

MRS. RICKARD GETS BULK OF TEX'S ESTATE

Jack Dempsey Says Promoter's Wealth Will Amount to a Million—Other Portions of the Will.

New York, Jan. 11.—Mrs. Maxine Elliott Rickard, the widow of the late Tex Rickard, inherited the bulk of the millionaire sports promoter's estate, by terms of the will made public today.

According to Jack Dempsey, the estate will amount to $1,000,000. Following is Rickard's will in part:

"In the event my wife, Maxine Elliott Rickard, shall be alive at the time of my death, I give and bequeath to her the sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) of real property located in the state of Florida, and all my personal effects, automobiles, household goods, furniture, books, pictures, silverware and chattels of like general character. The provision for the benefit of my wife, Maxine Elliott Rickard, in this paragraph, second of my last will and testament, shall be in lieu of dower.

Other Bequests.
"I direct my executor to divide my stock holdings in South America Land & Title company of Paraguay, into such number of parts as near equal as may be, as shall equal the number of those hereinafter in this paragraph named. One of each part I give to each of the following who shall be alive at the time of my death: my sister, Alice J. Burk; my sister, Jesse H. Adams; my sister, Sylvia Hedman; my niece, Merle Rickard; my niece, Ruby Rickard; my niece, Maude M. Johnson; my nephew, William T. Jennings; my nephew, Robert T. Jennings; my nephew, George R. Jennings; nephew, Cecil M. Jennings.

Remembers Mother.
"In the event my mother, Mrs. Lou J. Adams shall be living at the time of my death, I give and bequeath to my trustee hereinafter named such sum as in the judgment of my executor hereinafter named, will yield a sum of $5,000 a year. "Upon her death my said trustee shall in the event my daughter, Maxine Texas Rickard, be then living, transfer, convey and pay over the principal and corpus of said trust fund for the benefit of my daughter."

The will also leaves a trust fund to bring $2,400 a year for his mother-in-law, Mrs. Flora Haig.

STEINHARDT'S AIDE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Federal Messenger Got $100,000 for Revealing Court Secrets to Swindler

New York, Jan. 11.—Following complaints made by scores of business men, six federal judges and fleeced money investors, a sweeping Grand Jury investigation was begun today by United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle into the administration of bankruptcies. As the scandal assumed wider ramifications this morning, a prominent lawyer, a former Republican candidate for Congress and a federal court messenger were involved, and it was hinted that a police lieutenant and "high officials" would be drawn into the case.

Are Martians Trying To Signal The Earth?

Paris, Jan. 11.—Is Mars trying to signal the earth? M. Henri Pensa, French astronomer, says that the phenomena recently witnessed in the Rhodéz mountains, in Auvergne, when meteor-like trails were seen in the sky, may turn out to be Martian signals.

His statement aroused high interest in scientific circles today. On three successive nights at the same hour each evening—"meteors" were seen in the Rhodéz region. They left a trail of fire in their wake, when they suddenly fell, fragments were picked up.

M. Pensa maintains that no meteor would have been seen on three successive nights traveling in the same direction. He believes that the "apparitions" may be the result of a Martian attempt to signal our planet.

ATTACK ON HIGH HEELS AROUSES MUCH INTEREST

New York Doctor Agrees With British Specialist That They Are Injurious But Women Think Not.

New York, Jan. 11.—The high heel of milder is physically injurious. The heel is beautiful. The high heel is older than the United States—so what is one to do about it.

This was the variable reaction today to a dispatch from London quoting an attack on the feminine high heeled shoe by Dr. A. E. Kennard, bone specialist. Dr. Kennard asserted that high heels would result in a generation of crippled women and charged that some British doctors even were having their middle or little toe amputated in order to wear fashionable shoes.

Agrees With Specialist
"I agree with Dr. Kennard that high heeled shoes are tending to corrupt the feet," said Dr. Thomas Denison Wood, professor of health education, of Teachers College, Columbia University.

"Modern shoe styles are causing structural changes in the feminine foot. Under present conditions, most women are not using all their toes in walking, and the ultimate evolutionary effect cannot be predicted. Remember the horse once was a five-toed animal."

Disturbs Balance
The feminine high heel dislocated the center of equilibrium and was spoiling the feminine carriage and making graceful walking almost a thing of the past.

STEWART TO FIGHT ROCKEFELLER AIM

"Fighting Colonel" Refuses to Resign His Job in Standard Oil Company.

New York, Jan. 11.—Col. Robert W. Stewart, called "The Fighting Colonel," is going to live up to his sobriquet. Undaunted by the Rockefeller millions and the powerful Rockefeller influences, Col. Stewart plans to fight back with intense vigor the efforts of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to remove the former from chairmanship of the board of directors of the great Standard Oil Company. WILKINS PARTY AT SOUTH POLE TO COME BACK

To Store Their Machines and Equipment Until They Return Next Season; Their Reason for Leaving.

New York, Jan. 11.—A copyrighted article written by Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins published in the New York American and associated Hearst newspapers today announces that members of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition are about to return to civilization.

"We have decided to postpone further exploration until next season," Captain Sir Hubert, who is commander of the expedition, says, "because of the unusual meteorological conditions during the early part of our season and the fact that our discoveries show that Graham Land is a group of islands, not part of the Antarctic continent and not offering, as we thought it would, a connected line in case of engine failure."

To Leave Machines
The article adds that the explorers intend to look for a safe place today in which to store their machines and equipment until next year's venture into the frozen Polar regions. When the party returns, it was also said, an effort will be made to find a more southerly base for explorations.

Next Year's Plans.
"Next year, we can hope to carry our base to the continent itself, and start from there on a flight along the still undiscovered coast line from where our discoveries ended this year for a further 1,800 miles to the Ross sea barrier."

"BATTLE OF HAVANA" IS WAGING MERRILY

American Steamer in Such a Hurry to Get Back Takes Few Passengers.

Hoboken, N. J., Jan. 11.—The American owned Ward line scored a decision over the Cunard line in the New York-Havana route race when the President Roosevelt arrived here from the Cuban city today after establishing a new all-time record for the run. The trip was made in 58 hours and 5 minutes. The Caronia also arrived today.

Major John and Florence

He's "in the army now!" The spiffy young major of the First Company, Governor of Connecticut's Guards, pictured above, is John Coolidge. The pretty girl whose hand he holds is—how did you guess it?—Florence Trumbull, John's fiancée and daughter of Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut. The picture was taken at the inaugural ball in Hartford. John was appointed to the governor's staff after an act of the legislature had amended the National Guard law of the state. Florence has on an imported frock of white georgette trimmed with sequins.

COOLIDGE KEEPS FRIENDS GUESSING AS TO FUTURE

Washington, Jan. 11.—President Coolidge, in these closing days of his administration, apparently is having one final fling at keeping his friends as well as the public guessing.

Just as he got a whole year of concealed amusement out of announcing he "did not choose to run in 1928," refusing to amplify that statement, and then watching a good many political writers founder around over his true meaning, so today it appears he is getting an inward laugh out of the considerable efforts to ascertain his plans after leaving the White House on March 4.

Just before the holidays, when asked to comment on an International News Service story to the effect he most probably would return to Northampton, Mass., for the time being, he let it be known "that guess was as good as any other."

To Go Back Home
Today, it seems to be a little better, than any other. Cumulative information from surface and sub-surface sources would indicate that at least the first few months after his retirement from office will find Mr. Coolidge back in the New England.

REED WARNS AGAINST THE KELLOGG PACT

Missouri Senator Says American Institutions Would Be Jeopardized by Proposed Ratification.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Senator Reed (D) of Missouri this afternoon warned the Senate that American institutions would be jeopardized and the safety of the nation imperilled by unconditional ratification of the Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact.

With his twenty years service in the Senate near a close, Reed sang the same song of his long battle against entangling alliances. He attacked the Kellogg pact as a "mass of confusing interpretations," declaring the treaty had a hundred different interpretations. He appealed to the Senate to place its own interpretation on the treaty and added he would then join in ratifying it.

Every war in history, every invasion of a defenseless country, he said, could have been waged under the terms of the Kellogg pact.

HIS LAST FIGHT
Washington, Jan. 11.—Senator James A. Reed, leader of the Irreconcilables and veteran of a thousand legislative battles, will today his last great senatorial fight with a formal speech against unconditional ratification of the Kellogg-Briand Peace Treaty.

Other Fights
The shades of three other sensational treaty fights will sweep across the Senate chamber as need demands more definite protection of American institutions before the treaty is approved.

Marriage Doesn't Mean Permanent Happiness

Berlin, Jan. 11.—"No marriage can mean permanent happiness." This dictum was pronounced by Dr. Poul Bjerre, Swedish physician and scientific researcher, in a lecture on "Evolution of Marriage" held in Berlin.

Marriage, according to Prof. Bjerre, like everything living has its ups and downs, and the success of marriage depends upon the ability of husband and wife constantly to renew and intensify their relations through complete frankness and honesty.

Romans' Idea.
Dr. Bjerre believes that the ancient Romans had the right system when they recognized three distinct forms of marriage:—the sacred marriage sanctified by a priest, which could be separated only by a priest; the free civil marriage, and the so-called concubinage which became a regular marriage if the woman spent less than three nights a year outside the house of her "man."

Dr. Bjerre believes that no harm would be done to the dignity and sacredness of the church-sanctified marriage if the state recognized the free forms of marriage as well, because the present form of marriage is neither firm nor free.

DOCTORS TRIUMPH IN KING'S CASE

Ten Physicians Consulted in Illness—Modern Methods Used to Fight Disease.

London, Jan. 11.—A group of English doctors treating King George are winning the most dramatic fight against illness and threatened death in the history of medicine.

The King's improvement has progressed to such an extent that it is universally believed he will recover unless there is an unforeseen relapse of a very serious nature.

The achievement of the doctors is a triumph for modern medicine. King George was virtually drawn back from the brink of death by application of new methods of treatment, scientific care and his own will to live.

It is believed that, within a week or so, if his present improvement continues without relapse, the King will be sufficiently recovered for removal to a seashore resort for his convalescence.

Warmer Climate. If the King gets well, and there is now every reason to believe that he will, it is possible that his future winters will be spent somewhere in southern Europe where the climate is less rigorous than in London.

More than ten doctors—ordinary physicians, surgeons and specialists—have treated King George or engaged in consultations over him since he was forced to take to his bed on November 20. The King's illness began with a cold and chill. It was presumed he caught the cold while standing bareheaded at the Armistice Day ceremonies, but it was reported later at Buckingham palace that the cold developed on a hunting trip.

Operation Performed. Every method known to twentieth century medical practice for the treatment of pleurisy and lung infection such as the King suffered was employed. When ordinary treatment failed to effect a cure X-ray photographs were taken and an operation was performed by Sir Hugh Rigby.

When the King grew steadily weaker ray therapy treatment was employed to combat exhaustion and build up his general strength. Calcium was administered for the blood as well as parathyroid extract. Heart weakness was combated with strychnine.

A consignment of Dakin's solution was brought here from New York by steamship for application upon the wound in the right side where Sir Hugh Rigby had operated for emphysema. It is understood, however, that it was not used.

PAYMASTER ROBBED

Portland, Me., Jan. 11.—A daring daylight holdup of two youths bandits today shot and seriously wounded an unarmed paymaster and escaped with $1,400 in cash.

