

CONGRESS OPENS FOR SHORT TERM

General Opinion is That Nothing of Importance
Will Be Done Outside of Usual Routine Matters.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Congress came back to work today.

The victor and the vanquished in last month's general election returned together to Capitol Hill to eke out the three months of life that remain to this Seventeenth Congress and to the Coolidge administration.

They picked up their labors where they dropped them so hurriedly last May to rush off into the campaign—but in a vastly different atmosphere. A new President and a new Congress are just around the corner, and it was indicative of the tenor of this dying session that most thoughts were centering on what the new regime may accomplish rather than upon what this twelve weeks' session may do.

Will Not Do Much

The majority opinion is that this final session of the "Coolidge Congress" will not accomplish a great deal outside of the routine and well-marked-out things that all Congresses must do, such as appropriating the billions of dollars needed to run the government for time is so short. For another, this Congress has already been voted out of office, and a new one comes in on March 4.

If this Congress, in the next 12 weeks, acts on Boulder Dam, re-appointment of the navy, cruiser bill, and ratifies the Kellogg outlawry of war treaty, in addition to appropriating some four billions of dollars for the various departments, it is the opinion of the leaders that a good job will have been accomplished.

As To Farm Relief

This does not take into account farm relief or tariff revision, around which most of the speculation centered today as the gavel fell.

Farm relief, as usual, occupied a

GARNISHEES RENTS OF CHENEY BLOCK

Former Local Woman Sues
Stamford Man Who Took Over Geo. Smith Property

As an issue of a suit for $15,000 brought by Catherine Weldon Donaghue, individually and as executrix of the will of the late Patrick Donaghue, her son, T. Weldon Donaghue, her daughter, Ethel F. Donaghue, all of West Hartford, through Attorney Lawrence A. Howar, and Joseph F. Berry against William Winter Drew of Stamford there were served on Saturday upon all of the tenants in the so-called Cheney Building copies of a writ restraining them from paying rents to Mr. Drew or his agent, Copie, were left with the manager of the Green Stores, Farr Brothers, the Elite Studio, Morris Pasternack owner, The Denville studio, Joseph Hall, George B. Miner, C. Aloisio, the Prudential Insurance Company of America, Tom McKee Shoe Store and the Park Hill Flower Shop, all tenants of the Cheney building. Similar notices were served on the tenants of a building in South Norwalk and on the Stamford Trust Company of Stamford, on the claim that they "as agents trustees, debtors of said defendant have concealed in their hands the goods, effects and estate of said defendant and are indebted to him."

Is a Garnishee

The proceeding is in the nature of a garnishee and the tenants notified to appear before the court and disclose, under oath, the amount they owe.

One of the suitors, Mrs. Donaghue, was Miss Catherine Weldon of Manchester and is a sister of Dr. Thomas H. Weldon and Robert Weldon of this place. It is set up in the papers that William Winter Drew, against whom the writ runs, is to appear before the Superior Court of Hartford County on the first Tuesday of January and give answer why he should not pay the amount claimed as being due to the plaintiff, which is said to be $9,856.03. The writ further goes on to state that on or about May 26, 1927 a contract was signed under which Drew was to have paid on April 1, 1928, the sum of $3,250.62 and that on July 1, 1928 Drew was to have paid an additional sum of $39.16, and that on October 1, 1928 there was to be an additional payment of $6,176.25 or a total of $9,856.03. The defendant, Drew, it

FARM RELIEF AGAIN LOOMS IN CONGRESS

Authors of Bill Say They Will Accept No Substitute;
Another Big Wrangle
Is Certain to Result.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The ghost of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill cast its shadow over Congress at the opening today when Representative Gilbert N. Haugen (R) of Iowa, chairman of the House agriculture committee, indicated that an attempt may be made to jam the bill through again in the short session. It has been twice passed by Congress and twice vetoed by President Coolidge.

Returning to Washington in a belligerent mood, Haugen threw cold water on compromise proposals by declaring that any bill which goes through this session "must be the McNary-Haugen bill or something equally as good."

Want No Substitute

Although stating that he would withhold definite commitment on farm relief until he had conferred with farm organization heads and members of his committee, Haugen was emphatic in declaring that the farmers would not accept a "non-workable" substitute bill.

Haugen's attitude is in line with some other militant members of the Congressional "Farm Bloc" who have already announced that they will oppose the attempt of Senator McNary (R) of Oregon, chairman of the Senate agriculture committee, to pass the Jardine bill in modified form.

"I am not against passage of farm relief legislation in the short session, but the farm relief offered must be the McNary-Haugen bill or something equally as good," said Haugen. "I am for anything that will make the tariff effective."

Same Position

"My position on farm relief is just what it has always been. I assume that members and friends of farm relief who are consistent will stand by their guns. I have said that if they did so they would eventually get what they demanded. The McNary-Haugen bill lacks thirteen votes in the House or enough to pass it over a veto, and had three votes more than enough when it passed the Senate."

Haugen declared that the election has not altered his farm relief attitude.

"There was no choice between Mr. Hoover and Gov. Smith on the question of farm relief," he said. "Mr. Hoover didn't promise much, and Gov. Smith would not commit himself on the equalization fee."

RED CROSS DRIVE HAS $28 OF VELVET

Passes Allotment When Kiwanis Kick in for a Wee Deficit.

The Manchester Red Cross drive for the annual membership of its citizens in the great relief organization surged over the bar into the calm waters of complete success at the meeting of the Kiwanis club this noon.

This morning's reports showed a total of $2,426.20 had been taken in by the drive teams, two or three of which were still sticking to the job. That brought the deficit from the $2,500 quota down to $73.80. During the forenoon reports were received of enough more subscriptions to set the total up to $2,488.20. There she stuck until the Kiwanians went to lunch.

Informed by Secretary Rix of the Chamber of Commerce that the drive lacked a few dollars of completing its task, the Kiwanis members promptly responded. Two members kicked in, one for five dollars, another for seven—and that was the end of the deficit. Several other members, however, declaring that they had not been solicited and hadn't remembered to volunteer contributions, chipped in their dollars and the first thing anybody knew the fund was up to $2,528.20—the town's share and then some.

So that's that. The corrected totals of the various teams will be published as soon as it is known that the contribution has been received and checked in.

AS THE CRISIS NEARED

TENSELY SILENT, HOPEFUL CROWDS lined the grilled fence enclosing Buckingham Palace during the illness of England's king. This photo, taken early in a rainy morning, shows some of the anxious citizens at one of the gates to the palace as they waited for the issuance of a bulletin on the ruler's condition.

NO TRUMPETS BLARED on the palace grounds in England. No shouted commands came from officers of the guard. For within the palace lay King George, seriously ill with pneumonia. Here you see the silent guard mount. With colors cased, the men went to their posts without the usual escort of a band.

Market Over-Discounted, Says Gen. Motors Head

Alfred P. Sloan Says Earning Power is Mortgaged for Some Time to Come by High Prevailing Prices.

New York, Dec. 3.—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, is of the opinion that the New York Stock Market which has been cutting spectacular dikes for many weeks "has over-discounted its earning power for some time to come."

He said so today in an exclusive interview. He made it clear, however, that he does not class himself as an authority on the market and that he was expressing his opinion merely as an individual.

"There is one fundamental way to create wealth. That is through work," said Mr. Sloan when pressed for his views on the orgy of speculation in Wall Street in which the American public is playing such a heavy part.

Huge Profits He was referring to the huge profits that are reported to have been made by many persons on the upward swing of the market.

SEES LITTLE PERIL FROM SMALLPOX

Health Board Head Says
Widespread Vaccination
Is Town's Safeguard.

In connection with the outbreak of smallpox in Unionville and the exposure of employees of the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford, Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, chairman of the Manchester Town Board of Health, today made a statement on the subject of vaccination which contains information not at all commonly possessed.

Dr. Moore declared the period of probable complete immunization after vaccination to be about six weeks. He also expressed the belief that in cases of exposure to small pox persons vaccinated fifteen or even twenty-five years ago would experience a degree of immunity far greater than if they had never been vaccinated at all; that, such persons would be less liable to contract the disease and would certainly have it, if contracted, in a much milder form than if there had never been a vaccination.

Wise To Have Renewal Just the same, Dr. Moore, pointed out, the part of wisdom for all persons who have not been vaccin-

LONDON MORE ANXIOUS OVER GEORGE'S ILLNESS

REPORTS OF HIS DEATH DENIED BY PHYSICIANS

Despite Cheerful Tone of Early Bulletins Today, Alarm Deepens in and Out of Official Circles Over Monarch's Condition—Queen Mary Gives Up Her Daily Ride in Park—Stock Exchange Depressed—Prince Hastening Home, Will Make Part of Trip by Rail; Crowds Gather Before Palace Gates Awaiting Bulletins.

London, Dec. 3.—England today passed through the most anxious period since King George fell ill nearly a fortnight ago.

Despite the more cheerful tone of the 10:30 bulletin of the attending physicians, developments fled up as the day advanced indicating a deepening of alarm both in and out of official circles over the condition of the monarch.

Following a consultation of four doctors early in the day, the court physician, Lord Dawson of Penn, paid four visits to Buckingham Palace up to 3:30 p. m.

Gives Up Ride For the first time since the King's condition became serious Queen Mary this afternoon abandoned her usual ride through Hyde Park.

A report originated in Canada that the King was dead was officially denied at the palace.

The London Stock Exchange was depressed.

Lloyd's insurance rate against the possibility of the King dying before Jan. 1 rose sharply.

Official announcement was made that the Prince of Wales, heir to the throne, is expected to reach Cape Town in time to permit him to board the liner Bimoral Castle for England, Friday. Should the Duke's arrival be delayed, it is expected, the liner will be delayed.

His Heart Weak Despite Lord Dawson's apparent optimism, extreme anxiety gripped all England today. For the first time, it was admitted at 8 o'clock last night, that the King's heart was weakening.

The bulletin again stated that although the King's lung condition was somewhat improved, there was some anxiety over the action of his heart.

Queen Mary, Princess Mary and the Duke of York stayed in rooms adjoining the sick-room most of the night.

The depressing effect of the increasing unfavorable bulletins issued on the King's condition on the general populace is evidenced most strikingly by the lack of interest with which the news of England's overwhelming lead over Australia in the first game of the biennial cricket "test-match" is being received.

Like World Series This "test-match" now being contested in Brisbane, Australia, corresponds to the "World Series" in the United States and is the biggest sporting event in Great Britain.

Four physicians attended the midnight consultation. In addition to the regular doctors—Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Stanley Hewitt—there were Sir F. Farquhar Buzzard and Dr. L. E. H. Whitby, Home Secretary.

Sir William Joynton-Hicks hurried to the palace late in the morning. After reading the 10:30 bulletin he departed with his face wreathed in smiles.

The feverish anxiety in the royal household, which reached its climax during the midnight consultation of the four physicians, gave way to renewed hope after the issuance of the 10:30 bulletin.

The general opinion of palace officials, as expressed to International News Service, was that the King had "rallied marvellously since the critical midnight hours."

The Central News was authority for the statement that Sir Stanley Hewitt, upon his arrival at the palace shortly before 10 o'clock, told Lord Dawson of Penn:

"My opinion is that the crisis, at any rate, has passed for the moment."

Despite the lessening of the fever there are still dangers of complications. That the patient's constitution and reserve strength have begun to suffer under the long strain was indicated by the symptoms of heart weakness which began to manifest themselves last night.

A drug was administered to the King to induce sleep for the first time since his illness became serious.

One of the four physicians at the bedside last night—Dr. Whitby—is the young specialist who was called in last week to examine the patient's throat and to swab it. At that time his identity was not revealed.

CHILE ROCKED BY EARTHQUAKE; OVER 150 DEAD

500 Injured Says Early Reports; Property Damage of 12 Millions in One City Alone; Relief is Rushed.

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 3.—An appalling toll in life and property was taken by the earthquake shocks which devastated a wide area in southern Chile, estimates made today revealed.

It is feared that when communications with the stricken area have been completely re-established, a death-roll of from 150 to 200 persons will be shown.

Between 300 and 500 persons suffered injuries from falling debris. Property damage in one city alone is put at about $12,000,000.

Relief Operations

Relief operations are being directed by President Ibanez and General Blanche, minister of war. Troops and voluntary patrols are guarding the devastated sections.

Talca, a city of 40,000, suffered the heaviest losses. Upwards of 100 persons number more than 200 and it is feared some of these may die. It was in this city that the damage was put at $12,000,000.

Loss of Life

Heavy loss of life was also suffered at Constitución, the seaport of Talca. It is believed the death toll may reach fifty there.

Other communities which suffered, heavily were Chillan, Pelequén, Santa Cruz, Nancagua, Curico, Nientente Mine, San Vicente.

Two Americans who flew over Talca in an airplane declared that the city was almost totally devastated. They said they saw many bodies piled up in the streets under blankets. They reported that hardly a building was left standing intact in the city.

Warships have reached the port of Constitución to aid in the relief work. Frantic survivors throughout the stricken area are searching for missing relatives.

More than thirty earthquake shocks were recorded.

NOTED BRAZILIANS DROWNED IN PLANE

Twelve Leaders in Various Fields Meet Death When Machine is Forced Down.

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, Dec. 3.—Twelve prominent Brazilians, including educators, engineers and economic leaders, were drowned today when the seaplane Condor, in which they were flying out to meet the noted inventor Alberto Santos-Dumont was forced down into the bay.

Twelve bodies were found inside the seaplane when it was picked up from the water. All had been trapped inside.

Among the dead is Prof. Tobias Moscoso, Brazilian delegate to the Pan-American conference at Havana.

The victims were members of a reception committee that had flown out to welcome Santos-Dumont to Rio.

BOSSY GILLIS STUMPING FOR FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

Newburyport's Bad Boy May or Needs Friends Among the City Officials.

Newburyport, Mass., Dec. 3.—Forgetting his gasoline filling station troubles for a time, Mayor Andrew J. ("Bossy") Gillis today began his campaign for his candidates for the councilmanic offices that will be filled by the electors at the polls tomorrow.

"I'm going to make headachings for some of these high officials when I get around to it," the mayor announced.

"Just now I'm trying to get some people friendly to me elected to the council, but must wait."

"I'm going to open that filling station as soon as I find out about that writ business."

Students On Mountain Snowbound; One Dead

Hanover, N. H., Dec. 3.—One Dartmouth student, Herbert J. Young, a freshman, of St. Louis, was dead, and two others, Samuel Allen, of Akron, Ohio, and R. P. Williams, of Chattanooga, Tenn., were suffering from frozen feet today as the result of an heroic 48-hour struggle down the snow-covered side of Mount Washington. There were seven parties comprised of sixty Dartmouth students on the mountain for the holiday vacation but the group of which Young was a member was the only unit to meet disaster.

completely exhausted. The students declared that the coldness of their leader, Allen, a veteran of the Dartmouth Outing Club, probably saved the whole party from death.

The student mountain climbers became caught in a storm near the barren peak of Mt. Washington. They started toward the base and for 48 hours struggled through heavy wet snow two feet deep, half blinded by the swirling snow. There were seven parties comprised of sixty Dartmouth students on the mountain for the holiday vacation but the group of which Young was a member was the only unit to meet disaster.

RECEIVER OF RENTS FOR THE WARANOKE

Inn Dining Room Closes as Mortgage Holders Get a Court Order.

A notice written on a piece of paper was placed on the inside of the front door of the Waranoke Inn Saturday night, which read: "No meals served here today or until further notice." It was unsigned. Behind this notice there has developed a story of fancy finances that will probably result in lawsuits of more than one kind, although the notice was posted because of a single suit now pending.

