wonderful things to lay in a stock of.

Pinehurst has some BRAND NEW JAMS. One is a fascinating blend of Apricot and Pineapple. Whoever thought it up was a genius. Quince Jam, Peach Jam and Grape Jam are other items—every one delicious.

Just now we're in a bit of a muddle in this store—changing things around. We are moving our Fruit Department to the northeast corner of the store, giving ourselves a show window for this department, and bringing the Cookie and Bread department into the center of the store. It's going to be an improvement, but it doesn't make the job any easier while the work is going on. However, we'll fill the orders exactly as well as ever and deliver them any time, at your convenience, so you won't know the difference. It's our woe, not yours.

Phone two thousand.