Two bullets were fired at the paymaster as the two youths escaped in an auto with the money. Coombs was removed to a hospital, where it was said that the bullets entered the abdomen, but that he probably would recover.

Police were unable to find any trace of the bandits.

RAILROADS PAYING DIVIDENDS AT LAST

The New Haven railroad restored the common stock of that company to the dividend column, thus writing a brilliant chapter in one of the most disastrous and distasteful railroad episodes in the whole history of American transportation.

Within the last four or five years dividend restorations have been made in other well known systems and important developments are expected along similar lines this year.

Canadian Pacific.

The Canadian Pacific railroad, in the process of segregating railroad from hotel and steamship properties, will distribute valuable assets, or grant a stock dividend.

The Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, in the Nickel Plate group, will increase its dividend from $10 to $12 annually.

The Erie road, one of the spectacular come-backs of the last few years, will pay dividend on its first preferred and second preferred stocks, making the common stocks next in line for a share of increased earnings.

The Northern Pacific rate is liable to go from $6 to $7 this year, and Pennsylvania from 7 to 8 per cent, or from $3.50 to $4 a share on the $50 par stock.

DURANT NOT TO QUIT AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS

Buyers Stock of Locomobile Company and Will Devote His Time to That Company.

New York, Jan. 11.—W. C. Durant today set at rest rumors that he would relinquish his financial interests in Durant Motors Inc., which arose following his announcement yesterday that he had taken over the management of the company to a group of unnamed executives.

"The arrangement with the new group," Durant said, "is a contract for management and has nothing to do with control. It will give me an opportunity to devote a large share of my time to other extensive interests. My recent purchase of the entire stock of the Locomobile Company of America, and the fact that I am reorganizing the company and shall give my personal attention to the direction of its affairs is evident that I am not retiring from the automobile industry."

OPENING STOCKS.

New York, Jan. 11.—Stock prices were higher in every section of the market at the opening today. The Motors were active with Studebaker at a new high at 88 1/2, up 1/2; Stewart Warner up 1/2 at 137; General Motors up 1/2 at 202 1/2; General Electric up 1/2 at 239 1/2; gold dust up 1/4 at 79 1/2; Consolidated Gas up 1/4 at 109 1/2; U. ham land is not a part of the Antarctic continent, but rather a succession of islands that bar the way to that continent.

Wilkins' results are even more striking from the standpoint of physical geography, than those of his flight of last April in the Arctic. For new land is the object of every Polar explorer. It is his ambition to change the maps laid down upon the maps by cartographers, who are guided by scattered discoveries of pioneers.

"When his photographs are closely studied and compared, Wilkins will be able to write a wholly new chapter in the physical geography of the Antarctic."

WHITE MAN, NEGRESS, FOUND DEAD IN HOUSE

Bay State Police Believe it to Be a Case of Murder and Suicide.

Malden, Mass., Jan. 11.—What police believed to be a murder and suicide, was the discovery today of a woman, clubbed to death with a sashweight, and the body of a man hanging in the cellar of the same house on Belmont street here.

The woman was identified as Rebecca Enten, colored, a boarder at the house. The man was Fred Bloha, 65, a white man. Identification was made by the man's wife, a colored woman.

Discovery was made by the wife of the dead man, who hurried home after the latter had telephoned that he intended taking his life, police learned.

Police expressed the belief that arguments over money matters led to the murder and suicide.

weeks immediately preceding his inauguration. None of Mr. Hoover's intimates expect that he will announce any appointments before leaving for Florida.

Mr. Hoover's departure is not now expected before Wednesday or Thursday of next week. Engagements have been made for him here through next Tuesday, and unless Spanish methods are adopted at the end of the tide of incoming visitors it appears not improbable that he will find it impossible to get away before the last of next week.

Try as he will to avoid it, the president-elect is finding himself subject to the embarrassing prospect of a number of state organization rows.

Party Splits. One of these, and an aggravating one, is in New York, where the party leaders split during the pre-convention fight and continued at loggerheads throughout the campaign. The contest in New York rages about the recognition that is to be accorded the rival leaders by the new administration.

Row in Tennessee. A similar row has cropped up in Tennessee, and is centered about the contest for the governorship. There are two Republican groups in Tennessee, one headed by J. Will Taylor, the recognized state leader, and the other by C. C. Huston, former assistant Secretary of Commerce, and one of the captains in the Hoover pre-convention fight.

Mr. Hoover let himself in for this factional pulling and hauling when he returned to the capital, which always seethes with it anyway. Had he remained a thousand miles away he probably would have succeeded in escaping most of it. As it is, he is in the very center of it, and he finds it embarrassing in the extreme. It may hasten his determination to get away from Washington at the earliest possible moment.

The flood of visitors showed no signs of recession today. On Mr. Hoover's engagement list for today were Senator Thomas (D) of Oklahoma; Senator Densen (R) of Illinois; Senator Ewing (R) of Connecticut; Senator Nye (R) of North Dakota; J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee; Secretary of Labor James J. Davis; Senator-elect Goldsborough (R) of Maryland; Rep. Dyer (R) of Missouri; Rep. Cramton (R) of Michigan, one of the prohibition leaders of the House; Rep. Knutson (R) of Minnesota; Rep. Elton (R) of New Jersey; Jed Flske of the American Philosophical Society, and A. H. NOT ENOUGH NAMES TO START NEW CHURCH

Can't Complete Organization of Polish Independent Order Until More Sign Petition.

Although the meeting called for last night to form a local corporation to be known as the Independent Polish Catholic church was attended by quite a few it was not possible to get together enough to go ahead and complete the organization of the corporation. The plan is to have churches of this kind incorporated for the purpose of holding real estate.

The men and women who are behind the movement have been assured that there will be a priest here for services to be held in Turn Hall on Sunday. They will celebrate a mass at 9 o'clock and another at 11 o'clock. The mass instead of being said in Latin will be said in Polish. About 20 persons were at the mass last Sunday, and a canvass and invitation is being made among the Polish people to attend services this Sunday.

After the church service a meeting is to be held with the hopes of raising money to start a new church, but this may be delayed because of the shortage of money that is being reported by those who are making the canvass.

LYONS PLANS FLIGHT BOSTON TO ENGLAND

Pacific Flyer Tells Aero Club Members That Machine is Now Being Built.

Boston, Jan. 11.—A trans-atlantic flight from Boston to England is the plan of Lieutenant Commander Harry Lyon, navigating officer of the Pacific flight plane "Southern Cross."

Lyon, speaking at a luncheon of the Aero Club of New England, said the flight would take place following a non-stop hop from Los Angeles to this city.

The plane will be of the trimotor type, is now under construction in California, and is expected to cost $100,000 according to Lyon.

Mrs. Keith Miller and Captain Wm. Lancaster, who have already made a name for themselves in aviation circles will accompany Lyon on the trans-atlantic, trans-oceanic flight. The coast-to-coast hop, Lyon said, will be attempted sometime in May and the ocean flight will follow immediately.

Further, it does not at this time seem likely that any of the big executive positions offered or available to the President are going to tempt him immediately. Five and a half years in the executive office of the presidency to him as though they will be followed by a period of "sitting on the front porch and whittling."

It is not unlikely that Mr. Coolidge will turn his attention to writing, interspersed with a little traveling. The views of a man fresh from the national pinnacle on any subject entering his mind would command a very fancy figure from a number of publications and syndicates, many of which are understood already to have put forward lucrative offers.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Jan. 11.—The steel stocks took the lead in the market's activity today, after the Oils and the Motors had run into a spate wall of profit-taking and speculative selling which effectively blocked the way to higher prices.

The bulls rallied strongly behind U. S. Steel Common and Bethlehem Steel, under the cry of a special dividend for Steel Common this year from the proceeds of the huge tax returns already paid and expected to be paid by the U. S. Treasury. U. S. Steel was driven up in spectacular buying to 168, completing a gain of nearly 7 points for the week, while Bethlehem reached new high ground at 88 1-2.

The market boomed along at a 5,000,000-share clip up to the noon period, with practically all sections of the market moving forward. Studebaker was all the rage in the motor stock list, jumping into high position at 83 3-4, the stock having traveled nearly 10 points this week. Stewart Warner made a 6-point jump to 140 in the lead of the Motor accessory stocks and U. S. Rubber sold up about 4 points at 15 1-4 at the head of the tire stocks.

Shortly after the noon period the week-end profit taking selling wave flowed over the market. This was to be expected, as the upward movement has been practically unchecked since the early part of December, and hundreds of stock traders have accumulations of profits which look very attractive to them at this time. For the next hour the market zig-zagged around without much progress in either direction with the bulls using up the most of their energies on the steel stocks.

SCHOOL GIRL DIES WHILE UNDER ETHER

Was to Have Had Tonsils Removed But Passed Away Under Anaesthetics.

Stamford, Conn., Jan. 11.—Death took Nancy Jones, 13, of Ridgefield, while she was under anaesthetics in Stamford hospital, this afternoon, preparatory to having her tonsils removed. Physicians had made a long, hard fight to save the child's life for several hours during the morning, and failed. Meanwhile, the child's parents were racing from their home but arrived too late to see her alive.

Dr. Henry J. Murray was to have performed the operation. The group in the operating room recognized the condition of the child soon after ether had been administered and Dr. Murray with Dr. Donald R. Moran attempted artificial respiration. At 10:30 a. m. the police pulmonologist was secured and this was used with artificial respiration.

Rev. William Brewer, curate of St. John's Catholic church, was in the operating room and said the physicians were working just before one o'clock this afternoon the child was pronounced dead.

The little girl was a pupil in Benjamin Franklin school, Ridgefield. Beside her parents she leaves a brother, aged ten.

All Experts Except Americans Have Been Named—To Meet February 3.

Paris, Jan. 11.—The Lew commission of reparations experts which will revise the Dawes Plan is ready to meet for organization purposes as soon as the American observers are named.

All the experts have now been designated except the observers from the United States. The names most frequently heard in connection with the American representatives are those of Owen D. Young and Thomas N. Perkins, Boston lawyer.

McLEAN EXPECTED TO ADMIT BOLTON BLOWS

Fine Likely to End Court's Part of Cop-Landlord Affair At Rainbow.

The hearing on the charge of assault on which Captain Frank P. McLean of the Willimantic police Department was arrested at the Rainbow Inn last week after he is alleged to have accused Charles Pinsky of being unduly familiar with his wife, chasing Mr. Pinsky from his dance hall and later punching Constable Samuel Woodward in the eye, is to be heard before Justice of the Peace James Connors in Belknap this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

When McLean was taken before Justice Connors on January 4 the case was continued until today. In the meantime Captain McLean has remained a member of the Willimantic police department although objection to his not being suspended has been made by County Detective William E. Jackson, member of the council of the city of Willimantic and head of the police board.

On the outcome of the hearing this afternoon is said to depend action by the mayor, who is ex-officio chief of police or by the Council at its meeting January 14. It was learned in Bolton today that the court session would probably be of short duration. Grand Juror A. C. Broll has accepted an offer from the lawyers representing Captain McLean of a plea of guilty to assault and will recommend a fine be imposed, it is understood. This recommendation is likely to be accepted by the judge.

The arrest was made by officers of the Hartford barracks of the state police.