Last week the Herald told of the return of Hartford to a clerk of a notice of intention to bring suit against A. Ritcher & Company, Inc., by Samuel Schwartz of Hartford in which foreclosure on a third mortgage was to be asked for.

Since that date there has been a lot of action and as a result the tenements in the building, the Home Bank & Trust Company and Morris Metter and Ruben Kurland, have received a nine page legal document reciting the whole story and informing them that they are not to pay any further rent on the building until they are ordered to do so by a court.

Rehearsals History. The document starts off to tell that on August 1, 1928 Anthony Ritcher bought of Jacob Padovinsky of Hartford and Morris Elman of Manchester, the property known as the Waranoke Inn property and that, in addition to giving a mortgage of $30,804.19 and assuming what other mortgages were on the property, Ritcher also agreed to pay all interest on the mortgage at the rate of 6 per cent, to pay all taxes and assessments and in addition begin at once and complete within sixty days a twenty room addition to the building; that addition to this he was also to make changes in the front of the building and that the payments meant that the mortgage note of $30,804.19 would at once become payable. If the charges were made the mortgage note was to run for one year.

On August 9, 1928, the writ further goes on to state that the mortgage note was purchased from Padovinsky and Elman by Samuel Schwartz; that he bought it with the understanding that the conditions were to be met, but that they were not.

There came due in interest $1,740 which Ritcher did not pay and it is claimed in the writ that Schwartz paid this amount. It is set forth that nothing was done towards making the alterations.

It was also set forth that Ritcher had not only met his payments on the interest and on the principal of the alterations, but that he had been collecting the rent and keeping it for his own use and that he had not used any of the money for the payment of current bills. The first section of the writ ends with the statement that Ritcher had not only met his payments on the interest and on the principal of the alterations, but that he had been collecting the rent and keeping it for his own use and that he had not used any of the money for the payment of current bills.

The second section of the nine page comment goes into detail about the money that is being lost by the failure to pay the interest charges and the payment of current expenses and asked that Raymond J. Radin of Hartford be the person named to receive the rents.

This petition was presented to Judge Marvin Green of the Superior Court, who ordered that Radin be appointed receiver of rents and that the bond was posted and the writ shows him to be the proper person to pay rents to.

The writ sets forth that the Hartford Connecticut Trust Company of Hartford claims an interest of $28,890 as secured by a first mortgage and against the property and that Samuel Yaffee, of Hartford also claims a $13,000 interest as shown by a second mortgage note for that amount and that the Home Bank & Trust Company, because of its lease, also claims an interest as against the property, also given before this action was started.

Harold Borden is the attorney in the case signing the writ and also showing the order from the court that a receiver of rents has been appointed.

POLICE COURT

Five cases were before the Manchester police court this morning, four of them for intoxication.

Stanley Polinski of Union street went on a spree yesterday, Frank Hobarth of Dudley street was brought in on complaint of his wife, Bernard Smith was arrested by a state policeman and Samuel Gardano of Hartford lost his way and had to be removed from a trolley car. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed in each case by Deputy Judge Thomas Ferguson who was on the bench. In the case of Polinski who has a wife and four children the judge remitted the fine.

Another local man apparently has not paid much attention to the traffic regulations and parked his car on the wrong side of Cottage street for two or three hours. His case was disposed of upon the payment of a fine of $2 without costs.

DEER HUNTER IS KILLED BY ANOTHER BY MISTAKE

Had Just Shot a Doe When He Fell With Bullet Through His Heart.

Truro, Mass., Dec. 3.—The first casualty of the deer hunting season in Massachusetts was reported here today, when Leslie Zimmerman, 25 of New Haven, Conn., died while he was being rushed to a physician.

While hunting near South Truro with his brother-in-law, Roy Lakin, also of New Haven, Zimmerman had just shot a doe, when he pitched face forward with a bullet through the heart.

Lakin placed his companion in an automobile but Zimmerman died enroute. Dr. E. J. Bell pronounced Zimmerman dead upon arrival here.

According to the story Lakin told police, he was at Zimmerman's side when he fell. He said he believed Zimmerman was struck by the stray bullet of some other hunter.

S. A. WOMEN'S SALE BEGINS WEDNESDAY

The Women's Home League of the Salvation Army will hold its annual Christmas sale Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the Citadel on Main street. The doors will open each evening at 7 o'clock. Wednesday evening the orchestra will play and there will be singing by a male quartette. On Thursday evening the full band will furnish music.

This annual sale is the only way the Home League has to earn funds for its charitable work. The only solicitation they make is of gifts for the sale. The members are busy throughout the year with the exception of the summer months, making dresses for women and children, aprons and slippers, nightgowns and all sorts of garments for young and old. The general committee of arrangements includes the secretary, Mrs. Arthur Kittle and the assistant secretary, Mrs. Linton; treasurer, Mrs. William Hase and her assistant Mrs. J. V. Munnie.

The Young People's Legion will combine forces with the League, and its officers are Mrs. Fred Clough and Mrs. Ernest Clough. Mrs. Linton and Mrs. Thomas Maxwell will be in charge of the table displaying for sale house dresses and ladies' slips; Mrs. Lyons and Mrs. Ellen Bulla will sell aprons and nightgowns; Mrs. Robert Richardson and Mrs. James Taggart, children's garments; crocheted items and Mrs. Addy and Mrs. John Addy. A booth for men will be in charge of Mrs. Cecil Kittle and Mrs. William McCabe. Home made candy will be sold by Miss Rachael Lyons and her assistant, Miss Alice Lyons. Refreshments consisting of pie and ice cream, cake, coffee and other items will be sold by Mary Proctor, Jessie Largier, Edith Proctor and Lillian Smith. The Legion officers include Mrs. Hannah Humphries, secretary; Mrs. Harold Burlington, assistant secretary; Mrs. Maud Smith, president; Mrs. Bertha Hall, treasurer.

SCIENTISTS FIND WAY TO DISTILL HARDEST MEAL

Pittsburgh.—Distillation of alcohol, scientists say, is child's play. Distillation of manganese, a hard and brittle metal which melts only at a higher temperature than copper, is something to talk about.

The Carnegie Bureau of Metallurgical Research at the Carnegie Institute of Technology have accomplished what was believed to be almost an impossibility. They not only are distilling manganese for purification but by certain that it is a topic of conversation, they are doing it by radio.

A report of this accomplishment was made today by an open meeting held under the auspices of the Metallurgical Advisory Board which co-operates with the Department of Metallurgy at Carnegie Tech and with the U. S. Bureau of Mines in conducting a program of Metallurgical research.

Important Discovery

Metallurgists regard this successful application of the distillation process as important since manganese is present in all steels. Special manganese steels find wide application because they are tough and at the same time ductile.

Common as manganese is, it has never been prepared in a pure form. Many metals are purified by electrolysis. Manganese will not respond to this treatment. The thermic process and others of the same kind are successful after a fashion, but they do not yield manganese pure enough for the work which is being carried on at Carnegie Tech.

Mercury, zinc and cadmium, metals of low melting point are purified by distillation. In purifying manganese by the same method by which these low melting point metals are distilled, the scientists faced several difficulties.

In the first place, the scientists had to find a container which could hold the manganese when it was hot. Then a method of heating was necessary which would not introduce impurities. Finally, the manganese had to be protected from oxidation.

Huge quantities of manganese are lost daily, the scientists pointed out. The clouds of brick-red dust which spiral out of the steel mill stacks are manganese—manganese lost by combining with air during steel making.

The second section of the nine page comment goes into detail about the money that is being lost by the failure to pay the interest charges and the payment of current expenses and asked that Raymond J. Radin of Hartford be the person named to receive the rents.

KIWANIS ELECTS; HEARS DEBATE

Frank H. Anderson Named Head of Organization at Today's Meeting.

Attendance at the meeting of the Manchester Kiwanis club was unusually large today both for the reason that it was the annual meeting and also because of interest in the subject to be discussed by two of the members of the High School debating club. The debate was on the question "Resolved that the Present Trend in Advertising is Despicable." The affirmative was taken by George Flavel and the negative by Jacob Rubnow. Each of the debaters had nine minutes to discuss the subject. Rubnow was given three minutes on rebuttal and the other student three minutes to close the argument.

Frank H. Anderson

Aside from the question of advertising the Kiwanians were particularly enthusiastic over the debate and listened with a great deal of interest to the two young men had to say and the way they put it across. It showed what was being accomplished at our local High school with young people who care to learn how to debate.

George Flavel thought much of the advertising was nothing more or less than "bunk", that it was false, misleading and created cut-throat competition and was paid for by the consumers. Young Rubnow defended advertising and referred back to history to show it was nothing new. In the olden days the slaves used to carry advertising about them. He cited examples among our local merchants, picking out successful men and bringing out the fact that they were persistent advertisers.

Members of Lady Roberts Lodge, Daughters of St. George are requested to bring in their gifts for the sale to the meeting in Tinker hall, Wednesday evening.

MOSCOW HOTELS NEED BATHS TO DRAW TOURISTS

Moscow.—"Hotels with a thousand rooms and one bath won't attract tourists who are used to European and American comforts." The persistent queries as to why Americans who spend more than $250,000,000 in Europe every summer don't leave some of it in Russia, has elicited this wise reply from Russians who have been abroad.

The result is the tentative proposal to build a million dollar hotel in Moscow with plenty of baths, good service, English speaking waiters and moderate prices.

Travel Bureau Even more important is the proposal to establish an adequate travel bureau in New York that can give prospective tourists advice and information on the many problems that baffle them, and dispel their fears about what will happen in their when they cross the Russian frontier.

Russia is eager to have foreign visitors, and those hardy travelers who are willing to brave the discomforts of travel of the main line, expensive hotels, poor food and lack of adequate information and assistance, usually find the trip well worth while.

Too Much Trouble Recently two Americans, one a business man and the other a writer and lecturer on Russia, leaving the country by the Finnish border were subjected to a thorough personal search by an over-zealous customs inspector who evidently believed that they were smuggling out jewels or money.

A Texas millionaire who wanted to see Russia and was willing to spend a considerable amount of money to do it, gave up in disgust when he was told that he would have to wait two weeks in Berlin before a visa would be granted him.

SURPRISE SHOWER

Miss Hazel Mae Daly of 143 Florence street was the guest of honor at a surprise miscellaneous shower given at her home Saturday evening by her aunt, Mrs. Myrtle McCollom. Relatives and friends were present from Bolton, Tolland, Milford, Hartford and this town. The colors used were her class colors at High school, blue and gold. A large basket trimmed in these colors filled with gifts of linen, silver, pyrex and other articles. Games were played and a buffet lunch served. An exhibition dance was given by Kenneth Tedford, Miss Daly and Edward H. Von Deck will be married later in the month.

FIND SKELETON

Utica, N. Y., Dec. 3.—State troopers today brought to light the skeleton of an unidentified trapper or traveler, which had been in an Adirondack forest for the last 18 months. Only scant bits of clothing were found beside the bare bones. Troopers were required to burn huge boughs to melt the 22 inches of snow sufficiently to uncover the skeleton.

Policemen are working on the theory that the man may have been an escaped prisoner from No. 4 camp of Comstock prison about 30 miles from where the body was found.

WOMAN BANDIT

Everett, Mass., Dec. 3.—While a woman with a pistol held the weapon to his ribs, her male companion today robbed William E. O'Connell, manager of a chain store, of $240. The couple then tied the victim to a coal bin and fled.

COACHED FOR ALMA MATER.

Larry Betten court, an All-American center last year, had a job as assistant coach at St. Mary's in California, his alma mater, during football season.

OBITUARY

DEATHS

Walter Bowman
Walter Bowman, formerly employed as a gasoline station attendant at the Rainbow, Bolton Notch, died at the Memorial hospital at four o'clock this morning following a complication of illnesses originating with asthma. Bowman was 45 years old and was familiarly known to Manchester and Bolton people as "Shorty."

Bowman came to this section from New Haven 10 years ago because his doctor told him he must live in the hills away from salt air. He had been employed at various places in Manchester and Bolton and on November 5 was taken to the hospital suffering from pneumonia. He lost consciousness on Friday night and sank rapidly.

Bowman leaves several brothers and sisters in New Haven. Members of the family have been notified and funeral arrangements await their arrival.

ABOUT TOWN

The Drive Committee which had charge of the recent drive for funds at the Swedish Lutheran church will meet at the church tonight at 7:30. All members of the committee are asked to be present.

The Dorcas Society of the Swedish Lutheran church will hold its regular December meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Zimmerman of Benton street Wednesday night.

Mrs. A. M. Gordon of 689 Main street left this morning for St. Petersburg, Florida, to spend the winter as is her usual custom. She accompanied a party of friends about to leave for the same place.

Mystic Review, Woman's Benefit association will hold its regular meeting in Odd Fellows banquet hall tomorrow evening. A supper at 6:30 will be served under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Waddell and her committee. A large turnout of the members is hoped for.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hewitt of Holt street will sail Saturday on the S. S. Baltic for a six months' visit to their old home in London, England.

MOSCOW HOTELS NEED BATHS TO DRAW TOURISTS

Moscow.—"Hotels with a thousand rooms and one bath won't attract tourists who are used to European and American comforts." The persistent queries as to why Americans who spend more than $250,000,000 in Europe every summer don't leave some of it in Russia, has elicited this wise reply from Russians who have been abroad.

The result is the tentative proposal to build a million dollar hotel in Moscow with plenty of baths, good service, English speaking waiters and moderate prices.

Travel Bureau Even more important is the proposal to establish an adequate travel bureau in New York that can give prospective tourists advice and information on the many problems that baffle them, and dispel their fears about what will happen in their when they cross the Russian frontier.

Russia is eager to have foreign visitors, and those hardy travelers who are willing to brave the discomforts of travel of the main line, expensive hotels, poor food and lack of adequate information and assistance, usually find the trip well worth while.

Too Much Trouble Recently two Americans, one a business man and the other a writer and lecturer on Russia, leaving the country by the Finnish border were subjected to a thorough personal search by an over-zealous customs inspector who evidently believed that they were smuggling out jewels or money.

A Texas millionaire who wanted to see Russia and was willing to spend a considerable amount of money to do it, gave up in disgust when he was told that he would have to wait two weeks in Berlin before a visa would be granted him.

AUTO VICTIM DIES

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 3.—Edward S. Knapp, 65, died in Greenwich hospital today of injuries received last night when he was struck by an auto as he was crossing the Post Road in front of the Y. M. C. A. building. Samuel Bass, of Norwalk, operator of the car, was placed in bonds of $1,000 pending the coroner's inquest. Knapp leaves three brothers and sisters.

HAVE HELP FROM CARDS.

The St. Louis Cards will back the Laurel entry in the Cotton States League again in 1929. Fans of the city will contribute $5,000 to the support of the club.

SEC. DAVIS URGES TIGHTER LAWS

Fears Orientals Will Enter From Canada if Court Decision is Upheld.

Washington, Dec. 3.—In anticipation of an unfavorable decision by the supreme court in a case involving the right of the Department of Labor to compel visas and payment of head tax, by Canadians crossing the border to work in the United States, Secretary of Labor Davis today asked Congress to tighten the law before the court acts.

In a joint letter to Senator Johnson (R) Calif., and Rep. Albert Johnson (R) Washington, respectively chairmen of the immigration committee of Congress, Davis reviewed the history of border crossing Canadians attracted to the United States by higher wages, who returned home each night unmolested. The practice occasioned issuance of Department Order No. 86, which classified the Canadians as immigrants under terms of the Immigration Act.

