

POLA WILL MAKE
2 FILMS YEARLY
FOR ART'S SAKE

Paris.—"What a difference between Europe and America," exclaims Pola Negri. "In America, though I love it, I feel somewhat like a bird in a gilded cage. Here in Europe it is different. With Art surrounded, protected and strengthened by Tradition, you can spread your wings and fly, really fly. . . ."

Pola declared that hereafter her life will be devoted to making pictures of a kind to cause the world to sit up and take notice at a rate of two per year. Never more than two. "You make more than two and you sacrifice Art," she said. Her formula for revolutionizing the industry is a combination of European Art and American Technique.

"Up to now I have only been a trades person," confides Pola. And she adds, with some trace of satisfaction in her voice, "Picture mongering has brought me to a fortune. From now on it is going to be Art. When I have shown the world it can be done, I am going to quit the movies. Back to the speaker where I started."

"And then perhaps you will do ophelia?" she was questioned.

"Perhaps. But I will do Sappho, Daudet's heroine, first of all. I am passionately fond of Sappho and I want to play that part some day. And then there are Madame Bovary, the Empress Josephine, and many others, so you see. . . ."

Miss Negri will soon begin work on a picture in England, after which she will make another one either in France or Spain, depending on the locale of the story.

TALKING FILMS BRING WORRY TO ENGLISH STAGE

London.—Full-length talking pictures have at last arrived in England, and England is worried about them.

Vaudeville performers, musicians, and producers of the ordinary silent films are considerably distressed over the success which the "talkies" have already achieved—although the first full-length picture was shown only a few weeks ago.

There are fears that the talking movies will put an end to the need for stage entertainment in picture houses. There are even greater fears that cinema musicians will no longer be needed when pictures with their own musical accompaniment arrive, and even the picture producers are worried.

To Hurt Employment
"The talking picture is a wonderful invention," said Monte Bailey, secretary of the Variety Artists' Federation, which corresponds to the N. Y. A. in America. "But I am afraid it will put out of work a lot of music-hall artists who are earning a living at the cinemas—possibly, five or six hundred of them."

"Certainly any artist who goes to the cinema with his act now would be doing a very foolish thing. He would be selling his birthright for a mess of pottage."

The Musician's Union is not exactly in a state of panic, but its officials feel that in the course of time talking films might constitute a real menace to the orchestras in the smaller movie houses.

End of Orchestras
"The end of orchestras was predicted when the phonograph came in, and again when broadcasting started," said an official of the union. "But orchestras are doing just as well as ever before and perhaps even better."

The talking films are causing the same sort of sensation here now that prevailed in New York six or eight months ago. Their novelty has made an immediate impression, and London has been quick to see the practicability of the scheme. Thousands of provincial theaters throughout England will benefit from the idea, for many of them are too small to employ large orchestras.

ENGLISH CHURCH BATTLE MAY BE UP AGAIN SOON

London.—The truce in the intra-warfare in the Church of England is ending and hostilities are likely to be resumed within the next few weeks.

The question is: "What will the Bishops do next?" Twice in the present year the new and revised Prayer Book, propounded with the unparalleled influence of the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bench of Bishops, has been rejected by the House of Commons, the final arbiter.

Now, with the schism between the two sections in the Church practically complete, the point arises: Is the Church of England to seek alliances with the Free Churches in England, and the Protestant Churches on the Continent, or is she to see union with the Church of Rome?

Settlement in 1930
These points are being only debated now, but in 1930 they must come up for settlement at the Lambeth Conference, which will probably decide the whole of the future fate of the English Church.

Meanwhile a whole set of perplexing questions are troubling both clergy and laity in Britain. They are:

In the absence of a new Prayer Book what are to be the governing principles for ritual and worship in the Anglican Churches?
How is discipline to be preserved in the Anglican Church?
The Bishops meet at Lambeth Palace during the week ending September 29th.

Their deliberations will be under the presidency of the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Cosmo Lang. Following this private conference, the synods of clergy which have been called by their various bishops will take place in their respective dioceses next month. The synods will probably govern the future action of the bishops.

Fear Bishop's Decision
In Anglo-Catholic circles, however, where the Revised Prayer Book is upheld, fear exists that the bishops' decision may influence, beforehand, the deliberations of the synods. On the other hand, the Evangelicals, who opposed the new Prayer Book, are stated to be prepared to support the Bishops in action they take, provided that any attempt to sanction Perpetual Reservations are ended once and for all.

The bulk of Churchmen are hoping that after the few months of quiet reflection since the second rejection of the Revised Prayer Book, both section of the Church may be prepared to meet in a spirit of compromise—otherwise complete disunion may result.