SILENCE IS BIG PROBLEM MAKING TALKING MOVIES

Hollywood, Calif.—Is the movie fan to be talked to death? Many fans are asking themselves that question while millions of fans are crowding the all-talking picture theaters. It is not likely that the magnates of the film industry will kill the golden-egg-laying goose by feeding it too many syllables. But these same magnates are listening to the cry of the crowd and pouring millions into sound-proof studios for making sound pictures. Queer, isn't it, that sound pictures can only be made in sound-proof studios? Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is launched on a vast program of making all talkies of famous stage successes. At the Culver City studio "The Trial of Mary Dugan" is to be filmed and sounded as a special production with a cast headed by Norma Shearer. The script for filming and microphoning is being worked out by the author of the play, Bayard Veiller. In the cast will be Raymond Buckett, leading man of the stage hit, and E. B. Warner, famous in many screen successes. "The Trial of Mary Dugan" is scheduled to be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most ambitious film production. On another part of the Culver City "lot" Marion Davies is making her debut in a talking film, "The Five O'Clock Girl." In the cast of Alice Fridge, an exotic charmer who is one point of the triangle of the musical comedy. The screen version, will be produced with the original music and lines of the stage hit. At Universal City a $5,000,000 talking picture program has been launched. The program includes dialogue and sound scenes with movietone for nine 100 per cent talkies, to go into production at once with an elaborate program of short sound subjects. For the next few weeks the staff will concentrate almost exclusively on talking scenes. Silent versions will be made of all talking pictures for theaters without sound equipment. President Laemmle said. One of the features, "Erik the Great," will be made with English, French and German dialogue. Three of the talking pictures will be New York stage successes. They are "Broadway," "The Climax" and the "Shannons of Broadway."

an outburst of sound. When the director yells "camera" the musicians burst into melody and there is a general hurrah. In the talking picture the beginning of action is heralded by silence. Sound-proof doors are rolled shut. Outside a whistle shrieks, called the monitor's table. He is watching a series of colored lights. In a telephone he speaks the new cinema word "interlocked." It means that cameras and sound recording apparatus are in synchrony. The director does not use a megaphone. "Quiet, please," is his admonition. Amid a silence that can almost be felt action commences on sound pictures. When the director nods or waves his arm, the players, carefully rehearsed in advance, start their action. Their voices come out startlingly clear in the dead silence. With the sound the tension is broken. Inside sound-proof booths cameras are clicking. But even that noise is shut away behind thick walls and plate glass windows. Except for the tank-like camera-booths, the monitor's table and the suspended microphones the set is little different from sets used in ordinary pictures. The difference is that between noise and silence. In making sound pictures silence is imperative. On the other hand, in making silent pictures sound is one of the essentials. Here's how it works out at Paramount. The beginning of action in a silent picture is the signal for throw away his New York cane. In tense moments he tapped with it on the floor. The tap, tap was registered in talking pictures. Florence Vidor's is the most lovely voice in Hollywood. It is said to be fute-like and soothing. Wallace Beery's voice is deep, chested and makes the microphones dance. He was once a baritone singer. Vilma Banky wears nine petticoats in one scene as Hungarian immigrant girl. Ronald Colman in his next picture—don't sigh—is cast as a comedian. Jack Roper, Jimmie Dundee and Joe Rivers will work out in "The Duke Steps Out," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature starring William Haines. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has a "noise library." The collection has recordings of booming guns, falling rain, howling gales, airplane motors and other "canned sound." It runs the gamut from thunder to the hiss of a snake. A GOOD JOB. Flu Creating Phenomenal Demand for Vicks VapoRub Although the flu itself is not so serious as in 1918, authorities stress the importance of taking every possible precaution for fear of the complications which invade the weakened system after a flu-attack. They urge, especially, prompt treatment of every cold, as colds lower the body resistance and make it easier for flu or pneumonitis to get a foothold. That the public is heeding this warning is indicated by the phenomenal demand for Vicks Vapo-Rub, the famous external treatment which leaped to fame almost overnight during the 1918 epidemic. In spite of tripled capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating night and day, and 375,000 jars are now being produced every 24 hours.

SIX MURDER MYSTERIES IN ONE FAMILY

Doctor Accused of Slaying Wife Relies on Baffling Chain of Crimes to Prove His Innocence and Win Freedom.

Olathe, Kas., Jan. 11—A mysterious curse that brought death to six members of one family in the course of a third of a century is cited by Dr. S. C. Netherton, retired Olathe physician, as the real reason for the murder of his wife nearly two years ago.

And on this strange explanation, unsatisfactory as the courts thus far have found it, Dr. Netherton bases his hope of being freed from serving the rest of his life in prison.

He was convicted some months ago of the murder of his wife, and is now waiting for the Kansas supreme court to pass on his appeal. His appeal is based on his denial of guilt and his suggestion that the weird, unexplained curse that, he says, hung over his wife's family was responsible for her death.

Now he says he fears for the life of his 9-year-old daughter, Dorothy.

"I'm afraid she is the next on the murderers' list," he says. "I go to prison, she will be left to the mercy of those who appear bent on wiping out my wife's family."

A graduate of John Hopkins University and a world traveler, Dr. Netherton retired and settled on a suburban farm here with his wife a decade ago. Mrs. Netherton was well-to-do; she possessed property worth $100,000, but none of the neighbors ever suspected it. The Nethertons lived frugally. The only money they ever spent for anything except actual necessities went to buy dresses and toys for little Dorothy.

In February, 1927, Mrs. Netherton was found, shot to death, in the basement of their home. The bullet had come from behind.

Circumstantial evidence pointed to Dr. Netherton, and he was arrested and brought to trial. He insisted he had been in town at the time of the murder, but was unable to prove it. His attorneys tried to bring into court the tale of the previous murders in Mrs. Netherton's family, but the judge would not admit the evidence. Dr. Netherton was convicted.

Dr. Netherton admits that he is unable to explain the strange chain of killings. He firmly believes that some person or persons have followed his wife's family for years, trying to wipe it out of existence, but why this is being done he has no idea. At any rate, here is his list of the crimes:

In 1882 Dode Strahl, a trapper, and a nephew of Mrs. Netherton's mother, was shot to death near Deadwood, S. D.

A few years later Roll Strahl,

Dorothy Netherton, 9, and her father, Dr. S. C. Netherton.

Dode's brother, was found shot to death in a farm wagon at Exira, Iowa.

The same year, Colbert Strahl, father of the two slain men, was shot to death while riding on his horse from the town of Exira to his farm.

In 1916 Arthur Strahl, a first cousin of Mrs. Netherton, was shot to death in Chicago.

Four years later Paxton Muir, a second cousin of Mrs. Netherton, was found murdered in a Los Angeles hotel.

No arrests were ever made in any of these murders.

It is upon this story that Dr. Netherton depends to save him from serving the life sentence to which he has been sentenced.

DRUG ADDICTION

One of the most amazing statements to emanate from any official body recently is the declaration of the Federal Narcotics Board that there are not now, in all probability, more than a hundred thousand drug addicts in the United States, all told. The board is convinced that the number of narcotic habits is growing steadily less, that fewer and fewer young people are contracting the habit and that the country has passed the peak of the peril.

It is of all things in the world ardently to be hoped that the Board is right in the latter departments of its belief, at least. But it is submitted that its estimate of the total number of drug addicts sounds too good to be true. It surely will cause many an experienced police officer and police reporter in the big cities to gasp.

A close survey of the drug situation made in the city of Boston, more than a dozen years ago, resulted in an estimate of nine thousand addicts attributable to that one community alone; and it is very certain that in the next half dozen years there was a rapid and serious increase in the habit there.

Confirmed drug addicts, particularly when the addiction is acquired by persons of little culture and self-control, are not hard to identify when one has had any experience at all with them; and if any person familiar with the peculiar physical characteristics of the hop-head can travel about the streets of New York for a week without concluding that that city alone must have nearly as many of them as the Board attributes to the entire country, he must be either peculiarly lucky or peculiarly careful in his street contacts.

In view of the certain fact that the use of drugs has developed at least somewhat among the Southern Negroes during the prohibition period, and merely to judge by what one sees about him in almost any large city in the north, it is difficult to resist the fear that the Narcotics board has been kidding itself.

LIBERTY MOTORS

Use of war-time Liberty motors in new Army airplanes is prohibited by an amendment to the Army appropriation bill, just passed by the House of Representatives. The amendment was proposed by Rep. Laguardia of New York, who is a fier, and appears to have been adopted, so to speak, of the bat. It is doubtful whether one out of a dozen of the members who voted for it knew anything important about Liberty motors or the amount of money involved in their scrapping.

It does not at all follow that the measure is not a good one; it merely is an example of the way far reaching legislation sometimes get rushed through Congress.

The Liberty motor was the best airplane motor in the world, all points considered, in its day—at least that was the generally accepted claim. But a deal of water has run under the bridges since the day of that motor's development and it may very well be that it is now seriously outdated.

But the government owns millions of dollars worth of Liberty motors and before incoherently scrapping them it might have been a fairly good idea to find out definitely whether the facts agree with the probabilities.

However, somebody arises and reminds the House that the Liberty motor is ten years old; ergo, it can't any longer be good enough for airplanes, since of course the best cannot possibly be too good for soldiers compelled to risk their lives in the air. Whereupon everybody agrees, "Of course." And away go some thousands of Liberty motors to the junk pile.

The chances are that the move is perfectly right. But if it were perfectly wrong, and in the interest of nobody but motor builders, it would be all the same. Also it might be interesting to observe who gets those motors, and for what price and purpose.

YEA, YEA OR NAY, NAY

Already many pages of the Congressional Record are littered up with records of debate in which senators have advocated and argued for this, that or the other interpretation or reservation concerning the Kellogg peace pact.

A better speech than any of them, bearing directly on this subject, was delivered almost nineteen hundred years ago by Jesus of Nazareth on a mountain of Galilee, when He said: "Let your communications be Yea, yes; Nay, nay; for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil."

It is one thing to go to a man and say to him, "I am your friend." It is another to go to him and say, "I am your friend; but—." Better not go to him at all than to voluntarily express a profession of pacific intention and immediately qualify it with conditions that smack of threatening.

Every condition, every reservation, every interpretation that jabs the Kellogg pact of the quality of spontaneity "cometh of evil" for it destroys that psychological effect which constitutes the only value of the peace pact. The pact is a striking of hands between peoples. Everybody knows that it is an agreement between populations and not between governments, for as a contract between governments it is of no force. But our government can run it as an expression of the purposes of the American people. And that is the sum of the possible accomplishment through senatorial reservations.

THE MORGANS AGAIN

Entrance of the House of Morgan into the Connecticut Utilities field through the United Corporation, whose purpose is said to be the acquisition of minority interests in the various corporations now largely controlling electric lighting, gas and power in this state, may or may not be pleasing to the people of the commonwealth.

It is not yet forgotten by some thousands of stockholders in the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company that once before the Morgan concern appeared as a minority interest in the very face of all our utilities at that time, the revered "New Haven."

So very decidedly were the Morgan interests "minority interests" that there were numbers of individuals who held each more stock in the New Haven than the impressive Wall Street firm held by itself, by its members or by its agents. Yet it is painfully remembered that the older Morgan took control of the destinies of the road as if it were all his own—and what happened is history.

There is so much holding and re-holding and round-the-corner linking of Connecticut utilities with quite foreign interests, that it is conceivable that, in a score or so of years hence, the people of this state are going to have on their hands one of the sweetest unscrupulous jobs that was ever tackled anywhere.

However, such is the power of the people of the state, under their constitution, that they can perhaps afford to be serene in the meantime, in full confidence that, when the inevitable struggle comes between the mergers and the people, the mergers will not win.