Department Upheld

A Federal District Court upheld the Labor Department, but the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the decision, and declared the Jay treaty with Great Britain in 1794 was still in effect. Under the Jay treaty citizens of the United States and Canada were granted the right to "freely pass and repass" the Canadian border.

Davis, fearing that the Supreme Court will uphold the Court of Appeals, wants legislation at the present session, which would in effect abrogate the Jay treaty.

"If the decision is upheld," Davis said, "not only British subjects of the black and white races enter Canada, but also those of the Orientals, can enter Canada and then immediately gain admission to the United States as border crossers for an indefinite period without regard to the immigration laws, which forbid the admission as immigrants of persons by race ineligible for citizenship."

ATLANTIC PHONE NOW PROMISING TO PAY PROFITS

London.—The Transatlantic radio-telephone which for long looked like becoming a white elephant, is now showing signs of turning out to be a paying commercial proposition.

Figures issued here by the British Post Office reveal that since the first of March this year, when the rate for a three-minute call was reduced from $75 to $45, the demand for the use of this means of communication between Europe and the United States has increased enormously. Should the increase continue, experts prophesy that within a few years the Atlantic telephone will be as busy as a main exchange.

Indicating the growth of the new service, it is stated that during the three months from February to April last there were 634 outgoing calls, a total of 1,326; an average of 15 a day. Since then the number of conversations a month has increased by between 300 and 400 per cent.

Traffic Varies The volume of traffic varies from day to day, but the average is in the neighborhood of fifty calls a day. On many days the number of conversations exceeds that considerably.

The Atlantic telephone line has now grown far beyond the stage of a single line between London and New York, with which the service was inaugurated. It is now possible to talk to almost any part of North America from almost any point in Europe. Many parts of Germany and Switzerland, and the cities of Paris, Brussels, Stockholm, Gothenburg, Oslo and Copenhagen, now use the circuit through Britain to telephone to the United States, and shortly the facility will be extended to many other parts of the European Continent. Except for the small villages, every part of Great Britain is in communication with New York through the radio-telephone, and Britain provides the main bulk of the traffic from the European side of the Atlantic.

Figures in the possession of the British post authorities show that it is during the summer tourist season that the telephone is most in demand.

Tourists Use Phone

Globe-trotting Americans in London for a brief spell telephone their business associates and relatives in various parts of America, and in turn receive messages from the United States.

Many of the initial difficulties, such as abrupt fading and aural interference, have been overcome, and now speaking across the 3,000 miles of the Atlantic is very little different from talking to a place a mile distant.

The majority of conversations are limited to three or four minutes. The record call is held by F. B. Odium, an American staying in London, who on the 17th of September began speaking to a business associate in New York at 9:30 p. m. and finished at 11:05. It cost him $1,425.

BIG FREIGHTER SINKS BUT CREW IS RESCUED

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 3.—The freighter Chief Maquilla, abandoned in mid-Pacific Friday with her holds full of water and a threatening list, today rested on the floor of the ocean.

The ship sank late yesterday, several hours after the following radio message from the Japanese freighter, Yogan Maru, was picked up by the Dutch harbor station and relayed to the Coast Guard headquarters here:

"Chief Maquilla appears to be sinking fast. Wash for and aft. Cargo adrift and gradually going overboard. Expect to see her go any time now."

Later in the day the owners of the vessel at Vancouver admitted receipt of a brief message saying the Maquilla had sunk.

It was early in the week that the freighter sent out its S O S. Friday afternoon the Yogan Maru took off her crew after trying in vain to take the ill-fated freighter in tow toward Dutch harbor, directly north in the Aleutian Islands.

HALE'S CONTEST IN SALES BEGINS

Edward Amerman and Alexander Lang Head Red and Green Teams.

The J. W. Hale Company's annual Christmas sales contest started with a bang over the holiday.

The winning team will receive a day off after Christmas while the losing team must put on the entertainment at the Christmas party which will be held between Christmas and New Year's.

The teams are divided as follows: The Red Team Edward Amerman, radio salesman, captain.

Mrs. Deborah Wilson, silk department, first lieutenant.

Miss Ethel Anderson, advertising department, censor.

C. J. McCann, head of scouts—he has already scooped up much business.

Mrs. Quartier, Mrs. Duke, Francis McCann, Lillian Gibson, Mrs. Markham, Mary Currie, Lillian Johnson, Mrs. Little, Mrs. Hall, Francis Schultz, Marie Keating, Mildred Porter, Marjorie Dowd, Rae Herron, Helen Krawjowski, Lillian Powers, Mrs. Drabell, Dick Sherman, Marie Abel, Elton Johnson, Grace Johnson, Mrs. Robinson, Frances McPherson, Anna Sturgeon, Mrs. Nozen, Elsie Peterson, Mrs. F. Walsh, Mrs. Pinney, Mr. Barrett, Mrs. Barnuski, Mrs. Fish, Maurice McKeever, Wallace Shearer, Alice Modin, Donald Underhill, The Green Team.

Alexander Lang, captain.

Mrs. Annie Kellum, first lieutenant.

Eric Crawshaw, head of the heavy artillery.

F. H. Anderson, now doing kitchen police duty will be in charge of the hand grenade division next week.

Doris Howard, Margaret Ferguson, Ethel Packard, Florence Johnson, Mrs. Gardner, Florence Wilson, Minnie Sargent, Mrs. McLaughlin, Florence Beason, Mrs. Lowd, Alice Barzowski, Dorothy Turek, Esther Metcalf, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Borst, Mildred Tedford, Mr. Ferris, Emma Douglas, Mrs. Segerdahl, Agnes Higgins, Mrs. Vennard, Mary Moriarty, Mrs. C. A certain per cent. of the combined Health Market and Self-Serve sales will balance against the radio sales (radio department on red team) so that they will average about equal.

LOCAL STORES BEGIN CHRISTMAS DECORATING

Hale's and Watkins Brothers were the first of the local stores to blossom out with Christmas decorations.

Above the Main street windows at Hale's are a collection of good sized evergreen trees.

The windows and store proper are gay with bouquets in vases, in pots and single blossoms. In one window is a large airplane or Zeppelin covered with Christmas handkerchiefs. In the suspended basket are cupid dolls, Christmas cards, books and merchandise of all kinds. In Christmas boxes are displayed to the best advantage within the store.

Watkins Brothers' large arched front windows are outlined with ropes of laurel, studded with red, green and white electric bulbs with a large illuminated star.

The first stand for the sale of evergreen wreaths was set up today on the corner of Main and Bissell streets.

REC NOTES

Efforts to stimulate more interest in gymnastic classes for men at the School Street Rec will begin tonight with the opening of a point scoring system lasting over a four month period.

A silver loving cup donated by George H. Williams, well known local clothing dealer, will be awarded to the person who receives the highest number of points. The system will be in effect December 3 to March 30 inclusive.

There are several ways of earning the points. Five will be credited for attendance at each of the men's classes including gymnastic and apparatus work. Ten points will be given for obtaining a new woman member and fifteen for a male member of the Rec. Twenty points will be given for participating in the annual gymnastic exhibition at the Rec.

CONGRESS OPENS FOR SHORT TERM

front seat at the session beginning today, but there were few in Capitol Hill who believe there is a Chinaman's chance of passing any major program before March 4.

The Farm Block itself is split on the desirability of attempting it, and the split extends generally throughout both Houses and both parties.

There is a well-defined feeling that more can be hoped for from the new Congress, which President-Elect Hoover has promised will be called into session immediately to deal with farm relief if the present session does not act.

The mid-westerners who fought, and died for the McNary-Hamm bill through two sessions, jammed it through, and laid it on President Coolidge's doorstep, only to have it sent back with sizzling vetoes, are unwilling to again send an agricultural relief bill to him.

They prefer to take their chances with Mr. Hoover, and they have the promise of an extra session.

On the other hand, some of Mr. Coolidge's friends in both houses would like to see farm relief disposed of between now and March 4 so that he might go out of office with the enactment of a farm relief bill to the credit of his administration.

Some of Mr. Hoover's friends are likewise hopeful of action, for it is no secret in Washington that Mr. Hoover does not relish starting off his administration with an extra session.

No Extra Session But with the mid-westerners clamoring for an extra session on the one hand, and the Republicans of the industrial east joining them in demanding an extra session for upward revision of the tariff, it is entirely probable that both these problems will go over until March 4—although not without considerable talking and wrangling.

Overriding all else in some Congressional minds is the feeling that farm relief and tariff are properly Mr. Hoover's responsibility, inasmuch as it is his administration that will have to take the credit or blame for whatever is done concerning them.

The Senate, as usual, starts off in a jam that probably will be continuous until the stroke of noon on March 4.

Unfinished Business Boulder Dam is the unfinished business. During the six months recess, the controversy over this great engineering project has become intensified. Senator Ashurst (D) of Arizona, was re-elected last month, and he returned to Washington more determined than ever to defeat it. Senator Hiram Johnson (R) of California, also re-elected, returned to lead the fight for the measure. The battle promises to be long drawn out and bitterly fought.

Behind the Boulder Dam bill on the Senate's calendar looms the new cruiser bill, designed to add 15 new cruisers and an airplane carrier to the Navy. The bill already has passed the House, and stands the endorsement of President Coolidge. The "Little Navy" people and the peace organizations are opposed to it and are going after it hammer and tongs. The debate over this, too, will be long.

Kellogg Pact Still further back on the Senate calendar is the Kellogg-Briand outlawry of war treaty, which the Coolidge administration is intent upon ratifying before it goes out of office. Here, too, the debate will be interminable.

In between times, the always turbulent Senate must pass the enormous supply bills that will be dished up to it by the disciplined House.

The principal battle in the House is to be over the reapportionment bill, which will decrease the Congressional representation from state and increase it in others, in accordance with the increases and decreases of population during the last 15 years.

The Constitution provides Congress must be re-apportioned every ten years, in accordance with the decennial census, but this was not done in 1920, despite the plain mandate of the Constitution. Congressmen from those states that would lose by the reapportionment have succeeded in blocking the bill session after session.

The bill probably will pass the House this session, however. What its fate will be in the Senate is problematical, for the Senate always winds up a session in a jam in which many things are lost.

Forty members of the House and seven members of the Senate who were defeated in the November election are members of the present session.

It was the plan of both houses today to meet and then adjourn out of respect for members who died during the recess.

Tomorrow President Coolidge's annual message on the state of the Union will be read, and it will be Wednesday before Congress really buckles down to work.

CHURCH SALE

The Christmas sale of the Second Congregational Ladies Aid society will open tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock between 5:30 and 7:30 a cafeteria supper will be in charge of Mrs. F. H. Harvey and a large committee. A variety of appetizing dishes will be provided by the ladies of the church. An entertainment consisting of a playlet by four of the young people, a sketch by Mrs. Frank Rieg and her daughter, Miss Ellen Rieg and musical numbers will be given. Booths for the sale of stationery, cards, sports, home-made candy and all sorts of gift articles will be in charge of the members of the society and young people from the church school.

MORE EVIDENCE OF 25,000 POPULATION

Personal Tax Enumerator Finds More Homes With No More Vacancies.

From a third source comes substantial testimony that Manchester has reached the 25,000 population mark. To the evidence supplied by postoffice statistics and school enumeration must be added that of David McCann, personal tax enumerator, who has been working for two months on his job of listing all those persons liable to pay that tax.

Mr. McCann reports that there are no more vacant houses or apartments in the town than there were a year ago, when a large increase in the number of occupied homes was reported. Also he reports that among the new dwellings many are occupied by families who were not residents of Manchester a year ago.

Proof of Increase. He finds that the population estimates of a year ago are better than sustained, for the total number of houses and apartments is greater and the number of vacancies not increased at all.

An interesting circumstance in connection with the tax enumerator's discoveries is that, while there have been many removals within the town, the net effect of them has been to leave vacant only the less desirable rents. The money during the year has been to move into better and more up-to-date homes.

Another development of the enumerator's inquiries is that an increasing number of families over last year are living in homes of their own ownership. Several of the new home owners are newly married young couples who have started off by buying rather than renting.

Mr. McCann says the final figures of his enumeration will show an increase in all parts of the town.

is alleged, has not paid any part of the amount.

While the writ does not go into detail as to why these amounts are due it is known that Mr. Drew has been and still is a representative for some of the largest chain stores in the country and especially for those operating in the East. It is supposed by those informed, that he, as is often the case, entered into an agreement to take over for a term of years a lease, of the property owned by the Donahue estate on Main street, Hartford and with the intention of leasing all, or part, of the property to some chain store; that there was some sort of a mis- take or inability to get the tenant he sought.

The property in question, it was learned yesterday is located on Main street in Hartford and that a year or so ago the Donahue estate made some alterations and changes in the property. Just what the real cause behind the suit is not disclosed at this time.

Lease of Cheney Block Mr. Drew, who is a lawyer and lives in Stamford, holds the lease on the so called Cheney Block owned by George W. Smith. The manner in which the property was leased from Mr. Smith, together with an option of purchase was one of the most interesting legal documents ever filed in the Manchester town clerk's office. It covered six dozen pages of legal typewritten sheets and every detail was gone into. Under the terms of the lease and option Mr. Smith was paid a money consideration, and was then to take back a mortgage of $90,000 on the property and in addition to this was to receive clear, without taxes or any other charges being made against him, a yearly income that was considered an exceptional good return.

Mr. Smith retired from business and the two stores that he occupied were leased for a term of years to the Green Stores under a per cent rate of rental, with a guarantee amount to be paid to Mr. Drew and a stepping rate from year to year during the term of the lease.

To the Tom McAn Shoe store, a lease of the store that had been occupied by W. A. Smith, the jeweler was given. An advance was made in the rental of the store; occupied by Farr Brothers, but they have no lease. The Park Hill Flower Shop, with a lease, was the other tenant on the ground floor.

The second floor tenants were allowed to stay without an increase in rent, in all but one case, where a change from one location to another was made.

The warrants were served on December 1, when the rents come due. Only one person had paid the rental for the month, which is in advance, and it is claimed that the same conditions exist in South Norwalk.

The case will be watched with interest here because of Mr. Drew's connections and because a former Manchester woman is bringing the suit. Mr. Drew is well known throughout the state because of the many leases and holdings that he has obtained.

DOESN'T SEEM FAIR.

ated within six years, if there is the slightest danger of exposure through association, direct or indirect, with the Unionville cases through employees of the insurance company, is to undergo revaccination. Even a light case of smallpox is an exceedingly wretched kind of illness and a light case can communicate a serious, perhaps a fatal one.

The fixed population of Manchester, Dr. Moore said, is peculiarly free from liability to smallpox, because of the widespread practice of vaccination. Practically all the school children and those who have passed through the schools in recent years have been immunized through vaccination. The danger lies in communication by transients.

In view of the Unionville outbreak and as a preparedness measure the Manchester health authorities have seen to it that the town is liberally supplied with fresh vaccine. If the disease should appear here it will be strongly urged that those not vaccinated during the last ten or fifteen years renew their immunization. It is believed, however, that general conditions in the town and the prevalence of vaccination marks render Manchester less liable to an outbreak of the disease than many other communities in the state.

As to the general health Dr. Moore declared Manchester to be in an excellent condition. There is no diphtheria in town and only a few cases of scarlet fever, well controlled. In the matter of diphtheria immunization there has been a general response to the letter recently sent out by the Health Board to parents of pupils in the first eight districts, consenting to the administration of toxin-anti-toxin treatment. In the Ninth District the work is already well in hand. At a clinic in the Lincoln school last week fifty pupils were given the test. Another large class was treated at the Nathan Hale school.