Don't pick a fight now. The All-America selections will be out pretty soon, and then the season opens.

WASHINGTON LETTER

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of three articles on Prosperity, as reflected in the annual report of the department of Commerce.

Washington, Dec. 6—Every worker in the United States is producing far more nowadays than his predecessor of a quarter of a century ago did; and this is one of the chief reasons for American prosperity.

This is brought out in the annual report of the Department of Commerce, which is a sort of guide-book to American prosperity as a whole.

The report sets forth some interesting figures. For instance: since the beginning of the present century, the population of the country has increased about 55 per cent. But during that same period, the output of minerals has increased 230 per cent, the output of manufactures and services has increased 130 per cent, and the volume of rail transportation has increased 200 per cent. Agricultural products have just about kept pace with population increase, going up 55 per cent.

"In the case of every one of these four major branches of industry," says the report, "the increase in output since 1900 has been far greater than that in the number of workers. In agriculture, manufactures and railways the product of goods or services per worker engaged has increased from 50 to 60 per cent. For mining the increase per worker has been much higher, the difference, however, being due to the fact that the production of petroleum has multiplied several times over. Another change brought by the past three decades is noted. Although the total population has increased 55 per cent, the aggregate number of workers in these four branches of industry—mining, agriculture, transportation and manufacturing—has gone up only about 32 per cent. In other words, the number of Americans engaged in such pursuits is, actually smaller, in proportion to the total population, than it was 29 years ago. What does this mean?"

"Just as there has been throughout American history a relative shift from the oldest of all industries—agriculture—into mining, manufacturing and transportation," says the report, "so since 1900 there has been a shift, especially during recent years, both from agriculture and from these other three branches into the mercantile, professional, and personal service pursuits. The number employed in these have increased much more rapidly than the total population."

The "white collar" class, in other words, is on the increase. The explanation becomes clearer as the report continues. It points out that, in the first place, the new automobile industry has given jobs to other than manufacturing jobs to at least 3,000,000 people—salesmen, truck and bus drivers, taxicab drivers and the like. And there is another important factor. Many thousands of young people are in high schools, colleges and universities than was formerly the case. Even in the short period from 1920 to 1926 the number of students in such institutions rose from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000.

Returning to the matter of increased output per worker, the report points out that since the war there has been an actual decrease in the number of men employed in these four basic industries. Consequently, the increase in production amounts to a gain in production per man which is far greater than the averages show. On top of this there is the fact that the average working week has been shortened by at least 15 per cent since the beginning of the century.

Then the report takes up the most discussed question of all—why is the United States prosperous? Here it indulges in some plain speaking.

"The present high prosperity of the United States is in no sense due to 'the World War,'" it declares. "At its foundation lie the rich resources of the country, not taxed by an excessive population, and the energy, intelligence, industry and thrift of the people. During the past quarter century the increase of productivity has been only in small part due to the opening up of new natural resources, but has been chiefly attributable to what may be called human factors."

"The underlying causes of advancing efficiency of American industry translate themselves into a number of more specific and direct factors. Among these the most noteworthy are the advance in education, scientific research and invention; the rapidly increasing use of capital reflected in the greater employment of mechanical power and of automatic and semi-automatic machinery; the larger scale of production permitting greater application of mass methods and lowering of unit costs; the conscious and concerted effort to eliminate waste and improve methods of production and distribution; the high scale of wages resulting in general large buying power, and the comparative stability of prices and of credit."

TOMOROW: Standardization and Efficiency.

OPEN FORUM

ROCKVILLE ELECTION

Editor, The Herald: It is laughable to witness the ill-timed and unskillful attempt of the opposing political faction in power in Rockville to whom a defeat is like being asked to take a dose of poison. To discredit the election of Councilman-elect John J. McKenna, who received a substantial plurality of votes at the city election on Monday and who subsequently was declared elected by the official moderator of the ward, usually when there is any semblance of doubt in the mind of the official, he has apparently been instructed to use just that guess word "apparently" so, and then has been elected.

This may or may not give the party an opportunity to raise a party in full on Monday the time-honored motto phrase was not used and instead "apparently" the result was satisfactory, but lo-and-behold McKenna works in Manchester but resides in this city. In fact he has a residence about ready for occupancy in the Hale street section of the city. It has been perfectly right and proper for the opposition to have one of their officials residing out-of-town and serve on the various committees of town and city political parties, but McKenna is to be "not admitted" to the sacred portals of the local governmental college, when the taxpayers who pay the bills are told what's what and made to like it.

Well, those who know are getting quite a kick out of the bit of business which has been done despite all the noise. McKenna will be the councilman in the Third Ward the next two years whether some like it or not. And they won't push him around when he is finally seated.