"OLD MAN'S" BURDEN

Perhaps influenced by the knowledge that banditry has recently become not uncommon among college students, and habituated to the American system whereby the "old man" is expected to do the providing and the worrying for the younger generation during its advanced education, a fifty-five-year-old village blacksmith in Michigan, with two collegiate sons to provide for, has assumed the white father's burden and engaged in a one-man bank hold-up.

He did quite a job, too, getting away with about $8,000 in cash and as much more in negotiable securities. But as he has been a respected factor in the life of the village for many years and was well known—so well known that the hold-up cashier recognized his voice and his figure, his mask being in the circumstances, a thin disguise.

Perhaps there may be two or more sides to it, but from this range it looks as though it might have been about as well for that family if the two sons had gone to work instead of to college.

SETTLES THAT

Almost everybody has a silly streak somewhere. Sometimes it crops out at the most inopportune times and in such important relationships as to make the silliness ruinous to the reputation of its possessor. Fortunately, all of Governor Trumbull's share of the universally shared silliness seems to have concentrated on the John Coolidge episode, for his usual hard-headedness is manifest in everyone of his recommendations dealing with serious state affairs.

The governor's attitude toward the moot subject of an income tax is precisely what might have been expected of him. He is against it, positively, energetically, uncompromisingly. If a majority could be mustered in favor of such an enactment—which is incredible—it would be, in the light of the governor's flat denunciation of the proposal, to court a veto.

If the Connecticut state government, in order to preserve the law of averages and keep its proper place on the level of human fallibility, must make a bad break now and then, it is much better to make its connection with button-stitch soldiering than in such a serious business as taxation.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 11.—From time to time potential visitors drop notes asking where they can go to see the "who's who" of Manhattan.

That's a rather large order, and not easily filled. But I can attempt a brief summary as the New Year opens, although this is liable to change, since the "who's who" is a nomadic tribe.

There is, of course, the Algonquin. This is a rendezvous for a certain group of smart writers and amusing conversationalists. Its pivotal point has for some years been "the round table," where gathers as an amusing company as may be found in this rambling hamlet. There is a mixed company from Vanity Fair, The New Yorker, varied newspaper columns and such. One may find here such folk as Donald Ogden Stewart, Franklin P. Adams, Frank Sullivan, Heywood Brown, Alex. Woolcott or Corey Ford. In the neighborhood can often be spotted Dorothy Parker and some of her "merry crew."

There is generally a scattering of visiting movie celebrities from Hollywood and newspaper writers. At Sardi's in 44th street, there is a ramification of the Algonquin crowd. The mid-town boys drift here, and again one finds actors, columnists, press agents and such scrambled about at the tables. About the walls are hundreds of cartoons of celebs and near-celebs. Some of the less modest make it a point to sit just below their caricature of themselves. These celebrities range from Broadway stars of the highest rank to the lowliest "lion hunter." It's a turnover crowd and only a few newspapermen are regular attendants.

The Astor table at lunch time is another rendezvous for Broadway. Producers and managers, playwrights and backers, song-smiths and musical show lyric writers, folk from the business offices of the film companies and actors.

The St. Regis is more "vaudeville" and "stagey." When a "vode" actor wants to meet his fellow he wanders into the St. Regis, and if he waits long enough some fellow of his "profession" is certain to arrive. It's handy to the "vode" business since it is handy to the Palace Theatre. Here, if you keep your ears open, you'll hear the chatter of the song-and-dance men, the song pluggers, the sister acts and the myriad acts "just in from the road." If you listen more closely you'll hear your own home town mentioned now and then, and not often with complimentary inflection.

"That dumb town! . . . Huh . . . didn't ever give a good turn a tumble. . . . It's all wet. . . . Rather even play St. Paul. . . . And there's Dave's where sandwiches are made and . . . where columnists are flattered by having sandwiches named for them. If this be flattery and fame . . . oh well! If you care to pay up to $2.50 for a single sandwich, it's quite possible. Alas! It's possible to see actors who make enough money to be epileptic."

Lindy's is, of course, where Rothstein and his fellow million-dollar gamblers hang out. It's what they call an "up-and-up" place. What I mean is, the guests seem to have awank. They all appear to have easy money and wear trick clothes.

Reuben's, another sandwich resort, "catches them" after the rest. The Colony might be the brilliant spender. But it's exclusive, and one has to be a member.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
 Peristalsis.
 Question: John Smith asks, "Will you kindly explain to me what peristalsis is?"

Answer: Peristalsis is a peculiar contractile explosive muscular movement of any hollow organ of the body. You probably refer to this action of the intestines. Both the small and large intestine are provided with longitudinal and circular muscular fibers. These contract alternately and force along fecal matter, pushing it toward the rectum, except in some peculiar cases when this action is reversed.

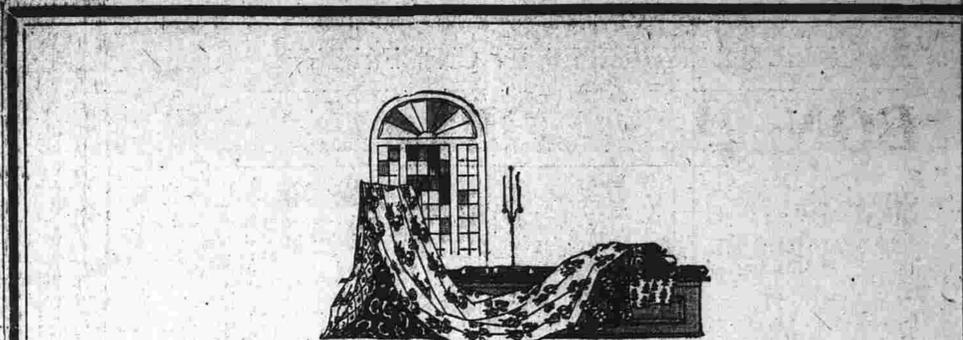

Saccharin Harmful.
 Question: Rose E. writes: "Some time ago you stated in your column that the continued use of saccharin in food in place of sugar has a harmful effect. Will you kindly state in just what way it is harmful?"

Answer: Saccharin is a coal tar derivative, intensely sweet—800 to 500 times as sweet as sugar depending on the purity, being sometimes adulterated with bicarbonate of soda. Most states and countries have pure food laws to prohibit its use in foods. Mathews and McGurran report that saccharin retards the oxidation in the blood and causes a general protoplasmic poison in that inhibits nearly all of the fermentative processes of the body, and interferes with, and diminishes generally bodily metabolism." Saccharin retards action of digestive ferments, hence should be used with caution where digestion is impaired.

12-Day Fast.
 Question: Mrs. Jean Mc. asks: "If I were to go on an orange juice diet for a period of twelve days what would be the loss in weight?"

Answer: It would depend upon your weight and also your type. If you are much overweight you would probably lose between 10 and 15 pounds.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc. 54 YEARS at SOUTH MANCHESTER

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY ALLENE SUMNER.
 Washington, Jan. 11.—Peanut purveyor to the presidents and a sixth one on the way is the proud record of Steve Vasiliakos, whose great but not gaudy peanut cart has hugged the White House fence for nearly 20 years.

Rosy days lie in wait for Steve right now, for Herbert Hoover, sixth presidential customer whom he will know, has already signified his interest in the goober, and during his Washington life has often stopped at Steve's stand for his bag of fresh roasted peanuts.

But if you think Steve's going to upset the destiny of nations by telling you whether the president-to-be likes his goobers hot or cold, well, medium or rare roasted, you have another think coming.

He Keeps Quiet.

"Best not to talk too much in business," says Steve, a speculative eye upon the big house beyond the iron picket fence. "Big men don't talk much. Steve don't talk much."

Steve's peanut, popcorn and candy stand has done its stuff through the rain and shine of five presidents. He remembers the day "Big Tall" he came to White House. "I just met them. Sure, he like peanuts. He like candy, too. That's what he so-begs man. Pretty soon he have only one beefsteak for breakfast instead of two and then he pass by stand when he so for walk and only laugh at me when I shake peanut bags at him."

His favorite president? Again Steve proves that his 20 years as peanut purveyor to presidents have taught him much.

"All nice fellas—very nice fellas—all in different way," he said.

"Wilson he very nice fella; Harding he swell guy. Taft, great old boy; Roosevelt, one mighty nice guy. Coolidge, all right, and this Hoover, say, he's grand. He eat three or four bags peanuts to once."

Steve has seen all the First Ladies, too. He can't remember whether they all bought peanuts and popcorn and crackerjack of him or not. But many a passerby has seen Mrs. Coolidge stop for a bag of peanuts for the White House squires when returning from a walk.

Many say that Steve's diplomatic reticence springs from the time he admitted that the First Lady was one of his customers. He was photographed and interviewed till his face was as familiar as the president's. The other vendors pricked up their ears. How come that just one man could hold so profitable a corner for nearly 20 years? Pressure was applied. Steve hasn't talked much since.

Good Business Location.

"It's a very good corner," he says, thereby indicating that the great of the earth pass by and

Into the White House yard have their peanut passions even as other men.

"Queen Marie? Sure, I saw the queen. I've seen 'em all," says Steve, pouring some popcorn into the hopper. "Give me American ladies every time."

One knows that looked within Steve's breast is many a tale of the great, who have entered the nation's most famous gate for the past 20 years. But try'n' get 'em out!

"Beeg men don't like to have all the things they say told!" says Steve, offering a bag of peanuts to the First Lady. And that seemed to be that.

"You can say this," says Steve. "Eat lots of peanuts and popcorn and get to be president. Makes you smart!"

RELIGION AND JAZZ ARE BAD FOR BABIES SAYS HEALTH DEPT.

Sacramento, Cal.—Religion and jazz are bad for babies. An overdose of either plays havoc with the nervous system of infants it has been discovered by the California state department of health.

And the white lights and "whoopie" according to Dr. Ellen Stadtmuller, chief of the bureau of child hygiene, are no worse than public church services, so far as their effect upon babies in arms are concerned. It is liable to show the young hopefuls into a premature, crabby and perhaps short maturity.

The health authority also voices her taboo against too much music—either phonograph or radio. Parties and music are listed along with the churches as places where babies should not be taken.

"It must be remembered that the young child is not a plaything. He should be cared for properly and then left to develop by himself," the authority declared. "Do not expose him to loud sounds, bright lights or much handling. He should not be romped with just before nap or bedtime. These things, so very far toward making him a nervous, irritable child," said Dr. Stadtmuller.

The latest use for the X-ray is to peer into the heart of a tree.

BON AMI, GREEN, SONS TIED FOR FIRST TRIAL HEATS NEXT 2 WEEKS WITH FINALS CARNIVAL DAY

SOAP MAKERS LOSE TO SONS WHILE NIGHT HAWKS FALTER

Construction Takes Four, West Sides and Charter Oaks, Three; F. Anderson Gains on Conran and Curtis.

The first half of the Herald Bowling League schedule came to a close last night with practically four teams tied for first place, or, to be exact, three.

The Bon Ami, Manchester Green and Sons of Italy all have the same number of points while the Night Hawks are but a point behind them. Three other teams are following plenty close enough to step in should one of the leaders falter.

With a race like this, the success of the league is assured. Last year the league created a great deal of interest but the Masons were a bit too fast for the pack. This year, however, it is absolutely impossible to tell what team will win the pennant. Nevertheless, it will probably be the Green, Bon Ami or Sons of Italy. They seem to have the strongest teams from a standpoint of high scores and consistency.