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Edna Skinner of New York City and Mrs. Edward B. Allen of White Plains, N. Y., spent the week-end in Manchester. They were guests of their sister Mrs. John Anderson of Russell street.

Mrs. Fina Anderson of Cooper street was surprised yesterday afternoon by about 50 relatives and friends from Hartford, New Britain and this town, who called in honor of her seventy-sixth birthday. Mrs. Anderson was celebrating practically all day. On Friday evening 15 of her friends surprised her, bringing gifts and refreshments. She received many remembrances of the birthday in flowers, congratulatory messages by mail and gifts.

The Social Service committee will hold a sale of Christmas gift articles and food Saturday afternoon of this week at 2 o'clock at Keith's uptown store. The ladies will also canvass on a covered wagon during the evening. The drawing to be held in connection with the sale. The proceeds will be devoted to local charitable work under the direction of Miss Jessie Reynolds, social service worker for the town. Mrs. Lawrence Case is general chairman of the committee of arrangements.

A double quartet from the Salvation Army instead of the band, will give special numbers at the service this evening at the North Methodist church, in the series of meetings which began yesterday. The address of the evening will be given by Frank W. Dwyer of Middletown, whom a number of Manchester people know in connection with his work with the Junior Achievement organization. Mr. Barber has had wide experience as a lecturer and educator of young people and all who come to hear him will find him an interesting speaker.

Miss Johanna Gorens of 14 Victoria Road is ill at her home and unable to attend her classes at Connecticut Business college.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold its regular monthly meeting at the South Methodist church tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. The speaker will be Mrs. A. E. Outby, state president for Maine, and mother of Principal C. P. Quimby of the Manchester High school. Her subject will be "High Lights of the National W. C. T. U. Convention" which occurred recently in Boston.

HANDEL, BUCK MUSIC SERVICE ON SUNDAY

Beethoven Glee Club to Take Part in Swedish Lutheran Church Service.

Choral numbers from Handel and Buck will be featured in the musical service next Sunday evening at the Swedish Lutheran church when the Beethoven Glee Club under the direction of Helge E. Pearson will take part in the Luther League service.

Dudley Buck's "Nun of Nidaros" a short cantata for male voices will be the main attraction. Other numbers, including Handel's "Let Their Celestial Concerts All Unite" and Rhys-Ford's "Betrayal of Christ", a dramatic setting of the Savior's last days will also be presented. The Handel number is considered one of the finest choral numbers for men's voices.

Miss Eleanor Willard will be soloist as well as Albert Pearson, bass soloist of the Beethoven club.

Miss Willard will be heard with the club in the "Nun of Nidaros" as well as another Buck number "My Redeemer and My Lord" from the "Golden Legend."

Handel's "Why Do The Nations Revolt?" will be the number by Albert Pearson. The proceeds from the offering will go to the Thanksgiving Offering fund.

NO PROFITS HERE.

Owners of the Bridgeport club in the Eastern League recently filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition, giving their liabilities as $52,187 and their assets as $37.50.

STOCK OVER-DISCOUNTED, SAYS GEN. MOTORS HEAD

In a large corporation is undoubtedly a poor judge of a thing like the Stock Market," said Mr. Sloan whose time and energy has been concentrated in directing the affairs of a corporation which this year will do a gross business of between $1,500,000,000 and $1,750,000,000 and show the largest profits for a single year ever made by any industrial corporation in peacetime.

Is Overdiscounted "I do not mind saying, however, that my viewpoint—which is not an original one—is that the Market has overdiscounted its earning power for some time to come. I am speaking of the whole trend of the Market and not with reference to any individual security. It must be recognized that, after all, values can only be maintained if supported by earning power.

"When I hear, as I frequently do, of large sums being made in the Stock Market through the increasing values that are being established—and I realize that this is going on to a certain extent all over the country—I sometimes ask myself if, from one angle, it is not unfortunate. For there is only one fundamental way to create wealth, and that is through work.

Work Is Necessary "The large profits, relatively or otherwise, made through the Stock Market has a tendency to discount work which, after all makes these things possible. In the last analysis the Stock Market simply capitalizes and establishes a value on the constructive efforts of industry."

Mr. Sloan's statement that "work is the fundamental way to create wealth" is illustrated by the rapid rise of General Motors Corporation to its present outstanding position in the industrial world. Many men who a few years ago held small blocks of stock in this company are wealthy today. It is the biggest profit-making organization in existence.

Today's Prices Today General Motors stock is selling on the New York Stock Exchange at around $215 a share. There are 17,400,000 shares of common stock outstanding. At $215 a share this stock is worth today the staggering sum of $3,726,000,000. Contrast this with the situation only four years ago: In 1924 the stock of General Motors was selling at $70 a share and there were 5,800 shares of common outstanding, which would make the total value at that time $406,000,000. The profits made by stockholders can be illustrated in another way: In 1924 there were 5,800,000 shares outstanding. Without asking for a penny from stockholders and without selling a single share of common stock, the big corporation split up its stock so that every person who held 100 shares now holds 300.

EZRA MEEKER IS DEAD WAS FAMOUS PIONEER

West's Most Noted Character Passes Away at Hotel in His 97th Year.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 3.—Ezra Meeker, 97, one of the west's most noted pioneers, is dead.

The sturdy builder of north-west frontiers died in his room at 4 a. m. this morning in the Frye hotel.

He met death as he had met other obstacles during his hardy life.

For more than a week Meeker had struggled against the grip reaper and when his will succumbed to unconsciousness, his body carried on the fight.

Hopes for recovery were revived last Friday and Saturday when the aged trail blazer rallied from his stupor and evinced some interest in his surroundings and was able to take some nourishment.

He suffered a relapse Sunday, however, from which he never recovered.

FARM TARIFFS

As nearly as we can figure it out the Western farmers' urgent claims to a right to "relief" legislation has all along been predicated on the theory that price maintenance through some such device as the McNary-Haugen bill must be had in order to compensate the farmer for the reduced purchasing power of his products as applied to the product of highly protected industries.

Now along comes one of the farmers' most gifted spokesmen, Senator Capper, who insists that the first thing Congress shall do, before it takes up any other tariff or other farm relief legislation, is to pass a special tariff bill increasing the protection on substantially all forms of agricultural products.

We must put a high tariff on cocoon and palm oils—which are not produced in America—so that American lard, tallow and vegetable oils may sell in their places at higher prices. We must put a high tariff on Cuban molasses so that the market for corn may be increased by forcing its use instead of the molasses in the manufacture of industrial alcohol.

And when we have done all that the farmer will be ready to accept the further benefit of a McNary-Haugen bill.

This is in the face of the obvious fact that wages in the industries of the United States have passed the peak and, meeting keen competition in the markets of the world, will be less before they are higher. Not only is it the idea of the Western farmer that the thing to do is to boost the cost of living to the industrialist as far as it can be boosted through tariff protection—but then boost it some more through federal assistance in price fixing.

Mr. Capper complains that the farmer's products will buy only 90 per cent of what they would buy before the war. He means, of course, per bushel or per pound. He ignores the well established fact that through methods in which he was educated by the government, and through the use of improved machinery bought through government loans he can now produce at least 20 per cent, probably 30 per cent, more bushels or pounds, per unit of effort, than he did in pre-war days—and does.

And how about the purchasing power of the factory worker's wage if the farmer be aided in putting beef above a dollar a pound and forcing up the cost of everything the worker and his family eat? The western farmer wants a lot of things he isn't going to get—because he wants more for his time and his effort than any large class of people in this world can get.

COURT REFORM

It is a long time since anything more far reaching in its effects has been proposed to the Connecticut Legislature than the measures for the reform of the judicial system of the state recommended in the report to the governor made by the Judicial Council, the body headed by Chief Justice Wheeler of the Supreme Court of Errors which was created by the last General Assembly.

Connecticut's courts are far and away from being as badly hampered with legal fuss and feathers as those of some other commonwealths, but in the course of many decades some of their practices have become archaic, some have always been indifferently good and in still others there is marked room for improvement even if not for harsh criticism.

It has obviously been the single purpose of the Judicial Council to make the service of the courts to the people of the state both greater and more economical, to rid the dockets of superfluous and unnecessary business and to cause the machinery of justice to operate with better speed and fewer errors. There is not, in all the recommendations of the Council, the slightest indication anywhere of a disposition to make more business for more lawyers—rather to the contrary.

The proposal to have the judges of city, town and borough courts appointed by the governor instead of by the Legislature is theoretically sound, though the advantage in this step would appear to be in principle rather than absolutely just at this time. Certainly there will be general support for the proposal to make illegal all sub-rosa suspensions of sentence in the minor courts—the council advocating that all such actions must be taken in open court and spread upon the records. The removal of mere infractions of traffic regulations, when they do not involve matters other than those of public discipline, from the category of criminal offenses, and the provision of machinery for handling such disciplinary cases outside the regular courts, is an obvious common sense proposal.

Arrangement of judicial sittings so that judges may be steadily employed and not compelled to waste their time while the courts are jammed with business; the simplification of appellate procedure and the reduction of its expense; legal provision for the presentment of cases to grand juries by state attorneys—something already in force in almost all the states; and a dozen other reforms advocated by the Council will meet with ready approval among the laity and from all but the least worthy part of the legal profession.

BRITTEN

The Hartford Courant doesn't put much stock in Representative Britten of Illinois. The Courant wouldn't object to his big-navyism if he would stick to it; what it doesn't like is his tendency to back up momentarily at times in the face of public opinion. It shouldn't hold this against him, for if now and then a glimmer of light shines in on the battle smoked mind of the gentleman from Illinois, it can be depended on to fade quickly and in a moment or two he will be howling for the biggest and best navy ever, regardless of cost or consequences.

The fact that Mr. Britten has just recently gone over the head of the State Department and the President and tried to call a sort of naval conference of his own with a British parliamentary committee, doesn't, of course, please our neighbor. But apparently it isn't because it was a ridiculous piece of effrontery; rather because there might be one chance in a million that the proposal would be taken up.

This Mr. Britten is a Chicago ward politician who got into Congress. He is still a ward politician. He is a big navy man. We do not say he is a big navy man for the same reason that he was and is a Chicago ward politician, but generally when you scratch a big-navy man you find a person who has friends who are interested in a big navy because a big navy involves the expenditure of many hundreds of millions of dollars, a very large part of which will take the form of profit. And businesses of that sort are quite well understood by most men who get their political training in the wards of the Windy City.

Incidentally Mr. Britten has a great many constituents who are the constituents also of Big Bill Thompson—the kind of folks who shout madly with delight when anybody talks about hanging King George or sinking the British fleet.

But nevertheless, if he would only stick consistently, right along, to the line that he brought back from Europe with him last spring, when he came back from Europe full of a wild alarm that Great Britain was planning a naval war against the United States, we suspect that he would get less scolding from our friend in the Capitol City.

"AMERICANS"

If five or six generations of continuity on American soil constitutes "one hundred per cent Americanism" then the population of York and Lancaster Counties, Pennsylvania, should rate among the purest of our native stocks. There is probably no similar area in the United States—not even Vermont or Maine—where there has been such a slight infusion of new blood in the course of more than two hundred years. It has been said that these two counties are an important city and a thickly settled farming area beside many smaller communities, have witnessed less foreign immigration than any other comparable region in the United States during the last century.

It would seem, then, on the face of it, that this part of the Keystone State ought to be splendidly representative of everything that America should be.

Yet from York County there comes an almost unbelievable story of widespread belief in witchcraft, of voodoo doctors being legions—and of three murders resulting from nothing in the world by a superstitious fear of bewitchery and voodoo blights. The police of York admit that for a long time they have known about the prevalence of these superstitions and the practices of the witchcraft fakirs, but declare that so widespread is the craze, and of such long standing, that they are powerless to break it up.

After all, this is a big country and there are still some parts of it that, despite railroads, automobiles, telephones and radios, remain amazingly insular. York County, Pennsylvania, as a thoroughly "American" community provides a worth-while example of what it is possible for "Americanism" to mean when it keeps to itself and excludes all outside cultures and influences for too long at a time.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 3.—It's the "ragamuffin" season again among the youngsters of New York. Long since, the family trunks have been rummaged and pawed in the search for cast-off clothing. And the more tattered and torn such clothing may be, so much the better for the purposes of the small boys and girls.

On Thanksgiving Day occurs the official "Ragamuffin" parade," a pageant quite unlike any other to be found in America. For it is a transmutation of the "old world," which was introduced by the gamins of the ghetto. Within the past year or two, it has penetrated to every district of the city. It is a custom, native to certain sections of Italy, where the bite of hunger is felt by the poor. About this season of the year, with winter upon their heels, the boys and girls fare forth, garbed in rags and tatters; they daub their faces with dirt or rouge or coal dust; they prank and they caper—but, most of all, they beg.

In New York, the eccentricities of dress are exaggerated to carnivalean proportions. Every disguise is attempted by tens of thousands of children, who go through their neighborhoods in mobs, begging for pennies and dimes and "hand-outs." A number of efforts have been made to eliminate the begging from the day's program. Civic organizations have tried to get the American boys and girls to set an example for their foreign brothers and sisters—but to no avail. The number of participants has increased yearly and, even in the exclusive residence sections, it is possible to see the gamin paraders in action.

The bright and particular visiting "lion" of the present New York season is Ottorino Respighi, the eminent Italian composer; whose opera, "The Sunken Bell," is being given at the Metropolitan for the first time in America. He has been feted and greeted and entertained. He has been a favorite for years with symphony goers and his "Pines of Rome" is a tone poem repeated many times during a Manhattan music season.

I met the composer for the first time at a dress rehearsal of his opera, which offers Mme. Elizabeth Rethberg her moment of triumph following the early season argument with Jeritta over the leading role in "The Egyptian Heien" which, by the way, has received a very cold reception from the American critics. Mme. Rethberg introduced Respighi to New York the other day at a tea at the Ambassador.

A dress rehearsal at the Met, by the way, is like nothing else in the theater. Specially invited audiences, including scores of music world celebrities, often fill the orchestra seats. There is hub-bub and commotion back stage, as the scene shifters work with new scenery. An air of nervous tension prevails and even the oldest veteran performers admit considerable nervousness, particularly when a new opera is to be given. Fatigue often brings about court bickerings, though every effort is made to produce the opera with the precision that marks an actual performance.

Customers rush up at the last moment with tenor's tights and gaudy garments and fiddlers tune up in the orchestra pit. Directors rush about, rounding up the chorus members and from a dozen places the sounds of voices, male and female, running lightly through the scales.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, Dec. 3.—A secretary of the interior does not, usually, have much chance to become famous (if you overlook the case of Mr. Fall). Yet the cabinet member who holds that job is one of the most important officials of the government, and on his wisdom of the welfare of future generations of Americans.

The vast problem of conservation of our natural resources comes under his jurisdiction. He is the man who must see to it that water power sites, timber lands, coal and ore deposits and prospective oil fields are husbanded for the future. The department was established in 1849, when there was infinitely more in the shape of public domain to look after. But for a good many years nobody ever dreamed of conserving anything for the future. The entire west was just being opened, and the population of the country, compared with today, was small. It seemed absurd to think that the country could ever run out of forest lands. Water power sites were only of minor interest, the coal fields of the east seemed utterly inexhaustible, the Lake Superior iron and copper fields looked amply large for the whole country, and nobody had much use for an oil pool.