(Signed) ROCKVILLE DEMOCRAT.

PROTECTION FOR CHILDREN

Don't you think, it is about time that we had some way of having sidewalks on East Middle Turnpike for the children to walk on when going to and coming home from school? It seems to me that we ought to have something done for the protection of the school children; also I think, it would be a good idea to have a policeman patrol East Middle Turnpike after schools for the protection of the children, in view of the fact that there are from two to three hundred automobiles passing an hour. There was a little girl struck by an automobile Tuesday, December 4th, while walking along the side of the road and is in a hospital with a broken ankle and is lying unconscious. There have been three such accidents in the last few weeks. How many accidents do we have to have before anything is done to help avoid such accidents?

If the authorities had such an accident happen to one of their children, how would they feel? There is also no sign on the East highway notifying automobilists that there is a school in the near vicinity.

(Signed) Fred L. Fish, Father of the girl injured, 878 East Middle Turnpike, Manchester, Conn., Dec. 5, 1928.

THANKS HERALD

Editor, The Herald: Now that the Red Cross Roll Call for 1929 has been brought to a successful conclusion, the first thing I wish to do is to thank the Manchester Herald for its splendid co-operation.

Two factors only contributed to the success of this campaign—the unusual publicity given it by The Herald and the untiring faithfulness of the solicitors.

Yours sincerely, FRANK W. GAINES, Campaign Chairman Dec. 4, 1928.

EUROPEAN RACERS COMING AGAIN FOR SPEED CLASSICS

Daytona Beach, Fla.—European race drivers will again compete with Americans at the annual international speed classics to be held here during the latter part of January or the early part of February.

Mayor E. H. Armstrong of Daytona Beach has word that at least two previous assaulters of the world's speed record—one of them successful—will be back when the word is given for the mighty machines to swing into the supreme test.

Major H. O. D. Seagrave, who two years ago established a record which last season was shattered by the 36-cylinder tri-motor monster created by J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer and sportsman, has already cabled that he will return.

White also will be present, together with Ray Keech, of Philadelphia, who piloted the machine down the beach sands here last April at a speed of 207.55 miles an hour. White has not announced whether his machine will be the same as last year, or whether it has been changed to increase its speed.

Major Seagrave, however, came out with the statement that he has perfected a new machine which is much faster than the big one which two seasons ago startled the automobile world with its speed.

The new speedster, the details of which have not been disclosed, is capable of a speed of 240 miles an hour or better, Major Seagrave informed Mayor Armstrong. It probably will be driven by Major Seagrave himself, as the other was

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: "Famous First Ladies"

By Frank Beck

GAS BUGGIES—Junior Spoke Too Soon. A comic strip by Frank Beck showing a boy's misadventures with a bicycle.

SLAPPER FANNY SAYS

The young idea is: 'Eat, drink and be wary.'

SENSE and NONSENSE

Salesgirl Wanted. Customer: 'Have you 'The Man Who Married A Dumb Wife?''

Satisfied. Some like it cold. Some like it hot. But I tell the weather man.

Inevitable. As soon as the day begins to dawn The meadow lark starts singing.

'Why on earth did you bring that man home to dinner with you when you knew I was at the bridge club all afternoon and we were going to have nothing but a can of beans warmed up?'

'Oh, it's all right my dear. His wife was at a bridge club all afternoon, too, and he'd just as leave have the beans as the sardines his wife was going to have for their dinner.'

Missionary: 'During the three years we were on the island my wife saw only one white face. That was mine.'

Mrs. Guild: 'How she must have suffered.'

Characterization. He's the kind of a chap who would wire his mother for money on Mother's Day.

They sat silently for a long time; then he spoke a little nervously.

In a fashionable restaurant a new multi-millionaire with no knowledge of French and no desire to expose his ignorance, pointed to a line on the menu and said to the waiter:

'I'll have some of that.'

The nicest woman we have met lately said upon being introduced: 'Why I supposed you were a much older man.'

'What's the difference between a wedding and a funeral?'

Clerk: 'Do you think it would be foolish for me to marry a girl intellectually my inferior?'

Some organizations hold conventions in order to get 'organized.'

LETTER GOLF

It's easy to WRITE POEMS in letter golf. The words don't rhyme, perhaps, but there are seven lines. One solution is on another page:

POEMS

THE RULES

- 1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes.

For that matter, no man is a hero to anybody who sees him in wrinkled pajamas.

Most men are just prominent enough to attract people who have gold bricks to dispose of.

THE TINYMITES

My, what a fix the Tinymites were in. Of all the funny sights! They floundered in the snow banks, trying to get upon their feet.