The outstanding match last night was the thrilling battle between the Sons of Italy and the Bon Ami in which the latter team assured itself of three points in the last two boxes of the final game. The Bon Ami took the first game by the narrow margin of six pins, the Sons the next by 22 and the third by seven. In total pinfall, the Sons won by 23 timbers. Both teams hit remarkable scores. There wasn't a game under 530 and the team totals were 1,623 for the Sons and 1,623 for the Bon Ami.

Jimmy Pontillo, Guido Giorgetti and Domenick Beletti were the high scorers of the match rolling over 340. Pontillo was highest of all with 101, 132 and 113 for a 346 total. Tommy Conran and Augie Brozowski were highest for the soap makers. The Sons went into the last game 16 pins up but the Bon Ami took a lead which was killed in the last few boxes. Mike Suhle missed two one-pin spare breaks in the last two boxes and Brozowski gutted twice in succession to get a six box.

Meanwhile, Manchester Green was trimming the Night Hawks three out of four points, winning the first two games and losing the last. Cole, Wilkie and Phillips were highest. The West Sides won two games and pinfall from the independents but neither team rolled 500 once.

Manchester Construction once more started up the league ladder by winning four points from the Beethovens. The contractors rolled the creditable team total of 1,623. The first game was decided by four pins. The Charter Oaks rolled within one pin of the highest team total of the evening, 1,652. This was largely due to Frank Anderson's fine work. He hit 120, 130 and 135 for a three string of 385 and, incidentally, that probably fetches him up pretty close to Tommy Conran in the race for the divisional averages. Tommy hit 333 last night and Curtis only 300. The Charter church managed to beat the Charter Oaks the first game by five pins but lost the next two.

RICKARD'S OFFICE WAS ALWAYS OPEN

He Liked to Sit Around and Talk With a Bunch of "Fellers."

By HENRY L. FARRELL

One of the most amazing things about the personality of Tex Rickard was his accessibility. There are few men who work in government jobs for less money a week than Rickard who are harder to approach than he was on his busiest day.

It was hard to figure how the man did his business. It is true that he put in more hours around the Garden than any executive we have ever encountered. At all hours of the day and night, Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays, he was putting around the building or squattin' on the chair in his office with one foot under him. And he seemed to be doing nothing but talking, talking to anyone who crashed the gate into his office or cornered him in one of the corridors.

It was almost a cinch to get into his office. Ralph, the countess and politeness man on the gate in the hall, would try to hold the crowd down to the size of a small mob, but just when he was winning a point that "the boss has got a lot of people in there," Tex had a way of appearing in the door and saying—"What do you want? Go in there with the fellers. I'll be in a minute."

He would allow the newspapermen to crash in on any kind of a conference and if he happened to be talking some very private business he would usher his clients into his office and sit down and chew the fat with the boys as long as they wanted to stay. Or if the subject of the conference was not confidential he would say—"Go on and talk in front of these boys. They pester me anyway until I tell 'em everything."

The ease with which Rickard transacted his business was astounding.

There weren't any clerks bustling around his office. There weren't any books in sight. A scratch pad on the desk got plenty of work from a stubby pencil but one of those swell desk pen sets that someone had given him was touched only when the porter cleaned up the quarters.

Miss Naomi Lewonowski, his personal secretary, gave his office an atmosphere of her own. She was bustling in and told him that Mr. Soandso was on the phone and wanted to know if he could get that box for the hockey match.

"Yep, I guess so. Fix him up," he would direct and then go back to conversation with the boys on any subject from the diseases of suckling calves to the trick that was pulled when Dempsey was weighed in for the benefit of the skeptical scribbles before the Willard fight in Toledo.

The trick might be mentioned here. Some of the experts thought that Dempsey was too light for Willard (and Rickard thought so himself). So he told Jimmy De Forest to fix up Dempsey and weigh him before the boys. The scales were brought in at the appointed time and were thoroughly tested. The boys tested their own weight on them and Dempsey was brought in. He weighed something like 184 pounds and the boys were amazed.

Before Dempsey was brought in De Forest had him eat a dozen bananas and drink four quarts of heavy ale and, if I recall correctly, De Forest said the process put 11 pounds on him.

Rickard never kept any books until the Garden got so big he had to. He kept very few notes. His office was in his hat. I asked him once how he trusted his memory when there were serious items of thousands of dollars involved.

"I'm used to it," he said. "Can't carry the books around and might lose the notes. Never kept books in the old days. The bartenders used to take their own pay out of the drawer when they went off shift."

His private office was stocked with comfortable chairs. He liked to have people around him and he seemed to delight in the company of the newspapermen. Some of his subordinates, with superior ways, weren't as friendly and some of them chided Rickard that a smoke-filled room, packed with loafing reporters, wasn't the proper atmosphere for the president's office.

It really couldn't have been an act with him. He was too sincere. He wasn't inviting personal publicity. From his daily contact with the newspapermen, and with one or two fight managers, they became the friends with whom he could be thoroughly at ease. He must have been, after all, a very lonely man. He liked to talk and sit around with the bunch.

Sharkey-Stribling Bout Certain To Be Cancelled

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Jan. 11.—Officials of the Madison Square Garden Corporation wishing to do the right thing by "Dear Old Tex" undoubtedly will look long and earnestly through Rickard's private papers for "documentary evidence" of his Stribling-Sharkey guarantees and then, having turned up none, they will render the slick, slick, slick, "Hurrah! We Can Find Nothing."

It will be a fine, brave thing to do. They will be crushed, desolated. But these are men who know how to suffer secretly. With great self-control, they will be able to mask their true feelings under a smiling exterior and, if the smile is thinking about happens to be a laugh, you will know that the man in question is practicing self-control in a big way.

No Guarantee

It all probably means that there will be no $100,000 guarantee for Jack Sharkey, if ever there was such, which probably means that there will be no Jack Sharkey, which possibly means that there will be no fight. Col. Hammond and William F. Carey have declared for standing behind any "documentary" obligation incurred by an officer of the corporation but, if they are not convinced that some exists, then they must have been talking about the high cost of sleeve garters when they called Sharkey in on the rug the day of the funeral.

Plan New Policy

The situation narrows itself down to a question of how soon a new policy of strict conservatism may be instituted at the Garden. The instituting in question can start somewhat sooner than immediately without being premature, as far as many of these men are concerned, and if Rickard has done nothing to obligate them, that will be one of life's misfortunes under open with his gambling tendencies in promotion because that was "in character" and part of the script. But he couldn't make all of them like it.

Carey's Position

One of them who didn't and never was abashed about saying so was

Mr. Carey and it may be of interest at this time that this gentleman generally is expected to become executive head of the corporation at an early date. He always fought Rickard on those lavish guarantees, even when the receipts seemed to justify the promoter's judgment, and when the Tunney-Heeney fight proceeded to make no money at an awful rate, Mr. Carey was not alone in his pained disapproval. He seemed to think, in fact, that this was not the kind of thing that ought to be encouraged.

Unless I have been misinformed, this gentleman is the active though silent head of the Garden Corporation right at this moment and, unless I mistake his intentions, there will be no guarantee at all for the Sharkey-Stribling fight, which ought to mean that there will be no fight.

As for Dempsey's innocuous statement, it was the only thing to do under the circumstances, since it is understood that he has no great wish to fight under the present auspices at the Garden and there seems to be nobody else that appeals to him, either. Another good reason for the indefinite character of his announcement is that the man doesn't know his own mind from one minute to another and the thing he says today simply doesn't go tomorrow. There being no necessity for haste, therefore, the entire matter can be pushed ahead until such time as a showdown is indicated.

OLSON'S SWEDES HAVE PLAYED IN 32 OF 48 STATES

Kansas Basketball Team Nationally Known; Won 441 of 515 Games.

Olson's Terrible Swedes hailing from Coffeyville, Kansas, are the widest known basketball team ever booked to play in Manchester. Their record shows that they have played in at least 32 of the 48 states in the union.

Any club that is in such demand as that must be well worth giving the "once over." Their record reveals games played in every section of the United States ranging from New England to Florida to Texas to California, Indiana and Michigan.

Here is a list of states in which the Swedes have appeared: Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, Wisconsin, Washington, Illinois, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Kentucky.

Judging from their record, the Rec Five is in for a hectic evening to say the least. The Swedes have been organized for eight years over which space of time they claim to have won 441 of the 515 games they have played. They play at the Rec gym next Tuesday evening.

Local Sport Clatter

Too bad Coach Clarke and his High school basketball players are firm believers of Christmas Science. Granting they were, then there would be no need of postponing the game. They could just maintain they were perfectly well and go ahead and play.

We took a jaunt over to Center Springs pond yesterday to have a little chat with "Woody" Wallett, pond supervisor, ice-thickness announcer, skating weather forecaster and what not. And in connection with this, we can't help admitting that the dressing house for the skaters is quite a bit too small. A telephone would also be a worthwhile addition. Wonder how long it would take to summon aid, if an accident occurred?

Gus Sonnenberg, the new wrestling champion of the world won his title by butting Strangler Lewis out of the ring seven times in succession. At last we have a wrestler who knows enough to use his head.

Sonnenberg has won many of his matches by picking up his opponents and throwing them high into the air letting them fall where they may—which, by the way, is much similar to the stock market theory. There is one drawback about this, doesn't go tomorrow. There being no necessity for haste, therefore, the entire matter can be pushed ahead until such time as a showdown is indicated.

FAVOR A MEMORIAL FOR 'TEX' RICKARD

New York, Jan. 11.—Friends of the late Tex Rickard have proposed that a memorial mausoleum be erected for the sports promoter in Woodlawn Cemetery, near where he lies buried. A motion that funds be appropriated for this purpose will be made at the next meeting of the directors of the Garden corporation, it is understood.

A death mask of the promoter was made after his funeral and this will be used in the creation of a bust which will be placed in Madison Square Garden.

Wonder how many fans would turn out to witness a basketball game played under professional rules if the Rec were to stage such an attraction here? Betcha see lot of folks that aren't attending the games nowadays.

The nearest Olson's Terrible Swedes have played to Manchester was in Pittsfield, Mass., last season and in Stamford, Conn., this season, according to the advance dope.

The Rec Five will practice at 7:30 tonight at the Rec gym.

Howard Murphy and "Lefty" Curtis meet next Wednesday night in the first of a 20 game bowling match at the Charter Oak alleys.

YOU and BASKETBALL

By H. C. Carlson, M. D.
University of Pittsburgh Coach.

Dr. James Naismith originated the game of basketball at the Springfield, Y. M. C. A. Training School in 1892. Its growth since then has been remarkable.

In his words there were four outstanding principles involved in originating the game.

1. That it should be an interesting game with a ball that could be handled but not hidden by the hands.

2. That it should be an easy game to learn, so that anybody could play.

3. That it should be so skillful

HARTFORD HIGH NEXT ON SLATE

Play Here Week From Saturday—That Is, If "Flu" Says Okay.

Unless the influenza situation fails to improve sufficiently, Manchester High school will resume its basketball schedule next week Friday playing at West Hartford and meeting Hartford Public High here the following night.

Three games have already been at least postponed and possibly one of them permanently cancelled because of the illness of the students. Coach Wilfred J. Clarke has been ill as well as several members of the team. However, all of the players but Hugh Morlarty and Ernie Dowd are back in school again. Coach Clarke, although much improved, is still being marked "absent." When sufficient players have been on hand, Thomas F. Kelley, football and baseball coach, has been directing the practice periods.