So the government got rid of its public possessions—rapidly, lavishly. The Interior Department originally devoted most of its efforts to fact finding; it would make surveys, tell prospective settlers or prospectors where the choicest lands were to be found, advise mine speculators and timber companies what fields were best suited to their needs.

In the course of time, however, it became evident that something must be saved for the future. The policy of wholesale grants of lands and mineral claims gave way to a more thoughtful attitude as the limits of the public lands came to be realized. Thus, during the past 20 years, a new idea—the idea of conservation—has arisen, and the Interior Department is the department primarily charged with putting it into effect.

As one step in this program, the department is now completing a vast inventory of all public domains. Forest lands have been sorted, classified and graded, and tracts to be set aside for preservation have been picked. Extensive examinations are being made of lands where the mining of coal, oil, gas, potash or phosphates is possible.

Part of this job consists of mapping and classifying agricultural lands. More than 290,000,000 acres of land on the eastern slope of the Rockies and in the great plains have been mapped to show irrigated lands of various grades, land suitable for dry-farming, land suitable only for grazing, and so on. This data is made available for the use of the Department of Agriculture and western ranchers supply of energy. It is making a and homesteaders.

On top of this, the department is reckoning the country's future national inventory of the tons of coal, barrels of oil and second-foot of water power that will be available to American workers and industrialists of the future. In this work, the tabulating of water power resources takes an important place. The department estimates that the total potential capacity of the velloped water power sites in the public-land states have an aggregate potential capacity of 15,000,000 horsepower.

Untapped coal reserves also figure importantly in the inventory. Although there is at present little demand for new coal veins, the country's coal reserves will eventually be extremely important; indeed, the country's national prosperity may depend on them in the

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Text: "Removing Wrinkles", "Rancid Butter". "Question: H. K. asks: 'Can you suggest a good prescription for removing wrinkles? I don't know what to buy, as there are so many removers from which to choose.' Answer: It is dangerous to use preparations for removing wrinkles except as they are used by a trained cosmetician. Sometimes liquid preparations are used, and others use a peeling induced by a burning of the ultra-violet light. Massage treatments can then be given to the skin and ice applied several times daily to produce a good blood circulation. The very small wrinkles can be almost entirely removed by such methods, but of course the large ones cannot be changed except by facial surgery, and the final results of this method are very disappointing. Watch for the articles appearing tomorrow and Wednesday." "Question: Hazel asks: 'What causes the rancidity of butter? And is there any method of making it fresh again?' Answer: The bitter taste of rancid butter is caused by butyric acid which has formed. This acid can be removed to a large extent by thoroughly washing with fresh milk which absorbs the butyric acid. After this, the butter should be mixed with water to remove the milk."

Rockville

Mass Meeting of Citizens Tuesday

A mass meeting of the citizens will be held Tuesday evening in the superior court room, following the annual city meeting which will be held in the Town Hall. Details concerning the new silk industry which is to be brought to this city will be brought before the people. The Rockville-Williamantic Lightening Company, the Rockville Chamber of Commerce and representatives of the citizens have conferred with the representatives of the silk concern and progressed to a point where the assistance of the people is required. The meeting on Tuesday is open to the public and both men and women and all interested in this new industry are urged to be present. The name of the concern will be announced at this meeting. It is said that they will install 150 looms in their proposed mill. The public has been asked to subscribe $6,000 to be used for moving the business to the city. If Rockville is successful in raising the $6,000 it will mean a $3,000-a-week payroll will be added to the city's industries and that many local people will find re-employment. All these details and many more will be announced at the meeting Tuesday evening.

Savings Bank Passes $5,000,000

The People's Savings Bank of which Judge John E. Fisk is president, has passed its $5,000,000 mark in assets. The statement of the bank shows a surplus of $300,000 with individual profits of $70,531.23, with $70,203 in interest account and deposits of $4,566,071.81, making the total assets of $5,006,556.10. The bank also has appreciation on the stocks and bonds to the amount of several hundred thousand dollars. Officials of the bank announced the passing of the $5,000,000 mark on Saturday.

New K. of C. Whist Series

The final whist of the series of fall whists was held Friday evening in the Knights of Columbus hall by that organization. In spite of the bad weather the prizes were ten tables of players. The prizes for the evening's play were awarded to the following ladies: Mrs. L. J. Conrick and Miss Rose LaCrosse; and the gentlemen's prizes to John Hammond and William Sweeney. The Capitol prizes for the series were awarded to Miss LaCrosse and John Hammond. These whists are largely attended and have proved so successful that a new series of winter whists will be started next Wednesday evening, December 5. At the last whist of this new series two more attractive and valuable prizes will be awarded.

Annual Eastern Star Meeting

Hope Chapter, Eastern Star will hold its annual meeting Tuesday evening. Reports for the year will be presented and officers elected for the ensuing year. As this is the annual meeting of the order it is hoped that a large number of members will be present. Refreshments will be served at the close of the business session.

Elks' Memorial Services

The Rockville Lodge of Elks, No. 1359, held their annual memorial service yesterday afternoon at the Elks' home on Prospect street. The service commenced at 3 o'clock. Harry Conklin Smith gave a very impressive memorial oration. Mr. Smith is one of the Past Exalted Grand Masters of the lodge and gave the memorial address a few years ago. The program opened with the singing of "America" after which Exalter Ruler Michael H. Roberts and his staff conducted the opening ceremonies. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Oscar Peterson after which the Elks' quartet sang "Lead Kindly Light." Following Mr. Smith's address, Harold Ranson rendered a vocal selection. The program closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Basketball Team Organized

The Rockville Athletic Association have organized a fast basketball team for the season and have chosen Michael Leonard for manager and Albert Spellman, assistant manager. The players for the season are about the same as were in last year's team: guards, Skinner and Weber; center, Boyle; forwards, Leonard, Pressler and K. Sullivan, substitute, Francis Hall. The team is planning for local and out of town games, the local games being played in the Town Hall. Report of Public Works Department of which Alderman A. E. Waite is chairman and George B. Milne, superintendent, have returned $12,000 to the city treasury, after having completed the work planned for the fiscal year. The appropriation for the department was a little less than $50,000. The recapitulation for the year had the following amounts expended: the general maintenance account has $2,583 left out of $13,000; oiling, $139 out of $6,000; park, $843, out of $2,000; steam roller, for salary, repairs, etc., $299 out of $2,300; sprinkling and calcium chloride, $1,146.40 out of $1,500; engineering, $284 out of $1,200; culverts, $1,302 out of $4,000; incidents, $93 out of $500; snow and ice removal, $2,150 out of $2,500. The Grov street job showed $104 left out of $6,000; Sniptic street storm sewer, $890 out of $2,000; West Main street work, $1,134 out of $5,000 and Tolland Avenue work, $104 out of $2,500. Out of the $5,000 appropriated for sewalks, curbing and gutters the committee spent $4,757.74 leaving $242.26. Having a balance of about $12,000 at the close of the year, the committee has asked for $13,500 less for the coming year than was asked last year.

The Public Works Department

It has been requested that the Herald correct the statement made in Saturday's edition concerning the automobile accident in Ellington. The cars implicated in the accident were driven by Frank G. Lombard, 19, of Franklin street, city, and Anthony Moszer, 27, of Buckland. The passengers of both cars were taken into the home of John Lugenbuhl who lives at the corner where the accident occurred.

HEBRON

Randall Hennant, Sr., who has been away from home for some months has returned for a time. Word has been received that Senator Warden Lewis W. Phelps has returned to his home in Andover after several days spent at the Hartford hospital. While he may be obliged to return to the hospital later for additional treatment it is hoped that an operation will not be necessary.

Elton Buell is ill with grip.

It is reported that Mrs. Charlotte Phelps, a former resident of this town, has returned to her home in Andover, after having been under treatment at the Hartford Hospital for some weeks. Her condition is reported as favorable.

Mrs. Morris Rackmilowitz and children, her sister, Miss Anna Epstein, and Richard Turshen of Amston, went to New York on Friday to attend the wedding of Miss Lillian Epstein, sister of Mrs. Rackmilowitz and Miss Epstein, to Richard Passer, the ceremony taking place at the Hopkinson Mansion, Brooklyn.

Miss Anna Epstein acted as maid of honor. The newly married couple will go on a wedding trip to Lakewood.

Miss Irma Lord, of the faculty of the Williamatic State Normal Training School spent her Thanksgiving Day recess at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loren M. Lord.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kibbe entertained a party of eighteen relatives and friends at Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday. Among those present from out of town were Mrs. Lulu Lord and son, Morgan, also Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Chapman, of Manchester, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Johnson and daughter, of Farmington, and Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Raymond and children of New Britain.

Miss Clarissa Lord was at home from Storrs College for the holiday. A dinner party on Thursday at the Lord home included, besides local relatives, Grinton Will of Mamaroneck, Robert Will and Gilbert Kelley, seniors from Wesleyan University, Middletown.

WAPPING

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sheldick had as their guests for Thanksgiving, their mother, Mrs. Mary Barnes and daughter Miss Eva Barnes of New Britain, and Miss Olive Barnes of Hartford, also Miss Elizabeth Ketchen of Wilson, an aunt of Mrs. Sheldick.

There was an automobile crash near Threshers gasoline station, on Thanksgiving night about midnight, when a Ford and a Buick sedan came together. The people in the Buick car were not hurt, but the man in the Ford received a broken arm and was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Stiles and son, Ward Stiles, spent Thanksgiving with their daughter, Mrs. Ralph E. Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. George West of Foster street entertained a party of fifteen at their home on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Carrie (Meacham) Parsons, sister of Mrs. Anna (Meacham) Risley, is still very seriously sick at her home in Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan West and little son, Richard, motored to the home of Hibbard West, of Tolland, for Thanksgiving.

At a short business meeting of the Congregational Church, Sunday, letters of dismissal and recommendation to the Methodist church of East Hartford, were granted to Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Alford. Mr. and Mrs. Alford have recently moved to East Hartford.

There was a good sized audience at the Federated church on Thanksgiving morning, who listened to a fine address by Rev. T. H. Woodward.

GILEAD

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin went Thursday morning to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Carpenter at their home in Hartford.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter D. Way and children of Westport, N. Y., spent several days this week with his parents Mr. and Mrs. C. Daniel Way.

At this writing there is some improvement in the condition of E. W. Buell, who is ill with pleurisy and grip.

Willie C. Bartholomew, who has been quite ill is reported as improving. Dr. Whittle of Glastonbury is attending him.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Porter and sons are spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Preston in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. C. R. Perry and son Laurence spent the week end in Hartford with her mother, Mrs. Stone.

Walter Doubleday of Colchester, and Miss Eisan of Hartford, were married at the local parsonage by the Rev. J. W. Deeter Saturday evening, Nov. 24.

Irving Cobb spends his winters window shopping, according to an item from New York. Babe Ruth also has a terrific appetite.

Judicial Council Plans Reform Of Conn. Courts

Presents to People Its Scheme for Revision of Laws Governing Legal Activities.

Many important changes in the court system of the state of Connecticut are advocated in a report made to Governor Trumbull by the Judicial Council, of which Chief Justice George W. Wheeler is the head and many leading lawyers of the state are members.

These changes will come before the incoming Legislature for consideration. As they affect the whole course of legal procedure in the state they are of the utmost importance to its people.

In order that the citizens may know precisely what is contemplated, and why, the Judicial Council, through its secretary, Richard H. Phillips, is supplying to the press a series of articles explaining the reforms contemplated.

Herewith is the first of these, which deals with the question of "Improvement of the Selection of the Jurors."

JURY SELECTION

Of especial public value will be the passage of the Act which the Judicial Council prepared for improving the method of selecting jurors. The changes in the existing plan are entirely practical. At present the selectmen of the towns, and the Jury Commissioners named by the Mayors select twice the number of jurors required by statute for their towns or cities and send the lists to the Clerk of the Superior Court of the County and the jury commissioners named by the Superior Court eliminate half of these lists leaving the number required by statute.

The plan of the Judicial Council means the stimulation of these officials in carrying out their work, and both more work and better work by the selectmen and town clerk in making up the lists for the towns and by the committees named by the Mayors for the cities and again more work and better work by the Jury Commissioners in picking the jury list from the list sent up from the towns and cities.

The plan of the Council gives greater uniformity in the numbers selected from the towns and cities. The present inequality in the numbers selected is very striking, for example, Bethany has 50 jurors to the 1000 while Waterbury has 1 to the 1000.

The Council says the complexity of modern cases requires a broader selection of jurors. "Our jurors," they say, "are not the manufacturing and business interests of the state, and of the wealth and culture of the state. The primary fault is very largely with the individuals of these classes who avoid being placed in the lists of jurors, and if by chance their names so appear they urge their excuse, because of business or other interests."

We print in full the very illuminating argument of the Judicial Council in behalf of the enactment of the Public Act attached to their Report and whose passage they recommend.

Abolition of Juries
"The abolition of trial by jury has more advocates than ever before. Trial by jury has been a part of our system for the administration of the law from earliest times. Probably the large majority of our people favor it as a form of government. We do not stop to argue the question. We recognize it as an accepted American institution. We recognize too that the harsh criticism levelled against the jury system does not have the basis of just criticism in connection with it. Nevertheless we must concede that there is room for improvement in the personnel, and in the mode of selection, of jurors. Our jurors are not fairly representative of our citizenship, and more especially of the manufacturing and business interests of the state, and of wealth and culture of the state. The primary fault is very largely with the individuals of these classes who avoid being placed on the list of jurors, and if by chance their names so appear they urge their excuse because of business or other interests."

"Jury service is one of the duties of citizenship and its shirking helps make our juries poorer and as a consequence our justice poorer; incidentally it augments appeals and adds to the expense of administering our law. New York City has a far greater proportion of business men on her juries than we have, and her business men appear to regard it as a civic duty. J. P. Morgan offers no excuses in the performance of his duty. He evidently regards this as one of the duties of the good citizen, as it unquestionably is."

Hard to Understand
"More and more with the growing complexity of business the cases to be tried become difficult to understand. It is too much to expect just results when not infrequently a jury is called upon to determine a case of this character where no juror in the box has by experience or education become sufficiently familiar with the complexities of the business to grasp and hold in mind the tangled threads of the evidence. The amounts involved, which grow larger and the consequences of wrong conclusions more far reaching. The burden imposed upon the judge in trying to assist the jury is a comprehension of the true issues, not infrequently, is an increasingly difficult one."

"Those who select the jurors must exercise more care and impartiality in their choice. They must know that their selections are men of good character, approved integrity and fair education, of the statutory age, and with no incapacitating physical or mental disability."
New York System
"Perhaps in no locality in the east is there a better system of selection of jurors than in New York City. A Commissioner of Jurors, a non-partisan appointee of the judges, is in absolute charge of this department with a large number of helpers and investigators, enabling the department to investigate every one of the 53,000 on the list of jurors and to card and index each one."
"This system obtains results, but, of course, at a large expense. We fixed were not based upon any uniform basis as regards population of towns or cities. For example, in the town of Bethany with a population of 411, the number of jurors being 21, was on a basis of 50 to the thousand, while in New Haven and Waterbury it was 1 to the thousand, in Meriden 1.5 and in Ansonia 1.6 to the thousand.

"Now was there any uniformity between the towns or between the smaller towns. While Prospect had 35, Oxford and Southbury 30, Wolcott 25, and Woodbridge 20, all under 1200 in population, Hamden, Orange, West Haven and Seymour had 4, and Milford 4.2 to the thousand, all towns whose population ranged between 6700 and 16,614. The same variances appear generally in the number of jurors given by statute to each town."