Asked regarding the fate of the postponed games, Faculty Manager Edson M. Bailey said that he hoped to arrange all of the games with the possible exception of that with Crosby of Waterbury. Due to the proximity of Rockville, the game with that school could be played almost any time. Meriden will be the hardest to work in and that will be done some way because it is a league contest.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

ASHTORETH ASHE is having the most exciting adventure of her life in a little house on top of a mountain in tropical Dominica.

Ashtoreth is a stenographer from Boston. The owner of the house is HOLLIS HART, her multi-millionaire employer. They have met by accident in Dominica, a little island in the West Indies.

Ashtoreth, who has been ill, is taking a cruise. Hart has stopped off, en route to South America, and found the place, so charming that he has taken a house and means to stay a while. They are delighted to see each other. And Ashtoreth purposely misses the boat in order to stay on the island. She pretends, of course, that it was an accident. And Mr. Hart seems not to suspect her little ruse.

Finally he discovers her boat has sailed. There is nothing left but to wait for the next boat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII
"Two jumps, Holly?"

Ashtoreth sat at the breakfast table and tried to read wifely. She was wearing Hollis' pajamas and looking her best.

Now, women, en masse, are not built for pajamas, any more than men are built for nightgowns. But Ashtoreth was one of those tall, slim girls, with long legs. Lean from knee to hip, and that, of course, makes a difference. As a matter of fact, she never looked better in her life.

They were orchid satin pajamas. With a military neck, and a Russian sash.

Over them she wore a silk dressing gown of Roman striped effect. Behind each ear she had pinned a scarlet hibiscus, red as her laughing lips.

Her own clothes were drying on the bushes. And Ashtoreth was wishing it would rain, so that she could wear the pajamas all day.

"A week tomorrow," remarked Hollis, and saluted his paw apathetically. "The boat is coming in early, Orchid."

For six days these two lived in the little house on the top of the mountain. And every day the sun had shone, and every night the stars had twinkled and bathed the garden in silver light.

"And now," he said, "you are going away."

Ashtoreth bent her head above her plate. And wondered what a girl should do in such a situation. Hollis Hart loved her. That is, he was crazy about her. She knew that it had been awfully difficult for him—being so dreadfully respectful.

And she loved him. Or was it love? Well, it didn't really matter. He had money to burn. And he was sweet, and wonderfully deferential. And generous as could be. After all, what else is there? It wasn't even as if he wasn't good looking. Why, Hollis Hart had simply everything! A girl would be an awful fool if she couldn't love a man like him.

warmth and longing. And Jack Smythe had voted his desires in no uncertain terms. There were, also, other men. They had not particularly impressed Ashtoreth.

Beautiful girls are usually sophisticated. Unless, of course, they are dumb. Aside from her own experiences, Ashtoreth's knowledge of the affairs of other girls—notably Sadie—had tended to acquaint her with the ways and thoughts of men.

For six days she and Hollis Hart had lived in a glamorous paradise. Her presence had stimulated and excited him. So that he had kissed her and made love. But further than that he had not gone. . . . And tomorrow she was going home.

They were alone now in the dining room. Beyond the long windows lay the garden. Humming birds fluttered about the butterfly bushes. And a wondrous little breeze that had dallied among the lilies and stolen their fragrance came stealing through the room.

Hollis put his hand on Ashtoreth's. "Have you been happy?" he asked her.

"So happy," she said.

"Will you miss me?" he asked her.

"The knew then what it was he would ask next—when she slipped her hand in his.

"Oh, I'll miss you fearfully," she told him. And pried her fingers beneath his, and let them rest against his hot, hard palm. And they were soft and cool and lovely.

"Do you love me," he whispered. "Just a little, Orchid?"

"Mm-mm," she murmured, so like a little frightened thing that he had to lean to hear.

They were quiet for a minute. And a mountain whistler, through the stillness, called his mate.

"Do you," she asked, "love me . . . a little?"

Beneath her breath she asked it, with her chin on her shoulder, and her dark hair against his mouth. So that his lips caressed, the red flower she had pinned behind her ear.

"Oh, my dear," he cried. "My dear!"

A servant, padding softly on bare feet, came and filled their coffee cups. They ate in silence, tasting their food and pushing the plates away.

"Come," he said, and drew her to her feet. "It is glorious in the garden now."

They wandered through a crumbly wall to a giant tree whose hollow trunk was cushioned with moss. Above their heads a cluster of orchids grew from a bough within their reach.

"This tree," he told her, "is the father of all trees. See, there is room enough within its trunk for two to sit and love."

"Give me your lips" he whispered. "Just once."

And when he had kissed her he held her away, with his fingers gripping her arms so tightly that she winced.

"That is all I want," he said. His voice was stern, as if he were trying to convince himself that it was the truth. He even repeated it. And his mouth tightened at the corners.

"That is all I want, Orchid. Only your lips, dear. Your lips—just once."

Ashtoreth's heart was beating madly. Throbbing in the hollow of her throat, where Monty used to press his kisses. Her eyes were wide and frightened. But she smiled with her red lips. And was, at once, filled with fear and rejoicing.

Because she knew that Hollis Hart lied with his twisting, hungry mouth.

"Go put some clothes on!" he told her harshly. His voice was very rough. But that was because he was trying to keep it even.

She smiled again. And brushed his cheek with her lips.

"Once more," she whispered. She put her arms about his neck and drew his mouth to hers.

His breath was hot on her face. And his blue eyes were flashing like Mona's. He bent fiercely and fastened his lips on hers. And she felt his teeth, hard and cruel.

She tried, impotently, to shake her head. He hurt, when he kissed like that. As she struggled he drew away.

"I never meant to kiss you like that," he told her. "For days I've been stealing myself against this . . ."

"Why?" she asked.

He ground his heel into the soft ground. And put his feet apart and his hands in his pockets.

"Why?" she repeated innocently.

"My God!" he exclaimed. "Don't you know why?"

She shook her head helplessly. A strange breathlessness welled within her, filling her body and her throat, so that her breath came in little strangled gasps.

He looked at her steadily, until her face crimsoned, and she dropped her eyes.

"You know why," he said.

"Yes," she whispered.

"Then please," he besought her, "go get dressed!"

She laughed like a naughty child.

"I haven't any clothes," she reminded him. "They're hanging on a hickory limb, or something. Hortense said so."

Hortense was a big, ebony laundress. Ashtoreth left her clothes each night on the floor as she stepped out of them. Some time before she woke, Hortense washed and ironed them. But this morning there was a shower, and Hortense had explained that little Missy must wait. Ashtoreth had no other clothes, and wore Hollis' pajamas and dressing gown through necessity.

"I'll put on your raincoat," she offered, "if this houndry scenery bothers you."

"You'd better," he told her grimly. "Saint Anthony himself couldn't look at you in that outfit."

She secured her hibiscus firmly in the great coils of heavy hair that hugged her ears, and wound the silk gown about her hips.

Hollis appraised her critically. "If Mr. Zeigfeld could see you now," he informed her, "there'd be a pajama brigade in the Folies. Tall slim girls, with red flowers behind their ears."

She laughed delightedly.

"I always wanted to go on the stage," she confessed. "I suppose every girl does. I read a story once about a famous Folies queen, you know. It said that she was quite a poor girl who lived in Boston. She was a bride and her husband wanted to have a picture of her in her wedding gown. But she was such a thrifty little thing she wouldn't let him spend the money. She hid it by some little hole in the kitchen, or some curtain for the bedroom, instead. But he coaxed her to a studio, and when she heard him tell the photographer that they wanted the very cheapest picture they could get, she consented to have one taken."

"But when she wasn't listening her husband told the man to finish a great big beautiful one. And it was such a perfectly lovely picture that the photographer asked her husband's permission to submit it to some beauty contest. Helen almost won it because it cost so much money. She didn't feel any better when they told her she had won first prize either, because she was so furious with her husband for being extravagant. You see, she was absolutely crazy about him and she didn't care a bit about being famous, or a beauty, or anything of the sort."

"But her husband was so proud that he persuaded her to go to New York to accept the prize. He took her to the station and kissed her goodby. And promised to water the plants and feed the cat, and everything."

"And then, all of a sudden, Mr. Zeigfeld, or someone, saw Helen. And they offered her a great big contract. And everybody started calling her the most beautiful girl in the world."

"And that, I suppose," interrupted Hollis, "was the end of the poor, adoring husband?"

"I guess it was," agreed Ashtoreth. "But what I started to say was—wasn't it just like a fairy tale? It was too bad, of course—walking out on a loving husband, but just the same . . ."

Hollis interrupted. "Imagine having a worshipped wife and losing her to the other man in the world. Now if I should marry a beautiful girl—and another man admired her worshipped charms—do you know what I'd do?"

Ashtoreth laughed.

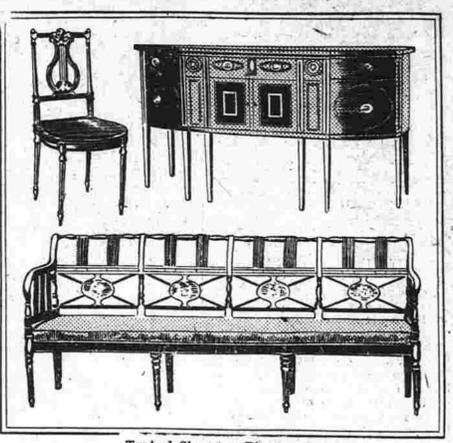

"No," she said. "What would you do?"

"Well, . . . Hollis surveyed her appraisingly. Sunbeams played in her blue-black hair, making it glisten like a bird's sleek wing. She kept his dressing gown swathed about her hips, but the broad lapels had fallen back. And the soft curves of her lovely body showed tantalizingly through the soft satin of her pajama jacket.

(To be Continued)

Hollis Hart, in the next chapter, proves to be a thrilling lover . . . and Ashtoreth is deliberately provocative. Whatever happens, it's her own fault.

Sheraton Furniture Is Popular With Moderns

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Sheraton style of furniture is the subject of this, the nineteenth article of a series of "MAKING HOMES BEAUTIFUL" which William H. Wilson, vice president of the American Furniture Mart and a noted authority on interior decoration, is writing for The Herald.

BY WILLIAM H. WILSON.
Written for NEA Service.

Euclid, the genius of geometry, has a staunch supporter in Thomas Sheraton, a genius of furniture design. Geometric designs feature Sheraton's work, and the straight line received his especial consideration.

There is much similarity between the Sheraton furniture and that of the Louis XVI period. Where Chippendale elaborated on the French period, Sheraton simplified it. Sheraton is a classic style, simple, severe and at the same time delicate.

Legs are always straight, the most typical being rounded and tapered, although some legs are the square tapered Hepplewhite leg. The backs of Sheraton chairs are low, the back upright usually being a continuation of the back leg. Often a central panel in the back framed a lyre or vase motif. Arms are also characteristic, being formed like a long, narrow letter "S."

Restrained use of inlay was an outstanding characteristic of Sheraton's work. He used mahogany in the main, and inlaid it with rare woods such as satinwood. Carving was used frequently for seats and for chair backs.

The structure of Sheraton's chairs seems frail, but his knowledge of construction caused him to plan his chairs and settees so that support was given at necessary points. Apparently frail, this characteristic of Sheraton design is one of its superior attributes.