"The unfairness of this distribution and its tendency to impair the quality of the jurors finally selected is apparent. We have sought to find a method which would furnish a just basis of distribution without giving to the large centers of population a number of jurors which would be many times the number to which they were accustomed and impose jury duties upon so great numbers of their citizens as to make it seem a burden to them."

"We provide that no town shall have less than six jurors, and that each town shall have for each 1000 of population up to 10,000 one juror, and for each succeeding 1000 of population 10,000 to 25,000 six jurors. This includes all but 27 of the 168 towns of the state. For each 1000 of population from 25,000 to 50,000 we provide for two additional jurors. This provision would only affect ten towns, and for each 1000 of population from 50,000 up we provide for one additional juror. This provision would only affect New Haven, Bridgeport, Hartford, Waterbury and New Britain. In our judgment this is the fairest and most practical method available."

"The proposed amendment is so drawn that it will apply automatically with each new census. The number of jurors to be selected for the town of the state will be 8,422 in place of the 9,985 now provided for. With a population of nearly one and one-half million the number called upon to serve is not large."

D. A. R. ASSURED OF GLASS WORKS

Miss Mary Cheney Reports Success in Securing Rights to Old Ruins Here.

Orford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting Saturday afternoon in the parlors of the South Methodist church. Several guests were present, including members of Henry Champlin chapter of Colchester, and the state consulting registrar and principal speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Mary Bishop of Elizabeth Porter Putnam Chapter of Putnam.

The regent, Mrs. Lucius Foster, presided and the meeting opened with the pledge of allegiance to the flag, and the welcome to the visiting chapter. Mrs. Frederick Bock, regent, responded to the greetings and the past regent Mrs. Bailey also made remarks. The ladies brought photographs of the little house in Colchester, built in 1702, where they are accustomed to meet. They expressed their pleasure at the invitation to come to Manchester and assured the members of Orford Parish chapter of a cordial welcome when they return the visit. Routine business of the meeting and reports of various committee chairmen followed.

Particularly interesting was the account of progress made by the committee on preservation of the old Pitkin glass works ruins at Manchester Green by Miss Mary Cheney. The committee has already secured the consent of heirs living in Italy, California and other parts of this country to sell the land on which the historic ruins stand and a small portion adjoining. Miss Cheney referred briefly to the business conducted there by the Pitkin Brothers who for 25 years had a monopoly on the manufacture of glass bottles and vases of different kinds. Some of these bottles were very large, 47 inches in circumference and 19 inches high, with necks about 3 inches in diameter. Some of them were used as containers for sweet cider and shipped to the West Indies, and doubtless were returned with something much stronger. Said for the manufacture of the glass had been brought from New Jersey and competition became so keen that the Pitkin Brothers ceased the manufacture of these bottles but many of them remain in Manchester homes as much-prized heirlooms. Miss Cheney said that she had destroyed the roof of the old stone building, and the glassworks were ruins when her father, the late Frank Cheney, was a small boy. It is the aim of the committee and of Orford Parish chapter to put these ruins in such condition that they will remain for at least another hundred years. Miss Cheney expressed the wish that the little park plot may sometime be the meeting place for a special gathering of the members of Orford Parish Chapter and guests from other branches of the organization.

Mrs. J. M. Williams exhibited several interesting bottles and vases in her possession, all in the dark olive green color which was the usual color of the Pitkin product. She gave a short description of each and invited the ladies to have a close-up view of the objects at the close of the program.

During the afternoon Mrs. A. A. Wassall and Miss Carrie Lull played two duets, one of them the spirited "La Chasse au Lion" by Kuelling and the other "Under the Linden Tree" by Volkman. Miss Mabel Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Williams of Maplewood, N. J., who was visiting her grandparents in Manchester, delighted with several recitations, one of them entitled "Oh Sir," translated from the French by Alfred Ayres. This monologue called for varied vocal and facial expressions but the young elocutionist gave the selection admirably, as she did another setting forth the foreigners' view of the Statue of Liberty. In response to an enthusiastic recall she gave a bright little poem "When Teacher Gets Cross."

Mrs. Mary Bishop of Putnam gave an account of her work as registrar for the state organization, and also told the chapter how Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter which was named for the mother of Israel Putnam has been able to enroll a membership of 225. One of the sources of acquiring new members through the Children of the American Revolution. On reaching the age of 18, the young girls may become Daughters in the senior chapters. Another method by which the D. A. R. chapters may gain new members, is by endeavoring to interest the school teachers who come to the different towns. Even though they do not always remain for many years, once they become members they readily affiliate with other chapters and whenever they do become interested they prove most helpful in assisting with pageants and entertainments. Mrs. Bishop believed that next to the mother in the home there is no influence more potent for patriotism or anything else than that exerted by the teacher of young children.

The speaker was listened to with close attention and her helpful suggestions were favorably received and will doubtless be put into practice by Orford Parish chapter. A social hour followed the meeting during which the hostesses served sandwiches, cake, coffee, salted nuts and mints. The ladies who served on the hostesses and reception committees were Mrs. F. H. Strong, Mrs. W. B. Lull, Mrs. W. E. Alvord, Mrs. H. A. Cook, Mrs. S. Smith, Mrs. Sherwood Martin, Miss Alice Dexter, Miss Mary Cheney, Mrs. C. W. Holman, Mrs. J. P. Cheney, Mrs. J. M. Williams and Mrs. H. B. House.

JAS. M. BURKE SUFFERS POISONING, IN HOSPITAL

James M. Burke, a member of the town school board and one of its representatives on the joint school board, one of the oldest business men of Manchester before his retirement a few years ago is a patient at the Manchester Memorial hospital, having been admitted Saturday afternoon suffering from blood poisoning.

Mr. Burke went to Boston to spend Thanksgiving with a sister when he was taken ill and decided to return home. Blisters formed on his hands, face and body and he entered the hospital for treatment.

A year ago he went to Boston to spend Thanksgiving with his sisters and while there was taken ill with much the same ailment that now confines him to the hospital. At that time he was confined for two weeks and when he felt the same trouble developing again on Friday he returned home and Saturday entered the hospital. His condition is much improved today although it will probably be a matter of a week or more before he leaves the hospital.

... a Song of Lasting Joy

Christmas would be incomplete without the many personal gifts which are cherished chiefly for the friendships they represent—gifts that swell the heart with kindly thoughts of others. But why not add a practical touch by one gift of lasting joy—the Maytag.

Enjoy the Maytag's faster, cleaner, gentler method of washing, its advanced method of wringing, its quiet, smooth performance. Week after week, year after year, it will continue to bring good cheer. The Maytag won its position of world leadership, not only by originating new and advanced ideas of design and construction, but by creating perfection in every minute detail.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Fate introduces JERRY RAY to ALESTER CARSTAIRS when he sees his airplane into the hangar. She is sharing with her roommate MYRTLE. She likes his pilot, DAN HARVEY, but Alester showers her with attention.

Unable to buy a gown for a party he has invited her to, Jerry slips out from the store where she works but it is ruined and she is discharged when the confederate, Dan Harvey, tells her she does not believe in love but hopes to marry for money.

Alester makes advances which Jerry repulses. But when he learns that she has lost her job on his account, he uses his influence to get her a place in a chorus.

Rehearsals are hard, but she is befriended by EVELYN STARR, who is in love with JAELE THANE. Evelyn gives a party at which JAELE takes exception to Jerry's presence. A scene ensues and Dan forces an apology from Jael.

Alester shows his jealousy, and Dan tells Jerry she is bringing her reputation on account of his family. Alester drives her to the city for the opening, but Jerry refuses to attend a midnight party he wants to give the chorus.

Angered, he gives it anyway and invites LEONTINE LEBAUDY to take her place. A short mention of her past review and promotion to a special dance number elated Jerry so that at the end of the first week on the stage she feels that she is not a failure in the new role.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII

When Jerry emerged from Mr. Weinert's office she was all aglow with happy excitement. There had been a moment when she felt the nausea of failure rise within her, but Weinert's next words had dispelled that sensation.

"We have decided to put Jane Ormy back in her place," he had said in the beginning of the interview. Jerry stared at him, wordless. "To give you a chance to go on with Jack Beals," he added with a beaming smile.

"Jack Beals!" The best hooper in the show!

"You mean... just Mr. Beals and... me?" Jerry stammered, unable to believe that it could be so.

"That's right, Miss Ray. You and the boy. We've got to take the second act before we take the show back to New York. It can't hold 'em for the big idea in the third. Clever man, Harrell, very clever."

Jerry knew, of course, that he referred to what the entire company was still talking about. The fact that Harrell had led the audience to believe they were in for an evening of disappointment before springing that garden pool scene on them.

"But I am..." Jerry paused. She was about to say "excuse me," when she thought of Evelyn and what her friend would say to her if she talked herself out of a chance like this.

Mr. Weinert, however, seemed to read her mind. "Sure, you'd drop alone," he said frankly, "but Jack can see you through—if you work hard enough. We'll start rehearsing you together in Boston tomorrow afternoon. By the way," he added as Jerry started to speak, "you'd better get up to New York with Al aren't you?"

Jerry nodded, knowing he meant Alester.

"Well, see that you get to Boston in time for rehearsal," the producer went on soberly. "There will be some complaints about our putting you in ahead of girls who dance better than you do. If you start being temperamental we'll take you out."

Jerry flushed. She knew what the other girls would say. "In, went her chin. "I'll make good," she declared warmly, "but I don't want to get by on anything except my ability."

Mr. Weinert smiled. "Don't get excited," he purred. "Don't know? When Hilde gets through with you the even Laurel herself won't have much on your stuff. Maybe I'd better tell you that Al hasn't had anything to do with your promotion." He continued more seriously. "We believe we can depend upon you, Miss Ray, and all that anybody says to the contrary, clean living counts for as much on the stage as anywhere else."

Jerry's fierceness disappeared. "I won't be late tomorrow," she said earnestly.

"Then tuck yourself in early tonight like a good little girl so you won't oversleep," Mr. Weinert warned her and got up to walk to the door with her. Jerry was too excited to appreciate the attention. She rushed back to her hotel to tell Evelyn the news and to hurry with her unfinished packing.

Evelyn was just as enthusiastic as Jerry. They had to talk it over for 15 minutes before they could think of anything else. Suddenly Evelyn looked at her watch.

"I've just time to make the train," she exclaimed, jumping off the bed to grab her hat.

"It can't be so late," Jerry said. "Alester hasn't come yet, he promised to drive you to the station."

"I'll take a cab," Evelyn returned, rushing to gather up her umbrella and handbag.

She was halfway out of the door when the telephone rang and Alester sent up word that he was waiting.

"I'd go with you," Jerry said, "but I've got to get packed in a hurry. We're leaving as soon as Alester comes back."

Evelyn stopped and looked at her with a suddenly grave expression. "I wish you were coming with me," she said. Then, excitedly: "Jerry, you won't miss the train in the morning?"

"If I do I'll get there even if I have to sprout wings and fly," Jerry laughed.

"You'd better depend upon the train," Evelyn called, as she hastened on to the elevator.

A bell boy got off it and Jerry showed him Evelyn's traveling bags. When the door closed behind him she busied herself in packing her own belongings.

Alester was back in a short while. Jerry was ready, looking very lovely in the new coat. Her spirits soared as she went down to the lobby.

"My things are upstairs," she said to Alester.

"We will get them after lunch," he told her.

Jerry regarded him in surprise. "After lunch?" she echoed. "Why, it's only 10:30 now. I don't think we ought to wait for lunch."

"But we must," Alester replied. "I took Miss Starr to the station in a taxi. My car's in the garage for repairs. It won't be ready before three o'clock."

"Oh, Alester," Jerry wailed. "We won't get to New York before night."

"What of that?" he asked her.

Jerry told him about the new part she was to have in the show. He congratulated her and seemed genuinely pleased, but he saw no reason for any anxiety about getting to Boston on time.

"I'll see that you get there," he promised, "but I think we ought to do something to celebrate the occasion."

The suggestion made Jerry uneasy. "Oh please let's start as soon as we can," she said hastily. "I ought to be near the show."

"Now, see here," Alester replied with a touch of asperity. "I always have to argue with you, Jerry. Aren't you ever going to do as I like without making a fuss about it?"

"But Alester, you know..."

"I know that you aren't treating me fairly," he interrupted hotly. "What harm can it do you to make our last evening together a pleasant one? You know I'm not going to see you again until your show comes back to New York. I've promised to go on her cruise to Nova Scotia."

"We could celebrate when you come back," Jerry began hopefully.

"Jerry," Alester broke in. "Just this once let me have my way. I've planned a little dinner party in Philadelphia, with a few friends yesterday. They're people I want you to meet—one of the girls is going on the cruise. This isn't a theatrical party or an affair like that one at Leontine's. Please don't disappoint me this time."

Jerry wished very much that she had taken the train with Evelyn for she knew, before Alester had ceased his pleading, that she was not going to hold out against him.

After all, it did seem a bit silly to insist upon setting home by 10 o'clock. And she would have to get dinner somewhere.

She asked how much longer it would take them to go by way of Philadelphia.

Alester said about two hours. "I can make wonderful time to Philly," he said, "and the roads to New York will be clearer at night. You will be home around one."

"All right," Jerry said, thinking that one o'clock was about her usual bedtime anyway. And she was the habit of getting up early, her short theatrical career had yet accustomed her to late sleeping. Besides, there had been morning rehearsals to get her out of bed on most days.

They walked to the Boardwalk and took a chair car. After a half-hour of this form of promenading Alester suggested a ride in a speedboat.

Jerry had seen these boats, with seats like those in automobiles and the same kind of steering wheel. She thought it would be fascinating to go out in one.

Motion was always exhilarating to her, she said to Alester, and he promised to take her up in his plane when she got back from the cruise. His promise brought Dan Harvey to Jerry's mind.

Teach me to steer, she begged suddenly. She did not want to think of Dan.

When they returned to shore, plane what salt-sprayed and wind-blown, she had succeeded in crowding the unwelcome memory out of her mind.

She had been doing that all week, telling herself that what she felt for Dan was a transitory infatuation—something she must encourage if she wanted to go on growing fonder of Alester, as she seemed to be doing.

They lunched heartily at their leisure and at three they were off for Philadelphia.

Jerry could not down a feeling of guilt. When she promised Mr. Weinert to make good there had been no thought in her mind of doing the least thing to jeopardize her future.

But Alester was in a very good mood. He was pleased with Jerry, pleased that she was to have a real chance with Mr. Weinert, and elated that she had consented to go to Philadelphia with him.

Almost without being willing to admit it, he was building up something that might help him in case he ever seriously considered marrying her. She would make a good impression upon the people she was to meet tonight, he felt, and he wanted an ally at court where his mother reigned.

There had been a change in Jerry. Little crudities that would have made him unwilling to introduce her to certain of his friends had disappeared through association with Evelyn Starr. Jerry was acquiring a manner as well as manners.

"I hope you will like Miss Mortimer," he said as they neared the Quaker City. "She's one of the few girls mother doesn't consider among the lost."

Jerry wondered why he told her this. She could not help feeling that the remark was significant.

But she had something else more important to think about. What would she wear at dinner and where would she change?

Finally Alester himself settled the matter for her.

"We're going to have the Magnolia Rooms at the Kraal," he said and waited for the answering remark for the eCMF:MFWCMFWY mark he was sure Jerry would make.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

TRAINING AND CARE HELP TO DEVELOP TISSUES

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Question: When do the first permanent teeth appear?

Answer: The first permanent teeth are the first molars, which usually come in at the age of six years. The next permanent teeth are the incisors which appear from the seventh to the eighth years.

Two human beings seldom resemble each other exactly. Some of us are tall, others short; some others are broad, others narrow; some have powerful muscles, others long thin muscles.

It is possible by training and care to develop tissues which would otherwise tend to weakness.

In a consideration of the changes in posture during childhood, Sweet, Watson and Stafford emphasize the fact that the tall, slender, long-muscled, loose-jointed person is more likely to slump into bad posture than the shorter, better muscled person. Men in these modern times who are of medium build get along better than those who are hampered by too powerful muscles or too short tendons.

Contributing Factors

The development of good posture is influenced by many factors, including habits of standing, walking and sitting, the wearing of bad shoes or short socks, sleeping in beds that sag, sitting in badly built chairs.

The California investigators have pointed out that every normal infant is how-legged, and that its legs straighten when it begins to walk, providing it has had proper diet and sunlight.

Few mothers realize this and begin to worry at once following the birth of the child as to whether or not it is going to be how-legged.

When the child begins to stand, it is likely to stand with the feet well separated and with the knees locked, so as to maintain its balance.

When it begins to walk, it attempts to maintain this posture of stability. For the first three years of its life, therefore, the infant tends to be knee-kneed.

After three years of age the knock-knees disappear, provided that they are not a permanent inherited family characteristic, that the shoes that it wears do not tend to prolong the condition, and that its diet contain sufficient bone and muscle building material so that bone and muscle weakness will not prevent normal growth.

Rest and Change

It has been emphasized also that fatigue and faulty rest conditions tend to maintain bad posture. An infant spends most of his time lying in bed.

Often succeeding children use the same cribs that were used by older members of the family and little attention is paid to the necessity for modifying and renovating the crib for the newcomer. A sagging, soft mattress or spring serves to distort the body and prevent the development of good posture.

POISE IN EXERCISE
Variety in Sports Helpful

Variety in exercise make for symmetrical development.

By DORIS NILES

Grace is a natural possession of the American girl, due to her love of dancing, sports and activities. And in sports she has proved herself in many directions a formidable rival to the opposite sex.

To meet all these calls and her social duties, she possesses vital freshness and buoyant energy.

In sports, however, as in dancing, there are certain things which detract most decidedly from grace, and should be avoided. Observation and the study of dancing since I was a little child have impressed me forcibly with this. One of these detracting sources, and a serious one, is too steady a devotion to a single sport employing a single set of muscles. The same objection arises to confining oneself to a single set of exercises in dancing.

To be thoroughly graceful and symmetrically developed, not only one set of muscles, but all should be called into play. Exercise evenly distributed and not too much of any kind is the only plan to follow.

People who are devoted to horse-brings a certain lankiness of movement.

Variety in exercise. Instead of a single set of them, plays a big part in both sports and dancing in developing the muscles of the body. To take one kind of sport or exercises one day and another the next is a far surer way to grow more graceful and to develop with greater swiftness.

Professional tennis players proceed along more scientific lines than do amateurs, who, not following the same elaborate course, are less fortunate in the outcome as far as grace goes.

I vary my dance steps and dance exercises, never doing the same ones two days in succession. In training the young girls of my ballet, I proceed along that line. Not only does it bring far better results, but fatigue from long hours of rehearsal is reduced to a minimum.

If professional dancing, versatility is a prime necessity; therefore practice must be versatile. The long list of national dances to be mastered is certainly formidable, and the interpretative dances are endless. Each brings its set of muscles into play; each gives the dance-enthusiast some special share of grace to add to her accumulated store of it.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

Mrs. Herbert Hoover is now being photographed in America as well as during that period, Mrs. Hoover's picture has been on the other country takes its "first people" so seriously and with such interest in their every personal move as do we.

In the few weeks since election, as well as during that period, Mrs. Hoover's picture has been on the ascendency till it's a safe wager that it will be impossible to pick up any paper from now on without her picture.

We have seen her in a bewildering variety of photographs—pictures which have made us say, "she's stunning"; "she's charming"; she has dignified grace, or less complimentary things as we survey some snapshot. We have reacted with "she'll have to watch her weight," or "her hair isn't so becoming that way."

For this is the penalty of fame, all the worse if one's fame is from some other cause than that one is a professional beauty.

I found Mary Pickford almost in tears once as she surveyed a snapshot of herself in a certain newspaper. I had to admit that Mary was not at her best.

"It's positively libelous," both she and Doug exclaimed. "It's not as if our whole livelihood didn't depend on our looks! And once the public thinks that what they see on the screen is all a manufactured job and that snapshots tell the real truth, the illusion's gone!"

We say that we no longer have a fairy tale complex, but we seem to expect a First Lady to be the fairy princess of the old tales and wear trailing robes of glory for our special delectation and delight.

Camera Tricks.

Which is why Herbert Hoover's nomination delighted so many people, for Mrs. Hoover is a beautiful, mature woman. And yet, as lovely Mary Pickford herself realized, the most beautiful have a way of registering their worst point on the camera, especially in the unposed picture, and Mrs. Hoover has undoubtedly both laughed and blushed and wept as she saw herself as the camera caught her in such little acts as catching a bouquet of roses or handshaking from a train platform or smiling as her husband received the plaudits of the multitude.

There have been First Ladies, the first Mrs. Wilson, for instance, Mrs. Roosevelt, and others, who were kept from the public and its curious demands rather successfully.

This is an age, however, which insists on the wife in the public eye, and an age which gets what it wants.

Being First Lady will have its rich privileges, of course. But one wonders how often a too-much photographed lady wonders if the compensations make up for the knowledge that her appearance lays on the great American breakfast table for the scrutiny and comment of unknown thousands.

Sometimes one wonders at the grip which a First Lady has upon the imaginations of the woman public. I know an old lady who has carefully clipped every procurable picture of Mrs. Hoover and has her home decorated with these newspaper pieces of art.

No other subject of conversation so intrigues. She does on the pictures, and upon reading about little granddaughters Peggy Ann Hoover and the baby saucy Mrs. Hoover knits, and what she says about "Ber's" breakfasts tastes, and she's even trying to wear her own pretty soft white hair like Mrs. Hoover's.

Perhaps the ability to mean all this to lesser women is one of the compensations for being over-photographed.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Pre-School children won't be getting their outdoor exercise these days unless their parents have been foresighted enough to provide for the winter emergency and worked out a plan for it.

"I'm too tired to go out with Ralph by the time I've finished the work," said one young mother. "He'll just have to stay in the house. I can take him to the park and sit and watch him while he runs around in the summertime, but now I just can't manage it."

Ralph's mother lives in an apartment. She is a very good housekeeper. Her windows gleam, her floors shine, the curtains are fresh, the whole place is as homey and attractive as an energetic young woman with good taste can make it. Also she is a very good cook.

Ralph is well-fed and to all appearances well and happy. The little boy across the street comes in sometimes to play, and sometimes Ralph goes over there.

If his mother goes to shop, she usually takes him along and sometimes they go to a matinee or a movie.

Everything goes along beautifully as a general thing. It was when Ralph picked up a germ somewhere and developed a lung congestion that threatened pneumonia that the doctor asked if he got out in the fresh air every day.

You know his mother's answer. Ralph's aunt lives in a suburb in a small house with a yard. There are a front porch and a back porch. The street is a quiet one, and away from dangerous traffic, and when Ralph's cousin Leonard is not in the yard or playing on the porch, he is reasonably safe pushing his scooter up and down the sidewalk.

Leonard is out about half the day, buttoned up snugly in his little blue overcoat. When it is very damp, he wears overshoes.

Leonard had the same kind of a cold Ralph had, too. Germs are germs, and as his mother says, she can't keep him in a glass case.

But Leonard got well about twice as fast as Ralph. Ralph was pale and wan all the rest of the winter. Leonard was soon as rosy as ever and out on his scooter again.

If these cousins of the same age were to run a race, Leonard would beat. If they were to lift a weight, Leonard would have it all over Ralph.

Leonard is happier than Ralph. He gets enthusiastic about the least little thing. Ralph is more or less lethargic.

When Leonard is forty, very likely he will be planning ahead for bigger things in his business, while Ralph, we may predict safely, will be depending on pills to keep him fit and refer to the days when "he used to be able to do things."

Who says fresh air doesn't tell its story? If his mother realized what a big story it really does tell she would arrange when moving times comes, that Ralph would not have to spend another winter as a shut-in.

This Wouldn't Be Half the Surprise Some of Season's Upsets Have Been.

By HENRY L. FARRELL

After a football season in which everybody that happened to be anybody happened to be a backfield man, the possibilities for going wrong in the selection of an All-American team may be said to be excellent. It is the presumption of Mrs. Walsh's team today that undoubtedly he has gone wrong, reading from left to right and from front to rear. As a matter of fact, the man doesn't live who can name the twelve best backs of the year and make everybody like his work from the staggering list at hand. There has been no attempt, however, to apportion backfields stars by the positions they occupied during the year. Both Cagle and Strong ran to their right, but I don't see what that has to do with it. They were the best runners of the season and what we are trying to do is arrive at a selection of the four leaders and place them in one backfield. I happen to think they were Cagle, Strong, Mizell and Scull.

Prodigality of Backs

This alignment shunts Harpster to the second team where, possibly he doesn't belong. However, some one must suffer for the extreme prodigality of backs this year and Harpster's position in this respect is no worse than that of scores of fine ball players who don't make the rifle anywhere. Long as the following list may be, it is none the less, that Gusinsier, Wisconsin; Brazz, Detroit; Glasgow, Iowa; Holmer, Northwestern; Bennett, Indiana; Welsh, Purdue; Gillespie, Villanova; Thomason, Georgia Tech; Banker, Tulane; Orvis, Tennessee; Weston, Boston College; Nagurski, Minnesota; McLain, Iowa; Wittmer, Princeton; Schober, Pennsylvania; Niemce and Checniar, Notre Dame; French and Guarnaccia, Harvard; Miles, Princeton; Sloan, Nebraska; Maple, Oregon; Aggie, Fleishacker and any one of three other Stanford backs; Clark, Colorado; Follet, N. Y. U.; Karcis, Carnegie Tech; Williams, Southern California; Traller, Iowa State; Baylizon, simply is giving way before what appears to be the natural superiority of four others. He cannot run with Strong and Cagle. He cannot punt with Scull—nobody can do that—not can catch passes, support the line and kick goals with the great Pennsylvania. Mizell can do everything Harpster can do and a few other things strictly on his own.

Somebody obviously must take the rap here and Harpster, dropping beyond the line of sight, simply is giving way before what appears to be the natural superiority of four others. He cannot run with Strong and Cagle. He cannot punt with Scull—nobody can do that—not can catch passes, support the line and kick goals with the great Pennsylvania. Mizell can do everything Harpster can do and a few other things strictly on his own.

It seems almost criminal to place Hoffman in the history of the second team and what Maple, Oregon Aggies, and Stanford backs in general showed here would appear to indicate that they must belong somewhere on some team. However, Carroll generally is rated above them on the coast. He rose again above the misfortunes of a losing team, just as Cagle did in the Army-Stanford game. With that Cardinal line in front of him, Cagle would be running yet. No All-American team is complete without him. Crabtree gets in there on sheer ability. He is light, only 154 pounds, but is said to be a great blocker just the same. Next to Mizell, he is the hardest man to stop in the South. He gets by on pure speed. In addition, he passes accurately with both hands and kicks equally well with both feet. A guy like that must have something. Somebody of course must be responsible for all the scoring Florida has done this year. Crabtree is like the man. They say McEvoy is quite a ball player at Tennessee, too.

Georgia Tech, through the agency of a fine team and the pranks of a weird season that removed one by one the candidates for the No. 1 national ranking, is in a fine spot now to finish the year as the only undefeated and untied team of the major classification.

Georgia Tech, with only one game remaining, (Georgia next Saturday) and a possible post-season game against Southern California, is indeed in a swell spot if you look at it with a light heart. But you can hear some football men, who speak from painful experience, say that Georgia Tech is in a swell spot to be knocked off and they don't stutter when they recite by heart a list of reasons.

Bill Alexander, the Georgia Tech coach, is too good a football coach and too smart a man to need a warning that his ball club should not take too much for granted. Alexander and his club were on the giving end of one of the same kind of examples last year in which they proved the wisdom of the theory that a fair team can have one good day.

Georgia Tech wasn't so hot last year and Georgia was one of the outstanding teams of the year, a team that was in the same spot that Tech now occupies. Georgia went into the game a heavy favorite and was bumped off by Georgia Tech. It is possible that the Georgia boys haven't forgotten this and that Tech may be the one team that Georgia is all loaded up for.

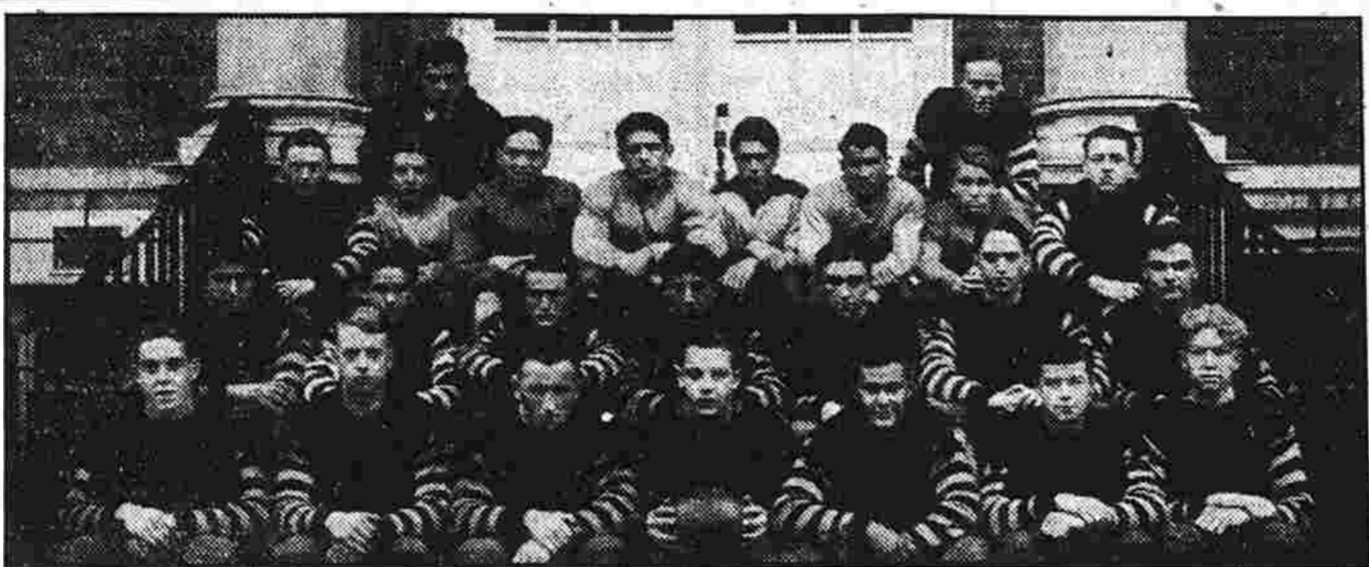

This piece is not meant as a warning to Mr. Alexander and his boys. It is merely an excuse to talk about some of the things that have happened this season when a team loaded up for one particular game. There is no doubt that there is one game on every team's schedule that the boys want to win particularly. In most cases it is a traditional game. In other cases it is a game that they would command the most attention and summon the greatest advertising.