Sheraton is extremely good style for use today. It may be used with furniture of the American Colonial and Empire periods, and the lines blend nicely with the simple austerity of such designs. A Sheraton settee, side chair or occasional table, as well as a piece for every room in the home, may be found in this style. In a room in which the walls are papered, painted or paneled, with oriental rugs in delicate colors on the floor, Sheraton furniture is well placed in the twentieth century.

The largest legs ever seen were laid by a bird now extinct and measured 12 inches long and 9 inches across.

PROOF OF BLOOD FLOW ONLY 300 YEARS OLD

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBURN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

In 1628 William Harvey, an Englishman, wrote a book in which for the first time it was proved that the blood actually circulates throughout the human body. The year 1928 was the ter-centenary of this discovery.

In his book Harvey proved a fact which many had thought about and written about for at least 1500 years previously. He did it in a simple manner; at least, it seems simple to us today. For those who do not understand the way the blood moves about the human system, the proof is a revelation.

Pulse and Heart Beats.

In the first place Harvey showed that the pulse beat takes place at the same time as the heart beat. He showed that the heart stopped beating at death, and that the pulse stopped at the same time. The most significant things that he showed, however, were the facts that when an artery was cut, the blood spurting in a direction away from the heart and that when the veins of the arm were blocked, the blood turned up on the side away from the heart.

Of course, this meant that at each beat of the heart blood was forced out into the arteries, that it proceeded through the arteries to various portions of the body, and that it was then returned by the veins toward the heart.

With a remarkably logical mind, he then did an experiment of the greatest importance. He measured the amount of blood contained in the heart of an animal. He then killed the animal and found out how much blood there was in the whole body.

Thus, he was able to show that if the heart throws out a certain amount of blood at each beat and that if the amount of blood in the whole body represents approximately a certain amount, that in one-half hour the heart will have forced out all of the blood available, and that if it kept on pumping, it would have to re-pump the blood that was returned to it.

Great Revelation, Then.

As has been stated, this seems relatively simple. Actually at an age which had no knowledge of the structure of the human body, of either human beings or of animals, the discovery came as a great revelation.

A few years later an Italian named Malpighi proved the existence of what are known as capillaries, the very tiny spaces in various portions of the body which represent the terminations of the arteries and the beginnings of the veins, through which the blood makes the final passage from the artery to the vein system.

NEW NORTH STATION AT BOSTON OPTS UNIFORMS FOR ALL ITS EMPLOYEES

Boston.—The "Red Cap," for years the symbol of the porter in the railroad terminals of the United States, Canada, South America and Europe, has been supplemented by bright blue caps, trimmed with buff as the uniform identification of the New North Station at the Boston and Maine here.

The caps will depart from the straight visored, straight sided top pieces that have been standard among porters for years, with a semi-formal military shape, more comfortable for the wearer.

All the forces at the New North Station will be in uniform hereafter. Ticket sellers, information clerks, and travel bureau men will wear blue serge coats with the insignia "B & M R." on the lapel. White collars, black ties, and black shoes will be worn by all.

SASKATCHEWAN ORDERS 125,000 AUTO PLATES

Regina, Sask.—The motor car has conquered the bleak Canadian prairies, dubbed by Stefanor as the "coldest spot in the world." Orders for 1929 license plates placed by the Saskatchewan government indicate that there will be around 125,000 motor vehicles in the province next year, or more than one to every two families.

The field is so attractive that during 1928, nearly $5,000,000 worth construction was carried out by automobile accessory manufacturers in Regina alone.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Are your children getting enough milk?

Because, if they are not, in time it will tell on their general health: every tissue in the body composing vital organs, muscles and membranes, teeth, and bones will suffer.

Milk is absolutely necessary to the diet of little children and every sacrifice should be made to get it as long as they are growing.

Even after baby is "off his bottle" he should be given milk to supplement his other food to the amount of one quart a day.

This does not mean that he must drink one quart a day—only part of it. The rest can be put into cooked foods, for cooked milk does not lose its nutritive value.

Better Not to Roll Milk

But I shouldn't roll milk any more than necessary in making cocoa or milk soups. Prepare the other part and cook as much as necessary, then add it to the milk that has been brought to a scald only.

Sometimes mothers think that what a mistake! It is rich in all sorts of things that children need. All it lacks is butter fat, and this can be supplied by butter. For instance if you use skim milk over toast or cereal or crackers, spread a little butter on first. Never waste an ounce of skim milk.

Families that cannot afford whole milk could buy skim milk cheaply and supply the fats in the children's food by butter, butter substitutes, or inexpensive vegetable oils of which there are many wholesome ones on the market; never by fried food, however. Never, never, give a child any fried food.

Milk won't fight with fruit that is not too acid. If a child takes orange juice, it won't hurt him to have milk on his cereal.

Ware of This Combination

But I wouldn't give a little child milk or cream on strawberries in the summer.

Milk can be served on any stewed fruit.

Milk can be cooked in a cereal or served on it, or both. It can be used in puddings, soups, gravies, custards, cocoa, or made into simple white sauce and cooked with vegetables. There are dozens of ways of using it.

But be sure allow a child plain milk to drink, either with his meals, or in between, or at bed time.

It should always be sipped—never gulped, and never served very cold. It should be sweet and clean and kept covered.

I have been asked if condensed milk is all right. Yes, it is, when necessary, also evaporated, or even powdered milk—but make every effort to get fresh milk first, particularly for drinkings.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUGNER

All sorts of punishments for violators of the prohibition enactment were suggested by thousands of entrants participating for the W. C. Durant prize money for the best plans for prohibition enforcement. Many of the contestants favored punishment as a deterrent and suggested such cheerful forms of it as being given poison in the liquor, banished to barren islands, suspended from the ceiling by the thumbs, and similar bits of pleasantry.

CRUEL WOMAN

Comment is made that most of the punishment suggestions were by women, and that the most fiendish forms were unearthed by the frail sex.

It probably only means that more women competed than men, women having the contest bag to much greater proportion than males, or it may only mean that violation of the prohibition law, feel the need for revenge more. Mothers of sons, and all that.

WHY?

The body of a 21-year-old college girl was washed up from under the rocks at the foot of a cliff the other day. Every means, including the chartering of an airplane to skim over the lake looking for the body, had been employed by the girl's prosperous father during the several days of the girl's disappearance. Bloodhounds finally trailed her to the cliff's edge twice.

REASONS

Nervous prostration and melancholia over her illness were advanced as cause of the suicide or accident. "Flaming youth" cannot be cited as a cause, for college authorities remarked on the girl's quietness and absorption in her studies. Other analysts will seize upon too much study as a cause and wonder why girls go to college anyway.

But nobody knows just why and how it all happened. Just one more challenge to the men of mental science who are needed today even more than physicians for the physical.

ETERNAL HOPE

An 80-year-old Civil War veteran obtained one of the last Reno divorces of 1928 on the grounds of excessive jealousy. He was married a few hours later to another lady. Rather strangely enough, I find more optimism than anything else in this little human anecdote. It is a symbol of the hope that springs eternal in the human breast, sometimes.

HUMAN DEPRESSIONS

Humans in the main are apt to get too discouraged at the prospect of the oncoming years at times. At 20 one regards 30 as hopelessly old, and 30 one is inclined sometimes to laugh at 20's ideas and sometimes to believe it's viewpoint is right. As one grows older it is increasingly difficult to believe that the best years are not gone or that there is anything ahead.

The spectacle of 80-year-olds daring to cast off the old and be on with the new is good for all of us.

FAMILY DRAG

John Coddige's oncoming papa-in-law, Governor Trumbull of Connecticut, wants John as a major on his staff. He'll have to ask the legislature to permit it by amending a law which would make a citizen's military training camp producer eligible. The governor is brave. Nepotism is a charge from which many a public man shrinks. And yet when little or no emolument is attached, and the job is all, or largely, honor, there won't be so many complaints. It's only when the taxpayers count nickels that they raise the hullabaloo.

TWO BIG FEATURES AT CIRCLE TOMORROW

Another unusually fine double feature program is due to be presented at the cozy Circle theater this Saturday and Sunday. The features are Adolphe Menjou in "His Tiger Lady" and "The Michigan Kid," co-starring Conrad Nagel and Renee Adoree. The opening chapter of a new serial, "Tarzan the Mighty" and a comedy will also be shown. As is customary, tomorrow's show will run continuous from 2:15 until 10:30.

In "His Tiger Lady," Adolphe Menjou is seen in a new type of characterization—a role that proves entirely different than anything the popular star has ever done, yet a part that is exactly suited to his talents. Menjou is seen in the characterization of a striving actor in the Folies Bergere, Paris, who is believed by many to be a mysterious East Indian Maharajah. His love for a beautiful girl of supposed wealth causes him to fill her with flattery. How he finally manages to win her affections is told in a thrilling and delightful manner. Not once does the charm of Menjou fail to impress the audience.

Evelyn Brent, beautiful and talented, plays opposite the star as the girl. Others in the cast are Mario Carillo, Rose Dione and Emil Chautard. Hobart Henley directed. "The Michigan Kid" is a thrilling and powerful drama of the Alaskan country, filled to the utmost with breath-taking moments of suspense and a smashing dramatic climax. Conrad Nagel and Renee Adoree surpass all of their previous starring efforts in this picture.

Scotland's birthrate in 1927 was the lowest on record.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Tryouts for positions on the Triangular Debating team will be held next Monday. Those trying out will defend one side of the proposition, "Resolved, that the President of the United States should be elected by a direct vote of the people." The question for the triangular debate has not been selected yet but on January 21 the preferences of the three schools will be made known and the question favored by a majority of the schools will be selected as the question for the triangular debate.

A prize of five dollars has been offered to the student selling the most tickets to the play, "The Poor Nut" to be presented by the Town Players on January 18 at the Circle theater. Many students are now busy selling the tickets and spirited competition is expected to result as the contest enters its final stages.

A large group of members of the Sock and Buskin Dramatic club have been assigned to their parts in the cheering scene and five prominent track athletes of the high school make their entrance at the dramatic race scene. Any student who wishes to enter into competition for the ticket-selling prize may secure his tickets from any member of Group 2.

At a meeting of the Junior Class yesterday the following committee-chairmen for the Junior Prom were elected: Music, Francis Sullivan; refreshments, Charles Bycholsky; invitation, Elizabeth Carlson; decoration, Elizabeth Washkewich.

Due to the large number of pupils that have been absent a large part of the marking-period it has been deemed advisable to set ahead the date for the holding of the marking-period tests, in order to give those pupils that were absent a chance to make up the work they have missed. No report cards will be issued at the end of the third marking period but the report cards issued at the end of the fourth marking period will carry the marks for the two preceding marking periods.

WELCOME KEN STRONG

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 11.—West Haven, aspiring to be a city, will throw ambition to the winds tomorrow evening to receive winds Strong, New York University football star. Mr. and Mrs. Strong will receive, according to present plans, a greater welcome than any homelcomer ever received, not excepting the town's war heroes. The abandoned West Haven railroad station is to be reopened to receive the strong, "Chick" Meehan, Galahad Grant, N. Y. U.'s next football captain; Grantland Rice and other celebrities. A dinner, addresses, presentation of gifts and a dance are on the program.