Closes Successful Season

Pictured above is the Manchester High School team which has closed the most successful season in the school's history. Seated left to right in the front row: Billy Johnson, Louis Cheney, Johnny Johnston, Captain Bob Treat, Roger Spencer, Don Healey and Bill Davis. Second row: Pinkus Lessner, Joe McCluskey, Francis Happenny, Sully Squatrito, Bruno Nicola, Bobby Mercer and Ted Lupien. Third Row: Hugh Moriarty, Art Davis, Bill George, Russell Taylor, Bob Eells, Eddie Hansen, Marcus Moriarty, George Potterson. Back row: Coach Thomas F. Kelley and Ernie Dowd. Douglas Robinson and Lincoln Murphy were not present when this picture was taken.

Dowd and Squatrito Survive Graduation

Nine Other Regulars on School Team Are Seniors But One or Two May Not Graduate.

Local Sport Clatter

After completing the most successful season in the history of Manchester High school, Coach Tom Kelley faces the task of building practically a new football team next season.

Every player on Manchester's 175 pound line is a senior and the only players on the team who are below that class are Quarterback Ernie Dowd and Halfback Sully Squatrito. All the other regulars will be lost through graduation, unless for some reason or another one or two of them do not graduate.

Manchester played nine games this season and won them all, losing only to Warren Harding of Bridgeport and Naugatuck, two schools obviously out of its class. The Kellyites captured the C. C. I. L. title for the first time in history and did it without losing a game.

The weather man gave the Cubs a fine break yesterday even if the local eleven didn't get any in the game itself. There hasn't been a better day for football this season than yesterday.

Manager Vendrillo said last night that the Cubs would probably play the Ockfords here again next Sunday. Two games have already ended in tie scores and if the weather holds out, a third meeting would prove a big attraction.

Johnny Groman, Chuckie Minicucci, Tony Ambukewicz and Felix Mozer watched the game from the sidelines. All are out with injuries. The Cubs had their picture taken before the game.

The Rec Five plays the Falcons of Holyoke here Friday night with the Rec Girls playing the Falco Girls in the preliminary.

The Nut Cracker

College girls should choose certain sports and stick to them, advises the dean of girls at an eastern school. Quite a few of them go in for fraternity men.

Ray Schalk will manage the Giants when McGraw's away, coach the pitchers and catchers, and do coaching duty at third base and catch a few games now and then. Maybe he ought to sit in at the gate and relieve the ticket men now and then, too.

Looking over the papers, we have counted 894 players on that no All-America eleven can be without.

By any chance will there be, among the pickers of the mythical eleven, any of the sports experts who made some of those terribly merry predictions before the season's big games?

Now that Dempsey is back home he isn't so sure he'll remain on the retired list. He may not choose to run, but he can win a walk from some of the present quorum of stumblers.

Suggestion that the next Battle of the Century be called the Contest for the Castoff Crown.

Billy Southworth takes over the management of the Cards. No statements have been given out as to who will run the team in 1930.

SAVE OCKFORDS FROM DEFEAT IN CONTEST WHICH ENDS 6-6

BLOCKED PUNT GIVES LOCALS A 6-0 TRIUMPH

Leo Coughlin Does the Trick and Runs 47 Yards to Boot as North Ends Beat Burnside.

Manchester Loses Ball Three Times Inside Ten-Yard Line Before Scoring in Final Period; Thoroughly Out- plays Visitors in All But First Quarter; Many Success- ful Forwards; Best Game of Season; Moske Plays Best for Cubs.

By TOM STOWE

Leo Coughlin blocked a punt and then scooped up the ball and raced 47 yards for a touchdown against All-Burnside at Hickey's Grove yesterday afternoon, thus enabling the North Ends to triumph, 6 to 0. It was a brilliant battle, packed full of thrills from start to finish, with the local team carrying off the honors.

Burnside came to town very late and with "Babe" Murey playing at full back in an effort to win over a Manchester grid team. He certainly did his share, but against the great defensive forward wall of the North Ends, was helpless both times Burnside got inside the winner's 12 yard line.

Local's Stonewall Line
Only three first downs were registered by the Burnside team during the game. That alone tells the story of how well the linemen performed their duties. Two of the first downs were due to forward passes and the third came as a result of a penalty. The North Ends managed to annex seven and complete 9 out of 14 forward passes.

Although they held the Cubs to a six-to-six deadlock, the powerful New London Ockfords were thoroughly outplayed for three periods and quite fortunate to escape defeat in the second meeting of these two elevens yesterday afternoon up on the Mt. Nebo gridiron.

Had Dame Fortune been inclined to smile once on the Cubs, the result might have been different. Two of the four times the Cubs advanced inside New London's ten-yard line, a fumble prevented what seemed to be a sure touchdown. On another occasion, acute shortage of time made it necessary for the Cubs to resort to forwards. The fourth time, Manchester scored.

On the other hand, New London threatened to score only once. That was in the first quarter when they completely outplayed the Cubs and marched almost fifty yards for a touchdown. Throughout the remainder of the bruising battle, the Ockfords were kept on the defense most of the time. The heavier whaling city aggression, however, possessed sufficient strength on the defense, aided by the breaks, to hold the Cubs at bay.

Best Game of Season
The game was easily the best of the season and also played under ideal weather conditions. An estimated crowd of 2,000 persons, second only to the Cubs-Cloverleafs town championship series, watched the two teams battle through four exciting periods of well-played football. The contest provided about everything a rabid fan could ask for in a day of thrills, save possibly a field goal.

A tie score was almost as bad as defeat to the Cubs, for if ever a team deserved to win, Coach Kelley's green-jerseyed Ockfords did yesterday. And it was heart-breaking to see the manner in which Fate prevented them. However, perhaps Dame Fortune decided the Cubs received their share of the breaks in the town series.

Regardless, the Cubs have only themselves to blame for the defeat. Surely it wasn't the Ockford's fault that "Coady" Donnelly fumbled on the six-yard line after the Cubs had marched 75 yards in five consecutive first downs. And neither can the visitors be called on the carpet because Jack Cheney dropped a forward pass in the end zone—an instance where a catch would automatically have meant a touchdown.

Moske In Limerlight
There wasn't a man in the Cubs' backfield yesterday who didn't break through for liberal gains. In this respect, Brunig Moske and Donnelly were the biggest gainers but Tommy Melkie, Connie Dietz, Stratton and St. John also picked up considerable yardage. Moske fumbled the first time the ball was passed to him but on the next two occasions he ripped his way off tackle and cut back to the opposite end of gains between 20 and 30 yards. He was also a bear on the defense. Harrison, Skoneski, Quish and LaCos played best on the line.

New London smashed the Cubs' line badly in the first quarter. Recovered fumbles by St. John and Quish delayed the Ockford's advance but the end of the period found them on the Cubs' 22-yard line. Gadobis and Fulford made the biggest gains and some neatly executed forward passes were instrumental in the march. Fulford finally went over for a touchdown after jacking a first down but it was not until the fourth down that the score was made. Gadobis' attempt for placement for the extra point was a fizzle.

Big March—Fumble
The score seemed to put a lot of fight in the Cubs for they took the kick-off and marched 75 yards only to lose the ball six yards away from a touchdown when Donnelly fumbled. It was first down with goal to go at the time. In justice to Donnelly, it must be stated, however, that only for his big slices off tackle, the Cubs might not have had the scoring chance. Two forward passes, Donnelly to Donnelly and Mantelli to Farr a moment later gave the Cubs the ball on the nine-yard line but there was less than a minute to play. One line buck and a pass failed and another aerial was grounded for a touchdown.

Moske made a slight yard on the first play of the second half after Quish had returned Gadobis' kick-off to the 40 yard line and then Stratton passed to Cheney who made a beautiful catch and ran to the 20 yard line. Two line plays failed and Stratton again passed to Cheney for almost a first down. Moske made it a first down on the eight yard line. Here the Ockford line stiffened and on the fourth down, Stratton passed to Cheney who dropped the ball all alone in the end zone.

Cubs Finally Score
It began to look like a New London victory, but Stratton, Moske

RED CAGLE IS ELECTED CAPTAIN OF ARMY TEAM

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 3.—The meteoric gridiron career of Christian K. ("Red") Cagle, whose spectacular broken field runs have reached a million football fans, had reached its peak today with his election as captain of the Army eleven for 1929.

Cagle already is being picked on all-American teams for the second successive year. He is 23 years old and will be playing with the cadets for the fourth season next year. He formerly attended Southwestern Louisiana Institute.

FLORIDA GOT 324

New York, Dec. 3.—As a result of its 60-6 victory over Washington & Lee on Saturday, Florida has captured high scoring honors for the year among the country's football teams. With 324 points, the Alligators lead New York University, the runner-up, by 8 points.

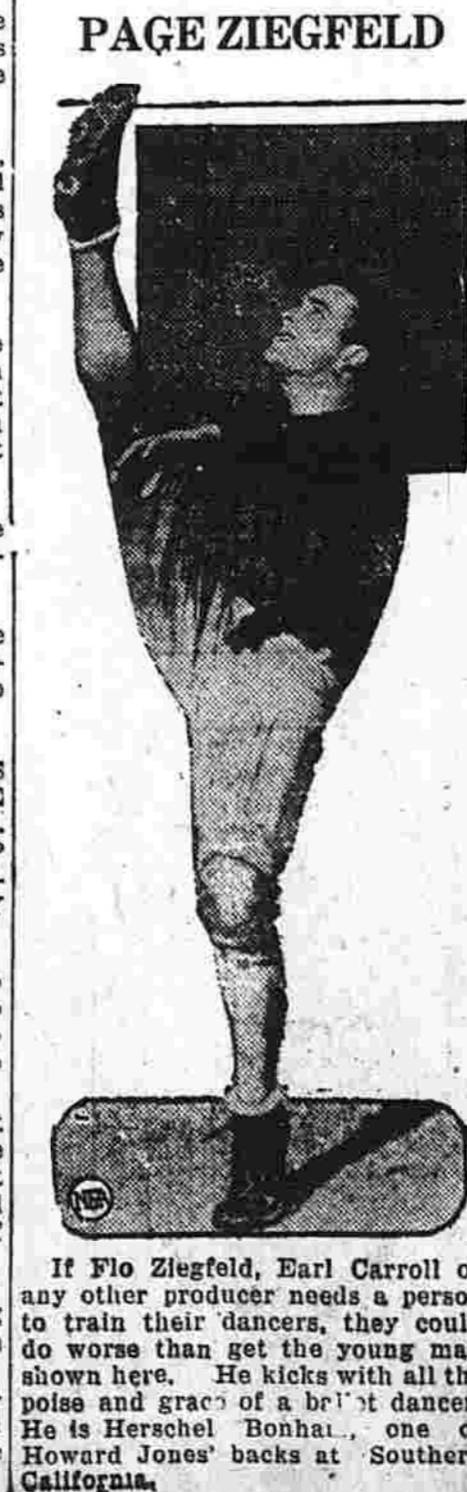

The other leaders are: Georgetown, 299; Stanford, 274; Pennsylvania, 271; Detroit, 267 and Southern California, 267.

"Frank" McCann was unable to play with the Rec Five in the first game of the season the other night, but it is hoped that the former St. Thomas flash will be ready for service against the Falcons.

LETTER GOLF

PUZZLING ELOW OUTS

There are several kinds of BLOW OUTS, but the par is the same for all of them. That is seven. But perhaps you can beat the solution on another page:

Letter golf puzzle grid with letters B, L, O, W and O, U, T, S.

THE RULES: 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

Henry Ford says the world is run by men past 50. And in turn the men are run by women whose age is past finding out.

SENSE and NON-SENS

An Excellent Eyesight: A negro was being questioned during an investigation after a trespasser was killed when he fell from a freight train.

Regular Honeymoon: "Why, Mandy, didn't you have a honeymoon when you were married?"

Sambo in heaven, had just gotten Rastus far below on the asbestos outfit board.

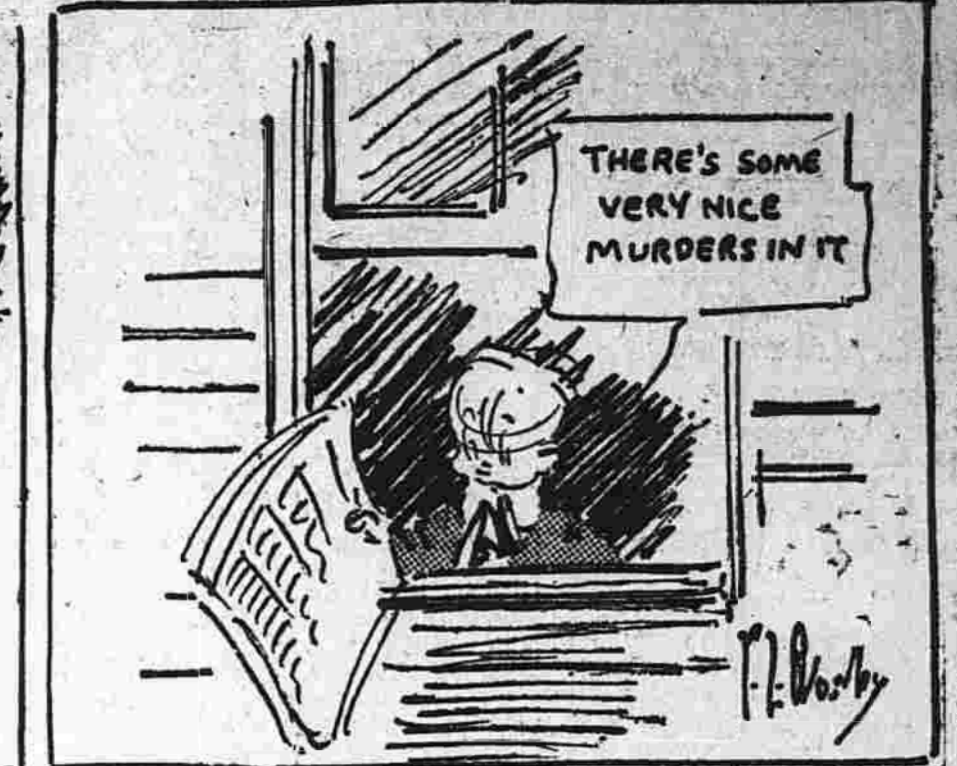

"I see workin' purty hard. We hav' to sweep up de clouds, pull in de stairs, switch on de lights, and give de sun a shove every mornin'."

Sambo's wife had been so sick that she couldn't take any food. As a last resort Sambo called a doctor.

Rastus: "Dat baby of yours am de perfect image of his daddy."

A guest of a small Southern hotel was awakened early one morning by a knock on his door.

PHONES Pinehurst "GOOD THINGS TO EAT" NOT SO FOOLISH. A cartoon in a New York newspaper some months ago showing a stout woman in a butcher market ordering five pounds of sauerkraut and explaining "I always like to have some in the house in case of sickness" wasn't so foolish as it might seem. Pinehurst has been selling loads of its very excellent bulk sauerkraut, which is as tangy and tender and appetizing as sauerkraut should always be but not always is. Today Sauerkraut and the Pork to go with it are one of our suggestions. We have some of the finest roasting pieces you ever saw—white, tender, cleanly corn fed pork that rates with any meat food in the world. And lots of lean, sweet, tender Chops. It's an especially good time now, too, to order a piece of Corned Beef, for we have some corking Solid Sirlin Tips and Bottom Rouns, lean and tender, besides Briskets and Ribs, which are just prime for the kettle.