CONSTRUCTION COMPANY GETS AVON CONTRACT

The Manchester Construction Company has been awarded the contract for the erection of a new school in Avon, Conn. The building will be of brick construction and modern in every particular. It will be completed by August 1. Towner and Sellev of Middletown are the architects and the chairman of the school building is Joseph W. Alsop.

SCORES OF MIDDIES IN "ANNAPOLIS" FILM

Colorful Drama of Young Manhood Opens at State Today; Also Three Vitaphone Acts.

Scores of midshipmen at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis were employed by Pathe to play important parts in "Annapolis," the new film thriller featuring Johnny Mack Brown, Jeanette Loff and Hugh Allen, which will have its premier presentation at the State Theater today.

The middies move constantly in the colorful background and at gun practice it was impossible to distinguish the featured players from the genuine midshipmen. There is a strong love romance in which two midshipmen and a pretty girl are the angles. The action is swift-moving and at times quite dramatic.

The picture is presented with synchronized sound and music effects making it all the more realistic.

The Foy Family, proteges of the famous Eddie Foy, a comedian of rare note, are the headliners on the Vitaphone Vaudeville program for today and tomorrow. This group of clever entertainers offer a snappy routine of songs and dance steps. Others who will also be seen and heard on the Vitaphone are Shaw and Lee, a pair of hilarious clowns, and H. J. Conley, the popular musical comedy star, in a short dramatic playlet entitled "The Bookworm."

Beginning Sunday evening, the State will present Fannie Brice in "My Man," another of the famous Warner Brothers Vitaphone "all-talking" productions.

WEATHER HELPING TO STRETCH COAL SUPPLY

Manchester people have probably burned as much coal this winter as in other winters, but they seem to be making an effort to "stretch" the supply. The cold weather in September started the rush for coal and the weather lasted so long that the dealers were kept busy bringing in supplies. The first three days of this week were also busy ones for coal dealers. The delivery carts were kept on the road, but with the change in weather that came yesterday the orders fell off and there is ample supply of coal on hand in Manchester right now to take care of the rest of the winter's needs, one of the dealers said today.

Over and over again the doctors are stressing the high importance of increasing the vegetable and fruit diet during this period of grip. They are so well agreed that there must be something to it. ARTIST'S FUNERAL

Madison, Conn., Jan. 11.—Funeral services were held here today for Katherine Peters Lofting, artist, wife of Hugh Lofting, noted writer of children's stories. Mrs. Lofting died in New Haven hospital of pneumonia two weeks after she married Mr. Lofting, her second husband. Burial took place in Killingworth Southwest cemetery.

MILITIAMEN TO CAMP AT NANTIC AGAIN

No Truth to Report That National Guard Troops Are to Go to Camp Devens.

There is no truth to the persistent report among Manchester national guardsmen that next summer's annual encampment will be at Camp Devens in Massachusetts. The Herald learned today from Captain Irving E. Partridge, regimental adjutant of the 169th Infantry, C. N. G., of which company G and the Howitzer company are a part.

Captain Partridge said that he had also heard the report that the entire division was to encamp at Camp Devens as a unit next summer, but that it was "nothing more than a rumor which arises annually."

One well known Manchester officer was much pleased when he heard the news. He said Camp Devens cannot compare with Camp Turnbull at Nantic where the regiment has encamped for several years. News that the soldiers will go back to Nantic, will be most welcome to both officers and men here.

ICE SUPPLY COMING FROM OLD BREWERY

Natural Product on Ponds Not Yet Thick Enough So Artificial Ice Is Brought Here.

Manchester's ice supply is not coming from the ponds or warehouses of its dealers in town, but is being carted from Hartford where the artificial ice is bought from the old New England Brewery which has been changed into an ice making plant.

Fred Starkweather, who supplies the ice at the north end, has not been able to find ice more than four inches thick on any of the ponds from which he cuts and has been carting ice from Hartford for several weeks and previous to that was getting it in freight.

L. T. Wood, who was able to cut some ice from the new pond that he has leased in the Camp Meeting woods, known as Sperry's, found that the ice cut on the pond was not of sufficient thickness to store and has been using it for immediate delivery. This only lasted a few days and he is now getting his ice in Hartford.

TOTAL P. O. BUSINESS HERE MAY BE $100,000

Postmaster Ernest Brown Thinks Combined Office Business May Even Exceed That Mark.

Postmaster Ernest F. Brown estimates that the total amount of business done in Manchester through its five postoffices will approach if not exceed the $100,000 mark. And the total is still growing. In Manchester postoffices the total net business done this past year was $27,562.82 against $11,414.44 in 1918, ten years ago. This in addition to the business of over $60,000 done at the South Manchester postoffice alone brings the total to $87,500 and with the business done at the Highland Park offices he expressed the opinion that the total amount would be well towards the $100,000 mark.

The reason that the other offices, with the exception of the Manchester Green office, show larger amounts now than in former years is due to the parcel post handled at these offices. There is also a natural increase in Manchester Green because of the amount of new building that has been done in that section.

TO TRY NEW LIGHT AT BAD CROSSING

Main and Park Streets Intersection to Be Lighted to Aid Traffic Conditions.

Men in the employ of the Manchester Electric Company were at work this morning making a connection with the box on the pole near the Keith Furniture Company store opposite Park street and running a new power line to the southeast corner of the building. To this wire is connected a reflector and a high watt light to reflect down onto Main street as a police spot light.

The present light used at the intersection of Main and Park streets is located on the west side of the street and does not seem to give the desired light. It has not been satisfactory to the police or to the automobile drivers. There have been several cases when the "stop" and "go" sign would not be seen and accidents have resulted.

TO USE STATE POSTERS

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 11.—The State Board of Health's posters and circulars warning against influenza are "good enough for New Haven," according to Mayor Thomas Tully who has urged the Board of Finance to turn down the local Board of Health in its request for funds to pay for printing such notices.

When Dr. John L. Rice, city health officer pointed out that manufacturing plants had asked for such circulars, Hugh Lofting, noted writer of children's stories, Mrs. Lofting died in New Haven hospital of pneumonia two weeks after she married Mr. Lofting, her second husband. Burial took place in Killingworth Southwest cemetery.

YANKEES BUY CLUB.

New York, Jan. 11.—Officials of the New York Yankees today confirmed a report that they had purchased the Chambersburg club of the Blue Ridge league. Tom Clark, former Cincinnati catcher, will manage the Virginia "farm," it was said.

Clark acted as coach for the Jersey City club last season and formerly was with the Newark club in the same capacity.

Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, said the club probably would take over the Syracuse club and might get the Jersey City outfit as a farm if a suitable park could be obtained.

To Jimmy, victory means that regaining of his former position among lightweights.

FLU PASSES PEAK IN LOCAL SCHOOLS

Dr. N. A. Burr Believes Crisis Has Passed—Many Back at Studies.

According to Dr. N. A. Burr, school physician in the Ninth District, the wave of grip and influenza which recently struck Manchester appears to have passed the crisis so far as the schools are concerned at least. However, it is quite naturally impossible to make this statement as a definite forecast.

A good many children have stayed home from school with colds of a more or less serious type and many have also been sent home following examinations as a precautionary measure. As a result school attendance has been seriously affected.

However, Dr. Burr said that the children are now beginning to return to school again and he hoped that this was an indication that the situation had passed its crisis and would soon be on the gain once more.

Robert J. Smith

Real Estate, Insurance, 14 Years at 1009 Main St.

Once he dropped six feet into a yawning ice chasm, hung by his harness and spun. With superhuman effort he pulled himself up.

Trembling and faint, half-frozen, exhausted, he lay for what must have seemed hours on the brink of the pit of death.

He struggled on. He was down to his last morsel of food when he reached upon a supply depot. Refreshed by food he made the last lap of a frightful journey down over the ice plateau, only to find his ship had sailed, leaving five men and stores for the winter. It was a year before his ship reached him.

GAS BUGGIES—Alec Isn't Taking Any Chances

WHAT DO YOU MEAN BY SAYING VIOLA WOULDN'T FEEL VERY FLATTERED SHE HAD HEARD THE STORY I TOLD DRESSER ABOUT MY REFORM?

I DIDN'T HEAR YOU MENTION HER NAME ONCE, AND YOU USED TO GIVE HER ALL THE CREDIT. BUT THAT'S THE WAY WITH FOLKS—THEY SOON FORGET WHAT YOU DO FOR THEM.

I DIDN'T TELL DRESSER ABOUT HER BECAUSE I DIDN'T THINK HE'D BE INTERESTED. BESIDES, VIOLA'S NAME IS TOO GOOD TO BE BANDIED ABOUT BY DAPPER DAN.

THAT'S ONE NICE THING ABOUT REFORM, IT MAKES A MAN VERY MODEST ABOUT MENTIONING A WOMAN'S NAME, ESPECIALLY TO ANYONE WHO MIGHT BECOME INTERESTED, AND GIVE HIM MORE COMPETITION THAN HE COULD HANDLE.

VIOLA IS A REAL WOMAN. SHE'S TOO SENSIBLE TO FALL FOR A SHEIK LIKE DAN. SHE WOULDN'T LOOK AT HIM THE SECOND TIME!!

SHE WOULDN'T HAVE TO OBEY ME TO ONE LOOK AT HIM AND ONE LOOK AT YOU WOULD SETTLE IT. HE ISN'T CALLED DAPPER DAN BECAUSE HE LOOKS LIKE A DAGUERRETYPE.

YESTERDAY ALEC SMART RELATED THE STORY OF HIS REFORM TO AN OLD PAL, MR. DRESSER, BUT HE CAREFULLY AVOIDED MENTIONING CERTAIN DETAILS WHICH WERE QUITE IMPORTANT.

ONE FOR AFTER DARK

Here's a hole to be played after dark — the MOON BEAM is provided. Par is four and one solution is on another page.

Letter Golf grid with letters M, O, O, N and B, E, A, M.

THE RULES

- 1—The idea of Letter Golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Some dwarfs stood near and laughed. "Ho, ho! Into the cream the Tinies go! We played a dandy trick on them, but it was just in fun. We surely hope that they're not mad, 'cause if they are it's just too bad. We will not let them catch us, 'cause we'll turn around and run."

ABOUT TOWN

Development of a system whereby still alarms of fires, together with information as to what company is answering, should be registered in all fire houses so as to prevent duplication of alarms and needless responses by more than one company, is to be deferred pending the installation of the dial system in Manchester by the Southern New England Telephone Company. It is expected now that the latter system will be operative about July 1 and at the same time provision will be made for the anti-duplication system in the fire houses.

Mrs. Seth Leslie Cheney and Miss Katherine Cheney of Hartford road are on their way to Havana, Cuba, by steamer. They will visit Mrs. Cheney's brother in the Cuban city and then proceed to Mrs. Cheney's old home at Santa Barbara, California.

Jeffery Moriarty of Division street, who was badly injured when struck by an automobile while walking on Park street in November, is now able to get around with the aid of crutches. He was first treated at his home and later taken to St. Francis hospital, Hartford, where he remained for about two weeks. Yesterday he was out on his crutches, but it will be some time before he is able to return to his work.

Robert Von Deck will sing "On the Road to Mandalay" at the Mothers club meeting tonight at the South Methodist church. The speaker will be Vere W. Abbey who has spent much of his life in India and plans to return as head of the Christian Endeavor movement in Southern Asia after obtaining his degree at the Hartford Theological seminary. Mr. Abbey's subject will be "On the Road to Mandalay." Mrs. Charles Whiteher is chairman of the hostesses.
